Tar River Claims Lives Of 2 Young Boys In Boating Accident Yesterday

Employment Up By Over Million

WASHINGTON (AP)—The number of Americans at work rose by over a million in April to a record total of 65 million. Unemployment declined by 735,000.

The improvement in both employment and unemployment were double what is seasonally expected in April.

Secretary of Commerce Lewis Strauss and Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell said in a joint statement the figures demonstrate a rapidly accelerating job recovery.

Employment rose to 65,012,000, an increase of 1,184,000 over March. This is 2,105,000 more jobs than in April last year.

Unemployment declined to 3,627,000, dipping by 735,000 from March. This is a decline of 1,493,000 from the recession conditions in April of last year.

The 1957 figures in April were 64,261,000 employed and 2,690,000 unemployed.

In the first four months of this year unemployment has dropped by over one million.

The Commerce-Labor monthly job report attributed the April improvements to an unusually large pickup in construction and brisk hiring in hard good manufacturing together with the spring expansion in agriculture.

The seasonally adjusted rate of unemployment in the labor force dropped to 5.3 per cent in April by comparison with 5.8 per cent in March and around 6 per cent during the winter months.

Strauss and Mitchell said in their joint statement: "This April, one year after the turning point in the recession, the rate of unemployment was about two-thirds of the way back to prerecession levels. The strong improvement in the last two months was in contrast to the lag in job recovery during the past winter."

Both the factory work week and earnings increased in April. The manufacturing work week rose to 40.3 hours, two hours greater than a year ago. More than half the gain represented increased overtime.

Average weekly earnings of factory workers hit a record of $89.87 in April, up 63 cents from March. This was more than $9 higher than a year ago, mainly as a result of the increased hours in overtime pay. Hourly earnings rose 1 cent in April to $2.23, or 12 cents higher than the average a year ago.

Coroner E. W. Harvey announced today that an inquest into the death of Annie Lee Fleming, 21-year-old Negro, will be held in the Ayden City Court Room tonight at 7:30.

Miss Fleming was found dead in her home in Ayden late Thursday night. According to autopsy reports, Miss Fleming died as a result of a fractured skull and a brain injury.

Officers are holding Henry Stamen Jr. of Ayden for investigation in the death.

HOTEL ROBBED

NEW YORK (AP)—A masked man holding four employees at bay with a sawed-off shotgun, robbed the Manhattan Hotel today of $12,000 in cash and an undetermined amount in checks. The money represented weekend receipts of the big hotel.

The Tar River claimed the lives of two young brothers yesterday just after noon when the boat in which they were riding with their father sank about a half mile below the Port Terminal.

The two boys, Marvin Tingen Jr., 14, and James Tingen, 12, were drowned when they fell from their sinking boat.

According to Deputy Sheriff Ralph Tyson, Marvin Tingen Sr., 37, the father of the boys, was operating the boat, headed up the river, when suddenly the motor cut off or slowed down. According to Tingen's statement, he looked back at the motor and then looked to the front of the boat and saw the bow going under the water.

The boys and father tried to swim to the shore. The father, seeing he could not make it, returned to the boat, which supported him until help arrived.

Joe Cherry of Greenville was around a bend in the river and came to give assistance when he heard the victims' screams. He was able to pull the father off the sinking boat, preventing his falling victim to the river water.

Investigators said apparently James, the younger boy, had stayed afloat a short time. The boy had removed all of his clothes with the exception of his underwear. Marvin Jr. was clad in his bathing suit.

The Greenville Rescue Squad was called to the scene about 1:50 p.m. and recovered the first body, that of James about 3:45. After the body was recovered, the squad pulled in his shirt, pants, both shoes and his socks. The body of the older boy, a student in the seventh grade at the Greenville Junior High School, was recovered about 5:15 p.m. The younger boy attended the fifth grade at Pactsville.

Officials said there were no life preservers on the boat at the time of the accident.

The two bodies were recovered in about 25 feet of water, spokesmen said.

Surviving are their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin D. Tingen, and one sister, Thelma, 11, of Route 5, Greenville.

Asks U.S. Entry In Special Bank

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower asked Congress today to approve U.S. participation in establishment of an inter-American development bank.

For the United States to join, Eisenhower said "will be a most significant step in the history of our economic relations with our Latin American neighbors."

Establishment of the billion-dollar bank was recommended by representatives of the 21 American republics after a three-month conference here starting last Jan. 8. The participating nations would provide the capital.

The United States would invest 450 million dollars. The Latin American republics would put up the rest.

The President said he is strongly of the opinion the United States should support creation of the bank because of this country's special relationship with Latin America, and because of the pressing economic and social problems in the area.

Confederate Day Flags By Japan

The flags were made in Japan.

Opening Of Big Four Talks Delayed By Early Dispute

GENEVA (AP)—The Big Four foreign ministers conference was called into session tonight, 3½ hours late, after running around for a time on the question of how the East German government should participate.

The first session of the conference was scheduled for the Palace of Nations. Instead, Secretary of State Christian A. Herter and his Soviet, British and French counterparts got together informally at a British villa.

From this meeting Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko emerged with the announcement the formal session was set for 6 p.m.

"There has been a complete agreement on all procedural and administrative matters," he said, adding that this included the question of German participation.

Gromyko left the informal parley first. He was followed by Herter, French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville and British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd.

Lloyd, designated to preside at tonight's opening session, led the efforts to resolve the dispute involving the whole issue of the status of the Red East German regime.

The formula decided upon for the formal opening session was as follows:

The East and West Germans sit at separate tables. The Big Four foreign ministers sit at a round table but all on one side, leaving one side vacant.

The West German table is closer to the seat occupied by Herter, the East Germans closer to Gromyko. The two German delegations are separated by a third small table for the conference secretariat.

Asst. U.S. Secretary of State Andrew H. Berding held up a diagram of the seating arrangement for reporters to see.

Asked if the West had made any concession to the Russians, Berding said: "We haven't given way on anything."

Western spokesman said the separate tables idea met the original Western objections to having the meeting at a round table. The West had feared that if only a round table was used the Russians would try to squeeze in first the East Germans and later the Poles and Czechoslovaks as full participants.

Under the agreed upon formula the Germans are advisers and not full participants as demanded by the Russians.

If either the East or West German representative desires to speak, the conference chairman will ask if any of the Big Four foreign ministers has any objections. If there are none, the floor will be given to the German.

