Henderson's Violence-Torn 5-Month Strike Ends

HENDERSON, N.C. (AP) — A sudden, mighty cheer rose from scores of throats. Bitter tensions evaporated in a giddy whirl of joy. Henderson's violence-wracked five-month textile mill strike was ended.

Monday morning. What it did mean, according to Payton's remarks, is that strikers will make up the second and third shifts that President John D. Cooper Jr. of the company plans soon to resume.

meeting would not be just a formality. He told newsmen, however, "we are pleased to have been able to work out an agreement which we believe will be satisfactory to both parties and bring an end to the bitter struggle."

"We are very hopeful the wounds occasioned by the strike will soon be healed. We have pledged full cooperation to the company in bringing this about at the earliest possible moment."

A newsman, talking to Payton in the joyous din outside the mill office, asked, "Who won the strike?" Payton answered: "I don't think it's the kind of situation that can be said has been won by anyone, anyone than you can say a war has been won."

Paroles System Biggest 'Gripe' In Prison Revolt

EDITOR'S NOTE: Keith Fuller, Associated Press bureau chief in Denver in charge of AP operations in Colorado, Wyoming and Montana, was one of three newsmen who met with convicts inside the Montana prison Friday in an attempt to end the riot.

By KEITH FULLER DEER LODGE, Mont. (AP) — The prisoners we interviewed blamed the Montana parole system for the riot. They called it their No. 1 gripe and one which left them without hope.

George Alton, doing 15 years for burglary after a string of other offenses and conceded to be one of the riot ringleaders, made the unqualified statement that the inability to get parole, and what he called "the injustice in granting paroles," was the big reason for the assault at the prison.

Alton acted strangely, appeared incoherent and uncoordinated. He complained that he had not slept the previous day and blamed lack of rest for the loss of the ability "to think straight."

Registered Gilts Go To Thirteen 4-H Boys

Thirteen 4-H boys received one registered gilt each from the FCX Pig Chain this morning. Assistant County Agent Bob King distributed the gilts.

The assistant County agent described the project as a profitable one for the 4-H boys. The 13 members to receive the pigs this year is an increase over last year. That is probably due to the "increased interest in swine in Pitt County," King said.

Dalai Lama Accuses Red China Of Violating Pledge

TEZPUR, India (AP)—The Dalai Lama today accused the Chinese Communists of destroying Tibetan monasteries, killing lamas and sending monks into labor camps.

Breaking traditional silence, the Dalai Lama charged in a 1,200-word statement that the Chinese Communists had broken their 1951 promise to respect Tibetan Autonomy.

"By the end of 1955," he said, "a struggle had started in the Kham province, and this assumed serious proportions in 1956. In the subsequent struggle the Chinese armed forces destroyed a large number of monasteries. Many lamas were killed and a large number of monks and officials were taken and employed on the construction of roads in China, and the interference in the exercise of religious freedom increased."

The Dalai Lama issued a statement denouncing the Communists on arriving in this tea-growing town and declared he came to India of his "own free will." He slipped out of his palace in Lhasa a month ago to seek refuge in India.

Red China's Premier Chou En-lai was still insisting today that the youth revered as "the living Buddha" had been kidnapped by Tibetan rebels. He expressed hope he would return to his capital in Lhasa.

Chou spoke before the Red China Parliament and apparently was unaware of the Dalai Lama's statement for he charged again the Tibetan ruler was a captive of rebels. The Dalai Lama was smiling and waved to crowds on his journey to Mussoorie, his home-in-exile north of New Delhi.

In a 1,200-word statement he firmly denied the Communist claims he was kidnapped by "reactionary elements" leading the Tibetan rebellion.

OUR FIRST PAIR OF SHOES A great king, so the legend goes, once stepped on a thorn in his garden. In a rage he ordered his entire kingdom covered with leather. His wise prime minister suggested, "let me cover your feet with leather, and wherever you go you will be protected." And so the first pair of shoes was made! The little fellow who wears these shoes has a long way to travel. His journey through life will not be free of thorns. And he'll need more than shoes to make that journey! He'll need to develop a spiritual fiber which will strengthen his character. A man can't carpet the whole world—but he can acquire the faith and courage which will enable him to climb life's most rugged trails. The Church brings such qualities to the life of man. The Church points the way to happy wholesome living—for the grown-up with the burdens of life on his shoulders—and for the little tot in his first pair of shoes!

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

'La Fiesta Pan Americana'

By CATHERINE MOORE
Teenage Writer

Last night the Spanish classes of Senora Elizabeth L. Mims turned the high school gymnasium into a land of Pan American rhythms, dances and of Spanish speeches as they observed Pan American Day (actually Tuesday) with "La Fiesta Pan Americana." This included a dance from 7:30-9:30 p.m., followed by a floorshow.

During the floorshow, four tourists saw the Latin American celebration of the day, which began when Robert Taft, dressed as "Uncle Sam" and serving as master of ceremonies, strode in and told the spectators of the fiesta's significance.

"Uncle Sam" then introduced August H. Laube, chorus director, and the Spanish Chorus; James E. Rodgers, band director; and the orchestra; Jasper Jones, piano accompanist; and Lib Rogers, who taught the students all of the dances.

Howard Garner, Joe Moye and Billy Brown joined Robert and they sang two songs in Spanish, as Howard played his guitar.

The Spanish Chorus sang "La Cucaracha" as Laube directed. Two couples—Charles Taft and Linda Davenport and C. J. Harris and Barbara Gilliam—followed, dancing the samba.

Jimmy Eatmon narrated the next number, presented by the Latin class of Mrs. Evelyn Moye, which told of Julius Caesar's life. Even tragic or sad incidents became amusing for the audience by the use of short parts of various popular songs whose words related themselves to the point Jimmy had just made.

A spotlight turned on a white sheet stretched on a frame, behind which were Latin students, formed silhouettes of those students as they illustrated parts of Jimmy's talk with tableaux.

Following the Latin number, eight girls, led by Lib Rogers, performed a modern dance number. This group included Julie Dodson, Lee Lang Harrell, Linda Harris, Mary May, Joanne Tyson, Alvin Bass, Lynda Hunning, and Lois Sermons.

After the chorus sang "El Rancho Grande" Janice Bentley and Mack Mackenzie and Clara Fave Crawford and Lester Brown danced the cha-cha.

Laura Gurganus and Craig Worthington then sang the soprano and bass parts, respectively, of "La Golondrina" during a balcony scene.

Myra Hathaway and Bernie Morris and Ann Valwright and Jack Barnhill mombóed and the chorus again sang, this time "Chiapanecas."

Once again dancing returned as Kathryn Oakes and John Latsche and Frances Cozart and Frankie Saied captured the spotlight with a rumba.

A trio — Betty Jean Hoell, Ann Avery, and Ann Baker—turned the audience's attention back to music as they sang "Brazil."

