

Gained Top Awards Among Rose High Graduates

Eighty-Seven Awards, Including 17 Scholarships, For Rose High Grads

Eighty-seven awards, including 17 scholarships with a potential value of at least $8,500, were announced last night at Junius H. Rose High School's annual Class and Awards Night.

The program opened the school's three-phase commencement schedule which will be continued to-morrow night with the Commencement Sermon at 8 o'clock and concluded Tuesday night with graduation exercises. All of the commencement activities are scheduled to be held in the gymnasium.

Last night's program included, in addition to announcement and presentation of awards by Superintendent J. H. Rose, short addresses by two members of the Class of 1959 and musical selections by a girls' trio, the school's madrigal singers and a mixed chorus.

Winners of the school's principal awards are Laura Gurganus, who won the Greenville Lions Club's $200 scholarship; Steve Noble, winner of the Woolfolk Memorial Scholarship of $200 and the Kiwanis Sportsmanship Award; Howard Garner, winner of the Keech Distinguished Service Award and the Student Government Association's President's Gavel; Wilbur Owens, winner of the Dixon Cup for athletics; Sylvia Vincent, winner of the Woman's Club Citizenship medal and plaque; Catherine Moore, winner of several awards for scholastic excellence; and Billy Neal James, winner of the National Honor Society's Junior High Scholastic Award.

Larry Carawan and Dorothy Davis, student speakers for the evening who developed general themes of "Thoughts at Graduation," pointed out that education involves more than learning the traditional basic subjects.

"To some," Carawan said, "graduation is like a door closing. But, if students think deeply enough, they find it opens many doors . . . upon which they can build happy and successful lives."

Miss Davis said, "Good education is priceless, in that it develops the whole man. It teaches in many ways and produces well-rounded citizens . . . It teaches how to find answers to problems, helps teach understanding, and gives more and greater pleasure in living."

Carawan and Miss Davis were chosen as speakers for the program on the basis of their scholarship and leadership during four years of high school work.

The music portion of the Class Night program, presided over by President Louis Arthur of the Class of 1959 and musical selections by a girls' trio composed of Laura Gurganus, Patsy Jones and Carolyn Briley; two selections by the madrigal singers; and two selections by the mixed chorus. All of the musical numbers were directed by Gus Laube of the high school faculty.

In the awards presentations, Superintendent Rose, assisted by Principal O. E. Dowd, announced winners of scholarships from the University of North Carolina, N. C. State College, and East Carolina College. The winners and their scholarships include Howard Garner, $200 for each of four years of study at UNC, for being one of 12 finalists in Herbert Jackson Memorial Scholarship competition; Billy Cox and Billy Brown, tuition scholarships for each to attend UNC; Larry Carawan, a minimum of $500 for each of four years study at N. C. State; Merrill Bynum and Charles Roberts, East Carolina College athletic scholarships of $100 annual; Franklin Steinbeck, the Best Jewelry Co. award of $100 presented through the ECC Science Department; and Judy Ballance,

Gromyko Repeats Demand For West To Leave Berlin

GENEVA (AP)—Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko accused the western powers today of subversive activities in Berlin and demanding an end to their occupation of West Berlin.

Western diplomats said Gromyko spoke for 40 minutes in the Big-Four foreign ministers conference, formally presenting Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's six-month-old demand that the West agree to make Berlin a free city.

Some informants said Gromyko hinted at a possible compromise of the Berlin problem, saying that if the Big Four put their minds to the problem they may be able to find an acceptable solution.

Secret talks with Soviet Minister Andrei Gromyko have so far failed to remove the Berlin issue as a barrier to a heads-of-government meeting.

But Western officials think it likely that Gromyko will get new instructions before the Big Four foreign ministers conference here ends.

Less than 48 hours after going into secret negotiations, the ministers were headed back today to the semipublic stage in the Palace of Nations at the request of the Soviets.

U.S. Secretary of State Christian A. Herter and his British and French allies expect a new demand by Gromyko for Western troops to get out of West Berlin and make it a neutralized "free city."

The Western powers have repeatedly emphasized they have no intention of giving up their rights in West Berlin or their lifelines to the isolated free bastion 110 miles inside the Communist East Germany.

American officials said they assumed Gromyko wants to propose the Soviet plan for the future of Berlin. Several days ago he intended to introduce it soon.

A return to secret diplomacy was assured, however, for Gromyko has invited the three Western foreign ministers and a limited group of their advisers to dine with him tonight.

These private discussions so far have only amounted to diplomatic probing operations.

In the first two private sessions—on the airplane flight back from the John Foster Dulles funeral in Washington and Friday at British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd's villa—the West tried to find out how much the Soviets would be willing to relax their pressure on Berlin.

The Western ministers reportedly argued since Khrushchev triggered the crisis last November the first move here toward putting an end to it is up to Gromyko.

Herter especially has warned Gromyko that unless the Soviet threat is subsiding there will be no summit gathering.

Diplomats informed on these initial secret talks said Gromyko did not budge from the position that the West must abandon its occupation of West Berlin.

But they said he engaged in probing Western intentions. They said a change would hardly be expected until his reports have been studied by Khrushchev and he gets new instructions.

An American spokesman said he thought the Soviet leaders now realize the Western allies are fully determined not to be squeezed (of Berlin or driven into a summit conference under threats.

"I do not think they believe we're bluffing," said Asst. Secretary of State Andrew H. Bergin.

In talking with reporters Bergin declined to go into any detail about exchanges which took place on the airplane and at Lloyd's villa.

He did say that obviously the four powers were holding the private talks "to try to reach an agreement that will enable them to go to summit conference."

Name New Junior High Principal

Joseph Smith Jr. of Greenville has been elected principal of Greenville Junior High School for the 1959-1960 school year. Superintendent J. H. Rose announced today.

Smith succeeds Robert E. Youngblood who has resigned to become principal of Edgemont Elementary School in Durham. Youngblood, a native of Albemarle, has been principal of the Junior High School for two years.

During the past year, Smith has served as assistant principal and office manager of the Junior High School while continuing studies for a Master of Arts degree at East Carolina College. He is the son of Mrs. Joseph Smith and the late Dr. Smith.

A graduate of Greenville High School, Wake Forest College, Smith taught several years ago in Pender County and has also been business manager of the clinic which his father founded and which his brother now operates. He is married to the former Phyllis Shuff of Greenville and they have three sons, Joe, 10, Charles, 8, and Craig, 18 months.

In announcing the changes, Rose said, "Mr. Youngblood has had a very fine record as principal of the Junior High School and has done a very fine job. We hate to see him go. However, Mr. Smith has endeared himself to the teachers and students at the school in the past year and we are very happy to announce his election."

Bill Would Ban Fortune-Telling

RALEIGH (AP)—Reps. Frank M. Wooten, Jr., and Walter B. Jones yesterday introduced into the General Assembly a bill which would make it illegal to practice phrenology, palmistry, fortune telling and clairvoyance in Pitt County.

The bill provides for a fine of $500, a year's imprisonment, or both, for violators. Provisions of the measure would not apply to persons who have been bona fide residents of Pitt County for 15 years.

Civilians Joined Draftee Mutiny

QUITO, Ecuador (AP)—Order was reported restored to Portoviejo today after 90 army draftees were joined by civilians in a mutiny that killed five and wounded 50.

Defense Minister Gustavo Diez said the conscripts rebelled in protest against the harsh discipline of army Capt. Galo Quevedo.

Quevedo, 37, was killed in the fighting and his body was dragged through the streets.

Big Step Toward Assembly Adjournment This Week

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH (AP)—Giant steps toward adjournment were taken this week as the Legislature moved to its fourth month.

Bills for state spending in the next two fiscal years and for re-vamping the court system emerged from long stays in committee.

The 1959-61 budget and the court plan, embodied in a rewritten State Constitution, are the two big remaining issues. Their progress raised hopes for adjournment by June 3.

The lawmakers also moved forward by discarding a number of proposals.

The House Finance Committee ended the brief, spectacular career of a dog racing bill by a 28 to 17 vote. One House committee already had approved the measure, which would have given counties the right to ballot on legalized betting at dog or horse racing tracks.

Senators sided with farmers who like the labor saving qualities of maleic hydrazide and voted 32 to 14 to kill a measure which would have outlawed the chemical to control suckers on tobacco. Farm organizations had endorsed the bill, asserting the chemical lowers quality, flavor and aroma.

Supt. of Public Instruction Charles F. Carroll won the support of the House Education Committee, which voted down a bill to give the State Board of Education the major role in school policy.

The House approved a 1 per cent tax on fire insurance premiums to finance a firemen's pension fund. However, supporters of the measure were gloomy over an amendment written into the measure to exempt from the tax policy holders living in areas unprotected by fire departments. Rep. J. Y. Jordan Jr. of Buncombe said he feared the amendment would endanger the pension fund in any test before the State Supreme Court. A similar pension fund, enacted in 1957, was tossed out by the court a few months ago.

The first court reform legislation met defeat in the Senate during the week. It would have placed Superior Court solicitors on a full-time basis, given them pay raises, and placed them under administrative supervision of the state attorney general's office.

Meanwhile, Sen. J. Spencer Bell of Mecklenburg, chairman of the North Carolina Bar Assn., committee which drafted the court recommendations, successfully steered out of committee the constitutional groundwork for a unified court system.

In doing so, Bell declined to woo the support of influential Sen.

Lindsay C. Warren of Beaufort by giving up a provision allowing the State Supreme Court to exercise administrative control over courts. Bell said it represented the heart of the court plan.

The decision raised the prospect that Warren will lead a floor fight against the proposal.

Memorial Rites

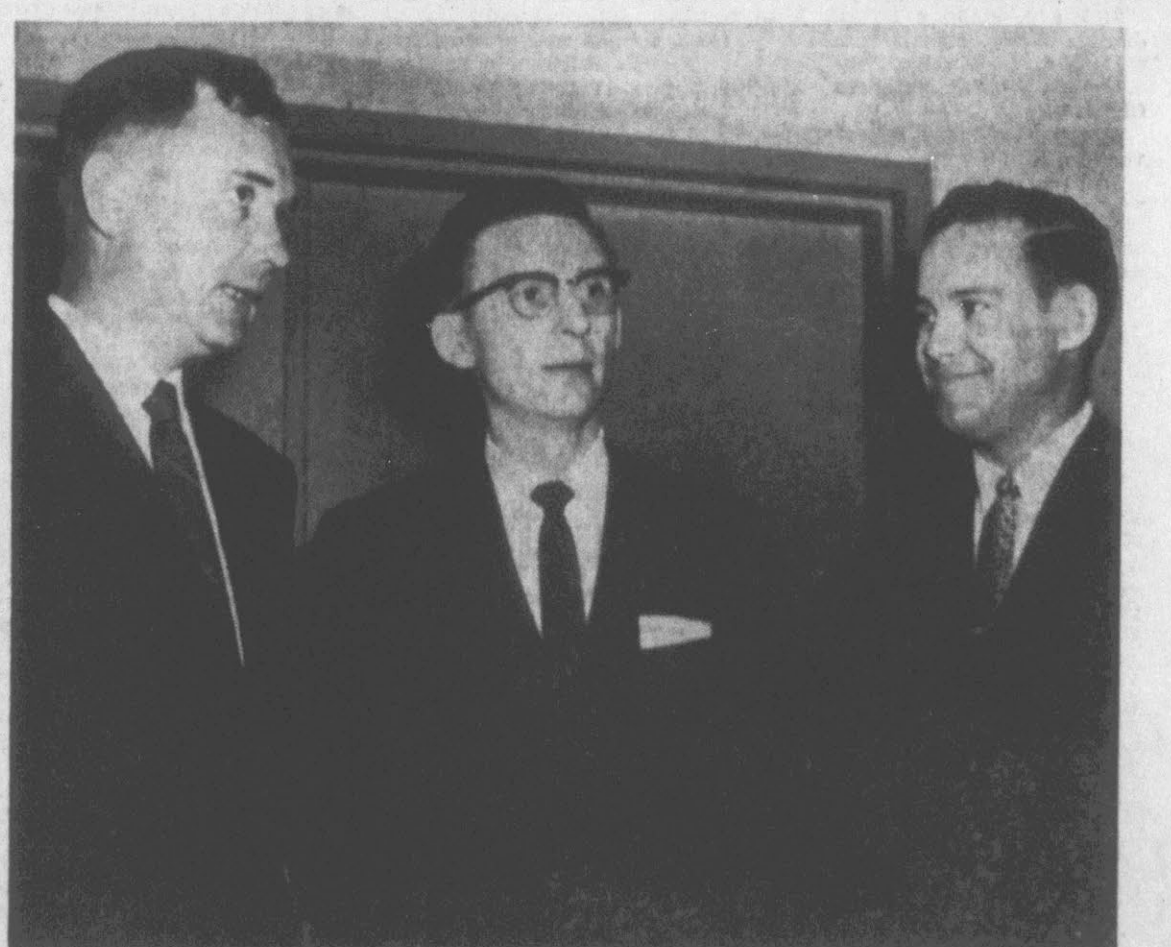

American Legion Memorial services will be conducted to-morrow afternoon beginning at 4:30 in Greenwood Cemetery.

