

Khrushchev Raises 'Stone Wall' To Western Proposal

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
GENEVA (AP) — The expected stone wall of Soviet opposition to day faced the Western proposal to end the Berlin crisis. The proposal calls for gradual reunification of Germany and a start toward a European security system.

Soviet spokesmen at the Big Four foreign ministers conference said the plan would get careful study.

But Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev made clear in a speech in Kishinev that the Soviet position is exactly what it has been.

He declared West Berlin "must become a free city" — short of its Western defense forces. He renewed his call for a German peace treaty "concluded jointly with the two actually existing German states," and said again that the unification of East and West Germany is a question for those two governments to decide by themselves.

He also threatened again to sign a separate peace treaty with East Germany if the West does not go along.

These views, at complete loggerheads with those of the West, were broadcast by Moscow radio hours after U.S. Secretary of State Christian A. Herter had unwrapped the Western package before the conference here.

Soviet and East German press organs unanimously rejected the Western plan. The Soviet news agency, Tass, said the proposals were "based on obsolete conceptions which ignore the existence of two German states."

Pravda, the Communist party newspaper, termed the plan a "new version of old ideas whose unsoundness already has been shown in life and in the practice of international relations."

The East German agency ADN said the Western proposals were completely unacceptable and would turn all of Germany into a nuclear powder keg.

The next move at Geneva was clearly up to Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko. Khrushchev's words appeared to fore-shadow Soviet rejection of the whole Western proposal, possibly at today's session of the conference.

The Western leaders were prepared — after a Soviet "noyet" — to split up their package and negotiate piecemeal for a stop-gap arrangement in Berlin, German reunification, European security and disarmament.

But before they offer to do that, the Western ministers require some evidence that Gromyko is interested in serious give and take on at least one of these issues that appeared doubtful.

The Western plan would make Berlin a united city, guaranteed by the Big Four, after elections under U.N. or Big Four supervision.

From that first phase, the program would proceed through three other steps: (1) creation of a mixed committee of East and West Germans to write an electoral law, (2) establishment of an all-German government after free elections, and (3) conclusion of a peace treaty with that government.

The committee would include 25 West Germans and 10 East Germans but a three-fourths majority would be required, so that at least some East Germans would have to vote with popular West Germany to approve an electoral law.

Step by step with German reunification would come measures toward European security and disarmament. The four powers would agree to renounce aggression and boycott an aggressor, to limit and eventually reduce or withdraw troops in central Europe. At an early stage Soviet and U.S. forces would be put under a global ceiling of 2½ million men each. The ceiling could be lowered later.

The united German nation of 72 million people would have the right to choose membership in the Atlantic Alliance or the Warsaw Pact or stay neutral. Western leaders believe it would go with the West.

The conference scheduled a recess Saturday and Sunday. Herter planned to fly to Rome for the weekend to confer with Italian government leaders in response to an invitation from Foreign Minister Giuseppe Pella.

Hodges Expects Issues Resolved

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Hodges said today he expects Supt. of Public Instruction Charles F. Carroll and the State Board of Education to iron out any differences they have.

The governor told his news conference he looks for both sides "to be reasonable about" any conflict. They will probably get together all right," he added.

However, Hodges failed to shed any light on the nature of differences between the two school officials. "I wouldn't care to get into details," he said.

The governor first mentioned the conflict in a statewide television address early this week. On Thursday, both Dr. Carroll and Dallas Farring of Rose Hill, chairman of the education board, declined to comment on the matter.

The differences have been spotlighted by a bill, now pending, which would spell out the board's top role in school policy and the superintendent's primary duty as chief administrative officer.

Hodges said the bill, coupled with a proposed revision of the state constitution, would "clarify the relationship and responsibilities" of the board and the superintendent.

Hodges avoided taking a stand on the legislation. "I'm not getting into the bill," he said. Rep. Watts Hill Jr. of Durham and other House members sent up the measure last week.

The governor also had little to add to a reference in his speech to reports of dissension within the North Carolina Education Assn., the professional organization for school personnel.

"I have been told by responsible persons there is some difficulty internally," he said. Other reports I would have been made this clear, he added.

The death of a pet educational project was no surprise, Hodges told reporters. The House Education Committee Thursday killed an incentive fund which would have made 10 million dollars available to counties on a matching basis for school purposes.

"I'm not surprised, although I would have been pleased if it could have been started," the governor said.

Eventually, he predicted, some such plan will have to be adopted, to spur more local money for schools. "I'm a patient soul. . . I can wait," he smiled.

The governor reacted with pleasure to the House Finance Committee's favorable action on a withholding plan for collecting of state income tax.

"I don't believe the man in the street, or anyone else, wants new taxes," said Hodges. The 27½ million dollar windfall feature of withholding would balance the budget recommended by the governor and the Advisory Budget Commission.

Nosed Over, But Otherwise Plane Is OK After Forced Landing

A local flight instructor was forced to land his light plane in a corn field back of Respass Barbecue Stand on North Greene St. late yesterday when his motor cut off in mid-air. The pilot, Tom Odell, brought the light Piper J-3 in "for a perfect landing," according to Jim Mercer, a student pilot flying with Odell. Mercer said the plane was about 300 feet up when the engine quit. According to him, they were too far from the airport to land there so Odell chose the cornfield. Damage to the plane, owned by Herbert Williams of Greenville, was estimated at about $80. The damage was reportedly caused when the aircraft struck a tree about two inches in diameter, causing the plane to swing to the left, breaking off a wheel. Neither Odell nor Mercer was injured in the crash.

Agriculture Dept. Budget Is Slashed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Appropriations Committee accused the Agriculture Department today of "complete disregard for the law," criticized its policies, and cut its 1960 funds by $142,199,365.

In recommending $3,939,165,498 for the department's activities for the year starting July 1, the committee called for a much more active program of selling surplus commodities overseas.

Along with that criticism, it contended that many of the department's operations "are of more benefit to the general public than to the farmer."

"The situation in agriculture does not present a good picture," the committee said in a report written by Rep. Jamie L. Whitten (D-Miss.).

For the department's regular activities, the committee recommended $1,235,643,585, a cut of $42,199,365 from the President's requests.

For the Commodity Credit Corp., which handles surplus commodities and other farm programs, it allotted $2,703,521,913, a cut of 100 million dollars. It said "this amount can be obtained by a return to competitive sales as directed by the law."

For loan programs, which are not direct appropriations, it approved 421 million dollars. This was an increase of 33 millions, all of it for the Farmers Home Administration which handles production and subsistence and farm ownership loans. The Rural Electrification Administration's share of the loan authorizations was 213 millions, the amount requested.

The committee criticized what it called the department's failure to sell its surplus commodities on a competitive basis throughout the world. The existing policy, it said, "has invited expansion in foreign production" and has boosted storage and handling costs to the Commodity Credit Corp.

Nuclear Aircraft Problem Licked

By VERN HAUGLAND
Associated Press Aviation Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force said today it has hurdled the last major obstacle to development of a nuclear powered airplane, that of efficient shielding from radiation.

Lt. Gen. Roscoe C. Wilson, deputy chief of staff for development, told the Aviation Writers Assn. that "we therefore are now embarked on a program to produce a subsonic nuclear powered airplane which will be the prototype of a future weapon system."

Wilson did not say when such a prototype, or experimental model actually would be built and ready for testing. Development of a new plane normally takes a number of years.

"The shielding problem for nuclear airplanes has been solved. We know how to design effective airborne shields and how to predict their performance."

Wilson said a nuclear airplane would not necessarily be any larger than the current B52 heavy jet bomber. It also will be designed to operate off the same runway length as the B52.

He said a nuclear bomber would be able to cruise anywhere in the world, and would be capable of launching long-range ballistic missiles as well as handling nuclear bombs and short-range missiles.

Wilson said two types of nuclear power plants are being developed, the direct air cycle and the indirect liquid metal cycle.

In the direct cycle, the air flows from the engine intake through the compressor and directly through the reactor, where it is heated, expanded through the turbine, and flows out as a jet stream.

In the indirect cycle the reactor heats a liquid metal which flows through a closed system. The air is heated by passing through a heat exchanger. The direct cycle turbojet system is being developed by General Electric Co. at Evendale, Ohio, and at the National Reactor Testing Station in Idaho.

Pratt and Whitney Aircraft Co. is developing the longer range indirect cycle program at Middletown, Conn.

Convair Division of General Dynamics, Fort Worth, Tex., has been awarded a design study for the experimental airplane that will use the nuclear power.

N. C. Military Bases Prepare Major Shows For Armed Forces Day Event

Two-Mile-Long Atom-Smasher Project Slated

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A 100-million dollar scientific monster to make the greatest assault ever on the atom will be America's next entry in the field of nuclear research.

It will be by far the most powerful thing of its kind, although Soviet scientists are working on plans for an instrument something like it.

The American machine will be two miles long. One of its biggest tasks will be to "see" a speck or a space one hundred-thousandth of a billionth of an inch long.

Plans for the awesome gadget were set in motion in New York Thursday night by President Eisenhower, who said it would be used to help preserve this country's freedom in the nuclear age.

With congressional approval, the instrument, an electron linear accelerator, will be built at Stanford University. Financed by the Atomic Energy Commission, it will be a national facility, open to use by any qualified American scientist.

Details of the big project were given by Stanford officials soon after the President made the announcement. In a news conference they expressed hopes of getting contracts signed within a year and said the machine probably would be operating in six years.

Want to see an airdrop of paratroopers? Test the radioactivity of your luminous watch dial? Hear a sonic boom? See a collection of snakes?

If you visit North Carolina's military installations on Armed Forces Day Saturday, you'll see some if not all of those. They're part of varied exhibits and demonstrations worked up for the occasion.

Generally, Armed Forces Day won't be a day of work for the servicemen themselves. There'll be a few demonstration teams and perhaps a parade or two; but most of the men and women will work their normal half day.

At Ft. Bragg, there will be an airborne demonstration by the 82nd Airborne Division, and an artillery shoot by units of the XVIII Airborne Corps Artillery, climaxed by a firing of the Honest John Rocket. There also will be exhibits set up by signal, chemical, artillery, medical and other units.

At Seymour Johnson Air Force Base they'll have several types of planes on display, both jet and propeller-driven. During the morning there will be a flyover of 16 jets, and later Lt. Col. William Nelson will dive his fighter plane at the runway to create a sonic boom as he breaks the sound barrier.

Weapons, equipment and small aircraft will be on display at Camp Lejeune. There you can get your watch dial tested with a Geiger counter, and see a display of snakes that inhabit that coastal area. You also can see the Marine body armor, developed first at Lejeune.

Other installations in North Carolina included the Marine Air Station at Cherry Point, the Marine auxiliary airfield at Edenton and Pope Air Force Base at Ft. Bragg.

