

Guardsmen Are Sniper's Target; Man Is Charged

HENDERSON, N.C. (AP) — A sniper fired at two National Guardsmen Friday night, but hit neither of the soldiers.

It was the first violence directed at the Guard since a 300-man detachment moved into this city May 11 to quell disorders arising from the 6-month-old Harriet-Henderson Cotton Mills strike.

The incident occurred while the guardsmen—Lt. Clyde E. Debow and Sp. 3c. Ralph E. Deatheridge—were patrolling in a jeep near a striker's home which has been under constant surveillance for several weeks.

Guardsmen quickly surrounded the home and arrested its owner, 48-year-old Johnnie E. Newton. They found a loaded rifle and spare ammunition in the house.

State Bureau of Investigation agent Linwood Harton signed a warrant charging Newton with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill.

In another section of town, a bullet crashed through the windshield of a car driven by Grace Williamson after she got out work at 11 p.m. She works at a textile mill, but not one of the two involved in the Textile Workers Union of America strike. Police theorized that she was mistaken for a worker at one of the struck plants.

It was quiet, however, in the vicinity of the mills as they closed for the weekend.

Law enforcement officers have been working frantically in an attempt to finger persons responsible for shootings and dynamiting around the struck mills.

Newton's arrest was the first for sniping since violence flared Feb. 16—the day Harriet-Henderson mills resumed operations.

A host of other arrests—in connection with picket line rock throwing and rioting—have been made since then.

Superior Court Judge Raymond Mallard Friday passed the stiffest sentence to date in connection with picket-line activity. He gave striker Gilbert Lee Clayton a total of 27 months in jail for engaging in a riot, assault with a deadly weapon and property damage. The conviction was appealed to the State Supreme Court.

A third shift is scheduled to begin Monday. This will restore full-time mill activity for the first time since Nov. 17 when the TWUA struck over a contract dispute.

The dispute originally involved an arbitration clause. Later, the chief issue became job rights of strikers, compared with workers hired to resume production.

Big Four Prepares For Secret Talks

GENEVA (AP)—High Western diplomats reported today the Big Four probably will begin a series of recesses in their formal talks early next week to make way for secret negotiations on their disputes in Europe.

A British source said Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko has advised the West he would be "agreeable" to a new phase of restricted exchanges—provided they take place outside the Palace of Nations conference room where East and West German delegates are permitted to speak.

United States, British, French and West German foreign ministers will meet Monday to decide if and how this arrangement to allow serious negotiations can be formally worked out with Gromyko.

The United States and the Soviet Union are putting heat on each other to come up with concessions at the Geneva conference which could pave the way for a summer summit meeting.

The Western foreign ministers have yet to decide finally just how they envisage the working method of the present conference to be reorganized. This picture emerged after a high level meeting of American, British, French and West German expert advisers today.

The conference itself will be subjected to a series of recesses so that each side will have to end repetitious semipublic posturing.

The Big Four will take advantage of the series of one or two day recesses by meeting privately and informally.

There will be scope for continued contacts between any two of the four principals.

The Soviet pressure came from Moscow where Premier Nikita Khrushchev was reported to have warned the West German ambassador that he would sign a separate peace treaty with East Germany if there was no agreement at the Geneva foreign ministers meeting.

This threat, made to Ambassador Hans Kroll in a private talk Thursday, was being examined by Western delegations for its possible significance in relation to the conference. Diplomats noted Khrushchev did not specify what agreement he has in mind, and they believe enough agreement will be reached to assure a summit parley.

From the American side the pressure on the Soviets came in the form of a statement saying that after two weeks of argument the time has come for Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko to produce proposals on German unification, the Berlin crisis and European security "which the Western powers will be glad to examine."

One Way Out

ASHEVILLE (AP)—A proposal that the General Assembly clear the way for possible purchase of the strike-torn Henderson cotton mills was made today by Heinz Rollman, Hazelwood, industrialist.

Rollman suggested that the Legislature approve loans to some 20 or 30 businessmen and industrialists to enable them to form a combination "to take over the plants, to bring new blood into the organization and settle the difference so the mills can run three shifts."

Rollman, president of Wellco Shoe Corp. and Ro-Search, Inc., told the Asheville Times that if the two Harriet-Henderson Cotton Mills cannot operate on three shifts they will go broke.

He said that since everything else has failed to bring about peace at Henderson, including the mediation efforts of Gov. Hodges, "It would appear that the Legislature should join in efforts to halt this battle that reflects on all of North Carolina industry."

Summer Session At High School To Open June 9

Junius H. Rose High School's summer session will begin June 9 with courses covering from six to ten weeks, Principal O.E. Dowd announced today.

Courses in English, mathematics and history in grades nine through 12 will be offered during the session. They will be taught by members of the regular high school faculty.

The summer program is offered each year, Dowd said, to allow students who are retarded in work an opportunity to make up deficiencies, to make it possible for students to lighten their courses during the regular term in order to take elective courses such as band, music, journalism and other courses, and to allow students who wish to graduate early to get off work during the summer.

Dowd pointed out that students planning careers in medicine and other fields which require long periods of college and other training frequently attend summer school and finish the regular high school program in three years. He said, however, that for any student to be eligible for the summer session the individual must have at least a high 3 average and excellent reasons for finishing early.

Students from outside the Greenville School District who wish to attend the summer session must have letters of recommendation from their principals before they can be enrolled.

Fees of $25 will be charged for each course lasting six weeks. Courses longer than six weeks will cost an additional $5 or $10.

Dowd said students planning early graduations from high school must do accelerated work in the ninth and tenth grades. That means, he added, that students will not be allowed to take advanced summer work at the 11th and 12th grade levels without excellent reasons.

Preliminary Budget Bill Tops Administration By $20 Million

RALEIGH (AP)—The Legislature's Joint Appropriations subcommittee sat through a five-hour meeting Friday, ending its busiest week of the session and completing work on the state's mammoth general fund budget.

With this major task completed, some observers feel it is now possible for the lawmakers to wind up their legislative chores and leave Raleigh by mid June.

The big appropriations bill—calling for spending of more than 20 million dollars above administration recommendations—now must go to the full joint committee. This is expected next week and would make it possible for the measure to reach floor consideration the following week.

Major items approved at Friday's marathon meeting included $3,266,000 above recommendations for a 2.5 per cent pay increase for state employees. The workers had hoped for a 10 per cent boost.

The subcommittee, which already had okayed a 5 per cent increase in the Board of Education's salary budget, approved a plan whereby teachers could receive another 5 per cent hike if

Pitt Farm Bureau Votes Support Banning MH-30

FARM BUREAU MEETING . . . Carl Hicks and W. W. Wooten discussing House Bill 311 on the use of MH-30.

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The members of the Pitt County Farm Bureau voted last night in favor of House Bill 311 which will make possession and use of MH-30 on tobacco illegal.

Carl Hicks, president of the Blue-Cured Stabilization Corporation, told the group which met in the Pitt County Court House the tobacco buyers say "use of MH-30 injures the quality of the tobacco." He added the companies have stated they would not buy MH-30 treated crops.

The chemical is used to prevent sucker growth on plants.

Hicks said negotiations had been carried on with the Nagsaw Chemical Corporation, producer of the chemical, and the recommendations made that the product, maleic hydrazide be withdrawn from the market until tests could be made to determine whether or not the chemical was causing the unwanted properties.

According to the purchasing companies, MH-30 causes "a weight increase which adversely affects the top of the stalk, Hicks said. Unwanted characteristics such as pale, slick leaf with poor flavor and aroma, and poor burning and filling quality are also attributed to the chemical.

According to Phil Arvey of Gastonia, a chemist employed by the manufacturer of MH-30, the chemical is a plant hormone which inhibits the growth of the plant. He added by growth, he was referring to cell division in the plant. He said the cells already formed would continue to grow and mature, with no new cells forming.

In defense of the chemical Arvey pointed out other factors can cause those same unwanted characteristics in the leaf. He cited a number of factors including improper fertilization and excessive irrigation, which have an effect on the quality.

Hicks pointed out to the group supporters of the bill were not trying to fight the chemical company, or say the product was no good, but instead, to produce the type and quality of tobacco that the buyers want. He said the farmers "have the responsibility to produce the quality tobacco the buyers say they want and need."

He added 10 new support grades have been added to take care of the physical properties the buyers say are caused by the use of MH-30 and they will not be supported. He continued by pointing out that even though a farmer did not use the chemical, but his tobacco had properties similar to those reportedly caused by the use of the chemical, he would be penalized just as much.

