Girls Set Own Rules For Dates

By VIVIAN BROWN
'My family and friends do not approve of the boys that I like. I do not have brothers, so have no one to compare to these boys. How can I tell good boys from bad ones?'
'That is a good question, and a few girls are mighty eager to answer it, put this way:
'Why do you date your favorite beau?'
A 16-year-old blonde sophomore offers this reply:
'Because the first time I met him, he showed a distaste for off-color jokes, and since we have been dating there have been no signs that he must resort to 'crude language' to impress me.'
Qualities of that sort are definitely necessary to most girls, especially those who have been brought up in a quiet household, where a father confines man talk to his cronies, not within earshot of his family.
Judging a Beau
An 18-year-old senior prefers her college beau to any other because he is so kind to his mother. She writes:
'I feel that a young man who cares about his mother's comfort shows good signs of making a fine husband. Some girls could be jealous of the mother-son relationship, but I think that if not overcome it is a fine indication of the boy's character. A boy who learns to understand and respect his mother will have more tolerance with the whims of women in general—or at least it sounds logical.'
A 16-year-old teen-age model chooses older boys because . . .
'They are more fun and can take me places. I like a boy to be a good dancer, and to drive a presentable car. There is no sense dating a young man who doesn't understand his dating obligations—a good appearance, dancing ability, and pleasant conversation are all essential to entertaining a date.'
This girl is interested in her dates from the standpoint of fun, and not for any long range plan, so that is why her sights are different. Another girl has the theory that one should date every boy with the idea that you may marry him and you don't want to fall in love with the wrong type.
Manners Count
'A fat pocketbook is no indication of good manners, genuine affection or the ability to rear a family,' says a wise 17-year-old.
'What does she look for in a beau?
'It sounds silly, but the very first thing I think of when I date a boy is whether he would make a good father. If he doesn't like children or can't tolerate them, I drop him at once. I want to marry young, and have a large family, and I do not see any point in wasting time with young men who are opposed to my ideas. Of course I do not let them know that I have any such idea in mind, as the average boy would run the other way at the thought that a girl is setting a trap for him.'
And whether most people realize it or not, 13-year-olds have a few ideas along those lines. Here's one from an eighth-grade student:
'I do not like boys who invite you to a party just for the kissing routine. There are some boys who make a hobby of the spin-the-bottle circuit. I avoid them, and do not go to parties they attend.'

Make Floor Care Easy

RALEIGH — Floor care need not put you on the floor, says Miss Mimmie Wisnant, home management specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service.
Choose long-handled tools and learn the correct ways to use them.

The correct length handle for you is the one that is long enough for you to maintain good posture while working but still short enough that it doesn't get in your way.
You will need a wet mop that covers a large area and is easily cleaned, a self-squeezing mop that keeps excess water from the floor, a dry mop, a long-handled dust pan, a soft bristled floor brush that does not raise dust, and a long-handled wax applicator.
These with your vacuum cleaner and floor polisher will make it possible for you to meet your floors halfway.

With Farm Women

By ROBERTA GARNER
(Items this week from Sampson, Wilkes, Stanly, Perquimans, Hertford and Transylvania Counties.)
145 New Hats
Approximately 145 hats were "netted," stitched, beribboned and flowered at recent Sampson County hat making workshops.
Under the guidance of Mrs. Virginia Ewins, home economics agent, and 25 trained Home Demonstration Club clothing leaders, hats that were quite professional looking were produced by the club members.
Mrs. S. C. Daughtry, Goshen Club, said her husband never paid any attention to her hats until she made one. Now, he wants everyone who visits their home to see it.
'He is prouder of it than I am,' says the happy homemaker.
Pots and Pans
A "kitchen orchestra" with pots and pans furnishing the music is a new and fun-filled pastime for Wilkes County Home Demonstration Club women.
The home economics agent, Mrs. Annie Greene says this activity started at the county music meeting under the direction of Mrs. T. W. Ferguson. The attending women were quite surprised at the new "music" they created.
Pajama Contest
Almost 200 pairs of pajamas were made by 4-H'ers after a demonstration given by Mrs. Rebecca Mooney, assistant Stanly County home economics agent.
A "pajama contest" was held in each club with first and second place winners selected.
Next the county contest was held with winners in the senior division announced with Patsy Harris of Norwood, and Ann Mercer Endy taking first and second places, respectively. Junior winners were Joyce Almond, Aquadale, first, and Layne Lambert, Tidecrest, second. Spinning Wheel
'It took two weeks to remove the hard-cracked white paint from our antique spinning wheel,' said Mrs. Roy Winslow Belvidere, Rt. 1.
'During the first day of a Perquimans County furniture refinishing workshop, removing the finish and preparing the surface for the new finish was demonstrated by Mrs. Paige Underwood, home economics agent.
Two weeks later, Mrs. Winslow and others learned how to apply new finishes. The homemakers were pleased with their efforts and plan to continue working with other pieces of furniture they have in their homes.
Never Too Late
Three years ago, Mrs. Francis Holloman was surprised with a sewing machine for her birthday—but she didn't know how to sew. With the sewing machine, came a bright red plaid cotton fabric, pattern and other notions for a dress for her daughter.
At a recent clothing workshop in Woodrow community, Hertford County, the homemaker learned to sew. According to Mrs. Ethel Britz, home economics agent, the daughter has a beautifully made red plaid cotton dress. And Mrs. Holloman is thrilled with her accomplishment.
Cake Decorating
Mrs. Howard Galloway, Pisgah Forest Home Demonstration Club member in Transylvania County, is a cake decorating expert.
She is busy conducting workshops to share her talent with other homemakers in the Brevard and Glady Branch clubs, says Miss Ann Priest, home economics agent.
With necessary practice, these women will soon be able to decorate prize cakes for all their important family occasions.

Women Plan New Kitchen

By ROBERTA GARNER

Where to put the kitchen stove is no longer a problem for Nash County Home Demonstration Club women!

At a recent kitchen planning workshop conducted by Miss Pauline Gordon and Mrs. Lillie Little, house furnishings specialists for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service, and Mrs. Lydia Booth, assistant Nash County home economics agent, women from all over the county learned fundamentals of kitchen planning.

Building, remodeling, or merely rearranging were included to give each woman—and one man—present answers to their personal kitchen problems.

Mrs. Clem Patterson of Nashville plans to remodel her house this spring. A brand new kitchen and where to put the major appliances for maximum convenience occupied Mrs. Levia Edwards during the workshop.

An Ephesus Home Demonstration Club member Mrs. Spencer Edwards, is also building a new home. She planned the entire kitchen with knowledge she gained during the demonstration.

"The space needed beside each utility was what impressed me the most. I had no idea counter space was so important," says Mrs. W. E. Griffin, Red Oak. She is rearranging her present home to meet these requirements.

Another homemaker is rearranging her present home. Mrs. Tom Boulden, Castalia, Rt. 1, plans to remove a wall to make a kitchen-family room combination this spring. After the workshop, she will include a broom closet in her new kitchen.

Adding new appliances is a project for Mrs. Z. D. Tharrington, Rocky Mount, Rt. 3. Wall cabinets are a "must" for her too.

"I can't put the food on the table while the family is in the kitchen now," says Mrs. C. A. Gardner, Nashville, Rt. 3. A wall may be removed, adding a pantry and porch to her kitchen for the added space that is needed.

A 70-year-old home belonging to Mrs. W. R. Eason, Elm City, Rt. 2, will need some wall and counter cabinets to make it more convenient. The homemaker plans now to change the dining space to add more room.

"At least you learned proper storage techniques," says Mrs. F. W. Cockrell, Rocky Mount, Rt. 1. She wants to add beauty to her kitchen.

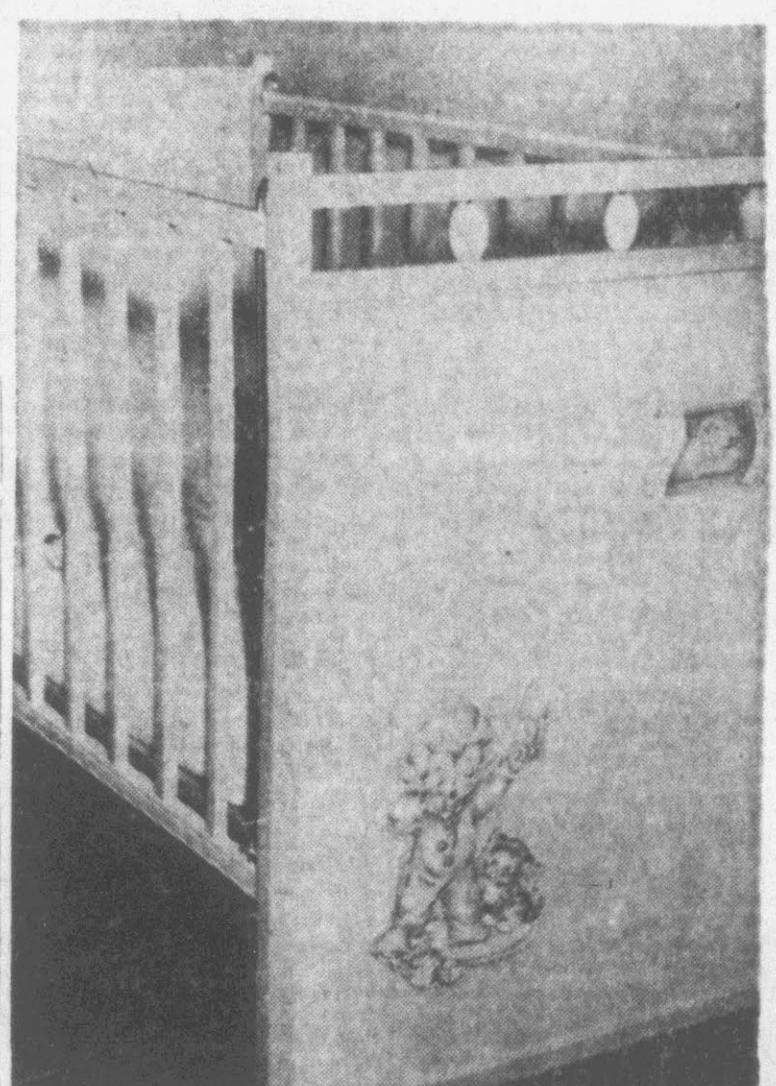

A Nashville farmer and appliance dealer, Kermit Dunn, has been interested in kitchen planning for some time. Now remodeling his own kitchen, he plans to use the information he gained at the workshop. And he plans to help many other homemakers in their kitchen planning.