Sen. Robert Lee Humber will be the speaker and music is to be furnished by a Coral Group from the Eighth St. Christian Church under the direction of Mrs. Herbert Carter.

Traffic will be directed by the Greenville city police and parking space will be available at the cemetery grounds and also in Greene Springs Park. Guests are asked not to park on Fifth Street.

Co-Chairmen Dr. H. G. Haney and George W. Evans estimated that the services would be complete by 5 p.m. In the event of bad weather, they said, the services will be held in the National Guard Armory on Evans Street.

JCs Install New Officers

JAYCEES INSTALL OFFICERS . . . Outgoing President Hardy, New President Beddingfield, District Vice President Baldree.

Jaycees and Jay-C-Ette officers were installed in ceremonies following a banquet at the Moose Auditorium last night.

Brooks Beddingfield, local drug-gist, took office as president of the Jaycees, replacing John Hardy of State Bank and Trust Co., who has served as president for the past year.

Other new officers, who were installed by District Vice President Marvin Baldree of Ayden, are: Clarence Tugwell, vice president; Frank Diener, vice president; Max Ray Joyner, secretary; Sidney Carraway, treasurer, and Roy Hardee, ar home of Miss North Carolina state director.

New club directors who took office for two-year terms are: Charles Lewis, Wyatt Tucker, Jack Whitchard, George Coffman and Bill Taylor.

Directors who will remain on the board for another year are: Knott Proctor, Stuart Shinn, Billy Woolfolk. As past president, John Hardy will also serve as a board member.

Hardy in his report to the club as outgoing president pointed out that Miss Greenville was named as Miss North Carolina during the year.

Miss North Carolina auto tags and stickers were sold as a project, letter stamps boosting the town and signs were erected at the entrances to the city.

The projects made money for the club, he said.

This year's Miss Greenville Pageant was also a money maker, he reported, and the club's treasury was left with approximately $1,000 on hand at year's end.

A past Jaycee, Charles Horne, conducted the aging out ceremonies. The following members who have reached their 36th birthday were aged out of the club: Paul Scott, Don Calloway, Bob Russ, John Drake, Charles Hudson, Gordon Goodman, Dr. M. W. Aldridge and Bill Hudson.

Bill Taylor acted as master of ceremonies for the program.

West Texas Hit By Heavy Rains

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — Rains measuring up to 3 1/2 inches battered parts of West Texas Friday night, sending water over some roads and damaging crops.

The storms centered on an area from the New Mexico line eastward toward Muleshoe, which is northwest of Lubbock, and around the communities of Hart, Kress and Silverton.

Water up to nearly one foot deep covered sections of U.S. Highway 84 between Muleshoe and Clovis, N.M., temporarily stalling an estimated 100 motorists.

Dwayne Curtis, a farmer who lives 13 miles northwest of Muleshoe, said 3 1/2 inches of rain and 1/2-inch hailstones in that area wiped out his cotton and heavily damaged his wheat crop. He said the water stood 1 1/2 feet deep on 35 acres of land.

ALL EARS

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

You can't help loving this little pup. Maybe it's because he seems so out of proportion. If he somehow were able to flap those ears he might fly away. Perhaps there is a little fellow in your home who is "all ears" in another sense... a youngster who takes in everything that's said, including some things he isn't meant to hear. Most children are eager to listen... hungry to learn. That is why the early years are so important in the molding of a child's character. The things he hears, whether right or wrong, make a deep impression on his mind. They are soon reflected in his actions and words. Wise parents take advantage of the Church's program of religious education in implanting those early impressions. They know there is no surer builder of character than religious faith. NOW... while your child is eager to hear and to learn, bring him to church... and support the Church in its great undertaking.

Couple Speaks Vows

Mrs. Thomas Ray Lupton

WILMINGTON — Miss Mary Kathryn Tompkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lennie Grover Tompkins, 3700 Wrightsville Avenue, became the bride of Thomas Ray Lupton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Berkley Lupton Sr., of 209 S. Library Street, Greenville, on Saturday, May 23, in Temple Baptist Church.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Dr. W. D. Morris, the bride's pastor.

Mrs. S. C. Gilbert, organist, and Mr. Bill Best, soloist, presented a program of wedding music. Selections were "Whither Thou Goest," "I Love Thee," "The Lord's Prayer," and the traditional wedding marches.

The vows were exchanged before an altar background of areca palms and clematis ferns interspersed with seven branch candelabras holding lighted tapers. An arrangement of white gladioli, larkspur, and carnations completed the setting.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a floor length gown with a chapel train and a fitted bodice of Chantilly lace with a sabrina neckline edged in seed pearls, long fitted sleeves ending in points over the hands. The skirt was formed by cascading tiers of nylon tulle ruffles with appliques of Chantilly lace forming scallops, all over bridal satin. Her fingertip veil of hand rolled imported illusion fell from a Juliet Cap of Chantilly lace with tiny seed pearls and sequins outlining the scalloped edges. She wore a single strand of pearls which was a gift from the groom.

She carried a prayer book topped with a white orchid and showered with feathered white carnations. Miss Betty Anne Tompkins of Rex Nurses School in Raleigh, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a waist length dress of white organdy embroidered in Nile green with matching taffeta cummerbund over white taffeta. Her headpiece was a miniature sequin crown dyed to match with a face veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink daisies tied with pink satin ribbon.

Miss Sue Ann Lupton of 209 S. Library Street, Greenville, sister of the bridegroom; Miss Barbara McSwain, 409 Central Block; Miss Linda Tienhen, 4009 Wrightsville Ave., and Miss Linda Voss of 1504 South 4th St. were bridesmaids. They wore heavenly pink dresses identical in style as that of the honor attendant. They carried a cascade bouquet of pink daisies tied with matching satin ribbon. Master Joseph Lupton, nephew of the groom, was the ring bearer. Little Miss Annell Piner, friend of the couple, was the flower girl. Her dress was similar to that of the honor attendant. She carried a miniature bouquet of pink daisies tied with pink satin ribbon.

The bridegroom had his brother, Theodore Berkley Lupton Jr., of Durham, as best man.

Ushers were Joe Lupton, brother of the groom of Swan Quarter, Karl Turner of Greenville, Norwood Whitehurst of New Bern, and Jimmy Forbes of Wilmington.

The bride's mother chose a dress of romance blue Chantilly lace over taffeta with matching satin streamers at the waist line. Her hat was silk dyed to match with bows of seed pearls. She wore a corsage of lavender orchids.

The mother of the groom wore a mauve lace dress over taffeta, with matching accessories. Her corsage was of purple orchids.

Following the ceremony the guests were entertained at a reception in the church reception hall. The bride's table was covered with an imported cutwork cloth. An antique silver cierge held white summer flowers and was flanked by silver candelabras.

Mrs. Joe Lupton of Swan Quarter and Mrs. Theodore Lupton of Durham served punch. Mrs. R. C. Creech served cake. Miss Louise Floyd greeted the guests and Mr. and Mrs. Gene Piner said good-byes.

For a wedding trip to the mountains of North Carolina the bride wore an original ensemble of Italian silk. The dress was princess style of navy with white bodice outlined in floral lace inserts topped with a short navy jacket with an over collar of white. She wore a matching white hat of peau-de-soie flower petals. The white orchid was lifted from the bride's bouquet for her corsage.

Following the wedding trip the couple will reside at 2911 Chestnut Street in Wilmington.

The bride is a graduate of New Hanover High School and attended Wilmington College for two years where she was a member of the Kappa Epsilon Sorority.

The bridegroom is a 1954 graduate of East Carolina College. For three years he served as First

Mrs. Brooks Beddingfield, wife of the incoming Jaycee president, was named "Jay-C-ETTE of the Year" last night at the annual Greenville Junior Chamber of Commerce Installation and Ladies Night Banquet.

Mrs. Richard Briley was installed as incoming Jay-C-ETTE president by Bill Taylor, master of ceremonies, who also presented Mrs. Beddingfield the award and told highlights of her Jay-C-ETTE year.

"There are eight qualifications considered for this award. They are enthusiastic spirit, willingness, dependability, attitude, sincerity, unselfishness in volunteering services, participation in projects, and attendance," he noted.

Some activities in which Mrs. Beddingfield has participated during the year include the flower, card and visitation committee, co-chairman of the annual candy sale, acted as corresponding secretary, helped investigate gift for the Crippled Children's Clinic (the clinic is the main project sponsored by the Jay-C-ETTES), a member of the nominating committee, participated in the Lily Tag Sale, and represented the club at a tea in Ayden.

Serving with the president, Mrs. Richard Briley, will be Mrs. Bill Taylor, vice-president; Mrs. Carlton Taylor, recording secretary; Mrs. Roger Mann, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Joe Clark treasurer; and Mrs. Jimmy Smith, reporter.

New directors are Mrs. Bob Windie, Mrs. Badger Clark, Mrs. Walter Hasty, and Mrs. Roy Hardee, immediate past president of the Jay-C-ETTES.

During the dinner meeting Mrs. Hardee presented the president's report, noting that the highlights of the year were the candy sale and the privilege of honoring "Miss North Carolina" on several occasions. She reported that the proceeds from the sale would be used for a gift to the Orthopedic Clinic.

Approximately 175 Jaycees, Jay-C-ETTES and guests attended the annual affair which opened with a cocktail party, followed by a dinner and business session.

30 Years Ago Today

May 30, 1929

Outlining several objectives for the club during the present year, Ralph Deal, president of the Greenville Kiwanis Club, last night told members of the organization assembled in regular twice-a-month session, that he would like to see the old Evans Street School site converted into a public park with a library building situated in the center of the location.

On Thursday at her home on West Fourth Street, Miss Frances Norman entertained at a miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Eliza Laughinghouse, bride-elect of June.

Six tables were arranged for bridge and after several progressions, high score prize was awarded to Miss Edna Sumrell.

Social Notes

Miss Becky Sue Harris underwent an appendectomy in Pitt Memorial Hospital this morning.

Mrs. Eva Spain will enter Pitt Memorial Hospital Monday afternoon for surgery.

Dr. and Mrs. Henry A. Callaway of Durham will arrive today to attend the high school commencement. Mrs. Callaway's cousin, Joe Moyer Jr., is a member of the graduating class.

