Scientists Flee To West Berlin

BERLIN (AP) — Ninety-five scientists escaped from satellite East Germany to West Berlin in the past seven weeks. Most of the scientists said the Communist government has improved living conditions for professional men in an effort to halt the mass exodus. But the flight has gone on because the regime has continued to interfere in their work and private lives.

Highway Reorganization Bill OK'd After Fuss, Confusion

RALEIGH (AP) — A Highway Commission reorganization bill was reported favorably today after a bodge-podge of confusion and angry flap-up between two senior lawmakers and the gentle peace-making efforts of Rep. Wayland Spruill. The bill came out of the House Roads Committee on a 15-14 roll call vote which took place after a standup vote indicated an unfavorable report. The committee secretary had counted three by-standers in the doorway by mistake. Rep. John Kerr of Warren, who later apologized, said colleague John McLaughlin of Iredell represented the people of his county with "venom."

Cost Of Living Index Unchanged

WASHINGTON (AP)—The cost of living, as measured by the government, held unchanged in March. The Labor Department announced today its consumer price index stayed at 123.7 per cent of the 1947-49 average, completing the longest period of relative price stability on record. The index has not fluctuated by more than two points in the past nine months, the Bureau of Labor Statistics said, and now stands two-tenths of a point below the all-time high of 123.9 per cent touched last July and again in November. In March, falling food costs offset higher prices for some other items in the family budget. At the same time, the spendable earnings of factory workers reached the highest level in history.

Herter's Promotion Is Confirmed By Senate

WASHINGTON (AP)—Christian A. Herter's promotion as secretary of state was viewed in Congress today as a big boost for closer bipartisan cooperation on foreign policy at a critical time. Herter, whose nomination was quickly and unanimously confirmed by the Senate, formally takes office today at a White House ceremony. Chairman J. William Fulbright (D-Ark) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said that he felt certain Herter "will cooperate closely with the Congress in every way." The Senate demonstrated what it thinks of Herter when it gave him a rare 93-0 roll call vote of confirmation Tuesday. It acted only 24 hours after receiving his nomination from President Eisenhower, and only a few hours after the Foreign Relations Committee gave him a 17-0 endorsement. As Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex), the Senate majority leader, put it: "The Senate wanted Herter and the whole world to know 'we are united behind our secretary of state.'" Eisenhower also was reported ready to make known his full backing of the 64-year-old New Englander in a move to scotch reports that Herter was a reluctant choice as his foreign policy chief. The reports developed when Eisenhower delayed naming Herter for several days after announcing the resignation of John Foster Dulles. Herter's associates were counting on Eisenhower to speak out publicly and forcefully to kill the whispers once and for all.

Stranded Vessel Refloated Today

AVON, N.C. (AP) — A salvage crew, working mostly in rough seas during the past three weeks refloated the Liberty ship Antonin Dvorak today and sent her northward by tug to Baltimore for scrapping. The 7,000-ton freighter went aground near here, eight miles north of Cape Hatteras, about five weeks ago. Then being towed to Baltimore, she broke loose from her tow line and drifted unattended for several hours before striking the beach. At low tide she was high and dry. The salvage crew from Merritt Chapman-Scott of New York could work best to refloat her when the sea was rough and high on the beach. McLaughlin rose to a point of order after Kerr was finished. "I'm very sorry the gentleman from Warren confined his discussion to personalities. I do not represent the people of Iredell County with venom. I resent the remark that he made that it is with vengeance that some people are voting for this bill." Then, the angry McLaughlin sat down, and up jumped Rep. Spruill, colorful lawmaker from Bertie. "We're all just one big, happy family," he said. "Let's let this bill go over. Let's not do anything in the heat of passion." When the bill came up for a vote on a motion to report it unfavorably, Chairman W. Brandley Womble of Wake, said the unfavorable motion carried 18-15. Then, an outburst from proponents of the bill, the vote was recounted by the roll call method.

Rifle Shots, Gasoline Bombs And Threats Mark Henderson Night

HENDERSON, N.C. (AP) — About 350 workers, many of them riding bullet-scarred autos, went to their jobs without incident today following the worst outbreak of violence in the 23-week Harriet-Henderson Cotton Mills strike. Clusters of strikers watched grimly in a steady drizzle as first shift employees entered the North and South Henderson plant gates under heavy police protection. There were occasional jeers and shouts of "scab." The scene contrasted sharply with Tuesday night when rifle shots slammed into cars bearing non-striker and homemade gasoline bombs burst on the streets. No one was reported injured, although an official said it was a miracle no one was hurt. "That's just a sample," a woman shouted. "There'll be more tomorrow night." It was the worst outbreak of violence in 23 weeks of labor unrest in this industrial city of 16,000 near the Virginia line. The city looked toward a meeting today in Raleigh for a strike solution from Gov. Luther H. Hodges and officials of the mills and the Textile Workers Union of America.

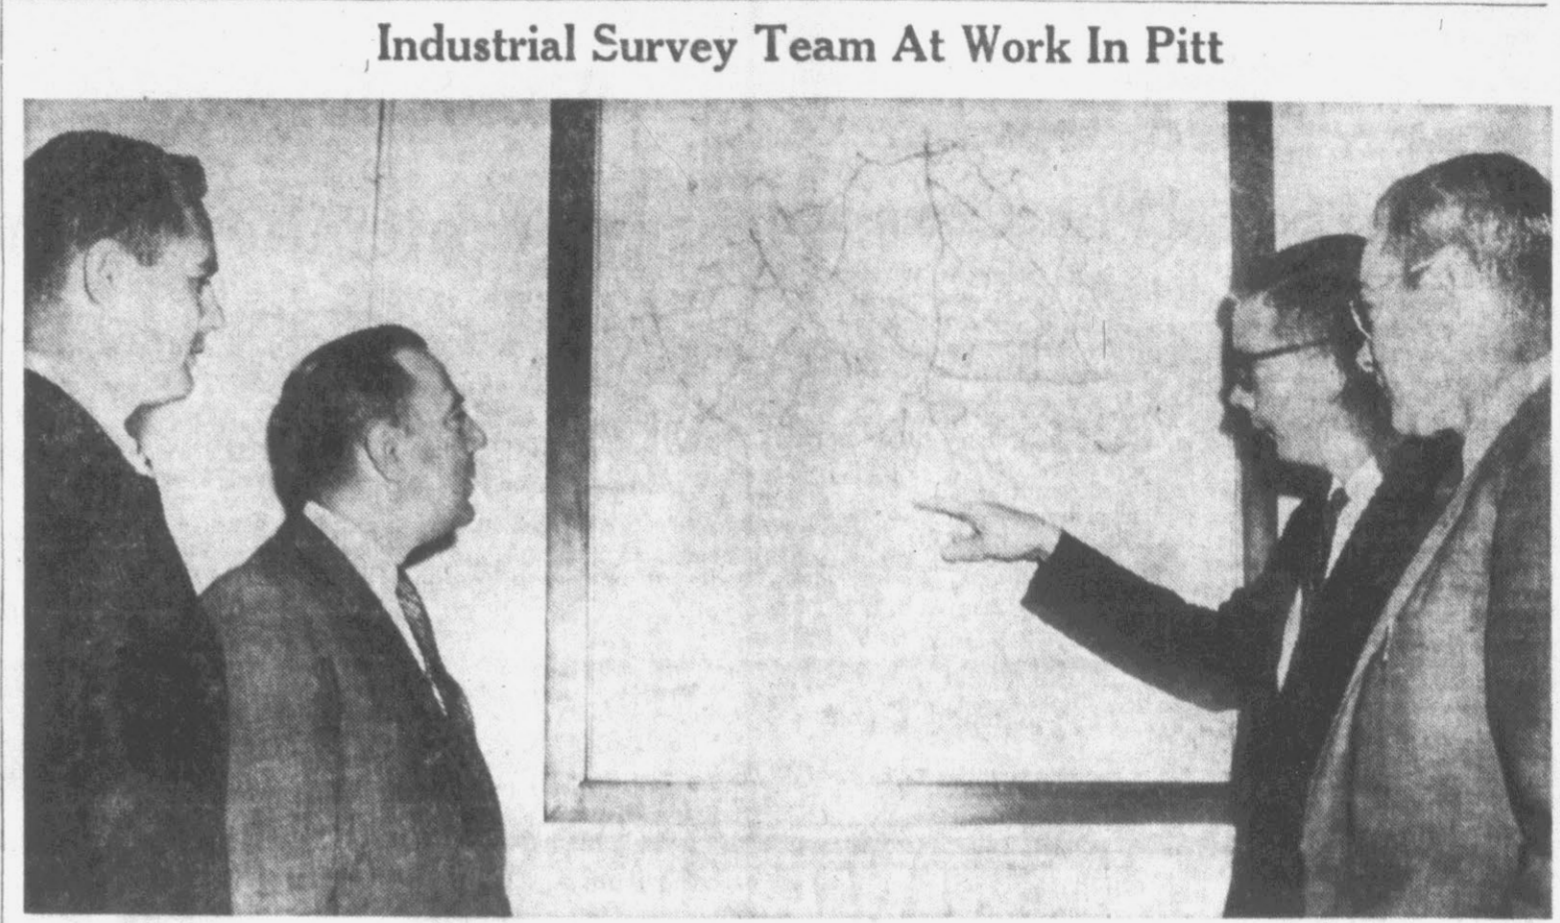

Labor Bill Of Rights Proposed By McClellan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Contending some workers need more protection within their labor unions, Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark) proposed today what he called a labor bill of rights. He offered his proposal as an amendment to the Kennedy labor regulation bill, which survived its first two floor tests Tuesday. In a prepared speech, McClellan said the Kennedy bill "does not adequately meet the needs of union members for the protection of their rights. It does not afford adequate sanctuary to the exploited and oppressed." Urging passage of an effective bill, he said the "invasion of unionism by thugs and hoodlums has gone much further and is more extensive than you think." McClellan, chairman of the Senate Labor-Management Committee, proposed that labor unions be required to write into their constitutions and by-laws a series of provisions designed to assure the rights of individual members. It was the first of a series of amendments he said he will propose in an effort to cure abuses of union power his committee has uncovered. McClellan has emerged as the leader of senators who want to add far-reaching provisions to the measure. Two Republican advocates of such a move, Sens. Barry Goldwater (Ariz) and Carl T. Curtis (Neb.), said they would follow McClellan's lead in their efforts to amend the measure. Tuesday the Senate turned down 67-27 an attempt by Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr. (D-NC) to knock out of the bill all of the changes it makes in the Taft-Hartley law. These changes are strongly supported by labor. Next the Senate rejected, 67-24, a move by Minority Leader Everett M. Dirksen (R-Ill) to substitute the Eisenhower administration's Taft-Hartley package for the provisions in the Kennedy bill. Chief effect of this substitute would have been to add provisions aimed at organizational picketing and secondary boycotts. The administration contends these are essential to any effective legislation. McClellan said he will offer similar provisions as separate amendments. In talking with newsmen, the Arkansas senator did not show too much confidence of success for his proposals. He said backers of the Kennedy bill might well have the votes to prevent any substantial change in it. Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell has opposed McClellan's bill of rights amendment, on grounds it would amount to too detailed interference with internal union processes.

for of the union, complained to the governor the mill management had hired new workers for the mills' second and third shifts. Hodges asked company president John D. Cooper to bring all data on available jobs along with copies of the proposed contract. Tuesday night's violence erupted 20 minutes before the approximately 100 workers on the second shift were to leave the plants. Bottles filled with gasoline were thrown into the streets around the mill gates. The gasoline was set afire. State Highway patrolmen and local police were on hand to escort workers from the plants. When the first auto appeared at a plant gate, shots rang out from some distance away. Reporters heard the bullets slam into the autos as the cars drove through the glass-littered streets. Rocks banged against the speeding autos. Police said at least 20 shots were fired at the South Henderson plant, 9 or 10 at the North Henderson mill. Police Chief E. C. Harris said the shots were fired from some distance away from the plants, outside the cordon of police. Mayor Carroll Singleton said he had expected the situation to be much worse. Monday night workers in both mills bedded down inside the plants rather than run the risk of violence. The plants were struck Nov. 17 after failure by negotiators to agree on an arbitration clause in a new contract. About 1,000 of the company's 1,200 workers walked out. Cooper reopened both mills Feb. 16 without a contract.

San Quentin Escapes Say Hostage's Ordeal A Bluff

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (AP) — Two small time burglars, who escaped from San Quentin Prison and held a woman hostage at a fishing pier before surrendering Tuesday, say they were bluffing. "We really didn't want no hostage, just a car to get away," said Billy Joe Wright, 26. Auburn-hated Louise Gschwend 54, agreed. "I hope these boys get a break," she declared. "They didn't hurt me. They gave me a break." At the beginning of the ordeal she said, "I was scared. I felt sick and I was faint. When I almost fainted, one of the boys wrapped my coat around me." The trusty who did that was William D. Werner, 24. Both he and Wright had jail-break records. They broke away from work parties outside the bleak walls of the huge prison 20 miles north of San Francisco. Wright fleeing from a grass-mowing party and Werner from the prison quarry with guards in hot pursuit. Falling to find a car, they ran down the half-mile wharf that juts into San Francisco Bay near the prison entrance. Mrs. Gschwend, a beauty operator, was fishing there with Doug Harrison, 62, a hotelman and friend of 35 years. Her husband, Walter, was working at a hotel bellman. All live in San Francisco. Harrison recalled that "Louise let out a scream and I saw they had a knife at her neck." He added that Wright "told officers 'don't come any closer or I'll kill her' but I think they were just bluffing all the time." Wright and Werner, with Harrison carrying messages between them and the guards, demanded a speedboat with plenty of gasoline and at another time the keys to Mrs. Gschwend's car and a half hour start.

Thinks Hodges' Apology In Due

RALEIGH (AP) — Rep. Frank Everett of Martin says he thinks he is entitled to an apology from Gov. Hodges because of remarks Hodges made about a bill he introduced. Everett sent up a bill a few days ago which would make State Auditor Henry Bridges an independent watchdog over state spending. Hodges told newsmen Monday he doubted that Everett understood the bill. Everett described the governor's remark as "character assassination." He told House members Tuesday in a stinging attack on the governor that "when I read a bill, I think I can understand it." Asked for comment, Hodges replied: "Gracious me. I don't care what he said." Everett declared his bill would give the auditor authority which "90 per cent of the people think he has now" but "the catch is we'll be taking power away from a person who has it now." He was referring to Paul Johnston, who was appointed director of the Department of Administration by the 1957 Legislature. Everett declared the "giant superstructure" of state government under Hodges "is a farce." He questioned why the costs of running the governor's office have risen threefold and why it costs $800,000 to keep the book in the highway commission.

