Ayden Man Gives Greene Pursuers 'Run For Money'

LIZZIE—A 35-year-old Ayden Negro has given Greene County officers and prison guards a run for their money after escaping from a road gang near here late yesterday afternoon.

John Ivey Kornel of 14 Railroad Street, Ayden, had served three days of a six-month sentence for motor vehicle law violations including operating without a driver's license, no insurance, and improper use of dealer's plates, when he ran into a heavily wooded area about one mile from here late yesterday.

Dogs were brought in and officers closed in on the escapee on more than one occasion, but he succeeded in eluding his pursuers. At one point during the chase, the prisoner jumped up just yards in front of the dogs and took off through the woods again but officers lost his tracks as he doubled back and ran in circles.

It was pointed out that he was a misdemeanor prisoner and even though the guards carry guns for their personal protection, they are not allowed to shoot an escaping prisoner of that category.

The prisoner is believed to be still in the wooded area in the Puleo section of Greene County and officers with their dogs are continuing their hunt for the man.

The Maury Camp, from which the prisoner was working, has the reputation of being one of the cleanest camps in the prison system and is noted for its good food.

ANOTHER FREE RIDE

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—America's first rocket ship will get another "free ride" late this month. The X-15 will be making its fifth captive flight—under an eight-jet B-52 bomber—to see how it behaves with a fuel load of nearly 20,000 pounds, more than doubling its weight.

Dissatisfied Over Air Defense Plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—The administration's new master plan for air defenses has met with little enthusiasm among some senators who have been critical of defense policies.

The plan, outlined by Secretary of Defense Neil H. McElroy Friday, involves a shift in emphasis from defense against manned bombers to defense against the ocean-spanning missiles of the future.

It would cut back funds for the rival anti-aircraft missiles of the Army and Air Force, the Nike-Hercules and the Bomarc. It would add funds to the Army's Nike-Zeus program, aimed at eventual development of missiles to knock down enemy intercontinental missiles.

Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.) gave general approval. He is chairman of the Armed Services Committee which prodded Pentagon officials into defining the new strategy.

Russell estimated about 1½ billion dollars would be saved by the Nike-Hercules and Bomarc cutbacks.

But Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.), a frequent critic of administration defense policies, called the new plan ridiculous and a continuation on a reduced basis of the previous master compromise of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

"There is no real effort here to deal boldly with a very difficult defense problem," he said, adding that it should not fool the public into believing "we have a defense against nuclear attack, either manned or ballistic."

"From a strategic standpoint it is wrong because it fails to protect our great retaliatory power," Jackson said.

Apparently referring to Strategic Air Command bases, Jackson said "their protection now is last on the agenda."

Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.) engaged in long debate with Secretary McElroy in the closed-door session of the committee. He talked about the new program as well as what parts of it could be disclosed without endangering national security, other committee-men said.

Later Symington told newsmen the revised plan "at best is but a compromise effort to satisfy each of the quarreling services. It guarantees further waste of billions of dollars."

Sen. Francis Case (R-S.D.) teamed with Sen. John Stennis (D-Miss.) in asking testimony from top air defense officers before the Senate acts on the proposed cutbacks.

Stennis called for evaluation of the plan by Gen. Earle E. Parridge, commander of the Continental Air Defense Command, as the "man who is responsible for our air defense."

Stennis also said he is thinking about the possibility of postponing for a year all funds for expansion of rival Bomarc and Nike-Hercules.

These funds then could be used for strengthening the global bombers of the Strategic Air Command and modernizing the Army and Navy, he added.

Beagles and Scarborough testified Friday night that no force was applied when they had relations with her although there was a shotgun and switchblade knife in their car when the 19-year-old Tallahassee girl was taken from her escort after a college dance.

Defense Atty. S. Gunter Toney also put on the stand Collinsworth's brother, Tom Collinsworth Jr., and his father, 70-year-old Tom Collinsworth Sr.

The father, who had to be subpoenaed to testify, was on the stand only a brief time. He said William spent most of his year and a half in school throwing spitballs and did not seem to be able to get anything out of his school work. William Collinsworth is illiterate and according to a privately-employed psychiatrist is a moron with a mental age of nine years.

On trial with Collinsworth are David E. Beagles, Ollie Stoutamire and Patrick Scarborough. Mrs. Collinsworth wrung her hands nervously between sobs while she replied to questions

Prospects At Geneva Felt Poor

American Officials See Little Chance Of Agreement By Ministers

GENEVA (AP)—American officials said today prospects appear dim for the Soviet Union and the Western powers reaching any agreement on Berlin and Germany at the current Big Four foreign ministers conference.

Advisers of Secretary of State Christian A. Herter expect the Soviets to launch a propaganda offensive blaming the West for failure of the talks and marshalling world pressure for a summit conference anyway.

There is a possibility the Western foreign ministers may seek a recess of their conference and leave the way open to get together again.

President Eisenhower has made plain that he has no intention of meeting Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev unless the foreign ministers show enough progress to justify a heads-of-government conference.

With sessions of the foreign ministers recessed over the weekend, the showdown is expected to come early next week.

The French reportedly share the gloom of the Americans about chances of success. But the British cling to a hope that the Soviets might back down on demands the West get out of Berlin and seek an interim agreement to lift the crisis surrounding the divided city.

British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd flew to London Friday night to see Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, who has been the leading advocate in the West for a summit conference.

"I think we have got to be patient," Lloyd told newsmen on arriving at London airport. "We have got to be firm about essentials but nevertheless patient about the negotiations."

Should Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko stand firm, when talks resume on Monday, the conference may break up by midweek.

Herter, Lloyd and French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville would prefer a recess rather than an adjournment if a break became necessary. They could then resume sometime in the future without the need to set up a completely new meeting. A recess for a definite time might be fixed, providing the Soviets agree. There has been talk of setting it three weeks to two months or more.

Assistant U.S. Secretary of State Andrew H. Berding said Herter would remain in Geneva over the weekend. Soviet officials said Gromyko would not leave Switzerland but indicated he might make a trip out of Geneva.

The Big Four agreed to a secret talk at the villa the French foreign minister Monday.

Gromyko told the Western ministers Friday that the Soviet Union sought for a one-year breathing spell in the Berlin crisis was not an ultimatum and was subject to negotiation.

While accepting the no-ultimatum assurance, the Western ministers insisted Russia drop its threat to make a separate peace treaty with East Germany before they agree to any further negotiating on the future of Berlin.

Symington Says He Won't Run
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Stuart Symington, U.S. Senator from Missouri, has indicated he won't seek the Democratic presidential nomination next year. He says he doesn't consider himself a candidate for the job.

Symington, here to speak tonight at a Jefferson-Jackson dinner, told newsmen Friday that "a great candidate" would be Ohio Gov. Michael V. DiSalle.

But DiSalle, federal price stabilizer in the Truman administration, merely smiled at the suggestion and told Symington good-naturedly: "Why don't you mind your own business?" They were seated next to one another at a press conference in the governor's mansion.

On cross examination the father said that he (the father) had become a fairly successful businessman in Ponce De Leon, Fla., although he had only a few months' schooling.

"Have you ever been charged with anything?" asked Asst. State Atty. Harry Morrison.

"No, I have not," the elder Collinsworth replied.

Tom Collinsworth Jr., 29, like William a telephone company employee, said the Collinsworth family was reared in the most difficult of home surroundings. He said his father got drunk and beat his mother regularly and that William passed out at the age of five behind his father's cafe when he got hold of a bottle of whiskey. He said the father refused to help William financially or even to come

Assembly Sets Sights For Week-End Adjournment

RALEIGH (AP)—The General Assembly was hopeful today of adjourning its 1959 session by the end of next week.

To accomplish this, assembly leaders appointed calendar committees Friday to speed up the processing of remaining legislation.

The calendar groups, to be headed by Rep. John M. Hargett of Jones and Sen. Robert Morgan of Cleveland, will perform the bulk of the study now given bills in regular committees.

The House and Senate engaged in long, tedious sessions Friday in an attempt to dent heavy calendars.

The House passed the vital revenue bill on second reading and also gave second reading approval to a Senate-passed 50 million dollar capital improvement bill.

Across the rotunda, the Senate passed on second reading a House-passed bill regulating motorboats on the state's waterways. Third reading was put off until Tuesday.

The House debated and then gave second reading approval to a bill arming the State Milk Commission with retail price-fixing powers in the event of an emergency. Third reading was set for Monday night.

Before the lawmakers went home after their most productive week of the session, they passed a total of 105 bills during meetings which extended deep into Friday afternoon.

Before wading into the calendars each house received a bill aimed at punishing prisoners who intentionally injure themselves.

The measures, introduced by Sen. Lunsford Crew of Halifax and Rep. Tim Valentine of Nash, would make such self-inflicted injuries punishable by up to 10 years in prison.

Crew said he introduced his bill at the request of Prisons Director William F. Bailey. In recent months convicts at the state's unit for incorrigibles at Ivy Bluff have mutilated themselves.

A bill which would enable small towns in dry counties to hold liquor elections was returned to the propositions and grievances committee where it is expected to die a painless death.

The bill cleared the committee Thursday after threats by dry forces that they may amend it to call for a statewide liquor referendum.

The Senate enacted a House-passed bill enabling school teachers to spank unruly students.

The revenue bill, which features a withholding method of collecting individual income taxes, cleared second reading with a minimum of debate. It was set for third reading Monday night.

Administration Forces In Control During Past Week

RALEIGH (AP)—Administration forces maintained control in legislative halls this week to nail down a state budget of increased spending without new taxes.

From wrangling debate in House and Senate, decisions emerged which pretty well assure that North Carolina will follow Gov. Hodges' economic optimism in fiscal affairs for the next two years.

Efforts for higher teacher pay were defeated in both chambers before a record-breaking Appropriations Bill was enacted by the Senate. It calls for more than one billion dollars total spending, with $50 million coming from the state general fund.

Withholding of individual state income taxes, the plan advanced by Gov. Hodges to balance the budget with an extra 27½ million dollars in speeded-up collections, got grudging acceptance in the House after an amendment to apply pay-as-you-go to a few corporations.

After that, the vital revenue measure passed second reading without debate. It must be considered again in the House Monday night before moving on to the Senate.

One of the most impressive displays of administration strength during the session came when the House backed from a 10-million dollar appropriation for teacher pay which it had adopted last week.

Rep. John W. Umstead Jr. of Orange sent up the amendment to take out the teacher pay item. Rep. Carroll Holmes of Perquimans, sponsor of the salary hike, failed to keep his forces in line and Umstead's amendment got a 60-56 vote.

Ironically, the margin was supplied by four House members who switched their votes after first siding with Holmes when the 10 million was placed in the budget on a 58-53 count.

The prospect of a sales tax on food, raised by Holmes in debate, may have helped to scare off some support.

Over in the Senate, the appropriations bill was greeted with an effort to write in a 2 per cent pay boost for teachers. Sen. Luther Hamilton of Carteret vainly reminded that 25 senators signed a resolution earlier in the session plugging for higher teacher pay. His bid for the extra 2 per cent died on a 32-17 vote.

Hodges' lieutenants in the House used a token application of withholding to big corporations to gain support for the pay-as-you-go income tax plan for individuals.

While fiscal affairs appeared pretty well settled, not all the battling was over for the 1959 session. A bill to give the State Milk Commission power over retail milk prices in emergencies passed the House after heavy argument. It remained in the House for a third reading before going to the Senate, and debate is likely to dog its heels all the way.

Hunting Escaped Mental Patient

BOSTON (AP)—An escaped mental patient with a knowledge of home-made bombs was sought today for questioning about a bomb explosion in a rapid transit waiting room in which 38 were injured Thursday.

Police identified him as John G. Feller, 23, of the Rosindale section of Boston, who escaped Tuesday from a mental hospital at Wingdale, N.Y.

Feller was committed for having a home-made bomb in his possession at a recent Fidel Castro rally in New York.

The bomb was described as an 11-inch explosive device filled with sulphur and zinc. Police said Feller had exploded two such bombs in New York City's Central Park with a car.

The bomb in a coin locker at the elevated North Station here shattered a waiting room and part of the platform. Some of the persons injured were thrown 30 feet to the street by the blast. Others were struck by debris on the street below and six were injured as they sat in an approaching train.

