

Big Four Debate Berlin's Future; Get 'Nowhere'

GENEVA (AP)—Andrei Gromyko and the foreign ministers of the United States, Britain and France debated the future of Berlin for two hours today. Informants said they "got absolutely nowhere."

In a secret session at the residence of Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd of Britain, Gromyko stood pat in the Soviet's demand that the Western powers give up their occupation rights in West Berlin.

Lloyd, Secretary of State Christian A. Herter and Maurice Couve de Murville of France were understood to have told him they would never give in or compromise on this issue.

Another secret meeting was set for Monday afternoon. East-West negotiations over the future of Berlin appeared stalled at the end of four weeks of sparring — both out in the open and in private sessions.

Western diplomats believe Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko probably will make his rock bottom offer for a Berlin agreement and a summit meeting in the last 48 hours of the conference.

They think Gromyko is awaiting new instructions direct from Premier Nikita Khrushchev. Gromyko said he did not plan to leave Geneva this weekend but speculation continued in the Western camp that he might fly to Moscow to consult with Khrushchev personally.

The four ministers arranged a secret session at the residence of Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd.

U.S. Secretary of State Christian A. Herter, French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville and Lloyd were expected to keep pressing for a Soviet guarantee of free access to West Berlin.

Western officials said privately the three Allied ministers hold slight hopes of any immediate progress for resolving this and related Berlin issues.

They feel Gromyko cannot give a final answer to their insistence the Soviets remove threats to West Berlin until he gets further high policy decisions from the Kremlin.

The three Western foreign ministers agreed among themselves before the outset of the conference they would wear down Gromyko at his own waiting game.

That is still the official Western line, but Herter has reportedly told his allies he is becoming concerned about the duration of the talks.

It was learned that a dinner meeting Thursday night the Western ministers tried casually to sound out Gromyko on how much longer the conference should run.

but he declined to be drawn out on this point.

The semipublic session at the Palace of Nations Friday brought only a fresh round of argument on the old positions so far as Berlin is concerned.

But it did produce a new maneuver by Gromyko. He requested concrete plans from the West on two general proposals made three weeks ago in the Western package program for a German peace settlement.

The package was rejected by the Soviets at that time. Now Gromyko asked for more information on the proposal for a nonaggression declaration by the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union.

He also wanted to know what the Western ministers had in mind when they suggested formation of a zone of limited armed forces in central Europe.

As advanced by the West, both these propositions were conditioned on Soviet acceptance of the plan for German reunification in advance of a German peace treaty.

Gromyko wants to cut that link and treat them as separate issues. Herter, Lloyd and De Murville did not give an immediate reply.

It was also recognized that if a formula for a Berlin settlement could be found the Soviet government might want to tie some other agreements into it.

For instance, the Soviets might insist on a nonaggression declaration. Since that would be in effect a statement in favor of peace, it probably would be difficult for the West to turn down.

Another possible Soviet purpose in raising the two points may be to try to drive a wedge between Britain on one hand and the United States and France on the other.

Gromyko's expression of interest in the disarmament zone idea strikes at a potentially soft spot in Western unity.

On several past occasions, the British have advocated serious consideration of such a zone even if Germany remained divided. But France and the United States always vetoed the project on grounds it would tend to perpetuate Germany's division and could be accepted only if Germany were reunified.

One result of the conference to date, however, has been to demonstrate that German reunification will have to be indefinitely postponed.

This may bring new pressures on the government in Britain for a European zone of military limitation, especially if the Soviets should make it a major subject of their peace propaganda.

Anniversary

OMAHA BEACH, France (AP)—The solemn notes of taps rolled over Omaha Beach today in memory of American soldiers, sailors and airmen who died on D-Day 15 years ago.

Veterans of the first hour of the historic assault on Normandy mingled with French residents, official representatives and relatives of the dead during ceremonies marking the anniversary. Wreaths were laid and prayers said at an impressive memorial at the American Cemetery at St. Laurent, where 9,386 graves slope in neat rows toward the landing beach.

On Omaha Beach a monument was dedicated to the 116th Infantry Regiment of the 29th Division which made the landing here at H-hour on June 6, 1944. A special delegation of Virginia members of the 116th Infantry participated.

The rubble of war still litters the historic beaches where the ceremonies took place.

Six Die As Car Crashes Into Tree

EDGEFIELD, S.C. (AP)—A speeding automobile rammed headon against a tree near here late Friday night, killing six of the eight occupants, all Negroes.

The two survivors were in University Hospital in Augusta, Ga. Harold Perry, South Carolina highway patrolman at Johnston, said the car, occupied by residents of nearby Graniteville and Johnston, evidently hit a pecan tree at high speed, killing three persons immediately and demolishing the 1959 model automobile. The accident occurred at 10:30 p.m.

Perry listed the dead as Annie Lee, 15, Pearl Lee, 21, William A. Mitchell, 17, and John Lee, 19, all of Graniteville, Hattie C. West, 18, and Annie Belle Daniels, 18, both Johnston.

In University Hospital were Johnny W. Perry, 20, of Graniteville, believed driver of the car, and Sammy West, 16, of Johnston. Perry's condition was said to be critical. West was in serious condition.

Mitchell died shortly after arrival at the hospital. Pearl Lee and Hattie West were dead on arrival.

Raise Temporary Blockade Threat

BERLIN (AP)—An East German Communist official today warned that West Berlin may be blocked temporarily if the West German presidential election is held in the city.

The veiled threat came from Gerhart Eisler, who formerly lived in the United States and is now a top East German propaganda official.

Writing in the Communist Berliner Zeitung, Eisler said East German workers had told him that if West German plans are not cancelled "then we shouldn't allow a single transport into West Berlin as long as the Bundestag meets in West Berlin."

The Bundestag—the lower house of the West German Parliament—has been planning to convene July 1 in West Berlin as part of a federal Assembly to elect a successor to President Theodor Heuss.

The West German government, whose seat is in Bonn, had intended the meeting as a symbolic demonstration that Berlin is still regarded as the capital of all Germany.

There have recently been reports from the foreign ministers conference in Geneva the Western allies have suggested it would be better to cancel the plans for an election in West Berlin.

Possibility Of New Taxes Loom With Adding Teacher Pay Hike

RALEIGH (AP)—The possibility of new state taxes loomed today in the wake of an Appropriations Committee, which has spent the entire legislative session modeling the budget bill.

As it came to the floor of the House, the measure provided for spending, 927 million to operate the state's agencies. Included was sufficient money to give teachers a 5 per cent pay raise.

Although it would have fallen about 1½ million short of expected revenues, it was felt that no new taxes would be necessary to meet the spending program.

This no-new-tax policy was a major plank in Gov. Hodges' legislative program — a revenue-appropriations structure banking heavily on an income tax withholding plan.

Harris was skeptical of the attitude of several lawmakers, who said they would support new taxes to give the teachers the additional money.

Holmes indicated he would try to amend the revenue bill when it comes to the floor next week by taking out sales tax exemptions on food. There also may be an attempt to include corporations in the withholding plan.

Harris, interviewed after the House session, asked and answered this question: "Will the boys that voted for the amendment be willing to vote new taxes? No. Half of them, even two-thirds of them, won't."

Harris said, "It's going to take a long time to bring teacher salaries up to par. What we should have done was to start bringing their salaries up 20 years ago. We can't do it all in two years, or four years or even six years."

The money committee chairman told the House he felt the condition of the state's economy would provide teachers with not only the 5 per cent included in the budget bill, but also an additional 5 per cent which the committee approved if there is a revenue surplus.

After Holmes' amendment was approved, the House debated a request that $452,000 be added to the Welfare Department's budget to avoid a lowering in assistance grants.

The welfare amendment, sent in by Cumberland's Sneed High, was tabled by a 55-33 standup vote.

Then, just before adjourning its 5½-hour session, the House approved the entire budget bill by a voice vote. There appeared to be no votes in opposition to the measure.

It is expected to spur a renewal of the ancient legislative battle between big county and small county lawmakers. Along with this tussle will be a second dealing with the controversial court reform measure.

If the House approves the constitutional revision by a required three-fifths majority, the proposition will be placed in the hands of Tar Heel voters in a statewide election.

Big county senators lined up solidly against the reapportionment measure but were defeated 40-7.

Sen. Claude Currie of Durham, whose motion resulted in the "package" deal, said he did so at the request of someone else. There were indications that "someone else" was influential.

Sen. Lindsay C. Warren of Beaufort, an ardent foe of court reform until Thursday when he tossed in a successful compromise amendment.

The Warren amendment weakened an original proposal to place administrative control of the state's judicial system in the hands of the Supreme Court. It would enable the Legislature to veto a Supreme Court regulation.

Currie's motion was to sidetrack the individual court reform bill. This, in effect, caused the entire issue of constitutional revision to revert to the single shot bill.

Sen. J. Spencer Bell of Mecklenburg, who sparked the judicial reform measure, opposed Currie's move. "I'm sorry both bills did not go through and let the issue come up when either bill or both bills are approved by the House," he said.

Mecklenburg County, under current law, would be entitled to two senators, should the Legislature decide to reapportion.

This, plus the fact that a similar big county limit failed in a statewide election several years ago, caused Bell's concern.

If the package deal goes to the people and they again refuse to go along with the reapportionment idea, it would destroy Bell's court reform bill.

The Mecklenburg lawmaker headed a State Bar Assn. committee which worked two years on recommendations for judicial reform. He has worked tirelessly during the legislative session to try to steer his courts bill through.

RALEIGH (AP)—The House will be faced next week with one of the Legislature's biggest puzzles—a constitutional revision embodying both judicial reform and a touchy reapportionment issue.

The Senate arranged for an across-the-rotunda display of political fireworks Friday when it sidetracked a separate court article and passed on third reading an entirely revised state constitution including the judicial changes.

The bill was sent to the House by special messenger. There it will vie with the revenue bill for early consideration next week.

The reapportionment proposal, tacked onto the revised constitution after heavy Senate debate Thursday, limits each county, regardless of size, to one senator.

