Grads Receive Awards

HINES, GALLOWAY, McCLINTON AND ALLEN . . . Leaders Of Graduating Class At Eppes High School

College Scholarships Won By Eight Eppes Graduates

College scholarship awards for eight students who will graduate Monday from Eppes High School were announced last night at Class Night ceremonies for the schools 45 seniors.

The scholarships, announced by Principal W. H. Davenport, include $800 awards from Knoxville College to Wiley Hines and Garma Allen; a $300 scholarship from Livingstone College to Shirley Galloway, who also received a $100 award from the Ten Plus Three Club; Shaw University scholarships of $150 each to Velma Adams and Mary McClinton; a $100 scholarship from North Carolina College to Betty Corey; a $150 award from the Ten Plus Three to Mary McClinton; a $125 scholarship to Ruby Jenkins from Johnson C. Smith University; and a $165 award from Delta Sigma Theta sorority to Theresa Dags. Presentation of the scholarships highlighted the class night program which also included presentation of other awards and certificates, a solo by Theresa Dags, music by the class, a discussion by Garland Allen of the development of the graduating class, and a pledge by the group, led by Class President Wiley Hines.

Other awards which were presented include: Kiwanis Sportsmanship Trophy: James Teel; Personal Hygiene course awards presented by Dr. A. A. Best: Clo-ria James (tied for best notebook), Sandra Grimes (tied for best notebook and second prize for general excellence), and Olga Nichols (highest grade average and second prize for best notebook).

Certificates for completion of brick-laying course: Lawrence Willoughby, Wilbur Smith, Floyd O'Neal and Alfonso Simmons. Scholarships: A certificate and a check for $100: James Harrington.

Award for closest adherence to the Golden Rule, presented by the Senior Ladies Auxiliary of Sycamore Hill Baptist Church: Betty Jean Corey.

Home Economics Award: Velma Adams.

Commerce Award: Elsie Smith. Drama Award: Jessie Floyd and Shirley Sherrod.

French Award: Sadie Clark. Math Award: Irma Baker. Library Awards: Geraldine Artis and Carrie Jean Daniels.

Principal Davenport also announced that the Mothers' Club of Fleming Street School has given $50 to the school to be used in purchasing additional equipment for the band.

In a discussion of the class' development through four years of high school, Program Chairman, Garland Allen pointed out that the class started with 107 members. Since that time, he said, 57 per cent of the number which started as freshmen have dropped out of school.

Sixty-four per cent of the drop-outs were girls, Allen said, 25 per cent of whom became unwed mothers. Allen added that 21 per cent of the boys who dropped out became unwed fathers, and that 21 per cent of all students who dropped out did so because of failing grades.

"The struggle for survival is the problem of everyone who touches the life of a student," Allen declared. "The climate for education outside the classroom is not the responsibility of the student, but of everyone."

Allen told the assembly that the study of the drop-outs was inspired by an address to the Eppes student body by Superintendent J. H. Rose on April 14. The superintendent's address stressed, Allen said, the roles of education and religion in the lives of every individual.

Allen asked all members of the class who were graduating to join in a pledge, led by Class President Wiley Hines, "to preserve all that is good and wholesome in the American way-of-life, by bringing back religion and education in their hearts and homes."

Eppes' commencement activities will continue Sunday night, with the Baccalaureate Service. The Rev. Clarence Gray of Grimes land will preach the sermon in a program beginning at 8 o'clock in the school auditorium.

Piomas will be awarded to the graduates in exercises to begin at 8 p.m. Monday in the gymnasium. Dr. E. B. Aycock, chairman of the Greenville City Board of Education, will present the diplomas, assisted by Principal Davenport.

Commencement Program Begins

Junius H. Rose High School seniors will begin their three-phase commencement schedule tonight at 8 o'clock with the school's annual Class and Awards Night.

Tonight's program will be held in the school gymnasium, which will also be the site of the Baccalaureate Service Sunday at 8 p.m. and graduation exercises Tuesday at 8 p.m. Class President Louis Arthur will preside at tonight's program which will include short addresses by academic leaders Larry Carawan and Dorothy Davis, and presentation of awards by Principal O. E. Dowd and Superintendent J. H. Rose.

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower will remain in Washington on Memorial Day weekend. He has spent Memorial Day week-ends in the past years on his farm in Gettysburg, Pa.

Most of those buried in Punch-bowl Cemetery were World War II and Korean war dead. They include several thousand unknown dead.

Gray explained that such transactions are handled through the Board of Education revolving fund which is credited for the amounts received from Little in return for the checks written.

The unit at Eastern Pines is being sponsored by the men's club there and the unit at Simpson is being sponsored by the Ruritan Club, Little said.

Items purchased, Little said, have been paid for by these groups and by individuals in the communities. County officials explained that items purchased in this manner are charged to the county by the federal surplus property agency in Raleigh, Little has turned the money for the items over to the county auditor, H. Youth Is Drowned In Farm Pond

Edgemcombe County Boy Dies In Pond Near Bethel Thursday Afternoon

A 15-year-old Edgemcombe County youth was drowned near Bethel yesterday in a small farm pond. The boy, Billy Whitaker of Rt. 1, Bethel, drowned about 2:30 when he slipped from an inner tube on which he and his two brothers, Marvin Earl and David, were playing.

According to Edgemcombe County sheriff's officers, Murry Dowdy, owner of the pond and farm on which the Whitaker family lived, heard the boys' screams and ran to the lake. He was unable to aid the drowning youth because he, himself, could not swim. He immediately called Bethel officers who went to the scene in an attempt to aid the boy. The small pond is approximately two and one-half miles from Bethel.

The Greenville Rescue Squad was called at 3:30 by the Bethel Police Department to aid in the search for the body, which was recovered a short time later by local residents with the aid of a trot line before the Rescue Squad arrived at the scene.

At the time of the accident the parents of the victim, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Whitaker, were on a fishing trip.

Surviving the victim are two brothers and a sister in addition to the parents.

It was noted that the victim's half-sister, Mrs. Icelean Whitaker Chase, lost her life in 1948 when she was drowned at Whitchard's Beach near Washington.

Nation Prepares Memorial Rites

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
America's revered dead—military heroes of the nation's five major wars since the struggle for independence—will be honored Saturday in the 91st annual observance of Memorial Day.

The ceremonies, spreading from coast to coast, across the Pacific to Hawaii and northward to Alaska, will center chiefly at national cemeteries, battlefields and other shrines.

The long holiday weekend got under way today as millions, traveling by train, car and plane, started an exodus from crowded cities to resort areas.

America has counted 1,128,393 killed in the five major wars since the revolution, and countless thousands will pay homage at grave-sites in large and small communities throughout the nation.

Saturday's scheduled activities are varied in form: At Rindge, N.H., Daughters of the Confederacy and Daughters of Union Veterans will lay wreaths on an altar on a pine-clad hill. The scene of the joint commemoration will be the altar of the nation, recognized by Congress as a memorial for all American war dead. It is the only one of its kind.

In the nation's capital, memorial services will be held in the amphitheater of Arlington National Cemetery. Veterans Administration Sumner G. Whittier will speak.

At Honolulu, the U.S. Navy will hold a Memorial Day service on a platform aboard the sunken battleship Arizona—a victim of the Dec. 7, 1941, Japanese sneak attack on Pearl Harbor. Still entombed in the Arizona's hull in Pearl Harbor are 1,102 officers and men.

Also at Honolulu, schoolchildren, veterans organizations and relatives will place flower leis on the stone grave markers of 17,000 Pacific war dead buried in the National Memorial Cemetery of the Pacific—better known as Punch-bowl Cemetery, an extinct volcano crater overlooking downtown Honolulu.

Most of those buried in Punch-bowl Cemetery were World War II and Korean war dead. They include several thousand unknown dead.

Big Four Ministers Hold Talks During Ocean Flight

GENEVA (AP)—The Big Four foreign ministers announced today after a trans-Atlantic sky conference that they had a useful exchange of views on their overnight flight from Washington.

They agreed to start the final round of their Geneva talks on German problems, the Berlin crisis and the prospects for a summit conference at the villa of British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd at 5 p. m. (11 a. m. EST).

The U.S. Air Force plane carrying Secretary of State Christian A. Herter, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, Foreign Secretary Lloyd and France's Maurice Couve de Murville landed at Cotentin Airport here at 12:54 p. m.

The four ministers were in a jovial mood. Herter was first off the plane, Gromyko following. Assistant Secretary of State Andrew H. Berding, who had ridden in an accompanying aircraft, issued a statement on behalf of the four: "The four foreign ministers had an opportunity on the aircraft of reviewing the progress of the Geneva conference and to discuss certain details of their respective positions. All agreed that their exchange of views had been most useful. The four ministers agreed to meet again privately and informally at 5 o'clock at Mr. Lloyd's Geneva residence."

Berding supplied some details of the conference in the clouds after talking briefly with Herter. The four ministers took off from Washington in midafternoon. For the first hour they chatted informally and read newspapers and magazines and the like. Then they organized a meeting—with about as much secrecy as they will ever get—and talked about conference issues for an hour and a half.

A Russian adviser and several American officials were seated near the conferring group of ministers.

In addition to the time they spent in discussion Thursday night, including the formally organized talk, the Big Four talked over East-West problems for about an hour this morning before they reached Geneva.

Various accounts indicated that altogether the four spent six or seven hours in conversation, either organized or casual.

The big four-engine aircraft—a DC-6—was six minutes ahead of estimated arrival time on the 17-hour flight from Washington. The ministers took off Thursday for their sky session after conferring with President Eisenhower. Wednesday all attended funeral services for former Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

Another plane, carrying Mrs. Herter and advisers to the secretary of state landed seven minutes ahead of that carrying the four foreign policy chiefs.

The conference in the clouds gave the Big Four the opportunity to come to grips in an informal atmosphere with the two issues expected to dominate the two weeks or so remaining of the Geneva negotiations—Berlin and a summit conference.

In an effort to make progress, the foreign ministers have agreed to meet in secret, with only two advisers each, instead of with batteries of aides who report all that is said to the press.

Diplomats said most or all of what happened in the secret talks would be kept secret, at least for a time.

Another private bargaining session was scheduled this afternoon at British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd's villa.

As their minimum price for a summit conference, U.S. Secretary of State Christian A. Herter, French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville and Lloyd were reported pressing Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko for Soviet agreement to lift the threat to West Berlin.

