Curious Pup

A four-month-old collie puppy's curiosity resulted yesterday in a 90-minute operation by members of the Greenville Fire Department, Rescue Squad, county dog wardens and public health personnel.

The dog dropped into a drain sewer at 200 South Warren St., squeezed into connecting pipes and trapped himself. He was freed after an hour and a half of measuring, digging, pipe-breaking and pulling by a crew of city and county employees, and volunteers, working under supervision of Fire Chief George Gardner.

Members of the group which freed the puppy were ordered to the job after a report from Mrs. Steve Griffin of 101 North Warren St. that the animal was trapped.

Despite the rescue work and his predicament, the puppy was apparently reluctant to leave the pipe. He resisted efforts of Rescue Squad member Jimmy Smith to pull him from the muddy drain.

He finally came out, under his own steam, when members of the rescue crew backed away and left him alone.

Building Permits Top 2 Million For 4 Months

Building Inspector J.W. Wilson issued a permit for a million-dollar building in April to bring the value of total new construction to $2,025,015 for the first four months of 1959.

The big permit was for the 520-man dormitory on which construction has begun at East Carolina College.

The dorm is being built on the section of the college campus between Tenth and 14th Sts. It will be nearly a duplication of the first 520-man dorm which is nearing completion on that section of the campus.

There were also permits for 14 dwellings with a value of $180,350 issued by the building inspector during April.

Permits for eight additions to residences were obtained from the building inspector. Value of the work was set at $6,200. There were also four garage and carport approvals with a value of $8,250.

Wilson issued a permit for a drive-in bank valued at $8,500. That building is being constructed at West End Circle by State Bank and Trust Co.

One storage building, to cost $100, and various alterations, valued at $3,000, also were approved during April.

Thus total value of new construction authorized during the month came to $1,287,840.

Wilson reported he issued 30 building permits last month. He also made 50 plumbing and sewer inspections. Fees turned over to the City Clerk's for the month amounted to $481.

Pleads Guilty To Slaying Family

AUBURN, N.Y. (AP)—Sixteen-year-old John A. Jayne pleaded guilty Friday to wiping out his family with a shotgun. He could get life in prison.

The high school sophomore last Jan. 28 shot his father Willis 66, mother Amber 59, brother Willard 19, and sister Elizabeth Anne 13. He pleaded guilty in Cayuga County Court to four counts of second-degree murder.

Judge Gerald S. Hewitt fixed sentencing for May 19. The boy could be given 20 years to life on each count.

State Police quoted the boy as saying his father had abused him and that others in the family took his brother's part when the boys quarreled.

Reds Have Five Times As Much

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress has been told the Soviet Army has equipment about as good as that of the United States—and five times as much of it.

The testimony was given a House Appropriations subcommittee behind closed doors March 25 by Brig. Gen. L. J. Lincoln, deputy chief of staff for logistics, and made public today.

Gromyko First In Geneva For Ministers' Meet

GENEVA (AP)—Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko arrived today for next week's Big Four foreign ministers' meeting. He declared that "we shall make every effort for this conference to be crowned with success."

Gromyko, first of the foreign ministers to reach Geneva for Monday's conference opening, was greeted by a big turnout of Soviet bloc diplomats.

Stepping from a gleaming white turboprop plane at the head of a 17-man delegation, Gromyko repeated Soviet assertions that the most urgent problems for the conference are a peace treaty with Germany and liquidation of the Allied occupation in Berlin.

"It is for a positive solution of these important questions that the Soviet delegation has arrived here," he said. "Our intentions are serious. We shall make every effort for this conference to be crowned with success."

"The Soviet government is confident that at present there exist the necessary conditions to prevent war and insure a lasting peace."

The Communists appeared in a confident mood, and Western diplomatic sources were rather pessimistic. Western sources cautioned against raising high hopes for success of the conference. They pointed to prospects of con-tion at the outset on such routine matters as agenda and procedure.

The Western powers have prepared a package plan. The Soviets want priority for Berlin and a German peace treaty. They object to bringing in Western plans for German unification and European security at the same time.

More argument may develop on whether outside powers may take part in the first Big Four foreign ministers' parley since 1955.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko was expected in town today at the head of a 17-man delegation.

U.S. Secretary of State Christian A. Herter, after a stopover in Bonn for a conference with West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, and French Foreign Minister Couve de Murville were also due today.

British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd, the last of the Big Four, is not coming until Sunday morning.

The East German Communists were set to get here before the main participants. Leaving Berlin, East German Foreign Minister Lothar Bolz said he was "full of optimism."

The precise role—if any—of the East and West Germans at the conference is one of the first things to be brought up, along with possibly inviting other outsiders to take part.

West German Foreign Minister Heinrich von Brentano is due Sunday.

Italian Foreign Minister Giuseppe Pella and the Polish and Czech foreign ministers are coming to Geneva, too.

It is expected if the Soviets insist on including such Communist states as Poland and Czechoslovakia that the West will counter by demanding a seat for Italy at the conference table.

If the Soviets reject the West's package plan—as they are expected to—the Allies may run into difficulties on reaching unanimity on a fall-back position.

The Western package includes: retention of western rights in Berlin, a phased reunification of Germany in which free elections would be the last stage instead of the first, and some form of controlled limitation of armament in central Europe for European security.

Herter has served advance warning on the Soviet Union that the United States wants "businesslike negotiations and not a propaganda exercise."

On leaving Washington Friday he said he was in a "hopeful spirit" though his expectations for a successful conference were "not too high."

Diplomatic informants in Bonn said Friday the West might consider a deal to protect Allied lifelines to West Berlin that might save face for the East Germans.

The Western idea it was reported, is to let the East Germans man the checkpoints on the overland routes to isolated West Berlin—but only as agents of the Soviets and provided the Soviets do not scrap wartime occupation agreements altogether.

The Soviet Union threatened last fall to give up its occupation duties and turn them over to their East German satellite.

Probable Toll Of 150 In Capsizing

CAIRO, Egypt (AP)—Divers and navy frogmen today recovered 40 more bodies from the sunken hulk of the riverboat Dandara, which capsized Friday with a holiday picnic crowd of about 300 persons aboard.

These were in addition to 10 bodies found Friday night. Police said at least 95 persons still are unaccounted for, placing the probable toll at nearly 150.

The victims, mostly women and children, drowned when the heavily loaded craft sprang a leak and sank about six yards offshore. Most of the victims were trapped beneath decks amid wild confusion.

The tragedy occurred as the 200-ton, double-decker craft, chartered by the Agricultural Engineers' Assn., neared the Nile delta picnic grounds about eight miles north of Cairo.

Police estimated 100 were saved but the number lost may never be known for the outing tickets were sold in family blocks. Whole families drowned together.

A government communique gave no clue to the cause of the disaster.

Agricultural Minister Sayed Marei described it as "a human and economic tragedy because those drowned include the best of our agricultural engineers."

One of the first to reach the scene was President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic, who personally directed the rescue of some passengers struggling in the water.

The Dandara was headed for Garden Park, a famed picnic grounds at the Nile Delta Barrage (dam) eight miles downstream from Cairo.

One of the rescued was Ahmed Talaat, secretary of the agricultural engineers syndicate which organized the excursion for the Moslem Friday Sabbath.

Another survivor, Dr. Abdel Monem Mekky, saved his 6-year-old daughter Magda but his wife and three other children drowned.

Dr. Mekky, in describing the confusion as the small boat began sinking, said he saved a woman who he mistakenly thought was his wife.

Pilot Freed By Reds; Won't Talk

HELMSTEDT, Germany (AP)—Communist East Germany today released Emory A. Vaughan, an American civilian pilot who had been detained since March 27.

The 32-year-old pilot from Portsmouth, Va., arrested by the Communists when his sports plane strayed across the Iron Curtain, was freed at this West German frontier post in the custody of the American Red Cross.

Robert Storey Wilson, European operations director of the Red Cross, crossed the border to meet Vaughan and guide him into Helmstedt. Wilson earlier had arranged for Vaughan's release in negotiations with the East German Red Cross.

As he crossed the border to West Germany, Vaughan said to newsmen: "I have nothing to say."

He was wearing a brown suit, brown necktie, and white shirt. Wilson said "Vaughan was well treated and is in good health."

The American received mail and packages through the Red Cross while he was held in the East. Wilson said, adding that the East German Red Cross had been cooperative and helpful.

The Red Cross director, accompanied by his public information officer, Don Heinemann, of Houston, Tex., went across the frontier to get Vaughan and returned in 45 minutes.

Humphrey Proposes 7-Year Plan By U.S., $14 Billion Outlay For Peace

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn.) proposed today that the United States immediately launch a "grand design for peace—a seven year plan of our own."

One goal would be technical and economic aid to free peoples to cost at least 14 billion dollars, or 2 billions a year for 7 years. The need may last for decades, Humphrey said.

Other goals, he said, would be winning a just and durable peace and realization of dignity, well-being, and equality of rights for every American.

Humphrey, in a keynote speech prepared for the 12th annual convention of the Americans for Democratic Action, said the Soviets had put this country on notice with a seven-year plan in communism's competition with capitalism.

"We have laughed off five-year plans and seven-year plans in the past—and to our sorrow," he said. "We will laugh off this our period."

"I propose that we set the goals which are the price of survival and that we set ourselves to meet them," said Humphrey, an ADA vice chairman and possible contender for the 1960 Democratic presidential nomination.

ADA describes itself an independent organization of political liberals with a membership of 44,000 in 39 states.

"I do not propose that we imitate the Soviet Union—either its goals or its methods," Humphrey said.

"I propose that as they have set their goals for the triumph of communism, we set our goals for the preservation of peace and security and for the extension of human freedom and individual welfare everywhere on earth."

"They have set authoritarian priorities by dictate. We must set our goals by consent through democratic processes. We must demonstrate the superiority of the methods as well as the goals of freedom and democracy."

Humphrey said that Soviet Russia is growing stronger—and therefore bolder. He said there is abundant evidence of what he termed the "solid and substantial performance and plans of the Soviet economy and the Soviet military."

"In spite of the President's soothing words," Humphrey added, "there are well-documented doubts about our military strength, now and in the future."

"In international politics and diplomacy, by our dogged defense of the status quo we have allowed ourselves to be outmaneuvered in Europe, leaptfrogged in the Middle East, and seriously challenged in Asia and even in our own hemisphere."

Quarles' Death May Delay Resignation By McElroy

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower's choice of a successor for Deputy Secretary of Defense Donald A. Quarles will be closely scrutinized by Democrats in Congress.

