

Deputy Sec. Of Defense Donald Quarles Dies In His Sleep Today

Not Known To Have Been Ill; Was Possible Successor To McElroy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Deputy Secretary of Defense Donald A. Quarles died today.

Quarles, second ranking defense official since 1957 and former secretary of the Air Force, died in his sleep.

Quarles was born in Van Buren, Ark., July 30, 1894.

The deputy defense chief had not been ill, so far as friends knew.

Quarles had been mentioned as a possible successor for Secretary of Defense Neil McElroy, who has announced his intention to leave the top Pentagon post late this year.

Quarles was an official of the Western Electric Co. and a resident of New Jersey when he entered government service.

He was vice president of Western Electric and president of Sandia Corp., a subsidiary which operates the Sandia Atomic Weapons Laboratory at Albuquerque, N.M., for the Atomic Energy Commission.

In 1953 President Eisenhower appointed Quarles an assistant secretary of defense for research and development.

Quarles became secretary of the Air Force in August 1955.

He is survived by his widow and three children.

By a former marriage, Quarles has two daughters and a son, Carolyn Anne, Mrs. Stanley C. Lewis, and Donald Aubrey Jr.

Quarles has served as acting head of the big Defense Department on many occasions when the defense secretary was absent.

Quarles started his climb from modest circumstances.

While still in short pants, he showed a bent for mathematics. He was graduated from high school at the age of 15 and because there was a shortage of teachers, so he said, he was offered a job teaching math in high school provided he went to the University of Missouri's summer school. This he did. The 16-year-old math teacher's first monthly pay-check was $50.

He went back to the university the next summer and again taught in high school. In addition he had some part-time jobs, saved his money and headed for Yale in 1912.

He got his B.A. degree in 1916 and the following year he enlisted in the Army. After two years in France and Germany during World War I, he came home a captain.

Mustered out, he got a job in New York with Western Electric's engineering department, did part-time studying in theoretical physics at Columbia University. During World War II he had much to do with development of radar.

Quarles did not smoke or drink. He enjoyed good music well enough to go "voluntarily to symphonies."

"But I don't want to be put in the Puritan class," he once said.

When reporters reminded him that Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson had remarked that the man appointed to the Air Force job must "sit next to God, have financial and engineering experience" and be one the Senate would confirm, Quarles chuckled and said: "Secretary Wilson had to revise that first qualification."

This morning Quarles' chauffeur, Clarence Mason, went to Quarles' home to drive him to a studio for an early television interview.

When Quarles failed to appear, the driver went into the house about 7:55 a.m. He was unable to arouse Quarles who was in bed.

Mason called Col. Stanley C. Lewis, Quarles' son-in-law, Lewis hurried to the Quarles home.

A Pentagon spokesman said it was believed Quarles died several hours previously.

An attempt was made to revive him, but he was pronounced dead at about 8:30 a.m.

Quarles attended a dinner Thursday given by Undersecretary of the Air Force Malcolm MacIntyre at the MacIntyre home, together with several Pentagon officials.

Later they attended an Air Force symphony concert.

Quarles was alone in the house at the time of his death, Mrs. Quarles was visiting in Chicago.

Herter Promises Geneva Firmness

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower will refuse to go to a summit conference if the Russians carry out their threat to turn East Berlin over to the East German Communists.

He will take the same stand if the Soviets sign a separate peace treaty with puppet East Germany.

Any such one-sided Soviet action in the next few weeks undoubtedly will wreck the Big Four foreign ministers conference due to begin in Geneva Monday.

This American attitude became known authoritatively a few hours before Secretary of State Christian A. Herter's scheduled take-off for pre-conference strategy talks with the British and French foreign ministers.

Herter himself already has served notice that the Russians must match concession for concession to end the danger of war.

Even as Herter arranged to leave, the three Allies were reported already arguing with the Soviets over where to sit to discuss the German deadlock.

In Geneva, Soviet diplomats insisted the talks take place around a round table. Western diplomats were holding out for a square table.

Despite pressure for a summit talk regardless of progress in Geneva, Eisenhower was reported insisting the foreign ministers first must make concrete gains in easing the Berlin crisis and other German problems.

This means, informants said, that mere agreement at Geneva on a time, place and agenda for a summit meeting would not be enough to convince him that a conference with Russia's Nikita Khrushchev would be worthwhile.

Herter outlined America's position for the East-West talks starting Monday in a nationally broadcast address Thursday night.

He arranged a final meeting with President Eisenhower before heading for the Geneva meeting with the foreign ministers of Britain, France and Russia.

Herter's maiden speech won praise from Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, the Assistant Democratic Leader, as "candid" and "statesmanlike."

In his half-hour address the new secretary pledged firmness and intent to negotiate in good faith. He called on the Communists too for "businesslike negotiations and not a propaganda exercise."

He set forth three basic guidelines of Western policy for the negotiations and summed them up, saying:

"The heart of our policy can be clearly and simply said to be this: A Germany reunited in freedom, a security system linked with arrangements for arms control, and in the interim a free and secure Berlin."

Aides said they thought the 64-year-old Herter came through on the TV screens like a veteran, with plenty of charm and almost no fluffs in his 3,000-word delivery.

National Safety Recognition For Local Utilities

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The safety record of the Greenville Utilities Commission's Electric, Water, and Gas Distribution Division has brought a third place award in national competition.

City Manager Leonard P. Bloxam told the Pitt County Safety Council yesterday.

The award was presented by the National Safety Council for the Utilities Commission's safety program.

Bloxam made the announcement at the monthly meeting of the Pitt County Safety Council.

The Utilities Commission received a certificate of merit two years ago from the National Safety Council for its safety program.

Luther Moore, chairman of the Pitt County Vehicle Safety Check Program, said Vehicle Safety Check Lanes will be operating in Greenville May 27 and 28 and in Ayden, Farmville, and Bethel May 28. Moore reported the lanes would operate from 9:00 a.m. to 12 noon and 1:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m.

He added both city and county officials were backing the program as well as the State Highway Patrol.

Yesterday's program was given by Russell Rogerson, Driver Improvement Supervisor, Patrolman J. B. Surles and Drivers License Examiner Cecil Morgan, on the Driver Improvement Clinics.

Rogerson said the clinic's students come from the ranks of violators whose driver's licenses have been suspended and from persons who continually appear in court.

The purpose of the clinic is to make the violator a safe driver through education and understanding. As a reward for passing the eight-hour class, 30 days will be deducted from the length of suspension time for their license.

Patrolman J. B. Surles said that a good attitude is the most important factor in making a good driver as well as in passing the clinic. People with bad attitudes usually can not pass the driver's test at the end of the school.

To close the program License Examiner Morgan demonstrated the Porto-Clinic. This device has tests for depth perception, side vision, color blindness, reaction time and also has an eye chart.

The unit is used to let the prospective driver know just how well he is suited for driving and what corrections or allowances he needs to make when behind the wheel of a car.

The meeting was held at Respass Brothers at 12:30 p.m. yesterday.

MARRIED 27 TIMES

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — A Yugoslav marital record holder has died at the age of 65.

Sredoje Goluskin, from northern Serbia, had been married 27 times, Belgrade newspapers reported. They did not say how many of his marriages ended in divorce.

The council doesn't want me because I'm a woman," said Mrs. Benway. "I resigned because they didn't offer to name me mayor or mayor pro tem and I knew it would be impossible to serve on a 4-1 council."

Two other families who disappeared suffered far more tragic consequences. The Carroll V. Jackson Jr., family of four from Mineral, Va., was murdered by a person or persons unknown. Their bodies were found in March in widely separated graves in Maryland and Virginia.

Ken Martin of Portland, Ore., and his wife and three children vanished on an expedition to gather Christmas greens. Their car apparently plunged off a highway into the Columbia river in the mountains of Washington. The bodies of two of the Martin daughters were found in a river slough this week.

Marston Named Utilities Commissioner By Council

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector City Editor

J. T. Marston Jr., president of State Bank and Trust Co., last night was named to a five-year term on the Greenville Utilities Commission.

He replaces John G. Clark, whose term expired in March.

Clark was appointed to the commission in March, 1949, Utilities Commission Secretary Larry Brown said. He had completed two five-year terms last March.

The appointment to the five-man commission was one of the last official acts of the old City Council which was holding its final meeting last night.

Mayor S. Eugene West in bringing up the matter of the appointment said it was his feeling that it was "better for us to clean up all this business rather than put it in the laps of the new council."

When the mayor opened the floor for nominations Councilman W. L. Whedbee, who did not seek re-appointment to the commission, said he was in favor of the nomination when a vote was called.

Councilman C. W. Harvey Jr., who was re-elected to the council, then nominated Marston for the five-year term. The vote for the bank president was unanimous.

West, Harvey, Whedbee and Lester Turnage, who was defeated for re-election, voted in favor of Marston's appointment. Outgoing Councilman J. A. Collins Sr., who was defeated by West in the mayor's race, was not present for last night's final meeting.

Two of the winning candidates who will be sworn in along with West and Harvey Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock were present to observe last night's meeting. They were Dr. M. W. Aldridge and Charles M. King.

