Pitt Deputies Are Now Uniformed

House Approves Highway Point System In A Rush

RALEIGH (AP)—A huge House majority passed a highway safety measure today setting up a point system by which the Department of Motor Vehicles could suspend licenses of habitual traffic liars.

After an 11th hour debate which raged for more than two hours the House approved the measure on second reading 81-22.

When Jackson Rep. Marcellus Buchanan, a lawyer foe of the measure, objected to third reading, the House suspended the rules by a two-thirds vote, overrode his objection and sent the bill on to the Senate for concurrence with House changes.

Two amendments were adopted. One based the point system on the date of commission rather than date of conviction of each traffic offense. The other said that violations committed out of state would not be counted in the point system.

Under the bill, persons accumulating 12 points within two years can lose their licenses for 60 days. If, after getting it back, they acquire eight more points within the two-year period, they can lose it for six months.

The original bill provided for the system to be controlled by the date the violations were committed. The Senate amended it to read "date of conviction," and the House restored the original wording.

Rep. Tim Valentine of Nash said by not adopting the amendment the House would place a "serious loophole" in the bill. "It would place in the hands of the defense attorney the ability to thwart justice by getting a case continued continually," he explained.

"It would be a great injustice to the people we represent if we place in this bill a loophole which would make it unworkable," he added.

Burke County's Joe Byrd, introduced the amendment and one of the bill's chief proponents, said the Senate would concur. "This bill is designed for the purpose of making our highways safer," he added.

RALEIGH (AP)—Legislation requiring caution labels on plastic bags used on merchandise, laundry or dry cleaning was passed by the Senate today and headed for the House where it faces highly uncertain future.

The Senate approved the bill after its sponsor, Sen. Grady Mercer of Duplin read an Associated Press story which said that the plastics industry is launching a gigantic advertising campaign to warn folks of the danger of children becoming suffocated by the plastic bags. The article said that 61 deaths in the nation this year could be attributed to them. Some 40 of these were children six months old or younger and most of these resulted from plastic covering on articles of bed covering.

Angry Gov. Long Battles All Way

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—Hoarsely screaming curses, Gov. Earl K. Long of Louisiana battled all the way with sheriff's deputies Thursday night as they hauled him to a mental hospital for the second time in three weeks.

"God damn it, God damn it, God damn it," the ruffled and sweating governor bellowed.

"Hell, I'm not going to get in there," he yelled when they tugged him into a sheriff's car to take him to southeast Louisiana State Hospital at Mandeville, 50 miles to the east.

The 63-year-old governor swung a roundhouse right at a deputy but missed.

"You all look, you all look," he shouted.

Dr. Chester Williams, coroner of East Baton Rouge Parish, said Gov. Long had suffered from delusions of persecution. The medical name is paranoid schizophrenia.

But Long remained unconvinced that he needed hospital treatment.

"I don't feel I need to be hospitalized," Long told physicians at the Mandeville institution.

Dr. Charles Belcher, acting superintendent of Southeast, indicated Thursday night in an interview with the Associated Press that Long must remain in his hospital at least 30 days.

Dr. Belcher said this morning Long spent a quiet night. The plans today, he said, call only for rest. The governor was placed in a wing of the hospital that has been closed. He was alone in a ward.

This latest chapter in the weird and tragic story of Earl Kemp Long pitched Louisiana politicians into additional jitters. Who is to take over the duties of governor? Lt. Gov. Lethor Frazier, it is supposed, will step into the breach, as he did when members of the Long family flew a drugged and unwilling governor May 30 to a psychiatric clinic at John Sealy Hospital in Galveston, Tex. However, nothing is certain.

In his New Orleans hotel, the lieutenant governor hastily declined to say one word on the situation.

"Oh, no, I have nothing to say. I have no comment," he said as he ducked into an elevator.

"They may impeach me for being so dumb," Frazier told other newsmen, "but I don't know where I stand."

Atty. Gen. Jack Gremillion said: "The only thing I can say is the law provides that if the governor is unable to serve, the lieutenant governor acts as governor ad interim until the disability is removed."

Then he added: "However, I am not attempting to tell the lieutenant governor what to do."

Long had agreed to remain at Ochsenr voluntarily. Hospital officials indicated earlier he was free to leave any time he wished. He was under no guard at Ochsenr.

Arrest Man On Break-In Count During Night

BETHEL—Bethel police assisted by the Pitt County Sheriff's Department arrested William Arthur Taylor, Negro, of Route 1, Bethel, on charges of breaking, entering and larceny, approximately 40 minutes after a store was entered and $441 in change was taken.

According to Chief of Police Walter Gray, Officer Roy Jackson found the door of the Manning Supply Company open about 11:15 p.m. and notified the owners. Upon investigation it was found a brick had been thrown through the glass and the cash register had been broken open.

According to Gray, Taylor was arrested shortly after and placed in jail. The chief said Taylor had been drinking and refused to give his age.

Deputy Sheriff Duke Andrews and City-County Identification Officer Walter Thomas assisted in the investigation.

Ready To Meet Western Allies

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Harold Macmillan today was reported ready to fly to Washington for a Western summit meeting if the foreign ministers return empty handed from Geneva.

His plan would be to thrash out with President Eisenhower, President Charles de Gaulle of France, and possibly Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of West Germany the West's next move in negotiations with the Soviet Union.

Gromyko Refuses West's Bid For A Stopgap Berlin Solution

GENEVA (AP)—Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko today refused to accept the West's latest proposals for a stopgap Berlin solution even as a basis of discussion.

A British delegation spokesman said Gromyko advanced new proposals for an interim Berlin arrangement but these have given "no new hope" to the West for a solution.

"Mr. Gromyko has not accepted the Western proposals even as a basis for discussion, the British spokesman said.

Furthermore the Soviet position as put forward this afternoon by Mr. Gromyko, coupled with Mr. Khrushchev's speech has given no new hope to the Western delegations for a solution."

In Moscow, Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev declared in a speech at the Kremlin that the allied occupation of West Berlin must end. The British statement, echoed by other Western delegations, was issued during an intermission between two secret sessions of the Big Four foreign ministers.

Western informants later said

Gromyko's proposals today broadly reflected the remarks made by Khrushchev. One suggestion by Gromyko was that he could consider prolonging the one-year time limit which Russia has proposed for the continuation of the occupation regime in West Berlin. Another was that the rival East and West German regimes conclude a nonaggression pact.

The prospect immediately arose that U.S. Secretary of State Christian A. Herter, British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd and French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville would take up with Gromyko the question of recessing the conference.

They arranged to meet Gromyko again at 5 p.m.—11 a.m. EST—evidently to give Gromyko their initial reaction.

They had gone into his villa expecting to get a reply to their last-chance offer made earlier this week for a compromise Berlin settlement.

Presumably that is what they got, but a Western statement said only: "The meeting lasted 35 minutes. Gromyko made some new proposals. The Western foreign ministers said they wanted time to study them and then went to the French delegation headquarters. The foreign ministers will meet again at 5 o'clock."

The sharp tone of Khrushchev's speech accorded with Western expectations here that Gromyko would come up with an unacceptable counterproposal.

Khrushchev showed no inclination to shut off negotiations, saying the one-year Soviet time limit for a solution of the Berlin dispute can be discussed. He denied the time limit was an ultimatum.

The Khrushchev speech, Western diplomats said, was clearly timed for the opening of today's Big Four session at Gromyko's villa.

Khrushchev had conferred with East German leaders in Moscow and kept silent—until today.

Then, less than 30 minutes before the Geneva talks were to resume, Moscow radio began broadcasting a Khrushchev speech saying the Soviet Union would sign a separate peace treaty "if the West continued to hinder the settlement of the German question."

He also said control of communications to West Berlin under a peace treaty would pass into the hands of East Germans "as representatives of a sovereign state" and not as agents of the Soviet Union.

The heart of the Western plan is a provision for continuing the Allied occupation of West Berlin. The heart of Soviet opposition is that the occupation status must be ended.

Khrushchev again emphasized his interest in going to one or more summit conferences.

Khrushchev Says Summit Meeting Is More Necessary

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev said today a summit meeting becomes all the more necessary if the Geneva meeting of foreign ministers breaks down.

He expressed confidence a conference of heads of state will take place.

"We hold," he said at a mass rally in the Kremlin for a visiting East German delegation, "that if the foreign ministers do not reach agreement in Geneva, a meeting at the summit will become all the more necessary."

"I would be glad to go, not only to one but to several summit meetings."

He said the one-year Soviet time limit set for a solution of the Berlin dispute "can be discussed" and never was meant to be an ultimatum.

But he warned the West the Allied occupation of West Berlin must end and he will sign a separate peace treaty with East Germany unless the Western powers come to terms.

He added: "The Soviet government wanted to sign a peace treaty with a united sovereign German state, but as this was not possible—and if the West continued to hinder the settlement of the German question—nothing remained for the Soviet Union but to sign a peace treaty with one sovereign state."

Speaking to visiting East German Communist leaders, Khrushchev said: "The Soviet Union regrets that the Western powers do not want to sign a peace treaty, but the West should understand that nothing will hinder the Soviet Union from signing a treaty with the German Democratic Republic."

When such a treaty is signed, he said, it will mean the end of the occupation of East Germany's territory.

"If attempts would be made by powers to maintain the occupation by force, the Soviet Union would support the G.D.R. with all means at its disposal, and would defend the G.D.R. as an ally of the Warsaw Pact," he said.

Some people in the West, he went on, have "the illusion that conditions would remain the same after the peace treaty, and that communications with Berlin would remain."

"But what foundation is there for this?"

"Any control of communications would be carried out by G.D.R. personnel as representatives of a sovereign state and not, as the West says, as representatives of the Soviet Union."

"Any time limit suggested by the Soviet Union in its proposals can be discussed. They never were meant to be ultimatum-like, and can be discussed in a business-like way."

"All the pros and cons should be discussed—obviously the two sides have to meet each other half way. The time limit is not the most important thing. What is important is agreement on the main questions."

Discussing the Geneva talks, he said "the conference has not so far been crowned with success but some strides have been made in this direction. If the West drops its unfounded dreams it would be possible to come to an agreement."

He said the Soviet Union considered a summit conference necessary and if it were required he would gladly meet Western representatives more than once.

He warned the West it could not hope to impose its own conditions upon anybody.

Rap Indifference To Polio Shots

RALEIGH (AP)—Public indifference to vaccination against polio has been criticized by a state health official who reports an increase in paralytic polio cases.

Dr. Fred T. Poard of the State Board of Health in Raleigh said Thursday 11 cases of polio have been reported in North Carolina this year, compared with 6 cases through June 14 of last year. This year's 11 cases included 9 involving paralysis. Poard added, while 2 of the 6 for the comparable period last year were paralytic. The number of paralytic cases this year, Dr. Poard warned, is very high percentage among the total cases reported.

Strauss Rejected; People Are Losers, Asserts Ike

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower said today that the American people are the losers in what he called the sad episode of Senate rejection of Lewis L. Strauss as secretary of commerce.

The grim-faced President took the highly unusual step of calling newsmen into his White House office to read a brief statement.

At the outset, Eisenhower noted that the Senate Thursday night refused to confirm Strauss for the Cabinet post.

The turn-down came in a dramatic post-midnight roll call 49-46.

Eisenhower went on to praise Strauss warmly.

"He called Strauss a man who has loyalty, honorably and effectively served his nation under four presidents."

Eisenhower said further that if the nation is to be denied the right to have officials of proven ability and integrity in responsible government positions, then "indeed it is the American people who are the losers in this sad episode."

The statement was squarely in line with the position the President has taken throughout the long fight—that Strauss is an effective, dedicated and upright public servant.

Opponents on the other hand had argued that Strauss had been devious and less than frank in his dealings with Congress and the people.

The issue of public vs. private power had also come into the affair through Strauss' connection as head of the Atomic Energy Commission with the bitter Dixey-Yates controversy.

Eisenhower read his handwritten statement before a hastily setup battery of cameras and floodlights.

He strode briskly into his oval, green-carpeted office after a conference in a small anteroom with Strauss.

The Strauss visit was set up after the Senate action.

On arrival at the White House, Strauss smiled broadly as he stepped from his car. He hurried past waiting newsmen, saying: "I'm late for the boss."

There still was no indication what Eisenhower would do next about the commerce post.

Later Strauss told newsmen he harbors no bitterness.

Talking informally in the White House press room after his meeting with Eisenhower, Strauss said he had learned from former President Herbert Hoover and the late Sen. Robert A. Taft (R-Ohio) "how to conduct oneself in adversity."