The Western powers, regarding East Germany as a Soviet satellite, opposed the Soviet demand that the regime have the right of full participation in the Big Four sessions. The West offered, however, to work out some compromise arrangement to give delegations from both East Germany and West Germany the right to speak under certain conditions.

A British delegation spokesman said the informal meeting was arranged during a brief discussion between British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

The two had met in a futile effort to settle the dispute.

The spokesman said Lloyd and Gromyko decided that as things stand now, there was no chance of the formal conference beginning on schedule and they agreed to postpone.

The spokesman insisted that despite the postponement of the formal opening session, the conference actually has started.

"We are in the middle of one of the fundamental issues which we expected the Geneva conference would have to face," said one high official.

Diplomatic quarters also reported a complete tie-up in the four power liaison group which has been trying to agree on the size and shape of the table to be used at the conference.

The Soviet Union wants a round table on the theory it will make it easier to expand the conference. The Soviets would like to have Poland and Czechoslovakia, as well as East Germany, at the meetings. The West favors a square table, limiting the conference to four powers, one at each side.

The Big Four foreign ministers were being entertained at a luncheon by the Swiss Federal Council, Georges Palthey, deputy chief of the U.N. headquarters here, went to the luncheon in the hope of getting a decision out of the ministers on a time for opening the conference.

Earlier, Lloyd had called a meeting of the Western foreign ministers to consider a formula for settling the German participation dispute.

West German Foreign Minister Heinrich von Brentano sat in with Lloyd, U.S. Secretary of State Christian A. Herter and French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville. They assembled at Lloyd's residence.

The Western ministers met for just under an hour and discussed versions of a compromise proposal on the role of the German delegations at the conference. Then Lloyd went to see Gromyko.

Twisters Strike Scattered Areas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A twister cut a path of destruction along the edge of the central Illinois town of Monticello today. It struck on the heels of tornadoes that ripped into six states over the weekend, killing 5, injuring 21 and causing heavy property damage.

Striking just before dawn, the Illinois twister cracked a wall and damaged the roof of a one-story plant, upset two parked truck trailers, shattered a dozen plate glass windows in town and snapped utility lines.

A number of roofs were damaged in the town, but no one was injured.

Thunderstorms broke out in warm, humid air in the East and another thunderstorm crackled over Mobile, Ala.

Rains swept wide areas of the midcontinent in the wake of the destructive storms.

Scores of homes were demolished, huge semi-trailer trucks were tossed about like leaves and the four-building Iowa community of Fansler was wiped out in tornadoes which lashed Texas, Iowa, Oklahoma, Kansas, Missouri and Wisconsin Sunday.

Tornadoes whipped through Oklahoma both Saturday and Sunday with rains which sounded to a farm wife "like a thousand winds blowing in all directions at the same time." It was in the Oklahoma town of Frisco that a twister killed five persons and injured nine.

Heavy hail storms followed the tornadoes in a number of communities. They came the rains. Hail the size of baseballs fell in the vicinity of Corps Christi, Texas, and egg-size hail covered the ground near Austin.

By states, this was the tornado-drawn picture:

TEXAS—Ten tornadoes danced through Texas, injuring at least six persons and causing an estimated $300,000 property damage. One smashed into a residential and industrial area in northern Austin and another lashed a rural area seven miles south of the community of Hearne. It was in that rural area that the six persons were hurt.

OKLAHOMA—The community of Frisco, in the southeastern section of the state about 12 miles south of Ada, suffered probably the heaviest tornado damage. Five persons were killed there and nine others injured. The twisters also whipped through the resort area around the Grand Lake in Northeastern Oklahoma, causing high property damage and injuring two.

IOWA—Buildings on 14 farms were flattened, the four-building community of Fansler was wiped out, and 70 head of cattle, 5,000 young turkeys and 700 hens destroyed in the weekend tornadoes. Only one man was injured. The communities of Guthrie Center, Yule, Rippey and Bagley also suffered property damage.

MISSOURI—A tornado cut through sections of Green Bay and the suburbs of Preble and Ashvaubom, injuring three persons, demolishing six homes and heavily damaging 50 others. Roofs were ripped from two paper company warehouses and four industrial buildings were demolished. High voltage wires were downed.

KANSAS and MISSOURI—Small tornadoes causing minor property damage in Elwood, Kan., across the Missouri River from St. Joseph, Mo., and at Elmo in the northwest corner of Missouri. At St. Joseph, winds unroofed an old theater.

Churchill Ends His Visits In America

LONDON (AP)—Sir Winston Churchill returned home today from what may have been his last visit to America.

Smiling and spruce in a homelike gray suit with a red rose in his lapel, the British statesman was greeted at the airport by his wife, who kissed him on both cheeks.

U. S. Ambassador John Hay Whitney also came out to welcome Churchill home.

Sir Winston was misty-eyed Sunday night as he boarded the British jetliner at New York's Idlewild Airport.

This was Churchill's ninth visit to the United States since the first dark days of World War II.

Churchill, 84 and ailing, paused at the ramp as he boarded the plane, and delivered a brief message. Then he waved his black homburg at the crowd of several hundred gathered to see him off.

Churchill spent seven days in New York and Washington. Here he stayed with an old friend, financier Bernard Baruch, four years his senior.

A crowd of several hundred gathered outside Baruch's home, just off Central Park in mid-Manhattan for a glimpse of Churchill.

Churchill smiled as a cheer went up when he came out. There were shouts of "Hurray for Winston" and "Good luck to you."

He bowed slightly and lifted his right hand in his "V for Victory" sign.

In Washington Churchill visited with President Eisenhower. He also paid calls on former Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, ill of cancer, Gen. George C. Marshall, also former secretary of state, and the victim of two strokes.

The cigar-smoking, brandy-sipping Churchill has suffered several serious illnesses in recent years.

Legislative Spotlight Is Shifted To Money Rooms

RALEIGH (AP)—The legislative spotlight shifts this week to the money committee rooms as the General Assembly tackles the serious business of the 1959-61 budget.

An important vote by the House Finance Committee on Gov. Hodges' withholding proposal for collecting state income taxes is expected Wednesday.

Meanwhile, the joint appropriations subcommittee, which bogged down last week on procedural matters, is expected to wade into the cumbersome problem of the public education budget.

As lawmakers gather in Raleigh for their Monday night session, the main topic of conversation was the Finance Committee's withholding vote.

A windfall of about 23 million dollars which would result if the plan is effected was a major item in Gov. Hodges' proposed balance budget.

