

President Sadly Announces Sec. Dulles' Resignation

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — President Eisenhower today announced the resignation of cancer stricken Secretary of State Dulles.

Asked whether he had someone other than Herter in mind, Eisenhower said there are "all kinds of considerations" to take into account.

He said he will make an announcement as soon as possible. In reply to a question, Eisenhower said that whether or not the job goes to Herter, the acting secretary definitely will be on hand for the United States at both an April 29 meeting of Western foreign ministers in Paris, and a May 11 conference of those ministers with the Soviet Union's foreign minister.

A reporter asked Eisenhower to evaluate the impact of Dulles' resignation on U.S. foreign policy. The President replied that Dulles has developed a team at the State Department and that his work will go on.

spring back, as he had before— for example, when he first was stricken with cancer in 1956. Dulles re-entered Walter Reed Army Hospital here last Sunday, cutting short a Florida rest he had taken in an effort to build up his falling strength.

When Dulles came back from Florida, there was no question but that he had deteriorated badly. Newsmen who had seen him fairly constantly figured he had lost 15 to 20 pounds of his normal 185. His face looked wasted; his clothes hung loosely.

Throughout Dulles' illness, Democrats as well as Republicans were pulling for him. In fact, he had many Democratic friends, some of them dated back to the time when he worked with Cordell Hull, who was President Franklin D. Roosevelt's secretary of state.

Satellite Capsule Probably Fallen In North Pacific

WASHINGTON (AP)—A capsule from an American satellite may have floated safely back to earth. If it did it fell in the vast reaches of the North Pacific, where no man could mark its historic return.

The capsule was set to be ejected automatically when the Discoverer II satellite made its 17th orbit around the earth. That was about 7 p.m. EST Tuesday night.

Several other rocket shoots crowded into the past days—both the satellite and missile variety—were less successful than the Discoverer, which was fired into a pole-to-pole orbit from Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif., Monday.

Recovery of the capsule would have been an historic achievement. Satellites—both Soviet and American—have fallen back into the atmosphere but they burned up long before they reached the ground.

A Vanguard satellite attempt failed Monday night at Cape Canaveral, Fla., shortly after the successful Discoverer shoot at the other end of the country.

Pennsylvania's Sales Tax Hiked

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—Pennsylvania's Legislature increased the retail sales tax from 3 to 3 1/2 per cent today.

Gov. David L. Lawrence proposed the increase. The new rate is one of the highest in the nation. The extra one-half per cent is expected to add 163 million dollars to state revenue every two years.

Steel Producers Ready Freeze Prices If Wage Level Frozen

NEW YORK (AP)—Some major steel producers have indicated they will accept a union challenge to freeze steel prices only on condition that the union agree to freeze wages.

The union earlier made it clear it won't agree to freeze wages. The position of the producers emerged Tuesday in unofficial responses to a letter from David J. McDonald, president of the United Steelworkers of America, to 12 major steel producers.

McDonald had said the producers, because of increased productivity and profits, could afford to grant wage increases to the half-million members of his union without raising the price of steel.

Count 125 Pints Of Blood Given Tuesday

House Resumes Debate On Minimum Wage Bill Today

RALEIGH (AP)—The House today resumed debate on controversial minimum wage legislation.

It was the third House session devoted mainly to consideration of the bill which would set a 75 cents hourly wage floor for many Tar Heel workers.

The measure, given second reading approval by the House last Thursday, was discussed for more than an hour and a half Tuesday.

Three Break-Ins Reported In City

Three break-ins were reported, this morning to police, however, only a small quantity of merchandise was taken.

A store, belonging to John Burke, Negro, at 403 W. 12th St. was entered and $150 and a quantity of cigarettes were stolen.

Investigating officers said entrance to the building was gained by breaking out a window pane and opening a window.

Ayden To Install City Manager

AYDEN — Ayden's new city manager, Bill Formyduval, will be sworn in tomorrow at 4:00 p.m.

Formyduval, originally from Bladenboro, has been city manager of Lenoir and assistant city manager of Chapel Hill.

Ayden law-makers decided several months ago to change to the city manager form of government. Formyduval officially took office April 7.

Utilities' Capacity Near Limit: Bloxam

By ALVIN TAYLOR, Reflector City Editor. The demand on Greenville Utilities is outgrowing its total electrical output and must soon increase its capacity to receive power from Virginia Electric and Power Co., Superintendent Leonard Bloxam told members of the commission last night.

Bloxam said the utilities has "about reached the capacity" of the equipment which steps down the 110,000 volts on VEPCO cross country lines to a voltage which can be fed into local lines.

The present equipment for stepping down the power is owned by VEPCO and leased to the local utilities on payment of a facility charge of $875.21 per month.

Bloxam said he had obtained three proposals from VEPCO for duplicating the step-down transformer and other equipment, thus doubling Greenville Utilities capacity for taking power from the private company's lines.

Under the first proposal Greenville Utilities would pay a monthly facility charge of $1,402.70, but some of the lesser equipment would have to be purchased by the local utilities at a cost of approximately $21,000.

The second proposal VEPCO would furnish all the equipment with a monthly charge of $1,702.825. There was a third proposal under which VEPCO would furnish all the equipment, utilizing some equipment in the present structure.

Rep. Roland Braswell of Wayne declared that very few employers would be hurt by having to pay the minimum wage. However, another Easterner, Rep. Frank Everett of Martin, said the proposal would "kill Eastern North Carolina."

Rep. David M. Britt of Robeson said the 75 cents minimum would increase by at least 10 per cent the operating costs of hospitals in his area. This, he added, would be "the difference between a number of our hospitals staying open."

None Supported Tax On Tobacco

RALEIGH (AP) — Spokesmen for farm groups and tobacco warehousemen say a proposed state tax on tobacco would cripple the industry and discriminate against a single farm product.

They also told the Joint Finance Committee Tuesday the proposed state tax would (1) encourage other states, counties and cities to impose such a tax; (2) "create chaotic conditions" affecting 165,000 Tar Heel farmers and 40,000 industrial wage earners; (3) reduce retail purchases of other goods by transients shopping for cheaper North Carolina cigarettes; and (4) amount to "class legislation" aimed at the one smoker among every three persons.

Snag-Removal In Creek Is Planned

WILMINGTON—The Corps of Engineers said today that plans have been completed for removing snags from about 20 miles of Conecote Creek in Pitt and Edgecombe counties.

The area lies southeast of Speed and extends from Cherry Farm road according to Col. H. C. Howard, Jr., District Engineer.

Bids for the work are scheduled to be opened here May 7 with the successful bidder being required to start the clearance within 30 days after receipt of the notice to proceed. It is estimated that the work will require about six months to complete.

School Contract Action Is Delayed

The Pitt County Board of Education, caught in a squeeze between prices and available funds, delayed action yesterday on awarding contracts for an expansion project at Stokes Negro Elementary School.

Low bids for general, electrical, plumbing and heating contracts totalled $37,134, about $1,000 more than the county has available in its unexpended Capital Outlay Fund. Low bidders for the work are expected to receive contracts, however, after certain revisions are incorporated in the plans by architect James W. Griffith, Jr.

Low bidders and their bids included general construction, Leo Hawkins, $30,446; electrical, King Electric Co., $1,388; plumbing, Kingston Plumbing and Heating Co., $3,200; and heating, Kinston Plumbing and Heating Co., $2,100.

At stake in the bidding were contracts for construction of three classrooms and a toilet at the Negro elementary school. At the time the proposed project was announced, school officials said they hoped to have the new facilities available by opening day of the 1959-1960 term.

Other bidders for contracts included: General construction: Dunn Building Supply Co., $31,500; Griffin Builders, $34,343; and P. S. West Construction Co., $32,328.

Electrical: Dick's Electric, $1,822; Moseley Electric, $1,749; Shack's Electric, $1,718; and Whitley's Electric, $1,778.

Plumbing: Cauley-Pitt, $3,481; Ouslow Plumbing Co., $3,648; T. E. Turner, $3,994; W. M. Wiggins, $3,466; and C. E. Williams, $2,222.

Heating: W. M. Wiggins, $2,222; and C. E. Williams, $2,359.

Another Quiet Day For Henderson Mill Strike

HENDERSON, N.C. (AP)—This tension-packed industrial city, scene of sporadic strike disorders and dynamitings in recent weeks, went through another quiet day Tuesday.

"We've got our fingers crossed in hopes the quiet will last," a policeman said. Picket lines at the Harriet-Henderson Cotton Mills continued the usual jerry and catcalls by the strikers as workers entered and left the two plants.

The company made plans to operate a second shift, from 3 to 11 p.m., beginning Monday. Since Feb. 16, the mills have been operating on one shift, from 7 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Moye Re-Elected Board Chairman

Joseph S. Moye of Greenville was re-elected chairman of the Pitt County Board of Education yesterday.

Moye and Vice-Chairman W. F. Stokes of Stokes were elected to new two-year terms at a special meeting of the board. Other members are T. G. Worthington of Ayden, G. Earl Trevathan of Fountain and E. W. Fleming of Grifton.

Judge Stevens Ill, Is Replaced

J. B. Craven, Jr., a special Superior Court Judge, has been appointed to preside over the remainder of this week's civil term, in lieu of Judge Henry L. Stevens, Jr.

Judge Stevens, who was present for opening sessions of the term Monday, was replaced after becoming ill. Judge Craven began his service yesterday.

Hat Designing Is Speaker's Subject

A demonstration on making and decorating hats was presented by Mrs. Nancy McKeithan to the members of the American Home Department of the Greenville Woman's Club Friday afternoon at the clubhouse.

The speaker first showed the group the correct way in which to block different style hats.

Mrs. McKeithan used the basic hat styles to show how to decorate them for formal or informal wear.

Leather belts, men's ties, flowers, ribbons, braids and buttons were some of the materials used in the hat decorations.

Mrs. Edward Ricks introduced the speaker by saying that she had taken courses in dressmaking, tailoring, and hat designing under the direction of Marie Rose of California.

Various committee reports were heard during the business session. It was announced that the next meeting would be held at the home of Mrs. El Bloom on May 8 at 6 p. m. An outdoor "Hamburger Party" is planned.

Mrs. J. C. Galloway Jr. announced that the Art Festival Luncheon May 2 will be held at the college with Frances Gray Patten as guest speaker.

