Other Than Heckling, Strike Scene Is Quiet

Strike Scene Again Quiet After Stern Court Order

HENDERSON, N.C. (AP)—National Guardsmen and a stiff court order brought the quietest night in a month to the struck Harriet-Henderson cotton mills.

With 300 rifle carrying guardsmen standing watch, workers leaving the two plants at 11 p.m. Wednesday night entered empty streets. Officers said it was the quietest night at the mills in a month.

The court order, signed Wednesday by Judge William Y. Bickett, allows only eight pickets at the gates of the two plants. The pickets must be 75 feet from the gates. No crowd will be allowed to congregate outside the mills.

However, workers traveling in nine cars to adjoining Franklin County reported they were fired upon from ambush about 11:15 p.m. as they passed a lumber yard about a mile outside Henderson. The workers continued to Louisville, some 20 miles away, where they reported the incident to police.

An officer said the cars were "shot up right bad" and that one woman passenger was cut on the arm by flying glass.

Plan New Post Office Site

Congressman Herbert C. Bonner told The Daily Reflector today that Post Office Department officials had notified him they were preparing to complete arrangements for purchase of a site for a new Post Office in Farmville.

According to available information, the new Post Office will be located on property now used as a parking lot on Farmville's Main Street. The property is owned by Dr. R. T. Williams of Farmville.

Tentative plans for the new facilities are said to include provisions for an 80-foot frontage on Main Street. The new office will replace present quarters which are leased by the Post Office Department.

Ministers Also Take Time To Discuss Nuclear Testing Ban

GENEVA (AP)—U.S., British and Soviet foreign ministers had a talk today about ways to speed up a ban on nuclear weapons tests, under discussion here for six months.

Taking time out from the problems of Berlin and Germany, they considered the possibility of organizing a new scientific study of problems connected with such a suspension.

They reached no final decision. If Big Three scientists got together, they might consider technical data connected with the detection of testing, including blasts in outer space. This might involve cooperation between the United States, British and Soviet governments in putting up artificial satellites to police such tests.

Secretary of State Herter, British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko met for 90 minutes in Herter's lakeside villa. Some hope was expressed in Washington that the Western powers will be able to reach an accord with the Soviets. But there are still a lot of big problems to be solved. They deal mainly with enforcing a test ban.

France, which has not yet joined the atomic club, did not take part in today's meeting of U.S. Secretary of State Christian A. Herter, British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko. It was held several hours before the daily session of the Big Four conference on Germany.

The three atomic powers have been discussing a treaty to ban nuclear weapon tests for the past six months here in Geneva.

The talks have been recessed until June 8 to avoid conflicting with the conference on Germany.

Herter and Lloyd invited Gromyko to sit down with them and review progress to date.

Both sides have moved cautiously toward the idea of 180 control posts around the world, manned with mixed staffs of nationals and foreigners, to check against violations of an agreement to end tests. The West wants a majority of foreigners in each station. The Soviet Union insists the majority must be citizens of the country where the post is located.

The United States and Britain have suggested phased suspension of tests — first halting explosions up to an altitude of 30 miles and under water. The Soviets called these halfway measures and impractical.

Set $150 Million For Loan Fund

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate and House conferees have agreed on a $150-million-dollar appropriation for the foreign aid program's development loan fund.

This is 75 million dollars less than President Eisenhower requested, fifty million more than the House originally approved, and 50 million dollars less than the Senate voted.

The fund is used for loans to friendly nations to help them develop their economies.

The money is included in an omnibus appropriation bill. Its total of $2,764,500,380—most of it for the Veterans' Administration—was 136 million less than the President requested, 107 million more than the House voted, and 80 million less than the Senate originally approved.

Intruder Attacks Littleton Girl

LITTLETON, N.C. (AP)—A gun-toting intruder attempted Wednesday night to rape a Littleton beauty queen. The arrival of a school mate foiled the attack.

The girl was taken to a Roanoke Rapids hospital for treatment of head wounds and shock. Police immediately began a widespread search for a white man described by the girl as about 30, curly-haired and stocky.

Jane Riggan, 17, Warren County's 1958 dairy queen and Littleton High School's homecoming queen, told police the intruder broke into her home while she was taking a bath. Her mother was not at home.

The girl said the man struck her several times and carried her struggling into her bedroom. Shortly afterwards, Del McPherson, a school mate who had come over to study with the Riggan girl, knocked at the door. He said he heard a man's voice and entered the house.

As he walked through the door the girl yelled, "Del, help me." Please help me."

When the youth reached the bedroom door, the intruder ordered him to enter and turn his back. The man struck him in the head with the pistol butt and fled.

McPherson said he did not see the intruder. The girl, however, told police she would recognize him if she saw him again.

Bloodhounds tracked the assailant to a nearby highway where he apparently escaped in a car.

Police picked up and released three area people during the night.

Massive 4-Phase Western Plan Is Laid Before Russia

GENEVA (AP)—The Western powers proposed to Russia today that divided Berlin be made a united city under Big Four guarantees as the first step in a sweeping package plan to unify East and West Germany and begin global disarmament.

The massive, four-phase Western program was introduced in the fourth session of the Big Four foreign ministers' conference as the Western response to Russia's demand that West Berlin be made a free city. It also countered Premier Nikita Khrushchev's call for a peace settlement with divided Germany.

The proposals provides for successive disarmament measures, including initial limits of 2½ million men in the armed forces of the United States and Russia, and leading eventually to limitation and possible withdrawal of all foreign troops (Soviet and Western) from Germany and neighboring areas.

It would unify Germany in 30 months. United Germany would be free to elect membership in either the Atlantic Alliance (NATO) or the Soviet bloc's Warsaw Pact or to choose a neutral policy.

Whatever the choice, the big powers, Germany and other European countries would take steps to avoid any change in the East-West balance of power and could enter into agreements against aggression. Western leaders have long expressed confidence Germany would line up with the West.

As a package the plan had no prospects of even serious consideration by Russia. Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko has already rejected it as a "tangle" of unrelated issues. But parts of it, especially the Berlin proposal, conceivably could lead to some bargaining.

Berlin, in the first phase of the package program, would be united by "free elections to be held through all Berlin under supervision" of either the big powers or the United Nations. The United States, Russia, Britain and France would keep their troops until the final German peace settlement provided for in the fourth phase.

Secretary of State Herter, presenting the package on behalf of the United States, Britain and France, told Gromyko the plan

"clearly shows that our governments have gone very far to meet Soviet preoccupations."

He declared there were important modifications in Western policy as it has stood since 1953.

"We earnestly hope," he said, "that the Soviet government will for its part make a comparable effort and thus make it possible to find at least a basis for mutual understanding."

A city council would be responsible for administering the whole city under the general supervision of the Big Four, but the powers could intervene in city affairs only by unanimous vote. How this arrangement would affect East Germany's capital in East Berlin was not stated.

The West made a compromise approach to Russia's demand that East and West Germany must negotiate reunification directly between themselves. It proposed in the second phase the creation of a mixed German committee of 25 West and 10 East Germans to make plans for increased contacts between the two Germanys and to draft an all-German electoral law.

As an alternative, the United States, Britain and France reportedly will demand that their right to remain in Berlin and their right of access to the city be spelled out, with the East Germans as well as the Soviets underwriting the agreement. In return, the West will agree to East German officials controlling the access routes to Berlin as agents of the Soviets.

An important disagreement remained to be settled between the Americans and British on the one hand and the French and West Germans.

The Americans and British favored a sort of United Nations high commissioner to be posted in Berlin and U.N. supervisors at checkpoints on the access routes. The French, backed by the West Germans, argue that the situation already is complicated enough without introducing the world organization.

Herter, presiding Wednesday, finally got the conference down to business in its third day, when the opening speeches of the foreign ministers were delivered. The previous two days had been spent turning down Gromyko's moves to win a place for East Germany and Poland and Czechoslovakia as full participants.

East and West Germany may speak in the conference within certain limits and Gromyko is expected to bring up the question of Poland and Czechoslovakia again.

The package plan worked up by the West would extend four-power responsibility over all Berlin after it is united by free elections. The West would offer to pledge that the city would not be used as a center of anti-Soviet propaganda and political activity.

Eventually the city would become the capital of a reunited Germany.

On German reunification, the plan offered two limited concessions. One was a proposal to create a commission of East and West Germans to promote such things as trade and travel between the two Germanys as an approach to unity. Moscow has been demanding that the two Germanys work out their own unification agreement.

Another concession would reverse the timing of all-German elections. Previously, the West has demanded free elections as a first step toward unification. The Soviet Union would never accept this. Now the new Western formula provides for free elections as one of the final steps, several years from now.

We understand that it is true that the Board of Higher Education did as stated but that only increased the differential instead of recognizing that there should be a just minimum basis for the operation of institutions of higher learning and that all undergraduate programs should be accorded the same status."

"Gentlemen," the resolution said to the Appropriations Committee, "the problem is yours, but don't forget that the education of the children of the citizens of the State is at stake, and if we continue to discriminate in providing adequate education for the teachers of tomorrow, we will continue to have inadequately prepared high school graduates for all institutions of higher learning and thus poorly prepared college graduates."

The motion to approve the resolution was made by Fred Willets and seconded by Henry Belk. It was unanimously approved with only one board member absent.

Report Twining Had Lung Cancer

WASHINGTON (AP)—Cancer was found in the exploratory operation on Gen. Nathan F. Twining, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, it was announced today.

A bulletin issued at the Pentagon today said cancer was found and added:

"The entire diseased portion of the lung was removed at surgery and there was no evidence of involvement in other areas of the chest."

The 61-year-old air officer underwent the surgery at the Walter Reed Army Medical Center.

Brig. Gen. James H. Forsee, acting commandant of the Army hospital, informed the Defense Department that Twining should be able to leave the hospital within three or four weeks and should be able to return to his duties in about two weeks after he is dismissed from the hospital.

Twining has served two years as head of the top military planning board and was recently nominated by President Eisenhower for a second two-year term.

Fort Bragg, N.C. (AP)—The sprawling Army post rolls out the red carpet today for members of the North Carolina Legislature.

To keep the visit from slowing down legislative work, the lawmakers will put in a full schedule in Raleigh before boarding buses early this afternoon for the trip to the forum.

The program for the visit will include tours of the post, helicopter rides, displays of latest Army equipment, demonstrations of airborne might, and entertainment.

ing approach to one of the nation's pressing problems: urban blight.

"It is a cooperative venture in which federal and local governments, artistic groups, large foundations and private citizens are joining forces," he said.

The President noted, too, that Fordham University is planning a new campus and buildings adjacent to the cultural center.

"All of us salute this magnificent effort," Eisenhower added.

After the ground breaking ceremony Eisenhower goes to the New York Coliseum to look over displays in the international show of export goods from 63 countries.

At the fair, exhibiting nations will present him with a truckload of exotic gifts.

From this will develop a growth that will spread to the corners of the earth, bringing with it a kind of human message that only individuals—not governments—can transmit.

"Here will develop a mighty influence for peace and understanding throughout the world."

The site of the center, an area of three and a half blocks on 64th street west of Broadway, was cleared of run-down dwellings and other buildings for the huge construction project to be completed in 1963.

Eisenhower said the center symbolizes not only an increasing interest in America in cultural matters, but also is "a stimulat-

Hodges Incentive Plan Killed Off

RALEIGH (AP)—The House Education Committee today killed off Gov. Hodges' pet proposal, the incentive plan aimed at getting counties to boost their support of the public schools.

By an overwhelming voice vote, the committee gave an unfavorable report to incentive plan legislation after a motion to give the bill a favorable report attracted only nine votes.

Under the incentive plan, the state would have put up 10 million dollars a year and divided it among counties which increase their support of the schools.

The plan was recommended by the School Finance Study Commission and strongly endorsed by the governor. Wednesday night, the governor made a last-minute plea for the plan in a radio address. He said he was willing to have the plan adopted on a contingency basis at the present legislative session in order to get the principle adopted. He said details of financing to put the plan into effect could be worked out later.

However, the plan fell by the wayside because many legislators considered it a step toward shifting support of the schools from the state back to the counties. The governor repeatedly asserted this was not so.

Speaking against the bill at the committee session were Reps. Ed Yarborough of Franklin and Roger R. Jackson Jr. of Hertford. Supporting it were Reps. Watts Hill Jr. of Durham and Clifton Blue of Moore.

Sheriff Kuel W. Tyson reported the robbers entered the building by a window. They rolled the big safe into the main work area of the building where they ripped open the door.

Papers in the safe were left at the scene. Nothing else was missing from the building as far as could be determined.

The building is located on U.S. 64 west of Bethel.

It was the second safe job in Pitt County within the last two days. Robbers entered the C. E. Manning Store west of Greenville Tuesday night and carted off a safe. That, too, was what officers term a "rip job." However, there was no money within the safe.

Call For Bids On Street Work

The State Highway Commission has called for bids on a project to improve a section of North Greene St. in the Meadowbrook section.

Specifications of the job include widening, resurfacing and installing curbs and gutters along 0.49 miles of Greene St. The section runs from Moore St. to a point approximately 250 feet north of Morgan St.

The bids will be open May 23 and reviewed by the Highway Commission at a May 28 meeting in Edenton.

NEW YORK (AP)—President Eisenhower broke ground today for a 75-million-dollar cultural center and predicted it will be a mighty influence for world peace.

The President took part in ceremonies marking the start of the Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts. He flew from Washington for the occasion.

The President's plane landed at the nearby Newark, N.J., airport and Eisenhower motored to New York after an airport greeting from Gov. Robert B. Meyer of New Jersey and others.

A 33-man motorcycle escort ushered the President's car into Manhattan by way of the Lincoln Tunnel under the Hudson River. Eisenhower stood up in a bubble-top limousine and waved to about 300 persons lined up near the tunnel exit.

He responded in similar fashion to other greetings from citizens as his car proceeded across town.

The ground breaking at the cultural center was just one of the activities which will keep the President buzzing busily about Manhattan during the day and into the night.

