Air Of Calm For Henderson Area

HENDERSON, N.C. (AP)—The first weekend away from home today faced national guard troops called out to help keep order on the Henderson textile strike scene.

An air of calm prevailed with the cotton mills closed until Monday. But Col. B. A. Peterson of Ahsokie, head of the guard force, said there would be no weekend passes.

"I do not think it would be good," he explained. "Our job is to protect the people of the area, and it does not end when the mills close."

There were no disorders and no arrests at the 11 p.m. Friday night shift change at the struck Harriet-Henderson Cotton Mills.

Despite separation from their families, Col. Peterson described morale among his guard troops as "very, very good." He added, "I think the men realize the problems they are up against, and can see the necessity of remaining here."

Meanwhile, organized labor leveled a three-pronged verbal attack against the mills and the state.

Boyd Payton, Carolina director of the Textile Workers Union of America, said union attorneys are considering "possible means of testing the constitutionality" of a powerful court order issued by Judge William U. Bickett. The order limits picketing and prohibits assembly at the Harriet-Henderson Mills.

In other developments: 1. Millard Barbee, state president of the AFL-CIO, sent telegrams to President Eisenhower, Gov. Hodges and the National Guard Bureau in Washington requesting withdrawal of the National Guard from Henderson. Barbee termed use of the Guard "an obvious effort to break the strike."

2. Payton said the union has filed new charges against the mills with the National Labor Relations Board. The company is accused of engaging in a lockout. The complaint alleges the firm interfered with, restrained and coerced employees in the exercise of their rights.

3. Payton assailed both the court order and the use of National Guardsmen here. "It is ridiculous that this action is taken," said Payton. "Everybody is concerned about the violence, but nobody is concerned about the cause of the violence. Something should be done to control management."

Under the court order, only eight sign-bearing pickets are permitted at each of the two plants. The union reestablished picket lines Friday afternoon. The pickets had been pulled off Thursday and Friday morning.

The Guard was summoned here Tuesday after Gov. Hodges had ordered highway patrolmen out of the area May 8. In withdrawing the patrol, Hodges warned that the Guard would be called out if violence broke out again.

It was three months ago Friday that the mills reopened on limited operations. The strike began Nov. 17 after the company called for removal of an arbitration clause from the contract.

Track Gambling And Tax Plan Make Progress

RALEIGH (AP)—Legalized race track gambling and an income tax withholding plan made legislative progress this week while an incentive proposal for local public school support met death in a committee.

Important decisions are expected next week from the joint appropriations subcommittee, still struggling with the 1959-61 budget. The subcommittee gave tentative approval this week to six million dollars more than was recommended by the Advisory Budget Commission for education.

It also heard suggestions as to how to split up 16 million dollars in expected revenue increases. Major items were school teachers, state employees, the consolidated university and other institutions of higher learning and the Welfare Department.

Other activity included: 1. House passage of a Senate measure aimed at halting school bomb hoaxes which emptied Tar Heel classrooms continuously last fall and winter. The Senate must concur in a technical House amendment before the bill can be enacted.

2. House passage of a bill creating a new Department of Water Resources to carry out functions now handled separately by several organizations.

3. Subcommittee preparation of a bill providing for tests to determine the salary of beginning school teachers.

4. Nearly unanimous dissent on the part of farmers present at a hearing when asked if they favored a bill designed to halt use of maleic hydrazide in combating tobacco plant suckers.

The race track bill, aimed at reopening dog tracks at Moyock and Morehead City, received a favorable report from the House Proprietary and Grievances Committee over the organized pleas of a host of preachers.

It provides for legalized horse or dog race gambling under the local option plan.

Steel Contract Negotiations Are Recessed

NEW YORK (AP)—Steel contract negotiations receded Friday until Tuesday, with both labor and management indicating they disposed of a great deal of preliminary maneuvers.

R. Conrad Cooper, chief management negotiator, said the industry and union four-man teams held "good, exploratory discussions."

United Steelworkers President David J. McDonald said "we're really in basic discussions now."

The union has not spelled out its demands. It announced at beginning of talks May 5 that it would seek substantial raises and shorter working hours among other benefits. The steel industry has been insisting on a one-year freeze on wages to halt inflation.

The current contract expires June 30. A strike would involve 500,000 steelworkers, whose current base pay averages $3.03 an hour.

Dulles Reported Showing Decline

WASHINGTON (AP)—John Foster Dulles' condition is worse. His family has gathered here in the city to be close to him. In addition to his wife and brother, Allen, who heads the Central Intelligence Agency, they include his three children and three sisters.

Dulles, 71, entered Walter Reed Army Hospital last Feb. 12. In 1958, an operation had removed a cancerous growth in the colon. This February, in the course of a hernia operation, Army doctors discovered that the cancer had spread.

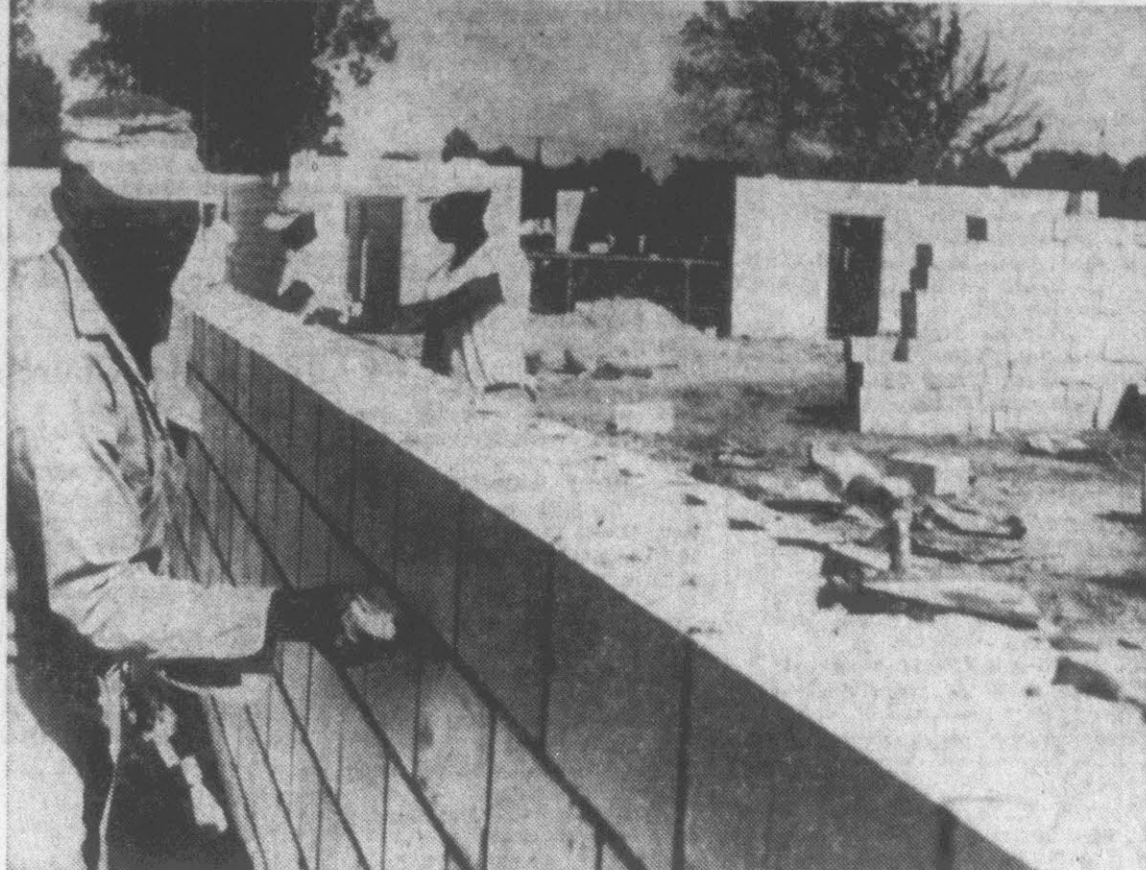

They gave Dulles huge radiation treatments, both with a giant X-ray machine and by injecting radioactive gold salts into his abdomen.

In April Dulles left the hospital briefly for a stay in Florida. For a time it even appeared that his tremendous powers of recuperation and will to go on would prevail. Then on April 12 he returned to the hospital.

The doctors reported the cancer had spread to his neck.

On April 15 President Eisenhower, with great reluctance, announced Dulles' resignation as secretary of state. The President retained Dulles as a personal consultant.

New Facilities For County

NEW COUNTY GARAGE NOW UNDER CONSTRUCTION . . . On 12-Acre Site West Of Greenville

New School Bus Garage To Be Ready For August Use

Pitt County school officials have set a tentative target date of August 15 for moving into a new county garage, now under construction on Highway U. S. 13 west of Greenville.

The new facilities, which are being built by county employees on a 12-acre site, will replace the county garage which has been in use since 1928 at Winterville. The present garage site, which includes a parking field for summer storage of the county's 152 school buses, will be converted for use by Winterville School.

Superintendent D. H. Conley said today the new facilities will replace, at the present time, the garage only. Immediate plans call for headquarters and shops of the county school building maintenance crew to remain at Winterville, although long-range plans include movement of the maintenance facilities to the new site when it can be further developed.

The new garage building, which is expected to cost an estimated $20,000 plus expenditures for equipment, is being constructed of steam-cured concrete blocks. Roof supports will be heavy truss steel, designed to support mechanical lifts, and pilasters will be of concrete with steel supports. Total Foreman L. C. Forlines, who also drew plans for the building, Conley said workmen on the project are regular employees of the county schools, plus special personnel who are laying blocks.

When completed, the garage will include offices, mechanics' stalls, a section for maintenance and repair of other county-owned vehicles and storage rooms. The main repair section will utilize "drive through" arrangements which permit vehicles to be driven in one side of the building and out the other side.

The 12-acre site, located on U.S. 13 between the Falkland highway and Tar River, was purchased by the county Board of Education for $16,500. Conley said an additional sum of $3,500 has been spent in grading the area and installing drainage tile.

Clearing and draining of the land was done by county employees, using a bulldozer purchased from surplus federal government equipment stocks, and State Highway Commission personnel, who operated equipment rented by the schools from the commission.

In addition to freeing the present garage site for use by Winterville school, the new facilities are in line, Conley said, with a trend to centralize all school administration and maintenance activities on one site. Such operations, he said, give more efficiency and closer supervision of school operations.

Development of the site and construction of buildings is being done by county personnel, Conley added, because of savings which can be accomplished. He pointed out that by having county employees do the work, with assistance from specialists in certain areas, savings could be realized on architect's fees, sales taxes for materials, and contractors' profits.

The present garage and bus parking facilities at Winterville will continue to be utilized until the new garage is completed, Conley said.

Lanier's Tour To Take Him Behind 'Curtain'

J. Con Lanier of Greenville, a man who has traveled over most of the free world to promote American tobacco, will leave Friday on a trip which will take him, for the first time, behind the Iron Curtain.

