Pitt Farm Bureau's Board Favors Outlawing MH-30

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector City Editor

Pitt Farm Bureau's Board of Directors last night went on record as unanimously supporting a bill pending in the State Legislature which would outlaw the sale and use of maleic hydrazide (MH-30).

Twelve voting members of the Farm Bureau's board voted in favor of the motion to endorse the bill.

Thus the county organization lined up with the State Farm Bureau which had earlier voted support of the bill to outlaw the chemical sucker control.

Board members took the action last night after they were told by farm leaders that the tobacco buying companies had stated publicly that they would not purchase tobacco on which the sucker control chemical had been used. Such a statement by the companies is virtually unheard of in the past, the board members were told.

B. M. Lewis of Farmville, who is vice president of the North Carolina Farm Bureau Federation, told the group, "From what I understand, if very much of this stuff is used the water is going to be very muddy."

He said he had been told "the companies did not want it, they wouldn't take it."

Lewis, who emphasized after the meeting he was speaking personally and not for the State Farm Bureau, said he understood that if it were found in tests that tobacco was treated with the chemical "the companies would put buyers walking the floors."

"Three times the tobacco companies have made these expressions in public," Lewis declared. "It's the most serious thing we've run up against yet in the tobacco program."

Lewis said he understood the companies claim use of the chemical affects burning quality and rolling quality of cigarettes. The companies say cigarettes made with the treated tobacco have soft spots and loose ends.

Allen Speaks

W. A. Allen of Farmville, a member of the North Carolina Farm Bureau Federation Board of Directors, said, "The buying interest have joined hands in saying they will not buy it, if they know it. I have never known that to happen before."

"Everyone must admit a fair warning has been given to the farmer — not advice but a warning."

Following through, he said, a bill was introduced in the State Legislature.

"I believe this is going to be necessary where we have as much as we do at stake — 25,000 acres and $25 million — we had better be careful in our decision."

He pointed out that there are going to be new grades this year whether farmers use suckering chemicals or not.

"Let's try to get our farmers to grow right tobacco," he declared. "I think Stabilization is going to have a difficult role in supporting this crop. To me, gentlemen it's a serious situation."

He declared that whatever is done it is "all done for one purpose — to try to save the tobacco crop of North Carolina for farmers of North Carolina."

Pitt Farm Bureau President Woodrow Wooten, who presided over the meeting, said he understood it was the thinking of Stabilization Crop that if MH-30 was used on tobacco and they thought it was used the tobacco would be discounted.

"Another crop of MH-30 tobacco would just about do in Stabilization," he said.

"Settled For Us"

Atlas Wooten, member of the board of directors, said, "I feel the matter has been settled for us when the buying interest come out against it."

"I used it and liked it to be frank with you, but the buying interest have spoken. I still feel it's going to be called MH-30 tobacco as long as we continue to use it."

Ben White, of the Farmers Home Administration office, said, "I haven't talked to a single farmer who didn't think the legislature was dabbling in the wrong field."

Grand Jury Indicts Nevadan For Theft

True bills of indictment were returned yesterday by the Pitt County Grand Jury against a Las Vegas, Nev., man who has been charged with the October 25, 1958, robbery of Laufer Brothers Jewelry Store.

The bills, charging safe robbery with explosives and larceny, were returned against Emory Joseph Roux, alias David L. Willard. They were among 13 bills considered yesterday by the Grand Jury which in conjunction with the opening session of a mixed term of Superior Court.

Roux is presently serving a 12 months sentence, imposed at the November term of Beaufort County Superior Court, for possession of burglary tools. He was arrested in Washington on November 1, tried and sentenced two days later, and implicated in the Greenville robbery on November 10.

PRINCIPALS IN PITT FARM BUREAU MEET . . . Allen, Pres. Wooten, Lewis.

He pointed out the law would apply only to North Carolina. "I think the whole thing is probably an educational thing."

Connor Eagles, Pitt's Soil Conservationist, said, "I don't believe there is anything wrong with the stuff if it is properly used."

"You are going to have to have some education and you are going to have to teach the people to use it right."

He pointed out that fertilizer and irrigation could be detrimental to tobacco crops if they weren't used properly.

S. F. Peterson, agricultural teacher at Ayden, told the group, "If the sucker control bill concerned something that would endanger the health of individuals, the State of North Carolina and the Federal government should do something about it."

"Since it does not and since it is a one state item, I wonder if we are not jumping the gun a little bit. I wonder if we shouldn't go to Stabilization and see if we can't work something out. It's a question we ought to consider pretty close."

The motion to support the outlawing legislation was made by Board member Ralph Tucker and seconded by June Worthington.

The board last night also approved a resolution asking that the words "material participation"

Approve Strauss By 9-To-8 Vote

WASHINGTON (AP)—Lewis L. Strauss' nomination to be secretary of commerce won Senate committee approval today by a 9-8 vote.

The committee action sends the nomination to the Senate with a recommendation for approval. A Senate vote may come later this week.

Three Democrats on the Commerce Committee joined with six Republicans to vote in favor of Strauss' nomination. Eight Democrats voted against confirmation.

Sen. Warren G. Magnuson (D-Wash.), the committee chairman, announced the outcome after a closed meeting that climaxed 16 days of stormy hearings on President Eisenhower's choice of Strauss for the Cabinet post.

The committee division was in doubt until just before today's meeting when Sen. Frank J. Lausche (D-Ohio) announced he would vote for confirmation.

He was the third Democrat to come out in favor of confirmation.

be taken out of the Social Security act concerning the eligibility of farmers for drawing Social Security payments.

Woodrow Wooten said the wording hadn't been clarified and it had been found one farmer would be eligible for Social Security while a neighbor across the road in a similar situation would not be eligible.

Pres. Wooten also told the group that the state organization had asked local members to oppose legislation to require a one percent tax on fire insurance premiums for a firemen's pension fund.

There was disagreement expressed by one board member who said he was a volunteer fireman.

Wooten said the board was not asked to take any official action.

Wooten also told a group a public meeting has been called for Friday night at which Carl Hicks will discuss the MH-30 situation.

The meeting will be held in the Pitt County Court House beginning at 8 o'clock.

the $42,765,000 program originally proposed was $203,000 for construction work at Morrison Training School at Hoffman, and $480,000 for a new cafeteria at the University of North Carolina.

The projects would be financed through two bond issues plus $5,275,000 from a permanent improvements revolving fund set up by the 1957 Legislature.

A $33,454,000 bond issue would be submitted to voters for approval. A $9,192,000 bond issue would not be put to a vote.

The revised program was in bills introduced by the chairman of the Appropriations committee, Sen. J. William Copeland of Hertford and Rep. Clyde Harris of Rowan.

The item calling for construction of a training school for the mentally retarded was regarded as a victory for Rep. John W. Umstead Jr. of Orange, chairman of the State Hospitals Board of Control. He had fought for such a school.

Also added was a proposal for spending $300,000 for a new training and education building at Caswell Training School in Kinston.

A proposal in the original program for $225,000 for new dormitories at B. J. Turner Training School was cut by a million dollars.

Also included in the new spending proposals, and not included in the original program were these items:

An appropriation of $75,000 for a minerals research laboratory at Asheville to be operated by N.C. State College.

A $60,000 appropriation for coal and ash handling equipment at Appalachian State Teachers College.

A proposal for spending $18,500 for a home for the president of Elizabeth City State Teachers College was increased to $28,500.

Home Damaged By Dynamiters

HENDERSON, N.C. (AP) — Forces of violence, intimidated for a week by the presence of National Guardsmen, sounded their presence with two dynamite blasts Monday night near a struck cotton mill.

One explosion tore a hole in the home of James Weaver about an hour or so before he and his wife were due off their new jobs at Harriet-Henderson Cotton Mills.

The explosive, placed 10 to 15 feet under the house, ripped through the floor, damaging furniture and the interior.

The home is situated about two blocks from the north plant, where National Guardsmen patrolled the fence.

An hour later, another blast harmlessly dug dirt in a ditch about a block from the plant.

The 300 officers and men of the National Guard, ordered here May 12 by Gov. Luther Hodges, had kept the strike scene relatively quiet.

The two striking Textile Workers Union of America locals met Monday night to receive a report from leaders on the 6-month-old strike. Boyd Patton, Carolinas director of the TWUA, said no efforts have been made to set up negotiation sessions between union and management.

The strike began last Nov. 17 after a deadlock over an arbitration clause. The dispute later broadened to include among other things, the matter of job rights of strikers, and of new workers hired when the mills reopened on a limited operation basis in spite of the strike.

Big Construction Bills Introduced

RALEIGH (AP)—Bills proposing $47,921,000 worth of new construction by state agencies and institutions — including three major projects not in Gov. Hodges' suggested program — were introduced in the House and Senate Monday night.

This is more than five million dollars above the amount proposed by the governor. The chief addition is a 4½ million dollar training school for the mentally retarded, which would be built at Morganton.

Also added was $624,000 for an addition to the State Museum of Art here and $500,000 for port improvements at Southport. None of these projects was included in Hodges' program.