Carwin-Simmons Marry At Naval Academy

Mrs. James Philip Carwin

ANNAPOLIS, Md.—Miss Lois Pearl Simmons became the bride of Ensign James Philip Carwin, U.S.N., yesterday afternoon in the United States Naval Academy Chapel. LCDR Henry C. Duncan, Chaplain, United States Navy, performed the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Clifton Simmons of Route 1, Stokes, N. C. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Ellen R. Carwin, San Mateo, Calif., and Ralph J. Carwin of Lima, Peru.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white peau de sole, which had a long fitted torso appliqued with white alençon cabbage rose lace, and a scalloped scooped neckline. Soft shirring cape sleeves rounded off the bodice. The skirt of the gown featured a flat front panel overlaid with a solid apron of alençon cabbage rose lace, which was gathered with side fullness, and spread into a flowing chapel train. The bride's full length veil was of English pure silk illusion attached to a half hat of delustered satin with a queen's crown effect of alençon lace edged and turned with pearls. A waist length veil of English pure silk illusion covered the bride's face. The bridal bouquet consisted of a white orchid carried on a lace covered prayer-book.

Miss Winnie Watson of Louisville, N. C., the bride's college roommate, was maid of honor. She wore a street length dress of aqua mooncloud organza. A loose panel flowed from the back of the V-shaped neckline and four bows caught up the flowing skirt at intervals around the hemline. Her nose tip veil was attached to an aqua crown. She carried a wicker basket overflowing with dark blue delphiniums and yellow roses.

Bridesmaids were Miss Suzanne Cale Barnes of Hammon, La.; Miss Lelia Davenport of Pactolus, N. C.; Miss Elizabeth Anne Karsnak of Greenville, N. C.; Miss Katherine Susan Pope of Greenville, N. C.; and Miss Katherine Ruebel, cousin of the bridegroom of Brighton, Colo. They wore costumes identical to that of the maid of honor. They carried wicker baskets overflowing with dark blue delphiniums and white daisies with yellow centers.

Midshipman 1st class Paul Lawrence Carwin, U. S. Naval Academy and San Mateo, Calif., the groom's brother, was best man. Ushers were Ensign Raymond L. Forbes, U.S.N., Gary, Ind.; Ensign Ronald R. Curtis, U.S.N., Paoli, Pa.; 2nd Lt. Edmund B. R. Burns, U.S.M.C., Joliet, Ill.; Ensign Joseph C. Henderson, U.S.N., Huntington, Ind.; Ensign Robert L. Bovey, U.S.N., Lincoln, Neb.; 2nd Lt. John Kilday, U.S.M.C., Quantico, Va.; and Midshipman 1st class William E. Ellington, U. S. Naval Academy and Tooele, Utah. The ushers were attired in dress uniform.

The bride's mother wore a street length beige dress of silk chiffon over silk crepe. Beige Chantilly lace covered the top of the bodice, and loose panels flowed from the back of the empire waistline. She wore matching accessories and gold cymbidium orchids. Mrs. Carwin wore a street length dress of dusty rose colored lace and a hat covered with violets and pink roses. Her corsage was of pink roses.

The chapel was in candlelight, with white gladioli decorating the altar. Professor Donald C. Gilley, Director of Musical Activities, U. S. Naval Academy, furnished organ music during the ceremony. After the recessional, the ushers formed the traditional Arch of Swords for the bride and the bridegroom on the chapel steps.

A reception in the ballroom of the Alumni House followed the wedding ceremony. Mrs. Simmons and Mrs. Carwin met the guests at the door and introduced them to the receiving line which consisted of the maid of honor, the bridesmaids, and the bride and the bridegroom. A three-tiered wedding cake adorned the table from which the guests were served champagne punch, ginger ale, lobster salad, chicken salad cream puffs, open face sandwiches, mints, and nuts. During the reception, the guests mingled on the ballroom terrace and enjoyed music of the piano and the accordion. After the receiving line closed, the couple cut the wedding cake in true navy tradition with the bridegroom's sword.

For an overnight trip to Washington, D. C., the bride wore a sheath dress of silk linen which she designed. The round neck of the deep aqua dress was trimmed with lace appliques. Her hat, bag and shoes were of the same aqua as the dress, and the hat also contained lace appliques. Gold garters adorned the short jacket. After their June 12 return from the Ariel Sands Beach Club in Bermuda, the couple will live in Long Beach, Calif., where Ensign Carwin will be stationed.

The bride is a 1956 graduate of Greenville High School, Greenville, N. C. In the fall, she will return to the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina to complete her Bachelor of Science Degree in Home Economics. The bridegroom recently graduated from the United States Naval Academy in Annapolis, Md.

Your Figure Faults Can Be Concealed

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

IF YOU ARE SHY because you have figure faults, consider taking a whirl in a store that specializes in foundation garments. This treatment may be hush-hush in your set, but the truth is a great many faults may be hidden with the right undergarments.

Take that prom dress. You may have persuaded Dad to pay for it, and you may even have selected one of the year's favorite styles—small top and billowing skirt. Your choice of length may have been decided by your legs. Short dresses require pretty legs, longer dresses can conceal plumb types.

But when it comes to insuring proper fit, you may be disappointed. A girl going through the gawky stage when nature seems most uncooperative may be annoyed that her new dress is a straight up and down affair, just like her other clothes. Just because she paid more than usual for a dress, doesn't solve her figure problem.

A waist cincher will help her, though, giving an attractive waistline. The newest cinches are all-elastic, lightweight, comfortable, and give the instant necessary to break up that straight figure line.

Special Bra
The every-day bra is not going to do either for this new dress particularly if it must be pinned into place. A special bra or bralette may be necessary for proper fit of the new formal, and additional petticoats may even be required if there weren't enough supplied in the first place.

A strapless dress that doesn't fit through the bodice because the figure has not yet become rounded may stay up if a lightly padded brassiere is worn. Many teenage bras are padded and there is no reason why a girl should be embarrassed about filling out her form. The intention of all foundation garments wear is to make clothes fit better by improving on nature.

The rear view mirror may give you a shock. A formal dress with a wide skirt can conceal big hips, but perhaps the dress you like best just doesn't quite conceal that waddle. You may achieve a better fit with a proper girdle with a flattening back panel and hip control at the sides.

Hip Control
Many girls are under the impression that if they wear full skirts, they don't need foundation garments, and that's how many young girls got their start in big hips in the first place.

A good idea is to take your prom dress to a department that specializes in foundation garments, and let them fit you before you take the dress home. The same applies to other accessories—evening bag, jewels and makeup. That way you'll be sure of getting proper color and fit.

This coordination idea holds true in the rest of your wardrobe. As far as undergarments go there are panty girdles for shorts and slacks, strapless bras for special occasion dresses, sweater bras to wear under cotton knit shirts, and bras to lend contour to swim suits.

Milk Adds Variety To Meals

RALEIGH—Milk makes you healthier. It adds variety to your meals—adds goodness, appetite appeal and charm. Milk is one of our best health foods and an economical investment in good health.

Miss Jo Earp, nutrition specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service, says that milk is rich in calcium and phosphorus, the minerals you need to build and maintain strong teeth and bones, helps regulate the heart beat, and assists in clotting of blood. Most calcium has to come from milk and milk products because no other food contains as much of it.

Milk is a good beverage when served ice cold. When using milk pour out the amount you plan to use just before serving.

To keep milk from absorbing off-flavors, keep it tightly covered in your refrigerator. Bottled pasteurized milk has good flavor up to 3 or 4 days. Evaporated milk may be left in opened can, but should be used within a few days.

Miss Earp says that in 1958, 12,229 4-H'ers attended training meetings held on Dairy Foods. Some 3,925 girls gave dairy food demonstrations in 1958 reaching an audience of approximately 34,771.

Drink milk for a quick, pleasant and enjoyable 'pick-up.'

30 Years Ago Today

June 6, 1929

"Pitt County women interested in improving the condition of their home certainly had an opportunity of learning of new methods in home work at the annual Short Course which ended at East Carolina Teachers College here yesterday afternoon," said a well-known woman today.

"The courses were highly instructive. They were conducted by experts in their lines—men and women who have made a lifetime study of home demonstration work and who are fully competent to take care of modern problems."

"These annual sessions have already meant much in the life of the small town and country woman and it is expected that future years will witness the realization of the dream of better homes which the women of this community have been longing for over a period of many years."

Buffet Menu

The Moose Buffet Menu will be baked chicken, dressing, giblet gravy, Spanish meat balls with tomato sauce, steamed rice, cranberry sauce, green peas, pickled beets, tossed salad, cold cuts, and other dinner accompaniments.

Movies to be shown are "Indian Serenade," "Where Pests Begin," "The Honest Woodsman," "Sparky the Colt," and "Bold King Cole."

Midnight Oil Is Still Prerequisite

MRS. WILLIE NEAL STRAWN . . . observes double anniversary today.

By PEGGY SMITH
Reflector Woman's Editor

"The way in which to receive a college education is not by money, but by working and burning the midnight oil."

This advice to the newly graduated high school seniors was given by Mrs. Willie Neal Strawn, who graduated from Buffalo Gap Presbyterian College in Texas nearly three-quarters of a century ago.

Today marks the 70th year since Mrs. Strawn received a Bachelor of Arts degree at the age of 18.

Although she attended a small country college, when she finished she had completed four years of Latin, two years of French, and five years of various sciences.

Until the age of eight Mrs. Strawn received her education at home, her father being a teacher prior to taking up farming.

During school and college, Mrs. Strawn acquired almost an unquenchable desire to read. It is still one of her favorite pastimes. "Atlanta Constitution," "Louisville Courier Journal," "The Galveston News," and "The Christian Herald" are among the periodicals she has read.

Other than being familiar with current events and reading to a large extent, she is considered locally a camellia enthusiast. There are also paintings of landscapes, portraits, and flowers throughout the Strawn home on Elm Street done by this 18-year Greenville resident.

She has been residing with her daughter, Alice, since the death of her husband, Louis P. Strawn. Prior to her arrival here, Mrs. Strawn lived in Strawn, Tex., a small town named for her father-in-law.

In Strawn, she taught school for four of her eight years in the teaching profession.

Today is not only Mrs. Strawn's college graduation anniversary, but her birthday as well. In addition, her daughter received her degree at Texas Woman's University in Denton, Tex. on a June 6.

Bethel L. Strawn of Farmington, New Mexico, Mrs. Strawn's only son, completes her family.

Friends and well-wishers are planning to call at the Strawn home today as she observes the double anniversary.

All-Or-Nothing Package Is Unwise

It certainly will not be in the best interest of the people of North Carolina if a single section of the proposed constitutional revisions can cause all proposed amendments to the state's constitution to be rejected by the voters of the state.

If the proposed changes in the state's constitution are submitted to the voters as a package — take all or nothing — proposition, it is quite probable that none of the needed revisions will be made.