The third winning council candidate, W. S. Stafford, was not present. The council approved an addition to Greenfield Terrace, a subdivision for Negroes located at the intersection of the N.C. 11-U.S. 13 bypass and the old highway north of Greenville.

Planning-Zoning Commissioners offered their approval for the addition Wednesday night. It will be the second section of the subdivision to be opened.

The city treasurer was named last night to maintain a register of the principal of street improvement bonds. City Manager Leonard Bloxam told the councilmen that the city had received requests for such a register. Complying with the request will mean simply listing the city's bonds in a book, he said.

Canvass Votes

The council officially canvassed the votes from Tuesday's municipal election and the final results corresponded exactly with the unofficial returns carried in Wednesday's edition of the Daily Reflector.

Mayor West asked City Manager Bloxam and Chief of Police S. G. Gibbs to check traffic flow and parking on Boyd Ave. from Blount Fertilizer plant to Dickinson Ave.

He said he had had complaints concerning parking on both sides of the street in that area.

Councilman Turnage recommended that changes be made in the method of voting for city elections to speed up the balloting.

West said he would "ask the council to allow me to appoint a committee to make a study of conditions and report back."

He emphasized that the council "has no bone to pick with the people who worked" at the polling places. "We think they did an excellent job."

As the meeting closed Turnage told the group, "It had been a pleasure working here for the past two years. I feel I got a two-year college education up here."

Councilman Whedbee said, "It has been a pleasure to serve with you boys. I'm sorry I can't be with you any longer."

Councilman-elect King told the group, "It's a pleasure to be here. I'll do my best."

And Aldridge said, "Those are about my sentiments. I want to be quiet and listen awhile before I express myself."

Governor To Call Highway Patrol Out Of Henderson

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Hodges said today that state highway patrolmen will be moved out of Henderson this weekend and "if there is any further violence requiring state assistance next Monday or thereafter, I shall immediately order National Guard units into Henderson and Vance County to act as law enforcement officers."

The governor made his announcement at a news conference. He said that the adjutant general's office had alerted a Guard unit for possible duty in Henderson. He said he did not know which unit but indicated it was that it was all or part of a military police company at Greensboro.

The governor told reporters he had sent wires telling of his decisions to union leaders, management of the struck Harriet-Henderson Cotton Mills, and Henderson County officials. He had conferred with the Henderson and Vance County officials just before his statement was issued.

"I wish to emphasize that the full responsibility whether or not the state has to use National Guard troops will rest with those people in Vance County who choose to break the law and cause violence," Hodges declared.

"I have not and shall not recognize the right of any person to violate the law, to throw rocks and stones, to fire bullets, to explode dynamite or any of the other acts or words of intimidation which have occurred in Henderson and Vance County."

The governor added, however, that conditions in Henderson have improved in recent days to such an extent that the state can now remove the patrolmen.

HENDERSON, N.C. (AP) — A reduced force of state highway patrolmen stood watch with local officers today as the morning shift of workers reported at the struck Harriet-Henderson Cotton Mills.

A source reported it was orderly, a contrast to rifle fire and a dynamite explosion which shattered the calm Thursday night.

The incidents, first signs of violence in several days, came only a few hours after Gov. Hodges announced developments would determine whether National Guardsmen would be sent to the scene, to replace patrolmen. The force of patrol troops has been reduced from about 100 to 40.

Police said no one was injured when several shots, apparently from a .22 rifle, were fired into the front and the back of the South Henderson plant of the mills, object of a strike by the Textile Workers Union of America since Nov. 17.

Officers said about an hour later an explosive, believed to be a stick of dynamite, was heaved over a fence at the North Henderson mill. Minor damage was caused when the blast went off near the rest rooms.

Picket lines were reported noisy at both mills, but no incidents occurred when the workers left the plant at 11 p.m.

The shooting was the first violence reported at the mills in several days. Gov. Hodges announced yesterday the number of highway patrolmen on strike duty here was to be reduced from 80 to 40 today.

RALEIGH (AP)— Gov. Hodges scored his biggest legislative victories of the year Thursday.

The tally showed:

1. A 75-cents hourly minimum wage bill, strongly supported by Hodges, was enacted into law by the Senate.

2. A Highway Commission reorganization measure, regarded as a slap at the governor, was killed by the House.

3. A House committee immobilized a bill frowned upon by Hodges. Rep. R. Frank Everett of Martin, who introduced the measure, described it as an effort to restore power taken away from the state auditor and vested in the director of the State Department of Administration. Hodges appointed Paul Johnston as director of the department which was created by the 1957 Legislature.

The highway reorganization bill, introduced by Rep. Walter Jones of Pitt, would have increased the commission's membership from seven to 14. Defeat of the measure represented a victory for Hodges, who urged the 1957 Legislature to create the present Highway Commission setup.

There were indications, however, that many House members voted against the bill because they felt that two years from now a new governor likely will make proposals to reorganize the commission and they saw no need to do it now.

Macmillan Party Chalks Up Gains

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Macmillan's Conservative party today chalked up spectacular victories in local elections throughout Britain.

Results of the voting Thursday gave a powerful boost to Conservative hopes for the election of a new parliament which Macmillan must call before next May.

With nearly all results gathered in, the Conservatives showed a net gain of 138 local council seats and their chief opposition, the Labor party, a net loss of 209.

Political observers believed that the Conservatives would be returned to power for a third term if the general election were held immediately. But Macmillan has indicated that with a summit conference in the offing, he feels the national voting should wait at least until fall.

TO FLY FLAGS

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower today named next Sunday Mothers Day.

He directed that the flag be flown on all government buildings that day.

The first full-color advertisement ever published in The Daily Reflector appears on page six of today's edition.

With today's edition, The Daily Reflector becomes one of the first newspapers in Eastern North Carolina to publish full color advertising.

The full-color page, advertising Pepsi Cola, was bought by the Pepsi Cola Bottling Company of Greenville through John F. Minges, secretary-treasurer and manager of the company.

The advertisement is printed in three colors, red, yellow, blue and black, and the full color effect results from the blending of basic colors to give varying shades and second colors.

"We consider this another milestone of progress for The Daily Reflector," D. J. Whitchard, Jr., publisher of the paper said today.

"We recognize the growing importance of color in advertising and it has been our wish to afford our advertisers

Seven Queens Crowned At Ceremony

GIRLS' CORONATION SERVICE . . . was held at the Winterville Missionary Baptist Church. Seventeen Junior and Intermediate girls received recognition.

A candlelight Girls' Coronation Service was held at the Winterville Missionary Baptist Church Wednesday night in which 17 Junior and Intermediate girls received recognition for advancement in the Forward Steps of Girls' Auxiliary.

"Advancing In Love" was used as the theme of the ceremony. The program was opened with the singing of the hymn "I Love To Tell The Story," followed with a devotion by Brenda Wall and Lora Ellen Hill. Judith Mobley extended the welcome and Mrs. E. G. Cole introduced the service.

The girls participating, according to the step they had achieved, were as follows: Maidens, Anna Worthington, Lou Whitchard; Ladies-In-Waiting, Nancy Origer, Jo Ann Pollard, Betty Anne Weatherington; Princess, Peggy Forrest; Sophia McLawhorn, Paula Clark. The highlight for the occasion was the crowning of seven Queens and the presentation of the Scepter to two Intermediate members. The mothers of the Queens did the crowning and challenged each girl to continue to "Advance In Love."

The girls who received their crowns were Gail Evans, Edwina Everton, Jo Anne Worthington, Lyndall Hall, Mary Virginia Langston, Sara Pat Olive, and Carolyn Barnes. Ginny Mumford and Eliza Olive were awarded the Scepter, which only a Queen-with-Scepter has the authority to bear. It is true accomplishment when a girl is able to accept a Scepter for it requires long hours of service and the completion of many requirements. For this step the member works closely with her Counselor and the State Girls' Auxiliary Director.

Members of the Sunbeam Bands served as attendants for the Queens and above. They were Lorette Barwick, Linda Worthington, Brooks Barwick, Alexine Dews, Agnes Whitchard, Diane Brown, Lay Tyson, Mary Karen McLawhorn, Thybe McLawhorn, Madge Gay Dews and Charles Tyson.

Mrs. A. M. Mumford, Intermediate G. A. Counselor, served as narrator. Mrs. R. E. Carroll, Junior G. A. Counselor, presented the awards and challenged each group. Others participating were Irma Sue Worthington, organist; Richard Hunsucker, trumpet player; Elizabeth Carroll, Sue Ellen Hunsucker, ushers; and E. G. Cole, pastor, led in the prayer of dedication.

The church was appropriately decorated by Mrs. Vernon Cox, using the G. A. colors green, gold and white.

Mrs. M. T. Speir is president of the Woman's Missionary Society, who fosters the organization. The G. A. Committee, who help to plan and direct the work, is composed of Mrs. Cecil Worthington, Mrs.

Herbert Forrest and Mrs. Leon Evans.