Mrs. Truman Is Rallying From Surgery Effects

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)—Mrs. Harry S. Truman, 74, rallied today from effects of surgery for removal of a breast tumor.

A Research Hospital spokesman reported her condition was satisfactory. The two-hour and 45-minute operation was performed Monday morning.

Tests were being made to determine whether the tumor was malignant. Results of the biopsy probably will not be known for two or three days.

Former President Truman, showing the strain of a long day, seemed in good spirits when he went home from the hospital Monday night.

"She seemed to be a little groggy from the effects of the medication during the day," Truman said. "The doctors have assured me that everything is going well after the operation."

Mrs. Truman entered the hospital last Thursday for a checkup.

Prisoners Mutilate Selves

Eight Incurables Choose Self-Mutilation To Air Complaints

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Eight tough, long-term convicts at a prison camp for incurables chose self mutilation as a means of registering complaints Monday.

State Prisons Director William Bailey said three cut off a part of their little fingers, and five injured themselves with sledge hammers.

"They wanted television, store privileges and they fussed about the food," Bailey said.

The incident occurred at Ivy Bluff Camp in Caswell County. The men were brought to Central Prison Hospital here for treatment.

Only 35 to 40 men are confined at Ivy Bluff, a camp for convicts who fail to conform to prison regulations. The men work in a rock quarry, Bailey commented.

"Men will do anything to get away from there."

Bailey said the State Bureau of Investigation will look into the matter.

The three who cut off part of their little fingers were Henry Gilmore, 36, of Orange, Texas; Ralph Byers, 23, of Winston-Salem, N.C.; and Roy Anderson Jr., 18, of North Wilkesboro, N.C.

The other five were Glenn Hensley, 31, of Rt. 1, Asheville, N.C.; Wiley Cummings, 32, of Winston-Salem; Johnny Miller, 21, of Albemarle, N.C.; William Vaughn, 34, of Halifax, Va.; and John Kilbourne, 30, no address listed.

Asst. Prisons Director Robert Allen recalled that four inmates hit themselves with sledge hammers about a year ago, prompting an investigation into charges of mistreatment of prisoners at the camp. One of the men broke his leg.

The State Bureau of Investigation report gave no indication of mistreatment.

In Monday's incident, the men used a tool on the end of an electric drill to cut their fingers.

Two of the men, Vaughn and Hensley, are serving life for first degree murder. The others are serving various terms ranging to a maximum of 20 years.

Atomic Help For Britain, France

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower advised Congress formally today of plans to help Britain and France develop atomic weapons and submarines.

The President submitted agreements this country signed with those two nations May 7. The pacts will go into effect automatically in 60 days unless vetoed by both the Senate and the House.

The agreement with Britain, the only other Western nation now producing atomic weapons, provides for U.S. assistance in the military application of atomic energy.

Details are not being made public.

The United States agrees to sell France a quantity of enriched nuclear fuel for use in development of an atomic-powered submarine.

At present that project has not progressed beyond plans for a land-based prototype propulsion plant.

The pact with Britain provides for: Transfer of nonnuclear parts of atomic weapons and atomic weapons systems; provision of special materials for research, development and production of military facilities; and furnishing certain other atomic materials and byproducts.

The House Appropriations and Finance Committee last week approved the bill sponsored by Rep. Norwood Ansell of Currituck County. It is now before the House.

Dog racing tracks at Moyock in Currituck and Morehead City in Carteret County were closed down several years ago by a State Supreme Court decision. If Ansell's bill were enacted, citizens of the two counties could vote on putting the tracks back in operation.

The elder Cortl was at the home when officers arrived, but the arrest was delayed pending issue of the warrants.

NEW YORK (AP)—Mrs. Clifton Daniel, daughter of former President and Mrs. Harry S. Truman, gave birth to her second son today.

The maternal grandparents were unable to be present here because Mrs. Truman underwent surgery in Kansas City, Mo., Monday for removal of a breast tumor.

The baby was delivered by Cesarean section at 8:45 a.m. in Doctor's Hospital. He weighed 7 pounds 3 ounces. No name has yet been selected.

The Daniels' other son, Clifton Truman Daniel, will be 2 years old on June 5.

Soviet Warned President To Refuse Summit Talks If New 'Deadline' Is Set

GENEVA (AP) — The United States has warned the Soviet Union that President Eisenhower will refuse to attend a summit conference if Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev sets some new deadline for a Communist squeeze play on West Berlin.

Informants said the American warning was prompted by a suspicion that Khrushchev would try such a move if the Big Four foreign ministers' conference turns out to be what he considers a failure.

U. S. Secretary of State Christian A. Herter told Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko in plain words at a dinner party a few nights ago what the U. S. reaction would be.

Khrushchev originally set a May 27 deadline for the Western Allies to end their occupation of West Berlin and said that on that date he would give the East German Communists control of the Allied supply routes to West Berlin.

He later postponed the deadline indefinitely. Should he revive it and hand over traffic control to the East Germans, this would raise the danger of a Berlin blockade.

The United States reportedly is determined to reject any summit conference held under a Soviet threat.

Gromyko assured Herter that the Soviet Union had no ulterior motives in proposing a peace settlement now with divided Germany.

Herter reminded Gromyko of the May 27 deadline and said that the existence of any deadline made it difficult to believe that the Soviets did not have hidden purposes.

Gromyko said he was sorry that Herter had mentioned the date of May 27. He himself had not planned to bring it up in Geneva except possibly at the end of the conference. To Herter, that sounded as if it might be a veiled hint of a new threat.

Thereupon Herter told Gromyko that anyone who thought the President of the United States would go to a summit conference under duress or threat of a cut-off date had better forget it.

The President's attendance under such circumstances would be impossible, Herter emphasized.

As the Big Four talks moved through their second week, the Western leaders were considering a bid by Gromyko to break up their package plan for a German settlement and remove four points from it for discussion.

It was expected that the Western ministers would agree to talk about these points but that they might seek to exact some price from Gromyko in return. And they were reported determined to avoid the impression that they were scrapping the rest of the package program, which Gromyko rejected in his strong speech to the conference Monday.

In a private conference with British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd, Gromyko echoed a suggestion of Khrushchev that neutral troops might be called in to police a free West Berlin.

A Western official gave this account of that talk:

"You have rejected the Western plan on Berlin," Lloyd said. "Now, what are the possibilities for an agreement?"

Gromyko then stated that three possible arrangements could be discussed:

1. Withdrawal of U.S. British and French troops from West Berlin, which would become a free city. This was the demand by Khrushchev last Nov. 27 that touched off the Berlin crisis and led to the Geneva conference.

2. Western troops would remain in West Berlin, but would be joined by Soviet troops. This would give the Communists a military toehold there.

3. Neutral troops would be stationed in West Berlin. Gromyko did not say whether he meant U.N. troops.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Former Secretary of State John Foster Dulles was reported today continuing to grow weaker in his fight against cancer and pneumonia.

The State Department said he was being given pain killers and was generally comfortable.

The medical bulletin was the third in two weeks to report a weakening of Dulles' condition.

Dulles was reported to be conscious but sleeping much of the time because of the pain-killing drugs which are being administered.

Lincoln White, State Department press officer, denied at a news conference reports that Dulles was in a coma.

Dulles' friends expect he may lose his fight for life within a matter of days.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Neil H. McElroy said today he will stay on indefinitely as secretary of defense.

McElroy made the announcement to newsmen at the White House with his new deputy, Thomas S. Gates Jr. standing at his side.

"I have suspended my plans for departure," McElroy said. "I don't know when I will be leaving, if at all."

Asked whether that means he intends to stay in the Cabinet indefinitely, McElroy replied that was the best way to put it.

Eisenhower Monday picked Gates, who is retiring as secretary of the Navy at the end of the month, to succeed the late Donald A. Quarles as deputy secretary of defense.

There had been speculation that Eisenhower had persuaded Gates to stay on at the Pentagon by telling him he is in line to take over behind McElroy. He had been planning to step out June 1 as secretary of the Navy.

Prior to Quarles' death McElroy had said several times that he wanted to leave his Cabinet post by the end of the year to return to private business.

Even in his statement today the defense chief did not rule out the possibility of his resigning before the end of Eisenhower's tenure in office.

He simply said that as of now he has suspended plans to leave. Gates had been planning to return to his investment banking business in Philadelphia.

As for his change of plans, Gates remarked with a smile: "I couldn't think of any reason not to do it, except that I didn't want to, and that wasn't good enough."

McElroy and Gates conferred with Eisenhower as McElroy ready to leave later today or Wednesday to attend the Geneva foreign ministers conference.

Gates, 53, a Philadelphia investment banker, has been undersecretary and secretary of the Navy for nearly six years. He has taken part in top defense Department policy making for several years. The President immediately designated Gates as acting secretary while McElroy attends the conference of foreign ministers at Geneva.

