New Satellite In Orbit, May Try Recover 'Capsule'

Death Scene Is Investigated

DEATH SCENE . . . Walter Thomas, Police Department ID officer and Dr. Georgia V. Mills, County Health Director examined the body of Willie D. Harris, at 1214 S. Pitt St.

Fractured Skull
Apparent Cause
Of Man's Death

Coroner E. W. Harvey said this morning, preliminary autopsy reports indicated the Negro man found dead on Pitt Street yesterday died of a fractured skull.

Willie D. Harris, 46, was found by his wife in the back yard of 1214 S. Pitt St. about 9:35 a.m. yesterday.

Harris was lying on his back with his head resting on a laundry heater when police arrived.

The autopsy was performed on Harris yesterday after Detective R. T. Rogerson of the Greenville Police Department, and Dr. Georgia V. Mills, County Health Director, made a preliminary examination of the body.

According to Rogerson, Harris left his home about 10 a.m. Sunday morning and was last seen about 5 o'clock Sunday night, at 400 W. 12th St. Rogerson said witnesses told him Harris had been drinking when he was last seen.

Police said this morning they did not know whether the blow to Harris' head was due to a fall or if foul play was involved.

Investigation of the case is continuing.

Coroner Harvey ruled the death of a Negro man found in a ditch near Sheldahl early yesterday was due to exposure.

Harvey said investigation showed Mack Daughtry, the victim, had apparently been drinking Sunday night and left one house and started down a lane to another when he stumbled into the ditch.

It is thought that Daughtry tried to get out of the ditch but was too weak to make his escape. He died sometime during the cold, rainy night.

Rose Re-Elected
For 2-Year Term

J. H. Rose, superintendent of Greenville City Schools since 1919, was re-elected for a new two-year term at a special meeting yesterday of the Greenville City Board of Education.

The board also began election of teachers for 1959-1960 terms in the city schools. Their action yesterday was confined to applications from teachers who are presently employed in the city system, with action on applications from new or replacement teachers deferred until a later date.

Also approved were requests from Miss Elizabeth Hyman and Miss Louise Galphin to be placed on the retired list at the conclusion of the current school year. Miss Hyman is a member of the Junior High School faculty and Miss Galphin is a member of the Wahl-Costes School faculty.

County Superintendent D. H. Conley was re-elected to his position for a new two-year term at a meeting of the Pitt County Board of Education last week. Conley has been county superintendent since 1932.

Belief Is Growing
Dulles Will Retire

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senators expressed reluctantly today a growing belief that Secretary of State John Foster Dulles may have to hand in his resignation soon.

There were well-founded reports—including some from persons who have talked to him—that Dulles has failed to respond to treatment for a "chronic condition."

If fresh medical treatments planned at Walter Reed Army Hospital do not show results, the general expectation among members of Congress is that Dulles will step out of his official job quickly to clear the way for appointment of a successor.

Dulles returned unexpectedly Sunday from a Florida rest to re-enter the hospital for further checks and treatment. President Eisenhower visited him for 45 minutes Monday but delayed a decision on Dulles' future.

Press secretary James C. Hagerty said later that Dulles has not resigned, and added that "pending additional medical evaluation there will be no further statement from the President."

But several senators said that if Dulles finds he is not going to be able to attend the scheduled East-West foreign ministers meeting in Geneva May 11, they believe he will leave the American representative there to carry the full title of secretary of state.

In Dulles' absence, that representative seems certain to be Christian Herter, under secretary who is serving now as acting secretary.

Sen. Thomas Kuchel of California, assistant Senate Republican leader, said there is no question in his mind that Dulles will "eliminate himself if his medical condition indicates physical inability to resume his full responsibilities."

Sen. George D. Aiken (R-Vt.) agreed, adding that "I don't think the country can afford to go on and on without an active head of the State Department."

Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, the assistant Democratic leader, said in a separate interview he agrees that the chief U.S. delegate "must not be in an inferior position" at Geneva.

"He must have the full title of secretary of state," Mansfield said. "I am sure that if he becomes convinced in his own mind that he can't carry on, Secretary Dulles will hand in his papers."

Mansfield said he thought Herter had done an excellent job in the recent meeting of NATO foreign ministers, and added "if he has to take over the top job, he will represent us well."

Sen. Allen J. Ellender (D-La.) said that while Dulles has earned the gratitude of fellow Americans, "I don't think there is anything to be gained by keeping him in the post in the hope of his getting better."

Normally, the minimum wage bill would have come up for its third reading consideration Friday, but foes of the measure persuaded the house to postpone it until today.

Raleigh (AP)—The House today resumed consideration of legislation to fix a 75 cents hourly minimum wage in North Carolina.

The minimum wage bill came up for third reading debate in the House following its passage on second reading last Thursday after several amendments to limit its application were adopted and a number of others were rejected.

Normally, the minimum wage bill would have come up for its third reading consideration Friday, but foes of the measure persuaded the house to postpone it until today.

Raleigh (AP)—A bill providing for a program of academic and vocational education in the prison system was approved by the House Monday night and sent to the Senate after considerable debate.

The measure was amended to provide that the Department of Public Instruction would not be authorized to spend any funds in the prison program or to engage in promoting the program. The department would have strictly a cooperative role.

Rep. Roger Kiser of Scotland assailed the bill after Rep. Wayland Spruill of Bertie made a strong plea for its passage.

Spruill described the bill as having "a gleam of human kindness." He urged that the House pass the bill for "these poor boys."

Kiser, speaking of the prisoners who would benefit from the program, declared, "They've had the same opportunity as you have, or almost."

Meanwhile, the Senate passed and sent to the House a bill designed to make federal funds available for construction of a flood control dam on the Yadkin River in Wilkes County. Under the measure, local governmental units would be permitted to act jointly in appropriating funds and issuing bonds for such projects.

Sen. Frank Patton Cooke of Gaston, an outspoken opponent of a drunkometer bill, and Sen. S. Bunn Frink of Brunswick were stymied temporarily in efforts to send the measure back to committee. Cooke said he will make another such effort Thursday.

The bill, which calls for drunkometer tests for motorists suspected of driving under the influence, was given a favorable report by the Senate Roads Committee Friday.

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—Discoverer II, a 1,600-pound satellite, was in polar orbit today, carrying in its nose cone a space capsule the Air Force hopes to catch in the air near Hawaii.

The recovery experiment may be attempted later today.

The capsule was described as a miniature of the type that someday may be used to return men from space stations.

Discoverer II was launched from this missile base Monday, while across the nation fellow scientists were experiencing a disappointment.

At Cape Canaveral, Fla., the Air Force tried unsuccessfully to put three satellites into orbit from a single launching vehicle, Vanguard III. The Vanguard's second stage failed to ignite on schedule. Officials at the Cape said cause of the trouble was not known.

If Discoverer II achieves proper stability, its instrumented nose cone is scheduled to be kicked loose on command from ground tracking stations and float earthward beneath a parachute.

Eight Hawaii-based C119 Flying Boxcars are awaiting orders to swoop on the descending parachute and try to drape it across a 30-foot-long trapeze bar suspended beneath each plane. The parachute and capsule would then be reeled into the plane.

The parachute would come into range of the Air Force C119s at about 20,000 feet. The planes would have 10 minutes to snatch the parachute from the air. If they failed, the buoyant capsule would be fished from the ocean by Navy vessels patrolling the recovery area.

At least one official was pessimistic that the capsule would be recovered. William H. Godel, director of planning for the Advanced Research Projects Agency, estimated the chance of success at 1 in 1,000. He said a number of things could go wrong before the capsule even is ejected.

The capsule contains instruments to supply oxygen and control heat and atmospheric pressure. Other instruments will check how effective these environmental systems are. They are designed to keep small animals alive in future satellites. There is no animal in Discoverer II.

Regardless of the outcome of the recovery attempt, spokesmen said they were elated by the second successful orbit in the Discoverer series. Discoverer I, fired Feb. 28, circled the earth 17 days before falling back into the atmosphere and burning up.

No attempt was made to recover any part of Discoverer I. Seven hours after Monday's launch, spokesmen announced the satellite was whirling around the earth north-to-south every 90.84 minutes. Its path from pole to pole took it as far out as 243 miles. It was traveling 17,433.8 miles an hour.

With this orbital pattern established by tracking stations in Alaska, Hawaii and Vandenberg, the satellite is expected to remain aloft at least 30 days. It will continue sending radio beacon signals during its lifetime.

William H. Godel, director of planning for the Advanced Research Project Agency, said the launching, regardless of success of the capsule recovery plans, is "a significant step in the nation's missile and space research program."

Future Discoverers will carry rice and monkeys into orbit to test the hazards man will meet in space travel. The Discoverer II capsule, although only 27 by 33 inches, is remarkably similar in function to the capsule planned for Project Mercury which is expected to bring a man back from orbit some two years hence.

Eventually, controlled-environment capsules such as this may be the vehicles technicians will use to descend from large communications and weather-observing satellites.

The Vanguard failure in Florida was the seventh in nine tries for that type rocket. If it had behaved as planned, the second stage would have boosted the satellite payload up to 9,000 miles an hour before separation of the units. Signals were received by three tracking stations for about seven minutes before the trouble developed.

Warns Of
New Leaf
Crop Cuts

RALEIGH (AP)—A North Carolina Farm Bureau official today predicted at least a 10 per cent reduction in tobacco allotments during the next 10 years if a proposed state tax on tobacco is approved.

A. C. Edwards of Hookerton, executive vice president of the organization, told the Legislature's Joint Finance Committee it is unfair to single out one agricultural commodity as a source of revenue tax.

The Farm Bureau was one of several groups which appeared before the Finance Committee to oppose a bill by Rep. Thurston Arledge of Polk County. His measure would levy a 3 cents tax per package of cigarettes, 1/2 to 1 1/2 cents per cigar and 1 to 1 1/2 cents on each 10 cents of the price of smoking tobacco.

Edwards presented the $5,000-member organization's statement to the committee. He told the group that tobacco should not be considered a luxury, but even if it were it is the most overtaxed of agricultural products.

He asked the committee members to consider the importance of tobacco to the state's overall economy. He said, "Approximately 165,000 farmers and 40,000 wage earners are employed in the tobacco economy in North Carolina, and to tax tobacco would threaten the security of the entire industry."

The 1957 Legislature defeated a proposal to place a tax on tobacco products.

No reason was given for the Vanguard's seventh snafu in nine tries. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said it didn't know what happened.

When the second stage, which contains the guidance system of the 72-foot rocket, failed to function, the vehicle soared upward for a short time, then keeled over and plunged into the sea.

If it had worked properly, the Vanguard would have placed two satellites in orbit. One, Vanguard IIIA, carried a magnetometer to study the earth's magnetic field. The other, Vanguard IIIB, was an inflatable balloon to measure atmospheric drag. Each could have provided data essential to space travel by man.

The first stage hurled the assembly through the densest part of the earth's atmosphere to a height of about 38 miles. Then the second stage took over.

Robert H. Gray, chief of Vanguard operations at Cape Canaveral, said the second stage, which was to have boosted the satellite payload up to a speed of 9,000 miles an hour, apparently fizzled at an altitude of about 200 miles.

Meanwhile, the Senate passed and sent to the House a bill designed to make federal funds available for construction of a flood control dam on the Yadkin River in Wilkes County. Under the measure, local governmental units would be permitted to act jointly in appropriating funds and issuing bonds for such projects.

Sen. Frank Patton Cooke of Gaston, an outspoken opponent of a drunkometer bill, and Sen. S. Bunn Frink of Brunswick were stymied temporarily in efforts to send the measure back to committee. Cooke said he will make another such effort Thursday.

The bill, which calls for drunkometer tests for motorists suspected of driving under the influence, was given a favorable report by the Senate Roads Committee Friday.

Another U.S. Plane Buzzed By Soviet Jets In Berlin Corridor

BONN, Germany — (AP)—Soviet planes have buzzed an American Air Force transport in another incident in an air corridor to Berlin, the U.S. Embassy disclosed today.

An embassy spokesman said two Soviet jet fighters harassed an Air Force double-decker propeller transport on its way back from a routine cargo delivery flight to Berlin April 3.

The embassy spokesman gave the account of the April 3 incident.

The big military version of the Boeing Stratocruiser was flying at about 12,000 feet when two Soviet jets came up from behind and began cruising, each about 100 feet from a wingtip of the American plane.

The Soviet fliers then swapped positions, one going over and the other going under the transport. The American pilot reduced altitude a little. This seemed to satisfy the Soviets, for they flew away. The whole encounter lasted only a few minutes.

The spokesman charged the Soviet jets with "very dangerous maneuvers." He said American and Soviet officers at the four-power air safety center in Berlin had exchanged verbal protests, each accusing the other's fliers of dangerous air tactics.

The United States Monday rejected the limit the Soviets are trying to put on the corridors and said U.S. planes will fly as high as they need to whenever they want to. A formal American note was delivered to the Soviet Foreign Office in Moscow.

The Soviet Union has no right at all to set ceilings on plane flights along the 110-mile corridor from West Germany to West Berlin, the note said.

The Soviets had complained that a U.S. Air Force C130 jet-prop plane violated the 10,000 foot ceiling on March 27. It charged the United States with deliberately staging the high altitude flight in an attempt to wreck the scheduled Big Four foreign ministers meeting set for May 11 at Geneva.

The U.S. note denied this. "On the contrary," it said, "it is the Soviet Union which is creating doubt as to its intentions, by attempting unilaterally to assert a 'right' never recognized by the Western powers."

The C130 flew at about 25,000 feet both to and from West Berlin.

on both legs of the trip.

The American note pointed out that jet planes operate more efficiently at high altitudes.

While American planes will operate at high altitudes whenever necessary, the U. S. Note added "for some time to come the majority of corridor flights will under normal circumstances be made below 10,000 feet."

The note also said the Soviet fighters which buzzed the C130 "intentionally created the very hazard to flight safety about which the Soviet representatives have professed concern."

Long-Range School Plans
Mapped At Joint Meeting

Tentative proposals for 1959-1960 budgets and long-range planning were discussed last night by members of the Greenville City Board of Education and the Pitt County Board of Education in a special joint meeting.

The joint meeting was the first to be held by the boards. Among tentative budget proposals presented by the city board were requests for increases in Current Expenses to $76,000, and Capital Outlay appropriations, from $35,000 to $45,000.

In a luncheon meeting of the city board yesterday, Superintendent J. H. Rose explained uses of the funds and outlined tentative requirements for budget increases.

New capital outlay projects he cited included construction of a fence around the playground, a fence on the south side of the school, correction of drainage and driveway problems at Third Street School, hard-surfacing of the playground at Greenville Junior High School, construction of curbs and fire escapes at Fleming Street School, and purchase of new equipment for all city schools.

Rose's report was accepted by the board, as was a Land Committee report in which Joseph M. Taft, Louis W. Gaylord Jr., and J. B. Kittrell Jr. recommended purchase of additional land for Fleming Street and C. M. Eppes Schools, plus purchase of land for a new junior high school. The report stated that additional land at Fleming Street and Eppes School "must be acquired" in order to permit construction of a new classroom wing and a lunchroom at Eppes and four classrooms and a lunchroom at Fleming Street.

The city board also gave its approval to a request from the superintendent to conduct driver training classes this summer in both Rose High School and Eppes High School. He said funds for both programs were available through the State Department of Public Instruction.

Formal approval of the board was given to initiation of applications for a loan of $50,000 from the State Literary Loan Fund, to help finance construction of four classrooms and a library at Elmhurst School. Rose told the board that exact plans for the project's financing could not be made until bids are received and opened on April 22.

Henderson Mills
Try Second Shift

HENDERSON, N.C. (AP)—The Harriet - Henderson Cotton Mills announced today it will begin a second shift at two struck plants here Monday.

A newspaper advertisement by the mill offered jobs on the shift to strikers who want to return to work.