Vows Unite Couple

WINTERVILLE—The wedding of Miss Ellen Ray Dall and Mr. Richard Carlton Keel of Bethel was solemnized in the Winterville Free Will Baptist Church on Sunday afternoon. The Rev. Dean Dobbs officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

The church was decorated with baskets of white gladioli and pom-poms against a background of wedding greenery consisting of Emerald Fern and seven branch candles holding white cathedral candles. Family pews were marked with white satin bows.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Miss Linda Worthington, classmate of the bride. Miss Jean Strickland of Lenoir College sang "O Promise Me." Miss Annette Dall, sister of the bride and student at Lenoir College, sang "The Wedding Prayer."

What Happens To Past Miss Americas?

What happens to the Miss Americas of years past?

These girls, selected as the American ideal of talent and beauty, reign for a year in a blaze of international publicity, are feted, photographed, flattered and interviewed.

Then comes another year, another Miss America, and the former queen usually drops from sight.

A notable exception is a tall, competent brunette named Bess Myerson, who was Miss America in 1945, and has built a career on this fact.

For the last seven years Bess has been commentator, hostess, fashion coordinator and general Girl Friday for the TV perennial The Big Payoff. Before that she had her own TV show and did numerous guest appearances. At present she is recording a piano album for MGM. And in between times she spends a great deal of time in philanthropic work and pals around with her 11-year-old daughter Barbara.

"You can't be Cinderella forever," she says. "I guess I realized that when I won the Miss America title. I knew when the clock struck 12 my day would be over, unless I had something else to offer besides nominally good looks."

Almost from the outset Bess decided to make her title mean something. She was asked to make a series of speeches at high schools in and around Chicago, to try to help solve some of the juvenile problems that plagued the postwar world.

"I became intensely interested in this," says Bess. "I found boys and girls would listen to me because I was nearer their own age level, and also because of the glamor of the Miss America title. I was in Chicago about a month, speaking at two high school assemblies each day, and then later I did the same thing in other parts of the country."

"I've never lost this interest. Right now I do a great deal of work on a national level, helping to establish special schools and training for emotionally disturbed children."

Bess hopes to continue her piano work and perhaps do a Broadway show soon. But whatever happens, she intends to keep busy with her work of helping young people.

"It's a kind of way of paying back for all my blessings," she says.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, Joseph L. Hobgood of Greenville, wore a wedding dress of white nylon over satin made with open neckline. Her elbow length veil was of nylon illusion in seed pearls. She carried a white Bible topped with white carnations.

Mrs. Joseph L. Hobgood was matron of honor. She wore a blue street length dress of imported pure silk over taffeta. Her headpiece was of illusion blue net fingertip to match her dress. She carried a nosegay of deep rose carnations.

Flower girl was Miss Glenda Dall, sister of the bride. She wore blue organdy over taffeta. Her headpiece was of illusion net to match her dress. She carried a basket of pedal pansies.

Ring bearer was little Miss Nell Roebuck, who carried the rings on a white satin pillow.

Gene Keel, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Wade Tucker, brother-in-law of the bride, and Lorenza Stocks.

Mrs. Dall chose for her daughter's wedding a sheath dress of light blue lace. She wore white accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Mrs. Keel, mother of the bridegroom, wore a navy blue crepe sheath dress with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

For her wedding trip, the bride wore a navy blue dress with white accessories and the carnation lifted from her Bible bouquet.

Mr. and Mrs. Keel will make their home in Bethel after their return from the wedding trip.

Miscellaneous Shower

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Hobgood, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Smith and Miss Beatrice Smith honored Miss Ellen Dall on April 20 with a miscellaneous shower. Upon arrival of the guests, the bride-elect was presented with a white carnation to compliment her red lace dress.

Steak Supper and Cake Cutting

On April 30 the bride-elect and wedding party were honored with a steak supper at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Hobgood.

On Thursday evening after the Keel-Dall rehearsal, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Hobgood, Rev. and Mrs. Dean Dobbs and Miss Beatrice Smith entertained at a cake cutting honoring the bridal couple, wedding party and close friends. The party took place at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Dean Dobbs.

Guests were invited into the dining room where they were served punch, wedding cake, nuts and mints.

The dining table was covered with a white cutwork table cloth and centered with an arrangement of Peppermint Carnations and Emerald Fern.

At one end of the table was the three tiered pink and green wedding cake and at the other end was placed the crystal punch bowl, filled with lime ice.

Approximately 40 guests attended the party.

Social Notes

Lt. and Mrs. Charles Williams of Homestead Air Force Base, Homestead, Fla., will spend next week with Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Williams.

Eggplant takes to company: tomatoes, onions and green pepper.

30 Years Ago Today

At the home of Miss Margaret Fleming on Greene Street, there was organized yesterday afternoon a Pitt County chapter of Meredith College Alumnae Association. A nominating committee with Mrs. S. J. Everett as its chairman submitted the following officers for the first year: Madge Daniels, president; Lella Higgs, vice-president; Dora Cox, secretary; Mrs. Charlie Forbes, secretary. The chapter accepted the report of the nominating committee after which Mrs. Everett presented the plan for organizing in Greenville a club of American University Women. At the conclusion of the business meeting Miss Eugenia Thomas entertained the chapter with a piano selection. Miss Fleming, the charming and gracious hostess, served her guests a delectable ice course.

CHILD-PROOF COOKIES

Ingredients: 1/2 pound (1/2 cup) butter or margarine, 2 cups sugar, honey wheat germ, 1/2 cup sugar, 1 egg, 1/2 cup nuts (chopped), 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Method: Put all the ingredients in a mixing bowl; mix well with fingers; shape into balls, each about the size of a walnut. Place on ungreased cookie sheets a couple of inches apart; flatten slightly with hands or the bottom of a glass moistened in cold water. Bake in moderate (350 degrees) oven for 10 minutes. Allow to cool on cookie sheet before removing with wide spatula. Cool on wire racks. Makes about 2 1/2 dozen. Note: Clean hands and "no finger-licking" should be the rule when small fry make these!

4-H Summer Camp Training Set

RALEIGH — Special training in various 4-H camping activities will take place at the 4-H Camp Instructor's Training School at Camp Millstone near Rockingham, May 8-9.

According to L. R. Harrill, state 4-H club leader, directors and instructors at Camp Manteo, Millstone, Swannanoa and Schaub will receive instructions for the 1959 season. Plans are made so that camp will mean as much as possible to 4-H'ers this summer.

Harrill will direct the activities during the session. Assisting will be assistant 4-H leaders, Miss Mary Sue Moser, Miss Margaret Clark, Lyman Dixon, Fred Wagoner and Hal Reynolds.

Miss Marjorie Shearin will teach handicrafts to the various instructors. George Maddrey, associate advisor on safety for the N. C. Department of Public Instruction, will give a water safety demonstration. Forney Holler, William Bates, Miss Nancy Jean Kearnes, Miss Helen Cochran, all former camp instructors, will assist in training the 1959 staff.

"More than 6,000 4-H girls and boys in North Carolina are busy making plans to attend camp this summer," says Harrill, "and all the camps will open June 1."

Fifth Annual Sidewalk Show 'Biggest Yet'

By PEGGY SMITH
Reflector Woman's Editor

A buffet dinner at the Greenville Moose Lodge last night for the exhibiting artists concluded the Fifth Annual Sidewalk Art Show.

The two-day affair began Wednesday with newly-elected Mayor Eugene West and City Manager Leonard Bloxam cutting the official opening ribbon. Mrs. Sam H. Mitchell, overall chairman, introduced the honored guests and recognized the Sidewalk Show committee for their outstanding work in making this show "the biggest of its kind."

Fifty Eastern North Carolina artists, craftsmen and photographers displayed their work on the grounds of Elm St. Park and in the Recreation Building.

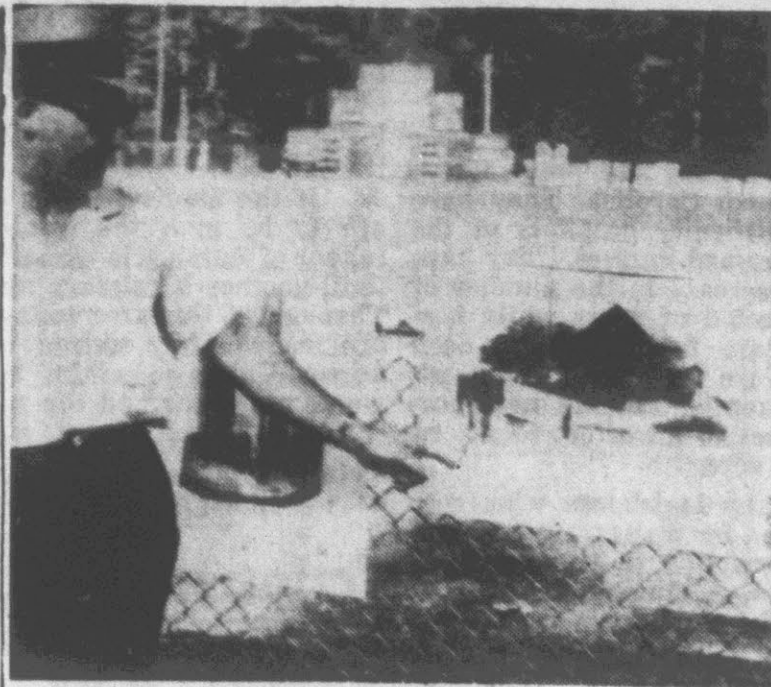

Other features were flower arrangements demonstrated by Bernice Maloney, a band concert presented by the Rose High School band conducted by James Rodgers, a demonstration of sandcasting by the Industrial Arts Department of East Carolina College, and Mrs. Leon Tyson acting as a strolling musician.

