Three Train Cars Derailed Here

DERAILED TRAIN CARS . . . Workmen toil at one of three train cars derailed in Greenville, Thursday and Friday. This and one other car was thrown from the Atlantic Coast Line track by a derailler at the G. E. Grain Mills on North Greene St. Thursday about 6:45 p.m. Train crews worked most of yesterday re-railing the cars. A third car left the rails at White Construction Cement Plant, when workmen pushed it up on a sand pile. Train crews re-railed it in short order. Only slight damage to the cross ties resulted from the mishaps. (Reflector Staff Photo)

House Okays 'Temporary' Increase In Debt Ceiling

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the sixth time since President Eisenhower took office in 1953, the House has passed a bill raising the ceiling on the national debt. This time it is a peacetime top of 295 billion dollars. That was exceeded only by a temporary ceiling of 300 billion dollars during World War II, but the actual debt then was smaller than it is today. Grumbling and blame-laying, House members Friday sent the booster bill to the Senate by a vote of 255-117. There it is expected to run into further opposition, but pass in the end.

Heavy House opposition meant protests in both Republican and Democratic parties over increased government borrowing at a time when the budget already is 13 billion dollars in the red. House leaders who backed the bill noted that some nay votes were cast by members who have been among the strongest supporters of big spending measures.

"Some of the fellows wanted to claim at least one economy vote on their record," one Democratic leader observed. It was the third time in the past 18 months that President Eisenhower has requested a raise in the debt ceiling. House leaders said that a fiscal emergency exists, and that failure to vote the Treasury more borrowing power would endanger the government's credit and solvency. Rep. Wilbur D. Mills (D-Ark.), floor manager of the bill, said the bill must become law by midnight June 30 if the government is to meet obligations falling due in excess of the present debt limit. The 295 billion top is a temporary one-year ceiling. It would revert on June 30, 1960, to a new "permanent" limit of 285 billions. It is expected the Treasury will seek another temporary rise at that time.

Commerce Dept. Is Given New Jolt By Strauss Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — The historic Senate vote of no confidence in Lewis L. Strauss has given a new jolt to a Commerce Department high command already beset by uncertainty. The 49-46 Senate vote rejecting Strauss as secretary of commerce came as the secretary's office faced a prospect of personnel cuts by Congress. High officials said 51 employees out of a total of about 300 in the secretary's office have been put on notice that their jobs may be abolished on June 30. These notices went out after the House voted to cut $440,000 from the $2,940,000 President Eisenhower asked for running the office. Earlier this week the Senate Appropriations Committee voted to restore $260,000 but the question is still up in the air, but even so, some 25 employees would have to be fired.

There was speculation that with Strauss on his way out the House might now be willing to provide more salary money. But it was unlikely the amount finally voted would exceed the Senate figure. Many Senators felt that Major League Baseball's E. Johnson (D-Tex.) furnished the vital momentum that brought rejection of Strauss' appointment. Johnson had kept his position on Strauss a secret until the final hours of the months-long nomination battle. Then, Senate participants said, he went all out to line up the vote against him. Some of Johnson's colleagues professed to see in this what amounted to an exchange of Strauss' political scalp for less Democratic opposition to Johnson's policy of trimming spending bills to avoid presidential vetoes. They said that Johnson also demonstrated to Democratic liberals that he was willing to stand with them on what they regarded as a vital issue, and also that he was not reluctant to take a strong stand against President Eisenhower.

Eisenhower, who had backed Strauss to the hilt, said the nation was the loser because of this "sad episode." Strauss accumulated many Senate enemies in his years as chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission. The most vocal of them accused him of deceit, arrogance and overweening vanity. For his part, Strauss said he was confident history would be just to him. He retired for the weekend to his 1,500-acre farm in Culpeper, Va. So far, there has been little speculation on who the President will name in place of Strauss. Strauss is expected to submit his resignation within a few days, although aides said he legally can hold the post until Congress adjourns. When Strauss steps down, his duties will be taken over temporarily by Undersecretary Frederick H. Mueller, who will become acting secretary. There was some talk that Mueller, a former Grand Rapids, Mich. furniture manufacturer, might even be named to the secretaryship.

Hodges Ready For Selling Job Abroad

RALEIGH (AP) — Traveling Gov. Hodges, proud of his reputation as the state's top salesman, is ready to take the North Carolina story to Nikita Khrushchev. Hodges will leave Raleigh Sunday to start a three-week trip to Russia, in company with eight other governors. First stop will be Washington where the group will get informal briefings from the State Department. They are scheduled to arrive in Moscow next Thursday. "I'm taking along some Variety Vacationland pamphlets, some North Carolina cigarettes, and brief sets of papers giving an outline of what North Carolina is doing in various fields," the chief executive said. One of his interests, he said, will be to "find out what kind of tobacco they smoke and where it comes from." There's a possibility, hinted businessman Hodges, the Russians might be in the market for Tar Heel leaf.

The Soviet educational system, and talks through interpreters with people in order to find out how they feel about America, will be other concerns on the trip, Hodges added. The governor said he has been studying a recording of the Russian language, but the only word he has picked up so far is Nyet, meaning no. He will take along a couple of cameras, and he plans to bring back plenty of pictures. The trip will end in Moscow about July 18. Hodges will branch off on his own with a flight to Warsaw, Poland, to observe rebuilding there since the war. Then he will fly back to the U.S. from Denmark, on an over-the-pole flight to Los Angeles. After a week or so on the West Coast, he plans to arrive in Raleigh on July 31. The Russian trip is sponsored, handled and paid for by the Institute of International Understanding.