Arriving today for the Piver-Hendrix wedding, which will take place Sunday at four o'clock, are Miss Mary Lynn Gorham of Battleboro, Miss Louise Winstead and Miss Laura Winstead of Elm City, Miss Mary Lee Lawrence of Leggett, Miss Cynthia Davis of Jamestown, Miss Martha Ann Bowers and James A. Overby of Norlina, Dennis Price and Jack Mercer of Newton Grove.

Senior Play Presented

By CATHERINE MOORE

Seniors started off their pre-graduation festivities yesterday with their senior play. Each senior played a part in the Disneyland production.

The play divided their activities during four years in high school into four categories—fantasy land, frontier land, adventure land, and tomorrow land.

Jimmy Waters served as master of ceremonies and Sandra Thompson played Tinker Bell, the fairy who guided the viewers through the four lands.

In frontier land, a group of cowboys reminisced about the past and again saw Sara Smiley's pantomime act and Ronnie Finch, Gene Davenport and Jasper Jones act out Frankie and Johnnie as Patsy Jones sang. These numbers came from the floorshows of the class' Debutante Ball and Freshman Follies.

Later, Joe Moyer lay on the psychiatrist's couch and told psychiatrist George Saied of his strange dreams. He had seen Joanne Eagles as a movie actress, Mary Retha Hice as a fourth grade teacher, and George Hazelton leading a group of scientists who had just discovered Nicholsonian.

During the show, Sandra also introduced the senior athletes, Student Co-operative Association officers, senior class officers, and the superlatives.

Some of the biggest hits of the morning seemed to be the take-offs on the faculty.

Playing Cinderella's mother, Anne Evans impersonated Mrs. Elizabeth Mims, senior adviser. In the same scene, Laura Gurganus acted as Mrs. Margaret Farley, librarian. Bryce Cummings played Prince Charming and Julia Anthony, Cinderella.

Judy Ballance drew much appreciative laughter with her popular mimic of Miss Carolyn Matthews' slow drawl. In the same scene, Jimmy Jenkins, wearing a Confederate hat and a fox skin to impersonate Frank ("Foxy") Landing, English teacher, told everyone to save all their Confederate money because "The South shall rise again!"

Howard Garner, Joe Moyer, Billy Brown, and Robert Taft introduced the play with the theme song—a medley of Disneyland and television tunes, including Mickey Mouse, Zorro and others. Each boy's first name had changed to go with the title of a tune.

Mrs. Elizabeth L. Mims and James D. Nicholson served as advisers for the play.

Louis Arthur, class president, recognized Betsy Whedbee and Joanne Eagles, co-editors of the Tau, who dedicated the annual.

As Joanne thanked George S. McRorie, adviser, for his work and advice, the students burst into spontaneous applause for him to show their appreciation also.

Betsy read the dedication to the student body. It read:

"We, the Class of '59, are extremely proud and happy to dedicate this, the 1959 Tau, to Mr. Earl Windley."

Here, applause again rang through the gymnasium, as the students recognized all that he does, many times unknown to most students, for the school and students. The surprise tribute brought tears to the honoree's eyes.

Betsy continued reading, "In his teaching of industrial arts, he has inspired us to build strong foundations for our lives. "His willingness, loyal devotion and friendliness have endeared him to us.

"May happiness and good fortune follow him throughout the years to come."

Asking Mr. Windley to come forward, Betsy met him and presented him the first copy of the red '59 annual.

After the play the seniors left the gymnasium for the last time with a mixture of tears and shouts, and the juniors moved up to take their places.

Then everyone assembled on the front lawn for the dedication of the seniors' gift to the school. The Class of 1959 left stone benches around the flag pole for the future classes to use.

Junius H. Rose accepted them on behalf of the school board, calling them a useful gift which would beautify the campus.

O. E. Dowd then accepted the gift on behalf of the school.

After practicing for graduation, the seniors posed for class pictures and then received their annuals before leaving for a day of picnicking, swimming and annual signing at the Country Club.

After the Awards Night program last night, the class went to Anne Evans' home for a class party. They enjoyed dancing and talking with friends for several hours.

Chairmen Give Reports

Thursday night the Ladies Auxiliary to the Charles Gray Morgan Post No. 7032 of the Veterans of Foreign Wars met at the home of Mrs. Kenneth Brown. Committee chairmen reported that homemade candy had been sent to the North Carolina Cottage at Eaton Rapids, Mich., and that blouses, bathing suits, and other articles had been sent to Caswell Training School, Kinston.

The Auxiliary was invited to attend a meeting of the Kinston Auxiliary on Tuesday night and to see some movies which were made recently when the two organizations sponsored a square dance at Caswell.

The ladies voted to send a veteran's daughter to Girl Scout Camp Hardee for two weeks this summer.

Mrs. Ralph Bailey, auxiliary president and presiding officer at last night's meeting, and Mrs. C.

R. West Jr., immediate past president and department chaplain, will represent the local unit at the State Convention in Asheville on June 4-7.

Members were urged to save worn sheets and to solicit others to be used in making cancer pads. Plans were made for placing a wreath on the statue on the Court-house Square and for displaying flags on Memorial Day.

Mrs. West gave a report of the district meeting which was held recently in Farmville.

The hostesses served refreshments at the close of the business meeting. Hostesses for the evening were Mrs. Kenneth Brown, Mrs. James Davenport and Mrs. Lottie Lewis.

Sunday Bride Given Party

Miss Josephine Hendrix, bride-elect of Sunday, was honored Thursday night at a party by Mrs. Helen Sermons and Mrs. J. T. Hale at the home of Mrs. Sermons.

Upon arrival Miss Hendrix was presented a corsage of pink carnations by the hostesses.

Refreshments were served from the dining room table where an arrangement of summer flowers was used.

Gifts of silver in her chosen pattern were given to Miss Hendrix by the hostesses. Approximately 20 friends were present.

Basically, A Matter Of Procedure

When the Pitt County Commissioners "look into" the matter of purchases of surplus property through the county government as Chairman Martin says they will, the governing board should review carefully the entire scope of county activities of this kind.

As we understand the situation, all property obtained in the name of Pitt County from the surplus property agency in Raleigh is paid for by a Pitt County check. And when the county uses its checks to pay for such property—whether the county is reimbursed by individuals or other organizations or whether the amount is charged to a departmental budget—the county has the obligation to know that property so obtained is being properly acquired and properly used after it is acquired.

There are, it seems to us, a number of questions which should be answered by the County Commissioners as they look into the matter. We do not ask these questions with the intent of causing embarrassment to any official or department of the county. By posing these questions we do not suggest that anything not completely acceptable to all has been done, inadvertently or otherwise.

We ask these questions because, in the interest of sound, businesslike government operations, and in the interest of all the citizens of Pitt County to whom our county government belongs, we believe the commissioners should provide the answers to the people of Pitt County.

Has the property acquired through the use of Pitt County's name been acquired and used for the purposes intended by regulations governing disposal of federal surplus property?

Has the county's governing board set or followed any hard and fast rules pertaining to obtaining and using this sort of property, or has it been left to each agency, division or authorized individual to acquire such property as may seem necessary to be used for specific purposes?

Have sound accounting practices been followed in acquiring surplus property for civil defense, paying for it from the Bard of Education revolving fund which is reimbursed by individuals or organizations to whom the property goes?

How extensive have the county's purchases of surplus property been?

In the interest of the county government, its officials and the citizens of Pitt, the Commissioners should look carefully into the matter, report its findings to the people and let the chips fall where they may.

After all, the citizens of Pitt have a direct interest in the government of their county which has acquired these items; they have a direct interest in the state government whose agency is charged with the responsibility of disposing of these surplus items; and a direct interest in the federal government which gives them to the state in the first place

At Least The State Can Count On Surplus

There was good news for Tar Heel teachers and good news for the people of the state in the announcement that teachers will get a 1.09 per cent pay bonus at the end of this fiscal year.

It means that surplus revenues of the state for the fiscal year which ends June 30 will be sufficient to pay the bonus promised by the 1957 legislature in resolving the teacher pay dispute. The 1957 legislature specified the 1.09 per cent additional salary would be paid teachers if surplus funds were available at the end of the current fiscal year.

While making additional teacher pay contingent upon surplus funds in the state treasury is not wholly acceptable as a means of increasing teacher salaries, it does mean that the 1957 promise by the General Assembly didn't turn out to be an empty gesture. The bonus is expected to average about $35 per teacher.

Even though it is in the form of a bonus, the legislators and the people of the state should find some satisfaction in the knowledge that funds have become available to pay teachers a little more for the school year now ending.

It is much better for the teachers and for the state than would have been the case had not surplus funds been available to pay the contingent bonus.

Nikita's Words Had A Promise

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — The sly one is Nikita Khrushchev. He has everyone hopping and no one knows why.

What he said is well known, but not why he said it.

This is a fact apt to be obscured in all the millions of words coming out of the Big Four foreign ministers meeting in Geneva.

Those ministers, after almost three weeks of getting nowhere, flew here for John Foster Dulles' funeral. They flew back Thursday to resume their talks today.

But since the Western ministers only know what Premier Khrushchev demanded — demands that brought on the conference — but don't know why, they are really working in the dark.

Last Nov. 27 he called on the Western Allies to get their troops out of Berlin and sign a peace treaty with Communist East Germany.

Since then there have been all kinds of guesses as to his reason. But one thing is sure: With a few words he put the West on the defensive and it is still there.

When Khrushchev made his demands, he also indicated he was willing to back them up by a showdown with the West.

The West could have said: "All right, mister, show your muscle. You want trouble? Start it. We're not budging and we're not even going to discuss it. We're in Berlin and we stay there."

Instead, to avoid the showdown, the Western Allies agonized themselves for months on how to find some peaceful solution to the challenge Khrushchev raised. They finally proposed the Geneva conference to discuss Berlin and other things.

In the end, the Big Four may reach some minor agreement on Berlin, with the West making some concession in return for some Soviet concession.

But since Khrushchev started with nothing — the Allies were in Berlin — any concession from the West will be good horse-trading for him.

It's possible he never thought through his demands at all but simply made them to keep the West jumpy and off balance.

On Nov. 27 he gave the Allies six months to get their troops out of Berlin. They looked on that as a deadline, which would have been May 27. It excited them.

Later Khrushchev casually brushed aside the thought they had to be out of Berlin absolutely by May 27. He said he just picked the six months' idea off the ceiling. Maybe that's where he got his original idea, too.

Khrushchev may have the notion that if he can keep the West fully occupied somewhere — as in Berlin — it won't have time for, from his viewpoint, mischief somewhere else.

These were some of the guesses on why he raised the Berlin issue.

To gain recognition for the East German Communist regime and strengthen its grip on the East German people; to strengthen, if the West backed down on Berlin, the Soviet grip on the whole satellite world; to try, by this simple maneuver on Berlin, to split the Allies or probe a bit to see where divisions lay.

Since everything was quiet and he had nothing to start with, anything he gains out of his Berlin demands will be so much gravy.

Strength For Today

GREAT AFFIRMATION

There could be an endless and highly disorderly argument started over whether the world is getting better or worse.

Whether the world as a whole is getting better I do not know, nor do I think anyone else does. But I do find in the midst of life today more people than I have ever known before who without embarrassment refer to themselves as "committed Christians."

In fact, this term is so widely used that it has become almost commonplace among Christian believers.

If the people who call themselves committed Christians mean what they say — and there is no reason for doubting that they do — then we have people in the church who indeed have discovered the secret of the Christian gospel. For being a Christian means to be committed — committed to Christ.

It involves belief. It operates on the basis of faith. The Christian life must be characterized by love and gentleness. A Christian believer who really lives up to his beliefs must be a righteous-living person. But all these things, important as they are, are subsidiary to this matter of commitment.

Jesus Christ is a spiritual person. Commitment to him means commitment to God. Commitment to him means the living of the heavenly life here and now ever though the best of Christians stumble, make mistakes, and occasionally fall into sin.

