Tibetan Exiles Cheer Reported Flight Of Dalai Lama To India

Nehru Says Refuge Given Asylum After Perilous Trek From Lhasa

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Tibetan exiles today hailed the escape of the Dalai Lama to India after a perilous flight from the Chinese Reds. They declared he still is their god-king. Prime Minister Nehru confirmed to a cheering Parliament that the 23-year-old living Buddha of Tibet had reached a haven in India three nights ago, an escape first announced by the Peiping radio Thursday.

"Yes, he is in good health," Nehru said, indicating the Dalai Lama will be given quick asylum, he promised that the refugee will be treated with great respect.

Prayers of thanksgiving were offered by Tibetan exiles from New Delhi to Kalimpong, the town near Tibet's frontier. The people at Kalimpong went wild with joy.

Nehru said the Dalai Lama crossed the border in northeast India north of the village of Towang, about 500 miles north of Calcutta. Towang has the largest Buddhist monastery in India.

The Dalai Lama and his party of about 80 are now approaching Towang.

Well-informed sources in Kalimpong said the Dalai Lama made his daring trek of about 300 miles from the capital of Lhasa to the Indian border in two weeks. Sometimes the fugitives saw Chinese Communist search planes overhead.

With the protection of fierce Khampa tribesmen, leaders in Tibet's rebellion, the Dalai Lama crossed great rivers and high mountain passes to reach the frontier, these sources said.

The Chinese Communists, in disclosing Thursday that their quarry had reached India, claimed he was kidnaped by rebels who rose up against the Red overlords in Lhasa, the Tibetan capital, just over two weeks ago.

But Nehru's statement to Parliament made clear that the young ruler fled Lhasa of his own accord and that he was seeking refuge in India.

Nehru said that he first learned Wednesday night that an emissary of the Dalai Lama had arrived at the Indian border in the northeast frontier area of Assam state.

The prime minister said that the young ruler and his party actually had crossed the border the night before but the message from the remote area was slow in reaching him. A second group subsequently arrived to swell the Lama's entourage to 80 persons, Nehru said.

Nehru said the Dalai Lama's emissary sought political asylum for his chief, and that the Indian political officer at Shillong, in Assam state, the chief town 150 miles south of the border, had prior instructions what to do. This was taken as an indication that asylum would be granted.

Announce Pre-School Registration Times

Schedules for pre-school registration days in Greenville city schools were announced today by Superintendent J. H. Rose.

The schedule includes Third Street School, April 7, beginning at 1:30 p. m.; Agnes Pullilove School, April 7, beginning at 8 p. m.; Wahl-Coates School, April 8, 2 p. m. through 5 p. m.; South Greenville School, April 10, 2 p. m. through 5 p. m. and 6 p. m. through 8 p. m.; Elmhurst School, April 14, beginning at 8 p. m.; and Fleming Street School, April 22, 10 a. m. through noon, 2 p. m. through 4 p. m. and 6 p. m. through 8 p. m.

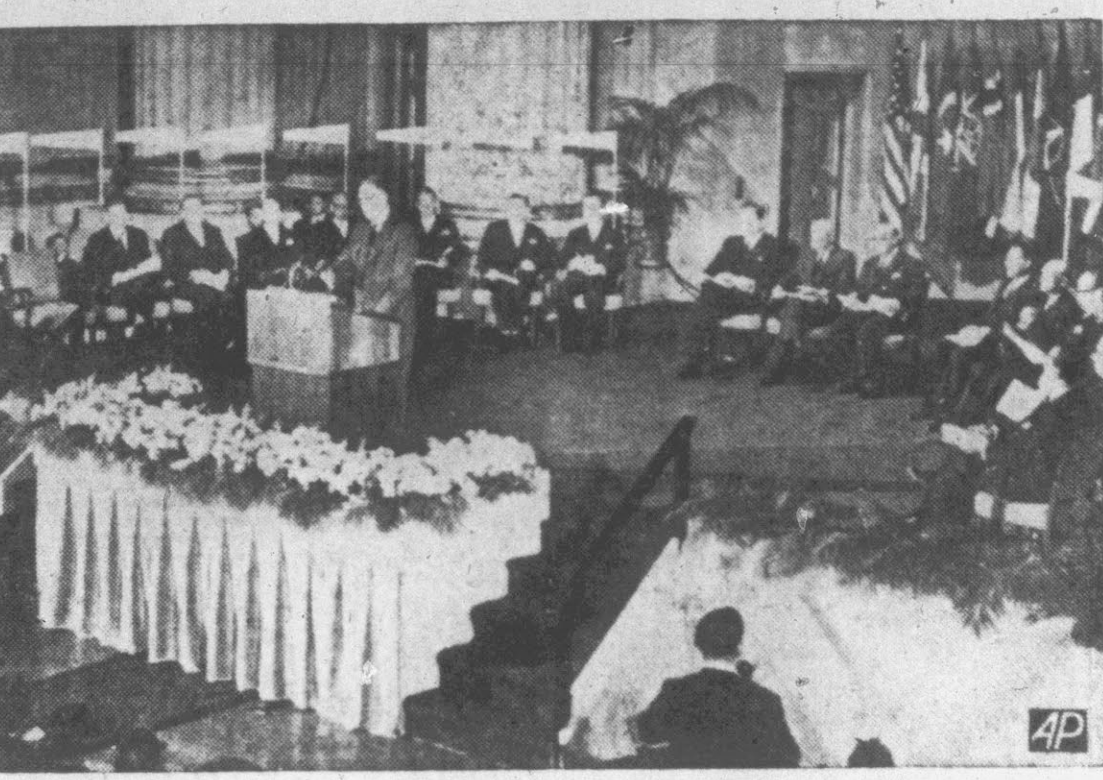

Purpose of the pre-school registration days is to register children who will enter first grade next fall. Parents are requested to bring birth certificates for each child who is to be registered, plus certificates of immunization if they are available.

Rose pointed out this morning that immunizations will not be administered at the registration days this year, as has been done in years past. The required immunizations must be administered by either private physicians or at the Pitt County Health Department before a child is permitted to enter school, however.

The required immunizations include smallpox, diphtheria, whooping cough and polio. They can be obtained, Rose said, through arrangements with private physicians or at Health Department clinics held each Monday from 9 a. m. through noon and 1 p. m. through 4:30 p. m.

All children who are expected to enter school next fall should be registered at one of the schools, Rose said.

Jeering Crowds Gather At Henderson's Struck Mills

HENDERSON, N. C. (AP)—Spurred, but orderly, crowds jeered at income workers today in the wake of a breakdown in negotiations to settle Henderson's turbulent cotton mill strike.

Crowds of about 100 persons each gathered at the two plants of strike-bound Harriet-Henderson mills. They shouted at non-striking workers but refrained from violence.

Tension was high as a result of Gov. Hodges' announcement Thursday that mill management and the Textile Workers Union of America were deadlocked.

The strike scene was quiet Thursday night as a "night watch" of about 200 Henderson citizens assisted law enforcement officers in patrolling the city's two mill areas.

No strike-connected incidents were reported. Formation of the "night watch" team of local citizens was announced after Gov. Hodges reported failure in his efforts to mediate a settlement in the long Harriet-Henderson Cotton Mills strike. He said he was withdrawing from the negotiations.

A mass meeting of the two local Textile Workers Union of America units was scheduled today to hear a report on the negotiations and to map "our future course," a union spokesman said.

Hodges announced at a news conference in Raleigh that the negotiations had broken down. Later, he met with state, Henderson and Vance County officials. Hodges said he called them together "to discuss our fear that we were going to have further violence and to set up our preparations."

"The negotiations," Hodges said earlier, "finally broke down over the issue of job rights of the workers now in the mills as compared to strikers, and also the question of the check-off of union dues."

The governor had met with union-management leaders for six days at the executive mansion. He said the differences between the management and union "are still serious and are of long-standing."

Boyd Payton of Charlotte, Carolina regional director for TWU, said Thursday night, "Unless the company can change its position there is really not much need to negotiate any further. We've made a rock bottom proposal to settle it."

He added, "We're not defeated. Ninety-five per cent of the people who went on strike are still on strike."

Hodges told the press conference, "Both sides are at fault and both sides deserve credit" for concessions made in an effort to agree on a contract.

The strike began Nov. 17 after disagreement on an arbitration clause. The company wanted it removed from a new contract. The mills reopened Feb. 16 on a limited basis and since then there have been numerous incidents of violence.

Company President John D. Cooper Jr., said that during the negotiations the company "made a number of concessions to which it does not necessarily agree but which were made because of its high respect and deference" for Gov. Hodges.

He added he has enough workers to put a second shift in operation at the mill.

Mayor Carroll Singleton said the 200-man "night watch" team was in no way a "vigilante" group. They will not be armed and carry no identification. The members will report all suspicious incidents at the mill villages to a central point in Henderson. The central point will then relay the information to law enforcement officers.

The "night watch" team was formed out of some 1,500 persons signing newspaper advertisements last weekend deploring strike violence.

Western Powers Appear To Be Toughening Stand

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Western powers appeared today to be toughening their policy on negotiations with the Soviet Union over the Berlin crisis.

As the NATO foreign ministers meeting went into its second day here, the United States, Britain and France were reported shelving some proposals which could be construed as offering possible concessions to the Soviets.

The United States, meanwhile, pledged anew the full use of its nuclear missile and bomber striking force in defense of Western Europe and North America if military action ever became necessary.

Acting Secretary of State Christian Herter told the 15-nation Foreign Ministers Council late Thursday that U. S. power today is greater than it has ever been. He declared that this country is now making faster progress in the development of missiles than is the Soviet Union.

"I pledge our continued willingness," Herter solemnly told the allied leaders, "to make the necessary effort for the common defense."

"I pledge also full willingness to use our strength in the common defense if need be."

West German Foreign Minister Heinrich von Brentano was scheduled to lead off today's debate on the Berlin crisis and the development of Western policy for dealing with it. The debate opened Thursday after President Eisenhower's morning address in which he declared that NATO must be prepared to carry on for years in a world of continued "tension and bickering" between the free nations and the Soviets.

The Western Big Three are seeking support from the whole NATO Council on the general policy lines which they have so far developed for negotiations with the Soviet Union at a foreign ministers meeting beginning in Geneva May 11 on the problem of Germany and the specific crisis over Berlin.

Britain has been reported as favoring a softer approach to the Geneva negotiations than the United States and France. West Germany is known to advocate a hardboiled strategy, reserving any concessions until a late stage and avoiding any evidence of willingness to pay a price to get the U. S. S. R. to ease up on Berlin.

British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd told the NATO meeting any plan for neutralizing or demilitarizing Germany would constitute the worst possible solution on the German problem. He declared Britain would not advocate any freeze on armed forces in central Europe unless it were linked with the goal of reunifying Germany. This latter point indicated a shift in Britain's position.

Both Lloyd and French Foreign Minister Couve de Murville emphasized to the council that the United States, Britain and France will not pull their troops out of Berlin as the Soviet Union has demanded.