Donna Day Bisette and Erkie Duff then did a love scene on a park bench, during which embarrassed looks and actions from the two "lovers" — their raised eyebrows, and their frequent references to "lunar" — sent the audience into peals of laughter, even though most could not understand the Spanish dialogue.

The chorus returned to the program with "Cielito Lindo," after which Judy Tucker and Jan Vincent and Mildred Coleman and George White performed a tango.

Donna Kay Cain and Bill Clapp performed the final dance of the night, the Jarabe Tapatio—the Mexican Hat Dance, Mexico's national dance.

James E. Rodgers led a small orchestra as they entered the floorshow with a rhythmic South

American number; the Spanish chorus sang the final number, "Adios Muchachos."

In his final speech "Uncle Sam" turned the spotlight on Mrs. Mims and asked her to stand as they recognized her for all of her hard work to make this year's fiesta a success.

He then ended the fiesta with "Adios, amigos, hasta luego."

During the dance, the Spanish students sold drinks and food in the concession stand. They cleared approximately $20.00 which they will use along with the money collected for admissions to buy Spanish textbooks.

Mrs. J. Knott Proctor, chairman, Jack Whichard, and Mrs. Maude Bowen judged the costumes for authenticity and picked the winners, whom Mrs. Proctor announced at the beginning of the floorshow.

Winners included Bill Clapp, best costume; Donna Day Bisette, best girl's costume; and Ed Smoot, best boy's costume. Nearly all attending high school students wore costumes.

Mrs. Proctor and Whichard formerly studied Spanish under Mrs. Mims.

Classes Hear Speakers
Recently Robert Roebuck, student teacher, arranged for three teachers to speak to the sophomore Introduction to Business class of Mrs. Ruth T. Bing. J. Knott Proctor, postmaster; Joseph Dudley, local superintendent of mails; and Walter G. Smith, agent for the Railway Express Company 418, talked.

Proctor gave a detailed explanation of the postal system, while Dudley explained the inside work at the post office and instructed students on the proper use of the post office to improve its function. Smith spoke of railroad express and how it operates and the various forms of shipping. He organized the advantages of shipping, also.

All gave the class sample papers and forms and encouraged them to ask questions.

Of these speakers, Orren E. Dowd, principal, states, "Anything we can do for public relations makes school more meaningful."

Mrs. Bing believes, "These men gave the students a real insight into the workings of local businesses."

Shouldn't Bypass Court Reforms

With the passing of each legislative day of the current session of the General Assembly, it becomes more apparent that nothing may be done this year about the needed court reforms proposed for North Carolina.

If the legislature bypasses the court measures—which at the moment seems entirely likely—it will be shirking the responsibility for providing North Carolina with a better system of courts than it now has. And that is something desperately needed by this state, particularly as it applies to courts below the Superior Court level.

Between the end of the 1957 legislature and the beginning of the current session, literally thousands of manhours went into the study of the state's system of courts by members of both the N. C. Bar Association committee (the Bell Committee) and the commission appointed by Gov. Hodges to study needed constitutional changes for the state (the Bryant Commission).

While recommendations of these two groups pertaining to the courts appear in conflict at certain points, both groups found from their study that court reforms are needed in North Carolina. The basic differences between recommendations of the two groups is how best to bring about these reforms.

It will indeed be a disgrace to North Carolina if the legislature now decides it is just too much trouble to wade through the recommendations of these groups and weigh carefully the need for court reforms. And

No Organization To Call The Shots

By LYNN NISBET

ORGANIZATION — A group of men were talking the other night about the lack of cohesive organization, subject to controlling influence of one man or a small group, in both the Democratic and Republican parties in North Carolina. The conversation was sparked by the current situation with respect to selection of a judge for the Eastern District Federal Court to succeed retiring Judge Don Gilliam.

That being a Presidential appointment it is assumed that the appointee will be a Republican. Efforts to obtain something approaching unanimous endorsement of any person failed. Apparently Julian T. Gaskill of Goldsboro, district attorney, was the choice of a majority of party leaders in the east. But William E. Cobb of Morganton, state chairman, presumably with concurrence of J. E. Boyhill of Lenoir, national committeeman, recommended Algernon Butler of Clinton. Gaskill is a relative newcomer to statewide prominence in the party councils, while Butler and his family have been stalwarts for three generations.

Question is whether in recommending Butler the chairman and committeeman spoke authoritatively for the "organization" or for themselves as individuals? Comparable situations have arisen several times in the Democratic party, although mostly on lower level, when appointments to positions of prestige and power were made without consulting and sometimes over protest of party leaders.

Incapable conclusion is that neither major party has an organization that is accepted or recognized as controlling with respect to relations among the average citizen affiliates of the party.

"DIS-" or "UN-" — Conceding that there is presently lack of cohesive controlling organization, the debate got to the question of whether the term "disorganized" or "unorganized" would be most appropriate for the status quo. There is distinction without much real difference in meaning of the words. "Disorganized" has the connotation of having been organized and then broken up, while "unorganized" implies there has never been a real organization.

Consensus among the group discussing the situation was that "unorganized" is the appropriate designation. That verdict was reached despite the fact that the Republican party in North Carolina has a more complete organization "on paper" than any other Southern state and the Democratic party here has been commended by national leaders for having the most "perfect organization" of any state in the Union.

Both parties have elaborately written Plans of Organization, setting out in detail the functions of each level from the voting precinct to the state committee and the state convention, and the relationship of the state to the national organization.

Despite the fine writing in these plans (or maybe because of it) no organization or person in North Carolina has ever exercised as much controlling influence as has Harry Byrd in Virginia, Sam Rayburn and Lyndon Johnson in Texas, "Soapy" Williams in Michigan and the Long family in Louisiana — to mention just a few of the current bosses, and skipping old-timers like Hanna in Ohio, Penrose in Pennsylvania and Kelly in New Jersey. It would appear that organizational control is in direct relation to virtual dictatorship and loses force when dependence is upon a plan of organization instead of one boss.

ILLUSTRATED — This situation is well illustrated by current developments in the embryonic campaign for Democratic nomination for Governor next year. Time was when few men had temerity to announce as probable candidates for high office in North Carolina without consulting, even if they did not get endorsement, Senator Simmons or Max Gardner. There are no such inhibitions or limitations now.

There is some evidence that Governor Luther Hodges, like all of his predecessors, would like to have the chief executive who follows him sympathetic with his ideas and philosophies. But Governor Hodges like other recent Governors has not sought to build a political organization subservient to his wishes.

Terry Sanford, first avowed candidate and who has priority claim on much of the personal following of the late Kerr Scott, does not have up to now a very cohesive organization.

John D. Larkins Jr., avowed and actively campaigning candidate, is primarily an "organization man." As former Democratic State chairman and present national committeeman, he has close contact with county organizations throughout the state. He has worked with them for years, and reports of souls who have made some surveys for this column are that preponderant majority of the county chairmen and other recognized local party leaders are in his camp.