Nearly two inches of rain (1.59) fell in the Greenville area during the last 24 hours. Tar River is now at the 13.95 stage and steadily rising as a result of recent and yesterday's rains. Dies Of Injuries In Auto Wreck

John Butts, Route 4, Greenville, victim of an auto accident late Saturday afternoon near Winterville, died about 4:00 p. m. yesterday. According to doctors, Butts died as a result of complications of injuries he received in the wreck. Patrol officials said today that an autopsy would probably be performed on the victim, so the exact cause of his death could be determined. If the victim died of injuries received in the accident then the death would be counted as a highway fatality. The accident occurred about two and one-half miles west of Winterville on the Remston highway. According to investigating patrolman Bill Whitehurst, the car traveled out of control for 225 feet, overturning three times and jumping a ditch and a wire fence. The car was demolished.

Vetoes Bill On Pupil-Spanking

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, who says he has spanked his own children on occasion, today vetoed a bill, which would have freed school-teachers to use force on unruly pupils. The measure would have taken the decision on use of corporal punishment away from school boards and given it to individual teachers.

Field Work Of Survey Team To Conclude Today

Field work in a survey of potential industrial sites in Pitt County is expected to be completed today by representatives of Atlantic Coast Line Railroad and Virginia Electric and Power Co. The survey has been underway since Monday morning. It is being conducted by Robert K. Frickle, director of research for VEPCO's Area Development Department; W. C. Rigby, an assistant to Frickle; and C. M. Llewellyn Jr., industrial geologist for ACL. Sites which are being studied for listing in a county industrial development brochure are a minimum of five acres each, in accessible locations, and with access to utilities and transportation facilities. In addition to being included in the county brochure, sketches of each of the sites will be retained for use by VEPCO and ACL. Frickle, Rigby and Llewellyn are being accompanied on the survey by L. A. Weston, economic consultant for the Pitt County Development Commission. They are being assisted in various sections of the county by members of community development committees and groups. Members of the team said this morning that information gathered in field trips will be compiled and checked against Court House records before final maps are prepared.

Ballerina Margot Fonteyn Expelled By Panama

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Freed from a Panamanian jail, British ballerina Margot Fonteyn flew to Miami today, but she refused to discuss charges against her husband of plotting a revolt in Panama. The government expelled her after holding her for 24 hours in a comfortable jail cell while the National Guard hunted for her Panamanian husband. A little over an hour after arrival in Miami, Dame Margot boarded a flight for New York. Reporters who met the ballerina received dimpled smiles but virtually no answers to their questions. Several telephone calls from London were awaiting Dame Margot and she took them in an airport office. Just before the takeoff for New York, she finally replied to a question as to her future plans. She said she would open June 2 in the Ballet Undine at Covent Garden in London. She added that she didn't know just when she would leave New York. The 39-year-old dancer carried two pieces of luggage containing ballet costumes, and her husband's wrist watch. Asked about charges that her husband, Roberto Arias, was implicated in a plot to overthrow the government of President Ernesto de la Guardia, she said she knew nothing about them. Arias, a Panamanian, is a former ambassador to Britain. Police are hunting for him. Officials claim he brought an armed band ashore Sunday night. At first, on her way into customs, Dame Margot denied her identity. Later, coming out, she was in good humor and greeted reporters with a dimpled smile. But she was no more talkative than before. She just shook her head when she was asked if she was mistreated in Panama, if she knew her husband's whereabouts, or if she was worried about him. Neither would she say where she plans to go now. Asked if she would return to London, she replied: "Yes, but I don't know exactly when." Officials charged the couple had ferried a "landing force" out to a shrimp boat and had raised a skunken boatload of arms to equip it. The government said Arias then transferred to the shrimp boat for the landing near Santa Clara, where Arias' family has a large ranch. Dame Margot sailed back into Balboa before dawn Monday. She was arrested Monday night and lodged in special quarters for distinguished prisoners in the Panama City jail. British Ambassador Sir Ian Leslie Henderson was allowed to see her after she was questioned. He had protested to the Foreign Ministry against her being held incommunicado. Arias, 41, is the son of former President Harmodio Arias, who split with the administration of De la Guardia more than a year ago.

New Church Women + Births + Given Birthday Party

New members who have come into the First Presbyterian Church during the past year were honored guests at the annual celebration of the Birthday of the Women of the Church, which was held Monday night in the Fellowship Hall.

Each year the monetary gifts received at this party are used for a definite project of the Southern Presbyterian Church. This year marks the 100th anniversary of the Presbyterian Church in Brazil and the gift from the party will go toward building a training center for lay workers in Brazil. The center will be erected in the new capital, Brasilia, in the near future.

Meeting in the Church Parlor, Mrs. Wesley Harvey, program chairman, gave an informative history of Brazil and the work of the Presbyterian Church there.

Mrs. W. E. Rosevear, president, extended a special welcome to the new members, and following the program invited the 50 or more ladies present into the Fellowship Hall where a party was held. Twelve tables had been decorated representing each month of the year. Each lady found her place at the table of the month in which she was born. Party refreshments were served after which the ladies at each table presented a short and impromptu skit depicting the months of the year.

The colors yellow and green were carried out in the decorations and in the corsages presented to the honor guests. The tea table was covered with a green organdy cloth with an arrangement of yellow gladioli and carnations. The tiny corsages were of yellow mums.

Mrs. John Clark served punch and the guests served themselves to green and yellow decorated cakes and nuts.

Mrs. N. O. Warren, chairman of World Missions, and Mrs. Tige Gardner, chairman of Stewardship, served as co-chairmen for the party.

Mrs. Billica of the Lakewood Pines garden club presented a program on orchids. She told how she and her husband became interested in orchids after receiving one as a gift. She had charts showing the many tribes and species of the orchid family, and showed colored slides of many varieties of orchids.

Following the program Mrs. Fowler and Mrs. Taylor served refreshing sherbet drinks and party cookies to the members and guests, and a social period followed.

With Farm Women

By ROBERTA GARNER (Items this week from Clay, New Hanover, Pasquotank, Pitt and Union Counties)

A Good Citizen "I want a new kitchen," says the American homemaker. "I need a shelf for food," the Italian homemaker comments. "I have no kitchen," cries the Arabian woman.

Clay County Home Demonstration Club members strived to understand the needs and wants of other women in the world as they answered the question, "What is a good citizen?"

Their conclusion was, "A good citizen does not live to himself—we must think of the world; not just our homes, families and communities." Mrs. Mena Woodie, home economics agent, says this poem by Mrs. Theta Barnard was a highlight of each meeting:

CURTAINS We hear a lot from day to day About the people far away, We hear of some behind bamboo, A curtain coined by me and you.

The Iron Curtain holds most fear Of all the places that we hear. Now about you and me, What do other people see? Do they say we care and try? Or do they say that you and I Have closed our hearts and minds Behind our own venetian blinds?

The Milk Bill "With 3-year-old triplets in the family, the milk bill can run up," exclaimed Carol Smith, Chestnut Street Junior 4-H'er in New Hanover County.

Carol continued to say that her father is following the suggestion to supplement fresh milk in the diet with dried milk.

The 4-H'er learned how to use this inexpensive form of milk during a demonstration given at her club meeting by Miss Janelle White, assistant home economics agent.

New Garden Planted Members of the Wilford Saunders family have already planted several vegetables in this year's garden. And plans are complete for their entire garden project.

According to Miss Elizabeth Chappell, assistant home economics agent in Pasquotank County, the family realizes the garden can be worth $400 this year and is planning to include sufficient

Jay Darrah Given Party

Little Jay Darrah of Fairbanks, Alaska, who is visiting his grandmother, Mrs. Nina Vainright, was surprised Thursday afternoon on his second birthday with a party given by his grandmother.

Twenty-three of his little friends came to the Mt. Pleasant community building to join the fun.

As each child entered the building, which was decorated with balloons and pink and blue crepe paper, he was given favors of hats, balloons, blowouts and masks.

Miss Oleva Zahniser, first grade teacher of Belvoir School, led the children in several games and told them stories.

Jay was then seated in the center of a decorated table loaded with gifts. While he, with the help of his mother, opened his gifts, "Happy Birthday" and "Open Your Gifts" were played softly on the record player.

After Jay had opened and displayed his many gifts, the little folks were seated in chairs around tables for refreshments. The birthday cake, which was decorated with a cowboy design, was served with vanilla ice cream and bottled drinks.

When One Borrows, One Repays

It is a generally accepted idea that something borrowed in a time of need is to be repaid by the borrower at a time greater prosperity.

The rule applies in big business, little business, and personal affairs even down to the borrowing of a cup of sugar from a neighbor. It applies to almost everything, it seems, except the federal government and its national debt.

The United States, now in the greatest period of prosperity in the nation's history, has the largest national debt it has ever had. Much of the debt accumulated during the war years when the nation was forced to spend beyond its immediate means for the sake of survival. But more recently the borrowing has continued during the nation's greatest period of prosperity. Several times in this period the legal limit of the debt has had to be raised to match the mounting deficit financing.

To be sure there is some talk about reducing the national debt, but few people seem concerned with it. The average citizen voices little concern; the high official voices little concern. It's there, it keeps getting bigger, and far too many citizens, we believe, have concluded that the huge national debt will just get larger instead of smaller.

If this country cannot afford to repay a portion of the $286 billions it owes now, certainly it will not be able to repay any of the debt in some other period in which our economy may not be so prosperous. And if such a period catches up with us—as well it might—we may find ourselves hard pressed even to pay the interest if the debt is allowed to increase indefinitely.

It is inconceivable that the national debt can be ignored indefinitely without sooner or later plunging the nation into financial chaos. It is inconceivable that the government, contrary to the laws of economics, can continue to borrow without repaying that which it borrows.

Reasons can always be found for not reducing the national debt no matter how prosperous the nation becomes. We can always find ways to spend more money than the government receives from tax revenues. In government, as in private business or personal affairs, it is a matter of giving first priority to that which should receive first priority. The businessman, the individual is required to repay his debts, and usually repayment of the debt comes before something else he might like to do with the same money.

After many years of living with the national debt—and watching it mount year after year—it should have become apparent that the only way to reduce the debt is to diligently set about the job of repaying it. It should also be apparent that a good time to begin on this unpleasant task is in a period in which the nation's economy is at a peak of prosperity.

America's great and dynamic economy has, to be sure, been built largely on borrowed money. But it has also been built on the fact that this borrowed money has been repaid. Otherwise the nation's economy long ago would have been bankrupt.

Herter Is Bringing A Picture Of Solidarity

The rapid and unanimous approval by the Senate of Christian A. Herter as Secretary of State might be interpreted as amazing bipartisan support for Herter in his new post, or it might be interpreted as a determination by the Senate to put a full-time man back in charge of State Department affairs.

Clearly the time element involved before the meeting of Western foreign ministers in Paris April 29 is one factor which brought about the rapid approval of Herter for the new post. At the same time, the quick Senate action might suggest that members of that house of Congress have been greatly concerned since illness forced former Secretary Dulles to relinquish his duties as active head of the nation's foreign affairs.

Herter, termed a "team man" by many observers, might well bring to the State Department greater bipartisan support than former Secretary Dulles was able to do during the past six years. There can be little doubt that Herter will lean more heavily on associates in the State Department than did Secretary Dulles in determining the course of U. S. foreign affairs.

But whatever else may be read into the Senate's quick and unanimous approval of Herter, the fact that he was approved by unanimous vote presents a picture of solidarity which will be evident both to our allies and the Soviet Union. It will afford Herter greater prestige as he officially steps into his new role at a crucial stage in international affairs.

Keep An Eye On Personalities

The activities of Red China's rubber stamp parliament, the National People's Congress, will be carefully watched. The current session may provide important clues to the immediate future of Red Chinese policy.

The parliament is the likely platform from which the Peiping regime will announce changes at its top level. The personalities involved in the changes — which the parliament will endorse unanimously — can be a guide to the outside world in plumbing the mysteries of Peiping policy and politics.

Will Red China now begin to throw her weight around in Africa and the Middle East as well as Asia? Will she apply brakes to the more unrealistic aspects of her economic program? Will she pursue a more fire-eating policy than ever with respect to the United States?

Such questions arise in the light of Mao Tse-tung's decision to give up his government post as chairman — equivalent to the presidency — of Communist China. At 65, Mao will retain his job as Communist party chairman, but it is likely his health has been failing and that he will retire more and more to the background.

A few days ago Peiping radio announced that in the latest full meeting of the Chinese Communist Central Committee, "the candidates for the leading state posts were confirmed." The implication was that a number of changes are to be announced — perhaps a fairly large-scale shifting of top personnel.

There is much talk that old Marshal Chu Teh will succeed to Mao's government post. There is also a possibility that the job will go to the present premier, suave Chou En-lai. If this should come about, it would indicate Red China is increasingly anxious to join the big power club and make her weight felt at top levels in world councils. Chou's wide diplomatic experience would fit in with such a goal.

There are other candidates for the government chairmanship, including veteran Communist theoretician Liu Shao-chi. Others whose careers should be watched include such men as Marshal Ho Lung, economist Chen Yun and Foreign Minister Chen Yi, all vice premiers now. If Ho Lung should rise to new prominence in the government, one might well look for increased Chinese interest in such Middle East areas as Iraq and even in African areas. Such interest indeed, might even clash with Moscow's.

Should Chen Yi become premier in place of Chou En-lai, it might indicate a tougher and more reckless approach to the conflict with the United States over Nationalist China and the offshore islands. Chen Yi is a notorious fire-eater with regard to "liberation" of Formosa.

But a step upward for Chen Yun could indicate a milder policy and even a backing away from the super-ambitious goals of the economic program. It might hint at a tendency to avoid too risky adventuring in the international arena. This is a course the Soviets might welcome, since Peiping belligerence at the wrong time can have grave repercussions for the Kremlin. Chen Yun is regarded as strongly pro-Moscow.

It matters little who becomes chairman of government in Peiping. The Communist party will still run everything. But the choice of personalities to fill top government positions can be important as a fairly reliable barometer for judging how the political wind blows in Peiping.

Opinions In Brief

"Almost any child would learn to write sooner if allowed to do his homework on wet cement." —Greenville (S.C.) Piedmont.