"We have been assured there will be adequate police protection" for workers on the 3 p.m. to 11 p.m. shift, company officials said.

The mills have been operating on a single shift basis since Feb. 16 when production was resumed after a three-month shutdown from the strike by the Textile Workers Union of America. There still is no indication of a settlement in the five-month strike, marred by incidents of violence.

Company President John D. Cooper Jr. said Monday night the mills "can't survive on one shift. It's three shifts or none."

Cooper said he intends to begin a third shift as soon thereafter as possible. He added, "I'm going to try to run the other two shifts or shut down, sell the mills or liquidate and get out of Vance County. Our investment is too big to operate with one shift."

"It doesn't appear at this time," Cooper said, "that we're going to get a contract" with the Textile Workers Union of America. He said he is willing to negotiate with the TWUA.

Negotiations broke down April 2 when Gov. Hodges announced his mediation efforts were unsuccessful in the strike, which began Nov. 17.

Cooper said his company had received offers to move the strike-bound plants to Puerto Rico, Georgia, Texas, Maine, Missouri and parts of North Carolina.

Gov. Hodges was briefed on the present situation here at a meeting in Raleigh Monday afternoon with officials of Henderson and Vance County and state officials.

Ed Rankin, the governor's private secretary, said the purpose of the meeting was to coordinate state, county and local law enforcement work.

Mayor Carroll Singleton told newsmen prior to the meeting that Henderson citizens have resolved themselves to the fact there is "no quick solution or easy solution" to the bitter strike.

New Plant For Whiteville Area

WHITEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—A $1,600,000 industrial plant will be built in Columbus County, the Whiteville Merchants Assn. announced Monday.

The name of the firm and the nature of its business was not announced.

The plant will be located near Brunswick, about three miles south of here on a 20 acre tract. Machinery and equipment will cost about one million dollars. The plant will employ about 250 people, with a total annual payroll of about $750,000.

Propose Economic Aid To Red
Satellites As Freedom Lever

WASHINGTON (AP)—American economic aid could be used to help satellite nations loosen Moscow's control, under a bill offered in the Senate today.

Present law forbids aid to any nation controlled or dominated by Communists. Under the bill, such assistance would be barred only to the Soviet Union, Red China and Communist North Korea.

President Eisenhower would be given discretionary authority to provide aid to other Communist nations if he finds it would promote U.S. security. This could be done under any of several provisions which in general would mean less Soviet or Chinese control of satellites.

The measure, as an amendment to the foreign aid bill, was defeated 43-42 in the Senate last year. It was offered as a separate bill today by Sens. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) and George D. Aiken (R-Vt.).

In a speech prepared for Senate delivery, Kennedy declared that "the administration is now prepared to give the present bill its full support."

If the bill is passed, Kennedy said, "there is a real opportunity for giving our foreign policy a flexibility which might exploit cracks in the Iron Curtain."

At present, Kennedy said, probably only Poland would benefit from the relaxation, "but who can predict, in view of the outbreaks of the past few years in East Germany, Hungary, Poland and Yugoslavia, what the next few years will bring?"

Sen. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, said he will oppose the bill this year as he did last year.

"I am against any aid to Communist government," Bridges told a reporter. "I don't believe we should provide aid to any government that the Soviet Union is in a position to drain off."

Aiken said if the President is able to hold out hope to subjugated people "it may encourage them to get out from under Communist control."

Sen. Allen J. Ellender (D-La.) called the bill "a move in the right direction."

Weds In Candlelight Ceremony

In a candlelight ceremony at the Greenville Free Will Baptist Church Sunday afternoon, Miss Barbara Ann Jackson, daughter of Mrs. Hubert Jackson and the late Mr. Jackson, of Greenville, became the bride of Richard Brock Franks Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Franks of Wilmington.

The Rev. Robert B. Crawford, pastor of the bride, officiated at the double-ring ceremony, which was performed before a background of wrought iron baskets of white gladioli, mums and pompons and seven-branch candelabra holding cathedral candles, interspersed with wedding greenery and a background of emerald plumes. The family pews were designated with white satin bows and chrysanthemum.

Prior to the pledging of vows, a program of nuptial music was presented by the organist, Mrs. Ruth Taylor. I. B. Strickland Jr. of Wilmington, soloist, sang "Because," "O Promise Me," and "The Lord's Prayer" as a benediction.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, Heber Nobles, of Washington, N. C., wore a formal gown of Chantilly lace and fleur du bois pattern, fashioned with a basque bodice, and a sabrina neckline, edged with floral motifs, re-embroidered in pearls and sequins. Long sleeves tapered to calla points over the hands. The voluminous skirt was circled in back with alternating ruffles and double tulle forming a full court train. Her three-tiered veil of imported illusion was attached to a Swedish crown of lace embroidered with pearls and iridescents. She carried a cascade bouquet of white bridal roses, centered with a pure white hybrid orchid with streamers of white bridal satin and English ivy.

Mrs. Thurman Stox of Greenville was her sister's honor attendant. She wore a pink crystal-embroidered gown with a basque bodice and circlet neckline, and a flowing skirt softly draped with roses of matching crystal-embroidered tulle.

Her headpiece was designed with a rose and tulle to match her gown. She carried a cascade bouquet of white bristly roses interspersed with blue nylon tulle with matching streamers.

The bridesmaids were Mrs. Clifton Aldridge, Miss Frances Nanney, and Miss Janie Gurganus, all of Greenville, and Miss Mary Ida Allen of Ayden. Their blue crystal-embroidered gowns were designed like the honor attendant's, and they carried a cascade bouquet of pink roses and English ivy.

Little Miss Becky Groome, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John

Groome of Greenville, was flower girl. She wore a gown of white nylon dotted swiss styled as the bridesmaid's. Her headpiece was designed with a rose and tulle to match her gown. She carried a handmade basket of pink satin and nylon tulle with lily-of-the-valley and rose petals.

Ricky Tuter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Otis Tuter of Jacksonville, N. C. and cousin of the bride, was ring bearer. He carried the ring on a white satin pillow.

The bridegroom chose for his best man Edward Forrest Beacham of Wilmington. Serving as ushers were Donald Franks of Wilmington, brother of the bridegroom; Don Nobles of Washington, cousin of the bride; Thurman Stox and Joe Sutton of Greenville, brothers-in-law of the bride.

The mother of the bride wore a dusty rose lace sheath dress with matching accessories, complimented by a white hybrid Fuchsia lip orchid. Mrs. Franks, mother of the bridegroom, wore a light blue lace sheath dress with matching accessories and a white hybrid Fuchsia lip orchid.

The bridal couple received in the vestibule of the church following the ceremony.

For their wedding trip to New York and Niagara Falls, the bride changed into a carnation blue suit with matching hat, patent leather accessories, and the orchid lifted from her bouquet.

The couple, following their wedding trip, will be at home at 1610 Lucern Way, New Bern, N. C.

Out-of-Town Guests

Among the out-of-town guests attending the Jackson-Franks wedding were Mrs. Heber Nobles of Washington, N. C., Mr. and Mrs. V. O. Andrews of New Bern, Mrs. Richard Otis Tuter of Jacksonville, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Walter David Williams Jr., Miss Lila Rue Williams, Mrs. Mack Allen, Mr. Mack Belmont Allen Jr., and Miss Sue Allen, all of Ayden, Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Whitehurst, Mr. William Turner, Mrs. Raleigh Powell, Miss Sara Powell, Miss Christine Lanier, Mr. and Mrs. Pearl Groom, all of Wilmington, Mr. Elbert Newton Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Newton of Currie, and Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Mills of Vanceboro.

Following the rehearsal of the Jackson-Franks wedding Saturday night, Mrs. Hubert Jackson entertained at a cake cutting at the Greenville Free Will Baptist Church.

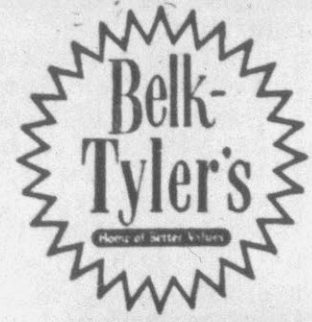

The bride-elect was presented a corsage of white cymbidium orchids, a gift of the bridegroom-elect.

Guests were invited into the refreshment room where a pink and white color scheme was used. The appointed table was covered with a white linen and lace cloth and centered with an arrangement of white gladioli and bridal wreath. Silver candelabra held white burning tapers and a crystal punch bowl, encircled with ivy, was placed at one end of the table. At the other end was the three-tiered wedding cake.

After the honored couple cut the first slice of cake, Mrs. Richard Otis Tuter served the guests. Mrs. Heber Nobles served punch. Nuts and mints were also served.

They Might Tax Tobacco To Death

North Carolina's legislature is now poised to consider whether to place a special state tax on one of its most important commodities . . . tobacco.

It is a commodity which provides a mainstay for the state's economy, providing the livelihood for thousands of people on farms, in processing, in manufacturing and in sales.

It is also one of the most heavily taxed of all commodities and one which faces a constant battle against additional taxation to prevent its being taxed out of the consumer market.

For North Carolina to levy a state tax on its most important product would be an invitation for every level of government which now taxes tobacco to increase their tax upon it. It would also be an invitation for governments which do not now tax the commodity to place taxes on it.

The net result would be an opening of the flood gates of taxation against tobacco, and eventually price it out of the reach of many consumers, further restricting the market for tobacco products and adversely affecting North Carolina's economy from the standpoint of both agriculture and industry.

How much is tobacco already taxed? For the last fiscal year alone, direct federal taxes on tobacco products—of which 98 per cent came from cigarette taxes—amounted to $1,700,000,000. State, county and municipal governments across the country collected another $500,000,000 in special taxes on cigarettes and tobacco products. That makes a total of more than two billion dollars in direct taxes collected on tobacco products in a single fiscal year . . . a year in which farmers who produced the tobacco received only $800,000,000 for their total tobacco production.

The federal government already collects a tax of eight cents per pack on cigarettes. For the tobacco which goes into a pack of cigarettes the farmer gets approximately three cents on the warehouse floor.

One Book Apiece For Tar Heels

By LYNN NISBET

BOOKS — Records in the State Library would indicate that while there is less than one book apiece for all citizens of North Carolina in the public libraries, each book is read an average of nearly four times during the year.

The 273 public libraries have on their shelves 3,343,299 volumes (8-tenths of a book for each of the 4,061,929 persons counted in the 1950 census), but the total circulation was 11,504,798 last year.

In addition to the general public libraries there are 57 university and college libraries with 245,917 volumes and eight special libraries with 223,806 books. Included in the special category are 136,197 volumes in the State Library at Raleigh and 56,556 in the Supreme Court library. There are many other small "special" libraries not listed—such as county law libraries and semi-public libraries in business offices and industrial plants. Add to this the numerous reading room facilities in clubs, hospitals and other places where the public has access to books and magazines and the total will run into big figures.

Immediate concern is with the general public libraries, which are either supervised by the North Carolina State Library. Data prepared mainly for presentation to the Advisory Budget Commission and the General Assembly contain some interesting facts about library service.

Only six of the 100 counties are without county-wide library service—Alexander, Ashe, Brunswick, Jones, Polk and Robeson. The other 94 counties share in State aid (63 of them getting Federal aid, too) and either alone or in cooperation with neighboring counties operate 104 bookmobiles to serve the rural areas.

SUPPORT — There are 21 independent city and town libraries; 72 county units and eight regional systems serving 22 counties, and including 172 branches. Thirteen counties and nine cities have voted special taxes for support of libraries. The special tax counties are Anson, Caldwell, Cherokee, Cumberland, Davidson, Gaston, Greenville, Mecklenburg, Montgomery, Rockingham, Rutherford, Sampson and Union. Municipalities with special tax levies voted by the people are Black Mountain, Granite Falls, Henderson, Hickory, High Point, Pinebluff, Mount Airy, Statesville, Washington and Weldon.

Most of the other cities and counties support libraries from non-tax public revenue and by donations and endowments from private sources.

While the State Library exercises a degree of co-ordinating supervision over all public libraries (more in the area of gathering and compiling statistics than in administrative control), the operation is essentially a local responsibility to meet local needs.

Of every dollar going into library support last year the counties paid 41 cents, cities and towns 31 cents, the State of North Carolina 15 cents. Federal aid accounted for 5 cents and all other sources 8 cents.

Considering the service rendered by these 273 general public libraries and their 104 bookmobiles, it is almost unbelievable that the total operating costs, including purchase of new books, last year was less than three million dollars—$2,819,713.56. Almost as much was spent on the college and special library operations.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS — The State Library has no supervisory authority over public schools, not even to the point of having an inventory of number of volumes. As a matter of fact, there is no accurate or thorough inventory available anywhere. Nearly every high school has a library with someone designated as "librarian." Very few have full-time trained personnel. Mostly it is a teacher who gives that extra service. Hundreds of elementary schools have libraries, so-called courtesy only, where books are available for reference or taking home to read. Add all these elementary and secondary school, university and college and special libraries to the general public library stocks and the sum total will tend to completely negate the charge often made that North Carolinians do not read.

It is highly appropriate and significant that we take time out once in a while, at least one week in the year, to give special consideration to services rendered by public and semi-public libraries.

It is also interesting to note that as many people go to public libraries to read current newspapers as go to read books, or to check old records in the archives.

If the present bill before the state legislature is passed, the state would collect a tax of three cents per pack on cigarettes—the same as the farmer gets for growing the tobacco which goes into a pack of cigarettes.

At the present rate of federal taxation alone on cigarettes, Uncle Sam collects about $3,200 in taxes on each acre of tobacco grown in Pitt County. The federal tax on tobacco grown in Pitt County during 1958 will amount to more than the total assessed property valuation on all the property in Pitt. Federal taxes collected on tobacco in 1958 amounted to approximately $1.52 per pound. Farmers in Pitt County averaged about 58 cents per pound for the tobacco they produced and sold on auction floors.

For North Carolina, the largest tobacco producing state, to levy a special tax on tobacco would be a blow from which the tobacco industry probably would never recover. It would be a measure which in the long run would cost the state many more dollars in other forms of revenue now being collected from the business firms and individuals engaged in the tobacco industry in this state.

The On-Target Factor Is The Biggest Of All

The ability of American long range missiles to hit a target if they were ever fired in combat remains a matter of conjecture.

Seven times the ICBM Thor-Able rocket has been fired in tests which were supposed to include recovery of the rocket's nose cone from the target area. Only one of those times—the last—has the tiny nose cone been recovered. And on this occasion it was spotted by a reconnaissance plane two hours after it hit the water 5,000 miles out in the Atlantic.

The two-hour delay in finding the nose cone was in spite of the fact that ships were located in the proposed "impact area" for that purpose.

This would suggest that we still are a good bit away from the day when we can fire ICBMs with the pinpoint accuracy which would be required for combat use. The test impact area might have covered a few square miles or several hundred square miles of ocean. Probably the latter was the case in view of the length of time it took to locate the nose cone after it plunged into the water. This speculation is further supported by the fact that on previous occasions the cones have not been recovered even though the rocket firings apparently were successful, and ships were standing by the impact area to recover the nose cones.

Until we reach the place that ICBMs can be fired with reasonable assurance they will land at least within a few miles of their intended target, they will have little usefulness as a combat weapon. And reading between the lines of reports on recent American tests, we can only conclude the United States has not reached that point with its ICBMs.

Are the Soviets farther advanced on this all-important point of hitting the intended target?

How The IRS Will Check Up

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — Just how much of a looking over will the Internal Revenue Service give my income tax return for 1958?

A lot of people may be wondering that, since the deadline for filing returns is Wednesday.

This year, IRS says, there will be returns from around 60 million individuals, 975,000 corporations, and a million partnerships, plus 20 million employment tax returns, and 3 million returns on federal excise, alcohol and tobacco taxes. There will be 260 million documents involving those returns.