In the best interest of the people of the state it would be much better if each proposed revision — or at least each group of related revisions — were presented to the voters as separate matters for decision.

Proposed Court reforms, sorely needed in the state, will be a major part of the constitutional revisions when they go to the people. Certainly the voters of the state should be able to decide whether they want the court reforms without having that proposition tied in with the question of whether each county should not be allowed to have more than one senator. Voters should be allowed to vote for or against legislator's pay being raised to $20 per day without having to vote the same way on an amendment to guarantee freedom of speech in the state constitution.

Some of the matters in the proposed constitutional reforms are related. Most of them, however, are completely unrelated. For example whether a county can or cannot have more than one senator has very little to do with the proposed court reforms. How much legislators are paid daily has very little to do with the plan of succession if the governor becomes incapacitated.

It would be most unfair indeed for the people of the state to be told they must either accept all the proposed constitutional revisions or reject all the revisions.

Just a few years ago the people rejected the pro

Probably Saved Reform Section

By LYNN NISBET

COURTS — Smart off-stage trading by Sen. Lindsay Warren probably saved the court reform section of the proposed new constitution from defeat in the Senate. Before the bill came up as a special order of business, Sen. Warren had obtained acceptance of his amendment to retain in the General Assembly most of the control over administration, or house keeping functions, of the superior and inferior courts.

Sen. Spencer Bell, author of the bill and chairman of the bar committee which prepared it after three years' study, reluctantly agreed to accept the Warren amendment. He declined to accept, vigorously fought and defeated an amendment by Sen. Clegg Yow of New Hanover which also would have left in the General Assembly complete control over rules of practice and procedure. The committee substitute bill placed that authority in the Supreme Court, with provision that the Legislature could reject, but could not amend, them. Yow wanted the General Assembly to have the right to "reject, modify or amend."

There wasn't a single vote against the Warren amendment, but the Yow proposal went down by 27 to 15 — only the hard core of the anti-administration group staying together. After that there was no doubt about passage of the bill by a wide margin. Predictions are general that it will also pass the House and be submitted to vote of the people along with other constitutional changes in a special general election next fall.

GLADIATORS — Strangers in the Senate chamber (and there were a number of them, as well as dozens of prominent citizens who had participated in earlier deliberations) might have gotten the impression that Warren and Bell were facing each other in deadly, but courteous fight.

Warren paid high tribute to the Senator from Mecklenburg, but said he had been for 38 years fighting for the supremacy of the legislative branch of government as the strongest of the three constitutional branches.

Bell responded with equal tribute to the Senator from Beaufort, but recalled it had been some 35 to 40 years since Warren had practiced law in the courts of North Carolina. Developments in that period had occasioned problems which he felt Warren did not know about — but, the amendment would still retain most of the reforms that bar committee had proposed, and he would not resist it.

Members and onlookers alike recognized that two strong men were contending for their convictions, and even those who could not agree had respect for both.

The debate and the vote on the Yow amendment to the procedure and practice rule-making was strictly along factional lines, although subject matter of all the talks was on merits of the issue. Sen. Lunsford Crew of Halifax brought out one of the strongest points emphasized by the administration forces in this and other matters. He pleaded for support of the committee recommendation, on the ground that only the members of the committee who had studied the subject and had access to background information knew what they were talking about.

THREE-FIFTHS — It seems that all the news and editorial writers and most of the legislators who have mentioned the requirement for a three-fifths vote in order to submit amendments to the constitution have been wrong.

Article XIII of the present constitution sets out that no convention of the people shall ever be called by the General Assembly "unless by the concurrence of two-thirds of all of the members of each House of the General Assembly" and other provisions of an election.

Another section in Art. XIII reads: "No part of the Constitution of this State shall be altered unless a bill to alter the same shall have been agreed to by three-fifths of each House of the General Assembly" with similar provisions for vote of the people.

Thad Eure, veteran Secretary of State and recognized authority on such matters, says that omission of the phrase "of all of the members" of each House from the altering and amending provisions has been construed by the courts to mean three-fifths of those present and voting.

He said he had checked the Journal of the House for the session of 1933, last time a rewrite of the Constitution was submitted, and the vote was 65 for and 41 against. That was less than the 72 required as three-fifths of total membership, but the bill was declared passed.

If the three-fifths of those present is recognized as complying with the constitutional provision, amendments might be submitted by favorable vote of 37 Representatives. Official quorum is a majority, or 61 members, and three-fifths of that would be 36.7 or 37.

posals that no county be allowed to have more than one senator. Defeat of that proposed amendment was brought about by the heavy vote against it in the populous counties of the Piedmont. Certainly the larger counties of the state have not changed their view on this matter. They will vote against the same proposition again even if it also means voting against court reforms, legislative pay and all the other proposals.

North Carolina needs revision of its constitution. But certainly it would be unwise and unnecessary for the people to have to take proposed revisions as an all-or-nothing package.

Each of the proposed revisions should be made to stand on its own merits when the voters go to the polls. If the people want to approve part of the revisions and reject part, they should be allowed to do so.

If We Can't Pay Now, It Can Never Be Done

The United States has come out of its recession now and learned economists are predicting 1959 will be a record year for the nation's economy. After this year, the next may even be bigger . . . perhaps even a period which will be known as the glorious '60s lies ahead for the nation's economy.

Why then, with prosperity reaching new heights almost daily (and the government getting its normal huge rake-off from every dollar) should Uncle Sam be poised to demand that the ceiling on the national debt be pushed even higher and that interest rates on government bonds be hiked?

It would seem that in such a period Uncle Sam should be considering getting from under a little of the huge debt load that's been piled up. It would seem that some provisions should be made now for paying back rather than borrowing more.

Unfortunately, it seems, the federal government doesn't work that way. The more we have, the more we must spend and the more we must pile up the national debt. Pay-back day, for this reason or that, is unthinkable even in the period of greatest economic prosperity the nation has ever known.

If we can't pay back any of the national debt now, certainly we should be able to hold spending in line with the revenues which are coming in. If we can't pay back any of the borrowed money now, how can we possibly expect to do it at any time in the future.

Are the American people willing to use one excuse or another for a crutch to pass the debt on to another generation, making it larger with each year that goes by?

Today it takes some eight billion dollars of tax money every year just to pay the interest on the $288 billion national debt. If the ceiling is raised by Congress, we may rest assured the debt will quickly move up to the new ceiling requiring more tax dollars to take care of the interest. Then, before too long, it will be time to lift the ceiling again, so the national debt can go even higher.

The vicious circle must be stopped before it becomes a swirling whirlpool that can engulf the entire national economy.

Congress, if it is mind to, can stop it before it is too late.

Just One Nudge After Another

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower and Premier Nikita Khrushchev are talking to each other with their elbows.

Now, after months of nudging and little progress, each man can say: Get your elbow out of my eye.

The Soviet premier started it with his threat last November that the West pull its troops out of Berlin — or else.

Why had he created this crisis? For various reasons, maybe. The West thought this was one of them: To Jimmy his way in to a summit meeting with Eisenhower, which he had long wanted. Khrushchev made it plain that was in his mind.

He said the only way to settle the Berlin and other issues was at a meeting of the top men.

At first the West suggested — without strings — that the Western and Soviet foreign ministers meet to discuss Berlin and other German problems.

Eisenhower followed this up fast with a deliberate nudge to Khrushchev. He said there would be no use in a summit meeting unless:

1. There was some previous negotiation meaning a foreign ministers meeting.
2. And — this has a big string attached — unless the foreign ministers showed progress.

For them to show progress — from the Western viewpoint — meant the Soviets would have to make concessions.

This could be interpreted as the stick and carrot technique used on a donkey. Khrushchev, who doesn't consider his ears long at all nevertheless agreed to a foreign ministers meeting at Geneva.

That meeting, which started almost a month ago, has shown no results.

But Eisenhower, having won the point on the foreign ministers conference, continued to insist there could be no summit meeting unless the ministers made progress which would require Soviet concessions.

Maybe Khrushchev got fed up on the repetition. Or maybe he doesn't like carrots. At any rate, he nudged Eisenhower back by announcing there was no reason why the Soviet Union should make any concessions.

He said maybe this was not the right time for a summit meeting after all, and he could wait for the right time.

Still, Eisenhower went back to his old theme at his news conference this week, saying: There has not been any "detectable progress" that would "justify the holding of a summit meeting."

But Eisenhower does not have unanimous American support for his position.

Sen. William Fulbright this week questioned Eisenhower's wisdom in using progress as a reason for meeting Khrushchev or the lack of it as a reason for not meeting him.

The Arkansas democrat, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, took this stand: "If a summit conference doesn't hold some prospect of benefit to the Western world, I wouldn't go. I think it is possible and logical to argue that the complete lack of accomplishment at the foreign ministers level might justify a summit meeting."

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

Have you ever seen blight come down upon a green field? Have you ever seen the leafy beauty of a forest torn and lacerated by swarms of locusts? Have you ever seen a section of land revert to the desert because of a lack of water?