If the committee decides to scrap the plan, it could result in either increased taxes or reduced expenditures — alternatives most lawmakers do not want to contend with.

Before the Assembly travels to Fort Bragg for its Thursday session, an attempt is expected in the Senate to bring from committee a resolution which would direct the appropriations group to increase salaries of teachers and state employees.

The attempted recall is not expected to be successful, but it probably will result in heated debate. When introduced by Sen. C. V. Henkel of Iredell two weeks ago, the resolution was sent to the Appropriations Committee.

Henkel said he would act under parliamentary procedure which permits him to ask for the recall 10 days after a bill or resolution enters a committee. It would take a two-thirds vote of the upper house to get the resolution back to the floor.

Industrywide Steel Negotiations Due To Open Today

NEW YORK (AP)—Industry-wide steel negotiations open today with the Steelworkers Union expected to demand shorter hours and more pay.

Four-man industry and union teams will attempt to agree on a new contract in time to prevent a strike by a half million steelworkers July 1.

The industry-wide talks replace the dozen company sessions held with the union last week.

David J. McDonald, president of the Steelworkers, said Sunday that unemployment is one of the most important issues. He said he wants employment security to be the first item on the agenda.

"Our view is that the way to achieve this desirable goal," he said, "is a balanced program of reducing hours, increasing purchasing power by improved wages and other benefits, and appropriate revisions in our pensions."

This was the first official indication that shorter hours would be sought. Previously the union had indicated only that it would ask for substantial wage increases.

A published report that the Steelworkers had demanded an immediate average work week of 38 hours at the present 40-hour wage level was denied by R. Conrad Cooper, chief negotiator for management. Cooper, a vice president of U.S. Steel, said he knew nothing of such a demand.

The preliminary talks last week were described as constructive by both sides, who pledged to work hard to reach agreement in the seven weeks before the old contract expires on June 30.

Both sides were clearly poles apart.

The talks prompted Sen. Jacob K. Javits (N.Y.) to suggest that President Eisenhower call in management and union leaders and "really talk turkey to them."

Javits, a member of the Senate Labor, Banking and Economic Committee, said the public has a big stake in the outcome of the current steel talks, because any increase in steel prices will be reflected throughout the nation's economy.

Last week industry again proposed an extension of present contracts for one year to prevent an outright wage-price spiral. The union again rejected it.

Cooper said increased steel labor costs would be inflationary, whether requiring price increases or not. He said U.S. steel data shows that company stockholders have less average income from all sources, including stock dividends, than Steelworkers have from wages.

McDonald replied that Cooper's data was based on an outdated survey, and was hardly a valid comparison.

He said the average industry worker makes less than 3-50th the salary of the board chairman of U.S. Steel.

Steel profits are running at a record level and this, coupled with productivity, McDonald said, means that substantial wage increases can be allowed without either raising prices or restricting profits.

Wages in the basic steel industry now average $3.03 an hour.

'No Change' For Weakened Dulles

WASHINGTON (AP)—No change was reported today in the condition of John Foster Dulles, weakened by pneumonia in his fight against cancer.

The former secretary of state's sister, Eleanor Dulles, returned to Washington Sunday night because she felt "I should be nearer home at this time."

Mrs. Dulles had been in Berlin representing the State Department at the 10th anniversary of the lifting of the Berlin blockade.

The State Department said Saturday that Dulles had developed a mild case of pneumonia, but his temperature had returned to normal after treatment.

Small But Elegant

PALATIAL TOUCH—This small dining room takes on a spacious look by deliberate use of palace-scale decor. The floor is a white terrazzo design in solid vinyl interlaced with diamond-shaped divider strips of brass. Decorator Melanie Kahane uses French Regency furniture and drapes one entire wall from ceiling to floor. The over-size design of floor and background gives an air of elegance which could be used equally effectively with contemporary furniture. Solid color vinyl or rubber tile floors can give illusion of greater dimensions by creating a "feeling of flow."

Co-Ordination Of Color--Topic

"Coordination of Color" was the subject Mrs. Helen Mohan used when she gave the demonstration to Red Banks H. D. Club members Tuesday.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Karl Hardee. The song "Dawn In The Valley" was sung by the group, after which she prayed the club collect. The secretary, Mrs. Glenn Hardee, read the minutes of the last meeting. Mrs. E. H. Boyd gave the devotion and Mrs. O. T. Howard ended with a prayer.

Leaders' reports were heard from Mrs. Worth Hardee and Mrs. O. T. Howard.

Mrs. Mohan announced that Farm and Home Week will be held June 9-12.

A copy of "Green 'N' Growing" was distributed to the group.

Plans were made for everyone to bring donations to the next meeting for Caswell Training School.

Members made plans to carry out the visitation program after the meeting. They were assigned different routes.

Hostesses Mrs. Herman, Mrs. E. H. Boyd and Mrs. George Corbett served refreshments to the 13 members and two visitors, Mrs. Alton Bibbs and Miss Rosalie Moore, present.

Gardening Today

By JOHN DUNCAN

Those spindle shaped bags on that Arborvitae, Juniper and other trees and shrubs contain unhatched destruction.

Some time in the spring (about mid-May or sooner) the eggs of the bagworm hatch. Many hungry young caterpillars (larvae of the bagworm) start feeding at once. Their mission in life is to eat and eat. As they eat they build themselves a house. This house is made of stems and leaves and silk lined. Everywhere the bagworm goes his house goes with him. The bigger he gets, the bigger his house becomes, and the plant becomes smaller.

He feeds on apple, locust, maple, gum willow, willows as well as on Arborvitae, Red Cedar, Juniper, pine and Hemlock.

Sometimes between late summer and early November, the male leaves the bag, (after he pupates). The female stays in the bag and lays between 500 and 1000 eggs.

In the winter you can pick the bags off and burn them.

The best control however, is to get them while in the larvae stage (early or mid-May).

Spray with one of the following:

(1) Lead arsenate—3 tablespoons to 1 gallon of water; (2) Malathion 50% E.C.—2 teaspoons to 1 gallon of water; or Malathion 25% wettable powder—2 tablespoons to 1 gallon of water.

Repeat one of above in a week or 10 days.

Has Final Meeting

The Junior Woman's Club held its final business meeting for the club year on Wednesday evening at the Woman's Club.

