

West Hinted Willing To Cut Its Berlin Garrison

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
GENEVA (AP) — Top Western officials said today the United States, Britain and France may be willing to cut their 10,000-man force in West Berlin if the Soviet Union agrees to drop its threat to the city.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko was reported to have given some signs that the Kremlin may be willing to drop its demand that the Western powers give up their occupation rights in Berlin.

C... ko, according to informants, has in the last few days shown some elasticity in his attitude, but the highest Western leaders do not know whether he yet has instructions from Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

Gromyko has been put under heavy Western pressure to come up with concessions that would in effect clear the way to a summit meeting.

U.S. Secretary of State Christian A. Herter and British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd are both reported to feel that some progress has been made. It is still very tentative, however, and Gromyko could switch.

Here are stand-out points in top-level American evaluation of the conference as it nears the end of its fourth week:

1. The Western powers are making a little progress in getting Gromyko to move toward some kind of Soviet guarantee of the rights of the Western powers in West Berlin, the major objective of Herter, Lloyd and French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville. A Soviet pledge would break the back of the Berlin crisis.

2. Western powers have told Gromyko that they would be prepared to put a ceiling on their forces.

3. Herter, Lloyd and Couve de Murville are fully agreed, and have so advised Gromyko in their secret talks, that Western troops in West Berlin do not serve a military purpose so much as the purpose of symbolizing Western protection of West Berlin.

4. Gromyko has been told repeatedly that the Western powers will not give up their basic rights in Berlin and they will not agree to admit Soviet troops to share in the occupation of West Berlin.

The Big Four foreign ministers scheduled another secret session this afternoon at French Foreign Secretary Maurice Couve de Murville's villa, with a dinner meeting to follow.

Western officials said they expected Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko would discuss individual points of the Allies' new proposal calling for continued stationing of Western forces in Berlin and a reduction in inflammatory propaganda and subversive activities there. But it was also expected that Gromyko would try to reshape it or substitute his own plan for it.

The Western ministers put forward their four-point formula for Berlin in Wednesday's secret session. Gromyko countered with a plan of his own along the line laid down in a formal speech Tuesday demanding that the Western powers give up their occupation rights in West Berlin.

The West's Berlin formula for negotiation carried these main points:

1 — The right of the Western powers to maintain troops in West Berlin would be recognized and the Soviet Union in effect would pledge a policy of noninterference. This would cover access routes across Communist East German territory.

2 — The Western powers would agree to put a ceiling on the strength of their West Berlin forces, which now total about 10,000 men—roughly 4,000 American, 3,000 British and 3,000 French troops.

3 — The Soviet Union and the Western powers would agree to cut out inflammatory propaganda and acts of cold war subversion in both East and West Berlin.

4 — A special Berlin commission would be created of representatives of the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union plus representatives of East and West Berlin. It would have a kind of watchdog role, one function being to receive complaints of violations of the agreement against inflammatory propaganda and subversive activities.

Accomplishments for which the awards would be given would have to take place within the borders of the state, although the award winners would not have to be native-born North Carolinians.

If the bill is passed, Sen. Humber stated, it is possible the first awards could be made for accomplishments of 1959.

The bill provides that no more than 10 Sir Walter Raleigh awards could be made in any one year. It is possible that the judges would find no deserving winners in any one year also, Humber said. Thus there could be years when none would be awarded.

In explaining why the bill was introduced, Humber said, "I have renounced categorically and emphatically the acceptance of a status of inferiority in comparison with any state in the Union in leadership in any field."

"In order to stimulate and inspire our citizens to be more creative, these awards would recognize achievement, outstanding and notable, by any citizen of the state."

The awards would bear the name Sir Walter Raleigh "who was the greatest figure in American colonial history, as well as the greatest Renaissance Elizabethan character."

"He excelled in poetry, history and politics. He made Roanoke Island in 1585 the spiritual birthplace of this nation, 22 years before Jamestown and 35 years before Plymouth Rock."

Approval of the plan by the State Legislature would make North Carolina the first state to give such awards.

Award Bill Submitted By Humber

Measure Would Provide $1,000 Achievement Prizes In Varied Fields

RALEIGH — Sir Walter Raleigh awards for North Carolinians who achieve outstanding success in their fields of endeavor would be established by a bill introduced by Pitt Sen. Robert Lee Humber this morning.

The awards would be made to persons working within the borders of the state for outstanding endeavor in any one of the following four fields: literature, science, fine arts and public leadership. Sen. Humber told the Daily Reflector.

To each of the winners each year would go a $1,000 check and a certificate citing the reason for the award. The certificates would carry the signature of the governor, the secretary of state and the Great Seal of North Carolina.

Sen. Humber introduced the bill in the State Legislature today.

He said winners of the Sir Walter Raleigh awards would be chosen by "special juries" composed of experts in the specific fields. The judges would probably come from out-of-state.

The senator said the awards program would be administered by the Department of Archives and History with the approval of the governor and the Council of State. Funds for the awards would come from the state's Contingency and Emergency fund.

The House followed without change the recommendations of the House Appropriations Committee.

The total voted was $399,861,000 less than Eisenhower requested both increases and decreases from his specific recommendations. The biggest cut was elimination of 290 million dollars asked by the Navy for a super aircraft carrier, but 255 million dollars was added to the money for antismarine warfare programs.

The House rejected a number of proposed changes in its committee's recommendations, among them one to cut out the extra money for antismarine warfare.

It also turned down an amendment to require the President to maintain Army strength to 900,000 instead of 870,000 as recommended by both the President and the committee.

Also turned down were proposals to increase Air Force plane procurement funds, and to restrict employment of high-ranking retired military officers by companies having defense contracts.

Rep. Walter B. Jones told The Daily Reflector this morning that committee approval of the local bill came after Pitt had been removed from the list of counties affected by a public bill introduced by Rep. Frank M. Wooten Jr. The local bill has a residency provision which is not included in the public bill, Jones said.

According to Jones, the residency provision exempts from the act's application persons who have been bona fide residents of the county for at least 15 years and who are freeholders in Pitt County.

The local bill establishes punishments of fines up to $500, one year's imprisonment or both for violators.

Satellite Mice Apparently Failed To Get Into Orbit

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — Four black mice, blasted aloft in an Air Force attempt to return a living creature from a satellite for the first time, apparently didn't make it.

The Air Force wanted them to orbit the earth in a satellite, Discoverer III, for 26 hours, then parachute in their air-conditioned capsule.

However, something went wrong. The two-stage Thor missile roared into space Wednesday as scheduled and sent back radio signals for 13 minutes. Then the signals stopped. The Air Force said it has heard nothing since.

The 78-foot-long projectile was presumed to have burned up on reentering the atmosphere. It was considered highly unlikely that it could have escaped the earth's pull, because of speed factors.

Planes had been poised to try a difficult aerial catch over the Pacific. But officials had given them only one chance in 700 of succeeding.

The mice, pick of their breed, would have been the first creatures retrieved alive from orbit. Two monkeys were fired into space from Cape Canaveral by the Army May 23 but their trip covered only 1,500 miles. They were not intended to go into orbit.

Information from Wednesday's launching will be used in planning the Project Mercury attempt to put man in orbit some two years from now.

At blastoff the mice underwent an acceleration force seven or eight times that of gravity. This was nothing new to them — they had trained for the flight in test chambers simulating the severe stresses to which they would be exposed.

Strapped on their backs like saddles were tiny radios. These were intended to relay their heartbeat, breathing, temperature and muscular activity back to earth. Their color — black — was to have shown the effects of any cosmic radiation, based on the degree of graying.

The Thor IRBM first stage and Bell-Hustler second stage functioned satisfactorily, the Air Force said.

The missile was last heard from by a telemetering ship 1,200 miles south of the launch site. The absence of sightings or radar contracts from that time on led authorities to doubt that the missile had gone into orbit.

The Air Force said its next Discoverer will not carry animals but will be strictly an attempt to improve the propulsion and instrumentation of the rockets used in the series.

Their floor length dresses of nylon organza over taffeta were fashioned with lace bertha and wide sash. They wore picture hats of matching material and carried baskets of artificial flowers. Chris Sumerell, nephew of the bridegroom, was ringbearer.

Fred Edwards Jr., brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Edward E. Lancaster of Vanceboro, Jimmy Edwards of Chicod, brother of the bridegroom, Thomas Wayne Hardy of Greenville, and R. H. Heath of Chicod. Pressure Hints

RALEIGH—For the safety of your family, always process meats and all vegetables, except tomatoes, under pressure when canning.

Miss Iola Pritchard, food conservation and marketing specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service, advises each homemaker to have the pressure canner checked for accuracy at the beginning of each season. The gauge indicates the amount of pressure inside the canner, or the temperature at which the food is processing. It's important that the gauge be accurate if the processed food is to be of the best quality.

Your home economics agent will be able to tell you where the checking can be done locally.

Miss Pritchard urges the user to be sure to read the directions that come with the pressure canner. If directions are followed and the canner is checked periodically, the process of canning should be safe and easy.

30 Years Ago Today

June 4, 1929

"With the college and city schools closed, Greenville people will now settle down to pass away the long summer months in the best way open to them," observed a citizen today.

"Numbers of the more fortunate will be leaving in a few days for the beach or mountains to spend the hottest days of the summer, while those 'out of luck' will stay at home to do the best they can with the same old problems that have been confronting them day after day until have become a part of their lives.

"But the summer is short at the best, and even the man forced to sit at his desk and work hard on the hottest days will find that time still has wings and flits by just as quickly as it always did. But the majority of us will miss the life of the fall and winter months, and mark time until the chosen season of the year rolls around again."

Tea Honors Mrs. J. H. B. Moore

Mrs. J. H. B. Moore, outstanding clubwoman, was honored at a tea given by Mrs. J. C. Galloway Jr. and Mrs. Harvey Tripp in the home of Mrs. Tripp yesterday afternoon.

The hostesses honored Mrs. Moore because she was one of the six Greenville women included in the 1952 "Who's Who" of American Women, first edition of the yearbook to be published by the A. N. Marquis Company of Chicago.

Life members of the Greenville Woman's Club were invited to receive with Mrs. Moore.

The guests were invited into the dining room where party refreshments were served. The house was decorated throughout with summer flowers.

After a social hour, a business meeting of the Executive Board of the Greenville Woman's Club was held, at which time plans were projected for the club's new year. The next official meeting of the club will be a dinner meeting scheduled for September.

Guests in addition to Executive Board members and Life Members of the Woman's Club were Mrs. J. C. Galloway Sr. and Mrs. K. T. Futrell.

Girls' Auxiliary Coronation Held

The annual Girls' Auxiliary Coronation Service was held Sunday evening at Immanuel Baptist Church in Greenville, using as its theme "The Light of the World."

It was a candlelight service, and decorations featured the Girls' Auxiliary colors, green and white.

The congregation sang the GA hymn, "We've a Story to Tell to the Nations," and "Send the Light." Mrs. R. J. Gilbert, GA Director and Intermediate Counselor, presided and presented the girls for awards. Each girl gave portions of the work she had learned to pass her Forward Step.

The charges were given and the awards were presented by the Junior GA Counselors, Mrs. A. S. Johnson and Mrs. Floyd Warren. Recognized as a Maiden was Barbara Taylor. Then came the Ladies-in-Waiting, who were Joyce Lynn Bloxam, Linda Lee, Susan Sumrell and Valinda Whichard. The Princesses were Susan Early, Cheryl Lee, and Cathy Respass.

Six girls were honored as Queens and presented their crowns. They were Phyllis Early, Sherby Everett, Linda Hollowell, Marianne McGlohon, Susan Stafford, and Myrtle Moon Bilbro. Their Crown Bearers respectively were little Becky Ann Eldson, Peggy Corbitt, Cindy Bisette, Beth Monds, Anna White, and Anna Jane Knight. Three girls were lauded as Queens-in-Service, which is the highest possible rank in Forward Steps in Junior Girls' Auxiliary, and the first time in the history of Immanuel Church that this rank has been attained. The girls receiving a star for their crown and a GA banner were Rebecca Parks, Nancy Tribble, and Judy VanDyke. Their respective Pages were little Doug Wilkerson, Randy Warren, and Mike VanDyke.

Mrs. Bell Is Club Hostess

FOUNTAIN—The Bell 4-H Club met in the home of the leader, Mrs. Albert Bell, on Thursday for their regular meeting.

Following the song and pledges, the devotion was given by Eve Hobgood and closed with the group joining in praying the Lord's Prayer.

The business session was presided over by the president, Janice Abrams. The members decided to postpone the Brunswick stew sale until next fall, but planned a weiner roast and craft workshop for the summer meetings in June and July will be held on the fourth Saturday of the month beginning at 9:30 a.m.

Mrs. Bell thanked the group for their participation in 4-H Church Sunday and read a letter of appreciation from Mr. King and Mrs. Mohan.

The demonstration for the boys was on gardening by Mrs. Bell after which the boys gathered and identified leaves from the different trees.

The demonstration for the girls was "Helping Mother With The Housecleaning" and was given by Hazel Price.

Recreation consisted of a tour around the premises to learn and identify as many trees and shrubs as possible, after which the group was taken to the store for refreshments.

Legislators Cling To Their Right

The plum of naming members to the Board of Trustees of the University of North Carolina is one the state's legislature has no intention of giving up.

Quite obviously the legislature thought little of the proposal that the governor of the state be allowed to name one-fifth of the members of that board. A bill which would have written such a provision into law was laid aside at the request of its introducer because of the complete lack of support shown for the measure among legislators.

Some people may interpret this as another legislative slap at Gov. Hodges. Those who do, however, probably are stretching a point.

The power to appoint members of the Board of Trustees of the University is a power the legislature probably would not like to share with any governor. We get the impression that regardless of who was in the governor's mansion, the legislature would not like for him to have authority to name one-fifth of the members of the board.

Appointment to the University Board of Trustees is one of the most sought-after things in the state every two years when the legislature meets. There are many, many aspirants, and of course many legislators who sponsor one or more of the candidates for the post. When the time comes for the final selection of trustees, the legislators cast their ballots.

While the procedure may have some shortcomings, certainly it affords North Carolina a good cross-section of its citizenry on the University Board of Trustees. It assures good geographic distribution of membership on the board, and for the most part it assures that capable people are named to the board.

The same situation might exist if the appointment of one-fifth of the trustees were left to the governor. On the other hand it might not. The present method of naming trustees of the University has worked well for North Carolina, and there is every indication that it will continue to work well.

The legislature made a wise choice in turning a cool shoulder toward the proposal that the governor directly appoint a specified portion of the University trustees.

Committee Could Use Some More Boosters

Greenville's Committee of 100 is now officially in business to promote the industrial and economic growth of the city and its surrounding area.

At its formal organization meeting last week it was reported that the Committee of 100 had a total of $13,385 in cash and pledges from 140 members. With these financial resources and with a membership of 140, the local committee can be an effective instrument to boost the industrial and general economic growth of Greenville in conjunction with other organizations working toward the same goal.