With the enthusiasm and knowledge that was apparent at the workshop, more efficient and well-organized kitchens will be found soon in Nash County homes.

ZOMBIE CAKE

Ingredients: 1 package (1 pound and 4 ounces) chocolate devil's food cake mix, 1 medium ripe banana (mashed fine), 2 teaspoons grated orange rind, 1 cup granulated sugar.

Method: Grease the bottoms of two round layer-cake pans (8 by 1 1/2 or 9 by 1 1/2 inches); line bottoms with wax paper; grease paper. Make up cake mix according to package directions, using amounts of water and eggs called for. With last addition of water beat in mashed banana (there should be a generous 1-3 cup) and 1 teaspoon grated orange rind. Turn into prepared pans; bake according to package directions. Turn out; invert again; top of cake layers are uppermost; cool. Beat cream until almost thick; gradually beat in sugar; then remaining 1 teaspoon grated orange rind. Put layers together with half the whipped cream; cover top with remaining cream. Refrigerate until served.

A crib and mattress set has been presented to a Welfare Boarding home for underprivileged children by the Junior Woman's Club. It was contributed through the Watson Memorial Fund, the club's main project.

The gift was an outgrowth of one of the fund's original purposes. To assist underprivileged children of Pitt County, to purchase new equipment, and to improve the children's wing at Pitt Memorial Hospital are the three purposes of the fund.

This project was adopted in the spring of 1945, the same spring

Dr. T. M. Watson, pediatrician, died.

During the past few months the club has paid hospital bills, bought medicine and vitamins for five children, and given milk to 16 children. The club answers calls for financial assistance from doctors or the Welfare Department.

Recently the club purchased new toys and records for the Watson Memorial Wing at the hospital. Clothes and shoes for three school children were issued in order that they might remain in school.

Mrs. Dick Vicars is chairman of the fund committee.

Despite Risks, Law Holds Promise

A sound approach to one of North Carolina's greatest prison problems and to the welfare problems of many counties has been taken by the legislature in passing a law which will allow certain prisoners to hold steady jobs while serving their prison sentences.

Under the new law, the Paroles Commission can recommend for work outside the prison any prisoner serving a sentence of less than five years. The prisoner would hold down his outside job during the day and spend his nights in jail.

Proper use of the new law by the Paroles Commission will eliminate some of the idleness which plagues our prisons system. It will also offer a more constructive prisoner rehabilitation program than can possibly be carried on entirely inside prison walls.

North Carolina has some 11,000 men and women behind bars. Many of these have been sentenced for only a few months. Many are not hardened criminals and neither are they dangerous. They would be no menace to society if allowed to hold regular outside jobs under the new law.

In many cases when a man is sentenced to prison for several months or years, his family immediately becomes wards of the county and must look to welfare funds for their livelihood while the head of the house pays his debt to society behind prison walls.

Under the new law, certain prisoners could work outside, help support their families and thus reduce the cost of his stay in "prison" both to the state and to the local welfare program.

The new law provides a progressive step which should be given a fair trial in North Carolina. There will be some prisoners who escape while doing outside work. There will be some who will commit other offenses and will have to be put behind bars. But we also face such hazards now with our present paroles system.

Even with these risks involved, North Carolina can greatly improve its prison system and its prisoner rehabilitation program through effective use of this new law.

The Third Side In The Henderson Strike

Principals in the bitter Henderson textile strike apparently have lost sight of the fact that there are not two, but three sides to the bitter conflict which is going on in Vance County.

There is, of course, the side of the union and the side of management in the dispute. There is also the third side, that of the public which finds itself involved indirectly in the dispute through no fault of its own.

Gov. Hodges, as head of the state government, has become spokesman for the public's viewpoint in the dispute, and he has taken steps to see that the public's interest is protected while the dispute continues.

Union officials up and down the line, however, have severely criticized some actions which Gov. Hodges has taken to protect the public's interest in the dispute. This criticism, in our opinion, is indicative of the fact that union officials are failing to consider that the union is hurting its position with the public by such unwarranted attacks upon the actions of Gov. Hodges and other state officials and agencies.

The latest alleged attack on a union official brought new severe union criticism of the highway patrol for not quickly apprehending those who were responsible for the alleged attack. Yet more than a score of bombings have taken place in Henderson during the strike and the union has made no mention of failure of law enforcement officials to solve all of those attacks on private homes.

In the public interest, the strike must be settled as quickly as possible, and Gov. Hodges is exerting a genuine effort to bring the labor dispute to an end. In the meantime, however, it is of utmost importance that violence and lawless acts in connection with the dispute be prevented insofar as possible. Had it not been for Gov. Hodges reinforcing local police in Henderson with highway patrolmen, there is no doubt that violence in connection with the strike would have been much worse than has been the case.

The third side in the bitter dispute—that of the public—must be given consideration by principals involved. Any act by either principal party in the dispute which appears to ignore the public's interest in the matter can only serve to build public opinion against the principal which apparently disregards the public interest.

Recent statements by union leaders have, in our opinion, conveyed to many people the impression the union is interested only in its side of the question rather than in both its and the public's position in the dispute.

Pressures That Confront NATO

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — The good old days — for the NATO countries' foreign ministers who meet here this week — were 10 years ago.

It was then — April 4, 1949 — they set up the North Atlantic Treaty Organization to stop any further Soviet push and their ally, the United States, had a monopoly on the atomic bomb.

All they had to do was set up a big army which could halt the Soviets on the ground — if war came — while American bombers plastered the enemy from bases around the Soviet perimeter.

That's the same concept behind NATO today but a couple of things are different.

NATO never did manage to put together a really big army that could stop the Soviets cold on the ground.

If any NATO members had an illusion about it, President Eisenhower must have dispelled it this month when he said: "We are certainly not going to fight a ground war in Europe" meaning, the NATO forces are overwhelmingly outnumbered by the Soviets.

But the United States doesn't have an atomic monopoly any more. Now both this country and the Soviet Union have hydrogen bombs and missiles.

The Soviets, if not now then soon, will have hydrogen-tipped missiles that can reach Western European cities over the heads of armies. Premier Nikita Khrushchev claims the U.S.S.R. has them now.

There may, of course, be some consolation in the thought that since both sides have the power to annihilate, both will be reluctant to start anything neither can win.

But NATO, which was born in crisis, faces another now. It was created 10 years ago after communism had gobbled Czechoslovakia and while the United States with its air force was trying to smash Joseph Stalin's attempt to grab Berlin with a blockade.

Stalin backed down then, perhaps only because he lacked atomic weapons which could have been excellent blackmail.

The idea behind NATO was to bring peace to Europe by halting the Soviet Union. It worked. For 10 years the Soviets have tried no new adventures in the West.

But this didn't stop the Soviet Union. Blocked off in one direction, it has made progress in Africa and the Middle East with propaganda, intrigue and economic help.

There was never any reason to believe that the Soviets abandoned their idea of getting Berlin, 110 miles within East Communist Germany, away from the Western grip.

Now again there is crisis there, with Khrushchev demanding the United States, Britain and France get their troops out of West Berlin.

It seems accurate to assume that Khrushchev is making this move now because with his missiles and hydrogen weapons he thinks he has the muscle to do it.

And the NATO countries, meeting here, will have to think about it although actually the big decisions will be made by the big members: the United States, Britain, France and West Germany.

NATO has kept the West Europeans together. It's an alliance which may be weakened in the day and years ahead, if only through the threats and pressure of Khrushchev.

There is far from unanimity on its ability to perform even now. Only Sunday in the Washington Post, Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, World War II hero and until recently NATO's deputy supreme commander, said: "The NATO command structure is in such wretched shape that if NATO went to war now the result would be disastrous. There is too much arguing and too little decision, he said.

So, while the outward appearance of the NATO partners may glitter with togetherness, the organization may not be half of what it seems to be. Soviet pressure will either strengthen it or weaken it.

"The automobile, the experts tell us, is losing its importance as a status symbol in American life. With bankers riding around in Volkswagens and domestics in Cadillacs (our maid comes to work in a Caddy, so help me!) the make of auto driven is no longer a badge of social position. But ownership of a summer home conveys an impression of belonging these days. (Hint to employees trying to get

PENSIONS A FACTOR

Another reason for the rise of interest in summer homes is Social Security and private pensions. The average couple in middle life may find prospective pensions considerably less than current living costs. But a summer home started or purchased now and improved over the years can often be a snug retirement home. And there's the bonus of a vacation retreat in the intervening years.

Never Mind The Screams—

Spring's Bright Salute

Television, for the Clan Ellis at least, reached a high point last night.

CBS TV's salute to Spring was, to us, a wonderful show and a pleasant surprise. Fresh, original, vital and lively, even a little bit inspiring to those of the clan who delight in seeing the many parts of America's whole self.