In his talk Eisenhower said the center—which will include a new Metropolitan Opera House and a new home for the New York Philharmonic—will enrich the lives of people generally.

He added: "The beneficial influence of this great cultural adventure will not be limited to our own borders. Here will occur a true exchange of the fruits of national cultures.

McGlohon Is Man Of Many Musical Talents

MUSIC HAS A PROMINENT PLACE . . . in the lives of the McGlohon family. Mother and Dad listen to records with Laurie, 9 months, Fan, 6, and Reeves, 11.

Loomis McGlohon of Charlotte, son of Mr. and Mrs. Max McGlohon of Ayden, has written the music, lyrics, and book (dialogue) for three Charlotte Jaycee Jollies.

His children, Reeves, Fan and Laurie, help rather than hinder Loomis' musical compositions.

Fan, a 6-year-old, influences the songs Loomis includes in the show's overture.

"Bored," a song written for this year's Jaycee production, has been bought by Pearl Bailey, a noted pop singer.

McGlohon uses his summer vacation to outline the shows.

"While we're visiting our families, I isolate myself for three or four afternoons and try to get the shape of them in mind. The story idea usually comes first."

Like a lot of listeners, Loomis feels, "I always thought it was ridiculous in movies or shows that two people in conversation would suddenly burst into song. It makes no sense. But I guess it has to be done. I try to make it as logical as possible but it still seems funny to me."

Last summer besides being the originator of "April Green," which was presented April 2, McGlohon assisted Betty Lane Evans, "Miss North Carolina," with her talent routine she used in the "Miss America Pageant."

Mrs. McCall and her husband and 12-year-old son are spending their vacation studying at Southeastern Seminary in Wake Forest.

She used as her theme "We've a Song to Sing" taken from 89th Psalm. Southern Baptists sent missionaries to Thailand to preach the Gospel of Jesus to a nation where sin is deep and it is in spiritual darkness, she said. For every million people there is only one missionary. The religion of Thailand is Buddhism with 200,000 temples. She stated that above everything the people in Thailand need our prayers.

Those taking part in the program, "Spring Symphony," were Mrs. John Davis, Edna Beasley, Mrs. R. F. Speight, Mary Lois Bradshaw, Carolyn Beamon, Ann Webb, and Mrs. Louis McCall. The Girls Auxiliary Allegiance was led by the program chairman, Dianne Bell.

The food was served by ladies of the WMS.

'The Dabblers' Display Exhibit

FOUNTAIN — Members of the Fountain Hobby Club, "The Dabblers," who participated in the Sidewalk Art Show in Greenville last week were Mrs. Ben Owens, Jr., Mrs. M. D. Yelverton, Mr. Wiley Yelverton, Mrs. W. R. Harris, Mrs. O. J. Medaris, Mrs. C. M. Smith, Mrs. G. W. Jefferson, Jr., Mrs. R. D. Jefferson, Mrs. Albert Bell.

This group displayed two tables of ceramic pieces featuring slip casting. Members of the group went to Elm Street Park in Greenville on Wednesday and set up the exhibit. Other members were on hand during the entire two-day show to discuss with interested persons attending the show some of the fascinating points in ceramic hobbying.

Club Meets

The Minor Music Club held its last meeting of the season on Wednesday afternoon at Elmhurst School. In an impressive candle-light ceremony the new officers for the 1959-1960 season were installed by Mrs. James E. Rodgers, club counselor.

The new officers are: president, Jean Harvey; vice-president Gayle Surles; secretary, Charlene DeShaw; treasurer, Barbara Boyd. As outgoing president, Murphy Davis was presented with a rose corsage. She has served the club in that capacity for two years. Piano selections were played by Barbara Boyd and Gayle Surles. The club meetings will resume in September.

Mrs. White Entertains Book Club

Mrs. J. J. White Sr. was hostess to the Athenaeum Book Club on Tuesday at her home on 10th Street. Early spring flowers of pink peonies, roses and lilies-of-the-valley were predominant in the flower arrangements. When the guests were seated at auxiliary tables, the hostess, assisted by her sister, Miss Mattie Barnes, served luncheon.

Following luncheon the group gathered in the living room and took part in an informal social hour.

For her program Mrs. White had the guests to participate in a "Musical Quiz." Colorful wrapped gifts were distributed from a tray. Miss Mattie Barnes read an appropriate poem sent to her from Mrs. Edwina Gladden of Long Beach, Calif.

The president, Mrs. W. L. Harrington, welcomed the guests and presided over a short business meeting.

The books were distributed and the meeting adjourned.

Guests present for the meeting were Mesdames R. C. Stokes Jr., Sam White, Bert James, J. T. Cheatham, J. H. Thomas, Joe Moye, E. E. Rawl Sr., Hannah Richardson, Lula Fleming, Clara Moye Shackell and Miss Elizabeth Tibbatts.

More Red Ink? Up To Taxpayers

For this nation to continue increasing its national debt during a period when the economy is reaching new heights is unthinkable.

This is a period in which the United States should begin to operate within its income if it is ever to do so. It is a period in which this country should begin to pare its national debt rather than allowing it to grow year by year.

Time after time in recent years Congress has been called upon to raise the legal limit of the national debt. Each time it has done so, and each time federal government spending has risen beyond federal revenues to require another increase in the debt limit.

The time when this course should be changed is long overdue. The United States, if it desires to do so, is now in a position to operate on a balanced government budget. It is also in a position to begin reducing its debt rather than increasing it.

The question is, are the people and their elective representatives in Washington willing to take the step?

Members of Congress and the administration are extremely sensitive to the desires of the people of the nation. If the people demand that Uncle Sam begin to live within his income and pay off some of what he owes, our elective representatives in Washington will see that such a pattern is established in national policies.

If, on the other hand, the people of the United States continue to demand that Uncle Sam spend an extra billion next year for this, another several millions for that, and at the same time hold to their position that taxes must not be increased, we may be sure that the end of each fiscal year will show new red figures. We may be sure that the nation will plunge deeper in debt, obligating the future earnings of this and other generations.

The earning power of this nation has now reached the place where Uncle Sam can live comfortably on his income, provided the necessary items for the nation's defenses and also for securing the nation's economy without deficit spending each year. With revenues provided by the present tax structure, Uncle Sam can do this and also have funds left over for beginning a reasonable program of retiring the national debt.

This can only be done, however, if the people demand that the government return to a policy of living within its income.

Though we are prone to blame elected officials in Washington for allowing the federal government to live beyond its means, the blame must, in the final analysis, rest upon the shoulders of the people—the taxpayers—of the nation.

What they demand, their elected representatives will see that they get. If the people want a balanced budget and repayment of the national debt, they can have it. If they want deficit financing in order to provide this or that unnecessary item in the federal budget, they will get that too.

It is time the people of the nation reconsider their role in achieving a balanced federal budget and adjust their demands upon Uncle Sam accordingly.

Vote Prospects On Constitution

By LYNN NISBET

CONSTITUTION — Chances seem much better now than a few weeks ago that the people will have opportunity to vote on a completely new Constitution for the State of North Carolina this fall. Current odds are slightly better than 50-50 that the General Assembly will submit a new text by favorable vote of 72 Representatives and 30 Senators — the necessary three-fifths of the total membership of each branch. Almost certainly, if that favorable vote is obtained a special general election will be called in time for ratification before the 1960 primary.

The new text will codify and consolidate provisions in the present 90 year old document and will clarify some obscure and obsolete phrases. It is equally certain that the text submitted will bear little resemblance to original proposals on the two most important items — senatorial apportionment and court reform.

The joint committee has voted on a proposed increase in Senate membership with five or six people authorized to form the districts and allot representation. That means the present system of 50 Senators allotted by the General Assembly to districts which the Legislature established will continue.

There appears at this time no chance at all that proposals for appointment of inferior court judges (recorder and JP courts) by Supreme or Superior Court judges will be approved. There is good prospect for constitutional uniformity of inferior courts as to jurisdiction, fees and other administrative features.

There has been evidence of resentment on part of sponsors of the Constitutional (Bryant) Commission plan that no member of that body was named on the subcommittee considering the judicial section, and that Sen. Spencer Bell, chairman of the Bar Association Committee, had too much influence on the small group. While the report of the subcommittee has some elements of both recommendations, it leans heavily to the Bell concept.

CONTROVERSIAL — The most controversial phases of the new text as it is likely to come out of committee are the sections which tend to spell out in the constitution certain provisions which have been practiced without challenge under implied grants of power. The commission has agreed to restore the requirements for a "general and uniform system of public schools" (which was omitted from its original text). The text tentatively approved by the joint committee, however, retains the provision that the elected State Superintendent of Public Instruction shall be the "chief administrative officer of the board" (the appointed State Board of Education) instead of the "administrative head of the public school system."

CONFLICT — The jurisdictional conflict between the commercial fisheries division of the Department of Conservation and Development and the Wildlife Resources Commission, which has been going on with varying degrees of intensity since the separation of functions was authorized 12 years ago, is likely to be further intensified by the motor boat regulation powers which a pending bill would confer upon the Wildlife agency. No conflict of interest appears, but there is further duplication in motor registration involving the Motor Vehicles Department.

The Motor Vehicles Department licenses powered land vehicles; the commercial fisheries division in C&D licenses powered water vessels engaged in fishing for profit, and the Wildlife Resources Commission will license powered pleasure and sport water craft. The Motor Vehicles angle comes in by reason for necessity for that agency to license the trailer which carries the boat to the water edge. Question of double taxation, rather than conflict of authority, is involved here.

The motor boat bill would exempt from Wildlife registration any boat licensed for commercial fishing or used on State owned lakes. C&D would make regulations governing this class of craft, but Wildlife would have large responsibility for enforcing them.

ANCIENT GRUDGE — Echoes of the controversy of the 1940's which led to divorce of control over inland fishing and field game from C&D and establishment of the New Wildlife Resources Commission were heard in discussion of the motor boat bill at a public hearing this week.

Wildlife did not want responsibility for enforcing the proposed law if C&D was to have anything to say about regulations or get any part of the registration fees. Wildlife spokesmen objected to the provisions exempting any motor boats from its control, if it was to be responsible for controlling any of them.

There was some sentiment expressed for setting up an entirely new State agency to handle the motor boat problem. Opinion seemed to be that would make a four-part duplicating effort instead of the present three-pronged system.

Everybody who appeared before the committee favored motor boat regulation, but hardly any two agreed on specific terms of the act.

Another Experiment In Weightlessness?

Ritual Of The Parties

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — One way to tell a person's age is by his attitude toward cocktail parties.

If he looks forward to cocktail parties and feels each one is exciting and different, he is very, very young.

But the more he attends the more all seem alike. The modern cocktail party, like the modern bull fight — which in its own ceremony and ritual. But in time cocktail parties become as hard to tell apart as mothballs.

The only difference between one's first cocktail party and one's thousand and first are the date — and a feeling of gathering numbness.

But that feeling of numbness is important. It is the hallmark of the successful cocktail party.

Everything about the cocktail party is formalized and more predictable than the weather. The food, the drink, the guests — even the conversation — follow an inexorable and changeless pattern.

There is always a tray of those gnat-bite-sized sandwiches made of new wallboard and old library paste. There is always a pot of caviar. This is supposed to make you feel like you're enjoying an orgy at the court of Catherine the Great. But the stuff usually tastes as if it had been made the night before by the hostess out of fish oil and left-over pellets from her son's air rifle.

The drinks at cocktail party fall into two classes. If the host is cheap, they are weak and watery. If the host is really trying to impress somebody, the drinks are so loaded one has the feeling he has just accepted a double-barreled shotgun — aimed at his head.

The guests at a cocktail party seem so normal and human when they first come into the room. Just a bit reserved perhaps. But an hour later all the shy Dr. Jekylls have magically turned into leering, pawing Dr. Hydres.

The sedate businessman suddenly wants to prove he can still drink a martini while standing on his head on the sofa, a feat he learned in college. The prim housewife all at once begins to act like she was the daughter of a marriage between Dracula and Santa Claus.

And everyone who had so little to say on arrival now becomes a person with a message of salvation for all mankind. They put their foreheads together and begin shouting at the top of their lungs. This isn't conversation. It is baboon babble.

Psychiatrists are divided on why people throw cocktail parties. One school holds it is merely an easy way to pay off social debts en masse. The other school holds that it is an unconscious and sadistic attempt by the host to exact social revenge on people he secretly detests.

Probably both schools of thought are right.

The problem remains as to why a husband ever goes to a cocktail party. The answer here is very clear.

He goes because somebody mailed his wife the invitation. And the modern wife will drag her husband to anything she's invited to — including, probably, a blood transfusion. Anything to get out of the house.

point to mosquitoes, rain and sundry other objectionable hazards. So the whole thing probably isn't worth the effort. Besides, people tend to glorify their fond memories far beyond reality.

The East Carolina College band gave a concert (indoors) just the other evening and the Rose High School band will give a concert Friday evening (indoors) — which partly gave rise to the thought that open air concerts were not entirely a remote possibility.

If Sunday evening band programs in the park were enjoyable to people of a few years back, they just might find popular reception again. To me, the idea is intriguing.

Legalized Gambling Isn't Needed In N. C.

North Carolina has no need for legalizing gambling in the form of pari mutual betting on dog races, horse races, slot machines or what-have-you.

The bill introduced in the House Monday night to permit county elections on legalizing racing and betting is not in the best interest of North Carolina and its people. It should not be written into law by the General Assembly.

Dog tracks which operated at Morehead City and Moyock several years ago pumped a good bit of money into the coffers of the counties in which the tracks were located. At the same time, the legalized betting proved a drain on the economic status of individual citizens who sent their money to the dogs at the betting windows.

However the presence of the tracks and legalized betting in the state posed a threat of some of the nation's racketeering syndicates getting a foothold in North Carolina not only in individual communities where the tracks were located, but in local as well as state government. It is a situation which must not be tolerated if we are to have good government. Certainly North Carolina should not place itself or its individual communities in a position where racketeering interests might make inroads into government.

The state has had legalized racing and betting in recent years and it has been afforded the opportunity to witness the results of such operations first hand. It has also had the opportunity to view the experience of other states in which similar activities are permitted.