Lanier, general counsel and executive secretary of two major tobacco groups, will be one of three American representatives at a trade fair to be held the first two weeks in June at Poznan, Poland.

He will be supervisor of an American project to set up and operate a cigarette-making machine at the fair.

Prior to going to Poznan, Lanier will spend a week in Paris, France, to check on progress of a market development program for tobacco in France. The program, now underway, was undertaken in cooperation with the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the French tobacco monopoly in an effort to increase sales of American blend cigarettes through advertising techniques.

Lanier will fly from Paris to Warsaw, Poland, where his papers for travel in Poland will be completed. He will then go from Warsaw to Poznan for the international fair. While in Poznan, he will be a guest of the Polish government, which invited him and other American representatives to participate in the fair.

Lanier said today Poland buys "a little" American tobacco and one of the objects of the exhibit at the Poznan fair will be to try to develop a taste, among the Polish people, for American tobacco blends. He added that cigarettes produced at the fair will be given to visitors to the American exhibit.

Accompanying Lanier on the trip will be Frank Snodgrass of Lexington, Ky., a representative of the burley tobacco industry, and a Mr. Ruggles of the U.S. Department of Commerce. Their visit follows a trip, last year, to the United States by a four-man Polish delegation which inspected American tobacco production facilities.

Lanier will travel to Europe aboard the S.S. United States. He is general counsel and executive secretary of the Leaf Tobacco Exporters' Association and the Tobacco Association of the United States.

Herter Confers With Italians

ROME (AP)—U.S. Secretary of State Christian A. Herter arrived here today on a flying visit from Geneva and was informed that Pope John XXIII is deeply interested in the Big Four conference.

When Herter stepped from his plane at Ciampino Airport two prelates from the Vatican's secretariat of state were among officials present to welcome him.

Herter said his one day visit to Rome gives him an opportunity to confer with Prime Minister Antonio Segni and Foreign Minister Giuseppe Pella on "matters of concern not only to our two countries but to the entire world."

West Prepared Take Up Berlin Separately

GENEVA (AP)—The Western powers today were reported willing to discuss Berlin apart from their package plan for Germany in an attempt to break the deadlock with the Soviets.

The Big Four foreign ministers conference recessed over the weekend with the Soviets still insisting on the signing of a peace treaty with the two German states above everything else.

But hope persisted among Western diplomats of finding a formula for agreement on the future of divided Berlin. The crisis triggered by the Soviet demand for Western withdrawal from West Berlin is expected to move steadily to the fore as the second week of the conference develops.

Whether there is any basis for agreement, however, remains to be seen, for the Soviet Union has so far stood firm on its demand for demilitarization of West Berlin, and the Western powers are standing pat on their refusal to abandon the Communist-encircled city.

Secretary of State Christian A. Herter is flying to Rome today for a quick one-day goodwill visit. French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville is going to Paris for consultations with President Charles de Gaulle. Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko and British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd are staying in Geneva.

Gromyko and his advisers—presumably in long-range consultation with the Kremlin—were reported preparing a point-by-point reply to the Western package plan. Gromyko has already turned down the package as a whole, denouncing it as a tangle of unrelated issues which would make any progress here impossible. Western officials say he may pull various points out of the parcel and seek to discuss them individually. Berlin is one such issue, even though Communist spokesmen have rebuffed the specific Western proposal for merging West and Communist East Berlin into a single city under four power guarantee.

Another possibility foreseen by Western experts is that Gromyko may try to extract further concessions from the Western powers regarding direct negotiations between East and West German representatives.

In their plan for Western ministers offered creation of an East-West German committee to draft an all-German election law. Gromyko may try to expand that to meet his proposal for East-West German government negotiations on reunification.

Gromyko countered Friday with his own proposal—which on the main point of a German peace settlement is the exact reverse of what the West proposed.

Instead of making a peace treaty with a united Germany, Gromyko called for immediate conclusion of a peace treaty to be signed with both East and West Germany and then leave up to them the whole reunification problem.

Devalued Dollar Not Yet In Sight

WASHINGTON (AP)—Treasury officials say the United States will not devalue the dollar despite the increasing flow of gold from the country.

As of last Tuesday, the Treasury reported Friday, there was about 20 1/2 billion dollars worth of gold on hand. This meant that almost 200 million dollars worth moved to foreign countries in about six weeks. On Tuesday alone, the United States shipped 10 million dollars worth.

The news pushed up the prices of gold mining stocks Friday on the New York Stock Exchange. In London, the price of gold bullion in the free world reached its highest point since postwar trading began five years ago.

The obvious implication was that speculators expect the United States to raise the price it will pay for gold, another way of saying it will devalue the dollar.

But Treasury officials here scoffed at this suggestion. Devaluation would be a last resort, they indicated, taken only in case of dire circumstances. And such circumstances are not foreseen now, they say.

But officials do show concern. Some action would have to be taken if gold keeps up its steady outflow. Last year, $2,300,000,000 worth of gold—a record—moved out of the country.

According to law, the Treasury must have enough gold to cover at least 25 per cent of the money supply. Last year, there was enough to cover 47 per cent. Now there is only enough for 42 per cent.

International trade accounts for the shift of gold. The United States has been importing large amounts of goods and services. But there has been a big drop in exports. And it is continuing.

Because of this, the past year and a half has seen the United States pay out more money than it is taking in. To balance these international payments, gold has been taken from the United States and transferred to foreign banks.

Wind-Blown Metal Awning Lands On Parked Car

FREAK WIND . . . tore this aluminum awning from the rear of the house.

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
A freak wind tore an aluminum awning from a Brookgreen dwelling yesterday afternoon dropping the awning on a parked car in which Mrs. Jack Wallace was sitting.

Mrs. Wallace, who saw the metal coming, ducked beneath the windshield of her convertible and avoided injury. The wind caused about $800 damage to the house and light damage to the auto. It struck around 1:40 p.m.

The awning was torn from the back of a dwelling owned by Percy Cox of East Longmeadow Road.

Mrs. J.D. McGlohon was in her home just back of the Cox's and said she heard a noise and looked out. She stated the wind "looked like a big ball of dust which went up to see the awning coming under the awning and tossed it over the dwelling. As the awning sailed over the house, it tore several shingles from the roof, but did not further damage until it landed . . . on the new convertible.

The car, belonging to Jack Wallace of 918 East 14th St. was parked in the Cox driveway with Mrs. Wallace sitting in it.

Mrs. Wallace said she heard a noise "like a jet plane" and looked up to see the awning coming toward her. She ducked under the windshield to prevent being hit. Mrs. Wallace commented if the top of the car had been up it probably would have been cut to pieces.

There were several lawn chairs in the Cox's back yard. The only evidence they showed of the freak blow was that two of the chairs were overturned.

No further damage was preordained by the freak wind which was last seen heading East over a wooded area.

Miss Rawls Given Tea

Miss Nancy Rawls of Henderson, a student at East Carolina College, was honored Thursday afternoon at tea by Mrs. B. D. Johnston and Mrs. E. L. Baker. Upon arrival Miss Rawls, bride-elect of June, was presented a pink cymbidium corsage. The guests were introduced to the receiving line composed of Mrs. Johnston, Mrs. Baker, Miss Rawls, and Mrs. W. P. Edmonds, mother of the bridegroom-elect. Arrangements of peonies and sweet peas flanked by pink tapers decorated the living room. The appointed table in the dining room held an arrangement of white pom poms with fern and white candles. Bridal cake, ice cream, mints, nuts and punch was served to the approximately 70 guests. Mrs. D. M. Wall of Wake Forest, Mrs. M. V. Stainback of Henderson, and Mrs. T. A. Park assisted in serving the party dainties. Good-byes were said to Mrs. Earl Lang.

Flower Arranger Is Speaker

Mrs. E. J. Maloney, an authority on Oriental Flower Arrangements, was guest speaker for the Aries Book Club when the last meeting of the year was held at the home of Mrs. Sweeney Moye, Tuesday night. The speaker demonstrated with fresh flowers how to arrange in three basic styles according to the Japanese. These are upright, slanting sideways and forward slanting. Mrs. Maloney stressed that with imagination, patience and practice anyone could achieve striking arrangements. It was emphasized that one single flower in a proper container and setting could be more effective than many blossoms. Prior to the program Mrs. Moye presided for the business session. Programs for next year were discussed. It was decided that club members would give papers on outstanding women. A sweet course was served.

Shower Honors Bridal Couple

Miss Nellie Ruth Gwaltney, Miss Catherine Windham, and Miss Brenda Windham were hostesses at a miscellaneous shower Thursday night, at the Falkland Community Building honoring Miss Gail Garris, bride-elect, and Alton Ray Clark, bridegroom-elect. S. C. A. Meets for Last Time

The Student Co-operative Association installed next year's officers last week at a meeting which the entire student body attended. This was the last meeting for the 1958-1959 council.

Principal Oren E. Dowd administered the oath of office to president-elect Clark Brewer. Clark then administered it to the remaining officers.

Those serving with Clark next year include Charles Taft, vice president; Melinda Coleman, secretary; Ernie Duff, treasurer; and Billy Neal James and Johnny Reynolds, roving representatives. Since this assembly occurred before Reggie's resignation, he took the oath at this time instead of Charles.

They replace Howard Garner, president; Billy Cox, vice president; Frances Cosart, secretary; Clark Brewer, treasurer; and Larry Roberts and Melinda Coleman, roving representatives.

The standing committee chairmen gave their yearly reports and Howard gave his farewell speech.

"Last April, when I ran for the office of President of our high school, I had only a small idea of what this year would be like. I knew that the success or failure of this year depended on five things: the student body, the Student Council, the faculty, the adviser, and me. The way each of these functioned was to decide the measure of success to be enjoyed."

"The student body has the main responsibility for any organization's success. You have shown your sincere desire for good study."

dent government by your active participation in our activities, especially the Twirp Season, honor code, and the way you turned out to vote in the recent election. I want to extend to you, as a whole sincere appreciation for all you have done.

"This year's Student Council has been the finest I have participated in since I have been in high school. The representatives have worked diligently and done their best to represent their homerooms well."

"The backbone of any school is its teachers. I dare say no school in Eastern North Carolina has our quality of teachers. Some schools are strong in just one or two departments, but fortunately for our community we are strong in every single department. They have accomplished their first task, teaching, well and then have given the student government their full support."

"If any one person could be given the most credit for the success we have enjoyed this year, it would be our adviser. Most of you do not realize the many hours of work and patience that she has had."

"She has been the person who has become a personal friend of the Student Council members as well as the most marvelous adviser any Student Council could possibly have."

"We will never forget all that Mrs. Nell Everett has done. Our heartfelt appreciation is extended to you.

"As you all have seen, the first four have done their jobs well. As your president this year, I have found that there was much more responsibility placed on the S.C.A. president than I had anticipated. I have had to learn as I went along. I tried to do my best, although at times, I have not done the right thing or set the best example."