Quarles, 64, died unexpectedly Friday in his sleep.

The Pentagon today attributed Quarles' death to a heart ailment.

A post mortem report by Walter Reed Army Hospital said he was stricken by "obstructive coronary sclerosis." This is a narrowing of the blood vessels of the heart which in effect shuts off the blood supply to the heart muscle.

The former communications industry official had been mentioned prominently as a possible replacement for Secretary of Defense Neil McElroy, who had told Eisenhower he wanted to leave his Pentagon post late this year.

Some of the congressional Democrats had looked on Quarles as one of the administration officials who had resisted their demands for more spending to close the missile gap with the Soviets.

It had been the impression of these Democrats that McElroy leaned heavily on the advice of Quarles, who technically was more familiar with details of the defense program than almost any other official.

McElroy told reporters Friday Quarles' death "will have to be another factor in considering what I will do."

He said it will be a good many months before the time for his intended resignation and he will have an opportunity to consider the matter.

Describing Quarles as "really irreplaceable," McElroy said that fundamentally he favors promoting someone within the Defense Department instead of going outside. He indicated an acting deputy may be named for the time being.

Mentioned in speculation about an eventual replacement for McElroy were Gordon Gray, a special presidential assistant for national security affairs; Asst. Secretary of Defense Wilfred J. McNeil, the Pentagon's comptroller; retired Gen. Alfred Gruenther, now chairman of the American Red Cross; Secretary of Interior Fred A. Seaton, a former assistant defense secretary; and Henry Cabot Lodge, ambassador to the United Nations.

Two senators expressed hope that McElroy will reconsider plans to leave the cabinet this year.

Sens. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.) and Andrew F. Schoepel (R-Kan.) said in separate interviews they believe the death of Quarles makes such a decision by McElroy imperative.

Quarles will be buried Tuesday in Arlington National Cemetery with military honors.

The District of Columbia coroner has not announced the cause of Quarles' death.

Man Is Thrown Off Bridge As Vehicles Collide

A Negro man was thrown off the Greene St. bridge last night when the pickup truck in which he was riding collided with a 1958 model car, demolishing both vehicles.

David Earl Cogdell, 19, Route 6, Greenville, was riding in the back of the truck with four other Negroes at the time of the accident. The truck was headed north on Greene St.

Investigating officers stated three passengers in the front seat of the truck told them that the car was rounding the curve on the bridge on their side of the road. The driver of the truck, R. D. Harrington, 25-year-old Negro of Route 5, Greenville, stated he then slowed down and pulled to the right as far as he could.

The impact knocked the truck up on the sidewalk and threw David Earl Cogdell off the bridge and down the 30-foot drop.

According to investigators, Cogdell was knocked unconscious by the fall. Doctors this morning said he showed no signs of injury and will be released today.

Also slightly injured in the accident was the driver of the car, Eugene Williams, 20, of Route 2, Greenville, and the four other passengers in the rear of the truck. None of these were hospitalized.

As a result of the investigation of the accident city police charged Williams with operating to the left of the center line. He was recognized to appear in City Court here May 18.

The accident occurred about 11:30 p.m.

Pilotless Jet Falls In Garden

DETROIT (AP)—A pilotless jet plane plunged into a residential area of nearby Norville Friday, splashing flaming fuel onto a sandpile where five children were playing.

Two of the youngsters burned seriously. Their three playmates escaped harm.

The R4-F Thunderflash missed crashing into a high school a half block away. It landed in a garden, 100 feet from the children.

Maj. John L. Moutier of Belleville, Mich., an Air Force pilot, parachuted to safety after his stick locked and his plane went into an uncontrolled climb. He is attached to the Michigan Air National Guard squadron at Detroit's Metropolitan Airport and was preparing to land after a routine training flight.

David King, 10, and his sister, Elizabeth, 3, were burned by the blazing jet fuel.

Their mother, Mrs. Eugene King, wife of Northville's police chief, ran screaming to her children.

David and Elizabeth were rushed to a hospital. Their condition was described as serious.

Jenkins Refutes Tales Athlete Flunked Elsewhere

By JIMMY ELLIS
Reflector Staff Writer

Dr. Leo W. Jenkins of East Carolina College today denied reports carried this week by North Carolina newspapers that high school basketball star Lawrence (Cotton) Clayton decided to enroll at ECC after flunking entrance examinations at other schools.

The reports appeared Tuesday in the Raleigh Times, and Wednesday in the Goldsboro News-Argus.

Dr. Jenkins, vice-president of East Carolina, said, in denying the reports, that information available to ECC showed that Clayton had passed the American College Board Examinations used as entrance exams by the state's Big Four schools.

Reports that Clayton had flunked entrance exams elsewhere came after East Carolina issued a sports publicity release Monday announcing the Zeb Vance High School State entrance exam.

star's intention to enroll as a student on the Greenville campus. The reports were written by Bruce Phillips, sports editor of The Raleigh Times, and Jack Lee, sports editor of the Goldsboro News-Argus.

Phillips, an East Carolina alumnus, commented on the announcement in his May 5 (Tuesday) column. He wrote:

"It would appear that East Carolina College

Firemen Assist Old Missionary Buddy

By TOM HENSHAW
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Crates of second-hand religious statuary should begin arriving soon in the far off Ryukyu Islands — gifts of a fire department that never forgot an old buddy.

The old buddy is the Rev. Martin de Pores, a Capuchin missionary, whom graying members of the New York City Fire Department remember as Jim Clarke of the East Side's old wine shop.

The story of the gift statuary began about a year ago when father de Pores hitched a ride aboard an Army plane in the Ryukyus. Also aboard was the son of Joseph Maceda, an old fire department friend.

Later, Father de Pores wrote to the elder Maceda, now a fire lieutenant, to tell him of the meeting. Casually, he mentioned that if Maceda knew of any religious articles that weren't busy he sure could use them at his mission.

New York firemen are not accustomed to doing things halfway. The Anchor Club, made up of Roman Catholic fire fighters, adopted Father de Pores small request as a major project.

Ads were placed in New York's Catholic newspapers. Calls started coming in. Off-duty firemen began scurrying around in their own cars, picking up donations. The gifts were stored in fire stations.

Last week, the results of the firemen's canvass was presented to Father de Pores at an Anchor Club communion breakfast. The tally: 1,500 religious articles ranging from small crucifixes to large outdoor statues.

The gift comes at an opportune time for Father de Pores for when he returns to the Ryukyus next month, he is scheduled to supervise a new full-time mission on an island in the chain off the Japanese coast.

The island is Miyako, 70 square miles, 56,000 people, only 30 of them Catholics. The soft-spoken, bearded missionary is eager to get back there to his three-month visit in New York.

"There's so much to do," he says. "Right now all we have is a small house. The largest room in it is the chapel."

"We want to build a church, of course, possibly one with a combination hall and social center. Then, in time, we want to build a school. We figure we'll have one in about seven years."

Father de Pores believes he detects a rise in interest in Catholicism among the Japanese. This is because the new crown prince, Michiko, attended a Catholic school in Tokyo.

YEAR DAY

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Day	Book	Chapter	Verses
Sunday	1 Kings	1	22-40
Monday	1 Kings	5	1-18
Tuesday	1 Kings	7	51
Wednesday	1 Kings	8	21
Thursday	1 Kings	8	37-43
Friday	1 Kings	8	34-46
Saturday	1 Kings	9	1-14

She won't be guest of honor at any Mother's Day banquet. But who cares? Her glory has always been greater than mere national recognition. She wears her orchid in her heart. She doesn't want speeches. But she'll find inspiration, as always, in the pastor's sermon. And sitting there in church, with her grown up boys and girls, she'll recall the days when first they toddled along to Church School. And she'll thank God! Yes! She'll thank Him that it doesn't take a Mother's Day to bring her family to God's House!

Society Taps 5 New Members

By CATHERINE MOORE
Teenage Writer

Yesterday during homeroom, the Haskett Chapter of the National Honor Society tapped five new members into the society. Inductees included Alice Walters, Charles Taft, Mary French Hawes, Barbara McRoy, and Betty Jean Hoell.

After the black-robed members had marched in to the tune of "Pomp and Circumstance," played by senior Jasper Jones, Betty Derrick stated the purpose of the meeting. Dot Davis gave the devotional, and Laura Gurganus sang the prayer.

Joe Upchurch introduced the speaker, Dr. Robert L. Holt, registrar and director of admissions at East Carolina College.

Dr. Holt extended to his audience three keys—optimism, education, and preparation—emphasizing his points with poetry and jokes.

Secretary Laura Gurganus distributed the sealed envelopes containing the names of the inductees and five members tallied them.

The inductees then received their pins, candles, and envelopes as symbols of their election, and repeated the pledge.

The society has purchased a book in which all present members will sign their names and date of their induction. The club will continue this practice in the future and will keep the book as a memento.

Committee Evaluates School
Members of the evaluation committee from the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools visited the high school Monday and Tuesday to observe classes and to determine whether or not the association will again accredit the school.

Tuesday morning during first and second periods, three members of the group met with a school group of high school students. This group included officers of clubs and other activities, as well as all students whose names appear fifth on homeroom rolls.

The committee members questioned the group with specific inquiries, asked about their opinions of the best and worst things about the school, and gave them a chance to talk of any topic not brought up already.

Tuesday after school, the faculty met with the evaluation committee to hear their suggestions for improving the school. The association will notify the school of the results of the evaluation approximately a week from now.

Mrs. Taft Speaks On 'Hawaii, 50th State'

Mrs. Fred Irons entertained the Inter Se Club on Tuesday afternoon. Upon arrival the members were invited into the garden where the meeting was held. The outgoing President, Mrs. R. T. Thompson, presented the new President, Mrs. M. P. Hoot, who presided.

The program for the afternoon was given by Mrs. Joe Taft on the subject, "Hawaii, Fiftieth State." Mrs. Taft described the eight main islands which make up the group.

their history, great natural beauty, almost perfect climate, and varied peoples of different races which live together in great harmony.

Some of the assets of the new state were listed as a young population, hard working people, wealth cultural advancement, and forward-looking attitude. Some of the problems discussed were scarcity of land, which is owned by a few high income taxes caused by land not being adequately taxed, imbalance among the islands, addition to pidgin English, and the lack of a common name for all the inhabitants since the name "Hawaiian" is reserved for the polynesians.

At the conclusion of a business meeting the guests were invited into the dining room by Mrs. Irons where punch and various accompaniments were served.

Council members were told that the VFW club of Grifton and the Greenville Service League have given camperships for the coming season.