But the committed man is one who has taken his stand. A committed Christian "That is a great term — a great affirmation."

Time was when every valley had its own brewery making distinctive beer or ale. Most of these are gone and the beer market is largely in the hands of a few big companies that produce brews that taste much alike.

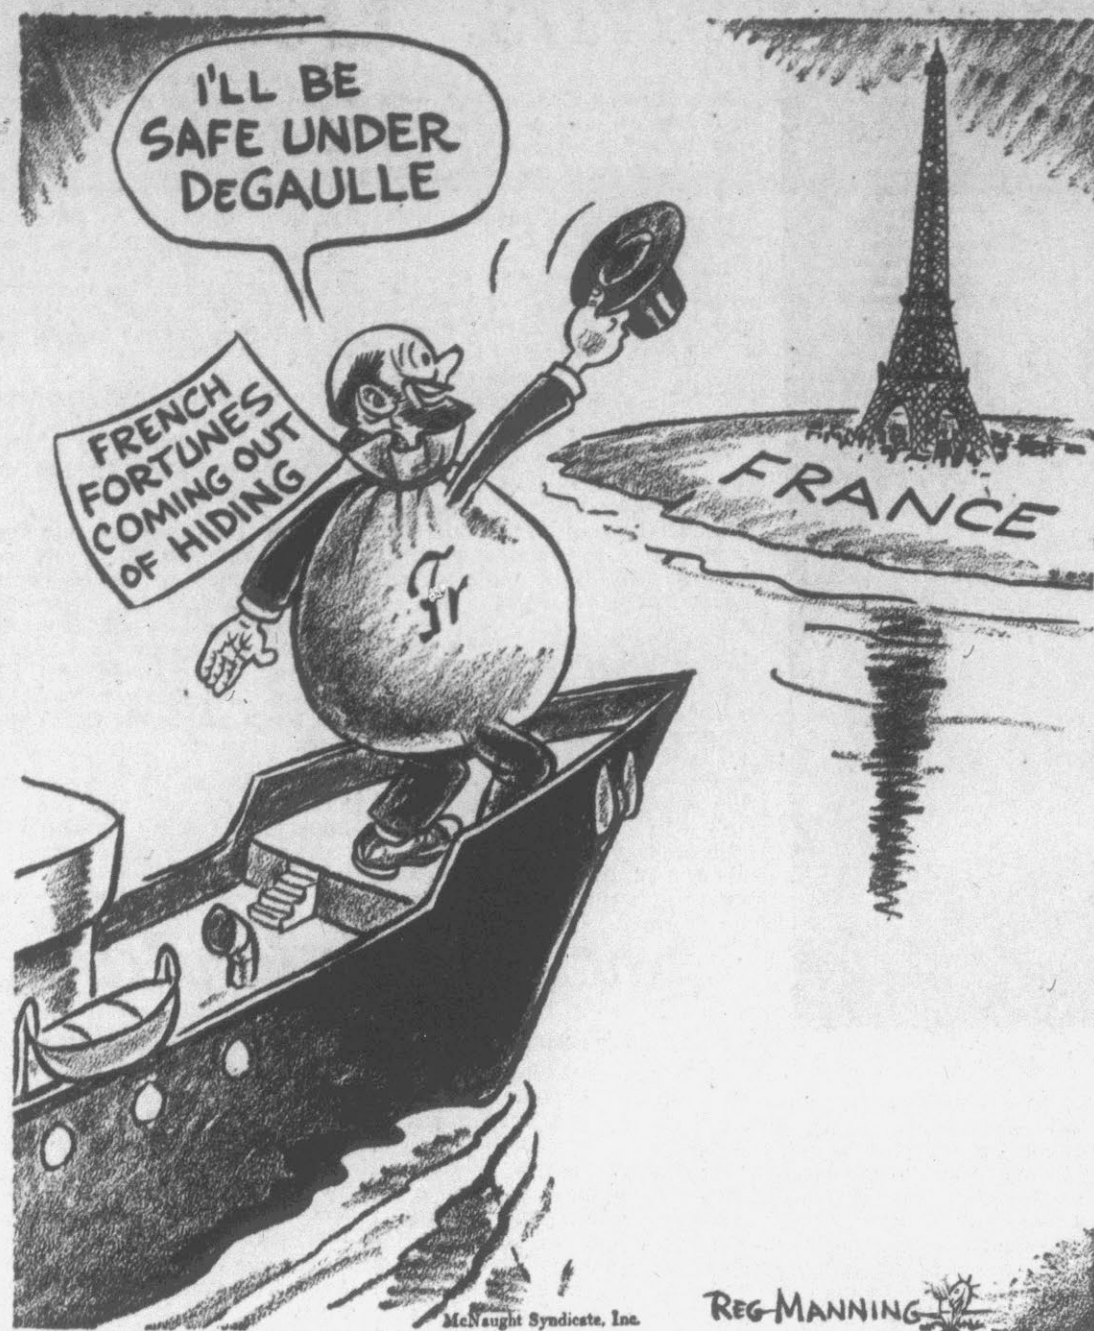

And the auto industry has shrunk to the Big Three and two smaller producers.

W.L. Lyons Brown, Brown-Forman chairman, told a spirits industry meeting that in 1933, when prohibition ended, there were seven companies licensed to produce medicinal whiskey in 18 distilleries.

Public Forum

Forty years ago the little town of Ayden, North Carolina was in a desperate struggle for survival. The proud little town was trying to provide lights and water for its citizens. The town's Light and Water Department had never made expenses and was being operated at a loss.

To help them out of this precarious position, the Town Fathers imported a young man Anson W. Sawyer and made him Superintendent of the Ayden Light & Water Department.

Anson and his wife Rena moved to Ayden on December 1, 1919. They have been loyal and devoted to Ayden on December 1, 1919, time.

It was a difficult time for Anson Sawyer during those first years. There was no town office. He fixed up a small place in the Town Hall and there collected for lights and water the first five days of each month. The tax books were in a lawyers' office and taxes were paid there.

In addition to keeping the power and water plants and lines in operation Anson had to read all meters for several years. He did the many miles of travel required for the town's business in his personal car. It was many years before he was given a travel allowance of forty dollars per month.

In 1928 Anson Sawyer built a town office in the Town Hall and all of the town business was consolidated there. This move brought him new duties and responsibilities. He became town tax collector, town treasurer, and town clerk. All of these duties were added but with no increase in salary.

During the depression years when the town had little to go on except the profits from light and water department, which Anson had long since put on a paying basis, Anson Sawyer took on the duties of the police department during the day while Chief of Police Church Moore got some rest from his night duty.

Ayden as well as many small towns was at low ebb during and following the depression of 1929. Anson carried on the services of the town with two worn out trucks: one handled the lights and water services, and one handled the garbage and trash, in addition to pulling an ancient grader on the many dirt streets.

Ayden was the first small town in Eastern North Carolina to have a white way. This was possible because Anson Sawyer built it with labor he had trained and the town did not have to pay the high installation fees charged by the manufacturer. Anson Sawyer has always believed in progress. He built all of Ayden's rural power lines in an effort to bring the comforts of electricity to rural homes.

When the Recorder's Court was established in Ayden, Anson Sawyer began serving as Clerk of Court. He served in this capacity for some time without any extra pay. Later he was paid fifty dollars per month for this service.

The Town of Ayden has been Anson Sawyer's baby since he came here. He has nursed it when it was young and weak. He has nursed it through the sickness of a major depression. He has seen it grow with a burst of development. His steady hand has always been there to help when needed and to restrain from unwise ventures. For nine long years when materials and equipment could not be purchased, Anson Sawyer never left Ayden for more than a few hours at a time. During several droughts when many towns were without water he watched his pump night and day and pulled the town through without its citizens having to experience the discomforts and dangers of dry faucets.

Yes, Anson Sawyer you have given a life of loyal and devoted service to your town. A town that has repaid you little for such an unselfish life of a man. In your heart you know you have made Ayden what it is today. May this knowledge repay you in some measure. No one can take that away from you.

You have many friends in Ayden that love you and appreciate beyond measure your service to the town. Yes, and you have some enemies too. But one philosopher puts it this way: "Two types of people do not like Anson Sawyer; those that do not know him and those that he would not let beat the town out of something." And so Anson, for forty years of service to your town far beyond the call of duty and with little regard for personal security, the citizen's of Ayden hereby proclaimed you MR. AYDEN.

well as weekends away from home. It is "fun season", if you will.

North Carolina's parks are also preparing to swing into their summer season come June 3. Our state parks are open the year-round, but for summer the staffs are increased for the vacation and outdoor season.

Among the state parks offering an assortment of recreation facilities:

Cliffs of the Neuse, in Wayne; Fort Macon, Cartaret; Hanging Rock, Stokes; Morrow Mountain, Stanly; Mount Jefferson, Ashe; Singletary Lake, Bladen; William B. Umstead Park, in Wake.

Available are swimming, boating, picnicking, camping, hiking, scenic beauty — our state parks are "loaded". Vacationers really don't have to leave the state to find what they're seeking.

And then there are some who won't be going anywhere when their vacationtime rolls around; instead of familiarizing themselves with distant places they will choose to stick close to home.

A choice with which I have no quarrel.

A home is supposed to be comfortable, pleasant, even an enjoyable place to be.

Remember our unwelcome visitors "Hazel" and "Dianne"?

Well the Weather Bureau has a list of names picked out for hurricanes of the 1959 season. In case you haven't seen it elsewhere, this is the list:

Arlene, Beulah, Cindy, Debra, Edith, Flora, Gracie, Hannah, Irene, Judith, Kristi, Lois, Marsha, Nellie Orpha, Penf, Quella, Rachel, Sophie, Tanfa, Udele, Vicki, Wilma, Xcel, Yasmin and Zasu.

The announcement carried the full twenty-six names, but chances are all the names will not be used because it is unlikely there will be 26 such storms in a year. Last year's began with Alma and ended with Janice.

Just the same, the Weather Bureau is prepared.

Opinions In Brief

"Courageous teachers before now have pointed out that education's worst enemies may be educationists, that teachers' colleges can be the worst breeders of poor teachers and that those who have a vested interest in a system which cannot stand on its merits have anchored it in the statute books of many states." — St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

"For a country that wants badly to become a member of the United States, Communist China seems determined to do everything possible to make the job harder." — Green Bay Press-Gazette.

"Mrs. Luce is suggested as the Republican vice presidential candidate. There goes the Bolivian vote." — Columbia (S.C.) State.

"The FTC said authors are not paid any kind of royalty, but are required to pay all costs, plus a profit to the company in practically all cases, and 'the concern agrees to pay them 40 per cent on all books sold and paid for, but only rarely are sales sufficient for them to recoup their investments.'"

"VANITY PUBLISHER"

The Federal Trade Commission has accused Exposition Press, Inc., of New York, of falsely advertising it pays authors 40 per cent royalty on books it publishes.

Mr. Brown recalled that shortly after prohibition ended, some of the new brands bore labels proclaiming, "THREE MONTHS OLD!"

CAPITAL COSTS

Inventory. Because the public insists on aged whiskey, huge amounts of money are tied up in barreled stock. This also tends to keep newcomers out. An investment in a new distilling company, with little hope of sales before four years and not much chance of profit before eight, would not attract much capital.

Drink, Smell, Smoke

By WILTON WYNN

CAIRO (AP) — How do you like your perfume — to smell, smoke or drink?

Short, fez-wearing Abdel Aziz Aly can supply either kind.

If you're the new bride of an Arabian sheikh, "The Sheikh's Kiss" is made just for you.

If you want a smoke that's different, try one of the cigarettes made by mixing amber paste with Turkish tobacco. The smoke perfumes the air while you enjoy exotic puffs.