That's a lot of looking over for the 50,000 people employed by IRS in its nine regional, 64 district, and 900 branch offices. Of the 50,000, about 15,500 are auditors but a lot of the others are used in checking returns.

In the case of some of the biggest corporations, IRS assigns three to five agents all year around because they have complexities never dreamed of by an individual taxpayer.

Last year 2,841,000 returns—including 159,000 from corporations—were completely checked. This means more than just checking the arithmetic. A complete check means auditors turn over the books of corporations or the records of individuals.

This year about 30 million people will have used the short-form 1040 because they made less than $10,000 in salary and fitted other requirements for using this simple return. These get looked over to see that the exemptions tally.

But they can be run through electronic computer machines which not only can determine the tax but can figure out whether you overpaid or still owe some tax.

All those reporting income over $10,000 not only get their arithmetic checked but also get a going over by an experienced agent to see whether the return should be accepted or turned over to an auditor for deeper examination.

The auditing can be done by calling in the taxpayer for a conference or sending an agent to his home or office to examine his records. The 2,841,000 returns audited last year brought the government an extra 1 1/2 billion dollars.

Last year IRS found 1,905,000 errors in making the simple arithmetic check. Of that total, 1,245,000 taxpayers had made errors in their own favor. IRS usually tries to get a delinquent taxpayer to file a return. If he doesn't, IRS can file it for him and then set out to collect.

What happens if IRS audits your return and then decides you owe more tax?

You are notified but you can appeal to IRS.

First, through a conference with the agent who examined your return and with his supervisor. Then if you are still not convinced, with special technical advisers who work in IRS separately from the agents.

If after all this you and the service still don't agree, IRS will issue what is called a statutory notice this means within those 90 days you must appeal to the U.S. tax court or pay up.

Suppose you ignore the 90-day notice, don't appeal, and don't pay up. IRS presents you with a bill. Then either you pay or IRS will try to collect by seizing your salary, your car, or other possessions.

Last year IRS issued 73,000 statutory notices. But 66,000 people who got them paid up within the 90-day limit. That left 7,000 to fight it out in court.

In case of a downright evasion of tax a criminal charge can be made. But out of 60 million taxpayers, IRS says, only about 1,000 face criminal action each year.

No Bumper Crop Indicated

By ALVIN TAYLOR

Washed Out By The Rain

The price of progress some times comes high! Home owners along S. Dickinson Ave. found themselves separated from the highway by a river of mud as torrential rains fell during the weekend.

Construction men have been laying curb and gutter along the highway as the two lane road is converted to four lanes. It will be a beautiful drive when it is completed, but it must have been a sad sight for persons living along the road this weekend.

The heavy rains also washed out the cuts made in the pavement for storm sewer lines, making the going painfully slow for traffic.

Greenville has a rescue unit unequaled by any east of the Mississippi, Mayor S. Eugene West told a crowd which gathered at the Central Fire Station Sunday for the dedication of the Rescue Squad Annex.

It is one of the oldest squads in the state, he pointed out.

It can also be noted that the success Greenville had in forming its squad, spurred on other towns and now rescue units are springing up all over the state.

A few years ago, Greenville firemen used to talk about the excellent rescue set-ups to be found in the State of Virginia. Now North Carolina is catching up with its neighboring state.

Appropriately the new building was dedicated to Fire Chief George Gardner who founded the local rescue squad and has worked to build up its equipment since.

Another indication of Greenville's leadership is shown by the fact that Roy Hardee, who has been interested in rescue work since its beginning here, is commander of the State Association of Rescue Squads. In addition Stuart Savage is state secretary and Jimmy Smith is a state director representing this region.

As the mayor said Sunday, "There is no part of the county that this rescue squad had not operated in, answering emergency calls in all of Pitt County and occasionally in the adjoining counties."

"They work closely with doctors, police, highway patrol, sheriff's personnel and other emergency agencies. They have at times, helped at the hospital after taking a patient there. Our Rescue Squad is still growing and we certainly anticipate continued progress in the future for this group of young men."

Other Editors Saying... Strength For Today

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

Down through the centuries men have dreamed about conquering space and reaching out to other planets. Until recently these dreams were just that and nothing more. With the advent of jet propulsion the dream was carried one step farther. Now man actually has pushed out beyond the moon, for there are two satellites now circling the sun. Who would have dreamed of such feats even 12 years ago?

There is a catch to these accomplishments, however. The satellites are unmanned. And satellites to come this year and even next year will also be unmanned — unless the Russians break through sooner than we expect. Until a rocket is launched that carries a human pilot our knowledge of space will remain limited.

But the speculative stages have almost ended. Recently the National Aeronautics and Space Administration selected 110 top flight test pilots as candidates for the first trip in orbit around the earth. Rigid, strenuous tests reduced this number to seven, and the names of these seven willing pioneers have been made public. Thus we now have something concrete to go on, as far as manned space flight is concerned.

It will be at least two years before one of these young men is chosen for the first historic flight. In the meantime they will undergo further tests, more training and indoctrination. What kind of men are these seven volunteers? All are family men, with a deep sense of responsibility to both family and country. They are not worried about the dangers involved, for they know no attempt to orbit will be made until the safety probability is higher than that for the routine test flying all the men have been going in their military planes.

Dr. W. Randolph Lovelace, head of the selection team, said the volunteers went through the most rigorous selection program ever devised. The test simulated conditions of heat, cold, noise, stress, acceleration and deceleration that might be encountered in real space flight. When asked as to why they volunteered, one of them put it this way:

"I feel that this is the future of this country and the world. We have gone about as far as we can on this globe and have to start to look around a bit. This is an excellent opportunity to be in on something new."

All of the men involved have wholehearted backing from their families. With this support they will be spurred on to achieve success. It is possible something will go wrong, someone might not come back. The other six will be available to step in should this happen. In any event, all seven hope to eventually be put into orbit around the earth. It is men like these that make progress possible. Someone always has to take the first step.

BEYOND MEASUREMENT

Have you ever stopped to think how infinitely precious human life is? We can have reverses in life and rise above them. We can make mistakes and do better the next time. But when our life is taken away from us—that is the end so far as this world is concerned.

Accordingly, mankind has always made homicide and murder the most serious of crimes. To deprive a man of his life is to deprive a man of everything. Think of the horror of war. Young men, with just one life to live, are herded into battle. When they give up their lives, they give up their all. The Christian believes in life after death, but that in no way alters the fact that, when one loses his life, he loses every opportunity God planned for him on earth, his family planned for him, and he planned for himself.

So when you think about life—life in general—do so with your thoughts lifted up to heaven. Life—the most precious thing we know anything about. What is it? No one knows. God gives it and God takes it away. He is the source of life, its sustainer, its captain and its king.

Cherish life—your own, and the lives of others. Nothing is so precious. This is God's most precious gift out of His treasure house of mysteries.

For us the way is clear—life privilege, as well as our greatest responsibility, is to make the most of it.

Frankie Aims To Act

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Singer Frankie Laine, who quit show business five times before he became a star, has been bitten by the acting bug. So when'll he play Hamlet?

"Not right now," said the song writer. "I'm not ready for Shakespeare yet. That's a rough school. 'But in another five years I might be crazy enough to try it.' Acting is not without its perils, he has found. He wasn't so lucky practicing drawing his six shooter for a part in a television piece.

"The first time I skinned my finger," he said. "And the second time I dropped the gun and nearly broke a toe."

Frankie has sold more than 30 million records in the last dozen years.

Why, since his voice brings down money in a golden shower, waste it on straight acting?

"The fear of trying something new is often what defeats people," said Laine. "There is no standing still in this business. The day you aren't willing to take a step forward is the day you've already started going backward."

Frankie, the son of a Chicago barber, isn't frightened by the possibility of failure. It took him 16 years to reach the top as a singer. During that period he slept at times on park benches, worked as an office boy, dancing teacher, shipping clerk, auto salesman and machinist.

"The first lesson I had to learn was to be myself," he recalled.

I did what everybody else was doing. And I was a dud.

"In 1936 I decided I'd quit imitating others."

It took another decade before his big-voice style caught on. Five times he came back and tried again.

"The last time, I quit a $150 a-week factory job, because I couldn't see spending my life looking at the same four walls," he said. "I figured that it would take me 30 years to work up to an executive job."

Soon after taking a job in a Hollywood night spot, Frankie clicked with a recording. His first royalty check was for $36,000.

"I often wonder what would have happened to me if I hadn't been willing to make that one last try," he said.

"But it doesn't worry me. I can lie down 20 minutes before going on the air and take a nap. My wife, Nan, and I both have faith. We believe there's a reason for everything that happens in life."

The Laines and their two teenage daughters, Pam and Jan, are very close.

"When you boil it down," said Frankie, "the family is the most important unity in your life."

Opinions In Brief

"When comic book producers agreed to a code of no sex and no horror five years ago, they sealed their doom, a publisher tells the Wall Street Journal. 'The damn cleanup did it,' he snaps. Only five of the original 29 companies signing the comics code are still alive. Comics sales that once ran as high as 90 million and the industry is singing the blues." — New Orleans States and Item.

"We know a nation that's coming pretty close to selecting its head from a classified ad. Remember Vice President Richard M. Nixon? He got his start by responding to a classified ad asking for someone to run for representative from the Los Angeles district." — Publishers' Auxiliary.

"Inflation is just like the weather. Everybody's talking about it but nobody's doing anything." — Springfield (Neb.) Herald.

Cut Prices And Be A Big Heel?

By ELMER ROESSNER

Semantics are often useful in business. The choice and arrangement of words can do a lot for their master. A speech by Joseph Kolodny, the managing director, at the recent convention of the National Association of Tobacco Dealers, offers an interesting example.

He said: "Market place anarchy" as characterized by retail price-cutting, discount operations, below-cost sales, price juggling and "bait" advertising has stifled the little fellow's freedom to embark on a business venture. It has imperiled the ramparts of free competition and has destroyed the previous stability of the price structure. It has caused sharp deflation of product quality standards and has brought about the death of many thousands of legitimate business firms."

After that, who but a Communist could charge less than the manufacturer's list price? Let's pick some of the features off this bird of a statement.

Mr. Kolodny lumps price-cutting, discount operations, below-cost sales and bait advertising.

A BUNDLE

That's his first semantic device. Bait advertising is usually understood to be dishonest. It consists of offering a known article at a low price to attract customers who are thereupon given opportunity to buy only other goods at high prices.

Deflating, Mr. Kolodny has linked every retailer who has ever cut a price, sold at discount or sold below cost with the moral slobs who lie to the public with bait advertising. He has also linked them with "price jugglers," but I'm not sure what he means by that. Sounds clever, though.

He stresses "anarchy." Now anarchy is a serious charge. An anarchist is one who wants to do away with law and overthrow the government. If Mr. Kolodny's view is accepted, anybody who cuts a price would seem to want to blow up the White House. Anyone who runs a discount opera-

Alaska's Young Governor Home

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — Lean but lively William A. Egan, given only a 50-50 chance to live when flown to Seattle for emergency surgery 12 weeks ago, returned to Alaska Monday and was cheered by the Legislature.

About 32 pounds under his normal weight but speaking strongly and walking with a quick step, the 44-year-old Democratic governor told a joint session and packed gallery: "I can't begin to express how wonderful it is to be back in Alaska."

In a 10-minute speech, interrupted three times by standing ovations, Egan told the lawmakers he would be able to devote only a few hours a day to office work and Secretary of State Hugh J. Wade would continue as acting governor.

He said he would have to return to Seattle for relatively minor gallstone surgery.

Egan entered a Juneau hospital just two hours after being sworn in as Alaska's first elected governor Jan. 3. Complications followed a Jan. 6 operation here and he was flown to Seattle for abdominal surgery.

Too 'Different'; Divorced Him

DENVER (AP) — When Robert Millard, 39, sawed off the legs of his wife's new dining room table, "he says she at first tried to grin and bear it."

"We sat on pillows to eat our meals," Mrs. Millard, 38, told Dist. Judge Neil Horan. "We would lie on the floor to talk and we had to lean against the wall to read."

Said Mrs. Millard of her husband: "He just wanted to be different."

Her divorce was granted Monday.

High Degree Cooperation On U.S. Moscow Exhibition

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American exhibit soon to open in Moscow has turned in two of the strangest footnotes to the cold war.

While Moscow and Washington rattled missiles at each other, struggled for the favor of uncommitted countries and maneuvered in the German crisis, here's what was happening on the U.S. fair: 1. U.S. businessmen were standing deep in line with offers to show for free, sometimes at considerable expense to themselves, their choicest products in the capital of the country avowedly out to destroy capitalism.

2. The Soviets—before a barb in the press this week—not only were living up to an international agreement requiring "a high degree of mutual confidence and trust," but were going beyond the bargain to help the display expected to attract 5,000 visitors an hour. Soviet helpfulness outside of the agreement included:

Allowing a restaurant to operate there now for the U.S. fair staff; volunteer preparation of food at a nominal cost for the American staff; permission to move into Moscow tons of food supplies for the Americans without duty; provision of an office.

Then the official Soviet news agency, Tass, got into the act this week. It said a home included in the U.S. exhibit would not be typical Americana. Don't be fooled by such hokum, it told the Soviet people.

"Actually," said Tass, "there is no more truth in showing this as a typical home of the American worker than, say, in showing the Taj Mahal as the typical home of Bombay textile worker."

Pans call for a $13,000 house with furnishings costing another $5,000. Exhibitors providing the house and furnishings stuck to their guns. They say a man earning about $100 a week could buy the house today.

The U.S.-Soviet agreement provides also for a Soviet exhibition to be held in New York starting in June.

The exhibition will have maybe 1,500 types of products contributed by around 500 companies.

U.S. private enterprise has underwritten more than a million dollars to help the fair. The federal government investment is limited to 3½ millions.

As a result, works of art, documentary films and the like will be accompanied by a great range of commercial products. Some examples:

RCA color TV, 22 cars and trucks from six American manufacturers, the disputed six-room ranch type house by All-State Properties, Inc., of New York, a fish Skinner from the Townsend Engineering Co. of Des Moines, Iowa, and a Maytag Corp. gas dryer from Newton, Iowa.

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich. (AP) — Two airmen of Selfridge Air Force Base, Darrell P. Tavernier and William B. Fish, both 21, zipped through town on a 10-ton street sweeper.

Municipal Judge Malcolm Trombley fined each $35 yesterday for disorderly conduct.

One Twin Always Comes In Late

DENVER (AP) — Lester Perrin was born two hours after his twin brother, Chester, 24 years ago.

The story's been the same ever since.

While Chester, huskier and taller, played sports, Lester watched from the sidelines.

They entered the Army together two years ago and were sent to Germany. Chester was discharged first—last March 16. Lester was discharged March 25.

The Army flew Chester home, but Lester came by boat.

GOOD ACTOR

JONESVILLE, Mich. (AP) — State troopers rushed to the scene after a freight train conductor tossed a note to a motorist at a crossing, saying there was a dead body on a strawstack along the track a mile back. One the strawstack, still motionless was 13-year-old Frank Manke, playing a "dead Redskin" in a game of cowboys and Indians with another boy.

Bells Toll Today For Robert Taft

WASHINGTON (AP) — The bells toll today in memory of Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio.

With President Eisenhower and former President Hoover joining in the ceremonies, the friends of "Mr. Republican" dedicate a marble bell tower soaring 100 feet from the foot of Capitol Hill.

Hoover chose "integrity and courage" as the topic for a eulogy to Taft. Eisenhower arranged to dedicate the structure and Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn (D-Tex.) to accept it in behalf of Congress.

The tower is the only memorial to an individual Congress has permitted to be erected on the Capitol grounds.

At the base of the tower is a 10-foot high statue of Taft, whose death from cancer on July 31, 1953 ended a career that included four unsuccessful bids for the Republican presidential nomination.

Above the statue are inscribed these words:

"This memorial to Robert A. Taft, president of the Senate, stands as a tribute to the honesty, indomitable courage and high principles of free government symbolized by his life."