Hicks clarified the statement by saying the similar properties caused by other factors, according to the tobacco companies, could be corrected while the properties caused by MH-30 could not.

The basis for support of the bill is the fact that if the chemical is outlawed, no farmer will be penalized unjustly on the warehouse floor.

W. W. Wooten, president of the Pitt County Farm Bureau, acted as moderator at the meeting which lasted about an hour and a half.

Dubious Fate For Senate Wheat Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Senate wheat bill, capped by a surprise $35,000 ceiling on government price supports to any one farm or farmer, goes to the House Monday. Its fate there is uncertain.

The stopgap legislation dealing with the nation's big wheat surplus was hammered out Friday in more than eight hours of Senate

NEW YORK (AP) — Nine governors will visit the Soviet Union next month to see how the Soviets handle regional government.

The governors — 5 Republicans and 4 Democrats — are scheduled to leave June 23 for a three-week tour of the Soviet Union. They will visit Moscow, Leningrad, Kiev, Tiflis and Tashkent.

They will also explore the possibility of setting up an exchange program for Soviet and American state and local officials.

Money for the tour will be provided by the Rockefeller Brothers Fund and the Alfred P. Sloan Foundation.

Among the governors are Leroy Collins of Florida, Democrat; George D. Clyde, Republican, Utah; John E. Davis, Republican, North Dakota; Luther H. Hodges, Democrat, North Carolina; Robert B. Meyner, Democrat, New Jersey; Stephen L. R. McNichols, Democrat, Colorado; Robert E. Smylie, Republican, Idaho; William G. Stratton, Republican, Illinois; Cecil H. Charge 12 With Illegal Arms Deal

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A pretty woman flier and 11 men were accused by the government today of plotting to export war materials illegally after agents pounced on an arms-laden plane.

The four-engine C74 was reported bound for the Dominican Republic to arm foes of Cuban Premier Fidel Castro. Fulgencio Batista, ousted by Castro last New Year's eve, is in exile at the Dominican capital, Ciudad Trujillo.

Thirteen persons in all, including the Dominican Republic's consul at Miami, were arrested Friday and placed in bond.

Charged also with conspiring to bribe a federal officer were Consul Augustus Ferrando; Joseph Liquori, 29-year-old Miami policeman; and Leonard Trenton, 35, a building materials dealer from Newark, N.J.

The plane, 200,000 cartridges, and a quantity of rifles and automatic weapons were seized by customs officers as the plane was warming up at Miami International Airport.

The officers arrested Virginia L. Bland, 36, and Samuel E. Poole Jr., 34, the pilots, and 10 others at the scene. Ferrando was persuaded six hours later by telephone to quit his refuge in the consulate and surrender.

Jose Paulino, assistant consul, was bailed as a material witness.

Red-haired Miss Bland, wearing tattered pants, and Poole told newsmen they had been hired by Dominic Barione, plane owner, to fly to Puerto Rico.

"If I had known there were arms and ammunition on the plane I never would have agreed to fly it," Poole said.

Trenton told newsmen with a grin that the guns and ammunition were going to Chiang Kai-shek, Nationalist China chieftain.

John Embry of Tampa said he had no idea what the plane's cargo was when he was hired as flight engineer. William Brookley, 30, a University of Miami engineering student, said he was an innocent bystander. "I should have stayed at school today," he said.

Paulino said: "I know nothing about this case. It came as a big surprise."

James L. Guilmette, U.S. district attorney, said Ferrando gave $1,400 to customs officers William B. Landford and Wallace D. Shanley not to molest the shipment. They turned the cash over to their superiors.

U.S. Commissioner Roger E. Davis held Ferrando, Liquori and Trenton to the federal grand jury in bonds of $10,000 for Liquori and $25,000 for the other two. Paulino was bailed in $25,000 as a material witness.

Another Thor Is Successfully Launched Today

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The Air Force shot its 44th Thor intermediate range ballistic missile over the Atlantic Friday night.

The launching was the first ever seen by six of the nation's seven space flyers, one of whom will be the first American to be sent into space two years from now.

The 65-foot Thor roared off to a fine start of a 1,500 mile reliability test.

The astronauts are at Cape Canaveral for a three-day familiarization visit as part of their rigorous training program.

It was the second Thor launching in two days at the missile center. On Thursday, a nose cone was recovered after a 6,000-mile flight.

A Discoverer satellite vehicle, using a Thor first stage, is expected to be fired from Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif., within the next few days. Three more will be aboard.

Now 140 Members Pledged To Project

One hundred and forty members have joined Greenville's industry-seeking Committee of 100 and $14,000 has been pledged for the committee's work.

This was announced jointly today by W. W. Speight, C. of C. Industrial Committee chairman, and A. B. Stallworth, chairman of the Membership Drive Committee.

The two said that an organizational meeting will be held at the Rotary Club next Thursday at which time directors and officers are to be elected.

"We urge all members to accept this as a notice to attend," the announcement said. It will not be a dinner meeting.

Persons wishing to join may obtain application cards from Stallworth or from the Chamber of Commerce office. They may be mailed to A. B. Stallworth, Box 13, Greenville.

"It now appears that there are at least two major industries that plan to locate in Greenville," the announcement stated. "It is felt that the joint efforts of all citizens of Greenville through the Committee of 100 will achieve our goal of worthwhile industry for Greenville."

By joining the committee local citizens have an opportunity to

VALE, N.C. (AP)—A Negro boy lost his footing when he reached for the bucket, fell into a 45-foot well and drowned near here Friday.

The body of 5-year-old James Edward Craft was recovered from nine feet of water about a half-hour after the accident. The boy was one of 10 children of James Thomas Craft.

The accident occurred while the boy was helping his 9-year-old brother, Richie, draw water.

Week Saw 2 Large Church Gatherings

By TOM HENSHAW
AP Religion Writer

The long controversy surrounding the 100-year-old Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville, Ky., flamed anew at the Southern Baptist Convention's annual meeting during the past week.

The seminary, oldest in the denomination, made news last year when 13 of its 44 professors were fired in an apparently insoluble disagreement with its president, the Rev. Dr. Duke K. McCall.

As a result, the seminary faces loss of its accreditation by the American Assn. of Theological Schools, and Southern Baptists are thinking of withdrawing all six of their seminaries from the association.

Last week, at the denomination's Louisville convention, the Rev. James S. Bulman of East Spencer, N.C., a frequent critic of Southern Baptist procedures, leveled a new charge against the embattled seminary.

He said he has "what I consider clear and conclusive evidence" that the seminary is teaching that Christ's virgin birth and resurrection may be looked upon as myths—a contradiction of Southern Baptist doctrine.

Dr. McCall has denied that the seminary departs from the orthodox theological position.

The United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A., meeting in Indianapolis, announced plans to evangelize an unspecified Midwestern city through the use of newspaper advertising.

Dr. Glenn Warner Moore, secretary of the denomination's general council, said the same type of project was tried on a non-denominational basis in Rochester, N.Y., with gratifying results.

"We want to interest people in Christianity—not just the Presbyterian church," he said. "In planning these ads we are thinking of people we never see in church."

If the Midwestern project proves to be successful, we may soon see a nationwide campaign of newspaper ads asking prospective church members to write for brochures or request visits by clergymen.

Son Proceeded To Outspell Dad

BLUEFIELD, W. Va. (AP)—It was bad enough when the spelling champ from Fairview Junior High School ran through all but one of nine competing Bluefield Lions Club members in a lunch-eaten match.

But young David Spracher Jr. gave the coup de grace when he spelled against his dad. Son proceeded to outspell father to close the program.

NEW HORIZONS

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Worthington To Edit 'Green Lights'

By CATHERINE MOORE
Teenage Columnist

Craig Worthington, sophomore, will head the "Green Lights" staff next year, serving as editor-in-chief. This announcement appeared in the "Green Lights" yesterday.

Sara Collins will edit page two, the editorial page, and Betsy Bryant will become the feature page editor.

Anne Briley and Anne Allen will serve as news editors. Craig, who will edit the front page, will also take charge of sports until a first-year student can take over.

These five new members of the editorial staff will replace seniors Catherine Moore, editor-in-chief; Sally Ross Simpson, feature editor; and Robert Taft, sports editor. Lib Rogers, art editor; Frances Allen, business manager; Kathy Barrett, exchange editor; and Joanne Eagles and Mary Retha Hice, staffers, also will graduate.

Anne Briley and Anne Allen served on this year's editorial staff.

Avery, Brewer to Head Marshals
Vickie Avery and Clark Brewer will serve as co-chief marshals at this year's graduation and during next year. These two have the highest scholastic averages in the junior class for their high school years.