During the meeting the group recognized Mrs. M. P. Hoot for her outstanding service as cookie sale chairman.

30 Years Ago Today

May 9, 1929

Greenville yesterday made it a gala day in athletic history of the school when they took the annual relay race from Washington by a great margin and then whipped the Washington baseball team by the lopsided score of 10 to 3. The time of the relay race was one hour, 44 minutes, 47 3/4 seconds, approximately ten minutes slower than last year. This may be accounted for to some extent by the fact that the laps were longer, only 81 men running instead of 92 last year.

The graduating exercises held at Falkland High School Tuesday morning of this week brought to a close the seventh year of the consolidated school.

Wesley Players To Present One-Act Play

A one-act play by Charles George will be presented by Alpha Zeta Chapter, Wesley Players, on Wednesday, May 13, at 8:00 o'clock in the Methodist Student Center.

This is a farce, in which six of Shakespeare's leading men meet in an effort to solve a common problem—how to control the extravagance of their wives. Hamlet, Romeo, Anthony, and Othello call on Shylock for advice and a loan.

Hamlet has wed the mad Ophelia and she is making him "The Melancholy Dane" in every sense of the word; Romeo has married young Juliet and her extravagances are breaking him; Cleopatra's dressmaking bills, to say nothing of the money for her jewels, are driving Anthony to bankruptcy; and Othello is jealous of Iago, who he feels certain is winning Desdemona away from him. While Shylock is driving a hard bargain with these gentlemen, Petruchio arrives and gives them the "clow-down" for he has tamed the noted shrew, Katherine.

This play provides many laughs and 45 minutes of entertainment. It will be presented on the stage of the Alpha Zeta Room in the Methodist Student Center. Admission will be charged.

Cast for the play are members of the Alpha Zeta Chapter, Wesley Players: Hamlet, Walter Johnson; Romeo, Smitty Haislip; Anthony, Bill Mitchell; Othello, Ed Lancaster; and Shylock, Jim Lanier. Barbara Wilson is directing the play.

Even Dead, Jones' Bill Effective

Dead or alive, the proposal of Rep. Walter Jones to revamp the state's Highway Commission has had a healthy effect on the highway organization of North Carolina.

The proposal was soundly defeated by members of the House Thursday, but it was not written off the legislative agenda before members of the Highway Commission and other administration officials from the governor on down were made well aware of the fact that a good many North Carolinians are not entirely happy with the way highway affairs have been since the reorganization in 1957.

From the time the bill was introduced early in the session until now, highway officials have spent a good many days moving from one community to another in the state getting individual opinions not only on the reorganization proposal, but also other shortcomings of the seven-man commission. If the bill has done nothing else, it has put the Highway Commission in closer touch with the people of the state simply because it brought them out to talk with people they otherwise would have not seen.

More than that, the bill has made the commission conscious of its lack of adequate contact with Tar Heels in many parts of North Carolina. It has made the commissioners conscious of the fact that the new system still needs to be "sold" to the people of the state.

Because of these things, the bill has served a most useful purpose even though it was killed by an overwhelming vote in the House. On a temporary basis at least, it has brought members of the commission into closer contact with people of the state. And in all probability, the very fact that the matter was brought to legislative attention by Rep. Jones will spur the commission to keep in closer contact with the people than has been the case in the past.

The idea behind Rep. Jones' proposal for revamping the State Highway Commission was sound. The proposal has merit and it is entirely possible that it may be reconsidered by the legislature again in another session.

In the meantime, even as a dead bill, it has made the Highway Commission keenly aware that it had fences which needed mending. And it has caused the Commission to do considerable mending in the past couple of months.

If Guard Is Needed, By All Means Use It

If new violence occurs in Henderson, Gov. Hodges should not hesitate to immediately send National Guard units into Vance County as he has indicated he will.

No community or state can tolerate the kind of violence which has gone on in Henderson during the long and bitter textile strike. The sooner the people responsible for the violence are made to understand it will not be tolerated, the sooner the violence will end and greater reliance will be placed in other avenues toward settling the dispute.

The Highway Patrol has been in Henderson long enough . . . and from the standpoint of the state's highway safety program, they have been there too long. Gov. Hodges' decision to return patrolmen to their regular duties did not come too soon. His decision to order National Guardsmen into Henderson if violence continues and local agencies cannot handle it, is the only logical course to be followed.

Armed with their new arrest powers in such situations, the Guardsmen should be able to cope with violence if it recurs in the textile strike.

Violence in conjunction with the Henderson strike has not only endangered lives and property in that city, but it has given the entire state of North Carolina a black eye so far as union-management relations are concerned. The longer the violence is allowed to continue, the worse it may be expected to become . . . and the greater the damage both in Henderson and the entire state.

If the presence of the National Guard is required in Henderson to maintain law and order, the citizens of that city have no one to blame except those responsible for the violence. North Carolina cannot tolerate lawlessness and violence. In fairness to all of the people of the state, top government officials must do all in their power to prevent it. If the National Guard is required to achieve this goal, there should be no hesitancy about using it.

Decentralizing Reins Of Govm't

By GEORGE PECK

Former United States Senator William E. Jenner of Indiana, who was first elected to the Senate in 1944 and served in that body until December 31, 1958, was not a candidate for re-election on last November 4. The Senate and the citizens of America are going to miss the voice of this staunch, conservative, un-McCarthyite Republican. In his very eloquent speech of farewell in the Senate, he referred to the liberal opposition as "Centralists." No name more aptly describes the left-wing element at Washington which slowly but surely is driving this nation into a Socialistic economy.

In this column, time and time again, we have decried the growing centralization and expanding bureaucracy at the nation's capital. We have viewed with alarm the interference with and the usurpation by Federal Government of many functions that constitutionally and rightfully belong to the individual states. This process is weakening the individual states and is transforming our Republic into a democracy which the Founding Fathers set up safeguards to prevent.

Ralph Courtney of Springfield, New York, has written us a letter in which he, too, decries this undermining of the foundation of America, and points out the need for decentralization. Even of greater import, he suggests ways and means as to how such a decentralization can be brought about. He states the case so aptly that we are passing on to the readers of this column the full text of his letter. From here to the end we quote it.

The highly centralized social order of the present day is not a success. Its education is not good, its economy is not economical and its regulating bureaucracy is too costly. And, although people are always hopeful that a new government will be an improvement on the one that went before, under centralism this can never be the case. It is not possible for a central political authority to regulate human relations impartially in the equal interests of all.

Thus the centralist social order as we have it today is not satisfactory. Nor would it be greatly improved if it were split up into smaller units. If political centralism is bad, the smaller units could but develop the same faults.

A good society is one in which the cultural, political and economic arrangements are all satisfactory. It is under these three headings that a functional decentralization of the social order could be carried out. Citizens could be given even more liberty in the cultural and economic aspects of their lives, while their government would confine itself to the sole task of safeguarding common rights.

In a decentralist social order, a "right" is not something that the citizen receives at the hands of government. Rights are those things that all citizens are presumed to hold in common and which nobody, not even the government, can take away. In the words of the Declaration, these rights are "unalienable."

The government of a decentralist state would not be allowed to create special privileges. It is even possible that, under sufficient public pressure exerted by a strong decentralist movement, the Supreme Court would have to accept this point of view. In that case, political corruption would also disappear.

A functionally decentralized social order would not come overnight. For the present, education would continue to be under the control of government, but in the name of cultural liberty, parents could, at their option, receive tax refunds to help pay for education in private schools. Similarly, although many special privileges have been created in the past, a decentralist movement could not hope at once to abolish old privileges, but would voice its opposition to the creation of any new ones.

The desirability of a decentralist social order and the fundamental soundness of its socially moral principles, can be universally recognized, and if a popular movement for decentralization were started, it would undoubtedly receive widespread support.