Eisenhower's choice for the acting deputy job was a warm reception from Senate Democrats,

France Stages Global Style Show

By NADEANE WALKER

JUAN-LES-PINS, France (AP)—An international cotton fashion show, just held here, has pinpointed a problem: how can high-priced French ready-to-wear meet competition in the new Common Market?

An especially imported audience of 130 fashion writers and editors from 16 countries saw the show, sponsored by France's biggest textile maker, Marcel Boussac, who also backs the Christian Dior fashion house.

Sun-tanned mannequins paraded Boussac cotton creations from France, Germany, Norway, Holland, England, Sweden, New Zealand, Finland, South Africa, Denmark, Belgium, Italy, Brazil and Spain against an expensive South of France background, while executives of the textile firm discussed their difficulties, and dropped a startling statistic.

Frugal French

The average Frenchwoman (who likes to call herself "the most elegant woman in the world") buys statistically less than one dress per year. By comparison, the average Australian woman buys six dresses a year in cotton alone.

The problem stems from a lack of mass production methods in France. Traditionally, the Frenchwoman is said to prefer no dress at all to a mass-produced dress. But Boussac, who claims credit for getting his countrywomen out of funeral black and into gay colors, clearly has a new revolution in mind. A spokesman said:

"We cannot meddle in our customers' (the manufacturers') business, but we encourage mass production all we can by trade practices. We only give exclusivity of textile patterns to those who can buy in quantity."

The two biggest dress manufacturers in France, Mercier of Grasse and Heo of Paris, together turn out only 274,000 dresses per year. The 2,500 small-time manufacturers average 5,000 dresses per year. The 2,500 small-time manufacturers average 5,000 dresses each per year.

LARRY'S SHOE STORE

At 5 Points

SWEDISH CHIC . . . This dress, made in Sweden of French fabric, is a gay cotton print in shades of violet and gray on white. It costs about $12.

NORWEGIAN COUTURE . . . This dark town cotton is designed by Marnar of Norway, in a print of dark blue giant polka dots and checks on white. Cost is about $21.

The result, apparent in the cotton fashion show: one dress, selling for $60 in France, made up in exactly the same material and an equally attractive style in England retails for $15. A director explained:

"Since we have to deal with the market as it exists, and since exports are less than a third of our business, we try to stratify high, medium and low-priced manufacturers. But in England 80 per cent of cotton dresses sell for less than three pounds. In France, there are a few priced around $10, practically no medium prices, and a big majority in the higher brackets."

Dresses in the show ran to tawny and exotic colors, and to romantically small-waisted, bell-skirted ballerina styles. All were short-skirted, just covering the knee. New were trim cotton suits and dresses-and-coat ensembles. Prices ranged from $10 to $90, with all the high-priced creations made in France.

Nothing to Wear

"When a Frenchwoman says she has nothing to put on, unfortunately she's telling the truth," said a textile executive. "Her husband is better dressed than she is."

"Twelve and a half million Frenchwomen between 16 and 60 buy only 9,400,000 dresses a year, and this includes all materials and yard goods made up at home."

Privately, directors expressed the opinion that the Common Market, while possibly unfavorable to France in the beginning, will force mass production on the country. Paradoxically, they said, French production costs are higher because France is practically the only country to enforce equal pay for women workers.

The Common Market countries are France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg.

Agent Gives Demonstration

Mrs. Helen Mohan, assistant Pitt County HD Agent, gave the demonstration "Color Co-ordination" when Mrs. J. Harvey Briley was hostess at the Mt. Pleasant Home Demonstration Club's May meeting at her home in Greenville.

Mrs. J. K. Hathaway presided and welcomed the 12 members and two visitors present. The meeting opened with the singing of "Down in the Valley" followed by scripture read by Mrs. O. J. Stancill.

The treasurer's report was given by Mrs. Harvey Briley and the secretary, Ms. J. O. Teel, called the roll and read the minutes of the last meeting.

Mrs. J. R. Gowan gave a garden report and among other timely tips she advised putting tobacco cloth over strawberry beds to protect them from birds and frogs. Also she advised letting tomatoes ripen on the vine for better flavor.

When Mrs. Helen Mohan gave the demonstration on "Color Co-ordination in the Home," she used samples of upholstery materials, drapes, tile, rugs and paints to show the value of planning your decorating as a unit. She warned against using too many different colors so as not to have a rainbow effect. Small homes by using the same shades or variations of the same shades can appear much larger in aspect.

Once On That Road, No Getting Off

That some sort of withholding system for state income tax will be adopted by the 1959 General Assembly is pretty much a foregone conclusion now.

The question is, how much will the proposed plan endorsed by the House Finance Committee be altered by the Senate and on the floors of both houses before it is written into law?

It is obvious that the $27 million windfall the plan would provide the state in the next biennium is by far the strongest point in its favor so far as legislators are concerned. It would mean that no new tax structures would be necessary for the coming two years, and that the legislators will have sufficient funds to meet the state's needs without opening up the question of new taxes.

While the possibility that the plan may be rejected is remote, there certainly should be some modifications of the present proposal before it is written into law. Though the withholding system may bring in the state more revenue from income taxes than the present system, it is likely that as presently written the additional revenue after the first year will hardly meet the cost of administering the plan. After the state gets and spends the multi-million dollar windfall in 1960, it may well find the plan is more costly than its present supporters will admit.

It should also be realized that once the withholding system goes into operation, the state will have little choice but to continue the plan. It will not be able to go back to the present system unless it is prepared to go for a year without collecting income taxes in order to revert from the withholding system to the pay-in-April plan.

Hearing Set On Advertising Bill

By LYNN NISBET

ADVERTISING — House Judiciary II committee has scheduled a public hearing for next Thursday morning, May 21, on the bill introduced by Reps. Sneed and Hooton of Cumberland and Harry Horton of Chatham prohibiting newspapers and magazine advertising of alcoholic beverages.

Majority of the newspapers published in North Carolina, even in counties and cities where sales of alcoholic beverages is legal do not accept such advertising. At the same time many of these papers oppose legislative action outlawing the advertising of a product which the Legislature has said may be legally sold.

Postal laws are strict against some types of advertising and the printing of pornographic or salacious material. There are both State and Federal statutes regulating certain types of advertising. Congressional acts give a premium in interstate highway allocations to State which ban or control billboard advertising beyond the limits of the right of way. While these restrictive measures have been opposed by segments of the advertising media they have been generally accepted as appropriate exercise of police power.

Members of the Legislature are questioning whether these precedents justify outright ban against any advertising of a legal product, especially since provisions of the bill are discriminatory as between in-state and out-of-state publications and among advertising media within the state. Legislators are concerned more about the precedent such a law might set than about the immediate moral or economic impact.

PORTS — D. Leon Williams, executive director of the N.C. Ports Authority, says the shortage of warehouse space at Wilmington and Morehead docks hasn't yet reached the point of turning business away — "but we want to do something before we do reach that point."

At the present time the Authority is trying to get reinstated a $1,300,000 request for capital improvements included in the budget but omitted from the recommended column.

Williams abounds with optimism over the continued growth of the two state ports and the service they can render.

"Much credit," he says, "goes to our agriculture and inland industry which has increased its use of the two deep water terminals. Attractive freight rates and easy access to the ports has also been a factor in increased trade."

Once the windfall is spent, we doubt the state will ever be able to go a year without collecting income taxes.

With these things in mind, it is imperative that the legislators consider the withholding proposal in minute detail. It is not enough to say, "It will give us what we need to balance the budget for the biennium", and let the matter drop with that. The legislators must look considerably beyond the $27 million windfall the withholding system will provide in 1960.

Once North Carolina adopts the withholding system for collecting personal income taxes, it will not be able to turn back.

The legislators must make sure the law, in detail as well as in principal, will be the kind of legislation that will be workable, practical, and stand the test of time.

The Logical Way To Save Water Resources

Passage by the House of a bill to create a Department of Water Resources moves North Carolina a step closer to having one central policy-making group to protect one of its most valuable natural resources . . . water.

It is something North Carolina has long needed. And without such a department furnished with sufficient powers to carry on its work, the state might well find one of its most valuable natural resources of today completely worthless in the years ahead.

Only in recent years has North Carolina exhibited any significant interest protecting the future of its water resources. Only in recent years has the state suddenly stopped taking for granted its vast water supplies. It has now come to realize that its vast water resources can be ruined like those of some other states. It has come to realize that our rivers and streams can no longer be used as public dumping grounds one generation and remain assets to another.

In groping for an answer to the problem in the past few years, several state departments and agencies have been given varying degrees of control over our water resources. They have also been charged with varying degrees of responsibility for seeing that our water resources are properly developed and used, and that at the same time they are properly protected from ruin.

While the hodge-podge of control that now exists among the several agencies is better than no control at all, it has fallen far short of giving North Carolina the kind of control it should have over its water resources. The new proposal, far more comprehensive and far more logical, appears a far better answer to the problem.

North Carolina has great wealth in its rivers, streams and underground water supplies. To realize the potential of these water resources, they must be developed and used. In the process, however, it is essential that they not be ruined. With this responsibility placed in the hands of one agency, the state can develop a much more effective water development and conservation program.