"I hope that at no time during this year you have regretted giving me this office. I only wish that I could have the opportunity to live this year again as your Student Council president, but what is past is past, and what we have done can never be undone."

"Now the time is quickly approaching for Billy Cox, Dot Betsy, Mildred, Laura, Kathryn Oakes, and I to leave our posts with the memories of success and failure. We must make way for Clark, Reggie, Melinda, Erskine, Johnny, Billy Neal and others who will have the opportunity of serving you."

"I thank everyone—the student body, Mr. Dowd, and the faculty—for all they have done toward making this a successful year. Needless to say, this experience will be one of the highlights of my life. I will never forget this and I hope you will not forget this Student Council year and its individuals."

Secretary To Adjutant

MISS ESTHER J. NORRIS . . . secretary to the Post Adjutant at Ft. McNair, Washington, D. C.

"It's simply routine," says Miss Esther J. Norris, describing her job as secretary to the Post Adjutant at Ft. McNair in Washington, D. C. She is the daughter of Mrs. Gatha Norris Cox of Rt. 1, Ayden. Answering 50 to 60 telephone calls in the course of a day, typing countless pieces of correspondence and maintaining the Central Post Files comprises a major portion of the secretary's duties at Ft. McNair.

In the absence of the Post Commander's secretary, Miss Norris fills this spot acting as receptionist and secretary for the Commander.

She arrived in the nation's capital in June 1951 and acquired her first job as clerk-typist in the Civilian Personnel Office, Office of the Secretary of the Army at the Pentagon.

In March 1954, the personable young typist went to Ft. McNair where she worked as clerk in the Post Signal Office prior to becoming secretary to the Adjutant in June of that same year.

Someone Had To Bring This Up

Trustees of East Carolina College would have been negligent in discharging their responsibilities to the state and to their institution had they not pointed out forcefully to the Joint Appropriations Committee the discrimination in suggested increased appropriations for institutions of higher learning.

Leaders of the Joint Appropriations Committee had suggested that from the extra $16 million in estimated revenues for the next biennium, a total of 3.2 million be added to appropriations for the Greater University and that 1.1 million be added to appropriations for all other state-supported colleges.

While we recognize the fact that the Greater University must have additional funds if it is to carry out the program expected of it by the people of North Carolina, we also recognize the fact that higher education in North Carolina is not a one-shot proposition. We must strengthen our great university, and at the same time we must also strengthen our other institutions of higher learning. To neglect one segment of our system of higher education for the sake of emphasizing the other would be folly indeed.

Already appropriations of $614 per capita have been recommended for the Greater University compared with recommendations of appropriations averaging about $353 per capita for East Carolina College, Appalachian State Teachers College and Western Carolina College. This gap would be further widened if the Joint Appropriations Committee follows the suggestion that approximately 75 per cent of the additional funds for higher education be designated for the Greater University and only 25 per cent for the other institutions.

Considering the matter, it should not be overlooked that the predicted average enrollment of the Greater University during the biennium is estimated at 16,800 while the predicted enrollment at the other degree-granting institutions is estimated at 14,900. These 14,900 students in the other state colleges should not be penalized during the coming biennium to provide even higher education appropriations for the benefit of the 16,800 students who will be enrolled in the Greater University.

It must also be recognized that the institutions other than the University turn out the higher percentage of teachers who enter the classrooms of North Carolina's public schools. Unless these teachers are prepared, unless the institutions charged with the responsibility for preparing them have adequate funds with which to work, the overall fabric of education in North Carolina cannot be strengthened. If teachers are not well prepared for their responsibilities, how can our public schools turn out students who are well prepared for the higher education opportunities which are before them?

By pointing out the discrimination in the proposal for dividing these additional funds, the Board of Trustees of East Carolina College has performed an important service to higher education in North Carolina. They have been criticized already for their action. They have been accused of selfish motives in behalf of the institution they represent.

Such accusations notwithstanding, the ECC trustees spoke out with sound words at a moment when someone needed to point out the shortcomings of the proposed division of funds. Their words, we trust, will not fall on deaf ears in the Joint Appropriations Committee.

A Bigger Bite On Deserters

By LYNN NISBET

DESERTERS — Dr. Ellen Winston, commissioner of welfare, told a House committee the other day that about one-fourth of the welfare load for aid to dependent children is occasioned by deserting fathers. Every one of the 49 States has joined in adopting basic principles of the uniform reciprocal support act, under which responsible fathers when found in another State can be brought into court and required to contribute to support of his children.

North Carolina's judicial machinery for enforcing the act has been inadequate chiefly because responsibility has not been definitely fixed on any particular official, and because proceedings could be initiated only in a domestic relations or county superior court. Bills introduced by Sen. Elbert Peel, passed by the Senate and now in House committees, would authorize action in any court of record (which includes most of the recorder courts) and would specifically charge the superior court solicitor or a specially designated attorney with responsibility for carrying them through.

Dr. Winston said the State is now collecting around $400,000 a year from fathers to aid in support of deserted children, and she thinks provisions of the Peel bills will make it easy to collect more than twice that amount.

These bills are in line with sentiment expressed by several editors at the Eastern North Carolina Press Association last week that enforcement of the support act should be strengthened and localized as a major step toward reducing the burden on public welfare funds for children born out of wedlock or deserted by the heads of families.

NOMENCLATURE — Objection raised to designation of North Carolina as a "Christian State" in the proposed new constitution was quickly overruled on the ground that the accepted meaning of the term did not limit it to belief in the Christ or in those who are affiliated with some denomination in which a basic tenet is the divinity of Jesus. It has a broader connotation closely analogous to civilization and enlightenment.

Pupils of public schools 50 years and more ago will remember that the peoples of the world were bracketed in four major classifications: savage, barbarian, civilized and enlightened. Used in that sense the term is not offensive to Orthodox Jews, Mohammedans or other non-Christian religious sects.

Similar loose use is made of the designation of our social order as "Anglo-Saxon." While most of the statutory laws of North Carolina stem from the old English common law, many of the customs and much of the real culture of the state is affected as much by Celtic, Teutonic and Roman influences as by the narrow Anglo-Saxon.

The so-called English language is replete with redundant phrases like "aid and abet," "to have and to hold" and hundreds more indicating the influence of the French-Latin element after the Norman conquest upon the ancient Anglian language.

So when reference is made to a Christian state or Anglo-Saxon culture no offense is intended toward adherents of non-Christian religions or descendants of Irish, Scotch, German, French and other non-Anglian forebears. Somewhat in the same way common usage makes nearly all cameras Kodaks and most food cooling gadgets Refrigerators, although these are trade mark names for particular products.

GERRMANDERING — The visit of David Clark of Lincoln to Capitol Square this week revived interest in probability of North Carolina losing a representative in the Congress under the 1960 census and some of the "gerrymandering" that might result from redistricting the state to accommodate 11 instead of 12 representatives.

Clark is an active candidate for Congress in the 10th district, where last year he ran a close second to Republican incumbent Charles Raper Jones. Jones is the only Republican in the Congress from North Carolina, has held the seat since 1953. Democratic leaders have more or less openly said that a redistricting plan would make sure that Lincoln was put in a reasonable safe Democratic district — perhaps in one where a Democratic incumbent lives. That would "take care of" Jones, but it also might block Clark from going to Congress.

Redistricting cannot be effected before the 1961 General Assembly and action then will be influenced by result of the 1960 election. If Clark wins the districting strategists will revise present intentions. If Jones or some other Republican wins, the plan likely will be carried through to gerrmander lines so as to include him out.

Meantime, Clark and his friends are not worrying about 1961 and thereafter. They are concentrating efforts on winning the 1960 election. The 1958 campaign in the 10th district was not complicated by state or national races, although it did get involved in some county contests. It is conceded on all sides that next year's campaign will be influenced by the presidential contest, as well as state races for Governor and United States Senator.

Safety Interests Lose An Important Adjunct

In killing the controversial drunkometer bill, the legislature has denied the courts of the state an instrument which would have been of considerable value in determining whether a person charged with driving drunk was actually guilty of the crime.

It denied the courts the use of a device that would offer greater assurance of convicting those guilty of driving drunk and acquitting those charged with the crime but not guilty of the offense.

The bill would have permitted a much more scientific manner of determining whether a person was actually under the influence of alcohol, while driving. And by doing so it would have strengthened the arm of the law in dealing with those drunken drivers who endanger the lives and property of others on the highways.

The idea behind the drunkometer tests is sound and certainly North Carolina should not indefinitely deny itself the use of such equipment which has proved so effective in other states in dealing with cases in which persons are charged with driving drunk.

The better North Carolina is able to enforce its highway safety laws in the courts, the better program of highway safety the state will have.

Unfortunately, the death of the drunkometer bill at the hands of the legislators probably will mean the unnecessary death of North Carolina motorists before vehicles operated by drunken drivers.

Proposals That Neither Accept

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — It is only realistic to expect very little from the foreign ministers meeting in Geneva or, if it is held later, from a summit meeting between President Eisenhower and Premier Khrushchev.

The following possibilities seem all that can be expected from all the discussions for a long time:

1. The West and the Soviet Union eventually may reach some agreement to stop nuclear weapons testing to avoid fallout dangers; and they may find some way of easing their dispute over West Berlin.

2. If the talks can continue without an explosion, there may be what diplomats like to call an easing of tensions. That's a phrase made of rubber. It could turn out to be real and helpful. It could prove to be a dangerous myth.

Here are some reasons for not expecting sensational agreements, starting with the broadest problem — disarmament — and going on to the discussions at Geneva now among the foreign ministers of the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain, France.

A truly broad disarmament agreement seems out of the question for years. The West is hugely outnumbered by the Communist world in military manpower. The only thing the West has to offset the numerical superiority is nuclear weapons.

So long as the West and the Soviets retain nuclear weapons, talk of a general disarmament is more idealistic than practical. But isn't it possible the two sides may agree on banning nuclear weapons, too? Not for a long, long time.

Nuclear testing may be detected. But scientists now have no way of detecting stockpiles of nuclear weapons which a nation wants to conceal. So even if both sides agreed never to use nuclear weapons in war, this would be the result:

Neither side could feel safe about the promise unless both sides destroyed their nuclear weapon supplies. But neither side could be sure such a promise was carried out, when neither can tell whether the other cheated and has secretly stored such weapons for future use.

At Geneva both sides are making proposals, each with its own interests in mind:

The Soviets want the West to recognize the Communist government of East Germany as the legitimate government of that country. The West refuses.

Such recognition would suit the Soviets because it would strengthen the Communist grip on East Germany and all the other European satellites. Any hope the people in those countries still had for freedom from Red rule would be badly diminished.

At the West wants to keep hope alive in the satellite peoples. Further, the big Western powers are allied with West Germany which wants the two Germanys united and hopes such unification will mean a Germany linked with the West.