Rep. B. Carroll Reece, Tennessee Republican who was a close friend of Taft, said the Ohio senator "will be judged by historians to have been the noblest American of his time."

May Keep Their Illegal Winnings

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A Black Mountain couple likely will get to keep the $10,000 worth of merchandise they illegally won from a radio station — and for which they drew suspended 30-month jail sentences.

That was the peculiar anti-climax to the trial of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Wade Rice in U.S. District Court here Monday.

Mrs. Rice fainted when the jury found them guilty of defrauding Charlotte Radio Station WIST in a tune-naming contest last month. Judge Wilson Warlick ordered the suspended sentences.

After the trial had ended, Asst. U.S. Dist. Atty. William J. Wagner said he understood the radio station didn't want to reclaim the prizes — a fur coat, a motor boat, a color television set and other items.

The winnings are used merchandise now. If reclaimed, there probably would be an outcry from contestants who think they should get the prizes.

Station Manager Ray Stanfield said he didn't know what course WIST would take. But he said he didn't think the station would sue for recovery of the merchandise.

The government said the Rices worked their scheme this way: They mailed themselves an unsealed letter, addressed with a pencil, before the contest deadline. Then, they waited until the station named the top 10 tunes, listed the titles, erased the penciled address, wrote the station address on the envelope and in some unknown manner inserted the letter back into the mails.

Nixon Proposes Court As Umpire

NEW YORK (AP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon proposes that the World Court be made the umpire in disputes arising from any future East-West agreements.

U.S. dedication to a strong military position reduces the chance of deliberate war, he said. But as long as force remains the final arbiter of international disputes there will always be the possibility of "war by miscalculation," he added.

Nixon spoke Monday night at the Academy of Political Science.

His proposal is not yet the official United States position, he said, but he has discussed it at length with Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers and officials of the State Department. He said he is convinced the proposal deserves serious consideration.

The World Court — the International Court of Justice — is the principal judicial organ of the United Nations. It is composed of 15 judges elected by the General Assembly and the Security Council of the U.N.

The court, which sits at the Hague, Netherlands, cannot consider any case not voluntarily submitted to it by one or more nations, and has no power to enforce a decision.

Nixon proposed that nations signing future international agreements agree to be bound by the court's interpretation.

Hollings Declares State 'Tolerant'

Crop Insurance Deadline Nears

Federal Crop Insurance applications can only be accepted through April 30, Mattie Moore, office representative reminded Pitt County farmers today.

She also pointed out that applications may be terminated before the April 30 deadline since there is a limit on the number each county office can take this year.

Mrs. Moore pointed out that applications have already been terminated in Bladen County because the set limit was reached.

The limits were established by the Washington office of Federal Crop Insurance.

Federal Crop Insurance is a disaster insurance. It amounts to a guarantee that the policyholder will get back his cash production costs each year either through the sale of tobacco or through a claim check on his insurance, or partly by both, should weather damage, unavoidable diseases, fire or insects bring his sales below his insurance coverage.

guards. The Negroes of our state feel as all of us feel — that schools are intended for education and not integration or social experimentation," he said.

The youthful governor — he is 37 — told the House sub-committee considering proposed civil rights legislation that South Carolina has "no such thing as a 'restricted' hotel."

The tall, handsome state chief executive noted that persons of the Jewish faith have been chosen as Charleston's "Man of the Year," president of the student body of the state university and speaker of the State House of Representatives.

Negroes in the state, he said in a prepared statement, have their own insurance companies, bus lines and are outstanding members of the legal and medical professions.

"We would like to continue this climate of tolerance and understanding but we cannot if the President and Congress insist on attempting to legislate away racial differences," he said.

Hollings noted that no complaints have come to the Civil Rights Commission from South Carolina and pointed out that the state has civil rights statutes of its own.

The deep-voiced governor who took office three months ago read South Carolina's general statute and showed the "striking similarity" it bears to the federal law now on the books.

"Now what is the matter with using either one of these statutes to deter the use of force or threats of force to obstruct court orders?" he asked.

Cotton is produced most economically on well limed soils.

Church To Probe Resignation

ROCKY MOUNT, Va. (AP) — The Episcopal church has ordered an investigation into the resignation of a Rocky Mount vicar who quit his pastorate in a dispute with his vestrymen.

The Rev. John H. Teeter, 34, vicar of Trinity Episcopal Church, announced his resignation Sunday — less than three days after the vestry had instructed the church's delegate to a diocesan convention to vote against racial integration at Hemlock Haven, a church camp and conference center.

It was the vicar's contention that the delegate to the April 16-18 convention in Lynchburg should be left free to vote "as his conscience and prayers direct him." The vestry — lay members who govern the church — disagreed.

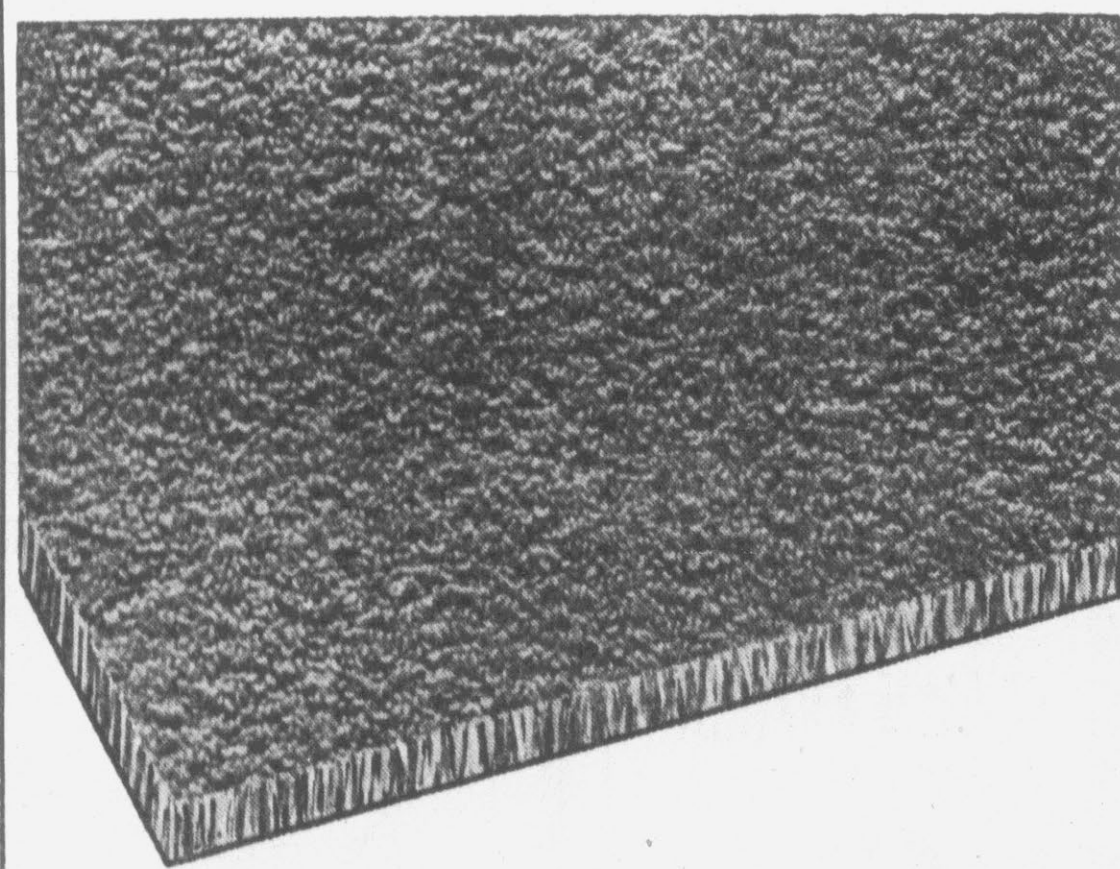

The official probe of the Rev. Mr. Teeter's resignation was to begin with a conference between the ex-vicar and the Rev. Cornelius C. Tarplee of Lynchburg, Virginia representative of national headquarters of the Episcopal church. A "detailed report" was sought.

Meantime, the Rev. Mr. Teeter offered to withdraw his resignation if the vestry would rescind its vote to instruct the delegate and adopt a resolution leaving him free to vote according to his conscience. But the senior warden of the vestry, Nathan Bushnell III, said the vestry had no plans to meet until after the Lynchburg meeting.

The controversy at the local church is only one of several which have developed over integration at Hemlock Haven. The camp and conference center is located near Marion, Va., and serves the Episcopal Diocese of Southwestern Virginia. Generally, the clergy has supported integration of the camp while lay members have opposed integration.

Two Youths Saved From Execution By The Victim

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Two handsome youths were saved from the electric chair Monday by the plea of a tiny, gray-haired spinster they abused and raped.

Instead Michael F. Miller and Thomas Nevin Eckenrod, both 18, were sentenced to life in prison.

Their victim sat outside the courtroom, nervously fingering a golden cross, as the pair heard the verdict. She peered through a glass door as the neatly dressed youths rose to be sentenced.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Frank Briscoe said the state would have demanded death for the pair if their victim hadn't asked that their lives be spared.

Briscoe read her statement and Miller's confession.

This told how Eckenrod seized the spinster in front of a hotel as she walked to work last Dec. 26. She was dragged into a car driven by Miller.

The pair beat her almost unconscious, drove to a lonely lane, ripped off her clothing and repeatedly beat and assaulted her. "We would ask death—they deserve death," Briscoe before reading a letter from the spinster which said:

"I do not believe in capital punishment—I am opposed to the assessing of the death penalty in this case."

The state agreed not to ask death if the boys pleaded guilty and accepted life sentences.

"How do you plead?" Dist. Judge Edmund Duggan asked. "Guilty," said Miller, who worked for an electric firm. "Guilty," said Eckenrod, who was a Texas A&M student.

The tiny victim bowed her head and wept outside the courtroom.

CHAPTER 6

I looked Eva Ennis over pretty carefully. She had curves, contours and an air of awareness about her that belied the demure expression which was on her face at the moment. She was wearing a high-necked sweater, a jacket and skirt.

"You wanted to see me, Mr. Lam?" she asked.

"Sit down, Eva," I said. "I want to talk with you."

She smiled at me, then glanced at Elsie Brand, my secretary.

"Sit down, Elsie," I said. "I want to find out something about Eva's private love life, and I want a chaperon."

Eva started to say something, but changed her mind.

"I'm trying to get a line on the photographer who was here the other day," I said. "I may want to have some work done."

"Oh, Lionel," she said. And then added, "Lionel Palmer."

"Did he tell you much about his duties?"

"Oh, yes. He travels with Mr. Crockett, and it's up to him to keep a perfect record of the trips. He takes color slides to project on the screen in stills, then he takes black-and-white pictures so there's a perfect story record of all the trips in all three media: color slides, black-and-white pictures, and colored movies."

"Why all the coverage?" I asked.

"In lectures Mr. Crockett uses the colored slides. For publicity releases in newspapers he uses the black-and-whites, and for entertainment such as the dinner party last night, he uses colored motion pictures."

"Where you up at the party last night?"

"She made a little face, said, 'No,' shortly and sharply."

"Why not?" I asked.

"I was supposed to meet him last night, but there was too much excitement. He had to call me and call it off. He . . . he was going to fix things so I could slip into the party and see the pictures, and then we were going out for some ham and eggs before he took me home. But they had some excitement up there and he couldn't get away, and I didn't dare to let him try to smuggle me in because . . . well, you know who was watching the elevator."

"That's all you know about the situation to date?" I asked.

"To date," she said significantly.

"Would it be asking too much to check in tomorrow morning and tell me what else you have found out?"

"What else did you want to know?"

"Well, how many pictures he took at that shindig last night. I want prints of all those pictures."

She hesitated.

"Well?" I asked.

"Okay," she said.

An International Goodwill Club was listed in the telephone book. I copied the address, went out and got a cab.

I was surprised to find a sumptuous office, back of that a club-room and a library.

The manager came forward to meet me with a glad hand.

"Lam," I told him, shaking hands. "I'm a writer. I want to turn out an article on your club."

"I'm Carl X. Bedford," the glad hander told me. "I'm secretary and manager. Anything I can do for you, Mr. Lam, I'll be only too glad to do."

"How many members do you have?" I asked.

"Our membership is a very select list. It . . . well, frankly, Mr. Lam, we cater to quality rather than quantity."

"Could you tell me how many?"

"I don't think the club would care to publicize the intimate details, Mr. Lam. We'd be very much interested in having something published about the objectives of the club, the promotion of international goodwill, the understanding of foreign culture."

"Well, that's fine. Just how do you go about promoting this understanding?"

"The club puts on a series of lectures throughout the country. We try to get the public interested in the ways of other people."

"Very commendable," I said. "You have a club flag?"

"Yes, indeed we do."

"I take it you have some flags that have been planted in unusual parts of the world?"

"Indeed we have, Mr. Lam. We have a wonderful collection of photographs showing some of the expeditions on which the club pennant or flag has been taken."

"Do you have scrapbooks available?"

"Indeed we do, Mr. Lam." He slid back a panel and showed me two full shelves of scrapbooks.

I picked one at random. It was a trip made by Dean Crockett the second to Africa.

I pulled down another one. It contained photographs of a tiger hunt in India. Another one had big-game hunting in Alaska.

"Nice photographs," I said. "How about seeing some of the flags themselves. Do you have them here?"

"Oh, yes, we have them in a closet — a special closet."

He opened a door and pulled out a long sliding rack which glided smoothly on rollers. There were probably two dozen flags with engraved semicircular plates screwed into the handles, telling the name of the member of the club the expedition on which the flag had been planted.

I went through the flags. The same names kept repeating themselves. There were twenty-six flags and five different names.

"This last one in the rack," I said casually, "is the most recent expedition?"

"That's right," he said. "That flag was presented to me only last night by Dean Crockett the Second. It was planted in the wilds of Borneo."

I lifted the flag out of the rack, then I lifted out the flag next to it which had also been planted by Crockett in the rugged barranco country of Mexico.

I shook both flags up and down. The barranca flag was solid. Something jiggled and banged in the handle of the Borneo flag.

"Well, well what's this?" I said. I put the barranca flag back in the rack, turned up the Borneo flag and looked at the bottom. There was a metallic screw cap on the bottom.

"Oh, that," Bedford said, laughing. "That's a concession to utility, Mr. Lam. You see, there's an interchangeable point which screws on the bottom of the flag. When a flag is being planted, the explorer screws on this pointed piece of metal. It's very sharp. It's quite easy to plant the flag in the ground, then it is photographed and there are appropriate ceremonies. Afterward, this blunt point is replaced."

"Nice going," I said, and unscrewed the metallic cap, put it in my pocket and tilted up the flagpole.

A long, black piece of wood started sliding out.

I pulled it out with my hand and said, "What's this?"

"Well, for Heaven's sake," Bedford said, "that . . . that looks like Mr. Crockett's blowgun!"

Retired, Takes Home Big Lathe

FLINT, Mich. (AP)—Many retiring employees go home with a wrist watch as a token of "well done" after their last day on the job.

Edwin W. Niedzielski, who retired after 41 years with Buick, went home with the two-ton lathe he had used for nearly 30 years.

Niedzielski bought the lathe from Buick for $62.66. The auto firm paid $3,414.79 for it back in 1929.

The retired auto worker plans to put the lathe in his garage. "I just want the pleasure of owning it and looking at it," he said.

Adventurer May Have New Grief

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP)—Burning of three F51 fighter planes here Oct. 9 could mean more trouble for Alan Robert Nye, soldier of fortune who left Cuba under a death sentence.

While imprisoned in Havana, Nye allegedly admitted setting fire to the three surplus fighter planes at Broward International Airport. The planes were awaiting delivery to Cuba.

Ben Grigsby, chief investigator for the Broward Sheriff's Department, said he would confer with county prosecutors to decide whether a warrant should be issued for Nye's arrest on arson charges.