Bill Would Give Governor Voice In Trustee Choice

RALEIGH (AP) — Legislation to give the governor a voice in naming trustees of the Consolidated University of North Carolina was introduced today in the House.

The bill to carry out recommendations of a study commission was sent forward by Rep. Ed Wilson of Caswell.

In effect, it would give the governor power to fill five of the 25 vacancies which regularly come up every two years on the 100-member board of trustees. At present, the Legislature elects the entire slate.

Generally, suggestions made by the study group have failed to rouse much enthusiasm either among lawmakers or university trustees and chances for its approval appear dim.

In the Senate, a separate bill to carry out withholding of state income taxes was introduced by Sen. Arthur Kirkman, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee.

Withholding, proposed by Gov. Hodges and the Advisory Budget Commission, already is before the lawmakers in the budget revenue bill. However, Kirkman followed the example of House Finance chairman Clifton Blue in sending in a separate measure for his committee to consider.

Under the bill put in by Wilson, the governor's appointments would be subject to confirmation by the Legislature. Authority for election of four-fifths the number of trustees up each two years would remain with the General Assembly.

Tobacco Program Said Endangered

WASHINGTON (AP)—A tobacco program sponsored by Southern producers was reported today to be in danger of defeat because of Republican opposition in the House.

Rep. Frank A. Stubblefield (D-NY) said the Democratic leadership is so concerned that the bill may not be called up Monday in the House as had been planned.

The strategy, as Stubblefield explained it, is that if the Republicans decide to make a fight the bill will be held up until more votes can be lined up for it.

Chairman Harold D. Cooley (D-NC) of the House Agriculture Committee has been conferring with House Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Tex.) about the new turn. It was understood House GOP Leader Charles Halleck (R-Ind.) advised Cooley he opposes the bill.

A pending tobacco bill by Rep. W. Pat Jennings (D-Va) would make no major change in the tobacco program—as is sought by secretary of Agriculture Benson.

All it would do would be to stabilize tobacco prices at about existing levels.

John Lynn, legislative director of the American Farm Bureau, says his organization is against the bill.

Supporters of the bill — chiefly congressmen from such major tobacco producing states as Kentucky and North Carolina—want to bring up the bill under a procedure requiring a two thirds vote for passage.

The reason for this is that under this procedure no amendments can be made.

Britain's Disengagement Zone Proposal Seen Dying On Vine

GENEVA (AP) — The West's plan for a German settlement with the Soviets diluted and all but dissolved Britain's pet project for a zone of reduced tension in m-Europe.

This was the project British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan "sold" to Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev in Moscow 11 weeks ago. It would reduce arms and armies—with inspections to insure compliance—in an area roughly covering the two Germanys, Poland and Czechoslovakia.

The armies in the zone straddling the Iron Curtain would gradually be reduced further. If the plan worked well, the agreement could be extended to other "countries.

When Macmillan returned from Moscow, he was shocked to discover that some of his Western partners were furious at his idea.

Accordingly, the British proposals were modified to a point of seeming worthlessness to the Soviets. The scheme is now tied to the West's package plan for gradual reunification of Germany.

The West suggests that before unification the Big Four swap information about their forces in "agreed areas" of Europe and install inspection and control mechanisms, but take no precise action to limit forces.

After unification, a zone would be created extending east and West of the Iron Curtain over areas "of comparable size, depth and importance." Her national and foreign forces would be limited in number.

The British are convinced all this has been made academic because the Soviet Union is bound to reject its links with German unification. But the British reportedly have not lost hope of reviving Macmillan's idea.

They remain convinced a zone of reduced tension could become a starting point for better East-West relations.

The best information here suggests Macmillan and British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd consider the scheme may yet be pulled out of the Western package for negotiation with the Soviets.

Talk 4,000 MPH By Rocket Plane

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government officially disclosed today the expected speed of the X15 rocket research airplane — 4,000 miles an hour.

Ira H. Abbott, of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, told the Aviation Writers Assn. in a prepared breakfast talk that the X15 will "leap out of the atmosphere into space much as a fish jumps out of water."

The X15 currently is undergoing exhaustive captive flight tests under the wing of a B52 jet bomber.

SALVATION ARMY WEEK . . . Dr. Butler, Mayor West, Lt. Norris.

Next week has been proclaimed Salvation Army Week by Mayor S. Eugene West.

In tribute to the Salvation Army and over 30 years of service here, the mayor called upon residents of Greenville to give particular attention to the week and show gratitude to the Salvation Army for its work.

Present at the proclamation ceremonies were Lt. Walter Norris and Dr. James Butler, who announced that a series of special events have been arranged in observance of the week.

"The high spiritual and humanitarian principles of the Salvation Army have long been an important part of the American life," the mayor said in his proclamation.

"Through its welfare and religious institutions in our city and state, it has befriended, aided and given new hope to men, women and children, regardless of race or creed."

The mayor urged "all citizens to give their full cooperation to this effort to focus attention upon the work of the Salvation Army."

"The principles for which it stands are a mighty bulwark against spiritual and physical need, and our tribute to this great organization during Salvation Army Week is well earned and greatly merited."

Leprosy Strikes Tar Heel Vet

RALEIGH (AP)—A 35-year-old Tar Heel veteran of World War II has fallen victim to the age-old disease of leprosy.

The State Board of Health reported today the patient is being treated at the U.S. Public Health Service leproserium at Carville, La.

The report said the vet, who was not identified, spent a part of his military service time in a Pacific area where leprosy is known to be endemic.

30 Years Ago Today

May 15, 1929

On last Saturday evening from eight to eleven o'clock, Mr. and Mrs. N. O. VanNortwick and their son Alva entertained the Robersonville High School Senior Class, of which Alva is a member, with a very attractive party at their home on Dickinson Avenue. The guests were served ice cream and mints. They then danced until 11 o'clock.

Thursday evening Mrs. H. L. Rivers was hostess to the Sodalis Wesley Class of the Methodist Sunday school. The meeting was called to order by the president, Miss Mamie Ruth Fleming. The devotion was led by Miss Marie Hardee. The hostess served a tempting salad course.

House Party Fetes Students

BETHEL—Miss Shirley Whitehurst, a junior in Bethel High School, was hostess at a house party for the Bethel High School students at Atlantic Beach this past weekend.

Those present for the occasion were Miss Gertrude Beacham and Benny Robert Whitehurst, Miss Carolyn Manning and Brooks Mills, Miss Margaret Rose Edmondson and Dalton Raynor, Miss Tempe McRacken and Joe Chesmond, Miss Mary Chesson and John Smith.

Miss Alice Sparr and Jerry Williams, Miss Janet Cobb and William Whitfield, Miss Sylvia Gardner and George Purvis, Miss Ann Jackson and Franklin Whitehurst Jr., Miss Patricia Whitehurst and William Griffin, Miss Margaret Nelson and Tate Pender, Miss Shirley Whitehurst, Bud Goodrich. The chaperones were Mrs. William Clayton Taylor and Mrs. Horris Tetterton.

Miss Wilda Whitehurst, James Horace and Frederick Tetterton, children of the chaperones, and Horris Tetterton also attended.

BPWC President Receives Gavel

The Federation Pledge was the theme used in installation of the new officers of the Greenville Business and Professional Women's Club last night at the Woman's Club at the May dinner meeting.

Mrs. Ruet W. Tyson installed the following officers: Mrs. Kemp Baldwin, president; Mrs. Bertie Reed, first vice-president; Mrs. Ruth Peterson, second vice-president; Mrs. Mildred Owens, recording secretary; Miss Camille Clarke, corresponding secretary; and Miss Mary Bell, treasurer.

Preceding the installation Mrs. Marie Padgett, accompanied by Dr. Mildred Southwick, sang "The Golden Key," the BPW Club Song.

Mrs. Tyson commended the outgoing officers for the manner in which they had fulfilled their duties and obligations. In installing the new officers, she charged each with her duties and had them repeat the pledge of new officers. The members pledged their support and loyalty to the officers, and the entire club repeated the Federation Pledge.

The club meeting was opened with the Grace Song, Mrs. Marie Padgett then sang "Bless This House." The outgoing president, Miss Alva Ray Taylor, welcomed the following guests: Mrs. Royce Jones, Miss Agnes Deal, Mrs. Pauline Whitehurst, Mrs. Andrew Taylor, and Mrs. Cora Powell, a former member.

A tribute was paid by Mrs. Margaret Parley to Miss Louise Galphin, who is retiring and leaving Greenville. Miss Galphin's outstanding work for many years in the club was recognized, especially her work as historian.

Miss Taylor read a memorial to Mrs. Susie Ragdale, first president of the club and for many years active in all phases of its work.

Club members who had perfect attendance for the past year were congratulated. They were: Mrs. Kemp Baldwin, Mrs. Bell, Elizabeth Deal, Mrs. Hasselbine Osborne, Mrs. Mildred Owens, Mildred Southwick, Gladys Stokes, and Alva Taylor.

NEW PRESIDENT RECEIVES GAVEL . . . Mrs. Kemp Baldwin was presented a gavel and pin by Miss Alva Ray Taylor, outgoing president of the Business and Professional Women's Club, last night at the installation of new officers. (Photo by Peggy Smith)

It was announced that the State Convention would be held in Greensboro June 11-14.

Those present made a contribution to send a girl to the Salvation Army camp.

Miss Taylor presented Mrs. Baldwin with a BPW club president's pin and Mrs. Baldwin in turn gave Miss Taylor the past president's guard. Mrs. Baldwin, in accepting the club gavel, made a brief acceptance speech and announced her committee chairman for the coming year.

The club officers acted as hosts for the meeting and were in charge of decorations. Spring flowers were used in the club colors. Before the dinner, tomato juice and hors d'oeuvres were served by Dr. Mildred Southwick.

Life Of Educator Topic Of Speech

"Miracle In The Mountains" a book written by Harnet Kane and Inez Henry of the life story of Martha Berry, was reviewed by Mrs. Royce Hunsucker at the Round Table Book Club meeting Tuesday. Mrs. Daniel R. Taylor was hostess at her home on Elm St.

Miss Berry, one of the greatest women in America, was born in 1866 on the family plantation near Rome, Ga. In 1902 she opened the first Berry School for the vocational education of mountain boys and girls. The speaker continued by saying that the school developed into an institution with three units—a foundation school for boys, a school for girls, and Berry College.

"I want to teach my children to stand on their own feet in the world, and to do things with their hands, as well as with the brain," said Miss Berry.

In the national poll in 1931, Martha Berry was voted one of the 12 greatest American women. Many other honors came to her for outstanding service to the state and nation, stated Mrs. Hunsucker.