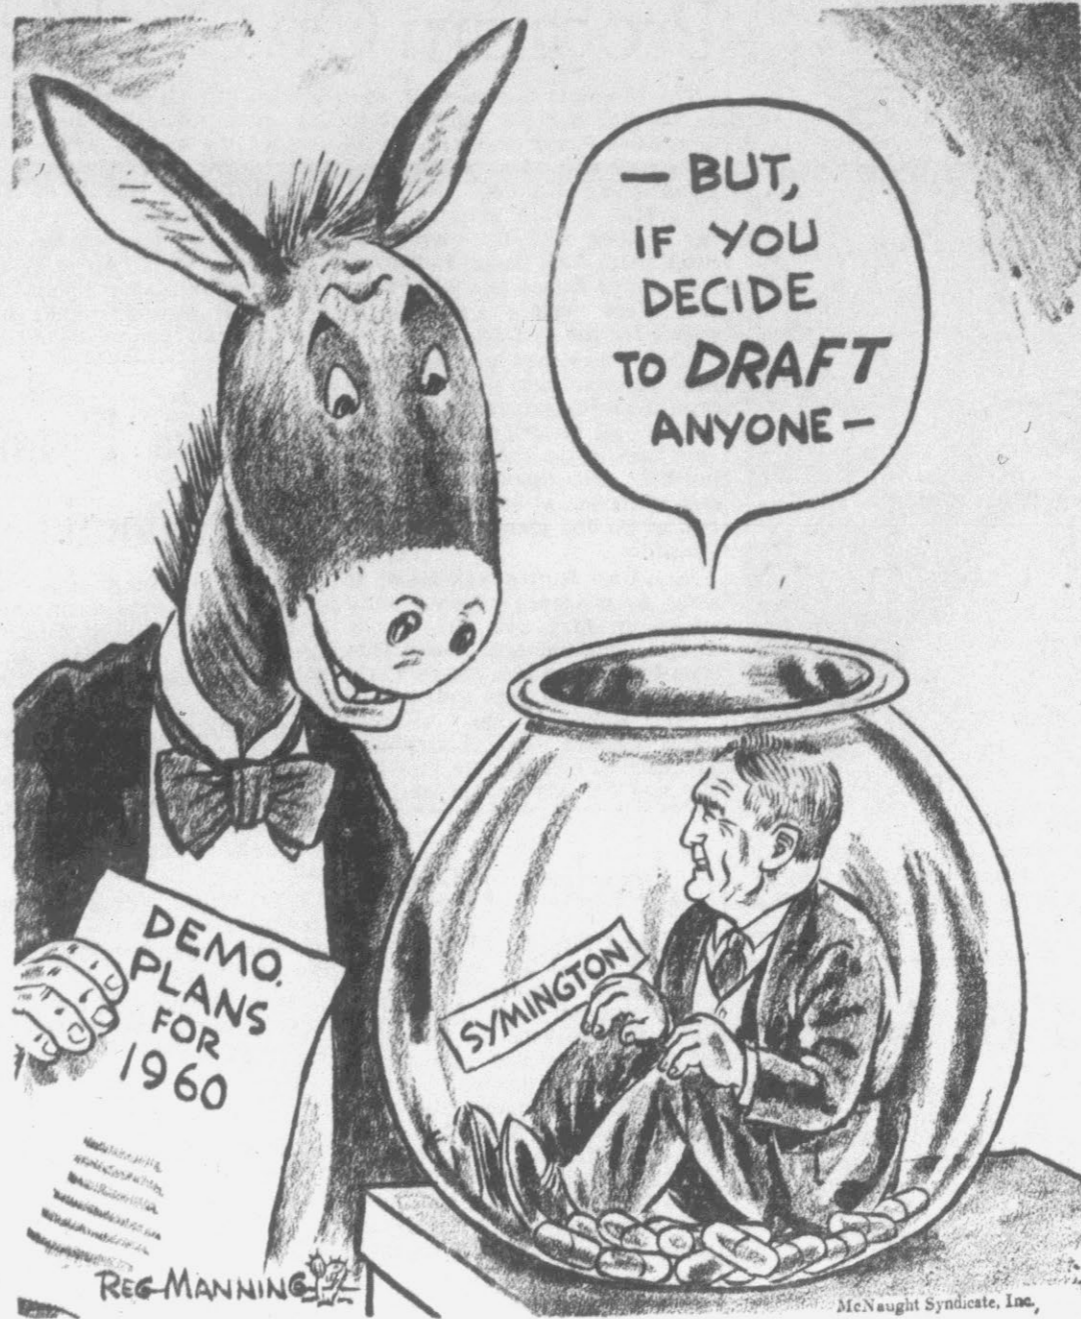

"The 46th anniversary of the federal income tax occurred last February 25, and the baby has certainly grown! At the beginning, in 1913, the rates ran from 1% to 6%, as against 20% to 91% now. And where the per capita tax averaged $26 in those long-gone days, it has risen to $397." —Industrial News Review.

"Are we worth the cost of pain, struggle, denial and self-sacrifice to be saved again? If the world falls under Communist domination, and man cannot improve his lot, but shows his desire to follow Jesus, there must be some today who will witness the second coming. If we do not show any desire and turn to evil, these same may witness instead the second coming as the end of the world." —Beeville (Texas) Bee-Picayune.

Not Volunteering—

Ask A Silly Question---

Your columnist was conversing with a young lass the other day and it came out in the course of the talk that she was a twin.

That little bit of knowledge prompted me to say: "I wonder how it feels to be a twin?" friend murmured. "I wonder how friend murmured. "I wonder how it feels to be a brother."

Which all goes to illustrate that grand old saying which came down from the early Romans. "Ask a silly question and you get a silly answer." Or maybe it's an ancient Chinese proverb.

At any rate it set me to thinking about all the silly questions people make day-in-and-day-out.

For instance there was the time a doctor had a heart attack while in a conference with around 20 other physicians in Durham some years ago.

What was the first thing one of the medical men yelled, at least according to rumors? "Somebody get a doctor."

Of course every dentist is familiar with that plaintive comment from the patient just before the little drill does its work: "Will it hurt doc?"

And every lawyer has heard from his friends: "This is not worth paying for legal advice, but . . ."

The down town clothing merchant is accustomed to hearing: "Do you think I would really wear a new summer suit?"

And the traffic cop or highway patrolman who tries to keep traffic moving following an accident is constantly plagued by the motorist who stops in the middle of the road and asks: "Was anybody hurt?"

Then there is the poor harassed school teacher who is stopped by a parent and asked: "What do you teachers do with all your spare time?"

There's the poor banker, who has to struggle to make ends meet just like the rest of us, hears: "Boy, you bankers have all the money."

And there's that comment which brings woe to the newspaper photographer after he has lined up the people he wants in his picture: "Hey, Joe come on and get in the picture."

But the drunk who fell down the stairs of a second rate rooming house in Greenville some time ago, can't be confused with people who make silly comments.

After tumbling head-over-heels, he sat up apparently unharmed. What was his comment as he rubbed his aching head?

He said nothing. All he did was give out with a long doleful whistle.

Other Editors Saying . . . Course Is The Same

(Kinston Free Press)

The ascension of Christian A. Herter of Massachusetts to the post vacated by ailing Secretary of State John Foster Dulles is a reminder that leadership changes, but the ultimate course and direction of American foreign policy must remain fixed and forward toward the objective of an honorable and lasting peace. It now appears virtually certain the Senate will confirm Herter's appointment promptly.)

Secretary Dulles has achieved much in the past six years in holding the free world line against rapid Communist expansion. Some of his work has been great and some of it not so great. It has in the main reflected the basic moods of the American people. He has been to the brink of war to carry certain points, but he has not resorted to war, even in Hungary, in the Suez or on Formosa. That was because the American people do not want to provoke a war, nor to be drawn into a foreign war over satellite disputes. Right or wrong it was Dulles who had to sustain this policy in the hope of averting the larger and more devastating possibility of World War 3.

Mr. Herter is a man of vast foreign policy and diplomatic experience. He began his service in World War 1. He has served his state and Nation in many capacities and with commendable results. He is not the type of man that John Foster Dulles is and will not run the Department of State from his brief case in junkies all over the globe.

Mr. Dulles traveled over 500,000 miles and in 47 different lands in his quest for a workable program of peace. But at home much of the detail of his office had to be run by his subordinate. Secretary Herter is more likely to supervise and to delegate responsibility than did Mr. Dulles. He will be no less firm in his objective, but the whole approach may well be more of a "team job" than a single secretary's mammoth contribution to U. S. policy and diplomacy.

It is good that President Eisenhower has seen fit to elevate Mr. Herter to a post for which he has been in technical "training" for several months. It is true that his actual responsibilities have long been greater than his authority to act on them. But that does not mean he cannot achieve greatness in his own right now that he has been nominated to this important assignment.

He is not the first to wrestle with the greatest question of this age — how to achieve peace in a world in which over half the population is dominated by godless communism. The need for survival by both the East and the West gives room for a meeting of minds. A change in leadership can mean even more progress toward the ultimate goal. It will certainly mean that the direction, even if the techniques of diplomacy change, will be the same as that pursued so diligently for the past six years by Secretary Dulles.

Revolution In This New Plastic

Plastics, which have been nibbling at the market for metals for years, may take an enormous bite out of it when a new acetal resin gets into commercial production later this year.

It may revolutionize the manufacturer of mechanical devices such as nylon affected the fabric field. It is to be produced by the same company, too.

The new product is called "Delrin" and is described as a tough, rigid thermoplastic. It is so strong that it can replace die-cast steel, brass, aluminum and zinc in many applications. The producers promise improved product design at lower cost. The initial price will be 95 cents a pound, but may be reduced as production volume rises.

On a pound basis, this is much more expensive than the metals with which it will compete. It is lighter, but even on a cubic-inch basis it will be twice as Quote . . .

"Your Uncle Sam makes money — this year more than $40,000,000 on the coins it turned out in the fiscal year starting July 1. Profit is made because the metal that goes into the coins costs less than their face value. For instance, the Government uses only 12 cents worth of metal for every $1 worth of nickels. Now the question is, does Uncle Sam report this profit on the long or short form?" —Rosholt (S.D.) Review.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

OUR ONLY HOPE

Before me is a chart showing the volume of business in the United States for the past eighty years.

There has been an amazing upward thrust over these decades. We live in an age which is experiencing the benefits of an expanding economy. But the so-called "growth line" does not tell all the story. There were lots of times when business was considerably above the normal line but lots of times when it was below.

So it is in every-day life. It would indeed be marvelous for us — at least we think so — if the line of growth, satisfaction, and happiness kept going up and up for us through our lives. But unfortunately — or fortunately — life does not progress in that fashion. Just as in a country blessed by an expanding economy there are periods of prosperity and periods of depression, so in every life we are sometimes better than our normal selves and at other times very much worse. There are thrusts upward and we contemplate and remember these with pride. There are times when we fall below, very far below.

But why get discouraged? This is true in the case of every life. If the downward thrust exceeds the upward thrust, then we must take notice and take care. All cannot be happiness and triumph. Repulse and victory belong together, bitter with sweet.

Comfort? "The God of all comfort" by whom we can be sustained — here alone is our hope.

Wrote To Say Hello

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — An open letter to an old teacher:

Well, Miss Wolfson, I guess a lot of grammar has flown, (flowed, flew) — gone by the bridge since I studied English under you 30 some years ago in old Central High School in Kansas City, Mo.

Them were the those were the — days! Like I say, when I see the kids raised up today I just look at them and ask myself, "Well, who raised them, and what did they have in mind — civilized monsters?"

They do act like they just got out of a flying saucer, blue jeans and spelling and all. They can't spell sour app, app, apples.

Miss Wolfson, nobody got out of your class before they reached spell sour apples — over and over again.

The same with "Friends, Romans, countrymen, I didn't just come here to praise him, Caesar was ambitious." It sticks in my head yet.

Miss Wolfson, you made those old days come alive. I could almost see those old Romans, standing so stiff and tall in their togas, and saying all those splendid things before they reached for their knives. Then, a flash, crash and another empire had bit the dust.

Kids today don't seem to get the same background. Maybe the classes are too large. Maybe nobody cares.

Sometimes I kind of feel like Hiawatha, alone in his canoe, paddling across a ribbon of moonlight through a purple moor up to the old inn door, with the waters all around and everything mystic. There was an Indian who knew trouble.

Miss Wolfson, after 30 years I can't get that poetic picture out of my mind. Hiawatha is still paddling that canoe, and too proud to ask for fringe benefits.

I remember one of the clever things you used to do to get us used to the English language was to have us write little essays. They didn't have to be about big things like life and et cetera, but just something offhand like,

But things like that just don't grow on trees, and it was hard to find a topic. Most of us looked in the book — remember, Miss Wolfson? — and there was a whole list of suggested subjects.

The one that particular appealed to me was this here one about, "The View from my Window," and the minute I saw this suggestion I said to myself, "That's built for me."

We did have one fine window in our house then, and I still wish I could tell you about the things I saw from it.

It isn't eggasky my fault that 24 of the 25 students in the class all wrote on the same subject — the view from their window.

I still don't hold it against you, Miss Wolfson — that is, the grade you gave me. You must have got awful worn out reading about all those views from all those windows.

Well, for old times sake, I thought I'd write you to say hello. And by the way my old secretary has left me and the new girl I hired can't spell for sour apples, and I thought maybe you could tell me of a book that would set her straight.

Lord knows who teaches them the English language today. It is almost as if it were an athema to them, a veritable athema.

Says Parents Often Oppose Math, Science For Pupils

DURHAM (AP)—Parents often have changes made in their children's school programs to keep them away from subjects like mathematics or science, so they'll receive good report cards, an official of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers asserted today.

Mrs. Fred L. Keeler of Grand Rapids, Mich., National PTA vice president, spoke to the North Carolina PTA Congress during its three-day convention here.

Navajo Leaders Are On Parole, And 'No Joke'

WINDOW ROCK, Ariz. (AP)—Two top Navajo leaders, accused of committing crimes of some kind or another, were on "parole" today. And it was no joke — not to those concerned.

A retired Army general strode into Navajo headquarters Tuesday and informed Tribal Chairman Paul Jones and Vice Chairman Scott Preston he, as a citizen, was putting them under technical arrest.

Erig. Gen. Herbert C. Holdridge of Sherman Oaks, Calif., said he was acting against the tribal leaders at the request of other Navajos.

Then, he left the reservation without specifying the crimes of which he was accusing Jones and Preston.

He did, however, claim the recent Navajo election in which Jones, Preston and 74 tribal council members were elected was fraudulent and, therefore, null and void.

Jones and Preston went right on about their business. But they refused to dismiss the incident as frivolous.

Jones, starting his second term as head of the Navajos, expressed concern about posters Holdridge had circulated on the reservation.

Bearing Holdridge's signature the posters picture President Eisenhower and Indian Commissioner Glenn L. Emmons and carry the inscription: "Arrest these men on sight."

They also accuse the President and Emmons of offenses against North American Indians and of being "outlaws against the Constitution."

Holdridge, interviewed later at Albuquerque, said he had paroled Jones and Preston and telegraphed a request for Chief Justice Earl Warren of the U.S. Supreme Court to take the next step in the citizen's arrests.

Holdridge is not an Indian.

Parents often make chances in their teaching of math or science," she said. "We say young people are looking for the snap subjects. Well, who is to blame? . . . Parents often make chances in their children's high school programs) if they think the program sounds too stiff because they want to be sure the report cards are pleasant to look at."