Three are in serious condition. A conference of law enforcers, fire department officials and ballistics experts Friday agreed that a large quantity of black powder, possibly 25 pounds, exploded.

Police appealed to the public to come forward with any information they might have about the explosion. A special telephone line was set up at police headquarters to receive information. Police protection was promised informers.

Wreck Kills Two Near Goldsboro
GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP)—Two persons were killed and two injured early today in a two-car collision on N.C. 111, 10 miles from here.

State Highway Patrolman Earl W. Merritt identified the dead as William Charles Whaley, 44, Goldsboro businessman, and Mrs. Ruth Lamm, also of Goldsboro.

Seriously injured was Frank Burgess of Selma, and his brother, Hampton Burgess, Marine from Jacksonville, N.C., was slightly hurt.

The patrolman said the cars were driven by Whaley and Hampton Burgess.

as they sat in an approaching train.

Some of the conclusions it reached were:

1. The average speeds are slightly higher than they were a year ago, but "this increase is commensurate with highway design improvements made during the year."

2. The design of the highway appears to have more effect on speed than speed limit signs.

3. Commercial buses and out-of-state passenger cars are the fastest vehicles on the highways, with the buses maintaining the fastest average of all vehicles.

4. The average speed of tractor-trailer semi-trailers is at or above their posted speed limits on virtually all types of highways.

5. The vast majority of motorists prefer to travel in the 50-55 speed range.

6. The average speed on new interstate highways is 59.1 m.p.h. compared to 51.2 on other state highways.

The commission said that the most encouraging thing found in the study was "the decreasing proportion of slow drivers who set up a turbulence in the traffic stream."

It said only 22 per cent of vehicles checked were going slower than 45 and the vast majority of the slow vehicles were school buses.

The resolution was adopted to clearly define areas of responsibility and liability for vehicles purchased for use by local units. Previously, Civil Defense personnel had assumed such vehicles were covered by county liability insurance policies, since they have been purchased in the name of the county.

Eastern Pines and Simpson rural fire departments were instructed to file lists of their officers with the county director's office, as a part of their organization as Civil Defense units. Local units which are organized in the future will be required to follow similar procedure.

Child Struck By Car Here Today
A seven-year-old girl was struck by a car on Cotanche St. a short distance south of the Fifth St. intersection shortly after noon today.

The child, who was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital by ambulance, was identified as Dianne Holland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Holland of 538 Cotanche St.

She apparently received cuts and bruises but the full extent of her injuries was not known.

Driver of the car involved was identified by police as David Earl Dixon, 24, of 1101-A Cotanche St.

Wife Says Accused Rapist Not Responsible For Actions

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)—The wife of William T. Collinsworth tearfully told a white male jury today her husband was not responsible for his actions the night he and three companions allegedly raped a Negro coed.

"He was very well on his way to being dead drunk," she said of the last time she saw him the night of the alleged rape.

Mrs. Pearl Collinsworth, a small, thin-faced brown-haired woman, took the stand to testify in support of a defense claim that Collinsworth was mentally incapable of distinguishing between right and wrong when he had been drinking.

On trial with Collinsworth are David E. Beagles, Ollie Stoutamire and Patrick Scarborough. Mrs. Collinsworth wrung her hands nervously between sobs while she replied to questions about their family life.

"When he is sober you could not ask for a better husband. He was a good provider for me and the two children," she said.

"But when he had even one beer he couldn't stop and he didn't seem like the same man. He would beat me and he didn't seem to remember what he was doing."

Collinsworth, at 23 the eldest of four white youths on trial for their lives in the case, became emotional as his wife and older brother testified. He wiped tears from his eyes with a handkerchief and buried his head in his hands.

The Collinsworth defense started testimony of two other defendants, Beagles and Scarborough, late this month. The X-15 will be making its fifth captive flight—under an eight-jet B-52 bomber—to see how it behaves with a fuel load of nearly 20,000 pounds, more than doubling its weight.

Mrs. Collinsworth wrung her hands nervously between sobs while she replied to questions about their family life.

Beagles and Scarborough testified Friday night that no force was applied when they had relations with her although there was a shotgun and switchblade knife in their car when the 19-year-old Tallahassee girl was taken from her escort after a college dance.

Defense Atty. S. Gunter Toney also put on the stand Collinsworth's brother, Tom Collinsworth Jr., and his father, 70-year-old Tom Collinsworth Sr.

The father, who had to be subpoenaed to testify, was on the stand only a brief time. He said William spent most of his year and a half in school throwing spitballs and did not seem to be able to get anything out of his school work. William Collinsworth is illiterate and according to a privately-employed psychiatrist is a moron with a mental age of nine years.

On cross examination the father said that he (the father) had become a fairly successful businessman in Ponce De Leon, Fla., although he had only a few months' schooling.

"Have you ever been charged with anything?" asked Asst. State Atty. Harry Morrison.

"No, I have not," the elder Collinsworth replied.

Tom Collinsworth Jr., 29, like William a telephone company employee, said the Collinsworth family was reared in the most difficult of home surroundings. He said his father got drunk and beat his mother regularly and that William passed out at the age of five behind his father's cafe when he got hold of a bottle of whiskey. He said the father refused to help William financially or even to come see him after he was arrested.

The wife of the defendant said she saw her husband the evening the coed was allegedly raped. William kissed her goodby and said he was going to take a friend home.

When he did not return during the night she said she called the sheriff's office and learned he was in the county jail on the rape charge.

The slender coed, whose name cannot be publicized under Florida law, testified Thursday she pleaded in vain while she was raped repeatedly by a knife and gunpoint by four white youths.

Testimony by the defendants has referred to both a knife and a gun—a knife drawn and a shotgun brandished when the coed was abducted.

The four-day trial worked toward a close after a grueling 16-hour session Friday that was concluded abruptly a few minutes before midnight when the sister of one of the defendants broke down on the stand.

Circuit Judge W. May Walker called an overnight recess when Mrs. Maudine Reeves, 31-year-old sister of William T. Collinsworth, broke into uncontrollable sobs. She was relating to the jury the story of her early life of poverty in a small West Florida town.

Collinsworth, who is married and has two children, will be the last of the defendants called to the stand.

Church In East Germany Is Fighting To Survive

By SEYMOUR TOPPING

BERLIN (AP) — The Evangelical (Lutheran) church has begun a last-ditch fight for survival in East Germany.

Under mounting Communist attacks, the centralized authority of the old state church is crumbling. The isolated local pastors, now the main guardians of the faith, are carrying the brunt of the struggle against Communist harassment.

The satellite regime technically still recognizes the official status of the Evangelical faith, but is snuffing away at its foundations through atheist propaganda.

"The Christian is being turned into a second class citizen," says Bishop Otto Dibelius, titular head of the All-Germany church.

Fear of Communist persecution has dwindled church attendance at an accelerating rate over the last year. Most youngsters now undergo Communist consecration rites instead of church confirmation.

Church officials express confidence that Christianity will persist in East Germany, but they see the Communist vise inexorably tightening on the church itself.

The Catholic minority faces much the same problem.

The regime has made the Evangelical church its No. 1 domestic target. With 82 per cent of the 18 million East Germans born Evangelical, the church has ranked as the most influential and stubborn voice of freedom in the satellite.

"Today in carrying on our work in East Germany almost everything depends on the individual pastor," a responsible church official said.

"He must be ready to fight local injustices and ready to face up to Communist officials without reliance on his superiors for help."

"We have some very successful pastors of this kind. They have learned how to bypass the Communists. The church is surviving in their parishes."

Since the Reds set up their regime in 1949, only 200 pastors have left the country—75 without permission of the church. About 5,000 pastors remain, with some carry the brunt of the struggle.

Outside of the church organization, a church official said, there are countless Christian cells—social groupings of perhaps 8 to 10 people—who keep the faith alive.

It is in the field of education that the church encounters the most serious Communist challenge.

When an East German youngster turns 14, he must choose between dedication to the state in a Communist ceremony or church confirmation.

Boys and girls who decline Jugendweihe — Communist consecration—have little chance of getting higher education or good jobs.

Under this kind of pressure, an estimated 80 per cent of eligible East German youngsters are undergoing Jugendweihe this year. This is double the number in 1958.

The Communists have not yet succeeded in completely splitting the East German branch of the church away from its West German wing.

But now about one-third of the church's hierarchy in East Germany feel they must cooperate with the Communists.

The regime has encouraged this trend by refusing to deal with the central offices of the church. State officials negotiate with East German clergymen and distribute revenues from church taxes only on a district or local level.

Three-Day Diocesan Meeting Held By Episcopal Churchwomen

Using as its theme, "Revive Thy Church, Beginning with Me," a large group of Episcopal Churchwomen throughout the Diocese of East Carolina assembled for conference at Camp Leach, on the banks of the Pamlico near Washington, N.C. June 8 through the 10th. The group composed of diocesan leaders and other women of the church, for three days participated in meditations, discussions and study.

Mrs. Heman Clark of Fayetteville, Diocesan President, had a roster of several speakers. Miss Estelle Carver of Massachusetts, outstanding teacher and retreat leader in the Episcopal Church, taught a course on the Book of Common Prayer. Mrs. M. E. Nelums of Tennessee, Provincial Representative of the Fourth Province to the National Council, brought the group up-to-date on the Organization of the General Division of Women's Work of the National Council, and its relevancy to the Diocesan and Parish levels. Through her talks on "More Than an Auxiliary" she gave the group a broader perspective of the total program of their church.

A highlight of the evening was the showing of slides relative to the Church's work in Alaska, supplemented by a talk on Alaska by Mrs. William Gordon, mother of the present Bishop of Alaska, and herself an outstanding churchwoman and lecturer.

Bishop Thomas H. Wright of Wilmington, was present throughout the conference and summed up the purposes and results of the sessions on the closing day. He was also celebrant for the daily services of Holy Communion.

Chaplain for the conference was the Rev. Raby Edwards of Havelock, who led the evening devotions.

The Happy Fisherman

There was a fellow at the plant who was always asking me to go with him to church.

In a way this picture portrays his zeal. For there was something boyishly enthusiastic about his eagerness; something joyously genuine in his confidence.

And his fervor reminded one of the disciples of old who became "fishers of men."

Well, he brought my family to church. Not because he was a salesman or a saint. Simply because he encouraged us to seek the convictions he was so eager to share.

Betty and I, and little Ricky, really owe our cherished faith to the moment that fellow at the plant said, "I'LL STOP BY YOUR PLACE ON SUNDAY MORNING."

Now, we too, find happiness in bringing our friends and neighbors to church.

Double-Ring Ceremony Unites Etta Thomas And Bobby Harris

Miss Etta Betsy Thomas became the bride of Mr. Bobby Teel Harris in a double-ring ceremony at Mount Pleasant Church last Saturday. The Rev. Homer Styons officiated at the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Thomas Jr. of Route 6, Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Harris of Route 4, Greenville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white tulle and Chantilly lace over taffeta, fashioned with a long, fitted bodice, v-neckline and abbreviated sleeves. Her voluminous skirt featured two overskirts, bordered with wide bands of lace that dipped to form points in the front and back. The lace detail was repeated on the neckline, sleeves, and gauntlet. Her two-tiered fingertip veil of pure silk illusion was attached to a plateau of lace, tridescents, and seeded pearls. The bride carried a white orchid on a lace-covered prayer book.

Mrs. Robert S. Forrest of Falkland was matron of honor. She wore a street-length dress of mint green polished cotton that featured a full net overskirt. Her mits and ruffled headpiece were of matching green. She carried a nosegay of California pink asters with matching pink streamers.

Bridesmaids were Miss Anne Harris, Miss Dorothy Harris, and Miss Joyce Jenkins, all of Greenville, and Miss Jacquelyn Marie Blanchard of Fuquay Springs. They wore pastel pink dresses identical to that of the matron of honor. They also carried pink asters with matching streamers.

Honorary bridesmaids were Miss Nellie Gwaltney, Miss Catherine Windham, Miss Carolyn Harris, and Miss Shirley Johnston, all of Greenville, and Miss Ida Best Smith and Miss Deanie Hall, both of Kinston. They wore full length pastel evening gowns and carried chrysanthemums of corresponding colors.