It should be evident to the people of North Carolina—and by and large we believe it is—that the best interests of the state and its people are served by prohibiting this sort of activity.

We trust the legislators will see fit to keep North Carolina free from legalized betting as proposed in the new dog track bill introduced in the General Assembly.

Geneva Parleys See Poor Start

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviets—with help from the West, which let itself get tangled in childlike talk—were turning the foreign ministers meeting into the kind of spectacle predicted by Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

The ministers' he said, would get bogged in details. He wanted first a summit meeting of the heavyweights. After they had reached agreements, he said, the ministers could get together to stave over the details.

Khrushchev finally consented to a Big Four foreign ministers conference — United States, Soviet Union, Britain, France — because the West insisted. The meeting was to open Monday. So what happened?

Before the ministers could even hold their first session they, got snarled in an argument — over the kind of table to use — which for all practical and realistic purposes was strictly kid stuff.

It hardly added, in the eyes of the world, to the dignity and seriousness of the meeting.

The West, allied with West Germany, refuses to recognize the legitimacy of the East German Communist government, which is a Soviet satellite. But the U.S.S.R. wants exactly this kind of Western recognition for the East Germans.

While all this was being hashed over, the Soviets' Andrei Gromyko got the conference further confused. He demanded both West and East Germany be allowed to take part in the Big Four conference as full participants.

This is exactly what the West didn't want — for East Germany, that is — for fear that Western permission for East Germany to sit in as a full participant might be interpreted as Western recognition for East Germany.

None of this was brief. The two Germanys' demands — that the two Germanys, plus Poland and Czechoslovakia take full part in the Big Four conference — should have caused any surprise.

Last March, when the Soviet Union agreed to a Big Four meeting, it demanded that the Soviet satellites, Poland and Czechoslovakia be allowed to take part as full participants.

The West objected. So the second meeting, Tuesday, broke up.

It, too, was brief. The two Germanys' demands — that the two Germanys, plus Poland and Czechoslovakia take full part in the Big Four conference — should have caused any surprise.

No Music In The Parks

Going-to-the-park on a Sunday afternoon is to some people as traditionally American an apple pie, hamburgers (with everything) and the Little Red Schoolhouse.

At varied phases in my youth and later years a park somehow found a niche. Looking back, memory recalls no park of yesterday was complete without a bandstand. It might be a simple frame affair or an elaborate shell couched in scenic beauty.

More, the bandstands were actually used . . . sometimes of a Sunday afternoon, sometimes of a Sunday evening. They stood idle, naturally, 99 per cent of the time; but when echoing to the harmony of brass, reed and percussion instruments, they were counted a major asset to the community's simple pleasures.

Best-remembered, is the bandstand in the park of a Florida city. It was built on an artificial island in a lake which itself formed the center of the park. There were benches fronting the bandshell, and on a Sunday evening when a concert was scheduled one might count the listeners by the hundreds. Following the band's numbers, people sitting in nearby parked cars would join the applause with a honking of horns.

The simplicity of an evening spent listening to such a concert seems today far-fetched; but in those days people did, and found enjoyment.

There was a small municipal band, sponsored by the recreation department; the high school band; and a band sponsored by one of the town's newspapers. Some of the musicians belonged to all three bands, which suggests theirs was at least partly a labor of love.

During the time of year when balmy evening breezes wafted across the little lake, a big moon cast its silvery reflections across the water, park lights showed the way between rows of benches, you could count on a big turnout.

A musician might stumble during an intricate solo part, or the band might find rough going in a difficult passage, but the audience was both appreciative and encouraging.

I don't know whatever happened to that particular bit of the "simple life." You'd think that once having found a good thing, people might have hung on to it. But one seldom hears of active bandstands anymore, unless it's in one of the big cities.

Surely there's no shortage of amateur, semi-professional and even professional musicians to be found (in any sizeable community) who would be open to the suggestion of joining a band to play for the public.

Yes, some work on the part of musicians would be involved; but musicians don't become musicians unless they find some personal satisfaction out of performing.

Of course one can always shrug it off with the protest that people just don't go to a park to hear a band anymore. And you could

Other Editors Saying ... Unprecedented Request

(Wilson Times)

Now there is no organization that appreciates the work of the foremen and their departments more than the newspapers and The Wilson Daily Times. We know their objective is fire prevention every day in the week and fire fighting when necessary.

But we cannot go along with the request now before the legislature to tax all fire and lightning insurance premiums in this state one per cent.

First, for the public's information, the firemen are municipal employees, paid from city government tax and revenue funds. They have the same protection that every other city employee is given. They pay FICA or the government tax to provide a pension at age 65.

This is paid by the members of fire departments as it is paid by every other employee in the nation, and the sum the employee pays is matched by the employer.

Then the firemen are covered by the same pension plans that cover the other municipal employees. Therefore the bill requests an additional pension fund over and above that to be received by the other municipal employees. This fund is to come from a tax of one per cent on all fire insurance sold, whether the one purchasing the insurance does or does not receive fire fighting protection.

This tax would be paid by rural people as well as city folks. The rural premium payers receive little or no protection in the majority of cases. Already there is a tax of one and a half per cent on each premium dollar to provide a firemen's relief fund.

The approach this year is different from the one made in the last legislature. The bill was passed then but was declared unconstitutional because it was discriminatory. In other words the Supreme court, in effect said you could not tax one group to provide special benefits for another.

This time the approach circumvents the objections, or at least the three bills before the legislature try to do just this. The first bill imposes the tax, the second creates the firemen's pension fund and the third asks the appropriations committee for $470,000 to set up the pension fund.

The tax of one per cent would go into the general fund. The general fund under another bill would appropriate the money for the pension fund.

It is the first time the appropriations committee has been asked to appropriate money for a municipal group. For these are not state employees.

If the bill becomes law, and we have been told that there is a powerful lobby working for it, then all other municipal employees should try to find a means of getting a pension over and above the regular government sponsored employee-employer pension now in effect and the many pension plans the employers carry. Every one would like to look forward to more money at retirement. But taxing special groups, as those who carry fire insurance, is not the way to provide the money.

All property is not protected by fire departments. And firemen do not just fight fires on insured property. They protect all property within their jurisdiction.

We recognize the money involved to each fire insurance policy holder will be small. But the principle is not. This sets up a special tax for a specified group of municipal employees. This group, the firemen, do an exceptional job.

Therefore it would be fairer for them to get any additional privileges and funds from those for whom they work, the municipal government. Certainly not from a tax on all fire insurance premiums.

U.S. Now Exporting Some Jobs

By ELMER ROESSNER

The United States is exporting part of its topsoil, in the form of farm products distributed abroad.

It is exporting its money, in the form of loans, to foreign nations.

It is shipping its gold abroad to meet balance-of-payment and other transactions. A total of $2.3 billion went in 14 months.

It is shipping its production facilities abroad in the form of plants and factories set up in foreign countries.

Now it is about to export jobs.

Right, jobs. So-much-a-week jobs.

HOW IT HAPPENS
Not much has been said about it. The exporters might get into trouble at home.

In recent months, the matter has come up in a guarded way. American manufacturers facing rising wage costs, have been asking this question: "We are paying much higher rates than foreign manufacturers. For some skills, we are paying $4 an hour while Dutch manufacturers are paying four guilders an hour. If we moved our plant to Amsterdam, would the savings in labor be more than the cost of freight and duty to send products back here?"

It can't be determined how many companies have "exported jobs" in the past, but there is reason to expect that more will do it, especially if wage costs here keep rising.

BEING DONE NOW?
No American steel company, as far as is known, has set up a plant in a low-wage foreign economy and shipping steel products back to the U.S. at less than domestic production costs.

But many foreign steel companies have laid down steel here at less than American prices, and with the opening of the St. Lawrence Waterway, foreign sellers are offering to deliver steel at inland point under domestic prices.

There are unverified suspicions that some American steel companies have interests in foreign companies. If that is true — and it may be only a rumor — it would amount to exporting the jobs of U.S. steelworkers to foreign labor markets.

TEMPTING IN FARM FIELD
Wilbur J. Brown reports in the New York Journal of Commerce that "rising prices are causing U.S. farm machinery manufacturers to take a close look at the probable size of the domestic market for lightweight tractors and associated items imported from their own plants abroad."

If they do, they will be taking jobs away from U.S. tractor workmen and giving them to mechanics in foreign lands.

He continued: "International Harvester Co., for example, reports a 'surprisingly good' demand for a light diesel-powered tractor made by its British subsidiary." He adds that a British tractor, duty-paid and landed, cost $2,802 compared with comparable American equipment costing $3,500.

In smaller ways, American enterprises have exported jobs. Those who have bought components in Germany, Japan and elsewhere instead of making them in the U.S. have shipped jobs overseas. Farmers in the Southwest who imported Mexican labor at lower wages than Americans would work for are, in effect, exporting jobs to Mexico.

There's no one villain in this act of shipping jobs overseas while so many Americans are unemployed. Manufacturers share some blame. The government which tacitly encourages it is also responsible. And so are the workmen who price their services far above competitive labor abroad.

IT'S THE OTHER 60 PER CENT WHO RAISE THE DICKENS
The old gas about men going to conventions for a good time is being untied by the Manager Hotel chain. It points out that it offers lower rates for wives and children, and that airlines offer special family deals. As a consequence, it reports, 60 per cent of the men attending conventions today take along wives, and many bring along children.

Ill, But Milk Goes Through

ELIZABETH, N.J. (AP) — When Henry Schaper acquired the milk route owned by his father, he knew that faithful service makes good customers.

So for 18 years, Henry has worked seven days a week without a vacation. And he has no immediate plans for a change.

About three years ago, however, Henry became ill and was forced to take two weeks off. But the Schapers carried on.

Henry's wife, assisted by a neighbor and their son Charles, now 14, covered the 20 to 30 mile route by truck each day at 5 a.m. until the father could return to work.

A Thing Of Time, Place And Circumstances

Editors note: — What is a delinquent act? It all depends on who does it, when and why, says a group of experts who have just finished a nine-month study of juvenile delinquency. This is the last of three articles.

By G. K. HODENFIELD
AP Education Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Juvenile delinquency is a thing of time, place and circumstance. The childish prank of a 5-year-old may be hooliganism in a teenager.

Foul language is shocking in a classroom, but passes unnoticed in a street corner gang. To steal for kicks is outright crime, to steal because you're hungry and don't know where your next meal is coming from is crime tempered by the instinct to survive.

Even adults can't always make up their minds about what's right and what's wrong. Some communities permit bingo games, others rule them illegal. Some churches consider bingo immoral, others use it as a source of income for charitable work.

A panel of six experts, who have just concluded a nine-month study of juvenile delinquency for the National Education Assn., says a delinquent act can only be judged in relation to the forces that caused it. The specialists represent the fields of cultural anthropology, pediatrics, psychiatry, psychology, criminology and sociology.

Truancy, or skipping school, is a form of juvenile misbehavior. But what is it?

It may be the healthy rebellion of a normal adolescent who only rarely breaks the rules. It may be conformance to the standards of a gang that hates school. It may be a brief emotional recess from a confining and unfriendly classroom. It may be a serious conflict with overly demanding parents who are pressuring a child to succeed. And it may be a symptom of a child's inability to cope with the realities of his daily life.

There's a big difference in the way adults and youngsters look at things. To the average adult, a misbehaving teen-ager may be maladjusted. But to the teen-ager, what he does is purely justifiable. He's just trying to adapt himself to his family life, his neighborhood, his friends.

Nearly everyone considers himself an expert on juvenile delinquency, and has firm ideas about its causes and cures. But, say the experts, it's not that simple, or delinquency would long since have ceased to be a major topic of national concern.

Over the years, says the NEA study, a great deal of fable and folklore has grown up around the problems of the adolescent. Myths, half-truths and misconceptions are accepted as fact.

Many people, for instance, point to working mothers as a major cause of delinquency. According to the experts, however, the effects of a working mother varies from family to family, neighborhood to neighborhood. More research is needed, they say, before the theory can be accepted.

Broken homes often are blamed. But it may be only because the youngster with two parents to back him gets a better break in court. The youngster from a broken home runs a bigger risk of being sent off to a state institution — and he's the one who gets mentioned in the newspapers.

The proposition that delinquents aren't really bright is a common assumption with little or no scientific support, according to the report.

Another popular idea knocked by the experts is that "a community with many playgrounds is a community with little delinquency." Carefully planned recreation programs can help, they say, if coordinated with other efforts, but their research indicates no direct relationship between such programs and delinquency rates.

West Germany Plans Boost Exports To U.S.

By SAM DAWSON
BONN (AP) — Germany hopes to lower trade barriers with the United States still further as soon as possible — even including the controversial 10 per cent levy on now unwanted American coal. It also plans to encourage a two-way flow of capital investment.

These are the promises of Finance Minister Franz Etzel, Etzel also said in an interview that Germany's troubles with its partners in the European Economic Union are "children's diseases of the common market" and are being worked out. Tax differences, subsidies and production practices are being ironed out. Even the long-term goal of a common currency is capable of final solution.

"Germany shouldn't be a closed shop," Etzel said of trade with America. "It doesn't intend to follow a protectionist policy. The tendency is all toward a liberal trade policy."

But the trade gap with the United States still exists, although it is narrowing, largely thanks to American buying of German autos. West Germany imports more from America than it sells there, but its exports to the United States are growing.

Germany's over-all trade picture, however, is bright and growing brighter, with total exports outweighing total imports so that its gold reserves are impressively high. Japan and other industrially developing countries are giving Germans their keenest competition now.

Before the coal and steel recession here last year Germany had freed 84 per cent of American imports from quota restrictions. Now 81 per cent of American trade is free—leaving some 400 items under controls out of a total of 6,000. Most important still restricted are textiles, plastics, chemicals, glass, ceramics and leather—and the special case of American coal.

American autos, household appliances and electronic equipment may be brought in freely but there is a duty averaging 10 per cent (cars up to 16 per cent) also, autos pay an annual tax based on horsepower, gasoline is costly—and so Germans buy very few American highpowered chariots.