A variety of exhibits, many never shown at the Sidewalk Show before, attracted widespread attention. For the first time local photographers displayed pictures depicting many happenings of life.

Some of the local artists who entered their works of art were Jamie Cox of Winterville, Ed Baxter, Bee Behr, James C. Bond, Mrs. F. P. Brooks, Rose Brooks, J. D. Behr, Emily S. Boyce, Kevin Conway, Edith Davenport, Nelson Dudley, Nancy Blair Eliason, Edna Fisher, Donna Logue Garrigus, Lorraine A. Graff, all of Greenville.

Others exhibiting from Greenville were Mattie Lou Harris, Georgia Pearsall Hearne, Bob Harper, George Howard, Jennie Hutchins, Rita Husted, Ed Lancaster, Nancy Lilly, Thomas Mims, Nancy G. Monroe, Janet H. Peterson, Francis Neil, Beth Ricks, Betty J. Russell, Elizabeth Savage, Patricia Smith, Frances Bear Stuart, Lewis G. Stanfield, Scott Tabar, Jean E. Whiteley, Dr. Bruce Carter, Norma Gray, Donna E. Tabar, Paul Minnis, Stuart Savage, Roy Hardee, Nora Willis, Bob Haper, D. Sam White, II, and Ken Whitley.

The Sidewalk Show Committee was composed of Mrs. Bee Behr, Mrs. Colleen White, Dr. M. W. Aldridge, Mrs. Nancy Monroe, Mrs. Donna Tabar, Gordon Goodman, Mrs. Madge Allen, Ms. Bert Keel, Dr. Bruce Carter, Mrs. Rita Husted, Mrs. Rose Brooks, and Mrs. J. Corey.

FIRST PAINTING PURCHASED . . . Ed Baldree, secretary of the Moose Lodge, purchased "Boathouse," a watercolor by Nelson Dudley.

63,000 Women HD Members

By MRS. OBEA CASTELLOE
District Vice-Chairman

North Carolina has approximately 63,000 rural women belonging to home demonstration clubs. The aim of Home Demonstration work on the state level, through the district groups, through county organizations, to the local community clubs and its individual members is the developing and expanding of the various phases of homemaking and the improving of the standards of rural living.

To what extent we succeed there are always tangible results, which can be easily seen both outside and inside the home and surroundings by even the least observant, but the vast intangible results must be counted in also. The successful plant breeder devotes his years of labor and thought obscurely and diligently to bettering strains of seeds which will produce the results he has in mind. His aim is before him, his efforts are spent, his time passes; but whether successful or not, only the results will prove. So it is with these intangible aims in Home Demonstration work.

All of our aims from the state level to the individual members are not as easily accomplished as finding a more efficient way of doing the family laundry or feeding the basic seven daily to a family of six though this is a full time job and plenty difficult, we admit. But those traits of character, those tastes for fine art and good music, those responses to harmonious colors and good literature, that certain culture of tone and diction, the courage to take leadership for rightness and righteousness in community affairs, these are some intangible values gained by organized efforts—sponsored by state leaders and pushed by district, county, and local groups.

Home Demonstration work in the state is so varied and broad that the individual needs can be met if the individual will only face her needs and look for solutions. Experts in the various fields are always available to help solve the problems of groups and individuals—free expert service is for the asking.

Also in our efforts to accomplish our aims for better homemaking, 63,000 club members in the state plan to "Each One, Reach One; Each One, Teach One."

would follow them.

Take time to think—It is the source of power; Take time to play—it is the secret of perpetual youth; Take time to read—It is the fountain of wisdom; Take time to pray—It is the greatest power on earth; Take time to love and be loved—It is a God-given privilege; Take time to be friendly—It is the road to happiness; Take time to laugh—It is the music of the soul; Take time to give—It is too short a day to be selfish; Take time to work—It is the rice of success.

In following these rules, you will surely be taking time to live!

Boys Air Pet Gripes On Girls Social Calendar

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Do high school girls have annoying habits that irk their young male friends? Yes, chorused three male high school seniors, members of a football team, when asked that question. It seems campus kings dress up for dates these days, and a date is a big deal.

"We don't hang around killing time at the local bee hives. When we have a date, we want it to count," says one of the 18-year-old students who earns his date money by working in a garage weekends and after school. Here's how the gripes simmer:

Makeup Mistakes
"Makeup? They don't mind it, providing it 'doesn't bounce off the face,' as one boy put it. 'Why does a girl have to smear her mouth with lipstick, anyway?' he asks. One of the boys claimed that three girls smeared his suit with lipstick at one dance he attended. Other objections include too-long fingernails, heavy mascara, obvious eveshadow.

Clothes? "I don't want to take a girl out to hear other fellows whistling at her," is the response of one boy to the plunge neck-line, skin-tight dress idea. The tight-fitting sweater also annoys these boys. Advice includes: Don't try to be sophisticated. Save long earrings and your mother's fur piece for an important occasion. "It puts a guy on a spot to see you dressed up when he can afford only a movie and ice-cream soda," says the boys.

Fashion Errors
"Oh, yes," adds another boy, "I'm all for organizing babushka reading parties and burning every babushka we can locate. There must be more attractive hair coverings available to hold hair in place, even in the wind. Why do girls choose such unflattering headgear?"

The tease? The girl who leads a boy on to get a date will not be asked again. She blinks her eyelashes, holds hands in the ice cream parlor, but screams when a boy tries to kiss her after a date. "Some girls are just out for the good time you can give them," says a dejected boy.

Casual Calamities
The casual type? She's so casual, she's careless, these young men point out. "You wouldn't mind her wearing a cement-mixer hairdo, if she combed it occasionally. The girls are at fault in other ways, say the boys. They always have a coat of polish on their toenails at the beach—but sometimes their legs look hairier than a poodle's. The trouble is when a girl goes too casual, she acts like she's competing with a man."

How do they want a girl to behave? The consensus is they like a girl to "be herself; 'a girl who dresses at her own age level; 'good character; 'a girl "whose conversation isn't limited to trying to solve the problems of the world when she can't solve her own school or family situations; 'a girl who is 'jolly without resorting to man-talk to prove she's good fun."

Now, Funds For Nursing School?

Prospects of additional revenues for the state in the coming biennium should enhance the possibilities of the General Assembly giving its approval to the establishment of a four-year school of nursing at East Carolina College.

Most of the legislators, we believe, have been made aware of the critical need for additional nurses in the Eastern section of North Carolina. They have been told of the extreme difficulty hospitals of the area have in obtaining well trained nurses. They have been told of the alarming decrease in the number of nurses in the area over a period of years while hospitals and other medical care facilities have been expanded. They are well aware of the fact that Eastern North Carolina is constantly building new hospitals and expanding old ones in an effort to afford its people adequate medical care.

We doubt there are many legislators who, recognizing the needs of this area for nurses, are opposed to state's accepting its responsibility to establishing a school of nursing in the East. A stumbling block, to some degree at least, has been money.

Even without the additional $16 million which in recent days has been added to the state's revenue estimates for the next biennium, the proposed school of nursing deserved a high priority on the list of appropriations. Now that these additional funds are in sight for the next two years, certainly the legislators will see that this vital need for Eastern Carolina is met.

For the establishment of the four-year school of nursing at East Carolina College, some $97,000 would be needed during the coming biennium. This figure represents a state expenditure of approximately one per cent for each man, woman and child in North Carolina. It represents a minute part of the total appropriations which the General Assembly will provide for the next biennium.

If the medical needs of the people of this area are to be met, the establishment of the proposed school of nursing is essential. It cannot be postponed until another legislature meets to consider the matter. Throughout this area today there are hospitals which are inadequately staffed because of the shortage of nurses. Unless something is done the situation will be worse next year and the years thereafter.

Certainly the plea of Eastern North Carolina for a state-supported school of nursing will not fall on deaf ears in Raleigh this year as it did two years ago.

Talent, Preparation Count For Something

There must be a moral somewhere in the story of Fred Astaire's record haul of nine Television Academy awards Wednesday night.

In a time of westerns, jazzed-up gum shoes, platitudes and innocuous nothings, Old Twinkle Toes won without drawing a gun, solving a murder, or wobbling through a sticky drama.

He did it by dancing in a well-rehearsed, intelligently cast and precisely plotted show. He augmented his own boundless talent as an entertainer with the abilities of other entertainers, technicians and production personnel who knew what to do and how to do it.

The moral which must be in the story of Fred Astaire's accomplishment has to be simply that talent and preparation still count for something—even in television.