Informed sources said the Western three are demanding that the Soviet Union confirm the right of the United States, Britain and France to continue to exercise final authority in West Berlin and to maintain garrisons there with assured supply channels.

In return the Allies reportedly are offering to take steps to improve the atmosphere in Berlin from the Soviet viewpoint—meaning a halt to anti Soviet intelligence and propaganda activity from West Berlin.

The New York Times said that the Western ministers have agreed to try to get Gromyko to join in a conference communique which would:

(1) Provide that the status quo in Berlin could be changed only by agreement of all four nations; (2) Obligate the four to settle their differences over Germany by peaceful means; (3) Accept the reunification of East and West Germany as their objective and agree that free, secret, all-German elections at some time should be part of the process, and

(4) Outline the subjects to be discussed at a summit meeting, including the future of Berlin and Germany, disarmament, and means of giving international assistance to the under developed nations.

Before the foreign ministers recessed Tuesday to attend the funeral of John Foster Dulles, there was speculation among Western diplomats that the conference could be finished by June 5. There was talk today the sessions might continue a week beyond that date.

The foreign ministers switched to secret negotiations after 2½ weeks of semipublic sessions produced two opposed over-all proposals on German reunification, the usual East-West deadlock and a lot of speeches that didn't ease the deadlock.

Now the conference is narrowing down to the immediate issues—the Berlin crisis produced by Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's demand last November that the Western Allies get out of Berlin and the summit conference Khrushchev wants.

Before the foreign ministers left Washington Thursday, President Eisenhower told them he looks to their work in Geneva "to achieve a measure of progress which would make a subsequent meeting of heads of government desirable and useful."

Money-Tightening Curb Is Imposed

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Federal Reserve Board today used its tight-money club against a renewed threat of inflation.

With the board's approval, five Federal Reserve banks increased their discount rate from 3 to 3½ per cent. This is the interest charge to member banks borrowing from the reserve system.

The five are the New York, Chicago, St. Louis, Minneapolis and Dallas banks. The other seven Federal Reserve banks are expected to push their rate up to the same figure in the next several days.

The action had been expected in view of a general rise of interest rates throughout the private economy. And there have been hints that consumer prices—after 11 months of unprecedented stability—may advance to new highs in the next few months.

In New York, the discount boost came as no surprise to Wall Street, which has been expecting the move since major private banks increased a key interest rate two weeks ago.

'In No Hurry' To Talk At Summit

LONDON (AP)—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev says he's in no hurry for a big four summit meeting.

"If there will be no meeting of the heads of governments in the near future, we shall wait until the conditions are ripe," he said Thursday in an address in the Albanian town of Korca.

Western diplomats believe Khrushchev is anxious for a summit meeting, regardless of the line he adopts publicly for propaganda purposes. In a speech Tuesday he said he is prepared to go to "the ends of the earth" to meet with President Eisenhower, President de Gaulle and Prime Minister Macmillan.

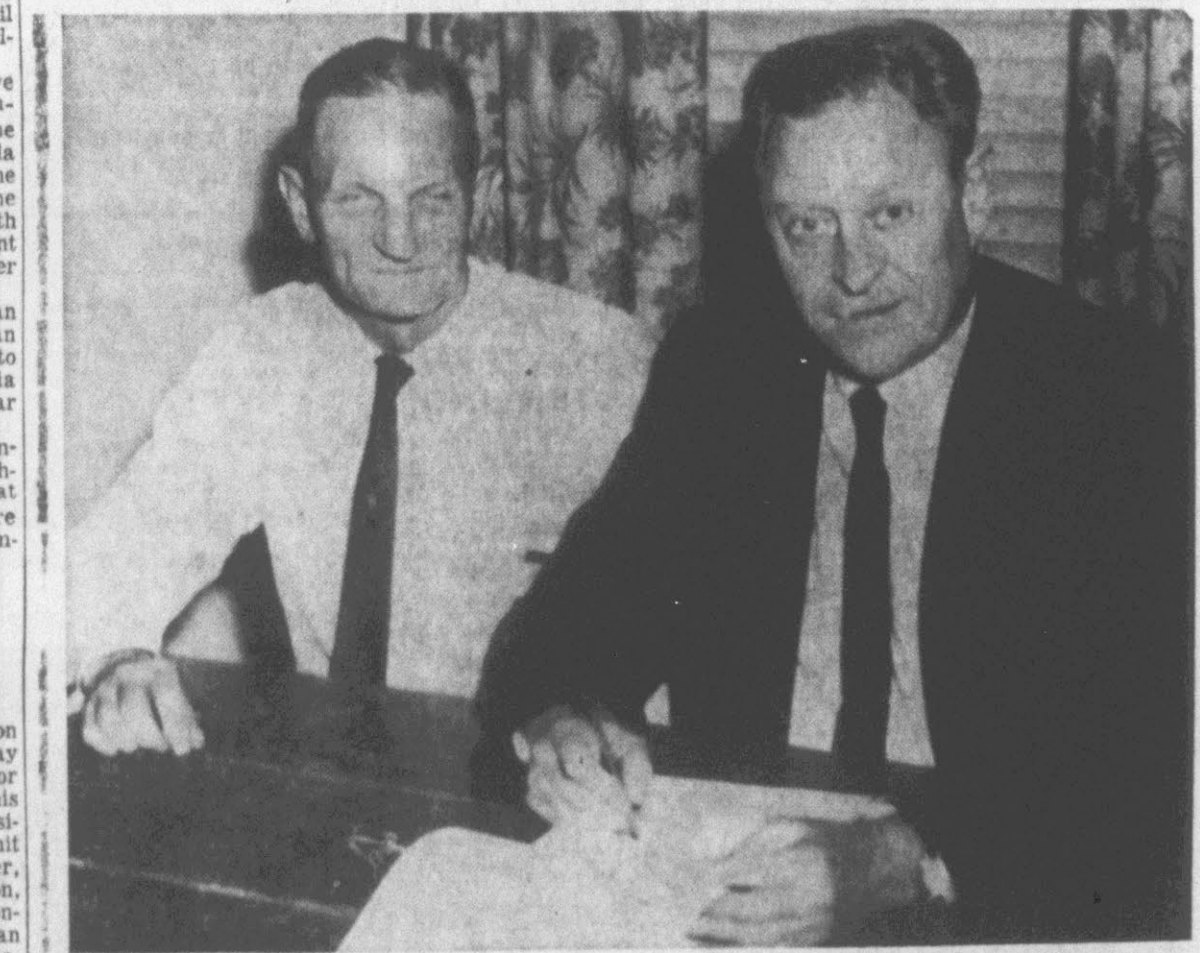

Khrushchev again proposed an atomic free zone on the Balkan peninsula, and again threatened to establish missile bases in Albania if Italy and Greece allow similar NATO bases on their territory.

In Athens, Greek Premier Constantine Karamanlis said Khrushchev's threats obviously aimed at scaring the Greek people but "are not likely to disturb our composure."

Adenauer Said Using His 'Wiles'

LONDON (AP)—The London News Chronicle claimed today that West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer is using all his wiles in an attempt to talk President Eisenhower out of a summit meeting. The liberal newspaper, in a dispatch from Washington, said Adenauer is trying to convince the President that even an agreement on Berlin at the Geneva foreign ministers conference would not justify a meeting of the heads of government.

Greenville's Committee Of 100 Is Formally Organized

COMMITTEE OF 100 CHARTER PREPARED . . . Speight signs and Stallworth looks on.

Greenville's Committee of 100 was formally organized last night as members met in the Rotary building to sign the charter.

The legal paper will be filled with the State of North Carolina and the industry-seeking committee will be officially in business.

Named in the incorporation papers was a 20-man board of directors, which W. W. Speight, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce Industrial Committee, explained could be expanded once the papers are formally filed.

He said the board will meet following incorporation of the non-profit organization to choose officers and set up permanent committees.

Serving on the board will be: Dr. E. B. Aycock, J. H. Blount Jr., W. S. Bost, R. M. Garrett Jr., John Howard, W. H. Watson, Willard T. Kizer, Dr. J. D. Messick, J. Howard Moye, W. W. Speight, A. B. Stallworth, S. Reynolds May,

George Coffman, B. B. Sugg Jr., A. H. Campbell, Jack Marston, David J. Whitchard, Leonard P. Bixous, Thomas W. Rivers and Joel Lawhorn.

Chairman of the membership drive A. B. Stallworth told the group gathered for last night's meeting that 140 members have pledged to the Committee of 100. Their pledges total $13,385, he said, and of that amount $4,705 has been actually paid in. Bills for the pledges were sent out the first of this week, Stallworth reported.

Speight told the members, "We feel very encouraged from what we've attained so far."

"Two major industries have already said they were coming. We hate to count our chickens before they hatch but we believe the law of averages will give us one of these anyway."

Under its charter the Committee of 100 would be authorized to conduct investigations and surveys to obtain data for "diversified industries to be located within the trade area of the City of Greenville."

It would also be allowed to advertise for and promote the location and operation of any and all diversified industries and manufacturing establishments within the Greenville trade area.

Finally the charter allows the committee to "act, independently or in conjunction with other organizations in the promotion and development of the economic and business welfare and betterment of the trade area of the City of Greenville."

The charter states that the corporation is to have no capital stock and participation in its control and management is to be by its membership.

Members will have one vote for each $25 donated to the Committee but no member may have more than 40 votes.

Commissioners Will Look Into Surplus Purchases

By DAVID J. WHITCHARD
Reflector Managing Editor

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners being followed by County Commissioner Robert L. Little of Grimesland, county Civil Defense purchasing officer, in purchasing federal surplus property.

"We are going to look into the matter," Commission Chairman Robert L. Martin of Bethel said this morning. "We will discontinue the practice immediately if it is unethical or improper."

Today's developments came three days after The Daily Reflector began making inquiries about federal surplus property acquired by Pitt County.

Meanwhile J. H. Rose of Greenville, Pitt County Civil Defense director, told The Daily Reflector: "I have asked him (Little) to get all this surplus property he has purchased as Civil Defense Property Officer and store it in a public building where it can be seen at anytime by anybody. I told him it could be stored in Simpson, Grimesland or Greenville and kept there until all the parts can be secured to equip these rural fire fighting units."

Rose added that he had called Gen. Edward Griffin, head of N. C. Civil Defense, and informed him of the instructions he issued today to Little. "I told Gen. Griffin that when we get all this stuff together I want him to send a man down to check it."