Mrs. Quentin Avery, Clothing Closet Chairman, urged all members to contact neighbors and friends and ask their cooperation in helping replenish the Clothing Closet. A motion was made that a donation be made to the Eye Bank and also send a Girl Scout to Camp this summer.

A letter was read inviting members to attend an Open House at the Children's Home Society in Greensboro to be held May 8.

Plans are being made for a picnic to be held at 6:30 p.m. on June 3. All club members and their families are invited to attend.

Hostesses for the evening were Mrs. Joseph Mason and Mrs. Kenneth Wilson.

Club Hears Missionary

Mrs. Leo W. Jenkins entertained the Aries Book Club Tuesday night at her home on Rutledge Road. Mrs. R. S. Moye, president, welcomed as guests Mrs. John D. Mesick, Mrs. Wendell Smiley, Mrs. Percy Cox, Mrs. Harley Milstead, Mrs. N. M. Jorgensen, Miss Billie Lamb and Larry Jorgensen.

Jorgensen presented the program, which concerned the two and one half years he spent in Mexico as a missionary of the Mormon Church. After a training period in Salt Lake City, he was assigned with a senior companion, who spoke Spanish, and they traveled by bus to Mexico. At the end of eight months he became the senior, and another missionary worked with him.

He saw Mexico as no tourist does, and spoke of the extremes of financial conditions which exist. The club members were invited to ask questions at the conclusion of his talk.

Mrs. Jenkins served punch and cakes from an appointed table.

Blue Laws Earn Jeers Of Crowd

SPARTANBURG, S.C. (AP)—Crowds jeered police here Sunday as they arrested outdoor theater operator Claude Rumley for showing movies in defiance of Spartanburg blue laws.

Rumley was also arrested on the previous Sunday on an identical charge. He was released on $50 bond.

County police also arrested Carl Waldrop for operating a fishing lake. Waldrop said he was not charging admission and felt, therefore, that he was not violating the anti-Sunday amusement laws.

The operator of a horse riding academy, C. A. Tollison, who was also arrested, said he had been operating on Sundays for some time and was not aware he was in violation of the law.

About 500 cars swarmed out to Rumley's outdoor theater, but there was room for only about 300.

It was a threat by Rumley's brother, Alfred Rumley of Hickory, N.C., to make charges against other businesses operating on Sundays that led to the filing of charges against operators of enterprises other than movies.

A number of private citizens were reported to have taken out warrants against service stations and other businesses which were expected to be served today.

Reward Offered For Auto Arson

RALEIGH — A drive to crack down on persons who wilfully burn automobiles to collect insurance will be continued, the N.C. Automobile Dealers Assn. announced today.

The trade group of new car and truck dealers will offer for the third consecutive year a $300 vehicle arson reward, said association President C. Odel Sapp of Salisbury.

Sapp said any person, excluding law officers, who gives information leading to the arrest and final conviction of an automobile arsonist in North Carolina can claim the reward.

The association decided to continue offering the reward for two reasons, Sapp continued. He said the dealers hope the reward will make information more readily available to law enforcement officers in suspicious cases.

The association president said his members also hope the reward might help lower automobile insurance rates by serving as a deterrent to automobile arson. He explained that insurance premiums during any given period are determined by the amount in claims insurance companies paid out in the previous period.

Paying Honor To Berlin Heroes

BERLIN (AP)—Allied leaders gathered here today to honor the men and women who beat the Soviet blockade of West Berlin 10 years ago.

Soviet barriers on the highway-rail corridor to West Germany came down one minute after midnight May 12, 1949. West Berliners planned solemn ceremonies Tuesday to recall the moment.

Because of the new Communist threat against West Berlin, the long-planned anniversary celebration was turned into a new demonstration of Western support for the isolated city.

Guests of honor are 72 relatives — including 15 children — of 31 American and 40 British airmen who died in airlift accidents.

West Berlin newspapers hailed the return of Allied leaders who served in the blockade days. Topping the list were Earl Attlee and Robert Schuman, prime minister of Britain and premier of France at the time.

Their U. S. contemporary, Harry S. Truman, could not make it. Representing the United States were Gen. Lucius D. Clay, then military governor of Germany and now board chairman of the Continental Can Co., and Brig. Gen. Frank L. Howley, city commandant then and vice chancellor of New York University now. The airlift commander Lt. Gen. William H. Tunner, was flying here with some of his airlift pilots. Tunner now commands the U. S. Military Transport Service.

Approximately 70 per cent of the total dollars for a new U.S. supersonic bomber will be paid to firms other than the prime contractor.

Several Injured In Street Fight

ECCLES, England (AP)—Gangs of white and Negro youths clashed with knives and brass knuckles in a bloody street fight here Sunday night. Two white boys were hospitalized with stab wounds. A Negro was treated for head injuries.

Police broke up the fight and hauled in several youths for questioning.

Tenth Birthday Especially Gay It Is His Last

SOMERSET, Mass. (AP)—Some time ago doctors said Albert Pineault never would reach his 10th birthday.

So his 10th birthday was an especially gay one Sunday. Mayor John M. Arruda of neighboring Fall River cut the cake and Marines and soldiers gave him presents.

Albert is a victim of muscular dystrophy. His grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert A. Brosseau of Somerset have cared for him since birth.

Albert's brother, Roger, 8, suffers from the same illness, but it has not progressed as far as it has with his older brother. He lives with his parents in Fall River.

Albert is aware that doctors give him no chance of surviving. "Two weeks ago," Mrs. Brosseau said tearfully, "he told me he was ready to go to heaven."

Rate Hikes Alone Not The Answer

The Post Office Department, which has made relics of the Pony Express, penny post cards and three-cent stamps, is limbering up to take another poke at first-class and air mail rates.

Postmaster General Arthur Summerfield has started things with a proposal to increase first-class letter and air mail rates a penny each. The proposal was hinted in January, by President Eisenhower, in the president's annual budget message to Congress.

Summerfield explains the proposed increases as necessary "to assure that postal revenues will more nearly equal postal expenditures." He estimated the increases would bring in an additional 335 million dollars annually.

Unless our memory has failed completely, an increase in rates for the same two classes of mail ordered less than 10 months ago was put across with the same type argument.

There is no question in anyone's mind that the Post Office Department needs something to bolster its financial situation. Its current operating deficit has been estimated at more than 500 million dollars a year.

The reality of such an operating deficit in the face of last year's increases in postal rates raises the question, however, of whether rate increases alone will do any good. The most recent increases are certain to have had some advantageous effect, but basic laws of economics suggest that prices increases alone will not solve deficit problems.