Mrs. B. C. McGee, Mrs. Galloway, and Mrs. H. P. Milstead were elected as a nominating committee.

Following the meeting the members were served punch, homemade cake and sanded nuts in the Sally Southall Cotton Parlor.

Hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. Milstead, Mrs. C. M. Respass, Mrs. J. A. Piver, Mrs. J. H. Moye, Mrs. Claude Gaskins, and Mrs. A. C. Howard.

Others are Mrs. Kathleen House, Aiah, Mrs. Aida Tyler, Ruth; Mrs. Olga Lee Langley, Esther; Mrs. Mary Wynne, Martha; Mrs. Mildred Harney, Electra; Mrs. Lydia Alexander, Warder; and Mrs. Lillian Baker, sentinel.

A reception was held following the installing of officers.

Mrs. Speir Club Hostess

BETHEL—Mrs. D. O. Speir was hostess recently to the Round Dozen Book Club in her home on Tarboro Road at a buffet luncheon. Eleven members were present and the invited guests present were Mrs. Dave Whichard III, Mrs. Julian White, Mrs. John Howard and Mrs. Herbert Waldrop of Greenville, Mrs. R. P. Mackenzie of Washington and Mrs. Lois Johnson of Madison.

Throughout the home spring flowers were used. Guests were seated at tables on the porch and living room where they ate a buffet luncheon.

After all had re-assembled in the living room, the program chairman introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Waldrop, who chose as her subject "The First Easter" by Catherine Marshall.

She gave a review of Peter Marshall's version of the great Easter story. In this review, the Savior, Simon Peter, Judas, Pilate, Calaphas and Mary Magdalene all appear in memorable three-dimensional portraits. The dramatic changes wrought in the apostles by the resurrection is brought out by Dr. Marshall.

War Memorials In Europe--Topic

"War Memorials in Europe" was the title of the program presented by Mrs. William Taft to the members of the Inter Se Book Club. The club met at the home of Mrs. Joe Taft Tuesday afternoon.

The American Battle Monuments Commission was created by an Act of Congress in March 1923. The principal functions are to prepare plans and estimates for the erection of suitable memorials to mark and commemorate the services of the American armed forces; to erect and maintain these memorials in the United States and at such places outside the U. S. as the commission shall determine.

They are to control materials used, design and supervise the erection of all memorial monuments commemorating the services of all American armed forces. General George C. Marshall is chairman of the commission and has spent much of his time in trying to convey to the American people the work of the commission.

The war memorials that were erected in 1957 were Camille

Cemetery in England, Normandy Cemetery, Brittany Cemetery, Epinal Cemetery, all in France; Rhone Cemetery in Italy and the Sicily-Rome Cemetery in Sicily. Outstanding American architects were chosen to design each memorial and each architect had a landscape expert, a sculptor, and a painter to work with him on each memorial. In no two instances have the artists used the same method of design or rarely even the same materials in construction. Maps outlining campaigns are done in layered marble, some in bronze relief, and some in fresco and ceramics. The establishment of American war cemeteries abroad is of great international importance. Each was built on ground donated by host country and each stands as a perpetual reminder of the sacrifices the United States made in the cause of freedom.

Mrs. Taft described several of the U. S. war memorials in Europe and showed pictures of them, pointing out their beauty in landscaping and the outstanding pieces of sculpture in each one, and also how the memorials are a halo of holiness that seems to hover over each cemetery.

A salad course with coffee and sweets were served to the guests after the exchanging of books.

Bridge Club

BETHEL—Mrs. W. C. Whitehurst Jr. entertained the Thursday Afternoon Bridge Club in her home on Pleasant Street with five members and three invited guests, Mrs. E. E. Dennis, Mrs. Frank Winesette and Mrs. Frank Hemmingway, who took part in the game.

At the conclusion of the game, Mrs. Hemmingway was awarded a prize for winning high score and the hostess served a salad plate with sandwiches, sweets and Coca-Colas to all present.

Children Are Subject Of HD Club Devotional

BETHEL—The Bethel H. D. C. held its April meeting in the home of Mrs. H. L. Tetterton with Mrs. M. T. Whitehurst as co-hostess. Devotional was given by Mrs. C. E. Brown, Family Life Leader.
 Her topic was "Bring Up Your Children To Be Good Citizens." It was based on Proverbs 22-6: "Train up a child in the way he should go and when he is old he will not depart from it." Mrs. Brown stressed that to bring up a child in the way he should go, parents must travel that way themselves and set an example.

Mission Study Class

Dr. Morton Winsberg will teach the class. Each of the Guild and Woman's Society members is urged to attend and bring a guest.

Bridge-Canasta Luncheon
 The Greenville Service League will sponsor a bridge-canasta luncheon Thursday, April 23, beginning at 12:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. W. M. Scales Jr. in Drexelbrook. Proceeds will go to the Laughinghouse Bed Fund. For reservations call Mrs. W. M. Reading Jr., PL 2-5512; Mrs. Carl Wade Jr., PL 2-5523; or Mrs. John Shannonhouse, PL 2-5561 by Tuesday.

Mrs. R. R. Whitehurst, president, presided at a short business session. The club voted to sponsor the 4-H movement and to assist the boys in Caswell Training School.

Leader reports were heard from Mrs. F. C. James, Home Beautification leader, who advised planting chrysanthemums now for fall color. Mrs. R. B. Edmondson, in the absence of the clothing leader, gave some timely sewing tips.
 Mrs. Helen Mohan, Assistant Pitt County Home Agent, introduced S. M. Bryant, a banker, who chose as his subject "How To Do Your Banking." He emphasized the advantages of having a commercial or savings account; he also covered other important phases of banking.
 Guests were Mrs. T. R. Andrews Sr. and Mrs. C. D. Rollins.

Church Circles

BETHEL—Mrs. Grover Whitehurst and Mrs. Russell James entertained last week the Sarah Whitehurst Circle in the home of Mrs. Grover Whitehurst. Present were 16 members and one visitor, Mrs. Lois Johnson of Madison.
 After the secretary's report, Mrs. J. C. Wynne Jr., Spiritual Life secretary, gave the devotional using as her theme "The Touch of the Master's Hands." From the scripture (Mark I and V) she read Christ's miracle and followed this with the poem, "The Touch of the Master's Hand."
 Continuing the study of the Far East, Mrs. S. C. Whitehurst gave a resume of the life of Mohammed and his teachings. She spoke briefly on his virtues and again she talked on the beliefs of modern Moslems as well as their views on the Christian Church.

Circle No. 1
 Circle No. 1 met in the home of Mrs. Lewis Ayers.
 Mrs. F. L. Blount, leader, presided. Mrs. W. P. Thigpen, Spiritual Life secretary, gave the devotionals using II Cor. 1:24-28 as her scripture reading. Her topic was "Spreading the Gospel." She stated to spread the gospel as did the Apostles of old, we must seek and work diligently with trust and courage.

Mary Lambeth Circle

Mrs. Camille Staton was hostess to the Mary Lambeth Circle Monday night with 16 members and two visitors present.
 Mrs. W. H. Andrews presided. After a short business session, Mrs. W. H. Manning, Spiritual Life secretary, talked on "Faith and Trust," based on scripture reading taken from Isaiah 30.

Mrs. McWhorter Talks To Club + Births +

BETHEL—Tuesday afternoon when Mrs. L. N. James entertained the Round Table Book Club in her home on Main Street, Mrs. Abbott McWhorter had charge of the program and chose as her topic "New England Poets."
 She gave a brief sketch of the lives of Emily Dickerson, John Greenleaf Whittier, Ralph Waldo Emerson, William Cullen Bryant and Oliver Wendell Holmes. A brief biography and a selection of poems of each poet were heard.
 Mrs. James' home for the occasion was decorated with seasonal flowers. Invited guests were Mrs. Willie Carson, Mrs. Polly Thomas, Mrs. S. C. Ives, Mrs. Frank Winesette, Mrs. A. L. Whitley and Mrs. W. M. Missette.
 A chicken salad plate with chocolate pie and coffee were served by the hostess.

One More Step Toward Socialism

Congressional proposals to add old-age hospitalization protection to federal social security benefits would be another major step in the cradle-to-the-grave kind of guaranteed government security so widely advocated in recent years.

The fact that House leaders have postponed until next year any conclusive action on these new proposals should give the citizens of the country time to carefully consider the proposals and their implications.

At the outset, according to a report of the Social Security Administration, hospitalization protection for those under the social security program would cost over a billion dollars the first year. Furthermore the cost of this protection could be expected to go up every year just as the cost of carrying out the program new prescribed by law goes up as more people begin drawing their social security benefits.

It would impose a considerable new expense upon taxpayers throughout the country; an expense which could be expected to grow by leaps and bounds over a period of years.

Each person covered by social security now is required to pay 2 1/2 per cent of his income up to $4,800 annually for the future protection he receives. Under acts already passed by Congress the figure will increase to 4 1/2 per cent in the next 10 years. To add hospitalization protection would shoot the cost much higher even in that 10-year period.

It would place the federal government in the business of providing additional "extras" over and above the social security benefits now approved. And if hospitalization benefits are added to the program, it would be only a matter of time before other "extras" are added to the program. In addition to the new precedent and the additional cost, such a hospitalization protection plan tagged on to social security benefits would lead the nation closer to national health protection . . . and to socialized medicine.

While it is recognized generally that the federal government has certain areas of responsibility for the security of its citizens—old and young—we seriously question the soundness of the government rushing headlong into broad new areas of providing guaranteed security for its people.

Certainly the proposal to add hospitalization protection to the present social security benefits is a step which should be considered carefully in both its immediate and long range aspects before it is approved by Congress.

Dulles Can't Stay On, Time For Resignation

It appears a foregone conclusion now that Secretary of State Dulles will be compelled to resign his position because of his health.

He will not be able to attend the meeting in Paris in late April, and though no definite announcement has been made concerning the May foreign ministers conference on Berlin, we must conclude he will not be able to attend that meeting either.

Would it not be better for Mr. Dulles to offer his resignation now rather than waiting another week or two?

Would it not be better for the United States if its new Secretary of State has a few weeks to get adjusted to his new official title before being plunged into the May conference with top foreign officials of our Allies and the Soviets?

There can be no doubt now that the man who represents the United States at the foreign ministers conference will carry the title of Secretary of State. And there is little doubt that this will be some man other than Secretary Dulles who has served the nation so faithfully the past several years.