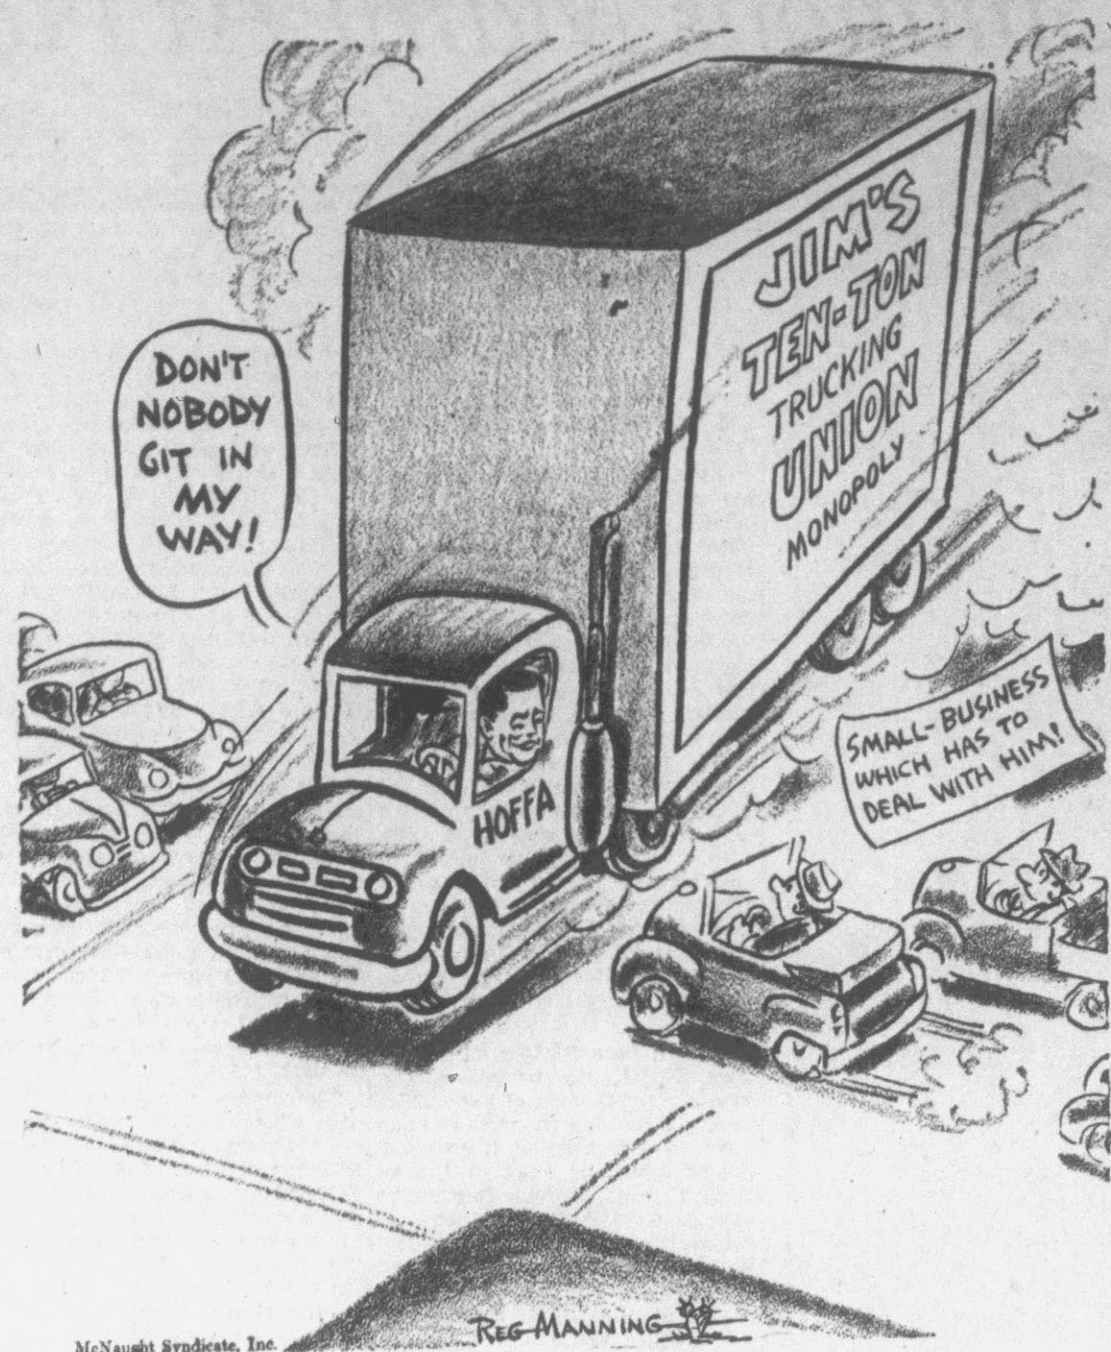

If you have witnessed any of these things, you have witnessed what in the physical world corresponds to disappointment in the world of everyday living. When one has hoped for promotion and position and the hope has not been fulfilled; when one has loved and lost; when one has hoped much for a loved one and the loved one has failed; when one has taken his own integrity for granted and has finally stood appalled as he sees it revealed a false and useless thing — here is disappointment. And it is like the blighted field, the rent forest, the vast area of land returned to desert barrenness.

When we confront disappointment we should remind ourselves that the world has not ended by any means because of this disappointment. The disappointment of one hope may lead to the fulfillment of a greater hope. Life's denials can be lived with if we make up our minds that they must be. The loved one who fails today may gloriously achieve tomorrow.

Let us get it into our minds that God did not make us for defeat or the universe for defeat. The end of everything must be love and light and achievement. The basic emphasis is not negative, but positive.

Why Do They Jump For Hoffa?

By ALVIN TAYLOR

Nature And Farm Ponds

We learned an interesting fact of nature the other day. It came up while your columnist was talking to Sol Conservationist Connor Eagles about the U. S. Fish and Wildlife's program of stocking farmer's fish ponds.

The Fish and Wildlife Service truck comes to Greenville twice a year, according to Eagles. In the fall it brings blue gill which are distributed to the pond owners. Then come spring time the truck brings bass, fingerlings which are placed in the ponds that were stocked with blue gill in the fall.

The ponds have to be approved for stocking and one of the requirements is that they be properly fertilized.

It seems the fertilizer causes the algae to grow in the ponds. That is necessary because tiny animal life which grows in the pond feeds of the minute plant life. The animal life is necessary because the blue gill feed upon it. And the blue gill are necessary because the bass feed off the blue gill young.

So here is a pattern set by nature from the time that life first appeared on Earth. One form of life must be sacrificed so that another higher or more desirable form might live.

It brought to mind the misguided but well-meaning individuals who send up a chorus of protests everytime a rocket or a satellite is sent into the heavens with some type of animal life aboard. They are the same ones who have objected through the years as animals were used in experiments that would benefit mankind in his fight against dreaded diseases.

Of course it is also true that many of them are the same ones who protest when it comes to light that some individuals have tortured an animal to death needlessly. For this no one can blame them.

But these people who work against cruelty to dumb animals should learn to distinguish between the unnecessary cruelty and the experiments involving animals which will improve mankind's lot on this Earth.

They should realize that everytime a cancer is induced in a mouse, medical scientists are one step nearer to a cure for that disease. Each time a mouse or a monkey is launched into space aboard a rocket, the United States has improved its position in competition with the Communist world.

The pattern was set by nature long before modern man came upon the scene. And it will continue through the centuries to come.

Opinions In Brief

"Not much future in being a mouse these days. If one group of scientists isn't trying to give you lung cancer, another is blasting you off into space," — Greensboro Daily News.

"Democrats will fight Republicans when necessary, but they don't enjoy doing so nearly so much as they do scrapping one another," — Jackson (Miss.) State-Times.

"We would be more sympathetic with the State Highway Patrol's campaign against reckless driving if it would do something about trucks on our highways. It is irritating to have one of these brutes crowd you, sniffing at your automobile as if it was a game. We admit most truck drivers are courteous and law-abiding, but there are too many who think the highways are their exclusive speedway," — Asheville Citizen.

Eases Strain In UN

By LAWRENCE MALKIN
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Put people from three score nations together in one building and — just like their governments — there's bound to be some friction.

About 4,000 people work in the U.N.'s skyscraper headquarters overlooking New York's East River, and the world organization has provided a special kind of help for them. It comes from a mild-mannered, sensitive woman in her 40s, Mrs. Dora Kowarski, a Polish-born French citizen officially known as the U. N. staff counselor.

The usual run of personal difficulties flow into Mrs. Kowarski's office just off the staff lounge — people with marital and money problems.

She also has to help foreign staff members who come to New York and are sometimes confounded and confused by its bustle and bustling people — from rude taxi drivers to nasty landlords. And then there are the people who are just plain lonely. All these make up the majority of her 250 to 300 new cases a year.

Office Problems Included
But about 10 per cent of her new cases are people with office troubles of a sort rarely found in more conventional offices.

"My most important professional quality is that I try to be a good listener," says Mrs. Kowarski, a graduate psychologist who speaks English, French, Polish, Russian and German.

For example, there was the French stenographer who came close to tears because her British boss told her: "I'm in the office each morning at 9, when you are just jumping out of bed."

The girl was usually punctual, and as Mrs. Kowarski wryly observes: "He was just having his little British joke."

Like most French girls at the U.N., this one tended to be oversensitive. Mrs. Kowarski quietly went to work on the Britisher's sense of humor, as well known as Gallic sensitivity, at the regular U.N. supervisor conferences.

Chronic Grippers, Too
Similar problems arise with Chinese, who tend to be over-careful in explaining things to their subordinates, or with men who come from lands where women are regarded as inferiors. They brusquely lose a typing job to their secretaries without so much as a please or thank you.

Then there are the chronic grippers. Their complaining often reveals some kind of nervousness about their foreign colleagues.

Mrs. Kowarski is just as concerned about people who are afraid to gripe because they come from dictatorships — either the Communist variety or the tough strongman type.

Demotion For Cause
One such woman got up the courage to venture into Mrs. Kowarski's office — but not without several backward glances over her shoulder.

She had been downgraded in her job and would not go to her chief and find out why. She was afraid he had a hidden microphone in his office that would pick up her conversation, and it would be reported to her government and she would be yanked back home.

Following her standard practice of strict secrecy and gentle discretion, Mrs. Kowarski discovered the woman had been downgraded because her work wasn't up to snuff. She explained the situation and the woman left satisfied.

printed all they possibly could. It developed later that this "escape valve" improved troop morale greatly, and that it helped a general called Ike to know what his men were thinking.

FINDS EXCLUSIVE DEALERSHIPS DON'T FORCE PRICES UP
Exclusive dealerships and distributorships do not appear to result in higher consumer prices, according to a doctoral dissertation by Robert E. Dillion, a University of Cincinnati researcher. This is contrary to most previous assumptions.

Mr. Dillion said that when distributors or dealers have an exclusive right to a product in a specific territory, there is some reduction in competition, but no general price rise. The best advantages of exclusivity, he said, is that manufacturers can control sales and profits. However, if profits are too high, sales fall off, he found.

Sports
Scope

by Johnny Hudson

There was a time — just several years back — that when spring came the lingo and interest of the sports fans turned to baseball. There was interest in the local setup and everyone had his or her favorite in the major leagues. There was an early morning rush for the papers to see if the Yanks or Cardinals had won, etc.

In our present era, baseball is still a popular sport and the major league clubs jam their parks almost daily. But another sport has gained the fancy of the sport fan and is rapidly becoming a major topic in our country.

The sport that we are speaking of is golf—that once-regarded minor sport which was turned over to the softies to participate in. Times have changed and now the sport takes up the leisure time of thousands of people.

Ike Helps Game

The golfers have received more publicity this year than in any other year and the interest has hit its peak. Many well-known figures in the sports world predict that it will soon replace baseball as the national pastime. Some may say the idea is far-fetched but when visiting the crowded courses, your opinion may be changed.