As it is pictured, the Post Office Department is a thing unique in the world. No other business in the world could survive with its operating procedures and techniques. Those procedures and techniques, generally speaking, are as out of place today as the idea that if you ride far enough to the west you'll fall off the edge of the world.

Instead of asking for increases in postal rates, it seems to us the Postmaster General could better spend his time revising and updating his department. There are free enterprise organizations in our capitalistic country trained in just such things, and it is doubtful that their advice and recommendations would cost the American people 335 million dollars a year.

If Summerfield will make an effort to look beyond the relics he lives with in his department, he has a chance to make himself a place in American history as the Postmaster General who did what no one else would do: revise the Post Office Department.

And it wouldn't cost him five cents to send a first-class letter to his friends when he got through, either.

Future Largely Hinges On Geneva Meetings

Beginning of the Foreign Ministers Conference in Geneva is being watched by people of the Free World for some indication of what may be accomplished during the meeting . . . and whether it will lead to a summit conference late this summer.

It is generally conceded while the West may be expected to stand firm on its position in Berlin, both the West and the Soviets may be prepared to make some concessions in order to lay the groundwork for a summit conference. What these concessions will be, or where the common ground for reaching agreements will be remains to be seen.

The negotiations may be expected to be among the toughest in recent fact-to-face meetings between leaders of the East and West. The conference, while it will not be drawn out into months, is unlikely to come to any quick agreements on what may be done to ease the Berlin crisis and tension in Europe. The Soviets have committed themselves to driving Western forces out of Berlin. The Western Big Three, on the other hand, are committed to remaining in Berlin and affording protection against communism for the people of that divided city.

Though the foreign ministers face the most difficult of tasks, on what they are able to do in Geneva may well hinge the outcome of the Berlin crisis. The result of the meeting which began in Geneva today may determine whether tensions between East and West lessen in the months ahead, or whether they increase as the world once more is drawn to the brink of war.

Control Bill On Price Increases

By RALPH ROBEY

Senator Joseph O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.) introduced a bill early in this session of Congress which is of utmost importance to, and which is receiving the widest spread attention of, all businessmen. It represents an attempt to control price increases.

Back of the bill, and the Senator introduced virtually the same measure in 1948, is a belief that our so-called concentrated industries raise prices at will, regardless of the supply-and-demand situation. There is no factual basis for this contention, but it continues to thrive and gain supporters.

The current bill (S.215) applies to those commodities where eight or fewer companies account for at least one-half the total sales. It also applies only to those companies which have capital, surplus and undivided profits of $10 million or more. In these circumstances, such companies must give 30 days' notice to the Federal Trade Commission and the Attorney General before raising prices.

It is the contention of Senator O'Mahoney, and other proponents of the bill, that such public scrutiny will prevent all price increases of their intention to raise prices, and the Commission must then hold public hearings. At the end of 30 days the price increases may go into effect, regardless of the opinion of the Federal Trade Commission or the Attorney General.

Uniform procedure and cost schedules in courts throughout the state, abolishment of fees as basis for judicial pay at any level and other court reforms proposed by the Bell and Constitutional committees were overwhelmingly approved.

These views represent composite thinking of business and professional men in one community, but serve as some indication of how people are thinking throughout the State.

Further, there is no possibility of limiting the area covered by

A Widow For 10 Years

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

The average U.S. wife today can look forward to being a widow for 10 years. Her actual life span is only six to seven years longer than that of her husband, but she usually marries a man three years older than herself.

James Hoban, the man who designed the White House, was paid only $500 for the job — one of the best government investments in history.

Wisdom in capsule: "Recessions begin and end in the minds of men." — Charles G. Mortimer, president of General Foods.

Do you have trouble sticking to a diet? Some snakes can live from one to two years without food. They absorb the fat from their own bodies.

The price of cartoon comedy zoomed. Thirty years ago Walt Disney could produce a Mickey Mouse one-reel for $7,000. Now an animated one reel film costs $60,000 or more.

How vital is blood to you? It amounts only to about one sixteenth to one twentieth of your body weight. But ordinarily the loss of one third of your blood, unless replaced, will cause death.

The odds against lightning striking your television antenna during a thunderstorm range from 10 million to 1 to 220 million to 1, depending on how many sets there are in your community. So quit worrying!

Remember the famous poem about the purple cow? It ended, "I'd rather see than be one." Actually, the only animal purple in color is the blesbok, a small South African antelope.

A good wife and a happy home life are a man's best forms of mental health insurance. Nearly 90 per cent of the men admitted to mental hospitals are unmarried.

Our quotable notables: "The woman's work that's never done," says Dorothy Shay, "is most likely the work she asked her husband to do."

America's sweet tooth seems to be getting sweeter. More than 2,000 types of candy are turned out yearly in this country. It's a billion dollar business. Candy made of honey, spices, and chopped nuts and fruits was sold in Egypt as early as 1500 B.C.

Women now outnumber men in the United States at the rate of 100 to 98.4. But they can still outtalk them two to one!

Can you name the largest organ of the human body? It's the skin. And except for the brain, it is perhaps the most complicated.

Consoling fact: despite high prices, the average American can buy nearly three times as much food for an hour's pay as his grandfather could back in 1916.

Infant mortality is still a big problem down on the farm. Twenty-three per cent of all pigs die before they are weaned.

Mortal bargain: The owner of the famed Meramec Caverns at Stanton, Mo., is offering free underground weddings during June. But what couple wants to start with a marriage on the rocks?

No matter how bad the weather is where you live, the man in the moon has it worse. Lunar temperatures vary from 215 degrees above zero in the sunlight down to 240 degrees below zero in the dark.

It was Robert Louis Stevenson who observed: "So long as we love we serve; so long as we are loved by others, I would almost say that we are indispensable; and no man is useless while he has a friend."

Look At The Record

By ROGER BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass. — Almost everybody knows the story about the man who long ago told his people that years of drought would sooner or later result in a deluge, and that they should prepare for such a catastrophe. His name was Noah. Few listened to him and even fewer took the trouble to arrange their affairs with the future in mind. Noah insisted life could be met head on by those who prepared for it. You know the rest of the story.