Wants Urbanites To Be Protected

WASHINGTON (AP)—If farm dwellers have a Department of Agriculture to help them, then urban dwellers should have a department of urbaniculture. So concludes Sen. Kenneth B. Keating (R-NY).

"The time has come to give most serious attention to the idea of creating a new cabinet-level department in the executive branch designed to deal with urban problems," Keating said in a weekend speech at Rochester, N.Y.

TUESDAY

MISS GREENVILLE IN "BUS STOP" . . . Alice Anne Horne as Cherie, Bob Whitley as Bo.

Familiar Face Will Be Filling 'Bus Stop' Role

When the curtain goes up on the Greenville Little Theatre production of "Bus Stop" this Thursday night, the role of the sheriff will be filled by a versatile young actor already well known to local audiences. Del Driver has gained quite a reputation during the past several seasons with those who are regular occupants of two on the aisle.

The young ECC student from Richmond plans a professional career in the theater, and he has certainly made the most of the opportunities afforded him thus far to prepare for such a career. Greenville drama enthusiasts have admired his performance as Willy Loman in "Death of a Salesman", as Colonel Purdy in "Teahouse of the August Moon", as Pulver in "Mr. Roberts", as Don in "The Moon is Blue" (which he also directed), as Dakis in "Deceive Story", as the Magician in "Aladdin", as Bis Sis in "The House of Connelly". That he has the genuine trouper's rare ability to handle more than one role at a time became apparent recently when he scored a personal dramatic triumph as Captain Queeg in the Greenville Little Theatre production of "The Caine Mutiny Court Martial", and followed it in less than a week with the difficult character of the alcoholic priest in the Playhouse production of "The Potting Shed". He will step directly from his role in "Bus Stop" to a complete change of pace as Marcutio in the forthcoming "Romeo and Juliet."

Driver has used his summers to gain professional experience. The summer of 1957 was spent with the Burkdale Theatre in Hanover, Virginia, and last summer he appeared in "The Common Gory" and "The Founders" in Williamsburg.

"Bus Stop" stars the new Miss Greenville, Alice Anne Horne, as Cherie; and features Bob Whitley, Jay Robbins, Mahlon Coles, H. D. Rowe, Faye Leggett, and Ruth Coplan. It is directed by Claude Garren. Performances are scheduled for this Thursday, Friday and Saturday, April 16, 17, and 18. In the trouper's rare ability to handle more than one role at a time became apparent recently when he scored a personal dramatic triumph as Captain Queeg in the

New Officers Are Elected By ECC Interfraternity Council For Term

William Wallace of Clarkston will act as president of the Interfraternity Council for the 1959-1960 school term. Wallace, a junior at the college, is a member of the Theta Chi fraternity.

Other officers of the IPC and the fraternities to which they belong are Kenneth A. Nelson of Richmond, Va., vice president, Pi Kappa Alpha; Ray E. Currier of Durham, secretary, Kappa Alpha; and John J. West of Durham, treasurer, Lambda Chi Alpha.

The Interfraternity Council is a central governing body for all social fraternities on the campus. Its purposes include encouraging cooperation among member fraternities, encouraging scholastic achievement, and promotion of the interests of the college.

Projects carried out during the year include conducting a Rush Week and a Greek Week, with competition between the pledge classes of the fraternities; and sponsoring an annual ball. This week the IPC will sponsor a visit to the campus of a Red Cross Bloodmobile on April 15 and will arrange the schedule of donors.

Price Freeze By Industry Asked By Steelworkers

NEW YORK (AP)—The United Steelworkers of America have proposed to the steel industry that it freeze its prices for the term of the next contract with the union to help "economic stability."

Even if the industry agreed to do so, the union says it would insist on higher wages and other benefits for its half-million members.

Industry spokesmen had no immediate formal reply to the union's proposal, made Monday night in a letter to 12 big steel-producing companies.

Prompt rejection of the union's suggestion was expected. The union last week turned down an industry proposal that wages and other contract benefits be frozen for a one-year contract period.

U. S. Steel, the industry's leading producer, declined comment. A U. S. Steel spokesman said the company was waiting to see the text of the union proposal.

The industry's call for a one-year wage freeze and the union's proposal for a price freeze are part of the sparring prior to negotiations on a new contract to replace the one that expires June 30.

The union's price freeze proposal was drawn up by the executive board after it affirmed President David J. McDonald's rejection of the industry's proposal that present contract benefits terms be continued for another year.

The union executive board also suggested that negotiations for a new contract begin May 4, instead of May 18 as now scheduled. The union's 170-member wage policy committee is scheduled this month to draft contract demands.

The letter to the 12 companies, endorsed by the union executive board and signed by McDonald, said in part:

"Since there can be no inflation without price increases, the first principle which we propose is that there be no increase in the price of steel during the term of any agreement which we may reach."

By adopting this approach we can make a substantial contribution to economic stability and economic progress."

The letter said that wage increases without price increases are justified by the industry's profits and the rising productivity of its workers.

Books And Libraries Fill A Hunger As Real As For Food, Says Novelist

Editor's Note — This week thousands of communities are observing the second National Library Week, sponsored by the National Book Committee in cooperation with the American Library Assn. Here a well known novelist explains what books—and libraries—mean to her.

By TAYLOR CALDWELL

It is an old aphorism that we never miss what we have until it has gone.

We take books for granted, all the glory, tragedy, humor, sadness and adventure, which books contain, all the companionship and the inspiration, all the new paths they open for us, the new places, the new scenes, the new people, the new excitement of discovery, the wisdom, the golden thoughts, the laughter.

A book is a passport to the world, and it is only when we lost that passport that we discover that we are homeless, that the world of men is closed to us, that we are bound and exiled, with no place to go, and that we have lost touch with our fellows.

There are some who say that it is much worse to be hungry and homeless and unwanted than it is not to have books. I disagree. I have been hungry, homeless and unwanted, and I filled all the barren space with the books I borrowed and I was consoled and inspired, and I was given courage.

For years the only books I possessed were Shakespeare, an ancient copy of Thoreau, "Quo Vadis" and "Jean Christophe." I read an reread them literally hundreds of times, in a place where there were no books at all and nothing to read.

I still have those old books; I wouldn't part with them for anything for I cannot forget what it means not to have books, the loneliness, the emptiness, the shut dark places.

The first terrifying experience of not having books—that is, unable to read them—occurred when I was 14 years old. I had been wandering in some woods and a thorn tree whipped at me and injured my right eye. For two weeks thereafter, I was forbidden to read until my eye healed.

There was music in our home, but music is only part of the world. I could walk on the streets, but the street was only a tiny section of living. I could talk with others, but talk does not convey a man's real thoughts. For a few days I had to live in a darkened room, and to this day darkness means terror to me and emptiness, a place without thought or being.

When I was finally permitted to read I fell on books as a starving man falls on food and I could not get enough of them, and I still can't, for without books there is a spiritual darkness.

A home without a library is not a home at all. The library does not have to be a special room. For many, many years my only library was three wooden shelves I put up myself in a rented room. Once my library consisted only of a suitcase.

Music and pictures, friends and entertainment, are only part of living. But books are all of living, for in them are music, pictures, friends and entertainment. A book contains the thoughts of the ages; the most modern book is only an echo of books written hundreds, even thousands of years ago. It matters very little so long as I had my library, and so long as I could travel the long and fascinating world open to mankind only through books.

I have lost much of my hearing, but I hardly miss it, for I have only to start to read to hear voices clearly, and song and laughter and anguish. To paraphrase the Bible, "Heard things are good, but the unheard are sweeter."

Take a book in your hand. You will walk ways you never walked before, see people unknown to you but who echo your most secret thoughts. Love again if you are without love or youth, hear wise men speak, listen to consolations and hopes, and see all beauty.

It was said by St. John, "In the beginning was the word. . . ." This is not only true of God but true of his children. In the beginning, there is always the word. In more ways than one we die spiritually without books.

Three years ago I had another accident to my eye and was forbidden to read. I tried listening to the radio, both plays and music. I tried visiting with friends. And I was not only bored but I was terrified. I began to visualize a world without books for me and the thought was unendurable.

So, against my doctor's orders I resumed reading, and it did not matter to me any longer whether or not I was injuring my affected eye. My very tenseness at not being able to read was hurting my eye worse than reading, and the infection cleared up quickly.

All material things could be taken from me and they would

Asking Start In Desegregation

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Negro leaders have asked the Durham City School Board to voluntarily "make a prompt and reasonable and good faith start next September in desegregation."

Board Chairman Frank L. Fuller told the 70-man Negro delegation, "I don't think we are ready for integration." But he promised to promptly and carefully study the request.

The delegation represented the Durham Committee on Negro Affairs, the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, two Negro school Parent-Teacher Associations and the Durham Negro PTA Council. The group appeared before the board last night to protest "creating a new Jim Crow public school in a building which has been officially abandoned by the school board."

A spokesman for the delegation read a prepared statement, which said in part:

"Recently Durham has gone through the second siege of federal court litigation, one purpose of which is to bring an end to racial segregation.

"We believe that this matter of accomplishing the best educational use of all Durham schools should be settled here, across the conference table, rather than by resorting to further litigation in the federal courts."

The delegation's position you to make a prompt and reasonable and good faith start next September in desegregation of the public schools of our city."

Weather Permitting, Deac Hurler Given Another Chance

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jay Franklin of Wake Forest, who was prevented by winter-like weather yesterday from improving his Atlantic Coast Conference batting lead, gets another chance today — weather permitting.

But so do eight more of the ACC's top ten hitters; for seven of the league's eight teams are scheduled for action.

Franklin, a sophomore outfielder from Arlington, Va., has 11 hits in 23 at bats for a 478 percent average. His nearest rivals are South Carolina's Ken Rosenfield, hitting .421, and North Carolina's John Burgwyn, hitting .409. The three are the ACC's only players hitting above the .400 mark and each has six runs to his credit.

Conference games today are Clemson at Maryland, Duke at North Carolina and South Carolina at Virginia. Wake Forest is at Virginia Tech for a game postponed from yesterday. Other games weathered out yesterday, and not yet rescheduled, were Clemson at Virginia and South Carolina at Maryland.

North Carolina State is idle. Consequently, O'Neal Eason, the Wolfpack's leading hitter, is the only one of the ACC's top ten batters who doesn't get a chance to boost his percentage, now .391 and good enough for fourth in the standings.

Ortiz Displays Knockout Power

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Carlos Ortiz is talking of a lightweight title bout after showing unexpected power in a sixth-round technical knockout of Len Matthews.

"I could have beaten the champ (Joe Brown) the way I felt," Ortiz said after Monday night's decisive win. "First I have to meet Willie Towel in London and then I hope to get Brown."

Ortiz, the second-ranking contender, certainly did nothing to hurt his title chances.

Matthews, unranked but supposedly the superior hitter, landed some of his best punches. Ortiz neither flinched nor appeared shaken.

Ortiz, the little Puerto Rican from New York, led the Philadelphia all the way. There were no knockdowns.

Ortiz, at 136, had a one-pound weight advantage.

Paul Giel Sold To Pittsburgh

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The San Francisco Giants sold pitcher Paul Giel Monday to the Pittsburgh Pirates for $20,000.

The Giants obtained Giel, one-time All-America halfback with the University of Minnesota, for a reported $60,000 bonus in 1954.

In 29 games last season he posted a 4-5 mark.

GOLF MATCH

The Greenville golf team will be in action again tomorrow afternoon when they play host to Kinston. The match is expected to begin at 1:00 and all spectators are invited.

On Ladies' Tour

NEW YORK (AP)—A new tournament — at Southern Pines,

N.C. — has been added to the Ladies Professional Golfers Association tour. The $6,000 event is scheduled for May 8-10 at the Mid-Pines

Club and Betsy Rawls, the LPGA's leading money winner this year, will head a field of about

25 women golfers expected to compete.

Rounding out the top ten are

Bailey Hendley, Clemson, .342;

Dan Morgan, South Carolina, .340;

Ty Cline, Clemson, Byron Bullard,

Wake Forest, and Bill Timberlake,

Virginia, each .333; and Doug Hoffman, Clemson .317.

Larry Bagwell of Clemson is leading in runs batted in with 13, but teammates Doug Hoffman and

Zack Burnette are close behind with 12 each. Two other Clemson

Tigers are leading in the stolen base department with five each credited to Ty Cline and Dick

Suggs.

The home run lead is tied among several players who have one apiece; Hoffman leads in triples with four; and a half-dozen players have three doubles each, the leading mark in that department.

The Pittsburgh Pirates, surprising members of the winless six, are at Cincinnati, but that doesn't qualify as an opener. It was at Cincinnati that the Pirates began their 0-3 frustration last Thursday.

The White Sox, who matched some fine relief pitching with some surprise power for a three-game sweep at Detroit, expect a crowd of about 23,000 at Comiskey

Park for their debut against the A's, who were beaten by Cleveland in their only two starts.

Pierce, the southpaw veteran, was the Sox' opening day choice

last Friday, but was not involved in the decision. Terry, a young right-hander, will be making his first start for Kansas City.

The unbeaten Indians come home with hopes of pulling in 40-

000 or more while giving Score another test. The betroubled lefty was wild in a brief relief chore at Kansas City. The Tigers, who failed with their aces — Bunning,

Paul Foytack and Frank Lary, try again with Bunning.

The Yankees (1-0) also have a test case on the mound, with Larsen still to prove that his bothersome shoulder is fit. The Orioles, who haven't played since losing

Thursday's opener at Washington, switched from Hoyt Wilhelm, who no-hit the Yankees last season, to Portocarrero while estimating some 30,000 fans will show up.

The Red Sox, stymied by bad weather and the two-hit pitching of Bob Turley at New York last weekend, now are battling the flu, but Delock insists he's ready to pitch against the Senators. About 20,000 are expected at Fenway

Park.

Spahn, who got a quick start toward what would be his 10th season of 20 victories by shutting out the Pirates last Friday, goes for No. 2 against the Phils, who beat Cincinnati in their lone start.

Good weather is expected to bring

43,000 fans and Gomez' debut as a Phil following the winter trade with San Francisco. If the weather is cool, Morehead may pitch.

The Giants, 3-0 after their sweep at St. Louis, have a half-game edge over the Braves (2-0).

They'll introduce their half of the trade with the Phils with Sanford going for his seventh victory in 10 decisions against the Cubs. Hillman has won three straight from the Giants, who expect a sellout crowd of 23,000.

The Dodgers, who split a pair at Chicago last weekend, hope for 60,000 at the Coliseum, where Fodres had an 11-4 record while winning only two of 13 on the road. McDaniel had only a 5-7 record last season but was 2-0 against the Dodgers for the Cards, who have yet to win for new manager Solly Henus.

Podres (0-0).

Pittsburgh's pitching choice was young George Witt, who has been troubled by a bum elbow. The young right-hander carries a seven-game winning streak over from last season. Bob Purkey, the ex-

Buc who beat the Pirates for the fifth consecutive time opening day or right-hander Brooks Lawrence will work for the Reds, who are

1-1.

Alonzo Johnson

NEW YORK (AP) — Alonzo

Johnson, an outstanding heavy weight prospect, had a winning streak of 11 today and a good chance of getting a crack at a ranking fighter in a television bout.

"He looks like a real comer," said Harry Markson, general manager of boxing for Madison Square

Garden. "I'm going to try and match him with one of the top 10

fighters."

Markson was scouting talent for the Friday night network TV fight program.

Johnson, a 6-foot, 187½-pounder from Pittsburgh, racked up No. 11

by gaining a split decision over

Billy Hunter, 6-3, 192-pounder from

Detroit, at St. Nicholas Arena

Monday night.

Unbeaten in two years, Johnson now has a 14-1 record. Hunter's record now is 12-6-1.