Telephone Relay System Going Up

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A 1 1/2 million dollar relay system capable of carrying 3,000 simultaneous long distance telephone calls will be constructed this summer between Charlotte and Asheville by the Southern Bell Telephone Co. Ralph H. Proffitt, district engineer for Southern Bell, said Friday the system will consist of seven relay towers, 30 miles apart. He said no wires will be involved, insuring "weather proof" of communications. With the system, sound is transmitted by microwaves which travel at the speed of light. The system is expected to be completed by the summer of 1960.

Three Left

RALEIGH — A bill was passed by the Senate yesterday removing Martin, Washington and Wilson counties from the act creating the East Carolina Airport Authority. The new exemption would leave only Greene and Lenoir counties participating out of the original 10 counties which were included. Earlier Edgcombe, Nash and Beaufort counties had asked to be exempted and a short time later Wayne county requested that it not be included in the Airport Authority bill. In addition Lenoir county is a doubtful member of the Authority. The Winston Free Press said recently that Lenoir wanted no part of the deal. The request for removal of Wilson County from the authority was a surprise since Greenville and the City of Wilson joined forces in recent CAB hearings to request air service for the two cities.

Louisiana Officials At Odds Over Governorship

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Louisiana officials were at loggerheads today as to who was the state's chief executive since Gov. Earl Long indicated he may be plotting another court battle to free himself from court-ordered treatment in a mental hospital. Lt. Gov. Luther Frazier, a friend of the 63-year-old ailing governor, said he wants legal advice before formally taking over as acting governor. Secretary of State Wade Martin Jr., a political enemy of Long, said he would continue to recognize Long as governor. He challenged Frazier's right to take over without formal certification of Long's inability to act. "Governor Long has been irresponsible for some time but there has been no legal declaration of that," Martin said. Long called for legal counsel from his home at the South-east Louisiana Hospital at Mandeville, 34 miles to the east of this capital city where he and his brother, the late Huey P. Long, began thriving on peppery politics in the 1930s.

State police and sheriff's deputies overpowered the cursing, fighting governor Thursday night and rushed him to Mandeville. A physician and a psychiatrist said he suffered from paranoid schizophrenia — delusions of persecution. Long had just skipped out on an agreement for voluntary treatment in New Orleans. The agreement had nullified a Texas court fight by effecting his Wednesday release from a Galveston psychiatric clinic. He had been held in the clinic 19 days by court order. Martin said he would challenge Frazier in court if the 54-year-old former president of McNeese State College attempted to act as governor. Frazier said he would not shirk his duty if an emergency declaration was made. He wants legal advice before formally taking over. "Until then I will continue policies, and carry them out, of my close friend, Earl K. Long," Frazier said. Atty. Gen. Jack Gremlion said

Frazier could take over. Martin disagreed, saying the court order that sent Long to Mandeville did not declare the governor's inability to act. Long himself or some official body, Martin said, first must certify Long's inability. Frazier named Gremlion as one of his attorneys. Martin was ousted by Long in 1956 as state insurance commissioner and custodian of voting machines. Since then the two have been bitter enemies. Long's request for legal aid was announced by Jesse Bankston, state director of hospitals. "Louisiana mental health laws give the patient certain legal rights and privileges," he said. "We expect to do everything in our power to see that Gov. Long is accorded all legal protections. We are making arrangements to carry out his request." Bankston gave no details. Sources close to the Long family had indicated earlier they did not anticipate the governor going into court again.

There was no comment from Mrs. Long, who sanctioned the commitment papers both at Galveston and Mandeville. Meanwhile, Dr. Sparkman Wyatt, a Baton Rouge psychiatrist, said Long seemed to have no awareness of his illness but recognized abnormal behavior in other people. "Long apparently felt, in his own words, 'Everyone else is nuts,'" Wyatt said. Wyatt and Dr. Chester Williams, East Baton Rouge Parish (County) coroner, formed the two-man medical commission that examined the governor Thursday night at the Baton Rouge court house by order of the 19th Judicial District Court. "My diagnosis was that the governor was suffering from paranoid schizophrenia, with a manic-depressive psychosis," Wyatt said. A manic-depressive person, Wyatt said, can have alternating periods of depression and manic excitement reaching such intensity the victim may die.

'Triangle' Lab Now Operating

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — A laboratory designed to help government or management make operational and policy decisions is in operation here. The office, part of the Research Triangle Institute, is known as an operational sciences lab. The lab, under the direction of Dr. Hugh J. Miser, deputy assistant for operational analysis for the Air Force, will use quantitative measurement and scientific study of cause and effect relationships to aid management of industrial and government activities in making operational or policy decisions. The Research Triangle is designed to utilize Duke, North Carolina State, the University of North Carolina, and Wake Forest. Private firms are being urged to build in the area in an effort to make it a technical and research center.