Strauss, once Hoover's private secretary, said he was with Hoover the night he was defeated for re-election by Franklin D. Roosevelt, in 1932. The rejected Cabinet nominee said he also was with Taft when Eisenhower defeated the Ohio senator for the Republican presidential nomination in 1952.

"Those are examples of how to conduct oneself in adversity," Strauss himself smiled readily during the conversation.

He said his plans for the future are not fixed—there are many things he would like to do but he has yet to decide on any priority.

Lawmakers Set Saturday Goal

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina's weary lawmakers looked ahead today to final adjournment of the General Assembly Saturday.

The hour of adjournment has not been agreed upon, said Lt. Gov. Luther Barnhardt, who presides over the Senate.

The Senate passed a resolution Thursday setting 6 p.m. as the adjournment time. Barnhardt said the House held up action on the resolution because it may be that adjournment can come before that hour.

If the Assembly is not ready to adjourn by 6 p.m., the clocks can be stopped at the time to show that was the adjournment hour.

Both the House and Senate held long sessions Thursday and disposed of a batch of bills. Barnhardt reported that the Senate still had about 40 bills hanging. He added the House probably has the same number.

Major bills cleared away Thursday were the biennial revenue measure and the firemen's pension fund, both of which were enacted by the Senate.

The House enacted bills splitting the 9th and 14th legislative districts. This will provide additional solicitors to prosecute Superior Court dockets in the areas Mecklenburg and Gaston, which have comprised the 14th, will be separated. By splitting the 9th, Cumberland and Hoke will be in one district and Bladen and Robeson will form the new district.

Highway Patrol Gas Funds Low

RALEIGH (AP)—Because funds for gasoline are running short, the State Highway Patrol has instructed troopers to cut out any unnecessary cruising.

Asst. Motor Vehicles Commissioner Joe Garrett said Thursday "We felt like at the rate we were spending that what's left might not go through the fiscal year" which ends June 30.

Garrett said the department already has transferred about $25,000 from other funds to the gas and oil fund. As of June 1, only $30,000 was in the latter fund, he said.

Garrett noted that the high-powered motors in the patrol cars require high test gasoline and the automatic transmissions reduce mileage.

Summer Training Activities Underway For Reservist Unit

Annual summer training activities are under way for the 4072nd Reception Station (formerly of 3015th) which is comprised of units from Greenville, Goldsboro, Wilson and New Bern. Lt. Col. George S. Dewey, Jr., of Goldsboro is in command of the group while at Fort Jackson again this year.

The contingent was welcomed officially to camp early Monday morning for its two weeks of active duty by Major General Christian H. Clarke, commander of Fort Jackson. After the orientation and welcome the officers and men of the 4072nd were broken down into their various work sections.

The Greenville unit, while working independently at home, becomes an integral part of the 4072nd Reception Station while at summer camp. This group is commanded by Major Gordon B. Berry at home. Major Berry is the Executive Officer for the group during active duty training. His assistant is Major James F. Davenport, Jr.

The 4072nd is set up to become a complete Reception Station while on active duty. It has its own Headquarters section which is composed of the Greenville unit. The section of men from New Bern, under the command of Captain Edward L. Hanna, Jr., does the cooking for the entire 4072nd. This allows the men to eat in their own chow hall or have their own food during field problems.

However, one of the largest single Greenville groups makes up the Headquarters section. These men actually are employed in the capacity of setting up and looking after the operation of the whole 4072nd Reception Station while at camp.

Working in various positions around the Post are other Greenville men and branches. One is the Operations and Control branch commanded by CWO-2 Sherman M. Parks of Greenville. Another important section is that of the Adjutant which has First Lieutenant Marvin V. Horton of Tarboro in charge. Order cuttings and amendments are handled by this section. The Morning Report with Sp-5 James E. Jenkins in charge works out of this group.

The Personal Affairs branch, commanded by First Lieutenant George Johnson of Greenville attends to such matters as allotments, W-2 forms and other records. Lieutenant Johnson was the advance officer to summer camp acting as Supply Chief. Captain Julian M. Davenport, Washington, N. C. is in charge of Headquarters company which is regarded as the same as the regular company commander.

Lt. Col. Dewey who is CO for the entire 4072nd Reception Station at home as well as at camp resides in Goldsboro. However, his permanent headquarters is at Greenville.

Crafts Workshop Held

ALUMINUM-CHASING AND EMBOSsing . . . items are being made by Mrs. Ruth Cornell of Wake County.

By ROSALIE MOORE
Reflector Staff Writer

Approximately 100 Home Demonstration leaders and agents from 18 counties in Northeastern North Carolina attended a crafts workshop held this week at East Carolina College.

The purpose of the workshop was to train leaders and agents in the skills, techniques and standards of crafts. The leaders and agents in attendance will teach crafts to smaller groups of Home Demonstration members in various counties.

The three main divisions of crafts taught were native materials (corn shucks, pine needles and pine cones), fabrics and metals. Under the three divisions, aluminum-chasing and embossing, aluminum-etching, reed baskets, braided rugs, copper tooling, corn shuck chair bottoms, drawn work, pine cone wreaths, pine needle baskets, stenciling and Swedish darning were taught by leaders and agents, who had previously been trained in the various crafts.

"The articles made in the workshop can be useful and beautiful in the home and they can also be used as another means of supplementing the income," stated Miss Iola Pritchard, extension specialist from Raleigh.

Highlights of the three-day workshop were an illustrated talk on "Crafts in the Home" given by Miss Pauline Gordon, specialist in house furnishings, on Tuesday night, a tea given by the home economics students at the Home Management House on Wednesday and vespers services each night.

Nursing Is Profession

MRS. BURNEY TUCKER . . . wife of Winterville's mayor, enjoys serving the public.

By PEGGY SMITH
Reflector Woman's Editor

"Nursing gives me great satisfaction because I've always wanted to serve people."

That was the reason given by Mrs. Burney Tucker of Winterville for her present professional career, that of an office nurse.

A mother of three children, she is the wife of Winterville's mayor who has held office for the past six years.

Mrs. Tucker has been in the nursing field for the past 14 years.

"I can combine housework with an outside career because I enjoy doing both, therefore it doesn't seem so much like a task," said Mrs. Tucker when asked how she ran a household smoothly and worked daily in the business world.

Being from a large family and having worked, Mrs. Tucker says that meeting and being with people is for her the most enjoyable part of her husband's job.

While at home, her time is spent mostly in the kitchen. When she isn't cooking pizza pies for Susan, Leland, and Jeff, she is trying some type of new recipe which she considers her hobby.

"Through experience I've found when cooking, always follow a recipe," explained Mrs. Tucker. If she plans to really please her husband at dinner time, all she has to do is cook fried chicken, Mr. Tucker's favorite food. Creamed potatoes, garden peas, a salad and a dessert (especially a home-made ice box pie) completes his idea of a perfect meal.

While Greenville received only a slight rainfall from the heavy cloud appearing east and north- east of the city yesterday, other districts were visited by consider- able hail.

Hail was reported along the route between the western bound- aries of this city and Kinston, several farmers reporting much damage to crops.

The Travis Hooker farm on the outskirts of Greenville, suffered extensively from hail, but the full damage could not be determined.

Transformed Truck Is Handy Item For Vacation Trips Or Camp-Outs

EVEN HAS AN ICE BOX . . . Carolyn and Susan raid the ice box that goes on trips with the family.

By MARTHA PIERCE
Reflector Staff Writer

What is this house on wheels? A trailer, truck, moving van? Nope. None of these terms accurately describe the transformed railway transfer truck that will take Amos Leggett and his family of 211 Library St. where ever they might decide to wander.

Seven wheels (including the steering wheel), four beds, one ice-box, one shower, a portable gas stove now are part of the Leggett family for a total cost of $260.

Friends, who knew Leggett was interested in a truck body, notified him when the one he now has was going to be auctioned. He submitted his bid of $135 to the Express agent in town and walked off with the title to one "slightly used" railway express truck.

Materials and equipment for the renovation were all donated or bought at a reasonable price. "Everyone gave tips on where to find things," said Leggett.

"We could hardly sleep for the first several weeks for planning. During the day I would get an idea and call her (Mrs. Leggett) up and she would think of something else and call me back."

First in the transformation of truck to living quarters was a coat of paint on the truck interior. Next the bunks were welded in navy-style with the help of a local automotive body shop. The top bunks are hinged so that they can be folded against the wall.

Water supply for this self-designed home-on-wheels comes from two five-gallon jugs of drinking water and a 40-gallon water tank riding on top of the truck for showers and dish washing. For preparing meals a charcoal cooker and portable two-burner gas stove are taken along. Lights are provided by battery power and an oil lantern.

The first trip was made to the Cliffs of the Neuse. Experience with too many bugs and lack of ice called for the addition of screens for the front and back doors and an old ice box.

In comparing the advantages of his camping truck to a cottage, Leggett comments, "What we like most about it is that we can go different places; and once we get where we are going, we can move the truck around to take advantage of the shade and breeze."

Leggett's continuing praise of his camping truck brought out that it used very little oil and the motor and brakes seemed to be in good condition. He mentioned that a governor limiting the trucks speed to 40 mph had been left on the truck, and it averaged about nine miles per gallon.

A curiosity piece, the camping truck evokes comments from people on the highway and at the beach.

"Whenever we stop for gas, we almost have to give a guided tour. On the way down to Salter Path last weekend a man flagged us down to see what we had on the inside," says Leggett.

Because of its great attraction, Leggett states, they have never had trouble finding places to park it.

A woman's touch is apparent in the curtains that cover the front and side windows for added privacy.

On the last eight weekends the Leggett family have traveled 1,000 miles in their camping truck. Places they have visited include Salter Path, Moore's Beach, Whichard's Beach, and Cliffs of the Neuse. Tentative vacation plans are for a trip in the camping truck to Naples, Fla., to visit Leggett's brother.

Hunting season next fall will bring another use for the camping truck. Leggett sees good possibilities in the truck for "roughing it" at Mattamuskeet Lake.

His children, Susan, Carolyn, and Amy, have had as much fun with it at home as on trips. Leggett has used it as a kiddie-pickup truck for several weiner roasts. Whenever the truck is moving, Leggett makes the children remain seated on the bunks.

"Picnickers along the road wave and yell to us when we pass," says Leggett. "It seems to inspire friendliness."