Even the weakest parts of the show — and we regarded those as the dance by Marge and Gower Champion and Herb Shriner's visit to an Indiana country store — were better than the usual run of Monday evening entertainment on our Great Big Eye.

It is hard to say which portion of the program we liked best. Robert Merrill's song on a Staten Island ferry was exceptional, except for having the back-stopping chorus gang up around him as he was completing his singing.

Genevieve, whom we have never particularly cared for, was right at home in a Louisiana bayou, although we watched the swans in the background while listening to her singing.

Jane Wyman's recitation on the glories of Spring waking across the land was good, and the supporting pictures took our interest away from the model airplanes we are constructing for the little folks who live with us.

The choirs from the Air Force Academy and West Point were solid and impressive, but we paid more attention to the landscapes than we did to the young men doing the singing.

What caused us to regard the San Francisco park dance by March and Gower Champion as one of the weaker spots was the seemingly stilted way they danced. It seemed, in a way, so carefully rehearsed, which we can but suppose it was, that it took away some of the vitality we thought should have been there.

Herb Shriner's jokes, and those of the crowd in the country store, were woefully corny. It was, probably, country store humor, but Shriner seemed to dig way down in the cracker barrel for some of his cracks.

Shriner appeared to be trying to say that country store humor is such because every small town is supposed to have its wits and humorous philosophers. That is not necessarily so, and his straining to pull jokes out of the air proved it.

Perhaps one of the intangible things that made the show good was that it represented the truth that television can be good entertainment when it wants to be. The show was an outstanding departure from the rash of second-rate programming that dominates television most of the time.

Even the commercials were noteworthy . . . and none of us grumbled about almost every scene having somebody swigging Coca-Cola. It seemed, really, the thing for them to do.

Other Editors Saying . . . Opposed To Withholding

(Henderson Dispatch)

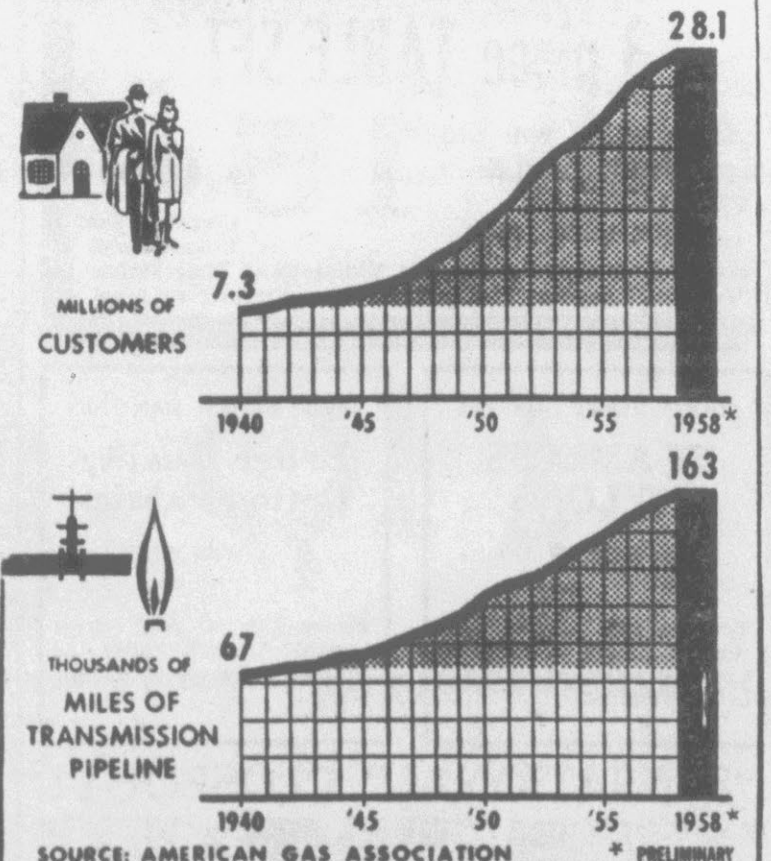

Opposition to a State withholding tax appears to be growing in the Legislature. Senator Henke of Iredell predicts it will be defeated, despite the fact that it was recommended and is strongly favored by Governor Hodges.

Henke is known as an outspoken foe of the administration. He also attacked the idea of matching Federal funds, which is one method by which congressmen justify their own acts in that particular field, and of forcing State and local governments to spend more money—whether wisely or otherwise.

The senator estimated that ninety percent of the legislators are opposed to Federal aid to education, but doubted whether even a majority would turn it down if dangled before their eyes. Which is another way of selling the birthright for a mess of pottage. Henke also said in his speech to the Raleigh Kiwanis club that about eighty percent of the money this Legislature will appropriate will go for education, approximately 68 percent of it to the public schools and eleven to twelve percent to higher education.

Among the arguments against the withholding tax is one that the business people of the State would be made tax collectors for government, even as they now are for the Federal government.

GROWTH OF NATURAL GAS NETWORK

ONE million customers were added to the nation's fast-growing natural gas network during 1958 when transmission facilities were increased by 5,400 miles. Natural gas customers have more than doubled since 1949 when 12.5 million were served. Customers using all types of gas, including LP "bottled gas," now total 40 million.

Summer Homes To See Big Year

By ELMER ROESSNER

This may be the biggest year yet for building summer homes. House and Home estimates that 73,000 will be built. This compares with 50,000 a year from 1950 to 1956.

The magazine predicts that the market for this kind of home will continue to expand. Higher incomes, longer vacations and more holiday weekends are stirring more people to invest in a retreat.

The automobile, the experts tell us, is losing its importance as a status symbol in American life. With bankers riding around in Volkswagens and domestics in Cadillacs (our maid comes to work in a Caddy, so help me!) the make of auto driven is no longer a badge of social position. But ownership of a summer home conveys an impression of belonging these days. (Hint to employees trying to get

A RICH, GROWING MARKET

These homes need furniture, often of a special kind: inexpensive, sturdy, easy to clean and resistant to the special climatic conditions. In addition, they require all kinds of furnishings, especially those of the rugged type.

Both summer and retirement homes broaden the market for sports goods, especially fishing gear, boating accessories, shooting equipment and things for more active games, such as archery, swimming and shipe hunting.

But several markets are being underplayed. For instance: Food is cheaper in country places ONLY IN SEASON. It is often cheaper to take food from cities for weekends or weeks in the country than it is to buy it at rural stores. (Item: chicken in New York supermarkets, 29 cents a pound; at Long Island farms selling summer visitors, 45 cents.)

Markets might increase sales by broadening their usual picnic offerings to weekend or vacation week specials.

Gift possibilities are overlooked. People with country places always invite guests; guests always feel they must bring gifts. This usually ends in a fifth of spirits and/or a box of candy.

Two items that could be exploited here are emergency battery lights and home fire extinguishers. There's not a summer home in all these United States in which the power doesn't fail at least once a year, and a good battery light is far more satisfactory than an oil lamp.

Fire risks are high in summer places and volunteer companies often feel away, making the gift of an extinguisher unusually appreciated. Imagine the gratitude to the donor if such a gift saves the entire place!

Take it away, markets and manufacturers!

Examine Ballots In Arkansas Vote

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — A U.S. grand jury today begins an examination of ballots cast in last year's election in which Rep. Dale Alford (D-Ark) unseated veteran congressman Brooks Hays.

The jury last week opened an investigation of possible federal law violations in the victory of Alford, who ran as a write-in candidate, over Hays, the Democratic nominee, in the November general election. Alford, a segregationist, criticized Hays' moderate racial stand.

Alford won by 1,200 votes in Arkansas' 5th District. Since then he has been seated as a Democrat. After hearing several witnesses on March 23, the grand jury asked U.S. Dist. Judge J. Smith Henley to impound all ballots and related records in the six-county 5th District. Henley issued the order.

At Danville, Ark., a Yell County official refused to turn over the ballots to deputy U.S. marshals because they already had been impounded in other litigation in the state courts.

The jury has the ballots from the other five counties, including Pulaski (Little Rock), the heaviest voting in the state. More than 60,000 votes were cast in the Alford Hays contest. The grand jury inquiry followed an investigation by the FBI on two specific complaints to the Justice Department. One of these charged that in certain precincts more ballots were counted than there were persons registered to vote. The second alleged that anonymous campaign literature, prohibited by federal statutes, was circulated.

No Luxuries For State Officials

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Texas legislators don't want state officials and employees driving around in high-powered, air-conditioned cars bought with tax money. The fine print of the 308-page appropriations bill laid before the House today includes a provision that State Highway Department cars may not have eight cylinders, automatic transmissions or air conditioning.

Reports Finding Virus In Leukemia Cell Study

EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, Mo. (AP)—Viruses, a suspect in the cause of leukemia, have been found in both human and chicken leukemia cells, a Duke University researcher said today.

And another virus which lives in the human intestine has provided an important clue to a defense against cancer-causing viruses, a University of Pennsylvania scientist suggested.

Dr. Joseph W. Beard of Duke and Dr. Seymour Cohen of Pennsylvania spoke at the week-long American Cancer Society seminar on cancer research problems and progress.

Dr. Beard told how the virus causes leukemia in chickens — a disease that each year costs the U.S. poultry industry many millions of dollars.

The virus invades the blood cells and converts their power plants into factories to produce more virus. As the virus units come off the stolen assembly line they infect more blood cells and turn them into more virus factories.

There is a great spurt of white cell growth in the blood—as if the cells are trying to outgrow the virus, Dr. Beard said. The viruses

Pitt 4-H Boy Is Among Finalists

RALEIGH—A Pitt County 4-H Club boy, Larry Dilda Jr. of Fountain, has been selected as one of seven boys to compete for the honor of representing North Carolina's 155,000 4-H Club members at the National 4-H Club Conference at Washington, D. C., June 13 to 19.