"I want to get it all together in one place at one time for an inventory and then charge it out to the individual communities," Rose declared. "I want to get it cleared up for the sake of Robert Little and everybody concerned. I expect to get it cleared up within a week."

Little's Comment
"I have nothing to hide," Little said in connection with the surplus property purchases he has made. "I have tried to get this equipment as we could for rural fire fighting units. I know where all of it is and it can be used for civil defense anytime it is needed."

As CD property officer for Pitt County, Little has secured from the federal surplus property warehouse in Raleigh numerous items to be used for equipping rural fire fighting units particularly at Simpson and Eastern Pines in the eastern part of the county. Some items also have been secured for similar units at Fountain and Pactolus.

The unit at Eastern Pines is being sponsored by the men's club there and the unit at Simpson is being sponsored by the Ruritan Club, Little said.

Items purchased, Little said, have been paid for by these groups and by individuals in the communities. County officials explained that items purchased in this manner are charged to the county by the federal surplus property agency in Raleigh, Little has turned the money for the items over to the county auditor, H. Reginald Gray, and Gray in turn has written county checks for the items.

Gray explained that such transactions are handled through the Board of Education revolving fund which is credited for the amounts received from Little in return for the checks written.

Meet The Mayor's Wife Likes To Sew, Cook

MRS. S. P. PETERSON . . . spends many hours sewing her 10-year-old daughter's, Frankie Lou, school wardrobe.

By PEGGY SMITH
Reflector Woman's Editor

With only four weeks before summer Mrs. S. P. Peterson, wife of newly-elected mayor of Ayden, is getting her kitchen prepared for the annual preserving of garden foods.

Canning tomatoes, tomato juice, May peas, squash and corn keeps her quite busy during the early weeks of summer.

Sewing school clothes for her 10-year-old daughter, Frankie Lou, completes her summer sparetime. Using a great-grandmother's sewing machine, Mrs. Peterson creates Frankie Lou's complete wardrobe.

"Creating something with my hands could easily be called my hobby, because prior to my marriage I crocheted a bedspread and rug and spent every spare moment sewing. Since my daughter began school I've kept busy making casual things for her and myself," Mrs. Peterson noted.

Recently during her husband's campaign, Mrs. Peterson's 11 years of secretarial work came in handy. She assisted with the approximately 1,200 letters sent by her husband to the voters of Ayden.

The Peterson family cooks out-of-doors at least once a week during the summer and have a charcoal dinner from their fireplace in winter. "Usually steak and ribs since they're my husband's favorite food."

It's not all work and no play at the Peterson home, according to the wife.

They are planning to leave Tuesday for a 10-day stay at the beach.

While in Ayden, the Petersons occasionally attend private dances and those sponsored by civic or worthwhile organizations. They play bridge weekly with a couple at home.

After her husband takes office, Mrs. Peterson will be looking forward to meeting people in the political and social field. She hopes to become better acquainted with the way in which a town is run.

Improving Ayden's recreational facilities is one of her husband's major ambitions for the future, said Mrs. Peterson.

Informal Party Follows Exercises

GRIFTON—Mrs. Thurman Williams and Mrs. Richard Nelson held "Open House" Monday night at the home of Mrs. Williams following the commencement exercises at the high school.

Miss Vivian Nelson poured punch and Mrs. Clay Burney and Edna Nelson assisted in serving cheese, straws, fruit-filled individual cakes and other party dainties. Approximately 75 friends and parents of the graduating class called.

Gardening Today

By JOHN G. DUNCAN

Insects that attack trees and shrubs can be divided into three classes. Each class has its own way of causing damage to its host. Each insect can be detected by the type of injury it inflicts. In class number one are the leaf-eating insects. They consume parts of the leaf tissue. Holes in the leaf tissue destroyed between the veins, parts of leaf eaten off.

In class number two are the sucking insects. They suck the leaves causing a change in the color of the leaf. They suck the plant juices by attaching themselves to limb or twig.

In class number three are the borers. They bore into the limbs, twigs, and main trunk. They not only weaken the structure of the tree, but diseases are often introduced into the tree by way of the tunnels they bore. Borers in the cambium area often girdle and kill the tree.

The following are a few of the insects of all three classes:

Leaf Eating Insects—Japanese beetles, bag worms, elm leaf beetle, webworm, cankerworm, holly leaf miner, catalpa sphinx, tussock moth, sawfly and locust leaf miner.

Sucking Insects—Aphids, mites, scales, lace bugs, mealy bugs and bark louse.

Borers—Flat head borer, round head borer, carpenter worm, dogwood bark borer, locust borer.

These are but a few of the insects that damage trees. But the type of injury in each class is almost the same. To sum up the types of injuries and give you something to work from, the following may help you:

Leaf Eaters—Holes in leaves, tissue destroyed, parts of leaf chewed off.

Sucking Insects—Leaf unhealthy-looking, grayish, red faded green, yellowish, wrinkled. (These symptoms may be caused by other agencies, but any such should cause you to look for the sucking insect.)

Borers—Piles of sawdust on ground or on bark, dead limbs, dead twigs, tree has unthrifty appearance. While this is not a complete list it may help you give your trees and shrubs a better chance to survive the battle of the 'bug.

Control

Leaf Eaters—Spray that leaves residue on leaves (arsenate of lead), DDT (wetttable powder), Malathion (wetttable powder).

Sucking Insects—Spray that kills on contact; Malathion EC, Black Leaf 40, Summer Oil, Dormant Oil (spray when leaves are off tree for scales on twigs and limbs).

Borers—Injection of fumigant in borers' tunnel. This type of work is best done by a tree surgeon.

Clean up under trees and shrubs and burn all fallen twigs and diseased leaves. Keep all debris such as boards, piles of trash, etc. These harbor insects in one form or another.

When you use insecticides read all printed matter on labels and follow instructions.

Mrs. Mary Harvey, girl scout director, was presented the president's pin after acceptance of the charter from the governor of the district, Mrs. Mabel Hess, of Charlotte, and a Pilot going from the sponsoring club, Raleigh. The Raleigh club also assisted in the organization of the Greenville club and presented a song to Greenville September 12, 1957.

Miss Frances Jolly Is Married

Mrs. Charles Alexander Horn

GAFFNEY, S. C.—In the First Baptist Church, Miss Frances Geraldine Jolly was married on May 28 in the afternoon to Charles Alexander Horn, with the Rev. Denver Davis officiating at the double ring ceremony.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Allen Jolly of Ayden, N. C., is a rising senior at Wake Forest College in Winston-Salem, N. C., pursuing a BS degree, and will complete her education at Bowman Gray with a year of Medical Technology.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Coleman Horn of Shelby, N. C., will receive his BS degree at Wake Forest College in June and will continue his education in law. He is a member of the Sigma Phi Epsilon and Phi Alpha Delta Fraternities.

For the ceremony the bride wore a sheath dress of white eyelet trimmed with silk shantung. The matching waist length jacket had short sleeves. Her outfit was completed with a veil trimmed, small white hat, and her other accessories were white. She carried a white prayer book topped with roses and a white orchid.

Immediately following the wedding the couple left for an extended honeymoon to Augusta, Ga. and Daytona Beach, Fla. For traveling Mrs. Horn changed to a pink silk dress fashioned with a tucked bodice, trimmed with matching lace, attached to a full skirt. She also wore matching accessories and the orchid lifted from her prayer book.

Upon their return from their wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Horn will spend the summer in Shelby and will resume their studies at Wake Forest College in the fall.

Mrs. W. E. Debnan, Mrs. Helen Hawes, Miss Elizabeth Libbette, Mrs. J. E. Kirtrell, Mrs. R. C. Stokes, Mrs. Joe Moye, and Mrs. Jesse Moye were guests Tuesday when Mrs. J. J. Perkins entertained members of the Athenaeum Book Club in her home on West Fourth St.

On arrival, the hostess served a three course luncheon assisted by Mrs. Joe Moye and Mrs. Jesse Moye.

The home was decorated with spring arrangements on varied colored flowers. The dining room table was covered with a lace cloth centered with a silver bowl filled with snapdragons and carnations.

Members were seated at auxiliary tables centered with white rosebuds in the living room and sun porch.

Much merriment was offered by each member as they told of experiences or events they had read.

Mrs. J. J. White received the president's gavel and will begin her duties next fall.

To Work In Africa This Summer

Dr. Bessie McNeil, Director of the Department of Home Economics at East Carolina College, read last year in the bulletin of the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church of Greenville a request from Kindu, Belgian Congo, that members correspond with their missionaries, the Reverend and Mrs. Kenneth Jones.

Her answer to this appeal began a cordial correspondence between the young couple in Africa and Dr. McNeil. The result is that the East Carolina professor will use her knowledge and experience as a home economist to assist the Joneses during June, July, and August with their work in teaching family life and nutrition to the Congolese.

Dr. McNeil's summer in Africa is being sponsored and financed by the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church of Greenville, to which she belongs. Her work in the Belgian Congo has been approved by the Mission Board of the North Carolina Annual Conference of the Methodist Church and the National Board of Missions of the Methodist Church.

Leaving this country June 2, Dr. McNeil will travel by air. At stops along the way, she will visit two of her former East Carolina students of home economics whose husbands are in service abroad—Percy and Gretchen Askew Evans near Frankfurt, Germany, and Jimmy and Maxie Tingle in Naples, Italy.

Dr. McNeil will be located in Kindu, a 1000 miles east of Leopoldville and three degrees south of the equator. At that, she will be cooler than if she were in Greenville, for high altitude gives the African city pleasant weather. A large place, Kindu has a population of about 1,000 Europeans and 30,000 Congolese.

A letter from the Joneses to Dr. McNeil gives an idea of the useful activities in which she will be engaged during the summer months.

"Generally", they wrote, "we hope to give help by way of stressing healthful practices in the preparation of food, the necessity to take anti-malarial medicines, laundering methods to make clothes last, the efficiency of hot water instead of cold, how to sew

Elected Official Rightly At Top

The House Education Committee has decided—and rightly so—that the Superintendent of Public Instruction should be the top authority in public education matters in North Carolina.

Action of the legislative committee, we trust, will bring to an end the vague dispute which has been going on between the Superintendent and the Board of Education as to the division of powers and authority. If the dispute continues, it may well develop into a running battle which could only result in handicapping public education in North Carolina.