Coal, steel and textiles are the problem children of German industry today. The economy as a whole rose last year and is rising still higher now.

Etzel said that despite the efforts to block American coal imports, cutting down on mining hours from 45 to 40 a week, and of the mining force of 480,000 by 30,000, Germany is still adding 30,000 tons to its stocks every day and now has 14 million tons in reserve.

"If idleness continues in the coal industry," Etzel said, "there is always the danger of Communist infiltration among the jobless."

During the earlier boom years German imports entered into long-term contracts with American mines for a total of 47 million tons, attracted by dropping costs of transportation and cheaper American coal mined by advanced machinery.

Then the steel industry suffered a set back like that the U.S. industry did when the boom turned to recession. At the same time oil imports took an increasing part of coal's markets. Coal piled up. A 10 per cent duty was slapped on American coal to discourage its importation.

"Steel orders are coming in at a good rate now," Etzel says, "and we hope the worst is over."

FIREMEN PAUSED
WATERVLIET, N.Y. (AP)—Six firemen rushed to a downtown alarm — but paused before putting out the fire. First, they had a quick snack with a half dozen boys roasting potatoes in the back yard. Then they turned extinguishers on the camp fire.

Bad companions, heredity, poor physical health and slum neighborhoods also were cited by the experts as oft-quoted causes of delinquency which really aren't. "Juvenile delinquency is not a 24-hour malady," says the report. "It does not develop overnight. Serious and persistent trouble with the law on the part of youngsters can be traced back to a long sequence of cause and effect."

Even the term juvenile delinquency has become "corroded, overworked and useless, except as a dirty word used to strike back at the kids," says Dr. William C. Kvaraceus, director of the NEA project.

"There has been such frequent and indiscriminate use of the words in recent years that they don't really mean anything now."

The current report offers no pat solution for the juvenile delinquency problem because, the experts say, there just isn't any.

The report did make these points, however:

There is a desperate need for more and better research than ever has been attempted in the field.

Community efforts that have proven effective must be expanded, and useless practices discarded.

More and better efforts must be made to identify the delinquency bound youngster before he gets there.

Primarily, it said, "in seeking a cure for delinquency, the neighborhood, not the child, must be the patient."

Summer TV Fare Should Have A Familier Look

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — If, from now through September, you keep having the uncomfortable feeling that you've seen just about everything on your TV screen before, do not be alarmed: you have.

This summer, even more than in previous years, warm weather is repeat, rerun time on the TV networks. If one is a creature of habit, there is no way to miss a flood of Westerns in which you know in advance who rustled the cattle, of whodunits in which you know who triggered the fatal shot. There are, a few bright spots in the program schedules. For instance, the pleasant Chevy Chase, summer replacement for Dinah Shore, will be back on Sunday nights with Janet Blair and John Raitt. The Ed Sullivan Show, as usual, continues through the summer.

Teresa Brewer and Tony Bennett will star in "Almanac" on Saturday nights to fill in for Perry Como. But in place of Steve Allen there will be a bunch of film repeats of another season's "Suspicion" series.

One of the more curious bits of summertime programming is the decision to replace Edward R. Murrow's "Person-to-Person" on Friday nights with Ted Mack and the Original Amateur Hour. The Arthur Murray Party, heretofore a perennial summer replacement is so firmly established now that it too will indulge in the repeat-show activity. A musical show will take over for Lawrence Welk and his crew. Pat Boone's show will also be off for the summer. Andy Williams, who took over for Boone last summer, has moved to another network to fill Garry Moore's variety shoes this season.

The panel and quiz shows will, for the most part, stay on with new shows — live or tape. There are a few new film series which will run with new shows through the summer largely because they haven't been around long enough to store up enough repeats. Milton Berle and his Music Hall will move out to make room for a British comedian named Dave King.

Won't Force Rug On Any Senators

By WHITNEY SHOEMAKER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here's the latest on the capital's carpet controversy: Nobody will force rugs on senators.

Those who want tile floors in their spiffy new office suites may have tile floors.

This is unofficial, but it should comfort anti-carpet senators.

The floors involved in the $150,000 carpet controversy are those in the Senate's shiny new 26-million-dollar office building.

Forty-two senators now occupy quarters there. Each suite consists of five rooms. On the floor of each senator's private office is a pretty green carpet almost a half-inch thick. On the other floors are rubber tiles.

The tiles have brought complaints — from some that they aren't up to standards of senatorial stature and that they provide a slippery surface for secretaries. Carpets are needed, they contend.

On the other side are those who argue that the $150,000 the Senate has voted for carpets would be a waste of the taxpayers' money.

So, they contend, would be the further cost of trimming the bottoms from all the doors to let them open over the carpets.

Unnecessary expenditure, objected Sen. William Proxmire (D-Wis.). He polled his 15 employees and found they were perfectly content with tile.

Entirely uncalled for, said Sen. Paul H. Douglas (D-Ill.). He tried to persuade the Senate to oppose rugs but was floored by a 55-34 count despite his offer to buy rubber heels for the slipping secretaries.

Don't fret about us, said Sen. Clinton P. Anderson (D-N.M.), whose staff perambulates on tile. "We are satisfied," said he.

On the other side, Sen. Richard L. Neuberger (D-Ore.) demanded a carpet for one, a carpet for all. Neuberger retained his billet in the old office building, which is carpeted all the way.

The pro-rug senators say they're concerned about the ladies. High heels and tile floors, they insist, were not made for each other.

Proxmire contends the argument is slippery, not the floors. "I tried it myself and you can't slide," he said.

Proxmire and Douglas have invited the faint of heart to test a non-skid wax which they say will end all quails.

Philip Roof, executive assistant to the Capitol architect, said the slide is only one problem. It's mostly noise, Roof said.

Magnetic Storm Due Solar Flare

SACRAMENTO PEAK OBSERVATORY, N. M. (AP) — An explosion on the sun, described as one of the strongest radio flares ever recorded, kicked up a magnetic storm in the earth's atmosphere Sunday.

Now it is dying out. Astronomers say they expect the last of it Thursday, along with the last of accompanying radio trouble.

Harry Ramsey, chief observer at this mountain top observatory in south central New Mexico, said, "The solar flare was about 100,000 miles in length and 50,000 miles wide."

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

In touring the recent 13th annual New York National Photo Show, the conscientious camera fan would have found it a tough task to see all the new cameras and equipment, listen to all the photo exhibits and take pictures of all the performing acrobats, animals and models available.

I had a head start on such a fan, for I had seen most of the new equipment at the dealers' trade show earlier in Philadelphia. Yet, with a day to spend, I still didn't get to see a "Colorful Caribbean Vacation" with Don Nibbelink, learn "Child Photography" with Gerda Peterich or take Carlyle Trevalyan's short course in movie making.

The trouble was that I got carried away, along with many others, by a couple of on-the-spot demonstrations.

Probably the biggest consistent crowd getter was the Unibath booth. Unibath is the revolutionary darkroom product, which as a single solution, develops and fixes photographic films or prints at the same time.

The one-step processing was demonstrated very convincingly. Photo fans were invited to hand over exposed 35mm cassettes from their cameras. The films were put into daylight-loading tanks containing the Unibath solution and the processing proceeded in full view. In six minutes the tank lid was opened and the fully processed film was revealed. The negatives of the pictures taken at the show had been developed and fixed and were ready for a five-minute washing. By the time the camera fan had seen another demonstration, his film was dry and ready to be taken home.

In between the one-step film processing demonstrations, one-step print processing was shown. This was viewed through a large window covered with orange gelatin to prevent fogging of the sensitive print emulsions, yet permitting the working to be seen.

Prints were developed and fixed within three minutes. The print solution, Unibath CC 3, is not exactly the same as that used for films: CC 1 for normal films and CC 2 for thin-emulsion or high speed films. All of them can be used at any room temperature range and none of them could spoil prints or films left immersed, even for hours.

Another demonstration that drew crowd interest was that of the Beseler Slide-O-Film—a method of making contact copies from negatives or positive transparencies without the use of chemicals or a dark room. It's a physical system of photography in which heat does the developing.

Slide-O-Film comes in 35mm or 2 1/4 by 2 1/4 sizes. It looks like a piece of plastic. When put in contact, emulsion to emulsion, with a negative or positive and exposed to strong light, the resulting image becomes visible instantly when subjected to heat over 200 degrees. Immersion in boiling water will develop the film or heat from an electric iron or a heating element.

By this method, a positive transparency can be made from a favorite negative, for projection on a screen. A color transparency will make a negative which can be used to make black-and-white prints.

The system depends a great deal for its success upon accurately estimating the time for exposing Slide-O-Film. It can range from a couple of seconds to many minutes depending on the density of the original negative or positive.

Mother Superior In Do-It-Yourself Mood

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A tool-box isn't standard equipment for a nun, but Mother Mary Agnes of the Sacred Heart Manor for the Aged finds hers just the thing for her work — particularly when the manor's oil burner is acting up.

Mother Agnes, a member of the Carmelite order and superior of the home for the elderly, has a lot of bills to pay on the new building the home now occupies.

And it costs a good deal of money to provide the "kind, loving care" prescribed by the order for the aged residents.

So when the oil burner went out of kilter and repair men couldn't seem to find the trouble, Mother Agnes took a hand.

The trouble was three-fold. Great billows of black smoke poured from the chimney, parts of the manor were not getting any heat, and one of the glass-enclosed thermostats on the big burner didn't work.

Mother Mary Agnes attacked the thermostat first. She rolled up the sleeves of her habit and poked around until she found a loose connection leading to it. Her tool kit didn't have anything to fix that, so she dug down into her pocket and came up with an adhesive baggie. Mother Agnes wrapped it firmly around the loose connection. Sure enough, it worked.

That victory behind her, Mother

Agnes investigated the burner further. She found the smoke was black because a preheat switch hadn't been thrown to warm the oil. And the reason some parts of the building weren't getting enough heat was that workmen's jackets, hanging on switchboxes, had pulled the switches and cut off the flow of heat to certain areas.

After that, Mother Agnes began watching the serviceman who checked the burner each month. She also sent to the factory for a book of instructions. After the serviceman's final visit last spring, she took over the work of caring for the burner. The manor's 165 residents were comfortably warm all through the past winter, and Mother Agnes saved the $125 yearly maintenance fee.

Would Minimize Welfare Trend

RALEIGH (AP) — A legislative group wants the State Department of Public Welfare to minimize the "sharply increasing trend in the number of persons receiving welfare grants."

A sub-subcommittee said this Wednesday in a report to the Legislature's Joint Appropriations Committee, the five-man study group proposed a reduction of about 6 1/2 per cent in welfare payments during the next biennium to three classes of public assistance recipients.

With one member dissenting, the sub-subcommittee recommended a reduction in payments for old age assistance, aid to dependent children and aid to the permanently and totally disabled.

It also recommended that other assistance programs be held at present levels for the next two fiscal years.

The group said it "greatly disturbed" about the sharply increasing trend in the number of welfare recipients. It proposed that appropriations recommended for the Welfare Department be increased by $2,100,000. The department had asked for an increase of $4,744,935.

Meanwhile, the Appropriations subcommittee tentatively approved an increase of $75,000 above the amount recommended by the Budget Commission for instruction and training of mentally retarded children. This brings the biennial budget for that purpose to $430,225.

Strauss Warns Of Extravagance

GREENSBORO (AP) — Lewis L. Strauss warned here Wednesday night, "Spending more than our government takes in means inevitable postponement of tax reduction."

Strauss, awaiting Senate confirmation of his nomination as secretary of commerce, said deficit spending and "communist imperialism" are the greatest dangers to American security.

Speaking at the 82nd annual dinner meeting of the Greensboro Chamber of Commerce, Strauss declared the United States must maintain its military establishment "no matter what." But he said "inflation may weaken us so we cannot maintain our military establishment."

He added that the U.S. is engaged in a "no-quarter combat with Russia on an economic basis."

Debate Chemical Effects On Leaf

RALEIGH (AP) — House and Senate Agriculture committee today heard a debate on the effect a chemical has on fire-cured tobacco.

Up for hearing at the joint session of the committees was a bill to prohibit the use of maleic hydrazine, sold as MH-30, to control tobacco suckers.

Sen. D. J. Rose of Wayne, Senate Agriculture Committee chairman, was joined by eight other farm area senators last week in sponsoring the bill. It would make sale and use of the chemical a misdemeanor.

The U. S. Rubber Co. manufacturer of the chemical, has objected to the measure. Company spokesmen have argued that claims that MH-30 harms leaf quality have not been backed up by scientific evidence.

Suckers are buds of growth which appear on the tobacco stalk. Removing them by hand is a tedious job. Use of MH-30, which cuts the work considerably, has gained widespread popularity in eastern North Carolina.

At a recent meeting in Raleigh, representatives of tobacco buying companies complained MH-30 injures leaf quality. They warned such leaf would be avoided by buyers on the market floor.

Bullet Barrage Halts Trucks In Coal Violence

CLINTON, Tenn. (AP)—A barrage of shotgun and rifle fire from three hidden locations in the woods halted a convoy of coal trucks headed for TVA's Kingston steam plant Wednesday night.

Three sticks of dynamite were hurled, but did not explode.

No one was injured, but Anderson County deputies said bullets struck the radiators of two of the seven or eight trucks.

The ambush was the latest of a series of violent incidents reported in east Tennessee since the United Mine Workers Union began trying to organize non-union coal operations in the area. The trucks involved in the incident all were owned by non-union operators of small strip mines.

The violence came a week after two dynamite explosions in downtown Jellico, on the Tennessee-Kentucky line, destroyed two coal tipples and damaged much of the Jellico business area.

CORN PRODUCT
RUSSELLVILLE, Ala. (AP) — Sheriff James Hovater stopped a truckload of corn for inspection because it looked too heavy. The corn he found under the corn was the moonshine type—22 1/2 gallon jugs. Robert R. Mitchell was charged with transporting illegal liquor.

Many nations and individuals have been given credit for devising the ancient game of chess.