Larry, the son of Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Dilda, will compete for this top award among state 4-H'ers April 1, in Raleigh. On this date two boys and two girls will be selected to attend the National Conference.

L. R. Harrill, state 4-H Club leader at N. C. State College, said the conference will provide opportunities for the boys and girls to learn about our federal government, better understand national problems and citizenship responsibilities, develop some understanding of relationship of world problems to our daily living, develop an appreciation of 4-H Club work on a nationwide scale, share ideas for improving the nation's 4-H program, interpret club work to our nation's leaders, and better inform the general public about 4-H activities.

Larry Dilda Jr. was the 1957 state 4-H Club corn growing champion, representing North Carolina at the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago. He saved $2,300 from 4-H Club activities for college expenses and has presented 57 demonstrations on better farming and better citizenship at 4-H Club meetings.

Two British-Born Film Stars Like Ranch Life

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Vivian Vance, 45, who plays the strong-minded wife as Ethel in TV's "I Love Lucy," is described as a cruel wife in real life by actor Philip N. Ober, 50.

Ober sued for divorce Monday, declaring Miss Vance has treated him in a cruel and inhuman manner and caused him great mental anguish.

The couple married Aug. 18, 1941, at Marblehead, Mass., and separated last Feb. 6. Ober asked the court to divide more than $160,000 worth of community property.

Braves Break Loose With 15 Hits Against Cards

Sammy White's single in the ninth drove home Dick Gernert, who had doubled, with the winning run for the Red Sox.

Hank Aaron's three-run homer also the Milwaukee attack which included four hits by Del Rice, Carl Willey and Bob Rush six-hit the Redbirds.

Veterans Bobby Shantz and Virgil Trucks combined for the Yankees' third shut out triumph of the exhibition season. Don Newcombe pitched four-hit ball for the Reds, but took the loss.

Dale Long broke out of a slump with two home runs as the Cubs and Giants shared eight blasts equally. Bob Speake's homer for San Francisco was his first hit of the spring. Cubs' catcher Sammy Taylor spent the night in a hospital after being struck on the head by the backblast of a bat.

Al Kaline broke a 3-3 tie in the seventh with a three-run double and drove in five runs all told against the Dodgers. The second game of the scheduled double-header was rained out.

Carl Sawatski's two-run pinch single provided the impetus as the Phils, blanked on one hit for five innings by Senator rookie Jack Kralick, erupted for six runs in the sixth.

Ron Kline picked up three RBIs and went the distance for the Pirates. Pittsburgh was out 14-3 but three Oriole errors made the difference.

Dick Donovan hurled six-hit ball for seven innings in his first strong performance of the spring for the White Sox. The A's Ned Garver was pounded for all the Chicago tallies.

Deals And Score Make Indians A AL Threat

Associated Press Sports Writer TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — The Cleveland Indians have swung a lot of deals since last fall, but there's another reason to suspect this could be a changed team.

Pitcher Herb Score is back. Whether the return of this potentially great left-hander will be enough to get the Indians out of the bottom of the first division is unknown. But it seems safe to say he won't be an insufferable burden.

There have been other changes, too.

Outfielder Larry Doby, pitchers Ray Narleski and Don Mossi, first baseman Vic Venter and infielder-outfielder-catcher Earl Averill have been traded. And infielder Billy Martin, outfielders Jim Piersall and Jim Bolger, first baseman-outfielder Tim Lincecum and pitchers Al Ciolette and John Briggs have been acquired.

So where do the Indians stand? "If we've got Score back," said Manager Joe Gordon, "and we can use (Gary) Bell from the start, we're bound to be better."

Score, out most of the last two seasons with injuries, has not been phenomenal in exhibition games. But he's throwing without any pain.

Bell came up last May and won 12 games while losing 10. "He had some bad luck," Gordon said. "He could easily have been 14-6."

Other possible starters include Cal McLish (16-8), Jim Grant (10-11), Don Ferrarese (3-4), Mike Garcia (1-0) and Ciolette (3-1 with Detroit).

Gordon's lineup would include Rocky Colavito and Minnie Minoso in the outfield and Vic Power at first or third base. If Power plays first, Gordon might use Randy Jackson at third. If not, Mickey Vernon or Francona could take first.

George Strickland is bidding for shortstop along with Woodie Held. At second are Martin and Bill Morna. Russ Nixon should do most of the catching again. Piersall could be used between Minoso and Colavito in the outfield. Francona also could be played in the outfield.

Gordon thinks Boston, Chicago, Detroit and his own club all are a little stronger this year.

West Forms Big Four

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The new Athletic Assn. of Western Universities will take up where the moribund Pacific Coast Conference leaves off in the annual Rose Bowl football game.

Representatives of the new conference — now composed of California, Southern California, UCLA and Washington — agreed Monday to enter into a contract with the Tournament of Roses Assn., sponsor of the New Year's Day game. The agreement will become effective Jan. 1, 1961. It will be an open-ended contract — one for which no termination date is fixed.

The Pacific Coast Conference goes out of business next June 30. But its contract with the Rose Bowl organization runs through next Jan. 1, and one of its present members is expected to represent the West in the 1960 game.

The agreement between the Rose Bowl and the Big Ten, which has been sending teams to the game annually since 1947, also expires after the 1960 game. Big Ten faculty advisers and athletic directors have indicated they want to renew the contract, but final action won't be taken until May.

The AAUW now goes unofficially by the name of the Big Four, but that could change before the Rose Bowl agreement takes effect. Stanford has been invited to become a fifth member.

The AAUW did not sign a contract Monday, but agreed in principle to terms. The signing will come at another meeting, possibly in May. One of the provisions of the deal is that the Rose Bowl and the conference must give two years' notice before terminating the agreement.

NCAA Champs Tops In Defense

NEW YORK (AP) — Miami of Florida, California, Auburn, Tulsa, Mississippi State and Southern Methodist were team statistical champions of major college basketball last season, figures from the NCAA Service Bureau showed today.

Miami averaged 87.6 points to win the offense title by less than three points from the 1958 champion, West Virginia. California, the NCAA tournament champion, led in defense with a 51-point yield. Auburn topped the nation in field goal percentage with 48.8 percent, Tulsa led in free throw shooting with 76.1 per cent, and Southern Methodist, repeating from a year ago, led in committing the fewest fouls per game — 13.13 average. Mississippi State led in rebounding with 58.9 per cent recoveries.

Eastern Kentucky and New Mexico shared the dubious honor of the most infractions — each with 499 in 22 games for 22.7 per game. Another champ was Idaho State, which led in margin of victory with a 20.5 points differential. The Rocky Mountain champions averaged 74.2 points a game and yielded 53.7.

California, winning its second national defense championship, pointed up the change in college basketball over the years. When the Bears were defense champs in 1926, their per-game yield was 15.6 points a game — equal to what an Oscar Robertson or Jerry West scores alone on an "off night" these days.

Charles Loses Safety Position

CINCINNATI (AP) — Ezzard Charles, one time king of heavyweight boxers, claims he lost his title job because of politics.

He said Monday "everybody knows I'm on the Republican side of the fence. They gave me a reason for firing me that I was continuing to fight."

Charles was hired during a Republican administration. Democrats now control Ohio's statehouse and Legislature.

Charles, a state industrial commission inspector who lectured on safety to youngsters, was discharged last week. The action is effective today.

Commissioner M. J. Pavick said last Friday that because Charles took leave last fall to fight in Texas and Mexico, it was decided he could not adequately give enough time to his state job.

Valdes Drops In Ring Rating

NEW YORK (AP) — Nino Valdes, who was ranked second contender behind Sweden's Ingemar Johansson, was dropped to sixth place today.

Valdes, who was ranked second contender behind Sweden's Ingemar Johansson, was dropped to sixth place today.

In a chain reaction, Zora Folley, of Chandler, Ariz., advanced from third to second, British champion Henry Cooper moved up from fourth to third, Philadelphia's Sonny Liston from fifth to fourth, and Briton Brian London from ninth to eighth.

London, the former British heavyweight king who lost his crown to Cooper last January, is scheduled to fight world heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson at Las Vegas, probably May 1.

Powell, the former 48ers' football star from San Diego, entered the elite circle in the No. 9 spot. Eddie Machen of Redding, Calif. is fifth, Willie Pastrano of Miami Beach, seventh, and Joe Erskine of Wales, tenth.

Davey Moore, the freshly crowned world featherweight king, was named "fighter of the month" for his title victory over Hogan (Kid) Bassey of Nigeria. Bassey was named No. 1 contender.

Paige Cotren of Los Angeles and Tom Miner of Pittsburgh each kicked 14 field goals in the National Football League last season.

Venturi Ready To Win First Masters Tourney

Associated Press Sports Writer AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Ken Venturi is the "ready pounce" and that's the way he prefers it for the Masters Golf Tournament, opening Thursday.

"Pick a winner? I pick me," the outspoken 28-year-old San Francisco professional said today as the game's elite gathered for the annual assault on the famed Augusta National course.

"I don't say that to be cocky. When I enter a tournament I feel I can win it. In this one, I believe I'm as ready as it is possible to be."

Venturi, who has led two of the last three Masters titles slip from his grasp, has been established as a favorite in this 23rd renewal.

In 1956 as an amateur Venturi led through three rounds and then blew to an 80 which dropped the crown into the hands of a surprised Jack Burke. Last year Ken was the halfway leader but faltered. The title went to Arnold Palmer.

"In both instances the 14th was my jinx hole," the slender Californian said. "I think I know how to play the hole this time."

The 14th is Augusta's 400-yard par four "Chinese Pir" hole. It has a tricky undulating green which becomes a putting nightmare when the approach is left just below a fronting bunker.