Mrs. Keeler suggested that if parents would require, "I am sure they would find most school systems are meeting the needs of children in all important areas. Many boards of education are re-evaluating their math and science courses with the thought of meeting the curriculum needs of this exciting age."

She suggested further that Americans think there is much good in the Russian school system, while forgetting that the Soviets exercise total government control over education, even to the daytime care of small children of working mothers.

American parents have an obligation to visit their schools and see what is being taught, she said. At home, they should inculcate lasting values: ". . . Material things are among the rewards of achievement; they are not the essence of achievement or its true measure."

Mrs. J. Z. Watkins, state PTA president, opened the convention with a plea for education appropriate to the increasing demands of the modern world.

She said she had telegraphed House Speaker Addison Hewlett that the PTA wants reconsideration and passage for a civil defense bill, passed by the Senate, would provide federal funds for civil defense personnel and administration beginning July 1."

Directs Concert With Left Hand

MONROE, Wis. (AP)—Raymond F. Dvorak spent his 25th anniversary as director of the University of Wisconsin band leading it in a concert with his left hand. He lost his right arm in a train accident 10 years ago and has used an artificial arm for directing since that time. Shortly before he was to start a concert here a cable in the artificial arm broke, rendering it useless.

CHAPTER 13

At nine-thirty in the morning I rang up Dean Crockett's place. The well-modulated tones of Melvin Otis Olney came over the phone. "Who is this talking, please?"

"Donald Lam," I said.

"Oh, yes, Mr. Lam."

"I recovered the missing blow-gun."

"You what?" he shouted into the telephone.

"Recovered the missing blow-gun. Didn't Mrs. Crockett tell you?"

"I haven't seen Mrs. Crockett."

His tone was coldly formal. "I am afraid you shouldn't have done that. The property should have been returned to Dean Crockett."

"I didn't like the dignified manner in which he tried to rebuke me."

Crockett was closeted in his hibernating room. He wouldn't come out. He has no telephone in there; no one else was home, and so I left it with Mrs. Crockett.

What's wrong with that? It's community property, isn't it?"

"I — Yes, I suppose so."

"Okay, I left it with her. Now I have the jade Buddha. What do I do with that?"

"You have what?"

"I have the jade Buddha." I told him. "What's the matter with your connection? Can't you hear?"

"My ears hear," Olney said, "but it's hard for me to believe what they hear. I — Well, Lam, this is incredible."

"What's incredible about it?"

"Recovering both articles like that."

"That's what we were hired for, isn't it?"

"Yes, I know, but . . . and in such a short time. It's absolutely, utterly incredible. Mr. Crockett simply won't believe his ears when I tell him."

"Well, perhaps he'll believe his eyes when he sees the jade statue. Now, what do I do about delivering this jade Buddha?"

"You come right up with it."

"Wait a minute," I said. "I'd better talk with Mr. Crockett himself. You didn't like the idea of me leaving the blowgun with Mrs. Crockett, and, unless Crockett is here."

"He's here."

"In circulation?"

"He will be. He told me to be here at nine o'clock, prepared to discuss a matter with him, and he wanted his secretary here, prepared to transcribe some records that he has been dictating."

"He's there?"

"I tell you, he will be by the time you get here. Come on up."

"I'll be there in about twenty minutes."

"Very well. We'll be expecting you."

I got in the battered-up agency heap and drove up to the apartment house.

This time it wasn't necessary for me to be announced. They treated me at the front desk as though I had been an honored guest with an engraved invitation and their job was to roll out the red carpet.

"Good morning, Mr. Lam," the clerk said, all smiles. "You're going up to the Crockett penthouse. They're expecting you. You know the way. Just take the elevator to the twentieth floor. They'll meet you with the elevator to the penthouse."

"Thanks," I said.

I went on up to the twentieth floor, walked down to the door marked 208, which, from the outside, looked exactly like the door to any other apartment. The door was unlocked. I opened this door and found myself in the anteroom. The concealed slide was open to show the telephone and a printed sign over the telephone saying, "Press button and pick up receiver."

I pressed the button, picked up the receiver, and a man's voice said, "Yes, who is it, please?"

"Mr. Lam — Who is this? It isn't Olney."

"No, sir, this is Wilbur C. Denton, Mr. Crockett's secretary. I am sending the elevator down for you, Mr. Lam."

"Very well," I said.

I hung up the telephone and waited.

A minute or so later the elevator came down and I went on up.

I wondered if I was being X-rayed. I presumed I was; I stepped out of the elevator, and a tall, droopy individual extended a limp hand. "I'm Mr. Denton, Mr. Crockett's secretary, Mr. Lam. I'm glad to meet you."

I let go of the hand as soon as I could, and said, "Where's Olney?"

"Mr. Olney is on the telephone."

"All right. Where's Crockett?"

"Mr. Crockett will be here momentarily."

"What do I do? Sit down and wait?"

"It will only be a moment, I'm certain. . . . Mr. Crockett is getting out a very important matter this morning and asked me to be here in readiness. However, I know that Mr. Olney feels the nature of your business is so important, Mr. Crockett wouldn't want anything to interfere with seeing you."

Denton smiled a watered-down version of Olney's cordial manner and led the way into a part of the house I hadn't been in before.

It was a room fixed up as a transcribing office, with an electric typewriter, a transcribing machine, some filing cases and four or five fairly comfortable chairs.

"Just have a seat," he said. "I'll go right on with my work. If you don't mind."

"I don't mind."

Denton fitted earplugs into his ears, held his long, bony fingers poised over the keyboard of the typewriter for a moment, and then came down on the keyboard like a piano player putting on a speed exhibition.

I sat there and watched him, absolutely fascinated. The staccato of the keys was broken only by the tinkle of the bell as the carriage reached the end of its run.

The door opened, and Melvin Otis Olney came in, all in smiles and diffusive cordiality.

"Well, well, Lam," he exclaimed. "The demon detective — you've certainly hung up a record for efficiency, speed of operation and satisfactory services. How are you?"

"I've met him."

"Well, come on in. Mr. Crockett wants to see you."

He led me through the office into a private office and tapped gently on a door at the back of the private office. It looked like a closet door.

There was no answer and he knocked again.

When there was still no answer, he pressed a bell button, an ingeniously concealed button somewhere in the wall. Even watching him, I couldn't see where the button was. It was a cunningly contrived bit of inlay that could probably have been found with a magnifying glass, but if a person didn't know where it was, he certainly couldn't put his thumb on it. I only knew it was there because I heard the sound of muted chimes as he pushed his thumb.

Olney looked at his wrist, watch and said under his breath, "That's strange."

Murder strikes in the Crockett apartment as "The Count of Nine" continues tomorrow.

$66,000 Given State Program

RALEIGH—The North Carolina Alcoholic Rehabilitation Program in Raleigh has received word that a $66,000 grant from the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare has been made to the North American Association of Alcoholism Programs, of which the state alcoholism program is a member.

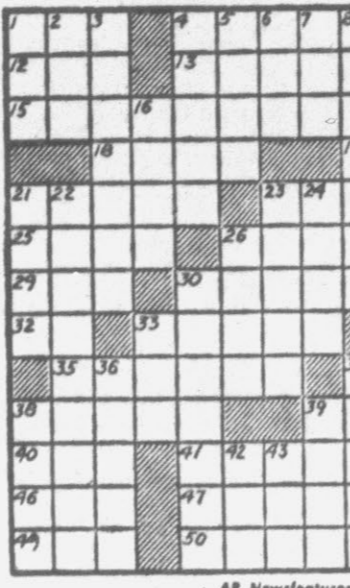

According to Dr. Norbert L. Kelly, Executive Director of the NCARP, the money will be spent over the next five years in an effort to establish clearer language and improved understanding in the area of alcohol problems. Director of the research project will be John R. Seeley, director of research for the Alcoholism Research Foundation of Ontario and a noted sociologist.

The NAAP is an association of principal professional organizations in the United States and Canada, which are engaged in the field of alcoholism control through treatment, research and public education.

"Better understanding and control of alcohol problems should be possible with agreement on definitions and consequent improvement in communication," Mr. Seeley said in commenting on the significance of the project. "There is good reason to believe that a head-on attack on the language in which we talk about the problem can make an improvement in the whole product—research, rehabilitation and education—of the next three decades."

New Concept Of Trade Confronts Businessmen

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—American businessmen must adjust to a new concept of trade. That is, companies must think less about export sales—the traditional concept—and more about international sales.

Make your goods where you can do so best and sell them where you can beat your competitors regardless of where you made them even if it means importing your own products and selling them costs here impose.

Moody stresses that the host lands to his company benefit too. When an American company puts up a plant abroad it creates new jobs and usually introduces into the country new techniques and efficiency. The other country also acquires a dependable source of supply of the product, one that could be cut off by war if made only here. And the big benefit often is that the other nation conserves its foreign exchange reserves.

Moody notes government statistics indicating U.S. private investments abroad are now more than 37 billion dollars and recently increasing at about four billion dollars a year.

Overseas, just as in our early days European industry set up branch shops here.

Good Start On Population Goal

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—In his inaugural speech, Gov. J. Howard Edmondson said part of his program would be to increase the state population by 250,000. When state Rep. Denzil Garrison, Republican floor leader, became a father, he passed out cigars with this comment:

"This is the first of J. Howard's 250,000 new people."

The vice president of the United States is paid a salary of $35,000 a year and $10,000 for expenses, all of it taxable.

Hodges Standing Pat On School Incentive Project

By LYNN NISBET
 Reflector Raleigh Bureau

RALEIGH — Governor Hodges told newsmen at his latest meeting with them that he is standing pat on his advocacy of a $10 million incentive fund for public school support, to be matched by counties on a "capacity to pay" basis; and he has not abandoned the plan of reducing the Utilities Commission from five members to three. He also thinks there is more than even chance for this Legislature to submit material constitutional amendments, especially with respect to the courts. He did not mention at this conference the income tax withholding plan, but other times and places he has manifested confidence that this plan, with its windfall feature of $27 million to balance the current budget, will be put into effect.

These proposals, plus enactment of a minimum wage law, made up the bulk of the administration's positive program for the 1959 session. Actually, none of them has been finally enacted into law after 67 legislative days. The big fights are still to come on most of them. Meantime, several administration measures, such as the prison enterprises bill, have been enacted. And none of the bills obviously designated as anti-administration have been passed, although some are still pending. Developments to date tend to discredit predictions made before the Assembly convened that the Governor would have to devote as much effort to retaining facets of his overall program which were enacted in 1955 and 1957 as to promotion of further reorganization plans. The administration forces have so far prevented enactment of antagonistic bills, and while few of their positive proposals have been adopted, current odds favor enactment of basic features involved in most of them, with probable exception of court reform.

Governor Hodges' strategy is to keep plugging for what he wants and to ignore or ridicule opposition. He said he did not take seriously the bill to break-up the Administration Department, created in 1957. With respect to the bill purporting to "restore" to the State Auditor functions which were transferred to the Budget Bureau in 1955 and 1957, he said he did not understand the bill and doubted that the introducer understood it. Reporters find it difficult to deal with a man who declines to regard matters they ask about as of serious import. Oldtimers recall similar trouble with Governor Gregg Cherry 12 to 15 years ago.

Hodges and Cherry both demonstrated capacity to brush off invery inoffensive manner questions which they did not want to answer fully—and left reporters embarrassed or confused later to figure out just what they meant by what they did not say. Sometimes these tactics backfire and embarrass the Governor, but they have proven successful much oftener than they failed.

Neck Not Quite Severed On Farmville Act

By BUNNY HARRIS
 Reflector Raleigh Bureau

RALEIGH — The axe that fell on the neck of Rep. Walter Jones' bill authorizing sale of the Farmville city dump and some adjoining land didn't quite decapitate it. The regular session of the Senate committee deferred action on the bill, as was reported.

When Rep. Jones heard about it he rushed over to the Senate and explained that it was necessary to get the bill enacted that day so a good title could be given to the property after the scheduled Saturday sale.

Chairman Cicero Yow looked around over the chamber, found a quorum of the committee present, wiggled his fingers to call them into special extra session behind the President's dais, gave quick approval to the bill.

Under suspension of the rules the bill was put on the calendar for immediate passage, and Rep. Jones left town a few minutes later armed with a letter from the Senate principal clerk certifying that the bill had been duly enacted into law—and the purchaser of the property could get a good title to it.

"A lot of folks read and believe what comes out of my news office," said Jones. "I had a dozen or more telephone calls and several visitors asking me how I said the bill had been passed, when the paper says it wasn't?"

By GEORGE E. PERRY

It's happened again: specifically, a smash production of another Broadway musical. This time it was "Kiss Me Kate", which opened its three-day run in McGinnis Auditorium last evening, and which was a musical and dramatic triumph. I can't remember a time when a more completely enjoyable, lovable, entertaining, and fun-provoking musical has tread the boards of a local theatre.

Musically, it was certainly a success, not only because of the fine orchestra and the superior vocal quality of the leads, but also because of the high calibre of musicianship which was demonstrated. Further, it was a dramatic success, for the acting was of a kind which would have made any Broadway director proud, thanks to Dr. Elizabeth Utterback, the dramatic director. The dramatic problems were not slight, either, for this "play-within-a-play" type of work, all leads were playing two roles, having to switch from one type of characterization to another. This theatrical trick was handled admirably by all who were faced with the problem.

Dr. Donald Hayes directed the show, and he did a superior piece of work in this respect. The orchestra, as I have already said, was a fine one; actually it was better than this. It was as good a pit band as one will hear in a professional production. There was a good blend in the wind section, and the quality of the strings was particularly good. On a few occasions in the earlier moments of the show the conductor's beat was not followed too closely (some of the singers were guilty of this, too), but this detracted only momentarily from the production.

The leads were extremely well cast. Jerry Powell displayed a voice of excellent quality which remained consistent throughout all registers. He handled his role with superior musicianship, deep feeling, and with total command, whether he be singing or acting. His diction at all times was clearly audible, his stage presence good, his delivery well-timed and paced, and his intensity consistently high. Hannah England did equally well, displaying a lyric voice to excellent advantage, as well as an inherent sense of histrionics. She had the additional difficulty of not only playing the double role, but also a switch from the shrew to the complacent wife, a transition which she handled with convincing authority. At all times she certainly looked the part, too.

Leigh Dobson's big moment came in act two during her "Always True to You" number, which was genuinely applauded. Of course Miss Dobson is not the vocalist that either Mr. Powell or Miss England is, but what she may have lacked here, she more than compensated for in her enactment of her role. She is a very fine actress, and, as has been her custom, turned a fine characterization. (I shall never forget her in "Death of a Salesman" for which she certainly deserved a local "Oscar".)