In simple terms the matter decided by the House Education Committee was whether the Superintendent of Public Instruction, an elected official and a constitutional officer, should have final authority in organizing the Department of Public Instruction, or whether that authority should rest in the hands of the appointed Board of Education. The committee took the right position in its decision that the authority should rest in the hands of the Superintendent of Public Instruction.

If an elected official is not free to organize the department which carries on the activities for which he is responsible, how can he expect to discharge the responsibilities which are placed upon him? If he must look to an appointive board rather than to the people who elected him for authority, what is the use of having him elected by the people?

The bill introduced by Rep. Watts Hill, Jr. of Durham would have made the appointive Board of Education superior to the Superintendent of Public Instruction who is elected by the voters of the state.

Less To Study Commissions

By LYNN NISBET

STUDIES — The current General Assembly has not been as eager to pass the buck on controversial matters to study commissions as have been some of its predecessors. The study commission route has been a favorite device when majority of the legislators felt they lacked authoritative data upon which to base action. The method also has contributed a great deal to sound legislation.

The retirement system, the consolidation of the University, mental hospitals, correctional schools and other institutions were given long and careful study by special groups before being implemented. More recently the Department of Administration and other governmental reorganizations, including revamping of the highway commission and an independent prison system, resulted from study commissions authorized by previous sessions.

Currently the revision of the Constitution is the biggest item before the assembly, except money, and the matters in controversy are based on reports and recommendations of two study groups.

The appropriations and revenue bills are based on continuing study of conditions by the Advisory Budget Commission, intensified during the six months prior to convening of the General Assembly. The budget report is accompanied each time by budget bills implementing its recommendations. These bills have great prestige, although in every instance they have undergone revision at hands of the Legislature. The statutes require the Governor as director of the budget to transmit the report and the bills early in each session.

RECOMMENDATIONS — Most legislators recognize the value of not necessity, of research and compilation of data as basis for important legislation. An increasing number, however, are manifesting resentment at the prestige claimed for recommendations of the study groups. Rarely are the factual findings of study groups challenged, except on grounds — and that not often — that the study has not been thorough enough.

Considerable objection has been raised to the implementing bills offered by the commission and supported by claims that "these fine men and women have given thought to these matters, and their recommendations should be honored." One veteran legislator said the other day he was getting tired of the implication that the folks who assembled the data knew more about what to do with it than he or other members.

Obviously it would have seriously handicapped the Superintendent in carrying out his duties and making the policy decisions which are required of him. It would have required an elective official to go to the people for his votes and then go to an appointive board for the answers to important questions about how public education should be conducted in North Carolina.

It would have created a situation which would have been completely unsatisfactory under the present arrangement.

Action of the House Committee indicates the confidence which members of the committee—and we believe the people of the state—have in the present system of administering public school affairs of North Carolina. It is a system which should not be changed in order to give a board appointed by the governor complete authority over a constitutional officer elected by the people of the state.

Memorial Day Toll Need Not Be So Bad

The real menace on the highway is the selfish, aggressive and impulsive driver concludes the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads, after digesting an assortment of accident data.

That pretty well sums up the feeling of a lot of people; but the Bureau's other findings are real eye-openers.

For instance: most highway accidents happen at low speeds and the lower-powered cars are the most dangerous on the road.

And 75-mile-an-hour is not an especially dangerous speed; the rate of accidents at 40 mph is much higher. This, the Bureau qualifies by adding that speed doesn't necessarily cause accidents but a motorist is more likely to be injured or killed while driving fast.

Military drivers, says the report, and not women, are the worst drivers; daytime travel is twice as safe as night driving with the best between 9 and 11 a.m., and worst after midnight.

All this would be beside the point if it were not that Memorial Day weekend is at hand and the National Safety Council warns that 226 motorists may be dying on highways in that period.

It isn't necessary.

A reasonable amount of caution; a little bit of courtesy and less of the "me-first" attitude can spell a lot of difference between what the Safety Council fears may happen and what the holiday holds for the motoring public.

New Labor Bill Is In Sad Shape

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — The labor control bill, given a big sendoff by the Senate, is in sad shape now.

In the Senate on April 25 it got about the faintest endorsement any measure could hope for, short of a unanimous vote. The vote was 90-1.

Since both houses have to vote for a measure before it can become law, the Senate-passed bill went over to the House for action. There the Labor Committee held, and is still holding, hearings.

A massacre began:

1. President Eisenhower and Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell wanted the Senate bill tightened up.

2. Big labor and big business both came out against it; labor because it says the bill is too tough, business because it thinks the bill isn't tough enough.

3. The 30 members of the House committee are reportedly split every which way on the kind of bill they think is needed.

So, if some kind of labor control bill ever gets out of the committee for House action — chances are it won't — it's pretty certain any bill passed by the House will be different from the one the Senate blessed.

That would require House and Senate to get together and compromise on a single bill, since no bill can become law unless both houses agree on every detail.

Such a compromised agreement might be impossible to get before Congress quits this summer.

Eisenhower and Mitchell want the House to include provisions left out by the Senate: to deal with blackmail picketing and secondary boycotts.

The AFL-CIO called the Senate bill a mess and a monstrosity. Its president, George Meany, said his organization would support legislation it considered appropriate for helping unions curb corruption.

But he said amendments written into the labor bill in the Senate would hurt union activity and hinder instead of encouraging democratic union procedures. The huge AFL-CIO promised a battle to get the Senate bill changed in the House.

The U. S. Chamber of Commerce and the National Assn. of Manufacturers, like the AFL-CIO, have made a section by section analysis of the Senate bill.

The NAM said the Senate bill "falls woefully, in the opinion of experts, to meet the desperate need for curbing the monopoly power of union bosses." It wants unions put under antitrust laws and barred from any form of compulsory union membership. And it wants picketing and boycott laws tightened.

William Barton, the Chamber's general counsel, said his organization frankly would prefer no changes in labor law this year to seeing the Senate bill become law.

He said it would fool people into thinking an effective anticorruption measure had been passed when, he argued, such would not be true.

On top of all this James Hoffa, the Teamsters' Union president, angered Congress when he was quoted — although he later denied it — as threatening a nationwide strike if Congress passed a labor control bill he didn't like.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

BEYOND HUMAN IMAGINATION

Lay your hand on the table before you. The table seems a solid substance indeed.

But, of course, it is not solid. It is a whirling mass of electrons. The wide open spaces are of the greatest area. We look out on the beauty of a landscape. How quiet and serene! But, of course, there is nothing serene about it. The earth is spinning on its axis eighteen miles a minute and on its orbit eighteen miles a second. In addition, the poles are moving back and forth creating the different seasons. If we can imagine a person put in some sort of receptacle resembling an electric clothes drier, and whirled about as you and I are being whirled about every second, the result, of course, would be quick death.

Yet you and I go through this intense agitation all the time, and by the mercy of God are utterly unaware of it.

Certainly some place in God's vast domain there must indeed be rest — no motion whatsoever. Many people scoff about the heavenly rest means a material order of things in which there is no motion whatsoever. If this be true, we may well imagine what effect it would have upon both our bodies and souls. This would be heaven indeed. Of course, we would have to be utterly changed in order to be adaptable to such conditions.

But the Bible definitely states that we shall be changed. "We shall all be changed." In the twinkling of an eye. Change — and this kind of change spells heaven.

More Than For Football

By ALVIN TAYLOR

We don't know what the world is coming to when more spectators attend a college's graduation ceremonies than show up for the institution's football games.

That's what happened at East Carolina College last Sunday. Personally we don't consider it such a bad situation.

Ah, me, these lawyers.

The other day your columnist met Attorney Lubie Stocks and John Ray Hardy, vice president of State Bank on Main St.

John stopped to chat with yours truly about a picture he needed and Lubie waited impatiently on the sidelines.

The conversation took considerable time and finally Lubie broke in impatiently.

"Come on, let's go," he said to John. "All the good I'm gaining by being seen with you (meaning John) I'm losing by being seen with him (meaning your columnist)."

The two scurried off to who knows where. Your columnist slunk away dejectedly.

And for the folks who found that their names were not on the registration books after standing in long lines for the recent municipal election, here's a story that will make you feel better.

Box Cox, a Chapel Hill merchant, is president of the National Union Chamber of Commerce this year. As head of the Jaycee organization Cox was required to move with his family to Tulsa, Oklahoma.

But Cox is still counted as a citizen of Chapel Hill so when they had their municipal election he flew all the way from Tulsa to Chapel Hill to vote.

But when he arrived and presented himself at the polling headquarters, he was turned away. Seems he hadn't registered.

Finally to steal a little thunder from the sports page we might point out that National Play Tennis Week is virtually breathing down our backs.

The week will be observed June 1 to 7, according to the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

Other Editors Saying No Sterilized Textbooks

(Greensboro Daily News)

Reorganization of the State Textbook Commission may have its merits, and with "multiple selection" rather than "single adoption" of textbooks we'll go along. But legislation to curb selection of books and make them conform to some individual's or pressure group's opinions or ideas we strongly oppose.

For that reason we question sharply the bill offered by Rep. Rachel D. Davis, Kinston obstetrician, who frankly admits that she does not like what is taught in some of the textbooks now used by North Carolina schools. Dr. Davis is afraid of socialism. We've just looked over the present textbook commission, and not a single socialist do we detect.

The Lenoir County representative surely should not be surprised that her own professional background and affiliations were brought into discussion of her bill. The American Medical Association has voiced similar criticism, and one of the speakers at the North Carolina Medical Society's annual convention in Asheville recently took the same tack.

Dr. Davis, in introducing her measure for textbook commission overhauling, stated that it had been requested by a group of Kinston citizens, headed by an attorney and former member of the House. A clearer picture of this group is desirable. How many persons does it include and how many of her fellow practitioners are among them?

Some of North Carolina's textbooks may not be what they should be. But the people of the state, we are confident, do not wish them to be chosen by the General Assembly, to be tossed in or out on political currents and to let either the A.M.A. or the N.C.M.S. do their selecting. "Multiple selection" rather than "single adoption," already being taken care of in another measure, is something else again; it would provide a desirable variation and flexibility. But under any reorganization plan the state superintendent of public instruction should retain a key role and not be frozen out of an inescapable professional understanding, knowledge and responsibility. It is too bad that good aspects of a new textbook program should be mixed up with bad and disturbing factors.

Representative Davis, defeated in her unorthodox effort to deal with unwed mothers, will be shown, we trust, that North Carolina does not want its textbooks sterilized either.