Others include Brenda Harris, Jeanette Taylor, Bill Clapp, Jane Reynolds, Lois Tunnell, and Anne Allen.

These juniors replace Catherine Moore and Mildred Coleman, co-chiefs; and Kathryn Oakes, Dot Davis, Laura Gurganus, Larry Carrawan, Betty Derrick, Gene Davenport, and Betsy Whedbee.

Band Has Picnic
Wednesday, band members, majorettes, flag bearers, and members of the drill team traveled to Rest Haven and Bayview for their annual picnic. After swimming, skiing, and boat riding at Rest Haven, the group ate a buffet supper.

After supper, all moved to Bayview for a night of dancing before returning home.

Thursday, the band, majorettes, and drill team participated in the shrine parade in Rocky Mount, finishing just in time to avoid a soaking.

Coaches Award Letters
During an assembly sponsored by the Monogram Club, Coach Jack Boone of East Carolina spoke and high school coaches awarded letters and certificates to athletes in six sports.

Coach Boone talked on the value of athletics in the school program and in the world, noting that athletes from all nations come together at the Olympics without a trace of animosity or hatred. He then assisted in the awards.

Athletes received letters and certificates in football, basketball, baseball, track, golf and wrestling. Coaches Farley, Bud Phillips, and Odell Welborn made the awards.

Miss Carolyn Matthews, cheerleader adviser, presented a gift to head cheerleader, Kathryn Oakes, from the squad. Graduating squad members who received gifts included Joanne Eagles, Kathryn Raynor, and Nannie Sue Crawford.

After the presentation of the awards, Billy Brown, president of the Monogram Club, formally accepted into the club the candidates for membership.

29 to March
Twenty-nine girls will march in the Phantomettes next year. Lib Rogers, head majorette, and James E. Rodgers, band director, judged those who tried out last Saturday and chose the new squad.

Sara Collins, Mary May, Lee Lang Harrell, and Susan Willis will represent next year's senior class.

Judy Page, Julie Dodson, Linda Harris, Lois Sermons, Lynda Hunn, Margaret Ella Green, and Myra Hathaway will represent next year's juniors.

Cloud Of Uncertainty In Assembly

Lack of recognized leadership in the 1959 General Assembly has been pointed out by observers time and again since the session began. Again it looms to the fore as the lawmakers move into the home stretch with major money problems yet to be resolved.

Just how the money problems are going to be resolved is anybody's guess. And there are plenty of guesses even though the most seasoned observers of the legislature declare anything still can happen.

Among important questions still hanging in the balance are these:

Will a withholding system be adopted, or will legislators abandon that plan and move into the field of tax increases by adjusting existing new levies and looking for new tax sources?

Obviously it is late in the session for the legislators to open these doors which most people assumed more than a month ago were closed. It seems the legislature has been maneuvered into the position of accepting the withholding system and its windfall to balance the budget, or risk extra weeks in Raleigh if they look for new revenues in lieu of the withholding system.

Where will the line be drawn between supporters of education seeking more funds for public schools and institutions of higher learning, and those who still cling to the proposition that the budget line must be held close to administration recommendations?

Here again is a problem which could hold legislators in Raleigh for extra weeks.

What of the proposed constitutional reforms?

The same thing may be applied to a host of other lesser issues, yet to be resolved, on which the legislators seem fairly evenly split.

There has been nothing so far in the 1959 session to indicate there is any single strong, effective leadership in the legislature to steer a sure course of action. Certainly the administration has not been able to muster the strength required to assume such a position. Gov. Hodges has taken it on the chin in a number of items on his legislative program. It is entirely possible the administration will receive other setbacks before the session adjourns.

Neither have any of the pre-session factions that seemed to be in the making solidified to the extent that they exert consistent influence on the course of legislation in a general sense.

The legislature still has many of its major problems to solve before it adjourns. Without a recognized leadership to steer a course toward resolving these problems, it is difficult indeed to evaluate with any degree of certainty what the General Assembly will do with these matters, or how long it will take to resolve them.

One thing is certain, however. This has been one of the most unusual sessions of the General Assembly in many years.

Can't Resolve Issues Operating In The Dark

Hanging like a threatening cloud over the state's public school system is the dispute—details of which remain hidden—between Dr. Charles R. Carroll, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, and the State Board of Education.

People of the state know only that some differences on school policies exist between the Board and Dr. Carroll. How serious the rift between them, or what the scope the dispute includes are matters which have been kept secret.

Rep. B. I. Satterfield, chairman of the House Education Committee, has made a logical request in asking the Board of Education and Dr. Carroll to present the committee in writing their opinions on the "differences which now exist" for consideration of his committee.

In view of the fact the committee now has before it a bill which would transfer to the Board some powers now held by the Superintendent, the information requested is both timely and necessary.

Members of the legislature and the people of the state as a whole are entitled to know the extent of the differences between the Board and the Superintendent of Public Instruction. The policies of the Board and the Superintendent are the policies which govern public education in North Carolina, and as such they are of vital importance and interest to all the people of the state.

While we have no desire to see a public controversy over North Carolina's public schools provoked, if there are differences at the top level of public education, they should not be kept from the legislators or the people. They should be aired and resolved, not in secret negotiations, but in the full light of public scrutiny.

Rep Satterfield's request for information on the differences should be honored by the Board of Education and by Dr. Carroll. Only by making the issues public can they be effectively resolved in the best interest of North Carolina's public school system and the people of the state.

Dulles Verdict Is Up To History

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — John Foster Dulles, from the moment he resigned as secretary of state because of his spreading cancer, belonged to history. What will history say of him?

It can never deny that this 71-year-old man gave to the service of his country tremendous and tireless dedication. He quit only because of the illness which incapacitated him.

But only unfolding events — history itself — can ever give a final answer to the central question of his stewardship: Was he a good secretary of state in the sense that the policy he pursued was wise?

His great task was dealing with communism. If his whole policy toward the world of the Soviets and Red Chinese were to be summed up in a single sentence, this could be it: "Hold tight and don't let them budge an inch."

This was exactly the "containment" policy of his predecessor, former Secretary of State Dean Acheson. It called for military alliances all around the Communist perimeter and economic help to friends and neutrals.

The purpose was direct, obvious and simple: to keep communism from gaining any more ground, militarily, economically or politically. It was essentially a defensive policy, not an aggressive one.

Dulles disagreed with it thoroughly in the 1952 presidential campaign before he became secretary. He called it "negative, futile and immoral." He said it was limited to reacting to Soviet actions. In short, he said the United States should create crises for the Soviet Union instead of letting the Soviet Union create crises for us.

But when he became secretary he took over the Acheson policy, made it his own, even expanded on it with new military alliances. Yet Dulles had hardly taken office before Soviet policy changed, at least outwardly. Forty-four days after Dulles was sworn in, the old dictator, Joseph Stalin, died and with him went the needlessly savage Soviet foreign policy. His successors took a softer line although their purpose, and they made no bones about it, was the same: Communist expansion. They managed to increase their influence beyond their borders but American military alliances and power remained firm and the Soviets didn't gain an extra foot of real estate.

Yet the Soviets and Red Chinese went ahead by leaps in their own internal development, particularly the Soviet Union in the field of weapons which put added pressure on the West to stand back. The cold war between East and West was just as intense when Dulles went to the hospital as when he took office six years ago.

This is why many years must pass before history can give a final verdict on the policy and wisdom of Dulles, for it will take many years and many events as they unfold to show:

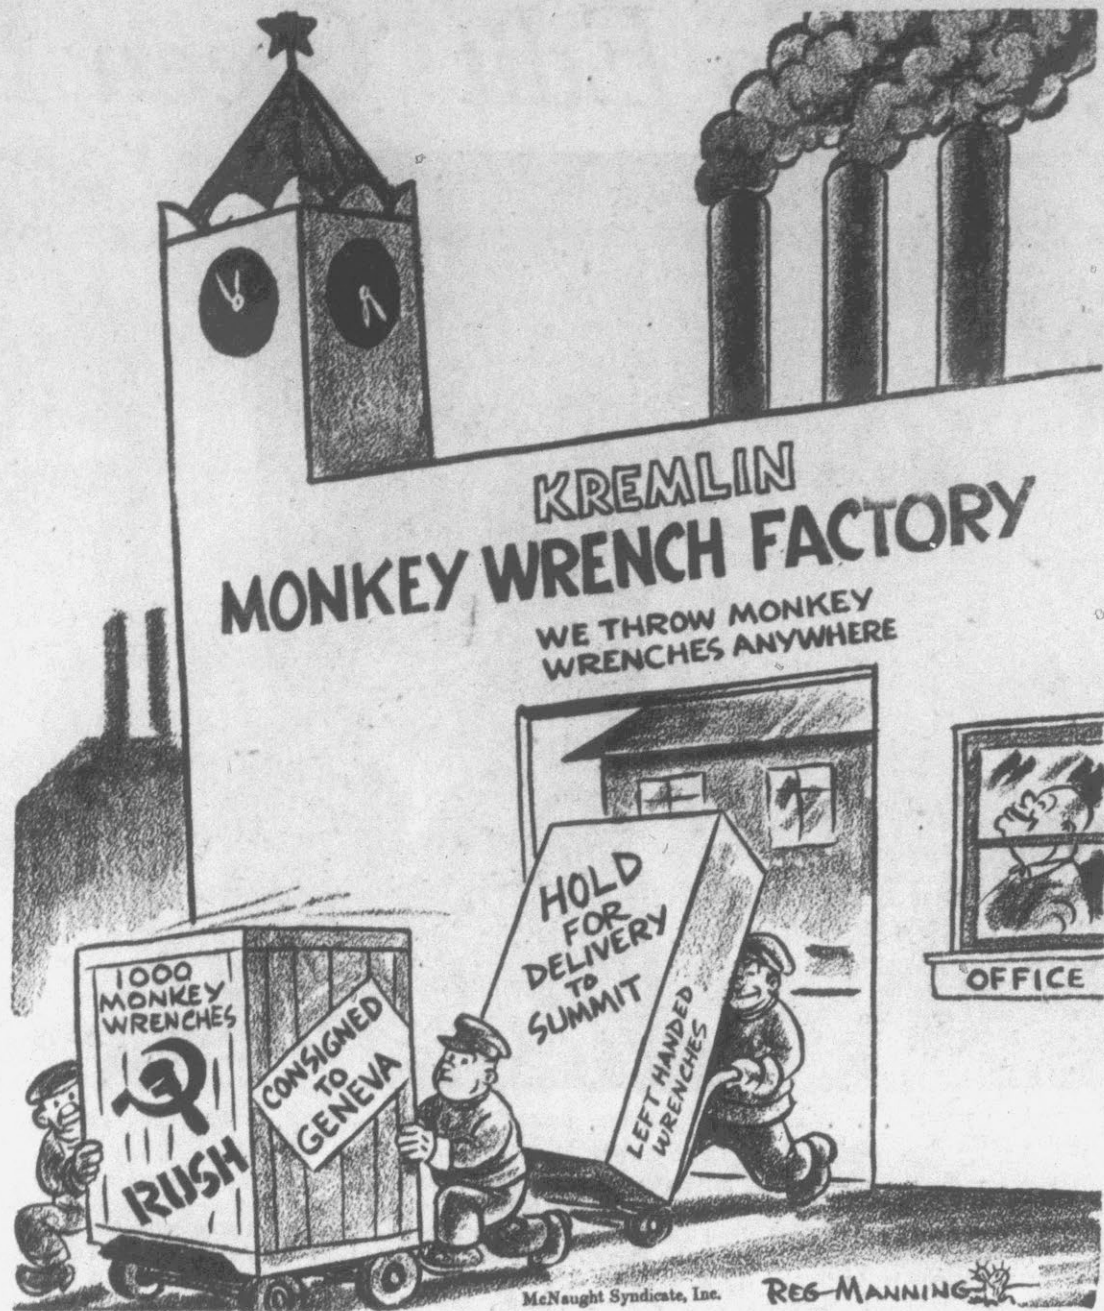

1. Whether his policy led, or helped lead, to the ultimate ruination or triumph of communism or to a peaceful understanding between East and West.

2. Whether, by the time he took office and Stalin died, the Acheson policy was outmoded and Dulles should have sought and pursued a different one of his own making, with more aggressiveness and less defensiveness, or with more friendliness and less hostility.

3. Whether the forces already let loose before he became secretary in 1953 — ultimately favorable or unfavorable to the West — were already too powerful to be affected in their direction or destination by him or any one man.

4. Whether he was wise in depending so much on his own thinking or whether he should have made far greater use of the minds of the men around him in the State Department. No one now — and certainly not Dulles, whose sense of history was too sharp for that — can claim to know positively the answers to the questions just raised. But no one can challenge this about him: he did his best as he saw it.

Makes One Realize Age

It's a diploma-giving time again, and if there is ever a time that makes a man realize his age it's diploma-giving time.

Most people, it seems, are inclined to remember their high school graduation dates for about ten years. After that, they don't mention it any more than they have to, unless they are trapped into doing so.

Take, for instance, an incident in a Greenville office this week.

One of the older members of the office staff happened to mention he had graduated from high school in 1936. The young upstarts who work with him immediately began giving him a hard time.

"Golly," one sweet young thing remarked, "that was two years before I was born."

Everybody laughed, except the representative of the Class of 1936.

"You know," another member of the group intoned, "I've always wondered how the depression-years graduates felt."

He paused, for effect, and then asked the man who had graduated during the depression, "How was it, old fellow?"

The older person didn't say a word.

A third person took up the conversation.

"Considering that you were graduated during the depression and all, how was it, really?" he asked. "What did folks have back in those days?"

The senior member of the staff put aside his work and looked up.

"Well, for one thing," he allowed, "folks back in those days had a little respect for their elders. That's more than I can say for some of today's younger set."

Another member of the staff walked into the office about that time and caught the drift of the conversation.

"Knock off that kind of talk," he said. "I know just how he feels."

"What do you mean you know how he feels. You aren't as old as he is."

"I know, but I was at a party the other night and talking to the wife of a friend. She's from out of town and I was asking about some mutual acquaintances."

"She gave a reply about the present whereabouts of most of the people. I finally asked if she knew a boy who had been my roommate in college."

"Her reply was, 'Oh, yes, he's a good friend of my father.'"

"I didn't ask her anything else."

ONE ROAD TO HAPPINESS

"Nothing deteriorates faster than an unoccupied house."

We have heard this said, and often we have read such a statement. But it is not altogether accurate. There are at least two other things which deteriorate faster than an empty house. The first is an empty mind, the second, an empty life.

There are people who have not had a thought in thirty or more years. And this not because they are incapable of thinking, but because their brains have become heavy, wet sponges which nestle in the hollow of their heads. They read no books they can talk only about the most inconsequential matters of life (and do). Most of them get so bored with themselves that they have to have numerous and potent infusions of beverage alcohol several times a day to light up the landscape for them. Aristotle believed that the brain is an organ the function of which is to keep the blood cool. Presumably that's all their does.

And as for those of empty life, they toil not, neither do they spin. Listen brother, do you realize that this planet is probably the most interesting place in the universe? Do you realize that there are a million situations lying all about you to which you could give your attention and be thrilled?

Gov't Competition Is Costly

By ELMER ROESSNER

A representative of a big insurance company called on a small businessman I know.

One of his first questions was, "Is your business incorporated or is it a proprietorship?"

The businessman said that he owned the business outright.

"Ah!" said the insurance man, reaching into his brief case. "Here is something that will help you. It is a reproduction of a four-page leaflet by the Small Business Administration, giving you helpful facts on operating your business."

The insurance man smiled. "This one is for proprietorships. That's why I asked about your setup. You see, there's another one for small corporations."

"Well," said my friend, "do you realize you have just lost a sale?"

"Lost a sale?" Why?

"My business consists of writing and editing leaflets and newsletters for business firms. At the moment, I have proposals before two other insurance companies.

I might be trying to sell your company right now, except for the fact that it chooses to produce governmental material instead of buying.

"Government competition, which I support through taxes, is costing me business."

"I am not going to do business with you for two reasons. First, you are co-operating with a competitor. Second, government competition is so severe that I cannot afford any more insurance."

WHAT TO DO ABOUT IT

The Small Business Administration ought to be more careful. It is obvious from this report, that it is hurting big insurance companies. The Small Business Administration is supposed, under Congressional Act, to help small businesses, not injure big ones.

Under these circumstances, the only fair thing for Small Business Administrator Wendell

Barnes to do is to get in touch with the insurance company and buy a fat insurance policy.

If Administrator Barnes wants to know which company he lost a sale for, I'll be happy to take my tongue out of my cheek and tell him.

PERSONNEL PROBLEMS PUZZLE BUSINESS MOST

Personnel problems are the chief concern of American management, judging from questions asked the American Management Association by members.

Questions asked in one month were tabulated. Some requests for officials' titles, addresses, book titles and publishers were not classifiable. Of the rest, 39 per cent concerned personnel. They were about training and development, fringe benefits, organization, employment processes and planning, labor relations, vacations, holidays, sick leave and so on.