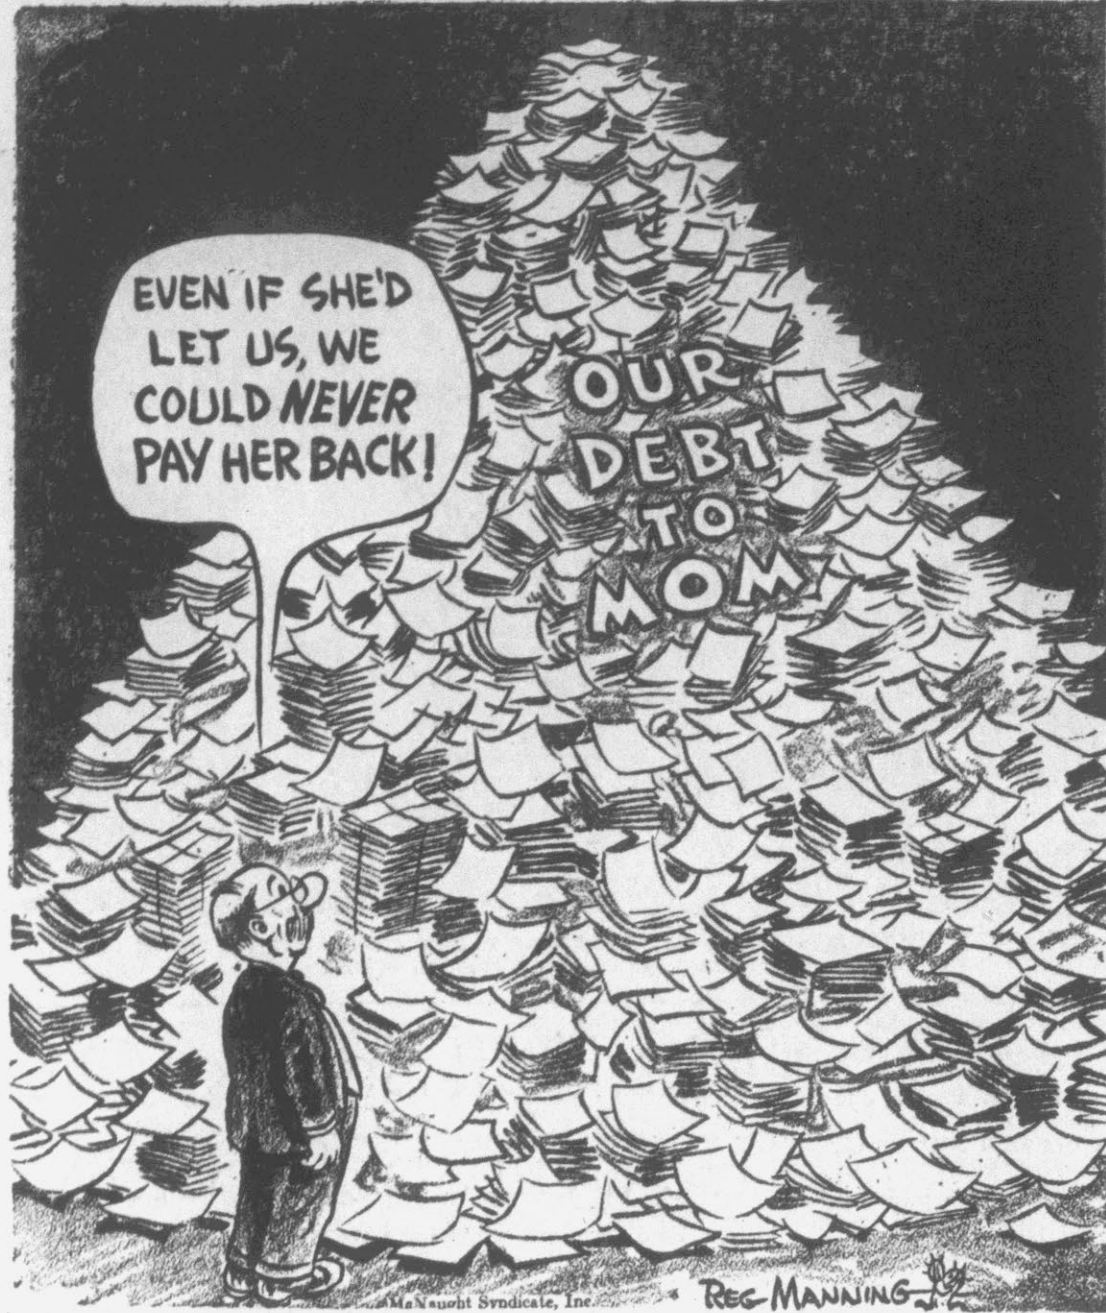

They went over the precipice, Judas Iscariot, for thirty pieces of silver, sold out a man who loved him; and many are those who have scoffed at love and trampled it under foot, that they might gain riches.

Why do we cast away our treasure so recklessly? Why are we so prone to empty our hearts of good and fill them with dross? It's easy to throw happiness away; but happiness thrown away is as hard to pick up as spilled water.

Some people throw happiness away with both hands. They have love, opportunity, fine heredity, good health—the makings of a lack self-control, or have a jealous spirit, or nurse a grudge, or love money too much, they cast all chances of happiness away in exchange for some bauble, some tinsel toy not worth the having.

It very often happens that married couples, because they greatly dislike some little failing in each other, destroy the possibility of deep and abiding happiness. People who have been friends for years sometimes disagree over some petty matter and henceforth are strangers to each other. Many a boy who has had everything under the sun given to him and who should be a great success in life, has cast it away in the pursuit of an aimless life of pleasure. Jealousy has shoved many persons off the road to happy, purposeful living and kept on pushing them until

Something New Is Added

Within minutes after the presses begin to roll a number of freshly-printed Daily Reflectors are carried to the newsroom for quick perusal of the day's product.

This gives the staff an early look at how their stories, pictures and articles fared between the time they left their hands and the time they were printed.

Downstairs in the advertising department, the same process is taking place; though to be honest about it, this is conjecture. I'm never there at that particular hour, being pre-occupied with catching my breath and resting up.

Anyhow, from those early papers there may erupt an anguished cry, an inner glow of satisfaction, a slow burn over an injustice done a piece, or a mental note of some follow-up activity on the morrow.

Among the news staff, writers are wont to re-read their own stories . . . photographers re-examine their pictures . . . editors again scan headlines and story-placement, not only with an eye to catching errors but for guides to future work.

Yesterday the customary pattern changed.

When the papers were brought up, the city editor carried one to an easy chair and turned first to the page with the full-color advertisement. He just sat there and looked for a full minute before turning to the other pages. The women's editor took her paper to her desk, and first turned to the page of color, then to her own pages.

There were "ooohs" and "aaahs" from one end of the room to the other. Writers forgot briefly their day's output and interest was on the "something new" that had been added. Even the composing room crew members took a moment to give the page an appreciative glance in the midst of their labors.

Why all this interest in a printing process that has been around since about the turn of the century?

To begin with, full-color presses are a rarity among small newspapers and are comparatively infrequent among even the newspapers several sizes larger.

In North Carolina, yesterday's full-color ad was the first printed by a newspaper east of Durham; and the Durham paper . . . after installing some new gear carried their first such ad about two weeks ago. The Fayetteville paper is another that has only recently put in some equipment that permitted full-color advertising, which was applied soon afterward. I'm told there are several newspapers in the western part of the state that have carried full-color advertisements.

But aside from being a "first," the really intriguing part of full-color process is the story of delicate precision behind it all.

For yesterday's 12-page edition, the carrying of that one advertisement required three-fourths of the capacity of The Reflector's 32-page press.

Each of the primary colors used (red, yellow and blue) as well as the standard black ink, required a separately engraved plate on the press. Each color plate is minutely graduated to produce the desired blends for the composite effect. More than that, each plate must print precisely over, in, and around the finished product. The sheet of newsprint racing through the press must maintain an ever-constant tension, otherwise the colored print will "crawl" out its intended design.

As on other occasions, this space has today been devoted to "shop talk" which may or may not be of interest to readers. The foregoing account wasn't intended to be a "brag" . . . though it may sound like one. Rather, as long as subscribers and readers are the most important people in newspapers, it seemed to me they should be told about our "new baby" . . . which in the end, is also theirs.

At this end of the party line we're pretty happy about this milestone.

Good Health Brews

By PHILLIS B. EUGANKS

Charleston News & Courier Writer
CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — In the era before antibiotics and miracle-aids to beauty, home remedies prescribed good health and good grooming with equal portions of wit and wisdom — laced with a pinch of witchcraft.

As recently as when the present curent was in its bawling infancy, grandmothers provided inexperienced mothers with old-hand advice and a traditional junior first aid kit containing camphorated oil, paracetamol, a honey and lemon juice cough mixture, and asafetida, a gum resin with a garlic-like odor.

Often, good-natured laughter greeted the cure-alls from grandmother. But often, too, some were secretly tested: a string of amber beads worn next to the baby to ward off colds; mud from a mud-dauber's nest to soothe gums swollen from teething; two straws laid crosswise on the back of the victim to cure hiccoughs; soot mixed with cobwebs to halt bleeding from a cut; a few drops of turpentine on a spoon of sugar to break up a chest cough; and a cloth bag filled with asafetida suspended from the neck to prevent croup (asafetida, smelling so evilly, its properties could probably ward off anybody and anything).

Many of the gems which attested to ancestral fortitude have been long forgotten, but families now and then discover among old books a fascinating volume of "useful hints and receipts." One such was published in New York in 1857 under the intriguing title "Inquire Within — For anything You Want to Know; or Over Three Thousand, Seven Hundred Facts Worth Knowing."

Dauntlessly tackling any problem, the book — among other things — instructed the home dentist in filling teeth: "Take an old silver thimble or coin and with a very fine file convert to filings. Sift through gauze to separate the coarse from fine particles. Take finer portion and mix with sufficient quicksilver to form a stiff amalgam and while in this state fill cavities of decayed teeth."

A sore throat was treated by pouring a pint of boiling water on 25 leaves of common sage. After half an hour, "Add vinegar — enough to make it acid and honey to taste. Gargle several times a day. (One advantage over others — pleasant to taste and may be swallowed occasionally without danger.)"

Beauty "receipts" had men in mind as well as women. A "Pomade Against Baldness" called for "the marrow soaked in several waters, melted and strained — half a pound; one ounce of tincture of cantharides in one ounce of proof spirit; 12 drops of oil of bergamot."

Should this prove ineffective, the suggestion was made to restore hair by "onions rubbed frequently on the part requiring it. The stimulating powers of this vegetable are of service in restoring tone of the skin."

To cultivate "luxurious eyelashes, readers were told "the mode adopted by the beauties of the East to increase the length of eyelashes is simply to clip the split ends with scissors about once a month. Mothers perform this operation on children, male and female, when they are mere infants . . . The practice never fails to produce the desired effect."

Opinions In Brief

"As the offending reports have it, Mr. Macmillan is stealing some of the Labor Party's clothes—that is, some part of its policy on disengagement and negotiations with Russia—because he sees that Labor has a chance of winning. The American administration, in turn, is supporting him for the same reason. So both Mr. Macmillan and the Americans are trying to carry out part of Labor's wants." — Manchester Guardian, Great Britain.

"Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Oré) complains that the Democratic congressional leadership is following Eisenhower. It could be because Ike is President of the United States."

Unless IRS agents find something wrong, the money corporations pay for their share of all this fun would largely be tax deductible.

Herter Doesn't Look For Much

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Christian A. Herter, with small hope and a deliberate diplomatic secretiveness—sets out for the Western foreign ministers meeting with the Soviets at Geneva next Monday.

Thus will begin a series of talks which grew out of Premier Nikita Khrushchev's demand last November that the Big Three Western Allies get their troops out of West Berlin by May 27. If the talks blow up, there may be serious trouble ahead.

It seems too much to hope for any agreements at Geneva. Herter himself said in a radio-television talk to the nation Thursday night:

"I do not go to Geneva with great expectations. Negotiating with the Soviets does not warrant much optimism."

But if the American, British and French foreign ministers can get along with the Soviets at Geneva without vituperation or propaganda, there may be a summit meeting later this year between President Eisenhower and Khrushchev.

Herter explained—but only in the most general terms, leaving details vague—what he and the other Westerners would propose to Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko who is, in effect, only a messenger boy for Khrushchev. But what happens if the Soviets balk? Will the West yield some ground? Perhaps. But it was at this point that Herter deliberately created a diplomatic fog either because the Allies are not agreed on what to yield or because they want to keep the Soviets guessing.

"We will not deviate from our basic principles," Herter said. "But we are willing to negotiate about their applications, provided that concessions from us are matched by equivalent concessions from the Soviet Union."

Such concessions already have gained the diplomatic description of "fall-back positions" if the Soviets won't buy the initial demands but show signs of talking business. If the West yields on some points.

One of the unhappy features of this meeting—before it starts—is the possibility, much speculated upon recently, that the Allies may be fairly well agreed on their initial demands but not at all on concessions they might make.

For this reason, the Soviets may try to split the Allies with proposals of their own. The Western proposals were agreed on by the American, British, French and West German foreign ministers last week in Paris.

Because the Westerners hope the talks with the Soviets at Geneva would be as Herter put it, "business-like and not a propaganda exercise, the Western foreign ministers didn't and Herter didn't reveal their proposals in detail.