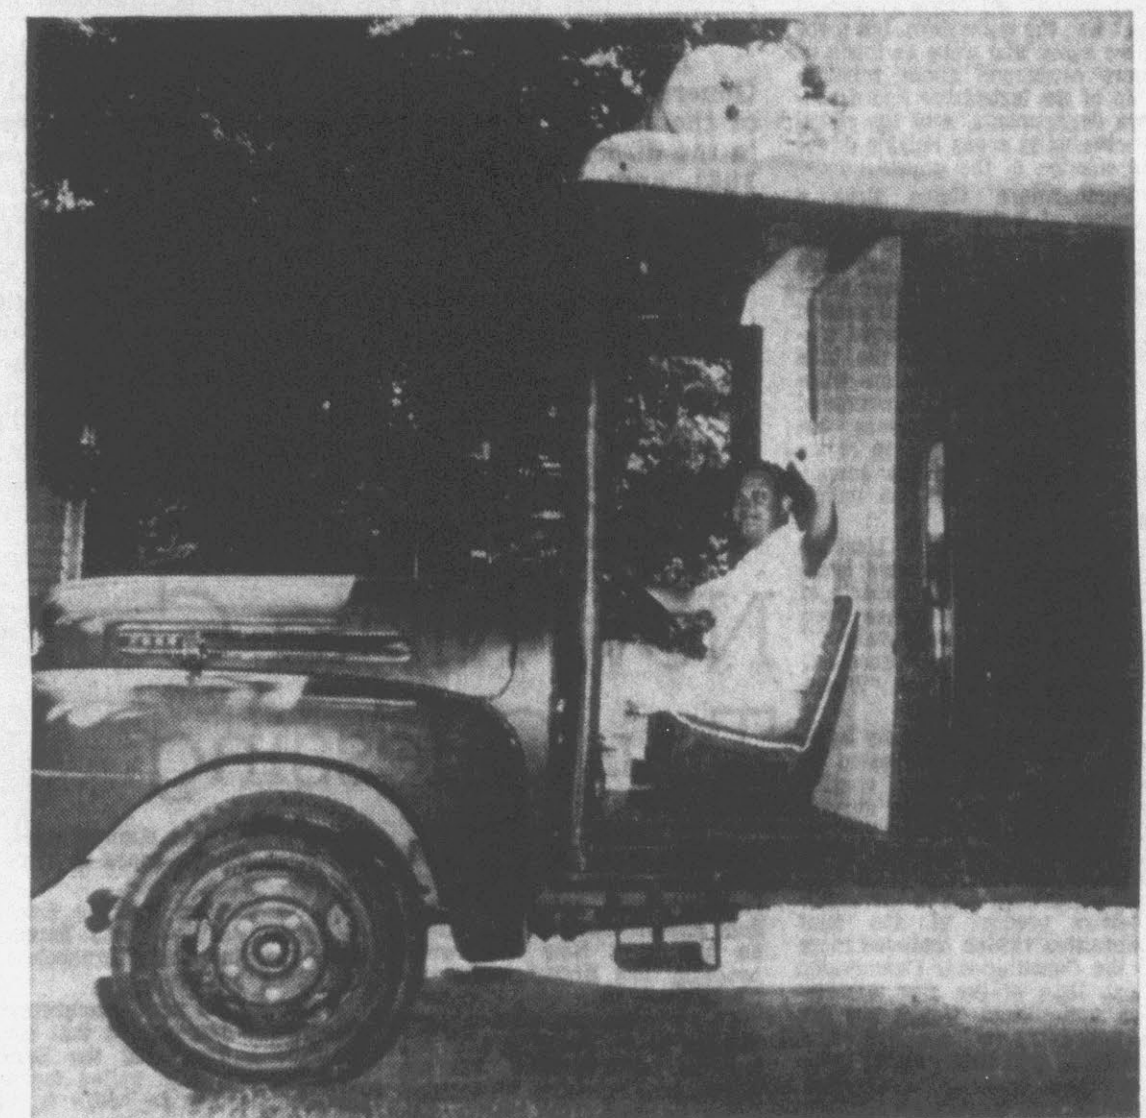

"People come up behind us, and even though we ride 40 mph, they ride behind us for two or three miles looking at the kids on the bunks. When they start to pass, you can see their mouths saying 'All my life I have wanted something like that. Then you see their wives nod their head in agreement.'"

Leggett had an idea, developed it, and now has a source of fun and adventure for his family.

Leggett is a sales representative for Marchant Calculators and Mrs. Leggett is employed at the Business Office of East Carolina College.

Chemstrand To Build Big Nylon Plant In S.C.

GREENWOOD, S.C. (AP) —The Chemstrand Corp. has announced it will build a huge nylon fiber plant near here. It may eventually represent a 60-million-dollar investment.

Edward A. O'Neal Jr., president of the 250-million-dollar chemical fibres concern, said Thursday that initial investment would probably be "in excess of 14 to 15 million dollars and the original work force would be about 500."

However, an enthusiastic Gov. Ernest F. Hollings told about 150 officials here that "it will be nearer 60 million...and it will employ nearer 4,000 workers than 500."

O'Neal said that the initial operation would be the first of four stages.

He said the Greenwood plant "in its first stage will have a capacity to produce 10 million pounds of nylon yarn a year by 1960."

The plant may possibly become the largest private facility ever constructed in South Carolina.

This undoubtedly represented the choice industrial plum plucked to date by industry-minded South Carolina among a list of more than 40 new plants since Hollings took office in January.

Having Chemstrand, one of the nation's largest industries, locate a plant of such magnitude in South Carolina," said Hollings, "marks one of the greatest strides forward in the industrial history of our state."

O'Neal said the decision to locate a new nylon plant six miles northeast of Greenwood was influenced largely by the city's location in the heart of one of the nation's major textile manufacturing areas.

He noted that Chemstrand also recently announced plans to construct a nylon development center near its original plant at Pensacola, Fla., and a multi-million dollar research center in the North Carolina Research Triangle Park near Raleigh, Durham, and Chapel Hill. Chemstrand also has a plant in Decatur, Ala. The corporate main offices are in New York.

Sixty-Five At Summer School

Sixty-five students, including 15 from other high schools, are enrolled in summer session classes at Junius H. Rose High School, Principal O. E. Dowd said today.

The students are enrolled in English, math and history courses which will run from six to ten weeks in length. Instructors are regular members of the high school faculty, including George McRorie, Miss Deanie Boone Haskett and Miss Frances Smith.

Dowd said students who are enrolled in the courses are either making up work, doing advanced study to permit taking elective courses during the coming year, or accelerating ninth and tenth grade assignments in order to graduate early.

Summer session courses at the high school require each student to put in at least 150 hours of study. Dowd said. Accreditation requirements of the State Department of Public Instruction and the Southern Association of Secondary Schools and Colleges call for only 120 hours of study.

Hound's Rescuer To Get A Medal

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—Luke Christian, who worked for 18 days before he freed his trapped coon hound from a mountain crevice, is going to receive a medal tonight.

At a banquet in his honor, Chastain will receive the Walter L. Stillman award from the American Humane Society.

"I'll go, but I'd rather be 'coon hunting," he said.

Old Touse, Chastain's blue tick and bulldog hound, became trapped in a rock crevice while hunting with his master last November.

Chastain, with the help of friends, fed Old Touse through the narrow opening. He chipped and dynamited the rock for 18 days before the dog was freed Dec. 11.

"He's been a little hard of hearing ever since," Chastain said. "But he's still the best damn 'coon hound anywhere in this country."

After Paying, She Told Police

SEATTLE (AP) — A Seattle woman told police Thursday she paid two men $1,500 to have ants in her attic "shocked to death."

Mrs. Marguerite H. Reiten, 45, said the men talked her into having $500 worth of repairs on chimney, roof and gutters. Then they said she had ants in her attic which needed removing.

She agreed, and the men went to work with an electrical gadget "electrocuting" the ants. They demanded $2,600 and finally settled for $1,500 in cash which Mrs. Reiten got from her bank. When she asked for a receipt, one of the men said as they drove off: "You've got the best receipt in the world the work we did on your house."

Estimated 70 Per Cent Of Rose High Grads Planning On College

Approximately 70 per cent of Junius H. Rose High School's 108-member Class of 1959 is expected to attend college, Principal O. E. Dowd announced today.

Down said more than 70 members of the class have requested transcripts of their high school work to include in applications for admission to colleges and universities. In addition, Dowd said about five are expected to enter military service, "two or three" have been or will be married, and the others are expected to take full-time jobs.

The principal pointed out that the percentage of 1959 graduates of the high school who will enter college is consistent with percentages of past graduating classes. The school usually ranks among the top three in the state in percentage of graduates entering college, according to figures from the State Department of Public Instruction.

"The high percentage of students who go on to higher education can be attributed to the influence of East Carolina College and to the community atmosphere for education," Dowd said. "In an urban community such as this, more emphasis is placed on education than you would get in a highly industrialized urban community."

"Also," he added, "in the past two decades more people have received advanced educations and are more inclined to desire college educations for their children."

Favorite among the colleges for which transcripts have been prepared is East Carolina. Others to which transcripts have been forwarded include the University of North Carolina, N. C. State, Duke, Wake Forest, Woman's College, St. Mary's, Greensboro College, Salem, Meredith, Peace, Mars Hill and Davidson.

Withholding Tax Work Not Ended

It's official now that on the first pay-day in January Tar Heel taxpayers will begin paying their state income taxes through the withholding system.

Gov. Hodges has succeeded in persuading the legislature to adopt his windfall tax program, and legislators have convinced themselves the state is better off to collect and spend two years of taxes in one year rather than raising taxes to meet their appropriations.

For the people of the state it will mean paying two years income taxes in one year, and thereafter paying their income taxes as they receive their salaries. It also means that the citizens of North Carolina can look forward in 1961 to what will surely be one of the most extensive jobs of increasing state tax schedules which has ever been faced by a legislature. The legislature will have to find sufficient new revenue to make up for the $27½ million windfall in addition to the additional revenue needed to meet the normal increase in state government operations.

Having chosen the course of withholding for the collection of state income taxes, North Carolina will never be able to turn back to its former once-a-year method of collecting these taxes. Such a move would mean that the state would have to do without income tax revenues for a whole year and that, of course, would be impossible.

Now that the legislature has given its approval to the withholding system proposed by the administration, Gov. Hodges has the responsibility to see to it that the new system works well. He has the responsibility to see that the new system brings in enough new revenue annually—over and above the windfall of the first year—to justify the greater expense to the state for collecting income taxes by the new method. The administration must see to it that the principle of withholding is applied as equitably as possible to all the taxpayers of the state.

Suffice it to say that all the problems and discussion over North Carolina's withholding tax has not ended with approval of the program by the legislature. There remain many problems to be worked out, and it may take several years before many of them are finally resolved.

Turned Their Backs On Need For Reform

North Carolina's legislators have turned deaf ears to the crying need for sweeping reforms in the hodgepodge of lower courts in North Carolina.

Certainly supporters of the court reform program were justified in killing their bill after crippling amendments were added during the turbulent House debate. What was left of the court reform proposal after the amendments were added obviously would not have produced the reforms needed in North Carolina's judicial system.

Opponents of the court reform measure have, in our opinion, done a great disservice to the people of this state. They have, by their action, perpetuated an inexcusable jaypee system which preys upon many citizens of North Carolina. They have spurned reasonable reforms which would bring some semblance of uniformity to the system of lower courts throughout North Carolina. By so doing they have in effect given their official sanction to the confused and inadequately controlled systems of lower courts throughout the state.

In a matter of a few days, the legislature poured down the drain the efforts of lawyers and laymen who for four years dedicated themselves to a thorough study of the state's judicial system and recommended reforms which obviously are needed in the interest of better courts for the people of North Carolina.

So far as court reforms are concerned, the 1959 General Assembly has turned its back on the needs of the state. It is extremely doubtful that any action in the direction of reforms will be forthcoming before 1961, and quite possibly what has been done in the legislature in the past few days could postpone far beyond the next two years needed reforms in North Carolina's court system.

It is unfortunate indeed that circumstances allowed opponents of needed reforms their opportunity to crush the entire effort toward streamlining the state's courts.

It is disappointing to see the legislature, usually so diligent in efforts to improve state government, flatly reject an effort to bring about needed changes in so important a field of government responsibility as the administration of justice.

Special Session Issue Remains

By LYNN NISBET

SPECIAL SESSION—Whether or not there will be a special session of the General Assembly to deal with constitutional revision will depend upon popular reaction to the withdrawal of that subject from the current regular session. The timing of the session, if Governor Hodges and the Council of State should call it, will be governed largely by the sentiment of the people as indicating desirability to get a vote prior to the 1960 elections.

Several legislators have suggested that animosities and ill feeling engendered in the bitter House debate will not be alleviated sufficiently by this fall to make a special session—composed of the same members—wise later this year. Others think that in the calm atmosphere of a special session, uncluttered by extraneous matters, the bitterness will be forgotten and constitutional issues can be discussed on merit alone.

Unless a special session can be held in time to submit the proposed changes to the electorate at or before the 1960 general election there will be no point in calling it. The regular session of 1961 can handle the problem.

There are serious political hazards involved if a special session should be held any time next year. From January until June the Democratic primary campaign will be underway. Majority of the legislators will be seeking re-election. After the primary, although the same membership now serving would continue, and the same Governor would be in office, a new Governor would have been nominated and for all practical purposes elected, along with a number of new legislators. Potential complications are very obvious.

UNFORTUNATE — It is agreed on all sides that developments which led sponsors of the proposed new constitution to officiate at its funeral were very unfortunate. Almost everybody is disappointed, but a lot of people are not at all surprised. It was pointed out in this column as far back as March 12 that there was sentiment for leaving constitutional revision to a special session, where only that matter would be given major attention, and when every member of the General Assembly, sitting as committee of the whole, would have the benefit of information which only the 56 members of the joint committees were getting.

Numerous references have been made since to the fact that non-committee members resented being left out, and that the casual committee discussions failed to embrace the entire problem. Large part of the discussions in-

Now Nikita Can Try Guessing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bouncing Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev may have had President Eisenhower guessing what he had on his mind. Now Eisenhower probably has Khrushchev a little puzzled, too.

That's because Eisenhower seemed to be agreeing with the Russian on one point, but not quite, and softening Wednesday what he said two weeks ago but, as it turned out, not quite.

It all started months ago when Khrushchev made a threat: either the Allies get their troops out of Berlin or he would turn over to the East German Communists control of the ground, air, and rail routes leading to Berlin.

This would put the Allies in a pocket. They refuse to recognize the German Reds as the lawful government of East Germany. But if the Communists shut off their supplies to East Berlin, they'd have to deal with them or fight.