More Evidence Of Dizzy Doings

By ELMER ROESSNER

We keep telling the boys down at the Turkish baths that business is a crazy, mixed up institution, but they keep saying we're wrong. Here's some more evidence to show that we're right:

A tax claim of $702,241 against a bankrupt Oklahoma company was reduced to $15. Even at today's prices, one can get quite a few pounds of flesh for $15.

Two Wisconsin University biochemists have discovered that most of cheeses' flavors are carried in the fat, but they have not yet isolated the flavoring chemical substances. . . Roads are being built in a German factory. Sites are leveled and gravel bases leveled, then 8-inch-thick slabs of precast concrete are laid. The system saves four or five weeks.

Power steering, air conditioning, and automatic transmission increase gasoline consumption about 40 per cent, one study shows.

JOB OVERSEAS

Tax-free income is the inducement offered by insurance companies seeking men to sell insurance in military camps in Europe. . . J. R. Prentice, one of the nation's largest suppliers of bull semen, has denied Federal Trade Commission charges that his dealings with distributors are in restraint of trade. . . The only thing ten years old about some imported wines are the labels, complains Ernest Gallo, chairman of the Wine Institute.

Radio executives are paid more than television executives. Printers' ink learned from a J.K. Lasser study.

Don't shoot if you see a man in a German Afrika Korps Desert Cap. They are now being imported for sale to American males. . . A Niagara Falls, N.Y., retailer advertises, "We can get it for you retail." . . A midtown motel is planned for New York. It will have fourteen stories on top of a 300-acre garage at 12th Ave. and 42nd St.

LENGTHENED HOLIDAYS

One-third of New York City businesses will be closed tomorrow, and 38 per cent will be closed Friday, July 3, to give employees three-day holiday weekends. . . A cabana that folds into a suitcase is being marketed by Max Hess, the Allentown (Pa.) merchant. . . Dunn & Bradstreet reports there were 14,964 failures last year with losses of $728,258,000 — a sum exceeded only in 1931 and 1932.

A Wisconsin brewer describes his beer as having vitality, quest, bristly and thring, which you will find in no dictionary.

Belgium and Switzerland had more money per capita in circulation at the start of the year than did the United States. The Swiss per capita was $294.51; the Belgian, $271.63. We had only $183.31 a head. . . Department store sales will soar 5 per cent above last year's totals, the National Retail Merchants Association predicts. . . By spreading a $1.25 handkerchief on the floor, some carpet salesmen are proving that carpeting is cheaper than handkerchiefs. A square foot of $10-a-year carpeting costs only $1.10.

FORTUNE PROVES "WORK" IS AN UGLY WORD

Fifteen per cent of all personal income today comes from NOT working, the current Fortune points out.

Its figures show that social security, life insurance, private pension, federal program, state and local program, dividend, interest and rent incomes amount to a seventh of the total national income.

It observed that in 1949 there were 2,790,000 able-bodied Americans not working or looking for work; today there are 5,300,000. About 1,500,000 are under 65.

Faults In His World

By REILMAN MORIN

NEW YORK (AP) — Hal Boyle the regular steward of this space, frequently turns poor man's philosopher and makes with homely observations on the passing show. In his absence — Hal is revisiting Europe — I take the liberty of introducing substitute, sort of a Poor Poor Man's Philosopher, in the person of one of America's foremost architects.

Edward Durrell Stone came to fame from Fayetteville, Ark., which he calls "the Athens of the Ozarks." In appearance, manner and mountain drawl, he greatly resembles the late Arkansas comedian, Bob Burns.

He built the American pavilion in the Brussels World's Fair last year, along with museums, embassies, industrial plants, private homes and other structures. His new medical center for Stanford University opens next fall. With financier Robert Dowling, he is currently working on a replanning project for downtown Akron, Ohio.

Architects generally have pronounced views on subjects not closely related to cantilevers and free-flowing living space. Here is Edward Stone on some aspects of the American scene:

The American Male — "I think a woman's job is to rehabilitate not only the physical appearance of this country, but the male himself. She must get him out of a hula shirt and into a dinner jacket. At present, while she may be wearing a lovely, diaphanous frock, he looks like an unmade bed or a one-man slum."

Cities — "Politicians always say that if the opposition candidate is elected to office, grass will grow on Main street. Of course, this is exactly what should happen."

Modernism — "Don't be modern. Being modern simply consists of closing your mind to 2,500 years of Western culture and remaining content to copy the next-door neighbor's glass building, house, chair, drapery and poodle — I have two tests by which you can readily determine whether you are modern or not. If you prefer a bent chrome chair to a rocker, or a high-powered car to a horse-drawn carriage, you need therapy."

The Countryside — "Someone has said that in this era of prosperity and abundance we seem to be able to afford everything but beauty."

Highways — "All highways should be free of billboards and hamburger joints. All should be tree-lined. Recently, a high official of the automobile industry recommended that all trees should be cut down along the highways as menace to motorists. Perhaps the industry could eliminate four feet of vulgarity, over the length of the car, and better spend the money creating destinations for motorists."

The American Home — "Twenty years ago we had living rooms of 20 by 30 feet. Now you can only tell a room from a closet by the hook strip on the wall."

American Customs — "The current rage for informality in American life is a lame excuse for laziness. It is obviously easier to feed children hamburgers in the back yard than it is to have them sit at a dinner table. This all stems from California, which, by the way, Fred Allen said was a fine place if you were an orange."

Creativeness — "If you are jealous of your ideas, it is a sign you have too few."

Out-of-doors — "Long ago the government made the farmer realize it is unprofitable to plow land down the hill and let it wash away. Now the government forests. But I know of no laws that prevent us from despoiling our beautiful physical heritage. We do everything rapidly in this country and I think that in 30 or 40 years we have converted it from the most beautiful country to one of the ugliest."

The American Woman — "H. L. Mencken said no man should ever make an important decision without first consulting his wife — simply because she is a creature of superior intelligence. There is nothing more terrifying to the male than a woman with a worthwhile cause."

Character — "Always keep a few character defects handy. People love to talk about your frailties. If you must be noble, keep it to yourself."

WINTERVILLE — Two Greene county teenagers won over other boys and girls from Greene, Pitt and Lenoir Counties in the annual School Bus Drivers Rodeo held here yesterday.

Carolyn Ginn of Route 3, Snow Hill won over three other girls while Lewis Henry Stocks, III, of Hookerton beat out 13 boys for the winning positions.

Stocks will be given a $100 scholarship by Hackney Brothers Body Company of Wilson while Miss Ginn will receive a $100 scholarship from the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company of Winston-Salem. The prizes will be awarded next Thursday by company representatives at the monthly meeting of the Pitt County Safety Council.

Both Miss Ginn and Stocks will travel to Chapel Hill June 12-13 for the state finals. The winner of the state contest, both in the boy and girl divisions, will receive $500 scholarships while the runner-ups will receive $200 awards.

Twelve Pitt County and five Greene County Drivers took part in the rodeo while Lenoir County was represented by their county champion, James Edgar Hoover of Contentnea School.

According to Russell T. Rogerson of Greenville, Driver Education Representative of the State Department of Motor Vehicles, both the winners have outstanding records at their schools, with both serving as Marshalls and members of the Beta Club. Rogerson added both plan to attend college.

The annual school bus rodeo was organized four years ago by the Governors Traffic Safety Council to provide a stimulus for greater safety and skill on the part of the bus drivers.

Assign 2 Negro Pupils To School

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Two Negro students have been assigned to city white schools here for the 1959-60 school year. It will mark the third year of integrated schools here.

The Charlotte School Board Thursday assigned Nathaniel Abraham to the white Eastway Junior High School. Abraham, who will be in the seventh grade, attended the Shamrock Gardens Elementary School as the only Negro student in the school this year.

The other assignment was that of Fannie Waterman to the new Garinger High School. The Negro girl attended Central High this year. Garinger High was built to replace Central which will be turned into a vocational school.

The assignments were part of 28,000 made by the school board for the next school year. There is the possibility that more Negroes will apply to attend white schools.

Four Negroes attended white schools this year. The two others were Girvaud Roberts, who attended Piedmont Junior High, and her brother, Gus, who will be the first Negro student to be graduated from Central High next week. Girvaud was reassigned to Second Ward, a Negro high school, for next year.

Just Like A Fish, The Fingerling Didn't Show

Approximately 50 farmers waited in trucks and cars with assorted pots, pans, lard stands, barrels, and other containers at the Soil Conservation office yesterday.

They were there for the scheduled arrival of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service truck which was to bring bass fingerlings for stocking their farm ponds.

The 3 o'clock scheduled hour of arrival came and went but the usually punctual truck driver did not show up.

An hour passed and still he had not arrived.

Someone suggested to Soil Conservationist Connor Eagles that he call up the road to see what had happened to the truck.

"Call where," Eagles replied. "He has a half dozen stops scheduled. He might be anywhere."

Finally as the sun hung low in the western sky, Eagles received a call.

There had been a mix-up in the schedule the fish truck driver on the other end of the line told Eagles. He hadn't understood he was supposed to come to Greenville so at his last stop before this city he had turned around and gone home.

Eagles told the farmers. They

Sports Scope

by Johnny Hudson

This past weekend, the New York Yankees took two straight victories from Baltimore and the cry went up that the Yanks were over the slump and were ready to aim for another pennant.

The joyous cries again turned to tears as the Yanks sputtered once again. Last night Holt Wilhelm, a National League castoff and a North Carolina native spun his second straight shutout at the Yanks and sent them 1½ games back in the cellar and 8½ from the position which they have held so long.

The continuous question is asked. "What has happened to the Yankees?" New York fans have little to say while "Yankee haters", quiet for so long, have been in their glory.

Byrne Cites Failure

Tommy Byrne, former Yankee pitching star, vows in a recent interview with the Raleigh Times, that New York will come back and at the same time blames Casey Stengel for the club's failure this year.

"I think Stengel's popping off in the spring about some of his players damaged the team a great deal. It has definitely had a reaction on the players. When I was down there during spring training it was obvious that the players resented his remarks," stated Byrne.

Athletics Are Farm Club

Kansas City is continuously criticised for their numerous trades with the Yankees. They have been tabbed as "the Yankee Farm Club" and with some reason. In most cases, the players involved in the deals have become stars in the New York uniform while Kansas City has continued to dwell in the second division.

On paper, the A's gained very little in their recent trade with New York. They gave up Ralph Terry (2-4), a young pitcher with a big future, and Hector Lopez, a hard-hitting young infielder.