If there was no other scene in the production but the "Brush on your Shakespeare," the show would be well worth seeing. David Doolittle and Bob Kornegay came dangerously close to stealing the show with this. They received five encores, if I counted right, re-sounding applause, and provoked the most uncontrollable laughter I have witnessed in any local production. The moments, too, when they were dressed as guardsmen, were hilarity at its highest. They did the parts completely straight-faced, and with well-timed and perfect characterized movements. All they had to do was to walk on the stage to temporarily stop the show. You think the "Three Stooges" are funny. Just wait till you see these two guys at work!

The dancing and ballet numbers, well choreographed and directed by Jim Gillikin, were convincingly done, especially the Pavane in Act II. Considering the lack of professional dancers in this area, this phase of the production was smoothly consummated. Ken Killebrew did an especially fine solo number.

The scenery designers are to be congratulated, for the sets were all well-executed. Stage-hands are to be especially commended for the way in which the 17 separate set-changes were so expeditiously handled.

See Early End To Rock 'n' Roll

By NORMAN BELL
 SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Rock 'n' Roll was being treated like a condemned killer at the biennial convention of the National Federation of Music Clubs today.

Its early end was freely predicted—"and a good thing, too," declared Mrs. Blant Buford of Dallas, Tex., chairman of the group's publicity department.

She and such a noted music authority as Sigmund Spaeth, writer and lecturer, blamed it for killing television's "Hit Parade" program, which they said was ending soon.

Dr. Vera Wardner Dougan of Beloit, Wis., president of the federation, declared: "It was nothing but a beat anyway, and it is just beating itself out."

Their comment followed and supported a report to the convention by Ada Holding Miller of Providence, R.I., chairman of the group's American music section, that Rock 'n' Roll was rocking and rolling itself out of popularity.

This conclusion was based on reports from member clubs, half of which are composed of young people, and on popular numbers in the organization's February "Parade of American Music." They were largely folk music and musical show hits.

Spaeth said reports from music publishers and recording companies also showed Rock 'n' Roll was coming to an end.

"It was nothing but a jungle beat," he said, speaking of it in the past tense. "Perhaps, it did reflect a spirit of our times, but even the kids are dropping it."

Lesser roles were capably handled by Jerry Liles, Rosemary Swisher, Hubert Shearon, John Filicky, Jerry Van Dyke, Robert Holton, Larry Prescott, and Zull Bailey, with perhaps John Filicky and Robert Holton tying for top-honors in this category.

What amazes me so is that this production was put together in exactly five weeks, which is perhaps less time than the Broadway production necessitated, and yet it was so very well done. The spirit throughout the production was high, and everyone seemed to be enjoying doing his bit. This in itself was infectious, and made the audience grasp the show with more enthusiasm.

There were no really low moments. "Too Darn Hot" was much too long, and became boring before its conclusion. The bongos drums were too loud in the rumba number, and a few times the wind instruments over-played the rest of the orchestra.

All in all, this production compares favorably with previous ones, and in three respects surpasses them: the musicianship, the timing, and the intensity. And after all, these are really the important phases of any production, without which a failure would be certain. The show is to be sincerely recommended, and given a deserving "four stars."

Annapolis Will Commission 800

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP)—The Naval Academy will commission 800 officers at graduation ceremonies this June — six of them as second lieutenants in the Army.

A new law permits a certain number of graduates of each service academy to pick any branch of service. Preference in picking Army careers was given midshipmen who served in the Army or are the sons of Army men.

Two of the Army-bound middies are the sons of Army colonels, but one is the son of an admiral.

As far as anyone knows, no West Point graduates are choosing Navy careers under the new law, but a few have picked the Marines. One Air Force senior also wants to be a leatherneck.

Search Swamp For 4-Year-Old

EAST HAMPTON, Conn. (AP)—More than 150 persons searched a thick, swampy area Tuesday night for a four-year-old boy missing since early Tuesday afternoon.

State police identified the boy as Shane Morey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Morey of East Hampton. The Moreys have seven other children.

Mrs. Morey called to him through a police loudspeaker while her husband joined searchers.

The boy was lightly clad. The temperature was expected to drop to from 25 and 34 degrees during the night.

BOOM FROM BRIDGE

LE HAVRE, France (AP)—Europe's longest suspension bridge, opening in the summer, is expected to boom business in Normandy and Brittany provinces. The 3,149-foot span costing 17 million dollars crosses the Seine Estuary at Tancarville and replaces a dozen ferries that have been unable to handle the traffic load. It cuts 20 miles off the Le Havre-Paris auto road.

President's Proposal Aimed To End Fallout Dangers

By ELTON C. FAY
 WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower's proposal to the Soviets that nuclear tests be banned below altitudes of 30 miles—unless underground—is aimed to eliminate danger from fallout.

A nuclear explosion spews out radioactive particles. Their rain to the earth is called fallout. The extent of the threat this offers to the world population is a point of some controversy among scientists. But all agree that in sufficient concentration there is a danger.

no fallout. The radioactive particles are confined. As to high altitude shots, such simple factors as gravity and the rate of decay of fission products enter into the calculations of reduced danger.

Radioactive particles from a nuclear burst in the earth's atmosphere drop fairly fast toward the earth. This means that they reach the surface while they are still radioactively hot.

But as altitude increases, particles released from a nuclear explosion descend more slowly since gravity is diminished as distance in space increases.

It is conceivable that nuclear tests conducted above the 30-mile height could be detected by radioactive samplings taken by any several means, including "sounding" rockets and satellites.

Betsy Palmer Turns Bad Girl Role Into A Goodie

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—Betsy Palmer is a good girl who would like to be a bad girl once in a while—strictly in television dramas.

On May 6 she would appear to have the opportunity, playing the lead in "The Wayward Widow" as a 19th Century English brandy smuggler on "U.S. Steel Hour" (CBS-TV). But the truth is that she's such a beautiful, pleasant, brandy smuggler that she really doesn't seem bad at all.

Thinking over the role, which she thoroughly enjoys, beautiful and pleasant Miss Palmer came to the conclusion the other day that "I certainly can't knock the fact that I never play a really bad girl. Maybe it's for the best."

She agrees that it's almost impossible to find the role of a thoroughly bad girl in television dramas. When, for example, she played the role of a prostitute in "The Time of Your Life." She was a prostitute with a heart of gold as befitting a literary and theatrical convention almost as old as the oldest profession.

"The Wayward Widow" is based on one of Thomas Hardy's Wessex Tales. In the TV adaptation by Michael Dyne a clergyman played by Richard Greene takes lodging in the smuggling widow's house—in the very room where the smuggled brandy is hidden. Which leads to complications, naturally.

"The wonderful thing about television to me," she said, "is the fact that you have to learn flexibility as an actress. There is no chance to get bored. It's unlike doing the same show in the theater every night.

"Sometimes I think I'd like to do a play, but then I wonder how long I'd enjoy it. I like the variety of television and enjoy any role that challenges me."

Costly Drawback In Small Cars

TULSA, Okla. (AP)—Small automobiles which are easy to park and are light on gasoline consumption have drawbacks.

Ronald L. Arganbright found 5-year old boys can get on top of his foreign model easily. He said their playful activity caused him to spend $400 to get roof dents ironed out.

The United States has fired at least five atomic explosions at altitudes about 30 miles—three in Project Argus over the South Atlantic last summer and two sent up from Johnston Island, over the Central Pacific, a few weeks earlier.

The Argus explosions were at altitudes of about 300 miles. The two Johnston Island tests were believed to have been made at altitudes of between 50 and 100 miles.

The Soviets so far has made no direct claim to having conducted edge-of-space nuclear tests. About a year ago, Soviet officials referred to nuclear explosions con-

ACC Will Consider Gator Bowl Aid, NIT Proposal

GREENSBORO (AP)—Proposals to aid the Gator Bowl through a new bowl money split and to allow participation in the National Invitational basketball tournament are on the agenda of the Atlantic Coast Conference spring meeting here.

Three walks and a Bulldog error gave East Carolina the lead in the initial inning. Wally Crockett led off with a walk. Glenn Bass got on by an error. Gary Pierce walked, and then Bob Hart drew a free pass to force in a run.

Coach Jim Mallory stated this morning that he was worried about the ACC game yesterday. "I was a little afraid that our boys would be looking over ACC to toward the Elion game but we played real good ball," Baker (Ben) had real good stuff and didn't show any effects of his leg injury.

Northwestern Is Against Rose Bowl Agreement

CHICAGO (AP)—Northwestern's decision to vote against continuation in the Rose Bowl could mean an end to Big Ten participation in the post-season football classic.

Northwestern announced Tuesday night it will vote against the Rose Bowl at the Big Ten meetings next month. This apparently would create a 5-5 stalemate. At least a 6-4 majority is needed for Western Conference participation.

Northwestern's decision brought a new twist to the Rose Bowl story. Last week it was speculated Northwestern would vote for the game.

This immediately brought an unsigned editorial by the student newspaper—the Daily Northwestern—urging the university's senate to vote "no" at the conference meetings May 2-24 at Ann Arbor.

T. Leroy Martin, chairman of the faculty committee, said: "Northwestern's faculty athletic committee voted tonight to reaffirm the university's long standing position of opposition to all post-season games including the Rose Bowl."

The decision will guide Northwestern's vote at the conference meeting, said Martin. Northwestern never before announced its vote before the meeting but other universities have and because of speculation on changing its vote, Martin decided on the release.

Last month at a meeting in Madison, Wis., the conference took a straw vote and received a 5-4 decision in favor of continuance with Northwestern abstaining.

Illinois, Ohio State and Minnesota have announced they are against continuance. Wisconsin is known to be against although it has not announced its decision.

Michigan is in favor of continuance. Indiana, Iowa, Purdue and Michigan State are believed to be for although they also have not made any announcements. The present contract ends with the 1960 game.

Another Body In Cemetery Plot

WESTPORT, Conn. (AP)—Last fall when Henry Kalabany of Norwalk visited Colonial Cemetery he noticed a depression in his plot. He and his sons dug and found a coffin with a body.

They quickly covered the coffin and told authorities. An exhumation order was needed to open the coffin, it turned out, and this was obtained last week from Superior Court.

Tuesday gravediggers pulled a cypress casket from the plot. Inside were a few bones and a bit of cloth.

Kalabany said it wasn't the body he found last fall. "I saw a body with a freshly pressed suit, white shirt and red face," he said. Authorities, and Kalabany, are still at a loss to explain the body. Cypress caskets haven't been used here for more than 40 years.

Fight, Or Else

NEW YORK (AP)—Supreme Court Justice Saul Street today directed middleweight champion Sugar Ray Robinson to agree to defend his title against Carmen Basilio within 15 days or face loss of his crown.

The court, in a 12-page decision, upheld the power of the State Athletic Commission to choose the challenger for a championship bout and to fix the date.

Justice Street said, however, that the commission did not, according to its own rules, have the authority to pick the place for the fight.

Robinson went to the courts after the commission, on April 2, ordered him to sign for a defense against Basilio by noon, April 15, or face loss of his championship.

The commission took the action under its rules requiring champions to defend every six months.

Robinson hasn't fought since he regained the title by outpointing Basilio, of Chittanooga, N. Y., at Chicago, March 25, 1958.

Two Rounds Of Play Will Cut Pimehurst Field

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP)—Ability and stamina were demanded today as the North and South Amateur Golf Tournament staged two rounds to cut the field to quarter-final size by tonight.

First round play Tuesday reduced the field to 32 and brought about the defeat of Dave Smith, co-medalist from Gastonia, N.C.

Dr. Wendell Aldrich, 38-year-old Angola, Ind., dentist, shot par golf against Pvt. John Schubeck of Ft. Knox, Ky.

Dick Chapman of Pinehurst, the defending champion, and Mal Galletta of Old Westbury, N.Y., who won 15 years ago, met in another upper bracket match.

Herb Durham, the 1958 runner-up from Dallas, Tex., met Howard Everett of Northfield, N.J. Everett, three under par in a 4 and 3 defeat of Jim Ford of St. Louis, appeared ready for his best showing in several appearances here.

Still in the upper half, Arnold Blum of Macon, Ga., met John McCann Jr. of Charlotte. Don Esig of Baton Rouge, La., played Dr. John McKee of Orlando, Fla.; Carl Lohren of Silver Springs, Md., opposed Dr. George Trainor of Rochester, N.Y., and Jack Nicklaus, husky young Walker Cup player from Columbus, Ohio, drew Robert Roos of San Francisco.

Peter Green, University of North Carolina freshman from Franklin, Mich., who shared medal honors with Dave Smith, met Gene Andrews of Pacific Palisades, Calif., in the top match of the lower half. Green had to win a 19-hole duel from George Toms of Durham, N.C., to advance.

Dale Morey, former Walker Cup player from Indianapolis, who went 23 holes to beat Charlie Smith, brother of Dave, was paired with Jake Howard of Augusta, Ga.

Bill Hyndman of Abingdon, Pa., further tested his ailing back against Larry McCrary, another Augusta, Ga., entry. Hyndman, who will play with the U.S. Walker Cup team against the British at Muirfield, Scotland, in three weeks, got back Larry Bell of Allentown, Pa., 2 and 1. But the prospect of playing two matches today loomed as a more severe test of his injured back. He suffered a muscular spasm during the qualifying round Monday and has been under treatment of three doctors since.

Bill Campbell, of Huntington, W.Va., who has won three titles here in nine years, met Paul Kelly of Ossining, N.Y. Kelly had to survive a six-hole sudden death playoff to gain his place in match play after shooting an 18 qualifying day.

A corporal, Edward Ross, all-Marine champion from Camp Lejeune, N.C., surprised with a 3 and 2 upset of Roger McManus of Terrace Park, Ohio, to advance to a second round match with Claude Wild of Washington, D.C.

Demeter, Fowler Put Los Angeles Dodgers Back In Pretty Good Place

By ED WILKS Associated Press Sports Writer

Don Demeter, a kid who has been a long time coming, and Art Fowler, an old guy trying to come back, have the long lost Los Angeles Dodgers sittin' pretty in the National League.

Demeter, at 23 a lean and lanky outfielder who was signed as a favor to two other kids, ripped his third two-run homer of the game in the 11th inning Tuesday night at the Coliseum for a 9-7 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

The Braves stayed on top by whipping Cincinnati 7-4 as Warren Spahn won his second. Glen Hobbie of the Chicago Cubs defeated St. Louis 1-0 with a one-hitter after 6 2-3 innings of perfect pitching in the only other game scheduled in the NL.

In the American League, Cleveland took a two-game lead by ripping Detroit 14-1. New York gained second place, walloping Washington 11-4, as Kansas City dropped the Chicago White Sox into a third place tie 8-3. Baltimore tied for third by beating Boston 5-2.

Demeter, signed in '53 because the Dodgers were interested in two of his Oklahoma City high school buddies who insisted he be signed, too, has shown promise of power but hasn't been much of a percentage hitter (1.89 last year). Now, after a build-up diet of vitamins and cod liver oil, Demeter leads the majors with six home runs, shares the RBI lead at 14 with the Giants' Orlando Cepeda and Baltimore's Gus Triandos, and is second among NL hitters with a .412 average (14-for-34).