All of us will be confronted, sooner or later, with the need to save for that inevitable "rainy day." It may result from an earthquake, a flood, a world war, or something else. Whether we shall ride out the storm or sink in a leaky boat depends upon how well we plan for tomorrow. Just now this "something else" which confronts all of us is the problem of inflation. I will not describe it to tell you how to avoid it. Advice on this you are continually being given. I dread it and understand its sad possibilities. Yet, every young parent should realize that 10 years from now his savings for educational purposes may buy only half the education he expected to purchase for his children; and 25 years from now he may find that his retirement income or life insurance provides only one-third the standard of living he had anticipated. The way old Noah would prepare now for such a possibility would be by increasing his life and fire insurance.

LOOK AT THE RECORD

Do you realize that since 1947-49 the cost of living has risen 24 per cent? This is about 4 1/2 per cent in the same period total personal income for all groups of workers has risen about 23 per cent. But some groups — namely unionized manufacturing workers — are now getting 58 per cent more pay than they did ten years ago. Surely they are preparing for inflation with a vengeance. However, large numbers of other workers have failed even to keep pace with the 24 per cent increase in the cost of living. This is about 4 1/2 per cent. The 1947-49 standard of living. Are you one of these? If so, read on! Creeping inflation will continue, followed possibly, sooner or later, by another big spurt of inflation, probably caused by another world war. In order to offset both creeping and ultimate spiraling inflation, you should act now! Have in your home this motto: "Remember Noah—Prepare Now for Inflation." Too bad—but it is sure to come.

WHAT TO BUY NOW

Most common stocks will not help you combat inflation. Please do be careful. On the basis of every possible yardstick of value, good productive land now appears more valuable than anything else. Hence, if you want common stocks, buy common stocks based upon metals, oils, and other assets which should increase your buying power during creeping inflation. At the same time keep a good bank account which will enable you to buy more stocks when the crash comes. Investment advisors will help you with this problem.

Put some of your earnings into a home furnished with real antiques, and into acreage in areas that are bound to appreciate in value — particularly areas of great population growth. It may be wise to buy some good tax-free bonds. These should be ideal for educational purposes. Ordinary bonds are not recommended to combat inflation. But at current low prices and relatively high yields, some of such tax-free bonds should, in the present situation, be good inflation hedges.

Some economists believe that the population increase will make antiques more valuable as time goes on. There are, of course, many other ways to combat inflation. I have purchased young timber, lakes, orchards, or hill-sides, farms, lakes, or rivers. Certainly these things will increase in value through growth as well as inflation. Even these have real risks, such as drought, fire, hurricanes, and diseases. Therefore, you could get seriously hurt if all your funds were in such investments. Hedging against inflation requires diversification. Be sure, therefore, Continued On Page 5

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
GOD'S SIFTING

"Simon, Simon," said Jesus on one occasion to His chief apostle, "Satan asked to have you, that he might sift you as wheat; but I made supplication for thee, that thy faith fail not." (Luke 22:31)

The idea of the separation of good and bad, the wheat from the chaff, runs through all the Bible. God makes very plain to us that life involves many cross roads experiences. We come to a certain place and know not which way to turn. Different roads stretch out before us and each appears to offer some advantage. Life is a grim experience which demands the frequent making of decisions—important decisions upon which sometimes the salvation of our souls depends. Sifting! Sifting! Sifting! Whether it be by this figure or the figure of crossroads, or the figure of obeying or disobeying a military command—in the end it is all the same. God has condescended to live along very serious lines. We cannot compromise. We cannot dally. We cannot have our cake and eat it.

Satan would sift us; Christ would save us. The choice is that stark, that blunt, that simple—that serious. If we think we can avoid such predetermined choices, we are mistaken. The sifting process goes on endlessly in our lives. Like Simon, our lives are being sifted, but Christ says to us as He said to him, "I made supplication for thee, that thy faith fail not."

By ELMER ROESSNER

State officials and insurance executives in your part of the country are closely watching a new automobile insurance experiment in California.

Starting this month, Californians are buying insurance on a "safe driver" plan. Autoists who have not had other than a minor mishap in three years get a 20 per cent reduction on insurance rates. The rate rises with accidents, anybody with five or more accidents pays double.

The plan was fought bitterly, largely on the ground that innocent victims would be penalized. At the last minute the rules were changed to apply demerits only to guilty drivers.

Several other states have experimented with demerit systems, but none has as broadly as California. If the plan works there, it will probably be adopted in other states.

PRICES AND PRICES

Here are other business look-aheads, based on analysis and extra information on developing trends:

Costlier conditioners. After many years of overproduction, the air conditioner industry appears to have cut production back close to demand. Consequently, there will be less distress-priced merchandise this summer, and some brands may be difficult to get when you want them.

Higher rubber. The settlement of the strike in the rubber industry merely set the seal on the fact that tires and other rubber goods will cost more during this year. The price of imported rubber has been strengthening; the materials in synthetic rubber are rising in price, and other components have advanced.

Plastic price boosts. Several plastics have recently increased in price, notably polyethylene and cellophane, and rises in other plastics are likely. Both components and labor cost more, and demand is still strong.

HIGHER, HITHER TO YOU

Upped toll fees. It will cost you more to get from here to there this summer. Most toll roads have not been doing too well, and the current trend is to cut tolls on freight dreadnaughts, with some compensating rises in passenger rates.

Cheaper coffee. Despite recent tobogganing of coffee prices, they may slide even further. Inventories are heavy and more of the beans appear to be flowing over barriers Latin-American governments have tried to erect. The result looks like even cheaper coffee. (But don't expect the nickel cup to come back.)

Elevator-priced shoes. You'll pay more for footwear this fall. Leather and other components have been costing more. Leather has almost doubled this year. Higher hide costs must come out of somebody's hide; yours.

Biggest ad splurge. Working behind scenes, advertising men have revved up one of the biggest promotions yet. It involves a 28-page aluminum-foil-covered spread in you-know-what picture magazine. Eleven companies are promoting a cook-out contest for men only, with prizes in scale. Biggest beneficiary, the beef industry, isn't putting up a cent.

MORAL: DO ANYTHING AS LONG AS YOU PAY TAXES ON IT

"Did you see that two-part television story about Al Capone on television?" the Old Promoter asked on his weekly visit. We had missed it.

"It will be back as a repeat," he predicted. "Watch it. It has a lesson for every business man. It shows you can rough up women, kill your competitors, bump off informers, and break every law in the code except one: You gotta pay your income taxes! The show is a wonderful criticism of American morals."