He said they would lay it down for the Soviets at Geneva. He outlined this much—hardly a revelation, since it already had leaked out of what the west would suggest to Gromyko: 1. Reunification of Germany, with the understanding it would not be done suddenly but would take time to work out.

2. Then some kind of arms control in Central Europe but not by itself since each step in this kind of program would have to be linked with a similar forward step in the reunification of Germany.

3. And finally a free Berlin. But until the other two programs were carried out the Allies would insist on their rights in Berlin. But when Germany was unified Berlin could be considered free since it would be the capital of a reunited Germany.

This kind of program would take years to work out. It's been called a package deal. It's unlikely the Soviets will buy it. What they have demanded is that the Allies get their troops out of Berlin and sign a peace treaty with East Germany.

Khrushchev has already made it clear he wants no part of a unification plan that might deprive Communism of East Germany. It's a foregone conclusion the West won't buy any unification that lets Communism swallow West Germany.

In short, the most it seems reasonable to expect from this Geneva meeting is talk. If this meeting goes well, it may be the beginning of many other long-drawn-out talks. But if these initial Geneva talks blow up, hold your hat.

Things in this world may get ugly.

DON'T THROW HAPPINESS AWAY

Some people throw happiness away with both hands. Several years ago the head of the Socialist party in the United States said much of its long-term program had been adopted by the major political parties. Presumably, if a Socialistic idea becomes part of the national Democratic or Republican platform, it loses its Socialistic label. —Lumberton-Robesonian.

Lollipops To Replace Pay Boosts

By ELMER ROESSNER

The high rate of tax on earned income is having still more curious effects on the American economy.

Because of the almost confiscatory rates on upper-bracket salaries, top executives find plain old inflated money not much of an incentive. So corporations offer stock options, inspection trips to far-away places and other lollipops to talented executives.

The Miami and Los Angeles branches have become an open joke in corporation suites. Many such branches are maintained at losses solely so that top-echelon officers can take turns running them. On such temporary duty they may take wives and families, dig in at a luxury hotel and use fat expense accounts to entertain executives of other companies similarly having tax-free vacations. A few companies have such branches in Paris and other play spots.

Some of these disguised vacations have become so notorious that the Internal Revenue Service has announced it is checking expenditures for them. So far nobody has gone to jail because of them.

The large number of people with company money to spend on business excursions is affecting the construction of hotels, motels and other travel facilities. Why build places for budget travelers when there's such a demand from expense-account travelers?

The newsletter of the National Association of Travel Organizations says, "The cost of travel is the one grave danger. It could become prohibitive for the average man, who constitutes the mass market. The warning signs are out. Too many of the new travel facilities are being built for the man with an unlimited expense account and the relatively few people who need not count the cost."

A TAX COLONY

A new project is attracting the attention of corporations who want to lavish tax-free attention on their executives and tax-deductible hospitality for customers and prospects.

The Ringwood Country Club, which is on a 500-acre tract at Ringwood, N.J., is offering to erect twenty $100,000 houses on ten-acre estates and lease them to corporations as "hospitality houses," where important customers could be entertained or jaded executives restored. The space has today been devoted to "shop talk" which may or may not be of interest to readers. The foregoing account wasn't intended to be a "brag" . . . though it may sound like one. Bill Woodhouse was taking quite a "ribbing" about the snide remark made by the announcer when he introduced the Abilene Christian College sprint star as one of the starters in the invitational 100-yard dash in the Penn. Relays.

"Woodhouse has been credited with some sensational times—with the wind!" The reference was, of course, to Bill's 09.1 in the 100-yard dash and 19.1 in the 220 in a recent quadrangle meet at Abilene, Tex.

"Everyone knows that Bill can run like the wind," remarked a teammate who then added, in mock defense, "everyone knows the wind never blows very hard in Texas. Besides, how much could any wind help a chunky little fellow like Bill who runs so close to the ground?"

Even the thick glasses he wears couldn't hide the twinkle in Woodhouse's eyes as he feigned a slight hurt. He'd have his running, that you could expect. Especially, when one recalled that Coach Oliver Jackson had remarked that Bill's capers kept his teammates loose and relaxed when tension threatened to mount. Bobby Morrow, Abilene's double Olympic sprint champion, was often driven to near distraction by Bill's good natured bars.

"Morrow was my idol when I was in high school," said Woodhouse by way of explaining how a boy from Mason City, Iowa, happened to wind up going to Abilene. "I figured it would be better to run with a great sprinter than to compete against him. Besides, running with the best in the world had to bring out whatever sprinting talent I had."

"I hadn't heard of Woodhouse when I received his letter saying that he would like to come to Abilene Christian," confirmed Coach Jackson, "so I checked on him with some of the coaches in his section. When I learned he was just about the finest schoolboy sprinter in his neck of the woods, I welcomed him with open arms. And am I glad I did!"

Winterville Wins Against Gatesville

Winterville moved a step closer to a shot at the Class A state championship yesterday afternoon as the Wolves downed Gatesville, 10-1, behind the three-hit pitching of Boyce Cox.

The senior southpaw allowed only three hits and struck out five in recording his fourth win of the season against no defeats.

The Pitt County representative opened the scoring with a run in the third and two in the fourth, but it took a five-run outburst in the sixth frame to sew up the game.

The winners bunched three singles and three Gatesville errors for their big uprising. Paul Castellow and Wilton McLawhorn had the big blows as they slapped a couple of singles, both driving in two runs. Richard Gorman had the other hit of the inning as he led off with a base knock.

Cox was in trouble several times but was able to come through in the clutch each time. He scattered the three hits among the Gatesville batters and their only score came in the sixth inning when they bunched two of the singles for a run.

Three Gatesville batters reached base by walks but all were in the same inning and Cox retired the side before allowing a run.

Freshman Paul Castellow and sophomore John Worthington led the winners at the plate with two hits each.

Coach Blaney Moye's club will advance into rougher competition next week but their next foe was uncertain. "I believe it will be Hartford but am not positive right now," cited Moye this morning.

Hartford got a perfect pitched game from Pete Hunter yesterday to advance with a 2-0 win over Camden.

CHICAGO (AP)—The executive structure of the Chicago White Sox underwent a major change Friday with the election of Bill Veeck, majority stock holder, as president. Chuck Comiskey, who owns 46 per cent of the club, was named executive vice president. Hank Greenberg, former major league baseball star, was named vice president. Veeck becomes the club's first president since Mrs. Grace Comiskey who died Dec. 10, 1956.

Placed In Meet

RALEIGH — Wilbert Owens and Charles Taft earned the right to compete in the state track meet next week as they placed in the low and high hurdles in the district meet held yesterday afternoon.

Greenville was able to gain a tie for sixth place in the meet which featured 33 track teams from this district. Raleigh, Durham, and New Bern finished as the top three clubs.

Both Owens and Taft competed in the hurdles. Owens took third place in the low hurdles and Taft had a fourth place in the high hurdles.

The two Rose High stars will journey to Raleigh next Friday for the state meet.

Silky Sullivan Again In Action

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP)—Silky Sullivan, bless his handsome hide, is back to torment and perhaps delight his loyal admirers.

The golden chestnut came back to the races Friday and won.

It was Silky's first serious work since he disgraced himself by running sixth at Santa Anita last New Year's Day.

You'll recall he had let his backers down in shameful fashion in the 1958 Kentucky Derby and the Preakness.

But Friday, in true heart-throb manner, Silky came from some 15 lengths off the pace in a 6-furlong sprint to win the $7,500 Boy Campanella Purse at Hollywood Park in 1:09 1-5.

Campanella, the paralyzed paralyzed Dodge car, greeted Silky in the winner's circle. Roy confided he had bet $2 on another horse but was glad Silky won.

He and Silky have a lot in common in comebacks. Campy is lucky to be alive after the automobile accident that ended his brilliant career.

Trainer Reggie Cornell must have had a long talk with Silky, maybe about his diet. Silky, now a slim, trim beauty, must have been trained off some 200 pounds from his 3-year-old days.

And the way he stormed down the middle of the track, flying past horses, was a caution.

His legs, which put him out of action, apparently held up well.

Cornell said he'll continue tub treatments, however, and will decide later when Silky performs again at the meeting.

One-Stroke Lead By Mary Faulk

SOUTHERN PINES, N.C. (AP)—Mary Lena Faulk of Thomasville, Ga., held a one-stroke lead today as the field of the first Southern Pines Invitation Golf Tournament started the second round.

The former U.S. amateur champ blazed around the 6,424-yard Mid Pines course with a 68, four under par, as play in the women's 54-hole tournament opened Friday.

At Mary Lena's heels were Joyce Zinke of Milwaukee, Wis., and Marilyn Smith of Wichita, Kan., each with 69. Beverly Hanson of Indian, Calif.; Joanne Prentice of Birmingham, Ala.; and Fay Crocker of Montivideo Uruguay, followed with 72.

The inaugural event, worth $6,000, ends Sunday. The field includes 42 pros and several selected amateurs.

Elon Dealt Setback En Route To ECC Game

A split in a doubleheader yesterday with Atlantic Christian sent the Elon Christians to Greenville in need of a victory to stay in the North State race.

ACC proved to be a good neighbor Friday by knocking off the defending champions, but Coach Jack Sanford and his crew still have a breath of life left although East Carolina will be out to smother the dim glow tonight.

The Pirates and Christians, leaders in the North State race, clash at Guy Smith Stadium tonight before an expected overflow crowd.

College View Laundry is sponsoring the game and tickets are free. They may be picked up at either of the plants or from any of the drivers.

Coach Jim Mallory stated last night that he was real optimistic over his club's chances for a victory and would go with his star southpaw Larry Crayton (5-1).

Sanford commented that a win was needed badly but was unsure as to who would be his starter. Gilbert Watts, the Christian ace, pitched a 7-1 win yesterday and was a doubtful starter tonight.

Mallory was expected to juggle his lineup to replace Gary Pierce, the club's top batter. Pierce has been swatting the ball at a .417 pace but glandular fever may put him on the sidelines tonight.

The football gridders was to have a check-up this morning but from all reports it was doubtful that ECC would have his services. Charles Johnson, a converted catcher, is expected to take Pierce's left field post.

Other than Pierce, the Bucs appear in good condition and Mallory will have all his pitching crew ready if necessary. East Carolina has been idle since their ninth inning 1-0 victory over Catawba last Saturday night. The Pirates head into the game, which could wrap things up, with a 10-0 conference record and a 12-3 overall mark. Elon is 20-6 for the season and 11-3 in conference play.