And dealing with them would be a form of recognition. At the same time Khrushchev called on Eisenhower to meet him at a summit conference where all kinds of things could be discussed. That would include Berlin.

Eisenhower said nothing doing unless, first, the Soviet and Western foreign ministers met and, second, they showed some progress.

Khrushchev reluctantly agreed to the foreign ministers' meeting but low-rated its importance. He argued only the top men make decisions. Therefore, the ministers are errand boys. So, he claimed, a foreign ministers' meeting just wastes time.

The ministers met and made no progress. At his June 3 news conference, Eisenhower seemed to agree with Khrushchev that the ministers are only transmission belts for the top men.

"These foreign ministers are, after all, acting for someone else . . . and these matters such as Berlin have to be brought back and studied carefully," Eisenhower said.

But he seemed to attach much more importance to the ministers at his news conference Wednesday. He said they are "people who go to conference clothed with a great deal of authority."

Next he appeared to be leaning a bit toward Khrushchev's view. He pointed out the ministers, every night after their day's session at Geneva, have to communicate with their governments back home.

He said they provide "the mechanism . . . through which agreements are supposed to be obtained."

But then he parted company with Khrushchev, if he ever was in his company, but refusing to agree to any assumption the ministers' meetings are useless. He implied that unless they prepar-

A Short Life, But Happy

Your columnist took in Farm Agent S. C. Winchester's and Assistant Agent C. J. Goodman's swine tour yesterday.

Learned a lot.

Seems the little baby pigs receive a special feed their first few days in this world.

They have to keep regular, you know.

And on some pig farms you can't go stomping right in to the farrowing house with your big dirty clodhoppers.

Nope, you have to step daintily into a pan of disinfectant before entering the innersanctum. The stuff leaks through loafers and gets your socks wet. Take it from us.

Your columnist has always thought of a pig as something big and sloppy which laid around in the biggest mud hole he could find.

Not the "Live Modern" hog. We were told on the tour of one litter of pigs whose forebears hadn't been on the ground for three generations. Seems all of them were raised on concrete.

Oh yes, little pigs now days must have their iron shots once or twice. They mustn't get anemic.

And penicillin is also used in the good hog raising program.

When the little pigs are big enough they are moved to the pig parlors. There, their world is not quite so spotless, but there is a cooling spray from overhead nozzles to counteract the heat.

So all-in-all a pretty fine life faces the young pig as he comes into the world today. Pretty fine up to a point, that is.

Seems a shame that it all has to end so abruptly. But then, country ham and the morning slices of bacon have to come from somewhere.

Other Editors Saying . . . Searching For An Escape

(Henderson Dispatch)

A man by the name of Stanley Yankus from Minnesota has gone to another world, as it were, in an effort to escape government controls and abridgment of freedom with respect to the handling of his farming operations as he saw fit back home.

Yankus and his wife and 12-year-old son have arrived in Australia to start life anew. They took along some $28,000 realized from the sale of the family farm and will invest that in the country "down under" to which they have gone.

How Yankus feels about this new world to which he has gone he did not make clear. But the twelve-year-old son didn't like it at all. All he would say upon sighting land was, "I want home." Mrs. Yankus wasn't happy either. She said she had never been more than two hundred miles from home before, and "this is a big wrench for us — I hope it all works out."

As far as he was concerned, Yankus said he "never plans to return to the United States." He said, "I just want a big zero" proposal in the U.S. Senate to abolish the wheat-growing restrictions which prompted his decision to leave the United States.

He regarded "these as really just token gestures which go on for years."

Well, at best this is a sad commentary upon life in these United States. One often hears of people coming from other lands to make their home here, but rarely of an American so provided or disgusted that he leaves these shores to try his fortunes elsewhere.

Most of us here know little or nothing of what life is like in Australia, other than the people speak English and are very much like we are here. What the restraints of government are we wouldn't know. There are plenty of them here, however, and they are increasing — if not in constantly rising high taxes, many of them without justification, then something else.

Some day, if we as Americans are jealous of our freedoms and determined to keep them, there will be a wave of resentment, which may or may not prove to be beneficial. For our part, though, we will put up with a lot of abuses before pulling up stakes, burning the bridges behind and striking out for unknown shores, however alluring, to start things all over anew.

It is the privilege of the individual to try to mend things at home, and that's what perhaps should be done.

BOUNTY ON MARRIAGE
(The Knoxville News-Sentinel)

A woman who quits her job to get married can collect unemployment insurance, the New State Court of Appeals has ruled. She's still in the labor market, isn't she? And look, no job. Well, that's what clerk-typist Mrs. Keith Shaw of North Tonawanda contended and a lower court allowed her benefits.

Upholding this decision, the appeals court went a step further, opening up what may be the devil to pay. It said the marriage "ought to be treated as illness or important personal consequence to the worker." But our guess is, it won't be anything compared with the illness employers will suffer if this practice sticks. And it might very well disqualify a lot of comedy gals from future jobs, making employment safe only for confirmed spinsters.

And in sharp contrast, your columnist took in the girl's soft ball game the other night. We might say right here that professional hockey is a sissy sport comparatively.

We could hardly take it when a gal on third base got hit by the ball which was being thrown in an attempt to tag her out. She seemed to be all right however, and we stayed on for another inning or two.

Then these two lovely young things ran head-on together between second and third base. Seeing them roll in pain on the grass was just too much for us.

We left.

The compulsion reaches its climax when, flat busted, you send your dear wife out into the streets to beg stamps from passing strangers.

Then one morning it is all over. You awake feeling guilty and suffering from a bad case of writer's cramp. You can't look at another postcard. The madness has passed.

So you cable the boss for passage money, and you and your wife take the next plane or ship home.

But the first thing you do is start looking up all the people you wrote to.

"We sure had a great time," you say, and then add:

"By the way, have you still got any of those postcards we sent you? We want to see what Europe really looks like."

The secret is — if you want to see Europe with your own eyes while you are still there — never write that first postcard home.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
FAITH AND GOODNESS

A lot of people seem to get considerable satisfaction out of their constant declaration that the church is full of hypocrites.

Of course, this is not true, as everyone knows who has had any experience with church people. To be sure, church people are by no means perfect. But taken all in all, they are about the best people one can find anywhere.

For it is a truth never to be forgotten that where faith is, there, generally, is goodness. Yes, we might say "always," for if there is no goodness then that which appears to be faith is little more than a slavish allegiance to the letter of Scripture or to church custom. Certainly, it is not the joyful experience Christian discipleship produces.

Where faith is, there is goodness.

Curse Of The Cards

By HAL BOYLE

PARIS (AP) — There is one disease that, sooner or later, strikes all tourists abroad.

It is known medically as "postcarditis."

The symptom is simple and unmistakable. The victim suddenly is swept by an inexplicable urge to write postcards to the folks back home.

You and your wife are making a trip to Europe after saving for 20 years. You are having a fine time seeing the sights until one day you pick a postcard off a rack.

"I think I'll mail this to Joe at the office. It'll make him turn green with envy," you say.

And the wife says, "That's not a bad idea. I think I'll mail one myself to our next door neighbor."

You don't know it then, but you and your wife already have taken the fatal step. Writing just one postcard is as impossible as eating only a single peanut at a cocktail party.

You go to the top of the Eiffel Tower, but neither you nor your wife have time to look at the splendid view of Paris. You are too busy selecting splendid postcards and scribbling. "Having most wonderful time. Miss you terribly."

You go to the Louvre and tell the guide, "Never mind Mona Lisa and the Venus de Milo. Show us the postcard counter."

You are both now in the grip of a mania more insidious than addiction to the bottle or the opium pipe.

"We've written to all our relatives and friends," says the wife. "Who'll we write to now?"

"Our enemies," you say, reaching for another postcard.

So you write to your enemies, people you knew in kindergarten, movie stars you never met. Then you write to people who have been dead 10 years, and to members of Congress. Finally you just start making up names and addresses and write at random.

By now it is too much trouble to visit the museums and cathedrals. You sit all day in your hotel room in pajamas writing postcards. You even have your meals sent in.

At last you don't even want to waste the time to go out and get your own postcards. You hire a bellhop to do it.

"Never mind what they look like," you say, handing him your wallet. "Just buy all you can find."

The compulsion reaches its climax when, flat busted, you send your dear wife out into the streets to beg stamps from passing strangers.

Then one morning it is all over. You awake feeling guilty and suffering from a bad case of writer's cramp. You can't look at another postcard. The madness has passed.

So you cable the boss for passage money, and you and your wife take the next plane or ship home.

But the first thing you do is start looking up all the people you wrote to.

"We sure had a great time," you say, and then add:

"By the way, have you still got any of those postcards we sent you? We want to see what Europe really looks like."

The secret is — if you want to see Europe with your own eyes while you are still there — never write that first postcard home.

Tax Deductions Have Odd Angles

By ELMER ROESSNER

Dad drops a paperweight and smashes the glass top of his desk at the office. Tax deduction.

Mother drops a cut glass bowl. No deduction.

Strictly speaking, Dad doesn't get a tax deduction. If he replaces the glass, the cost is an "ordinary business expense. If he doesn't, the asset value of his equipment is reduced by the value of the glass. In either case, his profits are reduced and his taxes lowered accordingly.

Mother's case is slightly more complicated. If a bolt of lightning smashes her picture window, the value of the window would be deductible as a casualty. If lightning hit the bowl, the loss would be deductible.

NEW DECISION

But simply dropping the bowl, or putting the dishes into the dishwasher instead of the dishwashing machine, or jostling a pair of slippers to a chewing puppy does not lead to deductions.

This is made clear by a new ruling of the United States Tax Court (Diggs, TC Memo 1959-99). It held that the breakage of ordinary household china, glassware and the like through negligence in handling, or by a family pet, is not a casualty for tax purposes.

However, the Prentice-Hall tax reporting service observes:

"Although this 'somewhat routine breakage,' as the court called it, was not deductible, some made-made accidents are.

"Suppose you wrecked your new car. Is this deductible? Of course it is.

"Now suppose the maid knocks over a valuable, decorative vase while dusting. This is a closer case — but we think it should be a deductible casualty, though there is no support in the ruling or other cases for the deduction.

BREAKING GLASS IS USUAL

"You'd expect the breaking of such household items as glassware and the like; that's a normal thing. But breaking a vase is not a branch of the government and the Federal Trade Commission has filed charges against a skiptracing company using that name.

According to the complaint, the firm, with offices in Newark, N.J., sells printed forms to collection agencies, which inserts the names and addresses of debtors. They are then returned to the firm, which mails them from Washington in an envelope with a picture of an eagle similar to that used on the U.S. Government seal.

The recipient is instructed to fill out a form giving his salary, the name and addresses of his employer, time allotted for lunch, number of working hours per week, overtime pay rate, and his union's name and address, according to the FTC complaint.

"This subterfuge deceives debtors into the belief that a branch of the Federal government is requesting the information," the complaint charges. The information makes it easier to collect from slow-pays.

Jehoshaphat, Wise King

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—II Chronicles 17: 19-20.

Jehoshaphat became king of Judah after his father, Asa, died. He did not worship the idol, Baal, "But sought to the Lord God . . . and walked in His commandments."—II Chronicles 17:1-4.

He sent missionaries to teach the people in Judah's cities. They taught in Judah, and had the book of the Lord with them, and went throughout all Judah's cities.—II Chronicles 17:7-9.

Some of the Philistines brought the king presents of silver, and Arabians brought him great flocks of rams and goats, and he "waxed great exceedingly," and built castles.—II Chronicles 17:11-12.

Jehoshaphat also appointed judges to the cities, telling them, "Take heed what ye do; for ye judge not for man, but for the Lord."—II Chronicles 19:5-6.

MEMORY VERSE—II Chron. 19:7.

Jehoshaphat, Wise King of Judah

HIS OBEDIENCE TO GOD'S LAWS BROUGHT PROSPERITY TO HIS PEOPLE

Scripture—II Chronicles 17: 19-20.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

THIS LESSON is the story of a good king of Judah, Jehoshaphat, who "walked in the first ways of his father David, and sought not unto Baalim; but sought to the Lord God of his father, and walked in His commandments, and not after the doings of Israel."—II Chronicles 17:3-4.

Jehoshaphat reigned from 870 to 849 B.C., during which time his nation prospered exceedingly, and "all Judah brought . . . presents; and he had riches and honour in abundance."—II Chronicles 17:5.

Even the Philistines brought Jehoshaphat gifts and "he took away the high places and groves out of Judah." These were the altars built for the worship of Baal.