And for the perfume that tastes — try Abdel Aziz Aly's "Elixir of Youth," which is amber with tea or coffee. He explains:

Especially for the Old

"Just put a pinpoint of my amber paste on the tip of your tongue and swallow it with hot tea or coffee. It gets into your blood. The effect is enchanting and seductive and gives you a taste of pleasure. I recommend it for older people."

"My amber-paste is an opesense to re-enter the gates of youth."

Abdel Aziz Aly says his family has been making perfume since 1812, and claims to have secret formulae for mixing the same essences as used by ancient Egyptians — from lotus flowers, amber, sandalwood, musk and spices from the Orient.

His shop is a narrow, rectangular room with maroon curtains hanging from the ceiling. A servant boy switches on the lamp-light as you enter.

While smoke from a brass incense burner filters through the air, you sit on a carpeted couch while Abdel Aziz Aly serves green mint tea from Persia; he believes in making the customer comfortable before the selling begins.

Exotic Ingredients

In glass cases along the walls are bottles of perfume ingredients. Essence of lotus, tuberose, orange blossoms, and attar of roses come from the Nile Delta. Amber is brought from whales in the Red Sea and Indian Ocean. Kohl for the eyes come from trees near Isfahan and from China. Musk is extracted from bulls which form on oxen in Central Asia.

"Everybody knows these ingredients, but the blending is what makes the difference," says Abdel Aziz Aly. "That's what makes my perfumes superior — the secret formulae handed down from my father and grandfather. This is an ancient art. It takes ages to perfect."

Abdel Aziz Aly has given his perfumes a wide variety of exotic names. Besides "The Sheikh's Kiss," you can also buy "Garden of Allah," "Harem Perfume," "Secret of the Desert," "Nights of Siwa," and "Scent of Araby."

He explains that his perfumes have as many uses as names. From the residue of a flower distillery, he prepares a perfume paste with which to rub the skin after a bath. He says it gives a healthful smoothness to the skin.

Abdel Aziz Aly says a flask of essence in a clothes closet will "give a lasting scent to your clothes." For personal daintiness, he suggests a touch of undiluted essence behind the ears and rubbed on the palms of the hands.

A special shade of kohl is prepared for every color of eyes. Abdel Aziz Aly's special kohl, he says, "has been used from time immemorial as a magic medium for reductive harem eyes."

Most of the coaches and players in the North-eastern AA loop this past season thought that either Jacksonville or Greenville had the best clubs in the league although Elizabeth City won the title.

In winning their first baseball title, the Yellow Jackets received the breaks, but the mark of a champion is being able to take advantage of the breaks. They had one-hitters and two-hitters pitched against against them but were always able to score the needed run or runs for victory. Thus, they won the North-eastern crown by a good margin.

To the surprise of most of the eastern followers, they defeated Smithfield in their first series of play-offs for the state title and then handed Massey Hill, defending state champs, their second loss in two years earlier this week.

The Jackets only placed two men on the All-Conference club but one of them—Pat McDowell—is one of the great athletes to come out of this conference. He has been a star in every sport for the past two years and his pitching and hitting has carried EC to their present position.

They continue their series this week with Massey Hill and with McDowell on the mound again. They might be strong enough to advance closer to the state championship.

Women Show Interest

The women of Greenville have responded to establishment of a Women's Softball League and this past week saw some interesting sights as practice was started at Guy Smith Stadium.

Four teams have already entered the league and the women turned out in large numbers for the first practice sessions. The interest was so keen that W. C. James, Director of the League, had trouble convincing them to quit at night.

The league will open in the near future and should offer some interesting moments this summer.

Golfers To Compete In Tourney

Local golfers have some busy days ahead with the month of June offering plenty of tournaments. A lot of the attention will be focused on the future golf stars.

Four local boys are planning to attend the Junior CGA tournament which will be held in Salisbury June 8th. This will consist of the top junior golfers from North and South Carolina.

Chappy Bradner, Rick Sauve, Buddy Murray, and Bobby Thomas are the local youngsters expected to make the trip to the tournament which is open to anyone below 18 years of age.

The Thirty-Third Annual Carolina's Junior Golf Tournament in Greensboro is just around the corner and will be held the latter part of June. A tournament is also slated for Wilson during the coming month.

Members of Greenville's golf team will be competing in the Eastern Carolina Golf Association Tournament next Wednesday. The tournament, to be held at the Highland Country Club in Fayetteville, will be 18 holes of medals play. Flights will be made up of 16 linksters and those with the lowest handicap will compose the championship flight.

USGA rules will govern the play of the tournament with a few exceptions which will be cited prior to the matches.

Warner and Scott Win

A Women's Scotch Foursome was played yesterday at the Greenville Country Club and 20 ladies participated. They were matched according to handicaps.

Evelyn Warner and Lucille Scott were winners of the nine-hole match with a net score of 50. Second place went to Edna Fisher and Alma Underwood with a score of 51.

President And His Grandson See Game

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower had a wonderful time and his grandson today has two treasured baseballs, thanks to home-run slugger Harmon Killebrew.

At Friday's game between the Washington Senators and the Boston Red Sox, it couldn't have been better if Eisenhower had written the script.

Alonzo Johnson Surprises All, Trounces Valdes

NEW YORK (AP)—Young Alonzo Johnson looks like a man who is going to force his way into the rankings in the heavyweight division.

The 24-year-old boxer from Bradock, Pa. (a Pittsburgh suburb), won going away Friday night from big Nino Valdes, the Cuban self-proclaimed "pro champion of the world." Big Nino, stopped by Charlie Powell in Miami Beach in March, lost a unanimous decision to Johnson at Madison Square Garden.

Although Valdes at 210½ had an edge of 24½ pounds on Johnson, who scaled 185½, he let his younger opponent keep on top of him and shove him around the ring. Johnson now has won 12 straight and 16 of 17 pro starts.

Judge Nick Gamboli scored it 8-1-1 and both Judge Tony Castellano and Referee Al Berli had it 6-3-1, all for Johnson. The AP card agreed with Gamboli's.

SUSPICION PAYS

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Taxi driver Sol Hatfield drove a customer to a swanky home and was told to wait. He heard noises inside the house and radioed for police help. Officers arrived and arrested the cab client for burglary.

Full House Today For Indianapolis 500

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—A huge crowd that may be the biggest in the 48-year history of the 500-mile auto race poured into the Indianapolis Motor Speedway today in sultry, sunny weather.

The vast infield parking lot was about 90 per cent filled an hour and a half before the starting time for the four-hour grind for 33 veteran drivers.

A complete sellout of grandstand and bleacher seats was announced, leaving the rest of a crowd of 15,000 or more to overflow into the grassy infield.

Five of the helmeted men in the glossy, custom-built racers were facing starter Bill Vandewater for the first time but they had been seasoned by years of competition on other tracks.

This 50-year-old racing plant, scene of 50 deaths, is no place for amateurs.

The guarantee of a "continuous battle for the lead was the presence of 10 drivers, almost one-third of the field, who had led the $300,000-classic at least once in the past.

Jimmy Daywalt of Indianapolis, one of the pace-setters, said he figured it might take 142 miles an hour to win this time—and Sam Hanks' 1957 record was only 135.601. Such a big jump in the record could come, of course, only if the race were run without serious accidents that force prolonged running under the "hold your positions" caution light.

The general feeling in Gasoline Alley was that the men to beat were Johnny Thomson of Boyertown, Pa., who sets a one-lap qualifying record of 146.532 miles an hour in the time trials; world record holder Jim Rathmann of Miami, and Jimmy Bryan of Phoenix, Ariz., last year's winner and three-time national champion.

Rathmann had broken the record for closed-course racing twice in the last year—166.72 at Monza, Italy, and then 170.362 in a different car on the new steep-banked track at Daytona Beach, Fla.

Both Rathmann and Thomson had cars built this year but Bryan, "The Phoenix Earth Mover," was in the same Belond Special in which he and Hanks won the last two races. No car ever has won the 500 three times.

Bryan was a front-runner in both the 1954 and 1955 races before taking the checkered flag for the first time last year. He had to take the lead away from other drivers seven times last year and Tony Bettenhausen, "The Tinley Park (Ill.) Express," led six times.

Other starters who had led the 500 (only 92 men have done it since the 1911 inaugural) include Don Freeland, Indianapolis; Paul Russo, Webster Groves, Mo., veteran of 13 Memorial Day races; Johnny Boyd, Fresno, Calif.; Eddie Sachs, Center Valley, Pa.; Rathmann, Thomson, and Pat Flaherty of Chicago, the 1956 winner.

The first-time starters were Bobby Grimm, Indianapolis; Don Branson, Champaign, Ill.; Chuck Arnold, Stamford, Conn.; Red Amick, Muncie, Ind.; and Jim McWhitney, Anderson, Ind.

A newcomer has not won the big race since George Souders beat the veterans in 1927.

The race will start about 11 a.m. (EST) and end about 3 p.m., but the winner won't know his earnings until the victory banquet Sunday night. The total involves special prizes determined by accessories on the winning car. Bryan won over $105,000 last year for himself and car owner George Sallin.

Safety-Lane Check-Ups For Near 2,400 Vehicles

Almost 2,400 cars and trucks were checked during the three-day vehicle safety check program which was held Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, Luther Moore, chairman for the drive, said today.

Moore stated according to the best information available, 1,000 more vehicles were checked this week than in any previous voluntary safety check campaign in Pitt County.

Two thousand, three hundred and ninety-seven vehicles were checked at the Pitt County Safety Council sponsored check lanes and 870 of them needed attention. According to Moore, 137 of the ones needing work had the repairs made and returned to the check lanes for their safety stickers.

Three lanes were in operation in Greenville on Tuesday and Wednesday and on Thursday the lanes were in operation in Ayden, Bethel and Farmville.

Moore expressed his thanks to the State Highway Patrol, City

Police Departments, and the various civic clubs in the different towns for their backing and support of the project, which, without their help, would not have been the success it was. He also thanked the Pepsi Cola Bottling Company of Greenville for supplying the drinks and ice which were given to the drivers as they went through the inspection lane.

Blame Tensions On Soviet, China

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States, in separate statements, has accused both the Soviet Union and Communist China of increasing East-West tensions. The statements were issued Friday by Lincoln White, State Department press officer.

One criticized Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev for what it called "propaganda campaign of threats" against Greece and Italy during his current visit to Albania.

Khrushchev has advised Greece and Italy, which neighbor Albania, not to accept missiles under the U.S. program of strengthening NATO defenses. In retaliation, the Soviet Union might set up rocket sites in Albania.

The second statement denied Chinese Communist charges that the United States had provoked Laos into violating truce terms. The Chinese have said the United States prompted the royal Lao government to integrate Communist forces into the Lao army.

Unwanted Wheat Program Stays

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson will issue a proclamation Monday putting the government's old wheat program into effect for the 1960 crop.

He has no alternative because Congress has failed to come up with a new program. There is general agreement among farm leaders that the present program has failed because a record surplus of the grain has accumulated despite attempts to control production.

The administration called for a new program, but congressional farm leaders do not like a plan advocated by Benson of lowering price supports and doing away with controls.

Egypt Abandons Cotton Barter

CAIRO (AP) — The Egyptian government has decided to stop all barter deals in cotton, an official source said today.

This is considered a major step toward freeing Egypt from dependence on the Communist bloc for sale of its cotton.

Henceforth Egyptian cotton is to be sold with standard discount to anyone paying with free currency.

Cold War, Like Hot War Has Its Toll Among Armed Forces

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cold war, like hot war, has its casualties to be counted on Memorial Day.

More than 17,000 servicemen have been killed in manning and operating the nation's defenses in the "peacetime" years since the end of the Korean conflict.