Two Prisoners, One A Killer, In Jail Break Today

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C. (AP) — Two prisoners, one of them the accused killer of a bank teller, overpowered a jailer and escaped from Cumberland County Jail here early today.

They are Charles Thomas Bradford, 28, accused of robbing a Ft. Bragg branch bank and slaying the teller last Feb. 20, and John William Odum of Fayetteville, being held on an auto larceny charge.

The sheriff's department said the men got Asst. Jailer E. B. McLaurin to open the door of their fourth-floor cell when one of them pretended his shirt was caught.

Then they slugged McLaurin and left him bound and gagged in the cell. Two other prisoners in the cell didn't leave the jail, and returned shortly to free McLaurin. The officer was treated at a hospital for head injuries and released.

Bradford and Odum rode the elevator to the second floor and then walked to the ground floor. They escaped in McLaurin's car. The escape took place about 2:30 a. m.

Roadblocks were set up throughout this area, and authorities in surrounding states were alerted. Authorities said the two are armed with two pistols and two bludgeons.

Bradford was charged with robbing the branch bank of $13,373 and with slaying J. Frank Johnson, 54-year-old teller.

At the time, Bradford was on leave from Ft. McPherson, Ga. where he was a member of the Third Army Band.

He was arrested the next day in a newly purchased car at Fuquay Springs, 30 miles north of Ft. Bragg and the home of his wife's parents. The car had been bought shortly after the robbery.

Officers said two Hungarian refugees, Jeno Ronasi and Zoltan Scabu, helped in the escape. The two, being held on a charge of rape, left with Bradford and Odum but returned at 3:45 a. m. to the jail cell.

McLaurin, 47, said they told him they decided not to go and said Bradford and Odum had tossed the keys to the cell on top of the court house. The jailer said he told them how to get out on the roof and the two retrieved the keys and opened the cell.

Bradford was charged specifically with committing a crime on a government reservation, a charge covering the robbery and the slaying.

He was being held under $50,000 bond for the next term of U. S. District Court.

Two or three persons who knew Bradford said they recognized him hanging around the bank shortly before the robbery-slaying.

Will Introduce New Farm Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Homer E. Capehart (R-Ind.) says he will introduce a completely new farm bill in Congress within two weeks.

"It is a new approach, has new ideas," the senator said Thursday night, when he announced he was preparing the bill.

"The administration farm policy has broken down. We need new thoughts and ideas," Capehart said. But he denied he was leading any clique in Congress or the Republican party in a revolt against the Eisenhower administration's farm program.

The senator would not disclose the specific provisions of his bill but said: "In general, it will provide for reducing surpluses, increasing farm prices, and getting the taxpayers out of the farm business."

Stretch Your Freezer!

RALEIGH—Stretch your freezer! "Stretch your mind and think of ways to use the space in your freezer or freezer locker to best advantage," urges Miss Nita Orr, frozen foods specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service. "Corn cobs use valuable space. But, if you prefer corn on the cob, freeze it that way and enjoy your extravagance."

"Large bones have no place in the freezer. Boned meat is easier to chop, carve, serve, and eat. A good freezing bag in a sturdy carton uses space well. Cornered parts are better space-savers than round ones. "Avoid excessive wrappings. They slow up the freezing process and takes up valuable space. "Don't keep old food in your freezer. Manage your freezer space in order to use—not lose—your food," Miss Orr concluded.

S-t-r-e-t-c-h-i-n-g Dollars

By ROSALIE MOORE
Reflector Staff Writer

Products for the homemaker's food basket this week will include economical red meat buys. Favorable prices are appearing on pork loins, bacon, spare ribs and pork chops.

Bacon is not essentially a breakfast food, but it has long been a breakfast favorite. It has many other uses, all times of the day. Bacon is a "go-together" with other foods—adding a delightful taste to ordinarily mild foods.

Bacon should be wrapped in the wrapper in which it comes, or in waxed paper. Keep it in the refrigerator—although not in the coldest part. For best quality, bacon should be eaten within a week or two as it loses its finest flavor and tends to dry when cooking.

Bacon should not be frozen for any length of time, since it contains quite a bit of salt and the quality deteriorates from long freezing.

Bacon drippings are a good flavorful seasoning. There are many uses for drippings. Some of these are: as an excellent seasoning for all vegetables, a basis for soups and white sauces, frying eggs, French toast, baking light muffins, coffee cakes and rich cookies.

The prices of beef show a little change with greater values to be found in featured specials.

Large size eggs continue to be the best buy, as spring production increases.

Don't penalize your pocketbook or your family when you select eggs. The quality of eggs depreciates quickly at room temperature. Best quality eggs are those that get the "cool treatment" from the farm to the breakfast table.

Eggs should be refrigerated as soon as they are brought home from the market—and keep them covered. Eggs stored uncovered lose moisture faster and may absorb food odors and flavors.

When you buy eggs, you are buying minerals, vitamins and protein—so guard them!

Top quality eggs are ideal in the shell, frying or poaching. Other grades are good for scrambling, omelets or general cooking. The cooking performance and quality of small eggs are equal to larger eggs.

Remember these facts while shopping for eggs so you may have the best for both your family and the budget.

Broiler supplies are expected to remain plentiful through the coming weeks. Prices have shown a slight fluctuation during past weeks but remain reasonable.

Citrus prices have shown a slight increase as a result of dwindling supplies. Apples out of storage remain at reasonable price levels. Fresh strawberries are appearing on some of the local markets in Pitt County.

Fresh vegetable supplies continue to increase, with cabbage lettuce, carrots, celery, greens and broccoli the most attractive buys. Irish potato supplies remain large and prices are very reasonable for the budget buyer.

Fashion Show Set

Plans for the second annual Spring Fashion Show have been completed, according to the chairman, Mrs. Paul Fisher. The show will take place April 10 at Griffon High School.

Miss North Carolina, Betty Lane Evans, will be an added feature. She will dance, sing and model dresses she wore at Atlantic City. The Miss America contest will be her subject.

Come-waste garments will be shown in four divisions. These will be judged for appearance.

Four groups of prizes, which will include a $25 savings bond and a $10 cash award, will be given.

Commentators for the groups will include: Mrs. Ann Cavenaugh, children's group; Misses Sally Mewborn and Emily Nelson, teenage group; Mrs. Drew Harper of Snow Hill, adult group, and Mrs. W. M. Rasberry, group entries.

Miss Betty Jo Gaskins will accompany Miss Evans in her song and dance number.

Mrs. Bill January and Mrs. Bob January will be chairman of the fashion show.

Admission will be charged.

Debbie Steps Aside; Ecstatic Eddie, Liz Plan May Wedding

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — An ecstatic Elizabeth Taylor and Eddie Fisher today made plans for a private wedding that will take place probably May 11.

"No one will know about it until it's over," the joyful actress told a reporter Thursday night.

"We are both very grateful to Debbie."

She was referring to Debbie Reynolds, Fisher's wife, who announced Thursday she would not oppose Fisher's desire to get a quickie Nevada divorce so that he could marry Miss Taylor.

"I wish Liz and Eddie happiness," Debbie said as she arrived in Los Angeles after a transpolar flight from a movie location in Spain.

The news made Liz and Eddie so happy that they literally jumped for joy. A reporter told them of Debbie's statement while the two were at the $500-a-week dude ranch that Miss Taylor rents while Fisher performs nearby at the Tropicana Hotel.

"Liz is flipping," said Fisher. "She's jumping all over the room. I'm grateful that Debbie did this."

Then Liz got on the telephone and said: "I'm so happy I almost passed out at the news. I knew all along that Debbie would consent. Just chalk it up to woman's psychology or intuition."

Liz originally had made plans to attend Burl Ives' opening at the Flamingo Hotel Thursday night. Ives, her co-star in "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof" and also a fellow Academy Award nominee, was Elizabeth's guest at Fisher's opening Wednesday night.

"I decided that Eddie and I should be alone," she explained. "Also, I've been fighting a sore throat."

She was not at Fisher's supper show but the singer went out to the ranch between shows and she returned with him to the midnight show.

"I'll be here every night from now on," she said, "either out front or around the dressing room."

That means two shows a night for the next six weeks, the time needed for Fisher to establish Nevada residence. He said he probably will charge incompatibility in his divorce suit against Debbie.

Debbie got a California decree in February from Fisher but it will not be final for a year. As a result Liz and Eddie cannot live in California as man and wife until February 1960. Otherwise Fisher would be subject to prosecution for bigamy in that state.

EDDIE AND LIZ . . . for them, good news.

Gardening Today

By JOHN G. DUNCAN

Although garden inspection is and should be a constant chore, the spring inspection can head off a lot of grief if steps are taken. Along with this should be a general clean up.

Remove all accumulated debris, cut down all of last year's flower stalks. Look under the leaves of the evergreens for scale insects and eggs of unatched destruction. Examine the stem of roses for canker, scale, etc. Pick off and burn bagworms from arborvitae, junipers and other trees. Pick up and burn all twigs from pecans and oaks.

Do not depend on normal eyesight. Use a magnifying glass to help find insect eggs and scales. This not only makes it easier to find egg masses, scales, etc., but also makes an adventure of the inspection. Keep notes on plants that were attacked last year. Prune out all diseased and insect infested wood. Do this before any spraying is done. Do not waste spray on wood or foliage that can and should be removed.

Check drainage on all camellias and azaleas that show yellow foliage or fades. Before any extensive soil treatment is undertaken, examine foliage for insect injury and egg masses. Maybe a replanting of these plants will clear up the trouble. Along with this inspection should go an inspection of all garden equipment.

Check all pruning tools. Try out sprayer with plain water. Change oil in lawn mower. Try it out to see if it is in working order. Discard and replace all tools with splintered handles. Check hose. Replace all rubber washers. If you used a certain spray material last year and there is another that can do the job switch to it. In this way you prevent insects from building up an immunity to one insecticide.

Plan to keep a diary of all garden work. It will help you in years to come. Put in some new plants.

CHAMP CROW HUNTER

IDABEL, Okla. (AP) — Herbert Derryberry is in the crow killing business in a big way. He brought a hi-fi battery operated record player and some crow call records. He can call crows from several miles away. Unless he kills 30 or 40 a day he does not consider it much of a hunt.

Discard some that haven't done well. Read good garden magazines. Build up a library on subjects such as pruning, spraying plants, and garden procedure. Have soil tests made of doubtful areas. If your area is small, diversity; don't plant area in one or two plants.

Summing up: check on condition of all plants. See that all tools are in good working order. Keep records on plants, their behavior, their response to certain conditions, and suitability to your garden. Garden record of expense and work procedure make valuable references for future work.

Great Need For School Of Nursing

Introduction of a bill to provide a school of nursing at East Carolina College should be the signal to this area of the state to solidify its strength in support of this critically needed facility.

Failure of the bill to pass during this session of the General Assembly will mean that Eastern Carolina will have to wait at least two more years before it again attempts to convince legislators of the pressing need for a state-supported school of nursing in this part of the state.