Starting Shrimp Season Monday

RALEIGH — The season for taking shrimp from North Carolina's inland waters except in New River and its tributaries will open at 12:01, Monday, May 18, William P. Saunders, Director of the Department of Conservation and Development, announced today.

Saunders said the decision to open the shrimp season on May 18 was taken on recommendation of C. G. Holland, State fisheries commissioner, Cecil Morris of Atlantic, chairman of the commercial fisheries committee of the State Board of Conservation and Development, and Dr. A. F. Chestnut, director of the Institute of Fisheries Research at Morehead City.

Shrimp can be taken only from the State's inland waters subject to regulations previously adopted by the State Board of Conservation and Development, Saunders said, and in accordance with a statutory law affecting the taking of shrimp in the waters of New Hanover, Pender and Brunswick counties. All boats must be properly licensed, Holland said.

All State inland waters are closed to shrimping from midnight Saturday until Sunday midnight except in New Hanover, Pender and Brunswick counties.

Holland, who is head of the C&D Department's commercial fisheries division, said investigations in several inland water areas indicated "better signs of shrimp than existed at this time last year."

Bombers Used In Recent Forest Fire Fighting

RALEIGH — Twice during the past 30 days torpedo bombers have been employed to fight forest fires in the Dismal Swamp area of the northeastern part of the state.

Preceded by a small "bird dog" plane, the bomber dips to an altitude of 75 feet and drops 500 gallons of water over the smoldering wilderness.

The results have State Forester P. H. Claridge and his assistant, Paul Tillman, putting in a request for a plane (smaller than the TBM's) to aid in forest fire fighting.

While the state has used small scouting planes for years, the first plane used for dropping water was pressed into service (on loan from the State of Georgia) last April 9-11 to combat a fire raging over 15,000 acres in the Lake Phelps region in Washington County.

A second fire, which broke out May 7 in the Dismal Swamp northeast of Elizabeth City, covering 12,000 acres, was brought under control within five days with the use of another torpedo bomber borrowed from the U. S. Forestry service.

In each of the two fires 15 drops were made producing a combined total of 15,000 gallons of water.

Claridge feels that the use of planes, particularly in this inaccessible area, offer tremendous possibilities—but only as a supplementary aid.

"As in the Air Force, you have to have an Infantry around," he said. "This doesn't take the place of ground forces but the planes can keep the flames down until the crew can get in and fight."

Town's Mayor Is Shot In Court

MADISON, Mo. (AP)—"I saw him pull out the pistol and I grabbed for it, but I wasn't fast enough."

Recovering from a flesh wound across the chest, Mayor Walker Duval of Madison (pop. 375), told how he was shot Wednesday in court.

The 41-year-old Duval, who doubles as police judge, sentenced J. P. Dunaway, 63, to 90 days in jail and a $25 fine for drunkenness. It was the latest in a long series of such sentences for Dunaway, a slightly-built electrician.

But, suddenly Dunaway began cursing and jumped to his feet, pulling a .22 caliber automatic pistol from his pocket.

"I grabbed his wrist and was twisting the gun from his hand when it fired," said the 200-pound mayor.

Dunaway was taken to jail, and Prosecutor James Reinhard said he would investigate the case today.

Dunaway wasn't searched when he was arrested on the drunkenness charge.

"We've never had any reason to expect this kind of trouble from him," explained Duval.

No Doctor Shortage For This Kansas Family

GARNETT, Kan. (AP) — The telephone rings in an upstairs bedroom of the roomy old house. It's 2 a.m.

Dr. Bob Stevens answers sleepily. "Yes, yes, she's here. It's for you, Mildred." He hands the receiver to his wife.

She, too, is a doctor.

Dr. Mildred Stevens listens, assessing the situation. Emergency. She dresses hurriedly.

"I'll take the car with the chains, Bob. It snowed again, and I'm afraid it's slick."

Within minutes, she grabs her 22-pound medical bag, climbs in one of their two cars and drives off.

If Dr. Bob should get a summons while she's away, he'll call one of the neighborhood baby-sitters prepared for just such a contingency. The Stevenses are also parents of a growing family, Laura, 8, Victor, 7, Rhoads, 5, Jane, 3, and James, 2.

With feminine pride, Mildred recalls that she practiced medicine "through all five pregnancies, right up to labor. My patients needed me."

Naturally, she gets more obstetrical cases than her husband, but Bob has plenty to do. Together, they account for 40 to 60 patients a day. But as busy as they are, the doctors manage to find time for their youngsters.

"We usually have a long, pleasant breakfast period with the children," Mildred says. "And we are all at home at noon together for about an hour; and, of course, again at night."

During the day a housekeeper watches the children too young to attend school while the doctors are away at the office, a historic structure built in 1858 as a frontier hotel and stage-coach stop.

"For all I know, Kit Carson might have slept here," Dr. Bob jokes.

They have had the century-old place reinforced and converted. There is a waiting room for 12 to 15 patients who are dispatched to either office by an attendant.

The old kitchen serves as a laboratory. And if Mildred or Bob is puzzled by a case, their offices are handy. Either can step across the hall, like doctors do in the movies, and say, "Doctor, I'd like to have your view on this."

In fact, the Stevens romance reads just like a Hollywood scenario. Both are 36, native Kansans and 1947 graduates, with honors, of the University of Kansas School of Medicine. They met in their pre-med days on the campus at Lawrence.

They were married in April 1947 and got their medical degrees in June. The following year they lived at Kansas City, Kan., near the K. U. Medical Center where Bob interned. Mildred interned at St. Margaret's Hospital in Kansas City, Kan.

Deciding to practice at Garnett, an eastern Kansas community of 3,000 people, they moved here in 1948. Bob put in military service from 1951 to 1952 while Mildred minded the office.

There's no field like medicine, they agree.

But Mildred confides that she would like more time to herself, "an hour or two extra in the morning, and an extra couple of hours in the afternoon," so she could sew.

Only Minor Injuries As Train Plows Into Wreck

FRAZER, Pa. (AP) — A freight train derailed Wednesday night and moments later a passenger train plowed into the wreckage blocking the four main line tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

None of the 41 passengers and 5 crewmen aboard the night express from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh was hospitalized, but three people reported minor injuries. All were brought back to Philadelphia early today on a relief train. The five crewmen on the freight train escaped injury.

Only the locomotive and two of the 44 freight cars stayed on the tracks. The rest ended in a tangled wreckage across the tracks or at the bottom of a 40-foot embankment.

When the passenger train locomotive plowed into this wreckage it overturned and slid down the embankment, but the engineer and firemen climbed out a window uninjured.

Nine baggage and mail cars behind the locomotive also derailed, but another baggage car, a club car and the five passenger cars at the end of the 16-car train stayed on the track.

"We were going about 65 miles an hour, within the 70 mile speed limit," said the engineer of the passenger train, F. W. Drisner, 64, of Philadelphia.

"An emergency signal flashed in my cab. I slammed on the emergency brake. I had no idea what was hit. There was a heavy fog. The next thing I knew our engine was over a gully and on its side. Myself and the fireman got out through a window."

He had just left the suburban Paoli station, about 25 miles from Philadelphia, and was on the outskirts of Frazer when his train reached the derailed Chicago to New York freight. The cause of its derailment was not known. The passengers were thrown to the floor and many were shaken.

Jazzman Sidney Bechet Is Dead

PARIS (AP) — Sidney Bechet, 68, famous jazz musician who came up from New Orleans to international prominence in the world of hot music, died today.

Death was caused by cancer. Bechet had been in failing health for some time and declined rapidly the past few days. He died at his home in Garches, a Paris suburb.

Admits Kidnaping And Slaying Of 6-Year-Old

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — A convicted sex-deviate held in a state mental institution has admitted, police said, the kidnaping and brutal slaying of Ben Wagner, 6, whose battered body was found in a roadside ditch nearly six weeks ago.

Booked today on a charge of first-degree murder was Harold W. McLaughlin, 28, who once was cleared of any connection with the case.

"He ran out of the car and I chased him," Detective Inspector Rudolph Glaser quoted McLaughlin as saying. "I caught him and held him with one arm and stabbed him three times with the knife I always carried in the car. He screamed and tried to fight me."

Ben, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Wagner, was on the way with a young companion to buy ice cream for Ben's three sisters when he was lured into the car Saturday night, April 4. His body was found the next day in a ditch along a rural road 15 miles north of here.

"I just left the body there," McLaughlin told Glaser. "I drove away and then threw the knife away."

"I went to church a week later," McLaughlin said. "I bought a candle for a dollar because it would burn for a week. I lit it for him because I killed him."

McLaughlin, who had undergone treatment in a state institution in 1954, was recommitted last month after he was accused in a disorderly conduct warrant of luring a 5-year-old boy into his car a week before Ben was kidnaped. The younger boy was released unharmed when his friends began to shout. Psychiatrists told the court McLaughlin was feeble-minded.

The first break in the case came when a hunting knife was found 600 feet from where Ben's body was discovered. Tests showed it was stained with blood and held fibers matching those in the clothing Ben wore.

Last Saturday, a knife sheath was found about half a mile from the ditch that held Ben's body. It carried the faint initials "H. W. M."—The same as McLaughlin's.

State Supreme Court Justice George Tilzer called union and hospital attorneys into his chambers Wednesday after angrily asking: "has reason been abandoned by all you people?"

The attorneys had appeared before Tilzer to argue motions by five of the six hospitals for anti-strike injunctions. Tilzer reserved decision.

One hospital, Brooklyn Jewish already has obtained an anti-strike injunction. Tilzer recommended similar motions by the other five hospitals be deferred for a month, that the union cease picketing the hospitals and that the strikers return to work pending a judicial study of the case.

Volunteers are replacing some 3,500 employees who walked out of the voluntary hospitals, with about 2,700 patients. The hospitals have refused to recognize the union local as bargaining agent.

East Carolina Crushes Guilford With 20-1 Victory

By JOHNNY HUDSON
Reflector Sports Writer

East Carolina continued their mastery over North State competition last night at Guy Smith Stadium as they had an easy time with Guilford, posting their twelfth straight win by a 20-1 score.

The Pirates had little mercy on the visiting Quakers as they tallied their second largest run production of the season, ECC had defeated Guilford 25-7 earlier, thus their total runs against the Quakers is 45.

The win insured Coach Jim Mallory of no less than a tie for the North State title, barring a complete relapse, the Bucs have it wrapped up with only two games remaining.

Elon, in second place with 11-4, is the only team with an outside chance for the crown and their odds are very slim. In the event that ECC would lose their final two games, Elon would probably force the Bucs to re-schedule Lehigh. The ECC-Lehigh Rhyme games were rained out earlier in the year.

Quakers Score
The Pirates showed little signs of tiring or slowing down their present pace as they spotted Guilford one run in the second inning and then came back with seven in the third and went on to embarrass the Quakers before three-quarters of a full house at the local stadium.

Wildness on the part of the Quaker pitchers led to their defeat as the five hurlers gave ECC batters no less than 18 walks.

The visitors got the first run of the game in the second when they got to ECC starter, Ben Baker, for three singles and a walk. Tom Johnson and Jim Stutts led off the frame with back-to-back blows and then Baker fanned Buddy Key for the first out. Marcus Allred drew a free pass to load the bases and then Kempt Duncan got a blooper single to score the visitors' only run.

Big Third
East Carolina, trailing for one of the few times this season, came back in the bottom half of the third with seven runs.

Danny Carr held ECC scoreless for the first two innings but his own wildness got him in trouble in the third. Jerry Carpenter led off the frame with the first ECC hit, a single to right field. Gary Pierce and Jimmy Martin drew a couple of walks and Carr was jerked in favor of a righthander, Tom O'Brien.

The reliever had even less success as he walked two men, forcing home two runs and then Al Vaughn's sacrifice fly scored the third. O'Brien got back in trouble again when he walked Ben Baker to load the bases.

Wally Cockrell, ECC centerfielder, collected the second hit of the game for the Bucs but it was a damaging one to the Quakers. Cockrell drove a line drive to left field which Conrad Parker misjudged and Cockrell got credit for a grand-slam homer. Little, the third Quaker pitcher, finally retired the side.

East Carolina got two more in the fourth on a couple of singles by Gary Pierce and Wilbert Castellone and a double by Al Vaughn. The Pirates continued to build up their lead in the fifth when they scored four more runs and brought in the fourth Quaker pitcher, Tom Childress. Singles by Cockrell, Martin, and Bass and a double by Doug Watts highlighted the inning.

Seven Walks
ECC plucked up seven consecutive walks in the sixth inning to pave the way for seven more runs. Cockrell had a single and Vaughn got his second double in the big rally.

Ben Baker went the distance for East Carolina to record his fifth win against no defeats. The southpaw was slow starting but settled down after the second inning and didn't allow a runner to get past second base.

Baker struck out five and walked only two. He gave up five hits with three coming in the second and two in the fifth.

Wally Cockrell and Al Vaughn had the big bats for the winners with three and two hits, respectively. Gary Pierce, entering the game with a .431 average, had one hit in two official trips to the plate.

App's Next
Coach Jim Mallory stated following the game that he was real pleased with his club's play. "We were a little slow starting but a letdown was expected following the Elon game."

East Carolina will be out to clinch the title Friday night when they host a hard-hitting Appalachian club in Guy Smith Stadium. Mallory pointed to Larry Crayton (6-1) as his starter. Johnny Ellen (3-2) will work Saturday's game.

Warriors Sign 'Wilt The Stilt'
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Warriors have signed Wilt (The Stilt) Chamberlain to a one-year contract for more than $30,000, making him the highest paid player in the history of the National Basketball Assn.

The seven-foot plus Negro ace once played for Philadelphia's Overbrook High School. He was an All-America at Kansas University for two years before quitting after his junior year to join the Harlem Globetrotters last season.

Sets New Speed Record For Boat
CONISTON, England (AP) — Donald Campbell drove his speedboat Bluebird twice over a measured kilometer today for an official record of 260.35 miles an hour.

The old record, set by Campbell on the same stretch of Coniston Lake last November, was 248.62 m.p.h.