"I feel I have paced myself perfectly this year," Venturi said. "I feel just on the verge of going good — not quite but almost ready. That's the way I want it."

Venturi had rounds of 69, 71, 68 over the 6,900-yard, par 72 course. Monday he toured the front nine in 31, five under par with an eagle at the fifth.

A crack field of international contenders joined such luminaries as Ben Hogan, Sam Snead and Cary Middlecoff in practice. The course was green and lush after two days of rain. Nobody was tearing it to pieces.

"I get a wonderful feeling being at the Masters year after year," observed Sam Snead on the first tee of the Augusta National Golf Club. "I hope I never get too old to want to take part in it."

Bob Jones is host to the great golfers of yesterday and today for the 23rd time as he stages his Masters Tournament on the course which is his "brain child." The Masters is a combination of a major golf tournament and "old home week" for the greats of the game. Since the rule of the Masters is "once a champion, always a champion," winners have an open invitation to return to Augusta every spring as long as they are around and able to play.

It's easy to understand Snead's fondness for the Masters. He's won it three times and marks his 1954 triumph as one of the highlights of his brilliant career. That's the year Sam tied with Ben Hogan for first place with 289 strokes apiece, and then went on to beat Bentam Ben in the playoff — 70-71. Hogan was the defending champion at the Masters, as well as the U.S. Open king, when he hooked up with Snead in one of the most publicized rounds of golf. Snead always attracts the largest gallery at the Masters. In addition to having the finest natural swing ever seen on a golf course, Sam is endowed with more "color" than any other professional of our time.

At 46, Snead is still breaking records. He's still "The Master," the greatest stylist. His 60 in the Dallas Open at Glen Lakes Country Club last year was his personal 18-hole low. With his amazingly fluid swing, his rivals fear that Sam will be going strong at 60 and beyond. Especially, when the Masters rolls around!

Williams Receives Treatments For Injury

BOSTON (AP) — Ted Williams, hospitalized by sports' most celebrated pain in the neck, today took treatments in hopes he will be ready for the start of the 1959 season.

Following a series of X-rays, the 40-year old left fielder of the Boston Red Sox was scheduled for periodic traction treatments and possible use of a surgical collar to relieve the pains which have dogged him for two weeks.

That was the substance of a medical bulletin issued by New England Baptist Hospital and the Lahey Clinic Monday. It also said orthopedic consultations are planned.

Williams, defending American League batting champion whose club opens the regular campaign April 10 in New York, insisted there was no reason why he wouldn't be in the lineup at that time.

Later he admitted it might be much longer.

If Dr. Charles A. Fager, a neurosurgeon, and the other medical personnel connected with the case have definite ideas about the time of Williams' recovery, it is a well-kept secret.

They don't say he will be ready April 10. They don't say he won't. Ted appeared affable but worried when he entered the hospital. Since then, the clinical curtain has been drawn.

No photographers were permitted pictures of Williams in his room. News of his progress was to be issued by prepared bulletin only.

Victim of 11 major physical setbacks dating from his broken left elbow of 1950, baseball's greatest natural hitter apparently has a pinched nerve in his neck which sends stabbing pains into his right shoulder and back when he turns his head to the right. Sometimes it makes his breathing difficult.

"I don't know what will happen. Williams said before going into seclusion. "But I can't swing a bat or throw or run. If the treatment takes two weeks, as some people think, I'll need as much more time to get ready to play."

NBA To Draft College Stars

CINCINNATI (AP) — The eight National Basketball Assn. members dipped into the ranks of college seniors today and each hoped to come up with another Bob Pettit, Bob Cousy, Bill Russell or Elgin Baylor.

The occasion was the annual player draft meeting which will give each club exclusive rights to bargain with probably 12 to 15 youngsters who will be graduated this spring.

Whether they get their names on a contract is another matter and whether they'll make the grade in the tough NBA is still another. Seventeen of the rookies drafted last year made the grade, with Minneapolis' Lakers getting the prize in Baylor.

Several clubs, including the Philadelphia Warriors, were expected to exercise their territorial rights to players. Such clubs can claim a player from a school within a 50-mile radius but, by doing so, they relinquish their first choice in the regular draft.

Four years ago the Warriors claimed the fabulous Wilt Chamberlain out of high school under a draft rule which since has been abandoned. Now that Chamberlain's Kansas University class is graduating, Ed Gottlieb said they definitely would claim him.

Then it will be up to the Warriors to woo him away from the Harlem Globetrotters with whom he now is playing. Chamberlain gave up his last year of college eligibility to join the Globetrotters.

The Detroit Pistons and the St. Louis Hawks are among others who may exercise territorial rights. St. Louis has covetous eyes on Bob Ferry of St. Louis University and Detroit on John Green of Michigan State and M.C. Burton of Michigan.

After territorial choices, the Cincinnati Royals will have first choice since they had the poorest record during the past season. It appeared likely they'll pick either Bailey Howell of Mississippi State or Bob Boozer of Kansas State.

Most clubs had those players high on their lists.

Olson Continues Comeback Trail

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Bob Olson, the ex-middleweight champ now boxing as a light heavy, was back in the big time today after a unanimous but hotly disputed decision over Rory Calhoun.

"I'm 30, an old man," Olson said after 10 hard-fought rounds in the Cow Palace, "but I feel like 16." He said his weight, 174½, was just what it should be. Calhoun, a middleweight, weighed 168½.

Olson is planning a month's vacation after his fourth straight comeback victory as a light heavyweight, then wants someone of the caliber of Tony Anthony or Yvon Durelle. Ring Magazine ranks Anthony as the second light heavy challenger and Durelle as the third.

ERROR CHANGES MEANING

PARNEL MO. (AP) — The Rev. Louis V. Hubbard, a Methodist minister, in announcing special services, concluded his mimeographed message with this sentence: "If you can sin or play we want you to come and bring a special number." Of course, he meant to say "sing or play."

SPARTANBURG (AP) — Golfer Billy Joe Patton and tennis player Jane Haynie are the 1958 winners of the Lewis E. Teague Memorial Awards to outstanding Carolinas athletes.

The Carolinas Assn. of the Amateur Athletic Union announced the 1957 and 1958 awards Monday. The 1957 winners are Dave Sims, Duke University world record holding sprinter, and swimmer Lew Skidmore of Columbia, S.C.

The awards will be presented at a banquet yet to be scheduled.

Art Wall Wins Azalea; Souchak Takes Second

By KEN ALTYA WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Art Wall, a serious student of golf, tempered his enthusiasm over pocketing $2,000 first money in the $15,000 Azalea Open tournament Monday with the observation that he hadn't played exceptionally well in the final round.

He had finished with a one-under-par 73 that gave him a 282 total, six under par, and a three-stroke margin over Mike Souchak, his ex-teammate on the Duke University golf squad.

Reminded that he has gone over par only seven times in 44 rounds the 35-year-old Wall, who plays out of Pocono Manor, Pa., noted that five of his seven ventures over regular figures have come in the final round.

"I can't understand that," he said. "I figure I'm as good a charger at the finish as anyone. I'd prefer going into the Masters at Augusta Thursday off a good closing round."

He continued, "I wasn't nervous, even after two bogeys on the front nine. I felt I could make the birdie or two, I needed. I didn't play too well, but I used my head and scored about as well as I had hoped to."

Wall, in winning his second tournament this year, ran his earnings since the first of the year to just under $19,000. That's more than any pro has ever picked up going into the Masters. His last tour of the 6,800-yard Cape Fear Country Club course, he settled down to an incoming 35, one under par. He made eight pars and a birdie, his only one of the day, on the hometrip.

Wall, enjoying his greatest year as a pro, moved past Dow Finsterwald of Tequesta, Fla., in the race to lead the Ryder Cup team selections.

He is now a point ahead of Finsterwald, who shot the best score of the last round, 68, to win third place and $1,200 on a 287 total. Souchak finished with a 71 for 285 and $1,500 runnerup money. Husky Mike, playing from Grospring, N.Y., started the day five shots back of Wall in second place, then suddenly found himself in a second place battle with Finsterwald. Souchak's putter got him three birdies in the last five holes to nail down second money.

Bert Weaver of Beaumont, Tex., finished fourth at 290 for $1,000. Next came Doug Ford, Paradise, Fla., and Don Whitl, Borrego Springs, Calif., tied at 291 for $850 each. In seventh at 292 for $750 was Bob Goalby, first day leader from Belleville, Ill.

The money list of 30 ran down to 302, one of the highest totals in years, due to three wet, windy days at the start of the tournament.

Bobby Harrell of Wilmington led the amateurs with 302. Claude King of Virginia Beach, Va., bested Buddy Baker of Florence, S.C., in a sudden death playoff for second place after they had tied at 304.

Deacons Battle Gamecocks In ACC Action

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Wake Forest's Deacons play their Atlantic Coast Conference baseball opener today at South Carolina, while other loop squads take on outside competition.

Duke's Blue Devils oppose Michigan at the Florida State University tournament at Tallahassee, Dartmouth is at Maryland and Adelphi plays Clemson.

Rain yesterday forced postponement of the South Carolina-Citadel game to April 9 while Wake Forest at Georgia Techers was cancelled.

Elsewhere, Clemson battered Georgia 8-2 at Athens, Ga., and Duke's Blue Devils downed Florida State 6-3 in the FSU tourney.

Clemson, defending ACC champions, overcame a 1-0 deficit with four runs in the fourth frame and added four more in the fifth behind left-hander Tyrone Cline's four-hitter against Georgia. Cline, a sophomore, became the first Tiger to go the distance as his teammates slugged Georgia for 15 hits.