Just what has brought golf into the national limelight? Some say President Eisenhower has done more for the game than anyone else. His participation in the game has put it in the public's eye.

Golf is the sport which tests a person's individual skill. It is a sport which deals with the dexterity, circumstances, and patience of the individual. Such sports as football, baseball, and basketball are team sports, but golf is entirely up to the individual.

Test of Character

There is usually pressure on every shot and the player must build up confidence in himself to excel in the game. It is definitely a character-building sport. If a person makes a blunder or chokes, he can not alibi or put the blame elsewhere but can only become irritated at himself.

Golf seems to get in the blood of people. After playing it, they can't seem to turn it loose. The game has never and never will be completely mastered but there is always that striving for improvement.

Local Interest Grows

Greenville has been no exception in the growth with local players and others from Pitt County. Simon Moye and Harold Thomas have been conducive in the rapid growth of golf in our fair city.

Moye is the owner of the local Greenville Driving Range and Thomas is the pro at the club. Both have shown extreme interest in attempting to promote the game in Greenville.

Due to the crowded conditions at the club, the Driving Range has probably served in the capacity of aiding the young and just-beginning golfers. Here, form can be developed and this is an important aspect.

The driving range was opened in 1954 and it has been a popular site for college students as well as others. Moye has always been a big enthusiast of golf and was involved in it at Richmond before coming to Greenville. He has served as a member and president of the local club board and although considered a pretty good golfer, has chosen to keep his amateur status.

Clinic Is Conducted

Recently Si joined up with Thomas to conduct a clinic at the driving range. It was to instruct the kids between the ages of 9-16. The response was tremendous. It was a step forward in creating the interest in the kids and developing them to be the future stars.

Thomas and Moye are to be commended on their endeavor. They have helped golf but most of all their services have gone toward developing better citizens of tomorrow. And who knows, we might even have another Sammy Snead or Ben Hogan in our midst.

The Other Day

We got to talking about meteorites (rocks from outer space that reach the earth before being wholly consumed) and we were amazed to learn that scientists estimate that eight billion (yes, that's Billion) a day encounter the earth.

Nearly all are destroyed by heat generated as they pass through our atmosphere, but some do land, from a minute particle, to one weighing 60 tons, which landed in Africa. Think of how our atmosphere protects us from this bombardment from outer space . . . hardly short of miraculous . . . and more evidence of the order maintained in our world and universe.

Another point to contemplate is that all the elements found in meteorites are also present here on earth, and every metal found in meteorites is also found in our automobile in its most refined state.

It occurs to us that it would be a lot better if fewer people drove as though they were guiding a meteorite, wouldn't it? But our job is to provide you with the safest, best earthly transportation, and to keep it safe and economical for you. This we really do, and we are conscientious about it too.

Red China Not Expected Enter Winter Olympics In California

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Red China probably won't compete in the winter Olympics at Squaw Valley, Calif., but the reason is a technicality and not as a result of action by the United States.

An official spokesman made this point Friday in attempting to clear up some of the confusion and controversy surrounding the recognition of Red China by the International Olympic Committee.

The IOC action last week in Munich drew protests in non-Communist countries, particularly in the United States where there was agitation for barring the Communist Chinese from the winter games.

The winter Olympics are scheduled Feb. 18-28.

The U.S. State Department in called the IOC action "a clear act of political discrimination." Congressmen called for U.S. action in the matter. And Robert L. King, executive director of the Squaw Valley Games, said the Red Chinese "cannot and will not participate."

King added that the Nationalist Chinese, on the other hand, had applied before the IOC action and claimed they would be allowed to take part.

"We as the host nation have nothing to say about who competes and who doesn't," said an Olympic official, who declined use of his name. "We are compelled to accept all entries approved by the IOC and the various sports federations."

That's where the technicality comes in.

The IOC recognizes Red China, but has not yet readmitted the country.

Red China, which quit the IOC in a huff in 1955 because Nationalist China was recognized, must be approved by various sports organizations and then ask for re-entry into the IOC.

The IOC has no meeting scheduled until just before the winter games. So there will be no opportunity for readmitting Red

Softball League Sees Two Games

Greenville Parts and Metal won their third straight game last night, defeating the league-leading Graniters, 8-3, in the first game of Industrial Softball play last night.

Coffman's Men's Wear edged past Carolina Dairy, 3-1, in the second game.

In the opener, the underdogs led all the way in handling the Graniters' second loss in the last two weeks. Odum went the route for the winners and the defeat was pinned on Gordon.

Buck, Manning, Chappell, and Griffin had two hits each for the winners while Gordon was the only loser to collect two.

Carolina Dairy took a 1-0 lead in the top of the fifth inning but Coffman's came back with two in the half. The winners gave Jack Yates an insurance run in the seventh when they added one more run.

Boyd had two hits for the losers while Tingle had a couple of doubles to pace the winners.

The joke was good while it lasted, but it's the New York Yankees, no longer the stumbling, cellar-dwelling world champions, who are having the laugh now.

Laugh? They're roaring, so to speak, and the rest of the American League is discovering it was a mistake not to throw dirt in on the champs when they had 'em in a hole.

Nobody sputtered while the Yankees sputtered (except for Detroit's Tigers, and they were in the same fix as New York). Now, after winning eight of their last 10 games, the champs have shot within 4 1/2 games of the top.

They nailed their third straight

Friday night with a rollicking, 11-1 romp at Cleveland as the Indians dropped their sixth straight.

The Indians, led by the league by two games when the skid started. Now they're 1 1/2 games behind Chicago's leading White Sox, who defeated Boston 5-2, and are in a virtual tie for second with the Baltimore Orioles, who won 6-1 at Kansas City.

Detroit took fifth place from Washington by beating the Senators 7-6, skidding the Nats to seventh as the Yankees muscled into sixth in the jam-packed run on the leaders.

In the National League, Milwaukee retained a 2 1/2-game edge despite a 5-1 loss to Los Angeles. Cincinnati split second place San Francisco 7-2, as the Chicago Cubs beat Pittsburgh 10-5. The St. Louis-Philadelphia game was rained out.

The Yankees swung for 17 hits six for extra bases, against loser Gary Bell (4-5) and three relievers. Gil McDougald hit his first home run of the season and Elston Howard his seventh.

A three-run, pinch double by Harry Simpson broke a 2-2 tie in the eighth for the White Sox. Gerry Staley was the winner in relief of Early Wynn.

Gus Triandos' 12th home run sewed it up for the Orioles, just .003 percentage points behind Cleveland, in the third inning against Ned Garver (4-4).

A single by Al Kaline won it for the Tigers in the ninth, scoring ex-Senator Eddie Yost.

Don Newcombe Finally Appears On Way Back

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer
Big Don Newcombe, once the best pitcher in baseball, finally is on his way back.

It was Newk who won the first Cy Young Award and the National League's Most Valuable Player Award with 27 victories in 1956 for Brooklyn's last pennant-winning club. But the last two years, and the start of this season, were nightmares for the proud right-hander.

He had only an 11-12 record in 1957. Last year it was worse, 7-13 at the end of a season in which he had been traded by the Los Angeles Dodgers to Cincinnati.

This spring, after he finally admitted he had been bothered by arm and shoulder trouble, it looked like more of the same after he lost his first three decisions.

Now Newk's won four straight, putting away a 5-4 record Friday night by checking San Francisco's slugging Giants 7-2 on three hits.

The defeat left the second-place Giants 2 1/2 games behind Milwaukee, beaten 5-1 by Dodgers. The Chicago Cubs beat Pittsburgh's third-place Pirates, who had won six straight, 10-5. The St. Louis at Philadelphia game was rained out.

Newcombe, a few days shy of his 34th birthday, had a one-hit shutout for five innings in a duel with left-hander Johnny Antonelli, a long-time foe. Willie Kirkland's home run gave the Giants a 1-0 tie in the sixth, but the Reds, held to one run—on Roy McMillan's homer—and two hits for five innings, then chased Antonelli with five runs in the sixth.

Stocky Johnny Podres won his fourth straight for the Dodgers with a seven-hitter at Milwaukee.

Dale Long homered in a three-run first inning for the Cubs, once more at 500, and Ernie Banks hit a two-run homer, his 13th, as Chicago put it away against Vern Law (5-3) in a four-run second.

Home Builders and State Bank set the stage for their first meeting of the season next Tuesday, last night as both took victories to move out front in the early standings of the Teen-er League.

View by 6-3 in the first game and then State Bank dealt Guaranty Bank their second defeat with a 6-2 licking.

Home Builders spotted College View a run in the fourth inning but struck back with a devastating offensive attack in the fifth inning, scoring all six of their runs.

Wildness on the part of Harper opened the gate for the winners. The losing pitcher walked four batters before being relieved. Stalling beat out a single and Collins blasted a double to pace the way for the big inning.

Hardee, the winning pitcher, blew up in the seventh, walking four before being relieved by Ward. The latter struck out the

As time goes on, Harvey Haddix will come to appreciate seeing that record of 12 perfect innings he pitched against the Milwaukee Braves even though his immediate reaction was that he had lost another ball game. The Pirates little left-hander is a fierce competitor to whom a victory is more important than a record performance.

A pity he couldn't have been rewarded with a triumph after retiring 36 batters in succession. That's one for the record books, a remarkable record they can't take away from Haddix.

Haddix is a quiet, serious-minded veteran of 33. He got a late start in the big leagues for he was 27 when he came up with the St. Louis Cardinals. As a rookie, he won 20 games for the Cardinals and then came up with 18 victories as a sophomore. He looked so much like Harry (The Cat)

Brechen in action that he was nicknamed "The Kitten". He posted a total of 50 triumphs in his first three years as a Cardinal and then started making the rounds of the National League clubs — to the Phillies, Reds and last winter he was traded to the Pirates. He had a 7-8 record with Cincinnati last year.

An Ohio farm boy, Haddix plans to return to the farm when his pitching days are over. But he isn't thinking about that just now. His sharpness in that historic effort against the Braves indicates that he is far from ready to fade out of the picture. At 33, a pitcher can't count on too many opportunities to crash baseball's hall of fame with no-hit, no-run victories but you can bet Harvey Haddix will be in there trying his best to win every game he pitches. He's that kind of a fighter.

Keel, the winning pitcher, was responsible for the upturn of the Moose. He limited the Exchange to six hits and five of these came in two innings. Brown was charged with the defeat.