It stands to reason, however, that the more members the Committee of 100 has, and the greater its financial resources are, the better job it can do for Greenville and its people. The greater the number of local citizens who are actively interested in promoting the economic growth of Greenville and its surrounding area, the greater the results which can be expected from such a program.

Now that Greenville's Committee of 100 is organized and in operation, we trust its membership will continue to grow to 200 or 300 members in order that efforts to promote better economic conditions for this community will also expand.

In this day of keen competition for economic and industrial growth, only those communities which put their best into such efforts can expect to reap the greatest benefits from their efforts.

Pupil-Spanking Isn't An Unreasonable Item

No one particularly likes the idea of pupil-spanking... least of all the teachers in the public schools of our state.

It seems not only reasonable, but necessary, however, that the teachers of our school system should have the backing of the law if they find it necessary in extreme cases to take the proverbial hickory stick to properly discipline youngsters in their charge.

The courts, in effect, already have said that teachers are within their bounds of authority to spank a pupil if the situation warrants such action. North Carolina's legislature, by writing into law the bill already passed by the House, will merely be implementing the decision already rendered by the courts.

Teachers in our public schools today are looked upon as far more than academic instructors. They are expected to teach the youngsters not only what is in the text books, but discipline, how to get along with others, how to be good citizens and in general guide the youngsters far along the road toward social as well as intellectual maturity.

In short, while the student is in the classroom for about five hours a day, nine months of the year, the teacher is expected to perform the duties of parent as well as teacher.

With teachers as well as with parents, understanding, love and guidance sometime fail to get the point across to unruly youngsters. Other forms of punishment fall far short of making the impression made by the flat-of-the-hand properly applied in the proper place.

Passage by the Senate of the pupil-spanking law already approved by the House certainly will not mean any more pupil-spanking in our public schools. It will merely put the teachers on firmer ground on the rare occasions when they find it necessary to exercise the pupil-spanking authority most people agree they already have.

After all, if we expect teachers to properly train and discipline our youngsters as well as teach them, we must afford teachers the reasonable tools with which to work.

Strauss Battle To Be A Big One

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — The upcoming Senate fight over President Eisenhower's choice of Lewis L. Strauss as secretary of commerce will dwarf any fight of its kind in years. It may last weeks.

Strauss, former banker and advisor to the Rockefellers, is in for a monumental raking over.

The President let it be known Tuesday he not only wouldn't pull back his nomination of Strauss as head of the Commerce Department and member of his Cabinet but wouldn't withdraw it even if Strauss requested it.

Many but not all of the Democratic senators are against Strauss. He piled up enemies among them when he was chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission. So far as is known all Republicans except one — Sen. William Langer of North Dakota — are for him.

Strauss' performance while he headed the AEC — from 1953 until his term was up in 1958 — is at the root of his trouble. But his attitude toward Congress — or what Democrats dislike about his attitude — helped dig a grave the Democrats are trying to bury him in.

Here are some of the things they said about him: he was too secretive and domineering; he took a godlike credit for development of the H-bomb; there was a "pattern of deviousness and deceit" in his testimony before the Senate Commerce Committee; he lied to the committee; he deliberately withheld information from Congress; he suppressed vital facts about detecting atomic blasts; he made oblique answers to charges against him.

Strauss said some of the witnesses at the committee hearings lied about him; he promised he would never keep information from Congress for political reasons; he admitted the AEC had made some mistakes while he was a member of it; but he denied creating any myths about himself.

One of his Democratic foes — Sen. Warren G. Magnuson of Washington — said:

"Strauss creates controversy wherever he goes, and with half of the Senate feeling uneasy about him, I don't see how he could do a competent job as secretary of commerce."

Republicans have cried politics about the Democrats' savage attacks on him. Sen. Hugh Scott, Pennsylvania Republican, accused the Democrats of a "nit-picking expedition — travels through the territory of trivia."

Strauss had the backing not only of Eisenhower but of former President Herbert Hoover. Some scientists with whom he had dealings in his AEC days were for him, some against him.

Strauss has been serving temporarily as secretary of commerce since last October. But if he is to remain in the office, the Senate must approve his nomination.

The first step was for the Commerce Committee to hold hearings on his qualifications. This normally is routine.

Not this time. The committee delayed hearings and didn't start till March 17. It didn't finish up till May 19 when Strauss got approval by the skin-tight margin of 9-8.

The Senate still must act. That is where his foes say they will make their fight. Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore) even threatened a filibuster to block approval.

At The Same Table, A World Apart

By DON SCHLIENZ

Missing 15 Per Cent?

An acquaintance whose eyes had all the outward symptoms of having been sprayed with a most of onion juice, was taking, he nodded in my direction, and remarked —

"Now with rimmed glasses like his, you lose maybe fifteen per cent of your peripheral vision."

"I see everything."

His blinking eyes raised some doubts in my mind so I lingered awhile... and learned something.

The heart of the conversation was contact lenses, and the speaker was being adjusted to them. Had been wearing them just a couple of days... it takes time.

For instance, on the first day he wore them three hours, the next day four... and gradually building up his tolerance. He's up to eleven hours, now; and it seems this is fairly rapid as compared with some initiates.

The difficulty lies in the very natural reaction of one's eyes, which tend to reject foreign bodies. (Hence, his blinking, tearful look.)

Why did he switch from conventional spectacles?

The question was raised from among a small circle of dubious admirers; so his natural explanation was that this summer coming on and the seasonal migration to the beach (and all those girls), he didn't want to run the risk of not seeing everything... a reference to that peripheral vision block, by gum!

I accepted that for several days; wondering if maybe contact lens would be a suitable accessory for an old girl-watcher (semi-retired).

Later, a less-in-jest explanation was proffered. It seems there is a small matter of economics involved. He required rather frequent changes in prescriptions for his spectacles; the contact lens, while representing a larger initial investment, are going to last much longer.

He has been wearing them now for ten days; and the blinking-squinting ordeal is pretty much behind him.

Just the same, I've been wondering about my peripheral vision handicap... very conscious of it ever since the subject was raised. The term has a musical sound, and I've been rolling it around in my mouth like a bit of hard candy. But that isn't the reason it provides a temporary distraction.

The thing in the back of my mind is: When I go to the beach, am I missing some of the better scenery?

Last night I heard and watched pallbearer Burl Ives with a measure of fascination and wonder.

Entertainers who start out as singers of songs often venture into drama, but more often comedy, and it's a rare thing for them to really score in a less familiar field. Ives grew into a big man on the stage, screen and television; without relying on his musical background.

Wednesday night's television stint put the emphasis on his songs, and of them all, his familiar "Rock Candy Mountain" was pure Ives... which is good stuff.

Somewhere I read he is as individualistic in private life as before the public... a trait most of us admire but can indulge only to a limited degree.

Listening to, and watching a well-rounded (which fits Burl Ives) entertainer in action is always a pleasure. Doubly so when his material fits the mood of the evening.

And that's the way it was.

Other Editors Saying... No Subterfuge Financing

(Hertford County Herald)

By the time this gets off the press, it is more than likely that North Carolina will have an income tax withholding law. Governor Hodges wants it. Nobody has proposed an acceptable substitute for it to raise the revenue necessary to balance the budget the administration has proposed, not to mention the cost of additional appropriations sought for educational needs, teacher pay increases and salary hikes for state employees, and many other requests for expenditures above the proposed budget. The legislators are getting restless and want to come home. So, it is most likely that the Hodges proposal for financing the state's operations for the next two years by double taxation of income taxpayers will be accepted by default by a lackadaisical Legislature.

Income tax withholding as a method of payment and collection of income taxes has some merit. The federal government uses this method, taking its tax out from the salaries of wage earners at the source, the employer having the responsibility for making the deductions and serving as tax collector, banker and bookkeeper for the government. The taxpayer makes his payment on the installment plan and is saved the pain of one big payment at year end. It might be that those wage earners whose incomes are large enough to have to pay state income taxes would like this installment plan of paying. On the other hand, the burdened businessman certainly wants to have no more tax collecting and bookkeeping chores thrust upon him by the state government. He has more than enough problems with reports, red tape, bookkeeping for the government as it is now.

But the thing of it is, it is not good business; it is not good legislation. It is bowing to fiscal expediency. For the purpose of this tax withholding is not the adoption of a method of paying income taxes that will be an improvement over the present lump-sum method. It is for the purpose of balancing a current budget through double taxation. It is a subterfuge and a delusion. It is the same sort of unsound financing of current expense for the state as it would be for an individual to fall for the line of the loan shark and borrow at usurious rates of interest money to pay for current improvidence out of future earnings, if any.

Let us have income tax withholding, if the General Assembly honestly believes it to be an improved system of tax collection and payment. But also let us have sound and honest financing of current expenses. Extra revenues brought to the state by double tax collections of income taxes through withholding should be devoted to permanent improvements or put into the till to spend during the period when the taxes would normally be due. They should not be used for the convenience of an administration and a General Assembly, anxious to get out of the Raleigh heat — and as the Greenville Daily Reflector puts it, "willing to appropriate, spend and be popular... and let someone else have the headaches in 1961."

Lesson From Recession-Time

By ELMER ROESSNER

One lesson of the recent recession has been largely overlooked.

It is: Many businessmen devote energy to belt tightening that should be used for plugging.

One men's furnisher is learning it only this week. (Don't look for his name and place downtown; he's a thousand miles from here.) He occupied the corner store in the principal office building in town. Had been there since it was erected, almost 30 years ago.

Outside his front door streamed the kind of pedestrian traffic that made it what landlords call a 100 per cent location. Down the block was a huge new carport that helped thicken the flow of buyers in this retailer's dream street. At the back of his shop a door led to a lobby, and a busy bank of elevators.

This shop was known to every man and boy in town and the owner basked in a reputation earned by faithfully outfitting three generations of the town's citizens. Perhaps success had softened the business fiber of this merchant. He felt no anxiety when others in the neighborhood modernized their stores, broadened their lines, updated their styles, increased the size and quality of their advertising. What was good for his father and his customers' fathers was good enough for him and his son.

Came 1937 and a slight slackening of trade. Early in 1938 — at about the time his lease was up for renewal — the building in which he was located was sold. When the new management presented him with a lease it carried a rent increase. The landlord refused to budge, the tenant was calm and independent.

The real-estate man suggested a compromise: reduce the space, cut the store in half, take either the street or the lobby side. The half bordering on the street was priced higher, so the merchant chose the arcade. Thus, the haberdasher reduced his rent. It fit his policy of retrenchment, would increase his net income. No trouble about maintaining his sales volume. His reputation would take care of that. Didn't he virtually own his old customers?

Alterations were to be at his expense, but economies of rent and overhead would more than offset that. And, besides, he could let one clerk go. (About due for retirement, anyway.) And there would be no need to replace worn fixtures and maintain so large an inventory. A chance to live off some fat.

Within 60 days the new landlord rented the street side of the store to a men's wear chain store. The new tenant modernized the old store, inside and out. High-styled fixtures and bright, fresh merchandise, together with alert and enterprising personnel, combined to attract a husky share of some of the best business in town.

This week the kindly but unimaginative old haberdasher was taking turns talking to himself and a high-powered business management consultant who was trying to save the business from a situation that appeared hopeless even with a large and energetic program.

The old man doesn't approve of the consultant's ideas, his fees or the cut of his clothes. But he knows he has to do something — fast.

Might As Well Be Rich

By ED CREAGH

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hal Boyle, the rightful landlord of this space in our newspaper, likes to turn Poor Man's Philosopher and make with homespun observations.

Now that Boyle — unlike most poor men of our acquaintance — is gallivanting about Europe, let's switch the pitch and play Rich Man's Philosopher.

Proverty is no handicap if you have money enough to afford it.

Money can't buy everything, but it can buy a lot more things than no money.

The tolling of a cathedral bell may be more melodious than the jingling of a cash register — but where did the money come from to pay for the bell?

Julius Caesar was great, and Napoleon has his admirers, but why don't they put up a statue to the man who invented credit?

Neither a borrower nor a lender be. Just have rich parents and disconnect your doorbell and telephone.

When you are poor you have to borrow a buck from time to time. When you are rich you can't afford to borrow less than a million.

Never forget that the rich man and the poor man have the same right to sleep on a park bench.

The love of money may be the root of all evil, but the lack of it is more likely to turn a man into a pickpocket.

If all the money in the world were divided equally among all the people of the world, women would still insist on having charge accounts.

Any man who wouldn't rather be thin than wealthy deserves to be fat and poor.

Start worrying about money when you miss your first meal.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

USE IT IN FAITH

Jesus declared that all authority had been committed unto Him.

Think of what this means. We are told in the Bible that our lives can become one with the life of Christ. Our life and His may merge, if we are willing to pay the price of having it that way. And when our life merges with His, then the authority and power which were put in His hands comes into our hearts and within the circle of our lives. As He is all powerful, we are all powerful.

Now this does not mean that we are necessarily elevated to a position of trust. Neither does it mean that we are able to dominate others and have our own willful way. It just means that the same type of power which fills the life of Christ comes into our lives and gives them a new and higher significance.

But be practical, I hear you say. What does this mean in actual living? It means believing in the revelation of God, in the life of love, in the power of spiritual things, and believing to such an extent that the sluices of heaven are opened and the power which is of Christ and from Him begins to flow into our lives.

Human life can be very low and degraded. It can also be very noble and exalted. The power which is Christ may be ours. This vast reservoir is placed at our disposal for use under the providence of God.

The authority was given to him. He gives it to us. It is ours to use.

Opinions In Brief

"We can afford to do all that is necessary, and much that is desirable, and pay for it. But we should not reach for everything at the same time. Even a rich country can get into trouble if it keeps spending beyond what it pays for currently." — Sec. of Treasury Robert Anderson.

A romantic suspense novel by MARTHA ALBRAND

A SPY at MONTE CARLO

Copyright, 1958, by The Curtis Publishing Company; (S) Copyright, 1959, by Martha Albrand. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

CHAPTER 12

Before Mark Travers had parted from Inspector Perrier, they had agreed to meet at five o'clock in the garden next to the Casino, in Monte Carlo proper. In case Mark didn't turn up, Perrier was to make inquiries at once.

"I almost left," said the inspector, pointing to his wrist watch, when Mark sat down on one of the stone benches that stood above the famous pigeon shoot. "I was worried. Somehow I didn't expect Raffaeli to see you right away. I don't like it. I can't get the warning you received this morning out of my mind."

He picked up his little black dachshund. "What do you figure made him receive you?"

"I couldn't tell," Mark handed a pad with several sketches of Raffaeli to Perrier. "I have never been so unsure in my life. I seem to have lost my judgment. And I must admit, I thought in a situation like this, an extra sense of awareness would manifest itself."

Perrier smiled. "I told you that police work was a dreary, often unsatisfying job. Sometimes you think you have a hunch but as often as not it turns out to be mere wishful thinking. It takes unending patience to track down a criminal. Mostly it is pure luck."

An orchestra was playing. People were walking by, lying in long chairs, having coffee in the shade of the trees. Through the open window of the Casino, the voices of the croupiers could be heard calling. "Mesdames, messieurs. . . In front of them the sea opened up, the blue Mediterranean.