These are men who died in using the weapons and equipment of defense — planes, ships, tanks, combat vehicles. It does not include the civilian-type fatalities — servicemen killed in highway crashes and other off-duty accidents. Nor does it concern the deaths from disease and illness.

Military accidents, of course, caused most of the deaths. But a few were slain, as in hot war, by the "potential enemy" when aircraft strayed too close to Communist borders.

These 7,000-plus fatalities occurred in a military force averaging in 1954-1958, more than 2,300,000 men during the years of 1954 through 1958. The rate may not be drastically out of line with the accident rate for a comparable civilian population.

But these men would not have died in the manner they died if they had not accepted the mission of the airman, sailor or soldier.

For those who may wonder why the military pays "hazard incentive compensation" to its fliers, paratroopers and others engaged in dangerous missions, the statistics can provide an answer.

The Air Force's personnel office proffers an explanation which also is applicable to other hazardous military personnel: "The type of individuals needed as military aviators will not expose themselves to a lifetime of hazardous duties of military flying without some worthwhile compensation to offset the continuing threat of death. Responsibilities are heavy and a mistake can cost millions, to say nothing of the lives involved. The flier's family is constantly faced with the loss of his support."

The casualty list was composed, in far the greater part, of death to crews and occupants of military aircraft. The Air Force total was 3,921, the Navy and Marine Corps 2,983 and the Army 177.

Complete statistics are not readily available for all services. Thus, there are no immediately available records on the number of Air Force deaths other than in aircraft accidents.

The Navy and Marine Corps, in addition to the 2,983 plane crash fatalities, lists 1,429 other deaths from a variety of causes.

The Army, operating only a comparatively small number of light aircraft, still has its own list of aviation fatalities — 177 for the four-year period. Army paratroopers, like aviators, are extra-haz-

Deny Report Of Strauss Offer To Quit Office

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House has denied a published report that Lewis L. Strauss has offered to resign as nominee for secretary of commerce.

The copyrighted report by the New York Daily News also said that President Eisenhower promptly rejected the offer, telling Strauss: "I'll fight this out if it takes to the end of my administration."

But James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, issued a denial Friday night.

"Someone has made a grave error," Hagerty said. "Resignation is the last thing in the mind of either the President or Secretary Strauss."

Strauss, who barely won approval of the Senate Commerce Committee, is expected to face strong opposition when his nomination reaches the floor of the Senate.

The news said Strauss made his offer to resign after the committee approved him by a 9-8 vote on May 19.

Storm Moves To Hit Gulf Coast

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — Tropical storm Arlene, after loitering in the Gulf of Mexico overnight, was expected to blow into the west Louisiana coast today.

The season's first tropical disturbance, located now about 130 miles south of Lafayette, La., is moving north-northwest after remaining stationary all night. It is expected to turn more northerly and pick up a little in forward speed later today.

A Navy hurricane hunter plane from Jacksonville, Fla., kept watch on the storm during the night. The Weather Bureau said Arlene was not expected to change much in size and intensity.

Rough seas were reported along the Louisiana coast.

Bobby Earl Smith Funeral Set Sunday

Bobby Earl Smith, 17, died in Beaufort County Memorial Hospital, Washington, Friday morning at 11 o'clock of injuries received in an automobile accident near Washington Thursday afternoon.

Funeral services will be conducted at Wayside Presbyterian Church, near Chocowinity, Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock by the pastor, Rev. G. E. Lineback. Burial will be in Pinewood Memorial Park. The body will be taken from the home to the church one hour prior to the time of service.

Bobby Earl, son of Linwood Earl and Estelle Mills Smith, was born in Pitt County and reared near Chocowinity in the Bear Creek community. He attended the Chocowinity School and had just completed the 11th grade. He attended the Wayside Presbyterian Church.

Surviving are his parents, a brother, Jesse E. Smith of the home; two sisters, Mrs. Billy Mitchell of Washington and Miss Christine A. Smith of the home, and his grandparents, Jesse C. Smith of Washington and Mr. and Mrs. Jim J. Mills of Black Jack.

Woman Reports Assault In Home

BURLINGTON, N.C. (AP) — A 56-year-old white woman told police that a Negro, wearing gloves and armed with two pistols and a knife, raped her in her bedroom early today.

Police said that Mrs. Fred Smith telephoned in an almost hysterical condition shortly before 2 a.m. and said a Negro had raped her in her home about six blocks from the downtown Burlington business district, in a white neighborhood on the fringes of a colored section.

A doctor examined her and said she bore no external bruises, but showed evidence of sexual relations.

She was home alone at the time of the alleged attack. Her husband, who runs a night club, came home shortly afterward. Early investigation indicated that neighbors did not hear anything amiss.

A suspect was picked up later in the morning at Jamestown, between High Point and Greensboro, when he got off a train there. He was returned to Burlington for questioning.

The Negro was described as about 25, 5 feet 8, 145 to 180 pounds, light colored, and wearing dark clothes.

Pilot Parachutes Into Hail Storm

HAYS, Kan. (AP) — An Air Force pilot parachuted 15,000 feet Friday night through hail and turbulent winds and escaped with only face and neck bruises.

Lt. Robert A. Stewart, 27, Belton, Mo., bailed out of his F102 jet interceptor aircraft shortly after his engine flamed out at 42,000 feet.

"I was pretty lucky I guess," Stewart said. "That hail was buffeting me around when I was coming down like I was in the middle of a swarm of golf balls."

He landed three miles west of Hays and was picked up by a farmer, Lee Schnatterly, who took him to a hospital.

Stewart said he thought his plane was tossed around by a tornado. There were numerous unconfirmed reports of funnels throughout the area.

Wind velocity was believed to have ranged from 85 to 150 miles an hour.

Stewart guided his aircraft through the storm to 15,000 feet before hitting the election button. He was on a training flight with two other aircraft out of Richards-Gebaur Air Force Base near Kansas City, Mo. The other aircraft became separated in the storm. One landed at Salina, Kan., and the other at Albuquerque, N.M.

Graveside Rites For Infant Son Friday

BAILEY — Graveside services were held here yesterday for Thomas Edwin Haskins, two-weeks-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Haskins of Wilson, who died at Duke Hospital at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday.

The services were conducted by the Rev. R. Grady Dawson of Wilson. Interment was in the Bailey Cemetery.

Survivors, in addition to the parents, include a brother, Jack Haskins, the paternal grandmother, Mrs. J. E. Haskins of Bailey; and the maternal grandmother, Mrs. Andrew J. Taylor of Bethel.

Man Shot In Thigh During An Argument

Frank Browder, 34-year-old printing press operator, was shot in the thigh yesterday afternoon allegedly by his wife.

Browder, Daily Reflector pressman, this morning was reported in good condition in Pitt Memorial Hospital where he was taken yesterday afternoon for treatment.

Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson said Browder's wife, Myrtle Miller Browder, 27, is being held in Pitt County Jail on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

The Browners and two children live at Rt. 5, Box 173, Greenville, near the Pictolus Highway.

Sheriff Tyson said Mrs. Browder told investigating officers that when her husband came home from work yesterday afternoon an argument began.

Mrs. Browder, described as a frail woman, was quoted by officers as saying she picked up a 12 gauge single barrel shotgun and told her husband to come no closer. He continued to advance toward her and she fired, Mrs. Browder told officers.

The blast from the gun struck Browder in the left thigh. Physicians said the shot severed the main artery in the leg. However, doctors said this morning the artery had been repaired and Browder is in good condition.

The injured man was taken to the hospital by neighbors and Mrs. Browder came to the Greenville police station to report the shooting. City officers called the sheriff's department to investigate. The sheriff said he understood from the woman she and her husband had been arguing for some time. She recently went to her home in South Carolina to visit relatives.

Sheriff Tyson also said deputies attempted to talk to Browder yesterday afternoon but he was undergoing treatment at the time.

Browder began working as Reflector pressman in July of 1957 and has been with the newspaper continuously since. He came to Greenville from Florence, S.C., where he was employed as a newspaper pressman.

District Officer Visits Greenville Kiwanis Club

Mayor Charles S. Edwards of Farmville, lieutenant-governor of Division 7, Carolinas Kiwanis District, made his official visitation to the Greenville Kiwanis Club last night and rated the club as "one of the most active in the Carolinas."

President John A. Collins, Jr., and Mrs. Collins were hosts to the lieutenant-governor and Mrs. Edwards at a social hour at their home, 1700 E. Fifth St. before the regular meeting.

The visiting Kiwanis official reviewed some of the history of the Greenville club, and urged the Kiwanians to continue their community activities in providing scholarships for worthy young men and women, the good neighbor spirit among the clubs and complimented the Greenville club for its extensive activities among underprivileged and crippled children.

The speaker recalled that the Greenville Kiwanis club sponsored the organizing of the Farmville Kiwanis Club shortly after World War II. Edwards' "memoirs" of his studentship at East Carolina College in the early 1930s when there were only 17 males in classes revealed some interesting events.

Rev. Richard Gammon said the invocation, Kiwanian Don Conley won the attendance prize. Elbert Bennett led the singing of Kiwanis songs, and Mrs. Lena Tyson was accompanist.

President Collins announced that the Kiwanis Club's family picnic will be held at Kiwanis Park next Friday evening and the "Choo-Choo" train will be in operation. The president and Mrs. John A. Collins, Jr., will be hosts at their Atlantic Beach cottage next Thursday evening at 5 o'clock to the club's officers and directors.

Past Lt.-Gov. Rex Best and E.M. Thompson, A.J. Tyson and Don Whitely of the Stantonsburg Kiwanis Club and Mrs. J.A. Collins, Sr. of Greenville, were special guests.

Heard Sirens, It Was His Auto

LOWELL, N.C. (AP) — Jerry Segars, one of 78 graduating seniors, heard the fire sirens Friday night while commencement exercises were going on at Lowell High School.

An hour later he went outside and saw the cause. His automobile had burned.

Church Combining Its Sunday Service

St. James Methodist Church will combine its Sunday School and morning worship service tomorrow for a special "Consecration Sunday" service.

According to the Rev. J. Malloy Owen, the service is part of a 12-months program of stewardship education begun in January with a 14-day crusade conducted by the Rev. L. O. Leet. The combined service will begin at 9:45 with Sunday School roll call and reports, and will be followed by the worship service at 10 o'clock.

"The purpose of the special service," the Rev. Mr. Owen said, "is to give every member of the church a chance to make his pledge to Christ and His church for the new church year, which begins July 1. We are hoping to match the record of the Leet Crusade's Victory Sunday service when we had 100 per cent attendance of Sunday School and church members."

Included in tomorrow's program will be acceptance of Sunday School reports and recognition of classes by Superintendent Gordon B. Berry, special music and the sermon by the Rev. Mr. Owen.

Six Appear In Who's Who Edition

By MARY H. GREENE

Six Greenville women are included, because of their outstanding attainments, in the 1959 "Who's Who of American Women," first edition of the yearbook to be published by the A. N. Marquis Co. of Chicago.

As might be expected in a college community, both town and gown are represented in the current volume. A prominent club woman and leader in civic and cultural affairs, four members of the college department of English, and a faculty member of the college department of business make up Greenville's honored half dozen women — Mrs. J.H.B. (Rachel Maxwell) Moore, Dr. Elizabeth Utterback, Miss Jane F. White, Dr. Frances R. Winkler, Miss Emma L. Hooper, and Dr. Lucile H. Charles.

Mrs. Moore served as president of the Greenville Woman's Club from 1926 to 1932, from 1934 to 1942, and from 1951 to 1953 and is now Honorary Life President.

In recognition of her interest and achievements in activities toward community improvement, her portrait, by Mrs. Georgia Pearsall Hearne of Greenville, is placed over the mantel of the main reception room of the building. In the North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs, Mrs. Moore has served as either officer or committee chairman or both for a period of more than 25 years.