During that two year period more hospital facilities will be constructed, the demand for more adequate medical care will increase in the area. And also during that period—without a state supported school of nursing in this section—Eastern Carolina's supply of nurses will continue to decline.

Hospitals of the area will experience greater difficulty in obtaining adequate nursing staffs and residents of the area consequently will not be able to receive the calibre of medical care they need and desire.

Efforts before the legislature, two years ago in behalf of the establishment of a state-supported school of nursing proved fruitless. In spite of growing recognition of the need for such a school in this area, and growing support for the establishment of a state-supported school of nursing, the item was stricken from budget recommendations by the Advisory Budget Commission. That means the proposal again faces an uphill battle before the appropriation committees and perhaps even on the floor of the House and Senate.

The need for a state supported school of nursing in this area cannot be denied. As it is now, hospitals in the area have great difficulty in obtaining a sufficient number of nurses. Many of them do not have and cannot obtain the number of nurses they require. Furthermore Eastern North Carolina is continuing to expand its existing hospitals and new hospitals are springing up each year.

Nurses trained in state-supported schools of nursing in other parts of the state for the most part remain in the areas where they receive their training.

The need for a state-supported school of nursing in Eastern North Carolina is fully justified by the critical need for nurses which now exists in this part of the state. A more acute need for nurses will exist in the future if positive steps are not taken.

Cost of the school for the biennium, $40,000 for the first year and $57,000 for the second—certainly will not impose a great burden on the state's overall budget. Yet the facility will fill a pressing need in a broad area of North Carolina which must be filled if adequate medical care is to be available to the people of the area.

New Reapportionment Plan Seems Necessary

It will be at least two more years now before the General Assembly acts again on its own reapportionment.

By that time new census figures should be available on the official population of North Carolina's 100 counties. By that time also, there should be some satisfactory plan for reapportioning representation in Raleigh other than that which is now provided.

It is evident that the present plan for reapportionment of representation in the General Assembly every 10 years is not satisfactory. In five consecutive sessions now the General Assembly members have voted against reapportionment on the basis of the 1951 census figures as provided for every 10 years by the constitution.

The latest defeat came on a roll call vote in the House yesterday where members voted 61 to 49 against a bill which would have reapportioned the House membership. The bill would have given Alamance and Rockingham Counties two representatives each, and would have reduced Pitt and Cabarrus Counties to one member each in the House.

Changes affecting only four of the 100 counties of North Carolina would not be sufficient to prevent the House from reapportioning its own membership were there not other major considerations involved in the overall problem.

Behind the reapportionment battle which has been fought each of the last five sessions, is the old scrap between large and small counties of the state. It involves not only representation in the House, but representation in the Senate as well.

Several alternatives to the present system of allotting representation in both houses have been offered. Yet none of these alternatives has gained sufficient support to be written into law.

Unless some new satisfactory manner is devised for apportioning representation in the General Assembly, North Carolina may go another 10 years after the 1960 census without reapportioning representation in its legislature.

Yesterday's House vote killed any legislative action on the matter for the current session. Attention should be turned again to the overall problem of legislative representation in the hope that a suitable answer may be found before the 1961 session of the General Assembly convenes.

Alcorn Removed Stuffing Feeling

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — Every one in a while a politician leaves this citadel of stuffy party platitudes after a career which makes you feel like saying, "Thanks for some cool air, for a change."

Meade Alcorn is such a one. With a few moments of frankness he denied, although the dent disappeared fast, the long tradition which seems to require political big-wigs to slam-bang the opposition into and never admit defeat beforehand.

Alcorn, 51, left his share of slambang before he resigned Wednesday as chairman of the Republican National Committee after more than 22 months of trying to steer his party down a victory road.

But it was his plain talk — months before the 1958 elections — that his party figured to lose which anguished some of his fellow Republicans and astonished politicians of both parties.

Alcorn, a lawyer who is going back to his practice in Connecticut, looked over the prospects last April and announced to newsmen "it isn't in the cards" for the Republicans to win the Senate.

He thought his party might barely make it in the House. Among politicians this umbrella of gloom which Alcorn raised over his party's chances may have seemed unheard of, unnecessary, unprofessional and even unpatriotic. It was certainly unheeded.

But it was realistic. And it was justified, for what seemed at the time like wild optimism from his opposite number, Paul Butler, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, turned out to be rather conservative.

Butler predicted the Democrats would win perhaps 12 seats from the Republicans in the Senate and 40 in the House. In the 1958 elections they actually took 13 Republican Senate seats and 47 in the House. It was the biggest Democratic victory since early New Deal days.

But Alcorn gave his party another dose of jolting frankness last January when the Republican National Committee met in Des Moines to hold a wake over the 1958 disaster and plan for victory in 1960.

Alcorn told committee members they had better dream up a new look for the party or get set for another shellacking.

"Today," he said, "we are being out-voted, out-talked, out-spent and out-worked by a giant project such as this?"

Warren relates this story of the project at Hatteras. "The late Harry Hopkins gave me one thousand men, known as 'transients,'" he said, "and by a system of putting down crates, sticks, and wreckage the sand began blowing up against them and when it reached sufficient height, grasses such as Cape Cod Grass, sea oats, etc. were planted on the sand fence."

He continued, "There is a section in the vicinity of Nags Head Coast Guard Station where the Honorable Sam D. Bundy, educator extraordinary who doubles in brass as Pitt County's orator laureate, was called upon last week to roll 'em in the aisles at a meeting in Goldsboro.

The group he addressed was from the Sampson County community of Turkey. They had their meeting at Goldsboro's Steak House, and everybody ate ham dinners.

Jim Hockaday's Farmville Enterprise looked upon the whole situation as "no place for a vegetarian". Under those circumstances, we can but presume that Honorable Sam was right at home.

We wonder, however, how some of his jokes sneaked into an otherwise carnivorous gathering.

A.C. Snow of The Raleigh Times tells this story:

A prominent octogenarian was being interviewed by reporters, one of whom asked, "If you had our life to live over, do you think you'd make the same mistakes again?"

"Certainly," replied the old man, smiling wistfully, "but I'd start a heap sooner."

The Goldsboro News-Argus tells this one:

A playboy was proposing to a girl who refused to take him seriously.

"I'm fast and loose now," the playboy said, "but I'll be a different man if you marry me. I'll be just the opposite of what I am today."

The girl replied, "That's what I'm afraid of. The opposite of fast and loose is slow and tight."

Oh, well, it's Azalea Festival Time in Wilmington this weekend.

If we can believe what Hugh Morton says, the following conditions exist:

The flowers are expected to be prettier than ever;

The flowers are expected to be more bountiful than ever;

Greenfield Lake is expected to be more overwhelming than ever;

Airle Gardens and Orton Plantation are expected to have more visitors than ever;

North Carolina's colleges are expected to have more official and unofficial representatives than ever;

Everything is expected to be more than ever;

Personal observations about the celebration in Wilmington are these:

I expect the 1959 Azalea Festival to be the eleventh consecutive Azalea Festival in which I have not participated;

I also expect the 1960 Azalea Festival to be the twelfth consecutive Azalea Festival I have missed.

What will happen if we fail to save the crumbling Banks? Senator Warren's answer: "If that should happen the ocean will destroy all of Hyde and Tyrrell Counties as well as Pamlico and Carteret Counties and the cities of Washington and New Bern will be under several feet of water."

"A part of the inland waterway will be destroyed as well as the commercial fishing industry," continues Warren. "It is all so gruesome and awesome that we hate to even think about it. Yet what I saw has been told by every engineer who has looked into the situation and better still, by those old timers, fishermen and Coast Guardsmen who know the beach better than anyone else."

Jealousy! There is probably no more torturing vice in which one can indulge. To be sure, some people are born with a jealous nature and others appear to be almost entirely devoid of that evil. But for some it is such an unholy, burning passion that life is made miserable every time the victim of this passion sees someone else doing something well. If, perchance, the person surpasses his jealous victim in accomplishment, the agony suffered, the hate distilled, is immeasurable.

The Bible declares that, although love is as strong as death, "jealousy is cruel as the grave: the coals thereof are coals of fire which hath a most vehement flame" (Song of Solomon 8:6). We may well feel sorry for the jealous person. His suffering is so extreme that no one can understand or appreciate the depth and power of it. And jealousy is always a flame which burns out and leaves its victim prostrated, with his mind and soul like the inside of a charred and destroyed structure.

The person who has to wrestle against jealousy has a fearful vice which with which to contend. People are sometimes unwise enough to believe that their jealousy is a form of admirable pride. They want to hold their heads high and be the best they can. If they are not, they are outraged.

What folly! Peace comes not from surpassing others but from living with everyone on a friendly basis and deferring to others.

He'll charge you a fee, but it will probably be only a fraction of what he'll save you. SHORT AND—OR SIGNIFICANT NOTES ON BUSINESS

NEW YORK (AP) — The gray wastes of the Atlantic today cloak a silent, never-ending struggle for leadership in naval power.

Adm. Jerauld (Jerry) Wright, top sea dog for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, has a new worry-reports that the Soviet Union is developing a submarine that can launch a guided missile with an atomic warhead.

"They can convert a number of their existing submarines to that purpose," he said grimly. "The defense of North America from the threat of attack by guided missile submarines is occupying a good deal of our attention."

This and a multitude of other problems in the day-to-day race for supremacy at sea are under constant study by 140 NATO officers at Wright's headquarters at Norfolk, Va. He is proud of the fact it is the first and only Allied military headquarters ever established on U.S. soil.

The tall, sparsely built 60-year-old admiral wears two hats.

As American naval commander in the Atlantic, he guards the eastern approaches to North and South American continents from the North Pole to the South Pole.

As NATO's Atlantic commander, his ships and men from eight Allied nations patrol millions of square miles between the West Indies and the North Pole, all the vital sea lines that link Europe and North America.

"It isn't an easy thing to bring naval forces of different nations into a coordinated task force," he said, "but we feel we have done it. They get along well, and they work together as a team."

Three-fourths of Russia's 450 submarines are concentrated in European waters," he pointed out. "There they are in position to try to sever Europe from America and extend the Iron Curtain to the very shoreline of the United States and Canada."

"That is their goal. Our task is to prevent them."

Wright, son of an Army lieutenant general, at 19 was one of the youngest men ever to be graduated from the Naval Academy. He served as naval aide to Presidents Calvin Coolidge and Herbert Hoover, played a hero's role in a number of daring naval combat missions during World War II.

Other Editors Saying ... A Practical Plan

(Goldsboro News-Argus)

The plan to save the crumbling Outer Banks now before the North Carolina General Assembly is a practical and a workable one.

The legislators have only to examine what was done around Hatteras and the north end of the Banks a quarter of a century ago. Details of the pushing back of the sea beginning in 1934 are vivid and graphic in the mind of Lindsay Warren of Washington, elder statesman, who has returned to the State Senate for this session.

The proposal before the legislature is that the state appropriate $200,000 for a survey of the crumbling barrier Banks and an additional $400,000 for the acquisition of land for the fixation project.