In the first of today's two runs — one in each direction — required by international rules, Campbell's sleek jet-powered craft hit 275.15 miles an hour.

Coming back over the measured kilometer the British ace was clocked at 245.55 m.p.h.

Campbell, 37, is the son of Sir Malcolm Campbell, famed auto and speedboat driver.

The way now is cleared for Campbell to try for the land speed record of 394.196 m.p.h. held by John Cobb of Britain and set at the Bonneville Salt Flats of Utah in 1947. Work already has started on a car and Campbell said he would make the attempt if he broke the water record.

Warren Spahn Now Fifth Southpaw In Baseball History With 250 Wins

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

In the four score and three years of major league baseball, only four left-handed pitchers ever had won 250 games. Now Warren Spahn is the fifth.

The southpaw put it away Wednesday night, beating the St. Louis Cardinals 3-2, and hoisting the Milwaukee Braves back into the National League lead.

It was Spahn's third shot at No. 250. Now 4-4 for the season, Little, p. he had lost twice since bagging his 249th victory — which also came against the Cards.

Spahn, who joined American League right-hander Early Wynn (253) of the Chicago White Sox as the only active pitchers with 250 victories, was happy, of course, with Wednesday night's decision, but he accepted it like an old pro. "It's just a stepping stone," he said, "to the one I really want — No. 300."

He figures he might reach 300 if he can stay a starting pitcher for at least two or three more years. Now 39, his age-to-victories ratio is in keeping with that of the other four lefties to win 250. Eddie Plank, an American (and Federal) League player, is the top southpaw winner with 325. Lefty Grove won 300. Eppa Rixey (266) and Carl Hubbell (253) are the only National League left-handers who won more than Spahn.

Elsewhere in the NL, San Francisco beat Philadelphia 6-0 on the two-hit pitching of Sam Jones, the Chicago Cubs rapped Cincinnati 10-0 behind Glen Hobbie's three-hitter, and Pittsburgh beat Los Angeles 6-4.

In the American League, the Chicago White Sox defeated Boston 4-0 as Bob Shaw allowed but five hits in his first major league complete game. The rest of the schedule was rained out.

Billy Bruton's eighth-inning home run off Larry Jackson (1-5), who gave up six hits, brought Spahn home a winner at St. Louis. The Cards were blanked on three hits over the last seven innings as Spahn, who fanned six, finished with a seven-hitter and became the 25th pitcher to win 250 in the majors.

Hank Aaron, who has an 18-game hitting streak, was out of the lineup for Milwaukee because of a sore ankle.

Dick Stuart's two-run homer brought the Pirates from behind as they chased Don Drysdale (3-3) with three in the eighth at Los Angeles and slipped the Dodgers a half-game behind Milwaukee. Don Demeter's solo home run had given the Dodgers a 4-3 edge in the sixth against Ron Kline, but reliever Roy Face (5-0) shut them out on three hits over the last three frames. Face has a 10-0 record since last Memorial Day, the longest winning string now alive in the majors. He also has 19 saves in that span.

Jones (3-4) beat the Phils for the fifth time in a row and didn't allow a hit until Willie Jones beat out an infield roller with two out in the seventh. Pinch-hitter Gene Freese singled in the eighth for the other hit off Sad Sam, who hit the NL's season high with 12 strikeouts. A three-run homer by Willie Mays high-lighted a five-run Giants' first against former mate Ruben Gomez (0-2).

Ernie Banks' grand-slam homer triggered a seven-run third for the Cubs against Bob Purkey (4-3) as Hobbie (4-3) handed the Reds five.

their third straight loss. Ed Bailey had two of the hits off Hobbie, who retired the last 12 men in order. It was Banks' sixth slam—first since 1955, when he set the major league one-season record with

Three-Way Tie In ACC Race

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Wake Forest, North Carolina and Clemson were faced today with having to play off a three-way tie for the Atlantic Coast Conference baseball championship.

North Carolina State threw a monkey wrench into Wake Forest's hopes of capturing the title Wednesday with a 9-2 drubbing of the Deacons. This left the three leaders with 9-5 records.

Commissioner Jim Weaver who attended the game in Winston-Salem called representatives of the three leading teams into a huddle and flipped a coin. North Carolina won a bye and will play the winner of the Clemson-Wake Forest game.

When and where the game will be played was to be decided today.

N.C. State, which pulled itself from eighth to seventh in the standings, wasted no time against the Deacons. The Wolfpack collected three runs in the opening inning and worked on five Wake Forest pitchers before the game was finished.

Wilson Carruthers, a sophomore righthander, scattered six hits in going the distance for the Pack. He lost his shutout in the eighth when he served up a two-run homer to Buster Ledford.

N.C. State got back to back doubles in the first inning, followed by a homer by Stacy Wells.

The other game involving an ACC team Wednesday, Virginia at Washington and Lee, was postponed until today because of rain.

N.C. State was to meet North Carolina today in a game that will not count in the ACC standings.

Hobbie Joining Shutout Circle

CHICAGO (AP)—Right-hander Glen Hobbie, the Chicago Cubs sophomore pitching find, moved into exclusive company Wednesday, joining old-timers Warren Spahn and Early Wynn as the major league shutout leaders this season.

The 23-year-old Hobbie, who only three weeks ago tossed a masterful one - hit shutout against St. Louis, blanked Cincinnati in hurling a three-hit, 10-0 victory.

The shutout boosted Hobbie into a tie with 38-year-old Spahn and 39-year-old Wynn with two white washings.

While Hobbie led the Cub staff with a 10-6 record last year and was voted Chicago's top rookie, Manager Bob Scheffing relegated him to the bullpen to sharpen his control.

It was Hobbie's improved control that won the Wilt, Ill., native a job as a starter this year.

Hobbie had some control trouble Wednesday, tossing 150 pitches, and walking five. He struck out six. The victory gave him a 4-3 record and a respectable 2.88 ERA.

"I was a bit wild," said Hobbie. "But I'm getting better control. That's what counts. You should have seen me when I first started pitching."

Durham Defeats Raleigh By 7-1

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Durham defeated Raleigh 7-1 in the only Carolina League game Wednesday night as rain postponed the Winston-Salem-Wilson and Greensboro-Burlington contests.

Jim Roger hurled a six-hitter at Raleigh in handing the Caps their third straight defeat. Dean Robbins homered for Raleigh in the third to prevent a shutout.

Raleigh contributed to its downfall with three costly errors and seven bases on balls. Durham got three runs in the first inning without a hit and added four more in the seventh aided by two errors.

Tonight's games: Winston-Salem at Wilson, Burlington at Greensboro and Raleigh at Durham.

Spahn Says His Real Goal Is 300 Wins

By JIM VALKENBURG

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Milwaukee's great Warren Spahn doesn't rate his 250th victory as his biggest thrill because "it's just a stepping stone to the one I really want—No. 300."

The Braves' left-hander posted No. 250 Wednesday night with a seven-hit, 3-2 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

It had taken the durable 38-year-old Oklahoman two years and one month to go from No. 200 to No. 250—a goal many believed he might not reach. How about 300?

"I was beginning to think I'd never win this one," Warren said, shaking his head. "You're talking about a mighty steep goal."

"One thing is certain—I'll have Spahn's 250th victory is amazing when you consider he didn't win his first major league game until he was 25."

"I won't settle for anything less than 20 victories this season," declared the Braves' elder statesman.

"Sure, I feel fine now, but at my age you can't be that certain about the future."

To remain a starting pitcher at least two or three more years, he said, "You can't win that many in relief."

He failed twice in quest of No. 250 and remarked "these milestones are always tough."

The victory marked Spahn as only the third left-hander in National League history to reach 250. Eppa Rixey won 256 and Carl Hubbell 253.

The only active major leaguer in the 250 class is Chicago White Sox right-hander Early Wynn, with 253.

Gomez Disclaims Trying For Hits

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Despite what opposing batters may sometimes think, Ruben Gomez wants them to know he's not trying to deck them.

"Suppose you hit a guy in the chest or something like that," the Philadelphia pitcher supposed. "He gets on base doesn't he?"

"Say you accidentally kill a man. Maybe he's got two or three children. How would you feel?"

Gomez, subject of much controversy about close-to-the-vest pitching in his seven years in the majors, discussed the fine art of throwing a baseball.

Gomez asserted he's deliberately thrown at only one batter, Giants pitcher Sam Jones.

"It was two, maybe three years ago when Sam was with St. Louis," Gomez recalled. "I got one inside and it just missed Sam. He said, 'I'll knock you down next time you come up, Ruben.'"

"I thought he was kidding. But he threw inside of me, just missing. So I tried to hit him on his next trip. But neither of us connected."

They Set Game Back 100 Years

DETROIT (AP)—This is the centennial of college baseball, and Wednesday Michigan and the University of Detroit set the game back 100 years.

It was a conventional 6-3 game until the eighth inning with Detroit leading. Then Michigan erupted for 21 runs in the final two innings and won 24-10.

The zany game bore considerable resemblance to the first college game between Amherst and Williams in 1839. Amherst won 73-32.

Lane Says Yankees Inaccessible As Well As No Longer Invincible Team

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

An intermittent rain fell and steady sarcasm flowed at New York's Yankee Stadium Wednesday as Frank Lane and Casey Stengel tangled in the latest round of their verbal feud.

Lane, general manager of the American League leading Cleveland Indians, was miffed because the Yankees called off Wednesday's game. Stengel, manager of the sixth-place world champion, shrugged and snubbed the joquacious Lane, just as he did two months ago in spring training.

"I told everybody this spring," said Lane, "that the Yankees weren't invincible. Now they're inaccessible. You can't find them to play them!"

"Maybe," said Stengel, when informed of Lane's remarks on the postponement, "somebody will talk too much some time."

The afternoon game the finale of a two game series which opened with a 7-6 Cleveland victory Tuesday night, was called before noon. Both Lane and Indian manager Joe Gordon expressed surprise that the game wasn't rescheduled for today, an open date for both the Indians and the Yankees.

The Yankees, who explained they don't reschedule games that quickly because they feel it is bad business since they can't publicize the new date properly, said they had been informed that it would rain Wednesday afternoon and today. For the record, there was no rain at game time at the stadium, but it did rain later in the afternoon.

Gordon, an ex-Yankee, was quoted in the Cleveland News as saying the Yankees "must be afraid to play us. They want to wait and play us when they're going better."

Lane voiced similar thoughts about the Yankees, who are 0-3 against the Indians this season. "You can bet," said Lane, "that if they had beaten us Tuesday night, they'd have played."

"They're stalling," he added, "until Bill Skowron is all right again. (The Yankee first baseman has a leg injury.) The Yankee physician called this game off not Stengel."

The second place White Sox won the only game played in the American League Wednesday, closing within a game of the Indians as Bob Shaw blanked the Red Sox on five singles, 4-0 at Boston. Rain washed out the Kansas City at Baltimore and Detroit at Washington games.

In the National League, Warren Spahn gained his 250th victory and Milwaukee regained a full share of first place in a 3-2 decision at St. Louis. Pittsburgh slipped Los Angeles to second, beating the Dodgers 6-4. San Francisco defeated Philadelphia 6-0 on Sam Frank Sullivan, now 1-2. Dick Jones' two-hitter. And Glen Hobbie gave up only three hits as the Chicago Cubs beat Cincinnati 10-0.

Two out singles by Jim Landis, Sherm Lollar, Del Ennis and Earl Torgeson gave the White Sox two first-inning runs against loser Frank Sullivan, now 1-2. Dick Gernert had two of Boston's hits. Ted Williams had one, his first in eight at-bats this season.

Shaw, 25, didn't walk a man and struck out three as the White Sox won their fifth in a row. He retired the last 12 men in order while gaining his first complete game in the majors. It was only his sixth start in a three-year career, first this season after 14 relief appearances. He has a 2-0 record.

Some Officials Are Resigned To Eventual Khrushchev Visit

By JOHN SCALI

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Eisenhower administration appears reconciled to a possible visit by Premier Nikita Khrushchev to the United States this summer.

Top officials are talking seriously about whether to combine a Khrushchev trip with a summit conference in some American city. This signals a change in attitude by authorities whose views would be important in deciding the issues. Until now, they have stressed the difficulties involved in a Khrushchev visit or choosing an American site for a summit conference.

If plans for a summertime summit meeting collapse, there is some prospect the bouncy Soviet leader will force the issue by asking to be allowed to open the Soviet Exposition in the New York Coliseum June 30.

President Eisenhower probably would say "yes" to such a request. The President would have no alternative, many officials believe, now that the Soviets have agreed to allow Vice President Richard M. Nixon to open an American National Exposition in Moscow July 25. Khrushchev has made no official move yet to set up an American visit. But Soviet authorities in Moscow have made it known that "a senior official" undoubtedly would go to New York to open the Soviet exhibit.

The Soviets are believed holding off a decision as to whom to send until they see how much progress the foreign ministers meeting in Geneva makes in setting a time and place for a summit conference.

If an American site is agreed upon and an August date fixed, Khrushchev probably would send someone else to the fair. The role of the Soviet dictator is known to be anxious to visit the United States, mainly to strengthen his prestige at home and abroad.

In a speech to the Soviet party congress in Moscow Feb. 5, he said Eisenhower was discriminating against him by making it difficult to visit the United States in the guise of a private citizen as did Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan in January. He referred again to the possibility of such a visit last week in addressing a group of American veterans, Prague radio reported.

Mikoyan visited informally with the explanation he was a private guest of Ambassador Mikhail Menshikov. Eisenhower told newsmen afterward that since Khrushchev was the head of government it would be impossible to treat his visit as informally.

The biggest obstacle to a Khrushchev visit remains the massive security problem. Hundreds of government security officers and policemen would be required to guard his every step. Authorities are very much aware that an assassin's bullet might create a grave international crisis.

But security authorities, having handled the hectic Mikoyan visit, as well as that of Cuba's Prime Minister, Fidel Castro, are confident that they could handle the job.

Some officials also are veering to the belief that there would be a net gain for this country in having Khrushchev take a firsthand look at the vigor and strength of American democracy.