Deeply tanned young men and women were balancing on water skis or surfboards behind elegant speedboats while, in their wake, small craft rocked drunkenly. To their left, in the downward slanting garden, where in former times so many, who had lost their fortunes on the green tables, had shot themselves, children were playing, laughing gaily, quarreling. But all of it seemed unreal to Mark.

"He could be Timagd," he said. "and, if not Timagd, somebody close to him. Yet he may be just what he is — a successful, unscrupulous businessman."

"Anybody" — Perrier pointed to the crowd on the terrace, then to the passers-by — "any of them could be Timagd."

"Raffaeli doesn't think he exists at all."

An interesting opinion if he is not the man, a clue device if he wants to mislead. He stopped to look at Mark. "So you did tell him the true reason for your visit — that you are looking for Timagd."

"I told you I would come out into the open."

"So you did," said Perrier, as though he had forgotten it. He slipped down on the bench as if it were a club chair, stretched his legs and rested his chin on his chest.

He looked very comfortable but his voice was taut. "You know, Travers, after the bombing, you really caught me off guard. I should never have let you go up there. But I suppose I'd stop at nothing to catch Timagd. Yet it was utterly irresponsible of me to let you pick the chestnuts out of my fire. I've got to get you out of here. If I die, it's in the line of duty. I chose this profession. You . . ."

"We've been through all this before."

Perrier sighed. "The worst mistake," he said, "is to underestimate the intelligence of the enemy. He knows you are in Monte Carlo, that you know Corinne has been murdered. By the way, did you mention Corinne to Raffaeli?"

"He admitted to knowing her slightly."

"Did he know any people she had seen?"

"If he did, he didn't say."

Perrier grinned, patted his dog and continued. "He also probably has knowledge of my presence here." He shoved his hands into his pockets. "Now, if you were Timagd, assuming that Raffaeli is the man or somebody close to him, and you had written that note, what would you have to do? You would have to kill Mark Travers as cleverly as Corinne was killed, so that nobody would suspect anything."

"How?"

"There are poisons," said Perrier, dryly, almost as if he were teaching the various causes of murder in a class, "quick-working poisons against which there are no antitoxins. Let us say you decide to gamble tonight, you go to a crowded table — it's no fun playing at an empty one. There are always people who believe in a system. They write down every number. Day after day they scribble away in little books or on pads or on the cards furnished by the Casino."

"Now let us assume that, at a given moment, when you put down your chips, one of these fellows, in pretended eagerness, happens to scratch your hand with his pen."

A tiny scratch, hardly worth noticing. But if the pen had been dipped into one of those deadly snake poisons, you would die within minutes and who would be able to point out the man?"

Mark did not answer and Perrier, as if he were enjoying himself, went on. "A week ago a man, sitting at his desk near an open window, was killed while the police were on guard outside his house. Somehow somebody managed to blow a poisoned arrow into his cheek through a blowpipe. Before he could remove it, he was dead."

"Travers, when you left me in Nice, I thought your suggestion had a point, that your sticking out your neck might be of some use. But it isn't. Neither Timagd nor any of his men would be stupid enough to kill you in such a fashion that I could pick up a trace."

He turned his head and looked at Mark, his round brown eyes expressing regret, embarrassment and pity. Mark felt touched by the sympathy of this tough French inspector. "Have you caught the man who threw the bomb?"

"Not yet," said Perrier. "and the dead Arab carried no identification papers. But we will. But Travers, if I may be indiscreet . . . this morning, well, didn't you meet a young lady?"

"I told her to forget me."

"What a pity you're not French and take love more seriously." Immediately he grew serious again. "Heroism, idealism, loyalty — they are wonderful qualities, but they have their price. The true hero never returns."

"I don't believe in generalities," said Mark.

They looked at each other silently for a moment, then Perrier asked quietly, "Will you please tell me what your plans are?"

"Of course. First I'm going to call my paper in Paris and the radio station here to tell them that, when they report Corinne's death, they should mention that a close friend of hers, the well-known artist and reporter, Mark Travers, suspects that she has been murdered, to prevent her identifying one of the Algerian terrorist leaders."

"That may make them think twice of killing me. Then I'll go back to the Beach Hotel. Maybe I can find someone to play a set of tennis with me, maybe I'll just sketch. Then I'll have another swim, sleep a little, dress, go over to the Casino and gamble with

Laugh Off Rumor Of A Gold Ruble

WASHINGTON (AP)—Top officials laughed off today rumors the Soviet Union might jolt Western trading countries by suddenly announcing a "gold ruble."

Such rumors have been flying through European money markets.

Most versions of the rumor say the Kremlin soon will decree that rubles—now artificially pegged at four to the dollar—will become freely convertible into gold on demand, at least in the satellite empire.

The U.S.S.R. has a big horde of nine billion dollars in gold which could meet any run on gold which might develop, according to these reports.

The Soviet move would be part of a carefully calculated Kremlin drive, these rumors allege, to create a ruble bloc as a rival to the dollar bloc and the sterling bloc based on U.S. and British currencies.

Responsible authorities who have carefully checked into the rumor said they have seen no sign the Soviet Union is seriously contemplating any such drastic maneuver.

Several officials expressed the opinion any step to make rubles convertible into gold would be financially disastrous for Moscow.

The Soviet Union has never disclosed how much gold it has stored in its bank vaults. Nor has it ever revealed how much gold it mines annually.

But American experts said it is very likely the U.S.S.R. has less than half of the nine-billion-dollar cache it is rumored to possess.

Any move by Moscow to make rubles convertible, they added, would probably swiftly exhaust available Soviet gold supplies.

Disliked Kaiser, Doesn't Forget

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Mrs. Isabel Riffe asked her parrot, Joe, if he remembered the late Kaiser Wilhelm II of Germany.

"Down with the Kaiser," screamed Joe.

"He's been doing that since World War I," giggled Mrs. Riffe, herself 94. "His dislike for the Kaiser was picked up around our house during the first war."

She hasn't told him about the Russians. "He's too old to worry about them now," she said. Joe has been with the Riffes for 60 years.

Talented Georgia Girl Teaching Ballet At 15

WATCH TEACHER: Gail Welch instructs a class.

McDONOUGH, Ga. (AP)—It pays to start young in ballet. If you don't believe it, ask Gail Welch, a professional ballet teacher at 15.

What's more, she has been teaching dancing for five years now.

The trim and talented high school pupil began serious dancing at 4 after a foot injury. After spending weeks in a cast and trying to regain full use of her limbs with the aid of physical therapy, her doctor suggested ballet dancing to strengthen leg muscles and build a stronger body.

"My parents had already thought of giving me ballet for poise, grace and posture, but now it became doubly important," she said. "I was enrolled immediately in the Atlanta School of Ballet."

At first she made only one trip a week to Atlanta some 20 miles northwest of McDonough. Then she became stronger and more interested and began taking two lessons a week.

Ballet fascinated her, Gail said, and finally she decided to make it her career. Three years ago she joined the Atlanta Civic Ballet.

In addition to her appearances with the Atlanta group she is planning this year's recital in McDonough, teaching, going to school, acting as assistant pianist in church, and playing in the school band.

She also likes to cook and says the steady beat of an electric mixer often reminds her it is time to practice.

Now Considering Pulp In Pipeline

NEW YORK (AP)—Pulpwood to be made into newsprint may some day travel directly from the forests to the paper mills through pipelines, if an experiment by the Pulp and Paper Research Institute of Canada proves feasible.

The Newsprint Information Committee says tests are underway in which pulpwood, reduced to one-inch chips, is powered through a pipeline 500 feet long and eight inches in diameter.

HONOLULU (AP)—Although Hawaii grows its own type of coffee known as Kona, there's a coffee shop in Waikiki that offers some 20 blends from around the world.

Among the varieties at this coffee house are Tahitian, Balinese, Viennese, Arabian, Turkish, New Orleans, Espresso, Danish, and of course, Hawaiian.

Unions Barred To Firemen, Law Enforcers

RALEIGH (AP) — Law enforcement officers and firemen in North Carolina will be prohibited from belonging to a labor union under a newly enacted state law.

The Senate completed action Wednesday on the bill, which spells out specifically that the ban applies to officers and firemen.

The new law also: (1) makes it illegal for governmental agencies to enter into contracts with labor unions, and (2) makes it clear that governmental agencies have the power to prohibit their employees from belonging to labor unions.

The name of Charles Cannon, North Carolina industrial magnate, was interjected into heated debate before the Senate enacted the bill.

Sen. James O. Simpkins of Craven, who sought to have the bill sent to the Committee on Conservation and Development, told the Senate, "I've got a belly full of Charles Cannon telling the General Assembly what to do."

Sen. J. Carlyle Rutledge of Cabarrus, Cannon's home county, demanded an apology for the statement which he termed "uncouth." Simpkins refused.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Frank Sneed of Mecklenburg, was the outgrowth of a drive to unionize the Charlotte Police Department.

In other legislative developments: The Senate enacted another Sneed bill which will permit legally sold liquor to be consumed on the premises of an establishment licensed to sell beer, provided the liquor is not publicly displayed.

The measure contains a section making it illegal for minors to purchase beer. Under existing law dealers are prohibited from selling beer to minors.

The House passed and sent to the Senate a bill which would allow school teachers to get their salary in 12 monthly installments instead of nine.

HOT BITE

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — A squirrel put out the lights in three suburban communities and parts of two others recently. He climbed a utility pole and chewed into a 44,000-volt line. Service was restored shortly but the squirrel didn't survive to see the lights go back on.

Revenue Action Slated Tuesday

RALEIGH (AP) — Legislative floor action on the state revenue bill will come first in the House, probably next Tuesday.

This became clear Wednesday when Sen. Arthur Kirkman of Guilford, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, announced that the Senate version of identical House revenue bills will be allowed to die.

The House Finance Committee killed four revenue-reducing amendments in a drive to clear the revenue bill for floor action. Rep. Ed Kempt of Guilford spoke out against what he termed "steamroller tactics" in killing the bills in 1-2-3 order.

The measures would have allowed deductions of up to $500 on federal income taxes for state income tax purposes; eliminated the 275 per cent privilege tax on installment paper; allowed a reduction of 1 per cent in the premium tax paid by foreign insurance companies meeting certain conditions; and permitted non-resident income taxpayers to take a pro rata standard deduction on a reciprocal basis with Tar Heels.

The House committee voted down a bill which would have placed an additional $5 levy on each juke box, with the proceeds going to the North Carolina Symphony.

It approved a bill to levy a $3 licensing fee on motorboats, including those of commercial classes.

By a vote of 13-6, the Senate Finance Committee gave a favorable report to a resolution to create a commission to study the question of putting corporations on an income tax pay-as-you-go basis.

Pair Overcome By Fumes In Well

KINGS MOUNTAIN, N.C. (AP) — Leonard Gantt, 30, and his brother, Marshall, 28, were overcome by fumes in a well they were digging near here Wednesday. They were rescued by neighbors and later were reported in good condition.

Capt. Corbett Nicholson of the Kings Mountain Life Saving Squad said Marshall was overcome first, and Leonard passed out when he went down to rescue his brother.

Squad members revived the men with a resuscitator.

Airliner Check By Soviet Jets

TOKYO (AP) — Jet planes believed to be Soviet made three observation approaches on an American airliner over the north Pacific today more than 200 miles off Soviet territory, Northwest Airlines reported.

The U.S. Air Force said it had no planes in the area at the time, prompting speculation that Soviet fighters had approached the Seattle-to-Tokyo Northwest DC7C.

The plane crew reported that the closest approach came within two or three miles but the plane or planes did not cross in front of the airliner.

The American plane continued on course and reached Tokyo ahead of schedule. Its 46 passengers were asleep and apparently unaware of the incident.

A Northwest spokesman said the mystery planes appeared when the airliner was some 200 miles southeast of the Soviet Union's Kamchatka Peninsula, at 50 degrees 50 minutes north latitude, 162 degrees 55 minutes east longitude, and in the center of the busy commercial airway used by five U.S., Canadian and European companies.

Siberian-based Soviet Jets have recently been reported patrolling the region of the great circle air-line between Japan and Alaska.

An airline spokesman said from vapor trails and specks in the dawn sky, it was assumed two or three jets were involved. The planes dropped two flares, presumably to identify the American craft.

Intervened; Now Part Of Triangle

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Three times, a couple in the congregation of the Rev. W. S. McBirnie was on the verge of a break-up. And three times, he sought to reconcile the couple.

Twice, he said, the couple was reunited.

But when he tried to repair the family ties a third time, he said, "I unwisely became partisan in my defense of the wife."

"This led to an involvement between us of the kind I now recognize to have been improper," the 39-year-old pastor of the Trinity Baptist church, second largest Baptist church here, asked his congregation Wednesday night to replace him, and to forgive him "as I have begged God for forgiveness."

A standing-room-only crowd jammed the sanctuary and listened in silence as McBirnie—married and the father of a high school pupil—confirmed a report published by San Antonio News columnist Paul Thompson.

The minister did not elaborate on the "improper" involvement. McBirnie asked an assistant pastor to lead a prayer.

As heads in the sanctuary were bowed, McBirnie left the auditorium and went home.

He became pastor of the church three weeks after it was organized in 1949.

LATE CALL

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A woman caller asked police to look for her husband.

"How long has he been gone?" she was asked.

"Thirty-four years," she answered, explaining that she wanted to marry again and to be sure it was legal.

State Highway Patrol Lieutenant Thomas B. Brown of Greenville was graduated yesterday from the 63rd session of the FBI National Academy in Washington, D. C.

Lt. Brown is one of 86 law enforcement officers from 39 states and Hawaii who attended the 12-week session. They were trained as police instructors and administrators, and will conduct similar training programs within their own departments.

Addresses at the graduation ceremonies were given by Preston J. Moore, national commander of the American Legion, and His Eminence, Richard Cardinal Cushing, Archbishop of Boston. The president of the class, Police Chief Daniel S. C. Liu of Honolulu, Hawaii, also addressed the group.

Diplomas were presented by Lawrence E. Walsh of Washington, D. C., deputy attorney general of the United States.

Lt. Brown is executive officer of Troop A of the State Highway Patrol. He and his family live at 1605 Longwood Drive.

Appreciative Of His Suspension

HUDSON, Mass. (AP) — A motorist whose license was suspended for drunken driving over the Memorial Day weekend expressed his appreciation Wednesday.

He wrote the three policemen who took him into custody: "If it wasn't for the action taken by the police I probably would have been just another number in the highway fatality list. Worse yet, I might have killed someone else."

For Free Or Hire, Taxi Driver Is Johnny On Spot

AMICABLE AMIGO—Lucky Lucero of Taos, N. M., is a taxi driver, but his service includes more than what the usual cab driver offers. And if you're short of cash, chances are you can ride free.

TAOS, N.M. (AP) — For 50 cents a mile, Lucky Lucero will pick up your mail, drop off your laundry, do your grocery shopping, or drive you to a movie. If business is slow, he may stay with you to see the picture.

And if you're low on cash, chances are you can get the same services for free. On slow days, Lucero might stop and say to someone walking: "Hope in, today — all rides on the house."