In the third year of his reign he sent out missionaries to teach his people the way of the Lord. "And they taught in Judah, and had the book of the law of the Lord with them, and went about through all the cities of Judah," such a war. But when they asked the true prophet, Micahiah, he said: "I see all Israel scattered upon the mountains, as sheep that have no shepherd; and the Lord said, These have no master; let them return therefore every man to his house in peace."—II Chronicles 18:16.

Micahiah also said that if Ahab went to battle he would lose his life. And so it was. A battle was fought and the king was slain because he would not believe the prophet, whom he had imprisoned because of his prophesy of disaster.—II Chronicles 18:28-34.

We see how a wise man may be led astray if he allows himself to be persuaded to take a false step. Jehoshaphat then returned to Jerusalem in peace. "And Jehu the son of Hanani the seer went out to meet him" and rebuked him, but said: "Nevertheless there are good things found in thee, in that thou hast taken away the groves out of the land, and hast prepared thine heart to seek God."—II Chronicles 19:2-3.

So Jehoshaphat went back to Jerusalem and continued his efforts to bring his people to God. "And he set judges in the land throughout all the fenced cities of Judah, city by city," telling them, "Take heed what ye do; for ye judge not for man, but for the Lord who is with you in the judgment. Wherefore now let the fear of the Lord be upon you; take heed and do it; for there is no iniquity with the Lord our God, nor respect of persons, nor taking of gifts."—II Chronicles 19:7.

and taught the people. And the fear of the Lord fell upon all the kingdoms of the lands that were round about Judah, so that they made no war against Jehoshaphat."—II Chronicles 17:10.

Even though peace reigned, Jehoshaphat "built castles, and cities of store," and maintained a huge army, consisting of at least 1,160,000 men in all.—II Chronicles 17:13-19.

Today our country wants no wars, and so say most of the nations of the world, but we maintain a substantial army ready to defend us or our allies in case war should come.

Jehoshaphat, however, made a serious mistake. He went to visit the wicked Ahab, king of Israel, and entered into a pact with him. He promised that if Ahab went to war with the northern kingdom of Ramoth-Gilead he would support him. First, however, he advised that they consult the Lord, to see if He would approve.—II Chronicles 18:3-4.

The false prophets said the Lord would give them victory in Jerusalem and continued his efforts to bring his people to God. "And he set judges in the land throughout all the fenced cities of Judah, city by city," telling them, "Take heed what ye do; for ye judge not for man, but for the Lord who is with you in the judgment. Wherefore now let the fear of the Lord be upon you; take heed and do it; for there is no iniquity with the Lord our God, nor respect of persons, nor taking of gifts."—II Chronicles 19:7.

So we see that even a wise and good king may make mistakes if he does not obey the laws of God which are given him when he prays to his heavenly Father for guidance. Let us, therefore, pray for wisdom, ask God to guide us, and follow His guidance in all that we do. Then we will have clear consciences. We probably will all stumble now and then, but we can ask His forgiveness and "try, try, try again."

United Front In Honoring Rabbi

LAWRENCE, Mass. (AP) — capacity crowd of 600 men and women — Protestants, Roman Catholics and Jews — attended a testimonial dinner Thursday night for a Rabbi. The sponsor was a Catholic priest.

Honored was Rabbi Norman Towersky, head of the Orthodox Jewish Congregation of Lawrence. The Very Rev. Edward J. Carney, O.S.A., his close friend, was the sponsor.

Father Carney is a past national chaplain of the American Legion and pastor of St. Mary's Catholic Church in Lawrence.

A message from Gov. Foster Furcolo of Massachusetts typified the spirit behind the affair. He said: "The occasion serves as a model for similar groups throughout the country . . . It is my privilege to register the appreciation of the commonwealth for this local display of the good neighbor policy and interracial amity in Massachusetts."

Expect Compromise Housing Bill To Win Approval Of Pres. Eisenhower

By JOE HALL
WASHINGTON (AP) — Leading Democratic and Republican Senate spokesmen on housing legislation said today a compromise $1,375,000,000 housing bill should win the approval of President Eisenhower.

Senate-House conferees agreed on the omnibus bill Thursday after the Democratic majority had cut the amount sharply to blunt GOP charges that the Democrats are reckless spenders.

Sen. John J. Sparkman (D-Ala.), chairman, and Sen. Homer E. Capehart (R-Ind.), senior Republican on the Senate's Housing subcommittee, both said they did not see why Eisenhower could not sign it.

Both houses must approve the compromise before it is sent to the President.

Some Republicans on the conference committee assailed the compromise and insisted it still went beyond the President's recommendations in many respects.

Assistant Agent Addresses Club

BETHEL — Raising of swine was the topic of C. J. Goodman, Assistant county agent, who spoke to the Bethel Rotary Club last Tuesday night.

The speaker gave an illustrated lecture on the care of swine and he pointed out the importance of supplementing farm income through livestock.

Goodman was introduced by F. L. Blount, Jr., program chairman.

It was announced that Ed Biggs will be in charge of the program next week.

Their attitude left in doubt the eventual fate of the bill.

The conference report is scheduled to be called up first in the Senate, probably early next week.

The compromise contains large grant authorizations for government-sponsored housing programs. It also has many provisions designed to help private homebuilding industry. These include 10 billion dollars of new insurance authority for FHA home loans, liberalized down payments for FHA mortgages, and longer term Veterans' Administration mortgages.

Sparkman and Capehart emphasized that the bill would add only about 24 million dollars to Eisenhower's budget in the 1960 fiscal year starting July 1. Eisenhower's own proposals would have cost about four millions for that year.

Most of the authorizations in the bill are for spending several years in the future.

The Senate originally had allotted $2,100,000,000 for the slum program over six years, and the House 1 1/2 billions for three years. The administration requested $1,350,000,000 over six years. The compromise provides 900 millions for this program over two years.

Two Democratic senators, Joseph S. Clark (Pa.) and Paul H. Douglas (Ill.), said they might not sign the conference report because of this cutback. They said this program is vital to slum-ridden cities and that city officials should have a long-term extension so they can plan their programs.

House Republican conferees refused to sign the report and said that it was misleading in many respects. They said 875 millions should be added to the total as a

Young Grad Has Diploma, Babies

REDLANDS, Calif. (AP)—Linda Sue Voss has a few things the other 469 graduates at Redlands High School don't have: triplets.

"Today is just about the proudest day of my life," said Linda, who gets her diploma today. "Nobody around here thought I'd make it through school."

The triplets—Johnny, David and Steve—were born last Sept. 17 to her and her husband, David, 19, a dairy worker.

At the time Linda was about to enter her senior year. She was determined to graduate, so the school agreed to continue her instruction at home.

She and David took turns minding the youngsters. Her mother helped with the children during the few hours a day when neither she nor her husband was home.

When teacher called, Linda put away the diapers, brought out the textbooks, and hustled the babies off to sleep.

"It's been tough all right," she added, "but you never know what you can do until you have to."

Linda got two As and one B on her final report card. She proudly emphasizes that she was taking a stiff, college preparatory course.

Few married girls ever finish high school, said Principal Leonard Murdy, and Linda is the first mother to graduate with her class from Redlands.

Now that she has her diploma, Linda plans to call it quits, academically speaking.

Linda says she has no intention of resting on her sheepskin. She and her husband are planning to get college degrees.

Will Buy Firm For $765 Million

NEW YORK (AP) — Texaco, Inc., is planning to purchase the Superior Oil Co. of California for the equivalent of 765 million dollars.

In a joint announcement Thursday night, Augustus C. Long, Texaco chairman, and William M. Keck, chairman of Superior, said they had reached "an understanding in principle."

The combined company would control an estimated eight per cent of the total oil production in the United States. About a year ago, Texaco passed the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey as the largest domestic producer of crude oil.

SECURITY FOR YOUR FAMILY

People nowadays keep up with things. For example, it is fairly generally understood that in many cases a man can leave his wife up to about half his property and save considerably in estate taxes upon his death.

It is not so generally realized, however, that this portion can either be left outright or it may be placed in trust. In so doing, he can relieve her of the burden of managing and investing, collecting rents, repairing roofs, collecting dividends, buying, selling or exercising stock rights, and all the endless details of supervising property of every kind.

The arrangement can be quite flexible, and appropriate provisions can be made for emergency situations. Come by and talk with us, and let us explain to you how our Trust Department with our Trust Committee of experienced officers and directors can make things easier for you, your wife and your children.

The Wilson Country Club will be the site of the 1959 North Carolina Amateur Golf Tournament which begins today.

A number of Greenville golfers will be active in the tournament and at least four will be competing for the championship.

Ercel Webb, Bobby Thomas, Simon Moye, and Reynolds May did not have to qualify for the championship flight and started their tour of the 6,500 yard course at around 11:00 this morning.

Most of the local golfers took time out from their daily affairs to get a few practice rounds at the Wilson course earlier this week and then yesterday participated in the Pro-Am.

Webb Has 75

Ercel Webb, the former Greenville Club champion, didn't get a chance to practice on the Wilson course but shot a respectable 75 yesterday afternoon in the Pro-Am.

"I missed two real short putts on the seventh and tenth holes but otherwise, I played a good game," stated Webb. Webb had an even par on the front nine.

Simon Moye, another of Greenville's more consistent golfers, found the Wilson course to his liking as he shot a 73 in the Pro-Am yesterday.

Thomas Has Bad Day

Bobby Thomas, the 15-year-old who has been playing excellent golf in recent tournaments, had shot a 68 practice round earlier this week but ran into plenty of trouble yesterday in the Pro-Am.

Harold Thomas, the local pro, had the best round in yesterday's play as he shot a 68, including an almost hole-in-one on the 18th hole. His foursome finished with a 62, four strokes behind the winning score.

Yesterday's scores will be forgotten today as the linksmen start their tourney play with metal play determining the champion.

Most of the local golfers have stated that the Wilson course is in condition.

Three Undefeated Cubans
Invading Garden Tonight

NEW YORK (AP)—Three undefeated Cuban fighters, with a combined record of 22 straight knockouts, display their touted kayo wallop in a mass invasion of Madison Square Garden tonight.

The three newcomers are headed by Florentino (Ox) Fernandez, a power-packing welterweight, who meets strong-jawed, never-scooped Stefan Redi of Passaic, N.J., in the featured television 10-rounder.

The other two invaders are lightweight Douglas Vaillant and Carlos Hernandez. All three Cubans are 21 and tall. Fernandez is 5 feet 9 and the other two, 5 feet 10.

Vaillant (15-3-1, 9 kos) of Pittsburgh, Hernandez has won all eight of his pro fights by knockouts. These two fights also are scheduled for 10 rounds.

Fernandez, bull-necked and shouldered, is rated one of the best punchers to come out of the islands. He has won all 19 of his pro fights, 17 of them by kayos, and has stopped his last 14 opponents. In his last outing, at Havana on May 9, he stowed away former lightweight champion Paddy DeMarco in five rounds.

Redi, stocky, 5-5, 25-year-old 147-pounder, provides a fine test

Oklahoma State
NCAA Champion

OMAHA (AP)—Oklahoma State won the NCAA college baseball world series championship from Arizona, 5-3, Thursday night and give the Big Eight Conference its second NCAA national title in a week. Just last week-end at Lincoln, Neb., the NCAA track and field championship went to Kansas—the first time Kansas had ever won the title.

Target Dates Set For New Major Loop

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—Baseball's third major league has three target dates. In 1960 it hopes to line up its player talent. In 1961 it plans to start operation. By 1962 it thinks it can compete with the existing majors in some type of series.

"First things have to come first," said Bill Shea, chairman of Mayor Wagner's Baseball Committee and a prime factor in lining up the proposed new baseball league.

"The most important thing is to get organized. We expect to do that before July 15. We expect to be in operation by 1961. It is my idea that by 1962 we should be able to compete with the other leagues on an even basis."

Shea, of course, is an incurable optimist. He spoke Thursday at a news conference called to announce the names of the three most important backers of the New York franchise.

One of those associated with the proposed New York team, Donald Grant, a member of the board of directors of the San Francisco Giants, disclosed that a nucleus of league cities already exists. He said they are screening other applicants.

However, all concerned refused to identify the other cities. Just how far the workers in other cities have gone is difficult to establish. Shea said they would be identifying themselves within a few weeks.

Toronto, Minneapolis-St. Paul, Houston, Fort Worth-Dallas and New York have been the cities most frequently mentioned in connection with the third league. Jake Cooke, Toronto owner, conferred with Shea last week in New York.