Plastic Bag Bill Is Laid To Rest

RALEIGH (AP) — The plastic bag bill was laid to rest by the House Calendar Committee today. The measure would have required plastic coverings for merchandise, laundry and dry cleaning to bear a warning that they are dangerous playthings for children. The bill, by Sen. Grady Mercer of Duplin, originally would have outlawed use of the plastic bags in North Carolina. However, it was amended so as to permit their use if they carried the warning notice. The bill resulted from a number of deaths of children who suffocated while playing with plastic bags over their heads.

Argentine President Survives Big Crisis

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Arturo Frondizi remains president of Argentina after surmounting — at least temporarily — the gravest crisis of his 14-month administration. But the price he paid remains to be seen. Following waves of tension touched off by military plotters, a meeting of top army brass Friday night voted confidence in the president's war ministry. Frondizi, grim faced and tired, met newsmen to say he was still performing his presidential duties. But he did not indicate what concession he made the militarists for their support. Announcement also was made that two alleged leaders of the plot had agreed to submit to detention on sedition charges. They were Rear Adm. Arturo Rial, hero of the revolution that overthrew ex-dictator Juan Peron, and retired Lt. Gen. Arturo Ossorio Arana. The government ordered their arrest Wednesday, but security forces had been unable to find them. Informed sources said Rial and Ossorio Arana led a military group that felt Frondizi had not dealt severely enough with Peron backers. They were said to have demanded the ouster of all government officials with Peronist leanings, and strong measures against labor leaders who have called countless strikes that plague the national economy. Many union leaders are Peronistas or Communists. Despite recent government concessions, the anti-Peronist militarists, known as "gorillas," presumably were not satisfied. But in a showdown, apparently could not convince their fellow officers of the necessity of booting Frondizi. The majority of influential militarists are pictured as extremely reluctant to abolish the constitutional government they fought to establish. The latest troubles apparently were touched off by Peron, living in exile in the Dominican Republic, releasing a document purporting to be a pact he signed with Frondizi promising Peronist support in the last elections. The government branded the document a forgery, but some apparently still believe it is authentic.

Spoiled Seeming Suicide Attempt

GRIFTON — A quick thinking highway patrolman foiled the apparent suicide attempt of a Clayton man near here about 10:00 p.m. last night. Patrolman R.E. Tayloe of Grifton, said he was patrolling on N.C. 11, North of here near Hanahan when he spotted a car parked near the highway with the motor running and no sign of anyone in the car. Investigating, he found a man, later identified as Henry Earl Webb of Clayton, lying in the front seat of the car. There was a hose running from the exhaust into the rear window of the vehicle, bringing in the deadly exhaust fumes. The officer broke into the locked auto, dragged the semi-conscious Webb out and administered first aid. Ten minutes later, after the victim had recovered some what, Tayloe took the man to a Grifton doctor who administered oxygen and then transferred him to Pitt Memorial Hospital in Greenville, where he was treated and released. Tayloe said no motive could be established for the apparent attempted suicide. Webb is a traveling salesman for Garner Home Supply Company in Garner.

Rammed Car Of Child Abductor

ATLANTA (AP) — "I was praying that I could stop him and I did," said a woman who said she saw a man who had abducted her daughter, Sally, fighting to get out the window. That's what an attractive suburban Hapeville mother told police Friday after she deliberately crashed her small sedan into another car and rescued her 7-year-old daughter from a would-be abductor. Mrs. R. E. Carroll told detectives she could see her daughter, Sally, fighting to get out the window. "I could see my baby and that's all I could see," she said. "I started off fast and I rammed him as hard as I could." Detectives identified the youth from papers found in his wallet as Raymond A. McMahon, 17, of Chicago. They said he came to live with his grandmother for two months. The detectives said he fled on foot after the collision. Bloodstains were put on his trail but he was not found. The Georgia State Patrol and authorities in neighboring states were alerted in the belief he might be heading for Chicago. Detectives gave this account:

Sally and her sister, Susie, 9, were visiting a friend when a car pulled up and a youth asked the girls: "How about pushing this button and helping me start the car?" Sally walked over and the youth grabbed her. He yanked her screaming into the car and sped away. Susie ran shouting for her mother. Mrs. Carroll obtained a description of the car, told the neighbor to call police, jumped into her own small sedan and went in search of her daughter. She said she spotted the car parked about a mile away and "I could see the girl fighting to get out of the window." When the other car started off Mrs. Carroll crashed her car into it. Sally was flung into the street. Seventeen stitches were needed to close a cut on her forehead. Detectives said the youth answered the description of a teenager who grabbed a mother of five children last week, tied her up, beat her, took $7 and left her in a car on a dead end dirt road. The woman is still under a doctor's care.

New Sect Is Gaining In The Philippines

By M. P. SARMIENTO

MANILA (AP)—A comparatively new religious sect has gained a firm foothold in the predominantly Roman Catholic Philippines.

Founded by a Filipino in 1914, the "Iglesia ni Cristo" (literally Church of Christ) has grown from a mere handful to the most aggressive and close-knit of Philippine religious minorities.

There are no up-to-date official records but Director Leon Maria Gonzales of the Bureau of Census and Statistics says the Iglesia's claim of a million members is "close to being correct."

Other religious sects in the Philippines include Protestants, Muslims, Buddhists and Jews but 84 per cent of the 23 million Filipinos are Roman Catholics. The top man of the Iglesia is Felix Manalo, 73-year-old former Protestant preacher who is looked upon by his followers as the source of salvation of their souls.