East Carolina will have three more home games remaining next week as they take on Guilford and Appalachian twice to wind up their regular season play. All three games will be played under the lights at Guy Smith Stadium.

The game will present college baseball at its best and starting time will be at 8:00.

Probable starting lineup for East Carolina:

Wally Cockrell, cf (.312)
Jerry Carpenter, rf (.309)
Al Vaughn, 2b (.189)
Glenn Bass, ss (.285)
Larry Crayton, p (5-1)
Charles Johnson (238)
Hubert Castelow, 3b (.333)
Doug Watts, c (.250)
Al Vaughn, 2b (.189)
Glenn Bass, ss (.285)
Larry Crayton, p (5-1)

Cincinnati At Last Seems Catching Up With Braves

By ED WILKS

Associated Press Sports Writer

It begins to look as if the Cincinnati Reds are at last catching up with the Milwaukee Braves.

The Braves have beaten a path to a pair of National League pennants by trampling the Reds the past two years. In 1957, Milwaukee won 18 of its 22 games with Cincinnati. Last season it was 17 of 22.

Now the Reds have taken three of five decisions this season, winning three in a row from the Braves for the first time since 1956. And they've done it the hard way—beating Warren Spahn and Lew Burdette.

They junked Burdette's winning string at nine-five this season—with a 3-2 victory at Milwaukee Friday night that gained a virtual first place tie with the Braves.

Going into today's game—another run-in with Spahn—the Reds are second by a mere .009 percentage point margin.

San Francisco also closed in, replacing Los Angeles in third, by a half-game behind the leaders, by whipping the Dodgers 9-3. The Chicago Cubs are ½ game back after a 10-inning, 3-2 victory at St. Louis. Philadelphia regained a sixth-place tie with Pittsburgh by beating the Pirates 8-1.

In the American League, Rocky Colavito got two of Cleveland's three hits, one a two-run homer, as the Indians upped their lead to three games with a 3-1 victory over the Chicago White Sox. Boston's Frank Sullivan beat Baltimore 5-0 and Detroit scored three in the ninth for a 5-4 decision over Kansas City in the only other game scheduled.

Burdette, who had won 10 straight in Milwaukee's County Stadium since last July, gave up four of the Reds' seven hits and all of their runs in the first inning. A two-run double by Frank Robinson and a triple by Frank Thomas did the damage.

The Braves had 11 hits, but didn't break through against Brooks Lawrence (3-1) until the eighth inning, when Ed Mathews and Frank Torre homered. Lawrence, collecting only his second complete game since blanking the Braves 1-0 last July 2, finally put it away by fanning Mathews, the major league leader with his 10 home runs, with two men on base in the ninth.

Southpaw Johnny Antonelli, who had lost two in a row, won his fourth for the Giants after giving up the Dodger runs on five hits in the second inning. He blanked them on five hits the rest of the way. Daryl Spencer was 4-for-4 and drove in three runs for the Giants, who chased Danny McDewitt (1-1) in a three-run sixth for a 4-3 lead. Willie Mays and Jackie Brandt added solo homers in the eighth.

Randy Jackson, just returned to the club by way of a trade with Cleveland, tripled in the 10th after a two-out single by winning reliever Bill Henry (3-1). Jackson, who last played for the Cubs in 1955, also was credited with the tying run when he got a bases-loaded walk as a pinch-hitter in the eighth.

Jim Brosnan (0-3) was the loser in relief for the Cards, who were shut out after the third. Henry, who replaced Bob Anderson in the eighth, allowed two hits and struck out five. It was the Cardinals' eighth consecutive one-run decision. They've lost five of them.

Gene Conley, the ex-Brave, gained his first victory since 1957 in his first start for the Phils. He had to leave in the ninth, however, when a line drive by Smokey Burgess nicked a pitching-hand finger. George Witt (0-4) lost it, giving way in a three-run fourth.

Golfing Crown

WASHINGTON—Buddy Murray of Greenville shot a 76 yesterday afternoon in the Northeastern AA Conference Tournament to top medalist honors and spur Rose High to the golfing crown.

Greenville swept first place with a score of 317. New Bern finished second with 344. Other schools entered were Washington, Jacksonville, Roanoke Rapids, and Elizabeth City.

Dallas Clark of Greenville finished second with a 78 and Bill Sultz of New Bern was third with a 79.

Skip Wright and Choppy Bradner completed the scoring for Greenville with scores of 80 and 83, respectively.

Screams, Wails In Chavez Ravine

LOS ANGELES (AP)—There was no joy in Chavez Ravine today — just the sound of bulldozers clearing the site for the Los Angeles Dodgers' new ballpark.

Fifteen residents were evicted from three condemned homes amid screaming, crying and cursing Friday.

"Why don't they play ball in (mayor) Poulson's backyard—out in ours!" Mrs. Abrana Arechiga, 63, shouted in Spanish at 14 sherriff's deputies.

Poulson supported the stadium deal.

The mayor's office said the home was condemned years ago, before the Dodgers came to town. The land was taken under eminent domain powers as a site for a housing development which never came about. The sale to the Dodgers came after the housing plan had been scrapped.

RAIN NEEDED
ANADARKO, Okla. (AP)—Firemen said they didn't know the town needed rain so badly. A storm sower caught fire and they were called to put it out. Paper blown into the sewer had ignited.

Phillies Aim At Early Trades

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The baseball world is buzzing with Philadelphia Phillies' trade talk.

General Manager John Quinn of the Phillies, who is making an extended road trip with the club, says he has several irons in the fire.

"We have made propositions to several clubs and we are now waiting to hear from them," Quinn said Friday.

Some observers felt a trade was imminent because when the club left Philadelphia Thursday to open a five-game series with the Pittsburgh Pirates the players were given meal money for only three days instead of the customary week or more.

NO SALE
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—As Jack Brodsky approached the Honky Tonk Tavern here, a man informed him: "Sorry, buddy, we're closed."

Brodsky called police and they later picked up the man and a companion for investigation of burglary. Brodsky owns the tavern.

Tar Heels Sweep Seventh Straight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Some one must have given North Carolina's Tar Heels a hot foot two weeks ago. Whatever it was, it propelled the Tar Heels to seven straight victories and landed them atop the Atlantic Coast Conference baseball standings.

How long they will remain on top depended upon today's games which could see Wake Forest play leap frog over second place Clemson and back into first.

Wake Forest, which started Friday's games in first place at 7-3, dropped a 9-5 decision to Maryland. Meanwhile, North Carolina defeated Virginia 5-2 and Clemson strengthened its hold on second with a 10-1 drubbing of South Carolina.

Today's schedule sent Maryland to North Carolina, Virginia to Wake Forest in a night game, and North Carolina State to Duke in a game that does not count in the ACC standings.

A North Carolina loss coupled with a Wake Forest victory would send the Deacons back into first. Ben Hammett hurled the North Carolina victory, his fifth against one defeat. Russ Hollers and Ferg Norton drove in all of the Tar Heel runs. Hollers singled and then hit a solo home run in the sixth. Norton smacked a two-run homer in the eighth.

Maryland ace Dick Reitz went the distance, scattering 10 hits to Wake Forest. He stretched his record to 7-2. The Tarps touched three Wake Forest hurlers for 13 hits, including a homer by catcher Phil Rodgers who also collected a single and a double.

Clemson used two pitchers, Bailey Hendley and Harold Stowe, who limited South Carolina to only two hits. Clemson collected 12 hits off three Gamecock pitchers, including a homer by Lou Cordileone.

Ted Advises Hurlers To Beware Of Inside Toss

BOSTON (AP)—Ted Williams, baseball's keenest student of such matters, has some advice for pitchers—Beware the inside toss.

"Pitchers should watch games closely on television," the 40-year-old Boston star said today after a Fenway Park workout. "They'd soon learn the inside pitches are the ones that hurt them."

Sidelined since late March due to a neck and shoulder ailment, the defending American League batting champion is going through a conditioning program expected to return him to action Tuesday.

"The pitch from the middle of the plate in to the batter is the one that kills them nine out of 10 times," Ted said.

"I've been saying it all along but invariably the pitchers have an argument against it. Now I know I'm right. Nine out of 10 times the batter creams the inside pitch."

Williams explained that while he was recuperating he watched baseball closely on TV.

"The pitch away from the batter proves the safest in the book," he said.

"Sure the real good hitter can protect against the outside pitch. But I say let the good batter protect it. That's the pitch he'll hit for only a single. At most he might get a double on it."

"But there is no home run on the outside pitch."

"Say, what am I giving out this information for? I'm a hitter. These pitchers should find out things for themselves."

Greensboro Won 2 Over Raleigh

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The explosive Greensboro Yankees left Raleigh and headed for home today, much to the pleasure of the Carolina League's embattled Raleigh Capitals.

In two nights, Greensboro walked off with everything but the Executive Mansion. Thursday night the Yanks clobbered the Caps 10-1 on a two-hitter and Friday night they overcame a 10-1 Raleigh lead for a 12-11 triumph in 11 innings.

As a result the Yanks moved into third place behind league-leading Winston-Salem and Winston-Salem defeated Durham 5-3 and Wilson topped Durham 3-2 in other Friday night activity.

Winston-Salem engineered a two-game sweep of Burlington before 3,483 home town fans. A brilliant relief job by Jim Turk saved Gary Willson's first victory of the season.

An outfield error provided Wilson with his winning run over Durham in the fourth inning.

Tonight's action finds Durham at Greensboro, Burlington at Winston-Salem and Raleigh at Winston-Salem.

The Other Day

A friend was telling us some interesting things about habit . . . the tendency of all things in nature to settle into fixed ways of doing things. It seems that in addition to the invariable pattern of everything in the universe, the habit of doing things always in the same way reaches down to the smallest ideas and things we know and do. For example, all trees of one species grow in a definite form, such as the elm has the habit of spreading. All cud-chewing animals, such as cows, camels, goats, deer, etc., always rise rear end first, while all our four-footed friends get up front end first. (And my friend says that mama cow doesn't have to admonish each calf with "now remember dear, always get up rear end first.")

Most of us, as another example, always put on a coat right arm first. If you don't think so, try putting on your coat left arm first. Such habits have nothing to do with conscious thoughts. But that's where we humans add something else. Besides unconscious habit we form habits that are the product of our thinking, and they are the ones that can be good or bad.

Thank goodness, in our business everyone tries to put good habits to work for you, and we really try to stamp out a bad action before it can become a habit. If you ever see us starting a bad one, please tell us about it at once.