Recognizing these facts, it seems to us Secretary Dulles should be allowed to offer his resignation to President Eisenhower immediately.

Assembly Soon To Buckle Down

By LYNN NISBET

TO WORK — Indications are that the 1959 General Assembly will quit fiddling around and buckle down to real work on money bills next week. Fairly complete reports on income tax as due today will be available by Monday. The joint finance committee has been more or less marking time for two weeks waiting upon this information.

The same information is essential to proper action by the joint appropriations committee. There is an atmosphere of optimism that less new taxes may be required than was once thought in order to increase recommended appropriations and still balance the budget.

Speaker Addison Hewlett has called upon House members to put in a full day's work Friday, instead of the usual practice of skipping committee meetings and holding a brief regular session. Main purpose of this plan is to get the decks cleared for money bills. If the Friday meetings do not catch up, it is suggested that committees also meet Monday afternoons.

The finance committee with two major hearings scheduled this week may have to arrange others if tax sources not heretofore proposed in bills are brought into the picture. The appointed committee has completed public hearings on the biennial bills, and it is not likely that independent bills will require such attention.

SUBCOMMITTEE — The big joint appropriations committee of 85 members — 60 Representatives and 25 Senators — plus the cross-membership of finance chairmen is too unwieldy for effective action on details. The budget bill will be turned over to a subcommittee of 15 to 18 members, proportionately distributed between the two branches, for working over. If custom is followed this subcommittee will meet in "executive session", which means that no publicity will be given to proceedings as they go along.

This subcommittee is a very powerful group. Genuine effort has been made in the past to select its members so as to assure representation of the diverse opinions which have been voiced in full committee discussions. The respective chairmen, Sen. William Copeland and Rep. Clyde Harris, have obligation to maintain that impartial balance.

The small group will delete some items, perhaps add some; decrease or increase amounts in the budget recommendations and prepare a substitute bill for presentation to the full joint committee.

sentation to the full joint committee. The changes made will depend to large degree upon the revenue situation.

There will be determined effort to hold the line at approximate budget figures, and just as determined effort to get more money for education. To what extent this struggle will prolong subcommittee sittings is problematic. Prevailing opinion among rank and file of legislative membership is the subcommittee will spend about four weeks on the job and the full joint committee from one to two weeks before reporting the bill to the main bodies of House and Senate. Most members think the joint committee offering will be accepted in the main and without prolonged argument.

TIME-TABLE — In that event passage of the appropriations bill could come around May 20. There are some who will not be surprised at repetition of 1933 and 1935 experiences, when items were approved by one or two vote margin, only to have the action reversed next day by similar close votes. Almost certainly there will be differences in House and Senate versions of the final act, which must be adjusted through conference committees. All of that takes time and it could be well into June before the bill is ready for signature.

Usually the General Assembly has adjourned since late within a week or ten days after passage of the appropriations bill. Last session the bill passed the Senate on June 6, the House on June 7, the conference report was adopted on June 10, and adjournment came on June 12. The revenue bill two years ago passed the Senate on May 27, the House on May 31, and was ratified on adjournment day, June 12.

Large taxpayers would like to see the revenue bill passed first again this time, but advocates of more money for schools want the appropriation bill acted upon first — and then require the finance group to provide the necessary money. There has been informal discussion, without agreement of adopted plan, among the respective committee chairmen to bring the appropriations and revenue bills out simultaneously. Precedent for that can be found in the fact they were introduced simultaneously in both House and Senate.

One veteran legislator who favors this plan said that the budget was balanced when the bills were introduced, and it ought to be balanced when they are reported from committee for final action by the Legislature.

Fitting Tribute For Rescue Squad Founder

Dedication of the new Greenville Rescue Squad building in honor of veteran Fire Chief George Gardner is a fitting tribute to the man who founded the local rescue unit.

It was 10 years ago that George Gardner spearheaded a campaign to raise funds for a rescue ambulance to be used in Greenville and surrounding area. Over a long period of years as head of the local fire department he had seen the need for such a service. After the first rescue vehicle was secured, Gardner set about to organize the volunteer Rescue Squad which has provided invaluable service to the area in recent years.

Had it not been for the keen interest George Gardner had in the establishment of a rescue squad in Greenville, the city probably would not now have the expertly trained and well equipped rescue organization.

Time Working Against Dulles

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

John Foster Dulles once remarked: "Time is the most valuable thing in life, and I don't want to waste it."

Time works against him now. While he battles cancer in the hospital, the hour is swiftly approaching when the policies on which he based America's prosecution of the cold war will face momentous trials.

In less than a month, the foreign ministers of the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union are scheduled to meet to prepare the way for a summit meeting of government heads. It is possible the United States will be represented in Geneva by a new secretary of state. But the influence of John Foster Dulles will be present in any case. The past six years demonstrated the tremendous impact a single personality can have upon a nation's policy and the course of history.

Basically, perhaps, American policy in a time of cold war would have been pretty much the same under any secretary of state. But it makes a great deal of difference how those policies are interpreted and carried out.

Dulles' solemn, almost evangelistic approach and his stubborn defense of moral principles have left little room for compromise on any fundamental issue of what he considered right or wrong.

Perhaps U.S. policy might have done better if its architect had been more deliberately cynical in dealing with a cynical enemy. Dulles seems to have denied himself that weapon out of conviction that a civilized Western nation's diplomacy should rely on the moral force of Christian principles. Possibly this was a little naive in today's world. But in the matter of assessing his antagonists, Dulles has displayed little naivete.

"We are devoting billions in money and our highest talents to preparation for a fighting war, a war that may never come," Dulles wrote long before he became secretary. "The strength of our society is being undermined by the cold war that is here and which could finally defeat us."

Dulles has never lost sight of that possibility. Apparently he still believes the Kremlin is intent upon world domination through Communist expansion. The cornerstone of his policy has been a determination to convince the Kremlin it can never succeed. The post of secretary of state always has been an easy and popular target for criticism, and Dulles has aroused many storms. Educated opinion both at home and abroad attributes U.S. policy not to president Eisenhower — as it had to presidents before him — but directly to Dulles. He bore the full brunt of criticism when he solemnly issued such verbal thunderbolts as "agonizing reappraisal" and "massive retaliation."

Only time will tell whether he will be vindicated. But time will not wait for him. Important cold war contests are ahead. Will the United States be represented by a man equal in rank to the other foreign ministers? Dulles' and President Eisenhower face another agonizing reappraisal. Dulles' influence surely will be felt at Geneva, but perhaps he and the President will decide the time has come to give the reins of U.S. policy into other hands.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

A CONSTANT NECESSITY — One of the happiest moments in a parent's life is when child begins to take his first steps. Father and mother get down on their knees and the little toddler staggers and reels from one to the other. An exhilarating experience of memorable significance has taken place — both for parents and, we can believe, for the child also.

But from the time an individual enters the world it needs to be guided. The child needs guidance. The teen-ager needs guidance. The young people, unmarried and married, need guidance. You and I need guidance. We are inconsequential little somebody living on a planet which is tearing through space at speeds which bewilder the imagination. Much of our lives is conditioned by circumstances over which we have no control. We are given a little area in which we can work — in which we much work. Life's satisfactions consist in our doing well in that little area. The very salvation of our souls is at stake.

Yes, like the smallest child, we need guidance. We need the guidance of good friends, the guidance of carefully considered experience, the guidance of good books. Most of all, we need the guidance of God's Word. His abiding Spirit, of His loving and directing Church.

Always, as long as we live, we shall need guidance. Let us never believe that we outgrow that need.

Neighborhood Is Garden

Monday morn' I was told that if I wanted to see something truly beautiful, that Lakewood Pines was the place to go.

The lady who told me this, said she'd driven through the section during the weekend and suggested in so many words that it rivaled Wilmington's annual azalea display. Never having seen the Wilmington show, and suspecting that the local blooms just might be at their peak, I took the long way home that afternoon . . . maybe three miles out of my way . . . to see what it was all about.

Monday's late afternoon sun was pretty well masked by overcast skies; so I probably didn't get the full impact; but it was enough. I've been raving about the scores of flowering dogwood and blooming flowers ever since. If, due to my promptings, there's an unwelcome rush of sightseers into Lakewood Pines

. . . I'm sorry. But it's the habitant's fault.

Turning a neighborhood into a garden spot is a unique achievement.

Too bad the blooms are here today and gone tomorrow.

The beauty contest season is in full swing all over the state and Miss North Carolina seems to be kept pretty much on the run.

Here at the office we get a small number of out-of-town newspapers daily, and it seems I've read that Miss N.C. was at ten spots in Henderson and one in Goldsboro. She's taken part in the Miss Greenville and Miss Pitt County contests . . . and I'm sure this little list is far from complete.

Beauty contests stress poise and talent as well as beauty. I'm not sure but that the quality of durability isn't also a prerequisite.

Other Editors Saying . . . On Dangerous Ground

(Henderson Dispatch)

A House Judiciary Committee the other day got into a hassle over a proposal to restrict liquor advertising in newspapers in the State. The issue became so complicated, even more so than it was at the outset, that it was sent to a subcommittee for consideration. Indications were that if it ever got free of that body it would be only in a greatly modified form.

In wading into the question of regulating advertising, the committee is treading on dangerous ground. It is dangerous, for one thing, because of its restraint upon publication. If legislation can be enacted to rule out liquor advertising, it can be put on the statute books to bar other types of promotional publicity of similar character if some one comes up with a fad and can marshal sufficient support for it. There is serious doubt if such a measure would muster approval of the Supreme Court in a legal test on the basis of its constitutionality.

Advertising is intended to sell merchandise or to educate or acquaint the public with certain information. Distillers advertise their wares for the sole purpose of creating a demand for it. To that extent at least it is distasteful. So far as liquor is concerned, there is a strong argument that the State has no right to prohibit advertising of a commodity which is legalizes, whether whisky, cigarettes or whatever. So long as such promotional programs are truthful there should be no restriction upon them.

Our own opposition to the legislative proposal rests solely upon a matter of principle. This newspaper does not print liquor advertising, and has not done so for nearly thirteen years and has never done it except for a brief period many years ago. No ban on liquor advertising would affect this publication.

Moreover, what is the logic in banning such copy in newspapers in the State when national magazines are distributed through the mails with their appeal in rich color and depicting the beverage as a delicious and exhilarating drink? No State law can stop that. Neither does Federal law prohibit it, nor should it.