The effort prompted Georgia Coach Jim Whalley to call the Tigers "the best team we've played."

Duke catcher Art Browning unlimbered a three-run homer off Jerry Hohne after the Blue Devils came from behind to tie the score 3-3 in the eighth inning. With left-hander Ron Kalish allowing only five hits and striking out 10 for his first win, Duke clubbed Hohne for seven hits and brought its FSU forestry record to 1-1.

Wake Forest goes into ACC play with a 2-1 outside mark, while South Carolina, 1-1 in the ACC, is 2-2 overall.

Robinson Likes Pender Offer

BOSTON (AP) — Sugar Ray Robinson's manager today called "quite attractive" an offer guaranteeing the world middleweight champion $100,000 for a 15-round title fight with Paul Pender here in June.

The Sharkey A.A. Monday wired the offer to George Gainford included, additionally, the option of 40 per cent of the gate and all other revenues from television, radio, etc.

Reached in New York, Gainford said he had received the telegram and that it was "quite attractive to me."

Gainford added he would talk to Robinson about it in "a day or so." He said that Robinson now is ill with the virus and "in no mood to talk fights."

Meanwhile the National Boxing Assn. started to be running out of patience with Robinson who has not defended his crown since he recaptured it from Carmen Basilio on March 25, 1958.

An NBA official in Milwaukee Monday said it looked as though the group will withdraw its recognition of Robinson as champion unless he signs for a title defense by April 25.

Rain forced the East Carolina College tennis and baseball teams indoors yesterday and also brought cancellation of a baseball tilt with the University of Delaware and a tennis match with Cornell.

Coach Jim Mallory and his diamond club were scheduled to meet Delaware today but according to reports this morning the field was still wet and it was still uncertain as to whether the game would be played or not.

Khrushchev Found Coattails To Ride And Now Finds Himself At The Top

Editor's Note—William L. Ryan has seen Nikita Khrushchev in action in Moscow and London. He has carefully analyzed his speeches and his actions. This is the second of five articles appraising the Soviet Premier's methods as the world moves toward another summit meeting where Khrushchev will play a key role.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst
Twenty years ago Nikita Khrushchev seemed drab and colorless—a faceless, fawning party hack. Who, today, would think of applying such terms to the man whose moon face, alternately beaming and scowling, dominates the world stage?

The man who now seems playing for incredibly high stakes was not always a gambler.

How did a one-time illiterate blacksmith climb so high?

The success story is peculiarly Communist. Khrushchev found a set of coattails, climbed aboard for the ride.

The coattails belonged to Lazar Molevich Kaganovich, who pacified the Ukraine for Stalin in the bloody days of farm collectivization.

Khrushchev had talent. Kaganovich recognized it. With ruthless zeal Khrushchev had thrown himself into the war on Stalin's political foes.

Over the corpses of innumerable fallen Bolsheviks, Khrushchev vaulted into alternate membership on the Politburo, the council of yes-men surrounding Stalin. That was in 1933. The purge was not yet complete.

Khrushchev went to the Ukraine to direct another mop-up of Stalin's real and imagined enemies. There is no way of estimating how many were executed in that operation.

Khrushchev not only directed the purge, but meanwhile reorganized Ukrainian farming. As a result, Khrushchev became general party secretary in the Ukraine.

With the purge nearly over, the 18th party Congress in 1939 whisked Khrushchev into the rarefied atmosphere of the Kremlin, a full member of Stalin's politburo. He paid glowing tribute to Kaganovich and Stalin.

Seventeen years later Khrushchev would label Stalin an egomaniac murderer, political and military blunderer and unparalleled barbarian. A year after that he would maneuver Kaganovich out of office, denouncing him as a man who "fawned and did everything to inflate the cult of the personality of Stalin."

Such is Soviet politics. For Khrushchev it paid off.

In World War II Khrushchev got on several inner councils.

One Khrushchev job was coordination of guerrilla activity against the Nazi occupation. In many areas of the Ukraine, where nationalism is strong, the Germans had been welcomed as liberators. Later the Nazis turned on the Ukrainians in a horrifying series of atrocities. There is suspicion that Khrushchev, as guerrilla coordinator, deliberately provoked some atrocities, to turn popular sentiment against the Germans.

Khrushchev's bands retreated before the German drive. He was assigned to the political department of the army at Stalingrad, where Marshal Georgi Zhukov had been called to avert disaster. When the tide turned, Khrushchev returned to the Ukraine as boss, with the staggering job of reconstruction after the Nazi scorched earth retreat.

He nearly failed. Kaganovich came through, taking over during the most difficult days, then turning the Ukraine back to Khrushchev to complete a purge of nationalists. No one could have been more grateful to Stalin.

Khrushchev hailed his boss as a man of "genius leadership, our wise leader and military commander, Comrade Stalin, organizer of victory who saved the nations and civilization of Europe and the whole world from Fascist slavery."

In 1956, with Stalin safely dead three years, Khrushchev amid sobs told the 20th Communist Congress:

"Very grievous results, especially at the beginning of the war, followed Stalin's annihilation of many military commanders and political workers during 1937-41, because of his suspiciousness and through slanderous accusations, even after the war began, the nervousness and hysteria Stalin showed, interfering with military operations, caused our army serious damage.

"All the more shameful was the fact that after our great victory over the enemy which cost us so much, Stalin began to downgrade many commanders who contributed so much to victory over the enemy, because Stalin excluded the possibility that services rendered at the front should be credited to anyone but himself."

Again, Khrushchev added that Stalin even slandered Marshal Zhukov.

Less than two years later, Khrushchev tossed Zhukov out of office and exiled him. An army general wrote in the Soviet magazine Kommunist early this year:

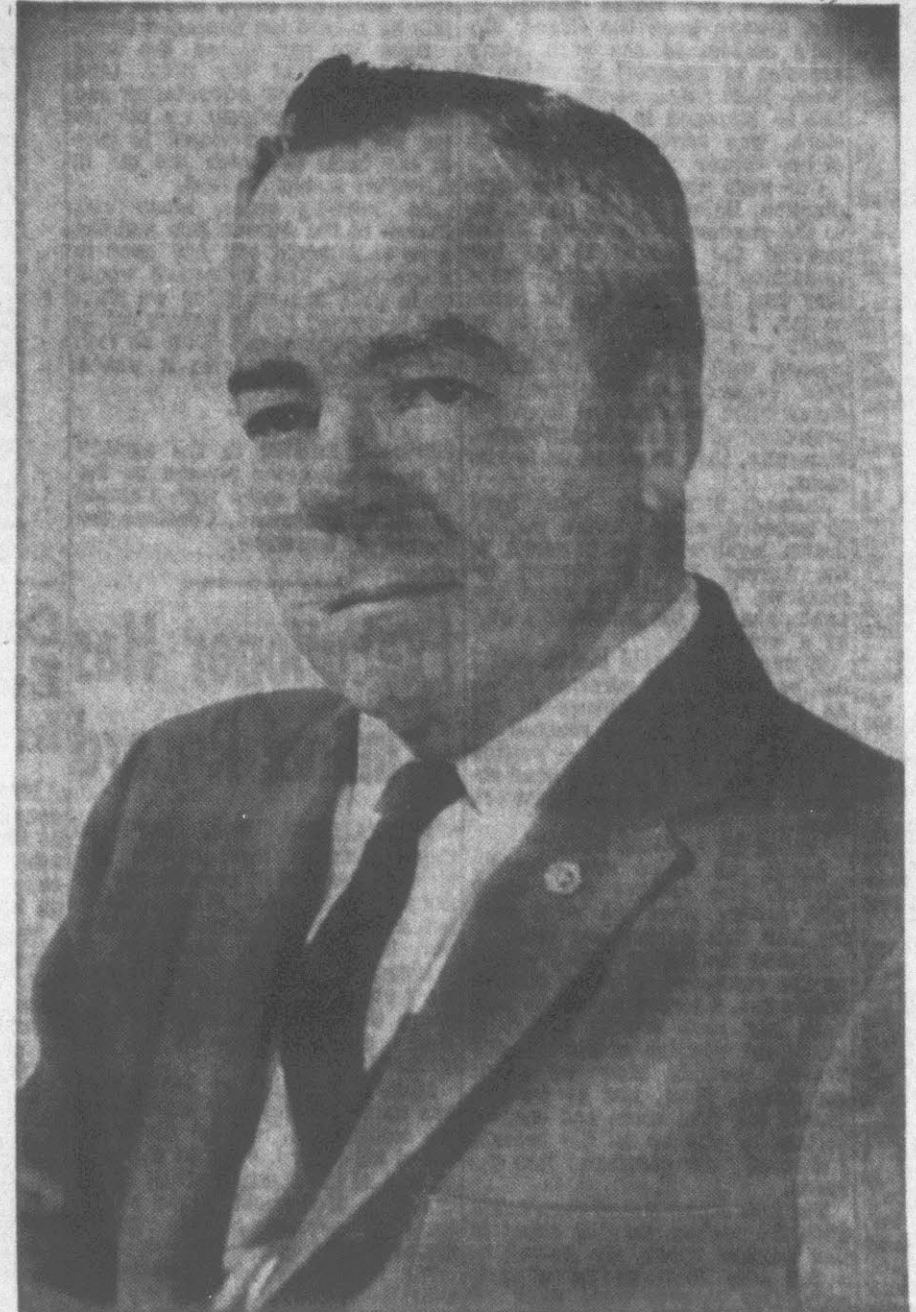

"All the noble and delicate work done at Stalingrad was accomplished under the direction and with the direct participation of the member of the military council for Stalingrad and the southeast front, Nikita S. Khrushchev."

Like Stalin, Khrushchev also became adept at rewriting history.