The classifications of the other questions were: general management, 14 per cent; finance, 11 per

Homes Show Status

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — The American home has supplanted the automobile as the nation's favorite status symbol, says reporter Vance Packard, and with increasing national prosperity there has been "a crumbling of visible class lines."

Packard, author of "The Hidden Persuaders" (which analyzed techniques developed to manipulate American consumers), now has taken a look at the class structure and status system of a nation which often boasts a classless society.

The book is called "The Status Seekers," and it is Packard's view that Americans, consciously and unconsciously, reveal their place on the social ladder — or the place they want on the social ladder — by the houses in which they live, the churches they attend, the clubs to which they belong, the food they eat, the stores in which they shop.

His research, he says, leads him to believe the social classes of the nation are regrouping as two great divisions. One he calls "The Diploma Elite" (because the head of the family usually goes to college) and the other "The Supporting Classes." But these two divisions he breaks down into five smaller classes. At the top of the heap, with the diplomas, he places the "real upper class" and the "semi-upper class." Below them is "the limited success class," "the working class," and the "real lower class."

The real lower class, says Packard, knows what it is. The working class isn't fighting to jump its wall. It is in the limited success and the semi-upper class areas that status, status symbols and social climbing are important. And many new, sometimes subtle status symbols have become important, he says, since the days of the upper-class symbols are limousines, mink coats and power boats have become available to so many in our affluent age.

The American home is one of them. "American families in the past few years have been giving more and more thought to the problem of establishing a home that adequately reinforces the status image they wish to project," Packard says. "And home builders have happily helped the trend along by emphasizing status appeals."

Each community, has its own "status neighborhoods." In some of the elite are clustered on high ground; in others, it is nearness to a body of water that counts.

Women, Packard insists, are more conscious of status and its symbols than men. And the stores in which they choose to shop and what they buy reveals a good deal about their location on the social scale. And so, indeed, does the way their bills are paid — cash or check. Fast or slow.

"Women who get beyond their status in their ventures into stores feel uncomfortable," he reports. "There is a widespread feeling among women that store clerks endeavor to maintain what they consider to be the proper tone for their store by snooty customers who seem out of place."

Packard says, too, that one's status shows by what one eats: "In general, conceptions about what foods best serve as treats become more elaborate as you go down the social scale." Upper classes like hard, firm bread; lower classes prefer soft bread. Omelet foods — venison, wild duck, pompano, caviar — are much better accepted by the two upper classes than by the three lower ones.

Packard, as a reporter, knows that status-striving goes on, all over America. But he does not approve of the struggle.

"I think we should all be happier, and live more stimulating lives if... we judged people, not by the symbols they display and the labels they wear but rather by their individual worth," he concludes.

Milwaukee Better Than 1958?

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Manager Fred Haney says his current Milwaukee Braves are better than the ones which won the National League pennant last year.

"I don't like to make comparisons," Haney said, "but at this time last year we didn't have (Bill) Bruton and (Wes) Covington. Both were out with bad legs."

"Another thing, I think we have a stronger bench. Maybe I'm not being fair to the kids I had last year. After all, the bench won the pennant for me, at least defensively. I pulled kids like Mel Roach, Harry Hanebrink, Casey Wyse and Felix Mantilla out of position and they did a heck of a job for me, playing strange positions."

"But I must admit there were times when I'd need a pinch hitter and I'd be afraid to look at my bench."

"It's a lot different this year. Mickey Vernon has done a wonderful job for us and while Stan Lopata hasn't hit yet he's still a threat up there at the plate."

It was noted that in the team's first 32 games, Lew Burdette (10) and Warren Spahn (9) started 19 of them. Bob Rush, for instance, has started only two. So has Juan Pizarro. Bob Buhl has started four. Carleton Willey and Joey Jay, last year's young sensations, have started three and four games, respectively.

"What can you do," Haney apologized, "when you got too many good pitchers? You can't start them all. But the season is still young. They'll all get enough work."

Haney's most pleasant surprise so far has been the hitting of Johnny Logan and Del Crandall. Each is hitting well over .300 and driving in runs.

Hasn't Haney forgotten someone?

"Oh, you mean Henry Aaron and the way he's been hitting this year," he asked innocently. "That's no surprise. Nothing Henry does surprises me."

"He's just coming into his own. I said three years ago that some day he's going to be on a par with such great right handers as Roger Hornsby, Harry Halmann, Jimmy Foxx and Al Simmons. Well, the day has come. He's as good a hitter right now as any of them."

Time Is Running Out On Racers At Indianapolis

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Mechanics and drivers both fought a battle against time at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, where 10-mile trials today and Sunday were supposed to end qualifications for the 100-mile race May 30.

Time was running out for fixing serious mechanical ailments in several of the powerful but delicately constructed racers — notably Jimmy Bryan's 1958 winner, the Belong Special.

An oil pump sheared Friday in Bryan's car, which set a race record of 131.601 miles an hour two years ago with Sam Hanks at the wheel.

There was a chance that the trials might be rained out, or the running time reduced to the point where additional qualifications would be held early next week.

With 14 cars already qualified last weekend, 19 positions remained open in the starting field. There were 45 unqualified cars at the speedway.

Bud Erickson, assistant general manager of the Detroit Lions football team, played first base and captained the 1948 Michigan State baseball team.

The Other Day

We got to talking about the earliest recorded use of metals by man. The Bronze Age (3500-1000 B.C.) marked the earliest use of primitive molded metals, and man made slow, plodding progress in its use, going centuries without significant steps. There is considerable reference to metals in the Old Testament, such as Tubal Cain as "an inventor of every artificer of brass and iron" (Gen. 4:22). But it was not until the 15th century A.D. that man knew much about these seven basic metals: gold, copper, iron, silver, tin, lead, and mercury. Man-made steel did not become perfected until the latter half of the 18th century, with very slow progress right up to the late 19th century, when progress then came in leaps and bounds and became basic to our way of life in the 20th century. In our own day the greatest single group of metals is your automobile, containing some of almost all known metals. It combines them to make the most intricate mechanism ever to come into common use. It is our purpose in left to provide you with the best possible automobile and arrange that its intricacies never become a bother to you. This we accomplish with untold years of experience and employment of only the most modern equipment, operated only by thoroughly trained specialists. Thus we are here solely to serve you to utmost satisfaction regardless of the complexities, and you can forget them completely.

Carolina Dairies Twice Defeats Romanco Team

ROANOKE RAPIDS — Bill Altman threw a three-hitter at Romanos of Roanoke Rapids last night to outpitch Maxie Clipper, 2-1, and give the Carolina Dairy a doubleheader sweep over the grand-daddy of eastern softball.

Romanos, holders of six state softball titles, and winners in the Northeast district for six of the past seven years, showed signs of weakening as they took the two defeats on the chin.

Bob Moore's bat and the pitching of Hayward Outland carried the Greenville team to a 6-2 win in the opener.

Moore blasted a first inning homer with one mate aboard to give Carolina Dairy a lead which they never relinquished. Moore and Brownie Tripp had two hits each in the win.

Moore was once again the big man in the second game as the locals defeated one of the state's top pitchers, Maxie Clipper, 2-1.

The hard-hitting first-sacker accounted for both Greenville runs in the first inning, as he poked his second homer of the day with one runner on base.

The blow gave Bill Altman working room and he escaped a couple of bases-loaded situations to gain the victory.

Roanoke Rapids scored their lone run in the third inning when they had a triple and a sacrifice fly.

Both teams collected only three hits in the pitching duel but Moore's blast was the deciding factor.

Carolina Dairy ended a six year reign of Romanos last summer when they defeated them in the Northeast district to advance to the state finals. The Greenville team finished eighth in the field of twelve teams.

One-Hitter For Wilhelm Against Yanks

By ED WILKS

Associated Press Sports Writer

National League clubs brushed off Hoyt Wilhelm because they could tell when he was going to throw his money pitch, the knuckler. Now he holds the ball in his glove and American League hitters in the palm of his hand.

Once a bullpen wonder for the Giants in the National League, Wilhelm drifted to the Cardinals and then into the American League with Cleveland before coming to roost with Baltimore. It was Orioles Manager Paul Richards who suggested he hide the ball in his glove.

"I should have thought of it myself," Wilhelm admits. "Coaches in the National League were tipping the batters whether I was going to throw a knuckler or not."

Now the 35-year-old right-hander has become such a mystery to hitters that he's unbeaten, and even had switch-hitting Mickey Mantle resorting to a rare tactic Friday night. The Mick didn't switch — and he didn't hit, either.