Gene Harris, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Roger Bullock, James Joyner, Johnny Johnston, and Billy Don Thomas, brother of the bride, all of Greenville.

Teresa Thomas, sister of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a dress of pink organza, featuring rows of lace on the skirt and ribbon-ties at the shoulder. She carried a small basket of pink and white summer blossoms. Master Herman Morris Jr. of Hookerton was ring bearer.

The bride's mother wore a dress of powder blue lace with matching accessories. Her corsage was of white carnations. The mother of the bridegroom wore navy lace with matching accessories. She too wore white carnations.

The altar of the church was flanked by seven branch candelabra with floor baskets of white gladioli and mums. Mrs. Zeb P. Moore of Maury was the organist, and Burnice Smith and Mrs. A. T. Grimes Jr. of Greenville rendered solos.

The bride and the bridegroom, who are both graduates of Belyvoir-Falkland High School, will be at home at Route 4, Greenville.

For the honeymoon trip, the bride wore a beige embroidered cotton sheath with beige accessories and the white orchid lifted from her prayer book.

Cake Cutting
Mrs. Ben Thomas Jr. and Mrs. Ben Thomas Sr., the mother and the grandmother of the bride, entertained about 50 guests including the wedding party, at a cake-cutting after rehearsal on Friday night, June 5.

After the honored couple cut the wedding cake, it was served by the bride's mother. The mother of the groom poured punch.

The refreshment table was covered with a white, cut linen cloth edged with delicate blue scallops. An attractive centerpiece of white snaps, mums and carnations was flanked by crystal candelabra. Magnolias and white candles were used for decoration throughout the building.

'Emotional Maturity' Topic Of Guest Speaker

When the Greenville Business and Professional Women's Club met Thursday night, Dr. Frank Scott, a member of the Psychology Department of East Carolina College, spoke on "Emotional Maturity."

He was introduced by Dr. Julia Marshall, chairman of the Health and Safety Committee. In his talk, Dr. Scott gave the causes for mental illness, or too much tension.

Scott discussed the unpleasant emotions, their effect on the person himself and on his associates. He suggested ways of overcoming the problem of these tensions, and he stated that in mental health today, people are taught correct and socially acceptable ways of getting rid of emotional tensions. Following Dr. Scott's talk, there was a question and answer period.

During the business session the following were elected as delegates to the State Convention in Greensboro: Mrs. Kemp Baldwin, president of the local club, Miss Camille Clarke, Mrs. Ruth Peterson, and Miss Gladys Stokes.

Miss Julia Fisher, who is moving to Richmond, was presented a gift and tribute was paid her for her loyalty and years of conscientious work in the club.

Mrs. Royce Jones was welcomed as a new member. The members voted to have a picnic for the July meeting.

Open House Fetes Recent Bride

STOKES—Mrs. P. A. Nelson was hostess Monday night at an open house honoring her daughter, Mrs. R. B. Edmondson Jr. Mrs. Edmondson greeted the guests as they arrived, and, after they had viewed the gift display, directed them to the dining room where refreshments were served.

Miss Edith Nelson served the punch at one end of the refreshment table while Miss Joann Bullock presided over the lemonade bowl at the other end. Mrs. Nelson assisted in serving the other refreshments consisting of Ritz crackers with various cheese spreaders, salted nuts, peppermint puff balls, and mints.

The refreshment table was covered with a white linen cloth centered with an arrangement of white mums and baby's breath in a silver bowl. Pink candles in three-pronged silver candleholders stood on either side. A similar arrangement occupied the mantel in the gift room.

The open house was attended by the immediate families of the honoree and her husband, other relatives, friends and neighbors.

Scouts On Annual Outing

Sheppard Library Is Center Of Activity

Today the Sheppard Memorial Library in Greenville is one of the city's major centers of activity. Varied types of service extend throughout Pitt County to include patrons from miles around and every walk of life.

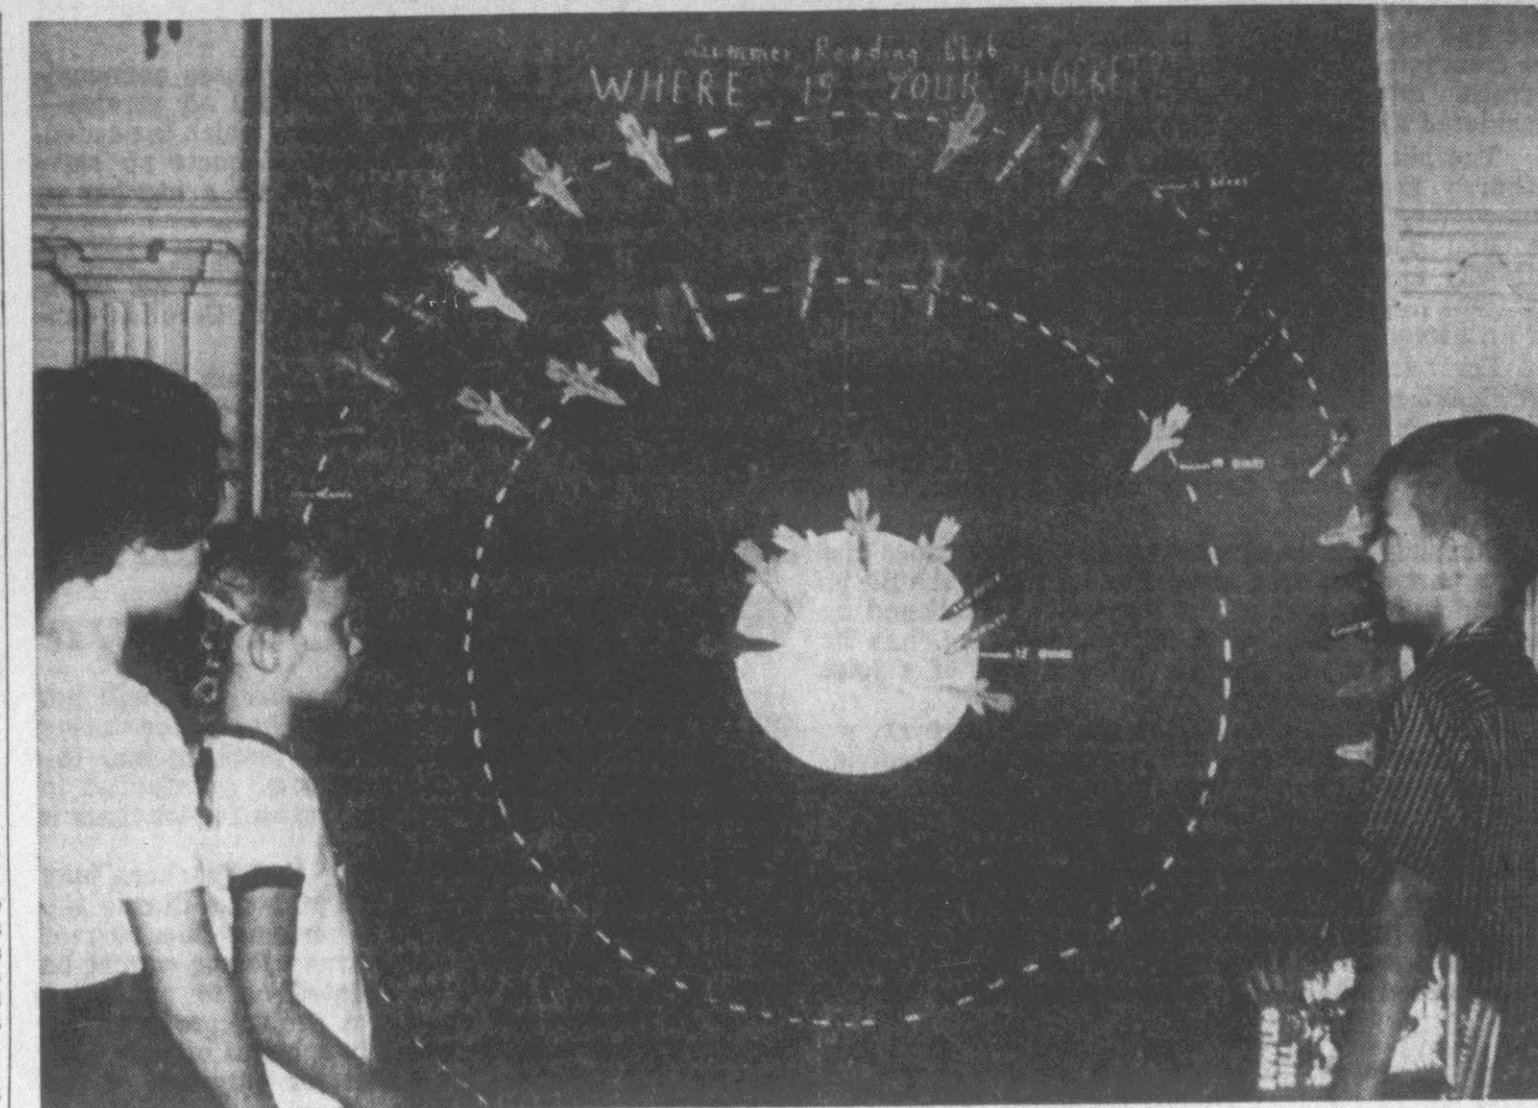

Consisting of all ages and types, these people not only use the library for recreational reading, but chiefly as an information center. Reference questions on all possible subjects are a constant and interesting challenge to the library personnel. This is especially true during the school term, when hundreds of students from all over Pitt County as well as the city make frequent and lengthy visits to the library. These students find the library holdings quite helpful in meeting their needs for research papers, reports, projects, and supplementary reading.

This should not lead one to believe, however, that these young people stop using the library upon the closing of school. Quite to the contrary, before the doors are even open to the public in the morning, large numbers of children can be found waiting anxiously to enter the building. Perhaps this is partially due to the encouragement of summer reading that has been suggested by teachers and other members of the school system. Interest in this reading improvement program has been heightened by the Vacation Reading Club, which is carried out during the summer months at the library.

The club for this summer began on Monday, June 1, and since that date over 300 children have become members. This enrollment has greatly surpassed any previous one on record. The children have an unusual amount of enthusiasm and eagerness to participate in this reading program.

Other sources of patrons include students and professors from East Carolina College, who use many library materials in connection with their classroom studies; businessmen, who use directories and reference sources to verify facts; ministers and church leaders, who find the vast amount of religious books helpful in the preparation of lessons and sermons; and housewives, who seek new household ideas on decorating, cooking, entertaining, etc.

Although the Sheppard Library has a large and varied collection, it sometimes might fail to have on hand a particular selection that is requested. If it is not possible for the library to order a copy of the book in question, a very successful system has been devised to solve this problem. Through the aid of a State program, the Sheppard Library is able to borrow books from an interlibrary loan center located in the Wilson Library at Chapel Hill. When a book is not available at the University Library, the request is forwarded to the nearest library having the book. The Sheppard Memorial Library is proud to have been selected to participate in this program.

This interlibrary loan policy serves not only as a source from which Greenville may borrow, but enables the Sheppard Memorial Library to aid the small public libraries throughout Pitt County and the state by supplementing these small holdings through special loans from their larger collection. Thus, through this smooth and co-operative exchange program, it is possible for the Sheppard Library to meet the demands of the public and other libraries.

Aside from the service extended to those patrons who come directly to the library, it is possible to also meet the needs of those in the county who cannot easily visit the main library in Greenville. In answer to this problem is the bookmobile, which has a daily route to cover all sections of Pitt County. Rural residents look upon the bookmobile as a convenient source of recreational and educational reading.

Contrary to popular belief, the public library does not limit its collection to books and periodicals. Supplementary to the reading materials used by the public is the recent addition of phonograph records and films.

In May, 1958, the Sheppard Memorial Library added a selection of high fidelity musical recordings to its holdings. Included in this classical group are symphonies, concertos, orchestral and chamber music, keyboard numbers, vocal selections, and some folk music. Aside from these are a number of speech and theatre selections. These records are available on a two-week loan basis the same as books.

With the additions of films in 1957, the library was able to meet further needs of Pitt residents. Through a state-wide film program, the Sheppard Memorial Library receives four films for a three-week period every month.