Suspect Another Danger In Space

By FRANK CAREY
Associated Press Science Writer

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—Another radiation hazard to space flight may exist at altitudes below those of the much-discussed Van Allen radiation belts, an Air Force scientist said today.

Between 20 miles above the earth and the 600-mile level at which the admittedly dangerous Van Allen layers begin, there will be a danger from atmospheric effects produced by certain kinds of cosmic rays, said Dr. Herman Yagoda of the Air Force's Cambridge (Mass.) Research Center.

He said new findings about intensity variations in these incoming rays — which appear to depend upon sunspot cycles — suggest that studies aimed at determining their possible biological significance to spacemen be made only at the proper times as regards the occurrence of sunspots. Otherwise, he said, scientists might miss the boat in determining if they do constitute a hazard and, if so, how much of a danger.

Wants 24-Hour Watch On Policy

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Sen. Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn.) says full-time supervision of U.S. foreign policy is essential in a critical period of world unrest.

Humphrey, member of the Senate Foreign Affairs Committee, told the State County Bar Assn. "we need people in charge 24 hours a day."

He spoke as Secretary of State John Foster Dulles flew to Florida Monday to recuperate from cancer.

"I have the highest regard for the secretary," Humphrey said. "May his health be restored. But we cannot have sentimentality in our foreign policy now."

Trading Stamps To Church-Goers

ALICE, Tex. (AP)—A green trading stamp was attached to letters mailed to members of First Baptist church here by T. G. Peters, superintendent of the church school.

Come to Sunday school, he told the congregation members, and they would get two more green stamps. Attendance was up substantially next Sunday.

Yagoda described the new findings at a meeting of the American Physical Society at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The findings, he said, boil down to the fact that at periods of minimum sunspot activity, the particular cosmic rays under study — called "low-energy heavy primaries" — are much more intense than at times when sunspots are at their maximum.

The evidence was obtained, he said, from flights of Navy Viking rockets in 1952 and 1954, when sunspots were at a minimum — and flights of other rockets made during 1958 when there was a sunspot maximum.

Explaining that this particular kind of cosmic ray is stopped at high altitudes by impact with electrons — but that it causes the generation of a kind of secondary ray called a "thin-down track" — Yagoda said: "This action might very well be responsible for biological changes in human tissue upon exposure."

He said that black mice carried in balloons into the stratosphere had their hair turned gray and that this might be due to such "thin-down" tracks.

He said no evidence of any adverse effect was experienced by the Air Force's Col. David Simons in his record stratospheric balloon flight, but that Simons remained in the stratosphere only for a limited time.

It is possible, he said, that a manned satellite, cruising at 200 miles altitude for months might be exposed to real danger.

Therefore, he said, it behooves researchers to find out what is happening in the "thin-down track" department at such altitudes — and to make sure their studies are made at a time when the radiation activity might be expected to be at maximum.

Postal Display Proved Illegal

BALTIMORE (AP)—The post office display of three big colored postage stamps turned out to be too colorful.

The art department proudly exhibited them in the main lobby. They commemorated events in Alaska, the Arctic and Oregon.

But the spotlight display Monday caught the eye of John H. Hanly, head of the Secret Service office here. He reminded postal officials that federal regulations prohibit colored illustrations of postage stamps.

That canceled the stamps, which will be redone in black and white.

CHAPTER 30

Sailing at our top speed, breaking course at two-minute intervals, we were a shifting target for the three convoy vessels.

On our weather rail a score of matches, flared as a powder monkey raced down the deck with a brazier. In another moment the same procedure was repeated alee. Our bow gunners (warned by Hans) had prepared to fire on order; the nearest boom was already looming in their sights.

"Hold your fire till we're abaft," called.

"Steady she is, sir," Hans shouted.

Round shot was plummeting into the sea on both sides, and several of the hits were uncomfortably close.

There was a stir at our cabin door, and Bonnie Carter came on deck to stand beside me. "All shipshape, Captain Carter," I said to her.

"The deck's still yours, Mr. Douglas."

"The gunners have orders to aim for the sternpost," I said.

"Everything hangs on disabling boom with a single shot."

"So I observe," she said. "In your place I'd sail a point closer to the wind."

I corrected my helmsman with a smothered curse at her eye for seamanship. It was vital that we roar down on our enemy with our bowsprit leveled at his rudder chains.

The pause that followed seemed never ending. Less than two hundred feet of sea lay between us now. I held my breath as a ball splintered the coaming of our forward rail. A second shot, hissing out of the blue like some evil banshee, missed the quarter-deck by inches before it geysered into our wake. Still holding course, I dropped to my knees at its passage.

Bonnie, still defiantly upright beside me, laughed at the near miss.

"Keep her nose down, Mr. Douglas. Give the gunners a clear sight!"

I accomplished this simple maneuver easily — taking the full force of the wind on my main and foreyards and driving the bowsprit into the heart of the next roller.

White water spouted over our foredeck and I bellowed the order to fire. As the smoke cleared, the parrot-headed silhouette of the enemy sternpost seemed to hang above us. Hans was the first of the two swivel gunners to fire; the other men roared before the first report could die, blanketing our bows in a nimbus of smoke. I ordered the helm over just in time, as we shot through the cloud.

Both shots had found their target. There was only a gaping hole where the rudder had been — and the enemy mainmast, cut clean away, had spilled its sail into the water, fouting the hostile gunports as we ran past.

"Fire!"

The broadside, delivered almost in unison by the eighteen guns that lined our weather rail, would have foundered a vessel twice the size of the boom. There was no time to measure the exact damage, since we had already gone winging alee of the Indiaman, but the screams of the crew spelled out the impact.

"Load — and stand by!" The command was needless. The gunners (there are no finer marksmen on earth than your seasoned buccaneers) had already sprung to their task, aware they must deliver a fresh broadside when we emerged from our ambush. I eased off a point, giving them what time I could. The Indiaman, now less than a biscuit's toss upwind, seemed to fill the sky.

I studied the disposition of her men, noting that less than a dozen faces showed at the rail. As I had surmised, the Arabs had put no more than a jury crew aboard, hoping to bring their prize to land without mishap.

The vessel herself was an ancient, ragabond who showed yards of seaweed beard with each roll of her bows. That barnacled exterior, however, was only a blind to mask the riches within. It had always been the Grand Mogul's custom to use such hoary argosies to transport his wealth to Suez. Her name — the Aureng Zeb — blazoned in Arabic on her stern, was an advertisement enough of his value.

Our next move called for coordination. Before we had darted into the shadow of our prize, I had marked the position of the two remaining booms exactly. Since they had been shut out of battle so far, I counted on them to be ready — and so they were, guns trained ahead of the Indiaman, eager to blast us from the water when we emerged from the protection of those cliff-high decks. Naturally, they expected us to run clear.

Instead, I put our helm hard to larboard, almost before we had drawn level with the bowsprit of the Aureng Zeb. In another instant we burst into the open sea again, showing the Indiaman's bow by a whisker.

It was a desperate tactic, and I had counted on its surprise value. As I hoped, the skippers of the two remaining booms reacted as prudent seamen should — putting up their helms to avoid a head-on crash, and opening space between them.

"Stand by to come about!"

Again the order was scarcely needed. The rattlings were black with sailors when we went bulging into that narrow sea lane.

Feeling the stab of Bonnie's eyes as she continued to stand silently beside me, I forced myself to hold back my next crucial order, to gauge the position of both enemy vessels seconds after we made our swing. Then, just as we had passed the first boom and seemed certain to pile up on the second, I shouted my command into the yards.

The helmsman leaned once again upon the spokes. Coming about in that narrow space, we slowed to a full stop in a matter of seconds. Our targets were dead on our muzzles. The enemy ships, with all sails straining, could not slow their headlong rush. Our larboard guns spoke first. The crash of the broadside had not died when signaled to the starboard battery.

Both targets shuddered from end to end under those twin full-lades. At point-blank range there was no chance for retaliation after our lightning-swift strike. Of the eighteen round shot belched from each gun deck, nearly all struck home.

I needed only Bonnie's victory shout (in which the whole crew joined) to tell me our sweep was complete.

I raised my glass to confirm that hasty judgment, however. The first boom had sunk without a trace. A second was foundering; the sea around her was dotted with swimmers making for the third vessel, which was listing badly under shattered spars, though she appeared seaworthy. Most of her cannon had already gone overboard in an effort to right her balance — and the crew was rigging what sail they could.

Should we leave them unmolested, I knew they would run for the Trucial Coast, a day's sailing to the east.

The action had taken less than a half hour. The Aureng Zeb was ours now — and the token dropping of her mainsail as she awaited capture was final proof of our success.

With Bonnie once more in command, we circled the crippled boom just once, to make sure she had no fight left.

By that time the survivors from the other vessel had managed to scramble aboard. Mozo (who spoke fluent Arabic) ordered her to heave to, while we sent a warning shot across the bows of the Indiaman. When the Aureng Zeb had dipped her colors, we ran broadside and grappled her while Bonnie and her first officer went aboard, under cover of a score of muskets.

In a matter of minutes the last of the Arab crew had tumbled into their boats and raced to join their fellows aboard the damaged boom.

Once we had tested the sails and rudders of our prize (and made certain our adversaries had not opened the bilgeae) we permitted the overloaded vessel to take to her heels — which she did in a limping fashion, indeed.

At Bonnie's order, Mozo took charge of the Aureng Zeb and the crew that would sail her back to Rango Bay. The Indiaman would be in little danger, since we planned to convoy her to waters north-east of Madagascar. With so rich and defenseless a prize it was a wise precaution.

"Good hunting to the north!" is news given the pirates as the Venture heads there with Captain Bonnie in command. Continue the narrative tomorrow.