Johnny Is Okay, Just Needs Rest

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — His wife says there isn't anything wrong with nightclub and TV comedian Jonathan Winters except that he needs a rest.

She had him removed from San Francisco General Hospital Wednesday night to rest home. He was taken to the hospital by harbor police Tuesday after a ticket taker on a museum ship reported his behavior as unusual.

His wife, Eileen, flew out Wednesday from Mamoroneck, N.Y., after spending three hours with him in the psychiatric ward, she declared.

"He'll be all right. He's just tired out."

His agent, Martin Goodman, said the ticket taker "Didn't understand that the man is a comedian. He's sensitive. He's like a little boy. You have to expect those types to act differently than the ordinary person."

Dr. T. E. Albers, the hospital superintendent, said the Winters was "quite disturbed. He is definitely in need of further care."

Put Unsightly Signs In Pacific

REDONDO BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Signs have been bobbing up in the Pacific for months. More than 200 of them. And, simultaneously, for-rent and for-sale signs have been vanishing as rapidly as put up by real estate firms in Redondo Beach. The mystery's solved now. A real estate man, Phil Mehan, found a leading citizen trying to swipe a sign. He considered the signs made the area look ugly, he explained. So he just jerked them out and dumped them in the ocean. There won't be any prosecution.

One Crewman Killed When Navy Blimp Hits Hangar

LAKEHURST, N.J. (AP) — One crewman was killed early today when a Navy blimp crashed into a hangar while attempting to land in a dense fog. Six crewmen were hospitalized and several others suffered minor injuries.

The wreckage was wedged in the hangar roof 150 feet above the ground.

Rescue workers clambered over the roof and removed the injured crewmen who had been trapped in the blimp's gondola. Names of the dead man and the injured were withheld by the Navy pending notification of next of kin.

The freak accident left the wreckage near the top of the 150-foot high hangar. The whole roof top was shrouded by the limp folds of the blimp's great gas bag. Rescuers had to reach the scene with aerial ladders and then tunnel beneath the deflated bag to reach the gondola car where the injured lay. It had rammed partially through the hangar roof and remained stuck fast.

The ZPG-2 blimp was returning from a routine 21-hour anti-submarine patrol early this morning. It was making a radar-controlled instrument approach through a swirling fog that blanketed out everything more than 100 feet away.

"They probably never saw the ground until after the hit," said Lt. Cmdr. Herman Spahr, administrative officer of Squadron 3 to which the craft was attached.

"The fog was so bad we radioed the blimp to gain altitude and try to come in again," said Spahr. It was just picking up speed to 45 miles an hour when it hit.

The huge bag was ripped by the wreckage and its million cubic feet of helium wooed out through its rent sides. The gas is non-inflammable and dispersed without harm into the fog.

Rescuers at first were unable to locate four officers and two men beneath the entangling sheets of the 343-foot long bag. They were found in the fore part of the metal alloy gondola.

After almost five hours one of the officers was pried loose. He was taken down a ladder strapped in a litter. The shirt of one of the litter bearers was smeared with blood.

The crew members in the rear of the car were unhurt and made their way down ladders to safety. Spahr said rescuers had talked to the two trapped officers but were having difficulty freeing them.

Spahr said the landing was a "routine instrument approach, the

Tass Complains 'Provocations'

LONDON (AP) — The Soviet News Agency Tass charged today that airlift anniversary celebrations in Berlin were provocative and aimed at worsening the political atmosphere during the Geneva conference.

The Tass dispatch, broadcast by Moscow radio, cited recent visits to West Berlin by high-ranking U.S. generals and high-altitude flights to the city by American planes as other examples of provocation.

Shockwave Safeguards For Siberia Are Sought

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Two scientists disclosed today they are taking steps to prevent reflected shock waves from breaking windows and causing other damage in Soviet Siberia when they use big nuclear bombs to create a new harbor in Alaska.

As planned by the U.S. government, five nuclear bombs will be set off, probably in 1961, to excavate a harbor in Kotzebue Sound, on the northwestern Alaska coast.

The site is only about 200 miles from Siberia. The researchers said they had learned that under certain conditions shock waves could carom off upper air layers and return to earth more than 300 miles away with damaging effect.

Blast waves from the bombs ride on air-ducting layers, said J. W. Reed and H. W. Church of the Sandia Corp. They addressed the second Plowshare Symposium on Industrial and Scientific Uses of Nuclear Explosions. The symposium is sponsored by the Atomic Energy Commission and the University of California's Lawrence Radiation Laboratory. The Sandia Corp. is a privately owned organization which makes nuclear weapons for the government, operating at Los Alamos and Albuquerque, N.M., and at Livermore, Calif.

It was these air-ducting layers that caused shock waves from the Nevada atom bomb tests to leap frog over the immediately surrounding area and come down 70 miles or more away on Las Vegas and other inhabited places with window-busting effect, Reed and Church said.

There are three air-ducting layers, they added. One is about 6,000 feet up, another at around 35,000 feet, and a third at 100,000 to 150,000 feet.

About one-third of the time at Kotzebue a ducting layer will be present below 50,000 foot altitude. When a bomb produces a shock wave capable of instantly boosting atmospheric pressure momentarily by about 3 per cent, a duct can carry the shock 100 miles and break windows, the researchers said.

There would be one chance in 10, they added, that it could carry enough pressure 70 miles to break most windows and some doors.

During the spring of 1961 the scientists plan to establish the air-ducting pattern around the Kotzebue area with conventional explosives. The idea will be to protect inhabited Alaska areas as Siberia.

The problem is to find out whether Siberia would be in the line of reflected shock waves during early fall or spring, the researchers said.

If it is found that excessive shock pressures will be carried to Siberia during certain periods, the nuclear firing will be delayed until the duct pattern shifts.

Prices Up, But Cost Stabilized On State Autos

By LYNN NISBET

RALEIGH — The purchase price of new automobiles bought by North Carolina for State use runs $200 to $500 above the prevailing price before the Big Three manufacturing companies discontinued the policy of discounts for government purchases.

The actual cost of the cars has not been increased very much. This seeming contradiction is explained by State policy of earlier sale of used cars. Several years ago the policy was to sell cars two years old and buy new ones to replace them. The re-sale time was cut to 18 months, and now it is fairly well stabilized at one year.

The State purchases are exempt from Federal and State taxes, which means that without the former discount on invoice price, the State can buy a car for several hundred dollars less than market price. Depreciation after one year's use is usually about the same as the base saving, which means the State gets use of the car almost for free.

Paul Johnston, director of administration, said that some State cars were sold in January of this year after 12 months use at just about what they cost. On several others bought at the same time and sold three months later the State took a "loss" of around $200.

It was the alleged too quick sale of government used cars which tended to depress the open used car market that led the big manufacturers to abandon the discount. By cutting the use period before sale in half North Carolina, and presumably other states and governmental units, have avoided additional costs. What the "automakers" (a new word coined by the American Society for Public Administration) will do to meet this new challenge is not known. State and local governments probably will come up with some device to defeat whatever scheme the big companies put into effect.

Cape Cox, Mass., was once so thinly settled that a house with a shed was called a "village."

Woman Served In Union Army

MASSILLON, Ohio (AP) — In West Brookfield Cemetery near here is a stone with this inscription: "Mary Owens Jenkins — Served in the Civil War 1861-1865 in Co. K, 9th Penn. Vol. Cav. under the name of John Evans."

According to the story, Mary Owens — rather than be parted from the man she loved — dressed as a man, assumed the name John Evans and enlisted in the Union Army. She was discovered 18 months later following the battle of Gettysburg, in which her sweetheart was killed and she wounded.

She returned to her home near Youngstown, Ohio, the story goes, and later married Able Jenkins.

PLAN HITS TAVERNS

Chevy pickup pulls through "bottomless" pastures to keep stock fed!

At the Hall Bros. Dairy Farm, Montgomery, Ala., they say this 4-wheel drive Chevy will go anywhere to keep stock fed—even through hub-deep muck that makes it a fight all the way. And yet after a full year of it—no mechanical trouble of any kind!

That Chevy pickup may not win any beauty awards (till it's cleaned up). But it's sure walking off with the top prize for dependability. And that's standard Chevrolet procedure. Put a Chevy truck to work and it keeps on working until you say quit. Not before.

We aren't claiming that every Chevrolet truck is turning out to be a miracle-worker and averaging 100,000 miles before a valve job. (Even though some are going 150,000!) You're sure to find, however, that you can't buy more truck dependability at any price. And that's borne out by the fact that more truck owners put their faith, and their payloads, in Chevrolets than in any other make.

Take your load and schedule figures to your Chevrolet dealer. He'll specify the best way to handle both and save in the bargain.

No job's too tough for a Chevrolet truck!

Now's the time—see your local authorized Chevrolet dealer for a real truck buy!

Not Only Democrats, But Ike Too May Be On Spot

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower may have put not only the Democratic Congress but himself on a political spot with his demand for speedy action on highway, housing and wheat legislation.

Eisenhower caught the Democrats by surprise Wednesday with a special message outlining the damage to the economy that may result in these three politically potent fields if Congress dawdles.

There seemed little doubt that Democrats will answer the President's request for emergency action with passage of a series of bills calling for government spending far beyond the limits Eisenhower has said he is willing to accept.

Because he emphasized the critical nature of the problems, Democrats think the President has put himself in a position where he may find it difficult to veto such measures.

Beyond that, the opposition party believes it can use the President's own words — such as his statement there is an "impending disaster in wheat" — to build up strength for attempts to override any vetoes that may be forthcoming.

Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, Acting Senate Democratic leader, made it clear his party has no intention of yielding to Eisenhower's views on important aspects of highway, housing and wheat legislation. A similar reaction came from House Democratic leaders.

Mansfield said, for instance, there is no possibility that Congress will even consider increasing the gasoline tax from 3 to 4 cents a gallon. Eisenhower had asked the increase to finance additional grants to the states for construction of interstate highways.

There is no dispute in Congress over Eisenhower's request for additional loan insurance authority for the Federal Housing Administration. But both the Senate and a House committee have included this in general housing bills which contain features to which Eisenhower objects. Mansfield said the housing bills will not be pared down to the limits the President wants.

The House Agriculture Committee answered Eisenhower's plea for lower wheat supports by voting Wednesday to maintain these price props at 90 per cent of parity for the next two years, instead of the 75 per cent supports now in effect. The House committee did approve a 30 per cent reduction in wheat acreage allotments.

There were strong indications, however, that neither the house nor the senate would accept the committee bill in its present form.

Corn Mill Sees Business Dying

OLD CHURCH, Va. (AP) — "We are doing more business every year, but consumption per capita is getting less. It is a dying business."

That's what John Beattie says of his corn grinding mill here. His father bought it in 1906 and father and son have operated it since. "People just don't cook any more," Beattie said. "I think the time will come when they stop cooking entirely."

FBI Finds One Of Its 'Top Ten'

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — A nationwide search for Emmett Bernard Kervan, one of the FBI's 10 most wanted men, ended Wednesday night with his arrest in a garage apartment here.

The 51-year-old Kervan, unarmed and clad in pajamas, didn't resist FBI agents.

Kervan had been sought in connection with the holdup of the East Norwalk, Conn., branch of the Merchants Bank and Trust Co. last Feb. 5. A gunman robbed the bank of $29,445.

FBI Agent Francis Crosby said Kervan apparently arrived in El Paso late in February and rented the garage apartment late in March.

CHAPTER 32
As we reached the sidewalk after the radio patrol officers had taken charge of Mortimer Jasper, I said to Sergeant Frank Sellers in a low voice, "I suppose you'll want me along to help you when you question Sylvia Hadley?"

"To help me what?" Sellers asked.

"Question Sylvia Hadley," I whispered.

He threw back his head and laughed. "Listen, Pint Size, don't get exaggerated ideas! Your partner, Bertha Cool, claims you're brainy. That's highly questionable, but don't let your publicity go to your head."

"You mean you don't want me any more?"

"I don't want any part of you, Lam. Get lost. Go home."

With that, Frank Sellers walked over to Sylvia and Inspector Giddings. He was in great good humor. "All right, sister," he said to Sylvia, "we're on our way."

They climbed in the squad car. Giddings took the wheel, Sellers slammed the door. "Get lost, Pint Size," he said to me.

I had seen a service station three blocks down the street. I walked down to it. It was pretty painful going. I got the service-station attendant to stake me to some dimes on the agency's credit card, and called Bertha.

"Where the devil are you?" Bertha demanded.

"I'm at a service station in the 5800 block on Carrollton Drive. I'm in trouble."

"You're always in trouble. What is it this time?"

"A couple of goons stole the agency car."

"What would anybody want with that heap?"

"They didn't want the car," I said. "They wanted to put me in a foot. I need an automobile. I've got to have transportation. I've been beaten up pretty bad."

"Again?"

"Where did you say you were?"

"At 58th and Carrollton Drive."

"All right," Bertha said. "I'll get out there."

"I've been bloodied up a bit," I said. "I keep a suitcase packed at the office. If you could pick up that suitcase, I'd have a clean shirt and I could change."

"All right," Bertha groaned. "I'll do it. If there's anything in the theory of reincarnation, you must have been a football in your past life."

"Or a punching bag," I said, and hung up.

I called Phyllis Crockett. "Officers are going to see you to ask you to identify a jade Buddha as the missing night. Identify it, but don't do any more talking than you have to. Tell them you're waiting for me, that I've phoned I'm on my way up there. Be sure to tell them that."

I didn't wait to give her a chance to ask questions or argue but hung up the phone.

It was half an hour before Bertha got there.

She looked at me and said, "What a blankety-blank mess!"

"That's what I told you. You brought the suitcase?"

"Yes."

"Got any money?"

"What do you mean, have I got any money?"

"I said, 'Mine's gone.'"

"Now look, Donald," Bertha said, "you've got a right to carry a gun. Your license gives you the right to do that. Why don't you get one so you can protect your self instead of letting everybody beat you up?"

"Guns," I said, "cost sixty to seventy-five dollars—a good kind of a gun that I'd want to carry. Then every time they beat me up they'd take the gun away, and I'd go broke buying guns."