In community activities she has taken a leading part in many organizations. She has acted as vice president and director of the Pitt County Red Cross and as a member of the Board of the Salvation Army.

Mrs. Moore's interest in the cultural life of the city is evidenced by her unflinching work over many years for the Greenville Art Gallery and the annual arts festival held in the city. As a member of the Board of Directors of the Greenville Art Gallery, she has been instrumental in bringing to the city many fine exhibitions and has arranged personal appearances by leading personalities in the fine and applied arts. She is a charter member of the Pitt Co. Historical Society and the Greenville Music Club.

Her activities have been not only local but state-wide. She serves on the Board of Directors of the N. C. Art Museum, the State Art Society, and the N. C. Garden Club, and is a member of the N. C. Society for the Preservation of Antiquities, the N. C. State Literary and Historical Association, and other organizations.

A woman of amazing energy, Mrs. Moore has a beautiful garden surrounding her attractive house on East Fifth Street. She does much of her own planning, digging, and planting. A charming hostess, she entertains her friends often at social gatherings at her home.

She "takes off" every now and then from her busy round of duties and in recent years has traveled in Europe, Asia, Africa, the Caribbean, and South America.

A native of Kenansville, N.C., Mrs. Moore was educated at the James Sprunt Institute, the University of Georgia, North Carolina State College, and East Carolina College, and has studied both French and Spanish under private tutors.

She was married in 1922 to the late James Henry Benjamin Moore of Greenville, who died in 1948.

Dr. Elizabeth Utterback is both a teacher and a writer. A member of the East Carolina department of English since 1950, she conducts classes and directs the student-teaching program in the department.

She is widely known throughout this section as drama coach for East Carolina's annual spring musical, one of the most popular entertainments presented on the campus. The series of operettas, beginning nine years ago with "Good Times," had for its latest attraction "Kiss Me, Kate," produced in the spring of 1959.

Dr. Utterback is the author of numerous published articles, short stories, and poems, which have appeared in leading professional journals and in widely read magazines in this country.

During the past year she served as president of the Greenville Chapter of the American Association of University Women. She is a member of Kappa Delta Pi, national honorary education fraternity, and of a number of other professional organizations in the fields of English and education.

Dr. Utterback is a native of Louisville, Ky., and an Ed.D. graduate of Columbia University. Before coming to East Carolina, she taught at Alabama Woman's College, Brooklyn College, and the Associated Colleges of Upper New York. This summer she will add to her previous travels abroad a visit to Finland.

In Greenville she lives at the Colonial Apartments, 703 East Fifth Street.

Dr. Winkler started her career as a lawyer and then turned to the teaching of English. She joined the faculty of East Carolina College in 1957.

She was born in Brooklyn, N.Y., and attended St. Joseph's College for Women there. Later she earned the LL. B. degree at Pacific Coast University, Los Angeles, and the Ph. D. from the University of Southern California.

Before becoming a teacher, Dr. Winkler was associated with several law offices and for six years was legal secretary of the Automobile Club of Southern California.

She has taught in California at Southwestern University, Occidental University, Valley Junior College, and Coalinga College; and at St. Mary of the Plains College, Dodge City, Kansas.

As a teacher on the college educational television series of courses, Dr. Winkler became known to Eastern Carolina audiences through her course in "World Masterpieces," broadcast during the past school year over WNCT, Channel 9.

She is a member of Phi Delta Delta, legal fraternity for women; the Mediaeval Academy of America; and other professional organizations. She has traveled in Europe, Central America, and Alaska.

Dr. Winkler lives in Greenville at 201B South Elm Street with a friend, Miss Mary Elizabeth Karaker, who is from Southern Illinois but whose family originally came from North Carolina.

Dr. Charles has been a member of the East Carolina English department since 1946. In her first years at the college, in addition to her duties as teacher, she was advisor to the East Carolina Playhouse. The productions which she directed, including "I Remember Mama," "The Admirable Crichton," and "Everyman," are remembered for their artistry and their popular appeal.

Among her chief interests Dr. Charles includes studies in anthropology, particularly in the field of primitive drama. During the past several years she has published a number of scholarly articles dealing with various aspects of this subject. In preparing these papers she has had access to the files of the Cross-Cultural Survey in the Institute of Human Relations, Yale University, of which she is a Ph.D.

graduate, and has worked at the C. G. Jung Institute, Zurich, Switzerland, where in 1953-1955 she held a fellowship from the Bollingen Foundation.

Dr. Charles taught drama and speech at New College, Columbia University, and at Mary Washington College, Fredericksburg, Va., before joining the East Carolina College staff.

She is a member of the American Anthropological Association, the American Folklore Society, and the Analytical Psychology Club of New York.

Dr. Charles makes her home in Greenville at the Erwin Apartments on the college campus. A native of Chicago, she now has her permanent residence in Cleveland, Ohio.

Miss Hooper retired in May, 1959, as a faculty member of the college. A teacher in the department of English since 1924, she has served under all five of East Carolina's presidents and has established one of the longest service records at the college.

As author of the Golden Anniversary Pageant "East Carolina's Spade," presented last May on the campus, she gave permanent form to both the formal and informal history of the college. She is now working on a research project for the college and will be on the campus for several weeks before going to Memphis, Tenn., to make her home with a sister.

Among her most valuable contributions to campus life has been her sponsorship of the Robert H. Wright Chapter of the Future Teachers of America, which she founded in 1939 and which has since won national honors for its excellent program of activities. She has also acted as a member of the Advisory Committee of the Future Teachers Department of the North Carolina Education Association.

She served for three years as president of the Greenville Branch of the American Association of University Women and is a member of Delta Kappa Gamma, national honor society for women in education. At the college she has held a number of committee assignments, including chairmanship of the Commencement Committee, and she acted for many years as faculty advisor of the YWCA and as a member of the Alumni Council of the college.

A native of Mississippi, Miss Hooper holds degrees from Mississippi State College for Women and the University of Virginia.

Miss White is nationally known among educators in the field of business education as author of a monthly column on audio-visual aids for "Business Education World." She is also part owner of Educational Supplies and Services, which provides teachers of business with materials useful in instruction.

Miss White is a Kansan by birth. She holds degrees from Central College in Missouri and the University of Denver and has received training in a number of other universities. Before coming to East Carolina, she taught in high schools and business colleges, and at Georgia State College in Milledgeville. She has also had experience with various well-known business concerns.

Miss White's many articles on business education have been published in leading journals, such as "Business Teacher" and "Teaching Tools."

She is a former national editor of the business education fraternity Pi Omega Pi; and is a member of Delta Pi Epsilon, national honor graduate fraternity in business education; the American Business Writing Association; and other organizations.

Miss White's Greenville address is 602 East Ninth Street.

A New Memorial On 'Hill Of Sacrifices' In Hawaii

Editor's note — This year, Memorial Day visitors to 10-year-old Punchbowl Cemetery will see more than the military headstones that created a continuing controversy. A magnificent monument is being raised to the dead of World War II and the Korean War.

By ROBERT TUCKMAN
HONOLULU (AP)—On the inner rim of an extinct volcano crater known as Hill of Sacrifices, a memorial is being erected — America's war dead of the Pacific. It is being built of Italian marble brought halfway around the world to the National Memorial Cemetery of the Pacific, overlooking downtown Honolulu.

There in the trim green lawns of Punchbowl Crater, lie the remains of 17,000 Americans who died in the service of their country, most of them the dead of World War II and the Korean conflict. They include several thousand unknowns of the two wars.

On Memorial Day, as is the custom each year, families of the dead, Boy Scouts and veterans organizations will decorate each grave with Hawaiian flower leis. Perhaps the most noted of those buried in Punchbowl was not a military man when he died.

He was Ernie Pyle, the war correspondent felled by Japanese sniper bullets April 18, 1945, on the remote Pacific Island of Iwo Jima near Okinawa.

Pyle, 44, rated burial in this military cemetery because he served in the U.S. Navy in World War I. His body lies beneath a flat stone slab with the graves of an unknown soldier on either side of him.

The new war memorial is being built at Punchbowl by the American Battle Monuments Commission, a government agency that constructed and maintains 14 cemeteries and 17 memorials.

Work on it was started in June 1958. It is expected to be completed in the summer of 1962.

A principal part of the memorial will be the "Garden of the Missing." In it will be carved, on marble panels, the names, rank, organization and home state of some 28,000 missing of World War II and the Korean War.

The panels will be placed on the walls of eight courts of honor. Four courts will be on each side of an uphill stairway.

At the top of the stairway will be the Memorial Court, 120 feet wide and 90 feet deep. The main memorial building will be a horseshoe-shaped structure of Roman treverine stone.

It will consist of a central pylon with a monumental stone figure of Columbia as the centerpiece, and a small nonsectarian chapel for devotions by next of kin.

On each side of the center building will be colonnaded wings covered with massive ceramic maps and inscriptions depicting battles of the Pacific.

Beneath the figure of Columbia,

U.S. Adds 8,000 New Physicians

CHICAGO (AP) — Almost 8,000 new physicians received licenses to practice medicine in the United States in 1958.

It was the sixth consecutive year in which more than 7,000 physicians obtained licenses.

Those figures were reported today by the American Medical Association's Council on Medical Education and Hospitals.

The 1958 total of new licenses was 7,809. During the same period deaths among physicians numbered 3,700. So the net gain in the nation's physician population was 4,109.

Guest Minister

Rev. Robert Tarzier of Knoxville Tenn. will be the guest minister at a special service Wednesday night at 8 o'clock in the First Baptist Church in Ayden.

"Life Behind the Iron Curtain" will be discussed by Tarzier. Prior to his escape from the Soviet Union, he was the pastor of the Calvary Baptist Church at Riga, Latvia.

Tarzier has spent more than 25 years of his missionary and pastoral life in the Sovietlands and has seen arrest, imprisonments and harassment at the hands of Communists.

His subject will be: "Will the world Communism headed by Soviet Russia destroy the Western Civilization and Christianity?"

the work of sculptor Bruce Moore of New York, will be inscribed:

The solemn pride that must be yours to have laid so costly a sacrifice upon the altar of freedom.

The inscription is a portion of a letter written by President Abraham Lincoln to a mother who lost five sons in the Civil War.

The memorial is the last of 17 built by the commission. The cost has not been announced officially. One early estimate placed it at three million dollars.

Punchbowl Cemetery itself cost $1,022,000,000 and was dedicated Sept. 2, 1949, the fourth anniversary of V-J Day which marked the end of World War II hostilities.

It covers 112 acres in the volcano crater, formed by an eruption said to have taken place 75,000 years ago.

The burial ground was the first national cemetery to be established in the Pacific area. It is the largest of three national memorial cemeteries supervised by the U.S. Army outside the continental United States.

A bitter controversy developed two years after Punchbowl's dedication.

On Sept. 24, 1951, Army men and vehicles moved in without advance notice and removed the 13,000 temporary wooden crosses marking the graves.

The action was taken, the Army said then, because it was costing too much to maintain the crosses and to trim the grass around them by hand.

The crosses were replaced with stone markers set flat on the ground.

The Army said a poll had been taken three years earlier to determine whether survivors wanted flat or erect headstones and that the flat stones were preferred.

Many veterans and civic organizations protested. Newspapers joined the outcry.

The fight was taken to Congress. But in March 1952, a House interior subcommittee killed legislation to force the Army to restore the crosses.

Again in 1955, a resolution was sent to President Eisenhower asking to put back the crosses.

Just last March the Honolulu

Star-Bulletin commented editorially:

"Serious thought should be given to returning the crosses to the National Cemetery. As was made clear at the time of the controversy over restoration of the crosses, the religious symbols of Buddhist, Jewish and other faiths can be used where family members desire."

Also last March, the Army decided to raise the flat headstones one inch above the surrounding turf. The Army said this move was in line with a manual issued by the quartermaster general.