More Vigorous Policies By Ike

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower has never been so much on his own in the presidency as he is now, on problems at home and abroad.

With the departure of the two men upon whom he relied most completely — Sherman Adams and John Foster Dulles — he has had to depend more on himself.

The result has been more vigor and aggressiveness in dealing with domestic issues and foreign affairs.

Adams, who quit under unhappy circumstances last September, was more than just Eisenhower's top White House aide.

He was a combination buffer, filter, work-reformer and very tough chief of staff.

No President ever relied more absolutely on his secretary of state than Eisenhower did on Dulles until cancer forced Dulles' resignation last month.

Although the President is the one ultimately responsible for American foreign policy, there was not much doubt it was Dulles who made the policy.

With the exception of the former secretary of the treasury, George Humphrey, no other man was ever credited with as much influence on Eisenhower as Adams and Dulles.

Humphrey, who quit in mid-1957, reportedly said his Eisenhower's very attentive ear on matters economic, financial and budgetary. But he is no longer a day-to-day adviser.

Eisenhower's increased aggressiveness shows clearly in his relationship with Congress.

For most of his White House years — except around election time — Eisenhower leaned over backward to avoid conflict with Congress.

One of the outstanding examples was in 1957.

That year he, Humphrey, and the budget director had worked months on the national budget, supposedly to keep expected expenses to the lowest possible figure.

Eisenhower even said his budget was as tight as he could make it. But Humphrey started the country by saying it could

Opinions In Brief

"Featherbedding — pay for work not done, for services not performed — is a wrong ingredient in any work agreement in

"Journalism has to be a business or it could not survive, or would not remain free. It is also a service and an art, and justifies its existence in general and particular cases by remaining so." — New York Times.

Dirt Track Has An Allure

John Trotman, a near-redhead who labors in the paper's composing room has a new love. His eyes light up and his voice quivers with excitement when talking about a dirt track and a racing jalopy.

The term "jalopy" doesn't really fit the cars involved, but I've never heard John give the cars a title.

He has two cousins who are teamed up in the pastime, and the association has our boy aglow . . . and all that jazz," as he would say.

There's a rather ancient Chevy involved, with a 1953-model motor. No fenders, no seats (except a bucket for the driver), no glass except one-half a windshield; all inflammable material removed, and it has over-sized tires on the back wheels. Counting the crash helmet and roll bar, John figures the investment represents about $100 and the labors of love; but you can tell there must have been a profitable margin of enjoyment to boot.

There is a quarter-mile dirt track on the other side of Tarboro which attracts maybe 25 similarly cut down cars on a Sunday afternoon. Another track has been recently opened near Ormondsville; so the sport seems to have an element of growth.

The tracks have rules, prizes and safety and emergency features which lend an extra appeal.

Because of track limitations, racers operate in second gear . . . getting up to 60 mph. in the process . . . and I guess the noise and strain would compare with 150 miles an hour in the bigger leaguers.

There's a lot of other distractions around for people to get wrapped up in, with less to be said for them than the dirt track hobby. And tinkering with an old car is pure fascination, if you ask the fascinated.

It has been oft said the Henderson strike violence was getting a lot of attention outside North Carolina; but how much, was left largely to the imagination.

Some evidence along that line turned up yesterday with a few old newspapers that reached my desk.

The Rogers Daily News (of Rogers, Arkansas) for April 24 played up the strike strife as the "second biggest" story on its front page with an account of a night of gunfire.

And The Sarasota Journal (Sarasota, Fla.) frontpaged the violence with a 2-column headline on both the April 23 and April 27 issues.

Those were just a couple of available instances. Quite revealing.

So when reporters and commentators remark that the Henderson violence is a widespread story, they aren't exaggerating a bit.

The return of the 17-year-locust is something else making recent news. A first-hand report on their arrival is available.

Clarice Galloway tells me her weekend travels took her along Highway 258, up by the Roanoke River, and the locusts were whooping it up. And I read that

Rest Of Us Carry The Burden

By ELMER ROESSNER

Nobody pays any attention, but we keep writing here that the trouble with the United States income tax system is that it is laced with gimmicks.

The rich, the smart and those who hire tax experts pay less. The rest of us carry the burden.

Now if you are a salaried or wage-earning slob, can you convert your medical expenses into a business deduction? Not without running the risk of spending this summer's vacation in Leavenworth.

Let's say you're a partner or a sole proprietor. You're making good money—$25,000 per year. You also have substantial doctor and dentist bills each year—at least $1,000 sometimes more. In addition, your drug bills run about $200.

NOT MUCH DEDUCTION
True, you're entitled to a medical expense deduction for these amounts but, in your case, it doesn't help very much. First, none of these drugs count—they don't exceed 1 per cent of adjusted gross income. Then, of the $1,000 of the doctor and dentist charges only $250 (the excess over 3 per cent of adjusted gross income) is actually deductible. Pretty much of a waste, isn't it?

Here's what to do: Incorporate your partnership or proprietorship and elect to avoid the corporate tax. Then let the corporation pick up the tab for all of your medical charges, including drugs under and accident and health plan. Result: the corporation gets a deduction for the full amount paid but the payments are tax-free to you.

ADDED BENEFITS
With the election to avoid corporate taxes in effect, the corporation's deduction really becomes yours. It reduces your gross income. Hence, in effect, you have converted a limited itemized deduction into a complete business deduction. You can still claim the standard deduction!

On the facts here—a $25,000 salary and $1,200 in medical with 150 miles an hour in the bigger leaguers.

But the trouble with these pills is two-fold. First, in order to get the same results you have to take two tomorrow — or next week — and on and on until you're taking them in wholesale doses. And the second catch is that every time you take them, every time you rely on a pill to do what you ought to do for yourself, you become less a man, less your own master, less a growing purposeful soul.

Pills have their place — but as medicine, not as crutches.

Learn How To Retire

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — The problem of letting go is very hard.

It is hardest, of course, on the individual who reaches a corporate retirement age and still wants to keep on working, usually for the same corporation.

The main loyalty of his life outside his family has been tied to his job. He often feels he has been able to adjust better to the changing demands of his job than to those at home. Sometimes, as he is needed, less at home when the children are on their own, he feels the need to be bigger at his office.

Then, usually at 65, the office doesn't need him any more.

What is done to cushion a faithful employee against the stunning fact that he is no longer a corporate necessity?

Few corporations today do more than give him a corporate farewell. The trend, however, is in the other way.

One example is a preretirement program established five years ago by Mutual of New York, one of America's largest insurance companies. They set up a course among their employees on how to stop work, how to let go.

The idea was put into effect by Vice President George Wilgus, personnel executive. He felt that although a survey showed two thirds of major U. S. companies do something to help employees on the edge of retirement, most of them don't cushion the blow enough.

His solution?

A year before retirement an employee is taught how to retire. He can take a day a week off from his job. He can attend on company time six to seven monthly classes on how to face up to the problems of retirement.

The classes include discussion on where to live, how to handle financial responsibilities, health problems, the development of hobbies, the prospect of taking other jobs.

"These people can and want to be useful to themselves and to society," said Wilgus. "All they need is a little steering before they leave their jobs."

"The human cry now is: it is terrible to retire people. We try to show them what they can do to be happy."

What are the results?

"The main benefit is that they think in advance on a systematic basis about the problems of retirement," said Wilgus.

Wilgus has to face, of course, the fact that growing numbers of healthy elders aren't willing to quit voluntarily at 65.

Earlier this month Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell addressed the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

"In 1970 there will be 20 million people in this country over 65 years of age," he said.

"At the same time, because our birth rate was very low during the depression years of the 1930s, there will actually be nearly two million fewer 20-to-29-year-olds in our male population in the 1960s than there are now."

Now the enlightened employer coaxes the old-timers to let go gracefully. If a labor shortage develops, will he have then to coax the old-timers to say in harkness?

The possibility is he may.

Act Would Tighten Reins On The Wandering Papas

By LYNN NISBET
Reflector Raleigh Bureau

RALEIGH — The State Public Welfare Department, with full cooperation of the organized county commissioners and local welfare boards, is sponsoring legislation to put more teeth in the uniform reciprocal enforcement of support act. All States, including the newest one Alaska, have this law which makes it possible to secure support for his family from a deserting husband and father without resorting to extradition and imprisonment.

The proposed new legislation would tighten machinery for enforcement, rather than amend the basic principles of the act. It would authorize the county itself to initiate proceedings in any court of record against "wandering papas" located in other areas. Presently actions can be started only in domestic relations or superior courts by persons with pecuniary interest in the matter. The pending bill (SB 218) further enables the county to collect reimbursement for support previously paid to deserted dependents. Inadequate as the enforcement machinery has been, and although only 78 counties last year used it to recapture welfare money paid to wives and children, it produced for 51 of these counties more than $400,000, an average of between $40 and $50 for each of the more than 800 families involved.