Other potential candidates — Luther Barnhardt, Lieutenant Governor; Edwin Gill, State treasurer; Beverly Lake, champion of segregation — have substantial following. None up to now has "lock" on the nomination. Because of the nucleus of Scott support on the one hand and local chairmen support on the other, it appears now that Sanford and Larkins face easier jobs in perfecting state-wide organization than any of the others.

that is exactly what the General Assembly will be doing if it fails to provide for consideration of these recommendations either during the current session or at a special session designated by the General Assembly before it adjourns.

If, in the minds of the legislators, they feel the court reform and other constitutional proposals can better be considered in a special session than in the current session, we see no objection to such a move. Without question, however, the legislature should not adjourn its current session without making some definite plans for considering the court and constitutional proposals.

To let the important matters of proposed court reforms and constitutional revisions become a dead issue without adequate legislative consideration would not be in keeping with the best interest of the people of North Carolina.

Everybody A Loser In The Henderson Strike

Settlement of the long and bitter textile strike in Henderson can only be viewed as a victory for both principals involved in the strike and likewise for the people of Henderson and the people of North Carolina.

The very fact the strike has been settled and people will be able to return to work is in itself the primary consideration.

Everybody lost because of the strike. The company, the workers in the mills, the other residents of Henderson because of the depressed economic situation resulting from more than 1,000 of its people being out of work and the violence which followed, and the people of North Carolina because of the bad publicity which resulted from the violence and bitterness that grew out of the long strike.

Even though the strike was settled last night and normal operations of the mills are expected to be restored next week, it will take years for the losses which resulted from the strike to be overcome.

Certainly Gov. Hodges is to be commended for the role he played in bringing about a settlement between union officials and management of the struck mills. Although the governor's first attempt to find common ground for a settlement between the principals appeared to fail, there can be no doubt now that the governor has worked continuously for settlement of the issues since he first intervened in negotiations. Had it not been for Gov. Hodges, the strike might have continued for many more weeks or months.

The strike was the kind of situation in which everyone involved—primarily or secondarily—lost. The settlement represents a victory only because it brings to an end the long bitter dispute which will rank as one of the worst of its kind in the history of the state.

America Can't Afford To Ignore The Threat

The nation wide civil defense test alert carried out yesterday and today will give top defense officials a fairly good idea of how well equipped the nation's civilian population is to cope with a real attack should one ever come.

The "real thing" is something everyone hopes will never happen. Yet, to ignore the fact that it might happen some day would be to leave ourselves vulnerable to the worst kind of disaster.

On the national level and on the local level throughout the country, civil defense teams went through their paces, and from available reports, the exercise was successful. It showed a reasonable degree of readiness to meet an emergency and it indicated a much greater degree of efficiency on the part of civil defense organization than was the case when the first nation wide alert was carried out six years ago.

Few people like even make-believe emergencies of this kind. The fact that they are carried out, however, strengthens the defense of the nation, gives the civilian population a greater chance for survival should an emergency ever arise, and at the same time lessens the possibility of an attack because our potential enemies realize we are prepared to cope with the consequences.

Castro Similar To Abdel Nasser

By WILLIAM RYAN
Some striking parallels between the two careers and personalities might well make one wonder: Is Fidel Castro a sort of Nasser of the Antilles?

The question is likely to occur to many who have the opportunity to see and hear the Cuban revolutionary leader on his current visit to the United States.

To suggest this casts no aspersions on the man who toppled an entrenched Latin American dictatorship against almost impossible odds. Egypt's Gamal Abdel Nasser, like Castro, is, to say the least, a remarkable man.

The following is true both of Cuba and Egypt: Before the revolution, the country was in the grip of a corrupt and often brutal regime. The revolution's victory was welcomed by a great preponderance of the thinking people in the Western World. It was considered a hopeful development, a chance that the lowly citizens so long abused and neglected at last could look forward to a decent break.

Like Nasser's, Castro's post-revolution approach to his monumental problems sometimes has seemed more emotional than practical. Indeed, even in his mannerisms, his gestures, his way of rolling his eyes heavenward, his eloquence and his personal charm, Castro inevitably reminds one strongly of Nasser.

Even Castro's stoutest supporters in the United States will admit, he has a Nasser-like inclination to put if the slightest doubt is cast upon his pronouncements or intentions.

Like Nasser, Castro came to power as a young man — very young for the job of coping with the vast complexities inherited from the corrupt old regime. As in Nasser's case, there is a suggestion of political immaturity in Castro's approach.