Greenville F. W. B. Announcements

R. B. Crawford, Pastor
Sunday School is held at 9:45 a.m. at the Greenville Free Will Baptist Church. Those not already in Sunday School are invited to be present this Sunday.

At the 11:00 a.m. worship, a group of fathers will sing the hymn "Faith of Our Fathers," H. F. Henry. The Pastor's sermon topic will be "Fathers of Faith," Genesis 7:1. The Free Will Baptist Leagues will meet at 6:45 p.m. under the direction of Miss Ruth Clark.

At the 8:00 p.m. worship, there will be a commencement sermon for Vacation Bible School. Programs will be given by the Nursery, Beginner, Primary, Junior, and Intermediate Departments. Mrs. Bill Taylor has been the general director, and has been assisted by 25 teachers.

Monday night through Thursday night there will be a study course held at the Church at 8:00 o'clock. The book to be studied is "You Can Teach," by James P. Berkeley. This course of study is most important to Christians who want to know how to teach others.

Mrs. J. W. Allen and Mrs. Carl Adams will be in charge of the Nursery at the 11:00 a.m. worship.

Manalo was a Seventh Day Adventist until he broke with the Adventist Central Office over doctrine and administrative policies. Then, it is claimed, he got a "message" from God.

It is told that after fasting for three days and nights to reassess his beliefs, Manalo decided to go out among the people and tell them of his message.

Basically, the Iglesia is a faith of the poor and middle class. It has neither priests nor saints. Even Manalo is titled merely "executive minister."

Its tenets are based on Revelations 7:1-3:

"And after these things, I saw four angels standing on the four corners of the earth, holding the four winds, that the winds should not blow on the earth, nor on any sea nor on any tree."

"And I saw another angel ascending from the east, having the seal of the living God; and he cried with a loud voice to the four angels to whom it was given to hurt the earth and the sea."

"Saying, hurt not the earth, neither the sea, nor the trees, till we have sealed the servants of God on their foreheads."

The Iglesia believes that the Big Four of World War I (Woodrow Wilson, Lloyd George, Georges Clemenceau and Vittorio Orando) might have plunged the world into a "more disastrous war" were it not for the timely appearance of Manalo, the prophesied angel from the east.

The Iglesia holds services on Thursday and Sunday. Its rituals are simple. Service usually consists of hymns, a prayer, the sermon and more prayers. The Iglesia does not believe in communions or confessions.

Symbols of the rise of this aggressive new faith are its chapels, some 3,000 in various parts of the country. They are given to fanciful towers and flashy facades.

Members of the sects are bound not merely by the tenacity of their belief in the Biblical basis of their faith but also by the fellowship and mutual-help devices the church propagates.

Iglesia members in a neighborhood invariably are well acquainted with one another and the church maintains a social security system which helps sick and needy members from contributions.

As executive minister, Manalo holds sole authority to ordain ministers, to promote them and to fix their salaries. The question of a successor is not often discussed in Iglesia circles.

Relaxation

If someone were to deprive you of the right of relaxation you would be a slave.

Yet relaxation itself can enslave us!

Nero is a villain of history because he fiddled while Rome burned. He couldn't have put out the fire . . . but what a colossal stupid time to relax!

There are hours in every week when we need to relax. And there are hours that challenge our mightiest effort.

It is like those hours when, with millions the world over, we have opportunity to seek in our churches truth . . . faith . . . God!

The value of relaxation is unquestionable. But the value of religious and moral growth is supreme!

Stocks-Johnson Speak Vows

In a Sunday afternoon ceremony in the Greenville Pentecostal Holiness Church on June 14, Annie Carolyn Johnson and Guyland Glenn Stocks were united in marriage by the bride's father, Rev. Ralph R. Johnson of Clinton. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Stocks of Greenville.

Music was furnished by Mrs. Paul Braxton, organist, and Miss Betty Jo Howard, soloist, both of Greenville. Selections sung were "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life," "I Love You Truly," and "Wedding Prayer." The traditional wedding marches were used.

The bride was given in marriage by her great-uncle, Ernest L. Johnson, of Kinston. She wore a gown of chantilly lace fashioned with a scooped neckline outlined with iridescent sequins and pearls and long pointed sleeves. Her veil was attached to a cap of lace and sequins. She carried a white Bible topped with a white, purple-throated orchid, with pink rosebuds and white ribbons extending down.

Miss Mable Lewis of Greenville was maid of honor. She wore a yellow dress of dacron with a matching yellow hat. She carried an arm bouquet of blue delphiniums and yellow asters.

Debra Lawson, cousin of the groom, was flower girl. She wore a white organdy dress with yellow slip and sash. She carried a straw basket filled with blue delphiniums.

Best man for his brother was Paul Stocks of Greenville. Ushers were Patrick Collins of Norfolk, Va., brother-in-law of the groom, and Don Stocks of Greenville, brother of the groom.

Honorary attendants were Mrs. Fay Johnson, sister-in-law of the bride of Clinton; Miss Judy Powell of Johnsonville, South Carolina; Rachel Howard of Greenville; and Fay Bullard of Rockingham.

After a wedding trip to western

Mrs. Guyland Glenn Stocks

North Carolina the couple will make their home near Greenville.

The bride was graduated from Whiteville High School, Emmanuel College, and East Carolina College. She has recently been teaching in the Manassas Park Elementary School, Manassas Park, Virginia.