These films are on varied subjects and are available to any group in Pitt County free of charge. They are not open to individual borrowers, however. Besides the films received on the regular distribution schedule, an organization may "spot book" films on particular subjects if they notify the library in advance. The recent purchase of a 16mm projector gives an added convenience to those who borrow the films but do not have an accessible projector. This film service has steadily increased in use and interest. The Sheppard Memorial Library is proud of its expansion during the past several years. Their projects are designed to meet every possible need of the citizens of Greenville and Pitt County. Efforts to improve and expand are an endless task to this library.

At present, an upstairs room is being converted to a North Carolina history room. This special area contains old or rare copies of valuable books about the state. It is designed primarily for the use of those doing graduate research work on this subject. Special attention is also being made to books on Natural History—wildlife, plants, etc. in the general book collection.

The library's plans for the future include hopes for a new children's department, with a full-time professional librarian in charge. The need for more space on the juvenile level is a growing problem.

Upon reviewing the services offered at the Sheppard Memorial Library, one can readily understand why a public library is a necessary institution in a well-ordered community. Have you made use of this asset recently?

Smith-McRoy Say Vows

Miss Betsy Ann McRoy, daughter of Mrs. Sadie McRoy of Childer and the late Mr. McRoy, became the bride of Victor Emanuel Smith, son of Mrs. Thelma Smith of Washington and the late Hyman Smith, last Saturday afternoon. The marriage took place in the Salem Methodist Church in Simpson with the Rev. Alton S. Lancaster officiating.

Mrs. Florence Scott, pianist, and Elbert Bennett, soloist, presented the nuptial music.

Given in marriage by her brother, Lyman McRoy of Ayden, the bride wore a bridal gown designed with a sweetheart neckline, fitted bodice, and bouffant skirt. Her fingertip veil of illusion was attached to a half hat studded with tiny seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses centered with a white purple throated orchid.

Matron of honor was her sister, Mrs. Wayland Porter, and Miss Judy McRoy, niece of the bride, was flower girl. They wore afternoon dresses of pink taffeta. The honor attendant carried a bouquet of pink carnations and the flower girl carried a basket of rose petals.

Larry Lancaster acted as best man. Ushers were Sam Smith of Washington and Jack McRoy of Greenville.

The bride's mother chose for her daughter's wedding a blue linen dress with white accessories. Her corsage was of white roses. The bridegroom's mother wore a rose colored dress with white accessories and a corsage of white roses.

For their wedding trip, the new

Mrs. Smith chose a pale yellow dress with matching orchid. The couple will reside in Washington upon their return.

The bride is a graduate of Grimsland High School and the bridegroom graduated from Chocowinity High School.

Little Hope Until Jealousies Fold

The same inter-community jealousies which have time and again prevented Eastern Carolina communities from joining together to obtain adequate air transportation cropped up again this week as the Senate considered a bill by Sen. Robert Lee Humber of Pitt.

The bill would have established an area airport authority that would include Pitt, Greene, Wilson, Edgecombe, Nash, Wayne, Lenoir, Martin, Washington, and Beaufort Counties. It would authorize the authority to issue bonds and carry on other necessary functions in connection with establishing and operating an airport.

For various reasons Wayne, Nash, Edgecombe and Beaufort Counties saw that they were excluded from the bill before it was finally passed by the Senate. The Kinston Daily Free Press has voiced its opposition to Lenoir County being included in the legislation.

Certainly no local government which does not want a part of an area airport undertaking should be required to be a part of the Authority established by the legislation. Each of them, we are sure, has its own reasons for not wanting to be a part of a joint air facility undertaking.

At the core of each of the reasons, however, we suspect there is the hope, the feeling that the individual county or community can in some manner become the hub for air travel for this section of the state.

Since the end of World War II the various cities and counties in this part of the state have competed against each other for air service each time they have had an opportunity. As a result, this huge area which as a whole could justify air service comparable to that accorded the larger metropolitan areas of the state, has only a trickle of flights at a few scattered points.

The area as a whole—including those communities which now have token commercial air service—lacks the calibre of air transportation which is needed. The only hope for ever obtaining adequate air service lies in a cooperative movement by a number of counties and cities.

Unless and until community jealousies can be buried where major area problems such as air transportation are concerned, Eastern North Carolina cannot hope to realize its vast potential.

Air transportation is an area problem in this section of the state. Until it is approached on an area basis, there seems little hope for providing a solution to the problem.

Shouldn't Be Content With Holding Our Own

North Carolina's public school teachers will not get the extra $10 million in salaries hoped for during the coming biennium, but for the teachers and the public generally there should be some satisfaction in knowing that a five per cent pay raise for teachers is assured.

There is also the possibility that teachers may receive an additional five per cent bonus during the next two years provided state revenues top current estimates. While this contingent pay factor cannot be ignored, neither can it be counted on to put extra dollars in teacher pay checks. A similar provision for the current biennium resulted in a bonus of only 1.09 per cent for teachers, and that for only one of the two years.

While the legislature—at the urging of the administration—took the position that holding the budget line was more important than granting teachers an extra three per cent salary increase for the next biennium, most Tar Heels should be well aware of the fact that the work of classroom teachers is one of the most important functions in our whole system of government.

Not only must North Carolina do all it can to attract qualified teachers to its public schools, it must also see that its policies encourage experienced teachers to remain at their posts.

Public schools form a very basic part of our society today, and what is accomplished in public schools in a very real sense shapes the future.

North Carolina has made progress with its schools in the past decade, but it still has considerable work to do before it can assert the position of leadership in public schools that it has in other fields.

While the state must increase its wealth before it can provide teacher salaries on a par with wealthier states of the nation, North Carolina can ill afford to merely "hold its own" where schools and teachers are concerned. The state must continue to push forward its program of public education, and in order to accomplish such progress, it must see that its teachers are adequately compensated for their invaluable services.

NATO Target Of Khrushchev

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—It's questionable that NATO—great peacekeeping military alliance in history—can hang together, at least as it is now with its 15 members.

Time, changes in the world, and the rise of Nikita Khrushchev are all working on it. And Khrushchev's working hard.

It was a moment of terror when the Western allies, including the United States, set up the North Atlantic Treaty Organization on April 4, 1949, with the understanding that an attack on one was an attack on all.

Band together in common defense or face the prospect of being picked off one at a time. That was their choice.

The year before, communism had gulped down Czechoslovakia. And in April 1949 Stalin, with his blockade of Berlin, had forced the United States into its historic airlift to save the city.

At that hour in history NATO gave the Allies a greater sense of security than they ever had before or since.

They had a terrifying superiority over Stalin because, if he attacked, the European Allies could hold him off with their ground forces while the United States flattened the Soviets with atomic bombs. That was the theory.

At that instant the United States alone had the atomic bomb. But it was a monopoly which, at the very minute the NATO treaty came into existence, was beginning to disappear.

Early in 1949 the Soviet Union was putting the finishing touches on its own atomic bomb which it was to explode for the first time later in the year. The United States went on to develop the hydrogen bomb. But so did the Soviets by 1953.

For lack of determination, the huge land forces which NATO members were supposed to produce never materialized. And, meanwhile, something else happened which made even the fairly small land forces they produced look even smaller.

The Soviets and the United States both developed missiles for crossing continents. Even President Eisenhower acknowledged last March that Allied armies in Europe did not mean much any more because they were overwhelmingly outnumbered by the Soviet Union.

The United States, with its fleets of bombers and their hydrogen bombs based at friendly stations around the Soviet perimeter, can still discourage a Soviet attack. This is still a consolation to the NATO members.

But it is a mixed consolation because of one thing: The world is in a transition period, passing from the day of the bomber to the era of the missile.

The United States is arranging to surround the Soviet Union—again at friendly stations on Allied soil—with bases for missiles which have their noses pointed at Moscow. In time, when there are enough missiles, the bombers will be obsolete.

But the Soviets are building in the Soviet Union their own bases for missiles pointed westward. In time, with enough hydrogen-headed missiles, Khrushchev could destroy Western Europe.

But it's a pipe-dream if the West thinks the United States can build missile posts right next door to the Iron Curtain and that the Soviets will keep all its own missile bases strictly inside the Soviet Union.

Khrushchev showed what a pipe-dream it is by warning Turkey and Greece, both NATO members, not to permit American missile bases in their territory unless they want him to build missile bases right next door in the Soviet satellites, Albania and Bulgaria.

And Thursday he cautioned two other NATO members—Norway and Denmark—against permitting missile bases within their frontiers. He indirectly proposed that they get out of NATO altogether.

As bait for these four NATO members, he proposed to Greece and Turkey that there be a nuclear-free, missile-free zone from Central Europe to the Mediterranean; to Norway and Denmark he proposed a similar nuclear-free zone in Scandinavia.

It is perhaps significant that Khrushchev, Stalin's successor, is trying to terrorize Greece and Turkey. Stalin tried the same, in another way, back in the late 1940's.

Stalin tried to shake Berlin free of the Western grip in 1948. Now, 10 years later, when he feels strong enough, Khrushchev is trying to shake Berlin free of the West.

As Soviet missile power grows and as Khrushchev steps up his campaign to keep American missile bases out of NATO countries, those countries will feel more and more pressure to cut loose from NATO. Since, if war came, they'd be the nearest targets.

The world may be puzzled by Khrushchev's tactics over Berlin right now. But you can be sure this is just the beginning of a concentrated campaign, to be carried on for years, to shake NATO to pieces.

And even one of the NATO stalwarts, France, made the whole structure shudder this week when President Charles de Gaulle insisted upon having control over any nuclear stockpiles this country wanted to set up in France.

Listening To The Birds

The Clan Ellis, thanks to Wee Urchin, has found itself a new form of recreation for leisure moments.

We have become a group of bird listeners.

The Wee One started the whole thing by becoming attached to the quail who live in our neighborhood. He has heard them call across the fields near our house and his liking for the "bob white" whistles has grown to the extent that he sits still at times to wait for the birds to call.

His enthusiasm for the whole affair has rubbed off on the rest of us, even to the point that when we go for late afternoon rides in the country we will occasionally stop the car to listen for bird calls. Bob white whistles are the favorites but some others we can't identify by species are becoming equally popular.

In addition to the fields near our house, we have heard many quail calling in the fields between Coghill and the U.S. 264 bypass, in the area around St. James Methodist Church, and in a rural area near Simpson which is a favorite place of ours when we go for rides in the country.

From time to time, we see the birds who are doing the calling and have stopped the car to watch mother quail and her little ones scot across the road ahead of us.

The whole business has had a warming effect on us.

We drive more slowly, we listen more closely and we watch more carefully than we ever have.

And My Fair Gwen and I defy anyone to match the expression of delight which comes to Wee Urchin's face when he hears the birds and sees them in their element. It has been a delightful experience for all of us, and we recommend it for those who want something new to do—although we will be among the first to admit that the idea is not new at all and that we are probably late-arrivals to the practicing of it.

There is, of course, no measurable quality to the thing. But, it does make us realize more keenly that goodnesses which are around us and in our lives if we take the time to discover them, enjoy them and help the little folks, who are so much a part of us, to enjoy them.

Wee Urchin, in discovering these things, has found a new world around him, some of which he likes and some of which causes him a certain impatience. He is very much disturbed that he can't whistle, so he, too, can call the birds as he has his daddy call them when the woods and fields are quiet just before the sun goes down.

In time, we suppose, he will learn to do such things. And, in time, we anticipate taking him and the Twinkles for walks through the woods and fields to look for the life which is in them.

It is a pleasant thing to anticipate.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

CAN'T GET ALONG WITHOUT IT?

Some time ago I saw the picture of greyhounds racing. The dogs were all muzzled.

But when you think about it for a moment, why not? How could it be otherwise? If they did not muzzle the animals, there would be a good sized dog fight going on shortly after the race began. The dogs would turn from running and begin tearing at each other.

How true this is of human life also. Leave the human race to its own devices and what does it do? It goes to war. Throughout human history there have been only a few times when the human race has been at peace. Now we have fashioned a big muzzle known as the United Nations. The truth of the matter is that as a muzzle it will probably never prove very effective.

We will be kept from war by fear. Economic considerations will cause us to think twice before girding up our loins for battle.

But down in the bottom of its heart humanity is about the same as usual. This does not mean that people are basically bad. People are basically good but they are easily misled. They can easily be thrown into paradoxes of fear and persuasion to lunge at their neighbor's throat. And this they call a defensive war or a police action.