The beginning steps are necessary to be able to qualify for Federal aid for the project.

How do we know that there is reason to expect success in a giant project such as this?

Warren relates this story of the project at Hatteras. "The late Harry Hopkins gave me one thousand men, known as 'transients,'" he said, "and by a system of putting down crates, sticks, and wreckage the sand began blowing up against them and when it reached sufficient height, grasses such as Cape Cod Grass, sea oats, etc. were planted on the sand fence."

He continued, "There is a section in the vicinity of Nags Head Coast Guard Station where the highway had twice been destroyed by ocean tides. The fence is so stable that not one drop of ocean water has been on the highway since 1936.

The Cape Hatteras lighthouse, the tallest one in the world, was actually abandoned when the ocean waves nearly lapped at its base," the Senator said. "A CCC camp, by a systematic plan of sand fixation and grassing, has pushed the ocean back 300 yards from the lighthouse and that historic light is now in full use again."

The statesman continues, "The money to be appropriated would be spent solely between Portsmouth and Cape Lookout where nothing whatever has been done and where a full breakthrough is imminent."

What will happen if we fail to save the crumbling Banks? Senator Warren's answer: "If that should happen the ocean will destroy all of Hyde and Tyrrell Counties as well as Pamlico and Carteret Counties and the cities of Washington and New Bern will be under several feet of water."

"A part of the inland waterway will be destroyed as well as the commercial fishing industry," continues Warren. "It is all so gruesome and awesome that we hate to even think about it. Yet what I saw has been told by every engineer who has looked into the situation and better still, by those old timers, fishermen and Coast Guardsmen who know the beach better than anyone else."

Each analyzes each new law or ruling, pointing out ways to reduce taxes thereby. Most of their suggestions stand up in court; sometimes a taxpayer gets bitten because the service was wrong, or because he didn't follow the device suggested in ultimate detail.

NOT FOR THE UNRICH If you are on a wages-and-withholdings basis, almost none of the devices suggested by these services are available to you. You already have some neat loopholes: deductions for marital deduction, for children as head of a family, for medical expenses in certain limits, and a few others. These are all carefully explained in income tax instructions. But you cannot convert wages into capital gains; you cannot take advantages of the loopholes designed for the wealthy.

Arthur Burns, former economic advisor to President Eisenhower, is quoted in the current Redbook as saying that wage earners, particularly those making less than $5,000 a year, are paying more than their fair share of taxes because of upper-bracket loopholes.

If you have one of these fancy incomes, coming to you from business enterprises, securities, rents, royalties—or if you earn an upper-bracket salary, the best thing you can do is to take your tax problems up with a tax lawyer or tax accountant. Pick out a really qualified one, not the owner of a service station or the operator of a stationery store who helps people fill out forms for a few dollars.

If you haven't the name of a tax lawyer or accountant, ask

Closing Down About May 30?

By LYNN NISBET

HOW LONG? — Legislators and other people around Capitol square are making up betting pools on adjournment date of the General Assembly. Saturday will be the fifty-second legislative day, the sixtieth calendar day of the session which began on February 4. That means that two-thirds of the 90-day pay period will have been used up. Since it has been judicially decreed that per diem pay of $15 per day includes Sundays, the last day for which members can collect will be May 4. However, they can still draw the subsistence allowance up to $8 per day as long as they stay in session.

Nobody presently will hazard prediction that the Legislature can adjourn by May 4. Most optimistic forecast heard was made by Claude Lewis, veteran calendar clerk in the Senate. He has fixed the date for nine adjournments as Saturday, May 30. Governor Hodges, Lieutenant Governor Barnhardt and others in controlling positions have said they think adjournment can come "around June 1." The 1957 session convened on February 6 and adjourned on June 12. The same number of days would permit adjournment of the 1959 session on June 10. Despite the optimism of the Governor, the Lieutenant Governor and the Senate clerk not many members now think this session can be much shorter than last time.

And if the budget money bills are broken, which now seems likely, the stay may be prolonged. Further delay may be encountered if attempt is made to revamp the constitution. Five meetings of the joint committee on constitutional amendments have been held, running more than an hour each, and nothing has been considered except the Bar Association proposals for reorganizing the courts.

REPETITIOUS — Invited speakers at each of these meetings have gone over essentially the same ground, voicing chiefly their personal support for the plan. No outsider has been asked to appear against the bill effectuating the Bell plan, although the very degree of opposition, after the hearings before the committees are over, and the groups have debated and voted separately on the bills, much of the same material must be presented again to the membership of the House and Senate.

Besides the constitutional amendments there are several administration-backed reorganization bills yet to be handled. One time it was thought that controversy on these items would be prolonged. It now appears they will be killed or passed in relatively short time.

MONEY — The situation in the big money committees is reminiscent of legislatures in the 30's and in 1955. There is strong insistence on part of affected interest to hold the budget line on tax levies, but to break by greatly increasing appropriations. One side must yield—probably both will yield on a compromise, which will take time to work out.

It is conceded by experienced observers that the bottlers made out a very strong case before the finance committee Tuesday, and chances for a bottle drink crown tax are slim. The United Forces for Education also made almost an unanswerable plea for more school money at the appropriations committee Wednesday. That hearing was moved to the auditorium to accommodate the crowd for to support the plea for better schools.

LATE JUNE — Taking into consideration the time necessary for orderly consideration of the three big problems—constitution, education and reorganization—and adequate financing of the programs adopted, many long time observers doubt that final adjournment can come before late June, perhaps not until in July. "Miss Annie" Cooper, principal clerk in the House, has tentatively marked her calendar for June 12. Several of the girls in her office have picked June 30.

LEADERLESS? — Oldtimers in the legislature are complaining more about the lack of recognized leadership. This lack contributes to fear of dilatory tactics and a long session.

Even more than prospects of delay, some of them have expressed fear of a "blow-up" or breakdown in routine procedure, which might shorten the term at the cost of punitive or unwise legislation.

There is evidence of belief, rather difficult to pinpoint with specific reference, that Governor Hodges is not exercising the leadership of which he is capable. Paradoxically most of the complaints about this line come from people who resent "interference" in legislation from the downstairs office. Apparently they want the Governor to take more positive attitude so they can protest his dictatorship. "He won't stand up to be shot at," whimsically said one oldtimer.

When the General Assembly will adjourn, what its completed record of accomplishment will be, and who will emerge as the hero of the drama are at this time uncertain. One sure thing is that there is less cohesion and direction than has existed in any recent Legislature after two months.

"That's the beauty of organized baseball. Eternal optimism. It matters little that Knucklehead left his arm at home five years ago or that Zip's batting average will certainly march itself into the 150 regions. They could get better. These make

Samuel as Judge

HE LED HIS PEOPLE TO A SPIRITUAL REVIVAL AND THE DEFEAT OF THEIR ENEMIES

Scripture—I Samuel 8:19-21; 6; 7.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

THE CHILD Samuel grew to manhood, and his people knew that he was established to be a prophet of the Lord.—I Samuel 3:20.

If any in the class does not remember about Samuel from previous lessons, the teacher should explain that he was the son of Hannah and Elkanah, who had been childless until Hannah prayed to God to send her a child.

Samuel married and had two sons, Joel and Abiah, the names meaning "Jehovah is God and Jehovah is my Father," according to Dr. Wilbur M. Smith's commentaries in Peloubet's Select Notes.

And they gathered together to Mizpeh, and drew water, and poured it out before the Lord, and fasted on that day, and said there, "We have sinned against the Lord; And Samuel judged the children of Israel in Mizpeh."—I Samuel 7:6.

The enemies of Israel, the Philistines, heard they were gathered in Mizpeh, so they attacked them. The people cried to Samuel to pray that God would save them. Samuel made a sacrifice to the Lord while the Philistines drew near in battle and "the Lord thundered with a great thunder on that day upon the Philistines, and discomfited them; and they were smitten before Israel."—I Samuel 7:10.

"So the Philistines were subdued, and they came no more into the coast of Israel; and the hand of the Lord was against the Philistines all the days of Samuel."—I Samuel 7:13.

Today in the civilized world we do not bow down and worship

MEMORY VERSE

"The child Samuel grew on, and was in favour both with the Lord, and also with men."—I Samuel 2:26.

captured by the men of Bethshemesh (the Philistines) who repented of their deed and sent word to the inhabitants of Kirjath-jearim to get it and take it again to the Israelites.—I Samuel 6:21.

Samuel "spoke unto all the house of Israel, saying, If ye do return unto the Lord with all your hearts, then put away the strange gods and Ashtaroth (identical with the Greek Asarte) among you, and prepare your hearts unto the Lord, and serve Him only; and He will deliver you out of the hand of the Philistines. Then the children of Israel did put away Baalim and Ashtaroth, and served God only."—I Samuel 7:3-4.

Samuel gathered all Israel to Mizpeh, which has been identified as the place now called Neby, five miles northwest of Jerusalem. It is often visited by tourists to the Holy Land.

Idols. But do not men and women have their own idols which they sometimes cherish instead of worshipping God only? Sometimes it is money. Sometimes it is social position or prominence in the political world. Whatever it is, let us turn to God for guidance and worship above all else.

Most of the children in the classes know what a religious revival is, such as Samuel held to turn his people back to God. Many earnest Christian men and women hold them today, preaching the gospel of Christ, in revival meetings and over the radio.

The classes, both the young and older, might be led to a discussion of wise men of our own generation who might be called prophets. They would probably agree that while we have many fine leaders, none could compare with Samuel in his wise judgment of Israel.

Used Old Tags On Panel Truck

DETROIT (AP)—Police stopped Robert J. Lewis' panel truck when they noticed the front and rear license plates had different numbers. They said Lewis, 29, painted 1953 and 1955 plates this year's yellow and green colors and mounted them on the truck. Lewis said he didn't have the money to buy new plates. He was fined $50 after pleading guilty to a charge of improperly using motor vehicle plates.

Suddenly a siren wailed on the TV set and he jumped just as the barber was drawing the razor down the side of his throat. Six stitches were taken.

At Least Two Reverse Stands When House Voted Kill Reapportionment

By BUNNY HARRIS
Reflector Raleigh Bureau

RALEIGH — A bill calling for reapportionment of the House was defeated by a 61-49 vote Thursday with at least two members reversing their stands on the hotly debated issue.

The legislative clincher was slapped on the defeated bill by Rep. John Kerr's motion that it lie upon the table, carrying 57-48. A two-thirds majority would be required to bring it back before the House.

One of the members who reversed his prior stand on the matter of reapportionment was Rep. Philip Whitley of Wake who opposed the measure in last week's House committee session on senatorial districts.

Whitley told the body: "When it came before the committee session I felt I was not violating my constitutional oath by voting against it because the constitution says reapportionment shall take place the first session after a census and because I felt that we could not reapportion now, with any degree of accuracy because the census is nine years old."

"One thing I failed to point out to myself," he continued, "was that if we had reapportioned in 1951 that reapportionment would have carried through the 1961 session."

Whitley announced that for these reasons he was reversing his stand and voting for the bill.