Mrs. Howard McGinnis read a very timely poem, "Changing World" by Richard Kane.

The hostess, Mrs. Taylor, served a salad plate with ice tea. Guests for the afternoon were Mrs. Hugh Winslow, and Mrs. Joseph Taft.

Dr. Utterback Guest Speaker

Dr. Elizabeth Utterback, of East Carolina College, was guest speaker at the monthly meeting of the Chatham Book Club. She reviewed a book by Abigail Van Buren.

The members and guests were greeted by Mrs. F. A. Bendall, hostess.

Mrs. Bendall, assisted by Mrs. Howard Wilson and Mrs. Charles Blair, served a salad course, coffee and cake.

Books were distributed and the club adjourned for the summer.

By DR. ED HIRSHBERG

This week the new May-issue of HORIZON came out, and we'll give you our usual run-down on this hard-cover magazine of the Arts. Art Week being over, we certainly shouldn't forget the arts for another year, and HORIZON will help you not to . . . The cover is a pinkish beige, we're told, though we wouldn't vouch for that on our own observation—it looks sort of brownish to Your Columnist. Anyway, this HORIZON has articles, pictures etc. that should interest the fussiest reader. We mentioned the big article on gardens last week—really a fine effort, "Gardens Since Eden," full of wonderful pictures . . . Next in interest—to us, anyway—was the one called "The Grand Seraglio," by Mary Cable. Seraglio, in case you didn't know, is another word for Harem, which is the place Turkish sultans used to keep their 1500 or so, wives or concubines slaves etc. Really quite a story, complete, as a complete, as always, with pictures, including Ingres' lush painting of a Turkish bath—in color . . . Then there is "The Christian Spaceman," an article on C. S. Lewis by Edmund Fuller. Lewis is author of "Screwtape Letters" and an imaginative and brilliant Christian apologist. Fuller's article lets you in on some of Lewis' recent science fiction and its implications to modern Christianity—quite a fascinating job . . . Other matters that are given a whirl in this latest issue of HORIZON are architecture at Yale and how it progressed, the story of Josiah Wedgwood and his "off-beat" pals—Wedgwood was England's most celebrated potter, as you probably remember—and an account of the Guggenheim family and its lavish gifts to art and artists. . . . For a fine evening of pictures and good reading, we'll recommend HORIZON anytime. . . .

On Pictures
While we're on The Arts, we want to call your attention to the supplement in this week's issue of the Saturday Review—for May 16—"Photography in the Fine Arts." It goes into great detail on the history of photography as art and on how it finally gained its present status. . . . SR editors had quite a hassle over whether the big title of the article on the magazine cover should begin with the word "Photography" divided—as it had to be to fit on the cover—in the grammatically correct manner, PHOTOGRAPHY, or in the aesthetically acceptable manner, PHOTO-GRAPHY. The aesthetes won out, and we're glad they did, even though we do teach correct syllabification in our English class.

New Books And Publishers
From Pennington Press in Chicago, a brand new publishing house, we hear its first book, just out, is HOBLEDEHOY'S HERO, by Curtis L. Johnson. It's a first novel and is about a boy growing up in a small town in Iowa. . . . From Heritage House in Charlotte, one of Tarheel's few publishing companies, we have news that H. F. Sewall Jr., a Carthage attorney who ran for Governor of N. C. in 1952 and got more votes than any Republican who ever ran for it—which is not saying an awful lot—has written a biography of Judge Walter D. Siler. It will be called SIR WALTER THE EARL OF CHATHAM.

Christian Science Announcements

Mankind's need for spiritualization of thought will be emphasized in Christian Science churches Sunday in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Mortals and Immortals."

Bible selections will include the following from Philippians (2:14, 15): "Do all things without murmurings and disputings: That ye may be blameless and harmless, the sons of God, without rebuke, in the midst of a crooked and perverse nation, among whom ye shine as lights in the world."

A correlative passage to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy states (265:5): "Mortals must gravitate Godward, their affections and aims grow spiritual, — they must near the broader interpretations of being, and gain some proper sense of the infinite,—in order that sin and mortality may be put off."

The Golden Text is from Romans (9:8): "They which are the children of the flesh, these are not the children of God."

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N. C.

Temperatures will average 2 to 6 degrees below normal through Wednesday. Cool over the weekend, gradual rising temperatures by first of next week. Rain about Tuesday, totalling one-to-four-tenths inches.

The fastest that any human has ever run is less than twenty-five miles an hour.

umph, precarious but genuine, over the ambiguities of life.

Professor Sewall's book, a monument of perceptive scholarship, by its illumination of tragedy, a source of fascination through the whole history of Western literature, enlarges the reader's view not only of a literary form but also of the human condition.

Shorthand Students Rate Fourth In Recent Contest

Word has just been received by the Department of Business at East Carolina College, that the students enrolled in shorthand during the winter quarter have placed fourth in the Collegiate Division of the International Shorthand Penmanship Contest.

Japan Refuses Neutrality Role

TOKYO (AP)—Japan today told the Soviet Union it cannot adopt a policy of neutrality in world affairs.

The Japanese government rejected Soviet accusations that nuclear arms have been brought into Japan.

It said Japan's defense forces will not be armed with nuclear weapons and the government "will not consent to the introduction of such weapons into the country."

The foreign ministry delivered a note to Soviet Ambassador Nikolai Federenko, replying to a Soviet note of May 4. The reply accused the Soviets of trying to interfere in Japan's internal affairs.

The reply also said a Soviet bid for a nuclear free zone in Asia is an issue that should be settled by the nuclear powers — not Japan.

The Japanese reply also rejected the Soviet contention that the U.S.-Japan security treaty is a threat to Asian peace. It said the treaty is wholly defensive.

Extinguish Fire In Car 3 Times

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—The fire in the back seat of 'Arch Rainey's car is out—finally.

Firemen doused a small blaze after he discovered it Wednesday night.

Thursday morning police spotted the fire again as they cruised past the parked car. They put it out again.

Later Rainey went for a damage estimate and when garage workers pulled the seat out—they found the fire still going. They put it out again.

Got Their Kicks By Smearing Art

DETROIT, Mich. (AP)—"We got a kick out of it," one of the four young girls accused of smearing clay over valuable paintings and statues at the Detroit Art Institute explained.

The girls, three of them 11 and the other 13, were grabbed by a museum guard Thursday after they had spread modeling clay over the works of art.

Two of the girls were turned over to their parents and the other two were handed over to juvenile authorities.

Museum authorities gave no damage estimate immediately.

This contest is an annual affair sponsored by Today's Secretary, magazine published by the Gregg Publishing Company.

Over 20,000 students of shorthand are entered in the contest. The entrants from East Carolina College were students in classes taught by Dr. Audrey V. Dempsey, Lena C. Ellis, and Dr. James L. White.

Twenty-six students received gold honorable mention pins and 182 students received certificates of proficiency.

The 26 students rating honorable mention are: Carolyn Bullock, Rt. 2, Autryville, Alva L. Chauncey, Rt. 5, Greenville; Sylvia Hall, Rt. 1, Autryville; Norma Anne Harrelson, Southport; Julia Elaine Lasater, Havelock; Barbara Lounsbury, Wilmington; Betty Lou Pierce, Gatesville; Peggy Pridden, Wilmington; Peggy Jean Wallace, Rt. 4, Greenville; Patricia Lee West, Greenville; Emmie Russell, Rt. 1, Dover; Barbara Ann Smith, Rt. 2, Vanceboro; Dorothy Carlick, High Point; Annala Chamblee, Middlesex; Merle Council, Rt. 7, Fayetteville; Lucile Anne Fryar, Carolina Beach; Celia Edwards Harding, Grimesland; Barbara Anne Paramore, Farmville; DeAnna Poole, Snow Hill; Hilda Roberts, Washington; Linda Rouse, Rt. 5, Kinston; Patricia Shearin, Scotland Neck; Kathleen Somerville, Plymouth; Patricia Terrell, Rt. 1, Elon College; Sylvia Uzzell, Rt. 1, Scotland Neck; and Frances Williams, Rt. 1, Kinston.

Dr. Audrey V. Dempsey has also received notice that she placed fifth in the teachers' division of the contest.

Teachers, Consultants Complete Conference Series On Reading

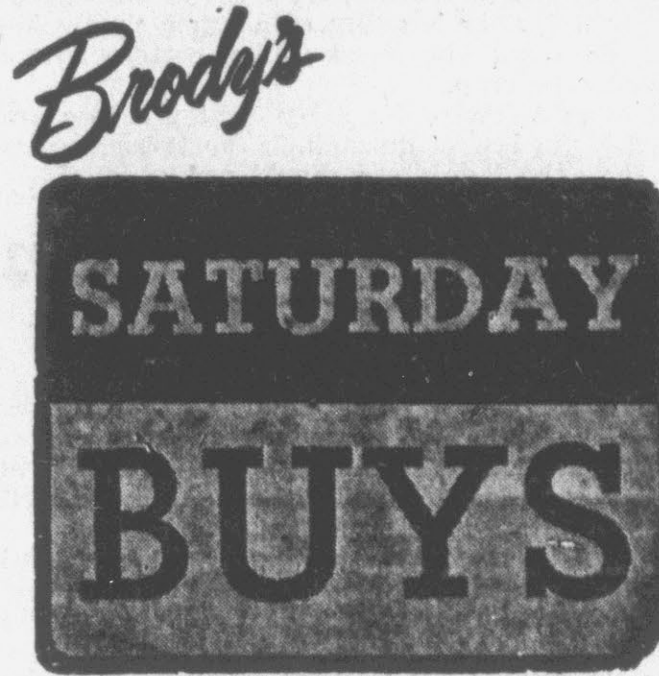

Pitt County school personnel and visiting consultants have completed a series of demonstrations and conferences on reading in the seventh and eighth grades.

The conferences were directed by Homer Lassiter, Elementary School Supervisor for the State Department of Public Instruction; Mrs. Isabelle Pillow, educational consultant for Houghton, Mifflin Co.; and Mrs. Edna Earle Baker, supervisor for the Pitt County Board of Education.

Mrs. Pillow conducted demonstrations on reading in the seventh grade and followed it with conferences with teachers. Working with sections of textbooks dealing with the Handbook for Developmental Reading Skills, she pointed out the importance of teaching children to think, using the guidebook, and teaching children to figure out new words.

In her talks, Mrs. Pillow stressed four media of instruction, including use of other blends and sounds already known by students, breaking words into syllables, context clues and dictionary use. She also commented on the importance of oral reading, but stressed that it should be used with a purpose in mind.

The in-service training programs were conducted at Bethel and Winterville elementary schools for white teachers and at Bruce-Falkland and Winterville schools for Negro teachers.