We said we would. "Funny thing," he went on. "I always thought Desilu was supporting the Revenue Service. But that show made it look as if the tax people ought to be subsidizing Desilu."

They are being made possible through the division of community planning of the Department of Conservation and Development — the state agency designated to administer federal planning grants to towns of 25,000 or less.

How does it work? Carolina Beach gives a good example.

Following heavy damage to this coastal town as a result of Hurricane Helene, the Division of Community Planning submitted an application to the Federal Housing and Home Finance Agency for an emergency planning grant of $2,000 to pay one-half of the cost of the city's proposed planning program.

This grant request was approved on Dec. 1, 1958. Of the remaining one-half of the planning cost, the city has paid $2,000 and the Division will contribute $200 in the form of administrative and supervisory service.

The planning begins by discovering the answers to some basic questions: What does the town now have? What does it hope to achieve?

The Division and its consultants find the answer to the first — What does the town now have? — through studies of economy, population, land use and traffic.

Before future planning can be done, the community — guided by this detailed study — must decide through public discussion what it hopes to achieve.

In the case of Carolina Beach, citizens must decide how much of a resort town they want and of what type. Should the present carnival-like atmosphere be retained or should it be played down? Should it be designed as a "small convention town" or family vacation spot? A major decision is where the funds should be spent first — in revamping the downtown section or in restoring the beach.

The Division, in helping a town formulate its plans, does not strive for quick, overnight results. But the long-range possibilities which this program offers have attracted a number of towns.

The City of Graham, by-passed by a major highway and faced with the problem of stymied growth, has sought the help of the Division and the State Highway Commission in the preparation of a future land use and major thoroughfare plan. The city has already turned over to the Division $2,000 in full payment for its services.

The City of Thomasville has requested and is receiving assistance from the Division in the revision of its zoning ordinance. The cost of this service is being paid on a monthly basis by the city.

The Division's first application for a federal grant gave planning assistance to Laurinburg, Chapel Hill and Parkton. Since that time a federal grant of $33,760 has been approved for planning assistance to 17 other municipalities which will contribute a total of $49,110 as their share of the cost. The Division will contribute $4,650 in the form of administrative and supervisory service.

These cities, in addition to Thomasville, are: Conover, Clinton, Elizabeth City, Goldsboro, Henderson, Hickory, Jacksonville, Kinston, Lexington, Mocksville, Mooresville, Newton, Raeford, Salisbury, Spencer and Wilson.

Drama Group To Present A Play

The Alpha Zeta Chapter of the Wesley Players, drama group made up of Methodist students at East Carolina College, will present Charles George's one-act farce "When Shakespeare's Gentlemen Get Together" Wednesday, May 13, at 8 p.m. at the Methodist Student Center on East Fifth St.

The play presents six of Shakespeare's leading men who join forces in working out a plan to control the extravagance of their wives. Cast in leading roles are Walter Johnson of Jacksonville as Hamlet; George C. Haislip of Hamilton as Romeo; William F. Mitchell of Lenoir as Antony; Edward E. Lancaster of Vanceboro as Othello; M. James Ballard Jr. of Wilmington as Petruchio; and James A. Lanier of Wilmington as Shylock. Barbara Wilson, Greenville sophomore, is director of the play.

Rose High Baseballers Journey To Kinston; Handily Won Earlier Tilt

Rose High, still battling for the Northeastern baseball crown, will journey to Kinston today with hopes of keeping their slim chances for the title alive.

The Phantoms handled the Red Devils with ease in their earlier meeting but since that time Coach Bo Farley's club has faltered and dropped from the top spot to second place with three defeats in four games. Southpaw Ronnie Finch has been Greenville's big man in keeping them in the race. Finch hurled a no-hitter over New Bern and then got the locals back in the win column last Thursday with a victory over Washington.

Merrill Bynum is scheduled to take his turn on the mound for Greenville but last minute changes may send the senior righthander back to his outfield post and put Finch on the mound. Bynum is the club's leading hitter and has had more success while playing in the outfield.

Hitting was been the club's weakness in recent games as rival pitchers have thrown two shutouts at the locals.

Greenville enters the tilt with a 8-3 mark and are 9-4 in over-all play. Kinston is the defending champion but lacks the pitching of last year's championship outfit. The Phantoms have only one more game scheduled following the Kinston tilt but if necessary may re-schedule a rained out game with Jacksonville. They close out their regular season play here Friday against Roanoke Rapids.

Larry Crayton pitched East Carolina College to their eleventh straight win Saturday night as the Bucs took down Elon, 7-2, to virtually clinch the North State championship.

The stylish southpaw was in his rarest form as he mowed down sixteen Elon batters by the strikeout route and walked only five in chalking up his sixth victory of the season against only one defeat.

Elon touched the Greensboro freshman for four singles and three of them came in the last two innings.

A capacity crowd jammed into Guy Smith Stadium to see the Pirates edge their arch-rival for the second time of the season and in doing so all but wrapped up their first North State title since 1956. The win gave the steam-rolling Bucs a 11-0 conference mark with only three contests remaining. Elon saw their second place drop as they finished their eastern tour with a 11-4 record against conference competition.

East Carolina opened up on two Christian pitchers for 16 hits but did their biggest damage in the first three innings.

With two out, East Carolina got four back-to-back hits to tally two runs in the first inning. Jim Martin got the rally under way with a single through the box.

Gary Pierce started another day of fattening his already high batting average with a single over the second baseman's head. Glenn Bass then rapped a bingle down the third base line to score Martin. Charles Johnson drove in the second run with a double to right field. Bass attempted to score on the hit but was thrown out at the plate.

Al Vaughn drove a triple to right field in the bottom of the second frame and then scampered home on Crayton's single.

East Carolina added one more run in the third when Bass beat out an infield hit with two out and went to third on Johnson's single. Elon attempted a cut-off play when Johnson headed for second but the speedy Bass came sliding across the base safe to get credit for stealing home.

Henson is Shelled

The Pirates shelled Henson in the eighth as they slammed out five hits and three more runs. Jerry Carpenter lashed a triple between left and center field to get credit for the big blow.

A victory at home against Wake Forest Tuesday will give the North Carolina Tar Heels the Atlantic Coast Conference baseball title.

However, should the Deacons win, they could take the crown by defeating last-place North Carolina State in a home game the next day.

That's how close the race is in this, the last week of the season for all practical purposes. After this week there will be only one game left, Richmond at Virginia next Monday.