At Geneva the West unveiled a program for eventual unification, with the people of the two Germanys voting on the kind of government they want.

The West seems to have no doubt of the outcome — a government linked with the West — or it wouldn't have made such an offer. Further, in any voting the West Germans would outnumber the East Germans by better than two to one.

Khrushchev already has said he wouldn't let Communist East Germany go capitalist. So while there may be a lot of gumbating at Geneva over the Western proposal — which the Soviets have scorned — the proposal seems doomed.

The Soviets want the Western Big Three to get their troops out of West Berlin. No wonder. That part of Berlin is 100 miles within Communist East Germany. It's the most real and advanced Western outpost inside the Communist world.

It's a constant beacon of hope for East Germans who want to flee to the West. It dispels any doubts of those East Germans that the West is standing fast against total Soviet domination of East Germany.

But the West insists, for the reasons given, plus others, that it won't pull its troops out of Berlin. And the deadlock remains.

Innocent Bystanders

Our Senators Not Happy

United States senators are considerably less than happy with their new multi-million dollar office building in Washington, Engineering News-Record reports.

The senators have a list of grievances that add up to half a million dollars or so in necessary modifications. The money for the changes in the building, which cost the tax payers originally $26 million, will add up to half million dollars.

Voted for over a decade ago, the building was finished and waiting for the law makers at the end of the Easter recess. By and large, they liked what they saw — a gleaming seven-story structure of white Vermont marble, with impressively big hearing rooms equipped with the latest in public address systems, handsome bronze light fixtures and heavy walnut doors.

But then it began to dawn on the senators that all was not well. After the lawmakers had tried their wings in the building, some went so far as to call it a "colossal blunder."

Blunder or not, the senators do have a lot of grievances. To their horror, they discovered that — due to louvered doors and insufficient soundproofing — their private office conversations can be heard plainly in the public hallways.

Driveways to the two-level underground garage apparently were designed for cars of another era. The lowslung 1959 autos drag at the center on the incline's top and drag on both ends at the bottom.

Fixing this will be costly and expensive since automatic electric snow-melting equipment is imbedded in the concrete drive.

The office building was equipped with the latest in automatic elevators. But someone forgot that impatient senators traditionally buzz three times when they want immediate elevator service. The new machines are not set up to record anything beyond the first buzz.

As a stop gap, two elevators have been set aside for senators. Now the experts are trying to "retain" the elevators to recognize and answer a senator's urgent call.

There were even complaints about the slick, rubber tile used throughout most of the building. Two girls already have been hospitalized from falls on the floors. What's more, the tile fails to act as a sound absorbent material.

So wall-to-wall carpeting is being proposed for all offices at a cost of $150,000.

In the new hearing rooms, each senator is provided with individual control buttons to turn his microphone on and off. In practice, frustrated law makers have found themselves talking into the dead mikes one minute and having their private asides to their neighbors broadcast to the room the next.

And the amplifying system is hooked to the bell system by which senators are summoned to the floor for important votes. The bells are designed to have a soft, soothing tone, but they hoot like a fog horn when amplified by the speaker system.

When it comes to placing the blame, the collective senatorial face turns red. Design and construction were supervised and approved every step of the way, by the Senate Office Building Commission — a group of senators chosen by the Senate itself.

One of the many problems which arose was solved by the senators just like we common people might have solved it.

The new desks for employees proved to be so low slung that secretaries could not get their legs under them. Solution was simple, if crude — wooden blocks were installed under the desk legs.

And, all the forces for education should stick together.

So you're going to start a business! Should you plunge in with your own stout heart or should you buy a franchise? You can get franchises to operate roadside restaurants, ice cream and custard stands, grocery stores, drugstores, motels and many other kinds of businesses. The newest one is a home-owners club: if you have $25,000 to start, Ernest Curtis of Detroit will get you into business in 90 days.

There is no pat answer. Many enterprisers have plunged ahead on their own and, sitting in the ruins of their businesses, have wondered why they hadn't avoided trouble by making a franchise deal. And many others have taken franchises only to bemoan the fact that they didn't rely on themselves, perhaps as their wives had urged them.

BOTH SIDES OF SCALE

There are advantages and disadvantages to franchises. Advantages:

You get know-how. The companies offering franchises have bought a lot of talent to tell you things you might not know.

You get experience. Mr. Curtis, for example, spent 18 months and $75,000 getting his first club operating. Other franchise sellers draw from the success and failures of dozens of other franchise holders.

You get a plan. A good franchise scheme will tell you what steps to take in what order, something in innocent investor might have to figure out for himself — and then figure wrong.

You get promotion. Franchise operators offer not only a package of newspaper, radio, television and billboard promotion, but they often offer their own advertising in print and on the air.

In the hearing rooms, the senators sit on a raised dais that keeps them a considerable distance from witnesses, and — with elections due soon — they no longer show up in the background when the witness is photographed.

Too, one committee worried that the senators when stepping from the raised dais into an adjoining room, would neglect to make the step down — with disastrous consequences to their dignity and bone structure.

As a result, a raised platform complete with shiny hand rails was extended into the adjoining room.

Said He Was No Singer

By WILLIAM GLOVER

NEW YORK (AP) — When Jim Morris was in seventh grade back in Greensboro, N.C., he couldn't sing in the Christmas choir.

"They said I had no voice," Morris says with the satisfied grin of a guy who has long since proved teacher dead wrong.

Jim was recently chosen from several hundred candidates to portray Stephen Foster in the summer-long melody pageant about the famous composer scheduled to start June 25 at Bardonia, N.Y.

The slender, 31-year-old baritone aims to liberate Foster's folk music from its latter-day reputation of too-sweet sentimentality.

"Some jaws drop when I take the verse of 'Old Kentucky Home' at twice normal speed," he says. "But then people relax."

"There isn't any disrespect — it's just injecting the original vitality."

"Foster has been mundanely treated, with a lack of flair. But when you read about him singing his own songs you discover he had a whale of a flair. People who knew Foster said no one could sing his music as well as he could."

Jim was in Europe last year, hard at his own singing career, when he heard about the Foster project. His dad, James Rouse Morris Sr., who hails from near Bardonia, read about it.

"I write the producer," recalls young Morris, "and was more extrovert than I usually am, and told him I somehow felt I would be right for the part."

Jim set his sights on a musical career in childhood. After his vocalizing failure in grade school he developed high skill on the oboe and other reed instruments. After completing high school, his mother, an amateur singer, got a local teacher to give him voice lessons.

The results this time were better, and Morris moved on to the Juilliard School of Music in New York, joined the Robert Shaw Choral and garnered wide experience in various stage musical productions.

After two years of military service, Morris returned to singing and in 1956 was in the original "My Fair Lady" company.

Jim was born in August, 1927 at Thomasville, Ga., but the family home soon after became Greensboro. He is married to Myrtle Oakley, of Wilson, N.C., a stunning former model.

They have a young son, James III, who hasn't yet indicated whether he will sing, act or play an oboe.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE OLD AND THE NEW
On a square, brick building in a mid-western town I saw these words built into the outside wall: A.J. Smith, 1881, Livery Stable. On the first floor of the building were two large stores, one selling TV sets and the other high priced automobiles.

Eighteen hundred and eighty one to nineteen hundred fifty nine — from a livery stable to a building engaged in the sale and distribution of the most modern types of merchandise. The madhead of the old days was still prominently displayed, but so was the adaptation to new conditions and demands as set forth in the two modern stores on the first floor.

Happy life consists in the capacity to accommodate one's self to new conditions and circumstances. Too much adaptation and one has compromise; too little, and one has stagnation and death. Anyone who would have persisted in the livery stable business and harness making and selling in the face of the growing demand for automobiles, would have been foolish indeed. Anyone who would have thrown up his hands and given up before the onrush of modern modes would have been even more foolish. Yet thousands of people who plunged into the automobile business fifty years ago went broke.

The right thing at the right time. Balance does it. A.J. Smith, whoever he was, taught his descendants how to turn livery stables into modern, well equipped stores.

Two Sides To Franchise Picture

travelers never eat elsewhere when there's a Howard Johnson restaurant nearby.

These are disadvantages: You pay. All franchise systems charge down payments and continuing percentages.

You sacrifice control. You have to follow the franchise plan, even if you think a variation would be better. However, these rules are spelled out in initial contracts.

You're bound. Because you have agreed to it, you usually have to obtain supplies, etc., from certain sources. If you don't, you're penalized.

You waste experience. To some extent, you have to do things the way the franchiser says, even if you know a better way.

You share others' faults. An abandoned ice cream stand bearing the same name as yours may hurt your business. A few travelers never eat at a Howard Johnson restaurant because of some fault in the service at a single shop.

THE NEWEST VARIETY

The home-owners' club idea is this: Franchisers line up plumbers, radio and television repairmen, gardeners, carpenters and other fixers and offer them business for 10 per cent of the bill, providing they follow certain rules. Then the franchisers sign up homeowners at $12 a year, usually.

For that they're guaranteed emergency service at any hour, reasonable rates on emergency and guaranteed work.

Contractors get new business and collection of their bills.

Whether one should buy a franchise under any plan depends on many factors: the plan itself, his own abilities, his temperament, and his experience.

And surely no one should sign a franchise agreement without consulting his own lawyer and without talking to other franchise holders.

Rose High Edges Roanoke Rapids, 6-5

Rose High closed out their 1959 season yesterday afternoon on a winning note as they turned back a stubborn Roanoke Rapids club, 6-5.

Coach Bo Farley chose to go with sophomore Malcolm Griffith on the mound and Griffith made his debut as a winning one as he shook off a shaky first inning and allowed only four hits in the final six frames.

The visitors got to Griffith in the first inning for two hits and picked up two runs in the process. Steve Taylor had the big blow of the inning.

Greenville picked up a single run in the first inning on singles by Alan McArthur and Joe Moyer and a double by Billy James. Moyer got credit for driving in the run.

The Phantoms sewed up the game in the third as they scored five runs on only two hits. Three walks and singles by Moyer and Billy Cox produced the tallies.

The Yellow Jackets touched Griffith for one run in the third and then came up with two more in the sixth.

Edwards and Kink sparked the visitors come-from-behind bid in the sixth as both connected with run-scoring singles. Griffin finally retired Matkins to come out of the frame with a one run lead. Joe Moyer closed his high school career with two hits to lead the Rose club to their tenth conference victory of the season against four defeats. Greenville finished the season with a 11-5 over-all mark.

Lopez Concludes Yanks Can Be Had

NEW YORK (AP)—Al Lopez is more convinced than ever today that the New York Yankees, four-time champions, are ready to be taken in the American League.

The Chicago White Sox manager emphasized that his conclusions were not drawn merely on his team's victory 6-0 Friday night, but more on the manner in which the Yankees lost.

"They're not getting the phenomenal pitching they got at this time last year," he said, "and their defense isn't as good as it has been in the past. They've been losing games they would have won last year."