To Taos residents and others who vacation here, Lucero is that taxi driver who has the face of a Mexican bandit and the heart of a parish priest.

"You meet all kinds of people in this business," he says. Some of them:

The man who "pulled a gun on me and ordered me to drive to an isolated spot. He held the gun at the back of my head all the way. When we got there he jumped out and told me to wait. Then he spent the next hour running around in the dark shooting rabbits."

Then there was the perpetual free-loader who, wobbling from too many drinks, plopped into the back seat of the taxi and demanded to be taken home. Lucero jumped into the front seat, raced the motor for a couple minutes, turned off the key and let the passenger out.

"That's the last time I'll ride with you," the drunk said indignantly. "You drive too damn fast."

For three years every Wednesday night at eight sharp, Lucero has stopped at the home of an elderly lady, stepped into the house and given her a hand with her zipper so she could attend her bridge club.

How did he become an all-purpose taxi driver?

"Just lucky, I guess. In Italy I got hit in the head with a land mine. That's the only way anyone could end up in this crazy business."

Editor Admits He Missed Story

NOGALES, Ariz. (AP) — Nogales Daily Herald Editor Alvin Sisk tells this on himself:

A rural correspondent reported he had seen a man in downtown Nogales who looked just like Sir Laurence Olivier, famed movie director and actor. Sisk discarded the item.

The next day it was announced that Sir Laurence had returned to Hollywood after spending the weekend at actor Stewart Granger's ranch near Nogales.

Want Clean-Up For Dirty Bird

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — The Wisconsin Society for Ornithology decided that a stuffed eagle in the Assembly chamber in the state capitol at Madison is a dirty bird.

The society voted to seek permission to have "Old Abe," a bald eagle, sent to a taxidermist for cleaning and repairing.

Varied Facets In New Education Legislation

By BUNNY HARRIS
Reflector Raleigh Bureau

RALEIGH — Few legislative sessions in recent years have wrestled with quite so many explosive issues in the field of education as the current one.

Compared with the single-minded drive for higher teachers pay in 1957, the record of the 1959 Legislature to date begins to look like an octopus reaching over into virtually every conceivable realm.

An octopus-like, this legislature has squashed many of the most controversial pieces of legislation — after giving each its day in court.

Falling into this category was a bill which would place lay members on the Textbook Commission. Killed in committee, this matter became far more serious than a recommended reorganization of the commission. Emerging were protests on the type of textbooks given our children — protests over factual inaccuracies, fears expressed over the alleged intrusion of "socialism" in the texts.

Also killed in committee to date: Governor Hodges' "incentive fund" plan — a proposal that the state set up a $10 million fund to be distributed on an ability-to-pay basis among the counties, with the hope of encouraging the counties to give greater local support to the schools.

Another loser: Durham Rep. Watts Hill Jr.'s bill to curtail some of the powers the Superintendent of Public Instruction by giving the State Board of Education final say in selection of departmental personnel.

Other proposed legislation pertaining to education has been greatly tempered.

Heading the list in this area is the proposed "tests for teachers." At the outset, many were recommending that teachers be required to take the tests to become eligible for salary increases over and above the approximate 5 per cent included in the proposed budget.

This plan has now evolved into a resolution directing the State Board of Education to study teacher evaluation, rating and certification.

The legislature in one instance took positive action in a matter of personal dispute by reducing the State Board of Higher Education's authority over budgets — and thus settling a disagreement between the Board and University Trustees.

A large amount of legislation is still pending. Included is:

1. A bill which would permit teachers to receive their pay on a 12-month rather than nine-month basis. (This bill has passed the House and is now before the Senate.)
2. A bill which would permit local school units, with the approval of the State Board of Education, to operate on a 10-month basis. (This bill has passed the Senate and is now before the House.)
3. A resolution calling for a two-year study of better ways to educate exceptionally talented children. (An increase in appropriations for mentally retarded children is included in the proposed budget.)

4. An appropriation bill which would carry on the current experiment in classroom television.
5. A bill which would prevent the padding of attendance records (on which the allocation of teachers is based) by authorizing the State Board of Education to investigate and require return of State funds in cases where padding occurred.

One bill the kids may wish the legislature had not passed — a measure clarifying teachers' authority to spank.

Hawaiian Hula Termed 'Idolatrous' In Attack

By CARL ZIMMERMAN
HONOLULU, (AP) — The ancient Polynesian gods are restless on the sleepy Dona Coast of the island of Hawaii.

The dance of Pele, the goddess of fire, is under attack.

The Rev. Glen Fisk, Congregational minister of Hawaii's oldest church, says Pele's hula is idolatrous, and dances honoring the old gods "might become a stumbling block to those weak in Christian faith."

"I happen to know," he says, "that there are many folks out here who still hold on to the old superstitious beliefs — like sprinkling salt around the house after a funeral, or placing leaves in the house when there are visitors to drive away evil spirits."

Two members of his congregation have resigned from a hula troupe that performs the dances.

In the Pele hula, dancers do not go through the usual swaying of the hips. They gather around a fire pit, pointing to the fire and making gestures.

Mr. Fisk says he did not tell the two dancers to quit the show but he approves of the action.

Mrs. Winona Beamer, whose hula troupe lost the dancers, says she fears that a proposed program of Hawaiian pageants intended as a tourist attraction could be impaired by the attack.

But no support for the minister's views could be found among other clergymen.

The Rev. Samuel A. Keala said: "It is not worship but acceptance of tradition. We should admire tradition and the culture of the past."

"I have seen the Pele hula. Those who participate in it are far from being idol worshippers."

UNDER FIRE—Hula dancers extend their arms in a dance to the Hawaiian fire goddess, Pele—a dance which a minister charges is idolatrous and harmful to Christian principle.

NAACP To Take Up Case Monday

NEW YORK (AP) — The board of directors of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People is scheduled to consider next Monday the case of Robert F. Williams, who was suspended as president of the organization's Union County, N.C. branch.

Williams was suspended by NAACP Executive Secretary Roy Wilkins May 6 after newspaper reports quoted Williams as advocating that Southern Negroes "meet violence with violence."

A committee of NAACP leaders conducted a lengthy closed hearing on the case here Wednesday. The committee announced later its recommendations would be made to the board of directors Monday. The committee would not make public any details.

Williams, 34, also was quoted as saying that "if it's necessary to stop lynching with lynching, then we must be willing to resort to that method."

The NAACP subsequently issued statements in which it emphasized that the organization's policy is against violence.

The NAACP released a transcript Wednesday of a telephone conversation between Wilkins and Williams the day Williams was suspended.

The transcript showed Williams was quoted correctly in his statements, and that he intended to repeat them on radio and television.

Covered By Hail

SELDEN, Kan. (AP)—A hail storm battered this prairie village in northwest Kansas for two hours Wednesday night, covering the town with a foot and a half of ice.

Extent of the damage hasn't been determined. But it will be heavy. The roofs of four business houses and several homes collapsed under the weight of the ice. A torrential rain followed the hail, flooding many basements.

As the hail pelted down, many of Selden's 485 residents abandoned their homes for more substantial shelter. Only one person was hurt. Jim Stewart suffered a cut when an awning toppled from the Farmers State Bank and hit him on the head.

A National Guard unit, 45 strong, moved into the town to guard against looting. Sightseers also converged quickly on Selden posing an additional problem for the guardsmen. Reinforcements are to move in today.

For a time, Selden was isolated. But road graders cleared a narrow path on U.S. Highway 83 toward Colby, 25 miles to the southwest.

Oregon Celebrating Century Of Statehood

By GORDON G. MACNAB
PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Oregonians passed up their first chance to celebrate the arrival of statehood. Now they're getting ready to make up for the oversight.

The news that Oregon had been admitted as the 33rd state reached Portland before dawn on March 15, 1859, when the sidewheeler Brother Jonathan wheezed into Portland Harbor.

A few flags were run up, but opinion is divided on whether this was in honor of statehood or simply a standard greeting for the ship. A horseman was dispatched with the news to Salem, the territorial capital. That was about the sum of excitement in Portland on the great day 100 years ago.

But now, with a century of evidence that statehood was a good idea after all, Oregon is ready to beat the drums and ring the bells. It plans a summer-long celebration it hopes will attract six million visitors. With wagonloads of enthusiasm and a bit over 2½ million dollars from the state's coffers, the Oregon Centennial Commission has been working for months to recreate a little of the past, burnish the present, and offer prospective settlers and customers a bright prediction for the future.

Seven covered wagons are now creaking westward from Independence, Mo., over an approximation of the Old Oregon Trail. They are due in Independence, Ore., on Aug. 15, at the end of a trip intended to dramatize Oregon's link with the past.

Exposition Opens June 10
The greatest effort to take note of a century of statehood is a 100-day Centennial Exposition and International Trade Fair at Portland. It opens June 10 and runs through Sept. 17.

In addition, nearly every town in Oregon is having its own celebration of one kind or another, spread through the year.

At sleepy little Jacksonville, a surrey offers taxi service. Folk dancing parties dot the calendar. In central Oregon, Redmond put false fronts on the Main Street stores, put denim pants and 10-gallon hats on its policemen, and scheduled weekly gunfights on the streets.

Churchwagon breakfasts can be bought in many cities. Souvenir money will buy a round of sarsaparilla drinks behind swinging doors.

Clam digging contests at the beaches. A climb to a glacier on Mt. Hood. Boat races on white water streams. A week of the San Francisco Opera Co. in Portland. Tours through the state by the Portland symphony and junior symphony orchestras. Those are the mixtures of fun and culture planned for the whole year.

Events held every year have prepared for extra company. This widely known Portland Rose Festival June 9-14 comes early in the celebrating and the famed Pendleton Round-Up Sept. 16-19, near the close. Through all of August the Ashland Shakespearean Festival will present its repertoire in a new $275,000 Elizabethan theater. Strangers who come to see what this 33rd state is like, will find a rich land of broad valleys between towering, forest-covered mountains, great sweeps of wheatfields, grazing land and sagebrush.

Scenery Is Spectacular
They will find spectacular scenery in mountain passes, on desert plateaus, along the mighty Columbia River gorge in the heart of the Cascade Mountains, and from a broad highway that unwinds along 300 miles of ocean beach and rocky headland. They may rest in 200 state parks and romp on the sandy ocean beaches, all of which belong to all the people and are free.

This varied land became a state just 18 years after settlers first found a need for government. Pioneer Ewing Young died in 1841. He left land, cattle and no Oregon Kinsman. Settler, picked a judge and went about the business of probating his estate. That was the first Oregon government. Two years later settlers met again and voted 52 to 50, to set up a provisional government under United States law. The opposition was from those who favored British law — or none.

That vote was the big push away from dominance by Hudson's Bay Co. and its British fur trappers. In 1846 American jurisdiction was recognized by treaty and Congress created Oregon Territory in 1848. Eleven years later Oregon became a state.

It had a population of 50,000 and 11,000 of these had crossed the plains in covered wagons in the great migration years of 1841 and 1849. The rest followed later by land and sea. The gold rush began in 1849 and the adventures began to leave the sober tone set by original settlers.

Portland, dominated in its early days by people of wealth and culture from New England, became headquarters for as fine a band of crimps as ever shanghaied an idle or befuddled man. Likely none of these ever exceeded the exploits of Bunco Kelly, who sold a cigar store Indian to one ship captain and a group of corpses to another. He carried them aboard with the explanation they now were drunk but would make fine hands when sober.

Spicy History
This sort of lawlessness spices the past of Oregon which is filled with the romance of exploration and settlement.

The great lure that brought the first people to Oregon in quest of furs is all but gone. Only a handful of beavers are trapped each year although the nickname "the beaver state" still clings to Oregon.

But those things that caused the settlers to come and stay — good land, pleasant climate and elbow room — are still here.

But those things that caused the settlers to come and stay — good land, pleasant climate and elbow room — are still here. Trout and steelhead and salmon still are found in lakes and streams. Mountains and seashore are close at hand and the population averages less than 20 to a square mile after a century of statehood.

ECC Opens Summer Term Monday; Large Enrollment

East Carolina College opens the 1959 summer session on Monday, June 8, with a large enrollment, according to Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, vice president and dean of the college, who is director of the summer term. First term of the summer session runs from June 8-July 14 and the second term continues from July 15 through August 20.

The Summer Institute for high school science and mathematics teachers under direction of Prof. J. O. Derrick and Dr. David R. Davis, will begin its sessions June 8 and continue through July 17. Prof. Derrick announced this week that Dr. William C. Kelly, Director of the Department of Education of the American Institute of Physics, will present two public lectures, speaking to a seminar on Wednesday, June 10, and to a public assembly on Thursday, June 11, in Joyner Library Auditorium. Hour of Dr.

Kelly's lectures is 8 o'clock. Dr. Kelly is directing the American Institute of Physics' project to improve the teaching of physics and expanding the program of visiting scientists, whereby distinguished physicists spend time at American colleges and secondary schools as lecturers.

Recipient of the B. S., M. S. and Ph. D. degrees from the University of Pittsburgh, Dr. Kelly served on its faculty from 1943 to the present, holding the rank of Associate Professor of Physics. During the academic year of 1944 and 1955, Dr. Kelly held a Ford Foundation Faculty Fellowship and visited Harvard University and Stanford University on successive semesters.

Dr. Kelly has been Director of the Study of Apparatus for the Teaching of Physics, and in the course of his work on this study, he visited 36 physics departments in various parts of the country and collected information from 98 physics departments. Other workshops during the first term of summer school:

Arts and Crafts, June 9-19; Alcoholism in Health Education, June 9-19; Kindergarten Education, five weekly periods, June 8-12, 15-19, 22-26, June 29-July 3, 6-10; Music, June 7-19.

Clinics in football and baseball will be held June 11 and 12 under the direction of Coaches Jack Boone and Earl Smith, and Sports Camps directed by Jim Mallory, Dr. J. O. Miller, Miss Mavis Mitchell and Dr. N. M. Jorgensen are set for two periods, June 7-13 and June 14-20.

The Summer Music Camp will operate during the second summer session, July 19-August 1.

Key Witness Is Badly Battered

LOS ANGELES (AP) — One of the key witnesses in a recent probe of underworld influence in the California fight game was severely beaten by unknown assailants Wednesday night.

Two men attacked Jackie Leonard, fight promoter of Hollywood Legion Stadium, as he was putting away his automobile after a short trip to a neighborhood drug store in Northridge, a Los Angeles suburb.

Leonard suffered a severe head wound. Police said he apparently was struck with a gallon jug containing chlorine for his swimming pool. But Leonard's wife said a hammer was also out of place in the garage.

The promoter has been under special police guard since he told a special hearing by the California Athletic Commission that he had been threatened by Frank Carbo, who is under indictment in New York for charges of acting as an undercover boxing manager.

Leonard testified that Frank (Blinky) Palermo, an associate of Carbo, demanded half the manager's share of Welterweight Champion Don Jordan.

Police had escorted Leonard home late Wednesday, but he decided later to go to a drugstore for a newspaper.

Some time later his wife, Jeanne, went to the back yard to turn on the sprinkler, heard groans and found her husband unconscious on the garage floor.