In exchange, they gained two pitchers who have failed to win a game this year and an infielder batting less than .250. Jerry Lumpe, the infielder involved, has also been having his troubles afield.

The Kansas City high brass stated that Terry and Lopez had good futures ahead but "we need somebody that can help us now." The Yankees moving over to KC have had good years in the past but their immediate help is doubtful. The reasoning of the Athletics' officials seems off base and only strengthens their label as "The Yanks Farm Club".

Elephant Draws Criticism

Speaking of Kansas City, the venerable elephant symbol of the A's was criticised again yesterday by city councilmen who want to see a Kansas City insignia on the uniforms. (Only one Republican is on the council).

A resolution favored a heart insignia on the uniform sleeves—representing the Kansas City slogan, "Heart of America."

Councilman Charles Schaeffer said beneath the heart should be printed the words "Farm Club of the New York Yankees"—a reference to the many deals between the clubs.

Bengals Make Steady Climb

In pre-season predictions, we picked Detroit for a first or second place finish. The Tigers started slow but have been the hottest club in the league since a change of managers.

The Bengals have started getting good pitching and with hitters such as Harvey Kuenn and Al Kaline, should continue to climb in the American League race. They have won 15 of their last 22 games to move from the cellar into sixth place.

Bob Magee Trains On Big Cigars For Golfing Fame

SANDWICH, England (AP)—"I train on 15 cigars a day and I play $10 Nassau to keep me sharp. I'm the son of a Welsh rarebit manufacturer and I never won a thing in golf."

"I'm a bum and I ask you—what am I doing playing a guy like Bill Hyndman in the semifinals of the British Amateur Golf Championship?"

Bob Magee, an American Army lieutenant, fired up the first cigar of the day—a great Churchill-size thing—and walked out of the clubhouse of Royal St. George's to meet the great Hyndman.

"The last time I saw this Hyndman guy was when I had to buy a ticket to watch him play. Now people are buying tickets to watch Hyndman and me play golf."

"This is pretty good company for a driving range golfer like me," said the 28-year-old Magee who comes from Newton, Mass.

"I'm hitting my irons like I did it for a living and I've been listening real closely to what my

Bud Daley Comes Through For A's With Big Wins

By ED WILKS

Associated Press Sports Writer

Time was when Bud Daley was just "the other guy" in player trades. Now he's the sturdy Kansas City southpaw who has allowed just two runs while knocking off American League leading Cleveland and runner-up Chicago in his last two starts.

Daley, a lefty because his right hand was injured at birth, got his chance as a starter two weeks ago, only to lose 3-2 at New York after pitching a three-hit shutout for eight innings.

Thursday night he made his third start and followed up Saturday's four-hit shutout (16-0) over Chicago with a 7-2 breeze against Cleveland that sliced the Indians.

Greenville Tobacco Company upset league-leading Exchange yesterday afternoon by a score of 3-2, and in doing so moved into first place in the Tar Heel League.

The conference's new team opened with a bang as they collected three big runs in the first inning. The Exchange pushed across single runs in the second and third innings.

In the first inning, Greenville Tobacco Company led off with a single by John Horne and then Charles Rogers drew a walk. Beamon then unleashed his second four-bagger of the season, driving in all three runs.

Beamon pitched for the winners and received credit for his second victory against no defeats. Van Stubbs went all the way for the Exchange. He allowed only three hits throughout being charged with the defeat.

Tomorrow afternoon there will be a doubleheader with Pepsi-Cola and the Moose playing at 3:00. The second game will be between the VFW and the Lions.

Hurts Shutout In Softball League

Immanuel Baptist continued their winning ways last night as Bissette hurled a seldom-seen shutout in the Church Softball League. The final score saw the Baptists whitewash Hooker Memorial Christian, 8-0, at Guy Smith Stadium.

The Baptists broke the scoreless tie with a single run in the fourth inning. They broke loose with four more in the fifth and climaxed the scoring with three in the sixth.

Yohn led the winners with three hits. Monde and Lancaster had two hits each with the latter blasting a homer in the sixth inning.

Bissette gave up only four hits in blanking Hooker Memorial. It was the fourth win of the season for Immanuel Baptist. They have lost only one game in the past two years.

They said mud clouding the water at the mouth of the Brazos River had thwarted them. They said they had sighted three or four tarpon.

D'Amato Asserts Fight Site Set

NEW YORK (AP)—Peace, at last, settled on the troubled Floyd Patterson - Ingemar Johansson heavyweight title fight promotion.

How long the peace treaty—or truce—will remain in effect, considering the volatile characters involved, remains to be seen.

Anyway Manager Gus D'Amato says his champion positively will risk his crown against Johansson, the undefeated challenger from Sweden, at Yankee Stadium, June 25.

His statement came after promoter Bill Rosenzohn had blasted him in the newspapers and on radio and television.

Rosenzohn had charged that D'Amato told him he was thinking of moving the fight out of New York. The manager was angry at the New York Athletic Commission's action in rejecting lunch-cosmetic owner Harry Davidow's application to become the "10 per cent" manager of Johansson.

"I feel that the commission acted precipitously, but in the public interest I feel obliged to abide by this decision," said D'Amato in his two-page statement.

"At no time did I state that the fight would be held elsewhere than in New York," D'Amato added. "I hope that henceforth I will be able to concentrate on the job of getting Patterson ready to prove to all that he is the great champion."

Baffling Losing Streak Broken For Bob Friend

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The most baffling losing streak of the National League season is ended. Bob Friend owns his first victory of 1959.

The veteran right-hander hurled his first complete game in 11 starts Thursday while blanking the first place Milwaukee Braves 3-0 with a masterful four-hitter.

"Thank goodness that's over," Friend sighed. "After seven straight losses I was wondering if I'd ever win another one. But I think I've regained the winning touch."

Friend's victories last season tied him with the Braves' Warren Spahn for top winning honors. "I've been snake-bit for six weeks," Friend said. "I started pressing and that's been a big part of my trouble."

"However, I think I actually ended the jinx last Sunday against Cincinnati. I only went eight innings and didn't win the game, but I felt more relaxed. The feeling carried over against the Braves."

Comedian Bud Abbott Has Lost His All To The Tax Collectors

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Comedian Bud Abbott, who made a fortune as straight man for the late Lou Costello, says he's playing a mirthless duo with the tax collector these days.

"The way it looks now, I'll be in debt until the day I die," the long-faced performer told newsmen Thursday.

He said he was broke, unemployed and far in tax arrears. He's selling his home to pay some of what he owes.

"No matter what I earn," Abbott said, "I still won't be able to get clear with the government. What's the use of working? They'll take everything."

Load Of Tar On His Front Yard

HOWARD CITY, Mich. (AP)—It may be a short summer of grass cutting for Vernard Garlinghouse.

A tandem truck loaded with 4,600 gallons of tar tipped over on Garlinghouse's front lawn, spreading a sticky mass almost to the front door.

City trucks and fire fighting equipment cleaned up the roadway but could do little for the Garlinghouse lawn.

The truck driver said he lost control of his vehicle on a curve.

Costello died March 3 and left an estate of $200,000—as much as he often earned from a single movie. His widow said Costello had settled his tax matters before his death.

How did Abbott get in permanent hook to Uncle Sam?

"I don't know," he replied. "I didn't make any bad investments. I lived conservatively—well, conservative for show biz. You know how it is, I ran open bar, 24 hours a day at my recreation room, when Lou and me were on top."

"Funny thing—I must have had 3,000 friends, all dropping in for movies and a swim in the pool and free drinks."

"Not a one of them around now," he sighed. "And I don't even own the recreation room or the pool any more."

He shook his head and asked: "Where in the world did it all go?"

Bridge Sites To Be Inspected

EDENTON, N.C. (AP)—Members of the State Highway Commission planned to go today to Alligator River and Oregon Inlet to inspect the sites of proposed bridges.

At Thursday's meeting here, the commission approved awarding low bids totaling more than $1½ million dollars on 28 road improvement projects. They included eight projects on the interstate system.

The commission deferred action on a request from the Haywood County commissioners to extend N.C. 10 from Woodrow to Rosman, a distance of 33 miles.

It turned down a request that U.S. mail trucks be given space priorities on the Alligator River and Oregon Inlet ferries.

Boy Wounded In Pistol Accident

EL PASO, Tex. (AP)—An 11-year-old El Paso boy remained in serious condition early today as a result of a bullet wound in his abdomen.

Tony Wilson, 11, apparently shot himself in the abdomen Wednesday and spent Wednesday night in the desert alone.

A companion, Fred Graub Jr., 11, told military authorities that he became frightened after Wilson shot himself while attempting to unjam the gun. He told military authorities that he and Wilson had stolen the gun.

The boys were target shooting on a military firing range.

Hewlett Hopes For June 10 Adjournment

Uncompromising Policy On China Not To Be Eased

COLUMBIA (AP)—This nation's hard boiled policy toward Red China, as fostered by the late Secretary of State Dulles, was outlined here today by Walter S. Robertson, assistant secretary of state for far Eastern affairs.

It was obvious from his remarks that Dulles' death has brought no immediate change in U.S. diplomacy toward China.

In uncompromising terms, Robertson told about 800 graduating University of South Carolina students that the Red Chinese government is "an implacable enemy dedicated to the destruction of all the foundations upon which a free society rests."

Robertson said in a prepared address that the U.S. will continue to stress the strengthening of a non-Communist Chinese government "as a foil . . . to the fanatical . . . Communist regime of Peiping."

The assistant secretary declared that free nations "have a gnawing fear of the growing power and threat of Red China."

Because of this, he said, it is "essential that China policy be coldly realistic and one that best serves free world security interests and objectives."

He outlined three reasons why the U.S. will not give the Red regime official recognition:

1. Such recognition would "as a practical matter" mean the liquidation of the Republic of China and deprive the U.S. of such island defense bastions as Taiwan (Formosa).
2. If we abandoned our commitments to the Republic of China, "no country in Asia could feel that it could longer rely upon the protection of the U. S. against the Communist threat."
3. If Taiwan's 10 million Chinese were "delivered to the slavery of the mainland," hope for freedom among those on the mainland who seek it would be extinguished.

Robertson said it is absurd to say that our China policy is tied to the political fortunes of Chiang Kai-Shek, head of the government seat on Taiwan.