All the Dodger runs came on homers. Don Zimmer's first of the season was a two-on shot in a five-run third that got rolling on Demeter's inside-the-park homer. Felipe Alou and Jackie Brandt homered for the Giants, who tied with a 5-67 average, smacked a single, double and triple for the Braves, who handed Bob Purkey (2-1) his first defeat. Vade Pinson drove in all of the Reds' runs off Spahn. It was Spahn's 248th major league victory, his 51st over the Reds.

Demeter's payoff homer came off reliever Al Worthington (1-1), who allowed only two hits in his 4 1-3 innings as the fourth Giant pitcher.

Fowler, dumped by Cincinnati in 1957, relieved starter Stan Williams in the San Francisco fifth. He gave up two hits and the tying run, then blanked San Francisco the rest of the way. The stubby right-hander has worked 18 1-3 relief innings in five games for the Dodgers. His strikeout total of 18 Drysedale's 25.

Hobbie (2-0), who will be 23 next Friday, retired the first 20 men he faced, then gave up a double to Stan Musial with two out in the seventh. In the ninth, the right-hander gave up his lone walk and hit a batter, then retired Musial on a tap to the mound for the final out.

The Cubs scored on singles by Walt Moryn and Sammy Taylor that sandwiched a walk and infield out in the second inning. Rookie Gary Blaylock, making his first big league start, went all the way for the Cards.

Major League Stars By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Hitting — Don Demeter, Dodgers, his third two-run homer of game crushed the Giants 9-7 in 11 innings.

Pitching — Glen Hobbie, Cubs, gave up just one hit, with Stan Musial's two-out double ruining his perfect game bid in the seventh inning, and allowed but three base runners in 1-0 victory over the Cardinals.

As for Musial, who is experiencing a not unusual early season slump, it was the second time in the last three games that he had saved the Cardinals from becoming no-hit victims.

Against San Francisco last Saturday he came off the bench in the seventh to hit a pinch single and soil Jack Sanford's bid for a no-hitter.

Did Musial have any feelings about breaking up two no-hitters within a few days? "No," said the great veteran in a matter-of-fact tone. "A lot can happen in the last two innings."

Spoiled No-Hitter On His Best Pitch

CHICAGO (AP)—"He hit my best pitch, it was no lollipop."

With that, young Glen Hobbie of the Chicago Cubs managed one of those far-way smiles. The kind that indicates what might have been if . . .

Hobbie, who'll be 23 Friday, pitched a one-hit, 1-0 victory over St. Louis Tuesday in wind-blown, frozen Wrigley Field.

He had a perfect game until there was one out in the seventh. But up stepped Stan (The Spoiler) Musial. A moment later, Hobbie's no-hitter was no more. Musial slammed an outside curve past third base and into left field for a double.

Hobbie was still faced with the task of winning the game when Musial came up in the ninth. There were men on first and second on a walk and a hit batsman with two out.

Cub Manager Bob Scheffing went to the mound. So did catcher Sam Taylor who had driven in the only run with a single in the second inning.

After a few gestures, Scheffing went back to the dugout. Taylor went back to catch. Hobbie pitched Musial swung on a fast ball and bounced to the pitcher to end the game.

Had Scheffing told Hobbie how to pitch to Musial?

"Heck no," said the Cub manager. "I've been in this league for 17 years and still don't know how to pitch to Musial. I just wanted to make sure Glen wasn't mad at himself."

AMERICA'S MISSILE MIGHT

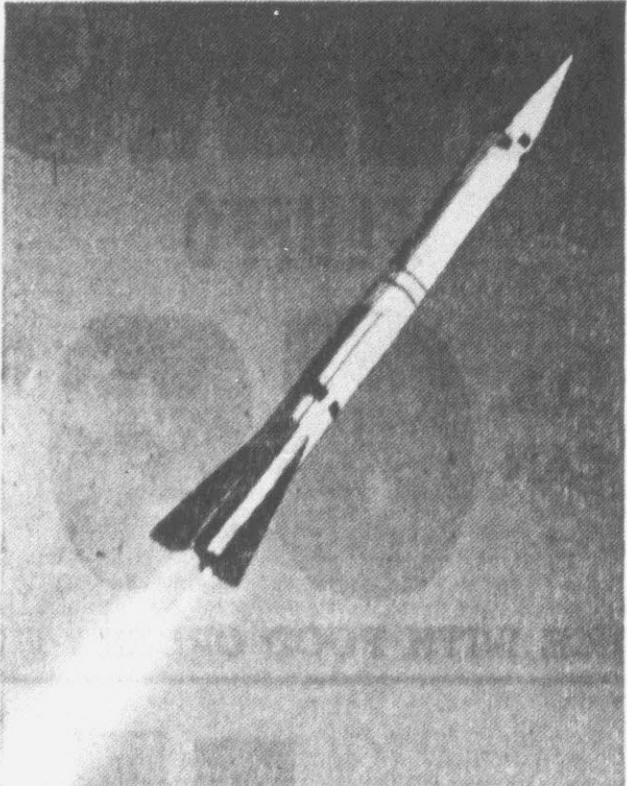

JUPITER and REDSTONE missiles are produced side by side at Detroit plant. The Jupiters (center) are intermediate range ballistic missiles, some 60 feet long, and are flanked by the Redstones, ballistic guided missiles that are 63 feet long with a 200-mile range.

The long arm of Uncle Sam's missile force is getting stronger and reaching farther with each passing day. Just a year ago the United States was trying to whip its first long range missiles into operational shape. Today, it has two types of 1,500-mile ballistic missiles, the Thor and Jupiter, ready to use.

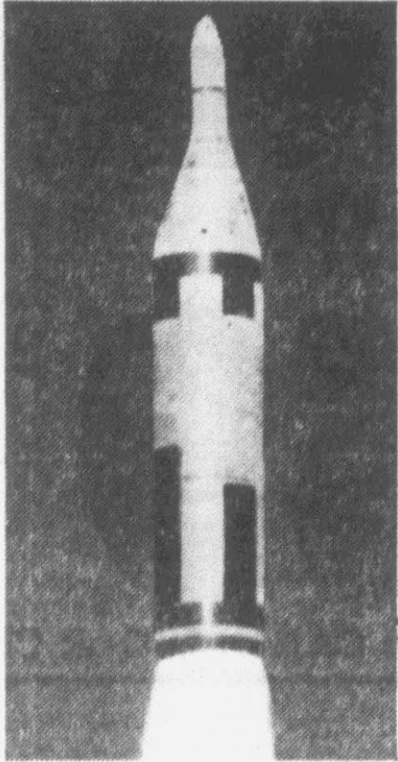

The even more powerful Atlas intercontinental ballistic missile demonstrated its power last November spanning 6,325 miles across the Atlantic. When Atlas bases are set up, the big missile will be able to reach almost any target in the Communist world half an hour after blastoff.

Two more ICMBs are in the oven. Titan, a 6,000 or 7,000 mile range missile, is undergoing its first tests. Minuteman, a quicker firing solid propellant ICBM, is on the drawing boards.

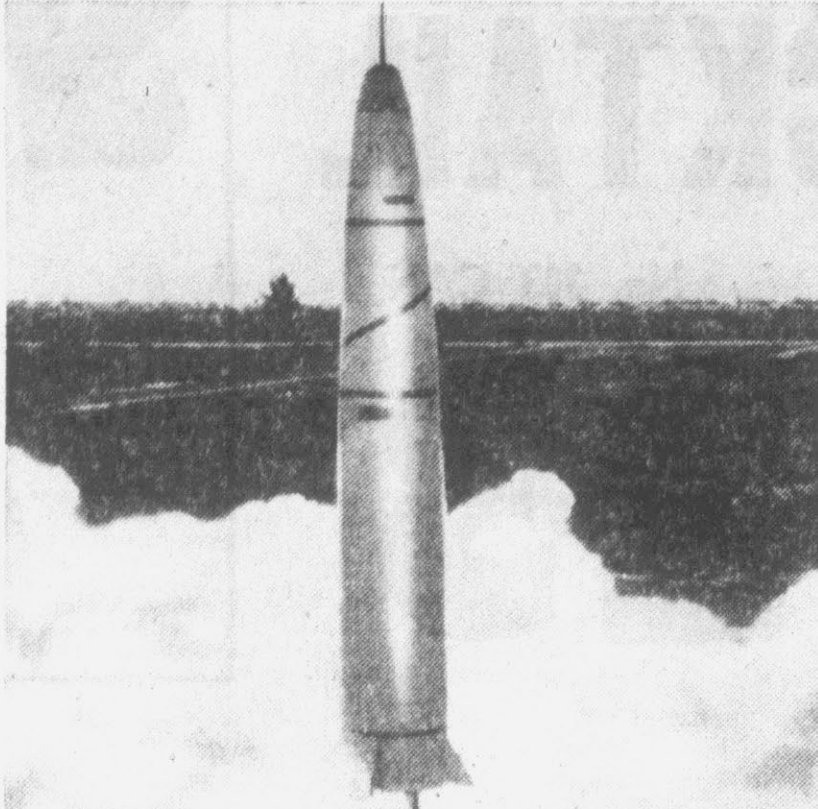

In addition to these monsters, the U.S. has developed, or is developing, a whole spectrum of missiles—from the small but deadly Sidewinder that homes on enemy planes by the heat of the engines to the Navy's Polaris, a 1,500 mile range missile designed to be fired from underwater by nuclear submarines.

SERGEANT is a solid propellant surface-to-surface ballistic guided missile. It can deliver a blow deep into enemy lines.

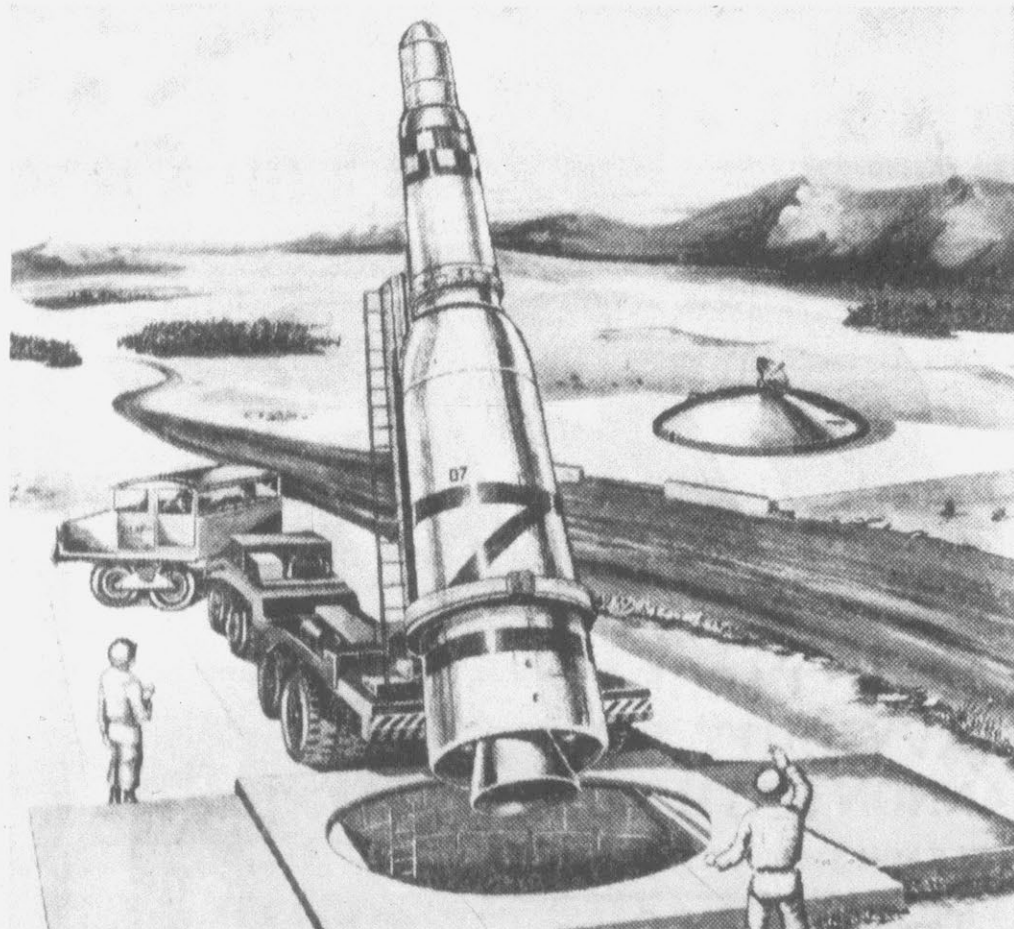

POLARIS, the Navy's intermediate range ballistic missile, is designed especially for submarine use, has 1,500 mile range.