Out Of Bounds For The Legislators

If a farmer wants to ruin his crop through employing poor cultural practices in producing it, that's one thing.

But for the state to pass a law requiring farmers to follow certain cultural practices in producing their crops is quite another.

The bill now before the legislature which would make it a misdemeanor to sell or use MH-30 chemical sucker control on tobacco is the most outrageous kind of legislation. It should not under any circumstances be written into law by the General Assembly.

While it is true that certain purchasers of tobacco have said use of the chemical for sucker control is harmful to tobacco and they would not knowingly purchase leaf on which the chemical was used, that in itself is no sound reason to pass legislation prohibiting the sale or use of the product. The company which produces the chemical asserts there is no scientific evidence to support the claim that use of the chemical is harmful to the tobacco. And even if scientific evidence of that nature were in existence, the proposed legislation would not be justified.

The quality of tobacco produced in North Carolina is rightly the concern of farmers and legislators alike. But the lawmakers should not take it upon themselves to say that since certain things are detrimental to producing a quality tobacco crop they are to be outlawed in North Carolina.

Equal Rights Get Attention

By LYNN NISBET

EQUAL RIGHTS — The current General Assembly seems to be giving more attention than any since woman suffrage was adopted to equal rights for men and women. The pre-suffrage campaigns were waged on pleas for equal rights for women. After the women were accorded full privileges, many of the statutes continued to discriminate in their favor. It is much easier for a woman to avoid jury service than for her male relatives. Working hours and conditions are designed to protect women more than men, although in many instances there is still differential in salaries and wages for comparable services.

Women have had generally more protection against claims for debt and other liabilities. At the same time they have been limited in control of their own property. Some of the property laws stem back to old English common law when a wife and all her personal possessions were chattels of the husband.

Succeeding Legislatures have dealt with these matters, each time in the direction of equalizing privileges, rights and duties between the sexes. Pending now are far-reaching bills affecting interstate succession which go farther than ever before in establishing property rights for wives and widows.

The same spirit of equality motivated proposed amendments to the homestead section of the new constitution. The old constitution has for many years contained provision that if the owner of a homestead dies leaving a widow and no children the homestead shall be exempt from debts of the deceased husband and the rents and profits shall inure to her benefit during her widowhood. That provision is carried in the new text.

Rep. Pat Taylor of Anson, supported by Rep. Fred Bynum of Richmond, raised question of why the surviving husband should not have the same protection in a homestead left by a deceased wife. In another section dealing with conveyance of title to real property there is requirement that a wife must have written assent of her husband to convey her own real estate. Taylor again questioned why this limitation should be placed in the constitution, unless a similar restriction were placed upon the husband's conveyance.

Chances are that most of the old limitations will be continued, along with greater protection for women, but the trend is definitely toward complete equality of treatment.

INSURANCE — Another point that is giving concern to constitutional lawyers, and which may be amended, is the unlimited amount of insurance a man may buy on his own life for the benefit of his family, sacred from attachment for his debts before or after his death. It was pointed out by Rep. Frank Sneed of Mecklenburg that this provision permits a wealthy man to own a valuable home by entirely with his wife, and invest all his income in life insurance for the benefit of her and/or his children, thus avoiding payment of honest debt. (It was also suggested that if the constitution spells out the right of a husband to insure his life for benefit of his spouse, the wife should have the same right.)

It was argued that since there is a maximum limit upon tax exemptions, the value of homesteads untouchable by creditors, there should be a reasonable limit fixed on amount of sacrosanct insurance benefits.

Obvious purpose is to equalize the status of property rights between sexes and among the various classes real and personal property, for equal protection of creditors and debtors against abuse.

TRUSTEES — The joint committee on Trustees of the University, composed of 20 Senators and 43 Representatives, met Tuesday night to nominate 27 members of the governing board of the Consolidated University. Of this number 25 were for 8 year terms and there were two vacancies of the 100-member board to fill. The procedure was the same used since the University was established 106 years ago.

It was more like a free-wheeling convention than a legislative committee meeting. About the only rule that was really respected was requirement that any ballot with less than 27 candidates voted would be thrown out.

The nominating session, tantamount to election, culminated three months of intensive campaigning, vote-swapping and use of all the known — and some new — political maneuvering.

The meeting came on the opening night of the rodeo at the State Fairgrounds, to which all the legislators had complimentary tickets, and many of the members were anxious to get to the show. Barely one-third of the total membership was on hand to vote off a tie for a fill-in position after tabulation of the first ballot. Somebody tried to raise the point of no quorum, but the chairman held that there was a quorum when the committee convened, there had been no authorized recess, and those still in the room should vote off the tie.

Opinions expressed by several folks at the meeting, members and bystanders, was that despite the confusion and the turmoil, this was an example of real democracy in action. Despite efforts over the past quarter century, including commission study reports and attempted legislation, no more satisfactory method has been found for selecting trustees.

If the General Assembly passes a bill outlawing the use of a certain chemical on tobacco because it allegedly injures the quality of the crop, what is to prevent the legislature from setting forth in law a whole set of cultural practices which farmers must follow in growing their crop or be cited into court?

If the legislature can tell a farmer what he can and can't use to control the suckers on his tobacco, it would logically follow that the legislature can tell the farmer everything else he can and cannot do in raising his crop.

Would the legislature even consider passing laws prescribing:

How many times a farmer must plow his tobacco once it is set in the fields?

How many pounds of fertilizer, and what kind, a farmer must use in producing his tobacco crop?

On what days the farmer must irrigate his crop and how much water he must use each time in irrigating?

How much space the farmer must leave between each stalk of tobacco when he is planting his allotted acreage?

Certainly none of these things would be considered for legislative action.

Yet each of these involves an important cultural practice which has a direct effect upon the quality of the tobacco produced by the farmer. They are just as important to the quality of the leaf produced as the method used in sucker control.

The farmers have heard what purchasers of their tobacco have had to say about the use of the particular chemical in question for sucker control. If the individual farmer wants to disregard the words of his customer and use the product anyway, that's his business.

Certainly it is not within the right of the legislature to say a farmer is guilty of a crime simply because he does not choose to follow certain advice about raising his crop.

The biggest law so far as cultural practices are concerned is the law of demand. If the farmer wants to buck that, the legislature should not interfere.

Our Armed Forces, An Instrument For Peace

Observance of the 10th annual Armed Forces Day Saturday should be a reminder that even in times of peace the dedicated service of men and women in our military forces is essential to the welfare and well being of our nation and its people.

The armed forces of this nation, while a powerful instrument for making war if that should be necessary, is likewise the most powerful force in the world for peace.

Were it not for our military strength, even the unsettled peace which the world has enjoyed during the past years probably would not have existed. We would have known war as a more constant companion than has been the case.

The men and women who serve in our armed forces stand ready at a moment's notice to give their lives if necessary in many parts of the globe to defend the principles which we hold sacred. They stand ready to defend our own Homeland, and the lands and freedom of millions of other people far removed from the United States. They provide the barrier which protects us from war.

Armed Forces Day is a day for saluting the men and women who serve and have served in the defense of our country and the liberties which we hold dear. It is a day for contemplating not only the ability we possess for making war, but the powerful instrument that the armed forces of this nation provide for maintaining world peace.

Slow Change In U.S. Policies

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — One year ago today Vice President Nixon returned from that disastrous Latin American trip in which he was stoned and spat upon.

There was nothing personal in the treatment he got. It was this country's southern neighbors — or some factions of them — expressing their attitude toward the United States. Nixon called at once for a reappraisal of our policy toward Latin America.

In the year that has passed what has been done to improve that policy? And what is the attitude of Latin Americans toward the United States now?

This country has taken a number of steps toward closer cooperation with, and more understanding for, Latin America. But the attitude of the people there toward the United States is far from all good.

Only two months ago a group of South American publishing broadcasting executives, visiting this country, said the United States is losing friends fast in their homeland.

Very recently Associated Press correspondents in the capitals of 10 South American republics questioned students, workers, politicians, editors, businessmen and labor leaders to find out how our neighbors feel now.

The answer was: almost no change. Relations with the United States in some countries have deteriorated. In others — for example, Argentina and Brazil — some improvement was noted.

But the 10 correspondents reported that the great masses of the people have not felt any change. Most answers to the question of how the United States could improve the situation came to this: money and more tact in administering aid.

Both at the time of Nixon's mistreatment and since, Communists have been blamed as the nucleus of the attacks on the Vice President and the continuing anti-United States feeling there.

The charge that the United States has played too cozy with Latin American dictators has been thrown at this country often. Nixon was aware of it on his trip. So was President Eisenhower's brother, Dr. Milton Eisenhower, who visited Latin America after Nixon's trip.

Both came back recommending a much stiffer American attitude toward dictators.

Here are things the United States has done in the past year to improve the situation:

The Eisenhower administration has backed and will approve the billion dollar Inter-American Development Bank to make loans in Latin America alone; it has asked and backed increases in the capital of the World Bank and International Monetary Fund from which Latin American nations as well as others benefit.