To get a satisfactory race run, the owners have to muzzle their greyhounds. A good suggestion and a penetrating commentary not only on dogs but on people. Whether we like it or not, humanity has certain belligerent tendencies which have to be taken into consideration. The muzzle is "a must."

There is usually no way to make both American and foreign airlines happy. The usual end is a series of compromises in a new agreement—and often followed by immediate requests for a re-negotiation.

TOUCHY SITUATION

One of the most difficult cases arose when the Dutch asked for interior landing rights for the KLM line. American lines' opposition was violent. Domestic lines said they would lose traffic between the interior points and New York; overseas lines protested that since they already had rights to Amsterdam there was nothing worthwhile that the Dutch could give in return.

The Dutch pointed out that since they had lost their Indonesian colonies, they had to survive economically through services, such as banking, insurance, shipping and aviation. The matter became embarrassing when the Dutch pointed out

There's Jazz In D.C.

By ED CREAGH

WASHINGTON (AP)—The piano sets the pace and the pitch, the brass brays, then the clarinet comes on—cool as a robin on a spring-blossomed limb, wild as the writhings of an Arab girl dancer.

And then, man you've got jazz going.

Where? Right here in your nation's capital.

Only reason I mention this is that tourists and most natives—the natives mostly flee to their suburbs at 5:01 p.m.—have the false impression that Washington folds up its sidewalks, turns off Congress and wraps the White House in cotton wool at sunset. But Washington is one of the swingin'est jazz towns in the U.S.A.

There's Charlie Byrd at the Showboat, bobbing and weaving over a guitar that twangs out rhythms which would drive a Gypsy mad.

There's Wild Bill Whelan at the Bayou, probably wearing a mad plaid jacket, blowing his lungs out through the bell of a trumpet.

And maybe best of all, if you will allow a personal preference, there is Booker Coleman at the Charles Lounge, with a Dixie-land-type combo the like of which you are not going to hear this side of New Orleans and maybe not there.

Booker is a comfortably large Negro who sits at a grand piano, which he tunes himself, and, with his head swinging side to side like a jazzed-up metronome, and a pungent six-cent cigar at a 45-degree angle, wrings melody out of that piano.

There's always rock 'n' roll and hillbilly.

An outfit known as the Treniers is at the Casino Royal. I have not heard them, and am not about to. They sound like, even at a distance, more than an old man can stand.

And if you don't like music at all, or at least nonclassical music, we've got live burlesque, and night clubs on the outskirts that would make a traveling salesman blush.

Just wanted you to know that Congress doesn't put on the only show in town.

Opinions In Brief

"As for restaurant tipping, the vicious myth has grown up that 'because of inflation' the traditional 10 per cent is no longer an adequate tip. Any school-boy ought to be able to see that inflation inflates the size of the tip just as much as it does the price of the food, and if that 10 per cent was adequate in 1940, it ought to be just as adequate now—what was 15 cents on a $1.50 meal becomes 30 cents on a $3 meal now. But does any customer try to buck the non-sensical expansion of tipping?" —New York Herald Tribune.

"Despite the rash of publicity, there is less racial strife in the South than there is in New York, Detroit, Chicago, Philadelphia and other cities." —Nashville (Tenn.) Banner.

Mickey Mantle's ninth-inning home run snapped the five-game winning streak held by the Tigers over the Yankees this season and served to point out the fact that the fleet center-fielder is the key man of the 1958 world champions. Mickey is the "bell cow" of the Yankees, the player who sets the tempo for the club. When Mantle is thumping the ball, all is well with the Yankees. Even the Yankee pitchers perk up when Mickey is riding high. He's the spark-plug of the club, make no mistake about that.

When the Yankee slump was at its worst, Mantle paced the club down and down in the standings. On May 20, the Tigers thumped the New Yorkers and dumped them to the American League cellar for the first time since 1940. Mickey was fighting himself, striking out on bad pitches and playing the outfield without enthusiasm. Suddenly, the great Yankees appeared to have lost their confidence while opposing teams just as quickly sized up the situation and waded

Opposing Pitchers Inspired By Yanks

By ED WILKS

What is it about the world champion New York Yankees that makes starting pitchers out of relievers who once worked for Cleveland?

Take Hoyt Wilhelm (and who wouldn't?). He was used, as a starter infrequently by the Indians, but really made it after shifting to Baltimore and pitching that no-hitter against the Yankees last September. At the moment, he's a 9-0 with four in a row over New York.

Then there's Bud Daley, the left-hander who moved from Cleveland to Baltimore to Kansas City. He was a bullpen guy until he blanked the Yankees on two hits in a six-inning relief job last May 6. That gave him a chance as a starter, and he's won four of six since.

Or take Don Mossi, once a southpaw relief ace and a sometime starter for Cleveland. He was strictly a reliever after the winter trade to Detroit, but he turned starter with an eight-hitter that beat New York May 3.

Friday night Mossi won his fourth in a row over the Yankees, allowing six hits for a 3-1 victory that jumped the Tigers into a third place tie in the American League race, two games shy of first.

Their seventh success in eight games and third straight gave the Tigers a deadlock with the Baltimore Orioles, whose game with Chicago's first-place White Sox was rained out. The Cleveland-Washington game also was postponed by rain. Kansas City beat Boston 3-2 and moved past the Yankees into fifth place in the only other game played.

The rain rubbed out a possible 10th victory for Wilhelm, who had a 1-0 lead when the game was called after two innings. The rain also canceled a 20th home run by Washington's Harmon Killebrew.

Mossi, 29, was in a row for a 5-2 record, lost in a row for a second consecutive shutout over the Yankees in the second inning. That's when Bill Skowron's single followed two walks, the only passes Mossi allowed.

McCormick Hurls No-Hitter Over Phils

Casper Leads In Standings U.S. Open Play

MAMARONECK, N. Y. (AP)—Bill Casper, the big guy the golf pros call the man who invented putting, gave himself a lengthy putting lesson the night before the U. S. Open Championship started.

Then he played a "fantastic" first round he says he'd like to forget despite the score of 71. But yesterday everything clicked together and Bill came out with a big grin and a score of 71-68-139 that made him the mid-point leader.

Going into the final 36 holes today, the 212-pound ex-sailor from Apple Valley, Calif., had a one-stroke edge over three of the most dangerous rivals who could name—Ben Hogan, Gary Player and Arnold Palmer.

Another stroke back were Doug Ford and Mike Souchak. Three behind at 142 were PGA champion Dow Finsterwald and Ernie Vossler.

Any of them could come up with the winning score tonight. So could some of the others who weren't too far back—Gene Littler, Jay Hebert, Claude Harmon, Cary Middlecoff, Ted Kroil and even Sammy Snead.

It has been that kind of a tournament on the deceptive 6,875-yard, par 70 Winged Foot West Course. Things have been tougher than they seemed—as shown by the fact that 13 players with aggregate scores of 150 were among the 61 qualifiers for the final 36 holes.

Casper, by his own admission, could have been one of these. "I played a round Thursday. I'd like to forget because it was so fantastic," he said. "If I hadn't been putting well I could have had an 80. Today I played much better than I did last year, when I won five tournaments.

"Today I might shoot an 85." Casper is a big, strong guy, but his reputation and most of the pro money he has won have come from his putting. Early this week he was having trouble on Winged Foot's greens, but Wednesday evening he practiced an hour and a half and just at the end of the session he got his stroke working right.

Yesterday he holed putts of 12, 25 and 45 feet for birdies and knocked in an 18-footer for a par on the 12th.

Gary Player, all-around athlete from South Africa, might have been in front of Casper but for a horrible hole which putting couldn't save. That was the 17th—a 444-yard, deeply-trapped monster that's one of the toughest on the course.

Player took a double bogey 6 there, landing in two traps and sending one shot from the sand so close to a tree that he couldn't take a good backswing.

Hogan had a five on the same hole which cost him a 71 for the day and a chance for a share of the lead.

Hogan, a tiring but determined 46-year-old, still is very much in the running in his bid to become the first five-time winner.

Player, rated as potentially one of the greatest golfers in the world, finished second to Tommy Bolt last year and could do better this time. Palmer, Masters champion last year, has won two tournaments so far in 1959.

Jaycees Batter Kiwanis By 16-1

NORTH STATE LEAGUE

Jaycees	Won	Lost
Jaycees	7	1
Kiwanis	4	4
Lions	3	4
VFW	1	7

The Jaycees continued to run rough-shod over the rest of the North State League as they blasted Kiwanis out of the Elm Street Park yesterday with a 16-1 victory.

The loop-leaders scored two runs in the first inning and never trailed as they won their seventh game of the season in eight starts. Kiwanis was on the mound for the Jaycees and had little trouble in posting the win. He gave up four hits and walked four. He was in trouble only in the first when Kiwanis scored their lone run and in the third when they loaded the bases.

The Jaycees have made it a practice this year to be at their best when taking on their top challenger. Thus far, they have knocked off the Kiwanis and the Lions when they attempted to close in.

Texas has been the only team to edge the loop-leaders and they are on the crest of a four-game winning streak. The surge has carried them into second place in the loop. They will be trying to extend their streak to five this afternoon when they meet the Lions.

Gonzales, Hoad and Rosewall in Three-Way Tie

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Pancho Gonzales, Ken Rosewall and Lew Hoad are in a three-way tie for first place going into tonight's round of the fourth annual Master's Round Robin Pro Tennis Tournament.

Hoad bounded into the three-way tie at the Los Angeles Tennis Club Friday night by outlasting Frank Sedgman 12-10, 9-7, in a match that went 1 hour, 42 minutes. Hoad finally cracked through Sedgman with a running forehand drive down the line in the 21st game of the first set and held on for 12-10.

Gonzales meets Ashley Cooper tonight in what figures to be a breeze, since Cooper has suffered five straight setbacks. Hoad faces Pancho Segura and Rosewall opposes Sedgman.

Segura, who had a 3-1 record going into Friday night's round, was upset by Tony Trabert of Cincinnati, 3-6, 6-2, 7-5.

The University of North Dakota field house is used for basketball games and track meets and also for football, baseball and golf practice.

Gonzales continued to cling to their narrow lead in the Tar Heel League yesterday as they got some clutch pitching to shut out slumping Exchange, 4-0.

For the Exchange, it was their fourth straight defeat after winning their first three starts. They were able to collect only six hits and at no time in the game did they make a serious threat.

Three bases on balls, an error, and a single got the Elks off to a good start with three runs in the first inning. Brown, the losing pitcher, settled down after that but his puny teammates were never able to get him back in contention.

Gaskins and Green combined their hitting talents to give the winners their fourth and final

Home Builders Dealt 11-1 Loss

Guaranty Bank put a halt to Home Builders' three-game winning streak last night as they battered the leaders, 11-1, in Teen-er League action.

David Boyd was the big gun for the winners as he had a grand slam homer in the first inning to push Guaranty out in front for good. The winners mauled Hardee, the losing pitcher, for five runs in the first inning and then came back with runs in the second, fourth and seventh innings.

It was the first defeat for the Home Builders after three wins and it evened Guaranty's record at 2-2.

James and Riley added the offensive attack for the winners with three hits each. James had two singles and a double while the latter had three one-base hits.

Morris went the distance and scattered five hits in a winning cause. Owens was the leader for the losers with two hits.

Kansas Favored To Win NCAA Track And Field

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—Kansas was an odds-on choice today to win the NCAA Track and Field Championship for the first time in the school's history.

The Jayhawk squad qualified 12 for today's finals during a long afternoon evening preliminary round Friday that saw one record set in the hammer throw—and the runners facing a 12-mile an hour wind for most finishes.

But the times were good enough to indicate that if the wind goes away today or dies down to a mere zephyr records could topple in several events.

In danger were the 120-yard hurdles, the 220-yard hurdles, the 880, the 440 and the mile run records. The lone record came in an event not usually on the NCAA program but added this year because of the Pan-American Games practice need.

It came on a 207-foot, 5-inch toss of the hammer by former Dublin policeman John Lawton, now performing for Boston University. His throw not only bettered the NCAA record of 1953 by Bill Williams of Bowdoin in 1956, but also the National collegiate record of 204-5 1/2 by Albert Hall, Cornell University, in 1956.