Not everybody can be a Fred Astaire, nor can every television program, fortunately, be "An Evening With Fred Astaire". The industry and its individual members can, however, put new life in their work by applying the techniques used in the Astaire show.

It would be remarkably refreshing for those of us who want so much to get more than we are getting out of television.

First In The South With Minimum Wage

North Carolina's controversial minimum wage proposal now has become law, and in spite of assertions to the contrary, it will not spell the doom of business in the East or any other section of the State.

The law which goes into effect January 1 will boost the wages of some 55,000 workers in retail and service industries by some $16½ millions a year. And by pumping that additional money into the state's economy through the hands of some of the lowest paid workers, it is bound to have a stimulating effect on business throughout North Carolina.

Enactment of the state's minimum wage law after several unsuccessful attempts, is indeed a mark of progress for North Carolina. This is the first state in the South to enact a minimum wage law. And through such a law it becomes the first state to recognize officially that it has the responsibility to place a floor under the wages of some of its lowest paid workers.

Enactment of this legislation is an important step, a bold step for North Carolina, but is one which will stand the state and its people in good stead in years to come.

Might Turn To A Compromiser

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Lyndon Johnson — consciously or not — has created an image of himself which will come in handy if the Democrats in 1960 have to keep peace in the family by settling on a compromise presidential candidate.

This is the image of the tall Texan which emerges after his years as leader of the Senate Democrats and one of the most powerful men in Washington: A rather conservative compromiser who gets things done.

The 50-year-old Johnson who, like President Eisenhower, had a heart attack, has pooh-poohed the thought of presidential ambitions. This writer is one of those who have never been convinced.

Johnson, like others in public life, has a large ego. And to him power, even if it only means senatorial power and doesn't extend to the presidency, is very important. The White House carries with it supreme power and balm for egos.

The Democrats' overwhelming congressional victory in 1958, which meant they could now drown the Republicans in votes, caused some persons to guess that they would take a strong liberal turn and consider their victory a mandate to do so.

Others in Washington, remembering something, took a more limited view: Johnson and his counterpart in the House, Speaker Sam Rayburn, a fellow-Texan, not only completely bossed Democrats in Congress but have shown themselves over the years to be essentially conservative.

So it could be assumed that with their power and attitude they would lead Congress down a middle road. And that's what they've done so far in this first session after last year's election triumph.

But to any Northern liberals dissatisfied with his leadership, Johnson can offer a solid and realistic explanation.

True, the Democrats as a party far outnumber Senate Republicans. But Democrats and Republicans are divided up into a small group of liberals and a big majority of conservatives in both parties, particularly among Southern Democrats.

On any issue they considered too liberal, the conservatives of both parties could and would team up, throwing aside party labels.

Yet, on the liberal side Johnson can point to something no liberal or any other Senate leader in this century can claim: He engineered through the Senate in 1957 the first civil rights program of modern times.

It was much less than the liberals wanted, much more than the Southerners could easily accept. But it was a step forward in the civil rights field, opened the door to more of the same later and was done without splitting the Senate Democrats.

Liberals and Southern Democrats may have grumbled about Johnson's performance but he came through the experience without endangering any hostility for himself. Quite a performance, particularly if a man has presidential ambitions.

And this year again he is working to steer through some further expansion in civil rights. If he does, it's a good bet the bill again will be too little for the liberals, too much for the Southerners, but not enough either way to hurt the party or him.

Johnson acts like a man who long ago figured this way: "In the Senate, with all its divergent views, if I ever hope to get anything done, I'll have to compromise. Some progress is better than none. And compromise between North and South is the only way I can get Democrats to stay together."

It's doubtful that in 1960 Northern liberals will make Johnson their first choice for the presidency. But if they try to ram through someone who makes the Southerners gasp, a compromise candidate may be necessary.

Johnson can protest he has no presidential thoughts, but his fellow Democrats are preparing, just in case. Their Legislature has passed bills which would let Johnson run for both the Senate and the presidency in 1960.

A Wreath On The Door

Here's another election story.

It seems one of the staunch supporters of a losing candidate in the recent city election found a surprise when he went to his office Wednesday morning.

On the door was hanging a funeral wreath.

"I was expecting it but I didn't think it would be so big," he declared to friends.

Oh well, so goes politics.

Re-elected Mayor S. Eugene West was hobbling with an infected toe during the latter part of his campaign.

Friends accused him of going after sympathy votes.

The mayor denied that, but he did say winning made the foot feel much better.

However, Mayor West was ordered by his doctor to stay off the bad foot the day following the election.

The long lines which formed at the two polling places brought calls from observers for more voting places in future city election.

There was speculation that the 2,909 votes cast Tuesday, which was a record, would have been even greater if it had not been for the lines.

Observers said many persons decided not to vote rather than wait in the lines.

Additional polling places, perhaps one for each ward, might be an improvement in future elections. The five wards which were so much a part of city politics in the board of aldermen days are still in existence.

Now, all the councilmen are elected at large with Wards 3, 4 and 5 voting at the fire station and 1 and 2 voting at the court house.

When the aldermen were elected they represented only their own ward.

Of course, the big draw back to more polling places is the cost of maintaining the extra precincts for light elections.

When citizens voted on the city code change which made the election of mayor by popular vote possible only a few more than 500 persons went to the polls.

On days such as that, the poll holders would have little to do. Perhaps, however, some solution will be worked out before the next election.

Walter Hasty, of the ASC office, mentioned the other day that a feature with pictures of the many dogwood trees in full bloom would have made good reading a few days ago before the blooms died.

Greenville seems to have more dogwood trees than most, he said, and they provide exceptional beauty for the town.

In checking into the matter he had found that a civic club had sold dogwoods some years ago and they were planted on the lawns of many homes.

Since that had done so much to beautify the town, why couldn't other clubs take on similar projects, he asked. The clubs would have the profits from such sales for their special projects and at the same time it would add unusual beauty to Greenville.

Other Editors Saying ... Few Parents Buck Trend Strength For Today

From Woman's View
By Mrs. Walter Ferguson
(The Tulsa Tribune)

I wonder whether parents are really as helpless as they pretend when it comes to bucking the trend of the times? The excuses they make are always the same: "What can we do? Our children have to follow the customs of their crowd. Wouldn't they hate us if we refuse to let them conform?"

Who knows? But I think it's worth taking steps to find out. Dad and Mother might do a little experimenting even with family adolescents. And one thing is sure. They could start right now on the small fry by putting them under more rigid controls. I may be wrong, but have always believed it is possible for adults to set up rules for children and make them stick. All it takes is backbone.

The steady dating habit in the high school crowd was frowned on by parents, teachers and guardians from the start. But it was never forbidden. As a group, parents did not present a united front to teen-agers. As individuals, few have had the spunk to nip it in the bud, even though they were convinced it was a dangerous custom for their sons and daughters.

Tragedies have come to many families because of it. Many a mother has cried herself to sleep over a daughter's disgrace. Why? Because we have convinced ourselves, or let the adolescents convince us that they know what is best for them.

Today, far too many are allowed to make major decisions which affect their whole future, without a croak of protest from Dad and Mother. Aren't other Fathers and Mothers permitting it? And if it's the popular thing to allow children to risk their reputation, happiness and lives, can we possibly say "Nay" to our own? "Everybody else is jumping into the fire. Let's do it, too," seems to be the theory.

Today, 14-year-old girls by the thousands are out with boys when they should be getting their beauty sleep, or lessons. Many go chaperoned for automobile rides to God knows where. Yes, we express great horror when some of them get into trouble. These girls and boys don't get into trouble. It is manufactured for them by a generation of adults who are willing to sell the souls of their children to give them a little high school popularity.

And for this kind of negligence, the whole tribe of American adults should be called to account before the bar of Heaven.

A WORD TO DRIFTERS

A boat enters the locks at the location of a dam on the river. It has come in at the lower level. It requires lifting to a higher level. The water begins to flow into the lock. The boat gradually rises to the level of the water above the dam. The gates of the lock open and the boat glides out, on the high level, to continue its cruise.

Not unlike life, for life is something like an ascent up a river interspersed here and there with dams. These dams in the stream of life represent the difficulties, the impediments, the obstacles we encounter on the cruise. The only known way to ascend is by the methods employed in getting boats through the locks. The boat must be raised to a higher level. This is the only method known for getting the boat past the obstacle of the dam. The presence of the dam makes rising to a higher level a necessity.

Life is an upstream matter. The most mistaken people in the world

Always On His Toes

By FRANCIS STILLEY

NEW YORK (AP) — It's a big mystery to me, but for some reason people are always stepping on my toes. Literally, I mean.

My feet seem to have a strange attraction for other people's feet. I can get a shoeshine and in no time at all — crunch — somebody has clumped onto my brogans, leaving a big smudge, if not wounded toes.

Even without a fresh shine, I still get it. But I have found by dint of lengthy investigation and observation that the pedal collisions come faster after a polish sometimes in less than a minute. My foot size has nothing to do with it, because I wear an insignificant 7½ shoe. Anybody ought to be able to miss anything that small. Few do.