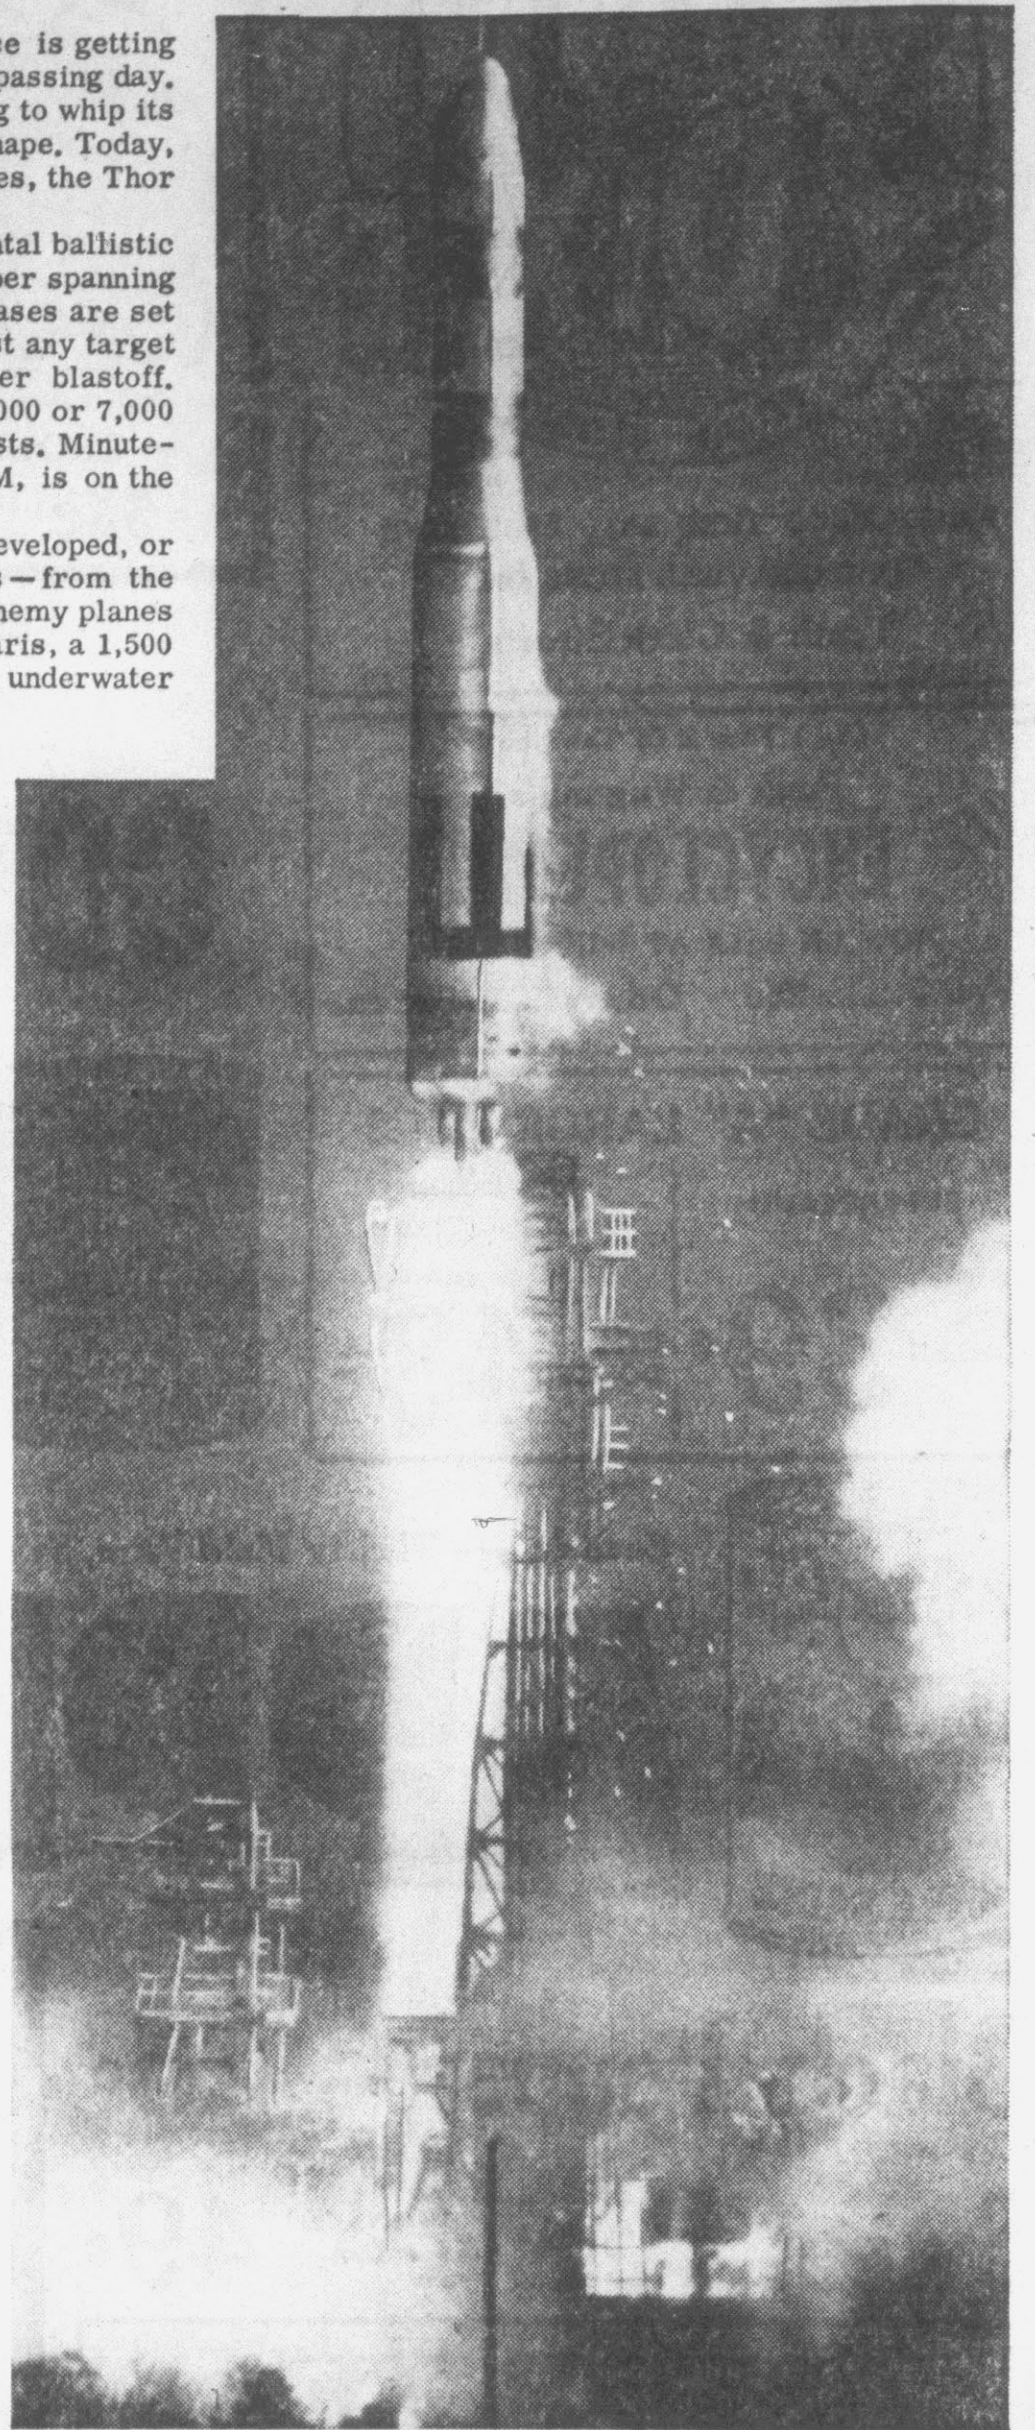

THOR, an Air Force missile, is first intermediate range ballistic missile to be deployed overseas. It has 1,500 mile range.

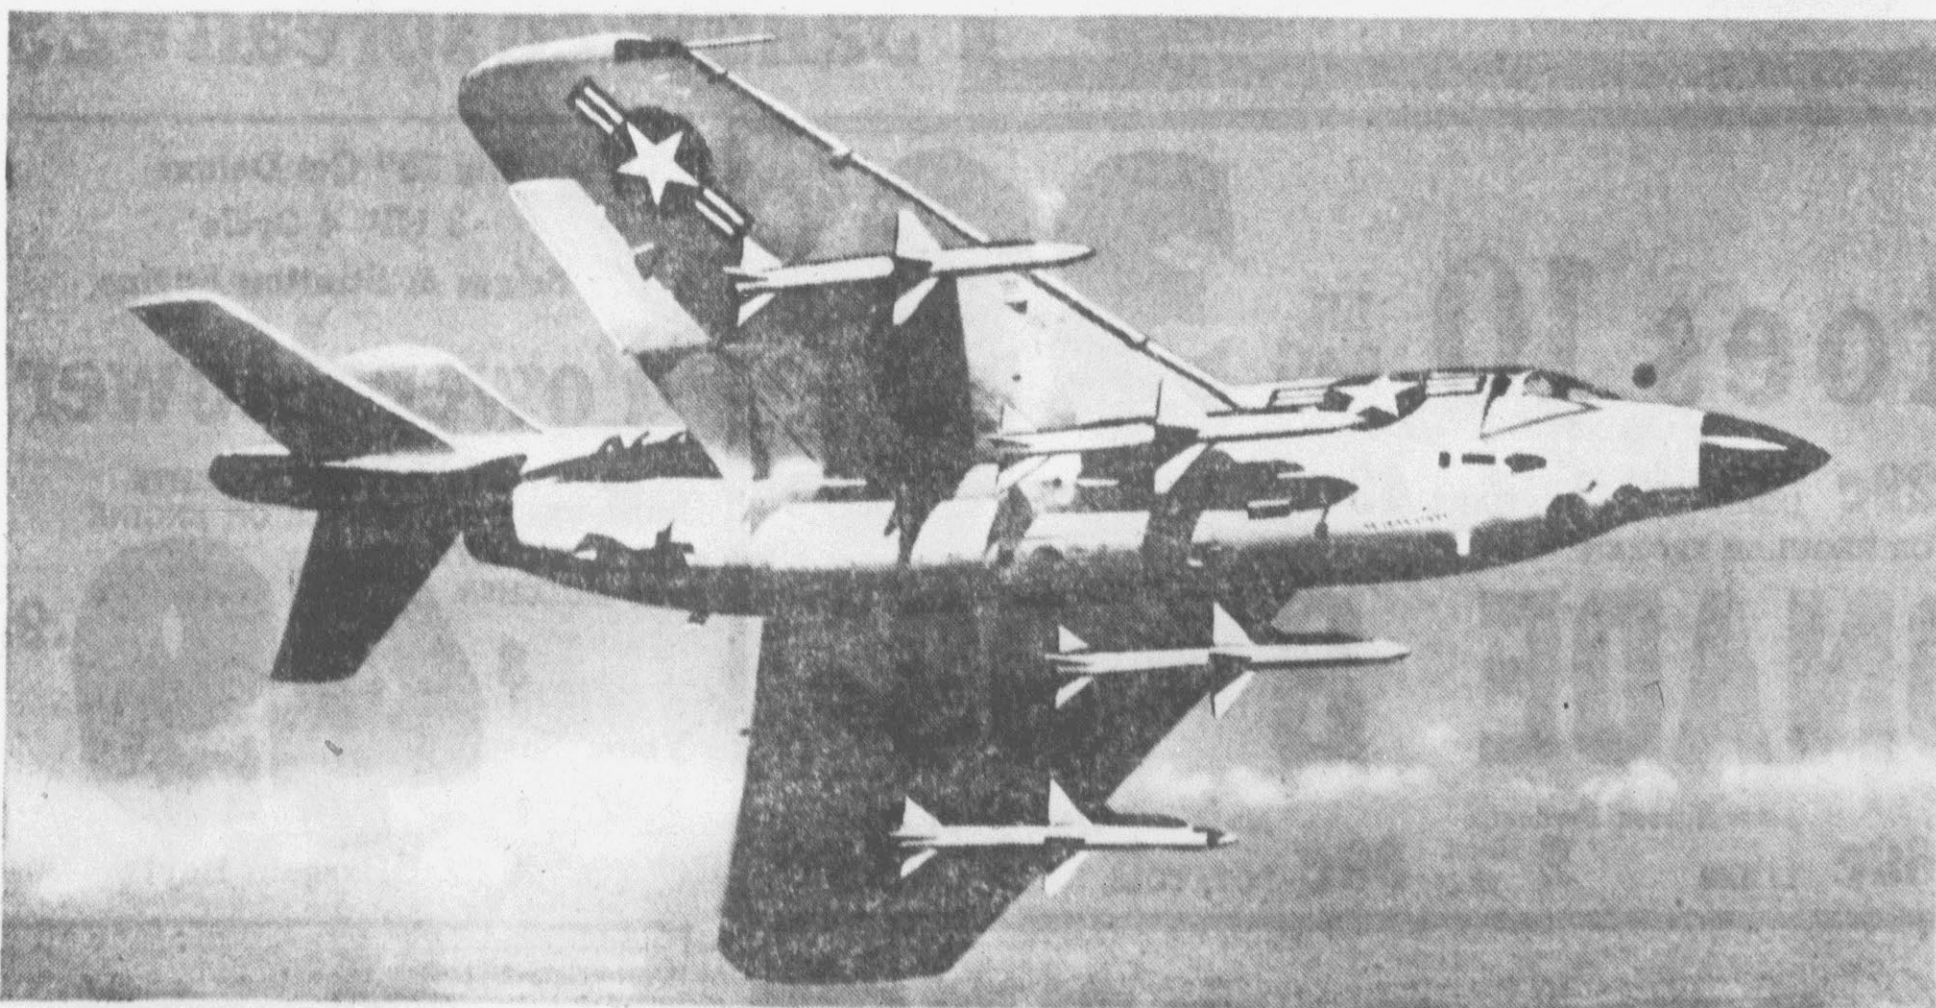

ATLAS intercontinental ballistic missiles are assembled in San Diego, Calif., plant. The stainless steel missile—9 feet in diameter and 80 feet long—has 15,000 mile-per-hour speed.

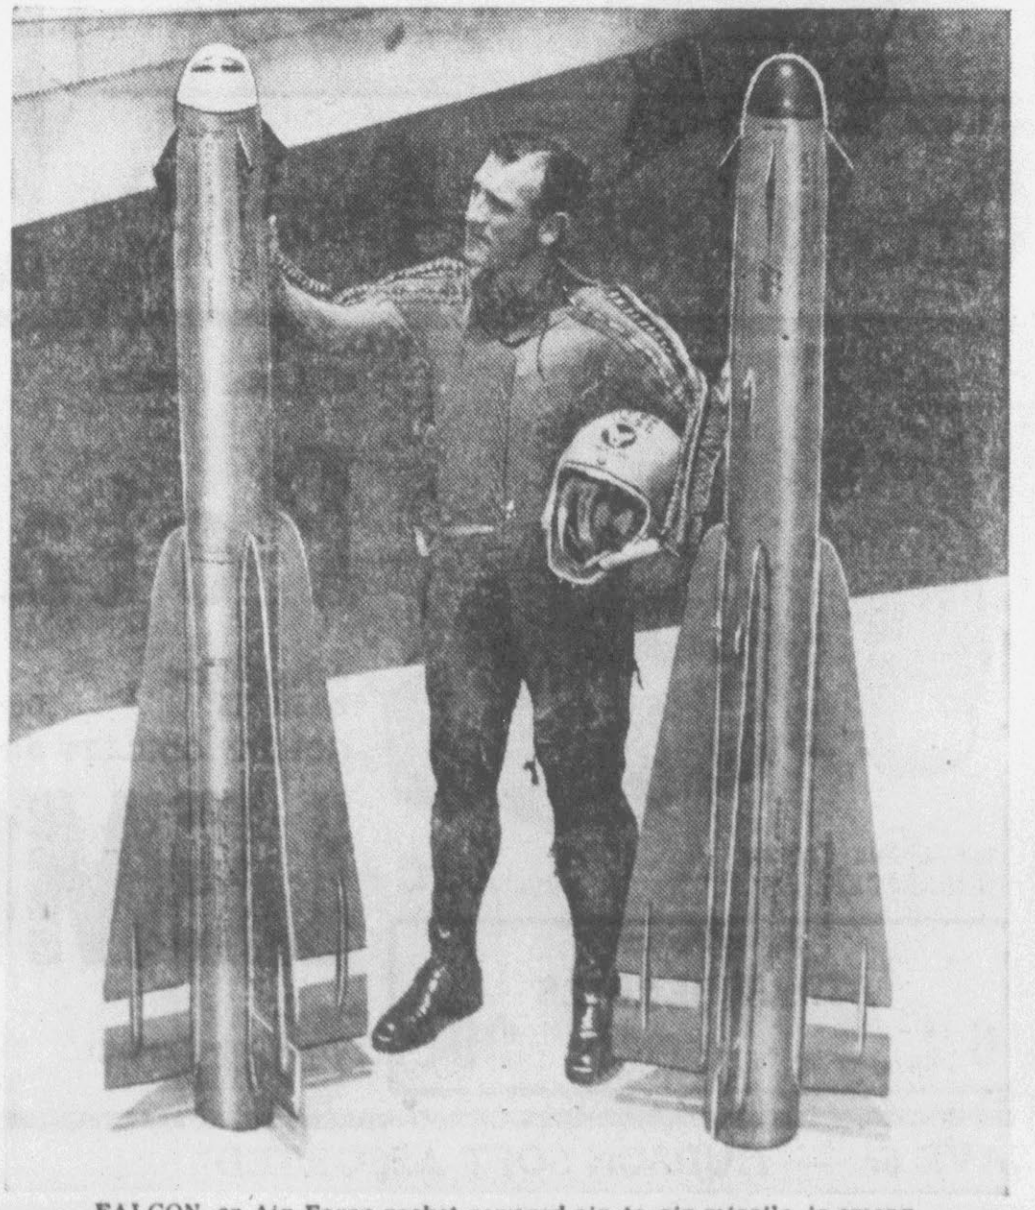

MINUTEMAN, pictured in this artist's conception, will be another addition to the family of ICBMs. It is to be a solid propellant missile in 5,000 mile class.