Executioner Has Criminal Record

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Capt. Herman Marks, who has risen to the post of executioner for Cuban rebel chief Fidel Castro, left a long criminal record behind when he joined the army.

Warden A. W. Clay said the 12 men in the bus were forced to take part in the wild dash for freedom Monday and that no action would be taken against them. All 15 are white.

Clay identified the trio as: Tommy Barfield, 25, of Walker County, serving 1 to 2 years for burglary; Jimmy Darnell, 18, of Clayton County, serving 5 to 10 years for burglary; and Dewitt Boyett, 20, of Charlton County, serving 1 to 4 years for larceny.

They were captured after they abandoned the bus and fled into a swampland. Bloodhounds finally laid a posse to where the three convicts were hiding under a

Report Navy Not In Top Condition

WASHINGTON (AP)—A civilian survey team contends the U.S. fleet is not in an acceptable state of readiness and that drastic action is needed to "reverse the mounting deterioration now in progress."

In a censored version of its report to the secretary of the Navy, the survey team said: "The primary cause of this situation is an ever widening gap between the responsibilities assigned to the Navy and the financial resources allocated to it."

The group urged a substantial increase in funds for both new ship construction and maintenance during the next fiscal year.

The censored report didn't spell out how much additional money is needed. But the Washington Post said a Navy source reported that a four-year improvement program costing more than one billion dollars has been prepared.

Any extra funds would have to be approved by Congress.

The fleet survey was made by W. E. Blewett Jr., president of the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Co.; L. H. Quackenbush, vice president of the State Marine Lines, a steamship company; and R. E. Gibson, director of the Johns Hopkins University Applied Science Laboratory.

The Navy had requested them to examine the fleet with emphasis on maintenance and operating problems.

Dulles Rests At Island Retreat

JUPITER ISLAND, Fla. (AP)—John Foster Dulles, fighting against cancer, rested at this millionaires' island retreat today.

Dulles, 71, is staying at the home of Under Secretary of State C. Douglas Dillon, 20 miles from West Palm Beach.

Dulles arrived Monday. He said he felt "pretty good" as he left Washington in the presidential plane Columbine III.

Lincoln White, State Department press officer, said at Washington he understands Dulles will decide in Florida whether he feels well enough to step once again into the job as this country's foreign policy chief.

Dulles will not return to Washington for further medical tests, White said. Capt. Edward J. Kamin II, an Army internal medicine specialist, accompanied Dulles here with Mrs. Dulles.

Convicts Fail In Escape Attempt In Prison Bus

NAHUNTA, Ga. (AP) — Three convicts face disciplinary action at the Ware County prison branch after a spectacular attempt to escape with 12 others aboard a prison bus.

Warden A. W. Clay said the 12 men in the bus were forced to take part in the wild dash for freedom Monday and that no action would be taken against them. All 15 are white.

Clay identified the trio as: Tommy Barfield, 25, of Walker County, serving 1 to 2 years for burglary; Jimmy Darnell, 18, of Clayton County, serving 5 to 10 years for burglary; and Dewitt Boyett, 20, of Charlton County, serving 1 to 4 years for larceny.

They were captured after they abandoned the bus and fled into a swampland. Bloodhounds finally laid a posse to where the three convicts were hiding under a bridge. The men were armed with a shotgun and two pistols but surrendered meekly.

Other officers found the other 12 prisoners sitting quietly aboard the bus.

An Old Ranger Drops Fugitive

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP)—A prisoner sprinted madly for freedom but an 82-year-old former Texas Ranger dropped him calmly with a single slug from his six-shooter Monday.

"I called twice for him to stop but he just kept running, so I fired," said Dep. Sheriff John Graves. "I hit him about two inches from where I wanted to. Just wanted to wing him."

Hamilton McCampbell Jr., 32, was hospitalized with a slug in the right shoulder. He was hit from 50 paces.

McCampbell had been sentenced to 10 years for auto theft.

Mating Call Has Poor Prospects

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The sad, frog-like mating call of a Central American toucan bird is giving the keepers at Fleishacker Zoo the heebie jeebies.

The toucan is a brilliantly colored hornbilled creature. But most of its tail feathers are missing. I can't fly. It moves about with a spiritless, helpless hop and croaks hoarsely for a mate.

The croak goes on all day long. The keepers are saying unkind things about the poor toucan. They have hopes—although dim ones—that someone will turn up with a female toucan.

House 'Showdown' Slated Wednesday

RALEIGH (AP)— An expected showdown battle in the House on legislative reapportionment is set for Wednesday.

The bill was on the House calendar for Monday night, but action on it was postponed at the request of Rep. Radford Powell of Rockingham, whose county would gain a House member under the measure.

The question of reapportionment has been before every Legislature since 1950 and has met defeat. Under the bill introduced by Powell and Rep. George Long of Alamance, four House seats would be reshuffled to bring representation in line with the 1950 census.

The measure calls for Cabarrus and Pitt counties, which now have two House members each, to lose one each. Rockingham and Alamance would gain one member each.

Powell told newsmen before the House convened he would prefer that the House delay action on the measure until more members could be present. He said, "I know of several who told me they would not be here tonight."

Although the Monday evening sessions usually have a poor attendance, the House chamber was near capacity.

Two Injured In Traffic Mishaps

Two people were sent to the hospital last night as a result of two accidents, one involving a pedestrian.

William A. Hines, 61, of 410 Greene St. was crossing Greene St. at Third when he was hit from behind by a car driven by Luther Chance, Negro, of 411 B. Hudson St., officers stated.

The car, police said, was making a left turn off Third Street and the driver did not see Hines.

Hines was taken to the hospital and treated for abrasions of his left knee.

No charges were placed by investigating officers.

The second accident occurred about 8:53 p.m. when two cars collided at the intersection of 8th and Cotanche Sts.

Officers said a car driven by J. L. Hobgood, 2320 Deal Place, headed south on Cotanche St. was involved in a collision with a car operated by Mrs. Miriam Thomas Vetter, 104 Dogwood Drive, who was going east on 8th St.

No estimate of the damage could be obtained this morning but it was considered heavy.

Mrs. J. L. Hobgood was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital and treated for bruises of the head and abrasions of both knees.

Investigating officers charged Mrs. Vetter with failure to yield right of way as a result of the collision.

Virginia Hunts New Legal Line

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Virginia's General Assembly begins consideration today of new legal lines of defense against the spread of racial integration in public schools.

It appeared the program the Assembly will be asked to enact will add up to a freedom-of-choice plan as successor to the now-defunct massive resistance program which collapsed in state and federal courts.

The phrase "freedom of choice," said a source close to Gov. J. Lindsay Almond Jr., was chosen because the plan may offer a community or an individual the choice between state-aided private schooling or integrated public schooling.

A 40-member legislative commission has kept its deliberations secret. The Assembly meeting is a resumption of the special school session of January 23 called after the courts invalidated laws which had held the school segregation line since the Supreme Court's 1954 decision on the subject.

Legislators enacted two major requests Almond made: state tuition grants of up to $250 for pupils who refused to attend integrated schools, and repeal of the compulsory school attendance law.

The Assembly then recessed and Almond named the commission to draft a new school program.

Majorette Qualifies For International Contest

By CATHERINE MOORE

Yesterday chief majorette Lib Rogers won the right to advance to the Drum Majorettes of America International Contest, August 17-22, by strutting to the runner-up position in the North Carolina State Strutting Contest, also sponsored by the DMA.

This contest took place in Wilmington. The International will begin August 17 at Indian Lake, Russell's Point, Ohio.

Lib and Frances Cozart both entered other divisions of the North Carolina State Contest. Lib topped the championship award in the National Open Strutting Contest, competing against contestants from several states. Frances placed third in the National Open Beginners Twirling Contest.

For her top place in the National Open, Lib received a stained, wooden plaque. On the gold will be engraved "First Place, National Open Contest, March 30, 1959." On the front of this plaque appear a goddess, with a sprig of laurel leaves on either side.

For placing second in North Carolina State Strutting Contest, Lib brought home a round bronze medal attached to a red, white and blue ribbon. The majorette on the shield struts amid a circle of laurel leaves.

Frances' third place medal features a strutting majorette on a shield-shaped medal.

For both strutting events, Lib wore a purple contest uniform, which featured a purple and white sequined spray design. For twirling, she appeared in a red official Dixie Majorette Association uniform, ornamented with white lace flowers and rhinestones, and the official DMA badge.

For both her twirling event and the state and open twirling events, Frances wore one of the standard Rose High School majorette uniforms, which is forest green with a gold, sequined "G."

Both girls performed a novelty number and appeared in bathing suits, as well as strutting and twirling, for the Miss Majorette of North Carolina, 1959, competition. Lib danced the hula, and Frances, the Charleston.

Wearing a skirt costume of red silk fringe and a bodice of red and white sequins, Lib used Moroccan and alternated between twirling one and two batons as she acted out the rhythms of the "Hawaiian War Chant." A lei of white flowers hung from her neck and white flowers were in her hair.

Frances' costume consisted of a blue Bermuda skirt and a white saten blouse. She wore a gold headband and gold shoes, as she kicked her heels to the beat of the dance of the Old South.

Lib appeared in the bathing suit competition in a black suit. Frances wore a blue and white flowered one. Judges rated them on walking and on beauty during this time.

Last night, all finalists returned to Brodgen Hall, after everyone else left, to receive their awards. Photographers shot still and moving pictures during these presentations.

Television photographers took movies for their news shows of all divisions of the contest. Nationally-circulated magazines shot pictures of the strutters as they struck poses before the judges' stand. These will appear soon in a forthcoming issue.

Top winners in all divisions of the contest will return to Wilmington Saturday to march in the annual Azalea Festival Parade.