Sports
Scope

by Johnny Hudson

Little Leaguers around the country are now in action and the interest continues to pick up. Greenville's program, made up of two leagues, is in full swing and should have its banner year.

While most of the focus has been on the Greenville Little Leaguers, another group has been active and have quietly started their own Little League.

The new group has organized four teams and have tabbed their League as the Pitt County Little League (North of the Tar River). The final part was added to give distinction to this group.

Actually, the league started operation last summer and as was expected, they had their problems throughout the summer but League officials are looking forward to a more prosperous season.

Dr. W. A. Woody, League president, was the men instrumental in the forming of the league. Dr. Moody, a Bethel native, visited several Ruritan clubs last spring, got good response and a League was soon in operation.

Suits have already been obtained for the teams and more progress is expected in the future. Representatives from several of the communities say that a park at their respective sites was in the talking stage.

The League is young but has an eye to the future for expansion and also better facilities. The Ruritan clubs have shown enthusiasm in their project and their contribution has been a valuable one for their community.

The teams are limited to 15 boys and these come from the various age groups. The turnout for the clubs has been tremendous but many boys have been turned away due to the fact that there is only one team in that certain community.

League officials have expressed desire for forming more teams in each community but present financial conditions prevent it. The League is still on shaky ground but the officials have been wise in their slow movement plan instead of trying to grow big overnight.

Bethel is Champion

Bethel is the veteran club in the newly-formed loop. They were a member of another league before the present one was formed and thus were a year ahead of the others in organization.

Last year, they swept the title with a 19-2 record while Belvoir-Falkland finished in second place with a 14-7 mark. Stokes and Meadowbrook took their first year bumps but indications point to a much closer race this summer.

James Norville, leader in the Belvoir-Falkland program, reports that games will be played on Saturday and Sunday afternoons. The games, starting at 3:00, will be played on a home-and-home basis and the schedule will consist of 18 games for each team.

Last year a play-off series was not held but Norville states that plans for a play-off are being made this year. The League will wind up their play on August 2nd.

Officials Express Gratitude

Dr. W. A. Moody is serving as president of the league this year and James Dupree, also of Bethel, is the league secretary. Managers of the teams are: Melvin Owen, Meadowbrook; Al Hardison, Stokes; Bob Smithwick, Bethel; and Pete Norville of Belvoir-Falkland.

A written statement has been received from the league officials, expressing their gratitude for the work of the various communities.

"We, the managers and club officials, wish to express our sincere thanks to the people of each of these communities for providing the necessary funds to bring Little-League baseball to the rural communities."

The Jaycees won their fifth straight game yesterday afternoon and remained as the only undefeated team in either league as they downed a helpless VFW club, 9-1.

The pace-setters wrapped up the game in the second inning with a four-run outburst featured by Flanagan's two-run double. Harrington opened the inning with a single for the only other hit in their rally.

Flanagan went the route for the Jaycees and gave up only one hit while striking out 14. He struck out the side in the second and fifth innings and left only three men on base during the evening.

Fields beat out a single in the third inning for the only hit off Flanagan. He later scored for the only VFW run of the evening.

The Jaycees had only four hits but Williams, the losing pitcher, served up 12 bases on balls. Despite his wildness, Williams added 11 strikeouts to his record. Kiwanis, riding the crest of a three-game winning streak, will be seeking sole possession of second place today when they run up against fourth place Texaco. Tomorrow afternoon the Lions will get another chance at the Jaycees.

Bankers, Builders Open Teener Play With Wins

State Bank and Home Builders emerged with the first victories in the Teener League last night, as the loop got in full swing at Guy Smith Stadium.

State Bank and College View had started their tilt Monday night but power failure with the score knotted at 2-all gave College View an extra day to prepare for their first defeat.

Sammy Pugh hurled two-hit ball for the State Bank, as they broke the tie with a single run in the sixth and then added two insurance runs in the seventh inning. Jimmy Jenkins collected one of the two hits off Pugh as he hit a booming four-bagger in the first inning with one man on to account for both College View runs.

Joyner started for the losers and was relieved in the seventh by Johnson.

Lou Ward pitched shutout ball for five innings while his teammates were collecting seven runs to push Home Builders into a comfortable lead over Guaranty Bank. The latter club struck back for two runs in the sixth but finished on the short end of a 8-2 score in their first game of the season.

Ward gave up only five hits while Home Builders touched David Boyd for seven hits.

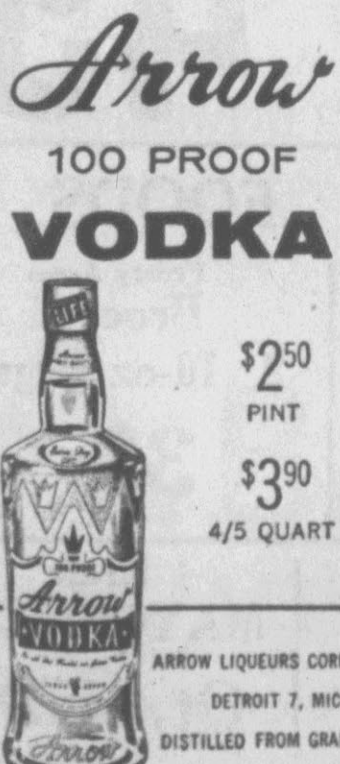

First baseman Leo Stallings led the winners with two hits in three trips to the plate. Frank Puryear had two safeties in four trips to pace the losers.

MISENHEIMER, N. C. — East Carolina College baseball coach, Jim Mallory, was named "Coach-of-the-Year" in National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics District 26 yesterday.

Mallory was chosen by a vote of the coaches of the 16 member schools. Joe Ferebee of Pfeiffer College, the district baseball chairman, made the announcement yesterday.

Mallory took a club which was regarded as in a "rebuilding stage" and guided them to the North State title with 14 straight victories. After a slow start, the club finished with a 16-3 over-all mark and became one of the few teams in the North State Conference to record an undefeated conference record.

For the popular ECC coach, it was his third conference title at ECC in the five years that he has served as head baseball coach. He had finished second the other two times.

East Carolina opened the season with an almost completely new lineup as graduation made its toll on last year's second place club. Only three regulars — Al Vaughn, Jimmy Martin, and Ben Baker—were returning and Baker was out the first part of the season with an injury.

Mallory did some sound recruiting and came up with a young team, but one that was skilled in fundamentals and had the desire to win.

The club raced through the North State loop with ease, scoring 149 runs while allowing only 29.

Al Vaughn and Larry Crayton, a couple of All-Staters and All-Conference stars, reaped more honors yesterday at the meeting as they were named to the All-District NAIA team.

Vaughn, a senior, was the regular second-sacker for the Bucs the past two seasons and was All-Conference both years. He finished the season with an eleven game hitting streak and an average which was close to the .300 circle. Vaughn calls Ahoskie as his home.

Crayton, a talented freshman, made ECC fans forget other great Pirate pitchers as he registered a 7-1 record and led the club in strikeouts. He also set a conference record for single strikeouts in one game. Crayton hails from Greensboro.

Other players named to the 12-man squad were:

First base — Gill Watts, Elon; shortstop — Jim Coggins, Pfeiffer; third base — Lee Farmer, Lenoir Rhyne; utility infielder — Joe Guzinski, High Point; outfielders — Brack Bailey, Pfeiffer; Jim McBee, Catawba; Jerry Fox, Lenoir Rhyne; utility outfielder — Mal Malinowski — Belmont Abbey; catcher — Jerry Bryson — Pfeiffer; pitchers — Tommy Jamieson — Pfeiffer.

Joe Brown TKOs Rosi In 9th Round

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lightweight king Joe Brown, truly a fighting champion, said today "I'm ready to go again on Monday if someone brings along a little money."

The 33-year-old fighter from New Orleans and Houston stopped cut-prone Paolo Rosi for a ninth-round technical knockout in their 15-round title fight at Uline Arena Wednesday night. Rosi suffered a deep, wide gash over the left eye.

Old bones and the bald challenger were even in the scoring at the time but it didn't matter much when the blood started to flow.

It was the seventh defense for the busy Brown since he won the 135-pound crown from Bud Smith on Aug. 24, 1956. Now the champ wants to go again.

"I don't have anything lined up," said Brown, "but if Rosi wants another shot and it can make some money, that's okay with me. There's Kenny Lane and Carlos Ortiz (the No. 1 and 2 contenders) and I'm ready for them."

Brown edged Lane in his fifth defense on July 23, 1958.

A straight right—Rosi moaned it was a butt—split open an inch and a half long, one-quarter inch wide cut over Paolo's left eye in the eighth round. Blood streamed from the gaping wound and it was no surprise when Referee Charley Reynolds, at the direction of the two ringside physicians, stopped the fight during the intermission between the eighth and ninth rounds.

Under District of Columbia rules it went into the record books as a ninth round TKO.

"He hit me with his head," Rosi said bitterly. "No punch, just his head. He's a champ? Say — I a champ don't have to run away. I

Perfect Pitch Goes Over Fence

DETROIT (AP) — Pitcher Ray Narleski, catcher Lou Berberer and Manager Jimmy Dykes called it a "perfect pitch."

Sluggo Mickey Mantle said it completely fooled him, and Manager Casey Stengel said it just might be the thing "to get us back up there where we belong."

Whatever they call it, Mantle hit it over the right field fence at Briggs Stadium Wednesday night in the ninth inning. His home run earned the New York Yankees a 6-5 triumph over the Detroit Tigers.

The Yankee power guy confessed later: "I just swung to protect the plate. It was the best pitch I saw all night. It completely fooled me."

The pitch was thrown by Narleski on a 1-1 count. It was a low, outside fast ball. "Just where I wanted it," said Narleski.

The fact that the Yankees skipped out to a 5-1 lead, piddled it away and came back to win seemed significant to Stengel.

"That's the kind of thing we need to get us back up there where we belong," said Stengel. "A few weeks ago we won four out of six and they said we'd be in first place in two weeks."

"Well, we're still in seventh place, but we ain't gonna be there for long. I don't think. If we can get by here tomorrow and do okay in that series in Cleveland, we'll be on our way."

Fishing Tournery Opens Saturday

HATTERAS, N.C. (AP)—A blue marlin fishing tournament, matching teams from the Cape Hatteras Bilfish Club and the San Juan, Puerto Rico, Club Nautico, opens here Saturday.

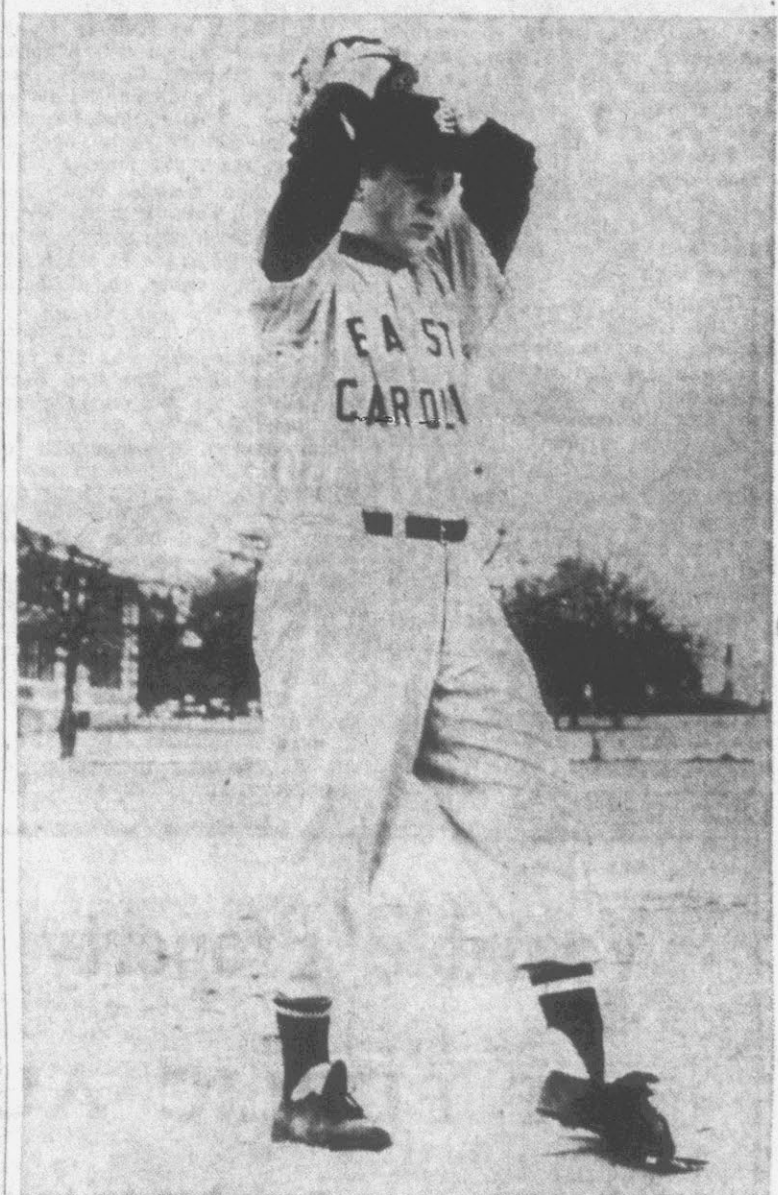

Teams from the two clubs will fish Cape Hatteras waters until June 11 in the first round of the tournament. The second round will be in September in Puerto Rico.

The tournament is the result of a challenge from Esteban A. Bird of San Juan, captain of the Puerto Rican team.

Six boats will compete for four days in each locality, with points scored for the fish caught.

Dr. J. C. Overbey of Norfolk, Va., is captain of the Cape Hatteras team.

A train of 30,000 cars—long enough to extend from New York City to Richmond, Va.—is needed to transport bituminous coal from mine to market each day.

PIRATE ACE . . . Larry Crayton, ECC's sensational southpaw hurler, continued to reap honors yesterday as he and teammate Al Vaughn were named to the NAIA All-District team. Both had previously been selected for All-Conference and All-State honors.

Cleveland Dealt 5th Defeat In A Row; Tribe's Lead Cut To A Hairbreadth

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer
They're still holding on by a scalplock, but Cleveland's tribe is fast becoming a bunch of vanishing Indians in that American League race.

Signed Wrong, Is Disqualified

PAYETTEVILLE—Bobby Thomas of Greenville, defending champion of the East Carolina Golf League, signed the wrong scorecard here Wednesday while participating in the annual league tournament and was disqualified, leaving the door open for Ed Justa of Rocky Mount to capture the title with a 72.

Thomas, son of Greenville Country Club professional Harold Thomas, won the championship last year. No details were released from Fayetteville Wednesday other than "he signed the wrong scorecard and was disqualified."

Justa won the championship by one stroke over Howard Godfrey of Fayetteville who carded a 73. Fayetteville, Greenville and Kingston dominated the tournament. No players from the other three cities in the league—Raleigh, Wilson and Rocky Mount—placed other than Justa.

The annual one-day tournament is the climax to a three-month schedule of weekly competition between teams in the league. Team standings have nothing to do with deciding the championship in the final rounds of play.

Next year, Kingston will be host club for the wind-up event.