TITAN, the Air Force 15,000-mile-per-hour intercontinental ballistic missile, roars away from its launching pad at Cape Canaveral, Fla.

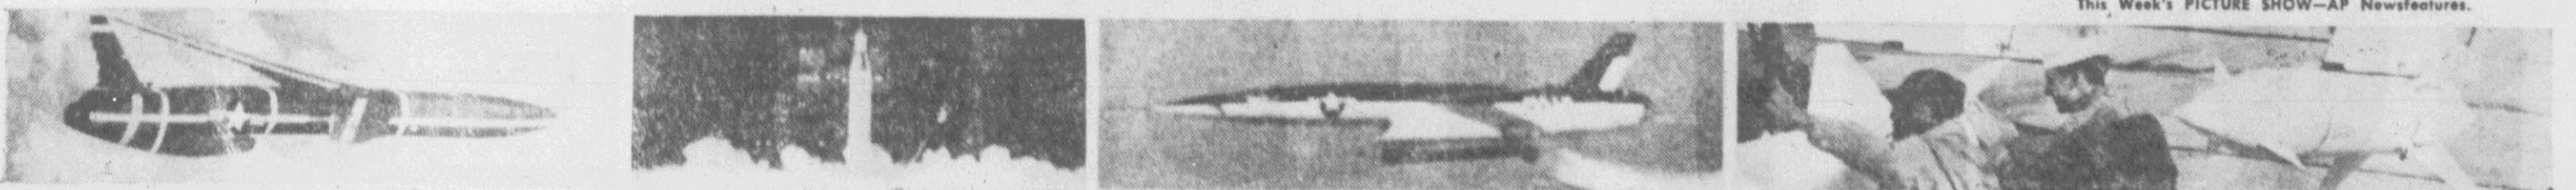

SPARROW III, Navy's air-to-air missile, is strong arm in fleet air defense. Navy fighters can carry two to four of the 12-foot missiles.

FALCON, an Air Force rocket powered air-to-air missile, is among smallest missiles in production. It's only about six feet in length.

Fifth - Grader Wrote To Rhee, Has A Reply

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Fifth grade teacher Bill Bryant had his pupils write letters to world leaders, conveying friendship messages to all children.

He displayed Tuesday an answer to the class. It read:

"My dear American friends: "Your world friendship project is most commendable, and I am pleased to send you a message of advice for all boys and girls everywhere.

"I am about to observe my 84th birthday. To you, I imagine, that is an almost unbelievable age. When I was as old as you, there were no automobiles, no airplanes, no radio, no television, no miracle drugs — and no atom and hydrogen bombs.

"Also, there was no peace, and some of the peoples of the world were trying to push other people around. That is something that has not changed; yet, it is the aspect of our life that most required change.

"The generations that precede you have provided a wonderful heritage of inventions to make life more interesting and comfortable.

But to you, they have left the supreme task: that of creating a world order of freedom, of justice and of peace.

"Because you are citizens of the United States, which is the strongest and most democratic country in the world, your own role is especially important. If you don't understand what is going on, and if you are not alert to the intentions of the enemy that we call communism, there won't be much hope for the rest of us.

"My counsel is to stand firm for the values and the actions that have made your nation great. Do not compromise with evil. Do not think that you can live as free and happy men and women when others are enslaved and miserable.

"This is your challenge, and it is one that those who came before have never been able to meet. But I am confident that you will not fail, because you have great opportunity for knowing, for finding out the truth, than any boys and girls of the past.

"My very best wishes to all of you." The letter was signed Syngman Rhee, president of the Republic of South Korea.

Goldwyn Wants Fresh Face To Play Huck Finn

By BOB THOMAS HOLLYWOOD (AP) — They've finally got a Goldwyn in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

A lot of folks believe Samuel Goldwyn has long been a figure in the giant film company. It's not true, and never has been. The fiercely independent producer merged his assets with the new company when it was formed in 1924, then pulled out to pursue his lonely course.

Time marches on, and now Samuel Goldwyn Jr. has an office as producer on the Culver City lot. As an independent producer on his own, young Sam produced some good films, including "The Proud Rebel."

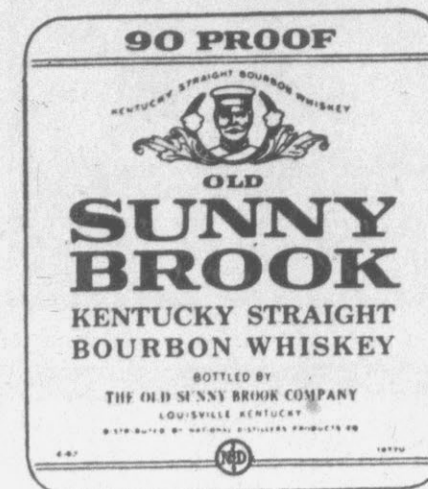

"I'm still an independent," he explained. "MGM is releasing the picture and putting up the money. The only consultation I get is from Sol Siegel, the head of the studio. "Actually, there are no truly independent producers today, with the exception of my father. All of the others get their financing from somewhere."

Another reason for MGM tie is the picture he making: "Huckleberry Finn."

Explained Sam: "Only a major studio would attempt this kind of film. When you're an independent, you're limited on financing by the star name you can come up with. "Huck Finn" is not a picture for star names."

The stars of the Mark Twain classic, he said, should be Huck himself, and the broad, ever-changing Mississippi. He has the river lined up. Now all he needs is Huck. "That's the problem," he admitted. "I am determined to find an unknown. I think it's very important to get a fresh face that will seem natural in the role."

THE OLD SUNNY BROOK COMPANY, LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY

You'd Never Guess Wife Is An Heiress

WASHINGTON (AP) — You'd never know Mrs. Christian A. Herter was a Standard Oil heiress, if you saw her chopping down trees. It's good exercise and good fun, she says, and "I enjoy it a great deal more than playing golf."

You'd hardly expect the secretary of state to speak of his wife as "Mac." But he does.

Honey things like that do a lot to take away the impression some people get of Mrs. Herter in formal society—the picture of a frosty Bostonian, tall, lean and imperious.

Actually, she was Miss Mary Caroline Pratt of Brooklyn when the handsome Chris Herter — a Parisian-born, Harvard-educated young patrician—look her for his bride in 1917. The years have been kind to them except, of course, in the matter of Herter's sometimes crippling arthritis. They have had a full family life, with four children and 14 grandchildren.

They have enjoyed other good things of life, too. For example, they've had three homes to be happy in.

There's a 150-year-old town house here in Georgetown. There's a 260-acre farm (fine for wood chopping) at Mills, Mass. There's a vast plantation, called Checha-Combahee, in South Carolina.

Mrs. Herter's father, Frederick Pratt, bought the plantation in 1929. He was the son of Charles Pratt, one of the founders of Standard Oil.

Charles Pratt also was the founder of Pratt Institute, which includes a well known art school in Brooklyn. Mrs. Herter is herself a talented painter.

Her liking for painting — she modestly regards herself as an amateur — affords another common interest with the secretary. His parents were both artists and he inherited some of their talent, with a bent toward architecture.

The Herters are fortunate in another way; neither has to diet conscientiously. Visitors are much impressed with the taste and elegance of interior decoration as practiced so determinedly by the Herters. One reason is their stress on getting just the right color.

There's a small library in the P Street home here, where an eye-catcher is a painting of a Chinese mandarin in crimson robes. The Herters have painted this room red six times, each coat slightly different from the last, to carry along that particular shade of crimson.

Does this sound like the Herters are too finicky you couldn't be more wrong. They have two dogs, and the dogs run loose in the house.

SUICIDE TRIED—Red-haired Mitzi Dore (above), strip tease burlesque dancer, tried to kill herself aboard an airliner just before it landed at Los Angeles, police reported. She was found unconscious in a rear room on the plane from an overdose of tranquilizer pills. She is in serious condition. Policemen said the 32-year-old performer from Alexandria, Va., left a note about a broken love affair. (AP Wirephoto)

Dynamite Blast Fatal To Three

OROVILLE, Calif. (AP)—Three men were killed and two injured Tuesday when dynamite exploded in a small tunnel at the site of the Oroville Dam on the Feather River.

Donald Goode, 40, job superintendent from Grand Junction, Colo.; Robert Arnold, 45, and Chester Zurich, 45, both of Oroville, were killed.

Fank Shippe and Andrew Canifax of Oroville were injured.

The tunnel was part of geological explorations for the proposed 400-foot high dam, slated to be one of the largest in the world.

Bessie's Eating Habits Costly

OKEMAH, Okla. (AP) — The curious appetite of Bessie the cow cost the Air Force $178.75.

That was the amount paid Tuesday to Okemah farmer A. L. Starkey, who claimed Bessie died of indigestion after eating an Air Force weather balloon.

The balloon was released at Tinker Air Force Base in Oklahoma City and drifted into Starkey's pasture.

PROBLEMS IN THE LEGISLATURE—While Florida House Speaker Thomas D. Beasley carries on the business of presiding over the Legislature at Tallahassee, his granddaughter, Sandra Weiss, 4, has her own problems with her shoes behind the speaker's rostrum. Sandra is the daughter of Richard Weiss, a dental student at the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill. (AP Wirephoto)

If Wanted, He's Ready To Serve

GOSHEN, N.Y. (AP) — Vincent Van Derhoff, of Chester, N.Y., answered an Orange County summons for jury duty with a letter saying: "I got good sense and if you really want me I'll be there."

He continued: "But first I think I should square it with you. You see, I'm only nine years old." Vincent's father, of the same name, died two years ago.

She Can't Serve In Death Case

MISSOULA, Mont. (AP) — The name of Charlotte E. Bryant of Missoula was drawn Tuesday for a jury to hear a traffic manslaughter case.

She won't be there. Larry D. Blakney was charged with manslaughter after Mrs. Bryant's death in an accident June 15, 1958.

Extra Time For Three Escapees

Additional time behind bars was ordered yesterday for three convicts who successfully engineered escapes from the State Prison Department's Greenville camp, but who were recaptured after short periods of freedom.

The new sentences were added to terms now being served by Robert Goodwin, John Henry Whitaker and George D. Bennett, white inmates of the local prison camp. Judge W. H. S. Burgwyn presiding at a one-week mixed term of Pitt County Superior Court, handed down the judgments.

Goodwin and Whitaker escaped April 6 from the camp where Goodwin was serving a 1-to-3 years term for housebreaking and larceny and Whitaker was serving a six-months term for escape which had been tacked onto a previous sentence for breaking, entering and larceny.

Bennett ran from a road gang operating out of the camp August 5, 1958. He is serving two sentences, one of 40 years for second-degree burglary and another of seven years for breaking, entering and larceny.

Other judgments which were handed down by the court yesterday included:

J. L. Davenport, Rt. 5, Greenville, worthless check, judgment suspended upon payment of court costs and amount ($182) of check.

Henry Silas Forbes, 1013 Fairfax Ave., Greenville, speeding, 65 miles per hour, $10 and costs.

The Spiritual Sincers will present a program of songs at Brown's Chapel Holy Church on the Belvoir Road Sunday at 7:30 p.m. The public is invited.

At the April meeting of the Mt. Pleasant Home Demonstration Club, Sherrill Bryant, farm representative of the Guaranty Bank and Trust Co., spoke on the subject "How To Do Your Banking." He was introduced by Mrs. Helen Mohan, assistant home agent.

Two leaders' reports were given by Mrs. C. H. Hagan and Mrs. Harvey Biley. Mrs. Hagan advised gardeners to soak lima beans overnight to start sprouts before planting.

Mrs. Biley, in a family life report, said "we need to work to be happy." Also, she said, "we need to prepare children for life—not protect them from it."

Mrs. David Mayo, hostess for the occasion, served refreshments.

Naval Reserves Hear General

Brig. Gen. Frank C. Tharin, assistant wing commander of the Second Marine Aircraft Wing at Cherry Point, was principal speaker last night at a banquet celebrating the tenth anniversary of the Greenville Naval Reserve Composite Company 6-26.

Gen. Tharin praised members of reserve units of all the armed forces for their part in keeping the nation's defenses in a state of readiness. He pointed up the role of the Navy and Marine Corps in the present defensive strategy being carried out by the United States.

Also at last night's meeting Cmdr. Grover Everett officially assumed command of the local reserve company succeeding Cmdr. David W. Mosier who has served as commander of the unit for the past two years.

Camping Program Given For Troop

FOUNTAIN—Boy Scouts of Troop 92 in Fountain were given a program on camping at their regular meeting in the Community Building Monday night.

Knott Proctor Jr. of Greenville showed films and gave a talk on camping. The program included such topics as: Camping the Year Around; Who is Responsible for Camping, and a discussion of Camp Charles and Camp Croatan, the two Scout camps for this area.

Refreshments were served to the boys, their parents and guests following the meeting.

Parmesan cheese is often added to soups or escalloped vegetables for a garnish and taste treat.

Winterville—The town of Winterville is installing drainage tile in a two-block long ditch beside the railroad so the ditch may be filled in.

The project, according to city officials, was approved by the railroad company and work was started several weeks ago.

The job is expected to be completed in about two weeks.