The 22 counties listed by the welfare agencies as not participating in enforcement are Alleghany, Anson, Avery, Bertie, Burke, Caldwell, Cherokee, Cleveland, Davidson, Gaston, Graham, Granville, Harnett, Henderson, Iredell, Jones, Lincoln, Randolph, Tyrrell, Vance, Washington and Wayne.

Recoveries by the counties which have made some effort range from $25 a month in Swain to $4,140 a month in Buncombe. The amounts collected has a definite relationship to the effort made. In Swain, for example, no person is officially designated to follow through on cases, while in Buncombe the counselor of the domestic relations court devotes four fourths of his time to this work. A number of counties depend upon private attorneys, and because the prospect of a fee is slim very little is recovered. Other counties designate solicitors or assistant solicitors, deputy clerks of court or other public officer with better results.

A companion bill (SB 243) also introduced by Sen. Elbert Peel of Martin authorizes county commissioners to employ special county attorneys or designate some other officer for special service to welfare agencies, particularly in support cases. Dr. Ellen Winston, State commissioner of welfare, thinks full participation by all counties will more than double recoveries on the support item, as well as save the counties many thousands of dollars in other activities.

It was pointed out by this writer some months ago that a special officer in Pitt county had reduced county welfare rolls by transferring recipients to the Federal OAB lists. It is believed that adequate enforcement of the support act will greatly reduce the burden on the dependent children's welfare budget.

Senator Peel said of his bills that they would enable the county commissioners to use the welfare program to relieve real need, rather than just cuss it for wasting money.

Gary Crosby Leader Of The 4 Brothers

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Gary is the leader of the four Crosby brothers, and that helps to explain the kind of guy he is.

"It was Gary who paved the way for us," explains his youngest brother Lindsay. "He took all the knocks and we profited from his experience."

Being the eldest, Gary was the first to learn what it was like to bear a famous name.

I remember how worried mother was during the kidnapping scare when I was going to grammar school," he says. "She insisted on having the chauffeur drive me to school every day. I was so embarrassed I had him let me out a block away from school and pick me up the same way. When she found out about it, she blew her top."

Gary, named for his Godfather Gary Cooper, managed to get through a succession of Catholic schools and military academies with little incident. Even at Stanford University, he was "one of the boys," an affable football player and beer drinker. But the picture changed when he entered the Army.

Speaking of his Army superiors, he says: "They have a way of getting to you with nasty digs and extra duty, just because you've got a famous name." Gary is strong-willed, and he fought back. He looks back on his two year hitch, largely as an entertainer in Germany, as a miserable experience. He is still taking treatment for nervous ailments he said he incurred during his service.

Learning from his experience, Railroad trains in Switzerland have an anti-slip brake which removes the need for sanding rail lines before trains can pass through high, snow-covered mountain passes.

his three brothers avoided drawing any attention to themselves by entertaining in the Army. Lindsay was at Fort Ord more than a year before the brass learned of his identity. He was then requested to make special appearances, but he turned them down.

Observes Phillip: "Gary is the oldest of us, the most aggressive and extroverted. He's the boss and he's a fighter," adds Dennis: "He has the most temper."

Sometimes the temper has flared, resulting in unpleasant publicity. Sometimes the temper has been held in check.

Gary was the first of the brothers to plunge into show business. They all had appeared with their father in films and on radio, but Gary first registered as a single by dueting with Bing on the hit record, "Sam's Song," which sold over 2 million.

He quit Stanford—to Bing's displeasure—and was enjoying success as a singer on his own until the Army took him. On his return, he was signed by Jerry Wald to appear in "Mardi Gras" and made a good impression. He has a contract with 20th Century-Fox and has made two more films, "Holiday for Lovers" and "A Private's Affair."

"Gary comes across as a good personality," Wald says. "He's not an actor yet, but he will be." Nearing 26, Gary lives in a four-room hillside home, once inhabited by Howard Hughes. He dates the field of Hollywood's younger set, and likes to party. This reputation has made him prey for the fun-seekers and led to an eviction from his apartment.

The incident brought about a schism between Gary and Bing. Gary is the only son who does not share cordial relations with his father. But the other brothers argue that the situation is not uncommon among strong-minded fathers and their first-born, especially if they're Irish. They feel sure the breach will be mended.

"Gary and dad love each other more than they will admit," says Lindsay with quiet wisdom. "Gary would be the first to slug anyone who said anything against dad."

Sports
Scope

by Johnny Hudson

Bob Masten, a newcomer in the championship circle, and Bo Farley, a former champion, will set their sights at the Greenville Country Club course this weekend as they meet for the 1959 Club Championship.

For the local linksters, it will wind up four weeks of elimination and a new champion will definitely be crowned as Ercell Webb, 1958 champ, was eliminated earlier in the match play.

Masten and Farley will tangle in 36 grueling holes over the weekend. Ray Masten, brother of Bob, and W. L. Allen, six-time champion, will also play 36 holes in the first flight.

Defeats Two Champions

Masten, a 34 year old insurance adjuster, comes into the finals playing the best golf of his career. Coming to Greenville from Rocky Mount, Masten is playing his fifth year in the Club Championship but this is the furthest he has ever advanced.

The young challenger has an unorthodox swing but as one observer points out, "He gets it in the hole and that's what counts."

Masten staged his climb to championship by defeating brother Ray and then two former club champions, Don Conley Jr. and Ercell Webb. He met Henry Coleman last week in 36 holes of match as he shot four under par on the last ten holes to dethrone the 1958 champion.

Farley Is Consistent

Farley is considered one of Greenville's most consistent golfers and the High School coach won the title in 1956.

Farley shot his way to the championship match with wins over Ed Rhoden, J. B. Boyd, Bill Davenport and Molt Massey Jr. He defeated Massey, also a former champ, last week, 3-2.

Farley's strong game is off the tee. His driver shots are usually long and accurate. He is a veteran of Championship play and has been playing some of his best rounds in recent weeks.

The second, third, and fourth flights will be only 18 holes and will have to be played by Sunday. Lucian Bryan and George Lautares meet in the second flight, Bob Powell and Monty Coles in the fourth, and Bill Clark and Erskine Duff in the fourth flight.

Clark Wins Junior Title

Dallas Clark won the junior tournament last week after a 36 hole match with Bobby Thomas. Sonny Parkinson edged out Lou Ward in the first flight action.

The Women's tournament continued to move along at a rapid pace and they will be entering into their semi-finals this week. Harriett White will meet Bessie Brown and Millie Wright will go against Mildred Coleman in the championship flight.

Other pairings have Martha Garrett vs. Annabelle Sugg in the first flight; Myra Hodges vs. Virginia Lanche in the second flight; Janice Merritt vs. Frances Dudley and Mary Hunnicutt vs. Gloria Lee in the third flight; and Mary Frances Garrett vs. Cal Bryan.

By Geo. Benton

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—George Benton proved his right to meet some of the nation's better middleweights by an upset 10-round decision over Bobby Boyd Monday night. Now he wants the television audience to see how good he is.

Only 3,452 fans—and no TV cameras—were at the arena to see Benton win unanimously what he had described as the big bout of his career. The unranked Philadelphia was convincing in shelling the 10th-ranked middleweight from Chicago with a head-hunting attack.

Benton, 160½, stunned Boyd in the fifth round and frequently thereafter, until the final bell saved Boyd from going down for the first time.

Boyd weighed 162½.

10-For-11 Streak Put Chisox Up

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

The hot-handed Chicago White Sox finally lead the American League, but it took one whale of a parlay to get 'em there. All they needed was a 10-for-11 streak, plus the winningest pitcher in the majors, plus the first shutout of the season by Baltimore's staff.

It all happened last night. The White Sox collected a 9-2 victory at Washington, behind the five-hit pitching of Early Wynn, while Baltimore beat Cleveland 3-0 and skidded the Indians to second place on the combined six-hit work of Skinner Brown and Billy Loes.

The White Sox, who began their run for the top after slumping to fourth, 4½ games behind Cleveland 10 days ago, now have a half-game edge over the Indians, who have only a 4-5 record for the same span.

Last place Detroit walloped Boston 14-2 as right-hander Jim Bunning drove in five runs toward his fourth straight victory. Kansas City and New York were idle.

In the National League, first place Milwaukee made it five straight with a 4-2 victory at San Francisco. Cincinnati defeated Los Angeles 9-7 in the only other game scheduled.

The White Sox rampage began after a string of five defeats. Little Luis Aparicio is low man with a .279 average, but leads the regulars with 13 runs scored. Sherm Lollar is the big percentage hitter (.425), with Bubba Phillips next (.400). Earl Torgeson is the top run producer, with 11, and 10 days ago, now have a half-

And then there's Wynn. The 39-year-old right-hander has won three in a row during the spurt, and became the first to win six this season in the AL while packing away his 253th career victory. He walked four, struck out four and was working on his third shutout until Reno Bertoia hit a two-run homer in the sixth.

The Sox counted three in the first inning against Chuck Stobbs (1-4), scoring on Jim Landis' sacrifice fly, a double by Del Ennis and the first of two RBI singles by Torgeson. Lollar, who homered and doubled, drove in two runs along with Torgy and Landis, who cashed another sacrifice fly. Al Smith also homered for the Sox, who had a dozen hits.