Rep. John Regan of Robeson, on the other hand, said he had decided to vote against the bill in the belief that it should not be done until after the 1960 census figures are in. He said he suffered pangs of conscience when he voted against the measure in 1951 and "to settle my conscience" voted for it in 1953.

"I failed to get satisfaction out of this, however, and I'm now convinced I voted wrong both times," Regan said. "I see no section that makes it mandatory to reapportion at this session prior to the census so I'm going to vote no. But if I am a member of this House in 1961 I'm going to settle my conscience once and for all and vote yes."

The reapportionment bill, introduced for the first time in 1951 and again at each successive session since then, would cause Pitt and Cabarrus counties each to lose a representative and Rockingham and Alamance to gain one.

Rep. Thomas Turner of Guilford, a strong supporter of the bill who views it as "a moral issue... one of the most important issues we will face at this session," praised Whitley for his reversal. "I think he has done right," he said.

The anticipated argument that served as a basis for the bill's defeat — the question of whether it was constitutional for the House to reapportion at this time, apart from the Senate — was advanced by Rep. Walter Jones of Pitt and backed by Rep. Roger Kiser of Scotland.

Kiser's efforts to have the bill re-referred to the committee on constitutional amendments was defeated after Ed Kemp of Guilford led the group: "Every in this House knows how he is going to vote on the bill. If we're going to kill it, let's kill it in the light of day."

Improving the strategic mobility of the Army is a major objective, Gen. Clarke declared, adding that the operational readiness of the Strategic Army Corps is of particular importance. STRAC forces, centered at Ft. Bragg, are capable of waging war anywhere in the world on short notice.

"The Army cannot ignore cost in the research and development field," he pointed out. "We must be selective in stating our requirements so that we are not priced out of existence. At the same time, we dare not ignore equipment developments that will provide us superiority over our enemies."

He said the Army is striving to reduce the present time lag of 5 to 10 years between the realization that an item is needed and getting it into the hands of troops.

Must Be Ready To Face 'Best'

FT. BRAGG, N.C. (AP)—Gen. Bruce C. Clarke warned here today that future Army units "must be combat-ready for the enemy's best or they are not ready at all."

Speaking to ranking Army and civilian industrial leaders attending a symposium on mobility and communications, Gen. Clarke said the "built-in mobility" of Russian armies has presented a stiff challenge to the training and equipping of American ground forces.

Gen. Clarke, commander of the U.S. Army Continental Army Command at Ft. Monroe, Va., said, "To live on the same battlefield with these (Russian) forces, we must have at least the same degree of mobility. To be able to win the ground battle, we must have a superior mobility."

"Never again will the pace of battle permit the gradual seasoning of units under fire," he said.

Kennedy Tour May Determine Strategy

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass) swung into Wisconsin next week on a three-day speaking tour that may help him decide whether to pick the state for an early showdown in a bid for the 1968 Democratic presidential nomination.

Should Kennedy's visit stir up the enthusiasm his friends anticipate, he might elect to enter the Wisconsin presidential primary in April 1968. That could lead to a head-on collision with Sen. Hubert Humphrey of neighboring Minnesota.

At the outset, Kennedy accepted an invitation to address the annual Geddon Dinner of the Milwaukee Press Club April 9. The visit now has taken on all the aspects of a campaign tour. His expanded itinerary calls for three days of speechmaking with public appearances in Milwaukee, Sheboygan, Beloit, Janesville, Appleton and Madison, plus the usual round of receptions, news conferences and radio and TV dates.

Kennedy's scheduled was arranged by Pat Lucey, state Democratic chairman. On at least two occasions, Kennedy will be introduced by Wisconsin's Gov. Gaylord Nelson, the state's first Democratic governor in more than a quarter-century.

Although neither Kennedy nor Humphrey has committed himself to enter the Wisconsin primary, Nelson thinks they will elect to test their strength here. If they do, the governor says he will urge state party leaders to remain neutral.

Nelson says he believes that "the broadest support" still is for Adlai E. Stevenson, the party's nominee in 1952 and 1956.

Both Nelson and Sen. William Proxmire (D-Wis) have been approached but both have indicated unwillingness to permit their names to be used as favorite sons unless none of the leading national candidates enter. Under Wisconsin law, a slate of convention delegate candidates can not be entered in the primary without a candidate's permission.

In 1956, as in 1952, Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn) captured Wisconsin's delegates to the Democratic national convention.

Neuberger Likes Adlai For 1960

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Sen. Richard Neuberger (D-Ore), home for the Easter recess, says he favors Adlai Stevenson for the Democratic party's nomination for president in 1960.

"Adlai Stevenson is the outstanding statesman of either party," Neuberger told the Portland Ministerial Alliance Wednesday. "I have met all the men who have been mentioned as possible presidential nominees, and Stevenson is so much higher in quality presidential nominees, and Stevenson is so much higher in quality and intellect that there is no comparison," he added.

Yankee Pitching Stronger Than Ever

By JACK CLARY Associated Press Sports Writer Casey Stengel isn't doing too much talking these days about his New York Yankee pitching staff.

With the season getting into full swing a week from today, the World Champions are getting Grade-A performances from all of their expected starters.

These are the men Stengel expects to use in his starting pitching rotation. The latest line runs like this:

Sturdivant: Pitched seven innings against the Chicago White Sox March 29, allowing two runs and six hits. In 1958, the righty was 3-6 with a 4.18 earned run average.

Shantz: In seven innings against the Cincinnati Reds on March 30, he allowed five hits and no runs. The little lefty was 7-6 last year with a 3.36 ERA.

Larsen: Stricken with a pulled muscle in his pitching shoulder March 15, the big right-hander allowed the St. Louis Cardinals one run on three hits over four innings. April 1. He was 9-6 with a 3.06 earned run average last year.

Logart, left-hooking veteran of 72 fights, was a 3-1 favorite. What happens? Scott, an unfamiliar 22-year-old Philadelphia, wins by a split decision.

tion over Richmond of the International League, also on April 1. The World Series star was Stengel's leading pitcher in '58 with a 21-7 record and a 2.98 ERA.

Coates: Relieved Larsen and pitched one-hit ball for three innings. The rookie has drawn Stengel's praise as the bright light of his young hurlers and will probably stick with the club.

Ford: Went eight innings yesterday, beating the St. Louis Cards 2-1, and scattered nine hits. He did not show any signs of arm trouble, which has plagued him in the past. The little lefty was 14-7 last year with a 2.01 ERA.

In other exhibition games Thursday, the Boston Red Sox won the Cactus League title with a 4-2 victory over San Francisco, the Cleveland Indians knocked off the Chicago Cubs 4-2, and in night games the Philadelphia Phils defeated Baltimore 8-6 and the Chicago White Sox won over Cincinnati 6-5.

Los Angeles-Pittsburgh, Washington - Milwaukee and Kansas City-Detroit were rained out. Larry Jackson went the distance for St. Louis, allowing nine hits. Skowron, hitting .446, strained a back muscle during a pregame warmup.

Frank Malone's two-run homer and Haywood Sullivan's solo shot paced the Red Sox while Tito Francona's two-run double broke a 2-2 tie in the eighth inning to give the Indians their victory.

Willie Jones paced the Phils 13-hit attack with two singles and a double for three RBI, with Jim Fagan's error in the third inning opening the flood gates for four Philadelphia runs.

Jim Landis' homer off Joe Nuxhall with one out in the ninth gave the White Sox their victory. Gus Bell hit a three-run homer and Frankie Robinson one with none out for Cincy.

Logart, left-hooking veteran of 72 fights, was a 3-1 favorite. What happens? Scott, an unfamiliar 22-year-old Philadelphia, wins by a split decision.

Kansas City Is Improved, Aims For '77

By JOE REICHLER Associated Press Sports Writer WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Harry Craft has set a modest goal for his Kansas City club for 1959. The personable young pilot of the Athletics wants to finish, only four more than the seventh place A's won last year.

Why 77? That would give his charges a 500 won-lost percentage, a figure the A's haven't reached since 1952. Whether these 77 triumphs will push Kansas City into the first division, Craft doesn't know. But he's willing to take his chances on it.

"There's no doubt in my mind that we're improved," Craft said. "But where we finish depends upon how much the other clubs have improved. Our aim is to hit .500. We've got to reach that percentage before we can talk about first division."

The A's biggest improvement, according to Craft, has been in pitching and on the bench. The A's also appear to have a brand new first baseman in rookie Kent Hadley and are pleased with the fine play of Hal Smith, the converted catcher, at third base. Craft is willing to stack up his regular outfield of Bob Cerv, Roger Maris and Bill Tuttle against any trio in the league.

"Our pitching was quite a question mark last year," Craft said. "This year it should be more stable, more effective. The work of several of our pitchers has been a pleasant surprise. We've gotten help from unexpected quarters. Russ Meyer and Art Houtteman. They've added depth to the staff. Having them come through is like money in the bank."

Craft's big four consists of Bob Grim (7-7), Ralph Terry (11-13), Ned Garver (12-11) and Ray Herbert (8-8). There is a scramble for the fifth starting spot among Jack Urban (6-11), Bud Daley (3-2) and Meyer.

"The team will be a little more competitive this year," said Craft. "The competition for positions is more spirited. We have a number of men who can play several positions. The game is getting to be that way. You've got to be as resourceful as you can. That's what killed us last year. We just had no bench."

The A's regular infield consists of Hadley, Hector Lopez, Joe DeMaestri and Smith. Next — Baltimore

Rare Rookie by Pap'

According to his personal timetable, Ed Keegan isn't supposed to be pitching for the Phillies until next season. The way the lanky young right-hander had things figured out he was to get his final year of seasoning in the minors this campaign with some Triple-A minor league club.

Keegan is an interesting youngster with some solid notions on how to fashion a pitching career. Physically, he's something of a freak standing 6-foot-3 and weighing only 160 pounds. He's all arms and legs but he can fire a baseball with a world of stuff.

When the Phillies came to sign Keegan, he made it clear that he wanted a chance to develop normally in the minors and wasn't interested in any fat bonus that would keep him glued to the Philadelphia bench for two seasons.

"I missed a fistful of money and a free education by two months," said Keegan without a trace of bitterness. "It was too late, but I can't let that worry me now. I'll just have to work my way up to a big pay-off." He'll make it, too, if his coaches are correct. They insist that Ed Keegan is the finest pitching prospect in recent years—and they've had some pretty good ones of late.

Michigan State had lost three games and won its first in the tournament against Duke. Mickey Sink pitched four-hit ball for the winners in the seven-inning game. Duke got both its runs in the fourth inning when Mark Brownstein walked, Pete Maynard singled and Charlie Duncanson got an infield hit. Brownstein was tagged out at third in a base - running mixup but Butch Allie singled in Maynard and Duncanson.

Florida State's Ron Fraser made Duke its third victim, scattering five hits and fanning eight. Again Allie drove in Duke's run, singling to score Maynard, who had singled and stolen second. Duke's opponent today was Western Michigan. In other games involving ACC teams today, Clemson was at South Carolina and North Carolina was host to East Carolina.