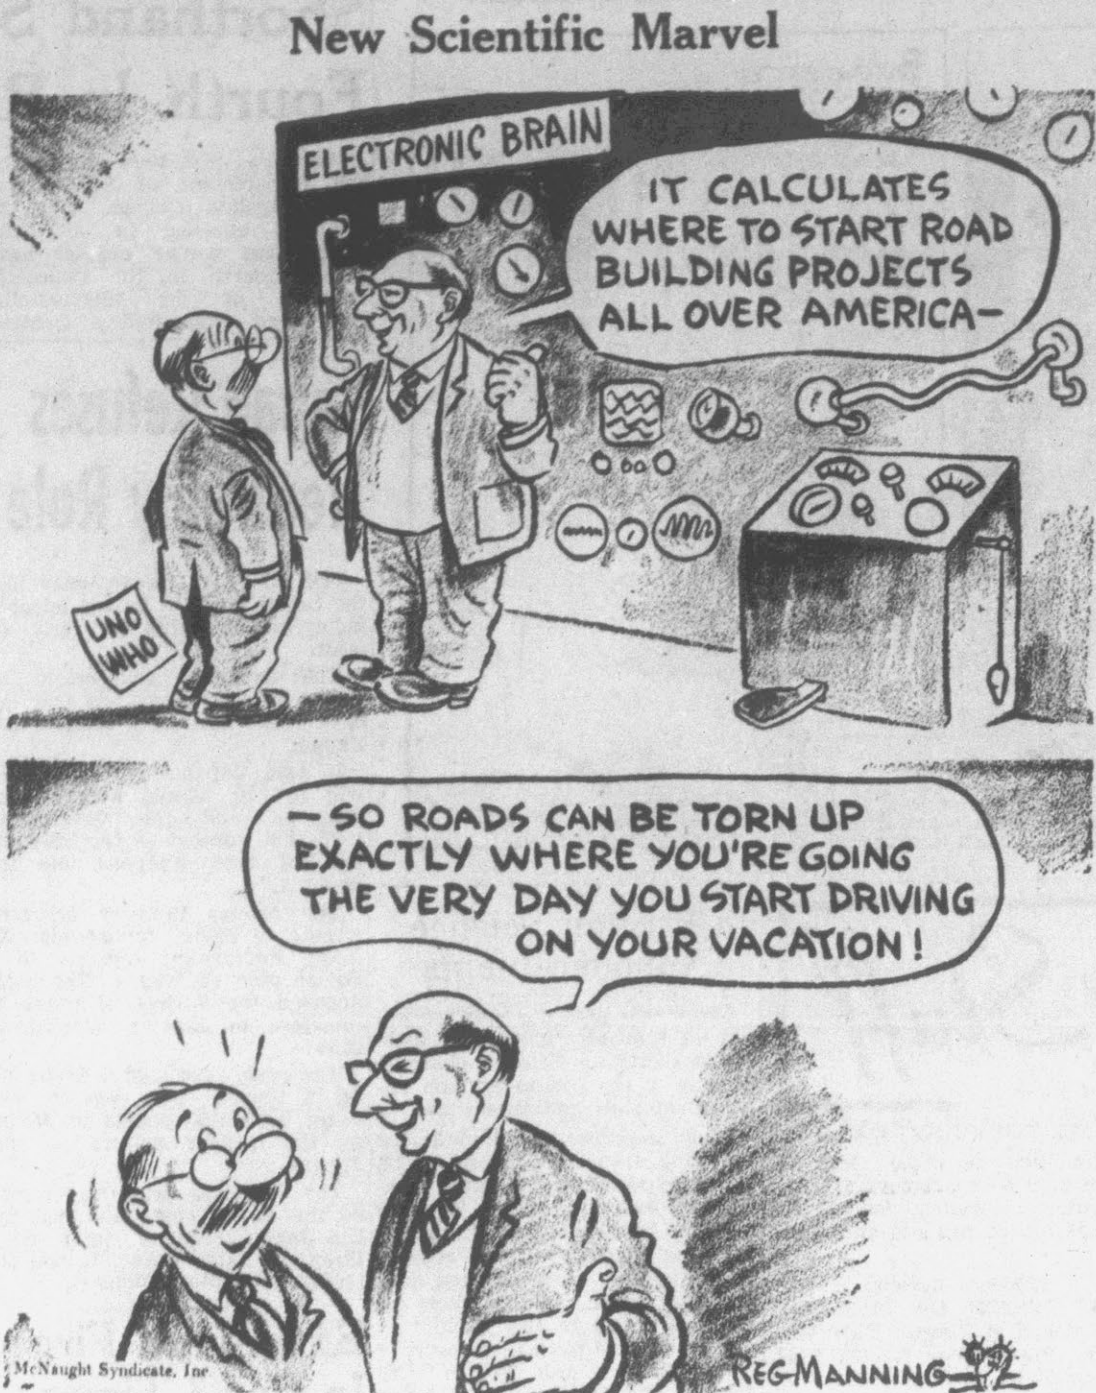

The administration is asking Congress for a 25 per cent increase in technical assistance funds for Latin America in 1960; the U.S. Development Loan Fund is stepping up its credits to Latin American nations; and moves are under way to encourage further the already big flow of U.S. private investments into Latin America.

These actions, if carried through, may seem plentiful to a U.S. citizen. To a Latin American, then still may seem too little.

Opinions In Brief

"There are limits to the uses of conformity, and the evidence suggests they have been reached. A survey of college students showed that barely one in ten wanted a job calling for creativity or originality." — Anderson (S. C.) Independent.

"The people have every reason to wonder why any public official would try to keep his actions and decisions secret, and to suspect that there might be something amiss. If the public business is being conducted as it should be, there can be no reason for secrecy." — Lexington Leader.

By JIMMY ELLIS Very Big Axe To Grind

The other day, I had occasion to make my first flight on a commercial airliner.

It was all very pleasant, thank you, and I have the feeling that everything Piedmont Airlines has said about its new F-27 projects is true. They are very comfortable planes, and give a quiet, smooth ride.

However, I have an axe to grind with the pilot and co-pilot of the late evening flight from Raleigh to Kingston.

Through no fault of the crew, the plane was about 20 minutes late getting into Raleigh-Durham Airport. Although I understood the reasons for the delay, I was a trifle restless by the time take-off was announced.

I all but ran across the ramp to the plane, eager to be off on the last leg of the trip home. The flight steward — Billy Briley — turned out to be a Greenville native and speaking acquaintance of a few years' ago.

The two of us exchanged pleasantries at the door before I, still restless, moved off down the aisle to find a window seat. My search ended, not at a window seat, but at an aisle seat. Betty Lane Evans was sitting next to the window.

"Now this," I told myself, "will be an enjoyable trip home. I have been a passenger on airplanes a good part of today and I've had very few words with the other passengers. This one I know. I will talk a little bit now."

Betty Lane invited me to have a seat, which I did, and we started our conversation. Each of

Other Editors Saying ... The Evil Continues

(Chattanooga News-Free Press)

Everybody knows what it would mean if the big wage and benefit increase demanded by the United Steel Workers were granted. Experience has shown that time after time steel wage increases have set off new waves of inflation.

The steel companies would have to raise their prices to meet the increased payrolls, and the cost would be passed on to every American because steel is a universal commodity. Prices throughout the country would go up faster than purchasing power could keep pace. The average breadwinner would find his family falling farther and farther behind as the amount his dollars would buy decreased. Even the steelworkers themselves would soon find that the higher prices their wage increases triggered would eat up the apparent "gains" they had made. And especially hard hit would be the millions of older people living on pensions, insurance benefits or other retirement funds. Unemployment and hard times would grow hand in hand.

The new wave of inflation would shake the national economy and push America closer to the brink of financial irresponsibility and bankruptcy that other nations have suffered through inflation. With the possible adverse effects so serious, it should not be surprising that President Eisenhower has called on steel companies and the union to avoid positions that would bring about this destructive inflationary impulse. He has called upon the American people to take note and to apply the influence of public opinion against an unreasonable settlement.

And he has hinted that unless reason prevails, the Government may have to intervene in the steel negotiations to prevent the ills that are threatening. Government intervention is something nobody should want. This is a good time to look at the conditions that have made the President feel the Government might have to intervene in labor-management relationships that should be outside the realm of Government dictation.

The crisis has developed because the laws of our nation have been tailored to grant monopolistic power to labor union dictators in a politically expedient effort to buy the votes and obtain the enormous campaign funds the labor union politicians control. This favoritism for the union dictators has destroyed good-faith negotiation, and has substituted force against entire industries and the entire nation.

The labor monopoly has simply gotten out of hand so far that the President suggests Federal Government intervention may be the only thing to curb its ruinous effects. This is the process by which power is centralized, governments become totalitarian and freedom is destroyed. The key mistake was the original grant of unbridled union power for the purchase of union votes — and the same process is continuing in Congress today.

Liquor Control By 'Folklore'

By ELMER ROESSNER

The present system of liquor control "has deeper roots in folklore than in law," W. E. Murphy, director of the Kansas Alcoholic Beverage Control, told the National Conference of State Liquor Administrators assembled in Denver.

Then he proved it.

"Some of the fussiest thinking on record was written into law and administrative regulation at the time of repeal," he said. "As the years went by, the original errors were compounded in administrative interpretations and court decisions."

An example: One state has located its stores on side streets. The state administrator told Mr. Murphy that the theory at the time of repeal was that liquor should be made not readily available, so liquor stores were located in out-of-the-way places to make it harder to get.

DISCOURAGING THE IMPULSE

In another state liquor stores are arranged so that goods are on racks at right angles to the counter, so customers cannot see the goods. Mr. Murphy asked the state administrator why. "It seems that at the time of repeal the control board was of the opinion that the display of merchandise might stimulate consumer impulse buying, and even though it was legal for the state to sell liquor, the state should not encourage the consumer to buy it."

Mr. Murphy questioned the right of the Federal Alcohol Administration to regulate industry advertising. He said the records of Congress and the language of the law indicate that Congress merely intended to give the FAA power to enforce labeling requirements of the law.

"The industry ought to regulate its own advertising to the fullest extent consistent with the watchdog responsibilities of Federal and state regulatory bodies; that the regulatory bodies should merely stand on the sidelines, as a traffic cop, to make us commented on our trips and how tired we were and how nice it would be to get back home.

The plane was in the air by this time and I settled back to enjoy the atmosphere. The flight steward, Briley, took care of any enjoyment in a hurry, however. "They're waiting for you, Betty Lane," he said, as he came down the aisle from the front of the plane.

"Okay. Excuse me, please," Betty Lane replied, and stood up. I stood back and watched her go into the cockpit.

"What's going on here?" I asked Briley. "I've looked forward to talking to that girl for a long time and here you come messing things up. What gives?"

"Oh, the crew just wanted to talk to her. She's flown so much in the past year that all the pilots and other crew members know her, and she knows them. They asked if she'd come up front and talk for a few minutes," Briley told me.

With a situation like that staring him in the face, what does a guy do? He sits down, which I did, and tries to find something to do, which I didn't. I just sat and watched the lights of Selma, then Wilson, then Lenoir come into view.

Finally, Betty Lane — who's nearing the end of her year-long reign as Miss North Carolina — returned to her seat.

"They're so nice," she said, referring to the pilot and co-pilot, as she buckled her seat belt in preparation for the imminent landing.

"Yeah," I muttered between clenched teeth.

I could have knocked both of them in the head.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
BETTER AND BIGGER COMING

We stand at the threshold of what is undoubtedly one of the great epochs of human history. Unless all signs are leading us astray, we are about to make discoveries in stellar space which may constitute man's greatest accomplishment to date.

Are there people on other planets? Certainly we cannot dismiss such a question with a big laugh. Life on this planet is so diverse (consider man and the insects), that we may well believe that there are thinking, purposeful forms of life on other planets — beings, if you will, which are vastly different from us in form and mode of living.

Which Do We Want?

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Human nutrition has reached the point where experts feel, that by controlled feeding, a population can be matured earlier, enjoy a longer prime of life, or extend its actual longevity.

But which of these three goals does a society want?

"They are quite different things," pointed out Dr. Robert S. Goodhart, scientific director of the National Vitamin Foundation, a nonprofit organization.

"What is optimal nutrition? It depends on what you want."