The results:

First Flight: Paul Smith, Fayetteville, 72; runner-up, Harvey Oliver, Fayetteville, 70.

Second Flight: Robert Bloh, Fayetteville, 73; runner-up, Buddy Murray, Greenville, 78.

Third Flight: Dick Llewellyn, Kingston, 79; runner-up, Johnny Clark, Fayetteville, 83.

Fourth Flight: Lyn Williams, Kingston, 79; runner-up, Peter Griffin, Greenville, 84.

Killebrew and "rampaging" Ron Samford that backed up Bill Fischer's three-hit pitching. All the once powerful Indians managed off the well-traveled right-hander was three widely separated singles as their lead dwindled to mere percentage points.

The Chicago White Sox moved into a virtual tie for the top, 403 behind, by reclaiming second place from Baltimore with a 6-1 victory over the Orioles in an afternoon game.

Fact is, the whole league has closed in on the Indians, who have lost seven of their last eight games. Baltimore is just a half-game behind. Fourth place Kansas City is only 1½ games back.

Struck Out 19 In Single Game

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Big Ben Trench of Raleigh Wednesday night joined five other pitchers in the Carolina League's history who have struck out 19 batters in a single game.

Trench did it as Raleigh blanked top place Wilson 3-0. A former Wake Forest College star, Trench missed a chance to tie or break the league strikeout record of 20 by getting only one on strikes in the ninth inning.

Trench had trouble controlling his fast ball, walking nine. Wilson left 13 runners stranded. Raleigh scored its three runs in the sixth, one of which came on a homer by Tom Awosta.

Winston-Salem and Greensboro split a doubleheader in the rain at Winston-Salem. The Red Birds won the opener 6-1 and Greensboro took the second game 7-6.

Rain caused postponement of the Durham-Burlington game.

Winston-Salem's Chuck Behrends held Greensboro to five hits in the opener. The Red Birds collected 11 hits off two pitchers.

Greensboro, trailing by 5-4, kept plugging away in the closing innings of the second game to score its victory. A walk, a sacrifice, an infield hit and a passed ball scored what proved to be the winning run in the ninth.

Tonight's games: Winston-Salem at Wilson, Burlington at Greensboro and Durham at Raleigh.

after a 5-3 victory over the last place Boston Red Sox, who are just six games out of first. And fifth place Detroit is within 3½ games of the lead, even after losing 6-1 to the New York Yankees. The champs still are seventh, but only 4½ games shy of first.

In the National League, Milwaukee regained a 3½-game edge over San Francisco by beating the Giants 7-4. Pittsburgh defeated St. Louis 1-3. Los Angeles rapped Cincinnati 5-1 behind the two-hit pitching of Stan Williams. Philadelphia beat the Chicago Cubs 4-3.

Fischer, 28, who also has worked for the White Sox and Tigers, breezed to a 5-1 record and his first victory over against the Indians after Killebrew hammered his 19th home run in the fourth inning and Samford made it 2-0 in the fifth.

The only hits off Fischer, who struck out four and didn't walk a man, were by Minnie Minoso in the second, Vic power in the sixth and Billy Martin in the ninth.

Herb Score (5-3) was the loser, giving up six hits in his six innings.

Southpaw Billy Pierce, after losing three straight, gained a 6-5 record with an eight-hitter as the White Sox ended their losing streak at three with their third victory in 11 games. Gene Woodling's eighth-inning homer junked Pierce's shutout bid. By then, the White Sox had a 5-0 lead, after being blanked on one-hit for four innings by Billy O'Dell (2-5).

Ex-Yankee Johnny Kucks (1-2) had a one-hit shutout for five innings for the A's, then gave up two walks and Ted Williams' scoring single in the sixth and finally needed Ray Herbert's relief. Bill Monbouquette (1-1) was the loser.

The Yankees, who had lost seven in a row to the Tigers, five this season, chased troublesome Frank Lary with five runs in the third, then had to wait until the ninth to clinch it on Mickey Mantle's tie-breaking home run off Ray Narleski (1-6). Home runs by John Blanchard, his first in the majors, and Yogi Berra, a two-run smack, chased Lary. Charlie Maxwell's two-run homer helped the Tigers battle back to a tie before Ryne Duren finally wrapped up his first victory in three relief decisions for the Yankees.

The Elks continued to pace the Tar Heel loop yesterday as they used a big third inning to knock down one of their biggest challengers, Greenville Tobacco Company, by a 6-4 score.

Greenville Tobacco Company picked up two base on balls and then added singles by Calloway and Richardson to go out front 2-0 in the second inning.

With their league lead on the line, the Elks rose to the occasion and came back with their own offense in the third. The victors picked up only two hits in the five-run frame but a collapse by the defense enabled the rally to continue.

Mosier and Mullens both drove out run-scoring singles in the inning. The losers committed two costly errors to open the door for the Elks.

Greenville Tobacco Company fought back with single tallies in the third and fourth innings but were unable to overtake the league leaders.

Tomorrow's schedule will pit Exchange against a winless Moose club.

Graniteers Drub Quality Oil, 9-1

Graniteers revenged an earlier defeat last night by drubbing a previously red-hot Quality Oil club, 9-1, in the only Greenville Industrial Softball League action.

Dan Gordon was in rare form as he hurled a two-hitter to revenge his and the Graniteers' only defeat of the season. Brantley was charged with the defeat.

Summerell collected three hits in four trips to the plate and Ike Riddick had two in the same number to pace the winners' attack.

Carpenter and Strickland got the only hits for Quality Oil as their recent spurt came to an abrupt halt.

Friday night will feature two games as the Graniteers will try and continue their pace against Coffman's Men's Wear and Carolina Dairy will battle Greenville Parts and Metal.

If He Wins, Has Fighting Plans

NEW YORK (AP) — Ingemar Johansson promised today if he wins the world's heavyweight title from Floyd Patterson at Yankee Stadium June 25, he won't be a lazy champion.

"If I win the world championship," the Swedish challenger said, "I would like very much to fight and fight much. I cannot say how many times, but I will like to defend my title."

The 26-year-old Ing was quick to add that he wasn't predicting a victory over Patterson. The outcome, he said, is anybody's guess.

NEW YORK (AP) — Carmen Basilio has agreed to fight Gene Fulmer for the National Boxing Assn. version of the middleweight title and let Ray Robinson keep his New York version of the 160-pound crown. But there still is a big "if" to the muddled situation.

A few hours after Syracuse (N.Y.) promoter Norman Rothchild announced Wednesday that Basilio and Fulmer will meet during the first two weeks of August in a Western city, NBA President Dr. Ward Wylie came up with a statement that started boxing fans wondering.

Dr. Wylie, from his Mullens, W. Va., home said the NBA's executive committee might reconsider its stand on stripping Robinson of his title at a meeting later this month.

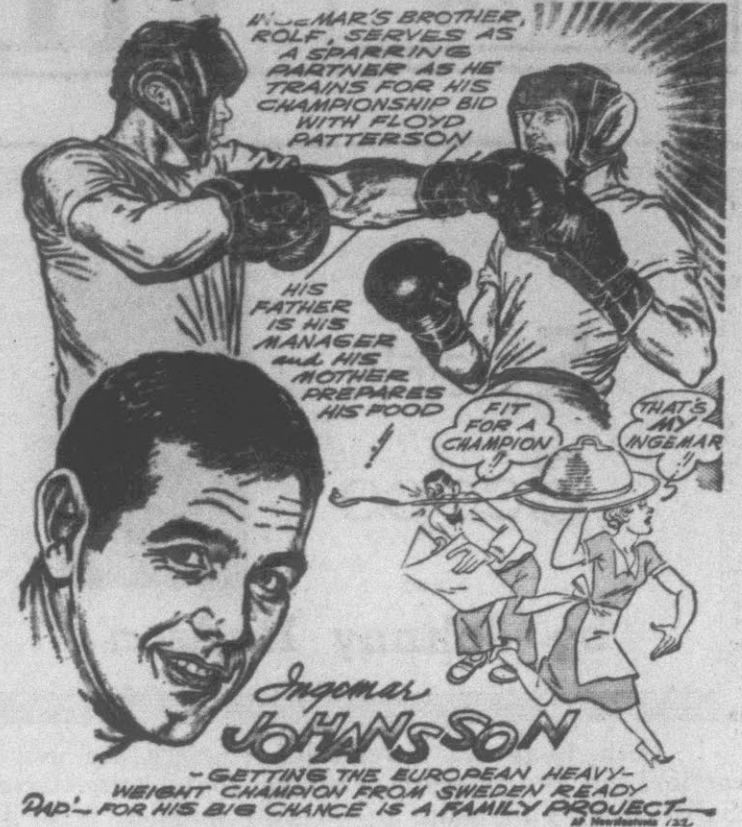

The Basilio-Fulmer bout would bring together two ex-champions, who have met. Each won and lost championship bouts with Robinson, whose title claims were sustained by the New York State Athletic Commission two days ago.

Early last month Robinson was bereft of his crown by the NBA for failure to make a title defense in more than 14 months. The New York Athletic Commission's reverse action was based on its reasoning that Robinson had actually signed to fight Basilio in Philadelphia.

Basilio objected to that meeting because he said he was not consulted.

Family Fight..... by Pap'

Getting Ingemar Johansson in shape for his world heavyweight championship bout with Floyd Patterson is a real family project. The European heavyweight champion from Sweden is surrounded by members of his family in his Grossinger, N.Y., training headquarters. And they are not on hand just to keep Ingemar from getting lonesome. Papa Johansson is the fighter's manager. Mama prepares his food. Brother Rolf, a fair middleweight, serves as a sparring mate in daily workouts. Ingemar does most of the talking for his family, since he is the only one who speaks English.

"We have established a training routine that is as close as possible to conditions at home in Göteborg, my home in Sweden," said Ingemar. "Regular routine, so important to conditioning, is possible because everyone has a job to do and does it. My family knows my training routine and having them around helps in many ways." Johansson's training routine is much like the average American fighter preparing for an important bout. Ingemar is up early every morning to do his six miles on the road. He gets some fruit juices as a breakfast and has his one big meal, usually steak, at noon. He starts his ring workouts at five in the afternoon. Every operation—boxing, bag-punching, rope-skipping—is done in three-minute rounds, with a minute's rest in between. The one departure from regular training stunts is an invention Ingemar has created—a "slung ball," he calls it. It's an eight-inch leather bag hung from a punching bag platform on a three-foot strap. Punching the small, flying bag sharpens his timing.

German Officers Knew D-Day News Spelled Defeat

Editor's note — When the Allies swarmed ashore on the French coast, a young German artillery officer was busy training green replacements for the defense of Hitler's Atlantic Wall. In this third of four eyewitness articles commemorating D-Day, Horst Fluegge — now on The Associated Press staff in Germany — recalls the momentous events from a German viewpoint.

By HORST FLUEGGE

BONN, Germany (AP)—We had waited for the phone call for a long time. It came around 8 o'clock on June 6. A sergeant picked up the receiver. He listened for a while, then turned to us and said, "They have landed."

That was D-Day, 15 years ago. I was a lieutenant stationed with a German army mobile artillery unit at Avranches, 60 miles from the main Allied beachhead at Cherbourg on the Normandy coast of France.

I didn't see what happened at Cherbourg that morning, for we were marshaling the curious mixture of youthful veterans of the Russian front and the kids and old men hastily recruited for the defense of the Atlantic Wall.

We marched for two days until we reached the Orne River near Caen and there we ran into the powerful batteries of the Allied naval vessels that lay offshore.

We were an exhausted, defeated bunch, the men of Artillery Unit 1154. We knew we had lost the war, but there was nothing to do but fight it out. To us it did not appear honorable to surrender.

I remember standing among the batteries of inferior Italian long-range guns and Russian material confiscated on the Eastern front and listening to our staff chief. "Maybe they'll smash our artillery in a hurry and we'll get new stuff," he observed laconically.

Another artillery officer, a man with whom I had made the long retreat from the heart of Russia, had this cynical observation: "We might as well start the counter-attack. Then we can retreat faster."

It's difficult to remember what I thought and felt then. I was tired, worn out from four years in Russia and from trying to train our inexperienced replacements. Normandy was a long way from Berlin where I had been studying philosophy at the university when the war began.

From the middle of May I had been adjutant to the commander of Artillery Unit 1154 in Avranches. I was moved there with our other officers from the Eastern front.

Our men were mostly youngsters and old men who had held staff jobs in Berlin. They were inexperienced and unable to cope with the superior weapons and manpower of the enemy.

We were not at all surprised that the Allies struck at Cherbourg. The coastal area of Normandy was the most vulnerable region in the Atlantic Wall whose defenses had been planned by Field Marshals Rommel and Von Rundstedt.

Our main forces lay 60 miles from the coast and we had to rush men to the beaches to combat the Americans, British and Canadians who stormed ashore.

From the first it was clear that the Allies had air superiority, more than the Russians had managed in the East. And the naval artillery on the Allied ships had greater range than our big guns. They could hit us while our shells fell far short.

Never during the war, including the dismal days in Russia, did I find the morale of our troops as low as it was in the first days of the Allied invasion.

I remember talking to our staff chief in those first invasion days and hearing him say with a defeatist grin: "Let's take a Messerschmitt and go off to Spain."

On July 20, 1944, the plot to assassinate Hitler took place and failed. Word got around fast and we felt then that the war would last until we were driven back into Germany.

I remember the signs at the rail

Jury Flubs; The Accused Is Free

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Erielester Westmoreland was on trial in circuit court on a charge of operating a motor vehicle without consent of the owner.

The state, trying for a conviction under Missouri's Habitual Criminal Act which would have made a life sentence mandatory, described his five previous felony convictions.

But the jury, misunderstanding instructions of Judge Jo'n C. Casey, acquitted him of the motor vehicle charge and convicted him of the five crimes of which he previously had been convicted.

Westmoreland went free.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Erielester Westmoreland was on trial in circuit court on a charge of operating a motor vehicle without consent of the owner.

The state, trying for a conviction under Missouri's Habitual Criminal Act which would have made a life sentence mandatory, described his five previous felony convictions.

But the jury, misunderstanding instructions of Judge Jo'n C. Casey, acquitted him of the motor vehicle charge and convicted him of the five crimes of which he previously had been convicted.

Westmoreland went free.

Graduating With 'Strange' Class

BRUNSWICK, Maine. (AP) — Norman Hobart, 22, will be graduated this year from a high school he never attended.

His classmates at Brunswick High are strangers, except for a few who have visited his home.

Stricken by polio in 1957 and paralyzed, Norman has done his school work at home, memorizing everything he reads, taking all his exams orally.

Before his illness, Norman attended Wells High, where he played football.

West N.C. Sees Rain And Hail

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Driving rain and hail stones ranging to the size of golf balls pelted areas of Western North Carolina Wednesday.

In some areas, there was extensive crop damage and some flooding.

At Brevard, 2.97 inches of rain and hail fell in an hour. The downtown area was flooded and several highways had 1 1/2 feet of water on them for a time.

The town took on a wintry appearance when the hail piled up like snow.

The picture was similar in the Statesville area, where nearly 4 inches of rain was reported in two hours. Hail accompanied the rain and piled up to a depth of 18 inches in places.