Delaware at Wake Forest and Maine and Maryland games were rained out Thursday, and cancelled. The setting will be the finals of the National Basketball Association's "seven open Saturday" tournament at Boston Garden in a nationally televised contest (NBC-TV 3 p.m. EST).

The Lakers, who finished 17 games back of defending world champion St. Louis in the Western division only to stun the Hawks in the regional playoffs, aren't going to play dead for the Celts. On paper, it looks like a colossal mismatch. Boston has crushed the Lakers in a cross-country victory string that extends back to their final meeting of the 1956-57 campaign.

Charlotte (AP)—Lew Hoad took an 18-17 lead over Pancho Gonzales in their professional tennis tour by defeating the Californian 10-8, 10-12, 6-2 here Thursday night.

The Australian now has won $11,850, Gonzales $11,150. In the other singles match, Mal Anderson defeated Ashley Cooper 6-2, 6-2 before a crowd of 2,700.

Defending Champ Is 2nd In Masters Play

Associated Press Sports Writer AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—Since the Masters Golf Tournament was born 25 years ago, every champion has borne the imprint "made in U.S.A." This could be the year for an imported brand.

As the star-spangled field swung into the second round today, a short, balding Canadian, Stan Leonard, was two strokes out in front with a three-under-par 69. Four overseas players were within four shots of first place.

Peter Thomson of Australia, holder and four-time winner of the British Open crown, and Spain's amazing Angel Miguel were bracketed with three U.S. pros at 72.

Leonard, 44, six times professional champion of his country, had the luck and patience where others failed Thursday and there lies the story of his remarkable round under extremely difficult conditions.

Two strokes back of Leonard came the defending champion, Arnold Palmer of Lionier, Pa., red hot Jackie Burke Jr. of Houston and Chandler Harper, a balding club manufacturer from Portsmouth, Va., who has played in only two tournaments this year.

Thomson and Miguel, the latter the surprise individual winner in the Canada Cup matches at Mexico City last year, were bracketed with the reigning National Open champion, Tommy Bolt, and two touring pros, Jay Hebert and Gene Littler, all tied at 72.

In the 73 list with Player and Thomas were Ben Hogan, who had bogies on three of the last five holes; Art Wall, Billy Maxwell, Mike Souchak, Dick Mayer, and two well-known amateurs, Chuck Kocsis of Royal Oak, Mich. and Bill Hyndman III of Arlington, Va.

The redhot advance favorites found the tricky winds and Augusta National's par 72 too hard to handle. Sam Snead and Cary Middlecoff were among 14 at 74. Ken Venturi of San Francisco was tied with 11 others at 75.

ELIZABETH CITY, N.C. (AP)—The Gold Cup unlimited hydroplanes, biggest and fastest of the racing motor boats, will not compete this year in the annual International Cup Regatta here.

A spokesman for the sponsoring Pasquotank River Yacht Club said Thursday it has become increasingly difficult to lure the big boats here. Other regattas, he added, have considered curtailing their Golf Cup program.

This year's races are set for Oct. 3-4.

THERMOPOLIS, Wyo. (AP)—When Game Warden Jack Reavis found four men fishing in a restricted area, justice was on the scene.

One of the four called court into session on the river bank and fined himself and the other three $10 each. Then he suspended the fine on promise of good behavior.

The one angler, Reavis said, was Justice of the Peace F. L. Welch.

Khrushchev Hews To Rigid, Dogmatic Line

Editor's note — Nikita Khrushchev stands for the thing that Soviet communism has stood for all along — world domination. Is there any hope of change? In this last of five articles on Khrushchev, William L. Ryan points out the stark facts.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
A Communist party hack named Z. T. Serdyuk from Moldavia droned on and on, saying just what was expected of him. Nikita Khrushchev, tireless talker and dogged listener, hung on every word. "In view of the ultimate triumph of our party's general line," intoned Serdyuk, "we have all the more evidence of the political bankruptcy of the anti-party group of Malenkov, Kaganovich, Molotov, Bulganin and Shepilov."

Frowning, Khrushchev interrupted. "Shepilov who joined them," he corrected. It happened last December at a party session when Khrushchev was establishing himself finally as boss. The Moldavian momentarily had strayed from the formula. When Khrushchev "took the black sheep by the tail," as he put it, and threw them out in mid-1957, a new cliché was born. The big boys who opposed Khrushchev were to be regarded as guilty as sin. Former Foreign Minister Shepilov was not quite so guilty. This was the Khrushchev mind at work, as dogmatic as Stalin's, conditioned by a lifetime of expressing himself in pre-fabricated phrases. Such incidents throw light on the personality of the man who would face Western statesmen in any summit conference.

Khrushchev's life story shows him clearly to be the prisoner of a rigid, uncompromising doctrine. Khrushchev learned from Lenin, for example, there are two kinds of war—the just and the unjust. The just war defends or advances communism. There are two ways to expand influence in the world. Whatever the West does, even through economic aid programs, is colonialism. Whatever the U.S.S.R. does is in support of liberation.

When Soviet troops crushed a revolution in Hungary, and when Red Chinese troops smash resistance in Tibet, that is "coming to the defense of the people."

To Khrushchev as to all devout disciples of Lenin and Stalin, the terms "Communist party" and "the people" are synonymous.

When Khrushchev applies the double standard, one for the U.S.S.R. and one for the West, it is useless to look for logic as Westerners know it. There is only one logic for Khrushchev: the inevitable triumph of communism. Does the Kremlin act in good faith? There is only one faith: communism. There is only one morality. It excuses anything that advances the cause of Soviet communism.

Like Lenin and Stalin before him, Khrushchev has made himself sole arbiter of what is good for the cause of communism at home and abroad. Those who disagreed with him became anti-party wreckers, guilty of half a dozen "isms" from the Communist lexicon of sin.

By these standards, Stalin was right when he resisted Trotsky's impatient demand to regiment farmers. And he was right when he himself brutally accomplished the same thing. Khrushchev was right when he denounced Stalin and encouraged cautious relaxations. He was just as right when he re-established Stalin as a hero and cracked down on the same relaxations, blaming others for costly experiments.

For Khrushchev, the relaxations brought about a situation in Hungary which he found "hot as paprika." They brought restiveness among Soviet youth, riots in Poland, even trouble in China. They required him to fix the blame elsewhere, and thus the renewal of the Kremlin feud with Tito of Yugoslavia.

Now Khrushchev once again is a Stalinist. Still feeling he needs to make promises to the public, he warns that abundance must not be expected too soon. Like Stalin, Khrushchev wants world power first.

He leaves no doubt how he wants to use that power. "Whether they like it or not," he once blurted out, "the capitalists must die. We'll contribute what we can."

This is a clear challenge for the West to ponder in advance of a summit meeting. Does all this mean many years of "ceaseless cold war? That may depend upon how long Khrushchev lasts at his dizzy height.

Communists know the job of being a Red nation's party boss is gigantic. The premier's job is almost equally taxing. Khrushchev himself once decreed it was impossible for one man to do both well, and separated the posts in the satellite countries. He does seem to have enormous energy, but he may lack the bounce of two years ago, when he snorted to correspondents trying to keep up with one of his rocket-like tours:

"Life is short. Live it. Tired? Of course not. I'm a strong man." Khrushchev will be 65 in two weeks. Doctors have warned him to ease up on liquor and watch his diet. As a result the two-fisted drinker is pretty much on the wagon, and suddenly is intent in making the whole population lay off the stuff.

He lives in luxury in Moscow, clucked over by his stout, motherly wife, admired by his grandchildren. If Khrushchev has a soft spot, it is his devotion to his daughter, wife of a Moscow editor, and his son Sergei, an electrical engineer. Another son died in World War II.

When the pace gets rough, Khrushchev rests at a 30-room villa, showplace of a Black Sea resort. The grandson of peasant slaves has come a long way since he joined the Bolsheviks 40 years ago.

So Khrushchev may live for years. But his generation of militant Bolshevik veterans is dying out. Khrushchev has neither the power nor the personality to be a Stalin. Opposition, both from die-hard Bolsheviks and the rising generation, is easily detectable. Still, Khrushchev seems intent upon producing a robot population. He is revising marxism and creating new dogma to prepare the country for his version of communism.

He may be miscalculating. The new Soviet generation is not the frightened mass Stalin dominated. Social development, a sense of pride in industrial and scientific achievement, a hint of apology for the backward state of the consumer economy, all are pressures on Khrushchev. Thousands of technocrats, engineers, scientists, professional people and even many party members will likely resist being transformed into robots.

Party leaders worry about signs of doubt among Soviet youth. More than anything else, educated Soviets, feeling themselves on the verge of an era of unlimited promise, fear the specter of war. This, too, must affect Khrushchev's drive to impose communism elsewhere.

With Khrushchev as top man, there may be little relaxation of the tensions communism uses to advance its doctrine. Time can change that, and when the West negotiates, it buys time.

Some day Soviet people may have an abundance of food, clothing, housing and security. Some day the Soviet population may be mature enough to force its leaders to abandon the goal of world domination. If that time comes, the world can hope for lasting peace.

But it's unlikely Nikita Khrushchev will live to see the day.

Castro To Hunt For U.S. Money

HAVANA (AP)—Prime Minister Fidel Castro says he will be looking for money as well as defending "Cuba and her revolution" on his visit to the United States later this month.

The bearded revolutionary told a TV audience Thursday night that he will seek loans from the U.S. Export-Import Bank and "all sources of credit possible."

The Batista government left only 70 million dollars in the treasury, Castro said, adding that Cuba's economic situation was further aggravated by falling sugar prices and increased competition from other sugar countries.

Castro is leaving for Washington April 15 on an unofficial visit as the guest of the American Society of Newspaper Editors. He accepted the invitation before becoming prime minister Feb. 2.

Castro said he had no fear of any questions that may be asked him by American newspapermen. The executions of Batista henchmen, totaling between 400 and 500, has come in for considerable criticism in the United States, and Castro said he would explain that to the Americans.

He said he was mystified at some objections to his trip in a private capacity and commented, "I like simple things more than protocol."

Castro has accepted an invitation while in the United States to speak at a luncheon of the Overseas Press Club in New York on April 23.

Colonel's Subordinates Get Blame In Flight Snafu

TOKYO (AP)—The U.S. Air Force today cleared a lieutenant colonel of charges he bumped six homeward-bound enlisted men from a transport plane so he and his family could fly to Hawaii for a vacation.

But an Air Force investigating board said the officer, Lt. Col. Charles Platt Jr. of Brooklyn, N.Y., "by his actions contributed to the confusion" which caused the "administrative error" that was blamed for the bumping.

The Air Force did not say specifically what had happened but implied that subordinates handling the flight became flustered by the mandingo officer—and dropped the waiting GIs from the passenger list.

As it turned out, the investigators said, there were eight vacant seats on the plane all the time; if the snafu hadn't happened, the servicemen, the colonel and his family all could have gone.