Fact is, Wilhelm came within six outs of becoming the first pitcher ever to no-hit the New York Yankees twice, then settled for a one-hitter while packing away his sixth victory as Baltimore belted the champs deeper into the cellar 5-0.

Wilhelm said he was advised by pitching coach Harry Brecheen after the sixth inning to slow down his pace. "I did and I had more control after that," said Wilhelm.

The North Carolinian walked six Yankees, including two in both the fifth and sixth innings, as compared to only 15 for 54 1-3 innings prior to Friday night.

Wilhelm has pitched five complete games while running up a 6-0 record this season, tying Elroy Face of the Pittsburgh Pirates for the best mark in the major leagues.

But strangely enough, from the time he joined the New York Giants in 1952 until last year, he didn't start a game in the majors.

Since shifting to the American League, Wilhelm has allowed the Yanks only 20 hits and four earned runs in 50 1-3 innings. His earned run mark against all opposition this season is 1.28.

Wilhelm credits Orioles Manager Paul Richards with making him more effective by getting him to hold the ball in his glove to prevent tipping his pitches.

The 35-year-old right-hander, who throws knuckle balls about 90 per cent of the time, said he used quite a few fast balls and sliders in the early innings. But in the final three innings he relied almost entirely on the dancing knuckler.

Wilhelm said he was advised by pitching coach Harry Brecheen after the sixth inning to slow down his pace. "I did and I had more control after that," said Wilhelm.

The North Carolinian walked six Yankees, including two in both the fifth and sixth innings, as compared to only 15 for 54 1-3 innings prior to Friday night.

Hoyt Needs Luck For A No-Hitter

By GORDON BEARD

BALTIMORE (AP) — "Sure I would have liked to pitch another no-hitter but you have to be lucky to get even one of those."

That was Hoyt Wilhelm's calm appraisal of Jerry Lumpe's lead-off single in the eighth inning Friday night which ruined his bid for a second no-hitter over the New York Yankees since joining the Baltimore Orioles last Aug. 23.

The Orioles beat the cellar-dwelling world champions 5-0.

Lumpe, a left-handed batter, sliced a 1-1 pitch to left field as a crowd of 29,084 first groaned and then applauded for Wilhelm.

"He hit a knuckle ball," said Wilhelm. "I knew it was a hit right away. It was just one of those things," he shrugged. "I guess one no-hitter is enough for anybody."

Big Ten Raises Quandary Over Rose Bowl Play

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — The Big Ten today was in a quandary over a two-headed Rose Bowl football monster it has created in a weird move.

From two 5-5 standoff votes Friday came this strange setup:

First, the policy-making faculty representatives refused to renew the Rose Bowl contract which expires with the 1960 game after a 14-year span.

Then, proponents of the bowl dug out a joker from near the bottom of the conference legal deck and opened the way for free-for-all participation in the Rose Bowl by member schools on an individual basis.

The joker was a clause inserted in the conference handbook in 1946 which waived the league's ban on all athletic postseason competition for participation in the Rose Bowl.

The antibowl group of Ohio State, Illinois, Wisconsin, Northwestern and Minnesota succeeded in killing the proposal to renew the bowl contract because a 5-5 deadlock spikes any new legislation.

But, in rebuttal, the pro-Rose Bowl group of Michigan, Iowa, Indiana, Purdue and Michigan State voted against eliminating the Rose Bowl proviso from the rule book.

The way things stand now, after the 1960 Rose Bowl game the newly organized Big Four West Coast group of California, Washington, Southern California and UCLA can invite any Big Ten school to the Pasadena classic. However, if a team like Ohio State or Illinois won the conference championship and was the logical team to be invited such a school would be put in an embarrassing position because of its expressed stand against the Rose Bowl.

Of course, the West Coast group, which is an offshoot of the Pacific Coast Conference destined to perish July 1, also could invite any other Eastern rival outside the Big Ten.

Jake Hadley, chairman of the drive for a new Little League park reported today that response had been very good although the goal was still a long way in sight.

The committee met last Thursday night and a total of $1,406 was reported collected. Another $650 has been promised which would make the total $2,056, a little over half of the set goal of $4,000.

"Although we are a long way from reaching our quota, the people, the firms, and the clubs contacted up to the present, have responded generously. We feel if the enthusiasm continues, we will reach our goal," stated Hadley.

Annual Napkin Sale Set By Exchangeites

HASSELL PRESENTS CHECK to Grimes to cover cost of hearing aid for a boy.

The Greenville Exchange Club will hold its annual "Napkin Sale" for the benefit of club projects, Monday and Tuesday nights, President John Hassell announced last night at the club's weekly supper meeting.

The Exchangeites will be knocking at doors in the city next Monday and Tuesday nights. The napkins sell five packages for a dollar, and the money is used for worthy causes.

The Exchange Club's hard-of-hearing program for children has provided money for purchase of an audiometer for the Pitt County Health Department to be used in testing hearing of school children.

dren. Napkin Sale money has provided the means of purchasing hearing aids for children who could not afford to buy them.

Last night, President John Hassell presented Welfare Supt. J. D. Grimes Jr., with a check for the purchase of a hearing aid for a 15-year-old Negro school boy. The Napkin Fund also provides money for assisting the Salvation Army, Little League, and Midget football, among others.

Exchangeite Bobby Lee is chairman of the Napkin Sale. Team captains are Tommy Morris, Jimmy Weils, Tommy Delner and Luther Moore. All members of the Exchange Club will participate.

The only officer of the club will be the Chief Buccaneer, selected by a committee of the club each Spring, his duty being to be the Chief "ramrod" of the society in the coming year.

There were approximately 150 attending the dinner.

Million - Dollar Drainage Project

TILE INSTALLED UNDER FIELDS . . . water flows into ditches then to creeks.

GRINDLE CREEK, SOON TO BE CLEARED THROUGH FEDERAL PROJECT . . . this view taken from N. C. 11 - U. S. 13 bridge.

A $1,000,000 drainage project will be underway soon in the Grindle Creek watershed of northern Pitt and Martin Counties.

The creek, which has its source near Bethel, runs on by Grindle Pocosin, across N.C. 11-U.S. 13 then by Pactolus and into the Tar River drains much of the northern end of Pitt County.

But it has been flooding in recent years and property owners along with Soil Conservation officials decided that something needed to be done about the situation.

So after meetings of the various farm owners, application was made with the Department of Agriculture's Soil Conservation Division for federal help on the project.

Last May 16, Congressman Herbert Bonner announced that funds had been approved for the project. The Federal contribution will be approximately $329,000, the congressman said.

Actual construction cost on the canal will be $348,825 with the Federal government paying $244,451 of this. The Drainage District will pay $88,874 and the remainder will come through land easements and rights-of-way.

The remainder of the million dollar project will be in good farming practices such as farm ponds, terraces, pasture seeding, cover crops, farm drainage, tree planting and others. Of this the Federal government will pay $84,755 and land owners will pay $575,115.

The work will provide flood protection drainage for about 52,000 acres. The project is to be sponsored by Drainage District Two and Coastal Plain Soil Conservation District.

Federal funds are being made available immediately for accelerating installation of land treatment measures and preparing final designs and specifications for the project structure. Included will be 28½ miles of channel improvement for the drainage area.

Pitt Soil Conservationist Connor Eagles said the project is expected to help the drainage situation greatly in the northern section of the county.

As drainage projects are carried out on the various farms, the load on the stream becomes greater. More and more farmers are installing tile under their low wet fields, digging broader ditches and canals and terracing their fields to carry off the excess water. All this surface water eventually finds its way to Grindle Creek and if rains are heavy, it isn't long before the low lands along the way are flooded.

It is this situation which the drainage project is expected to eliminate.

While this is the first of Pitt County's creek for which improvements have been slated, Eagles said plans are in the works for others.

Just last week a meeting was held to discuss such a project for Conetoe Creek. Other streams in Pitt County need the same treatment if a sound program of adequate drainage for the county's farm land is to be continued.

DRAG LINES AT WORK . . . broad canals being dug to drain farm land.

CONTOUR FARMING HELPS IN DRAINAGE . . . more of this needs to be done, says Eagles.

PASTURES DEPEND ON GOOD DRAINAGE . . . which depend on adequate creeks, streams and rivers

EAGLES LOOKS OVER NEW DRAINAGE DITCH . . . more drainage has increased load on creeks such as Grindle.