Lopez obviously was referring to the three miscues committed by the Yankees which permitted the White Sox to score three extra runs, as well as Whitey Ford's inability to go past the sixth inning. It marked the 12th straight game that a Yankee pitcher failed to go the distance.

"It looks like the Yankees have a couple of legitimate challengers in Cleveland and Chicago," Lopez said.

"In previous years, the Yankees used second-string pitchers against teams they knew they could beat and saved their aces—Reynolds, Raschi and Lopat—for the big game. Last year it was Whitey Ford and Bob Turley. They can't do that any more. They've got to shoot everything they've got against every club to keep winning."

The triumph left the White Sox half a game behind the league-leading Cleveland Indians, and 5½ games in front of the seventh-place Yankees.

Lopez credited the White Sox surge to veteran outfielder Del Ennis, recently obtained from Cincinnati on waivers, and third baseman Bubba Phillips.

In the last seven games, Ennis has had 10 hits in 25 times at bat for a .400 average. Phillips has done ever better, 15 in 31 times at bat for .484.

Basilio Waiting

And Ray Wages

Running Fight

NEW YORK (AP)—Carmen Basilio still is waiting and Sugar Ray Robinson still is bobbing and weaving in his running battle with the New York State Athletic Commission.

Robinson claims he already has complied with the orders of the commission and the State Supreme Court by signing for a Sept. 21 defense of his world middleweight boxing title in Philadelphia. The commission isn't so sure.

Melvin Krulwitsch, chairman of the commission, ordered Robinson to appear Monday afternoon with all available evidence to prove he has "entered into articles of agreement to defend against Basilio." The Supreme Court said April 30 he must do that in 15 days or risk the vacating of his title by the commission.

Basilio has signed nothing. "What can I do?" he asked in Syracuse. "All I can do is wait. The rules are the rules."

Don Newcombe Back In Fine Fettle

Don Newcombe was Big New

Friday night.

The large right-hander of late has known too few of the big days he used to have with regularity.

But Friday night was one of them as he backed up his sharp control pitching by driving in three runs, homering for the clincher, while winning a big game for Cincinnati with a 5-2 decision at San Francisco.

In the American League, Cleveland beat Boston 4-3 and retained a half-game edge over the Chicago White Sox, who whipped the New York Yankees 6-0. Baltimore defeated Detroit 2-1 and Kansas City beat Washington 4-2.

Newcombe, 32, who has won only 20 games since being named baseball's top pitcher in 1956 with 27 victories for the Dodgers, gave up seven hits, walked none and struck out seven. He lost his shut-out bid in the sixth when Leon Wagner's third homer in three days was good for both Giants runs.

Newk was 3-for-4 in the Reds' 14-hit attack. He doubled home a second-inning run, then put it out of reach with a two-run homer in the fourth off loser Jack Sanford (5-3).

The Cardinals swung for a dozen hits against loser Robin Roberts (2-2) and three relievers with George Crowe, Ken Boyer and Bill White hitting solo home runs.

Clemson, Wake Forest Meet In First Playoff

THOMASVILLE, N.C. (AP)—Clemson and Wake Forest collide here tonight in the first game of a three-team playoff for the Atlantic Coast Conference baseball title. With the championship goes the right to represent the conference in the NCAA tournament.

The winner of tonight's game meets North Carolina for the championship Monday night at Gastonia, also a neutral field.

Each of the teams compiled 9-5 records in regular season ACC play. Clemson, the defending champion, beat North Carolina in a playoff for the title last year.

The ACC champion will compete in the four-team NCAA District 3 tournament at Gastonia next month.

In another game today, Virginia (6-7) will try to hit the 500 mark at Duke (4-9). It will be the final conference game for both teams.

Second Base Is Now 'Assured'

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—Go., Edmund G. Brown figures second base might come in handy when the San Francisco Giants move into their new stadium at Candlestick Point later this season.

By an odd omission, when a portion of the ball park area was sold by the state in 1870, the transaction was never properly recorded. As a result the state still technically owns a hunk of real estate right where second base will be.

Ted Confident He Will Improve

BOSTON (AP)—"I'm lousy and I know it but I'm going to get better and help the club."

Those were the words of Boston Red Sox slugger Ted Williams Friday night following the fourth game since he joined his mates.

Ted went 0-for-4 in Friday night's 4-3 loss to Cleveland. In the games since his recovery from his spring neck ailment, the defending American League batting champion is batting .063.

Newk was 3-for-4 in the Reds' 14-hit attack. He doubled home a second-inning run, then put it out of reach with a two-run homer in the fourth off loser Jack Sanford (5-3).

Each of the teams compiled 9-5 records in regular season ACC play. Clemson, the defending champion, beat North Carolina in a playoff for the title last year.

The ACC champion will compete in the four-team NCAA District 3 tournament at Gastonia next month.

In another game today, Virginia (6-7) will try to hit the 500 mark at Duke (4-9). It will be the final conference game for both teams.

Second Base Is Now 'Assured'

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—Go., Edmund G. Brown figures second base might come in handy when the San Francisco Giants move into their new stadium at Candlestick Point later this season.

By an odd omission, when a portion of the ball park area was sold by the state in 1870, the transaction was never properly recorded. As a result the state still technically owns a hunk of real estate right where second base will be.

Godfrey Taking 60 Days Of Seclusion

NEW YORK (AP)—Arthur Godfrey has said "Au revoir" to public life for 60 days to follow doctors' orders explicitly in recuperating from a lung cancer operation.

The CBS radio and television star left Columbia Presbyterian Hospital Friday — a weak, trembling man but grateful to be alive.

Although aides tried to hustle him away to his New York apartment, the red-haired performer refused. He spoke to the press and asked through reporters to convey his thanks to so many well-wishers who have followed the results of his surgery.

Later from his Manhattan home Godfrey dictated a 1,000-word statement released for publication through CBS, concerning his recent operation, and hopes for the future.

Godfrey had told newsmen that "I got a break—he (the surgeon) got it out, under circumstances so trying that one slip or the other and I wouldn't be here talking to you."

In his statement, he elaborated on his getting a break.

"I know why I got the break. I got it because so many people prayed for it. I'll have to admit that I didn't pray for it, because I never ask for anything for myself and besides, I have already had too many breaks. I only ask to be worthy of whatever is granted."

Godfrey's statement concluded: "Now, these doctors who performed this miracle of surgery have given me strong orders. I said 'What are your orders?' They answered 'No confidences. No business. No interviews. No tiring endeavors of any kind for at least 60 days. For two months you are to lie on the beach. If you do that, you will make a good recovery.'"

"So, ladies and gentlemen of the Fourth Estate and, through you, to my wonderful friends throughout the land, I say Au revoir. I will not bother you again for 60 days."

"But look for me after I get the okay to go ahead because I mean it when I say I am grateful for this break and will try to prove myself worthy of it."

After spending some time at his home here, the 55-year-old Godfrey will go to his 1,500-acre Virginia farm.

According to generalized figures from the American Cancer Society, the chances are 25-1 to 50-1 against Godfrey's survival. There is no immediate way of knowing whether the cancer in the left lung spread from the lung before the operation. If it didn't, medical practice still requires a five-year period of close observation before the operation can be termed a success.

Barbers' Price War Pleases All

IRVING, Tex. (AP)—Bargain-minded fathers and their bushy-haired sons eagerly lined up today to get 15-cent trims with free shoeshine and snow cones during the price war of feuding barbers.

Participants are Ed Cox, a realtor who owns the Irving Boulevard Barber Shop, and his two former employees—A. T. Harrell and Jay Simmons, who now operate their own shop 150 feet down the street.

Cox opened his shop eight months ago but says he hasn't made enough money from a 70-30 split arrangement with Harrell and Simmons to cover his investment.

"I wanted out of the barber business," Cox said. "I gave Harrell first chance to buy the place."

Harrell said the asking price was too high so he and Simmons decided to set up their own shop.

"I couldn't afford to go somewhere else and build up another trade," Harrell said. "And I would have been foolish to do all the work and let Cox get all the money."

"Push," said Cox. "I've got $5,000 invested in this place. It's a matter of running Harrell off or losing that money."

Cox first cut the price of a haircut from a dollar to 75 cents. By today he was down to 15 cents.

"This is a battle for survival," said Harrell, who is charging 25 cents for a hair cut. "I'm ready to go to work somewhere else if necessary to make enough money to keep this place going."

Near Enactment

RALEIGH (AP)—A bill to crack down on persons convicted of making hoax telephone calls of bomb threats is in the brink of enactment following House approval Friday.

The measure now goes back to the Senate for acceptance of House amendments. It provides that convicted hoaxers would be guilty of a misdemeanor, punishable by not more than two years in prison or a fine of not more than $500.

As originally introduced by Sen. John R. Jordan of Wake, the measure proposes that actual bombing of a public building, school or church be made a felony. It was decided in committee that present laws cover actual destruction of buildings.

NBC Engineers Accept Terms, Strike Is Settled

NEW YORK (AP)—About 1,400 striking employees of the National Broadcasting Co. have voted to end a work stoppage that started April 27.

NBC television and radio operations have been continuing with supervisory personnel taking over in place of the striking technicians.

The striking technicians and engineers, voting by secret ballot in seven cities Friday, agreed to a settlement by which NBC dropped its damage suits against the union, which in turn relinquished all claims to jurisdiction over broadcast tape outside the United States.

It was the matter of foreign tape that set off the dispute. Dave Garraway's "Today" program was taped in Paris, with the help of some nonunion technicians.

When it came time to go on the air, technicians wouldn't handle it, thus knocking both TV and radio networks off the air for two hours.

The union, the National Assn. of Broadcast Employees and Technicians, claimed that the union members had merely stopped to write grievances, and that the stoppage was a lockout. NBC charged it was a strike in violation of contract and filed damage suits totaling more than a million dollars.

The union had no comment on any of the terms of the settlement. NBC said however, that the settlement included these stipulations:

1. The union gives up all claims of jurisdiction over broadcast tape made outside the country.

2. NBC has the sole right to determine the methods of operations and to make work assignments, subject to revised arbitration provisions.

3. Interference with company operations through mass writing of grievances is prohibited.

The vote to accept the settlement, according to the union, was 5-1. Voting took place in New York, Washington, Chicago, Los Angeles, Philadelphia, San Francisco, and Hollywood.

Parents Praying For 2 Miracles

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)—A young mother and father, holding tragedy at arm's length, are praying for two miracles.

Their two sons, stricken with granulomatosis, a rare glandular disease, are not expected to live very long doctors have told them.

Mr. and Mrs. Bailey E. Payne said doctors say it is incredible that two cases have occurred in one family.

The boys, Bailey Jr., 4, and Christopher, 2½, were stricken about two years ago. The father is a factory worker.

"We know that doctors don't believe these children will live very long," the mother said Friday. "But we believe they will. We are praying that they will somehow recover."