The bridegroom was graduated from Winterville High School and served four years in the Navy. He is now engaged in farming.

Cake Cutting

The bride's parents entertained at a cake cutting after the rehearsal last Saturday night for the bridal party and families. It was held at the home of Mrs. Blanche B. Hill of Greenville. The house was decorated with greenery and white summer flowers.

Guests were greeted by the hostesses and the honoree and invited out to the veranda. Games were then led by Mrs. James Lewis and Sue Flake, assisted by Miss Rachel Rivenbark. The bride was then presented with many useful gifts.

The dining room table was covered with a red and white lace cloth and was centered with an arrangement of mixed summer flowers. Silver candelabra holding burning red candles were placed at each end of the table.

Miss Sue Flake poured iced fruit punch from a crystal punch bowl. Guests served themselves open faced pimiento sandwiches, individual bridal cakes, nuts and mints.

Approximately 45 guests attended. Goodbyes were said by Mrs. Moore, Mrs. D. J. Raspberry and Miss Sue Flake.

Refreshments were served from the dining room where the appointed table was covered with a white hand-embroidered cloth centered with candelabra and pink hlox.

Let Kiddies Do-It-Themselves

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Newsfeatures Food Editor

CHILDREN'S PARTIES are here to stay for the rest of the summer—beginning with Fourth of July celebrations and birthday festivities and going on to simple marshmallow roasts or spur-of-the-moment backyard picnics.

If you have qualms about planning a party for a group of boys and girls, you may be cheered by the following reminder.

Kids are the original do-it-yourselfers, and as any adult who has lived with them knows, they like having a hand in practically everything. Ask youngsters which they prefer: parties given for them at which they have nothing to do but be guests, or parties they have helped create. The latter usually wins.

Begin by letting the children help make the party invitations and decorations. Ask your boy or girl to choose the party colors and use these in a refreshment table centerpiece. Inflate a balloon, paste yarn hair to the pate, let a felt half-moon mouth and oval eyes make the face, and add big floppy crepe-paper ears. Now all the man-in-the-moon needs is a paper ruff decorated with party crackers.

Make after-party clean-up time easy by using throw-away paper service—plates for cake, and dessert dishes in the same design for ice cream. But add a surprise to this perennial refreshment. Have a trayful of tiny paper cups (matching the other pattern) filled with ice-cream toppings: fruit preserves, coconut, tiny marshmallows, chocolate shot and maybe even caramel-coated popcorn. There may be one child who goes wild and helps himself to too much topping, but most of the young guests will be wearing their party manners and act with considerable restraint. Most important, they'll adore his grownup service.

"The Cooking Book" written by Betty Miles and illustrated by Jo Lowrey (Alfred A. Knopf, $2.75) is a unique contribution to do-it-yourselfers from 3 to 6-years-old. With a simple enchanting recipe style and large color pictures, this book is to read and look at as well as cook by. Does your preschool youngster want to invite friends to a quick party—an outdoor marshmallow roast? Then this recipe, borrowed from "The Cooking Book" will be fun to read aloud to the group.

MARSHMALLOWS

You have to have a fire, and some long sticks. Push a marshmallow onto your stick. Then you hold the stick into the fire, but carefully. A grownup shows you where. Hold the marshmallow over the red part of the fire, the coals. Is it puffing up—Is it getting brown? Are you getting hot? Then it's ready. Wait till it cools, and pull it off the stick. The marshmallow is crusty outside and gooey white inside. It tastes like sweet ashes. Do you have sticky marshmallow on your face!

Council Meets

Coochee Council members of the Degree of Pochontas held their semi-monthly meeting Thursday night in the Redmen Hall with Pochontas Gladys Pollard presiding over the ritualistic meeting.

Election of officers was held. Communications were read and reports were given from the various committees. Mrs. Rosa Davis was appointed publicity chairman. A fellowship hour was enjoyed after the meeting adjourned.

Good Medicine In A Bitter Pill

Passage of the state's motorboat licensing bill is a bitter pill for a good many water-minded Tar Heels to swallow.

Most people who take to water and boating do so to relax. They are anxious to "get away from it all" as nearly as possible when they have a few hours to spend on the water. They are understandably reluctant to see the arm of legal authority extend to and interfere with the favorite pastime.

Most boatmen, however, are keenly aware of the rapid increase in the number of boats, small and large, on the sounds, rivers, lakes and even streams of North Carolina in recent years. And that boat craze shows no sign of diminishing. The growth is expected to continue for several more years.

Obviously there is the need for more regulation of these small pleasure craft than in the past. Just as automobile safety has become more important on our highways with the increase in the number of cars, water safety is becoming increasingly important with the increased number of boats.

This new licensing bill passed by the legislature will not solve all the boating hazards which exist in North Carolina today. It is, nevertheless, an important step in the right direction. It provides a licensing fee for boats, makes careless and reckless driving as well as drunken driving in motorboats a misdemeanor and provides a system for reporting motorboat accidents. It provides for enforcement of rules and regulations for boating safety by the State Wildlife Commission and also for boating safety education.

The law in itself will not eliminate all the boating accidents in North Carolina, nor will it guarantee that every person who takes a boat to water will follow the rules of common-sense water safety. Yet, it is a positive approach to the water safety problem which North Carolina faces. It will make the boaters of the state more safety minded and provide safer recreation for the entire state.