"If we and the Russians are engaged in trying to build up big armies, we can do this by maturing our youths faster, but they'll be dying of coronary attacks and other degenerative diseases in their 40s and 50s."

"The earlier an animal matures the earlier it does."

Dr. Goodhart said it would be possible to add potential years to a child's life by keeping him thin and small and postponing the development of his maturity as long as possible. But the price would be a lowered vitality.

"Later I myself would probably want to take him out and shoot him, because he would be useless to society," he said.

"The idea of merely living as long as possible is, it seems to me, a lousy ambition."

Dr. Goodhart feels the average child fares best if fed a diet that allows him to mature at his own pace rather than one that spurs him into a forced growth.

"A lot of us are concerned," he said, "about mothers who worry about the fact their child is smaller — even though he may be actually healthier — than the boy next door."

"In trying to make him grow taller by overstuffing him with calories and proteins, these mothers merely may be bringing him to his final stature."

"The question is whether forced-growing does anything more than bring on this early maturity."

The rise in juvenile delinquency, Dr. Goodhart says, may be, in part at least, explained by a conflict in what American society expects of its young people.

"We are feeding them diets that mature them earlier physically and mentally," he said, "but at the same time we are trying to keep them children longer emotionally."

"This is particularly true in the upper classes, which want to send their sons and daughters through college and don't like them to get married until they are well into their 20s."

This, he thinks, creates an area of explosive tension.

"Scientists claim the planet Jupiter is 'out of step' in the celestial march. Sometimes it is too far advanced, occasionally too far behind the position assigned it in space by theoretical astronomical calculations. Which means that if someone has been tinkering around with the law of gravity, any Southern can tell you who it was!" — Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—I Kings 5; 7:51-8:66; 9:1-11; 10:1-8.

By Alfred J. Buescher

King Hiram promised to send his servants to take Solomon the "timbers of cedar and the timbers of fir" by sea in floats to the place Solomon indicated, if Solomon would provide food for the workers.—I Kings 5:8-9.

So Hiram sent Solomon the lumber and great stones for the foundation and Solomon's and Hiram's builders erected the great house of the Lord which Solomon's father, David, had wanted to build.—I Kings 5:17-18.

When the temple was finished, Solomon brought in all the precious vessels which David had dedicated to the Lord, and put them among the treasures there.—I Kings 7:48-51. MEMORY VERSE—Proverbs 3:5-6.

Solomon's Reign

THE TEMPLE IS CONSTRUCTED AND DEDICATED

Scripture—I Kings 5; 7:51-8:66; 9:1-11; 10:1-8.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

IN LAST SUNDAY'S LESSON we learned that David, king of Israel, was forbidden to build the temple of the Lord, but that his son, Solomon, would be entrusted with that task.

When Hiram, king of Tyre, heard that Solomon had been anointed king of Israel, he was pleased because he "was ever a lover of David."—I Kings 5:1.

So Solomon sent a message to Hiram, telling him that now the wars that plagued his father were over, he proposed to build the Temple "in the name of the Lord my God, as the Lord spoke unto David my father."—I Kings 5:2-5.

He asked Hiram for men to "hew me cedar trees out of Lebanon; and my servants shall be with thy servants; and unto thee will I give hire for thy servants according to all that thou shalt appoint: for thou knowest that there is not among us any that can skill to hew timber like the Sidonians."—I Kings 5:6.

Hiram was pleased when he heard Solomon's request, and said, "Blessed be the Lord this day, which hath given unto David the Lord out of the city of David, which is Zion. And all the men of Israel assembled themselves unto King Solomon at the feast."—I Kings 7:51-8:2.

"Solomon stood before the altar of the Lord in the presence of all the congregation of Israel, and spread forth his hands toward heaven: And he said, Lord God of Israel, there is no God like Thee, in heaven above, or on earth beneath, who keepest covenant and mercy with Thy servants that walk before Thee with all their heart."—I Kings 8:22-23.

We may wonder how many people watched the building of this beautiful temple. Today when a fine building is being put up many people stop to watch the work going on.

"On the eighth day he (Solomon) sent the people away: and they blessed the king, and went unto their tents joyful and glad of heart for all the goodness that the Lord had done for David His servant, and for Israel His people."—I Kings 8:66.

The Lord appeared to Solomon a second time, saying He had heard Solomon's supplication and had hallowed the temple, and if a wise son over this great people."—I Kings 5:7.

"To aid in this task, Solomon raised a levy of 30,000 Israelites, whom he divided into three companies of 10,000 each, each group being required to serve one month out of three months in the Lebanon mountains. Adoniram was placed in charge of this force. Solomon agreed to pay for these cedars about 200,000 bushels of wheat and 1,700 gallons of pure oil annually, but he seems to take for granted a right for his own servants to come and bring away the timber itself." I am quoting from Peloubet's Select Notes, edited by Dr. Wilbur M. Smith.

"So was ended all the work that King Solomon made for the house of the Lord. And Solomon brought in the things which David his father had dedicated; even the silver, and the gold, and the vessels, did he put among the treasures of the house of the Lord. Then Solomon assembled the elders of Israel, and all the heads of the tribes, the chief of the fathers of the children of Israel, unto King Solomon in Jerusalem, that they might bring up the Ark of the Covenant of the Lord."

Solomon would obey Him and live a righteous life. He would "establish the throne of thy (Solomon's) kingdom upon Israel forever."—I Kings 9:2-5.

The Lord warned Solomon, however, that if he disobeyed the Lord and did that which was wicked in His sight, He would cut off Israel out of the land which I have given them; and this house . . . will I cast out of My sight; and Israel shall be a proverb and a byword among all people."—I Kings 9:6-7.

Solomon's wisdom became so famous that it was known to the Queen of Sheba, who came to visit him and was much impressed by his words.—I Kings 10:1-8.

But alas, Solomon did not obey his Lord's commands. He took many strange women as wives and they induced him to worship their idols. "And the Lord was angry with Solomon," and threatened to "rend the kingdom from thee, and will give it to thy servant." But the Lord relented and for David's sake, he allowed Solomon to retain his kingdom. But, said the Lord, "I will rend it out of the hand of thy son."—I Kings 11:1-12.

WHO'S THE MAN IN THE DRIVER'S SEAT?

It could be you behind the wheel of a Mister Softee truck . . . going where the business is. The mobile soft ice cream industry is one of the fastest growing businesses in the country—and Mister Softee leads the field.

A newly created territory in this area needs a man who is aiming high and has the ambition to get there. A man who wants to own and operate his own business, making $8,000 to $13,000 per year . . . for only eight months work! We train you, plan your routes, back you up with national advertising. You're the man in the driver's seat if you can invest a minimum down payment—the balance on a pay-as-you-profit plan.

Want to get together and talk it over? Write at once for complete information.

Jacksonville Defeats Rose High Baseballers By 5-3

JACKSONVILLE—Ronnie Finch pitched five hit ball against Jacksonville yesterday but it was in vain as his teammates committed five costly errors to send Jacksonville to their fourth conference loss of the season by a 5-3 score. Jacksonville kept its hopes alive for the Northeastern crown by increasing their record to a 10-3 mark. Elizabeth City, the pace-setter, has only two defeats and will close out their season today against New Bern.

Greenville was trying to increase their third place standing today as they host Roanoke Rapids at Guy Smith Stadium. The Phantoms have a 9-4 conference mark for the season.

Rose high opened with a run in the first on a couple of back-to-back triples by Billy James and Billy Cox. The locals scored two more runs in the fourth when Cox drew a free pass and Merle Bynum hit a triple. Joe Moye got a single to score Bynum.

Jacksonville, taking advantage of misplays, scored one run in the third inning.

Leftfielder Fullwood got to second base on an error, reached third on an infield grounder, and then scored on another error.

The home club had their biggest rally in the fifth when they scored four runs to sew up the game. Errors once again paved the way for the uprising.

Finch walked the first two men and then two successive errors scored one man and put the other in scoring position. Grubbs got a single to score a run and he later scored on the third Greenville error. Eason also had a hit and came home on Morton's single.

Finch, a southpaw, gave up only five hits but three of them came in the fifth after three errors had put the senior in plenty of hot water. It was his first loss since the opening game of the season.

Coach Bo Farley, disappointed at his club's defense, stated this morning that Malcom Griffin, a sophomore with no record, would be his starter today against Roanoke Rapids.

Suddenly Hot White Sox Gun For Yankees' Scalps

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

The suddenly hot Chicago White Sox team into New York's Yankee Stadium tonight for the opener of a two-game series that could hoist them into the American League lead and plunk the world champions into the cellar.

A week ago, the White Sox lost their fifth in a row, but now they've won six straight after a sweep of three at Boston. The streak began when they won the last three in a four-game set with Cleveland and it's carried them within a half-game of the first place Indians, who have been idle the past two days.

The White Sox could take the lead by (1) coupling a sweep over the Yankees with a Cleveland win in two at Boston, or by (2) getting more than a split with the Yanks should the Indians drop a pair to the Red Sox.

The Yankees, although winning four of their last six, are in seventh place, five games out and had two games out of last. Should they drop two to the White Sox while Detroit sweeps a pair at Baltimore, the champs would replace the Tigers at the bottom.

Left-hander Billy Pierce (4-2), who salvaged a split for the White Sox in two games at Chicago two weeks ago by beating the Yankees 4-3 in 11 innings, is Manager Al Lopez' pitching choice tonight. The Yankees have tapped southpaw Whitey Ford (3-1).

The White Sox extended their longest winning streak of the year with a 14-6 romp at Boston Thursday as Early Wynn, won his 25th.

Kansas City ended its losing string at six by beating Baltimore 2-1. Detroit defeated Washington 4-2.

In the National League, the Milwaukee Braves won 8-7 at St. Louis after calling in Lew Burdette in relief. Pittsburgh defeated Los Angeles 7-6. San Francisco beat Philadelphia 8-0 on Mike McCormick's three-hitter, and Cincinnati defeated the Chicago Cubs 2-0 on the three-hit pitching of Joe Nuxhall.

Wynn, 39, gave way in the fifth inning at Boston, giving up 10 hits and all six Red Sox runs. But he struck out seven and had a three-hit shutout for five frames while breaking a tie with Carl Hubbell, Arno Rusie and Urban Faber for 21st place in the all-time winners' list.

The White Sox pounded loser Billy Hoefft (1-3) and three relievers for 19 hits, including home runs by Earl Torgeson, Del Ennis and Jim Landis while scoring in eight innings. That tied the AL scoring record for a nine-inning game, a feat last accomplished 10 years ago — by the White Sox against Boston. Cleveland, New York and Boston also have done it.

Ned Garver and winning reliever Bud Daley (1-2) turned back the Orioles on four hits. The A's got a second-inning run on Roger Maris' eighth-homer and then cracked the tie in the seventh against Billy O'Dell (1-2).