"We'll know if we're in when Mr. Shea makes his announcement in New York," said Rudy Schaffer, general manager of the Toronto club of the International League.

Gerald Moore, chairman of the Minneapolis Major League Baseball Committee, said investors in prospective teams probably would be identified in 10 days.

In Dallas, Stanley McVaine, general manager of the Dallas club of the American Assn., said: "We are definitely interested in a major league franchise and have informed Mr. Shea that we are ready to meet at any time to discuss it."

The New York owners, disclosed by Shea, were listed in three groups, each of which would have a third interest. He said their interest is contingent upon the city's building a new ballpark on the old World's Fair site in Flushing Meadows. Mayor Wagner has said the city would build such a park if a league is formed with responsible backing.

Mrs. Charles Payson, sister of John Hay Whitney, U.S. ambassador to Britain, heads one group with which Grant is connected. Mrs. Payson owns stock in the Giants which she would have to sell if the team becomes a reality. Mrs. Dorothy Killam, often identified with efforts to buy the old Brooklyn Dodgers before they moved to Los Angeles, heads another group. Dwight Davis, whose father donated tennis' famous Davis Cup, is linked with George Walker, whose father founded golf's Walker Cup, in the third group.

In Pittsburgh, Branch Rickey, veteran baseball executive who now is chairman of the board of the Pittsburgh Pirates, said the city would have to be ready to sell if the team becomes a reality. There are "plenty of players to go around."

Braves Nearly Blew 7-Run
Lead, But Edge Dodgers

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer
Milwaukee's battered Braves, still breathing hard after almost blowing a seven-run lead at Los Angeles, trudged into San Francisco with a half-game National League lead tonight for the opener of a three-game set against the Giants.

The Braves clung to the lead with a 7-6 victory over the Dodgers

Giants had rapped Cincinnati 8-3 in an afternoon game.

It was only the second victory in five games for the Braves, who have picked up two games on the Braves while playing no better than .500 ball in their last 18 decisions. The main menace to Milwaukee's bid for a third straight pennant at the moment is the Braves own sorry slump. They've lost 10 of 16, 12 of 21 and seven of their last 11.

While the Braves and Giants have been shadow boxing, Pittsburgh's third place Pirates have been on the move. They made it six out of eight Thursday, beating the Chicago Cubs 4-2 in 13 innings in the only other game scheduled as unbeaten reliever Elroy Face won his 11th.

The Braves, who won only two of the five games at Los Angeles, built a 7-0 lead in four innings. The Dodgers got to work in their fourth, scoring three on four hits and a walk that chased Bob Rush. Bob Throwbridge gave up a two-run, 400-foot homer by Duke Snider, in the sixth, then needed Don McMahon's relief after the Dodgers scored another in the eighth on Wally Moon's third hit, a double. McMahon finally saved it for Trowbridge, gaining his first decision, by fanning Moon in the ninth with the tying run on second.

Orlando Cepeda, 4-for-5 and picking up nine points for a .345 average, drove in the Giants' first two runs and scored another in a decisive, three-run fifth after the Reds had gained a 2-2 tie. Jackie Brandt's two-run double capped the rally that handed Joe Nuxhall a 3-5 record.

Stu Miller (4-3) won it, although giving up five hits in his 4-1-3 innings of relief.

An RBI single by Bob Skinner and Bill Virdon's sacrifice fly did it for the Pirates. Their other runs came in the seventh on Dick Stuart's pinch-hit homer after Cub starter Moe Drabowsky had allowed only one hit for six innings. Face, the majors' top winner and now 16-0 since May 30, 1958, blanked the Cubs on three singles in a five-inning job, his longest chore of the season.

Hitting — Chico Carrasquel, Orioles, drove in final four runs of comeback burst, hitting two-run homer in eighth and then bringing the winner across with a two-out, two-run single in the ninth for 7-6 victory over the Tigers.

Pitching — Elroy Face, Pirates, won his 11th of year, tops in the majors, and stretched his winning string to 16 with five innings of shutout relief in 4-2, 13-inning victory over the Cubs, allowing only three singles, walking none and striking out four.

To Haney, Just Another Game

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The Milwaukee Braves had just come close to blowing their National League lead in a most embarrassing manner when their little manager popped out of the shower drying himself in a most casual manner.

"Just another game," said Fred Haney quietly. "We've still got about a hundred of them to go." Haney's Braves had beaten the Los Angeles Dodgers 7-6. The Braves took a 7-0 lead, then squandered all but one run of it before Don McMahon finally bailed them out with two hitless innings of relief.

And, even without allowing a hit, McMahon had his troubled moments. He came on with none out in the eighth and a man on second base with what might have been the tying run. He eventually stranded that man at third, then let the Dodgers get another runner on second in the ninth before he finally shut them off. The victory kept the Braves a half game ahead of the second-place San Francisco Giants, whom they play tonight.

All this may not have excited Haney the way it did the crowd of 32,278, but in the last inning his bullpen was occupied by his No. 1 and No. 2 starters—Warren Spahn and Lew Burdette.

"You gotta put a show on," Haney said. "People get a kick out of seeing them out there warming up."

'Tired Feeling'
Fails Hold Back
Al Balding

MONTREAL (AP)—Lack of sleep and a tired feeling hardly can be recommended as a formula for winning golf but in spite of them — or maybe because of them — rangy Al Balding led the field into the second round of the 50th Canadian Open championship today.

Balding, a tall 35-year-old pro from Markham, Ont., who has had considerable success on the U.S. circuit, putted his way to a 6-under-par 66 on the soggy Islesmere course Thursday.

That put him a stroke ahead of Art Wall Jr., the leading pro money winner this year; round Bob Rosburg; Dow Finsterwald; the PGA champion, and George Bayer.

Balding said he felt "pooped" when he reached the first tee in the driving rain Thursday. Then in second thought he decided: "I guess I was just relaxed."

He explained he had gone to bed early the night before but had trouble sleeping. Then he had to get up at 6 a.m. in order not to get stuck in traffic.

Durham Breaks Skein Of Losses

By The Associated Press

Durham's fourth place Bulls snapped their losing streak at nine straight games in the Carolina League Thursday night defeating Winston-Salem 6-1.

Wilson picked up a half game lead over second place Raleigh by winning over Greensboro 10-6 while Raleigh was battling Burlington to a 6-4 tie in a 15-inning game called because of the mid-night curfew.

Lean Dave Justus hurled a six-hitter to pace Durham to its victory at Durham. He had a two-hit shutout until the seventh when the Red Birds bunched two of their safeties for a run.

Wilson exploded for four runs in the third and five in the fourth to snap Greensboro's winning streak at six straight. The Tobs collected 10 hits to seven for the Yankees.

Burlington, trailing by 5-3, rallied with two runs in the ninth to tie its game with Raleigh and send it into extra innings. Wayne Newberry and Mike White banged the homers. Each team scored a run in the 12th.

Tonight's games: Winston-Salem at Durham, Burlington at Raleigh and Wilson at Greensboro.

Ingemar Begins To Taper Off

By HUGH FULLERON JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

GROSSINGER, N.Y. (AP) — If ever two heavyweights approached a championship fight with more divergent methods of training than Floyd Patterson and Ingemar Johansson, it must have been when Max Baer was bewildering boxing experts.

Johansson, the Swedish challenger who'll try to lift the world title from Patterson next Thursday night, winds up the hard work of training here today.

"I finished my roadwork today. I finish my boxing tomorrow," Johansson said Thursday after a 7-round session in the ring.

"After that I just walk and rest and soak up energy," Patterson, in his Chatham, N.J. camp, plans to keep right on working up to the day before the fight, even though his handlers think he is close to peak form right now.

The champion did no boxing Thursday but ran four miles as usual and later went for a walk with his sparring partners. He plans to box today, Saturday, Sunday and possibly Monday. And he'll continue road work until Wednesday.

Johansson hasn't neglected boxing and road work, but his theory is that once he has achieved top condition, the relaxed approach will bring him up to the fight in better physical and mental condition.

"I feel myself getting stronger and stronger," he explained seriously. "I shadow box before a mirror and always see my good right hand hitting him and knocking him out. It happens again and again. It's very nice."

Ingemar's right hand—good or otherwise—has been the subject of considerable speculation during the training period. He has used it very seldom against his sparring partners. And there was a story going around that he still is troubled by hand injuries incurred in his amateur days. Johansson says that's sheer nonsense.

Guaranty Bank Has 6-3 Victory

Guaranty Bank blew a five-run lead last night but still escaped a come-from-behind bid by last-place College View to win a 6-3 tilt in Teen-League action.

The Guaranty Bank, a hot and cold club this season, scored a single run in the first and then poured across four more runs in the second frame to gain a comfortable margin.

Spencer Harrington, the starting and losing pitcher, clouted a homerun in the third inning with one man on to pull College View within two runs of the victors.

The rally was smothered and Tommy Riley hit a solo blast in the fourth to give Guaranty their final run.

Alton Clapp relieved Harrington in the third and pitched scoreless ball with the exception of Riley's homerun.

Indians, Yanks Gird For 4 Frenzied Games

By ED WILKS

Associated Press Sports Writer Cleveland steams into New York tonight for the first of what should be four frenzied games with the Yankees in a week-end series that could jar the Indians out of the American League lead. It also could spill the Yankees off their comeback spurt from the cellar.

The Indians, holding a 1½-game lead and 3½ games ahead of the fifth place world champions, are

Kiwanians Take VFW By 9-1; Gain Early Lead

Kiwanis collected a total of only five hits yesterday afternoon but wildness and errors gave the Kiwanians an easy 9-1 victory over the VFW and also pushed them into an early lead in the North State second half race.

The win was the second for the surging Kiwanis club in the second part of the season and both victories have come on only 12 hits. Earlier this week they downed first-half winners, Jaycees.

Linwood Manning opened the first inning for Kiwanis with a double and the club preceded to bat around in the opening frame, scoring five runs. They were able to capitalize on three errors and three base on balls for their opening rally.

Two errors led to two more runs in the third inning and a single and two more errors climaxed the scoring in the fourth. Thomas Jordan gave the VFW plenty of trouble with his hurling and only in the fifth when they collected three singles, were they able to score.

Action today will feature the Exchange against the Moose in Tar Heel activity and Texaco and the Jaycees in the North State.

one of the teams Manager Casey Stengel had in mind when he warned that his Yankees still have some scores to settle. At the moment, Cleveland has a 4-3 season edge over the champs, who have just gained a 4-3 lead over Chicago's second place White Sox with a three-game sweep. Detroit leads New York 8-3 and Baltimore has a 7-5 edge.

Stengel tapped White Ford (6-4), a southpaw with a 15-8 lifetime record against Cleveland, to square things tonight. The Indians' choice is right-hander Gary Bell (6-5), who has yet to beat New York in three decisions.

Al Kaline Hurt By Wild Throw

BALTIMORE (AP)—Detroit Slugger Al Kaline was recovering in a hospital today from a broken cheekbone caused by a wild throw in Thursday's 7-6 loss to the Baltimore Orioles.

He is expected to be out a week to 10 days.

The outfielder, was batting .351 and had 43 RBI. He is only three percentage points back of teammate Harvey Kuenn in the American League batting leadership.

Kaline suffered the depressed fracture when Billy Gardner's wild throw to first evaded first baseman Bob Boyd. The Oriole second baseman was rushing his loss to try for a double play after Detroit had loaded the bases with none out.

AND BABY TOO—Mrs. Otis L. Smith, Bloomfield, Conn., totes two-month-old daughter, Gay, in Navajo cradle as she caddies for husband at Middlebury, Vt.

The Yankees, although winning four of their last six, still have pitching and fielding troubles. But their big guy, Mickey Mantle, is hitting the big home run again. The Mick, who clinched Wednesday's game with a three-run homer, ignored a taped ankle Thursday and belted a 10th-inning home run for a 5-4 victory over the White Sox.

Cleveland, resting its staff for the week-end series, pitched rookie Larry Locke at Boston, and the Red Sox ended the Indians' winning string a tseven, 7-6. Detroit lost Al Kaline, blew a five-run lead, and dropped into a third place tie with Baltimore as the Orioles scored twice in the ninth for a 7-6 victory.

In the lone night game, Harmon Killebrew regained the major league home run lead with his 23rd as Washington beat Kansas City 7-5, the A's fifth straight defeat.

Vic Wertz drove in three runs for the Red Sox, singling home the clincher in the eighth and tagging the loss on reliever Mike Garcia (0-5) in Boston's first success against Cleveland. Locke, 25, a

The Yankees and White Sox both blew two-run leads. Chicago with two unearned runs in the fifth against rookie Jim Bronstad, and New York with a two-run eighth that chased starter Bob Shaw.