Boone and Mills were the outstanding hitters of the evening with both getting two hits. Boone had a double in the fifth to score the Exchange's final run.

Guaranty scored both their runs in the first when Brock homered with Riley on base. The only other hit they were able to collect off McArthur came in the third when Powell had a single.

Cautious Optimism On Atomic Test Ban Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. authorities expressed cautious optimism today that the atomic test ban talks reopening in Geneva Monday will eventually produce an agreement with the Soviet Union.

The sense of quiet hopefulness for the Geneva talks contrasts with the semi public performance under the big tent—the foreign ministers meeting in Germany—which after four weeks was still featuring denunciations by each side of the other's proposals.

For the time being, at least, Washington does not expect any progress from the two talks to be lumped together in one package for offering at a summit conference.

The nuclear negotiations, temporarily suspended last month when the German parley got underway, have been going on since last fall. They may continue for months more. Beside political questions, they must deal with scientific problems of enormous complexity.

Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev has sent word the Reds will join in new scientific studies on how to detect atomic blasts at high altitudes.

The United States plans to show the Soviets the major portions of several secret scientific studies on high altitude and under ground explosions.

It intends to press the Soviets anew for a discussion of detection of underground blasts. And it wants to find out how many inspections of suspected explosions the Reds would agree to, what they will admit warrants inspection, how far they are willing to waive insistence on the veto and on restrictions over control operations.

The West has insisted that any agreement to halt nuclear tests must include controls to see that nobody cheats.

Box Fire Alarms Becoming Rarer

Box alarms for fires are becoming fewer and fewer. Fire Chief George Gardner's monthly report indicates.

There were no box alarms for fires during the month of May, Gardner reported, although firemen were called out 16 times by telephone. However, the chief did report that two false alarms were turned in during the month from boxes.

Firemen also answered seven calls to rural areas. The rescue ambulances were dispatched 16 times during the month.

Fire losses for May amounted to $918.93 based on insurance adjusters' estimates, according to the chief. For the first 11 months of the fiscal year fire losses stand at $15,258.14.

Since there were no box alarms for the month, volunteer firemen received no pay. The volunteers answer only the box calls. For the fiscal year the volunteer pay-roll has amounted to $1,450.50.

Helicopter Aids Ill Fisherman

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP)—A fisherman, who became ill at sea off Pawleys Island Friday, was removed from his boat by Air Force helicopter and flown to a hospital here.

A helicopter from the Myrtle Beach Air Force Base removed James Jackson of Southport, N.C., from the fishing boat, the Cape Fair, about 20 minutes after companions on the vessel had radioed for help. Jackson was lifted into the aircraft by a hoist.

An Air Force spokesman said the helicopter was piloted by 1st Lt. Armand J. Fiola. A flight surgeon, Capt. George O. Lewis of the base hospital, cared for Jackson during the flight.

Jackson's condition was not believed to be serious. He complained of severe abdominal pains.

Churches And State 'Co-Exist'

By JOHN BAUSMAN

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP)—Graceful church spires hold newly gilded crosses against Budapest's skyline. Red, neon-outlined stars top Communist government buildings.

Here an atheistic state and still influential churches exist together, obliged to tolerate each other. The situation produces paradoxes. A government of nonbelievers uses taxes to support religion. Leading clergymen take oaths to the godless state.

The government does not disguise its opposition. It sponsors lectures, films and reading material to discredit religion. Official newspapers call for a big effort to root out "religious superstitions." But with memories of Hungary's 1956 uprising still fresh, the government is not anxious to stir up trouble.

Imre Miklos, vice president of its church affairs office, explained the official position this way:

"An important part of the population is religiously minded and wants to go to church. It is a demand that must be satisfied. Our state anticlerical ideology does not exclude help to the church. As long as people need religion, then it should be given to them."

"Communists are convinced that after a certain period the people automatically won't need religion any longer."

In the meantime, he said, the Communists are keeping up the annual church subsidy of 70 to 80 million forints ($2,800,000 to $3,200,000) paid from a chronically strained state treasury.

The churches live under strict controls. Government and police keep a close watch to make sure clergymen do not abuse their position for anti-Communist activity.

Miklos said: "We give the churches every freedom to communicate their ideas."

"But one thing they cannot do is undermine the system. They would not be able to do it, of course, but we don't even let them try."

The churches give no sign of making trouble. In last fall's election both Catholic and Protestant governing bodies endorsed the Communist sponsored list of candidates.

The old anti-Communist fighters are gone. Josef Cardinal Mindszenty lives in refuge and silence at the U.S. legation. Lutheran Bishop Lajos Ordass, who once gave the Communists trouble by not stepping out of office when they wanted him to, is in retirement.

The state aid, plus money from congregations, has given the churches an appearance of prosperity that sometimes surprises visitors to Budapest.

Sunday attendance varies. In many villages it is heavy. Some Budapest churches are overcrowded week after week. Other churches are not so well attended.

The government, which controls all phases of economic life, is betting that religion will eventually give way to atheism. But churchmen believe their 2,000-year-old religion has more staying power than the newer doctrines of communism.

Local Police Officer To Graduate From Institute

PRESENTING EVIDENCE . . . found in a simulated crime at the Southern Police Institute are Sgt. E. M. Meekins, Raleigh; Lt. J. B. Cannon of Greenville; Sgt. L. F. Blenard, Hagerstown, Md.; and Detective Sgt. E. L. Grace, Little Rock, Ark.

Lieutenant Jimmy B. Cannon of the Greenville Police Department will graduate from a 12-week course in Police Science and Administration at the Southern Police Institute, University of Louisville, June 12.

Cannon, the first Greenville officer to attend the school, is one of 26 officers from 12 states attending the present Institute.

Two 12-week courses are given each year with over 420 hours of instruction in criminal law, evidence, and procedure; human relations and human behavior; juvenile delinquency; crime prevention; criminal investigation procedure; personal identification; scientific aids and methods of investigation; traffic; public speaking; and police organization and administration. Emphasis is placed on administrative and supervisory training.

Instructors for the school are experts in their fields and qualified to instruct. During a course as many as 50 instructors will come from different parts of the country to lecture and conduct classes.

Included of the staff are FBI men, Federal Narcotics agents, Army Ordnance men, lawyers, and representatives from many other specialized fields.

Police Chief S. G. Gibbs said the department plans to send other officers to future sessions of the Institute provided funds are available.

The Institute is endowed by the City of Louisville; Carnegie Corporation of New York; General Education Board, a Rockefeller Foundation; and the Acmaro Securities Corporation.

Three Wrecks In City Yesterday

Three wrecks were investigated by police yesterday with light damage reported in each case.

At 4:59 p.m. officers were called to West Third St. at the power plant when cars driven by Robert Ivey Hill of 1307 Ragsdale Road, and Isaac William Adams, Negro, of 608 Vanderbilt Lane, collided.

The only damage reported by investigators was an estimated $25 damage to the Hill auto. No charges were traced by officers.

An accident at the corner of Third and Evans Sts. also saw only $25 damage with no arrests made.

Operators of the two cars were listed by police as Ivey R. Laneley of Route 2, Greenville, and Margaret Parker of 104 Jarvis St.

Approximately $350 damage was reported done to a car operated by Jessie James Cogdell, 53-year-old Negro of Route 6, Greenville, when the car struck the rear end of a second auto at the intersection of North Greene St. and Mumford Road.

The second vehicle, which according to investigators was stopped for a traffic light, was driven by Noel Lee Jr., of Route 3, Washington. Damage to his car was set at $100.

Cogdell was charged by investigators with following too closely.

His Home-Built Cruiser Launched

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — Seven years of loving labor by Walter B. Tucker plopped into the Cooper River at Charleston Friday—and looked beautiful.

Tucker launched his home-built 45-foot cabin cruiser.

The boat was constructed in the backyard of one of Tucker's friends, Marshall Wingless. The craft, displacing 22 tons, was hauled from the building site to the water's edge by trailer truck.

Full launching ceremonies were observed, with a blessing by the Rev. Luther Knight and a christening by Ann Tucker, the owner's niece. The vessel is named the Sara Ann.

Tucker plans to make his home on the luxuriously-fitted craft.

First Presbyterian Announcements

Constant Fire Protection Study

CLASSROOM INSTRUCTION . . . where basic theories and facts are presented.

GAS MASK INSTRUCTION . . . Use of a mask permits firemen to enter smoke-filled structures to do a more efficient job.

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Fire protection is a serious and ever-changing business and the Greenville Fire Department is constantly keeping abreast of the new developments and techniques through an intensive training program.

The Fire Department's instructors, Lt. Claude Christopher and Lt. Jennis Allen, have attended every fire training school in the state and are among the best instructors available.

The local department spends a minimum of five hours per week in the class room and another five hours at the drill tower putting into actual practice techniques learned in the class room.

Both the volunteer fire department and the Greenville Rescue

Squad also benefit from the instruction. Both groups have weekly training sessions, much of the time under simulated emergency conditions.

Classes cover every phase of fire and rescue work from first aid and the nozzle practice to friction loss computations and pump operations.

Training in the proper use of gas masks, axes, ladders, booster lines, deluge sets, smoke ejectors, emergency oxygen equipment, pike poles, applicators, and the like go to make a better and more useful firefighter.

Each and every man in a department the size of Greenville's has to be efficiently trained in every phase and operation of the department's equipment because he may be called on to do a multitude of jobs when he least expects it.

In addition to the regular classes and drills, the department also stages practice fires from time to time, burning old houses, cars and oil pits, to practice the most effective methods of extinguishing the fires.

Also as part of their training program, local firemen have attended the U.S. Air Force's Crash and Rescue School at Seymour-Johnson AFB in Goldsboro, on several occasions, and yearly, men are sent to the State Fire College and the Fire College Pump School which are held at the Charlotte Fire Department Training Center.