Everette, West Lead Washington Tennis Tourney

WASHINGTON—Favored Maurice Everette of Robersonville and second-seeded John West of Durham led the way into the singles semifinals of the first Washington Invitational Tennis Tournament here Friday.

Unseeded Bill Carrigan of Greensboro joined them in the round-of-four by defeating Goldsboro-born Richard Helms in the day's best match, 6-2, 0-6, 6-4.

Richard Hodges and Ward Marsdenler play Saturday for the other semifinal berth.

Everette and West both advanced past two opponents in straight sets. Two other seeded netters, Clint Parsons of Camp Lejeune and John Savage of Goldsboro, defaulted.

Men's doubles play begins Saturday. Singles finals are scheduled 1 p.m. Sunday, and the doubles finals at 3:30 p.m.

Move To Restore All-Star Game

DURHAM, N.C. (AP)—Moves to restore the Class B Carolina League's all star game and limiting double headers to seven innings each was to come before a meeting of league directors here today.

Wilson said he favored an all star game to be played in Winston-Salem in July. If the game is restored, it likely would pit East and West teams.

The league has had all star games, but the game was dropped after the directors voted last year to assess themselves $250 each to keep the president's office going.

Instead of getting the funds from the game as has been done, now Lenhy double headers prompted the suggestion of limiting double headers to seven innings each.

The great Man o' War sired 62 stakes winners before his death in 1947.

Untied Tobacco Sought For S.C.

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP)—South Carolina Tobacco Warehouse Assn. members are being urged to handle untied leaf.

The matter, an issue for years, was brought up before the association closed its annual meeting here today.

Both the State Farm Bureau and the State Granb recommended that the warehousemen agree to handle loose leaf, as is done in Florida and Georgia. It's bundled in the Carolinas and Virginia. Some growers have complained they get hardly anything extra for tying tobacco.

President E. H. Agnew of the Farm Bureau said Friday he would like to see an eight-day loose leaf selling period adopted.

Jack Cockfield of Hemingway was named president for 1959-60, succeeding Frank Brown of Kings-ree.

Deputy Director Jeff D. Johnson of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Tobacco Division advised the warehousemen that a congressional subcommittee is recommending full federal control of tobacco seed.

He said an acreage - poundage production control program, instead of just an acreage control program, is being considered by the government.

dures, according to the action. Decision to identify Civil Defense equipment with decals or other CD insignia was made after a suggestion by Nicholson for such action. The insignia are to be acquired by Rose for use by the local units.

Nicholson expressed "regret" to the group at being unable to help local units, particularly the rural fire departments, to obtain certain necessary equipment, such as pumps to be mounted on fire trucks. He explained that requests from Pitt County were part of a large group of requests for similar equipment, with some of the applications 18 months to two years old.

"We can't tell two weeks in advance what we will have," Nicholson said. "We don't get many pumps and there is a big demand for them."

Nicholson commended the Pitt County council for its work thus far in handling Civil Defense work "the way it should be done."

He added, "The law is complicated and my hands are tied in such matters. However, the intent of the law is to enhance the Civil Defense state of readiness. Day-by-day use of property is not authorized, in that it is property you get over and above day-by-day needs."

Nicholson also said that there was some leniency in authorizing use of certain equipment by rural fire departments. He reminded the

Elks To Sponsor Flag Day Rites Here Tomorrow

Greenville Elks Lodge No. 1645 will sponsor Flag Day services at the Elks Home on West Sixth St. tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. The services, which commemorate the founding of the American flag, will be open to the public. Chairman W. H. Watson said.

Watson said the services will be held in front of the lodge if weather permits. Otherwise they will be held in the lodge auditorium.

Refreshments are to be served following the ceremonies.

Flag Day is a national Elks project. Similar services are being held tomorrow throughout the nation.

Triple-Necked Squash In Garden

A rare triple-necked yellow squash was found yesterday in the home garden of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Mills, who live six miles east of Greenville on U. S. 264.

Mills said the squash is the only one he has ever seen with three necks, although he and Mrs. Mills have found several double squash in past years. The triple squash, when found, was about the size of a man's hand.

Christian Science Society
"God the Preserver of Man"—the Lesson-Sermon to be read at Christian Science services Sunday—is based upon the inspiring experiences of the patriarch Abraham.

Scriptural selections will include Paul's statement to the Galatians (3:7): "Know ye therefore that they which are of faith, the same are the children of Abraham."

The meaning for today of Abraham's lifework will be emphasized in selections read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy (579:12): "This patriarch illustrated the purpose of Love to create trust in God, and showed the life-preserving power of spiritual understanding."

The Golden Text is from Psalms (16:1): "Preserve me, O God: for in thee do I put my trust."

Woman Injured In Car Mishap

A Pitt County Negro woman was admitted this morning to Pitt Memorial Hospital where she is being observed for possible injuries as a result of a one-car accident at 8:15 a.m.

The woman is Virginia Gardner. She was a passenger in a car which overturned at Haddock's Crossroads. The driver, Richard Brown of Rt. 1, Ayden, was not injured in the crash which he said was caused by the vehicle's power steering hanging.

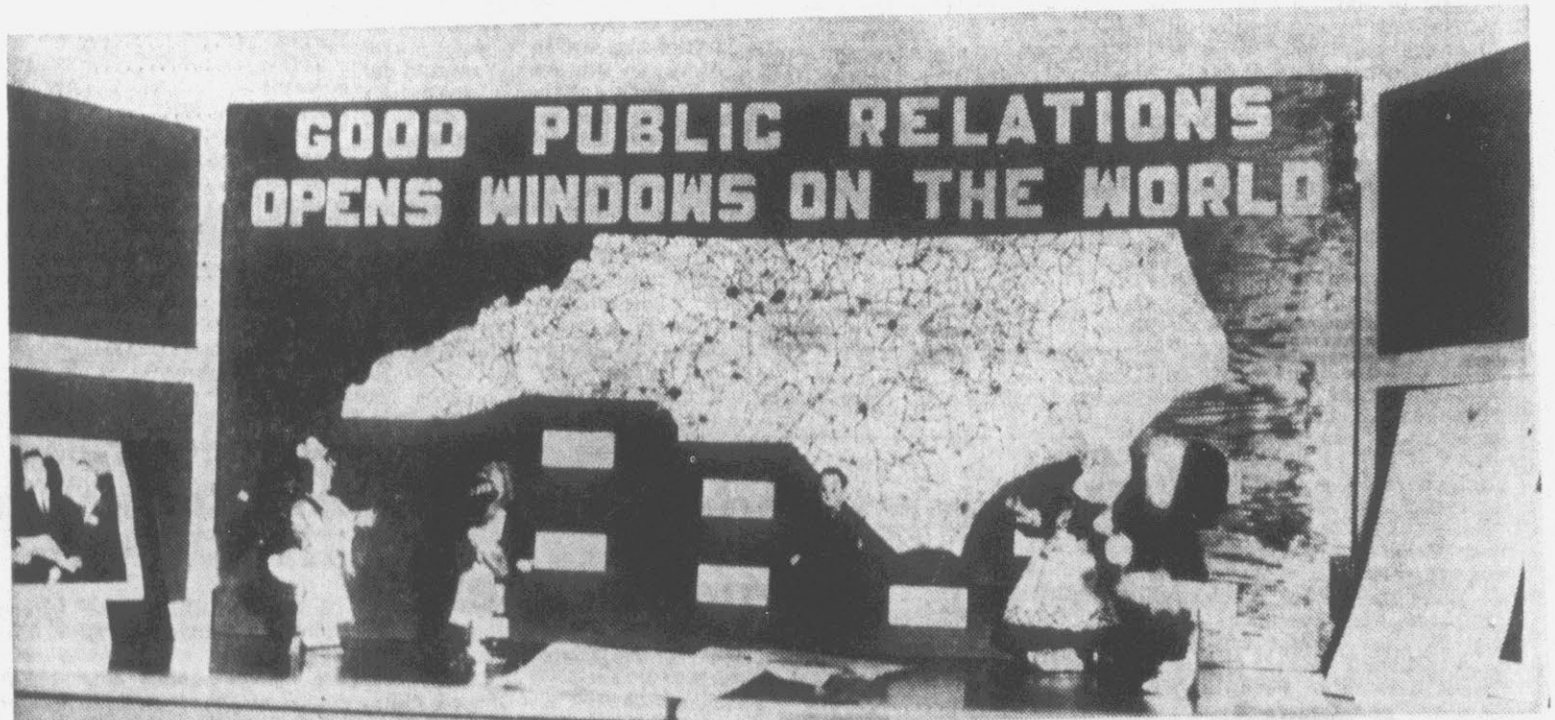

Highway Patrolman H. R. Winslow said the 1954 model car was a total loss, with damage estimated at between $400 and $600. Winslow said no charges have been placed, but that investigation is continuing.

Will Leave Sunday For National FBIA Convention

STATE FBIA EXHIBIT . . . to be entered at the National Convention in Washington, D. C. Monday and Tuesday.

Forty-one young people from different North Carolina high school and college chapters of the Future Business Leaders of America will leave here Sunday morning for the National Convention in Washington, D. C.

Joseph Collier Jr. of Pamlico County High School in Bayboro, North Carolina Chapter President, has also served as National President this year.

Collier and James L. White of the ECC faculty, State FBIA Advisor, left today for Washington. "Good Public Relations Open Windows on the World," is the theme of an exhibit to be entered at the convention. It was prepared under the direction of Mrs. Paul Clark and J. D. Willoughby, both of Ayden.

The FBIA is the national organization for high school and college students majoring in business. There are 75 chapters in North Carolina and a total of 2,000 chapters in the United States. It is sponsored by the United States. It is sponsored by the

Avers Borgnine A Wife-Beater

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—Actor Ernest Borgnine, who won a 1956 Oscar for portraying a lovable butcher, is a wife beater, says his estranged wife.

And Mexican actress Katy Jurado is a home wrecker, adds Rhoda K. Borgnine.

Mrs. Borgnine, 34, heavy set and matronly-looking, made the accusations Friday in asking Superior Court to set aside the interlocutory divorce decree granted her last Aug. 29.

Borgnine, 42, denied the accusations, and said he hopes to marry Miss Jurado. He denied she had anything to do with the breakup of his marriage.

In her 26-page affidavit, Mrs. Borgnine charged that Borgnine coerced her to file for divorce while she was highly nervous and under the influence of tranquilizers.

"He said he would say his sex life was unsatisfactory," the affidavit added, "and that I refused to have more children."

"He didn't realize I had an answer to all his allegations. He didn't know a woman never forgets getting beat up—lips swollen, eye blackened, black - and - blue marks so that the dress for the Academy Awards back in 1956 had to be changed in style so the marks didn't show."

The Borgnines were married in 1949 and have a 6-year-old daughter.

Collegians Tired Of 'One-Eyed Monster'

COMPTON, Calif. (AP)—TV, as an instructor, is strictly a one-eyed monster, from nowhere among the crew-cut set at Compton College.

The collegians say: They're tired of being guinea pigs in a pioneer TV education project.

Video instruction has all the fascination of an hour-long commercial.

It gets a zero in the campus audience rating — compared with an old-fashioned professor you can talk back to.

Friday more than 200 cut classes and picketed the campus with placards protesting "automatized education" and "robot classrooms." They hanged in effigy a headless figure called "pioneering spirit."

Sophomore Ted Hallisey, 20, a leader of the Student Organization for Better Education, explained: "When a student sees TV, he expects entertainment. He's expecting 'Gunsmoke,' not algebra. And there is no instructor to ask questions of and clear up misconceptions. It destroys the entire concept of student - teacher relationships."

The anti-TV faction says it has signatures of 1,300 students seeking to oust TV from the classroom and return it to the living room. The two-year Southern California school has an enrollment of 1,800. College President Paul Martin, who introduced TV instruction, blamed the faculty for the fuss.

He said only a minority of the students really oppose the project and he hopes to expand TV in-

Gave 56 Pints For Bloodmobile

AYDEN — Fifty-six pints of blood were donated Thursday when the Red Cross Bloodmobile visited here, and 23 people who volunteered to donate blood were rejected. Spokesman for the sponsoring Jaycees said it was a bad hour to have the unit because many people could not leave their jobs. He added there was good participation from the Negro population and it was greatly appreciated.