One 'Hospital Week' After Another

THE BUSINESS OFFICE . . . First Stop For A Stay In The Hospital

THE X-RAY ROOM . . . Equipped With Complete Facilities For Hospital Patients

THE PHARMACY . . . Stocked With $5,000 Worth Of Drugs And Medicine

National Hospital Week, which ends today, has been observed quietly in Pitt Memorial Hospital.

There has been little fanfare in the observance. For the average of 105 patients who are in the hospital each day, the quiet celebration has been appropriate. For most of them and their loved ones, no special week is needed to give recognition to the value of a good hospital and the work it does.

An individual patient's association with the hospital begins and ends at the business office. Between those two points, however, are a series of others. The series varies, according to each individual's need, but all of them have available for use facilities and abilities in the operating rooms, x-ray department, pharmacy, laboratory, and the hospital's vast system of records maintenance.

The system of records begins at the admissions office, where each patient's personal history is assembled, preliminary diagnoses and recorded and room assignments are made.

After assignment to a room, the records grow in number. Floor nurses maintain a file which includes, for each patient, a clinical summary, the patient's history and physical report, progress notes by the attending physician, laboratory and x-ray reports, physician's orders for patient care, a temperature chart, nurses' notes, and, if necessary, an operating permit.

The operating permit is the patient's authorization for necessary operations in one of the hospital's operating rooms. The lab report includes findings from specimen taken from each patient. X-ray reports detail findings in that respect, and nurses' notes indicate care of individual patients and administration of drugs which are channeled from the hospital's first floor pharmacy.

Charges for all of the services are compiled daily in the business office, according to a standard rate which applies to all patients. Presentation of the final statement of charges is usually the last association a patient has with the hospital, but the hospital's work doesn't end there.

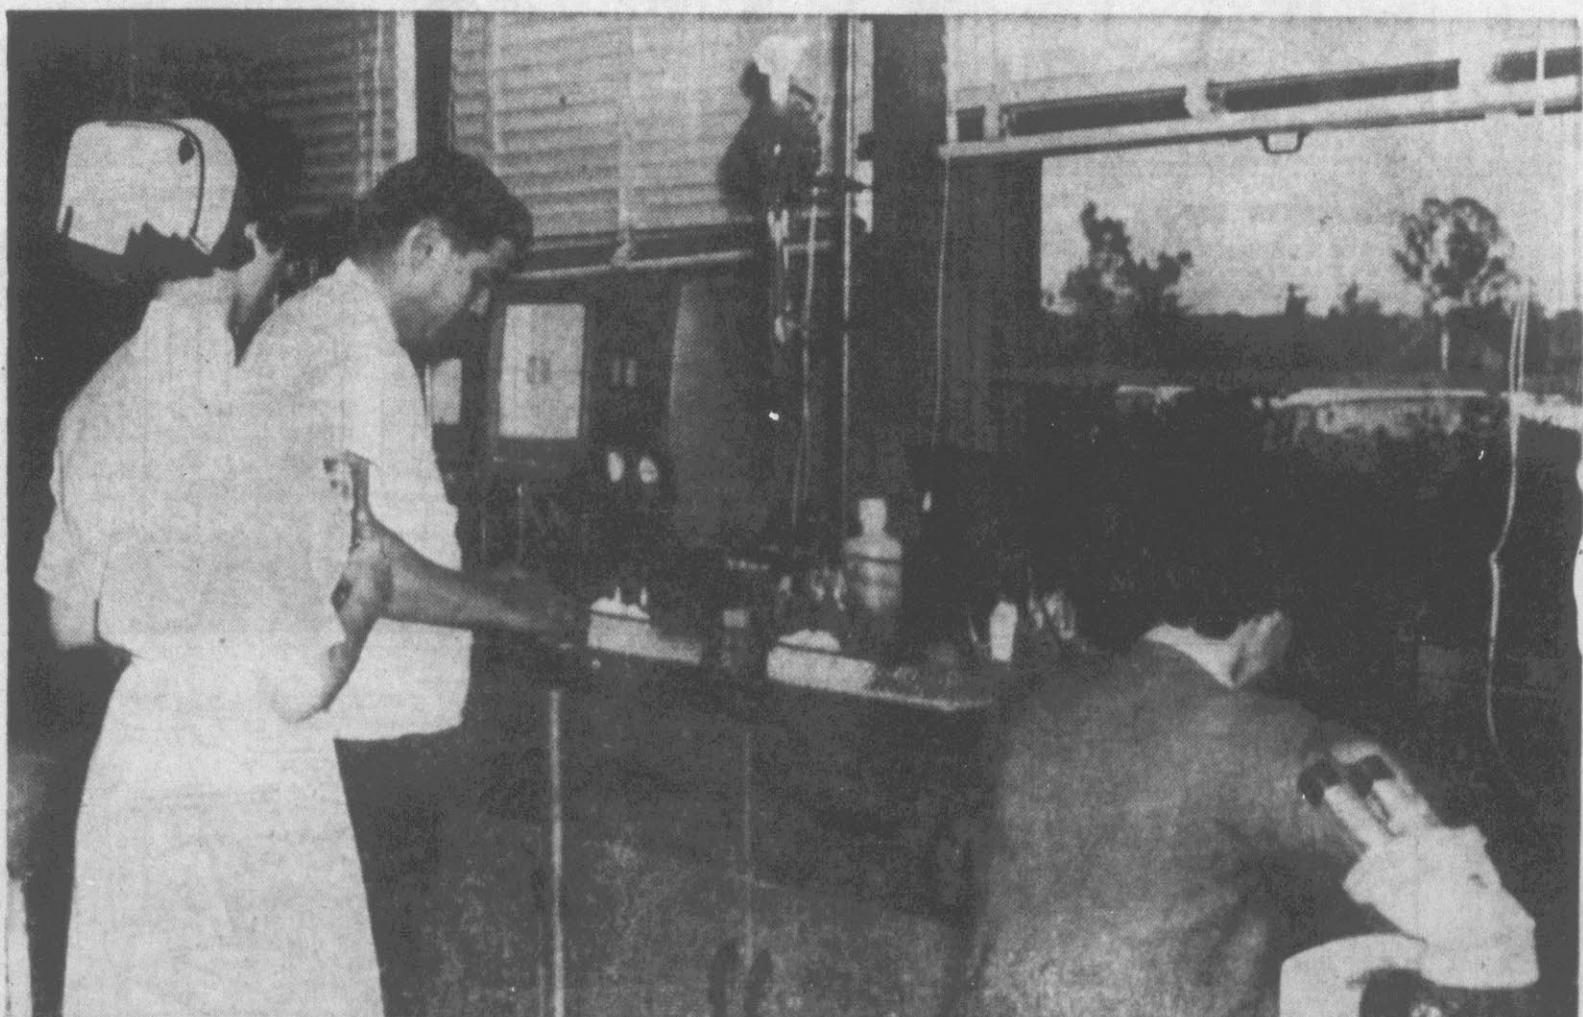

Under legal requirements, each individual record has to be maintained for at least three years — for reference if a patient has to be readmitted. Such requirements involve preparation for storage, storage in an accessible place and continuing maintenance.

Pitt Memorial carries the whole procedure a giant step beyond the legal requirements. It has every individual record of Pitt Memorial and Pitt General hospital patients back to 1922. The process means some extra work for staff members, but it means, too, as the hospital sees it, some guarantee of better care for persons who are patients several times over a period of years.

The whole procedure from admissions to records maintenance makes every week a sort of hospital week at Pitt Memorial.

Industrial Education Program Moves Ahead

By BUNNY HARRIS
Reflector Raleigh Bureau

RALEIGH — Rep. Ed Kemp of Guilford likes to describe industrial education as a program designed to "teach Timothy Tar Heel how to make a better living — or at least a living — for himself and those looking to him to bring home the bacon."

This program got its first real start when the 1957 General Assembly appropriated $500,000 for industrial education centers, seven of which have since been designated at Goldsboro, Wilmington, Burlington, Leakeville, Wilson, Durham and Jamestown.

While the program is still in its infancy, this General Assembly is expected to strengthen industrial education by passage of a bill (introduced by Representative Kemp) which: (1) makes the centers a part of the public school system and (2) provides for county-wide support of the centers.

What is being done, and can be done, through this program is best illustrated by the industrial education center at Jamestown in Guilford County which is contained in the 82 acres that once housed the Guilford County Tuberculosis Sanatorium.

In addition to the $500,000 Sanatorium building a new $170,000 facility is being constructed to house heavy equipment needed for courses in auto and diesel mechanics and sheet metal work.

The State has appropriated $119,025 to purchase equipment and machinery (plus $62,153 for operational expenses during the 1958-59 school year) and retains the title to all equipment on the theory that it can be moved around as industrial centers in the state grow.

For example, once a specific need has been met in Guilford, the equipment can be moved elsewhere and a new course opened up to provide further training. An additional $110,000 is being asked for equipment in the new machine shop.

Courses already being taught and contemplated for the coming school year at Jamestown include (in addition to those mentioned) industrial electronics, machinist trades, upholstery, drafting, knitting machine fixing, industrial sewing and welding, loom fixing, electrician trades, plumbing, blueprint reading, textile math and supervisory training.

The Jamestown center is well on its feet now with 175 enrolled for the current session and a total enrollment of 500 expected for the term beginning next fall.

Unique about the industrial education program as compared with other public schools is the fact that it is geared for both adults and selected 11th and 12th grade high school students. The emphasis in each school is expected to remain flexible in order to meet the needs of the area involved.

Behind this program is the belief that there is a direct relationship between one's educational achievement and his earning capacity. It also follows, Kemp points out, that a program of industrial education fits into the overall program of industrial expansion in North Carolina — "it will provide a feeding field for the doves of industrial expansion. It will create a vast potential of skilled labor. . . a choice bit of bait for the key people in the nation's constantly expanding industrial economy."

The need for both industrial education and industrial expansion is emphasized by a few familiar but still startling facts:

North Carolina ranks 44th in the nation in per capita income yet it ranks 2nd in the nation in per capita children in school.

This low income coupled with the staggering sums required for education produce a problem which finds its most hopeful solution in increased industrial expansion and more highly skilled workers who can command better salaries.

Here Kemp again points out that North Carolina "just recently awoke to the fact it was asleep in the field of trade and industrial expansion." The rude awakening came as a result of some startling statistics:

1. North Carolina ranks first in the number of persons employed in industry in the South, yet last in the number given extension courses in 1956.

2. Nationwide the state ranks 8th in industrial employment; yet 31st in the number of person reached through trade and industrial education.

3. Even while the state's industrial progress bounded and the plight of the one-family farm became critical, North Carolina continued to rank 2nd in the nation in the number of schools offering training in agriculture. North Carolina still ranks 4th in the number of schools teaching home economics.

Kemp maintains that industrial education will not only prepare North Carolinians for skilled employment "but will create for them the jobs at which they will be paid for applying their skills."