Books & Stuff

By DR. ED HIRSHBERG

The time may not be quite ripe—like the corn—but it's almost on us—vacation. And we're here to tell you about four books that might make your vacation easier, cheaper, or what have you. . . . From the Duncan Hines Institute up in Ithaca, N.Y., we've received two paperbacks on where to stay and where to eat. LODGING FOR A NIGHT, 1959 edition, tells you about 4,000 places on the roads of North America where you can sleep in comfort and security, according to Mr. Hines, whose 24-man corps of field inspectors has covered every spot mentioned. Entries give such information as cost, whether there's a swimming pool, TV, etc. . . . Hines' other paperback, ADVENTURES IN GOOD EATING, lists 3500 of the best places to eat not only in U. S. but in Porto Rico and Hawaii, in case you want to drive around there for a spin. Price, specialties de la maison, hours open, etc., are all there. Each book costs $1.50, and is cheap at the price. . . . For those of you who are going to travel farther afield, and want to watch your dough at the same time, HOW TO TRAVEL WITHOUT BEING RICH, by William Strong and A. Milton Runyon, is our recommendation. Recently put out by Doubleday, it tells you all about how to save on such items as transportation, tipping, unique or unusual trips, traveling by freight—which is much cheaper than any other way—and special economy tours both in Europe and U.S. . . . Also manages to survive—lovely girls usually do. . . . In July the Guild will give you CALIFORNIA STREET, by Niven Busch, about an illustrious and adventurous Frisco family with three beautiful daughters to make things interesting. . . .

Today's Review

A recent Guild selection that has been received very well is praised by a local lady whose opinions can be trusted. . . . THE UNANPOINTED, by Laurence Chinn, N.Y.: Crown Publishers. Literary Guild edition, 1959. "The Unappointed" was a Literary Guild selection whose designation certainly was merited. Based on Biblical history, the story centers around David of the Old Testament, his rise to power, his reign as king, and his decline. Joab, his kinsman and commander of the army, is the central figure, and the one with whom the reader sympathizes.

Joab sought refuge and service with David while he was still an outlaw (this was after the famed slaying of the Philistine giant), and continued to love and serve him until David, in his senility, was responsible for his execution. To David he devoted his entire loyalty, and life. For David Joab sacrificed his beloved Reba, who became David's wife; for David he committed murder, suffered untold humiliation, and banishment. There are many stories within the main story, but always there is Abiathar, the devoted priest and scholar, Reba, beautiful, provocative Reba, Joab, and of course David with his passion, his wisdom, his beautiful Psalms, his wisdom, yes, and even his folly. David's life with his wives and concubines is discussed with candor, yet the reader will not be offended, so sincere is the portrayal. The story moves with facility over many years, tracing the growth of Israel from many warring tribes to a unified nation ruled by David. Author Laurence Chinn, reputed to be a historian and scholar of considerable merit, took 15 years to complete "The Unappointed," her research taking her into the Holy Land itself. Where fact leaves off, and fiction begins is difficult to determine, so skillfully has she intertwined the two. For a tender, moving love story, coming out of Doubleday next month, just in time for your auto trip, is BETTER VACATIONS FOR YOUR MONEY, by Michael Frome, which tips you off on unusual areas to visit that don't cost much, like State and National parks, and outlines fifteen tours of odd but fascinating places. Even if you're too poor to take a vacation, like we are, you can still enjoy these books—it's nice to know that somebody's having a good time. . . .

The Decision

Perhaps the most comprehensive review written recently of the results and outcomes of the famous Supreme Court decision outlawing racial segregation in the schools is in today's May 23—Saturday Review. . . . "The Supreme Court Decision: Five Years Later" summarizes the views of five men who have had a lot to do with what has happened so far. They are Holding Carter, Pulitzer Prize winning editor of the Greenville, Miss., "Delta Democrat-Times;" Ralph McGill, editor of the "Atlanta Constitution," also a Pulitzer winner; Harry S. Ashmore, executive editor of the "Arkansas Gazette," ditto, in 1958; Omer Carmichael, superintendent of schools in Louisville, Ky.; and Edward D. Ball, executive director of the Southern Education Reporting Service of Nashville. . . . These men all have one thing in common—they were born in the South and love it deeply. We recommend what they have to say as a sensible report on the segregation situation as it now exists in the southern states. . . .

The Guild

Charleston, S.C., and San Francisco, Cal., will be the scenes of the next two Literary Guild offerings. . . . The June selection is CELIA GARTH, by Gwen Bristow, about the stirring times and activities around Charleston during the American Revolution. Celia, of course, is a lovely girl who for action, for a well developed plot, absorbing dialogue, intrigue, description, a smattering of history. I recommend "The Unappointed." You will want this book on your own shelves, for it deserves rereading.

DEWEY M. GRIFFITH, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Griffith of 1808 East Fifth St., will receive a Bachelor of Science degree in mechanical engineering at commencement exercises Sunday at N. C. State College in Raleigh.

Griffith, a graduate of Greenville High School, has accepted a job with Westinghouse Electric in Pittsburgh, Pa. He will report to the company on June 15.

Nikita's Albania Visit Is Puzzler

WASHINGTON (AP)—Nikita S. Khrushchev's reasons for going to Albania Monday are something of a mystery to Washington experts. The bouncy Soviet premier plans to visit the Balkan satellite from May 25 to June 6, according to Moscow's announcement.

Khrushchev likes to travel and has never been to Albania before, but this doesn't explain why he intends to spend two weeks in a comparatively isolated country the size of Maryland with a population of only 1 1/2 million.

The Soviet chief has just returned from an extended Crimean vacation, so it would not seem that he needs another rest along the Adriatic Sea.

He will be away from Moscow on May 27, the deadline of the original Soviet ultimatum on Berlin. That might be taken as move to de-emphasize the threat.

Albania has long been a stable unit in the Communist bloc. If Khrushchev is thinking of approaching Yugoslavia's Marshal Tito, neighboring Albania would hardly seem the place to start from. Yugoslavia and Albania have been at odds since Tito split with the Kremlin a decade ago.

It is possible Khrushchev wants to dramatize Moscow's interest in Albania, the only satellite country not land-connected with the rest of Iron Curtain empire.

He may wish to show personal backing in Albania's current tiff with Italy. He may want to shake his fist at Italy and at Albania's back door neighbor, Greece. The Soviets have warned both NATO countries against accepting American rockets.

Eighth St. Christian Announcements

The Men's Chorus of the church will present "Let The Lower Lights Be Burning" during the morning worship hour. Mr. Hadden, the minister, will be preaching a sermon in the "first person" entitled "I Am Amos of Tekoa."

The Christian Youth Fellowship will meet this Sunday evening at 5:00 o'clock instead of 6:00 o'clock due to the college graduation exercises. The Chi Rho group will be meeting at 5:00 o'clock also.

Christian Science Society

The spiritual identity of the man of God's creating will be brought out at Christian Science services Sunday in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Soul and Body."

Initial selections to be read from the Bible include these verses from Psalms (90:1,2): "Lord, thou hast been our dwelling place in all generations. Before the mountains were brought forth, or ever thou hadst formed the earth and the world, even from everlasting to everlasting, thou art God." From "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy the following will be read (280:25-30): "Rightly understood, instead of possessing a sentient material form, man has a sensationless body; and God, the Soul of man and of all existence, being perpetual in His own individuality, harmony, and immortality, imparts and perpetuates these qualities in man, — through Mind, not matter."

A romantic suspense novel by MARTHA ALBRAND

A SPY at MONTE CARLO

(C) Copyright, 1958, by The Curtis Publishing Company. (C) Copyright, 1959, by Martha Albrand. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED

The adventure that led a young American artist in Paris, Mark Travers, to the most challenging and desirable woman he had ever encountered began when his best friend, Philippe Langie, was murdered.

Philippe, a French diplomat, working to effect peace in Algeria, was assassinated while he was endeavoring to meet Timgad, an underground leader of Algerian rebels. Philippe's dying words were "Find Timgad, Mark. Promise."

Mark got nowhere in his search for Timgad until Corinne Javal, one of the women in Philippe's life, said that Timgad had been seen in Monte Carlo. Mark flew to Monte Carlo, and immediately received a threatening note: "Unless you stop interfering in matters which are none of your concern, you will not survive."

Mark had reason to believe that only two persons knew of his coming to Monte Carlo — Inspector Ferrier of the Surete and Corinne Javal. Could Corinne have put him on the spot? He was pondering that and awaiting a planned rendezvous with Corinne at 10 a.m., when he encountered a lovely ballerina, Fleur Constant, on a beach...

CHAPTER I

They swam side by side, fast and in silence, but Mark remained deeply conscious of the girl next to him. Yet he wondered if she would have had the same effect on him under different circumstances, if he had met her at a time when he was not threatened with immediate danger.