Clemson, which has finished with a 9-5 league record, could conceivably end in a first-place tie with North Carolina and Wake Forest. This would come about if Wake Forest beats North Carolina and loses to North Carolina State.

The Tar Heels defeated Maryland 8-2 Saturday, and Wake Forest whipped Virginia 5-3. Duke climbed from the cellar with an 8-1 victory over State, and Clemson defeated Oglethorpe 6-2.

CHAPTER 29

"What did you tell Donald about Mortimer, Jasper?" Sergeant Frank Sellers asked Sylvia Hadley. "I didn't tell him a thing!" she blazed. "And if he told you anything about Mortimer, he's lying, he's—"

"Take it easy," Sellers said. "What about Mortimer Jasper?"

"Nothing about him."

"What's your connection with him?"

"I don't have any."

"You know him?"

"I've met him."

"And you didn't tell Donald Lam anything about him?"

"I did not!" she blazed. "I don't know what he told you, but whatever it was, it's a lie."

Sellers settled himself in a chair, crossed his ankles in front of him, pulled out a cigar. "What do you know, what do you know," he said in a tone of intense self-satisfaction. It was the voice of a man who has just been advised he's won the Irish Sweepstakes.

He bit off the end of the cigar, spat it out on the worn, threadbare carpet of Sylvia's apartment, struck a match, held it to the cigar, puffed it a couple of times, said again, "What do you know?"

"I don't like cigars," Sylvia Hadley snapped.

Sellers might have had pity in his ears for all the attention he paid to that remark. He took a couple of deep, contented puffs, grinned across at Inspector Thad Giddings and said, "We're in the money now."

Giddings raised his eyebrows at Sellers. Sellers nodded, turned to Sylvia and said, "You do know this Mortimer Jasper?"

"I tell you I've met him, yes."

"Been out with him?"

"I've been to dinner with him."

"Okay, then," Sellers said, grinning. "What was the pitch? What did he want? Why should he buy you a meal?"

"He... he likes me. I think it was a fatherly interest."

"What do you know about Mortimer Jasper?" Giddings asked.

"Very little," she said.

"How did you meet him?"

"I've forgotten. I think I was introduced to him at some gathering, probably something that Mr. Crockett put on."

"And that's where you met Jasper?"

"It may have been. I don't know. I can't remember."

"You don't remember when you first met the guy?"

"No."

"How long ago?"

"I can't tell you that either."

"When was the time he took you out to dinner?"

"Which time?"

"On, was it more than once?"

"Yes."

"How many times?"

"I can't remember. Several."

"Well, well, well," Sellers said. "We're getting more and more chummy. Now, what does Mortimer Jasper do? What's his line?"

"He's retired."

"What does he have to occupy his mind? What keeps him from going to seed mentally?"

"I don't know."

"What did he talk about when he was with you?"

"I couldn't tell you that. We discussed various things."

"Art?"

"Yes. He's interested in art."

"Jewelry?"

"Well, he's interested in precious stones, but not so much jewelry."

"Any particular branch of art?"

"No particular branch. He discussed the beautiful."

"He included you in that category?" Sellers asked.

"He didn't say so."

"Did you ever give him any money?"

"No, of course not. Why should I give him money?"

"Okay," Sellers said. "Did he ever give you any money?"

She hesitated.

"Remember," Sellers said, "we have ways of finding these things out. We can get a subpoena on his bank account, and—"

"He gave me a check for a thousand dollars."

"Well, what do you know," Sellers said, rubbing his hands. "We're beginning to get places."

"No, you're not," she flared. "It was just a loan."

"For what?"

"I wanted some things. I wanted some clothes, and I wanted to get caught up on my car payments."

"What do you know," Sellers said.

"I wish you'd quit saying that over and over," she blazed. "Don't you know anything else? You're getting on my nerves."

Sellers grinned and said, "Now, look, Sylvia, you're getting a little angry. Don't do that. You wouldn't want to do anything that would forfeit my friendship, would you?"

"Why should I want the friendship of any dumb cop?"

"In the first place, I'm not dumb. In the second place, you're not along very well with your friends. Here's a guy that's old enough to be your father, you go out to dinner with him, you discuss art, you don't have anything particularly in common, he isn't interested in you as a woman but only as a dining companion who talks about art. You can't remember when it was you met him or how you met him—just sort of a casual acquaintance—and the guy dies up a thousand bucks. Now, you take a girl that has friends like that can go a long ways."

Sylvia turned toward me. "How does this guy fit into it?" she asked.

"Who?" Sellers asked.

"Donald Lam here."

"Well, we just took him along to keep him out of circulation for a while," Sellers said. "You know, Donald gets into trouble if you let him run around loose."

She said, "If I thought Donald Lam was responsible for this, I'd... I'd tell a lot more things."

"Well, well," Sellers said, "what do you know. What other things, Sylvia?"

"I've said all I'm going to say."

"That's what you think," Sellers said. "What do you say, Thad?"

"I think we ought to check," Giddings said.

"So do I," Sellers said. "Get your coat, Sylvia. You're going places."

"Where?"

"Just a little ride."

"You can't take me to headquarters and question me any old time you want to. I've got a date."

"Ain't that too bad," Sellers said. "Another guy gets stood up—well, that's the way it goes."

Sylvia looked at me and said, "Somehow I have an idea you're tied up in this. If you are, Donald Lam, I'm going to—"

She stopped, but continued to look at me.

"You're going to what?" Sellers asked.

"Nothing," she said.

"I think this is worth looking into a lot further," Giddings said to Sellers.

"So do I," Sellers said. "I think we're hitting pay dirt. Come on, Sylvia, get your coat."

Donald has something up his sleeve that will explode like a bombshell. Continue the story here tomorrow.

Cut Cross Tie To Free Horse

Members of the Greenville Fire Department and Rescue Squad had to cut a cross tie yesterday on the Norfolk Southern railroad's Charles St. overpass to free a trapped saddle horse.

The horse, reportedly owned by Marvin Jarman and ridden by an unidentified boy, was trapped at the edge of the overpass when a hoof slipped between two cross ties. Firemen quoted the boy as saying the horse shied away from a barking dog.

Firemen tied the horse down with ropes while cutting the cross tie. They said he was trapped for about an hour before they could complete cutting the cross tie, pulling it aside and freeing the horse's leg.

Participants in the operation were firemen James Allen, Tony Brannon, Amos Harrell and J. B. Meeks. They were assisted by Harold Ross of the Rescue Squad.