Eddie Yost and Al Kaline homered for the Tigers in support of a four-hitter by Jim Bunning (3-3). Hal Griggs was the loser for a 2-1 record.

Americans Hold Walker Cup Edge

MURFIELD, Scotland (AP)—William Hyndman III of Abington, Pa., and his youthful partner, Tommy Aaron of Gainesville, Ga., took a two-hole lead over Britain's No. 1 team but the British grimly held their own through the first 18 holes today in the Walker Cup golf competition.

After the morning round of the scotch foursome play, with another round scheduled this afternoon, the British led in two matches and the United States in two.

Hyndman, 43, an insurance executive, and Aaron, 21, a collegian, scored the major surprise when they teamed for a three-under-par 69 against the British amateur champion, Joe Carr, and the English titleholder, Guy Wolstenholme.

The British consider Carr and Wolstenholme a sure point against the U.S. pair but their star team went two holes down when Hyndman and Aaron fired a brilliant 33 on the incoming nine.

Charlie Coe of Oklahoma City, the U.S. champion, and Billy Joe Patton of Morganton, N.C., piled up an almost insurmountable eight-hole lead over Michael Bonallack and Arthur Perowne, but the British went ahead in the other two matches.

The crack California team of Harvie Ward Jr. of San Francisco and Dr. Frank (Bud) Taylor of Pomona, was one down to Reid Jack and Doug Sewell. Michael Lunt and Alex Shepperton, the two youngest members of the British squad, had one hole edge over the U.S. rookies, Ward and Wolstenholme.

In scotch foursomes, players are paired and they hit alternate shots. Eight individual matches Saturday complete the competition.

Clash Again In District Playoff

HERTFORD — Winterville will be trying to even up the two out of three game series with Hertford tonight when the two clash once again in the Class A District Play-offs.

Hertford took the first game in the series behind the pitching of Pete Hunter. Due to rain, the second game slated for Wednesday was called and Hunter has had a chance to rest up and will be out for his second win tonight.

The Hertford ace threw a perfect no-hitter in last week's play. Winterville became Pitt County's representative when they defeated Chocod in a play-off game.

"Nice to see you again," Crandall said as he shook hands with the Redhead who bounced back after a bout with tuberculosis. "I've thought about you a great deal."

His teammates had been told in advance that the likeable St. Louisian might pay them a visit. They acted as though he'd never left them.

As the 36-year-old second baseman entered the long room under Busch Stadium, the men he'd teamed with since June 1957 smiled a warm welcome. No cheers, no yells. Just a warmth engendered when old friends meet again.

Red shook hands with everyone, pausing now and then to exchange a wisecrack with someone. Except for about 10 pounds of excess weight, Red looked as though he belonged in baseball livery.

"I'm figuring on playing—this season," he said. "I feel good enough right now to play, but of course the doctor doesn't want to rush me."

Later Red said he hoped to be exercising next month, then gradually progress into more strenuous workouts.

He's on the disabled list now and must remain on it for at least 60 days. After the two-month period he could return to the line-up at any time.

That day can't come fast enough for Braves' Manager Fred Haney. And Red Schoendienst.

Wilson Sweeps Double-Header

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Timely hitting enabled Wilson to sweep a doubleheader with Winston-Salem Thursday night and extend its first-place lead to 2 1/2 games in the Carolina League.

In the seven-inning opener at Wilson, the Tobs got only six hits but made them count to grab a 5-4 decision. Held to four hits in the nightcap, Wilson eked out a 2-1 victory by shoving across a run in the eighth.

Winston-Salem's Jim McIntyre had a no-hitter going until the eighth inning of the second game when the Tobs got all four of their hits. He gave up a total of nine walks.

Heavy hitting by Art Clessuras led Durham to a 12-7 victory over Raleigh at Durham. Clessuras clouted two home runs, one of them a grand slam in the eighth. The Bulls scored six runs in the third featured by a three-run homer by Don Wert.

Greensboro and Burlington split two games at Greensboro. Burlington did all its scoring in the first three innings of the opener and took a 9-5 victory while Greensboro won the second game 8-7.

Dave Tryver balked home the winning run in the second game with runners on first and third and two away in the seventh.

Tonight's games: Greensboro at Wilson, Raleigh at Burlington and Durham at Winston-Salem.

Art Wall Picks Up Four-Stroke Lead In Tourney

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP)—Art Wall Jr., of Poccano Manor, Pa., today carried a whopping four-stroke lead into the second round of the $22,000 Hot Spring Open Golf Tournament.

Wall tied the competitive course record and posted the low competitive total of his own career Thursday with a blistering 63 over the 7,011-yard Arlington Country Club layout.

The nine-under-par tally gave him a healthy margin over Gene Little of Singing Hills, Calif.; Jim Perree of Winston-Salem, N. C.; Buddy Sullivan of Yuba City, Calif.; and Wes Ellis Jr., of Adreans, N. J., who were bunched in the second place at 67.

Defending champion Julius Boros of Mid Pines, N. C., finished with 72. Cary Middlecoff of Hollywood, Fla., co-favorite with Wall, had 71.

No Cheers, Just A Warm Hello For Schoendienst

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Del Crandall put into 12 words what everyone was thinking Thursday night when Red Schoendienst stroled into a Milwaukee Braves' clubhouse for the first time since the 1958 World Series.

"Nice to see you again," Crandall said as he shook hands with the Redhead who bounced back after a bout with tuberculosis. "I've thought about you a great deal."

His teammates had been told in advance that the likeable St. Louisian might pay them a visit. They acted as though he'd never left them.

As the 36-year-old second baseman entered the long room under Busch Stadium, the men he'd teamed with since June 1957 smiled a warm welcome. No cheers, no yells. Just a warmth engendered when old friends meet again.

Play Today For District Crown

HOOKERTON — Hookerton High School of Greene County and North Duplin High School of Duplin County play today for the District II Class A high school baseball championship.

The two teams will meet at Brodgen, in Wayne County. Pete Beamon, undefeated in ten starts and holder of one no-hit victory, will start for Hookerton against North Duplin. Beamon has not given up more than two hits in any one of the games he has pitched this year.

Hookerton, which has a season's record of ten wins and one loss, is coached by Ken Hall, former pitching star for East Carolina College.

IN WIMBLEDON PLAY

LONDON (AP)—The Soviet Union is sending four tennis players to the famed Wimbledon Championships starting June 22. They will be the first ever to represent the country in the tournament proper.

East Carolina Hosts Appalachian Nine Tonight; Crayton On Mound

East Carolina will have the opportunity to clinch the North State crown tonight when they host Appalachian at Guy Smith Stadium.

The Pirates, 12-0 in the conference, will send Larry Crayton (6-1) to the mound. The Greensboro southpaw won his last game with a 7-2 decision over Elon. He struck out 16 in the tilt and gave up only four hits.

East Carolina will wind up their 1959 play tomorrow night against the same Appalachian club. The Bucs are 14-3 for the season.

Gary Pierce raised his average to .433 with one hit in two trips to the plate Wednesday night against Guilford. Wally Cockrell has three hits to bring his average to .327. Others batting above the .300 mark are Glenn Bass, Jerry Carpenter, and Wilbert Castellow.

Appalachian has one of the top hitting ball clubs in the loop but has had trouble with its pitching staff. The Apps are in the second division of the North State loop and lost a double header to Atlantic Christian yesterday.

A win will give ECC their 13th straight win and will not force them to re-schedule a couple of rained out games with Lenoir Rhyne. Elon, defending champion, is in second place with a 11-4 mark.

Starting time for tonight's game at Guy Smith Stadium is at 8:00.

Little Leaguers Play To A Tie

Greenville Tobacco Company made its debut in Little League action yesterday afternoon by battling Pepsi-Cola to a 7-7 tie in ten innings. The game was finally called because of darkness and will have to be replayed.

David Gordon started on the mound for Pepsi and Leo Cannon finished up for the veteran club.

Greenville Tobacco Company, a new club this year, used John Horn on the mound and then finished up with Malcom Beamon. Two homers highlighted the game, one by Dickie Wade for Pepsi and the other by Beamon of the Tobacco club.

The game was the opener for the Tar Heel League. The North State got underway Wednesday with the JC's winning over the VFW.

The Lions and Texaco will meet in the only game scheduled for today. With the exception of Saturdays, only one game will be played in the afternoon until school is out.

League Leaders

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pitching — Mike McCormick, Giants and Joe Nuxhall, Reds, both left-handers, gained three-hit shutouts. McCormick striking out nine and not allowing a hit for 7-13 innings in an 8-0 victory over the Phillies; Nuxhall striking out six in duel with Dave Hillman that ended in ninth with 2-0 victory over the Cubs.

Hitting — Dick Stuart, Pirates, drove in two runs with two hits, the second a tie-breaking home run in the ninth for a 7-6 victory over the Dodgers.

The original name of Oregon was New Albion, named by Sir Francis Drake, in 1579.

ACC Championship Is Up For Grabs; Playoff Set

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Atlantic Coast Conference baseball championship that was muffed first by North Carolina and then by Wake Forest earlier this week, now is up for grabs. And the still hungry defending champions from Clemson have muscled into the act.

After North Carolina lost its title clinching chance by losing to Wake Forest and Wake blew its golden opportunity by failing to win North Carolina State, the final league standings had Wake Forest, North Carolina and Clemson tied for the title. Each has a 9-5 league record.

The first step in unsnarling the deadlock will be taken at 8 p.m. tomorrow at Thomasville when Wake Forest meets Clemson. The winner will advance to the final test against North Carolina Monday night at Gastonia. The Tar Heels drew a bye in a coin-tossing with Wake Forest after Clemson officials expressed a desire to be omitted from bye consideration.

Clemson is 3-1 against its two playoff rivals this season. The Tigers edged Wake Forest 4-3 and 6-5. They beat North Carolina 2-1 and lost to the Tar Heels 6-3.

Wake Forest balanced its two losses to Clemson with a pair of victories over North Carolina 9-2 and 3-1, handing ace Wayne Young his only losses of the season.

Clemson won a playoff from North Carolina a year ago for the title.

Bob Plemmons (6-2) who held North Carolina to six singles in a 3-1 victory last Tuesday probably will be the starting Wake Forest pitcher.

Southpaw Harold Stowe is the most likely Clemson candidate. He tied a school record with his 21st pitching victory three days ago as he fanned 16 Furman batters and pitched four-hit ball in a 10-1 victory.

The winner of Monday's final game will return to Gastonia for the June 4-6 NCAA District 3 tournament. Georgia Tech will represent the Southeastern Conference in the four-team meet. The Southern Conference entry and an at-large team will complete the field.