The Honolulu Star-Bulletin commented: "This is not an appropriate substitute for impressive and symbolic crosses. It is delayed recognition by the Army that the flush headstones are not as impressive as memorial stones that stand above the turf."

Boy Will Face Capital Charge

AHOSKIE, N.C. (AP)—A young Negro boy, accused of entering the bedroom of two white girls, will face capital charges of first degree burglary during the July term of Hertford Superior Court.

George G. Everett, 16, described as an outstanding student at Ahoskie's Robert L. Vann High School, was bound over without privilege of bond at a preliminary hearing Friday.

Police said a lost shoe led to his detection after the girls reported the incident. They said he lost the shoe as he bounded through a window in fleeing the room.

Woman's Second Assaultant Killed

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Twice in seven years Ruth Gwinn was attacked on darkened streets. She died Friday from injuries suffered in the last assault.

Police said the 57-year-old secretary was walking home early Thursday when a man sprang from behind a tree, hit her with a plank, dragged her into a parking lot and raped her. He fled when her screams aroused the neighborhood.

In the same neighborhood in 1952 she was shot in the back by a man who tried to force her into his car. He was never caught.

ON OUR OWN HOOK SAM AND I WENT DOWN THROUGH THE VENTILATOR TO SEE IF IT WOULD LEAD TO THE BASEMENT. IT DID.

YOU LAND ON THE OLD RESTAURANT STOVE, GO THROUGH THE BURIED STREET-CAR—UNDER THE OLD SHED—AND COME TO AN IRON DOOR AT THE BASEMENT.

THE ENTIRE FORTUNE IS STILL THERE—INTACT. ANYBODY COULD GET TO IT.

THAT WAS A DANGEROUS TRIP. YOU MEN COULD HAVE LOST YOUR LIVES IN A CAVE-IN.

TO TELL THE TRUTH—THERE WAS A MYSTERIOUS CAVE-IN AT THIS POINT JUST AS WE WERE LEAVING THE TUNNEL. TOOK US OVER AN HOUR TO DIG OUR WAY OUT.

WE STILL CAN'T FIGURE OUT WHAT CAUSED THAT SAND SLIDE.

—AND I'D SWEAR I HEARD SOMEBODY COUGH.

ALL OF WHICH E. KENT HARDLY EMPHASIZES THE FACT THAT YOU SHOULD KEEP AN ARMED GUARD AT THE OLD VENTILATOR TILL THE MONEY IS RECOVERED.

AND AT THE RARE FISH AQUARIUM—WELL, WASN'T I TELLING YOU FELLOWS THE TRUTH? I DIDN'T LIE TO YOU, DID I?

WHEN I WAS CALLED TO THAT VENTILATOR TO PICK UP THE ELECTRIC EEL THAT I HAD PREVIOUSLY SOLD TO THE OLD GUY—I JUST PUT TWO AND TWO TOGETHER.

WHAT'S THAT?

THAT'S YOUR FIVE GRAND YOU SAID YOU WANTED FOR THE INFORMATION.

GLAD TO PAY YOU.

WHO WANTS $5000?

HMP? MAYBE SIX? HUH, HILLIS? MAYBE SIX?

DON'T WORRY, YOUR BOSS ISN'T AROUND.

LOOK, THERE'S ALMOST TWO MILLION DOLLARS DOWN THERE! WHO WANTS SIX GRAND?

YOU'VE CHANGED YOUR MIND, HILLIS?

Oldest Soldier Will Just Listen

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—The nation's oldest soldier planned nothing more strenuous than cooking an ear for music this Memorial Day as his countrymen honored their war dead.

Outings are infrequent for 116-year-old Confederate Walter Williams, last survivor.

Two weeks ago he motored up Houston's main street in this city's Armed Forces Day parade. The veteran peeled off a salute as his ambulance moved past the reviewing stand.

It marked his first time out of bed in months.

"The parade didn't hurt him and it didn't help him," his daughter, Mrs. Willie Mae Bowles, said. Williams passes the days keeping up with the country music parade of his on his radio and record player.

"He has that record of 'Battle of New Orleans' on," his daughter said. "He plays it most of the time right now."

CHAPTER 10

Mark and Fleur looked at each other across the small table, searching each other's faces.

"You were not joking this morning, when you said you thought I was going to ask you to run away with me," asked Mark.

"Not any more than you were," said Fleur. "We fell in love, didn't we? And we're trying to find out about each other."

"We fell in love," Love at first sight. This morning he had wondered if she would have touched him so deeply had he not been living under such tension. Now he knew that a heightened sense of awareness had let him recognize her as the one person in the world who could give him happiness again.

"You don't know me," he said. Fleur shrugged. "Is that absolutely necessary? Nobody is loved because of his good qualities. Respected, admired — yes, but not loved. Besides, you don't know me, either."

"I think you are right," he said. "True love means condoning the other's faults." "I have many," said Fleur. "I'm moody. I get seasick. I'm untidy. I'm lazy. I am stubborn and I am weak."

"I'm egocentric," said Mark. "There are times when my work is all-important to me; then nothing else matters. I'm easily impatient. I'm demanding. I'm greedy for life. Will you marry me, Fleur?"

The little line had watched earlier this morning showed again, marring the youthfulness of her face, pulling at the corners of her mouth. "I just told you that I am weak. Grand-maman and Guy... I could not let them down. Bransky has told you how much they did for me, hasn't he?"

The desperation in her eyes made him put his hand over hers. "It's such an old conflict," he said. "The battle between love and duty. But would you shatter their hopes if you married me? You could still have a career. Come, let's get out of here. Let's go for a drive. We have a whole afternoon and evening head of us."

"I'm expected home," he said. "Then tell Bransky that you won't be. Or phone."

Fleur shook her head. "Guy — he has such a violent temper. He'll be furious. I'll be afraid for you."

"I'm not afraid of anybody," Mark told her. "If you want me, we will go and see your grandmother right now, and I shall ask for your hand formally."

"Oh, no, no," said Fleur. "I'll never accept you. An American. An artist. Oh, don't you understand?"

Instead of answering, Mark pulled her up from her chair. "We are going to get to know each other a little better. And I don't like back rooms that smell of food to do it in, with Bransky sitting at the door, watching us. It was a pleasure meeting you," he said, as they passed Bransky's table. "Mademoiselle will be home later, some time after midnight. Would you be good enough to tell Madame Constant not to worry?"

The little old man was apparently robbed of speech. All he could do was open and close his mouth in quick succession, his hands fluttering like a bird that can't fly.

"You see how simple it is," said Mark, as they left the restaurant. "Not a word out of him."

With all decisions taken out of her hands, Fleur's mood had changed completely. "This, of course, is what I would have said about American. If I didn't happen to be in love with one — their way of settling matters for others as if they had no say. Do you think I could possibly learn to be like that, too?"

"You stay exactly as you are," he said.

They had reached the car, and he held the door open for her.

They took the road that curved along the shore. Traffic was heavy.

When Fleur finally spoke, she asked, "Where are you taking me?" "To Nice," Mark said. "The sixth largest town in France. Very few famous people have not been there and unfortunately most of them have a monument erected to their honor, or houses that carry their name-plates. There are also museums, galleries, churches, and historical places, but I think we'll skip them all. You'd get tired sightseeing. I think we'll find the best restaurant and really have something to eat, maybe at the old harbor, and then nap on the beach. We can rent an umbrella. Then we'll pick out a dress for you to wear tonight. After that we'll have something to drink on a hotel terrace and watch the people strolling by. Later I shall wine and dine you, and of course, we will dance."

"An American fairy tale," she said. "Go on. It will all come true."

But the restaurant at the old harbor did not look inviting and they drove past. From the terrace of one of the big old hotels drifted the gay tunes of an orchestra, and Mark stopped the car. "Maybe there's dancing."

Fleur laughed. "At this time?" "Oh, this is France," Mark answered. "One never knows what people will do here."

They entered an enormous lobby, studied with the showcases of elegant shops from the city. "I was rich," Mark told her. "I would buy you everything. Just everything. But things being as they are, I hope you will be content with some flowers."

The flower stand was almost directly opposite the desk. He picked out a delicate orchid spray. While they were waiting for it to be made into a corsage, they waited idly a few steps closer to the desk, where the attractions of Nice were posted on a bulletin board.

Next to it, in front of a small camera shop, a photographer had set up a stand. About fifty snapshots, each numbered with white ink, hung from a wooden frame. A sign above them said the copies could be ordered inside. The top one in the first row showed Corinne Javal in her car. Next to her sat a man.

And at that moment Mark forgot all he was supposed to remember — the threat to his life, that he might be watched, and that Inspector Perrier had implored him not to make himself conspicuous. "Wait here," he told Fleur, stepping into the shop.

A middle-aged man, holding a camera, came forward. "The young lady and you?"

"No," said Mark. "I'd like to have number twenty-five. When did you take it?"

"Oh, sometime yesterday," the photographer took it off the hook and handed it to Mark.

Mark stared at the photograph. There was Corinne, as he remembered her, the lovely face with the bored eyes and the charming smile. It seemed incredible to think of her as dead. Murdered. But what mattered now was the man.

He And Airplane Landed In Jail

NORTH CALDWELL, N.J. (AP)—David Bradley, 22, landed in jail Thursday night. It was a three-point landing, at that. Bradley, of Wayne, was on a flight from Hackettstown to Totowa when he got lost in a haze. He made a forced landing on a field of the Essex County Penitentiary.

Bradley got out of jail. But the single engine plane will have to be dismantled. State law says you can't take off from a field other than an airport—not even a prison.

POLICEMAN DISARMED

THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW!

By FAGALY and SHORTEN

Six Middies To Switch To Army

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP)—An admiral's son who doesn't like the water and five other midshipmen are making naval history—by becoming officers in the U.S. Army. They'll make the switch immediately after graduation from the academy next week.

It's by choice. And although they give a variety of reasons, it boils down to the fact that they prefer Army service to the Navy.

Marshall H. Woodbridge of Bethesda, Md., 24-year-old son of Admiral E. Tyler Woodbridge, has never made any bones about his preference for the infantry. His parents long ago accepted the fact. The boy just doesn't like the water.

The switch-over is natural for Paul F. Keefe of Baltimore and Arthur Emerson of Coke, Va. Their fathers were Army colonels.

The other three graduating mid-dies making the switch are John M. Rourke of Springfield, Ill.; Michael Joseph Cronin of Red Bank, N.J., and James W. Tritz of Humboldt, S.D.

The way was opened just this year for graduates of the service academies to volunteer for another service. Navy previously had been sending a portion of its class to the Air Force and Marines under quota systems — but never to the Army although some of its officers transferred after a period of sea duty.

At that moment Mark forgot all he was supposed to remember — the threat to his life, that he might be watched, and that Inspector Perrier had implored him not to make himself conspicuous. "Wait here," he told Fleur, stepping into the shop.

A middle-aged man, holding a camera, came forward. "The young lady and you?"

"No," said Mark. "I'd like to have number twenty-five. When did you take it?"

"Oh, sometime yesterday," the photographer took it off the hook and handed it to Mark.

Quick action on the appeal has been promised by Judge A. K. Gardner of Huron, S.D., who is chief judge of the Circuit Court. He will name three judges to hear the action.

Starkweather has no attorney and his parents said they were unable to find one who would take the case. The court is asked to name an attorney and to extend the stay of execution granted by Judge Robinson. The stay runs to June 4.

Starkweather was convicted in Lancaster County District Court and sentenced to death for the slaying of a school boy during a four-day rampage in January, 1958, is contending he was not adequately represented by counsel. He has been accused of 11 killings.

He was saved from death in the electric chair last Friday when Judge Richard Robinson, Omaha, presiding Nebraska federal District Court judge, gave him two weeks to appeal to the Circuit Court.