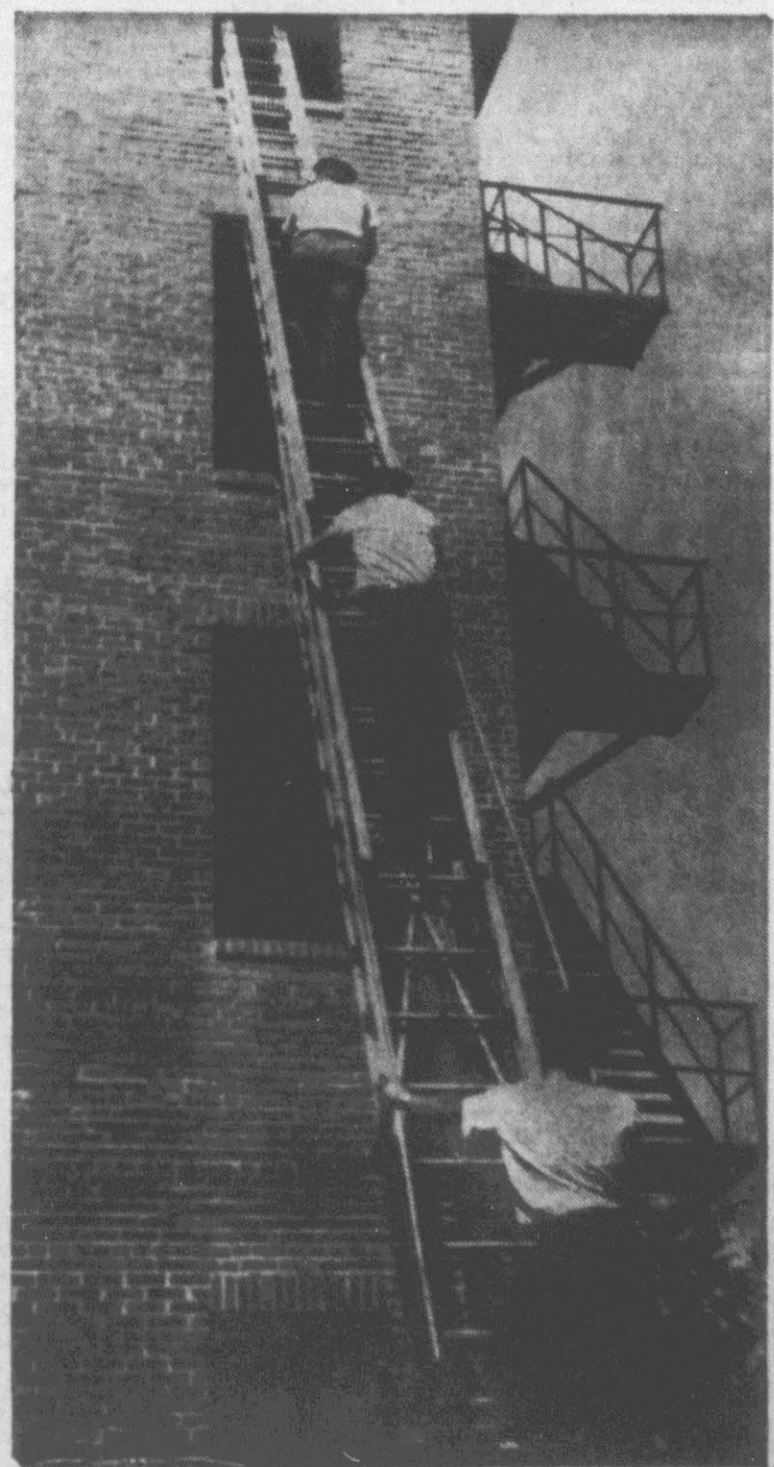

Greenville firemen, through their training program, bring greater fire protection and safety to the citizens of Greenville, and make the city a better and safer place in which to live.

GOING UP? . . . Firemen practice correct method of taking hose line up ladder.

AT DRILL TOWER . . . Firemen put theories into practice. Whether using a 1,000-gallon-per-minute high pressure fog line, or whether climbing the aerial ladder, practice makes perfect.

Extra Teacher Pay Amendment Puts Assembly In Line For Longer Stay

By BUNNY HARRIS
Reflector Raleigh Bureau
RALEIGH — Legislators and reporters alike settled down for a long hot summer Friday when the House passed an amendment giving teachers an additional 5 percent pay raise.

The amendment indicates a more extended session and "plays hell" with the appropriations bill. Emerging from the lengthy battle looking exceptionally cool, calm and collected was Rep. Carroll Holmes of Perquimans.

Holmes introduced the amendment, he said, "after observing the increasing mediocrity of the public schools in North Carolina."

After the vote he walked into the corridor and announced to a gathering of senators: "58 to 53 FOR."

Then he confided: "It was the worst squabble I've been in all session."

In a way, it was the worst squabble of the session. Tempers at this time of year are growing short and comments once taken lightly now cease to be funny.

Such seemed the case when Rep. Cloyd Philpott of Davidson called for the "aye" and "noes."

I hope because this is a roll call vote no one here will hesitate to vote his convictions," he added.

From Rep. Tom Turner of Guilford: "You are not intimating that anyone here would fail to vote his convictions whether or not it was a roll call vote?"

Philpott turned on his best boyish smile.

"From some of the allegations I've heard," he said, "I'd say some would do worse than that."

Turner was not amused. Furthermore, he said, he did not know what Philpott was talking about.

Rep. Bedford Black, who (in a word of understatement) does not have the full support of Cannon forces in Cabarrus, drew a sympathetic laugh when he announced: "This is the only chance I'll ever have to serve in this august body."

As a "neophyte" he says he's learned some things.

"I didn't know what a steamroller was until the other day in Appropriations when we voted on $40 million worth of bonds before the pages could get before us the material to know what we were voting on."

Black didn't seem to favor the amendment.

At the end of the fight some old battle scars were showing. One comment overheard: "If Venturers had been elected Speaker we'd have been a lot better off — we've been attacked from the rear all the time."

Former Tar Heel GI Among Scores Revisiting Normandy

By HARVEY HUDSON
OMAHA BEACH, France (AP) — The former GI stood on an invasion beach of Normandy and looked around.

I remember there was a two-story frame house as we went out from the beach and I don't see the house."

Edward Green, Elizabeth City, N.C., paced up and down the beach trying to pinpoint the exact spot where he landed at 8:30 a.m. on D-Day as a combat engineer.

Green was among scores of U.S. veterans who came back—many of them with their families—to visit the scenes of their heartaches and triumphs on Omaha and Utah beaches in World War II.

Today the setting was peaceful—but the rubble of war still littered the invasion coast on the 15th anniversary of the mammoth second-front assault which started the Allied sweep across Europe and brought Germany to her knees within 11 months.

Moss-covered barges lie scattered about Omaha Beach, and rusted troop carriers settle deep in the sand.

Strips of steel matting used for improvised roads have been twisted by rising and falling rip tides.

From off shore, you could hear the water slapping the burned-out hulls of vessels scuttled to make artificial harbors for the invasion craft.

Aside from a few fishermen, the vast expanse remains deserted. Even the inland reminders of the war have almost disappeared.

On the bluffs above the beach, fine sand has invaded the grass-covered pill boxes that sheltered the German defenders.

Hedge rows that provided cover for the Germans have reverted back to jungle thickness.

Herds of grazing cattle and the stillness made it difficult to believe that was ever passed this way.

Along the 30-mile invasion coast French, American and British memorial services marked the anniversary of the assault, that claimed 10,724 casualties, including 2,132 dead.

All Over Except Diaper-Changes

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Joyce Saunders had a baby May 18. The same week she took four exams for her doctor's medical, that is degree.

Her husband, Grier, spent his time as an expectant father grinding through final exams in economics at the University of Richmond.

It's all over now but the diaper changing. Mrs. Saunders graduates Sunday from the Medical College of Virginia. Grier graduates Monday.

Mrs. Saunders' labor pains began about an hour before her first exam May 18. After the three-hour surgery test, she filled out hospital admittance forms, drove to her doctor, then called her husband.

They met at their apartment, tossed her suitcase and a pile of textbooks into the car and rushed back to the hospital.

Susan Elizabeth Saunders was born in late afternoon. On her way out of the delivery room, Mrs. Saunders called her husband with the news. Then she called her Pediatrics professor to arrange to take that examination the next morning in her room.

Wednesday morning, May 20, she took an oral exam in obstetrics because her hands were too stiff to write. Her last exam—in medicine and lasting all day—was May 22.

More Profit-Sharing With The Stockholder

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—The rebound in profits is taking on today a corporate share-the-wealth aspect. Many companies are sharing more of the corporate earnings with the stockholders. Dividend payments are climbing toward a new annual record.

May was a particularly bright month—in contrast to a year ago when many companies were omitting or cutting dividends. Only one fifth as many are doing that this year as last. And more than twice as many are raising them. Gains now top losses by six to one.

Warm, Humid East Of Rockies

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A warm, humid weather blanket wrapped up vast areas east of the Rockies today.

Patches of rain and slight cooling in some sectors pierced the muggy climate.

It was cooler in the Texas Panhandle and eastern New Mexico in the wake of a rain, hail and wind storm that lashed the region Friday night.

To the north, cool Canadian air seeped over the upper Great Lakes, driving the mercury 10 to 15 degrees below a corresponding period Friday.

Some three inches of rain pounded Corpus Christi on the Texas Gulf Coast in a six-hour overnight period. Elsewhere in Texas, scattered thundershowers dumped nearly .75 inch at Big Springs and Junction City.

Earlier Friday night, five inches of rain doused Brownwood in West Texas. Rain-swollen Willis Creek, near Brownwood, overflowed and forced some families to leave their homes. Winds clocked at 75 m.p.h. also hammered the region, damaging trees and disrupting telephone service. Baseball-sized hailstones also peppered Wickett, Tex.

To the west, showers dotted the Pacific Northwest. Most significant falls—about a quarter inch—were at Pendleton, Ore., and Walla Walla, Wash.

More sunshine was on tap for the Southwest following Friday's century-plus temperatures at some stations. Needles, in Southern California, had a 106 while some Arizona points had the mercury boosted over 100.

One Parachutist Killed In Jump

FT. BRAGG, N.C. (AP)—One paratrooper was killed in a mass jump during the concluding exercises of Air Force Army maneuvers at this Army base Friday. Another's rigging caught on a plane for a time but a safety crew managed to free the chute and he landed safely.

Sgt. Franklin N. Defazio, 26, was killed when both his regular and reserve chutes failed to open during a jump climaxing operation Dark Cloud-Pine Cone II.

When Sgt. Defazio's rigging caught on the plane's door and he dangled helplessly.

Two safety men riding in the plane discovered Gray's entanglement, pulled him back far enough to correct the trouble, and then released him.

Gray, 18, from Brooklyn, N.Y., landed in several inches of swamp water.

Defazio fell to his death in a nearby jump area. A native of Louisville, Ky., he leaves a widow and infant daughter.