Perhaps then she would have been just another girl, a beautiful French girl named Fleur with a tyrannical, old-fashioned brother. Possibly her gracefulness was not so exquisite, possibly right now he saw nothing in his true proportions. Perhaps she was not as lovely as he thought, nor as charming or touching. He turned on his back and saw her floating like a singularly beautiful flower, unexpectedly close.

"I almost kissed you on the beach," he said.

"My name is Mark Travers. Where can I meet you later?"

"I don't know if it will be possible," Fleur said.

"You'd rather not?"

"I don't always have a chance to get away alone. This morning it was possible only because Bransky had a migraine."

"Who is Bransky?"

"A former ballet master who taught me everything I know about dancing. He lives with us."

"But if you could meet me, where would you say?"

"There is a bistro on the Boulevard des Bas Moulins. Le Mulet. My dressmaker lives above it. About noon."

Noon.

Was it possible that he had forgotten, even for a moment, what his meeting with Corinne Javal might lead to? He must be insane to think that he would have any time at all today to spend as he pleased. He stared up at the sky but, blinded by the sun, had to close his eyes. No. Fleur would have to wait. To wait until he had seen Corinne, to wait, perhaps, until the job was done and his time would once more be his own. It wouldn't be fair to cause her difficulties when he was not at all sure that he would be back by noon.

"Noon?" he said. "If that is the only time you can make it, we'd better skip it. I'm sorry, but I have an engagement I can't possibly break."

There was no answer, and he was too embarrassed to turn around and see her face. One didn't tell a girl that one had wanted to kiss her, only to say cruelly a moment later that one didn't have time for her. "You see, Fleur..."

But she was no longer at his side. She had swum away.

He could see her on the beach, picking up her robe. She couldn't have heard what he had just said and, by the time he reached the shore, she was gone.

"The car you ordered last night has been left for you," the clerk behind the desk told Mark when he entered the lobby a little later.

"Here are the keys."

"I'll be down in a few moments, thank you."

As he stretched out his hand to take them, he had the feeling that he was being watched. In all the three months of his search for Timgad, trying to find people who might know him, picking up odd traces that looked promising, he had never experienced this sensation. He responded to it with a tingling of his skin.

He shifted his position at the desk so that he could look around the lobby. A nurse in uniform was leaning against a wall, holding an infant in her arms, two bellboys stood like toy soldiers at the door and, in a chair next to the window, sat an elderly lady, so badly made up that the powder and rouge accented rather than hid her age.

Next to her sat a man reading a newspaper so that, hard as he tried, Mark could not see his face. His legs, sticking out of a pair of white shorts, were slightly bow-legged, muscular and very hairy. He wore sneakers which showed spots of perspiration. Mark guessed that he had just come from playing tennis.

The clerk himself was middle-aged, balding, and he was fidgeting with an old-fashioned pearl pin.

Any one of them might know why Mark was here without his having the faintest idea about them.

He entered his room with every precaution but this proved unnecessary. It was empty. As far as he could see, it had not even been searched. Still he could not help feeling that somebody had been there. He examined his luggage. Everything was as he had left it.

He dressed quickly and took his golf bag. He opened the zipper of one of the size pockets to make sure he wouldn't have to lose any time buying balls and tees. Then he went downstairs.

The nurse was still standing there, talking now to the old lady, but the man who had been sitting next to him was gone. Only his newspaper was lying there. With a glance Mark saw that it was an English paper.

The bellboys sprang to attention when they saw him coming and the clerk stopped him again.

"Monsieur Travers, just in case you are interested, if you want to dine at the Casino, it's Saturday night, gala night. You'd better make a reservation."

A reservation for a gala night? Why not? "Make it nine o'clock. A table for two," he said.

On the parking lot he checked the car he had rented. He found it in perfect shape. Nobody had tinkered with the engine, wheels and steering wheel were in order, no time bomb was connected with the starter nor hidden anywhere else. Then he looked at the map to find the shortest route to the golf links.

He passed the famous tennis courts and the Ravine St. Romans, and found himself on a road which led between houses, standing in pine-studded gardens. As he stopped for a truck to pass him, it occurred to him that he was in the neighborhood in which Fleur Constant lived.

Somehow he felt certain that she would come to meet him at noon, even if she had difficulties in getting away, and he could see her waiting for him, sitting in the hot, midday sun, watching the street, a little annoyed perhaps that he was not on time but never thinking that he would not come at all.

How could he possibly let her know? Of course, telephone the bistro she had mentioned and leave a message.

A few yards ahead of him he saw the sign of a gasoline station, but when he asked if he could make a call, he was told there was no telephone. Why hadn't he thought before of calling the restaurant?

He started to ask where he could find a booth; then a sudden association of memories made him stop. Constant, she had said his name was, Fleur Constant, and that of her brother — Guy Constant. Why hadn't he connected them at once?

It could only be Guy Constant, the deep-sea explorer, whose beautiful motion pictures of marine life had become quite well known in past years. Mark grinned. The official reason for his presence in Monte Carlo was to sketch and interview a series of prominent people for a Paris newspaper.

It would serve very well as a pretext to appear at Fleur's home without embarrassing her or giving away that they had met.

YOUTH'S INJURIES NOT UNNATURAL

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—The U. S. 4th Circuit Court of Appeals turned down an Asheville, N.C., youth's suit for $300,000, explaining his injuries were a not unnatural consequence of youthful imprudence.

Terrell Morgan Moore, 15, lost a hand and an eye in a chemistry lab explosion at St. Francis High School in Asheville. Testimony showed he mixed some chemicals, struck a match and, when nothing happened, added another ingredient. The mixture exploded then.

"Even boys of extraordinary intelligence," the appeals court said Friday, "sometimes act imprudently. Sir Winston Churchill is said to have blown himself high into the air with a self-made bomb when he was a student at Harrow."

"Fortunately for the history of our age his wounds were only minor, and it is the good fortune of most of us that we are not made to suffer forever from the consequences of our youthful imprudence."

The appellate court, in a decision written by Chief Judge Simon Sobeloff, upheld Judge Wilbur Warlick, who had ruled that Moore was not entitled to damages because he was negligent.

Registration

St. Gabriel's Catholic School on Ward Street will register children between May 24 and June 5 for the 1959-1960 school year. It was announced today.

Registrations will be accepted at the school Monday through Saturday, 4 p.m. through 7 p.m. during the registration period. Children seeking to enroll in the school must be six years of age by September 1 and must present a birth certificate for registration.

Pupils Sing For Recording Firm

The voices of seventeen pupils in the Wahl-Coates Laboratory School at East Carolina College will be heard throughout the nation when recordings made here Thursday by Dr. Irving Wolfe of the Follett Publishing Co. of Chicago are distributed for use in schools.

Dr. Wolfe, professor of music education at George Peabody College, Nashville, Tenn., and author of the widely used textbook series "Together We Sing," is in charge of recordings for Follett. Last summer he participated in East Carolina's Music Education Workshop and will return to the campus June 8-9 for a similar event.

While on the campus Thursday, he recorded approximately a dozen numbers sung by pupils of Beatrice Chauncey of the college faculty and the Greenville city school system. The songs are to be included in music albums designed for instructional purposes in schools. Student instrumentalists from the East Carolina department of music provided accompaniments.

A new Mississippi River-Gulf Canal at the port of New Orleans will cut approximately 40 miles off the present route.

Overlooked $500 Licensing Fee

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP)—A bill giving liquor package stores the right to sell potato chips, popcorn and similar items was passed Friday by the Rhode Island House.

In the process the representatives eliminated a $500 liquor license fee.

After red-faced legislators discovered they had inadvertently dropped the fee, they said they would fix the error next week in the Senate.

Reunion Set For 'Old Hickory'

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—The 13th annual reunion of the 30th Infantry Division Association, whose membership includes World War II combat veterans throughout this area, will be held July 8-10 at Ellinor Village, Fla. It was announced by Bobby Sloan, convention chairman.

The association was formed immediately after the last war in Germany, and the first reunion was held in Savannah, Ga., in 1946. The 30th, known as the "Old Hickory" Division, recorded an outstanding combat record in World War I.

It was reactivated in 1925 as a National Guard division with troops from Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina and Tennessee. Again in World War II it achieved an enviable fighting record in the German campaign. The current association president is Alfred J. Treherne of Attmore, Ala.

Ellinor Village lies on the outskirts of Daytona Beach. Chairman Sloan has asked "Old Hickory" veterans to write him in care of Ellinor Village, Ormond Beach, Fla., for additional information.