Wedding Gift Tips By Brides-Of-A-Year

A HAND-CUT CRYSTAL VASE . . . is an ideal decorative item for the home, according to Mrs. Robert Jackson of Greenville.

IDEAL FOR ENTERTAINING . . . are these coffee servers of Mrs. Clifton Aldridge of Greenville.

MOST CHERISHED GIFT . . . Mrs. Samuel Carson of Bethel admires her set of silver goblets.

Shopping for the bride-to-be?

Whether the big event is in June—or fall—gift buyers want their presents to be a big success with the newlyweds.

Today's bride is younger than her mother was when she was a bride, but she is more practical.

Furthermore, today's bride receives fewer oddly assorted, useless gifts.

In aiding the bridal shopper, the bride-elect makes a gift preference list. Here she records her choice of patterns in silverware, china, and crystal. And a record is kept of the gifts she receives so that gift givers may consult the list. That helps reduce exchanges to a minimum.

But that isn't the whole story.

Brides of one year can look back with the eyes of experience on a number of treasured, practical items received at wedding-time.

A survey of six Pitt County brides-of-a-year provided some interesting sidelights to the question of gifts for the bride.

Mrs. Thomas Eldson of Greenville admits that her most useful gift was a presto cooker. "Also other handy items in the kitchen are stainless steel ware and boontonware," she said.

"Little things to use in the kitchen and other parts of the home are treasured by a bride," stated Mrs. Jerry Britt of Ayden.

Mrs. Samuel T. Carson of Bethel suggests items to decorate the home such as ash trays, what-nots, and planter lamps (a gift which she received and "wouldn't give anything for it") for the gift-buyer.

For those who entertain a great deal, a nice percolator or coffee carafe is ideal, says Mrs. Clifton Aldridge of Greenville.

"All purchasers for bride's gifts should remember the economy of the couple or the situation in which they will live in selecting a gift, commented Mrs. Robert Forrest of Falkland.

"A good gift for a bride would be the gift desired by the giver who usually is an established homemaker," noted Mrs. Robert Jackson of Greenville.

Continuing, she explained, "Since brides receive most of their 'useful' gifts from their family and close friends, I think most brides would enjoy getting several non-essential gifts, such as decorative vases and things that will help make a small apartment attractive."

A SILVER SERVICE . . . is the most treasured wedding gift of Mrs. Jerry Britt of Ayden.

BRIDES LIKE SILVER . . . Mrs. Robert Forrest of Falkland thinks that most brides enjoy silver serving pieces.

KITCHEN WARE APPRECIATED . . . Majority of brides will be glad to receive items for their new kitchen, says Mrs. Thomas Eldson of Greenville.

Adult Counselor

Mrs. Bobby N. Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leon E. Stocks of Greenville, will serve as Adult Counselor June 14-20 during Central CYF Conference at Camp Carolina in Arapahoe. She will conduct a two hour study class daily.

July 20-25, Mr. and Mrs. Taylor will serve as an Adult Counselor Team during Chi Rho Adventure Camp, also to be held at Camp Carolina.

Both are active members of Red Oak Christian Church. Mrs. Taylor participates in the choir and is Adult Advisor to the Chi Rho Youth Group. Mr. Taylor is Assistant Scoutmaster to Boy Scout Troop 398.

Three College Buildings Now Seeing Improvements

Construction work in progress at East Carolina College this summer includes laying of new floors in the college post office and in the lobby of the South Dining Hall and minor alterations to convert Slay Hall from a men's to a women's dormitory.

Slay Hall, completed in 1950 and used since then as a dormitory for men students, has been assigned to women students for the 1959-60 school year. Alterations and additions designed to make the building suitable for use by women will be carried out during the present summer term.

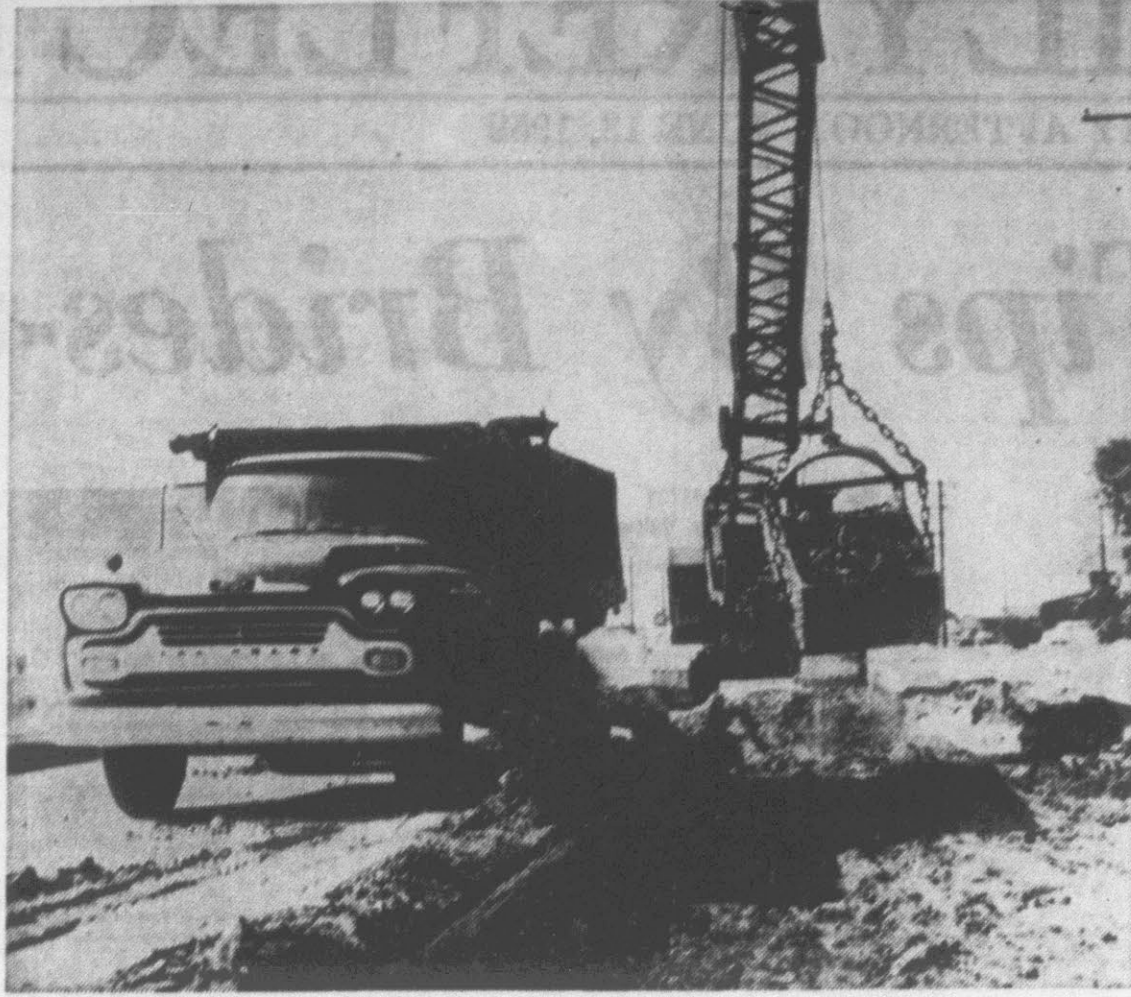

The college post office and the adjacent lobby of the South Dining Hall are now having old floors removed. During the summer season post office boxes and equipment have been installed in the East Dining Hall. Temporary steps on the exterior of the South Dining Hall provide access until the completions of construction.

The college post office was formerly the location of the college power plant. Wood sills and floors dating back approximately a quarter of a century are now being replaced by steel joists and concrete flooring. Both the post office and the lobby to the South Dining Hall will be equipped with terrazzo floors.

Work on the post office and the dining hall lobby was begun May 26 and will be completed in a period of sixty days from that time, according to F.D. Duncan, East Carolina vice president for business affairs.

DANGEROUS DRINK

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Jimmy Ray Wilson, 12, put his nickel in the dispensing machine and out popped a cup which was filled with a foamy white liquid. He drank it and then was rushed to the hospital where it was learned he had consumed laundry bleach. He recovered. The bleach had been put into the machine by mistake.

Packers Planning End Chicago Slaughtering

CHICAGO (AP)—An era in Chicago's meat packing industry is coming to a close.

Within a few weeks, all major companies which brought the city renown as "hog butcher for the world" will have quit livestock slaughtering in Chicago.

Wilson & Co., third largest meat packer in the nation, ceased slaughtering operations here four years ago. Swift & Co., the No. 1 meat producer, halted all slaughtering today and within the next few weeks Armour & Co., the second largest, also will shut down its plants here.

All ascribed the shutdowns to facilities too obsolete to be modernized profitably. Each had operated in Chicago more than 75 years. Most of that time they virtually comprised the industry here and made Chicago the largest livestock market in the world.

But with the expansion of railroad facilities and trucking operations, the companies built more modern plants elsewhere, always moving closer to sources of livestock supply and markets for meat.

The departure of these great companies from Chicago, however, does not leave the city without this major industry. There still are about 25 packers who buy approximately 25 per cent of all cattle and sheep and 30 per cent of all hogs shipped to Chicago for sale.

Others are taken by buyers for slaughter elsewhere, mostly at plants in the East. With about 50 such buyers representing almost 300 packers, industry spokesmen say there hardly is any likelihood that Chicago will lose its top ranking spot as a livestock market. Both Swift and Armour will continue buying here. Together, they have been taking about 16 per cent of the cattle offered for sale.

Over the past 10 years, the Chicago stockyards has handled an average of more than five million cattle, hogs and sheep a year.

Recovering From Rare Disease

PAWTUCKET, R.I. (AP)—Seven-month-old Michael Scully, reported near death from a rare disease only three days ago, was showing continued improvement today.

Dr. Arturo Longobardi, the intern who has been handling the case, Friday credited a new serum flown here from Denver.

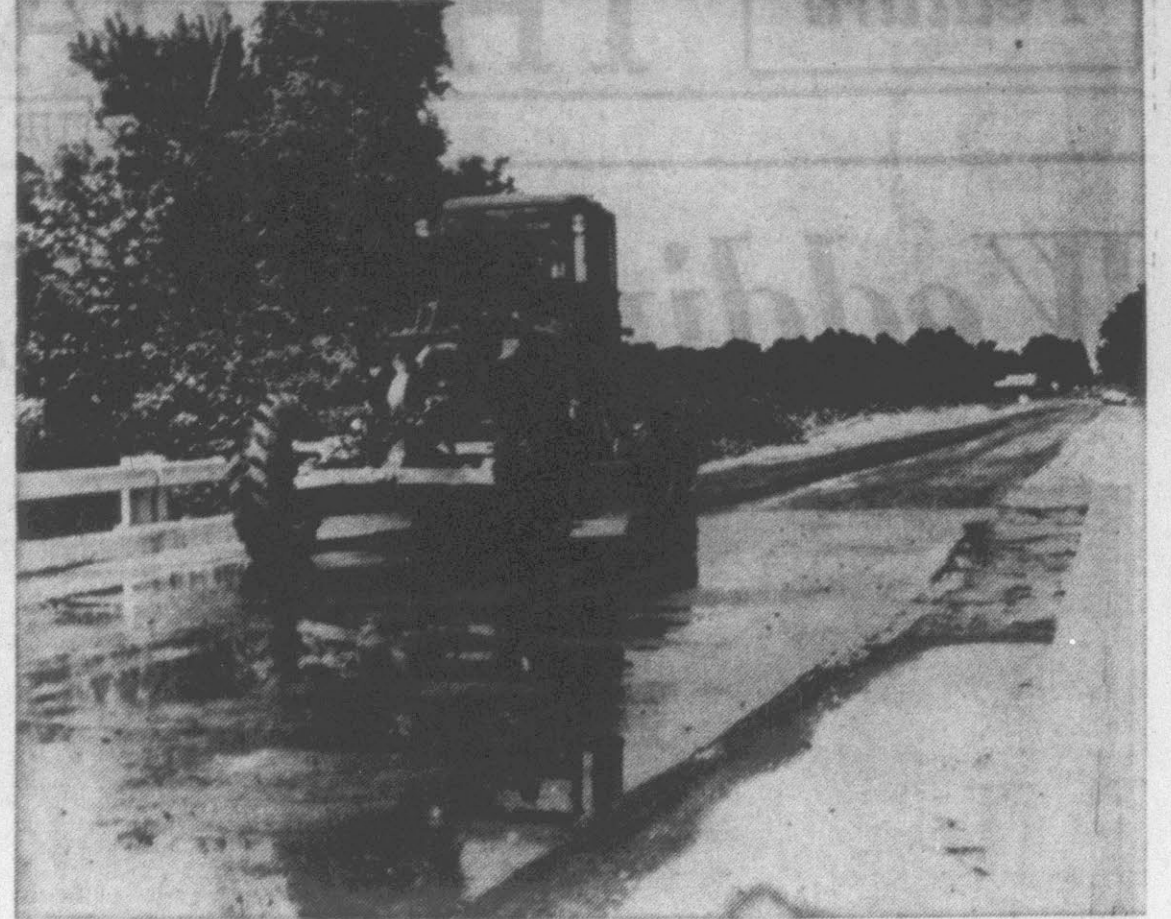

The infant was given the serum developed at the University of Colorado Medical School and immediately began to show improvement.