He acknowledged that Chiang is "a time-tested friend and ally" who has "never broken his word to us," but added that if Chiang should "die tonight, the validity of our policy would in no way be affected."

"Today, as in the past, there are only two choices available to us: the anti-Communist Republic of China, our friend, or the international Communist regime of Peiping, a deadly enemy dedicated to our destruction," Robertson declared.

The State Department official said U.S. opposition to the Red regime is based only on realistic diplomacy and not upon disapproval of an ideology or economic system, "much as we abhor both."

He added that the United States has recognized "many totalitarian regimes with varying economic systems and we have not refused to sit down with them in the world forum of the United Nations."

The Peiping government, he said, was imposed by force and has remained in power "by bloody purges and the liquidation of some 18 million of mainland Chinese in nine years."

Robertson said no regime "representative of its people would have to resort to wholesale murder in order to keep itself in power."

"In our view, the security interests of ourselves, of Asia and of the free world as a whole, demand that we take no action which would create international prestige for this regime, which would increase its capacity for advancing its objectives, or which would betray the hopes of those having the will and the courage to resist."

RALEIGH (AP)—House Speaker Addison Hewlett said today he hopes the General Assembly can wind up its work and adjourn June 10.

The major items to be disposed of are appropriations and revenue bills and a rewritten state constitution, including provisions for a revamped court system.

"I'm hoping we can get through in two weeks," Hewlett said. "We've moved along well this week."

Some lawmakers, however, feel it may be Saturday, June 1, before the legislative end comes.

Committees worked at a brisk pace Thursday to clear away backlogged legislation in the drive toward adjournment.

Among the new legislation introduced was a bill to continue the Study Commission on Reorganization of State Government.

Sens. Luther Hamilton of Carteret and James Simpkins of Craven introduced a bill to set up a nine-member commission to take over regulation of commercial fishing from the State Conservation and Development Department.

Sen. Lunsford Crew of Halifax offered a resolution to create a commission to study the possibility of a merit basis for school teacher pay. The commission also would study means of improving the school curriculum.

Meanwhile, the Senate approved and sent to the House a watered down bill providing for a point system for habitual traffic law violators. Under the measure, the Motor Vehicles Department would keep score on motorists when they were convicted of traffic law offenses.

For most offenses, the score would be 3 points for each conviction. A motorist's license would be suspended for 60 days when he piled up a score of 12 points in a two-year period. If 12 points were chalked up against him in a subsequent two years, he would lose his license for a longer period.

The House passed and sent to the Senate a bill to increase the punishment for persons caught speeding 80 miles an hour or more. It provides a minimum fine of $50. Under existing law, there is no minimum fine.

Picking Jury For Trial Of Sniper

HENDERSON, N.C. (AP)—Selection of a jury continued today for the trial of a man accused of firing on two National Guardsmen from ambush during the textile strike here.

Johnnie E. Newton, 48, was arrested last Friday night and charged with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill and conspiracy to commit simple assault.

Superior Court Judge Raymond Mallard passed sentence Thursday on a mother and her 24-year-old daughter after they pleaded guilty to charges of damaging personal property.

The charge grew out of a rock-throwing incident at one of the struck Harriet - Henderson Cotton mills. Nellie Robertson was sentenced to six months in prison, suspended on payment of $100 fine and half the court costs. Prayer for judgment against her daughter, Barbara, was continued for three years on payment of half the court costs.

On a second charge of damaging property, the mother pleaded no contest and was given a six-months sentence, suspended on payment of $150 fine.

Mother And Daughter Intrigued By Legal Studies, Open A Law Firm

LOS ANGELES (AP)—"I'd been reading mystery stories ever so often. So I thought, instead of spending my time with those every night, I'll go to law school."

That's how Mrs. Janie Hixon Courtright, housewife, mother and former schoolteacher, became a lawyer. But that's only half the story.

Her daughter, D. Dian Hixon, 26, former beauty queen of Santa Monica City College, began reading her mother's law textbooks and decided: "They were absolutely fascinating. I wanted to know more about the law."

Result: Next June 10, the day she is admitted to the bar, Dian will join her mother in the practice of law.

So far as they've been able to learn, there's no other mother-daughter attorney combination anywhere in the country, they said in announcing their partnership today.

The mother — wife of a Hollywood high school teacher, Clarence Courtright, and herself a former schoolteacher in her native Independence, Kan.—says she has read every one of Erle Stanley Gardner's novels starring the famed fictional lawyer, Perry Mason.

She took up law as a hobby, found the bar exam easy and says she loves legal practice.

Her daughter by a former marriage, "Dee Dee" is a blue-eyed blonde, 5 feet 5½ and 120 pounds. The first initial D. stands for a name Dee Dee has never used and won't reveal.

Prison Term For Former Jailer

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—A former jailer who claimed he was coerced was sentenced to 2½ years in prison here Thursday for aiding a jail break.

Woodrow Vinson was charged in the April 3 jail break of Thomas Bradford and William Odom. The two were caught in a police trap three days later and Bradford died in a hail of bullets.

Vinson, who was fired from his job as assistant jailer of the Cumberland County jail, admitted helping the two escape but said he was coerced by the two prisoners.

CHAPTER 9

Mark arrived at the Mulet at twelve o'clock sharp.

With a shock, he remembered that Fleur had not been sure she could come. And the possibility that she had been unable to leave the house, that he might wait for her in vain, made him frown. After all, this was the twentieth century, in which one did not keep a young girl locked up. A slight touch on his shoulder made him jump, but it was only the waiter. "Would the gentleman mind coming inside?"

Stepping out of the heat into the dark, cool room, he could barely see because of the difference in light. "We fixed up a table in the back," a hand took him gently by the arm and led him through the restaurant into what seemed to Mark even deeper shadow, a small back room. When he could see clearly again, he found himself opposite a man he had never seen before, a small, thin man who carried himself with dignity and now introduced himself.

"Bransky, the former ballet master, the man who had taught Fleur everything she knew about dancing, the man who lived with the Constants."

"Mademoiselle will be here in a moment. Do sit down."

With utmost politeness, as if he were the host, he pushed a chair around for Mark, then seated himself at the table which, Mark saw with annoyance, was set for three.

"Would you like a drink, Monsieur Travers?" Bransky answered the unformed question on Mark's lips. "You couldn't see us. We were waiting for you inside. Only when we were sure you had come did Mademoiselle go upstairs to speak to the dressmaker."

All at once Mark could grasp the incongruity of the situation.

Here he was, eager to meet Fleur and enjoy the day with her, and she had brought a chaperon. "I thought we might have champagne," he said.

"Of course. If you desire. But Mademoiselle should touch no alcohol."

"Of course not," agreed Mark, then could not help grinning. "Tell me, Monsieur Bransky. Since you are apparently on our side, don't you think all this is . . ."

He couldn't find the right word but Bransky had understood him perfectly. "Crazy, you mean? From our point of view, perhaps. The Constants are a little crazy, all of them."

"Are they?"

"Many old people live in the past because the reality of the present frightens them," said Bransky. "But this is not the case with the Constants. They want to recreate the splendor of the past in Fleur, and all their efforts are bent toward that end."

Mark again saw the four women on the flowered terrace. "Her brother did not strike me as a man who doesn't face reality."

Bransky sighed. "He is like them only in a different way. But his heart, too, is centered around Mademoiselle." The champagne had come and Bransky twirled it mechanically in the cooler. "You see, when she was ten years old, she was in a car accident which killed their parents. The doctors said she would never walk again but Guy swore that she would not only walk, but dance. Through life. He meant it allegorically, of course. Until it became apparent that she could really dance. But that came later."

"During those years when she could hardly move, it was he, alone, who imbued her with the energy not to give up, who spent endless hours with her, day after day, year after year. No wonder he looked upon her as his creation. Now he takes for granted that the seed he has sown will produce the flower he expected, and forgets that she is a human being, too."

Mark Travers remembered the narrow, determined shape of Guy Constant's mouth, and that he had thought it bitter and mean.

"I couldn't help his coming along," said Fleur's voice, close to him. Mark had not noticed her coming into the room. "When I told them I had an appointment with the dressmaker, Grand-maman insisted that Bransky should come with me. What could I do but tell him the truth?"

"It isn't polite to conduct a conversation in a language one of the company can follow only with difficulty."

Fleur made a face at Bransky. "If you don't leave us alone, I will continue to speak English so fast, you won't understand a thing." But in spite of her words, she bent and kissed the old man lightly on his sparse white hair.

Bransky rose and moved to a table in the main part of the restaurant, but he didn't sit down until he had made sure he could see them through an archway.

"There," said Fleur. "I hope you don't mind this but it's the best I could do. At least we can talk undisturbed." She put both elbows on the table, rested her face on the palms of her hands and looked at him triumphantly.

Mark opened the bottle of champagne, filled her glass as well as his, then asked the waiter to carry the third over to Bransky.

Fleur lifted her glass and toasted her old teacher, beaming at him like anurchin. Watching her, Mark had the feeling that she was more of a child than he had thought. "How old are you?" he asked her. "I'll be twenty-one next month."

Seven years younger than he. Sophisticated and naive at the same time. "I met your brother today."

She looked at him unbelievably. Obviously she had not been told about his visit. "How? Why?" "I remembered suddenly that he is a quite famous man in his field. I wanted to interview him for my paper in Paris. And . . . no, I didn't give away that you and I had met. But, you see, something came up and I was not sure if I could meet you today, so I thought I might have an opportunity to see you and tell you."

Was it really only two hours since Corinne had been murdered? Since his high hopes of finally finding Tim had been crushed? He pushed the thoughts away and looked at Fleur. Her eyes had narrowed. "Then you came just because you could not cancel it? Out of mere politeness?" "No," he said. "One day I'll tell you. But why did you come?" "You invited me, didn't you?" Mark put down his glass and forced her to meet his glance. "Don't be glib, now, Fleur. Be honest. Just because it breaks the routine of your day? In a mood of rebellion or a spirit of adventure?" Her hands on the table trembled a little. "I came," she said, her voice flat, "because it seemed the most important thing to see you again."

Ugly Duckling Story A 'Slander'

ST. LOUIS (AP)—That old story about the ugly duckling is a slander, believes bird curator Henry Sanders of the St. Louis Zoo.

Looking over three week-old black swans at the zoo, Sanders said they have bright eyes, pearl-gray down, and beaks as shiny as patent leather.

"Swans go through a teen-age period when they do not look like much," he said, "but who doesn't?"