The danger in such a venture as this is that a precedent would be established, paving the way for placing a ban on any or all other publicity that might appeal to the whims of legislators. If advertising of any sort can be made illegal, it would be but a short step to prescribing the character of news that could be printed. And were that done, there would no longer be a free press, without which the liberties of a free people would be near an end. It would be a logical procedure if once the dice were cracked.

The Legislature has much to do that is far more important than tampering with what does or does not go into newspapers.

The month of May was today proclaimed "See North Carolina Month" by Governor Hodges.

"The State's wide choice of mountain, coastal and mid-State recreational facilities and tourist accommodations are winning increasing fame throughout the nation," the Proclamation states, "and offer magnificent vacation possibilities to North Carolinians as well as to travellers from distant points."

My eyes stopped on the word "vacation", and the pictures it evolved have been with me ever since.

Proclaiming a month as "See North Carolina Month" sounds like a good idea. May belongs to Tar Heels; the rest of the states can split up the other eleven months as they see fit.

I like that. We have an edge.

This column wouldn't be complete without mentioning in passing that this is National Library Week.

The Reflector had a readable article yesterday by a novelist on what books and libraries meant to her. She likened her hunger for books as to a hunger for food.

Omitted was the reminder that in books you may find something that sets off a deep-down chuckle at the sublimely ridiculous.

Like the poem I read in some forgotten book, Came across it quite some time ago, and couldn't erase it from my memory. In this poem was different. In this was writ by a cat, and went like this:

Purr purr purr purr purr,
Purr purr purr pu purr,
Purr purr purr purr purr,
Purr purr purr purr purr,
Purr purr purr purr purr.

Opinions In Brief

"There is every likelihood, in view of the degenerating world situation, that we will have to materially increase our spending for defense and related purposes. If that is to be done without throwing the budget clear out of balance, and thus inviting runaway inflation, non-essential spending must be reduced in every possible way. What better way can there be than getting the government out of commercial business? At the very least, every government commercial business should be forced by law to pay its own way in every particular, and to pay precisely the same taxes as private commercial business. Touch Lost In Years

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Do you resent teen-agers because they are uncomfortably like yourself?

Do you turn your back on all adolescents and their problems because you don't want to be reminded of the hidden horrors of your own growing-up time?

John Farris believes you probably do. Farris, one of the literary surprises of the 1959 season, is the young author of a new and controversial novel of high school life that is being alternately panned and praised for its realism.

"Adolescence is the most wounding period of life for many," Farris, who still has a few scars himself.

"What many an adult resents is to be reminded that kids of 17 have the same thoughts, feelings and even experiences that he does."

"He resents this because it does not conform to his own memories."

"At 17, a kid can be astonishingly mature in some ways, almost infantile in others. He is as changeable and unpredictable as the weather."

"Grownups forget what they really were like in high school. When they look back, they select only the memories they want, and reject the others. It makes them uncomfortable to be reminded what they really were like."

That is why Farris, now a graduate student in English literature at the University of Missouri, wrote his own novel of high school life as he felt it really was, full of the torment of young love and young dreams.

"Most older writers can't give an accurate picture because they don't know the language of kids that age, and have forgotten their feelings," he said.

"Even now" at 22, if I started another high school novel, I could not do as well. It would be a mess. You lose touch fast."

But Hollywood has taken an option on his story, and a Broadway producer is interested in having him do a play.

The slender young author, who is hazel-eyed and has "brush-cut" hair, isn't dazzled by the acclaim that has greeted his first serious work.

"I'm not greedy about success," he said. "If it comes, fine — if not, I won't sweat it. I just want enough money to keep writing."

Even for a period when literary procreancy is fairly commonplace, Farris is unusual. He started writing at the age of 14, now has just about 2,500 words a day. He never has taken a formal writing course, believes an author can learn his craft only at the typewriter.

Under another name he wrote and sold four mystery novels, which have been published in seven countries.

"I wrote one in 11 days, and it has brought me in $3,500," he said. "But I wasn't happy."

"I got to the point where I was just doing them for the money. They don't interest you originally, because you write only what you know for sure you can sell."

He already is hard at work on his second novel, which deals with a promising young medical student "who suddenly just folds up."

"I guess, like this character, I'm kind of confused," said John, who is as sincere as a growing tree. "I know where I want to go myself. But I look around and see so many young people who are uncertain, unsure of themselves, and unhappy. I have a burning desire to find out why."

Little Distrust Of This Cartel

By ELMER ROESSNER

A characteristic of Americans is distrust of trusts. That was built into the American psyche half a century ago. And it was nailed in place by none other than the trusts themselves.

The Steel, Beef, Oil, Grain Trusts and others had so gouged consumers that when a leader came along brandishing a big stick at them, the people quickly elected him President. That was Theodore Roosevelt.

Since then, "trust" has been a dirty word, except when applied to depositors. A bank trust is good, a beef trust is bad. That's America and I love it.

Almost weekly the Attorney General and the Federal Trade Commission crack down on business combinations and try to get them enjoined from getting together to fix prices and divide markets. Any politician who is not against trusts is a slob, or will be after "the next election.

THE FORGIVEN TRUST

So it's strange that a number of enterprises, with the blessings of the Federal government, are built into an international price-fixing cartel.

That cartel will probably cost you money if you ever fly to other continents. It is the International Air Transport Association.

Almost all American and foreign trans-oceanic airlines belong.

It fixes high rates for overseas travel. It lays charges on the traveling public with no lighter hand than the old Rockefeller Oil Trust did on users of kerosene.

If you're planning a vacation overseas this summer, you may have noticed that the Air Trust, generally known as the IATA, boosted fares at the first of this month.

THE HIGHER THE HIGHER

Surcharges of $20 first class and $15 on other classes were levied, plus added charges for various destinations, such as $8.90 to Copenhagen. Freight rates have also been increased.

There were some reasons advanced for the raises. Airports on both sides of the Atlantic have been hiking landing and take-off fees, and other bites. New York International Airport, for instance, levies a 56-cent fee per passenger for porter service, even though the passenger carries his own bag. Robbery? If so, it's mild. London charges seven shillings sixpence, almost twice as much.

The amazing thing about the trans-Atlantic rates is that they are two or three times as high, mile for mile, than rates across the United States.

Another startling thing is that the American government, which sues the daylight out of domestic corporations that set prices, cheerfully okayes the charges set by the Air Trust.

The rates have been approved by the Civil Aeronautics Board. Its statement of approbation was somewhat blumling; it referred to the fact that jet service costs are uncertain and that the price fixing is for only a year—so let it go at that.

However, there is one regular, approved trans-Atlantic line that is not a member of the trust and which charges less. Icelandic Airlines can buy advertising if it wants to get its name in the paper. But it sold 30,000 tickets last year.

There are several other lines that will charter flights at less than trust rates. But most Americans pay tribute to the international trusts.

WHAT CARE THEY IF TOASTERS SELL BELOW COST?

An appliance dealer recently reported to his supplier that, unlike other dealers, he was not losing money. In addition to selling appliances, he explained, he and his wife raise worms on the small acreage at their home, and sell them at 29 cents a hundred.

Local Govm'ts Would Buy At State Contract Prices

By LYNN NISBET
 Reflector Raleigh Bureau
RALEIGH — The bill permitting cities, counties and towns to buy from State contract suppliers at State contract prices got some rough going over at a meeting of the House committee.

There were kind words from the introducer, Rep. Tim Valentine of Nash, and from spokesmen for the N.C. League of Municipalities, the State Association of County Commissioners and other organizations of public finance officers and purchasing agents.

Spokesmen for private business which now sell a lot of goods to local units were not so kind. They attacked the proposal with ridicule as well as serious argument.

Speaking for the bill were John Morrissey, general counsel for the municipal league; Alex McMahon, executive secretary and counsel for the county commissioners;

Aaron C. Shepherd, purchasing agent for Winston-Salem and the president of the purchasing agents association; and Harry Weatherly, Guilford commissioner and chairman of the legislative committee of his association.

Speaking against the bill were James C. Little Jr., representing some 400 oil jobbers and distributors; Willis Smith Jr., representing the N.C. Merchants Association; Armistead Maupin, representing the N.C. Automobile Dealers, and T. Clarence Stone, representing himself and other small oil distributors.

Each speaker dealt with a particular phase of the question, but their arguments can be pretty well summarized as follows:

Proponents argued that the bill would benefit small units more than large ones, because the little folks could not obtain real competitive bids. They emphasized the discretionary feature, which required both the seller and the buyer to be willing to deal. Local units still can buy at home, and State contractors can decline to supply local unit needs. McMahon particularly emphasized that the local folks did not want to be bound by State contracts; they wanted only to take advantage of them when it seemed beneficial.

Opponents stressed the points that enactment of the law would eliminate from the market place some 400 gasoline and fuel oil distributors; would tend to deprive printing and office supply firms of business, and would seriously complicate obtaining maintenance service on automobiles and other equipment. The relatively small savings to taxpayers, they contended, would be more than offset by inconvenience as well as by depreciated taxes collected from local dealers. They emphasized the Upshot of the hour-long debate was to send the bill to a subcommittee which Chairman Thomas Dill of Edgecombe said he would announce Thursday.

Pier Angeli Not Sharing Her Son

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "All I want is to see my son—I don't want to be a bad guy," said Vic Damone.

From Denmark came the angry voice of the singer's divorced wife, Pier Angeli: "Nobody can ever take my son from me."

This long-distance row was stirred up when the petite Italian actress flew from Hollywood to Copenhagen Tuesday with their 3-year-old son, Perry.

The trip was in violation of a court order—obtained by Damone—restraining Miss Angeli from taking the child out of California. But she told a newsman in Copenhagen her ex-husband actually had given her oral permission to take Perry with her.

Damone had a different version of the dispute. He blamed his former mother-in-law, Mrs. Enrica Pierangeli, for much of the trouble.

He admitted to interviewers that he possesses "a hot Italian temper," but added that as far as he is concerned Mrs. Pierangeli "should have stayed in Italy."

If she had, Damone declared, his marriage might have succeeded. The singer said the actress' mother exerts a strong influence over her daughter.

Mrs. Pierangeli declined comment.