Michael is suffering from eczema vaccinatum, described as rare and usually fatal.

His temperature returned to normal Thursday after given the serum, and has continued normal.

Doctors now report Michael as apparently out of danger.

At the start of 1959, 4,925,000 persons were covered by employer-employee pension plans in the United States.

MUMFORD ROAD—A motor grader and road sprinkler were at work on the Mumford Road as approaches to a new concrete bridge are prepared for paving. The bridge replaced an older wooden bridge which had been located in a sharp curve. Workmen installed a new fill and relocated the bridge to eliminate the curve. (Reflector Staff Photo)

Stowaway Thinks Job Is In Order

SAN LEANDRO, Calif. (AP)—Stowaway Sharon Forsberg, anticipating a financial talk with her parents, says "I badly need a job."

Sharon, 20, a student at San Francisco State College, returned home Friday from Hawaii. She had stowed away a week earlier on a freighter for Honolulu, hoping to see a boy friend. Turned out he'd gone to New York.

After she was discovered aboard ship, her father paid her fare and bought her an airplane ticket for the return trip.

That amounted to about $426.

Narcotics Count Facing Singer Now In Hospital

NEW YORK (AP)—Blues singer Billie Holiday, critically ill in a hospital, was arrested Friday and charged with illegal possession of heroin.

Miss Holiday, 49, has been in Metropolitan Hospital since May 31 for treatment of hepatitis, anemia and a heart condition.

Authorities were alerted Thursday when a nurse reported seeing a white powder on Miss Holiday's nose and a silver foil package in her hand. The nurse turned the package over to the hospital superintendent, and an analysis showed the powder to be pure heroin.

Miss Holiday said the drug was in her handbag when she entered the hospital. Police believe she may have gotten it from one of her numerous visitors. Police said a bedside arrangement will be held when and if she is well enough for the proceedings.

NOT AWOL AT ALL

CHAPTER 22

Virgil Baudon was turning the pages in his notebook rapidly, when a figure sprang suddenly into view. It did not seem to go with the rest. He held the book up closer, adjusting his glasses. A five-letter figure.

What was a five-letter figure doing in his book, in which he wrote down only the figures on the wheel? Zero, one, two, four and five. Like a telephone number. And, below it, an address.

And then he remembered. Remembered as if it were happening now—Corinne Javal coming up to their bench in the park, filled with such tension that, for a long time, she hadn't said anything at all, until it had burst from her lips.

"I don't know. I don't know. I'm so close to it. If I don't find out tonight, I never will. Yes, yes, Timmy. And if I find out, I'll call Mark Travers. The young American I told you about. Don't you ever remember anything? But you must remember this:

"If anything goes wrong, you must contact him. He'll be at the Beach Hotel. And you must give him this address and telephone number. It's where one of them lives. He might be able to go on from there. Here, give me your little book. I'll write them down, then you don't have to remember them."

And he had forgotten. He had forgotten to call Mark Travers, even when he hadn't heard from Corinne all day, even when the phone had come over the radio that she had suffered a fatal accident.

But hadn't he spoken to Travers? Of course, he had. Travers had come to him, but he had forgotten to give him the address and telephone number. Slowly Virgil Baudon picked up one chip after the other and put them in his pocket. He couldn't gamble now or he might forget again. First he had to give the young American this important information.

He moved his chair, tried to get up, and felt something small and hard, and heard a voice whisper close to his ear, "I would advise you to remain seated and continue to play. You might win, you know. It may be your last chance."

For a couple of minutes the colonel sat very still, and in those few minutes he remembered the years when everybody had respected him, when, as a matter of fact, he had had quite a reputation for finding a way out of impossible situations.

Maybe he could think his way out of this. Maybe the sudden old brain would function clearly and intuitively just once more. He knew it wouldn't do any good to cry out the address. Before he had said it all, he would be dead. Nor did he look around to see who was threatening him.

If he had to die, what did it matter who killed him as long as Travers got the message? If only he'd stay and not move on.

Travers was still there, a beautiful girl at his side. And all of a sudden he knew what to do—if he couldn't give Travers the address, he might at least be able to pass on the telephone number. Quickly he took the chips out of his pocket, grabbed a rake and placed on plain, on zero, on the numbers one, two, four and five, and on car and cheval.

"Finished," called the croupier. The ball rolled.

"The two."

He had never played with so many chips as were pushed toward him. Nor had the croupier ever been so polite. He shoved a big red one over to him and the croupier chanted in unison, all eight of them, "Merci, pour les employés."

"Double. All of them," called Baudon.

The two again. When it had been paid out, Baudon leaned back in his chair. "Maximum on zero, on one, two, four and five, car and cheval." He tried to speak as loudly as he could but somehow he had lost his voice.

"The four." A chip for a million francs lay in front of him. He stared at it. How many nights had he dreamed of just such a moment.

"The same again," he said. "Maximum."

Yes, there was the silence of which he had always dreamed, the silence of respect.

"The one." And a babel of voices, doubly loud after the silence. "He's got it again." "Lucky bird, he's gotten into a series." A movement to his left. The croupier was changing.

But in spite of the fact that a different man was turning the wheel, people were trying to ride his luck—zero, one, two, four and five. A waiter appeared suddenly at his right with a little silver tray, a cigar, a glass of Scotch. "Water or soda, Monsieur?"

That's how you were treated when you won. When you lost, you were nobody. Of course, it wasn't mere courtesy, the free cigar, the free drink. They wanted you to stay, to play on, to lose all you had won, not leave with it.

Well, he was going to do them the favor, even if he lost everything.

"Maximum. Zero, one, two, four and five."

If only Travers wouldn't stand there, smiling happily. If only he would catch on. Virgil Baudon made a little gesture—putting down his elbow on the table, he cupped his ear.

"The five." "I have watched him night after night," someone close to Mark said. "He always loses. But then, there is no system. See how right I was? Tonight he doesn't even look into his books or consult his papers, he's just trusting his intuition. You have to believe in your luck. Well, let's see how long his luck lasts."

The colonel, looking up, saw Mark Travers turn away from the table, his hand on the pretty girl's arm. Had he understood? If only Travers would give him a sign, indicating that he had got the message.

Baudon raised his glass. Travers stopped and nodded before he went on. Thank God, thought the colonel, thank God, and he emptied the glass, smiling happily, triumphantly.

"The same again," he said. "Zero, one, two, four and five."

He couldn't breathe any longer. Everything went black before his eyes, he put his hand on the table to brace himself.

"The excitement's done it." "He is ill." "Dead, I think."

Mark Travers heard it, the hushed voices, the pity, the terror of sudden death, the deep silence, then a voice asking, "Is there a doctor in the house?"

He pushed his way back through the crowd, gathering at the place of tragedy. Slumped forward over the table lay the colonel.

To his left and right the chairs had been vacated, as if death were a catching disease. Empty, too, was the space behind him.

The tall, thin, black-haired man who had been trailing either him or Baudon, and who had stood behind Baudon as if glued to the floor, was nowhere to be seen.

Mark put his arm around Fleur's shoulder and could feel her trembling uncontrollably.

Remembering what Perrier had said of a sudden death by poison in the gambling rooms, Mark had to force himself to remain calm. He might be next.

Mark faces a fearsome fact: "They will try to kill me any moment now." There's an electric episode as the novel continues here tomorrow.

WILMINGTON, Del. — On our annual trek into Yankeland we have the following comments to make: Weather—hot and sticky. Driving conditions: hot and sticky. Our advice to you: Stay home. We did find out some more things about Wilmington, where we stayed with some ex-Greenville friends — Wilmington, Delaware, that is, which we've always thought of as the place where Greenville Duponts want to go home to die, and not much else. . . . Actually, it's a beautiful city with many attractions: "Winterthur" is a stunning mansion one of the most luxurious in the world and well worth seeing along with the Longwood Gardens, full of azaleas and what-all in the true Tangle tradition. Then there's the Hagley Museum, illustrating graphically how industry has developed along the Brandywine River, all with the help of the Duponts, who have done pretty well around here.

Speaking of mansions, we visited a few up in Virginia, complete with 900 acres. One, called Carter Hall, had two guest-shacks—about 14 rooms each—which we would be happy to call our own anytime.

And one horse-farm—Audley in Berryville—you really ought not to miss if you want to see how beautiful life can be for horses. To buy, we understand, it's all yours for $250,000.

Heritage Preview Coming out Monday will be the June issue of AMERICAN HERITAGE, the Magazine of History.

Gov't To Push Steel Parleys NEW YORK (AP)—The federal government will move Monday in an attempt to jog stalemated steel negotiations.

Joseph P. Finnegan, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, meets with David J. McDonald, president of the United Steelworkers Union.

The following Monday he will meet with Roger M. Blough, chairman of the board of U.S. Steel Corp. Both meetings will be in Washington. McDonald and Blough will bet here to outline their positions at dinner sessions before a group of Democratic Senators.

Sen. Joseph S. Clark (D-Pa.) took the lead in arranging the dinner meetings. One of his aides said he expected the pattern would be for an opening statement of position by the guest, followed by a question period. Clark has invited all the other 63 Democratic Senators to attend.

Finnegan emphasized that his talks with McDonald and Blough were not formal government intervention. He said he just wanted to "take a reading" on the situation. He said, however, that he had requested the meetings.

With less than three weeks to go in the steel talks agreement is apparently as far away as ever. The present contract—covering half a million steelworkers—expires June 30. A strike would shut down 90 per cent of the nation's steel production.

In Error, But Few To Disagree SHELBY, N. C. (AP)—The Shelby Daily Star said few of the girls' fathers could find anything wrong when The Star made a typographical error earlier this week.

The error appeared in a story about a sub-debante ball sponsored by the Junior Charity League. A sentence in the story referred to the sub-debs as "sub-debs."

It was Oscar Wilde who said: "Nowadays people know the price of everything and the value of nothing."

Today's Review One of Greenville's clever and attractive housewives, who ought to know what she's talking about, comments on a recent book about the world's greatest lover—not Ben Franklin.

THE MEMOIRS OF JACQUES CASANOVA DE SEINGALT—VENETIAN YEARS. Translated from the French by Arthur Machen. New York: G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1959.

The name Casanova has spelled Great Love for 200 years, and here in his memoirs he tells ALL. He lived such a varied life it took over 700 pages to tell about his first 27 years. I'm sure he ate his Wheaties, or their 18th century counterpart, daily, to keep up his stamina.

I was particularly interested in the changes in the way of life that have taken place since then, but I noticed that people have not changed. Casanova described some of the medical practices of the day, when bleeding was an accepted treatment. The military was very unsystematic; he bought a commission in the Venetian Army, and designed his own uniform. The Church authority was very lenient; he obtained permission from the Pope to eat meat on fast days merely because he disliked fish. Casanova was a schemer, quite often for no purpose other than to be scheming. He had a remarkable memory and wrote when, as he said, he was too old to do anything else. I thoroughly enjoyed this first volume, and am waiting anxiously for the other five to be published.