Even my good wife is an offender. My feet are not sacred even in my own home. She can be standing 10 feet away and the next thing I know she too has stepped on them.

And my two youngsters have unerring aim.

Still, I get it from all sides. In the office, on the street, just anywhere, I must be jinxed.

The problem is, what to do? I could sit on my feet, but there would be times when this would prove something of an inconvenience.

I could quit wearing shoes. This, too, would have its drawbacks, and doubtless broken toes. Perhaps equip my shoes with spikes. I'd get sued, sure as anything.

Keep my feet in my pockets? Nice trick. I'd even try that if I could be sure somebody would unravel me afterward.

Well, there you are, and here am I, scuffed shoes, sore toes, and all. Maybe somebody knows the answer. I don't.

I think I know now why those knights of old wore those armor-plated suits — and shoes.

New York is a beautiful town. Right now after a hard spring and a winter so stern its icicles stuck out like cactus thorns, eight million New Yorkers listen to the drum of revival.

In the warm, bright air, Manhattan turns toward tomorrow with a yawn of sureness. It is won't know where the next bud or smile or traffic ticket will bloom from.

The sun, emerging from weeks of clouds, breaks out dark glasses and decrees ten times ten million freckles.

The magic moment of difference has come. The policeman gives an unfinished lecture. Traffic goes more slowly than usual because this is a day when everybody is going to be later than usual and not mind it. At this time of the year, New York gives you the feeling of a bubble coming out of a bottle.

The town has an ever-renewable champagne excitement.

New York is the place where George Washington was sworn in as president and gruff Mark Twain growled about his chow and put out the "welcome mat" for mysterious strangers from heaven.

New York is a seedbed of talent, known or unknown.

New York is a place of adventure to strangers. Millions journey around the world to see it.

New York is as colloquial as the smallest country town, able with its gossip to stir mighty echoes.

New York is the world's greatest landscape for dreamers, a pasture beyond individual ownership.

New York is the most open and hospitable municipality in the land. It's the kind of place where the first thing a guy wants to do when he comes here is to bring in a relative.

New York is the only city in the world which has a running race over whether it can tear itself down faster than it can build itself up.

are those who think it is a downstream matter, and that drifting will do it. Life is upstream. We have to rise above every obstacle as the boat rises above the dam thrown across in front of the boat's progress. And after every rise, we proceed along on a distinctly higher level.

Rising does it—not drifting.

A Reminder On A Saving In Taxes

By ELMER ROESSNER

Here's a tip for businessmen planning physical improvements of their plants and offices:

Remember that incidental repairs and alterations may be charged off as current expenses, while capital improvements must be amortized.

Also remember that the Internal Revenue Service is watching more closely the charges for repairs and alterations, and hints it may crack down on companies that charge off permanent improvements as current expenses.

Therefore, make sure that capital improvements are not charged off as repairs.

And more important to your balance statement, make sure that costs of incidental repairs are not bucketed in with capital investments.

HOW IT WORKS OUT

For example, let's take the Hypothetical Corp., which has an unused warehouse attached to its main plant. Because of the present boom, it needs the space for additional machines and additional office space.

So it decides to extend the wing 100 feet, build a messanine floor in the entire structure, touch up the interior to make it blend with the rest of the structure, and install air conditioning. While it is doing this, it will touch up the paint in the main building, repair corridors between the two structures, repair all the plumbing in both buildings and put in two new washrooms in the warehouse.

Most costs are capital expenditures, and must be allocated over the expected life span of the structure. However, touching up the paint in the wing building, repairing the corridor and repairing the plumbing can probably be charged off as current expenses. And while repairing old plumbing may be so charged off, the building of the new washrooms cannot.

HOW TO BUILD A RECORD

To keep matters clear at tax time, Hypothetical ought to require the contractor to itemize its charges so that the noncapital expenditures can be charged to current operations.

Another common method is to have company maintenance men do the repair and restoration work, while the outsider contractor does the capital improvements.

The gain? That depends on profits. In general, if an expenditure is charged against current income, it reduces the immediate tax liability.

If it is a capital charge, then only a fraction of it can be charged off each year, depending on the life expectancy of the improvement.

Suppose Hypothetical makes $10,000,000 this year and invests $5,000,000 in a new plant. Then it must pay taxes on the $10,000,000 profit — about $5,000,000 — and will have nothing to distribute to stockholders, unless it can reduce its taxes by some slight amortization of new plant costs.

On the other hand, if it grosses $10,000,000 and uses half of it for repairs and alterations, then it pays taxes only on the other half (about $2,500,000) and can distribute the same amount among stockholders.

WORLD PRODUCTS

MORE COMESTIBLES

Last year was bountiful, according to the U.S. Foreign Agricultural Service.

The world peanut crop set a new record. Whale and sperm oil production was higher than in 1957. World milk production rose. Hog numbers increased again, but at slower rates than in recent years. The hog population reached 448,400,000.

The world's crops of barley and oats were substantially above the previous year. And the world's cattle count increased 1 per cent to 992,000,000 head.

Nathan and David

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—II Samuel 7: 11-12; I Kings 1:5-40.

David, king of Israel, told Nathan the prophet that while David lived in a house of cedar the Ark of the Lord "dwelleth within curtains," and suggested that they build a house for it. —II Samuel 7:2.

The Lord told Nathan, however, that they should not build such a house. After Nathan's death, He said, it would be built by Him. Nathan told the king what the Lord had said. —II Samuel 7:11-17.

David "sat before the Lord," thanking Him for all His mercies, saying, "O Lord God, the word that Thou hast spoken concerning Thy servant, and concerning his house, establish it for ever." —II Samuel 7:18-25.

Again David vanquished the Philistines. When the king of Hamath heard this, he sent David gifts of gold, silver and brass, which David dedicated to God. —II Samuel 8:1-11. MEMORY VERSE—Psalm 51:2-3.

Nathan and David

THE PROPHET REVEALS GOD'S WILL REGARDING THE KING'S DESIRE TO BUILD THE TEMPLE

Scripture—II Samuel 7: 11-12; I Kings 1:5-40.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

THIS LESSON is the story of David, the king of Israel, and his faithful counselor, the prophet Nathan, a true "man of God." He not only guided David's actions in his daily life, but he had the courage to rebuke the king when he sinned.

There are times in all of our lives when we need someone who is righteous and wise to help us in times when we may be confused about what we should do. We sometimes need to be shown where certain things we plan to do would be unwise and displeasing to God.

All rulers, whether they rule by succession, as in a kingdom, or are elected by the people, as in our own United States, must also have advisers to help them with their heavy responsibilities.

The dates of David's reign are accepted as 1000 to 960 B.C. Dr. Wilbur M. Smith informs us in Feleubet's Select Notes.

"When the king sat in his house, and the Lord had given him rest round about from all his enemies. . . . the king said unto Nathan the prophet, See now, I dwell in a house of cedar, but the ark of God dwelleth within curtains. And Nathan said to the king, Go, do all that is in thine heart; for the Lord is with thee." —II Samuel 7:1-3.

That night, however, the Lord came to Nathan and told him to forbid David to build the temple. After David's death, said the Lord, his son should build the temple, "and I will establish the throne of his kingdom forever." —II Samuel 7:4-13.

Now we must tell briefly of David's great sin. Although he had wives and children and everything he could possibly need, he fell in love with a beautiful woman, Bathsheba, wife of one Uriah, and he wanted her for his wife. So when the Israelites were again at war, David sent word to the leader to place Uriah in the most dangerous place while the attack was on, so that he would be killed. Uriah was slain and David married Bathsheba. —II Samuel 11:14-17, 27.

MEMORY VERSE

"Wash me thoroughly from mine iniquity, and cleanse me from my sin." —Psalm 51:2.

I have sinned against the Lord. And Nathan said unto David, the Lord also hath put away thy sin; thou shalt not die. Howbeit, because of this deed thou hast given great occasion to the enemies of the Lord to blaspheme, the child also that is born unto thee shall surely die." —II Samuel 12:13-14.

So it was; the child born of David and Uriah's wife did die, although David besought the Lord to save him. And David grieved for the child. —II Samuel 12:15-19.

So David was punished for his great sin, as we all must be, whether our sins are great or small. We must live with our guilty consciences and ask the Lord to forgive us. He will if we are sincere in our prayers. As David grew old and feeble, he appointed Solomon, one of his sons, to succeed him. One Adonijah, son of Haggith, tried to gain the throne, but the faithful Nathan and others of David's men and Bathsheba, his wife, succeeded in having Solomon proclaimed and anointed king. —I Kings 1:1-40.

Greenville Phantoms Whip Washington Nine By 4-1

WASHINGTON—Junius H. Rose High School's Phantoms kept themselves in the running for the Northeastern Conference baseball championship with a 4-1 win over the Washington Pam-Pack yesterday.

Ronnie Finch, who pitched a no-hitter against New Bern on April 30, held the Pack to three singles as the Phantoms pushed their season's record to eight wins in 11 games. With three games left, the Phantoms have a chance to gain at least a tie for the conference title, if Elizabeth City loses one more game.