Weather Upsets ECC Sports Schedules

By JOHNNY HUDSON
East Carolina's big western baseball trip, scheduled for the past five days, has resulted in a vacation for Coach Jim Mallory and his crew.

The trip opened Friday as Johnny Ellen hurled a neat two-hitter against Catawba for ECC's first conference victory. But since then rain and cold weather have forced the team inside and games with Lenoir Rhyne and Western Carolina have been postponed.

Exactly what will be done toward making up the games is still unknown. The Bucs have had their season interrupted in past seasons and the games were not made up unless it was necessary to decide the conference title.

East Carolina was expected to return to campus early Wednesday morning and set their sights for undefeated Atlantic Christian Friday. The Christians, 2-0 in the loop, boast one of their strongest teams in years and will be out to revenge their lickings of the past by a Mallory-coached club.

Meet Moved Up

Rain has also met with disapproval in the ECC track camp. Coach Bill McDonald and his cinderment took the long journey to Newport News last Saturday night to have their meet canceled. Another date could not be decided on. The Bucs had a meet scheduled for Raleigh and N. C. State for this afternoon but McDonald announced this morning that the track was in bad condition and the meet moved up to Wednesday afternoon.

The meet at High Point for this coming weekend has also been postponed but McDonald and crew will journey to Greenville, S. C. for the second annual News Piedmont Relays. The meet will feature approximately 1,000 participants with high schools, junior colleges, colleges, and universities invited.

The meet has been divided into divisions and East Carolina will be in the division with other colleges such as Clemson and The Citadel. McDonald also indicated that their would be an open division and the top performers would enter in this.

Jessel Curry, Foster Morse, James Speight, and Randall Holmes have been the big point-

Arcaro To Seek 6th Derby Win

By ORLO ROBERTSON
NEW YORK (AP)—Eddie Arcaro is sticking by his original decision. He'll bid for his sixth Kentucky Derby victory May 2 with First Landing.

The veteran jockey made that plain today after the 2-year-old champ of 1958 had jumped back into the Derby picture with a sizzling six-furlong performance at Jamaica Monday.

"I'll ride First Landing in the Wood Memorial Saturday and that means I'll also be up on him in the Derby," said the 43-year-old jockey who has won more Kentucky Derbies than any other rider.

Arcaro could have selected the Elkem Stable's Atoll, with whom he won the Swift Stakes and last Saturday's Gotham with a three-quarter length decision over highly regarded Intentionally.

But after sending First Landing over three-quarters of a mile in 1:15 for a three-length triumph and then working him out an extra eight of a mile for a seven-furlong time of 1:23 4-5, Eddie lost no time announcing his decision.

"As a 2-year-old First Landing was the best," he said. "I'll admit he was a disappointment in Florida last winter but he was a different horse yesterday."

In three races in Florida, First Landing barely won the Everglades with an unimpressive performance, ran second in a sprint and was a badly beaten third back of Trolus and Open View in the Flamingo at Hialeah Park.

Owner C. T. Cheney and trainer Casey Hayes also were pleased with First Landing's return to form.

Hayes always has contended that the son of Turn-To was affected by the Florida heat and humidity.

Whether Arcaro made a wise choice will be partially answered Saturday when First Landing hooks up with Atoll and Intentionally in the mile and one-eighth of the $75,000-added Wood.

getters for the Bucs thus far this season.

Bucs Take Two
East Carolina's tennis team continued to ride high and mighty this weekend as rain failed to keep them from recording two more victories.

The Bucs defeated Port Eustis 6-3 on Friday and then knocked off William and Mary 3-2 Saturday.

John West, the Buc's number one man, had a rough road trip as he lost both matches. However, strength down the line once again proved to be valuable as Bill Hollotell and John Savage took two decisions each.

Red Brown and Jim Daughtridge took victories Friday but did not play singles against William and Mary.

The local netters take on another tough road trip this weekend. They journey to N. C. State for a Friday afternoon match, meet Zion Saturday morning, and then climax their tour with a match at Wake Forest Saturday afternoon.

Golfers Take Rest

Coach Howard Porter and his golfers split their matches with a strong Lenoir Rhyne foursome this past week to remain in the running for another crown.

The linksters get to rest this week before taking on a couple more of North State clubs.

Don Conej and Paul Goodwin have been the pace-setters for the club thus far. Conej was former club champion at the Club.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—Some janitors have become too uppity to suit members of the Missouri House of Representatives. The Legislature hires only two janitors and others are loaned by the director of public buildings. Members complained that they got nothing but backtalk when they made a request of one of the "borrowed" janitors. So the House approved a bill giving it complete control over all janitors on the premises.

Bill Veeck On Scene With Chisox For Home-Opener

By JOE MOOSHIL

Associated Press Sports Writer
CHICAGO (AP)—Amid rumors that Satchel Paige will be the starting pitcher and baseball is once again open to midgeets, the Chicago White Sox inaugurate their 1959 home season with Bill Veeck on the scene.

Veeck, who heads a syndicate which purchased 54 per cent of the club, assured all concerned that Paige will not be the starting pitcher.

And, he confided, there'll be no midgeets sent to bat as happened once when he owned the St. Louis Browns.

"I can't say in advance what we'll do," said Veeck, "but something will be popping and there may be a surprise or two."

The Associated Press, however, learned that one of Veeck's stunts will include fireworks and the first display will take place when the crowd is singing the Star Spangled Banner and reaches "the rockets red glare, the bombs bursting in air."

At this point Veeck's cohorts will touch off an explosion of fireworks unparalleled since last summer's celebration of the Chinese New Year.

Another Veeck trick will take place in the seventh inning when the Sox come to bat, although most people will not consider this a stunt but a downright generous and hospitable gesture.

Free beer will be passed out in the stands to toast the White Sox. Acting Capt. John L. Sullivan of the Deering police station which patrols Comiskey Park will have

$50,000 Offer

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP)—Matchmaker Jackie Leonard says he's offering lightweight champion Joe Brown $50,000 to defend his title against the winner of Friday night's Kenny Lane-Johnny Busso fight here.

Leonard would stage the bout in June or July.

Jack Kearns, who manages Lane, said that if the Muskegon, Mich., boy won he would guarantee Brown $75,000 and agree to take a percentage.

Brown has beaten both Lane and Busso but said he wasn't particularly interested in fighting another southpaw, which Lane is.

Friday's Lane-Busso bout at Hollywood Legion Stadium will be televised nationally, starting at 10 p.m. EST.

Snead Compares Masters Course

BOSTON (AP)—If the Masters golf tournament were played under the same conditions as the U.S. Open, the winning score each year would be about 300, says Sam Snead.

Snead, an old pro who should know, told an annual dinner of the New England PGA Monday night that the Masters is a great event, but if "the Augusta course were tricked up like the courses over which the Open is played" the scores would skyrocket.

"The players won't even recognize Winged Foot of New York in June when that course is set up for the championship," Snead said. Some of the fairways will be so narrow that even I will be able to jump across them."

Masters' Touch by Pap'

For the longest time, the touring professional golfers have been reluctant to give Art Linkletter, the so-called "baseball" grip, with no overlapping of the fingers. He has won a number of converts to that style since he is a big hitter with fine accuracy off the tee.

Wall learned to play golf as a caddy in Honesdale, Pa., and went on to Duke University where his hole-in-one feat earned him national recognition. He turned pro in 1949, after graduating from Duke. One gets a pretty good idea of Wall's steadiness in scoring from the Vardon standings. He placed third the past two years—averaging 70.93 strokes per round in 1957, and 70.50 last year. He's pacing the field right now. Over that seven-week stretch, Wall must have been just about the best putter in golf. Art's putts rarely fall into the hole from the side. He usually dumps them in the dead center, with a firmness that points up his confidence. His fellow pros are impressed, all right.

Campy Grateful To His Old Club

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP)—"I'm glad I carried myself so they would not turn their heads now that I'm in trouble."

So said Roy Campanella, the semiparalyzed Los Angeles Dodgers catcher, to a sellout crowd of 1,400 at the second annual Dodgers Dinner Monday night.

"This club went over the mountain for me," said Campanella as he wiped tears from his eyes. He expressed gratitude to President Walter O'Malley and Vice President Buzzie Bavasi for his treatment in the year and one-half since the automobile accident that ended his playing career.

Campanella's appearance was the only solemn note in an evening otherwise devoted to levity.

The big question, said master of ceremonies Art Linkletter, is: "Can the Dodgers finish ahead of the Phillies this year?"

The Dodgers finished seventh and Philadelphia eighth in the National League last season — Los Angeles' first year in major league baseball.

Manager Walt Alston promised that this would be a better club than in 1958 and humorously noted that both the Coliseum right field fence and the club's curfew hour have been shortened.

Bootlegger And Three Officers Shoot It Out

MARION, N.C. (AP)—Three officers and a convicted bootlegger shot it out Monday wounding one officer and the bootlegger.

The shooting occurred outside the office of McDowell County Sheriff Frank Glenn, one of the two persons wounded.

Glenn said Rex Biggerstaff of Marion, whom the sheriff had arrested Friday night on a liquor charge, approached him and commented: "Sheriff, you're a good man."

Then, said Glenn, the 35-year-old Biggerstaff drew a revolver and opened fire.

The first shot struck Glenn in the arm, passing through the flesh just above the elbow. Other shots missed.

Glenn jumped behind a steel column and shot back. Two deputies, Bill Gibbs and Everett Brookshire, came out of the sheriff's office and began shooting also.

Three bullets struck Biggerstaff, one striking his cheek and neck, the other two wounding him in the legs.

The sheriff's wound required only dispensary treatment. Biggerstaff was admitted to a hospital where he was reported to be in good condition late Monday night.

Sheriff Glenn said Biggerstaff had been arrested twice recently on liquor charges. Biggerstaff was convicted of possessing whisky and beer for sale. He was fined $500 and sentenced to three months in jail, suspended.

Biggerstaff appealed the conviction and, while free awaiting the outcome, was arrested Friday night by Sheriff Glenn and a federal alcohol agent. He was charged with possessing 60 gallons of illicit whisky.

Biggerstaff spent most of yesterday at the McDowell County courthouse, the sheriff said, waiting for his appeal case to be called. The sheriff's office is in the courthouse.

The Vandal Also Baked A Cake

MAHOMET, Ill. (AP)—Sheriff William Fairfield said a burglar broke into the Carl A. Bays cabin, broke mirrors and lights and sprayed silver paint and shaving cream all over the place.

Also, all the gas jets in the kitchen were turned on, emptying the gas cylinders, but not before the vandal baked himself a chocolate cake.

Girls' Clothing Proven Costlier

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Just in case anybody has any doubts about it, the Army has proved with elaborate figures that it costs more to clothe a woman than a man.

The current initial allowance for an enlisted man totals $166.20. For an enlisted woman, the figure is $232.36. The figures, with hundreds of others, were given a House Appropriations subcommittee in testimony made public today.

It's the little extras that count. There's not a thing issued to a GI, for example, that's equivalent to the brown oblong leather handbag the taxpayers provide for Wacs, at $8 each.

True, the girls don't get combat boots (two pairs to a man, $13.40 total). But neither do the men get pumps ($12). Aside from these items, each Wac gets four other pairs of shoes, each GI, one. Lest these get muddy, the Army provides overshoes — for women only.

It must be noted the girls' notions don't cost a cent more than the men's wool socks—60 cents a pair.

The Army budgets $5.40 for what it starkly describes as "drawers, men's, thigh length, cotton, white, 6 each" and "undershirts, men's, cotton, quarter length sleeves, white, 6 each."

Wilkie-Style Campaign For Rockefeller Seen

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—The same off-beat campaigning that landed the 1940 Republican presidential nomination for Wendell L. Wilkie apparently is under way for Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York.

Responsible Republicans brought to last week's meeting of the GOP National Committee here reports that supporters of Rockefeller are seeking to enlist businessmen, professional men and other political amateurs as Rockefeller backers.

A GOP national committeeman who has participated in several presidential campaigns described the tactics as similar to those which helped put Wilkie over. He said he has personal knowledge that bankers, lawyers, doctors, insurance men and others with influence in their communities are being urged to line up behind Rockefeller.

The first outward sign of this cropped up recently with the formation of "Californians for Rockefeller." This self-styled group of "political greenhorns" is headed by Charles Lewsadder, Los Angeles businessman.

A state chairman who supports Vice President Richard M. Nixon for the nomination said he knew of similar activities elsewhere in behalf of Rockefeller. He predicted Nixon's backers soon will be doing the same kind of campaigning.

It was explained that Rockefeller himself is standing aloof from these activities. He is holding to the line that his only ambition is to make a good chief executive for his state.

It was noticeable, however, that the governor lost no time in moving one of his closest advisers, George L. Hinman, into a seat as Republican national committeeman from New York. Hinman will be in a position there to keep close tab on an organization in which a majority of members obviously favor Nixon for the party's 1960 presidential nomination.

The Rockefeller forces appear fully satisfied that the committee's new chairman, Sen. Thurston B. Morton of Kentucky, will carry out his pledge to remain neutral in any Nixon-Rockefeller contest.

Morton was chosen unanimously to succeed retiring chairman Meade Alcorn at a weekend session in which the committee also voted solidly to hold its 1960 convention in Chicago, the week beginning July 25.

Morton conceded at a news conference that he had said some months ago he was inclined to support Nixon for the nomination. While he declined to withdraw that, he said he is going to be "absolutely fair" to both the vice president and Rockefeller.

The national chairman's position has been used at times in the past to favor one candidate over another.

Dictatorships Pose Risks For Newsmen On The Job

ZURICH, Switzerland, (AP)—A journalist may risk his life today by reporting the news factually in a totalitarian nation.

A caricature may be jailed for his caricature of a government official.

These are some of the "facts of life" newspapermen face in dictatorial regimes, says a study on "The Press in Authoritarian Countries," issued today by the International Press Institute. This organization of editors representing newspapers in 3 nations compiled the survey from reports of journalists who have lived or visited countries—Communist or non-Communist—where the press is subjected to government control.

The study reports a "spirit of revolt against the complete tutelage of the press by the state" is making itself felt in totalitarian nations where some journalists are "prepared to run grave risks in defying government authority for the sake of their aspirations."

After the 1956 Hungarian revolution was suppressed by Soviet might, journalist Jozsef Gali and a colleague, Gyula Obersovsky, continued to publish a clandestine newspaper.

According to charges subsequently filed, their paper contained "articles against the government and the U.S.S.R."

The men were sentenced to death, but this was later commuted to life imprisonment for Gali and 1 year for Obersovsky.

Attempts to defy Franco's censorship in Spain have become more frequent and increasingly bolder.

Last year, a cartoonist for the satirical publication "La Codorniz" was sentenced to two months' imprisonment and fined.

Other examples for 1-1 are reported from the Soviet Union, Poland, Communist China, Romania, Czechoslovakia, East Germany, Yugoslavia, Portugal, Latin America, Egypt and the Far East.

Most of the countries whose government are Marxist-inspired deny the existence of censorship, but their conception of the press and methods for controlling it are similar, the study reports.

The study concludes with the affirmation that only in countries where information is controlled and newspapers held in bondage is freedom of the press appreciated — by contrast — for its true value.

Dr. Jenkins Is Ruritan Speaker

PACTOLUS — Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, vice-president of East Carolina College, was guest speaker at last night's Pactolus Ruritan Club meeting at which members of the Senior Class at Stokes-Pactolus High School were special guests.

In a discussion of "Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow", Dr. Jenkins told the high school seniors, "Privileges and conditions in our world today are much different from those of yesterday. Today, we are living in an electronic age and you get more out of life."

He added, "Tomorrow, the world will become your community. You must enter this age with optimism and you will need persistence and determination. To meet the challenge, you must want to get ahead and, above all, reach high and God will reach down to help."

In a brief business session, the club presented perfect attendance awards to six members. They are Billy Wynne, two years; James H. Winchard and C. J. Satterthwaite, four years; Roy Tripp, seven years; and S. O. Bowers, Jr. and Noel Lee, Jr., eight years.