In Ashe County, hailstorms were reported in the West Jefferson area and at Glendale Springs. Hail and heavy rain also were reported at Landis and Mooresville.

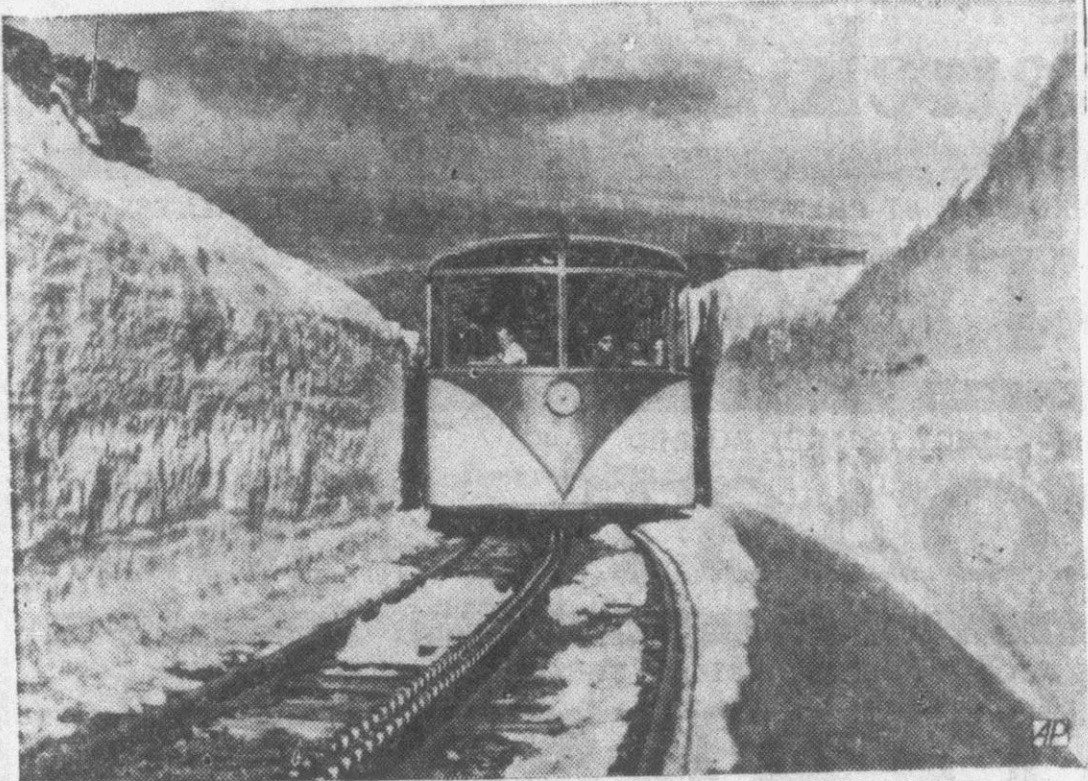

County Agent James Davis said the Brevard storm damage to crops might run into thousands of dollars.

Crops also were reported damaged in Iredell and Catawba counties by the storm.

Hail piled up on Highway 16 north of West Jefferson, forcing traffic to a standstill.

Hickory reported 1.25 inch of rain and North Wilkesboro had about an inch.

Worm Farmer Has A Booming Business

DOYLESTOWN, Pa. (AP) — This is the time of the year when business is booming at Mrs. Mabel Brinker's wiggy wasgy worm farm.

Mrs. Brinker started raising worms six years ago, and now the worm farm keeps her tidily supplied with spending money.

She first got the idea of raising worms while reading an article on organic gardening. She sent for a batch — there were several thousand — and began raising them in the cellar.

The worms helped her solve part of another problem, too. In the rural area where Mrs. Brinker lives, there are no garbage collections. She used some of the family garbage in the box in the cellar where she installed the worms, and they thrived on it.

"Some of the neighbors told me I was crazy when I began raising worms," the 51-year-old housewife recalls. But she had the last laugh.

She soon discovered that worms multiply rapidly, and youngsters in the neighborhood soon discovered a convenient source of worms for fishing bait. Word got around, and sporting goods stores began asking for supplies. Without even trying, Mrs. Brinker was in business.

Last year she supplied about 120,000 worms to stores for bait. She charges $2 for 2,000.

How does she count them? She doesn't. That job is done by her 11-year-old grandson, Bob Cooner of nearby Mechanicsville. He picks them out, one by one, and packs them in cartons, earning pocket money for himself with his work.

In addition to the money, Mrs. Brinker gets excellent potting soil as a byproduct of the worm raising venture. This results from the worms burrowing in the soil and aerating it.

Mrs. Brinker's husband, Lester, who is manager of the Bucks County Producers Cooperative, is enthusiastic about her business venture. In fact, it was he who thought up the name, and he put up a sign in front of the Brinker house advertising the farm.

The worm business has grown out of the cellar to the backyard, and Mrs. Brinker is fast running out of space for her worm boxes. To her, it's a fine way to make money, and unlike running, say, a dog kennel, it's very easy on the ears.

LAST LAUGH — Neighbors laughed when Mrs. Mabel Brinker started a worm farm. Now they envy her extra income.

New Bank Office Formally Opens

Formal opening of State Bank and Trust Company's new Circle Office at West End Circle in Greenville was held today.

The new Circle Office, of modern architecture, provides facilities for drive-in and walk-in banking.

"The new office is designed to serve our friends in the western part of the city and those who live in or near many highways merging there," J. T. Marston, Jr., president of the bank said this morning. "It is expected also to prove convenient for those who want to avoid downtown traffic and parking."

It is the second drive-in banking office to be constructed in Greenville by State Bank and Trust Company in recent years. The first drive-in facility was opened by the bank two years ago adjacent to its main office at Five Points.

"The opening of our new Circle Office is another step in the expansion of State Bank's services for the convenience of our customers and the other residents of this area," Marston said.

The new Circle Office will handle regular and savings deposits, cash checks, sell travelers' and cashier's checks and prepare payrolls for delivery.

WHEAT RIDGE, Colo. (AP) — Mrs. Clarence Williams is a junior high school gym teacher who never had an art lesson in her life.

That didn't stop her when she decided she'd like a "great, big picture" in a basement recreation room. She went to work with paints and when she was done, she had a mountain mural 25 feet long.

Saw Red, Heard Bells; Jumped

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — When the thief saw red and started hearing bells, he decided it was time to abandon ship.

The "ship," in this case, was a police paddy wagon. It was stolen Wednesday night while its two cruisemen were out checking the neighborhood.

At police headquarters, radio dispatchers used a device to activate the stolen paddy wagon's red light and bells. That apparently was the clincher in making the thief decide the idea was a bad one. The vehicle was found abandoned a short time later. Two suspects were arrested.

NEAR DOUBLE TROUBLE

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Daniel W. Dough Jr. is glad he has an honest double. Dough was arrested for attempted bank robbery. He was released when the man sought surrendered and said he, not Dough, had committed the crime. Police said the two were "amazingly similar" in appearance.

Dynamite Explosion Upsets Henderson Peace

HENDERSON, N.C. (AP) — A dynamite blast in an open field shook the North Henderson plant of the struck Harriet-Henderson Cotton Mills last night.

It was the first explosion in several nights in this strike-torn city. No damage or injuries were reported.

Police were investigating it today.

Meanwhile the state was to begin presenting its case today against James Merrill Manning, charged with attempting to dynamite the home of a worker at one of the struck textile mills here.

Selection of a jury was completed Wednesday in Vance Superior Court. Manning is accused of preparing to light a dynamite fuse in the yard of Garland B. Cash when Cash fired on him with a shotgun.

Manning was wounded and hospitalized for several days. Cash is facing trial on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon as a result of the shooting, which occurred two months ago.

The three were accused of attacking Charles P. Rose — no relation to Douglas Roe — while he was driving a truck loaded with cotton into one of the mills here.

Judge Raymond Mallard also sentenced Jackson to six months on the roads, suspended on payment of $500 and costs. Rose was given an 18-month sentence, suspended on payment of $250 and costs. Turner received four months suspended on payment of $250 and costs.

National Guard troops continued to patrol virtually deserted streets Wednesday night at the Harriet-Henderson mills. The Guardsmen have been on duty here since May 12.

The strike began Nov. 17 after the company insisted that an arbitration clause be removed from the union contract.

GINA, THE QUEEN OF SHEBA

Gina races across the Zaragoza wasteland in a burst of healthy energy.

Gina displays her charms as Magda, Queen of Sheba, in dance at pagan rites. Her slaves and courtiers join her.

In chariot, Gina uses whip to drive the horses during battle in which her troops aid King Solomon. Her captain of guards handles reins.

The baked soil of Spain never seemed hotter than when the fiery Gina Lollobrigida tramped it day after day in the shooting of her new picture, "Solomon and Sheba."

As Queen Sheba, the Biblical flame which singed King Solomon, the role and the terrain, the wild country around Zaragoza, where much of the filming was done, suited the Italian actress and her temperament perfectly.

The trip to Spain was Gina's first, and her stay there was a long one. An original four-month shooting schedule stretched into six—then into nine. But, says Gina, "I never got homesick. I brought our home to Spain." Gina's husband, Dr. Milko Skofic made frequent trips from Italy, and their 18-month-old son, Milko, Jr., and his nurse were in Madrid during all of Gina's stay. Every other day the nurse brought the baby to the set to visit his mother. Sometimes he didn't recognize her in her exotic makeup and elaborate costumes, and he cried bitterly.

In "Solomon and Sheba," a spectacular pagan rite scene brings out some of Gina's most alluring charms—and, surely, her most revealing costume. In it, she dances wildly, while her Sheban slaves and courtiers dance around her. Sheba was one of the most beautiful of pagan queens.

A last minute touch-up before facing camera, Gina checks hairdo.

At script conference, Gina bundles up against cold wind as she listens to director King Vidor explain next scene. Script girl follows sequence.

Family reunion is welcome break for Gina, who watches husband, Dr. Milko Skofic, lift son, Milko, Jr., high in air on his arrival from Italy. He made many trips to Spain to visit family.

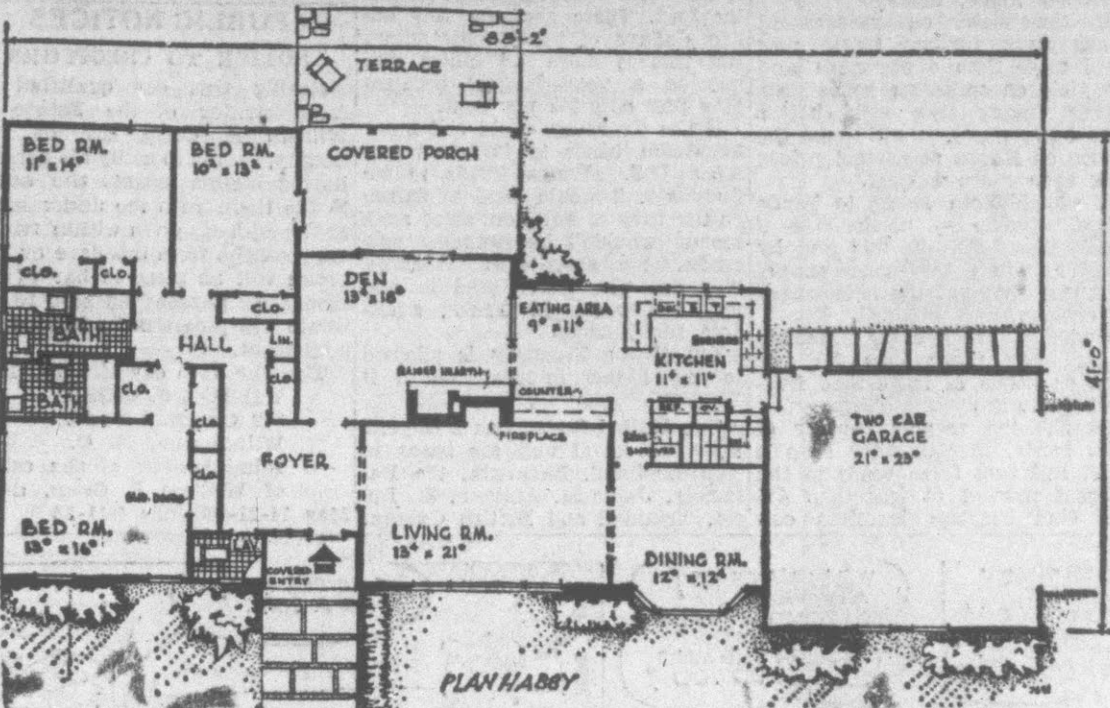

On a sightseeing trip, Gina stops at stand in Segovia to buy postcards.

AP Newfeatures

Unprotected cement - containing materials, such as concrete, mortar joints and other similar building products, can spell trouble under certain conditions.

Water working its way through exterior masonry, for instance, can damage the inside of a building, ruin plaster and woodwork and rust structural steel. In addition, the water can spoil the appearance of protected masonry by leaching out soluble salts and causing unsightly efflorescence, which shows up in the form of a white surface coating. Excessive dampness also can further the growth of mildew.

The paint industry has developed a number of products which will effectively protect concrete from the assaults of the weather and which will decorate it with any desired color to hide the effects of age and previous damage.

Newest of these are the exterior latex, or water-thinned paints, which are immune to the alkali contained in cement products, including stucco, concrete and cinder block. In addition to their familiar quick-drying properties, another advantage of these latex paints is that they can be applied over either dry or wet surfaces. While they prevent water from entering, they permit moisture vapor from within to escape without blistering the paint.

Also relatively new in the field of coatings for concrete are the transparent silicone paints which are used when it is desirable to keep the natural appearance of brick and other masonry unchanged. They perform their protective function by lining the capillary pores of masonry and completely eliminating the absorption of water. They can be used only over bare surfaces and it is advised that rough cinder blocks receive a coat of cement-based paint before silicones are applied.

Portland cement paints have been used successfully for a number of years to coat masonry surfaces. These paints come in white and a variety of colors and actually penetrate the masonry, bond with it and become an integral part of the surface. They are mixed with water just before use. The walls or other surfaces must be thoroughly wet while the cement paint is being applied in one or more heavy coats with a stiff bristle brush. The finished job should be kept damp for several days so that the cement will have a chance to cure. Portland cement paints can be used only over bare masonry or over previous coats of the same type of paint.

Excellent masonry paints are made from synthetic rubber and chlorinated rubber solutions. They are solvent-thinned, not water-thinned. They have outstanding resistance to chemical and corrosive fumes as well as to water. Swimming pool paints usually are of this type. There also are oil-based masonry paints that have given good service on aged, thoroughly dry masonry surfaces that are free of alkali.

Surface preparation of concrete usually consists merely in removing dirt and dust by vigorous brushing or scrubbing with plain water. Solvent wiping will remove grease. Brand new concrete should be washed with diluted muriatic acid or a zinc sulphate solution to neutralize any surface alkali. Wear rubber gloves and protective goggles when working with this acid. Previously - painted surfaces in good condition usually require only the removal of dirt and grease. Loose or peeling paint should be removed, as should chalking.