From Coast To Coast They Raised A Toast To Harry

NEW YORK (AP)—The nation saluted Harry S. Truman on his 75th birthday Friday night.

It was a coast-to-coast party where the fast-stepping little man from Missouri heard himself described as a man who grew to greatness.

The tributes came from Democrats and Republicans, liberals and conservatives, the great, the not-great, friends, family and old rivals. There was song and laughter, and Truman himself almost lost his glasses laughing at comedian Mort Sahl.

When it was all over, the usually voluble Truman admitted he was at a loss for words. "I don't know what there is to say," he said. "No man in my recollection has had a treat such as you have given me tonight. I can't talk politics under circumstances like this. I will always remember."

Then he smiled as he admitted that he might "take a hand in 1960. It's in my blood. I can't help it." He didn't elaborate.

His birthday party was marked by 66 parties in cities across the country. Sixteen of them were linked by closed-circuit television. Here in New York, House Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Tex.) told him "Harry, history is going to be kind to you. They are going to forget the few times that you have not taken dead aim, but have shot from the hip. They are going to remember you for the great things you have done."

One of the most dramatic moments came when Eleanor Roosevelt described the April day in 1945 when she told Vice President Truman that President Roosevelt was dead. Of Truman she said: "The character of my friend was proved on that terrible day. He was frightened—as he should have been. For no man had ever been placed so abruptly in such a seat of responsibility.

"And yet there was never in him the slightest hint that he would try to evade what fate had thrust upon him. I knew then he was a good man. Later I thrilled to watch him grow to greatness. With every decision he grew, until to the entire world he was a towering figure."

In Chicago Adlai Stevenson urged Democrats to remember "that we will continue to serve our nation only if we remain as perpetually young and hopeful, as open to new ideas, and as eager for new initiatives as faithful and as fearless as modest and as proud, above all, as human and as free as Harry Truman."

New York's former Gov. Averell Harriman said Truman's decisions influenced the course of history. Senate Majority Leader Lyndon Johnson (D-Tex.) speaking from Boston, said "to no man living is so much owed by so many."

Building World Of Tomorrow

Members of Pitt County's 21 Home Demonstration Clubs this week joined other Home Demonstration Club members throughout the nation in observance of the 14th annual National Home Demonstration Week.

The week has been spent in a concerted effort to acquaint non-club members and the general public with the year-round educational program for nearly 63,000 homemakers in the United States. It has also served as a time to recognize and honor volunteer leaders on state and local levels.

Local activities have included special participation, as a group, in church programs, preparation of articles and programs for newspapers, radio and television, and community visitations to extend knowledge of services available to all homemakers through Home Demonstration Club work.

The visitation program has been conducted with the goal of visiting each family in areas served by local Home Demonstration Clubs. Efforts were made to point out services rendered through the program, including information about foods and nutrition, home management, family relations, clothing, and home beautification.

Persons contacted during the visitations, with regular club members, were guests at an open house yesterday. The open house climaxed observance of Home Demonstration Week in Pitt County.

Much of the information distributed to local clubs is in demonstrations conducted at monthly meetings of each club. Local club leaders, who attend special leader-training sessions, and representatives of the Home Agent's office prepare the demonstrations and participate in their presentation.

One of the demonstrations presented this month had special significance in that it was the first for the recently organized Oak Grove Club, which serves an area near Stokes. Mrs. Roy Edwards of the Simpson Club was visiting leader, appearing with Mrs. Sue May, Home Agent, who outlined club work at the meeting.

Through Home Demonstration work, club members have an opportunity to share experiences, expand their knowledge of home-making and strengthen community relationships. Their efforts have been aimed, particularly, at those areas during the past week.

It is through such efforts, they feel, that they find a realization in the motto of Home Demonstration programs everywhere, "Today's Home Builds Tomorrow's World".

In Real Trouble Over His Double

NEW YORK (AP) — The two men matched each other in height, weight, and even to a walrus-type moustache. That's what got Samuel Woods into plenty of trouble.

Woods, 26, who already had two robbery offenses against him, was picked up last November for holding up netting $2,000 from two Long Island City, Queens, finance companies.

Woods denied the robberies. But four witnesses identified him. A jury convicted him and — as a third offense — he faced many years behind bars.

Earlier this week, Detectives Martin Dillon and John Uknes visited Woods in his jail cell. They told him his sentence would be lighter if he named his accomplice in the Long Island City stickups.

Woods got down on his knees. He wept. He said he was not guilty. He begged the detectives to help him. Impressed, they inspected his gallery photos and found a dead ringer for Woods, even to the walrus moustache. The double is Ralph Rivera, also 26, awaiting trial in Manhattan City Prison on a robbery charge.

Rivera confronted by the detectives, readily admitted the finance company holdups. When he and Woods met, Rivera said, "I'm sorry I got you in trouble."

Woods, paroled Friday pending dismissal of the robbery charges, told Judge Edward Thompson: "I always said I was innocent. I want to thank the two policemen for helping me prove it."

Airman Dies In Mid-Air Crash

SHAW AIR FORCE BASE, S.C. (AP) — One airman was killed and five others escaped injury near here Friday when two Air Force jet bombers collided.

One plane crashed in flames, carrying its navigator, Capt. Julian T. Stewart, 32, of Miami, Fla., to his death. The other limped back to base, its fuselage severely damaged.

Three RB66 twinjet reconnaissance bombers were practicing formation routines at 11,500 feet. Eyewitnesses said a wing of the bomber which crashed collided with the undercarriage of one of the other bombers.

Two crewmen ejected themselves as the plane caught fire and plunged toward the ground. Capt. R. E. Woodworth of Fort Bragg, Calif., the pilot, and Capt. J. F. Young of Lyon, Kan., the co-pilot, parachuted to safety.

The third plane, with a crew of three unhurt, landed at the base but its landing gear and undercarriage were badly damaged.

JAILERS LOCKED IN THE JAIL. — Guards Sam Burnett and John Conley peep out of a cell in the Knox County Jail at Knoxville, Tenn., in which they were locked by escaping prisoner Ray Caughon. A locksmith freed the guards two hours after Caughon held them at pistol point, took their keys, locked them in the cell, and fled. It was Caughon's seventh escape in 17 years. (AP Wirephoto)

Pegler Obtains Wedding License

NEW YORK (AP) — Westbrook Pegler, 65, newspaper columnist, and Pearl W. Doane, 47, got a marriage license Friday.

They said they would be married next Monday in the Park Avenue apartment of Dr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Case, mutual friends.

Pegler makes his home at Tucson, Ariz. Mrs. Doane has a residence in New York City.

Pegler's first wife, the former Julia Harpman, died in 1955. Mrs. Doane was married twice previously, both marriages ending in divorce. She was divorced in 1933 from Ernest Rue at Muskogee, Okla., and in 1953 at Glendale, Calif., from James Doane, an actor's agent.

Airman first class Ernest A. Cherry made the 5000th "live" parachute jump for the 6511th Test Group (Parachute) at the Auxiliary Air Station, El Centro, Calif.

The jump was made April 20 of this year from a C-119 aircraft at an altitude of approximately 10,000 feet. Airman Cherry delayed opening his parachute for 30 seconds during which time he dropped about 4,000 feet. To make the jump more dramatic, he carried 2 red flares during his free fall.

Cherry came into the Air Force in December of 1954 and has served as a parachute rigger ever since. He became a test jumper on May 8, 1958 and has, to date, accomplished 104 jumps.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cherry, of 610A Clark Street, Greenville.

DeGaulle Peace Not To Be Seen In Algerian City

CONSTANTINE, Algeria (AP) — There is no sign in this tense, heavily patrolled city of the Algerian peace that French President De Gaulle says is in sight.

Mobs of French and Algerian youths clashed in Constantine's streets on two days this week, and more trouble is feared. Young French rioters have demanded the firing squad for De Gaulle, who was their hero a year ago.

The hope for peace seems equally dim when one talks with Algerian rebel leaders in neighboring Tunisia, the rebels' chief training and supply base.

The Algerians vow to continue their 4½-year war for independence from France. Their organization appears to be getting stronger.

Recent talks with leaders of the Nationalists indicate they have abandoned hope that Western pressure will force France to make a peace suitable to the rebels. They appear ready to take arms and assistance from the Communist bloc.

Premier Ferhat Abbas and Information Minister Mohammed Yezid of the Cairo-based Algerian government hint that they would back down from demands for full independence and be content with internal autonomy. But the French minority in Algeria probably would rise up at even that concession.

So the war has gone on. The French command in Algeria has announced that 911 Algerians and 55 Frenchmen were killed in operations last week.

De Gaulle in a speech at Bourges, France, Thursday declared:

"Without setting a date, without making any promises and without presumptuousness, I say here with full knowledge of the facts, that the day is in sight when Algeria will be pacified."

He did not amplify this. Three years ago similar statements were being made by Robert Lacoste, the resident minister for Algeria. The war has not abated noticeably since.

In Constantine, rolls of barbed wire are stacked at corners, ready to close off streets for a manhunt at a moment's notice. Jeeps with machine guns stand by.

Paratroopers with tommyguns patrol everywhere. Traffic policemen carry submachineguns. The French never have been able to establish complete control around this old city of 120,000 since the rebellion broke out 4½ years ago.

Beach Closed By Fear Of Sharks

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — This city closed its beaches to swimming Friday in fear of sharks although scientists expressed belief a fatal attack such as that Thursday on a college student probably wouldn't happen again in 100 years.

Eighteen-year-old Albert Kogler died Thursday night of massive wounds after a huge white killer shark attacked him 50 yards off shore. His companion, Shirley O'Neill, 18, swam to his rescue and towed him to the beach.

Swimming at most beaches here along has been prohibited, chiefly because of the strong undertows.

W. I. Follett, curator of ichthyology at the California Academy of Sciences, said man-eating sharks are not uncommon along the West Coast. But he said they seldom appear so close to shore.

Kogler was the third swimmer attacked by white sharks in recent years. Barry Wilson, 17, was killed Dec. 7, 1952 and James Jacobs, 19, was bitten on the foot Feb. 6, 1955. Both were swimming in Monterey Bay—warmer water about 100 miles south of San Francisco.

Miss O'Neill, who is being recommended by Mayor George Christopher for the Carnegie Medal for Heroism, bent over Kogler's mangled body on the beach Thursday and prayed aloud with him until he was unconscious.

The girl is a Catholic. Young Kogler was non-Catholic but had not joined a particular denomination.

Russian Nuclear Ship Is Tested

LONDON (AP) — Engines of the Soviet atomic-powered ice-breaker Lenin have been successfully tested and the vessel is almost ready for launching, Moscow radio said today.