The couple was married in November 1954 and divorced last December. Miss Angeli got custody of the child and Damone was given visiting privileges. In asking for a court order, Damone said he would be deprived of these privileges if his son were taken

Stokes - Pactolus Pupils Undertake Raleigh Trip

By SHIRLEY WHITEHURST
 Stokes-Pactolus Reporter

The seventh and eighth grades, accompanied by their teachers, Mrs. Evelyn Bullock and Mrs. Marion Nobles, went to Raleigh about a week ago.

Upon arriving in Raleigh, they visited the Governor's Mansion. A butler showed them several first floor rooms of the forty-five rooms of the Governor and First Lady. Of special interest were the chandeliers, several of which duplicates had been made, the originals having been sent to the restored Tryon Palace.

The students also toured the State Museum and the Hall of History. They were very fortunate to sit in on sessions of the Senate and the House. In the Senate, the Senators issued a special vote of welcome to the students and their teachers.

Picnic lunch was spread in Pullen Park before the afternoon sight-seeing.

The School for the Blind was visited, and at the State Prison a man showed and explained how men are executed by gas.

After a short shopping spree in Cameron Village and a ride on the escalator, the tired but happy students returned to Stokes.

The Beta Club met Tuesday with their advisor, Mrs. Rosa Hunnings. Members decided to sponsor another "bake sale" which was held last Saturday.

Officers were elected for the 1959-60 School year. They are: President, Janice Crandall; Vice President, Carrie Lee Whitehurst; Secretary, Rosalie Tripp; and Treasurer, Joel Jenkins.

Four Senior girls sang at the Belk-Tyler Junior-Senior Banquet on Friday night. They are Gail Bullock, Linda Johnson, Carol Fleming, and Linda Barnhill.

Back Retirement Benefits For Full-Time Guardsmen 'To Hilt'

By BUNNY HARRIS Reflector Raleigh Bureau RALEIGH — Members of a House committee indicated Tues-

Audience Of One For His Speech

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—State Sen. Hugo Fisher went to a home for a neighborhood rally and found that no one had turned out to meet him.

LOCPORT, N. Y. (AP) — Mailman Leo W. Conley Jr. has developed his own method of preventing trouble from dogs along his route.

day they are willing to stand up and fight for retirement benefits for regular, full-time members of the National Guard in North Carolina.

A bill, placing them under the Teachers and State Employees Retirement Fund received a favorable report from committee with recommendations that it be referred to the Appropriations Committee.

The state would be required to pay approximately $81,000 into the retirement fund as the employees share, though General Capus Wayne indicated budget is drawn up.

General Wayne said that 559 regular, full-time employees of the Guard would be included in the retirement plan. Of this number 158 are located in Charlotte and 86 at Butner. The others are scattered throughout the state, he said.

While National Guard employees are now on Social Security, there have been basic problems involved in placing them under either federal or state employee plans.

General Wayne explained that Guardsmen draw federal pay but are not regarded as federal employees since the State is given the authority to hire or fire regular, full-time members.

"We have been conscious of the unfairness of the situation," he said. "These people are the backbone of the National Guard in our state. Without them we would be lost."

Since the bill was first introduced, General Wayne said he has received a communication from Washington "which places a little different light on the situation."

The Comptroller General has held that the Secretary of Defense can pay the employers share, thereby removing any cost to the state. (There would be a two-year delay for budgetary reasons.)

He added: "Our answer was no," and cited these reasons.

First, the distribution of military power is basic to our way of democratic government and this dual power seems basic to the concept of state's rights; and secondly, the state would lose all control over who would go into the Guard and who should go out.

It is conceivable that the ranks could become composed of out-of-staters, he said. "This new attitude makes it absolutely essential that the bill be passed," Wayne declared.

Skilled Technique In Band Was Apparent

By GEORGE E. PERRY

The appeal of a band is universal, especially a band with as much fame besides its name as the United States Air Force Band. This was evidenced twice yesterday when this organization presented two well-received concerts in Wright Auditorium as the concluding feature on the current College Entertainment Series.

Technique seemed to be the one musical component which stood out above all others during the two concerts. Most of the band's personnel seemed to be technicians of the highest calibre, capable of fingering difficult passages dextrously, possessing extraordinary embouchures, and able to cope with the technical problems which the varied programs presented.

Two numbers from the afternoon concert and one from the evening seemed to occupy the ranks of musical highlights. The Fanfare and Allegro by Clifton Williams showed off the trumpets to good advantage, all attacks and releases were distinct and definite, the melody was never covered, the choir worked well alone and in combination, and the intonation of the flutes and piccolos was uncanny in its perfection.

Outside of these numbers which I have specified, I did not feel the quality of performance was up to the professional standard. In the first place the brasses overpowered the rest of the band, intonation was poor in spots, climaxes never seemed to achieve their full intensity, and much more could have happened musically.

In one specific instance the articulation in the clarinet section was so off as to give a decided saw effect. Generally, the choir played well by themselves but failed to achieve a consummate blend when playing with each other, both volume-wise and as far as distinctiveness of tempo was concerned. I thought the programming was unwise in that most of the numbers played were arrangements or transcriptions. In this respect our own Herbert L. Carter does a much finer job than whoever was responsible for lining up the numbers for the two concerts yesterday.

But loads of laurels must be heaped on the horn section, for of any individual choir, this was without question the finest, especially where musicianship is concerned. The blend was extremely good, and the balance was strictly lush.

The vocal portions of each concert were admirably handled by soloists and the Singing Sergeants. This group achieved a fine blend, the diction was impeccable, the tone was appropriately virile, and the quality both collectively and individually was most commendable. But here again, a whole musicianship seemed to be lacking. What they did was fine, but I feel they could have done so much more along this line. The virtue of their numbers however, was, to a large extent, due to the fine arrangements they used, which seemed to be made-to-order for this group. The soloist on the evening concert, Armand McLane, needs and deserves special mention for a beautifully conceived and performed rendition of the Prologue from "Pagliacci".

All in all, though, both concerts were, for the most part, enjoyable to listen to, and perhaps by the time this band has had the advantage of the years of experience which the other Service bands have had, it can mature along the lines in which there are now obvious deficiencies.

Standing By

WACO, Tex. (AP)—Hundreds of Davidians, convinced that "the fullness of time has come," start gathering here Thursday to await the beginning of a Middle East war April 22 and the return of Christ.

The sect, a divorced branch of the Seventh-Day Adventist Church, has advised its members to "sever all earthly ties, if necessary," and to sell property that could not be brought with them to Waco.

Most of them will live in tents being erected near here on the 941-acre tract of the national headquarters, Mt. Carmel Center, which includes the sect's offices, church and 16 houses.

Beginning Saturday the Davidians will conduct three services each day until "God's kingdom is established."

Admits Giving Two Whippings

OXFORD, N.C. (AP)—The superintendent of the Granville County Home says he administered whippings to two inmates—a white woman and a Negro man—because they were unruly and needed it.

Lee B. Newton, superintendent of the home for 22 years, said Tuesday the punishment was provoked. He admitted whipping Paul Jones, about 29, with a small plow rope and striking Mary Frances Tuck, 38, with a belt.

T. M. Daniel, chairman of the Oxford County commissioners, recently notified Newton that further acts of corporal punishment will result in his dismissal. He said Newton was told that in the future he should summon officers and have unruly persons imprisoned.

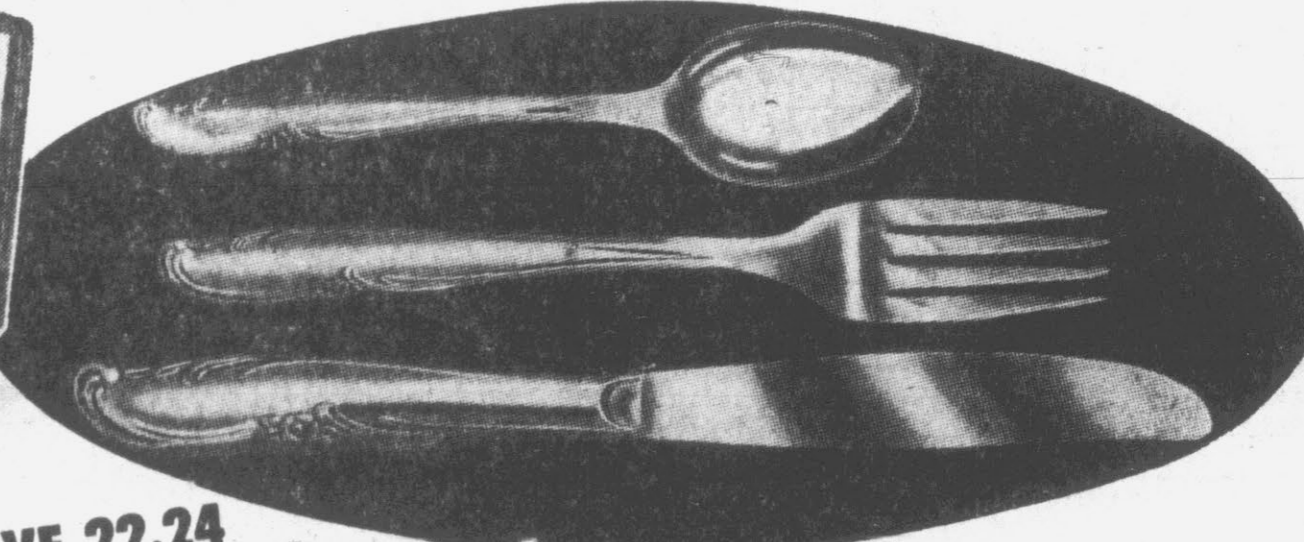

Daniel quoted Newton as saying "I have never punished anyone here that didn't need it." Newton declared, "I have always tried to be a Christian."

East Carolina Wins Twin Bill From WCC 10-2, 6-1

CULLOWHEE, N. C.—East Carolina snapped out of an early season batting slump yesterday afternoon and went on to collect 22 base hits and win a twinbill from Western Carolina, 10-2 and 6-1.

The win, coupled with Catawba's 3-2 victory over Elon, gave the Pirates first place in the North State loop with a 3-0 mark.

Larry Crayton had little trouble nailing the Cats in the opener as he spun a neat four hitter and allowed only four hits. The win was Crayton's second of the season.

Jerry Carpenter, flashy center-fielder, gave Crayton a cushion to pitch on in the initial when he blasted a homerun into rightfield. The Bucs added the winning runs in the third frame.