Rocket, Missile Fulfill Missions

ELGIN AIR FORCE BASE, Fla. (AP)—A missile and rocket fired simultaneously by remote control from Gunter AFB, Ala., accomplished their missions over the Gulf of Mexico Friday.

The missile, a ground-launched IM99A Bomarc, scored a direct hit on a jet drone. The rocket, an MBI Genie fired from a manned F101B Voodoo, made a planned near-miss on a second drone.

Geology Student To Attend Camp

STILLWATER — Richard Bertram Oklahoma State University student from Greenville, N.C. will attend geology field camp near Canon City, Colo., from August 9 to September 5.

All OSU geology students are required to attend camp before they graduate. Seventy-one students of all of whom are slated to graduate next summer.

Students attending receive four hours college credit in field geology. The camp schedule calls for plane table and alidade mapping, mapping on aerial photographs and comparison of strata formations.

Of the 648 million acres of forest in the United States, more than half are privately owned.

Neat Haul

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—A purse containing $225 in cash and a $150 gold compact was stolen during a party at a Tucson home.

Several guests said they saw a young man calmly rifling the purses but thought he was just a son of one of the party goers.

Early Lindbergh Supporter Dies

ST. LOUIS (AP)—An aviation pioneer who helped get Charles A. Lindbergh off the ground and pointed toward Paris died Friday of a heart attack.

He was Dan R. Robertson, 52, a former air mail pilot who flew for the same company Lindbergh did.

Robertson, one of four brothers who pioneered in aviation here, was one of the backers of Lindbergh's historic 1927 flight across the Atlantic to Paris.

Working Women Softened Impact

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Women have unwittingly softened the effects of higher taxes and inflation, an Arizona banker said Friday.

Carl Binson, Phoenix, president of the Valley National Bank, said extra money brought in by housewives dulled the effect of price inflation in the postwar years.

Binson was here to address the annual convention of the Utah Bankers Assn.

A romantic suspense novel by MARTHA ALBRAND
A SPY at MONTE CARLO

CHAPTER 16
Perhaps the note was a trap. If Cesare di Raffaeli wanted him, Mark Travers, out of the way, then this unexpected message was the bait to lure him to an old village, to meet a man who, supposedly, had known Corinne Javal. Unexpected? thought Mark. Why unexpected?

Hadn't he known that it took time to arrange a murder which would look like an accident? And the two hours that had passed since he had left Raffaeli might have sufficed for him to make the necessary arrangements.

A friendly note to a young stranger who had asked him for information about Corinne Javal. Raffaeli would shrug and say something or other to that effect. He had simply meant to be helpful.

Mark parked his rented car in a lot below the old village of Eze, which was unique because of its location on a pyramidal mountain. Hundreds of tourists visited it during the day but now, in the late afternoon, it gave the impression of being deserted. So small and steep were the streets that they could be used only by pedestrians.

A hotel concierge assured Mark that none of the guests had a name like Baudon. Only when Mark was already at the door did the man remember. "You mean the crazy one, maybe? Monsieur Virgil? You'll find him in the Garden."

Mark mounted several steep steps, passed the old castle and came finally to a small wooden structure that looked like a shelter for guards on duty. It had a sign, giving the entrance fee for the Garden, nailed over a paneless window. Reading absently that the Garden had been created a few years ago on the highest point of the mountain, Mark put down his money.

Narrow paths led between fantastic cacti and strange flowers to points which offered superb views of the coastline below. There benches had been placed and on the first one, dressed in formal evening attire, playing a mouth organ, sat a man.

"Colonel Baudon?" Mark asked. "I am Colonel Baudon." The man turned his head quickly in Mark's direction. "But who are you that you know my name?" His voice was clipped, military. "I am a friend of Corinne's."

Old Bomber In Sahara Desert Poses Mystery

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Sahara Desert has cast up a mystery as deep and baffling as any recorded in the annals of the seas.

A World War II B24 bomber which had a crew of nine has been found in the waterless waste of Libya, 380 miles south of Benghazi. It was last seen 16 years ago when it took off from a Libyan base for a bombing raid on Naples, Italy.

The bomber lies there on the sand, preserved almost perfectly in the hot, arid desert air. Although its fuselage was snapped in two at the tail, the plane appears undamaged otherwise. Its radio still is working order.

There is not a trace of the crewmen who flew off on that mission in 1943. No clothing, no written records.

Water bottles, presumably tightly capped, were found still filled in the cabin of the plane. Had the crew crash-landed in the desert and started to walk out to civilization, surely they would have taken all available water with them. If they had been killed in the landing which caused so little damage to the plane, their remains would be there.

Did the crew all bail out somewhere else, as the Pentagon thinks is likely? Then how did the plane fly on for hundreds of miles to let down in a soft landing in the desert? And why apparently did none of the crew survive?

Ruford L. Moore, Portsmouth, Ohio, father of one of the crewmen, said he received a letter in 1946 from the War Department, saying the plane was returning from the bombing mission when it lost radio contact with its base and was presumed down in the Mediterranean. Did the crew bail out over the sea for some reason while the plane flew on safely to kiu.

In spite of the passage of time, relatives of all nine crewmen were reached Friday night. They said they had been notified by the War Department in 1943 that their loved ones were missing in action. A year later they were told they had been killed.

For 16 years the plane rested there and was seen by no one. Or, if some desert nomad came across it, he told no authority. It was found a short time ago by a team of exploring geologists.

The U.S. Air Force sent a plane crew to see the wreck and photograph it from the air. And it is sending experts overland to examine it more closely.

Those aboard the plane, with next of kin as listed by the Pentagon, were:

Lt. William J. Hatton, pilot; wife, Amelia J. Hatton, Whitehouse, Queens, N.Y. His sister, Elizabeth Henry, said Hatton's widow is now Amelia Brodick.

French Bride In His Irish Family

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Irish eyes were smiling when the Pat O'Brien welcomed a French bride into the family.

"I'm the happiest father in the 50 states," the actor chorled Friday night at a reunion of the O'Brien clan to welcome home O'Brien's son, Sean, 22, an Air Force corporal.

Sean had with him his new wife, the former Monique Monnet, 18, of Dreux, France. They wed in France last September.

Matron At Jail Prefers To Pay

DETROIT (AP)—"Pay $50 or serve 10 days in county jail," Traffic Court Judge George T. Murphy told Mrs. Hassie Dole who pleaded guilty to a drunken driving charge.

"I'll pay the fine," she replied. "I have to get back to work."

Mrs. Dole is a matron at the county jail.

Books & Stuff

By DR. ED HIRSHBERG
On one of our recent trips to educational conference we met the editor of a monthly periodical called BETTER SCHOOLS, published by the National Citizens Council for Better Schools. He sent us the latest—May—edition, which celebrates the 10th anniversary of the Better Schools movement, and it is quite a revelation. It provides general up-to-the-minute news on education and also gives an inspiring account of how communities within the past ten years have defeated public and political apathy by forming vialy interested local citizens' committees which really got down to the business of making education better in areas where improvement was greatly needed. . . . We recommend BETTER SCHOOLS to anyone who is interested in education, local or national, and if you want to find out more about it please ask. This Column—now that graduation is over, maybe some of you can spare the time to read a little. . . .

For the Brides
This being June, when many girls decide it is time to you-know-what, we're here to suggest wedding presents, and you guess what they are—books. Any what could be better than a good book to while away the weary hours of the honeymoon? Don't answer that question. . . . Anyway, for those of you who are tired of giving silver, Doubleday has some fine ideas on books for you to give your favorite bride. . . . In the cooking line—and after all she's going to have to start cooking sooner or later too—two good basic ones are THE WELL-FED BRIDEGROOM, by Margaret Williams, and Ida Bailey Allen's COOKBOOK FOR TWO. On the more exotic side are Mrs. Allen's GASTRONOMIQUE and Myra Waldo's THE COMPLETE ROUND-THE-WORLD COOKBOOK. Or, for those who go for the edibles of a particular locality, there are THE ART OF CARIBBEAN COOKERY, FOODS OF OLD NEW ENGLAND, and LUCHOW'S GERMAN COOKBOOK. And if he's going to keep on at college while she works, the book for her is GLAMOUR MAGAZINE'S AFTER FIVE COOKBOOK. . . . After feeding him, she might have used for HOUSEHOLD HINTS AND DOLLAR STRETCHERS, or, if she's fond of gardens, GARDEN IDEAS AND PROJECTS. . . . And finally, though you might be rushing things a bit, there's a very good chance that she'll need, somewhere along the line, BABY AND CHILD CARE, by Dr. Benjamin Spock. . . .

Today's Review
An amateur psychologist and student at E.C.C.—one of the better ones—comments on a recent psychological novel—its author's first. . . .

HELL IS NOT ANYWHERE. By Richard Gordon Moores, Indianapolis: Bobbs-Merrill Co., 1959.
HELL IS NOT ANYWHERE is a psychological yarn which revolves around Reed Elliott, a World War II veteran. Reed, the only son of a hard-drinking physician, begins to re-examine his values while in college before the war. His re-examination leads him to see the smallness of man. In his struggle for the "happy medium," young Elliott goes through mental hell in his soul-searching analysis which is not at all pleasant. . . .

Moore, in his attempt to present a character such as Reed Elliott, points out the weakness of his generation—conformity. His endeavor to reveal what happens to a person when he rebels against society's values, false or otherwise, is quite realistic. In weaving his story, Moore weaves a pattern of men who, for acceptance by society, repress the essential core of man—human dignity.—By Pat Farmer.

No Boy Problem, A Man Problem

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—"Ours is not a boy problem," says a former Idaho scoutmaster—Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft Benson. "It is a man problem. Our boys want scouting. We want them to have it."

Thus did Benson size up the nation's youth situation in an address Friday night to the National Council of the Boy Scouts of America. "It is not for us to moan and groan about juvenile delinquency and the other problems of youth," he said. "Our one problem is leadership. One of the great difficulties confronting our young people is that they have more critics than models."

Vandals Damaged Eight Paintings

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Eight paintings, including one by Flemish master Peter Paul Rubens, were damaged by vandals a few minutes before the M.H. de Young Memorial Museum closed Friday.

The Rubens, a religious scene, was deeply scratched. The seven others, by Flemish, French and Dutch artists, were deeply scratched with jagged crosses. All the marks were on faces.

REPULSE ATTEMPTS

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—South Korean troops repulsed four attempts Thursday by North Koreans to slip across the armistice zone into South Korea, an army spokesman announced. He said two North Koreans and one South Korean were killed and one man on each side wounded.