Little Rock To See Handful Graduating

By ED MARTIN

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—High School graduation days are coming to integration-troubled Little Rock this year but they'll be late and the number of diplomas small.

Only 225 seniors will be graduated from two all-white private schools and none from a third. Once a thousand or more students were graduated each spring from the four closed public high schools.

The continuing battle over integration recently was rekindled by moves to recall the six members of the school board as a result of a teacher purge.

First Stage Of Titan Explodes

DENVER (AP)—An explosion destroyed the first stage of a Titan intercontinental ballistic missile Friday as it nestled in a test stand in the mountain foothills southwest of here.

The Martin Co. which makes the missile, said the test area had been cleared of personnel. No one was hurt.

The 56-foot first stage and the 37-foot second stage, in a separate test stand nearby, were being used in a static sequence test directed from a concrete blockhouse 600 yards away.

Soviet Troops Said Near Tibet

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—A Chinese Nationalist news agency reported today that two divisions of Soviet troops arrived last week in Red China's Sinkiang Province bordering Tibet.

The Taitao Agency, operated by the Justice ministry, claimed its information came from underground agents in Shanghai.

The agency said the Chinese Communists invited the Soviets to send the divisions — one infantry, the other Cossack cavalry — to help cope with any big uprising that might break out.

Little Rock To See Handful Graduating

One faction seeks the recall of three members who ordered the dismissal of 44 teachers they had labeled integration sympathizers.

Another faction retaliated by demanding the ouster of three moderate members who opposed the purge.

A federal court fight goes on over validity of a state law under which Gov. Orval E. Faubus closed the high schools.

Whatever happens on these fronts, the classroom effect of the integration crisis soon will be over for the seniors.

Their schools are little known but fully accredited by the state educational department. They have been told their diplomas will admit them to colleges.

Two hundred of the 767 pupils in the private Raney High School will be graduated. It has been operated from public donations by a Faubus-backed corporation. The governor, himself, will deliver the commencement address June 26.

Baptist High School will graduate 25 of its 363 students July 10. Unlike tuition-free Raney High School, the church school charges $25-a-month to attend. It has had a hard financial fight to keep going. Not long ago, it accepted a $6,000 gift from Raney High School, rich by comparison with $400,000 in donations.

The third all-white school, sponsored by Trinity Episcopal Church and with only a score of students, has no seniors.

There are no private schools for Negroes except one set up for six of the nine Negroes whose integration into Central High School in September, 1957, was enforced with federal troops.

What happened to the other three? One Ernest Green, became the first Negro to graduate from Central High School. Another was expelled and the ninth moved to Los Angeles.

Hundreds more of the displaced white students are going to other schools in and out of Arkansas. Of the 750 students who attended Horace Mann Negro High School before it was closed, about 500 are going to schools outside of Little Rock.

DICK TRACY

THE STORM WAXES AND WANES—AND LEAVES BEHIND IT MILLIONS OF YARDS OF SAND, BENEATH WHICH LIES BURIED THE BASEMENT WITH $1,736,427.80 IN COINS.

WHERE?

GO AWAY, WOMAN! I'VE HAD IT! MY MIND IS MADE UP—I'M DONE.

OH, BOO-HOO HOO—

THIS EEL GIVES OFF ABOUT 600 VOLTS. ELECTRIC EELS HAVE BEEN KNOWN TO CAUSE DEATH TO HORSES AND MEN. HOWEVER, THE VICTIMS ARE BELIEVED TO HAVE DROWNED AS A RESULT OF SHOCK, RATHER THAN TO HAVE DIED FROM THE ELECTRIC CHARGE ITSELF.

YES—THAT'S THE QUESTION, WHERE IS THE FOUNDATION?

HARDLY, JUST BE THANKFUL WE WERE ABLE TO GET YOU OUT OF THAT CONCRETE IN TIME—OR YOU'D BE DOWN THERE UNDER THE SAND WITH IT!

AND NOT TOO FAR AWAY—

THE POINT IS, MR. TRACY, THIS IS AN ELECTRIC EEL AND IT LOOKS EXACTLY LIKE THE ONE I SOLD E. KENT HARDLY.

BUT AN EEL IN A BASEMENT FULL OF WATER WOULD MAKE AN EXCELLENT WATCH-DOG, EH?

ABSOLUTELY!

I'M FED UP WITH THE WHOLE THING! THE TAX MEN CAN HAVE THE ENTIRE FORTUNE, IF THEY'LL DIG IT UP, I'M DONE.

DURING THE STORM IT WAS APPARENTLY WASHED UP OUT OF THAT VENTILATOR. IT LOOKED UNUSUAL, AND I GOT A TERRIFIC SHOCK FROM IT. I CALLED HIS COMPANY TO SEE IF THEY'D IDENTIFY IT.

WHAT WOULD E. KENT HARDLY HAVE WANTED WITH THIS?

FRANKLY, MR. TRACY, I WASN'T SUPPOSED TO TELL ANY OF THIS. MR. HARDLY SWORE ME TO SECRECY.

I UNDERSTAND, BUT IT APPEARS THERE ARE SOME THINGS EVEN MR. HARDLY DOESN'T KNOW.

I DON'T WANT TO BE RICH! I WANT TO BE JUST ME—STOREKEEPER—THAT'S ALL—JUST ME.

E. KENT HARDLY, LOOK ME IN THE EYE.

ALL I KNOW IS HE WANTED AN ELECTRIC EEL TO PUT IN HIS WATER-FILLED BASEMENT. HE PAID ME $175 FOR IT.

AH! I THINK I'M BEGINNING TO SEE THE LIGHT.

THE STORM PRESSURES SOMEHOW WASHED THIS EEL OUT OF THIS PIPE, PROVING THE PIPE LEADS TO HIS BURIED BASEMENT.

OFFICER, BRING KENT HARDLY OVER HERE, WILL YOU?

CHAPTER 34
"We want that idol and we want it right now, Donald," Sergeant Frank Sellers told me. "Then we've got an answer to Mortimer Jasper. Then we can go ahead and get this case buttoned up. Otherwise he can claim you played us for suckers and we're out on a limb."

"I sighed. 'I don't know why you take the word of some crook on a deal like that. I suppose if I hadn't been along and Jasper had accused Inspector Giddings of planting that idol, you'd have stuck up for him, Sellers. But because he accuses me, you come running up here in the middle of the night. . . . Okay, let's go get the idol.'"

"Where is it?" Sellers demanded.
"In my apartment," I said.

"Let's go," Sellers said. I got up and buttoned my shirt collar. "He said let's go," I said, turning to Phyllis Crockett.

"You're going to have a black eye, Donald," she said.

"That's nothing," I told her. "I think I've got a broken rib."

"Come on, let's go," Sellers said. "Donald is going to give us that idol."

"Well, now, wait a minute," I said. "I didn't say I was going to give it to you. That idol is technically the property of Mrs. Crockett, and—"

"That idol is evidence, and you know it," Sellers interrupted. "You had no business hanging on to it."

"But, I said, 'It's not stolen property.'"

"What do you mean?"
I said, "Sylvia told me that Dean Crockett wanted her to take that."

"Yeah," Inspector Thad Giddings said. "She tried to hand us that line—that lasted for just about two minutes."

"Well, she told me that and I believed her."

"The hell you did," Giddings said. "She made a deal with you. You were to believe her on that and she wasn't going to blab about the other evidence that—"

"He broke off."

Sellers said, "Let's not do any more talking, Thad. Let's go get that idol."

"The three of us went down in the elevator. The squad car was waiting outside."

"The two officers didn't say a word as they drove me to my apartment house."

"We went up to my apartment. I opened the door and stood to one side. 'Step right in, gentlemen,' I said, and switched on the lights."

"They entered the place, then suddenly stopped. 'Whew!' Sellers exclaimed."

"What's wrong?" I asked.

"They stood to one side so I could see the interior of the apartment. 'Good heavens, somebody has wrecked the place!' I exclaimed. Sellers and Giddings exchanged glances."

"I hurried past them over to the desk and surveyed the jumbled lock with a look of furious resignation. 'Well, it's gone,' I said."

"Sellers shook his head. 'This time you've got to come up with something better than that, Pint Size.'"

"What do you mean, something better than that?" I blazed. "Here's my place completely ruined and ransacked, and you birds are standing there dead on your feet. Now, suppose you quit kicking me around and find out who ransacked this apartment!"

Sellers looked at Giddings. "The guy's got a point," he said. "Let's get a fingerprint man up here and take a look."

"He went to the phone and called headquarters."

"By the time the fingerprint man arrived, I'd spotted the empty flask on the kitchen sink."

"That's not mine," I said.

Sellers turned to the fingerprint man. "Take a look."

The fingerprint man dusted the whiskey bottle. "It's lousy with latents," he said.

"They took my fingerprints; they dusted the apartment; they didn't find any fingerprints that weren't mine or the housekeeper's except the fingerprints on the whiskey flask."

"It looks like a plant," Giddings said.

"Of course it looks like a plant," Sellers told him, "but we aren't overlooking any bets; not in dealing with this guy."

I said, "The guys that picked on me were big fellows. I think I could identify one of them from a mug shot."

"Okay, Pint Size, we'll give you all the chance in the world," Sellers said. "Let's go to headquarters."

"It was shortly after 1:30 a.m. that I picked out a face in the mug shots."

"That looks like the guy," I told Giddings.

Giddings was skeptical. "Okay, Wise Guy," he said, "we'll check the fingerprints."

Ten minutes later there was a very great change in the manner of Inspector Thad Giddings.

"What about the prints?" I asked.

"Giddings looked at me and shook his head wonderingly. 'You check,' he said. 'The guy's fingerprints are on that flask. You may be on the up and up after all.'"

I heaved a big sigh. "Well," I said, "now we know where the idol I had is."

"There are some other prints on there, too," Giddings said. "Let's not go off half-cocked on this."

"They left me alone for twenty minutes, then Giddings and Frank Sellers both entered the room."

"I guess we've got your men identified, all right, Pint Size," Sellers said.

"How come?"

"The man you identified is named Ferguson. He's out on parole and he's living at 9611 Sixty-first Street. He makes regular reports to his parole officer, has got a good job working in a TV concern. He's an expert on electronics and has been making good on his parole."

"However, while he was in prison he was teamed up with a fellow named Jimmy Lenox. Lenox's prints are also on that flask. That ties the two of them in together, and when those two crooks get together, you can gamble something is happening."

"Moreover, that address at 9611 Sixty-first Street almost backs up on the place where Mortimer Jasper is living on Carrollton Drive. Now then, we just could have something here."

I nodded.

"GAL TWO—SERIAL."

"It'd be a good idea, under the circumstances, if you signed a complaint charging Lenox and Ferguson with burglary, and made an affidavit that would enable us to get a search warrant."

"Why should I sign anything?" I said. "Why don't you fellows take it on your own shoulders?"