In addition to members of the Senior Class, guests at the meeting were Principal Jack Edwards, Agriculture Teacher Marion Nobles and Senior Class Advisor Mrs. Guilford Lewis, all of Stokes-Pactolus High School; and R. B. Bowers of Atlanta, Ga.

Unwanted Suitor Target Of Suit

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Juliette Mas de Ayala, a Uruguayan countess, has filed suit against an unwanted suitor.

She asked in Superior Court for $250,000 in damages and an injunction to discourage the overtures of Fred David De Gorter, an actors' agent.

The countess, daughter of a Uruguayan general, said De Gorter broke into her home last August, forcing her to call police. She has since moved five times, she said, but he found her every time. She charged he has hit her, broken furniture and thrown flower pots and dishes at her.

Last month, she said, he and two other men broke into her home and compelled her to swallow two pills and drink whisky. This made her so sick, she said, she had to go to a hospital.

Possible Lead For Leprosy Cure Seen

By FRANK CAREY

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—A possible lead towards developing a long-sought vaccine against leprosy — one of man's oldest scourges — was reported today.

A government researcher announced successful growth in test tube culture of bacteria which causes leprosy in rats. He indicated that this might open one way to:

1. Producing a vaccine against the rat disease.

2. Perhaps ultimately developing a vaccine against the human malady.

Dr. Y. T. Chang, of the National Institute of Arthritis and Metabolic Diseases and the American Leprosy Foundation, gave this outline in a report to the 43rd annual meeting of the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology:

"The bacillus that causes human leprosy is one of the wildest and most elusive organisms of the germ world."

For many years, he said, researchers have attempted to maintain growth of the organism outside its natural host, the human body. Though it grows vigorously inside the body, it stops multiplying and soon dies if placed in an artificial environment.

Researchers would like to coax the bug into outside growth because, aside from possibly helping towards such an ultimate objective as producing a vaccine, such laboratory culturing of the germs would allow a more detailed study of the bacteria and would provide a means for rapid testing of possible new antileprosy drugs.

Attempts to grow rat leprosy germs outside the living animal body have, until now, been almost equally tough.

Some investigators have coaxed some growth in cell cultures, but the amount of bacterial multiplication was very limited.

Chang has come up with one culture in which the number of germs has increased seven times in seven weeks.

This is still not as fast as the germ multiplies inside the body, so attempts are being made to step up the rate.

If these attempts are successful, said Chang, it may be possible to produce a vaccine against rat leprosy just as the polio vaccine is produced from large cultures of polio virus. Such a vaccine might point the way to a similar preventive for the human disease.

Best Weapons Against Muggers

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A long hatpin, a whistle, and a "good scream" are a girl's best friends when a mugger strikes says Alice Clifford, a lieutenant on the Philadelphia police force.

But if any of these means fail to drive off the attacker or bring help, then Lt. Clifford recommends the victim try to get a good look at her attacker's face and if he is masked, then a good look at his ears.

No two pairs of ears are alike, she says.

THE CHANGING CAPITOL

The nation's Capitol has undergone a lot of changes since George Washington laid the cornerstone in 1793.

The British burned the building during the War of 1812. It was restored in 1819. It was first considered completed in 1850, but it has been enlarged and modernized many times since then. It got its iron dome in 1861. Up until recently, some 26 million dollars had been spent in improving the Capitol and its grounds.

Now the Capitol is getting one of its most extensive and costly remodeling jobs. The structure's East Front will be extended 32½ feet, providing new support for the dome and adding office space to the crowded building.

Workmen have already removed the steps and slanted roof of the portico with its stately Corinthian pillars and pilasters, leaving the East Front resembling the ruins of an ancient temple. Removal of the front cost about $330,000, and the overall project will entail an outlay of approximately 10 million dollars. The job will go on for many months.

Removal of steps and roof of portico leaves east front of Capitol resembling ruins of ancient temple. Crane lifts column from its place.

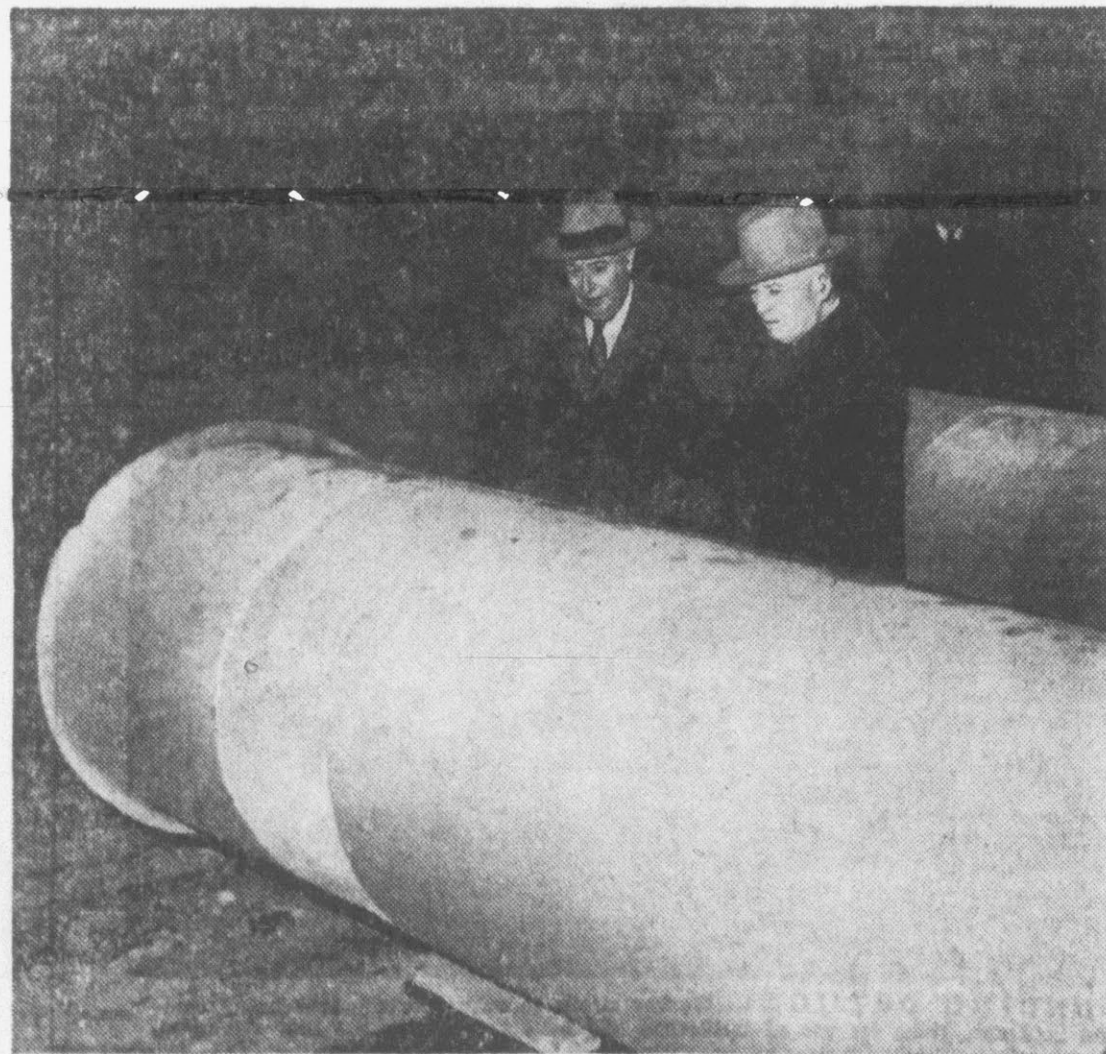

Columns from Capitol are stored on plaza in front of Library of Congress. Capitol dome looms in background.

Investor, Speculator And Gambler Get A Tax Break

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP)—The British income tax, by American standards, hits hard at the man in the street but gives a big break to the investor, the speculator and the gambler.

Even after the tax cut announced last Tuesday, the average Englishman will pay considerably more than his American cousin.

The investor or speculator, however, will retain complete freedom from taxes on profits made in the stock market or through real estate deals. And the gambler will continue to pay no tax on his winnings.

Moreover, most Englishmen who collect dividends on stocks will—as in the past—pay little or no tax on these.

Dividends, capital gains and gambling winnings are, of course, taxed in the United States.

Why haven't the British tapped these revenue sources?

In the case of dividends, the English take the position that a corporation — by paying income and profits taxes—in effect pays a dividend tax on behalf of its shareholders. To tax shareholders directly, they believe, would be unfair double taxation.

Many American stockholders take the same view and have agitated persistently, but without much success, for a similar concession.

As for capital gains and gambling winnings, these were not classed as taxable income under British tax law. The Labor party has long demanded they be taxed but hasn't mustered the votes to do so.

The New British tax change, which will go into effect at mid-year, will lower the standard income tax rate to 38½ per cent from 42½ per cent. Here's how the standard rate system works:

While an American taxpayer claims exemptions and deductions to lower his taxable income, the Englishman claims "reliefs" from the standard rate. He gets one relief of $336 for himself and a second for the same amount if he's married. He also can claim a relief of $238 for each of his dependents and can deduct modest amounts for insurance premiums he pays.

On the first $1,000 of income, he is taxed at rates far below the standard levy.

Take the case of a married man with two children who is paid $5,600 a year. An American who claims the standard deduction will pay an income tax of about $528. An Englishman in the same situation will pay about $853 under the new rate. The cut will save him about $43.

Incidentally, $5,600 is pretty good pay in England. A school-teacher or pharmacist, for example, might make about $2,000.

Now let's give these married men a pay raise, to $9,020 a year. The American will then pay about $1,398 in taxes while the Britisher will pay $3,428. Under the old British rate, the tax would have been about $182 higher.

For another example, take a single man with no dependents who is paid $2,800 a year. In the United States, he would pay Uncle Sam about $384. If he's English, the crown will get about $515 under the new rate—about $23 less than before.

British income taxes are markedly higher than U.S. levels at what an American would consider middle income levels. They also hit harder at married couples because, in England, you can't claim the tax-cutting advantage of splitting incomes on a joint return.

The British also have sales taxes—comparable to U.S. excise taxes—but these are much higher than here. The tax on a new auto, for example, is 60 per cent compared with 10 per cent in the United States.

Britain is lowering the sales tax on all luxuries except autos to 50 per cent from 60 per cent. Cameras, radios and jewelry are included in this category. In the United States, they carry an excise tax of 10 per cent.

Incidentally, the British pay a national gasoline tax of 35 cents a gallon compared with 3 cents here.

The British tax cuts drew this barb Friday from Sen. Allen J. Ellender (D-La.) during hearings by the Senate Appropriations Committee on a request by President Eisenhower for 225 million dollars for loans to underdeveloped countries abroad:

"It makes me wonder why the American taxpayers don't march on Washington. We give lavishly to these people and they cut their taxes and balance their budgets." He added the United States will have a deficit of close to 13 billion dollars this fiscal year.

Great Britain owes the United States more than 4½ billion dollars on loans made in previous years.

The State Department said this week Great Britain is not now receiving any economic help from the United States. As is true with other U.S. allies in Europe and elsewhere, she is getting military assistance in undisclosed amounts.

New Gift For Boys With 'Everything'

By GENE PLOWDEN

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Want a saddle-broken zebra, gentle enough for the children to ride? Or a zebra and cart, complete with harness?

The man to see is Wayne Carroll, a tall, handsome 29-year-old lecturer and wild animal authority who has been handling wild things since he trapped a rat at the age of 7.

Your saddle-broken zebra will run about $7,000, and the cart job about $2,900 more.

They will run into money because they come from the plains and meadows around Arusha, Tanganyika, in East Africa. Getting them to America and turning them into docile animals takes a bit of doing.

The zebra is common throughout Tanganyika, grazes in herds and is a favorite food for lions. Carroli expects to teach African-born zebras to carry a rider or pull a cart. He plans to sell them as children's pets. The price? $7,000.

hunting is to run them down with a jeep and lasso the baby zebras. He puts his catch in a small pen to calm it down and tries to keep it quiet while teaching it to eat from his hand. He keeps only the females—males always mean and hard to handle.

Carroll figures it will take about a year to break a zebra to the saddle. The procedure requires infinite patience and loving care.

First the animal is bridled. After a few days a burlap bag is placed across its back. Gradually, weights are added until the zebra will take a saddle and finally a rider. Carroll's first pupils have not as yet completed their schooling.

Zebras breed in captivity but Carroll contends the offspring are weak and spiritless.

Carroll plans to leave for Tanganyika in June and hopes to capture 30 or 40 young zebras. He says he will be lucky if he can break six or eight of these to saddle or cart.

ZEBCA TAMER—Wayne Carroll coaxes one of his charges to pose for the photographer. With patient training, Carroll expects to teach African-born zebras to carry a rider or pull a cart. He plans to sell them as children's pets. The price? $7,000.

New Categories In 'Emmy' Show

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The Television Academy has come up with more acting categories—42—but fewer snafus than usual in the 11th annual Emmy nominations.

The nominations, announced Monday, put veteran actors Robert Young and Walter Brennan in what amounts to the best-comedian category against Jack Benny, Phil Silvers, Danny Thomas and Bob Cummings.

Milton Berle and Red Skelton, both weekly funny men, were passed by in that category.

Fred Astaire, who sang and danced on his show, finds himself competing for best single performance by an actor against the dramatic performances of Paul Muni, Christopher Plummer, Mickey Rooney, Robert Crawford and Rod Steiger.

But most of the nominations pretty well fit the various acting categories.

"We know that voting for the Emmys is a cumbersome process," said one member of the academy. "But TV is a cumbersome medium—we operate seven days a week practically around the clock. You can't reduce that many acting performances to a handful as the movies do."

Probably the most interesting race for the viewers is that for best actor in a dramatic series. It is strictly a fast draw to the finish among three private eyes and three Western heroes.

They are: Raymond Burr (Perry Mason), Craig Stevens (Peter Gunn), Efram Zimbalist Jr. (77 Sunset Strip), James Arness (Gunsmoke), Richard Boone (Have Gun, Will Travel) and James Garner (Maverick).

Volunteers Are Vital To Bureau

By DORMAN CORDELL

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Every night at exactly the same time Charles E. Barrett walks out to a little shed in his backyard at nearby Anchorage.

From thermometers in the shed, he records high and low temperatures for the past 24 hours. Then he checks a gauge for rainfall or snowfall during the period.

Across the nation, more than 7,000 other persons make similar trips to gather the same information. They make up the Weather Bureau's unpaid Cooperative Observer Corps.

The Weather Bureau calls the data the group gathers "an invaluable treasure" for the study of climate and climate changes.

Volunteers Necessary
O.K. Anderson, chief meteorologist at the U. S. Weather Bureau here says, "We simply couldn't do the job without these volunteers."

The 75-year-old Barrett is one of 21 persons who have served more than 50 years as voluntary observers. He's made the trip to the backyard almost every day since the fall of 1900. On days when he's been ill or away, he's always arranged for somebody to take the readings. He returned from an electrical firm in 1951, but kept the observer's job.

Barrett didn't officially become the observer at Anchorage until "My father started it for the Weather Bureau in 1900," he says, "but I guess he didn't much like to do the work, so he always sent me out to take the readings. I started it with the title on Sept. 1, 1903."

North Carolinian
The dean of the Cooperative Observer Corps is Barry C. Hawkins, Highlands, N.C., who has been taking the readings since 1891.

The Weather Bureau figures that the observers spend an average of 15 minutes a day taking and recording and making monthly reports. That means all observers contribute more than 79,800 full eight-hour days of work each year—all without pay.

FOR: Repeal of the Telephone Excise Tax

...If This Unfair Tax Were Repealed

Last year our telephone customers here in Eastern North Carolina paid $1,800,000 Federal Excise Taxes on telephone service—an average of about $14 per subscriber.