"You would, at that," Bertha agreed, without any sympathy.

"Now you want a car. How the devil am I going to get back to my apartment?"

"There's a phone," I said. "Call a taxi while I'm changing my clothes. Charge it on an expense account to Mrs. Crockett. If you want I'll phone for the cab and pay for it, but I want some money."

Bertha took out her purse grudgingly, counted out five dollars and said, "That's going to last you until tomorrow morning."

"About tomorrow morning," I said, "you'll hear from the police department, maybe sooner. They'll ask what's the idea of leaving the agency car parked in front of a fireplug."

"You think they'll park it in front of a fireplug?" she asked.

"Absolutely."

"You do the darndest things," Bertha groaned, and squeezed herself into the telephone booth to phone for a taxi.

I took the suitcase to the washroom, changed my clothes, washed off some of the dried blood on my face, and surveyed the swollen wreckage in the wavy mirror.

By the time I came out Bertha had left in the cab.

I checked the gas in the car she had brought. It was half full.

I drove back down Carrollton Drive and took a look at Jasper's house as I went by. There was a police car in front of the place. They were still sitting on Jasper, waiting until Sellers could get back with a search warrant.

I drove down about half a block and parked the car.

I got out and went together, I knew that while I had been talking with Jasper he had only pretended to hear the phone ring in the other part of the house. What had actually happened, he'd gone to the phone and called his goons, told them to come and take care of me.

In order to do that, the men he called to be close by. There wasn't time for them to have come from any distance. I felt pretty certain these men would be abreast of developments and would be keeping an eye on the place, so I checked the license number of every automobile that went past on Carrollton Drive.

A car came by that slowed down as it went past Jasper's house.

I got my car into motion and caught up with the other car about four blocks down the street. It was a late model sedan, license number NFE 799. Two fellows were in the front seat. They were big guys.

I felt pretty certain the man at the wheel was the ape who had kicked at my ribs when I had grabbed his foot and pulled him down to the ground.

They turned to the right on 54th Street. I kept right on going to 63rd, then made a U-turn, beat it back to the place where I'd been, and waited.

In about five minutes the same car drove past again. Once more I followed the car. This time they drove down to the service station and stopped. The big man got out from behind the wheel and went into the phone booth.

I parked half a block down the street.

In about two minutes the big man dashed out of the phone booth, jumped in the car and they went away from there fast. I tagged along behind, taking a chance, keeping as close as I dared.

They made three right turns around the block, got back to Carrollton Drive, turned left, and went to 61st street. They turned right on 61st, then turned left into a driveway.

I marked the place, went on down 61st for two blocks, made a U-turn and came back.

Their car was in the driveway. The men were at the front door of the little bungalow. A moment later they entered and lights came on in the bungalow.

I parked my car and hurried over to the sedan in the driveway. I put on gloves and tried the door. It was unlocked.

The police got there right on schedule. They were plenty mad. . . . And Donald is caught in his own trap as the story reaches a climax tomorrow.

Wilson Singing Convention Set

WILSON—L.A. Hagwood, President of the Eastern Carolina Singing Convention, and the Wilson Junior Chamber of Commerce announced today that they would have their 19th Annual Singing Convention on Sunday, May 24, at Fleming Memorial Stadium in Wilson.

Music Lovers are invited to attend and hear some of the South's best gospel singing groups. It will get underway at 10:00 a.m. and will continue until late afternoon. Admission is free.

Many families follow the tradition of bringing their lunch and spending the entire day. This is in keeping with the informality of the convention. The Wilson Jaycees will have in operation a concession stand for the convenience of the many visitors.

This annual event is sponsored by the Wilson Junior Chamber of Commerce. Members of the Wilson Jaycees have made preparations to accommodate several thousands. The convention has grown in attendance from 1,300 when it was organized in 1940 to between 10,000 and 15,000.

Senate Vote On Dillon's Promotion Is Postponed

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Senate vote on C. Douglas Dillon's promotion to the No. 2 spot in the State Department has been delayed at the request of Sen. Russell B. Long (D-La.).

Dillon won a 16-1 vote of approval from the Senate Foreign Relations Committee yesterday of his nomination by President Eisenhower as first under secretary of state. That is the post Christian A. Herter held before being named secretary of state.

Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.), acting majority leader of the Senate, said Long had requested a postponement of Senate action on the nomination until next week.

Mansfield, a strong supporter of Dillon, said that under senatorial courtesy he had no choice but to comply with Long's request.

Chairman J. William Fulbright (D-Ark.) of the Foreign Relations Committee predicted overwhelming confirmation of Dillon.

Long said that to him Dillon is the symbol of what Long called waste and mismanagement in the Foreign Aid Program.

In a Senate speech yesterday, he asked senators to reserve judgment until he has developed his case. He declined to say when he would be ready to start his day or two of speechmaking against Dillon's approval.

The fight over Dillon, which few Senate observers think is strong enough to prevent confirmation, delayed consideration of Ogden R. Reid, President Eisenhower's nominee for ambassador to Israel.

The 33-year-old Reid, former editor and president of the New York Herald-Tribune, is to appear before the Foreign Relations Committee again next Tuesday.

Fulbright said he hoped to get a vote on Reid Tuesday, but added he could not forecast how long other committee members might question Reid.

License-Plating Taboos Invoked

TRENTON, N.J. (AP)—A new list of taboos by the State Motor Vehicle Bureau makes New Jersey license plates a little more formal.

More than 350 three-letter combinations, including wit, wag, cad, cur, gal and kkk have been ruled out. The animal kingdom, represented by words from ape to zoo, also is on the taboo list.

The new prohibition also bans rye, rum and gin an assortment of political and organizational initials.

In Brainerd, Minn., is a huge image of Paul Bunyan, the folk hero of lumberjacks who was said to have used a trimmed pine tree for a pencil.

The cardinal is one of the few female birds that sings. Most male birds of all species sing.

Finance Group Favors Tax Withholding Plan

RALEIGH (AP) — The House Finance Committee favors a proposed state income tax withholding plan.

The committee approved the plan Wednesday by 38-13 after beating down several amendments one of which would have eliminated the windfall feature estimated to bring in 27 1/2 million dollars.

However, several lawmakers who voted for the plan reserved the right to oppose it later. Some argued against approving the plan for fear it would be a directive to the Appropriations Committee to limit spending.

The committee indicated it likes the windfall feature of the pay-as-you-go tax plan by rejecting 37-17 an amendment by Rep. George Uzzell of Rowan. The amendment would have eliminated the windfall by forgiving a portion of the income taxes for one year.

Gov. Hodges' proposed budget for the next biennium is based on having a withholding plan and its windfall would come as a result of having to pay two years income taxes in a single year.

Among other legislative developments:

The House passed a bill to protect a minister against having to testify in court about confidential conversations with members of his congregation. The measure already has passed the Senate but must be sent back there for concurrence in House amendments, regarded as a certainty.

The House Roads Committee approved a bill which is expected to save money for towns in right-of-way costs for highways and maintenance of streets on the highway system.

The Senate Public Utilities Committee amended and then approved a House-passed bill which validates free telephone agreements between cities and phone companies.

Payton Stresses Low Wage Scale

WASHINGTON (AP) — Boyd E. Payton, Carolina director for the Textile Workers of America, says a majority of workers in Gaston and Cleveland counties in North Carolina "get very little above the legal $1 per hour."

Payton, testifying before a Senate Labor subcommittee considering proposals to raise the federal minimum wage from $1 to $1.25 hourly, said Wednesday some textile mills will pay $1.25 an hour only if required to do so by law.

"We believe more than half of the employees in Southern textiles are today paying the $1.25 minimum wage and that more than half of the employees are getting the higher minimum because the larger companies were first to adopt this higher rate. However there are still many chiselers — many mills which refuse to pay a penny more than they must," he said.

"We still have wide areas where the great majority of the employees get very little above the legal $1 per hour. This is true in Gaston and Cleveland counties in North Carolina where there must be 100 yarn mills. Other such areas exist in the South."

A statement from William Pollock, general president of the TWUA, called the $1.25 minimum wage proposal practical and necessary.

It would take 30 pounds of natural strawberry juice to get enough flavoring for 100 pounds of candy as against one-half ounce of artificial flavoring.

Bomber To Carry Winged Missile

WASHINGTON (AP) — A missile that unfolds its wings to fly may be used aboard a new version of the B-52 heavy jet bomber to confuse the enemy, Boeing Airplane Co. said today.

The missile, the McDonnell Quail, is 10 feet long, resembles a midjet pilotless airplane. But when the bomber launches the missile the Quail darts away at the same speed as the bomber.

Because of techniques that are still secret, the Quail shows up on enemy radar screens as the same size as the bomber. Thus an enemy would be unable to determine whether it was a big bomber or the decoy.

White Lamps On Tractor Illegal

White lamps on the rear of farm tractors when operating on the highways at night are illegal, according to Cpl. Titus Martin of the State Highway Patrol.

In an interview today, Cpl. Martin stated there have been several accidents this year involving farm tractors and in at least one case the accident was directly due to improper lighting of the tractor.

Martin said to comply with the law, any farm tractor operating on the highway at night should have at least one white lamp visible for 155 feet to the front of the vehicle. Also the tractor should have at least one red lamp visible for at least 500 feet to the rear. The patrolman added two red reflectors, at least four inches in diameter, are permissible in lieu of the red lamp on the rear. For added safety, he commented, the operator of the tractor could have both the red lamp and the reflectors.

Martin said many accidents are caused each year by motorists running up on farm equipment due to the slow speed of the machine and the illegal lighting of it.

Says Opposition Is Spite Attack

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Norris Cotton (R-NH) described the opposition to Lewis L. Strauss for secretary of commerce today as "an example of a spite attack."

"With business on the upturn and the easing of the Berlin tension," he said, "it's open season for political sniping and petty feuding."

Cotton is a member of the Senate Commerce Committee which has had Strauss' nomination for the cabinet post under consideration since Jan. 17.

Sen. Warren G. Magnuson (D-Wash.), the committee chairman, held out the possibility that the hearings might end today with rebuttal testimony at an afternoon session from Strauss and Sen. Clinton P. Anderson (D-NM), one of Strauss' chief critics.

May Be Weeks Or Months Before Crash Story Aired

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — It will be weeks possibly months, before the public knows the causes of two airliner accidents — 300 miles and 38 minutes apart — that claimed 33 lives. Both involved Capital Airlines planes bound for Atlanta.

A mysterious explosion ripped apart a turboprop Viscount high over Maryland, hurling all 31 aboard to their deaths. The tragedy occurred at 5:18 p. m. Tuesday 15 miles east of Baltimore when the air was turbulent from a thundersquall.

Just 38 minutes earlier, a giant Constellation landing at Charleston, W. Va., toppled over the end of a runway and burst into flames, killing two of the 44 persons aboard.

The Viscount was en route from New York non-stop. The Constellation came from Buffalo, N. Y., via Pittsburgh.

Civil Aeronautics Board investigators converged on both locations but made it clear, after a full day's work, that it would take a long time to get any specific answers.

Was there a bomb on the Baltimore plane? This was the question everyone answered and it had no answer. CAB and Capital officials would not comment except to say they were examining every piece of evidence.

"We're still digging," said Joseph O. Pilet of Washington. "It would be impossible to expect to find a positive cause in the length of time we've been here."

Investigators also searched for documents believed to have been carried by one of the victims, Charles W. Drannbauer of Kansas City.

He was an American Telephone and Telegraph Co. communications engineer in charge of the Eastern Air Defense Force sector's communications, which is handled by AT&T.

There was early speculation Drannbauer carried top secret documents but an AT&T spokesman at Kansas City said any papers he might have been carrying were classified and that "any inference that the documents were top secret is not correct."

The AT&T spokesman said papers Drannbauer "might" have been carrying certainly were not worthy of any effort like that (sabotage), but then you never know about such things."

Maryland's chief medical examiner, Dr. Russell S. Fisher, said autopsies of the 31 victims were completed late Wednesday. His verdict on cause of death: "extreme multiple injuries."

Three Arrested On Theft Counts

Three Negro youths have been arrested for the theft of two record players from Nichols Negro School near Bell Arthur.

The three were identified by the Sheriff's Department as: Wesley Lee Washington, 19, of Rt. 1, Box 288, Greenville; Sam Ray Atkinson, 19, Rt. 2, Farmville and A. J. Freeman, 20, Rt. 1, Greenville.

Deputy Ralph Tyson said one of the record players was recovered. Officers were told the second one was thrown in a pond.

The three, all charged with breaking and entering and larceny will be tried in County Court June 2.

Officers reported the first of the record players was taken from the school in September and the second one about a month ago.

The arrests were made by Deputy Tyson and G. W. Riley.

Mrs. Wheelless and other winners will be guests of honor at a presentation dinner Monday in Kinston.

C. J. Goodman Is Lions' Speaker

FOUNTAIN — Assistant County Agent C. J. Goodman was guest speaker Tuesday night at the regular meeting of the Fountain Lions Club.

Goodman discussed a recent tour of mid-western swine production facilities and used colored slides to illustrate his comments. He pointed out that strict sanitation, a sound feed program, adequate housing and good breeding from foundation stock was necessary for a successful swine rearing operation.

Guests at the meeting included District Deputy Governor James E. Groves of Beaufort and farmers of the Fountain community. President D. Calvin Stokes presided.

Mrs. Stone, Executive Director of the North Carolina Division of the American Cancer Society, spoke at the meeting held last night at the Sheppard Memorial Library.

She told the board of the advances being made in research and of the importance of stressing the seven danger signals of cancer. She added that cancer is the number two killer in all age groups.

Mrs. Stone complimented the group on its crusade and the excellent service rendered by it this year.

Three new members of the board of directors were introduced at the meeting last night. They were: Dr. Georgia Mills, Mrs. C. L. Lupton, both of Greenville, and Mrs. Cherry Easley of Farmville.

It was reported, during the past six months 16 cancer patients have been helped with a total of $855.62 being spent. Also education.