"Now look, Donald," Sellers said, and his voice was almost pleading, "we're in deep enough on this thing. We've gone along on your say-so and . . . well, the whole thing is getting too mixed up. We aren't going to stick our necks out any farther. Now, you're a private detective. You place has been burglarized and you think you know the men who did it. Be a sport. Sign a complaint and an affidavit and let us use a search warrant."

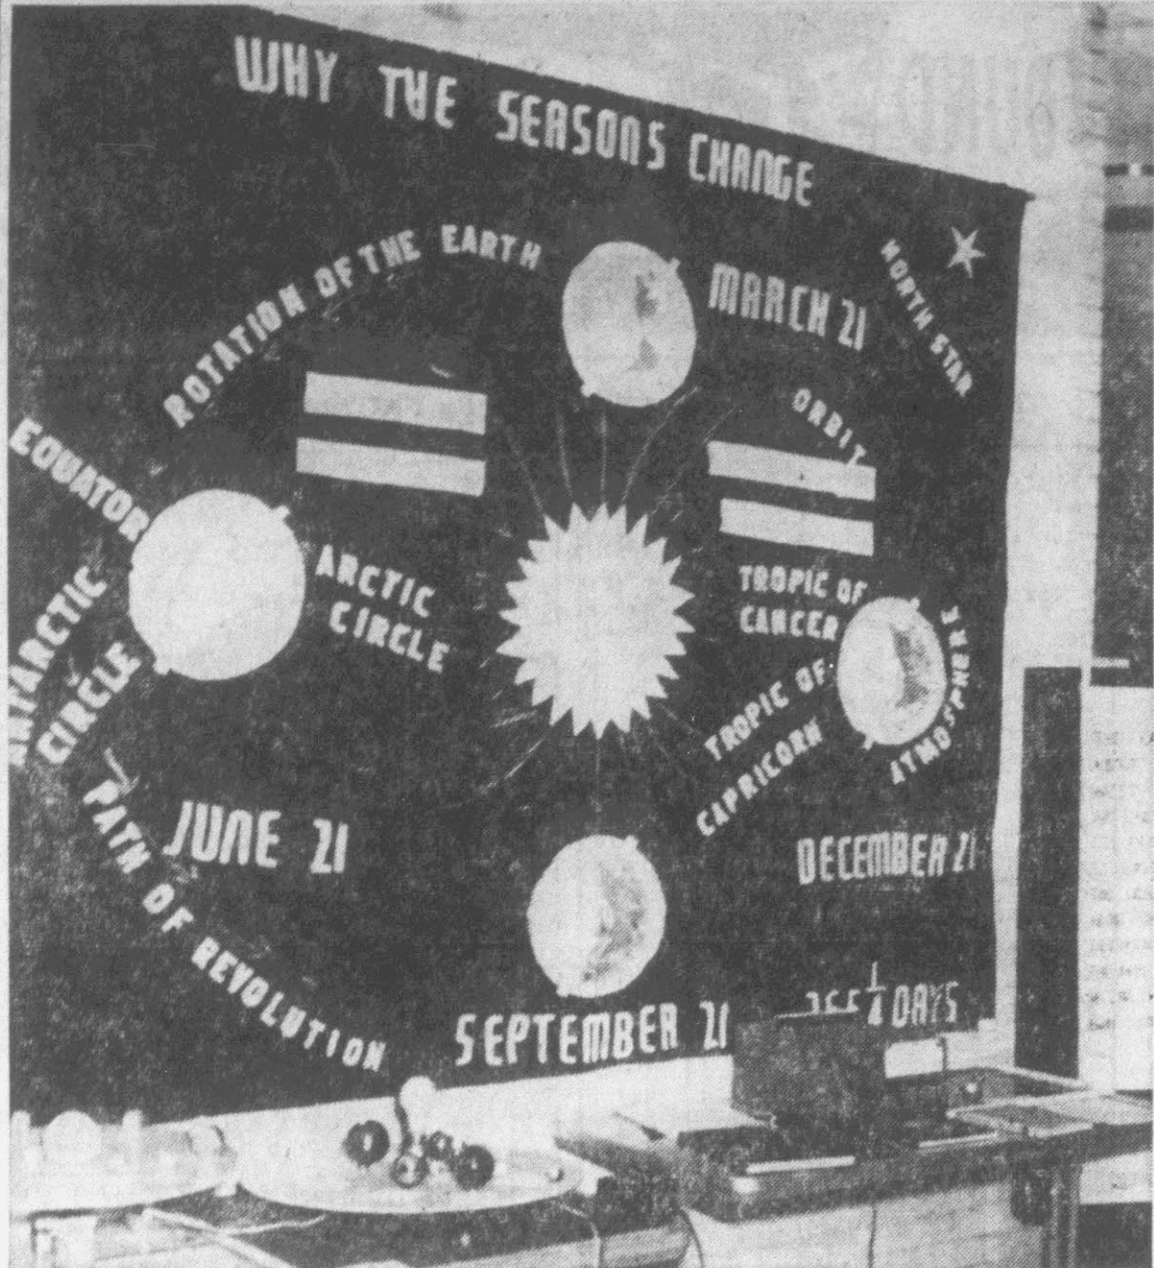

I looked at Giddings. "I don't know whether I feel like co-operating or not. I've been kicked around too much this evening."

Giddings took a deep breath. "Maybe you got your wrong earlier in the evening, Lam," he said.

"The way he did it was like having all his teeth pulled."

"Come on," I told them, "let's go."

Donald has reason to tell Frank Sellers, "You're too opinionated to have an open mind on that murder," as the story continues here Monday.

Believes U.S. Is Still Mightier

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—Gen. Randolph McC. Pate, Marine Corps commandant, said Friday night that the United States is ahead of the Soviet Union in overall military strength.

He said this is the judgment of the other members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and of the Congress.

Pate spoke at MacDill Air Force Base at a dinner.

Air Force Drops Flight For Mink

TWIN FALLS, Idaho (AP)—The Air Force cancelled plans to send low-flying jet bombers over southern Idaho in observance of Armed Forces Day, and all because of mama mink.

Mink raisers warned officials at Mountain Home Air Force Base Friday that any sudden noise—like the roar of a jet—would cause mother mink to eat their young.

Man, Three Boys Killed By Train

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—A Frisco Railroad passenger train collided with a pickup truck Friday night, turning a family out into tragedy.

Killed when their truck collided with the train at a crossing in suburban Jones, Okla., were Thomas W. Burrows, 33, of Near Jones; his sons Tom, 10, and Rodney, 4; and his nephew, James Blackburn, 7.

The Frisco "Meteor," east-bound for Tulsa and St. Louis had just left Oklahoma City. The highway patrol said it went through the little community at about 60 m.p.h. The crossing is marked but has no flashing warning signal.

The widow, Mary, told officers Burrows and the boys were en route to a Little League baseball game and that her youngest son "had begged for three nights to come to the game."

SPECIAL SERVICE TO HOGS

MILFORD CENTER, Ohio (AP)—Hogs on the Paul Ryan farm regularly drink fire water. Ryan bought a 1929 model fire truck eight years ago, and uses its 275-gallon tank to water his livestock.

Salute Outstanding Work In College TV

The Television Guild of East Carolina College recognized Wednesday night outstanding participation in closed-circuit television broadcasting during the school year by student members of the organization and by faculty and staff members at the college. The occasion was the first Awards Banquet staged by the group.

James G. Stone, sophomore from Reidsville, received the award for the best production of the year. Stone did superior work as student producer in charge of in-class broadcasts for the Department of Geography.

J. Wayne Johnson of Greensboro, recently elected President of the Television Guild, received a Service and Achievement Award, presented to the member who has done most for the Television Guild through the year.

Several faculty participants in the closed-circuit program of courses at East Carolina received special recognition for merit at the Guild banquet. They are Janice Hardison of the English Department; Dr. John Reynolds of the Mathematics Department; and Harold McGrath of the Business Department. Henry Cheney, a staff director of WRAL-TV, attended the social event as an honor guest from Raleigh.

Wendell W. Smiley, librarian at East Carolina and the Guild's first honorary member, was awarded a Guild pin at the dinner in recognition of his pioneer work in establishing television facilities at the college.

An entertainment feature of the banquet was the presentation to Guild members and guests of mock awards, plaster Oscars in the shape of clowns, to commemorate outstanding mistakes and embarrassing moments during TV broadcasts through the year.

The Awards Banquet will become an annual feature of the Television Guild's activities on the East Carolina campus.

With Dr. Corinne Rickert as director of closed-circuit television activities on the campus, East Carolina College is completing this spring its first year of instruction by TV. An appropriation of $75,000 from the North Carolina General Assembly provided funds for the purchase and installation of equipment in the campus studio and in classrooms used in the program. Televised courses were conducted on an experimental basis this year. The program will be continued during the 1959-1960 term. Members of the Television Guild have during the present school year assisted in the instructional TV program, presented several demonstration and special broadcasts, and undertaken an extensive extra-curricular training program in television skills.

Indicate Year Of Polio Activity

RALEIGH (AP)—First signs indicate that 1959 "may be a year of high poliomyelitis activity," the State Board of Health warned today.

"The urgent need for vigorous immunization programs cannot be overstressed," the board's communicable disease control section said in reporting on polio cases for the first four months of the year.

The report showed that five cases of polio were contacted during the January-April period this year. None was contacted during the same time last year.

Of the cases, four involved paralysis. Two of the paralytic cases had received no vaccine. The other two each had received the full three doses.

The Legislature has passed a state law to require vaccination against polio for children reaching the age of six.

Actually, the communicable disease section listed 8 cases of polio reported for the first four months this year, compared with 15 for the same period in 1958. However, it pointed out these figures are misleading since many cases reported early in one year are actually cases which were contacted late in the preceding year.

Arraignment of the girl is set for next Tuesday, not far from Centennial Race track where she reigned as Miss Colorado Jaycee last July.

Her husband, William D. Gottfried, is serving a sentence in an Illinois prison.

'Too Late', He Pressed Trigger

FORT PIERCE, Fla. (AP)—A man with a shotgun pressed against his head listened while two sheriff's deputies pleaded with him Friday night to drop the weapon.

Then Harold R. Lawyer, 50, cried "No! It's too late," and pressed the trigger, killing himself while the officers, patrons and carhops of a drive-in barbecue watched helplessly.

Lawyer ate a meal, then loaded the gun in his car and advised waitresses to call police because he was going to shoot himself.

No motive was determined.

Lawyer, who held an electrical license, leaves a widow and daughter.

Settle Last Of Sinking Claims

NEW YORK (AP)—A final decree settling all outstanding litigation in the sinking of the liner Andrea Doria was signed Thursday by Federal Judge John W. Clancy.

The ship went down off Nantuxet after a collision July 25, 1956, with the liner Stockholm. Fifty lives were lost.

There were 3,322 damage claims for injuries or deaths, aggregating 116 million dollars. They eventually were settled for about six million dollars.