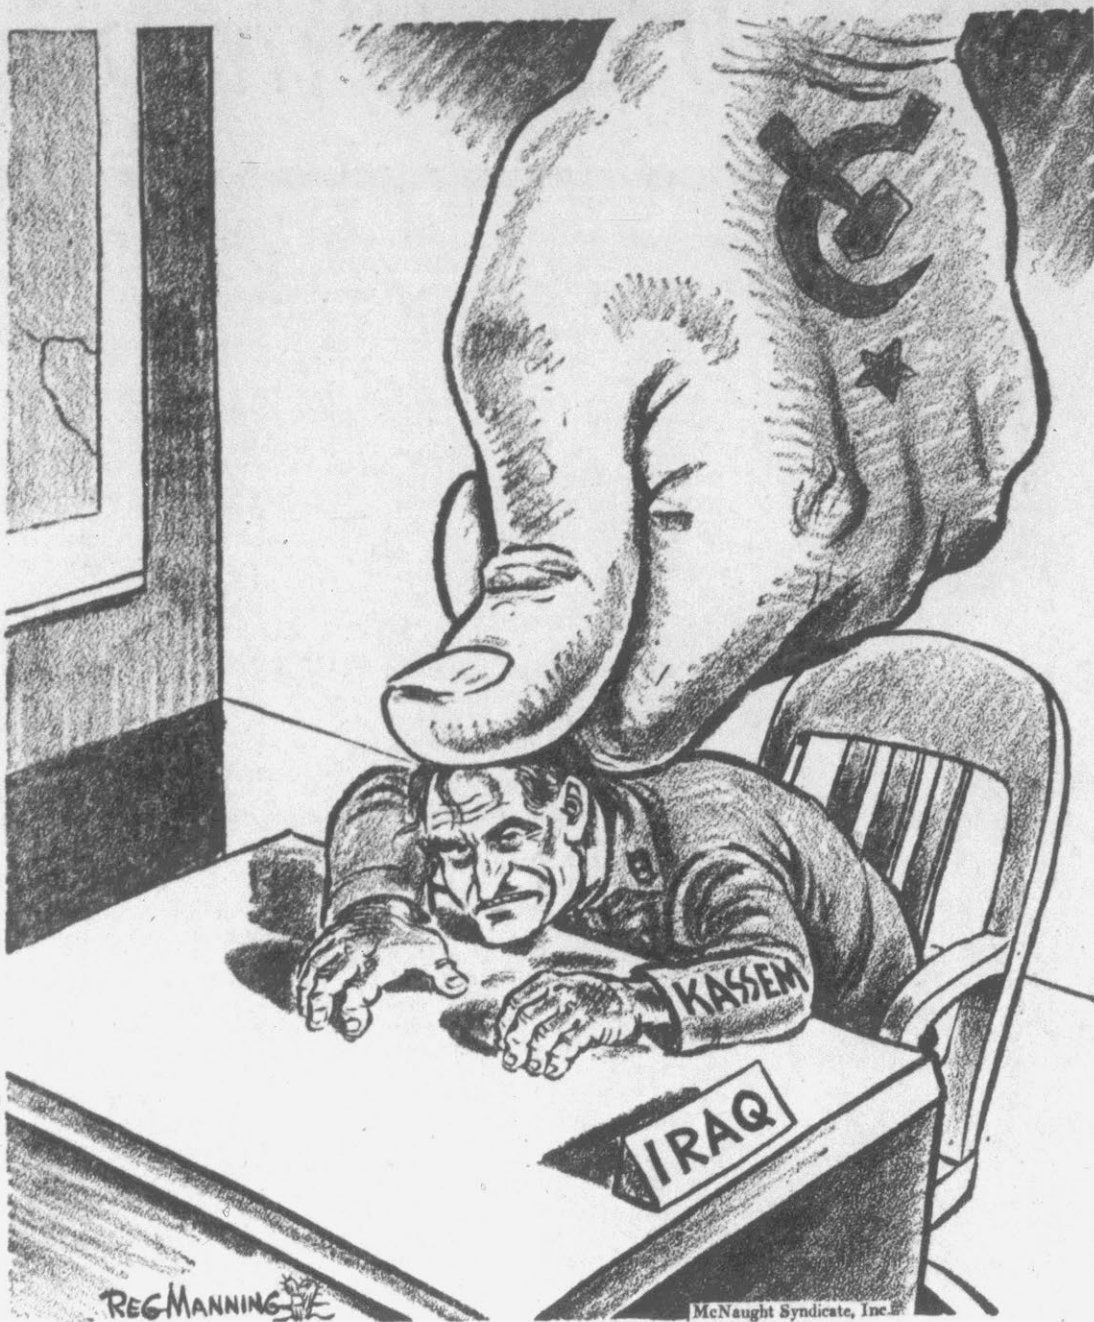

Castro even, has sounded like Nasser when he spoke loudly of neutrality in world affairs and of the "United States imperialists" whom he accused of profiting in his country at the expense of the population. Like Nasser, Castro even has hinted that if the United States annoys him sufficiently, he knows where to turn.

Nasser was not satisfied to develop his own revolution. He diverted and halted its more hopeful programs for the sake of interfering in the affairs of other Arab countries. He seemed to picture himself the liberator of a great area, much of which did not particularly want to be liberated.

It is to be hoped Castro will want to develop his own revolution. He has a great deal of revolution. It may be interrupted, perhaps set back many years if he chooses to encourage Cuban adventuring in the Caribbean and elsewhere in Latin America for the purpose of "liberating" areas which may not long for his own particular brand of liberation.

The Cuban situation is vastly unlike the Egyptian in this respect: Cuba, alongside of Egypt, is a fabulously rich land. If Castro's attempt at a social revolution should go the way of Nasser's, Castro will have far less excuse than Nasser had.

Rule Of Thumb

By DON SCHLIENZ

And Another Bit The Dust

Now about yesterday's civil defense alert... theoretically I'm dead or could be dead; so could be a number of other people in The Reflector building.

We didn't hear the siren. With windows closed and the clatter of various pieces of equipment in our ears, the siren just didn't have a chance to penetrate.

Of course, the siren was expected; the non-hearers were informed it went off on schedule; and there was a staffer on the job practically right beneath the siren. He heard it loud and clear.

As a matter of fact, the alert was heard by my Missus at home... maybe two miles away (as the crow flies).

Anyway, the mythical enemy obliterated The Reflector building (a natural target); and I went with it... theoretically speaking, of course.

It was something like playing Cowboys and Indians all over again. But behind it all, a much more significant-type game.

The story goes that a baby in the family had been fretting since the night before, and Mama decided there must be something wrong to upset the child.

Papa drove Mama and the babe to the doctor's office where an examination was conducted. On concluding, the doctor put away tongue-depressor, stethoscope and thermometer and opined:

"My guess is that he just feels lousy." Well, barring a little literary color on my part, that's close enough.

Not everybody gets four loads of topsoil on his birthday, so that makes me a sort of marked man.

The dirt has since been spread and sown with grass seed. The waiting for nature to do the rest has been fraught with impatience.

Even went so far as to remove the family's faithful power-mower from storage and put it in order for eventual use. Checked it out against some convenient weeds, but that isn't like mowing grass.

The waiting period has also been marked by the tracking of vast quantities of dirt in the house. It was shrugged off at first as all part of the game, but of late there's an impulse on sweeping to carry that dirt back to the front yard. It mounts up.

Meanwhile, we've spotted the first "hairs" of new grass. They were found after painstaking search, and greeted with an excited call to a neighbor.

Judy Williams, the girl-next-door who had been watching the search, asked "Did you find one?" which is the kind of query that dampens enthusiasm and raises doubts about grass seed, the season of spring, Nature, and the order of things.

Other Editors Saying... Landscape Of The Heart

(Greensboro Daily News)

About 40 years ago Irvin S. Cobb said, "All North Carolina needs is a good press agent."

Today North Carolina has as many press agents as Texas has oil wells. The press agents are doing all right.

But North Carolina does not have enough philosophers, poets and saints. It has been exporting far too many of the home-grown variety—beginning with Walter Hines Page.

Therefore it is good when a native-born philosopher comes home to give us of his wit and wisdom.

Gerald Johnson did just that in Elliott Hall at Woman's College Wednesday night. The occasion was the founding of a Friends of the Library for Woman's College. But Gerald Johnson's lecture, as usual, went far beyond the bounds of that mission.

The sage of Bolton Street came home to tell us that although man's knowledge of his universe has broken the bounds of outer space and pierced the heart of the atom, his knowledge about inner space—the landscape of the heart—leaves much to be desired. He would agree with Robert Oppenheimer that most of man's current knowledge about his universe was not in the textbooks when most mature men and women were in school; but then

Dr. Johnson would move on to explain that the secrets of honor, courage and love have been probed by man since the beginning of time. The problem of good and evil—the supreme issue of this or any other time—remains as challenging as ever.

But it has a new pertinence in a time of supreme danger, when man has forged weapons sufficiently powerful to destroy himself.