While some boaters now have misgivings about the new law, the majority of them, we believe, will welcome this approach by the state government to a problem destined to become acute unless positive action was taken.

Most Legislators Are Glad Ordeal Is Ended

Unless a serious hitch develops, North Carolina legislators will officially bring down the curtain on the 1959 General Assembly at 6 o'clock tonight.

While not the longest, this session certainly will be remembered by legislators and other citizens of the state as one of the most confusing, one of the most unpredictable and one of the most difficult sessions in many years.

Throughout the session there never developed any clear-cut, recognized individual or group leadership. The administration, thought by many to be completely on the outside at the beginning of the session showed spurts of surprising power amid weeks of obvious inability to muster sufficient strength behind its program. Within the legislature lines appeared to be redrawn on each new issue with the outcome often in doubt until the final vote.

The session, for all its confusion, was not a session without accomplishment. In the coming days and weeks various evaluations of accomplishments by the 1959 session will be forthcoming from many sources. And many of these evaluations will be conflicting. How the 1959 session stacks up in accomplishment with those of the past will be largely a matter of personal opinion.

For the moment at least, most of the 170 members of the General Assembly probably will find a great deal of satisfaction in the mere fact that the business has been handled, and the session has reached the end of its rough journey.

It's been a long time since Feb. 4 when they first went to Raleigh.

How Much Waste In Slicing Out The Eyes?

When it comes to wasteful military practices, a little story from Washington this week suggests that the accusers in a court-martial perhaps were squandering more government money than the accused.

According to the Associated Press a private at Ft. Myer, Va. was acquitted by a court-martial of charges of willfully destroying government property.

The specific charge: slicing eyes out of potatoes instead of digging them out with a knife.

How many pounds of potatoes this particular private destroyed by slicing rather than digging, we don't know.

Just off-hand we'd guess the court-martial cost the government more than all the potatoes the private could waste by slicing instead of digging out their eyes during his entire career.

Looking at the national budget, one would think the Army has greater waste problems than those which occur in its potato peeling operations.

Concessions By West Failed

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Big Three Western Allies, although stopping short of a complete breakdown, have made major concessions to the Russians on Berlin. In fact, the West has made concessions from the start.

It was more than six months ago that Premier Nikita Khrushchev told the Allies to get their troops out of West Berlin or he would turn over to the East German Communists control of the supply routes to the city.

The Allies have said they would turn over to the East German Communists control of the supply routes to the city.

Instead, to avoid a conflict which might lead to war, the United States, Britain and France suggested to Russia that all four try to negotiate a peaceful settlement. The result was the foreign ministers meeting in Geneva.

The net result — after six weeks of these talks — has been more concessions by the Allies, this time as the talks seem to be reaching a climax which may bring some kind of settlement or blow up the whole meeting.

Form the beginning the Allies have insisted they had a right — stemming back to World War II agreements — to keep their troops in West Berlin. Although that city is 110 miles inside communist East Germany, its inhabitants are tied to the West German government.

If they didn't get out — and refusing to get out is the most important point on which the Allies haven't backed down — then, according to Khrushchev's warning, the East German Reds would take control of the supply routes to the city.

This meant the Allies — who refuse to recognize the German Communists as the lawful government of East Germany, a Soviet satellite — would have to deal with the East German Reds. This in effect would be recognition.

But once the Reds controlled the supply routes, they could squeeze the city, unless the Allies were willing to use force to stop them, by cutting down on the supplies allowed to go through.

This would threaten the city's economy. If large-scale unemployment followed, as it probably would, the present stability of the city would be shaken. All these things the Allies feared.

So although the Russians had started all this and although the Allies had insisted they had the right to be in Berlin and have free access to the city, these are some of the concessions the Allies made this week:

1. They demanded a Soviet guarantee of their right to get into and out of West Berlin and to keep the city supplied — by rail, road and air — even though East Germans controlled the routes.

By this proposal the Allies dropped their earlier demand for a specific Soviet guarantee of their continued right to be in Berlin as an occupation power.

2. The West said it was ready to accept control of its traffic to West Berlin by the East German Communists, although the West would continue to hold the Russian responsible for keeping the supply lines open to all traffic to Berlin.

Thus the West was attempting to keep the East Germans in the category of mere Soviet agents, not a sovereign power. Nevertheless, the Allies actually would have to deal with East Germans whom they said they would not recognize.