This discriminatory tax—10% added to your telephone bill—should be done away with. Begun as a "temporary" wartime emergency measure in 1941, it still applies 18 years later to your local and long distance service, along with such luxuries as furs, jewelry, liquor, tobacco and night clubs. Yet there's no such tax on any other home utilities.

Now state and federal officials have proposed transferring part of this tax revenue to the states to help pay costs of some programs now supported by federal grants. This could well make the "temporary" tax permanent, increasing rather than decreasing tax rates.

Write Your Congressman

Our customers would receive full benefit if this tax were repealed. This would be money in your pockets, putting nearly $2 million more a year into circulation in Eastern North Carolina, to boost the economy and progress of our area.

If you want this unfair tax repealed, write your Federal Government representatives in Washington. Ask your friends, neighbors, newspapers and local officials to register their objections, too.

Industry's Outlays On Packaging Has Gone Up

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — A lot of businessmen believe that if clothes make the man the package makes the product you will buy.

And industry is now spending 15 billion dollars a year to wrap the materials for manufacturer and shipper and the final product for you. This is 350 per cent more than it spent just before World War II.

Research engineers are thinking up new packaging gimmicks constantly — paper that stretches, aerosol metal cans that measure exactly anything from a drop of flavoring to spoonfuls of flour, paper containers in which frozen foods can be cooked electronically, polyethylene coated paper pouches in which precooked foods can be made ready for the table by dropping in boiling water, rigid opaque paper containers for sale in supermarkets of brassieres, panties and socks.

The competition is growing — tin cans, glass jars, squeeze bottles, tubes, paper containers, plastic or metal foil wrappers.

Robert H. Evans, Olin Mathieson Chemical vice president, says that since prewar days sales of paper and paperboard have risen 439 per cent, metal containers 284 per cent, corrugated and solid fibre 490 per cent, sanitary food containers 1,415 per cent, paper bags and sacks 554 per cent. Last year 403 million pounds of cellophane were produced, or double the 1948 output.

William C. Stolk, American Can president, says half of his firm's 1958 sales were of products unknown 20 years ago. He expects the industry to produce 555 million aerosol pressure cans in 1959 and sales of spray paint cans to hit 60 million, up 10 million from 1958.

Stolk hopes for big things when the price comes down on aluminum cans, now used for motor oil, beer and barbecued sardine fillets. The Can Manufacturers Institute puts 1958 sales at 42 billion cans and looks for a better 1959. The Kraft Paper Assn. expects that industry to produce a record 2,800,000 tons this year. The Folding Paper Box Assn. of America says new orders this year are 4.3 per cent ahead of last year in dollar volume and 1.9 per cent ahead in tonnage.

John Warren, technical advisor of the packaging division of the American Management Assn., predicts a 30 per cent rise in the industry's production by 1963, partly due to the expected growth in population with the increase in needs, and partly due to the steady trend to more prepared products packaged for easier sales and ready use.

At his association's National Packaging Exposition and Conference in Chicago this week some 400 producers or suppliers are showing new gimmicks.

Westinghouse Electric is stressing cost cutting redesigns for use of aluminum, aerosol and display cards. International Harvester shows how to pack service parts, with emphasis on requirements of the armed forces. Parke, Davis is demonstrating production control for automated packaging. Royal McBee has a polystyrene cocoon for shipping heavy precision equipment. General Foods is exhibiting its gourmet foods operation.

Impulse buying is a prime problem always. But Dr. Myron J. Helfgott, head of the Package Research Institute, affiliate of Lippincott and Margulies, New York industrial design firm, says the big change this year will be away from machines and gimmicks to packages that will both sell at the store and resell themselves when the housewife gets them home.

And Harley Earl, head of his Detroit design firm, says a package must be more than an eye catcher. It must be functional, too — for storing, displaying, dispensing and even preparing and serving of the product in the home.

Skiers Survive Frigid Night In Mountain Cave

LONGMIRE, Wash. (AP) — Three lost skiers who huddled in a snow cave, slapping each other to keep warm and singing to keep up spirits, survived a frigid night high on Mt. Rainier.

Ulla Samvik, 31, Bo Ryfelt, 35, and Einar Storakers, 30, all of Seattle, had worked their way down to the 6,500-foot level before they were found Monday afternoon. They were hungry but unhurt.

Storakers, member of a mountain rescue team at Jamnland Fjall, Sweden, before coming to the United States two years ago, was credited with devising the survival shelter.

"We think his experience is what saved our lives," said Miss Samvik. "He showed us how to dig a cave with our skis in the snow, where we crawled in and spent the night."

The party became lost on a Sunday skiing trip.

Morning Glories In Arizona A 'Menace'

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Morning glory lovers, hear this: The innocent-looking little flower you admire is a nasty old weed, a menace to agriculture and an outlaw. That's official in Arizona. And few morning glory lovers in these parts are doing anything to change the official view.

The State Agriculture and Horticulture Commission classifies three varieties of morning glories as noxious — in the category of such lowly plant life as nut grass, horse nettle and Russian knapweed. It's illegal to sell seed of these varieties.

Now the commission wants also to ban 20 other species of morning glories.

"The noxious ones," said State Entomologist W. T. Mendenhall, "choke out cotton and make picking difficult. The ban will have to apply to all species because seed processors can't guarantee that any packet of morning glory seed doesn't contain some of the noxious species."

Morning glories grown in the cities don't spread to the cotton fields. But how can you be sure city seed dealers won't sell to farmers?

So far, the only finger openly lifted in protest has been that of a newspaper reporter. Jim Cooper's stories in the Tucson Daily Citizen have criticized the ban and blamed the cotton lobby in the Legislature.

Cotton is a major crop in Arizona. Morning glories don't have anything like the same monetary value. They have no lobbyists.

Mendenhall reports his office has received some objections as a result of Cooper's stories, but no great flood of opposition. A public hearing on the subject will be held here April 15.

"We'll have representatives at the hearing," said Mrs. Barney Upchurch of the Valley Garden Center. "But we're just curious. We usually go along with the commission's regulations."

Hirshberg At Nat'l Conference

OXFORD, Ohio — Edgar W. Hirshberg, of the department of English at East Carolina College, Greenville, N.C., will be a discussion-session recorder at the national conference on "What is a College For?" here April 17 and 18, a feature of the year-long Miami University Sesquicentennial.

The conference, one of several "exploratory" events in the university's sesquicentennial, is sponsored jointly by Miami, the Humanities Center for Liberal Arts and Dayton divisions of General Motors Corporation with cooperation of the Woodrow Foundation.

Elliot Roosevelt Trial Postponed

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — A Scottsdale Justice of the peace Monday postponed indefinitely the setting of a trial date for Elliott Roosevelt, charged with drunk driving. Justice Ben E. Fox said prosecution and defense attorneys are attempting to agree on a trial date. Roosevelt, 48-year-old son of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt, was arrested April 4 when found asleep and slumped over the steering wheel of his parked car. Roosevelt, a winter resident of Scottsdale, pleaded innocent to the charge.

Pan American Day To Be Observed By Local Pupils

Today is being celebrated as Pan-American Day throughout the United States and 20 Latin American States. This celebration is sponsored by the Organization of American States (OAS) to promote good will, brotherhood and hemisphere solidarity among these 21 nations.

The Spanish classes of Junius H. Rose High School, under the direction of Mrs. Elizabeth Mims will be celebrating this day with "La Fiesta Pan Americana" on Friday night April 17. Everyone will come in a Spanish costume and prizes will be given for the most authentic.

Robert Taft, who will act as master of ceremonies for the floor show, will relate to spectators the significance of the Fiesta. The floor show will then continue with colorful Spanish dances, songs, and a romantic skit in Spanish dialogue by Donna Busette and Erskine Duff. August Laube will direct the Spanish Chorus, assisted at the piano by Jasper Jones, and James

Villagers Map Own Retribution

Longford plan a nighttime telephone campaign to keep the jet age from disturbing their sleep. They are going to waken government and airlines officials they believe responsible for approving the 1:30 a.m. departure of one of Pan American World Airways' Boeing 707 jets from London airport. The daily flight to New York begins April 27.

The jet normally will pass right over the village of 3,084 persons. The Longford sleepers are particularly angry because the flight's departure was switched from day to night so the jet could land during daylight hours in New York.

Supplement To Collection Plate

CAMPBELLVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Nature has blessed the rural Pleasant Ridge Baptist Church with a supplement to the collection plate. An oil well on the church property produces 300 barrels daily. The church received $8,500 for the lease and gets one-eighth of the production.

Rodgers will conduct the orchestra. Lib Rogers has been responsible for teaching all dances, including the Jarabe Tapatio—the national dance of Mexico—which will be danced by Donna Cain and Bill Clapp.

Mrs. Evelyn Moye's Latin students will present a number to show in what way many of the Spanish customs today are derived from Rome.

An informative bulletin board has been set up in the library with the hand-shake of Uncle Sam and a Senor as the center of interest. From this handclasp extends Peace, Co-operation, Good Will and Solidarity.

The Parents and public are invited to the Fiesta and Floor show.

Anti-Paddling Parent Allowed Keep Boy Home

SHEPHERDSVILLE, Ky. (AP) — A man who maintained school officials had no right to paddle his son won court permission to keep the boy out of classes.

C. L. Troutwine Sr. conducted his own defense Monday on a charge of permitting 15-year-old Billy Troutwine to stay away from school.

A former truancy officer told the Bullitt County Court jury Billy came to school the first day of the term in September and didn't return.

Troutwine said he kept Billy home because a principal paddled him last year. "I don't want the flesh of my son whipped," he said. Kentucky law requires school attendance until age 16.

Willis Wille, principal of Shepherdsville High School, testified he paddled Billy, a ninth-grader, along with nine other boys after they ignored repeated warnings to bring books to class.

LENDING A HAND

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Quite by accident, 22-year-old Larry Roberts literally lent a hand to a woman motorist whose car couldn't get traction in the snow. As he tried to place a piece of canvas under a wheel, the woman gunned the motor, ran over his hand and drove away. Roberts went to a hospital for treatment.

Thinks He Saw A Missing Family

DURHAM (AP) — City police and the FBI are pursuing a report by a Durham night watchman that he thinks he saw a Portland, Ore., family of five who mysteriously disappeared last December.

The watchman, John R. Raynor, said he helped the family change a tire on their station wagon early Sunday morning. Their car had an Oregon license plate, he said.

Later in the day he read an Associated Press story about the Ken Martin family, who drove away from their Portland, Ore., home Dec. 7 and never were heard from again. Raynor said he recognized the man and woman from the picture accompanying the story.

Majority Approves Kennedy Labor Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Labor Committee majority said today the Kennedy labor bill would provide effective remedies for labor and management evils without weakening the bargaining position of honestly run unions.

The majority report said the bill represents "a major attack on the abuses and problems identified by recent investigations" such as that of the Senate Labor-Management Committee.

But, it went on, "no bill in the committee's view can be written which will close completely the many avenues which the criminal can devise to carry on his nefarious activity, without at the same time wrecking important institutions, violating cardinal precepts of law and undermining the principles upon which a free society is based."

The report was made public by Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.), chief sponsor of the bill. It is expected to be filed later today. Minority views also will be filed by Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.).

Charge Discharged Jailor Drank With His Prisoners

PAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—A discharged jailor involved in the aftermath of a recent jail-break participated in a drinking party with prisoners his last night at work, Cumberland County Sheriff W. G. Clark said today.

Woodrow Vinson, 39, was indicted yesterday for having non-tax paid whisky in the jail during the jailbreak party.

Vinson previously was charged with harboring the two prisoners who broke jail April 3. They were Charles Thomas Bradford, 28, and Johnny W. Odum, 18. Bradford fled in a hall of bullets when he attempted to run a police ambush.

Sheriff Clark said Vinson admitted taking food and blankets to the two fugitives who were hiding in a swamp.

Also indicted yesterday on a charge of harboring the two escapees were Samuel H. Vinson, 40, Woodrow Vinson's brother, and G. S. Bullard, 33. They were being held in lieu of $5,000 bond each. Sheriff Clark said the two admitted helping Woodrow Vinson carry food and blankets to the escapees.

Bradford and Odum tricked Jailor E. V. McLaurin into opening their cell and fled in McLaurin's car.

Odum, who was charged with the theft of McLaurin's automobile, will be tried in Superior Court this week on the car theft charge for which he was being held when he escaped.

Break Ground For New College

LAURINBURG, N.C. (AP)—Construction of Consolidated Presbyterian College will begin here tomorrow following ground-breaking exercises.

The four-year liberal arts college will occupy an 800-acre tract two miles south of the Laurinburg business district. It will be a consolidation of Flora Macdonald College at Red Springs, Presbyterian Junior College at Maxton and Peace Junior College at Raleigh.

A 70-acre lake already is being built. It will form the center of the campus.

The first units of the new campus will cost about five million dollars. Citizens of Laurinburg have pledged two million. The remainder is the responsibility of churches of the North Carolina Presbyterian Synod, which in 1955 authorized the merger of the three church institutions.

Participating in the 11 a.m. ground-breaking will be Dr. Marshall Scott Woodson, acting president of the new college; Dr. Louis LaMotte, president of Presbyterian Junior College; Hector MacLean of Lumberton, chairman of the board; Halbert Jones of Laurinburg, chairman of the building and grounds committee; and Dr. W. W. Peele of Laurinburg, retired bishop of the Methodist Church.

Instruments And Clothing Stolen

The theft of over $950 worth of clothes and band instruments was reported to police early yesterday morning.

Jimmy Burns Jr., 415 E. 4th St., an ECC student, told police that 18 sport shirts, seven pairs of pants, a trumpet and a cornet were taken from his locked car sometime Sunday night.

Burns said he parked his car in front of Mrs. R. D. Harrington's residence at 415 E. 4th St. at about 8:30 Sunday night and locked the doors. When he returned about 12 hours later the clothes and horns were missing.

Officers said no glass had been broken and the car was still locked when they arrived.

Investigation is continuing in the case.

Police also reported a break-in at the South Greenville elementary school sometime over the weekend.

Investigation showed the robbers entered the east side of the building through a window. A small quantity of foodstuffs including one dozen eggs was taken from the school.

Grimes told the club briefly of the types of work done by the eight members of the welfare organization in Pitt county.

"The county," he said, "operated last year on a budget of $895,000. Of this amount, only about 9 to 11 per cent goes to administrative expenses. All of our books are audited by federal, state and county agencies."

Grimes also mentioned Burt Aycock, Jr., and Miss Judy Bledsoe, a student at ECC who represented the Lions Club in the recent "Miss Greenville Beauty Pageant." President John Biggs presided.

Peiping And Puppet Cling To Their Dalai Lama Tale

TOKYO (AP)—The Panchen Lama, the puppet ruler of Tibet, and Premier Chou En-lai of Red China contended today that the Dalai Lama is being held in duress by rebel elements in India.

Both spoke at a reception for the Panchen Lama on his arrival in Peiping, the Red Chinese capital.

Chou told the guests, Peiping radio said, that the Dalai Lama was being held outside Tibet and that the Red Chinese were "greatly concerned" about him.

The Panchen Lama said the Dalai Lama, temporal and spiritual ruler whose government has been deposed by Red China, was snatched by the rebels when the Tibetan people were progressing on the road to socialism, and that the act was a "betrayal of the motherland."

Actually, the Dalai Lama asked for asylum in India, saying it was impossible to remain in Tibet where his followers are in revolt against Red rule.

The 21-year-old Panchen Lama, elevated to the leadership of Tibet when the Dalai Lama fled to India, has been quoted by Peiping as promising full support for Communist control of his rebellious country.

Chou and other high officials were at the railroad station to welcome him when he arrived in Peiping.

The Indian government announced that the Dalai Lama and his 80-member entourage will arrive at the railroad town of Tenzin, in northeast India, April 18.