The average man today, Dr. Johnson concedes, cannot know much of the knowledge which concerns Dr. Oppenheimer. But in libraries, in books, in colleges and universities, he may still find knowledge of good and evil and how man has dealt with it in the past. And such knowledge is supremely important. If man has triumphed in the past, he can do it again.

That was the message of a Tar Heel philosopher who went on from Riverton to Greensboro to Baltimore, thence to world fame.

Gerald Johnson is the nearest thing to a combination of Dr. Samuel Johnson, H.L. Mencken and Walter Hines Page North Carolina has produced in this century.

We are honored that he came—and does—come home often to give us in his cracker-barrel plain-talk, his courageously liberal cast of mind, a clear projection of the great issues of our time.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
COST OF ADMIRATION

What kind of "grown-up" folks do the young people admire?

Many would say that they admire most the good-natured, easy-going, tolerant, broadminded adults who take life easy themselves, and want life to be easy for everybody else.

But you are dead wrong, brother, if you think so. The people who are really admired by young and old alike are the people who are demanding — who toe the line themselves and make everybody else toe the line. The good-natured, easy-going person has nobody's respect, least of all the respect of young people. The type of person universally admired is the person who believes something and who stubbornly sticks to his beliefs and is demanding both on himself and on everybody else.

The thing everybody requires in exchange for his admiration, however, is that the admired person be sincere and just. Everybody hates a hypocrite and a

Hardly A Soft Type

WILLIAMS, Ariz. (AP)—Don't go around saying all modern businessmen are softies. Someone may bring up the Bill Williams Mountain Men.

The Mountain Men are an exclusive band of gent who punish themselves brutally just for fun to perpetuate the memory of the rugged trappers who carved an empire from the wilderness of the Old West.

For 51 weeks of the year they're doctors, judges or cafe owners. They live quietly in the Grand Canyon gateway town of Williams, which like their group—was named for a Bible-toting old trapper.

But late each winter they grow bushy beards, don buckskin clothing and give up comforts of home for a 5½-day, 165 mile horseback ride to Phoenix.

The trek is something of a publicity stunt with the ride timed to end at the Arizona State Fairground on opening day of the annual Phoenix Rodeo. But it's no last for a tenderfoot.

It's an overland trip through steep, cold mountains and parching desert. The parttime adventurers ride all day, cavort and spin tall tales far into the night and then try to catch a few winks in bedrolls thrown on the hard, rocky ground.

The Bill Williams Mountain Men have been making their ride for six years and only 29 starters have gone all the way.

The only non-Arizonan to stick the full distance is John F. Monroe, a 63-year old Milwaukee investment banker who did it this year.

Monroe quickly learned why so many who try it drop out along the way—saddle soresness.

"My face was badly sunburned when we reached Phoenix," he says. "But man, you ought to have seen the other end."

Few outsiders get invitations to join the mountain men on the trek. Monroe got his quite by chance.

"A year ago," he recalls, "my wife and I were driving through northern Arizona when we saw this weird mob of buckskin-clad riders. We thought they were a bunch of unemployed sheepherders."

"When we found out what they were doing, we got acquainted with them. Later they asked me to make this year's trip, and they probably were laying odds I wouldn't last."

The rub of the saddle isn't the only discomfort.

"Dropping down from the cold, wild country of 7,200 feet into the heat of the desert is a rugged ordeal," says Monroe. "And the rocks under your sleeping bag hardly equal the luxury of the Waldorf-Astoria."

"But the companionship of those men ranks as one of the great events of my life and made it all worthwhile."

The respect was mutual. Monroe's determination convinced the mountain men. They made him an honorary member.

The mountain men don't make excuses, try to horseback.

They're too sore from the one-way ride and too tired from four days and nights of whooping it up in Phoenix.

"A good vocabulary helps the individual in at least two important respects:

"1. Permits him to express himself clearly and without hesitation when talking with other people;

"2. Permits him to talk in plain language instead of resorting to profanity simply because he can't think of the right word to say."—Gastonia Gazette,

Uneasiness Behind The Boom

By ELMER ROESSNER

There's an undercurrent of uneasiness to the 1959 boom. It's a boom, all right. Employment is rising. Construction is increasing. The outlay for new plants and equipment this year is estimated at $32 billion, 4 per cent more than last year.

The gross national product appears to have regained the 1957 peak and, if it hasn't passed it in the first quarter, it probably will in the second.

Total personal income is setting new high marks. Farm income topped the 1952 high last year and may go higher this year. Corporate profits have recovered from the 1958 dip although they are still under the 1955 peak. Stocks, despite authoritative warnings that the market is dangerous for the un-knowing and for speculators, keep going up.

Suppose there are few strikes. Then all these manufacturers and others who have been building up inventories will slow down purchases. They will try to live off inventories a bit. Mark well the fact that in practically every recession manufacturers have ordered less than they used, drawing from inventories. That may have been a result of the recession rather than the cause, but no recession was ever cured until buying for inventory rose.

That was true in the 1958 recession as well as all previous ones. Suppose there are many strikes. Then manufacturers who still live off inventories and who still live sower of the strikers will fall sharply. It should be remembered that unemployment caused by strikes is just as harmful to the general economy as unemployment caused by lack of jobs.

HERE'S THE INSIDE DOPE ON NEW PRODUCT ITEMS

The following are some questions received from readers and my replies.

Question—How do you find out about new products? Answer: Mostly because manufacturers, their advertising agencies and their publicity men send me the facts. I also follow up leads in the trade press and attend trade shows as time permits.

Question: Is there any charge for mentioning the new products in your column? Answer: Never.

Question: Would you mention my company's new products? If they are newsworthy. Send the facts to me in care of this newspaper.

Question: You don't record all new products, do you? Answer: That would be impossible. I mention those of greatest interest to consumers and merchants and, occasionally, industrial products of broad application.

Question: Do you require samples? A: I mentioned a two-ton lift truck the other day. Does that answer your question?

And I can't use pictures; I do expect reasonably complete information; if a new product has been tested regionally before introduction I expect to be told; I expect complete addresses of both informants and manufacturers.

Chou En-Lai Tells China Hike Output By 40 Per Cent

TOKYO (AP) — Premier Chou En-Lai told Red China's working millions today they will be expected to boost industrial and agricultural production 40 per cent over 1958.

Addressing the opening session of the National People's Congress in Peiping, he said the 1959 goal for industry and agriculture is 287 billion yuan compared to last year's 205 billion.

Of this industry will be expected to reach 165 billion yuan and agriculture 122 billion, Chou declared.

China's masses doubled steel and iron production and made dramatic increases in agriculture during 1958.

Chou said that last year's "great leap forward" was a result of the victory of socialism and of the first five-year plan which ended in 1957.

He assailed American imperialism, which he said was attempting to nullify the nation's economic advance. The United States feared that Communist success would prompt the world to entertain doubts of the value of capitalism, he added.