Expect Another Crisis In 1961

GENEVA (AP)—Some Western officials believe the real Berlin crisis will come in 1961, not this year or the next.

They believe the Soviets will accept some stopgap agreement at the Big Four foreign ministers' conference that will continue the uneasy Allied occupation of West Berlin.

Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, in their view, hopes that national elections in Britain, the United States and West Germany will bring in new administrations that will weaken or shatter the united Allied front on German issues.

Should Socialist governments replace the present Conservative administrations in Britain this year or next and in West Germany in 1961, far-reaching changes would most likely result in foreign policies of those two nations.

A Democratic administration in Washington in 1961 probably would change U.S. foreign policy little, but it might change it some.

The opening of these officials is that Khrushchev will not risk an armed clash over Berlin at this time.

Khrushchev's November ultimatum to the Big Three to get out of West Berlin in six months is considered by these officials as primarily a probing action to test the unity of the Allies.

They stress that the Soviet leader, confronted with a phalanx of Allied determination to remain in the divided city, scrapped his deadline. In return, he got the virtual promise of the summit meeting he apparently wants so badly.

Commercial Fishermen Seek Independent Dept.

By LYNN NISBET
Reflector Raleigh Bureau

RALEIGH — Bills have been introduced in the Legislature designed to divorce control of commercial fisheries from the Department of Conservation and Development and to establish a new independent department to be known as the Commercial Fisheries Commission.

The commission would be composed of nine members appointed by the Governor for staggered terms. Six members would represent special districts along the coast, and would have to be connected with the fishing industry; three would represent the state at large without occupational or residence restrictions.

In general, the proposed new commission would take over control and propriety interests with respect to commercial fishing comparable to that exercised by the Wildlife Resources Commission over inland sport fishing and field game under terms of a 1947 act. Ever since that divorce action the commercial fishermen have toyed with the idea of separation. Back of that is some interesting history.

Prior to 1925, when the Department of Conservation and Development was organized, there was an independent commercial fisheries commission which had control of operations in that area. There was a geologic association which exercised supervision over mineral and water resources and related subjects. The Department of Agriculture had control over forestry (and shared responsibility for water) and was the accepted overall propaganda agency for State development.

Commercial fisheries and geologic association activities formed the nucleus for the new C&D department. Subsequently responsibility for advertising the state's advantages was added. By natural attrition the C&D department acquired regulatory authority over State parks.

Early emphasis was on conservation of natural resources. By insidious steps emphasis switched from conservation to development—not only of natural resources but of intangibles such as promoting industry. History of the department is replete with incidents of conflict between the conservationists and the developers; or perhaps more accurately stated between the sportsmen and money making business interests.

By 1947 enough sentiment had been engendered for separate control of game and inland fishing to bring about the Wildlife Resources Commission. Overlapping jurisdiction over streams and controversy between commercial and sport fishing interests occasioned resentment and numerous efforts to divorce complete adjustment have not fully succeeded.

Oldtimers in the commercial fishing industry have never accepted the right of the big department to regulate their business. Resentment was enhanced eight or ten years ago when main accounting offices of the commercial fisheries division were moved from Morehead City to Raleigh.

Although facts and figures will show that the C&D department has spent millions of dollars promoting and developing the seafood industry, many of the oldtimers insist they have been treated like step children and that the big board has been concerned mostly with building factories upstate. They resent a board of 15 or 18 men, most of them from upstate, having authority over their business—which they feel should be locally administered. Addition of an officially recognized advisory committee for commercial fishing (only segment of the total state economy so recognized) failed to satisfy them.

The pending bills intended to establish an independent department for commercial fisheries represent a step toward decentralization of control which is in marked contrast with the trend of the past decade toward centralization. There is, however, precedent for the idea in the establishment of the Water Resources Commission, into which would be consolidated most of the powers now exercised by several departments over water. The rapidly growing interest in forestry with development of tree-farming and increasing demands for pulpwood as basis for synthetic lumber as well as paper products, suggests the idea that next step may be an independent forestry control department.

Whether these separations into special activity functions will tend to reduce or increase conflict of interests is debatable. Texts of the water resources and commercial fisheries bills offer little hope of alleviating conflicts. Many people think they mean more parties to the argument, more "official spokesmen" for special interests, rather than solution of the problems.

It has been suggested by several observers that introduction of the commercial fisheries divorce bill at this late date in the Legislature indicates lack of confidence on part of its sponsors that it will be adopted at this session, but is designed to lay groundwork for a real effort next time.

Books & Stuff

By DR. ED HIRSHBERG

In this day and age of checks, balances and final exams our heart is warmed by Jacques Barzun's new book, THE HOUSE OF INTELLECT, in which he says the following about those all-important multiple-choice "intelligence" tests that so many people have to take these days to get anywhere:

"Taking an objective... calls for the least effort of mind above that of keeping awake: recognition... No tumult of surprise followed by a rallying generalship and concentration, as in facing an essay question; no fresh unfolding of the subject under unexpected demand, but the routine sorting out of the absurd from the trivial, or the completing of dull sentences..."

Mr. Barzun, who is Dean of the Faculty at Columbia and one of America's most brilliant educators, concludes about objective tests that, "No other single practice explains as fully the intellectual defeats of our students up to and through graduate school as their ingrained association of knowledge and thought with the scratching down of check marks on dotted lines."

Amazing Aimee

Some of you might remember back as far as the 1920's when fabulous Aimee McPherson, probably the most talked-about evangelist in our history except for Billy Graham, was at her pinnacle of glory... In a new book called THE VANISHING EVANGELIST by an author with the intriguing pseudonym "Lately Thomas," the whole story of her rise and sudden, mysterious disappearance is told in full. At the top of her fame, if you recollect, Aimee took a rowboat ride off a Pacific beach and never came back. What happened to her—or might have happened—is the subject of this book, and it looks fascinating and a little scandalous.

The Quality Clubs

Two book clubs have recently risen to well-deserved distinction, in our opinion, and we want to give you our brief run-down. The Mid-Century Book Society offers the usual monthly choice and the option of buying four of its selections a year, in addition to a monthly magazine on literature, "The Mid-Century." Making the club unusual are the three men who will make the choices—

Lionel Trilling, Jacques Barzun (see above) and W. H. Auden. For our money, they are reliable and first-rate literary men. Their selections will be based solely on "An undeviating standard of excellence." Criteria will be "pleasure and permanence." The June selection, for example, is AGEE ON FILM, a collection of the late James Agee's essays on movies... Our other new club is The Reader's Subscription, which is not so new but also strong on top quality and offers an extraordinary bonus these days—the Caenon Library of Modern Poets, four records with four great 20th century poets reading their own stuff—W. H. Auden, Dylan Thomas, T. S. Eliot and E. E. Cummings. Its latest selection is an old classic lately republished in the first English unexpurgated edition—D. H. Lawrence's LADY CHATTERLEY'S LOVER...

Today's Review

We welcome one of our favorite reviewers back to The Column, with her comments on what might be called a recent example of "escape" literature—a novel about adventure and what-all on the high seas... THE DEADLY LADY OF MADAGASCAR, By C. V. Terry, New York: Doubleday & Co., 1959. THE DEADLY LADY OF MADAGASCAR must surely have been written with the idea in mind of giving the tired business man (or woman) an evening or so of adventure without leaving his favorite chair. Breathes there a man with soul so dead who doesn't secretly yearn for high-jinks on the high seas with danger, daring, duels, stolen jewels and a mysterious and beautiful lady interjected often enough to give the proper (or improper) spice.

Our hero took to the sea after promising his prospective father-in-law that this would be his final adventure and was to last one year. He would then become a respectable man of business with wife, family and all the usual accoutrements.

Alas, this was not to be and this fact is developed in page after page of exciting and mysterious detail. We are led to admire our hero's prowess with the sword, his expert seamanship and his subtle fortitude in dealing with our deadly heroine. Her mystery is finally explained, leaving the reader somewhat less interested but leaving our hero ready to give up his proposed respectability to remain by her side.

If your television is temporarily defunct, and you really would like an evening's diversion that requires no mental effort, THE DEADLY LADY is for you.

Find Bank Loot In Big Dog Pen

ADVANCE, Mo. (AP)—Authorities searched the home and yard of an admitted bank robber Thursday night and located the missing loot in the Advance, Mo., bank holdup—$13,088.

Highway Patrolman Jack Small found the money—in 10s and 20s—in a zipper bag in a big dog pen in the yard of Robert Lee Hager, 20, of Farnell, Mo.

Lt. E. F. Dampf of the patrol said authorities pieced together statements made by Hager and his two confederates and decided to search Hager's Farnell home.

Dampf also said that Hager, James A. Foy, 25, of Trenton, N. J., and Walter S. Nicholson, 23, of Livermore, Calif., had orally admitted taking part in the Wednesday robbery. All are soldiers at Ft. Campbell, Ky.

In all, $17,841 was taken at gunpoint after Hager and Foy herded five bank employees into a vault. Over $4,000 was found in Hager's home.

Dampf quoted Hager as saying the three planned the holdup because they wanted to make "some easy money."

Nicholson was arrested 65 miles away in Cairo, Ill., by state police who spotted a get-away car he was driving. In his pocket was a slip of paper with Hager's address on it. Police used this clue to help crack the case.

As 'Evidence' It Was Left Intact

NOGALES, Ariz. (AP)—A policeman given a juicy watermelon was momentarily stumped at how to keep it from fellow officers.

Then he used his jackknife to do a little carving. When he returned that night, the melon was intact on a shelf.

He had inscribed on it: "Evidence."

Sad And Serious Joan Crawford In Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "A day never went by without his telling me how much I meant to him. That's memory enough for me. What more could a woman want in life?"

This was a sad, serious Joan Crawford speaking of her life with soft drink magnate Alfred Steele, who died suddenly April 19. She is back in the haunts she knows well—the arc-light world of movie sets.

She looks as good as ever, the same freckled, unlined face, the disciplined figure even slimmer. But something seems different. Long the epitome of the movie star, she appears to have lost that one-mindedness about her acting career. The reason, perhaps, is that she found in her fourth marriage—her marriage of maturity—her greatest happiness.

"They were four wonderful years," she reflected. "I can't tell you how much they meant to me."

"Alfred respected me and what I had done. Always in press conferences he would refer to me as 'Miss Crawford.' Others might call me 'Mrs. Steele,' and he would in private. But he said I deserved to be called by my own name in public for what I had achieved."

"I tried to help him as much