The Indians, whose only other whitewash this season was off Brown Wynn, got all their hits off Brown

(1-1). They finally got rid of the 34-year-old right-hander, making his second start, in the eighth, when Loes moved in and retired Rocky Colavito on a fly with two on and two out. Loes hung up his fifth save with the hitless mop-up.

The Orioles, two games behind in third, got the run they needed in the third when Don Ferrarese (3-2) forced it in with two walks.

Bunning (4-3) scattering seven hits for his fifth consecutive complete game, rapped a three-run homer, a 420-foot triple and two singles in his four-at bats as the Tigers swung for 16 hits against loser Frank Sullivan (1-3) and three relievers. Ten of the hits were for extra bases, with Al Kaline, Charlie Maxwell and Frank Bolling also hitting homers. Don Buddin homered for the Red Sox, who have lost six of their last seven.

Clemson Again Wins ACC
Baseball Title Via Playoff

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP)—For the second year running, Clemson has won the Atlantic Coast Conference baseball championship the hard way. The Tigers have beaten North Carolina in a playoff both years.

They won it Monday night with a 9-7 victory over the Tar Heels. But it was a little more difficult this year because there was a three-way tie for first place at the end of the regular season.

Last year, only Clemson and North Carolina were involved in the playoff. Clemson won that one, 4-1.

This year, Clemson had to beat Wake Forest first. Clemson beat the Deacons 4-2 last Saturday.

Thus, Clemson will represent the ACC in the District 3 NCAA playoff here June 4-6. The other teams will include Georgia Tech of the Southeastern Conference and George Washington of the Southern, and an at-large club to be named.

Clemson had to have some late inning heroics to pull the game out of the fire Monday night.

The Tigers trailed 7-5 going into the eighth. Wayne Young, the second of four Tar Heel pitchers, gave up two bases on balls, and then Larry Bagwell swatted a triple to knot the score.

Bagwell came in on a single by Fred DeBerry to put the Tigers a run ahead. They got another in the ninth on Butch Coker's homer.

Clemson's Harold Stowe picked up his sixth victory by relieving starter Ty Cline in the fifth. Stowe has lost 3.

Trophies, Awards Given
At Track Team's Supper

East Carolina's track team put the final touches on the 1959 season last night with a supper at the College cafeteria.

Coach Bill McDonald, serving his first year as cinder coach, presented senior awards to James Speight, Jessel Curry, Foster Morse, Bob Ruck, Dennis O'Brien, Frank Freeman, Randall Holmes and Lee Atkinson.

Dr. N. M. Jorgensen, Athletic Director at ECC, awarded the "Most Valuable" trophy to Jessel Curry, senior star from Portsmouth, Virginia. Jorgensen also made the "Outstanding Distance Runner" trophy to Foster Morse, also a senior.

Jorgensen stated prior to awards that he hoped that a track field at East Carolina was in the near future. The Athletic Director also encouraged the seniors to continue to help build up the athletic program after they have graduated.

Jessel Curry acted as spokesman of the track club and expressed their appreciation for the work that McDonald had done. On behalf of the club, Curry made a gift certificate presentation to McDonald.

East Carolina, lacking the depth of past seasons, finished a close second in this year's North State meet at High Point. Jessel Curry was voted as the conference's outstanding individual performer.

Mallory Says Champion Baseballers Best-Balanced Team Of His Career

By JOHNNY HUDSON

Coach Jim Mallory received his pats on the back and congratulations Saturday night and immediately ranked his club as the best-balanced team that he had ever coached.

The Pirate mentor had nothing but praise for his squad as they finished their season by winning their fourteenth straight with a 14-2 win over Appalachian.

Crown Is Nothing New

For Mallory, the North State championship was nothing new as it was his third in his five years at East Carolina and he had several titles while at Elon. He has finished second in his other two seasons at Greenville. The 1959 season was probably the most satisfying one in his long term as a coach.

"It was one of the greatest teams that I have ever coached. I spent some time working on the fundamentals with the club but I did very little coaching in the last part of the season. The team had desire and determination and worked together.

"We had some strong competition in the opening games and this made the team jell. Our hitting came through and we had the best college pitching staff that I have ever been associated with. I felt that the conference was about the same this year although last season but Catawba had a much better club," stated the ECC coach.

Four Regulars

East Carolina opened the season with only four regulars back and by mid-season only two of the returning starters still had their position. The 1959 season saw a rebuilding year and also a revamping of the personnel on the squad.

Mallory cites the outfield as one of the big reasons for the success of the club. "We did a lot of experimenting and came up with Pierce (Gary), Cockrell (Wally) and Carpenter (Jerry)." Pierce and Cockrell hit at a tremendous pace and finished the season with .443 and .371 averages, respectively. Carpenter led the club in runs scored and also hit .297.

Exams Ahead

Mallory stated that his club was anxious for a trip to Texas and the NAIA tournament. "We feel that on a given day, we can hold our own with most anybody and our boys will make a good showing if they get an opportunity to compete in the NAIA," stated the former pro star.

The Pirates will get a short practice session in today and then will hit the books for exams during the rest of the week.

In case ECC does get the bid to Texas, they will play a benefit game this weekend to enable them to raise the money to make the trip. Mallory stated that Carolina may be the opposition.

Final Statistics

Final statistics on the North State champions saw Pierce and Cockrell as the club's top hitters. Wilbert Castellone had a .345 mark and Glenn Bass was .299.

Al Vaughn, All-Conference second baseman, hit the ball at a .500 clip during the latter part of the season, hitting safely in the last eleven games and finishing with a .284. The Ahoskie senior got off to a miserable start with only two hits in his first 32 trips to the plate.

Larry Crayton (7-1) led the club in victories and strikeouts. The freshman southpaw fanned 105 and set a conference record by recording 20 in one game. Ben Baker (5-0) and Johnny Ellen (4-2) also pitched superb ball in forming the best pitching staff in the conference.

Basilio Awaits Hearing's Results

NEW YORK (AP)—This is all very complicated. You see, Sugar Ray Robinson still is world midweight champion in New York

Another Bobby Jones Playing

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP)—The greatest name in golfing history appeared again on a scoreboard in national competition Monday.

The name: Robert Jones. The immortal Bobby's son, Robert Tyre Jones III, put the famous name in view again by qualifying in a district preliminary for the U. S. Open championship.

Just 30 years ago, Bobby won the Open at the Winged Foot Country Club in Mamaroneck, N.Y., where this year's Open will be played June 11-13.

Young Jones, a 32-year-old bottling company executive from Pittsfield, Mass., says he's "just another golfer who likes to play weekends."

Nevertheless, he's won the championship of the Pittsfield Country Club, his home course, several times.

Stocky and blond with more than a suggestion of his father's look and stance, Jones hits a long ball and is steady around the greens.

He qualified Monday with a 149 on the par-72 Schuyler Meadows course outside Albany.

It was the first time he's qualified in Open competition after trying "a couple of times before in the past five years."

To enter the Open, he still must hurdle a sectional qualifier at Springfield, N.J., June 1.

He says he especially wants to make the Open at Winged Foot because of his father's victory there.

Exchange Wins Another, 6-2

Frequent interruptions by rain failed to stop Exchange from hanging a 6-2 defeat on Pepsi-Cola yesterday in Little League action at the Elm Street Park.

Exchange broke a 2-2 tie in the bottom half of the fourth inning when they picked up three hits and combined them with a couple of errors to send four runs across the plate.

Dickie Wade opened on the mound for Pepsi-Cola but was shelled in the fourth inning up-rising, Leo Cannon took over for Wade.

Exchange also used two pitchers in gaining the win. Jimmy Hales started and was relieved in the fourth in favor of Van Stubbs, who got credit for the win.

Kenneth Brown highlighted the Exchange's second win as he collected two hits in three official trips to the plate. Dickie Wade had the only extra base blow of the game, a double.

Action continues in the Tar Heel League today as the Elks and Moose meet at the local field. Activity resumes in the North State tomorrow as V.F.W. meets Texaco.

state. But he wants to fight Carmen Basilio in Pennsylvania. That is National Boxing Association territory where Robinson no longer is champ.

In order to discover if Robinson has complied with a court order to "enter into terms of agreement to defend against Basilio," The New York State Athletic Commission is conducting a hearing. After the hearing it will decide whether Robinson still is champ.

Robinson claims he signed May 12 (three days before the court and commission deadline) to fight Basilio in Philadelphia, Sept. 21. Everybody admits Basilio has not signed. Now, who gets called?

The hearing opened Monday with Sugar Ray watching moodily behind dark glasses. He was 38 minutes late but he showed up.

Marvin Machat, Robinson's attorney, paraded various witnesses before the commission. Al Lein, a member of the Pennsylvania Athletic Commission, said he had approved the one-sided contract for the Philadelphia fight.