At the same time, Chou replied to Western criticism that China's progress has been achieved at the expense of slave labor.

"They say there is slave labor in our country, but call it free labor when they make their people work like cows or horses for capitalists and landlords," he said.

The congress opened a 10-day session before more than 1,000 delegates from every part of the country.

This year's congress—a rubber-stamp Parliament—may be the most important in the 10-year history of the Communist republic.

It is expected to name a new president to succeed Mao Tse-tung, who retains, however, the all-powerful post of chairman of the Communist party.

Chou said this year's commodity retail sales have been fixed at 95 billion yuan, a 19 per cent increase over 1958.

(The yuan is valued at 2.3 to one U.S. dollar.)

He said that in an effort to speed the development of production 520 million tons of rail and shipping transportation will be placed at the disposal of agriculture.

This, he said, is a 36 per cent increase over the 380 million tons for this purpose last year.

Chou's address, some 30,000 words long, touched on "important home and foreign policies," Peiping radio said.

Chou said Red China will continue to give preference to the development of heavy industry. To this end raw materials and chemicals will be given a boost, with a stepped up tempo scheduled in the production of copper, sulphuric acid and electricity, he said.

Consumer's goods, at the same time, will be upped 34 per cent. China's millions will have more of the daily necessities they have lacked in the past, he promised.

Governor Lauds New Swift Plant

WILSON, N.C. (AP) — A modern meat packing plant here points the way for eastern North Carolina to shed its economic dependence on tobacco, Gov. Hodges declared today.

The governor joined President Porter M. Jarvis of Swift & Co., other top company officials, business and civic leaders of the area at a luncheon. It was part of an "open house" day at the new Swift beef and pork processing plant here.

A welcome to the company and praise for Wilson's industrial development efforts were in the governor's speech.

He described the plant as a challenge to eastern farmers to produce the livestock it needs. Already, Hodges said, company purchases indicate it will "live up to its estimate that it will contribute from 15 to 17 million dollars to the area economy annually in its purchases."

Farm income losses from a poor tobacco year in 1957 were recalled by the governor, in pointing up the value of the plant's economic boost.

"Tobacco is, and will remain for many years to come, the backbone of this state's economy, but we have learned the hard way that it is both desirable and necessary that we have other sources of income to depend upon when the tobacco crop has a bad year," Hodges said.

Sound industrial growth—especially in food processing—offers one good answer to this economic problem in eastern North Carolina," he added.

Girl Dies . . .

hand door of the wrecked auto. She was bleeding profusely from the nose and mouth and was having difficulty in breathing.

Rescue Squad members placed an airway in the victim's throat in order to open an air passage. However, by the time they placed the girl in the ambulance she had stopped breathing and they started giving her oxygen by means of a resuscitator. They were unsuccessful in their attempts to save the girl, however, and she was pronounced dead on arrival at the hospital.

An attending physician for the driver and other passenger said their injuries were not serious, only lacerations and bruises. However they will remain in the hospital until Monday for observation.

The car, according to Carr, was a total loss.

Officers stated investigation of the accident is incomplete.

The traffic death was the first of the year for Greenville and Pitt County.

Set Second Open House Sunday

A second open house will be held at the Central Fire Station and Rescue Building tomorrow from 12 noon until 6 p.m. Fire Chief George Gardner said this morning.

The chief said the open house is being held "for the people who couldn't come down last week because of the bad weather."

The new rescue building was dedicated in ceremonies last Sunday and open house was held at that time. However, a steady rainfall marred the day.

For that reason it was decided to hold open house again tomorrow. Rescue squad members will be on duty but there are to be no formal ceremonies. Both rescue and fire equipment will be on display.

Chief Gardner said the public is invited to drop in and inspect the station at any time.

"It's their building and their equipment and we are glad to be of service to them," he declared.

Tom Patterson Addresses Club

Exchange Tom Patterson was speaker at the club's weekly meeting last night. His program was a continuation of members presenting programs about their work or hobbies.

Mr. Patterson is an organic chemist at Dupont Daeron plant, and presented his program as a climax to "National Chemists' Week."

He brought out facts such as: North Carolina ranks 23rd in the nation as a chemical state, and that the chemical industry in this state produces about 11,000 products, with a revenue of $123 million. With his well prepared talk and with the aid of visual models, he demonstrated some of the basic organic compounds, with special emphasis on the poly compounds of nylon, orlon and dacron, produced by the Dupont company.

Club President John Hassell appointed J. W. Manning and Kathleen Purser Exchange club representatives on the Steering Committee of the 1959 Newcomers Party. He also announced that the district meeting this year would be held in Rocky Mount on Tuesday, May 12, and it will serve as our regular meeting for that week.

President Hassell recognized 13 members of the club who had perfect attendance the past quarter.

Bob Russ was a guest of the club.

Pitt Road-e-o Event Scheduled For Tomorrow

Twenty-six young drivers from Pitt County school will participate in the annual Teen-Age Road-e-o to be held at Tenck and Clark St. tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Chairman of the Jaycee-sponsored project Brooks Beddingfield, said the participants were chosen by scores made on a written examination given in each of the schools.

In the county driving contest, they will negotiate four driving tests. The tests are: straight line, serpentine curve, starting and stopping and parallel parking.

Winner of the county contest will win an expense paid trip to state Teen-Age Road-e-o where he will be a participant. The county winner will also receive a plaque and a tank of gas, wash job and lubrication job for his auto.

Second and third place winners will also be announced.

Ayden Revival Series To Conclude Sunday

Much interest has been shown in the Revival Services being held at the First Baptist Church this week. Speaker for the services is Dr. Millard R. Brown, Pastor of the First Baptist Church, Jacksonville, N.C. Song leader is J.C. Thomas, Minister of Music and Education at the First Baptist Church in Rutherfordton.

Sunday School officers and members are making special plans for all to be present Sunday Morning.

Men of the church have been assisting the visiting Revival Team and the Pastor Bennie Pledger in personal visitation. Attendance has been good and the Revival, which concludes Sunday Morning, promises to bring to those seeking "New Life For You," the theme of the Simultaneous Crusades being carried on by the Baptist Churches of this area.

VOA Requires A Lot Of Land

VOA TRANSMITTER, DELANO, CALIF. . . . 28 such antenna will be installed at two local transmitters.

VOA MASTER CONTROL PANEL IN WASHINGTON, D. C. . . . similar control consoles to be used in North Carolina.

OKINAWA RELAY BASE TRANSMITTING SITE MEGAWATT TOWERS . . . such relay stations will send local VOA transmissions.

The imaginations of Pitt and Beaufort Countians were stirred a couple of months ago with the announcement that two Voice of America transmitters and a receiving station would be constructed in this area at a cost of $26 millions.

Each of the transmitting sites will require approximately 2,600 acres of land. The areas have already been mapped out and property owners notified.