A three-run fifth inning wrapped up the victory for Finch and the Phantoms. Randy Bass opened the inning by drawing a walk and both he and Finch were safe on the next play when Finch's attempted sacrifice was errored. Bass scored on Billy Neal James' grounder to the shortstop, who bobbled the ball, and Finch moved to third. Merrill Bynum was walked intentionally to load the bases, but the strategy backfired when Joe Moye singled to score Finch and James.

Bynum and Moye led the Greenville hitting with two hits apiece.

Cox got two of Washington's three hits off Finch who struck out seven and walked only three.

The minor sports at East Carolina will have their big test of the season this weekend and the first of next week as they climax their respective seasons with the North State matches.

Coach Bill McDonald and his track club will get things underway as they leave today for High Point and the North State track meet which will be held tomorrow.

Coach Howard Porter's golfers and Coach Ray Martinez's netters will leave for Greensboro Sunday for the North State finals in golf and tennis.

East Carolina is the defending champion in all these sports but expects more trouble this season than last year.

Cindermen Favored

The Pirates track team has been established as favorites but Elon and Catawba are expected to make a good run of it. Elon is always tough in track while Catawba has some of the best distance men in the state.

Jessell Curry will lead East Carolina's cinder club. The Portsmouth native has been a standout on the track field this year and has been the leading point-getter.

Others who figure high on the Pirate squad are James Speight, Randall Holmes, Lee Atkinson, Foster Morse, Ken Edwards, F. O. Nunn, Dennis O'Brien, Frank Freeman, and Cedric Johnson.

Thirty Straight

The local netters have swept to 30 straight tennis matches in a three year period but Guilford would not meet ECC this season to force them into a tie for the title.

West has been picked as the pre-favorite along with Jack McGabe of Western Carolina. The two split a couple of matches during the regular season. In three years of conference competition, West has suffered only one defeat and that was this year in an earlier match with the Western Carolina ace.

Maurice Everett is the defending singles champion and will make the trip to serve in a coaching capacity for the Pirates. He has been working with the club throughout the season.

Don Connelly and Paul Goodwin will head the local linksters as they bid to defend their golfing crown. Connelly, a Greenville native, has been the club's number one man this season while Goodwin was to get the parents to start contacting the local merchants," stated Hadley. Some 25 parents showed up for the meeting.

"We are very enthused over the project and have set a goal of $3500-$4000. This is a community project and is the first time since little league has been established here that we have had to call on the merchants for aid," continued Hadley.

The fund chairman cited that the present field was one of the best in the nation and that the new one would not reach those standards in the first year of operation but that yearly improvements would be made and that it should be just as good in the future.

A little work has already been done on the field which will be located at Guy Smith Stadium. Present plans call for the field to be ready as soon as possible. The interest in Little League ball in Greenville has built up to such a degree that one field will not accommodate the present number of boys interested in playing.

Another meeting has been called of the fund raising committee for next Thursday night.

Bids Opened On Clearing Creek

WILMINGTON — The D. W. Winkelman Co., Carolina Co. of Greensboro, was low bidder at $17,496 at a bid opening here Thursday for removing snags and trees from about 20 miles of Conee Creek in Pitt and Edgecombe Counties.

The bids were opened by Col. H. C. Rowland Jr., District Engineer of the Corps of Engineers' Wilmington District. The Corps will award the contract and supervise clearing activities.

The high bid of $97,987 was submitted by Fred S. Sherman and Son of South Norfolk, Va. Barnhill Contracting Co. of Tarboro entered a bid of $64,600 and Sumrell Construction Co. of Greenville bid $79,100. There were nine bidders.

The successful bidder will be required to start work within 30 days after receipt of the notice to proceed. This would make the starting date about June 15.

The area to be cleared extends from Holland-Penny Hill Road to the Cherry Farm Road.

ECC Band To Give Concert On Tuesday

The East Carolina College Concert Band, presenting its annual spring concert Tuesday, May 12, will give a program of selections chosen for their musical worth and their appeal to audiences. The concert is scheduled for 8 p.m. in the McGinnis auditorium and will be open to the public.

Herbert L. Carter of the department of music will conduct the band. Guest conductor for the performance will be John D. Lowery, Kingston senior, who will appear with the ensemble in the opening selection, the overture from Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro."

Luther W. Gillon of Kannapolis, soloist with the band, will play C. M. Von Weber's "Concertino for Clarinet, op. 26." James C. Burns of Sumter, S. C., Thomas Spry of Winston-Salem, and Gayle Eaker of Drexel will appear in Gilbert Vinter's "The Dover Coach," a composition for three solo trumpets and military band.

"Ballet for Young Americans," a five-part modern composition by Ralph Herman, will be a featured selection on the program. It depicts through music the teenager, his day dreams, his first driving lesson, his experiences on prom night, and his graduation.

Other selections included on the program are Tchaikovsky's "Marche Slave," which the band will play by request; "Premiere for Band" by Frank Erickson; and a group of marches, including Jouni Philip Sousa's "The High School Cadets." Vincent Persichetti's popular modern work "Pageant" will close the scheduled program.

The East Carolina College Concert Band will also present a lawn concert on Commencement Sunday, May 24, at 2:30 p.m. on the lawn of the quadrangle of the campus.

Radiation Belt May Be No Bar

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — A scientist indicated the huge ring of radiation around earth may not be such a barrier to space exploration after all.

He said a recovered rocket cone which carried a packet of film shows the earth's radiation girdle may be made up of protons, not electrons.

If that is true, he said, it may be easier than previously believed to devise shielding to protect space pilots from radiation.

The information came from Dr. John Lindner, senior staff member of Space Technology Laboratory, Los Angeles, at a meeting of the Seventh Region of the Institute of Radio Engineers.

Lindner said the information about the Van Allen radiation belt was obtained from the nose cone of a rocket fired four weeks ago from Cape Canaveral Fla. He said radioactive particles which make up the belt registered on a

Paid $7.51 For Dollar In Return

CHICAGO (AP) — The 48 states and their citizens paid $7.51 in federal taxes for every dollar they got back in federal aid and grants, the Western Tax Council declared today.

The council said the $7.51 figure is an average of payments made by the various states during the fiscal year from July, 1957 through June, 1958.

North Carolina, said the council, paid in $1,857,559,000 to the federal treasury during the fiscal year in the form of taxes and Social Security. The state and its citizens got back $220,873,000, said the council, an average of $8.41 paid for every dollar returned.

South Carolina paid in $287,511,000 and was returned $115,621,000 for a $2.49 average, according to the council's figures.

Under federal payments to states the council lists aids and grants, shared revenue, regular appropriations and Social Security payments. Federal expenditures that do not return to the states as such would include those for national defense, foreign aid and so forth.

The council said the states which paid the largest amounts per dollar returned included Delaware, $2.29; New York, $16.96; Michigan, $14.95; and Illinois, $12.63. Lowest payments were by North Dakota, $1.10.

The military ceremony taping, which marks the beating of retreat for soldiers, originates from early years when the drums warned soldiers to return to their billets late at night.

Lindner said the information about the Van Allen radiation belt was obtained from the nose cone of a rocket fired four weeks ago from Cape Canaveral Fla. He said radioactive particles which make up the belt registered on a

Plan Observance Of 'Dairy Month'

Observance of June Dairy Month in five Eastern North Carolina counties was planned Wednesday night at an area meeting here.

John Fisher of Greensboro, State June Dairy Month Activities chairman, spoke on plans for the observance across the state and Homer Sink, of Greensboro, State Manager for the American Dairy Association, spoke on how to use materials available at the county level.

Max Chestnut, Beaufort County agricultural agent and co-chairman for Area 10 with Mrs. Harry Taylor of Hookerton, presided. The group was welcomed by Ercell Webb of Greenville, area finance chairman, and Sam Winchester, Pitt County Agent, gave the invocation.

Attending from Pitt besides Webb and Winchester were Mrs. Roscoe Barnhill and Harry Lee Stokes, county June co-chairmen, and Mrs. Sue May, Pitt Home Economics agent.

Lucky Rotarians Share $800,000

TEXCOCO, Mexico (AP) — Ten of the luckiest Rotarians in the world today are Texcoco businessmen who decided at a club meeting to buy a lottery ticket together.

Their ticket won the main prize of $800,000 in the national drawing Wednesday night. Each man will get $80,000.

The town of 12,000, 20 miles from Mexico City, went wild at the news. There were reports some of the winnings might be donated for public works, including a stadium.

CHAPTER 27

"Hey, buddy," a voice called, "snap out of it!"

I looked up from my hold on the mailbox and tried to grin.

Come on over here. Let's have a talk."

It was a police car; a radio prowled. Two officers were in the front seat.

I walked across to it as best I could.

"What are you celebrating?" one of the men asked.

"I'm not celebrating," I said.

"That's blood on his shirt," the other one said. "Hey, what happened?"

"A couple of thugs took me in the vacant lot, rolled me and left me for dead."

"Got a driver's license?" one of the officers asked.

I put my hand in my pocket and pulled out my identification.