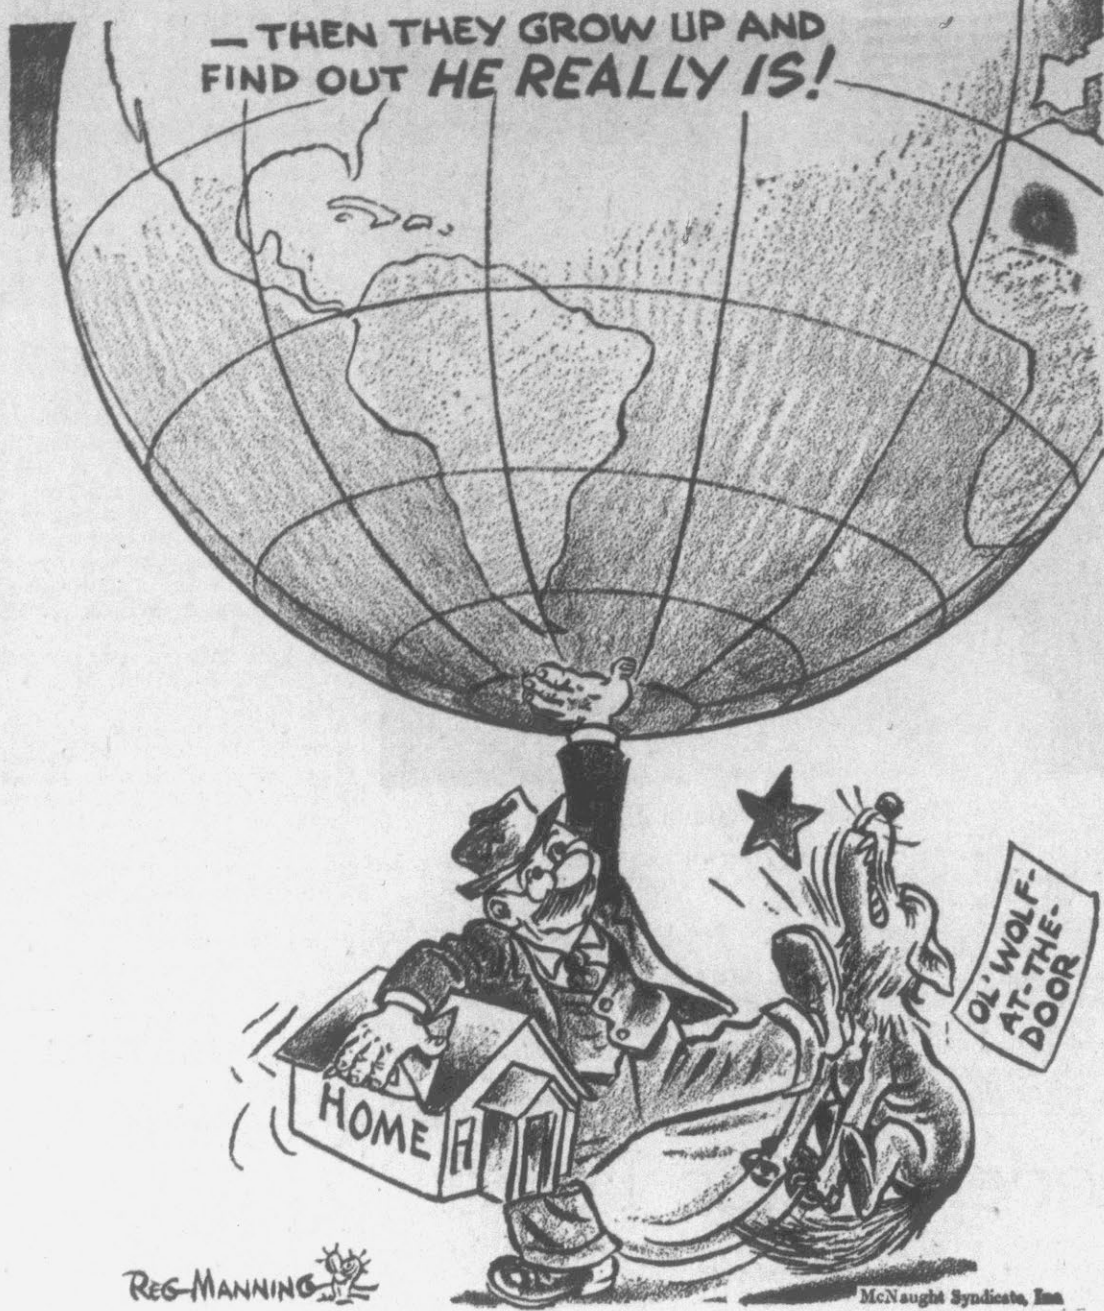

3. The West did not ask the Soviet Union to agree to Allied occupation of Berlin forever. Thus it is a sense they were yielding to Soviet pressure, since they were not telling the Russians they'd leave, if ever, only when they pleased.

Instead, the Allies wanted Moscow to agree to their staying in Berlin until all Germany was unified — this seems so far off it was in effect asking for agreement to an indefinite stay — until some new agreement is reached.

The next move was up to the Soviets.

Neighborhood Round-Up

"Round-up time in Texas" is a popular theme for song and story; but round-up time in our neighborhood also has color, if less well-known.

The "dogies" are just as prone to stray; just as inclined to balk; just as impervious to shouts as anything the wilder West has to offer. And the local show has one advantage in that it's repeated almost daily, whereas in cattle country it is seasonal.

Our round-up may begin about 6:00 p.m. (though the hour varies) when a parental head emerges from the backdoor and calls the family's pride-and-joy to supper. Minutes later, from another backdoor, another voice is heard summoning a little dogie to come home for supper. And then there's a call for yet another . . . until every Tom Dick and Harry, as well as Clementines and Imogenes . . . echoing up and down the street and its branches.

Experience has shown one call isn't enough.

It's followed by another in a sterner voice, and yet another accompanied by rumbling threats. And the objects of all this attention are placidly going about their private affairs as if catching grasshoppers, making mudpies or a hot-rod tricycle race overshadowed all else in the world. They obviously can't hear.