The board said it had turned its findings over to "appropriate commanders to determine whether or not disciplinary action is required."

The six enlisted men were all on emergency leave because of death or illness to close relatives. The plane took off without them from Taichikawa Air Base, just outside Tokyo, on March 28.

Lt. Gen. Robert W. Burns, commander of American forces in Japan, personally ordered the aircraft to turn back after one of the outraged servicemen called him and complained that Platt, the passenger terminal commander at Taichikawa, and his vacationing family had taken their seats.

When the plane returned, the colonel, his wife and four children were taken off. Five of the soldiers got on and completed their journeys to the United States.

The sixth, Lewis Stramski of Harrah, Okla., had left the base but caught another flight the next day. Because both his first and last names were listed on the manifest, it was at first believed that seven airmen were involved in the incident. Stramski's sister died of polio a few minutes before he reached home.

Platt canceled his vacation to await the investigation. After the board's findings were made public, he told a reporter: "The less I say about it the better. The board findings have to be reviewed, and I would just add fuel to the fire."

"A lot of to-do about nothing," said Gen. Burns, whose popularity with the enlisted men in Japan has soared.

The airman who cut the military red tape and telephoned the general was Cole Y. Bell 27, of Fayetteville, Tenn., whose brother had been seriously hurt in a traffic accident.

The other enlisted men were Airman 2.C. Robert J. Kindl of Saratoga Springs, N.Y., going for the funeral of his 4-year-old son; Airman 3.C. Gordon N. Read, Ithaca, N.Y., whose mother had died; Sgt. Paul S. Cain, Sedalia, Mo., whose 9-month-old daughter was critically ill; and Staff Sgt. John P. Snyder of Vandergrift, Pa. Both Bell's brother and Cain's daughter are reported improving.

Kinell said Platt "got mad, pulled rank and ordered a major underneath him to bump us. We were little wheels and he was a big wheel. So he wanted to get to Hawaii and have a good time. He didn't care who it hurt or what the trouble was."

Platt, 49, is a specialist in aerial transportation and was awarded the Legion of Merit in World War II for his work in moving Air Force personnel and equipment from Africa to Europe. During the Korean War he commanded the terminal squadron at Travis Air Base in California.

Can Now Poison Arm Or Leg To Kill Cancer

By JOHN BARBOUR
Associated Press Science Writer

EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, Mo. (AP)—Now scientists can poison an arm or leg to kill a cancer without killing the patient.

The technique is also being used on the lungs, breasts and pelvis to fight regional cancers.

The treated part of the body has to be shut off from the rest and supplied with a separate source of fresh blood.

Dr. Oscar Creech Jr. of Tulane University, described the new method before this week's American Cancer Society seminar.

A pumping machine that acts like an artificial heart and lung outside of the body makes the technique possible.

Suppose a doctor wanted to treat a cancerous leg with chemical poisons in an effort to kill the tumor.

He can shut off the cancerous leg by a tourniquet. Then he can hook up the artificial heart and lung to the blood vessels of the leg, circulating freshened blood through this area.

In this way, he can introduce strong poisons to the leg's blood stream for up to an hour without fear of poisoning the patient. Poisonous anti-cancer agents like nitrogen mustard can be used in fairly strong concentrations with little harm to the rest of the body.

There is some leakage, but it is not enough to hurt the patient.

The hour time limit reflects a tendency of the blood to become less useful under the strain of the pumping mechanism.

Essentially the leg or any other part of the body is kept divided from the rest of the body. But in isolating some areas like the pelvis or the breast, isolation is less complete.

Instead of tourniquets, these areas may be isolated by using small balloons within the blood vessels to block the blood flow.

After the treatment, the poison is flushed out by plasma.

Unlikely Story Was Too True

HAMPTON, S.C. (AP)—Mrs. Eloise Goreau had an unlikely explanation when husband Ted asked how one fender of their car became dented.

"A house ran into it," she said. It was true.

A house mover was moving a small house down a street and a corner of the house hit the car, parked in front of the Goreau home.

Books Screened For Prisoners

RAIFORD, Fla. (AP)—The State Prison library has 20,000 new books—none of them on firearms, gunpowder or medicine.

The Volunteers of America, which presented the books, said such books were screened out along with "flagrant sex."

Books on medicine were left out, the donors said, because "some inmates fake symptoms found in medical books and are able to sildbrick for several days before doctors catch on to them."

Tabloid Assails U.S. Generals

LONDON (AP)—Britain's largest daily newspaper—the tabloid Daily Mirror—today devoted its entire front page to an attack on what it termed "meddling American generals."

Alongside an editorial, the pro-Alabonite paper carried a photograph of U.S. Gen. Lauris Norstad, NATO's top commander, labeled: "A threat to the hopes of world peace."

The editorial said there was a new menace to world peace—"the loudmouthed American generals."

"They appear totally unconcerned at efforts by the statesmen—Mr. Macmillan, Mr. Khrushchev, President Eisenhower—to settle the future of the world round the conference table."

The newspaper's ire was roused by Norstad's rejection of so-called disengagement in Europe during a British television interview, and by recent testimony before a U.S. congressional committee by Gen. Nathan Twining, chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff and Gen. Thomas E. White, U.S. Air Force chief of staff, about the readiness of rocket bases in Britain.

The Mirror also condemned the flight last week of a U.S. plane to Berlin above 10,000 feet altitude an action which has drawn Soviet protests.

The name of the U.S. general who ordered the flight has not been disclosed, the paper said.

The editorial said the "lucidity of his action is apparent to all."

The editorial called on Macmillan to urge Eisenhower "to put the generals in their place."

The Mirror's outburst was one of several recent indications of apparent British irritation with public pronouncements by some U.S. military leaders.

The DEADLY LADY of MADAGASCAR BY G.V. TERRY

CHAPTER 33

Mozo awaited Bonnie and me at the Carier dock. I could read the bad news on his face before he spoke...

"Your father expects you at the harbor battery, Senora Capitan," he said. "We're setting up the defenses of the outer bay, and he wishes your advice."

"Give us the worst," said Bonnie. "We've a right to know."

"If the captain pleases, I will talk while we cross the bay."

Bonnie nodded and we followed the Negro across the pier. A long boat awaited us there, with eight brawny fellows at the oars. I leaped into the wide stern beside my wife: Mozo half knelt against a thwart to tell us his story.

Even as he related it, I saw that Ringo Bay was lashing up for war. During our descent from the mountain the ships that had ferried the cannon had slipped their cables and put out to sea. Each of the warehouses was studded with sentry posts black with muskets. At the castle fortress the drawbridge was raised, the portcullis down. The story Mozo told us gave meaning to these sinister preparations.

For the past fortnight the batteries at Fools' Bay had rusted on their caronades while their gunners awaited an attack that did not come. Rumors had flown fast between Red Carter's castle and the decoy harbor. In the end he had sent pinning up the Channel to scout the seaways to the north; they had returned with no news of the enemy. Meanwhile the buccaners' navy had made its rendezvous at a point just off the mainland, awaiting its signal to storm down on Sir Luke Metcalf.

"We had planned to trap them," said Mozo. "We staked everything on that plan. Ringo Bay was undefended while we massed our powder at the trap. Instead, its law almost closed upon us."

Word had come at last that Metcalf's ships were bearing down from the west, that they had put boldly into Fort Dauphin at the height of the week-long storm while he perfected his own plan of battle. It had been Mozo's task to uncover that plan, a perilous tour of duty he had carried out brilliantly.

First (and most startling), Mozo had found that the map Poilin had sold to Sir Luke had been exposed as a fraud even before the latter could reach India. An unnamed spy, working in the buccaners' midst, had finally brought in a true chart of Ringo Bay — complete to the soundings in the dogleg entrance and a count of the guns on the headlands.

Armed with the information he had been years in seeking, Metcalf had assembled his fleet — and come keening south for the kill with the first breath of the monsoon. Knowing that Carter would expect an attack via the Channel, he had chosen the western approach, relying on the storm to cover his movements.

"Where is he now?" I asked. "Who knows, Senor Douglas?" Mozo spread his hands in a gesture of despair.

"Haven't you scouted his movements?"

"We had no ships to spare. All our eyes were across the Channel. When Metcalf strikes here, they'll move to assist us — but not before."

I glanced at Bonnie, and saw that she had grasped her father's strategy. The armada waiting in the shadow of Africa was our only remaining trump. Were its anchorage revealed prematurely, Metcalf could engage it first, before his attack on Ringo Bay.

"How many men have stayed ashore?" asked Bonnie. Mozo glanced at me: I saw that Carter had forbidden specific answers in my presence.

"All we could spare from the ships," the Negro said. "How many cannon?"

"Your father will answer that, senora."

Bonnie stamped her foot. "My husband has the right to hear everything."

"Forgive me, captain — but Senor Douglas must return in the longboat to await you at the castle. You may join him there tonight."

I held up a soothing palm before Bonnie could speak. "Find out what you can," I told her. "Help all you can — that's what a daughter's for. Then return to me tonight. I'll wait at the castle, since that's your father's wish."

If my wife was disappointed by the tameness of my words, she kept her opinion to herself while the boat grounded at the landing stage behind the headland. Here a series of ladders gave access to the batteries from the harbor side. I could hear Red Carter bellowing orders above us.

He moved to the cliff's edge and stared down at us, with no sign of greeting. Considering his present peril, he seemed wonderfully calm. Finally, he gave me the briefest of nods, then leveled a finger at the stair. The gesture was a command, meant for Bonnie alone.

"Remember our talk at the Eagle's Nest," I told her. "Obey his wishes while you can."

She left me then, bending to kiss me and she had stepped onto the landing stage. I was sure she was raging within — and watched anxiously as she ran lightly up the last of the ladder and joined her father at the cliff's edge. For an instant they stood there eye to eye, without exchanging a word. Then, giving him the coolest of salutes, she moved with him toward the nearest battery.

I had expected to find the castle an armed prison. Instead it was deserted, save for the guards in the harbor. Mozo left me with the suggestion I mount to the roof if I wished to study the preparations for battle.

After I had explored the castle to the last corner, I realized the gravity of our position fully. Carter's rooms contained a cache of food and a stack of mattresses where he had slept while he deployed his forces. The room above (intended for Bonnie and myself) was also stacked with food, and there was still another mattress on the bed.

Aside from this the place had been stripped bare, and there were iron shutters on every window. This was no longer a home (if it had ever been) but a donjon awaiting siege.

The fact that the donjon was unmanned told me the battle would be decided elsewhere — on the headlands above the harbor, or in the sea before it.

"Where's the entrance opened directly to the roof of the pirate king's own portico: this flat expanse served as a kind of Oriental terrace, with a fine view of the bay. Above (with access provided through a recessed stair) was the roof of the castle itself, a spot Mozo had mentioned as an even better vantage point.

I was not surprised to find it a replica of a ship's deck, complete with compass and binnacle. At its far end a tall mast had been stepped into the floor, with a set of ratlines and a crow's-nest.