Pitcher Ben Harding won his own game Thursday as North Carolina edged North Carolina State 3-2 in 11 innings. Harding, who came on in the eighth, slammed a 430-foot homer in the 11th to win the game, which does not count in the conference standings.

Virginia defeated Washington and Lee 5-0 in Thursday's other non-conference action.

Take 17-5 Win In Softball Play

St. James Methodist Church scored four runs in the first inning yesterday and went on to wallop Eighth St. Christian Church by a 17-5 score in the Church Softball League.

The winners picked up eight runs in the fourth inning to sew up the victory.

Hudson and Taylor led the winners with three hits each. Hill got two for the losers.

A team rounded up in a matter of minutes surprised the Greenville Free Will Baptist Church with a 17-12 win in an exhibition softball game.

Marvin Mill led the unorganized winners by smashing a two-run four-bagger.

The church team was scheduled to play Arlington St. Baptist but won by forfeit when the latter did not show up.

Record-Breaking Meet Expected

RALEIGH (AP)—The 45th state high school track meet here today may see several records toppled.

North Carolina's State Coach Frank Murray, meet director, said this year's crop of performers is capable of breaking every record except the one in the 880 set by Dave Scurluck in 1955.

A total of 119 stars representing 36 schools were entered in the meet. Trials were to be held this afternoon and the finals tonight.

A NEW MYSTERY The COUNT by A. A. FAIR (Erle Stanley Gardner)

CHAPTER 33

The car was registered to Lyle Ferguson, 9611 61st Street, in that city.

I opened the glove compartment and there was a pint flask of whiskey in there about two-thirds empty.

I picked up the flask by the neck with my gloved hand, closed the glove compartment, gently closed the door of the automobile, went back to Bertha Cool's car, poured all the whiskey out into the gutter and carefully put the empty flask down on the floor boards.

I tied a cord around the neck of the flask so I could hold it without smudging any prints that might be on it and drove to my apartment house.

Holding the empty whiskey bottle by the cord, I let myself into the apartment and proceeded to take the joint to pieces. I pulled out drawers, dumped things on the floor, pulled things out of the medicine cabinet, pulled suits off the hangers and turned the pockets wrongside out, pulled the bedding off the bed and upended the mattress.

When I had wrecked the place, I went out and drove to a drugstore near the Crockett apartment house.

I phoned Phyllis Crockett, "Have the passage to the elevator fixed so I can come up," I said. "I'm going to sneak past the clerk to the elevators. Be sure I can get up to your place without any delay."

I went to the apartment house and waited until a party came in that looked like they lived in the place. As they went through the door, I timed things so that I entered just behind them. One of the men saw me and held the door open for me.

I thanked him and walked to the elevators with him. I kept him between me and the night clerk. His party got off at the fifteenth floor. I went to the twentieth.

The door of the anteroom was opened.

I pressed the concealed button which brought the elevator down from the penthouse. I got in and went up.

Phyllis met me. "Good heavens, Donald!" she said. "What's happened to you?"

"I've been in an accident," I said. "Donald, you should see a doctor."

I tried to grin, but my face was swollen so badly that I knew it was a pretty lopsided attempt.

"What time is it?" I asked. She looked at her wrist watch.

"Twelve minutes past midnight," I shook my head. "I got here at twenty minutes after eleven," I said emphatically.

She studied me for a moment, grinned and said, "All right. Now tell me what happened to your face?"

The telephone rang then, and Phyllis answered it. Turning to me, she said, "It's your partner, Mrs. Cool. She says it's urgent."

I went over to the telephone. Bertha said, "Frank Sellers wants you right away, Donald."

"Where is he?"

"Headquarters. He says you're to call him at once."

I said, "Okay, Bertha. I'll get it."

Bertha said, "I hope you know what you're doing, Donald. Frank seems pretty well worked up about something."

"He's always worked up about something," I told her. "I'll call him."

I hung up the telephone, nodded to Phyllis, said, "This is the police now," and dialed headquarters.

I asked for Homicide Department and got Frank Sellers on the line.

Sellers said, "Where in blazes are you, Donald?"

"Up in the Crockett apartment conferring with my client."

"How long you been there?"

"Over an hour, I guess."

"All right, I'm coming up," Sellers said, "and tell that Crockett dame to fix it so I can get up in that elevator without a lot of red tape rigmarole, otherwise I'll tear the place to pieces . . . I think you've been pulling a fast one, Pint Size, and if you have, I'm personally going to take you to pieces."

It sounded as though Sellers was straining on the telephone. I hung up.

Phyllis Crockett, who had heard the conversation, was watching me anxiously. "What is it, Donald?" she asked. "Are you in bad with the police?"

"I'm always in bad with the police," I told her. "It's chronic. Frank Sellers is on his way up here. Better telephone the desk and tell them to pass him on through."

"Donald, I'm going to put some but witch hazel compresses on your face. I don't care who's coming up."

"Go ahead," I told her. "It's a good idea. Spread a lot of towels around as though you'd been working on my face for about an hour."

The police got there gith on schedule. They were plenty mad. "Well, well, well," Inspector Giddings said as they walked in.

"A nice scene of domesticity — do your clients always furnish you with first-aid services, Lam?"

"This is an unexpected luxury," I said.

"All right, never mind the compresses and the repartee. We want to talk with you."

Phyllis bent over me and removed the hot compress with the witch hazel pad underneath. I sat up on the davenport.

"Now, look, Donald," Frank Sellers said, "I'm friendly with your outfit. You're a tricky little guy, but I've been telling Thad Giddings here that you won't double-cross a guy if he plays ball with you."

"Who's the double-crossed whom?" I asked.

Giddings said, "Sylvia Hadley has talked."

"That's fine," I said. "I thought she would."

"Now then, the thing was just a hundred per cent different from the way you told us you had it doped out, and you knew it was. Mortimer Jasper wanted those two idols. She got one of them, and he paid her a thousand bucks. She was to get the other one. He was to give her a grand for that."

"Well, for Heaven's sake," I said, with the best air of innocence I could assume. "You mean that in place of Sylvia being the mastermind, it was Mortimer Jasper, and Sylvia was just a tool?"

"That's right," Sellers said patiently. "Now then, we're coming to something very, very interesting."

"What?" I asked.

"Jasper is raising Cain. He says that you planted that idol in his wastebasket; that you had it stashed away out there on the porch someplace, and that when you came in, while we were all milling around, you managed to get over by the wastebasket and dropped it."

"Jasper says that you recovered the idol that was stolen the other night, and that you switched that and made it appear that was the idol stolen three weeks ago, and that then you framed the whole thing on him. He's getting a lawyer and threatening suit against us for false arrest, malicious persecution, frame-up, and all the rest of it."

"Thad and I have been summoned to the chief's office at nine in the morning. It looks bad."

I said, "Well, of course, Jasper has to blame the thing on someone — it's very fortunate for you gentlemen that you had me along, otherwise he'd have claimed you were the ones who framed him."

"Well, there's one answer to it," Sellers said. "And only one answer. Sylvia Hadley says that you recovered the idol she had concealed in Lionel Palmer's camera."

I didn't say anything for a minute, and they both stood staring at me in accusing silence.

How can Donald produce the jade idol if he doesn't have it? Tricky Donald comes up with an answer as the story nears its conclusion here tomorrow.

Red Oak Christian Announcements

Circle No. 3 will meet tonight with Mrs. G. A. Evans. S. C. Winchester will speak on "The Preparation of an Adequate Church Budget" and the Rev. Howard James will show a filmstrip on "Guide To Giving." This program is in preparation for our annual Stewardship Pledge Service on Sunday at 11 o'clock.

All members of Red Oak Christian Church will sign their pledges for the new church year beginning July, 1959. A budget of $12,291.17 was approved by the congregation at a called meeting on May 10. Visitation teams will call on members unable to attend at a later date to receive their pledge cards.

At Sunday's Stewardship service the pastor will preach on "Things That Cannot Be Shaken." The Men's Quartet will provide special music. S. C. Winchester will lead the responsive lesson and give the morning prayer. Flowers will be provided by the J. T. Manning Sr. family.

The Sanctuary Choir will attend a Homecoming Dinner at Wesley Methodist Church on the Stanfordsburg Road Sunday and will sing several selections at the afternoon fellowship hour.

Sunday at 6:00 p.m. the Chi Rho, CJP and Chi Rhoettes will meet. Supper will be provided by Circle No. 2 with programs following.

Choir rehearsal will be held Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

At 7:30 p.m. Wednesday a Vacation Bible School Teachers Meeting will be held at the church.

Boy Scout Troop 398 will meet Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Scout Room.

NEW CIRCLE OFFICE

State Bank's new Circle Office drive-in branch is well under construction. The date of the formal opening soon will be announced. We hope you'll be present.

The Circle Office, located at West End Circle, is designed for our customers and friends in the western part of the city and for those who live on or near the many highways merging there. We also expect it to prove convenient to others who want to avoid downtown traffic and parking.

Regular and savings deposits will be accepted, checks cashed, travelers and cashier's checks will be sold, and payrolls prepared for delivery at the Circle Office to those who have telephoned ahead to make arrangements. We believe this new office will save many of our friends many hours of time.

Nehru Jibes At Peiping's Claim

NEW DELHI (AP)—Prime Minister Nehru today jibed at Red China's claim that Tibetan refugees who have fled to India are only "upper strata reactionaries."

Nehru told a news conference that 12,000 Tibetans have now crossed into India or the buffer states of Sikkim and Bhutan. He said it was obvious that among so large a number, there must be a large representation of the so-called common man.

U.S. aid represents one third of the total Bolivian budget.

MORE MONEY THAN FORT KNOX...AT INSURED SAVINGS AND LOANS

The United States has a gold reserve of $20.4 billion—the bulk of it located at Fort Knox. It's the backbone of the U. S. currency system.

Yet the reservoir of savings at the 3,900 FSLIC-Insured Savings and Loan Associations like ours is more than double the amount of U. S. gold at Fort Knox.

These associations, now located in every state, have promoted thrift and home ownership for 128 years.

Locally owned and managed, Insured Savings and Loan Associations like ours boast a phenomenal record of growth. Within the past 10 years, savings at these Associations have increased four-hundred per cent. Americans on the average put in $54 million and withdraw $35 million every day.

Keeping money on the move, home loan experts at Insured Associations invest savings principally in first mortgage home loans—sound investments which earn good returns. Last year alone more than $1.4 billion in earnings were paid to savers by these institutions.

Here your money works hard to earn more money. Savings are well-protected by substantial reserves and sound management. In addition, accounts are insured up to $10,000 by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation.

Clearly, here's a safe, profitable way to invest trust, pension, endowment, corporate and personal funds. Why not talk to us now?