Closed Circuit TV Has New Job

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Closed-circuit television has solved a problem that long plagued the sidewalk superintendent, supervising construction work on the upper floors of office buildings.

When work on the new 15-story Libbey-Owens-Ford office building here reached the 10th floor, a television camera was installed to flash action to a screen located at eye-level on the sidewalk. The live drama features steelworkers astride beams silhouetted against the Toledo skyline.

Sidewalk supers apparently like the new departure. One called it "the newest freedom, the freedom from strain."

Nine Licensed To Raise Funds

RALEIGH — During the month of May licenses were granted by the State Board of Public Welfare to nine organizations to conduct fund-raising campaigns through public solicitations for the support of their programs. It was announced yesterday by Dr. Ellen Winston, Commissioner.

The nine licenses were granted to organizations which have held licenses for previous solicitation periods. These organizations are: American Waldensian Aid Society; Blue Ridge Assembly; Bona Finitim of Bertie and Martin Counties; Daughters of the American Revolution; Eisenhower Exchange Fellowship; International Social Service; Myasthenia Gravis Foundation; National Society for Prevention of Blindness; and Seamen's Church Institute of New York.

The total amount which these nine organizations will seek from the public during the year in North Carolina is approximately $57,785. License was withheld from the Christian Children's Fund, Richmond, Va., as it failed to qualify under provisions of the North Carolina Solicitation Law.

Safety Award To A Comic Book

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Safety Council has given its Public Interest Award to a comic book.

The book, "Tommy Gets the Keys," is distributed by B. F. Goodrich Co. The 32-page cartoon booklet is designed to "train the would-be teen-age driver before he gets the keys to the car," company officials say.

More than six million copies of the booklet have been distributed since it was introduced in 1954.

'Brass' Tries Pillorying Cartoonists

Point of View

A handful of public officials in Washington — frequently the butt of political cartoons — took up pens recently to defend themselves.

The occasion was a contest staged by the American Assn. of Editorial Cartoonists, who good-naturedly offered their usual targets the opportunity to strike back by displaying the amateurs' work at their annual convention.

The professionals even offered a prize for the most telling lampoon of the lampoonists. Although only eight public servants of the 90 invited to participate rose to the challenge, a few got in some good licks.

First prize was awarded to Secretary of Commerce Lewis L. Strauss, who turned out a drawing entitled "Point of View" showing a cartoonist drawing the Washington Monument, shimmering in the sunlight, as a tottering, propped-up shaft under a dark cloud. The cartoonist was labeled "You guys."

Another entry, by Secretary of the Interior Fred A. Seaton, showed a group of cartoonists lazily lounging in the press club and deciding: "Today, men, let's hit the bureaucrats for loafing."

Strauss signed his entry "Lewis Strauss plus K," indicating a collaborator. Reportedly, the collaborator merely inked in Strauss' own pencil drawing. Adm. Arleigh Burke's cartoon, showing a naval officer ordering a submarine to dive with two cartoonists standing helplessly on the deck, was sent with a covering letter saying "Without gentlemen such as those who comprise the membership of your association, many an American citizen would miss the full impact of many important issues and we might all take ourselves and our jobs too seriously."

Names Summer School Faculty

Faculty members of Junius H. Rose High School's summer session were announced today by Principal O. E. Dowd.

The teachers will be George McRorie, English and History; Miss Deane B. Haskett, English; and Miss Frances Smith, Math. All are members of the high school's regular-term faculty.

The summer session will begin Tuesday with a 9 a.m. assembly of all students, Dowd said. Those who have not registered thus far should do so tomorrow or Monday, he added.

Fees of $25 will be charged for courses lasting six weeks. Courses longer than six weeks will cost an additional $5 or $10.

Dowd pointed out that the summer session is offered each year to allow students who are retarded in work an opportunity to make up deficiencies, to make it possible for students to lighten their course-loads during the regular term, and to allow students who wish to graduate early to get off work during the summer.

Students from outside the Greenville School District who wish to attend the summer session must have letters of recommendation from their principals before they can be enrolled.

Ranchers And Federal Agencies Are At Odds

BOISE, Idaho (AP)—Rangeland disputes, which provoked gun-fights in pioneer days, again are stirring Western ranchers.

In the past trouble stemmed from arguments between individual stockmen over range ownership and usage. Now the arguments involve ranchers and federal agencies.

The issue today is how many sheep and cattle will be permitted to graze on vast tracts of land which the federal government leases to ranchers.

When Dave Little took over his father's sprawling southwestern Idaho livestock operation in 1942, he grazed sheep on 18,000 acres of the Boise National Forest.

This year, the Forest Service announced it is cutting his allotment to 1,050 acres because the land is being overgrazed.

"That puts me out of the sheep business," Little told a reporter. The Emmett, Idaho, rancher is one of many stockmen who are up in arms about recent cuts in grazing allotments by the Forest Service and the Bureau of Land Management (BLM).

The federal agencies say the cuts are necessary for proper use of the land.

"Certainly grazing is a desirable thing, but we can't let one use destroy another," says Howard E. Ahlskog, supervisor of the Boise National Forest.

The Forest Service recognizes five uses of the forests — water, timber, grazing, recreation and wildlife. Stockmen say grazing is getting short shift from the Forest Service and in some cases from the BLM.

Reporter John Corlett of the Idaho Statesman looked into the matter.

Corlett's conclusion: "Either the Forest Service and BLM have failed in their duty in adjudicating the range in the last 20 years or the cuts are too severe."

"We have been overoptimistic about what we could do with the range," concedes Don Seaman, forester in charge of grazing on the Boise forest. "We were a little too slow. There were things we didn't know."

All Borrowers Have Stake In Treasury Action

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—All borrowers—and most Americans seem to be these days—have a stake in the U.S. Treasury's desire to raise the interest it will pay on long-term bonds. All savers have, too.

For the Treasury competes with private borrowers, and state and local agencies, for funds available for lending. And if it offers to pay more for the loan, others likely will have to, also. All interest rates will tend to rise. This would be true for bank loans, mortgages, installment loans.

The move might lead to higher interest paid by banks and others to savers, to hold them as customers. And payroll savings bonds buyers might get more, too.

Interest rates are rising anyway because the demand for funds is increasing faster than savings — the source of new investment money.

Stock traders are watching the Treasury move, too.

If the yield on government bonds rises further (some now yield more than 4 per cent) and the yield on corporate bonds goes higher (many now yield better than 5 per cent), it will make the return on stocks at present prices look even more skimpy.

A switch from stocks to bonds might develop — particularly if the Treasury has its way and by tightening the money supply dampens some of the inflationary psychology.

Under a 1918 law the Treasury cannot pay more than 4½ per cent on bonds of more than five-year maturity.

Despite the greater security of U.S. bonds, the Treasury says it can't sell long term bonds in the present market at less than 4½ per cent because investors can get more than that on private forms of long term debt and ignore the greater risks.

Yields on state and local issues — the tax exempts — have risen to a point where they also compete with federal securities.

So the Treasury would like authority to put out long term bonds at a rate high enough to attract investment institutions — insurance companies, savings banks, pension and trust funds.

It also would like to sweeten the returns on U.S. savings bonds to lure individual savers back into the fold. There are now 50.8 billion dollars of these outstanding. But this is down 1.4 billion dollars in a year—largely because they pay only 3½ per cent.

If the Treasury could sell more long-term bonds to investors and more U.S. savings bonds to individuals, it would tend to dampen the fires of inflation, since such money wouldn't be breeding new credit, as short-term Treasury bills do. The latter tend to end up as deposits in banks, available for lending.

But if the Treasury is allowed to pay higher interest—and if it gets the higher debt ceiling it also wants the cost of servicing the national debt would rise. It's already over eight billion dollars a year.

The United States has a 99-year lease on naval and air bases in Newfoundland, Bermuda, the Bahamas, Jamaica, Antigua, St. Lucia, Trinidad and British Guiana.

If Congress takes up the interest question, it will likely open up a battle between the advocates of tight money and dear money as a brake on inflation and the advocates of easy credit and cheap money as a way to expand the economy.

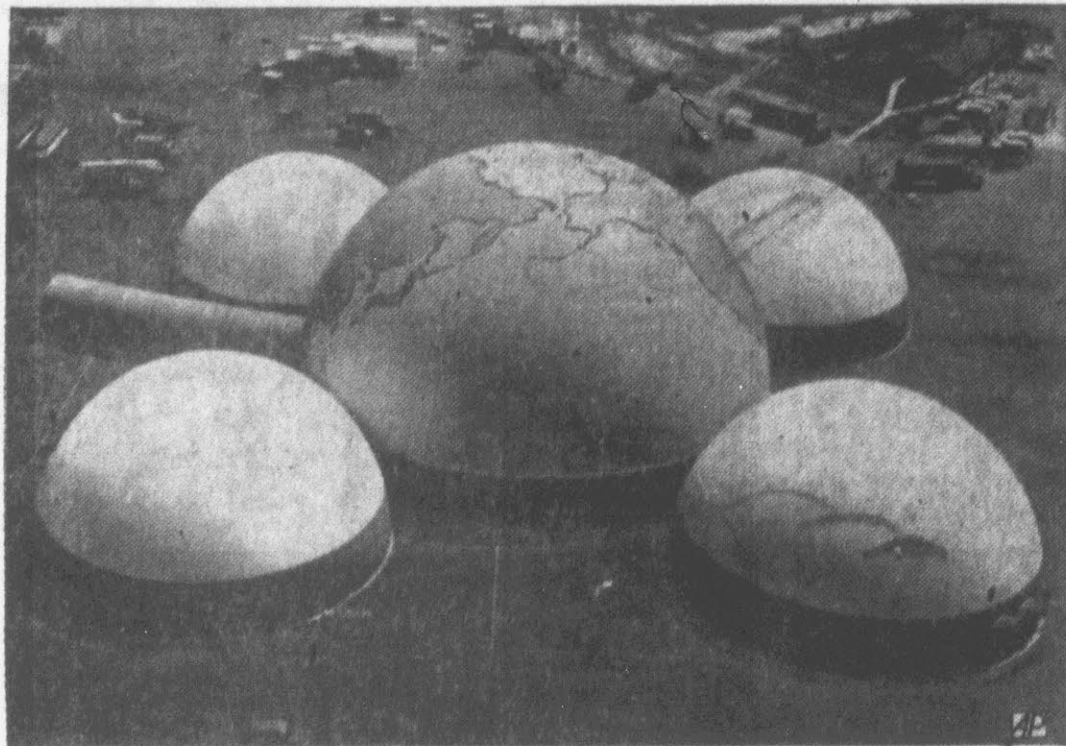

Everyone has a stake in the outcome.

Woman Struck By Driverless Car

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A woman, crippled by arthritis and unable to move from her chair, sat helplessly and watched Wednesday as a driverless car smashed through a wall and wind into her.

Attendees at Portland Sanitarium said Mrs. Glen Darnall, 58, suffered fractures of both legs. She was sitting, as was her daily custom, in a chair watching the traffic go by.

A car rounded a corner nearby and the driver and passenger suddenly fell from an open door. The car plunged through a hedge, traveled up the lawn and smashed headon into the house.

Police said Earl Wagoner, 24, said he had been driving the car when the door opened and he fell. Passenger Cene Cannon, 29, told officers he reached for Wagoner and fell out too.

The driver was not cited.

Some Damage By Twister In County

TORNADO DAMAGE . . . Remains of a barn and out-building on the Annie Brown farm near Ayden.

AYDEN — A small tornado did considerable damage when it struck the Brown farm near here around 4:00 p.m. Tuesday.

The funnel-shaped cloud followed a rural paved road in the Renston community, heavily damaging several homes, tobacco barns, stables and out-houses bordering the highway.

Heaviest damage was reported on the Annie Brown farm, Route

1, Ayden, where a barn and several out-buildings were destroyed and the house heavily damaged.

A chicken was killed and a mule narrowly escaped injury or possible death when the wind blew down the barn in which he was stabled.

The storm also destroyed a tobacco barn across the road from the Annie Brown house, which was next to the R. L. Brown home. The T. L. Brown home a half mile down the road was heavily damaged when the front porch of the house was blown off. A tobacco barn near this home was damaged also.

Mrs. T. L. Brown was at home when the storm struck and as soon as the storm passed her house she ran from the dwelling. She said she saw the funnel-shaped cloud strike the Annie Brown homestead and then rise into the air.

No other damage was reported in the Pitt County area due to the storm.

Nicaragua Building Up Army To Face Threats

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — The government said it was adding 2,000 men to the National Guard—the nation's army which already numbers about 2,000 recruits. In addition, 10,000 guardservants are being called up for training.

To support its claim that the airborne invaders were on the run the government was taking foreign correspondents to the area in south Nicaragua where the rebels landed from Costa Rica. The army has said only about 75 rebels landed and that they were on the point of annihilation.

But in San Jose, the Costa Rican capital, the Nicaraguan rebel leader, Enrique Lacayo Farfan, claimed that strong contingents of farmers were joining the rebels. He said a National Guard force had been ambushed in Pozos Canyon and a large amount of military equipment captured. A rebel radio broadcast said the rebels had suffered no more than six casualties.

Somoza's government also was pressing for the Organization of American States (OAS) to intervene. The OAS met Wednesday to consider Somoza's appeal for help and set another emergency session for today.

The Nicaraguan Ambassador, Guillermo Sevilla-Sacasa, relayed to the OAS his government's report that three yachts from Cuba, carrying revolutionaries "from various nations" were nearing the Nicaraguan coast.

A B52 eight-jet bomber will cut the X15 loose from under its right wing over Rosamond Dry Lake, 17 miles from where the rocket plane is expected to land at this desert test center 100 miles north of Los Angeles.

Crossfield — North American Aviation Co. test pilot—has been in the X15 cockpit on four captive flights locked under the B52's wing.

There probably will be two or three more glides, depending on the craft's performance.

Test Pilot Scott Crossfield will be at the controls. He is expected to make a couple of S turns to check the hydraulic controls before bringing the plane in for a screeching glide landing at 230 m.p.h.

The sleek black arrow, expected ultimately to carry a man at 4,000 m.p.h. to a height of 100 miles, is to be dropped from a mother ship at 38,000 feet for a four or five minute glide to earth. The X15 will carry no fuel.

Ailing Gov. Long Is Not Yet Counted Out

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP) — Ailing Gov. Earl K. Long, though down, still can't be counted out of the Louisiana political potpourri today.

Attending doctors at the John Sealy Hospital here said the 63-year-old Long might recover, possibly, within a three-month period.

It was the first official speculation on how long the governor might be out of action.

Physicians added to the brighter picture by reporting that Long had quieted down and his thinking and speaking were very clear.

At the same time, Mrs. W. M. Knott of Many, La., the governor's sister, indicated his inclination was to be in touch with the political scene in his state.

"He knows what should be done," said Mrs. Knott, who is visiting him regularly. "His friends are cooperating."

In the Louisiana capital city, Baton Rouge legislators split in their camps of opinion on Long's political future. But while there was doubt as to if and when he would return, nobody moved to challenge his leadership.