Chico Carrasquel and Gus Triandos hit a pair of two-run homers in the eighth for the Orioles, and Chico then won it with a two-out, two-run single in the ninth. The Tigers, losing two straight for only the second time in a month, lost Kaline when he was struck in the face by Second Baseman Billy Gardner's wide throw as he ran to first in the first inning. Kaline, No. 2 in the AL bat race behind teammate Harvey Kuenn, suffered a broken cheek bone and will be out from a week to 10 days.

Ernie Johnson (4-1) won it with one inning of relief for the Birds. Dave Sisler (1-2) lost it in relief. The Senators came from behind three times to beat the A's and Ray Herbert (4-6), finally clinching it in a three-run sixth when Julio Becquer's pinch double broke a 5-5 tie.

CHAPTER 27

Inspector Perrier pulled out a chair and, whistling softly, leaned back into it, spreading his legs. Then he took out his watch and, holding it high, let it dangle from his hand.

Before three minutes were up, Louis Anet spoke. "I will tell you where to find Timgad. There is a meeting tonight. Two o'clock at the Villa Mimosa on Cap Martin." For a moment nobody said anything, then Perrier, a smile of utter satisfaction playing around his mouth, rose slowly.

Well, Anet, I'm glad you understood that there was no other way than to tell us what you know." He looked at his watch. "In an hour you will accompany me to the meeting on Cap Martin."

Quickly, loudly, he clapped his hands and the door opened. "Take him away," he said to the two policemen, "and give him something to eat and drink. Let him rest if he wants to. I'll need him later. And tell your captain that I want to see him in a couple of minutes."

He went over to Fleur Constant. "I can't tell you how happy I am that your brother seems not to be involved. I may have to see you tomorrow for a little while, to ask a few questions. At this moment you'll understand that nothing matters but to find Timgad, the man we have been looking for, for such a long time."

"I wonder," said Mark Travers. "I just wonder if we will."

A sharp frown showed suddenly like a small vertical scar between Perrier's brows. "What makes you doubt it, Travers?"

"I don't know," Mark shrugged. "Something in the way the man behaved. I've been watching Anet's face and I don't trust him. When he was brought in, he gave the impression that he was determined not to speak, that he would rather face death than become a traitor to his cause; then he changed his mind. "There are very few among them who, when they know the game is up, don't try to save their own skin."

"But he belongs to the few," Mark said thoughtfully. "He believes in what he is doing, in his cause or whatever you may call it. For him it justifies everything. If you ask me, he's a good actor. I'm not at all sure that he spoke the truth. Maybe it is a ruse, an attempt to gain time, possibly to find a chance to warn Timgad."

Perrier shook his head vigorously. "No. You are not familiar with how these things work. He has no chance and he knows it. For Timgad and his organization, he is finished, even if he had no proof against him and let him go."

"A man who has let himself be caught, who is known to the police, who could be picked up again and questioned . . . they would kill him. They can't afford to take such chances. There was no way out for him but to turn informer. He can wish for nothing better than the safety of a prison."

"If he had not spoken, there was enough evidence to send him to the guillotine — Corinne's murder, high treason, quite possibly he was involved in Baudon's death. You'll see. We'll find Timgad tonight. There wouldn't be any point in Anet's giving us a false address, because he knows that unless he proves helpful the deal is off."

He studied his watch. "I think it's best if we meet at the Villa Mimosa. Do you know the place?"

"Yes," said Mark. "I'll be there."

He turned to Fleur Constant, who was staring at him with terrified eyes.

"Don't worry, Mademoiselle," Perrier told her, "everything will be all right. In this case the arrangements will be quite elaborate."

He turned to Mark. "Now don't be late or I may feel tempted to claim an honor that is really yours. In sixty minutes exactly."

"In sixty minutes," said Mark, comparing his watch with Perrier's. "See you then."

They left the police station, but though they walked hand in hand down the steps and across the street to where Mark had parked the car, they did not talk.

Mark could feel Fleur's fingers, cold and trembling against his palm, and knew what she was thinking yet not daring to phrase, and that he would not be able to reassure her. He unlocked the door, opened it for her, and watched her slide in, bumping herself in her great weariness.

"Poor darling. You're exhausted, aren't you?"

She didn't answer, and he bent to kiss her lightly before he started the motor. "Is your brother really so much the absorbed scientist," he asked, more to distract her than to satisfy his curiosity, "that he didn't notice what was going on right under his nose?"

That Anet could use his boat, its radio . . .

But she had laid her head against the back of the seat and closed her eyes. Then, thinking of Guy Constant's work, Mark shook his head to himself, answering his own question.

It wouldn't really have taken so much vigilance on Anet's part to send his messages without being observed. He could have done it while Constant was photographing marine life.

"Are you asleep, Fleur?" He whispered so as not to disturb her, in case she had dozed off, but she heard him. She shook her head, still without speaking.

"If you don't mind, I'll wash up before I see you home," he said.

He had to drive slowly; near the Casino, the street was clogged with cars, either driving from or toward the gambling rooms. And the parking lot was as crowded as when they had left it. Nothing seemed to have changed. The orchestra was still playing on the terrace and voices and laughter floated through the dark.

In his room, Fleur suddenly put both arms around his neck. "Mark. Don't go. Please. Let Perrier and the police handle it."

This time it was his turn to be silent. All he could do was hold her close, stroke her dark, silky hair, kiss her tenderly.

"What reason is there now for you to go?" she cried. "None. None whatsoever. You have done what you set out to do. If Timgad is there, they will arrest him without you."

"If he is there," he said. "But for nearly three years he has evaded the police. His escapes are legends. And, in that case, nothing will have been accomplished. If Anet has told the truth and there are others there, I might find out . . ."

Perrier will interrogate them. "There may be a fight. Do you really think I could stay here and let Perrier . . ."

She put her hand over his mouth, cutting him short. "Mark, those are not the true reasons. Why do you want to go?"

He stood very still then. "Because of Philippe, who was shot in the dark when he went to meet Timgad, trusting. Because of Corinne, though she meant nothing to me. But she risked her life to help. And because of the innocent people who died today in the cafe. And because, the way I am made, I have to see a thing through to the end. Even if the odds are against me. And whoever Timgad is, he is more than just a murderer. He stands for everything I hate in life. As long as people like him are allowed to act, life isn't worth living."

She let her hands fall resignedly, as if she knew better than to try to stop a man whose heart was filled with a passion for justice.

"Timgad is here!" Mark is told, and Martha Albrand's novel of suspense whirled toward a conclusion tomorrow.

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — George Wyatt is Oregon's senior angler, reports the state game commission. At 99 he is just one year younger than the state. He and three other over 90 anglers have received Oregon fishing licenses this year.

The United States is the world's largest producer of eggs.

Fort Kent, Maine (AP) — Doctors at Peoples Benevolent Hospital said today that Mrs. Helldore Cyr, 48, and her 27th child are "doing just fine."

The child, a seven-pound, five-ounce boy, was born last Sunday, two days after Helldore Cyr, 52, and his wife, Marie, had celebrated their 31st wedding anniversary.

The couple live on a 400-acre farm at Ledges, New Brunswick, with 14 children. Five are married and residing elsewhere. Seven of the children have died.

Red Oak Christian Announcements

The Rev. Howard James has been Director of Music for the annual revival at First Christian Church, Vanceboro, during this week. Chaplain Frank Gosser (Major, U.S. Army) has been preaching. The Rev. Henry Speight is pastor of the growing congregation which is just completing a $50,000 Building Program.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Gray of 107 Sylvan Drive and Mrs. Mary Harrington of Cotanche Street are new members of Red Oak Christian Church.

Attendance at Sunday School on June 14 was 141. There are classes for all age groups with a fine staff of officers and teachers. Opening worship assemblies begin at 9:45 a.m.

In observance of "Father's Day" the pastor will preach at the 11 o'clock Morning Worship on "The Fatherhood of God." The Sanctuary Choir Anthem will be "Lead Me Gently Home, Father." Flowers will be provided by Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Eason and Ami Eason.

Board Chairman Milton May has called a special Congregational Meeting at 12:00 noon to approve the new official Board Members for July 1, 1959—June 30, 1960. Youth Meetings will be held Sunday at 6:00 p.m. with supper provided by circle No. 2.

Sanctuary Choir rehearsal will be held Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. CMF will be held Thursday night at 7:00 o'clock with Claude Manning and Earl Joyner as hosts.

Extra Means Of Identification

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The sheriff's office here has a new identification system it describes as the greatest help to law enforcement since fingerprints.

Sheriff Peter Pitchess said his men now can assemble in about 20 minutes the likeness of a criminal suspect drawn from descriptions of witnesses.

The system is based on a device called Identikit in which the suspect's image emerges by use of overlaying transparent films. Each of the films bears a line drawing of a coded facial characteristic. A total of 62 billion facial combinations are possible by using the 500 transparent films.

The system was developed after 16 years research by the department's chief, Hugh C. McDonald.

Union-Busting Policy Said Aim N. C. Administration

HENDERSON, N.C. (AP) — Charges that Gov. Luther Hodges and his administration are "openly committed to union-busting" in a lengthy cotton mill strike here were released Thursday by William Pollock, president of the Textile Workers Union of America.

Pollock's charges, contained in a statement released at the TWUA's southern headquarters in Charlotte, concerned the Harriet-Henderson Cotton Mill strike which started last Nov. 17.

Pollock, whose headquarters is in New York, charged that North Carolina law enforcement was mobilized against the TWUA "to get Gov. Luther H. Hodges' administration off the $25,000-a-week hook upon which its pro-employer bias in the Harriet-Henderson Cotton Mills dispute has impaled it."

Because of violence surrounding the strike, the state at first detailed Highway Patrolmen to keep the peace, then sent in National Guardsmen.

An allocation from the state's contingency and emergency fund Thursday indicated it has cost the state $111,287 to keep the Guard in Henderson from May 12 through June 7.

Pollock's statement said the Hodges' administration is now "openly committed to union-busting in an effort to end the resistance of 1,000 locked-out Harriet and Henderson workers and thereby remove the burden which scabbering of strike breakers by the state militia has placed upon all the taxpayers of North Carolina.

"This is what is really behind the arrests of the Harriet and Henderson strike leaders," the statement charged.

Boyd Payton of Charlotte, Carolinas director of the TWUA, and three other union leaders were indicted here Monday. They were charged with plotting to dynamite a Carolina Power and Light Co. substation which furnishes power to the mills. Four strikers also were arrested.

The strike started when the company insisted that an arbitration clause in the contract be removed. The mills opened on a limited basis Feb. 16. There has been sporadic violence since.

The governor has pressed Henderson and Vance County officials to hire extra law officers to keep peace at the mills so that at least some of the Guardsmen can be returned home.

The city and county have rejected the proposals and only Thursday Henderson Mayor Carroll V. Singleton wrote Hodges saying the strike is a test of the state's right to work law and for this reason it should not be up to the local government to bear the "entire cost of this fight that is being made for the state as a whole."

No One Dares To Win Too Much --- Too Fast

Editor's Note — William L. Ryan is winding up his eighth tour of the Middle East. On each visit he tries to seek out the underlying elements of the news there and to appraise prospects in that cockpit of East-West contention. This is a sumup of his findings.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press News Analyst
CAIRO (AP)—Nerves are raw in the Middle East. One thing is keeping the area from exploding into a crisis like the one that brought U.S. Marines to Lebanon last year.

The brake on everybody seems to be this: none of the participants in the developing contest dares to win too much too fast. For all involved there are serious dangers connected with swift victories. Those victories already chalked up by one side or the other have themselves a vaporous, unreal quality.

This cautious, alert waiting may be connected with Geneva. It may continue at least until after this summer's talks. Then perhaps the cold war spotlight will swing back to the Middle East, and inevitably something must explode.

Possibilities for explosion involve Iran, Iraq, Jordan, Israel and the position of Arab leadership still held by President Gamal Abdel Nasser and the United Arab Republic.

In Iran, the Persians apparently have set back the Communist timetable. The example of neighboring Iraq, where the Communists are almost in control, has moved the Shah and his government to strong defensive measures.

The Turkish and Azerbaijanian areas of northwest Iran offer the only likely prospect for a Soviet corridor to Iraq. With such a corridor, the Russians might exercise direct control over Iraq. But to move too swiftly now would mean either risking defeat or touching off World War III.