Harold Salkind, Philadelphia commissioner of registration, said he had been "helping a friend (promoter Sam Rose) who is in the hospital." He said he had tried to reach Basilio and his managers for several days and finally on Friday told Johnny DeJohn, a co-manager, that Rose was ready to post $200,000 good faith money.

A crisp $225,000 certified check was produced by Irving Kahn, president of a closed circuit television company (TelePrompTer). He said this was a minimum guarantee for Basilio. Kahn expects to beam the fight into theaters when it finally is set. Naturally, Robinson will get a bigger guarantee that may run as high as $700,000.

Basilio has a prepared statement that was distributed to the commission by his lawyer, State Senator Lawrence Rulison of Syracuse, N.Y. After looking at the statement, the commission decided to agree to Machat's request and call Basilio and DeJohn to appear Wednesday.

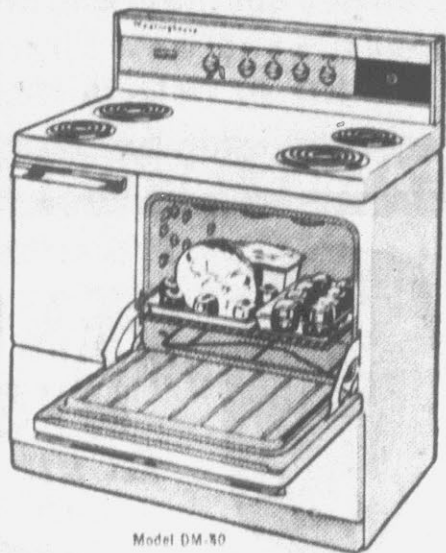

The statement was not made public. However, it was believed that Basilio outlined his long struggle for a rematch and said he was willing to box Gene Fullmer for the title if Robinson is stripped of his crown.

A NEW MYSTERY The COUNT by A. A. FAIR [Eric Stanley Gardner]

CHAPTER 36

"I don't think Phyllis Crockett could possibly have blown that dart that distance and had it stick in the wood that deep," I told Sergeant Frank Sellers. "I don't think you can take that dart and that blowgun and blow it into a piece of wood from a distance of even three or four feet and have it penetrate that deep."

"Because you saw a blowgun that was made to shoot darts, and saw a dart that was made to be shot from a blowgun, you jump to the obvious conclusion that the dart had to come from that blowgun. I don't think it came from any blowgun."

"Then where do you think it came from, Lam, if you're so darn smart?" Sellers asked, wiping the perspiration from his face and neck. "And quit running me around in circles because I want to get out of this Turkish bath."

"Get out any time you want to," I said, "but my own idea is that somebody manufactured a short-barreled weapon that worked with a charge of compressed air; that the person stood in the closet right next to Dean Crockett and fired the dart into his chest. Then after Dean Crockett fell, this person fitted the second dart into the mechanism and released it with a charge of compressed air so that it went into that piece of wood at exactly the right angle to make it appear that it had been fired from the washroom window across the light well."

"And I think that person made a fatal mistake in a perfectly planned crime by not taking into consideration the fact that the compressed air in his gun generated more power than could possibly be generated with a pair of human lungs."

"As soon as I saw the setup, I felt absolutely certain that that dart in the wood had been the second dart that was fired instead of the first."

"You can reason it out," I said. "Put yourself in the position of Dean Crockett. If he had been standing there in the window and someone had fired a dart at him and had missed, and the dart had thudded into the wood, he would hardly have turned to face the window, put his hands on the window sill and exhibited a perfect target for the second shot. Remember, the guy had been around the jungles and he wasn't born yesterday."

"When I saw that dart buried clean to the hilt in that wood, I knew darn well you couldn't have fired it in there with a blowgun. I settled back and closed my eyes."

Sellers stood looking down at me with his feet spread wide apart, mopping away at his perspiring face and neck. Then suddenly he picked up his coat, turned and walked toward the door without a word.

He got as far as the door, then turned on his heel. "All right, who did it?" he asked.

"Try the person who last saw him alive," I said, and closed my eyes. "I think they teach rookies that as the first procedure, don't they?"

ment, then I heard the swinging door, then I heard the swinging doors as he went out, then he came back and said, "If it wasn't so hot in here that I don't dare to exert myself, I'd give you the business. As it is, thanks for the information."

I got into the office about ten-thirty. I looked a little better, but I had a good shiner on the right side. I couldn't take a deep breath without it hurting, and I favored one side when I walked.

I eased myself down into the swivel chair and Bertha came barging in before I had settled back in a comfortable position.

"Frank Sellers is in my office, Donald," she said. "Can you come in?"

"Tell him to come in here," Bertha strode out of the office. In about ten seconds she was back with Frank Sellers. "How you feeling, Pint Size?" Sellers asked. His voice was friendly, almost respectful.

"Lousy."

"You sure took a beating."

"You aren't telling me anything I don't know."

Sellers acted a little upset. "Don't," he said. "I wrapped the Crockett murder case up this morning."

"Who did it?"

"Olny," Sellers said. "He was pretty slick about it. He made arrangements so that he could get the blowgun out of there without anyone knowing it. He carefully hollowed out the handle of the club flag, then he stole the darts and everything was set to plant the gun in Mrs. Crockett's studio. Of course, you butt in and saved him the trouble."

I changed my position slightly, trying to ease the pain in my side. "Made himself a little blowgun?" I asked.

"Nothing to it," Sellers said. "The tube wasn't over ten inches long, but he screwed one of those containers that holds compressed carbon dioxide on the end of it and worked out a trigger arrangement that sent the darts so fast and so hard that they were traveling like a bullet."

"Uh-huh."

"He'd been managing Crockett's business and his tax matters, and what with one thing and another, he'd got into Crockett to the tune of about eighty thousand bucks. Crockett was beginning to think something was wrong. Next he would have been having an audit made — or Olny thought that would be in the next step."

I said, "That's nice. I was a little afraid he might have had his eye on Phyllis and wanted Crockett out of the way for that reason."

"Well, that's all there was to it," Sellers said. "Once we got on the right track it was easy. We searched his room. The darn fool hadn't even disposed of the air gun he'd manufactured."

I yawned. "Why did you come over here, Frank?"

"I wanted to talk with you before the case broke in the newspapers," Sellers said uncomfortably.

"Why?"

"Well," he said, "they'll probably interview you and I wonder if that you were going to tell them."

"Me," I said, raising my eyebrows. "Why, I'm not going to tell them anything except that it was my privilege to work with Sergeant Sellers of Homicide last night while he was solving the theft of the jade Buddhas from the Crockett penthouse, that after he had solved that theft, Sellers went ahead on his own with cleaning up the Crockett murder case."

"What about our conference in the Turkish bath?" Sellers asked.

"What Turkish bath?" I asked.

All of a sudden Sellers reached down, grabbed my hand and started shaking it. "You're a game little guy," he said, "and a good friend. There are times when I feel like I could kiss you — despite the fact that I know darn well you pulled some kind of a slick razzle-dazzle on us over those two idols, and, Donald, I'm not sharp enough to find out what it was."

"Then why try?" I asked.

Sellers shook hands with me again, then suddenly grabbed Bertha and kissed her.

"You're the kind of private detective we need in the city," he said, and walked out.

Bertha Cool stood there blinking her greedy little eyes at me.

"Well," I asked.

I thought she wanted to ask about the fee in the Crockett case and what arrangements I'd made with Phyllis. But, instead of that, Bertha reached up and patted her lips. "Imagine, he kissed me," she said tenderly.

You never can tell how women are going to react.

Taken To Prison For Safekeeping

GRAHAM, N.C. (AP)—A Negro charmed with assaulting a white woman was captured in woods near here Monday by a posse and hustled to Central Prison in Raleigh for safekeeping.

He is Jesse Graves, 36, a prison escapee.

Police quoted Mrs. E. N. Starnes of Rt. 2, Burlington, as saying she was working in her yard when a Negro man walked out of the woods near her home and asked for a match.

She said that she gave him one, and he then dragged her into the kitchen of her house, and then into the bedroom, beating her about the head.

Her screams, and those of her two young grandchildren and her own young child apparently frightened him, she said. She quoted the man as saying he would leave if she promised not to tell of the incident.

When he left, Mrs. Starnes said she ran half a mile to the nearest telephone. She called her husband, a trucking company employee.

He and other townspeople joined the posse. Officers obtained bloodhounds and eventually located Graves about five miles from the Starnes home. He surrendered without resisting.

Authorities said Graves was sentenced last February in Alamance County Superior Court on a larceny charge. They said he escaped last Thursday from the Siler City prison camp.

A doctor treated Mrs. Starnes for a cut on the head and she returned home.

Never Tires The Taste...

In these days when sometimes it's hard to tell one brand of a product from any of several others, the truly individual flavor of Dr Pepper seems to stand out more than ever. This unique and distinctive taste is no accident, but the result of careful planning and control. Next time you want a soft drink with a difference, have a frosty-cold bottle of delicious Dr Pepper. You'll see why Dr Pepper never tires the taste.

a customer in hot pursuit. The customer halted his chase when the men alighted from their getaway car into a narrow, dark alley in a Negro residential section.