Ben Baker, veteran southpaw, returned to the mound for the first time this season and had little trouble in posting victory number one while his teammates blasted 13 hits and a 10-2 victory. Baker, victim of a pre-season leg injury, scattered six hits over the seven innings and held the Cats scoreless after the fourth frame.

The Pirate batters gave Baker a comfortable margin to work on as they exploded for nine runs in the first two innings. Four errors oiled the Pirate cause as they eased into first place.

Jerry Carpenter was the star of the afternoon. The Gastonia native, who is a quarterback on the football team, collected a home run, double, and two singles for his afternoon's work.

Jimmy Martin snapped out of his personal batting slump with four hits also. Martin, last year's batting leader, slashed three singles and a triple in the two tilts.

Bob Balance accounted for the only WCC run in the opener as he homered in the fifth frame. Harris Pryor, Cat pitcher, had a homer in the second game.

East Carolina will be home this Friday against arch-rival, Atlantic Christian. The Bulldogs are breathing hard on the conference leaders with a 2-0 mark.

Mallory will probably be able to go with any of his "big three" but it will probably be Johnny Ellen (2-1).

Qualifying Play Is Nearing Close

Tournament Chairman Cy Moyer announced this morning that qualifying rounds for the Greenville Club Golf Championship will end this weekend and all golfers are urged to qualify.

Moyer cited that there would be a Scotch-Foursome held on the Greenville course Sunday afternoon and the local golfers should qualify on or before Saturday.

Forty-six have already qualified but approximately 80 are expected to be in the field by the Sunday deadline.

The tournament committee will meet Sunday at 6:30 p.m. to determine the pairings for all flights. "There will be no extensions for any reason, therefore, we urge that all golfers that have not qualified do so as soon as possible," states Moyer.

Ben Harrison and former club champions W. L. Allen and Don Conley Jr. lead the field of early qualifiers. The three shot a 73.

Due to construction on the back nine holes, Moyer stated that in both qualifying and match play, the golfers may play the first nine twice.

All championship matches will be required to play the entire match on the front nine.

Moyer stated that there will be 32 players in the championship flight. First round losers will make up the first flight.

Play will begin next week with first round matches in all flights to be played on or before Sunday, April 26 and each match in succeeding weeks, respectively.

Spectators are invited and urged to come out and follow the golfers. The field is expected to be the strongest in many years.

Phants Back In Practice Field

Greenville hopes to return to the practice field today as the Phantoms lay host to defending Northeastern AA champion Kinston here Friday afternoon.

The Phantoms are setting the pace in the loop thus far this season with a 4-0 mark. Coach Bo Farley's forces have been idle since last Friday but should be in top shape for Friday's battle.

Farley will be able to call on either of his veteran pitchers, Merrill Bynum or Ronnie Finch.

The Greenville Junior Varsity has a home tilt on slate for this afternoon with Rocky Mount.

Sparked by Ed Smoot and Don Boyd, the yearlings have not tasted defeat thus far.

Rain caused postponement of the Greenville-Jacksonville track meet earlier this week. The date has been moved up to next Monday, weather permitting.

Again, Campy Is Behind Plate

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Roy Campanella was behind the plate at a Dodger game Tuesday night for the first time since his crippling accident.

Campy, in a wheelchair, was in back of the screen just to the left of the on-deck circle. But the greatest Dodger backstop of 'em all had plenty to say as he watched St. Louis spoil the Dodgers' hometown debut 6-2.

"Stay in there, Duke, stay in there," Campanella counseled an other-aid wackee, Duke Snider.

"This McDaniel has a fine curve. He's gonna curve him."

Sure enough, Lindy McDaniel came in with his curve. Snider singled.

An inning or two later, up stepped Ron Fairly, the Dodgers' apple-cheeked bonus baby.

"He waits a little too long," said Campanella, squinting through the wire at the chunky lefthanded batter. "You can tell whether it's a ball or a strike as soon as it leaves the pitcher's hand."

McDaniel let fly after an overhand windup.

"Ball," said Campanella.

Catcher Hal Smith leaned out for the pitch — high and outside.

With one on in the top of the third, Cardinal second baseman Don Blasingame twisted a sacrifice bunt in front of the plate. Dodger catcher Johnny Roseboro scooped it up and threw to first.

"Should he have thrown to second for the double play?" asked Kenny Washington, the former UCLA and Los Angeles Ram football great who was sitting at Campanella's elbow.

Campanella pursed his lips and shook his head from side to side.

"He played it just right," said Campanella without taking his eyes off the man who has his old catching job. "He's gonna make a good catcher."

NBA Supporting Demand Champ Defend His Title

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Boxing Assn. is supporting the New York State Athletic Commission's demand that middleweight champion Ray Robinson defend his title soon or lose his crown.

Arch Hindeman, NBA executive secretary, Tuesday announced the 13-man Executive Committee voted unanimously to lift Sugar Ray's title unless he signs by April 15, and fights by June 30.

Hindeman reported that 12 of the committee members favor a bout with former champion Carmen Basilio. The other member favored Spider Webb.

Robinson hasn't defended his title in 15 months.

It is known he would prefer to bid for Archie Moore's light heavyweight title after Moore defends it against Canada's Yvon Durelle in Montreal, July 15.

Should Robinson ignore the NBA ultimatum, the committee, according to Hindeman, will propose a title match between Basilio and Gene Fullmer, another former champion, with the winner fighting Webb within 90 days.

The more Manager Casey Stengel watched Jim Coates pitch, the less pressing became the Yankees' need to trade for additional mound strength. Coates convinced Stengel that his fast ball was all that Ed Lopat, the ex-Yankee pitching ace who was Jim's manager at Richmond last season, insisted it was—faster than Ryne Duren's blazer. And that just about assured him of being in a Yankee uniform when the season got under way.

Coates was getting little attention in training camp since he was permitted to rate himself slowly because he was in the process of recovering from a hairline fracture of his right elbow which hampered him most of last season. But when he was given the signal to cut loose with his fast one, he was ready.

Cardinals Finally Win One For Hemus

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

The St. Louis Cardinals finally won one for new manager Solly Hemus. That leaves Pittsburgh's Pirates sticking out like a sore thumb as the National League's only winless club.

Hemus, making the shift from utility infielder to skipper, put Stan Musial back on first base Tuesday night at Los Angeles after the Cards had lost their first three games at home. Stan the Man (1-for-15) was hitless, but his replacement in left field, Chuck Essegian, paid off with a double that brought in the winning run for a 6-2 decision over the Dodgers.

In the other NL night game, ex-Buc Bob Purkey became the season's first two-game winner by taking his fifth in a row from Pittsburgh in a 3-2 victory at Cincinnati. That left the Pirates, with an 0-4 record.

Milwaukee's champion Braves (3-0) became the lone unbeaten club in the NL with a 10-inning, 4-3 victory over Philadelphia. The Chicago Cubs spilled San Francisco to a first defeat 5-2.

In the American League, southpaw Billy Pierce hurled the Circuit's first shutout as the Chicago White Sox stayed unbeaten with a 2-0 victory over Kansas City. Southpaw Herb Score gave only five hits and walked one as Cleveland defeated winless Detroit 8-1. The New York Yankees beat Baltimore 13-3 and Boston defeated Washington 7-3.

Right-hander Lindy McDaniel, the elder half of the cards bonus brothers who went sour last year, gave up seven hits, walked but one and had the Dodgers shut out for seven innings. It was his first victory and complete game since beating the Dodgers at Los Angeles last June 30. Southpaw Johnny Podres, who had an 11-4 record at the Coliseum last season, was the loser. An error, Essegian's double and Hal Smith's two-run homer wrapped it up for the Cards in a three-run sixth. Gil Hodges homered for the Dodgers in the ninth.

With crippled Roy Campanella on hand, the Dodgers drew 61,532 for their home opener. That's a single night game record in the NL.

Purkey, the righthander who went to the Reds from Pittsburgh two winters ago, followed up his opening day decision over the Pirates with a seven-hit performance that included five strikeouts and a lone walk. George Will, who had won seven straight and hadn't allowed the Reds a run in two previous decisions as a rookie was tagged for a solo homer by Vada Pinson and a two-run shot by Ed Bailey.

Mickey Vernon and Johnny O'Brien, an unlikely winning parlay for the Braves, were just that after the Phils had taken a 3-2 lead over Warren Spahn on Wally Post's two-run pinch triple in the ninth at Milwaukee. Vernon, acquired from Cleveland last weekend, singled home the tying run in the ninth. O'Brien, the former Phil, then provided the payoff in the 10th, joining Hank Aaron and Wes Covington in a string of consecutive singles off losing reliever Dick Farrell.

Ernie Banks, last year's major league leader in home runs and runs batted in, broke loose for his first homers of the season for the Cubs, ripping Jack Sanford for a pair of two-run shots at San Francisco. Dave Hillman was the winner, although Don Elston had to get the final out. Felipe Alou homered for San Francisco's runs in the second inning.

Control Amazes Even Herb Score

CLEVELAND (AP)—Even Herb Score was amazed by his control. "I don't remember any games in which I walked only one batter," said the 25-year-old left-hander after the Cleveland Indians had beaten the Detroit Tigers, 8-1, in the home opener before 33,098 fans at Municipal Stadium Tuesday. "I know I haven't had any with no walks," he added.

Only once before had Score given up only one base on balls in a complete game. That, too, was against the Tigers, in a 1-0, five-hit decision on Sept. 22, 1956. It was his next to last success in a 20-victory season.

Score, on whose comeback the Indians are counting to make them a pennant contender this season, walked only one batter, struck out nine and allowed but five hits in winning his first opener here in three attempts.

The only Detroit run was scored on a homer over the right field fence by Gail Harris in the seventh inning. Score retired 19 batters in a row after walking Eddie Yost, the leadoff batter in the first inning, and being nicked for a single by Rocky Bridges.

Score said he didn't know about the victory getting him over the hump in his comeback attempt after being sidelined by injuries most of the last two seasons. "But you have to have that first victory to get started," he said. "I'm glad to get that one in."

The victory was the first for Score since last April 23, when he shut out the White Sox, 2-0. He injured his arm a week later.

His nine strikeouts enabled him to keep pace with his record of being the only pitcher in history who has averaged better than a strikeout an inning.