Eager as I was for a look, I was careful to climb but half way to the next, keeping a weather eye on the guards in the barbacan. The men lounged at their posts; the mate in command cast a sharp glance at me, then returned to the map he was studying.

The crow's-nest was the summit of Red Carter's world. Accustomed though I was to ship's rigging, I felt my head swim as I surveyed the airy vastness around me. For a moment I wondered if I had contracted a fever after our long spell of rain. My pulses steadied while I observed the frantic preparations afoot on the headlands.

Some fifty guns had been placed on the north side of the harbor pass, with half again as many the southern headland. It was evident that Carter meant to stake his all on the contest for the channel and hoped to rock Sir Luke Metcalf on his heels there. Such an outcome would give his fleet time to close in before the enemy could force a landing.

I could only pray that they would crowd on sail when news of the battle reached them: much would depend on the speed of Carter's herald.

"I had not thought that Sir Luke would let himself be taken alive — but there he stood in silent defiance..." Richard Douglas' narrative continues here tomorrow.

Hawaii Will Have Plebiscite And Primary June 27

HONOLULU (AP) — Gov. William F. Quinn says Hawaii's plebiscite on statehood probably will be held the same date as its first primary election under statehood — June 27.

But he said he would not formally proclaim either this date or a general election for July 28 until the territorial Legislature approves important changes in Hawaii election laws. He must issue the proclamation before April 17 under the rules which govern states coming into being.

Quinn said he thought 90 to 95 per cent of the voters would approve statehood. They will choose two U.S. senators, one representative, and their own governor and lieutenant-governor.

He said a new seven-cent airmail stamp commemorating statehood would be issued on Admission Day, when President Eisenhower certifies Hawaii's admission to the union as the 50th state.

Rocket Plane Has Airborne Tests

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE Calif. (AP) — The rocket-powered research plane X15 has successfully completed its second captive test flight.

Wednesday, with North American Aviation test pilot Scott Crossfield in its cockpit, the X15 was hitched under the right wing of a B52 bomber. It was taken to 38,000 feet altitude at a speed of 500 miles an hour.

Ultimately the research craft is expected to rocket aloft to an altitude of 100 miles at speeds up to 4,000 miles an hour.

The first test March 10 had to be cut short because of communications difficulties. The tests were designed primarily to check instrumentation and communication systems.

Glide tests will be conducted in advance of any powered flight. Many cancers can be cured. More than 800,000 Americans have been saved from the disease, according to American Cancer Society statistics.

Spring Student Teaching Program Now In Progress

A total of 237 seniors at East Carolina College are participating in the spring student-teaching program of the college, now in progress. This figure shows an increase of 53 over the number of seniors gaining practical experience as classroom instructors during the spring quarter of 1958.

Among the student teachers this spring 160 are teaching classes in secondary-school subjects, and 77 are working in the field of elementary education. Men students teaching in secondary schools number 117, and women 43. Among elementary grade teachers 2 are men and 75 are women.

A breakdown of student teachers according to the fields in which they are serving as instructors shows, according to Dr. Opett, that 53 are teaching in the elementary grades, 24 in the elementary grades, four in junior high school, and 156 in high school.

Centers where the student-teaching program for East Carolina seniors is now being carried out number 42, including 29 high schools, 3 junior high schools, and 10 elementary schools.

These schools are located in Greenville, Winterville, Farmville, Belvoir, Grifton, Grimesland, Stokes, Bethel, Ayden, Chicod, Bath, Washington, New Bern, Tarboro, Chocowinity, Plymouth, Luccama, Rocky Mount, Maury, Robersonville, Williamston, Bear Grass, and Lenoir.

By DR. ED HIRSHBERG

Getting excellent reviews—and one from here soon, we hope—is a new novel by Sylvia Ashton-Warner called SPINSTER. It's about an unmarried schoolteacher who has the job of educating primary grade children in the wilds of New Zealand, where most of her pupils are native Maoris, whom most of us would consider savages. Unable to find satisfaction in her experiences with romance, the heroine maintains, "The truth is that I am enslaved. I'm enslaved in one vast love affair with seventy children." Primary grade teachers around here, we guess, often find themselves enslaved in much the same way. . . . And speaking of teachers, we hope you're all writing letters and making phone calls to your friends in the Legislature, telling them not to allow N.C.'s educational progress to be stymied by the grossly inadequate budget that's now being proposed to take care of our schools and colleges for the next biennium. . . .

Next Thursday comes one of our favorite events to watch, the choice of Miss Greenville at the beauty carnival in Wright Auditorium. We hope the gal who's chosen does as well as last year's winner, Betty Lane Evans. . . . Speaking of beauties, one of the most outstanding candidates is Alice Ann Horne, E.C.C. student, who also is a talented and versatile actress. She'll be featured later this month—April 16, 17 and 18, to be exact—as Cherie in the Greenville Little Theatre's presentation of BUS language. William Shakespeare, no less. He was born in Stratford April 23, 1564—most authorities, but not all, agree on that date—and died in the same place on April 23, 1616. And you have our permission to figure out how old he was. . . . And April 6 marks the 50th anniversary of Admiral Robert Peary's arrival at the North Pole—the first white man to ever get there. He was accompanied by his Negro aid, Matt Henson, and four Eskimos—he certainly didn't have any scruples about integration. Maybe it's just too cold up there.

STOP. Other stars in it will be Ruth Coplon and Bob Whiting, newcomers, but good. Little Theatre veteran Fay Leggett, and CAGNE MUTINY the great theatre experience that it was, a month or two back, H. B. Rowe and Mahlon Coles. . . .

Today's Review
A recent book about a truly great American woman is criticized by one of Greenville's own fine feminine citizens and Girl Scout leaders. . . .
MRS. R. By Alfred Steinberg. New York: G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1959.
To describe adequately Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt is a formidable undertaking, but author Alfred Steinberg does a remarkably skillful and sensitive job in his recent book, Mrs. R. His approach is sympathetic, yet objective, and regardless of any preconceived feelings one may have had about this highly controversial woman of our time, the final result after reading Mrs. R. is bound to be admiration, respect, and perhaps even a slight tinge of envy. Eleanor Roosevelt was born into wealth and social position, but these advantages have not kept her from championing always the underdog, nor from a real sympathy with people in all walks of life. As a child she was extremely introverted, and painfully shy, a condition fostered by the grandmother who reared her, and a beautiful, vivacious mother who was openly displeased with her daughter's lack of physical beauty. Poise and graciousness, attributes always associated with Mrs. R., were conscientiously acquired at great expense of time and emotional energy. Knowledge of her activity in politics is commonplace, as was her function as eyes, ears, and legs for Franklin Roosevelt during his presidency. Her stature, however, rose above that of politician to true statesmanship after her husband's death, when for the first time in her life, she learned to make her own decisions, and was no longer restrained by party loyalty and politics. "Outstanding statesmanship" well describes her tremendous contribution to the United Nations Organization. What is not quite so well known to most of us is the deep and abiding love she and F. D. R. had for each other. Not only were they completely "in love," but their relationship thrived on their mutual trust, appreciation for each other's abilities, respect, and tolerance for their many differences. Mr. Steinberg has used many sources of information for this book, including some 4000 personal letters and private papers of Mrs. R. never released before. He has given us an intimate insight into this remarkable person, from her unhappy beginning up to now, when, at an age when most folk slow down or are completely resigned to the rocking chair, she maintains a staggering schedule of activity. Mrs. R. will be read and appreciated equally by serious students of history, and by those who enjoy a good love story. Even readers who customarily shy away from biographies will find themselves eagerly returning to this book to find out what happens next. . . .

For Once, Knew He Had Bargain

DERBY, Colo. (AP)—For once in his life, Joe Gallegos knew he was getting a good buy when a young man offered him a jacket for $6.50 and a glass of beer. It was Gallegos' jacket. He told police someone had broken into his car and stolen the jacket. Police arrested the young man and charged him with the theft.

Cadets To Show Aircraft Models

Air Force ROTC cadets at East Carolina College have accepted an invitation to display thirty small-scale models of aircraft from the Wright brothers' first plane to today's jets and experimental types at the 1959 Pirates' Jamboree at Nag's Head April 24-26. The models were constructed by cadets of the college AFROTC enrolled during the 1958-1959 term in Air Science II: Aircraft, a course taught by Capt. Vance Lockamy of the AFROTC staff at the college. The model planes, on display during March in the Joyner Memorial Library at East Carolina, have attracted the interest of many people from the campus and elsewhere. The invitation to display the exhibition at the Pirates' Jamboree came to Capt. Lockamy from Julian Oneto, resident manager of the Carolinian at Nag's Head. The small-scale planes will probably be shown at the Wright Brothers Museum at Kill Devil Hill. Cadets at East Carolina made the planes as a class project. The purposes were to give a knowledge of the chronological development of aircraft from the beginning to the present day and to supply in-

Must Be Ready

LONDON (AP)—Responsible British authorities said today if the forthcoming East-West foreign ministers conference fails, the West must be ready should war come. The British believe the West now is confronted with this choice—continued cold war tension, or a bold attempt to end or reduce this tension. British sources point out that a continuance of the cold war would carry a grave risk of war by miscalculation. Officials said that is why Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd, in Washington talks, argued strongly for negotiations which offered promise of reducing East-West tension. But Britain is firmly committed to the idea that West Berlin must continue free and, along with its Allies, is prepared to make heavy sacrifices and take risks to preserve the city's freedom.

Keister Will Direct Choir Concert Here

Dr. Elwood Keister, who will direct the University of Florida Choir when it appears in concert in Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church Sunday, is a versatile musician. Tenor, violinist, teacher and director, he is equally at home in solo or ensemble work. The University Choir, an ensemble of sixty men and women singers, is now making its annual tour, which this season includes towns in the Tampa Bay and north central Florida areas in addition to several concerts in North Carolina and Virginia. Dr. Keister's training was received at the Eastman School of Music and Columbia University. He is a former member of the famed Robert Shaw Choral and was one of those selected to sing the recorded version of the Ninth Symphony by Beethoven under the direction of Arturo Toscanini. At the University he directs the Choral Union, University Choir and is a member of the faculty string quartet and symphony orchestra. Dr. Keister's versatility as a musician was recently demonstrated when on short notice a bad case of laryngitis made it impossible for him to sing a scheduled program of songs, he quickly changed the program to a violin recital. When not busy in the classroom he likes to fly. An experienced pilot he has in the past used a light plane extensively in booking choir tours.

In Two Years?

CHICAGO (AP)—An expert today predicted a vaccine that will prevent from 60 to 70 per cent of all common colds probably will be available within the next two years. Dr. Thomas G. Ward, professor of virology at the University of Notre Dame, said he believes a vaccine can be developed against "an acceptable proportion of the common colds." He said 75 to 80 per cent of common colds are caused by a group of viruses or a group of bacteria of the streptococcus type. Vaccines made from dead or inactivated viruses can be injected into the body and develop resistance against viruses. "I realize that I have stuck my neck out," Dr. Ward commented in an interview in Today's Health, a magazine published by the American Medical Assn.