One of the officers studied the wallet with its cards of identification. The other kept his eyes on me.

The officer with the wallet gave a low whistle. "The guy's a private eye, Jim. Name's Donald Lam."

The other one said to me, "What are you doing out here, Lam?"

"I was calling on a man in connection with an investigation I was making. While I had my car parked in front of his house, two thugs got in back of the car and crouched down in the shadows. I jumped in the car without looking and . . . well, they had me dead to rights. One of them stuck a gun in the back of my neck and told me to drive into a vacant lot down the street."

"Where's your car now?"

"Evidently they took it."

"You got the license number and all that?"

"That's right."

"All right. We'll put out a bulletin on it and maybe catch them—you look beat up pretty bad . . . Who were you calling on out here?"

"It was confidential business."

Let's have his name."

"Mortimer Jasper," I said.

"Where does he live?"

"About a block and a half down and turn to the right."

"Get in," the officer said. "Show us."

I got in the car and directed them to Jasper's house.

"All right, Lam. Out you go," the officer said.

It was agony getting out, but one of the men helped me while the other one stayed with the prowler car to monitor the shortwave radio.

I went up the steps of the house, and the officer rang the bell.

After a minute the door was opened.

Mortimer Jasper stood in the doorway, his manner apologetic, his watery blue eyes mildly curious. "Is there something?" he asked.

"I'm an officer," the man said. "This fellow claims he was calling on you earlier this evening on a matter of business. Two men jumped on him and rolled him."

"Calling on me?" Jasper asked, his voice rising at just the right note of incredulous surprise.

"That's right."

"But that is impossible. I have had no callers all evening."

"Take a look at him," the officer said, turning me around so the light from the doorway came on my features.

Jasper said, "I don't know what kind of a racket this is, but I have never seen this man before in my life."

The officer looked at me appraisingly. "Okay, Lam," he said, "we'll take you to headquarters. Perhaps you can think up a better story by the time you get there."

The officer walked me back to the car.

The officer in the car said, "How'd you come out?"

"Jasper says he never saw the guy in his life," the officer said. "I've been busy checking on the radio," the officer behind the wheel said. "He's a private operator, all right; has a license in good standing. They're working on this Crockett case. You know, Dean Crockett who was murdered. Inspector Giddings and Sergeant Sellers are working on that. They want him brought in."

Inspector Giddings looked me over. "Well, well, you'd been put through the meat grinder. Now, cut the comedy and tell me what really happened."

I tried to grin, but my face was too lopsided with swelling, and one eye was pretty well puffed up. It hurt when I straightened up. "I ran into a door in the dark," I said.

Giddings gave me the benefit of a professional inspection: the way a trainer might look over a battered-up prize fighter in between rounds to see whether it was worth while throwing in the towel.

"You look as though you took the full count," he said.

"Only the count of nine," I told him.

"You think you're still in there fighting?"

"Yes."

He threw back his head and laughed at that. "You took the full count, Donald," he said. "You really did. You've been down and now you're out."

"All right," I told him, "you're doing the talking."

"Now," he said, "you're beginning to get some sense. I'm doing the talking and it's time that you recognized it. You know, we don't like to have smart dicks playing around in murder cases."

"You can imagine how it would look to have the public pick up a newspaper and see that Donald Lam, a pint-sized private detective, had solved the Crockett murder case while the police were running around in circles."

Giddings paused and shook his head. "That would be what we call bad public relations."

"When you private eyes find out anything that has to do with a crime, you come right to us and tell us, and then we carry on from there."

"And do you tell me what's happened on my own tips?" I asked. "Or do I get to read it in the newspapers?"

TWO FOR ONE SHOT

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Richard W. Reynolds, spotted a rabbit nibbling in his front yard. He fired one blast from a shotgun. The rabbit collapsed. So did his neighbor's front picture window.

"Doesn't he ever learn?" Giddings asked.

"Not so far," Sellers said. "Giddings' face was hard. 'We'll learn him this time,' he said grimly."

Donald is going to have to face Sylvia Hadley with police listening in. The story continues here tomorrow.

NEW YORK (AP)—Space age stocks, motors and chemicals paced a smart rebound early this afternoon from Thursday's sharp stock market break. Trading was quite active.

Proval issues recouped from fractions to 2 or 3 points. The missile-electronic-rocket fuel section recovered moderately from Thursday's shakeout, the worst market decline since last November.

Wall Streeters called the rise a technical rebound based on a desire to pick up stocks at reduced prices.

Ford was up more than 2, Chrysler and American Motors rose close to a point each while General Motors was fractionally higher.

Thiokol recouped more than a point of Thursday's loss of 7½. Radio Corp., General Tire, Raytheon and Havco were ahead more than a point each. Beckman Instruments and Magnavox rose about 2 each. Philco, Sperry Rand and General Instrument advanced fractionally. Motorola dropped a point.

In the blue chip category, Du Pont rose more than 4 and Goodyear over 3. American Telephone recovered around 2 points. Martin Co. and U.S. Gypsum were other 2-point gainers.

California Packing spurted about 5 points on news of a proposed 2-for-1 stock split and dividend boost.

Air Reduction slipped more than a point. Small losses were shown by Texaco, Standard Oil of Indiana, Illinois Central and International Nickel.

U.S. government bonds were firm.

Funeral Saturday For Mrs. Hugh S. Ragsdale

Mrs. Susie Moore Ragsdale, wife of Hugh S. Ragsdale, died in Pitt Memorial Hospital at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

Funeral services will be held at the home, 410 Contentnea Street, Saturday morning at 11 o'clock. Her pastor, the Rev. John Drake, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, will be in charge of the services. Interment will follow in Cherry Hill cemetery.

Mrs. Ragsdale was born in Pitt County September 23, 1888, the daughter of the late W. M. (Bud) and Sonora Moore. She received her education at Trinity High School, Chocowinity, and Meredith College. The family moved to Greenville in December 1908 where her father became Register of Deeds for Pitt County.

Shortly thereafter she entered the office under her father, later transferring to the office of the County Board of Education and then to the clerk's office where she became Deputy Clerk of Superior Court which position she held until her retirement about 10 years ago.

Until her recent illness she was active in the religious, civic, fraternal and political life of Pitt County. She was a member of St. Paul's Episcopal Church and served on the Vestry. She was the first woman ever named to the Pitt County Democratic Executive Committee, served as head of the women's division of the party in the county and also was a member of the State Democratic Executive Committee. She was the first woman in Pitt County to be awarded the Exchange Club's Book of Golden Deeds.

Mrs. Ragsdale was a charter member of the Greenville Woman's Club, the Order of the Eastern Star, Business and Professional Women's Club and the Pitt County Fine Arts Society. She served on the public library board and was a member of the Pitt County Historical Society, Sans Souci Book Club and the Newcomer's Club.

In addition to her husband, survivors include two sisters, Mrs. David H. Bland Sr. of Goldsboro, and Mrs. Ward Moore Tripp of Greenville.

Cases Heard In County Court

Eleven cases were removed from the docket of Pitt County Recorder's Court in its weekly session here Tuesday.

One road sentence was included in the group of judgments handed down by Judge Dink James. That went to Arfealurs Pittman, 43-year-old Negro, of Rt. 3, Greenville, who drew a six-months term on the roads. He was found guilty of possession of non-tax-paid whiskey, possession for the purpose of sale, transporting illegal whiskey and driving under the influence.

Another case was cleared from the docket by transferring it to Superior Court for jury trial. In that case, Ray Lesley Davis of Rt. 1, Ayden, is charged with driving under the influence and driving on the wrong side of the road.

Two defendants in speeding cases were ordered to pay court costs and surrender their driver's licenses after being found guilty. They are Mary Harris Lloyd of Rt. 2, Ayden, and James Vann Larkin of Washington, N. C.

Charles Edward Green of Cherry Point and Albert Wilks Vick of Snow Hill were each ordered to pay costs and surrender their driver's licenses for ten days after pleading guilty to charges of speeding.

Judgments of not pros with leave were returned against defendants in five old cases. The defendants and charges against them are: Manul Edward Harris, Rt. 4, Greenville, driving under the influence and failure to give a proper signal; Henry Mack Green, Negro, Rt. 3, Greenville, larceny; Roy Lee Harris, Rt. 1, Farmville, ex pired operator's license; Carl Eugene Kirkman, Rt. 2, Vanceboro, speeding; and Bennie Lee Allen, Norfolk Va., speeding with a tr

Services to be held tonight at Holy Trinity Church will be rendered by the pastor and the members of The Church on the Rock in Pictolus. The public is invited to attend.

Funeral

BETHEL—Mrs. Caludia Person, the wife of Redmond Person died at her home, Route 3, Bethel, on Tuesday afternoon.

Funeral services will be Sunday at 2:00 p.m. at St. Mary's Baptist Church. The Rev. J. E. James will officiate. Burial will follow in the Bethel Cemetery.

Surviving are her husband, Redmond Person of the home; six daughters, Mrs. Retha Williams and Mrs. Maggie Lee of Petersburg, Va., Mrs. Rena Moore of Washington, D.