One of the transmitting sites will be located in Pitt County east of Shelmerdine in southeastern Pitt County. The other will be located in Beaufort County just across the Pitt line northeast of Pactolus. The receiving station will be located on a 500-acre site west of Greenville between the Falkland Highway and the Old Stantonsburg Road.

It will be some time before actual construction of the giant transmitters, described as "tremendously powerful" by the Office of Public Information, is begun.

However, these photos supplied by the Office of Public Information give some idea of what citizens of this area will see when the big installations are completed.

The picture in the upper left shows the Voice of America Domestic transmitter at Delano, Calif. curtain antenna networks. Approximately 28 of these antenna will be installed in the two local transmitter plants.

Directly beneath is a photo of the VOA master control panel at Washington, D.C. The picture gives an idea of the control consoles which will be installed in North Carolina.

And in the lower left corner of the page is the Okinawa Relay Base transmitting site megawatt towers. This station is typical of the relay bases that will receive and project farther the programs from North Carolina.

the curtain antenna networks at the Cincinnati, Ohio VOA transmitter. This station antenna network is also similar to the ones which will be used here.

The Pitt County transmitters will have a combined power of 4,800,000 watts and will be the most powerful VOA stations on the air.

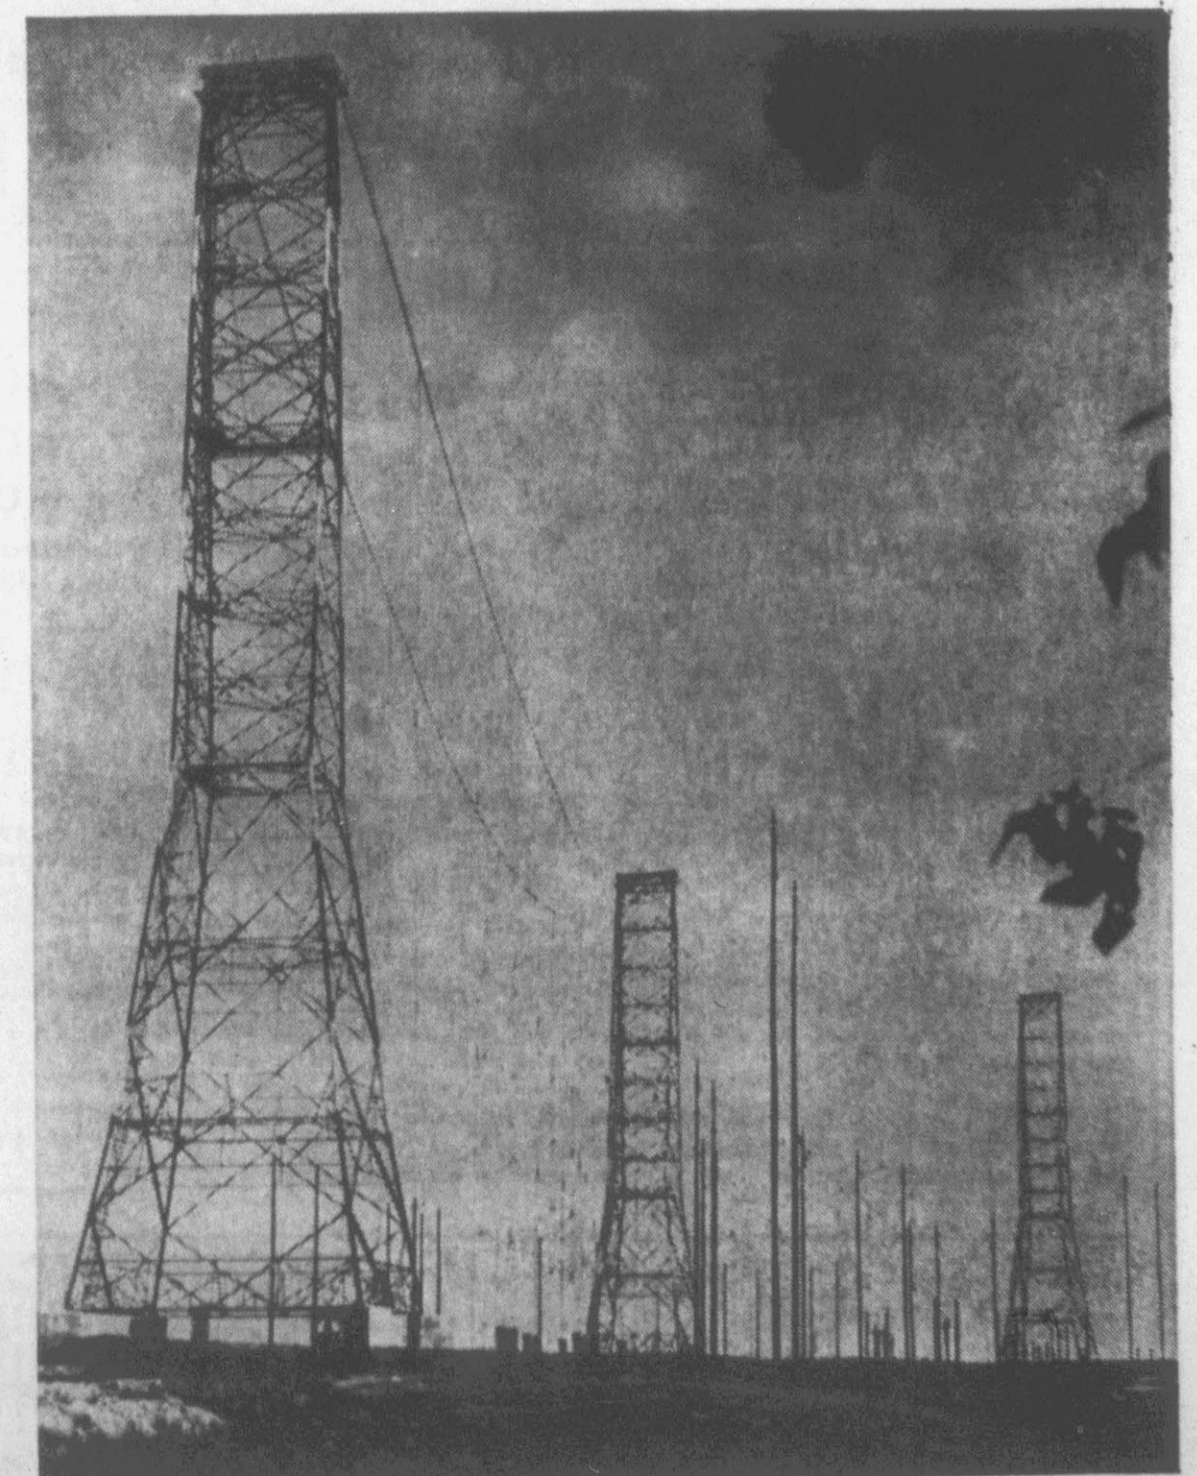

The four stations in New York and New Jersey which the local transmitters will replace have a combined power of 725,000 watts.