In Iraq the Communists had seemed willing and eager to take full control. Once again there was danger in winning too much too fast. The Communist hold in Iraq would be tenuous. Events elsewhere in the Middle East could overwhelm the Communists at any time. Moscow then would have gained nothing in return for sacrificing gains made previously among the Arabs.

Maj. Gen. Abdel Karim Kassem, Nasser's opposite number in Iraq, has been built up to the role of hero, seemingly accepted as such by most Iraqis at the moment. The Reds helped build him up. If he should be removed suddenly, the Communists might feel forced by circumstances to move in.

Nasser has moved cautiously with regard to Iraq, unready to risk another defeat like that in the abortive Mosul revolt in March. Even should he be able now to provoke a counterrevolution in Iraq, the result might throw the whole area into turmoil, even threatening a general middle east war.

In Jordan, young King Hussein remains in constant danger of a coup against his throne. It would be executed in the name of the Pan-Arab nationalism which Nasser heads. But it is doubtful that Nasser wants any such victory in his name in Jordan in the foreseeable future.

Nasser cannot afford Jordan, its budget, its vast economic problems. With the memory of the Suez invasion of 1956 still fresh, Nasser likely is far from ready for a new showdown. If he lost that, it could destroy him.

Israel seems intent on keeping Nasser off balance, and is turning to much attention to his internal problems. Any Israeli thrust against Nasser could strengthen his position of Arab leadership.

McElroy Opines Attacking MIGs Were N. Korean

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Communist MIGs that shot up an American patrol plane over the Sea of Japan were more than likely North Korean, Secretary of Defense Neil H. McElroy says.

McElroy told a news conference Thursday he bases that opinion on the direction from which the planes came. In the area of the attack, 85 miles east of Wonsan, the jet fighters could have been manned by North Koreans, Red Chinese, or Russians. Planes of all three carry the Red Star insignia seen on the attackers.

McElroy said it was ridiculous to raise a fuss about whether the American patrol plane was adequately armed or not. Its World War II vintage guns "are not going to knock off a MIG anyway," he said.

The defense secretary said the really important thing about the incident was that the U.S. Navy plane was on a peaceful mission over international waters and was jumped by "an irresponsible pair of fighters."

The U.S. plane's tail gunner was severely wounded by the attacking jets, and his gun was knocked out before he could return the fire. Crew members agreed the attackers were Soviet-built MIG15s or MIG 17s.

Other gun turrets on the plane had been disarmed so radar and cameras could be installed.

A photograph of the enemy planes which one of the crewmen snapped in the confusion of the attack could pin down the nationality of the planes beyond doubt.

The picture is being sent to Washington for evaluation. A Navy spokesman said "it is not known when and if it will be released."

The state department wants to protest Monday's attack but isn't sure where to direct the protest. The United States at any rate has no diplomatic relations with North Korea.

McElroy told his news conference "our patrol aircraft see aircraft of the other side with some regularity. It is an area where each side keeps track of what the other is doing."

Earlier in the day Congress members said they understood patrol planes in that area would be escorted by fighters in the future, armed with the deadly sidewinder rocket.

But the Pentagon promptly knocked down that report and said it must have been misunderstood. It said there were no plans for escorting patrol planes.

Thirty-Three In Driving Course

Thirty-three students have been enrolled in Junius H. Rose High School's summer program of driver training and will complete their second week of instruction today.

The students are all between 15 and 16 years of age and will receive a minimum of 18 hours classroom instruction, 12 hours of observation and six hours of behind-the-wheel training before completing the course. C. E. Bradley, a 1959 graduate of East Carolina College, is instructor.

According to Principal O. E. Dowd, students who complete the course will receive certificates from the State Department of Public Instruction. No fees are charged for the training which is paid for out of funds which come from a $1 charge added to costs of motor vehicle license plates.

Books & Stuff

By DR. ED HIRSHBERG

MARBLEHEAD, Mass. — This vacation has more than ever convinced us that a book is the only thing you can really rely on to make vacations worth taking in the first place. No matter what the weather—which in our particular case has been lousy so far—you can always take up a book and forget it, and any of your other troubles—like sick kids, too many mosquitoes, traffic jams and the other evils all vacationists are heir to. . . .

More Tips
If you head North and get onto any of the big turnpikes—which you can't very well help doing, sooner or later—be sure you never get turned around. If you do, you can never turn back, and you might as well give up going in the direction you originally intended to go in and start planning all over again. Also, if possible, fill up with gas before or after you hit the pikes because it's more expensive. The cheapest gas, incidentally, all the way up the coast, is in and around Boston—22¢ a gallon. Makes it almost worthwhile to come up here to buy gas. Next to cheapest: New Jersey. Highest: Virginia and Tarheelia. . . .

Places
Bringing kids along makes you go to odd or curious places where you wouldn't think of going without them. Even though the Northeast was our home for years we never got to the Bronx Zoo, for example. With kids this trip, we did. It was worth visiting—beautifully kept—some of the cages in better shape than many of the living rooms we've been in—and the animals in fine condition, ready to roar, jump or what-all. Sign on the special Children's Zoo caught our eye: "Adults unaccompanied by Children Not Allowed."

Biggest animal was a rhino, complete with horns. Most dignified was the old MGM Lion—in person. His mane looked as though somebody had just got through combing it. . . . Another place where we've been often but never really seen is Salem, Mass., home of Nathaniel Hawthorne, Witches' Hill — where the witches were hanged back in the 1600's—and the House of the Seven Gables. We asked a guide if we could get to see any hanging witches but he told us they were strung up only over weekends, so we had to miss that. . . . We did get to the old Salem Custom House where Hawthorne used to work. In his old office you can press a button on the wall and a record will play that describes how the office looked back 100 years ago or so, quoted from the Preface to "The Scarlet Letter." Quite a literary thrill. . . .

Words and Phrases
Speaking of literature, what with our interest in English and

Change Of Cast Due To Politics
CHICAGO (AP)—A change of cast was ordered today for the Chicago Sanitary District's movie, "Storm Warning," a thriller about sewage disposal.

Since the film was made last year three Democrats have replaced three Republicans on the nine-member board. Scenes showing the Republicans are to be cut out and new scenes shot showing the Democrats.

all, we've been noticing with dismay all the obstructions to good English that get thrown at you constantly all over the place—no wonder we poor English teachers have so much trouble. . . . On the radio you're constantly reminded, for instance, that a certain cigarette tastes good—like a cigarette should. And why can't they say "as"? . . . Signs along the way cancel out all our efforts to teach people how to spell. Like the "Snak Bar" somewhere in Virginia and the bookstores of all places—with the sign "Books for all Occasions." Then there was the interesting punctuation of the sign announcing about a motel that "Its quiet and peaceful here."

To say nothing of the "Autel" where you're invited to stop somewhere in New Jersey, and the store in Brookline, Mass., labeled "Pikachick" where you can buy chickens, believe it or not, and the bakery where you're asked to "Takacheck" to determine your place in the line to be waited on. . . .

And Books
Not that we've been spending much time on books, except for our first tribute, but we'll still let you in on a few for the summer. Though you can get a complete list in last week's Saturday Review, where a dozen book review editors name their favorites among the latest. Leading all the rest is James Thurber's biography of the late eccentric editor of the New Yorker Magazine, THE YEARS WITH ROSS. Next in line are THE RAPE OF THE FAIR COUNTRY by Alex Cordell, about life in 19th century Wales among the coal miners—soon to be reviewed here — and Vance Packard's new one, THE STATUS SEEKERS, concerning modern Americans' ways of social climbing. . . . We happened to pick up one of Peter deFries' old books, COMFORT ME WITH APPLES, published before his recent best seller, THE MACKEREL PLAZA, and we still think he qualifies as the nation's funniest writer, if you like sharp satire along with corny puns, which we do. . . . And we will close with this brief couplet, to give you our idea of the only guarantee we know of that will cure the vacation blues: Before you leave that cozy nook That you call home—Go buy a book.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — Merger plans for Texaco and Superior Oil of California enlivened an otherwise dull and listless stock market early this afternoon.

Shares of the two big oil firms, whose combined operations would control an estimated eight percent of the total oil production of the United States, advanced in active dealings.

Throughout the market list as a whole, however, changes were mostly narrow and the general trend was mixed. Steels spurted for a while, showing gains of 1 or 2 points, but this rally fizzled.

The proposed exchange basis of 24 shares of Texaco for each share of Superior Oil found Texaco unchanged at the opening while Superior was up 60.

Gains of about 2 points by Lukens and Youngstown Steel featured the spurt by steels. Later Lukens wiped out the entire gain. Youngstown remained up more than a point. U.S. Steel canceled a 1-point gain.

Schering and Norwich Pharmaceutical were up about 2 apiece while Merck held a fractional gain and Pfizer was down slightly.

Losses of around a point were shown by General Tire, Goodyear and Du Pont.

U.S. government bonds were slightly higher.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA) — Hog prices steady to 25 lower; tops of 16.50 to 18.00 Wilson; 16.75 to 17.50 Kingston, New Bern, Mount Olive; 16.75 to 17.25 Nahantia, Rocky Mount; 16.50 to 17.00 Greensboro; 16.25 to 17.00 Benson, Albemarle, House's Mill, Lillington, 16.25 to 16.75 Bethel, Murfreesboro, Edenton, Grimesland, Sunbury, Harrellville, Farmville, Tarboro, Enfield, Scotland Neck; 17.00 Clinton, Fayetteville, Goldsboro; 16.50 Lumberton, Dunn, Four Oaks, Siler City, Tabor City, Shalotte, Clarkston, Laurel Hill, Clayton, Winkate, Greenville; 16.25 Castle Hayne, Burgaw, Wilson cash cattle prices steady; steers and heifers, choice 23.25 to 29.00, good 23.75 to 26.25, commercial 22.50 to 25.00; cows, beef type 17.75 to 20.25; heavy cutters 16.00 to 18.50; bulls, lightweights 17.00 to 19.00, heavy weights 19.00 to 23.00.

Swine Breeding Farm Is Shown To Pitt Tour Group

FROSTY MORN FARM MANAGER JACK LAMB . . . conducts tour of farrowing house.

One hundred and fifty swine growers on an annual tour got a look at Frosty Morn's up-to-date swine breeding farm, located south of Grifton, yesterday afternoon.

Jack Lamb, manager of the farm, told the group that the Frosty Morn farm was established "to breed a good meat type hog to lease to farmers."

As a result, he said, the company hopes "to get a better flow of meat type hogs" into the Frosty Morn packing plant at Kinston.

He said facilities have been provided on the modern farm for farrowing 72 hogs at a time. There are three farrowing houses and 24 units in each house. Three pig parlors will handle 200 pigs each.

A part of 160-acre farm is now used for growing of corn. The corn will later be used for feed, Lamb said.

The farm manager said the Frosty Morn farm was only in the planning stage eight months ago. Since that time all the buildings have been erected and one group of pigs farrowed.

Those on the swine tour spent the entire afternoon at the Frosty Morn farm.

In a discussion session held prior to touring the swine buildings there, they heard Al Howard, livestock development specialist with Atlantic Coastline Railroad, described the tour of swine operations throughout the country in one word, "Progress."

"I believe in Eastern North Carolina we've made much progress in the last 15 years," he declared.

"Everywhere we've been today have been conscious of a sanitation program."

He said he had seen "better set-ups and better hogs" on the Pitt County tour than he saw on a recent tour in the Midwest hog raising area.

"We are doing a better job," he concluded, "I personally am proud of the job that Eastern North Carolina is doing."

The group also heard from Jack Kelley, who is in charge of animal husbandry extension for N.C. State College; Ray Ritchie, extension agricultural engineer and L. B. Outlaw hog purchasing specialist with Frosty Morn.

Farm Agent S. C. Winchester said this morning, "The tour from our point of view was very successful. We thought the afternoon discussion period was the highlight."

He said farmers from Pitt, Martin and Lenoir Counties took part in the tour.

Assistant Farm Agent C. J. Goodman was in charge of the annual swine tour.

Medical Group Favors A Fourth Booster Shot

Pitt County's Medical Society has gone on record as favoring a fourth polio booster shot, it was announced today.

The shot should be given to children who have been longer than two years without a booster, Dr. G. Earl Travathan said.

He said the recommendation was adopted by the society "in keeping with the finding that some children are now losing their immunity, especially small children and infants."

"An additional fact is that there is a general increase in paralytic cases this year," he said.

In addition persons from infancy to age 40 who have not had the original three polio shots should receive them, Dr. Travathan stated. Dr. Stephen Bartlett is president of the Medical Society this year.