Chisox 'Hatchet' Is Finally Buried

CHICAGO (AP)—With the brass apparently having buried the hatchet and opening day ceremonies out of the way, the undefeated Chicago White Sox sought today to extend their four-game winning streak against Kansas City.

Only on the surface. Bill (54 per cent) Veck and Chuck (46 per cent) Comiskey did a buddy-buddy act before local cameras and newspapermen to inaugurate the 1959 home season.

Veck took the mound and tossed the first ball to "catcher" Comiskey.

Aerial bombs were bursting over the field before and after the first inning and free beer was served in the seventh inning to toast the home team in route to a 2-0 victory.

Comiskey, meanwhile, let it be known that he and Veck, who recently purchased 54 per cent from Chuck's sister, Dorothy Rigney, would continue their friendly policy where the team is concerned. But as to gaining control of the club, Chuck let it be known that the court battles would continue.

Veck, apparently willing to go along with that policy, went through the stands shaking hands and signing autographs. By the time the final out was made, Veck was still on the go.

ACC Cellar-Dwellers Post Loop Victories

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The rain clouds lifted and the sun shone on the underdog in Atlantic Coast Conference baseball games yesterday.

Two cellar-dwellers posted their first conference victories and a low-standing club plastered the ACC leaders.

Breaking into the conference win column were Duke with a 3-2 victory over North Carolina and Virginia with a 1-0 conquest of South Carolina. Maryland, currently in the middle of the league standings, defeated first-standing Clemson 7-3. Wake Forest, for the second day, was rained out of its engagement at Virginia Tech and the game was rescheduled for April 21.

No games are scheduled for today and tomorrow's only action is North Carolina at Wake Forest.

A seventh-inning, two-run homer by shortstop Johnny Frye, who got back at Duke's six hits, was the margin on which the Blue Devils rode to victory. North Carolina threatened to pull the game from the fire in the ninth, but with the bases loaded, pinch-hitter Al Baldwin hit into a double-play that ended the game. Ron Kallish needed no relief in pitching the victory. Ben Harding, North Carolina's starter, was the loser.

The Virginia-South Carolina contest was a pitchers' game. Despite five errors by his team-

Jury Says Goose Blind Not Baited

CHARLOTTE (AP)—A jury decided that Charles (Rink) Ballard didn't scatter grain around his goose blinds in Anson County, so 20 hunters charged with hunting on baited ground went free.

Today, 22 other hunters similarly charged, are awaiting a verdict on whether Jim Key Dunlap baited his goose blinds.

Federal and state game wardens arrested about 70 hunters in the Gaddy's Lake area last Nov. 17, the day the goose hunting season opened, and charged them with hunting on baited ground, a federal offense.

About 30 of the hunters paid $25 fines when called before a U. S. commissioner, but the remainder chose to fight their case in U. S. District Court here.

Liston Fights Williams Tonight

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Charles (Sonny) Liston of Philadelphia and Cleveland Williams of Houston, Tex., meet tonight in a heavyweight bout at Miami Beach Auditorium.

Liston, fourth-ranked heavyweights, has knocked out 14 foes, outpointed 9 and lost 1 decision. The undefeated Williams has won 36 fights by knockout, gained seven decisions and suffered a single kayo.

The fight is to be televised (ABC) at 10 p. m. (EST).

The scheduled 10-rounder will be scored on the 10-point must system with the winner of each round getting 10 points and the loser nine or less.

First Prize For Beagle Owned By Snow Hill Man

Contentnea Hoby, a 13 1/4 inch year-old male beagle, owned by Jon Exum of Snow Hill took first prize in the 15 inch class at the Virginia Association Derby Winners Stake held Sunday, April 12 on the Old Dominion Club Grounds at Richmond.

The Va. Association Beagle Club comprises eight affiliate clubs throughout Virginia and the Rocky Mount area of North Carolina. Dogs winning in these associate member club trials qualify to compete in the final winners stakes each spring.

Winning is nothing new for the famed beagle as he took first prize at the Colonial Club trials at Newport News, Va. on April 5th. He then went on to take first prize at the championship state at Richmond the following Sunday.

This gives Hoby a couple of firsts in his two starts in field competition. Hoby was handled by the professional handlers duo of Beryl Bishop and G. E. May of Franklin, Va. A Bishop and May owned beagle took second prize in the 15 inch class and fourth in the thirteen inch class.

Honor Baseball Coach Friday

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina Baseball Coach Walter Rabb will be honored here Friday as the 1959 winner of the Will Wynne Award.

Rabb, a former professional baseball player, will receive the award at a luncheon. The award is given annually by the Raleigh chapter of the Hot Stove League for outstanding service to baseball.

A NEW MYSTERY The COUNT of 9 by A. A. FAIR (Erle Stanley Gardner)

CHAPTER 7

"Now what in the world would that be doing in here?" said Carl X. Bedford, gazing incredulously at Dean Crockett's blowgun.

"That's the point," I said. "What in the world would it be doing in here?"

It was well over five feet long, of black, hard wood that was like iron. It had been heated, rubbed and polished until the thing looked like metal. I tilted it up to the light, and the interior of the blowgun was a smooth, polished tube as brilliant as glass.

I stood the blowgun in the corner against the racks, screwed the cap back on the flagpole, which was now much lighter than the other flags, and put the flag back in the rack. I picked up the blowgun and said, "Well, thanks a lot for the interview."

"Here, wait a minute," Bedford said. "Where do you think you're coming with that blowgun?"

"Eventually," I said, "I'm going to return it to its owner."

"How do you know who its owner is?" he demanded.

"I know the same way you do. It's Crockett's blowgun."

"Well, I'll do the returning, Mr. Lam. That happens to be club property," he said.

"I'll return it," he said.

He came forward and stood hunking over me. "That's what you think!" he said, his eyes angry. "Give me that blowgun."

I said, "You can probably take it away from me, but when you do, I'll step over to that phone and call the police."

"I don't think Mr. Crockett would want any publicity about it."

"The way for Mr. Crockett to avoid publicity," I said, "is to have me return the blowgun and you keep your mouth shut."

"What do you mean by that crack?"

I said, "That blowgun was stolen. I'm commissioned to recover it. That's why I came here in the first place."

"You . . . you . . ."

I took out a leather folder and showed him my card certifying that I was a duly licensed private detective.

"Satisfied?" I asked.

He kept batting his eyes. "You're a detective?"

"Yes."

"I . . . I never would have thought it."

I didn't say anything.

"You had me fooled."

"Perhaps you'd like to tell me how it happened that you took that blowgun from Crockett's penthouse last night?" I asked.

"I didn't take it."

I grinned at him, a sort of knowing leer that I thought the occasion called for.

"I assure you, Mr. Lam, that I know nothing of it. I was presented with the flag as secretary of the club, and I took the flag to have it properly inscribed with a brass nameplate and placed in the rack."

"Why don't you and I have a nice little talk?" I said.

"What do you mean, a talk?"

"You wouldn't like to have this racket exposed, would you?"

"What do you mean, a racket?"

"Ever show your books to the income tax department?" I asked.

"Certainly not. Why should we?"

"You're a profit-making corporation."

"Indeed we are not, Mr. Lam. We're incorporated as a nonprofit corporation for the purpose of promoting international good will and understanding."

I grinned at him. "That last is what I really wanted to know."

"What last?"

"That you're incorporated as a nonprofit corporation. Now, I'll tell you what happens. You've got a membership list of eight or ten individuals; probably no more than that. You have a lot of honorary members who are nothing more or less than suckers. Your active members donate large sums of money to the club. The club, in turn, finances their expenses when they go on trips."

"Take Dean Crockett, for instance. He wants to go to Borneo. He has his yacht, his photographer, his public relations man, his wife and four or five guests. If he went there and charged it as a pleasure expedition, the expense would be prohibitive even for a man of his wealth. By the time he paid the expenses and then earned enough to pay those expenses, and then paid income tax on the money he'd spent on the trip, he'd be broke.

"But he makes a donation to the club of fifty thousand dollars, then the club turns around and sponsors an expedition by Crockett to Borneo. Crockett comes back and gives the club a flag, and a duplicate print of colored motion pictures taken on the trip."

"He also has his photographer prepare a scrapbook dealing with the trip, and that is filed in the archives of the club. He submits an expense account, fifty thousand, six hundred and seven dollars."

"Crockett doesn't report getting expenses of the trip as income because the club simply paid his expenses. On the other hand, he does report the fifty-thousand-dollar donation to the club as being a tax-exempt donation."

"In that way, a group of millionaire members manage to take their hunting trips, keep their yachts up and take their friends around the world all on a tax-deductible basis."

"I even suppose that the shipping Dean Crockett gave last night for his friends was termed a lecture on behalf of international good will, trying to promote an understanding between the social elite of this city and the savage tribes of Borneo. You'll be paying the caterer's bill, and Crockett will make a donation to cover."

Bedford looked at me with consternation stamped all over his face. "Who . . . who are you working for?"

"Right at the moment I'm working for Dean Crockett."

"Well, you don't act like it."

"I'm working for the guy on a special mission." I told him. "I was hired to get the blowgun back. I've got it."

"All this other stuff I'm telling you I'm throwing in gratuitously to impress upon you that you don't want to monkey with me because if you do, this whole racket is going to get in the newspapers. And if the racket gets in the newspapers, you'd lose a very soft job."

He stood there blinking that over.

"Good morning, Mr. Bedford," I said, taking the blowgun.

He took in a deep breath. "Good morning, Mr. Lam," he said, bowing formally.

I walked out, taking the blowgun with me.

Had Right Tune But Mixed Up

MAQUOKETA, Iowa (AP) — George Davis of Maquoketa, served with the Navy at Norfolk, Va., sent a tape-recorded greeting from his family to relatives here.

Davis and his 5-year-old son Ricky sang "Old McDonald Had a Farm." Two-year-old Gina sang "Jesus Loves Me." She made it through the first verse all right. But when it came to the chorus, she used her own version: "Yes, Jesus loves me. . . yes, Jesus loves me. . . E-I, E-I, O."

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market moved closer to its record high in fairly active trading early this afternoon.

The advance was substantial on average but showed a few soft spots.

Gains of fractions to a point or a bit more were the general rule for key stocks. Small losses showed in several sections of the list.

As American Telephone shareholders met for their biggest meeting of all, AT&T stock rose fractionally to 250 1/4, a high since 1930, then traded unchanged.