The pursuing car was fired on in the chase.

A net yielded three of the Negroes as police searched the escape area house by house. Two others were picked up later in New York City. Only $2,500 of the loot was recovered.

Those sentenced were James Johnson, 32, to 22 years; James Reed Jr., 23, to 12 years; Benjamin Carter, 32, to 10 years; Ernest Murray, 17, to 15 years; and Robert Bryant, 17, to 10 years.

Draw Sentences In Bank Holdup

CHARLESTON, S.C. — (AP) — Five Negroes who pleaded guilty have drawn sentences ranging from 10 to 22 years in the $7,100 robbery of a branch bank here March 23.

U.S. Dist. Judge Ashton H. Williams sentenced the Negroes, whose ages ranged from 17 to 31 years, Monday with the remark: "Armed robbery is a most serious crime. You intend to shoot to kill to get what you want."

The Negroes entered the Calhoun Street Branch of the First National Bank of South Carolina about noon and made customers and employees sit or lie on the floor while they cleaned out the tills.

Would Divide Powers On N.C. Court System

RALEIGH (AP)—Rule-making power for operation of a uniform system of courts in North Carolina would be divided between the Legislature and Supreme Court under a subcommittee's recommendation.

A 12-man subcommittee completed work Monday night on a report that recommends revising the judicial article of the State Constitution. It voted unanimously to send its report to the full committee.

Rule-making power for the courts would be given to the Supreme Court, but such authority would be made subject to legislative vote.

The report recommends the Constitution be changed to provide for a uniform system of courts with three divisions (appellate, superior and district courts); a maximum of eight associate Supreme Court justices instead of six; uniform fees and costs for all courts; abolishment of the fee system for magistrates; an administrative office to aid the chief justice in supervising the courts; the use of majority verdicts in civil cases; and a courts advisory commission to advise the Supreme Court and Legislature. The subcommittee, headed by Sen. William Medford of Waynesville and Rep. W. C. Harris of Wake, rejected a proposal by a State Bar Assn. committee that district court judges be appointed rather than elected. Instead, it left the question to the Legislature to decide, but said the decision should be uniformly applicable. At present, some magistrates are elected and some appointed. Two members of the subcommittee—Reps. Tom Turner of Guilford and George Uzzell of Rowan—reserved the right to oppose sections of the report when it gets to the joint committee.

Father And Son Electrocutured

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP)—A father and his son, working side by side on a power line project near here, were electrocuted Monday.

The victims were Oscar Morris and his son, J. L. Morris of Chaw, S.C. The younger Morris had been working with his father only two weeks. They were part of a crew stringing a new line between here and nearby Hamlet. Authorities said the dead line the men were pulling into place slipped, whiplashed and touched a live wire on another pole.

Johnny Jackson of Rockingham, a fellow worker, was burned slightly trying to help the men.

St. Paul is 10 miles away from its "twin city" Minneapolis.

Countdown Time On Rockets Cut

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—The Air Force is getting closer to its goal of being able to launch intercontinental missiles before they can be knocked out by a sneak attack. A new electronic brain designed to cut pre-launching countdowns from hours to 15 minutes is being installed at this West Coast missile base.

Current ICBMs, both Soviet and American, take about 30 minutes to cover their 6,000-mile range. Assuming military crews here were alerted 10 minutes after the firing of an enemy missile, they could fire retaliatory warheads 5 minutes before the aggressor's missile landed.

Six million television sets were produced in the United States in 1958.

FALSE TEETH That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Hold false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug counter.

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (AP)—Lt. Dewey Schanz of the police traffic bureau found three overtime parking tickets, three one dollar bills and a note in a letter. The note said: "I've bought my husband a watch."

FAMILIAR SURROUNDINGS

OCOONTO, Wis. (AP)—Jailer Glenn Feifarek at the Oconto County jail knows what it is to be a prisoner in his own jail. He was sentenced to 30 days for assault and was fired from his jail post.

ECC Commencement Weekend Plans Set

Events of commencement weekend, May 22-24, at East Carolina College, centering around the graduation of 908 students, have been announced by Herbert L. Carter and Dr. James L. White, co-chairman of the Commencement Committee at the college.

Senior night at the College Union Friday at 8 p.m. will begin a series of social events for the Class of 1959. An informal dance will bring graduates together for an evening of fellowship on this occasion.

The Senior Banquet will take place Saturday in the New South Dining Hall on the campus. Official presentation of a gift to the college made by the class and awards to outstanding graduates will be special features of the entertainment. Coy W. Harris of Carthage, president, and Dr. Richard C. Todd, faculty advisor, of the Class of 1959 are now completing plans for the social event.

A luncheon at 12:30 and a buffet dinner at 4:45 Sunday in the college dining hall will honor special guests on the campus.

The East Carolina College Band will present a concert on the quadrangle fronting the Joyner

Memorial Library Sunday afternoon at 4:30. Conducted by Herbert L. Carter, director of bands at the college, the ensemble will give a program of popular selections. The public is invited to attend.

Graduates, their parents, faculty members, alumni, and other guests on the campus for the weekend will be honored at a reception in the Mamie E. Jenkins Alumni-Faculty House from 3:30 to 4:30. Guests will be received by President John D. Messick of East Carolina and Mrs. Messick; Z. W. Frazelle of Kenansville, president of the college Alumni Association; Senior Class President Harris; faculty members who will retire at the end of the 1958-1959 term; and others.

With the Hon. Sam J. Ervin, Jr., senior U. S. Senator from North Carolina as speaker, Commencement Exercises will take place in the college stadium on the East Campus at 6 p.m.

The exercises will begin with an academic procession of graduates, administrative officers and faculty members of the college. The East Carolina Band and the East Carolina Choir will provide a program of music.

Wrote Off Fine In 20 Minutes

SALEM, N.H. (AP)—Ronald J. Caouette, 15, of Windham, wrote off his fine Monday in municipal court.

The youth was charged with driving a car without a license. Judge Kenneth F. Romprey had him write "I will not drive again without a license" on a blackboard until told to stop.

After about 20 minutes, during which the sentence was spelled out 40 times, the judge released Caouette and suspended a $10 fine.

Refuses Require Tub Or Shower

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Judge Macaulay L. Smith took "judicial notice" Monday that "many people who have tubs or showers with hot and cold running water... are offensively unclean."

Likewise, he said, many who do not have such facilities "are fastidiously clean."

Accordingly, the judge ruled unconstitutional a section of the Louisville building code which required a tub or shower with hot water attached in every dwelling.

Goats Appear To Be Forecasters

ROSEBURG, Ore. (AP) — Oregon State College professors are taking an interest in the goats who forecast Roseburg's weather.

These goats roam wild on Mt. Nebo above Roseburg. Residents watch their movements closely.

"The goats are up" is a heartening cry in Roseburg. Picnics are planned, golf dates are made and fishing trips planned. Invariably the sun shines.

But when the goats come down from Mt. Nebo to the shelter of shallow caves, bad weather inevitably follows.

How do they know what the weather will be?

That's what OSC professors want to know. Stephen Shon, Oregon State College librarian, has written asking for extra copies of a recent Roseburg newspaper story on the goats. He said a number of professors are interested in knowing why townspeople remarked "the goats are down" last Sunday.

The people here know why. It rained Monday.

VIOLATION IS FATAL

Wrong Field

The Governor of the 18th District of Optimist International got lost last night while on a flight from Albemarle to Greenville to present the new club with its Charter.

According to reports, Carl L. Bowen bypassed Greenville and landed at a restricted U. S. Marine Corps air field at Edenton which has been abandoned.

He had to break "out" of the barbed wire fence surrounding the field, and walk three miles to a telephone to call Greenville and explain his absence.

Last reports said Bowen found a Marine Sergeant that had a key to the base. The Marine opened the gate and drove Bowen the three miles to the plane to get his baggage so he could spend the night in Edenton.

Salvation Army Work Outlined

Lt. Walter Norris of the Greenville Salvation Army post spoke to local Rotarians last night outlining the work of the Salvation Army.

The primary work of the Salvation Army is spiritual, Lt. Norris told his audience, "although we also find ourselves doing considerable welfare work." He explained the Salvation Army is a church like other denominations, its officers are ordained ministers and its members are called "soldiers."

Discussing the welfare work done by the local Salvation Army, Lt. Norris said clothing is distributed to needy families of the community, food often is provided, fuel and even household furniture. In one month recently, he pointed out, the Salvation Army furnished furniture for four families whose belongings had been lost in fires.

The furniture and clothing, for the most part, he explained, are contributed to the Salvation Army by local people.

In answer to a question, Lt. Norris asserted that the greatest problem the Salvation Army faces in Greenville is the problem of unemployment during certain seasons of the year. During February alone, he said, the local post was called on to provide food for almost 500 families, most of whom were in need because of the seasonal employment situation which exists here.

The Salvation Army, the speaker said, is an international organization with more than 200,000 members in the United States.