The programs which are to be beamed over the Pitt transmitters will originate in VOA studios in Washington, D.C. They will be carried by overland wires to the transmitters for beaming overseas.

Construction of the transmitters is expected to begin the latter part of this year.

After A Long, Tiring Week All In Favor Voted 'AYE'

By BUNNY HARRIS
Reflector Raleigh Bureau
RALEIGH — It was a long and tiring week on the legislative circuit and members of the Senate committee on cities, counties and towns were what one might say a little "punchy."
That is, they were ready to dispense with any and all business hurriedly under the leadership of their chairman, Sen. Cicero Yow of New Hanover — the routine broken only by occasional horse-play.
The first four or five bills followed the same pattern with Chairman Yow reading off the caption on the bill. Then:
"Move a favorable report."
"Second."
"All in favor say aye."
"AYE!"
Then came the bill introduced by Sen. S. Bunn Frink of Brunswick to fix the Corporate limits of the Town of Long Beach.
The committee grew puzzled, especially Sen. John C. Kesler of Rowan.

"Long Beach," he said, "I thought that was washed away. I went down there and all I saw was a portable bath tub sticking out of the sand."
It has been a long week on the legislative circuit and the weekend was drawing nigh.
"If he wants it, it's good," Kesler decided.
"Move a favorable report."
"Second the motion."
"All in favor say aye."
"AYE!"
The committee on constitutional amendments would be meeting down the hall in a few minutes and some of the members had to attend that. Thus the legislative committee will ground on.
And then the axe fell.
It fell hard and fast on Pitt Rep. Walter Jones bill for sale of the city dump at Farmville — plus "seven adjoining acres."
From Sen. Elbert S. Peel of Martin: "What seven acres?"
The committee paused — puzzled, annoyed — it wasn't spelled out.
Kesler leaned forward with a thirty look: "We ought to put the bleeding neck touch on it."

Everyone contemplated the act.
"We need to do more of that," Kesler said, mindful of his duties.
It had been a long and tiring week and the weekend was practically upon them.
"Move we defer action."
"Second the motion."
"All in favor say aye."
"AYE!"

A NEW MYSTERY THE COUNT OF 9 by A. A. FAIR (Eric Stanley Gardner)

CHAPTER 10 Elsie Brand, my secretary, showed me a clipping from the newspaper. "See this?" she asked, placing the tip of her finger on a paragraph near the bottom: "It is rumored that a wealthy individual who spends much of his time cruising around in foreign countries, getting material for a tax-exempt foundation, has been away from home too frequently. His much younger wife has other plans for spending the rest of her life."

"What do you mean, nix? I'm talking about money, too." I told her, "But let's be logical about it. If it had taken a month to grab this stuff, we could have built it up into a big play. The way it is, we went out and grabbed it."

"I don't know what you're coming for," Elsie Brand asked. "I hesitated for a moment, then grinned and said, 'No, I want to see the guy's face when I hand him the stuff. That hole couldn't have been bored in the flagpole without somebody in the house knowing about it—in other words, that had to be an inside job. I want to find out whether Dean Crockett the Second carefully arranged to have this stuff missing and then called us in as window dressing, and, if he did, why he did it.'"

"I don't know what you're coming for," Elsie Brand asked. "I hesitated for a moment, then grinned and said, 'No, I want to see the guy's face when I hand him the stuff. Castro To Visit Nation's Shrines

WASHINGTON (AP)—Fidel Castro, taking a day off from his speech-making campaign to promote Cuba, today visits several renowned American shrines. Compared with Friday's meeting with the American Society of Newspaper Editors during which he outlined his country's needs, it will be a day of relaxation for the bearded Cuban revolutionary leader. One of his major goals, he told the editors, is to ward off communism by wiping out poverty and hunger. Speaking at length on Cuban economic problems, he said his country needs a "just treaty of commerce" with the United States to get money for building factories and reforming agriculture. He also appealed for American tourist trade. With his usual flair for flamboyance, Castro appeared before a packed meeting of 1,000 editors and guests in his standard attire—greenish fatigues, uniform, shirt open at the neck. He stuck gamely to English through his talk in which he said: 1. His government is not Communist. But he did not give a direct answer when asked if Cuba would remain neutral in any war between the United States and the Soviet Union. 2. His country will maintain its membership in the 21-nation Western Hemisphere defense alliance. He added Cuba will continue to give refuge to Latin Americans who hope to overthrow dictatorships in their own countries. But Cuba, he said, will maintain a policy of nonintervention in the affairs of other Caribbean republics. 3. He is not a dictator and believes in a free press. 4. At this time Cuba has no intention of throwing out the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo. Castro scheduled a visit to the Lincoln Memorial, Mount Vernon, the Jefferson Memorial and the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington National Cemetery. Some 200 anti-Castro pickets paraded a block away from the hotel where he spoke. Castro did not see them. They and their anti-Castro banners were gone by the time he left the hotel.

Finally Sentence Rackets 'King'

NEW YORK (AP)—Rackets boss Vito Genovese was behind bars today, sentenced to 15 years as the mastermind of an international narcotics ring. It took U.S. Dist. Court Judge Alexander Bicks just three minutes Friday to send Genovese to jail, revoke his $150,000 bail and fine him $20,000. The 62-year-old Italian-born Genovese has further troubles. As a denaturalized alien, he faces automatic deportation for criminal activity. While Genovese appeared calm as sentence was passed, the packed courtroom echoed to whistles of incredulity and groans. In a last-minute statement, Genovese laid out the court: "All I can say, your honor, is I am innocent." His lawyer, Anthony A. Calandra, filed an appeal and said he will go before the U.S. Court of Appeals Monday to ask for bail pending the appeal. Genovese, who has been described as "king of the rackets," reputedly made $30 million dollars in racketeering. Fourteen others convicted with Genovese April 3 received at least a five-year prison term, required under a federal narcotics law passed by Congress in 1955. Trial began Jan. 5. Among the sentenced was hen-haired Jean Capece, 30, Manhattan, mother of an 11-year-old boy. She bowed her head and cried softly as sentence was pronounced. She received the minimum five-year term.

Says Punishing Fails To Remedy

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP)—Stern punishment doesn't help curb drug addiction, says Dr. Robert H. Felix of the National Institute of Health. He told a group here that long sentences are deplorable because addicts get no psychiatric help in prison. But Col. George White of the U.S. Bureau of Narcotics disagreed. "I don't think it is in the nature of the American public to pandering to any vice," White said. He is with the Narcotics Bureau in San Francisco. White told the medical-legal group that when stronger laws are applied, narcotics addiction shows a decrease. Sean O'Casey was a 37-year-old brick layer when he decided to become a playwright.