The lively electronics and rocket fuel group showed gains of 4 for Zenith and Thiokol and about a point each for Philco and Radio Corp.

Polaroid added more than 2. DuPont rose more than 3 in continued response to its improving financial picture.

Ayden Jaycees Elect Officers

W. M. McLAWHORN, president

AYDEN—Ayden Jaycees elected W. M. "Bill" McLawhorn their new president at the regular meeting last night.

Other officers elected for the coming year were: first vice president, Boyd Elliot; second vice president, John Nobles; state director, Bill Stroud; secretary, Tommy Craft; and treasurer, William Earl Stocks.

Also elected at the meeting were four directors for the local club. These included Jerry Britt, Bill Phillips, Carroll McLawhorn, and Tom Wheless.

Two town commissioners, Harry Mumford and Ross Pensing, explained the new city manager form of government to the group.

The new city manager, Bill Pormythal, was voted in as a new member at the meeting. Also accepted into the membership was Thomas Heath.

Larry Alexander, past president, was selected as business manager for "Miss Pitt County," Ann Melon.

property owners. The petition says the property owners will tap on to the water line when it is available.

The property owners would have to pay a double tapping fee because the area is outside the city limits.

Bloxam said he had no recommendation last night since another subdivision in the area is under consideration. In addition, he said, city officials are to meet with highway officials concerning a feeder highway in the area to carry N. C. 43 traffic. Such a route would affect the location of the water lines.

The superintendent said those questions should be cleared up within the next couple of weeks.

Commissioners also heard a recommendation from Commission member Charles Horne that a set amount be included in next year's budget for the proposed sewage disposal plant.

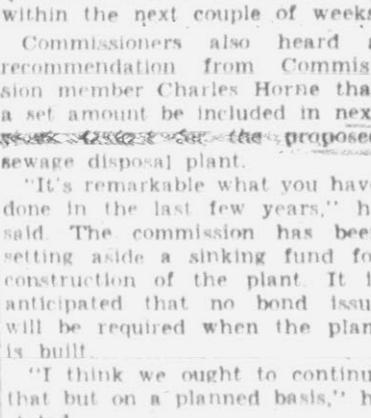

"It is remarkable what you have done in the last few years," he said. The commission has been setting aside a sinking fund for construction of the plant. It is anticipated that no bond issue will be required when the plant is built.

"I think we ought to continue that but on a planned basis," he stated.

The commission retained John C. Proctor to audit the Utilities books. Proctor offered to do the audit for $825 which is the same fee he charged last year.

On recommendation of Commissioner John Clark the Utilities Commission decided to take a tour of the plant on the afternoon prior to the May meeting. They also accepted a recommendation from Horne that the tour become an annual affair to be made at the May meeting each year.

The commissioners will gather at the plant on May 12 for the tour. They will attend a luncheon following the tour and hold the regular meeting following the luncheon.

C-of-C Resolution Calling For New School Of Nursing Sent Agencies

The Chamber of Commerce has sent a resolution to State agencies calling for the establishment of a School of Nursing at East Carolina College.

The resolution was forwarded to the Advisory Budget Commission, Joint Appropriations Committee, the governor and the county's legislative delegation in the General Assembly.

"The acute shortage of nurses and lack of training facilities for preparing qualified and trained personnel to provide adequate care for hospital patients constitute a real problem," the resolution said. "The location of East Carolina College in the City of Greenville makes it economically feasible for many Eastern North Carolina young women interested in nursing as a career to register in and attend this institution of higher learning for professional preparation."

"East Carolina College has proposed the offering of its facilities for a nursing curriculum and the providing for the housing and instruction of the student nurses. "The program of training offered at East Carolina College in a School of Nursing will help to meet the serious problem of the shortage of nurses."

For those reasons the resolution said, "The Greenville Chamber of Commerce heartily endorses the proposed establishment of a School of Nursing at East Carolina College and joins in respectfully requesting the governor, the Advisory Budget Commission, and the Joint Appropriations Committee to make available funds to establish and operate this facility as a part of East Carolina College on a permanent basis."

Demand Share

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — A group of West Coast dock workers Tuesday demanded a share of every dollar saved by employers through automation.

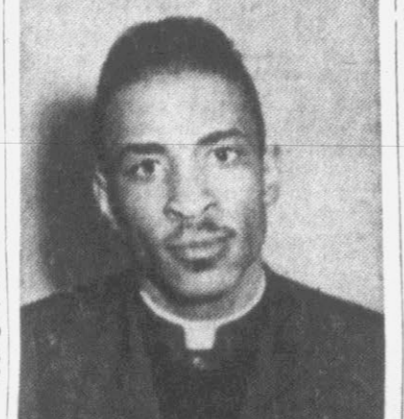

The demand was made by a caucus of longshoremen, shipping clerks and walking bosses represented by the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union. They asked that it be included among the union's proposals in impending negotiations with the Pacific Maritime Assn., the employers' organization, on a new contract.

Continue Probe Of Man's Death

Investigation into the death of a Negro man found Monday morning at 1214 S. Pitt St. is continuing today according to officers.

Coroner E. W. Harvey said this morning there had been no further developments in the case.

Willie D. Harris was found dead in the back yard of his house, by his wife, early Monday morning. A preliminary autopsy report showed Harris' death was due to a fractured skull.

Jack Boone, head football coach at East Carolina College, will be guest speaker tomorrow at the meeting of the recently-organized Touchdown Club. The meeting of the club will be held at 12:30 at Respass Bros.

Platform Rides On Air Cushion

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the House Space Committee took a ride—about an inch off the ground—on a flying platform which one colleague suggested could make the nation's highways obsolete.

Rep. Overton Brooks (D-La.) got onto the rectangular-shaped metal device at the conclusion of a committee hearing Tuesday and, at the touch of a switch, began skimming around just off the floor.

Spacecrafts Inc. of Washington described the platform as an experimental version of its Hydro Air Vehicle which it said is capable of moving over both water and ground at heights up to a few inches.

Carl W. Bollum, Spacecrafts president, said his firm is ready to begin production of more elaborate vehicles capable of speeds up to 100 miles an hour and designed for both military and civilian use.

He said his company hopes to have both commercial and sports vehicles available for sale to the public within 18 months.

Pumps force air under high pressure into a pan-shaped device under the vehicle.

The air then is leaked out around the bottom of the vehicle, creating what Bollum called an air cushion that pushes the craft off the ground. An airplane-type propeller provides the propulsion.

Aussie Premier Will Visit U.S.

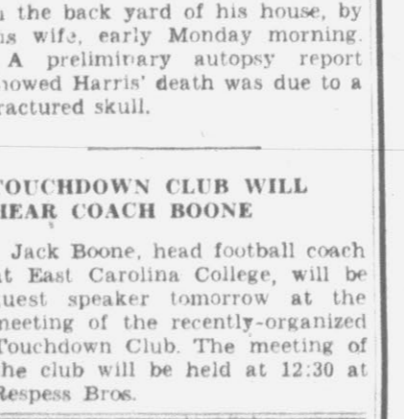

CANBERRA, Australia (AP) — Australian Prime Minister Robert Menzies plans to visit Washington May 22 to discuss foreign and financial matters with President Eisenhower.

Menzies also will confer with Canadian Prime Minister John Diefenbaker in Ottawa beginning May 21, and after the Washington visit will hold discussions with British Prime Minister Macmillan in London.

Cancer Canvass Set This Week

The Pitt County Unit of the American Cancer Society will complete the house-to-house canvass in Greenville this week, however, the canvass for the county will continue throughout the month.

There are over 200 volunteer workers in the City alone, and they will leave educational literature on cancer at each house. In the event, however, that anyone does not get this material, they may contact Mrs. John Biggs, the Executive Secretary for the Pitt Unit and she will see that material is sent.

Volunteer workers will return all materials and contributions to their Area Chairman who in turn will make their report to Mrs. C. L. Lupton, City Chairman.

Area chairmen for the house-to-house campaign in Greenville are: Mrs. Lee Folger, Mrs. M. E. Gardner, Mrs. Paul Harris, Mrs. Duke Andrews, Mrs. Ralph Heidenreich, Mrs. Helen Sermons, Mrs. Thomas Eidson, Mrs. H. L. Ormand, Mrs. D. L. Harrell, Mrs. Joe Miller, and Mrs. L. E. Ward.

Mrs. Percy Cox, Mrs. Howard T. Waldrop, Mrs. S. T. White II, Mrs. P. B. Boyd, Mrs. Bill Williams, Mrs. Sherman Parks, Mrs. Wynne Baker, Mrs. J. R. Carrington, Mrs. Bill Cannon, Mrs. James Smith, Ms. Marvin Buck, Mrs. R. R. Ross, and Mrs. A. A. Hines.

New Candidates Enter Farmville Election Race

FARMVILLE—Two new candidates for seats on Farmville's Board of Commissioners have paid filing fees and entered the town's election race which will be settled in municipal elections May 5.

Howard D. Moye, a farm operator, and W. R. Duke, an automobile dealer, are the new candidates. Neither has been in a political race previously.

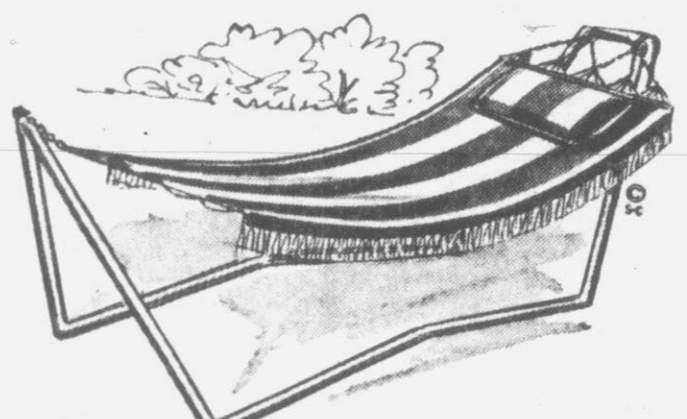

Other candidates seeking seats on the five-member board are incumbents Frank K. Allen, John D. Dixon and W. C. (Lum) Wooten, and newcomers Cedric Davis, W. E. (Will) Joyner and Oliver Murphy.

Andy Martin of the Farmville Town Clerk's office said this morning that Mayor Charles S. Edwards is still the only candidate who has officially filed for the town's top job. Former Mayor O. G. Spell has announced he will run but has not yet paid his filing fee.