The 16,000-ton icebreaker carries three atomic reactors. "The engines, using electricity produced by atomic power, will have 44,000 horse power — twice as powerful as those of the biggest American icebreaker," the broadcast said.

The jump was made April 20 of this year from a C-119 aircraft at an altitude of approximately 10,000 feet. Airman Cherry delayed opening his parachute for 30 seconds during which time he dropped about 4,000 feet. To make the jump more dramatic, he carried 2 red flares during his free fall.

Cherry came into the Air Force in December of 1954 and has served as a parachute rigger ever since. He became a test jumper on May 8, 1958 and has, to date, accomplished 104 jumps.

Demonstration Slated Thursday

A sweet potato transplanting demonstration is to be held on the A. D. McArthur farm Thursday at 2 p.m., County Agent S. C. Winchester said today.

The farm is located midway between Bell Arthur and U.S. 264, leaving U.S. 264 on the black top road just west of Piney Grove Church.

"This demonstration is being held as a part of an effort to show that 300 bushels of U.S. No. 1 top quality sweet potatoes can be produced on an acre of land profitably," Winchester said. "Top yields of sweet potatoes are very profitable to the producer, whereas average or low yields leave only a small net income."

MONEY-MAKING TUNE

ELKHART, Ind. (AP) — Officials of a musical instrument firm estimate that 370,000 band instruments were placed into the hands of musicians last year.

Clarinets were the most popular with 135,000, and flutes were a runner-up with 45,000.

Another Postal Rate Increase Now Requested

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Eisenhower administration has asked Congress for another one-cent increase in first-class letter and airmail postage.

If approved, the proposal would boost postage on a first-class letter to 5 cents and on airmail to eight cents.

Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield estimated such an increase would bring in an additional 355 million dollars a year. The current operating deficit of the Post Office Department is estimated at more than 500 million dollars a year.

In his budget message to Congress in January, President Eisenhower indicated he would ask for higher rates to help balance the Post Office Department books. Many congressional Democrats predicted at the time there wasn't much chance for further postal increases.

A NEW MYSTERY The COUNT of 9 by A. A. FAIR

(Eric Stanley Gardner)

CHAPTER 28

Sergeant Frank Sellers pulled a cigar out of his pocket, twisted it with his teeth, spat the little gob of tobacco on the floor, lit the cigar and acted like a man preparing to enjoy a good show. "Go ahead, Pint Size," he said. "Start talking and it had better be true."

"I don't have anything to talk about," I said.

"Now look," Inspector Giddings said, "we've got lots of ways of making people talk, and we don't have to do any brainwashing, either. We put pressure on you, Donald, my boy. We put the pressure on you right up and down the line. You can't make a living in this town if the police are against you, and if you're smart, you know that."

"He's smart," Sellers said. And then after a moment, added, "But tricky, awfully tricky." "You've never lost anything tagging along with me," I told Sellers. "Well, no," he admitted, puffing thoughtfully at his cigar. "I can't say I have, but I don't think that would have been true if I'd sat back and waited for you to deal the hand the way you wanted it. After you get the cards shuffled, I've taken the deck out of your hand and done the dealing myself."

"All right," I told him, "I'm still shuffling. When I'm ready for the deal, you can take the cards."

Giddings shook his head. "No, we don't like that, Donald. Maybe Sellers has confidence in you, but I haven't. I'm a skeptic. I don't trust anybody."

"You can say that again," Sellers said. "You can't stall around with Thad Giddings. Donald, you'd better start decorating the mahogany."

"Otherwise?" I asked.

Sellers made noises with his tongue against the roof of his mouth, the sort of rebuke that an indulgent mother gives to a small child.

"Begin at the beginning," Giddings said.

At length I said, "It all starts with a model who poses for artists and photographers."

"You're not referring to our little friend, Sylvia Hadley, the babe who was posing for Mrs. Crockett the afternoon her husband got bumped off, are you?"

"That's the one."

"What do you know?" Sellers said, and turned to Giddings.

"That's one thing about Donald. He gets around with the babes. If there's a babe in the picture, she starts unloading on his shoulder, and Donald's really good at taking it from there. I've seen it happen a dozen times."

"Go on," Giddings said. "What about Sylvia Hadley?"

I said, "I think she's some kind of a fence."

"A fence? That babe?" I nodded. "She's been going with an older man, a man by the name of Mortimer Jasper, who's some kind of a collector and — well, it stands to reason, she wouldn't have any interest in him, that is, any real romantic interest — he's doing something for her."

"What?" Giddings asked.

"I think he's supplying her with — well, it's just a hunch, but I think he supplies her with information about the value of things, and I think Sylvia picks them up and then gets rid of them."

Giddings looked at Sellers and said, "How dumb can a guy get?"

"Shut up, Thad," Sellers said, his eyes boring into mine. "Go ahead, what's the pitch, Donald? You've got a reason for thinking this. What gives it to you?"

"Well," I said, "I tried to follow it up, that's all. I went out to call on Jasper and ask some discreet questions. I never even got in to see the guy. When I stopped the car and started to get out, a couple of goons came out and made me drive to a vacant lot. Then the guys beat the tar out of me."

"You think there was some connection between Jasper and these two goons?" Sellers asked.

"No," I told him. "Get it straight, I think this Jane, Sylvia Hadley, had these two strongarm men follow me to see where I was going. When they saw I was getting hot on the trail, they worked me over. The idea was to keep me out of circulation for a while."

"Did they take anything?" Sellers asked.

"What do you mean, take anything?"

"You didn't have any evidence or anything they wanted?"

"If I had the evidence," I told him, "I'd have been playing it close to my chest. I wouldn't have left myself wide open. No, all I had was a hunch."

Sellers and Giddings exchanged glances. The guy may have something, they said. "With the car before the horse, if you know what I mean, Thad."

"I get you," Thad said. "It's worth a try."

There was silence for a moment, then Giddings jerked his thumb at me. "What do we do with this guy?"

"Take him along," Sellers said. "Okay. On your feet," Giddings said.

I tried getting up out of the chair. The tortured muscles simply wouldn't respond. My legs didn't have enough strength to do the lifting.

Giddings grabbed me under the armpits, hoisted me to my feet. "Keep those muscles moving," he said, "otherwise they'll get sore."

"What do you think they are now?" I asked him.

"He just grinned. 'Come on.' They got me to the elevator, down to a squad car and made time out through the traffic."

Inspector Giddings did stuff with the desk clerk at the apartment house. "We're going up to Sylvia Hadley's apartment," he said. "We want to ask her a couple of questions. Don't announce us."

"Very well," the clerk said. "You heard me," Giddings said. "I heard you."

"If we're announced, we'll take it as an unfriendly gesture," Giddings told him. "Come on."

We got in the elevator, went up to the hall and down to Sylvia Hadley's apartment. Frank Sellers banged on the door.

The door opened a couple of inches, held tight by a brass chain. Sellers showed his badge and identification card all in a nice leather folder.

"Police," he said. "We want to talk with you."

"I've told you everything I know," Sylvia said.

"I know," Sellers said, "but we want to talk with you some more kind of a collector and — well, it stands to reason, she wouldn't have any interest in him, that is, any real romantic interest — he's doing something for her."

"What?" Giddings asked.

"I think he's supplying her with — well, it's just a hunch, but I think he supplies her with information about the value of things, and I think Sylvia picks them up and then gets rid of them."

Giddings looked at Sellers and said, "How dumb can a guy get?"

"Shut up, Thad," Sellers said, his eyes boring into mine. "Go ahead, what's the pitch, Donald? You've got a reason for thinking this. What gives it to you?"

"What about Mortimer Jasper? What did you tell him about Jasper?"

From the look of sudden dismay on her face, Sellers knew he'd struck pay dirt.

"If I thought Donald Lamm was responsible for this, I'd tell a lot more things!" Sylvia blazes, as the story continues here Monday.

Castro Returns To Cuba Ovation

HAVANA, Cuba (AP) — Prime Minister Fidel Castro, back home to a thunderous welcome, today resumed the reins of his government, which he says has become the "model and hope" for other American nations.

Castro came back Friday from a seven-week jaunt to six countries and told cheering thousands in a three-hour, 45-minute speech that reports of Communist infiltration into his government were a "calumny and an infamous attack on the Cuban revolution."

This attack, he said, was being made because the government "does not persecute nor execute Communists" but respects the rights of both Communists and capitalists to speak and write freely.

The Cuban revolution is neither capitalist nor Communist, he added, and "its success has become our responsibility to the Latin American people."

A result of his trip to the United States, Canada, Brazil, Argentina, Uruguay and Trinidad, he said, had been to win support and confidence in the Cuban revolution.

Cuba's economic thesis, he said, had the support of all peoples of the Americas, he said, adding that business circles had nothing to fear because the government would never abuse its authority.

Castro's return to Cuba was met with a ovation of thousands of people who lined the streets and waved Cuban flags.

He was greeted by a band of Cuban soldiers and a group of Cuban children who sang songs in his honor.

Castro's return to Cuba was a significant event, as it marked the end of his seven-week absence from the country.

He was met by a large crowd of people who had gathered to see him return to the country.

Bolshoi Ballet Slated Gross Over $2 Million

By WILLIAM GLOVER
AP Drama Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Ballet dancing is big business—when the Bolshoi troupe of Moscow performs.

Sponsors estimate the troupe's U.S.-Canadian tour will gross well over two million dollars.

But figuring the profit is difficult. "For something as big as this," commented a management aide, "I can tell you one thing sure—the margin ain't big."

This weekend the renowned company is winding up the triumphant initial stand at the Metropolitan Opera House. Next comes a week of added performances in Madison Square Garden.

After that, the troupe moves on to San Francisco, Los Angeles, Toronto and Montreal, where the visit concludes June 21.

Virtually all performances en route have been sellouts for weeks, to the perceptible comfort of the trip's sponsors, Impresario Sol Hurok and the American National Theatre and Academy.

The Hurok office says the Met engagement brought in $700,000; another $350,000 will come in from the Garden; and "well over a million" is in prospect from the other four cities.

Skimmed immediately from this rich trove are what the Hurok office calls basic weekly costs. These include $50,000 to the Bolshoi management; auditorium rentals (the Met cost $25,000 a week); wages for 65 stagehands; another $22,000; the pay for 91 musicians; $25,000; and per diem allotments to all the company for hotel rooms and food.

In addition to the basic charges are other costs for which figures are not readily available. These include amortizing the company's airplane passage and transportation of performers, costumes and scenery on tour.