So a door slams and a parent sallies forth for the old story of rounding up the little stray or strays. On reaching the scene of action, he (or she) repeats the familiar refrain "I've been calling you over and over, now come."

In wide-eyed surprise, the response is a perfectly innocent "What'sa want?"

It follows that the little dogie isn't hungry and wants to stay outside; and it follows that his wishes are overridden, and once washed and seated he turns out to be hungrier than expected.

There are no pounding hooves, no wind in your hair, no billowing clouds of dust, no chuckwagons, no branding irons. But the game's the same. You have to go out and bring them in.

SALUTE TO A LONG FRIENDSHIP

Some time ago in the home of a friend I saw a family group portrait which, because of my lifelong friendship with the head of the family, I felt I could request. A few days ago the picture arrived. My good friend and his wife are seated in the center of a group of thirty-one. It is made up of children, in-laws, grandchildren, and one or two great-grandchildren. The little tykes strung along on either side of Grandpa and Grandma look as if they are fairly bursting to get into some kind of mischief. The sons and daughters, parents of these children, are smiling pleasantly.

"What a group!" I cried out as I opened the package and again saw the picture. How precious it is! With what satisfaction I will have it framed and hung in my study. For here, of course, is just about the nearest thing we can get to heaven on earth. Here are a man and woman who is something less than a half century have had the pleasure of seeing this vital, joyful group of human beings come into the world and grow up about them.

God made the family before He made any human institution. The family is above every human institution. Our relationship with God is a family relationship—He the Father, we the children.

Family life is God's life brought down upon the earth. "Our Father which art in heaven." "We look for a city which hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God."

At The End Of A Road

By JOHN RODERICK

KYOTO, Japan (AP)—Japanese who know him are reminded physically of Yul Brynner. But 25-year-old Robert Carl Wheeler is about as far as you can get from Hollywood glamor.

This bald-pated young Missourian is a Buddhist monk who has tramped barefooted begging bowl in hand, through the storied mountains around Kyoto.

He is one of three Americans who have, in recent years, crossed the Pacific to find a personal Shangri La in this capital of old Japan.

The other two are William Flygare, of Boston, who began life as a professional musician and actor, and Philip Karl Eidmann, a Minnesotan. Both have been here nine years.

The three represent a growing and serious interest in the United States and in Europe of the philosophy, art, literature and the religions of the East.

Though Wheeler's Buddhist name is "Shuzen," or "Perfect Completeness," and he wears the ceremonial stole of the sutras—Buddhist scriptures—he is, in everyday life, a monk on a motorcycle.

Dressed in tweed jacket and turtle-neck sweater, a chain-smoker of Japanese cigarettes, he putters early each day to the Kyoto Women's University, a Buddhist school for 9,000 students of all denominations, to teach English.

For Wheeler, of St. Joseph, Mo., Buddhism is the end of a long road in search of a religious philosophy he felt he could live by. He prepared for it by majoring in psychology and sociology at the University of Nebraska.

Son of a devout Congregationalist mother, he rejected Christianity because he says he found in it an oppressive sense of guilt and sin.

"Buddhism is said to be negative," he says in its answers, but in its results, it is positive. He adds, "And, in Buddhism, one can find morality untainted by the guilt motif."

He tried Hinduism, but, "I found it theistic and devoid of compassion at its core."

"At this stage, one of my close friends at the University of Nebraska a Japanese-American, encouraged me to go to Hawaii where he, the guest of his father," Wheeler says, "I went and found the father was a Buddhist priest. My three-month visit turned into a two-year stay, during which I lived at the temple, soaked up Buddhist philosophy, and taught high school on the side."

"I still had not become a Buddhist, but now was determined to live in Japan to get closer to Buddhism."

"But before I could get there I had an interlude of two years, studying psychology at the University of Mexico."

"And, on the way to Japan, I stopped again in Hawaii where I waited another three years, earning $1,000 a month as a representative of a steel company."

"When I finally arrived in Tokyo in 1953 it was as an insurance salesman."

It took him another year to open the way to Kyoto where he met Eidmann, gave up his job, and prepared for the Buddhist priesthood. He joined the noble, old Tendai sect.

Wheeler studied a year and a half, mastering both Buddhism and Japanese, before entering the priesthood.

After his ordination, he spent a year reading the sutras, studying and following a mendicant's life.

Harold Thomas, local pro, reports that the back nine holes of the Greenville Country Club should be ready to play within five or six weeks. The back nine has been under construction since early this spring.

New grass has been added and three new greens have been completely rebuilt. The 11th, and 15th holes will boast the newest look and the 13th hole has been made a par five again. This will make the back nine holes a par 36 and a 72 will be par for the course.

The front nine have been taking an awful beating while the other nine was under construction but an improvement is expected once things get back to normal conditions.

Bring Back Floating Ball

Sir Guy Campbell, a wee, silver-haired Scotman, recently pointed out that there was only one way to keep golf from becoming a muscle-bound sport and that was to bring back the floating ball.

"Men are hitting the ball farther than ever before, courses are being devoured by real estate operators, it is taking longer and longer to play a round," Said Campbell recently. "I have long felt it is up to the rule makers to do something about it."

For the record, Sir Guy, a sprightly 75, is an eminent golf architect who has spent his entire life in the spawning ground of the sport. He served for year on the rules committee of the Royal and Ancient, governing body of British golf.

Aids in New Course

Me is in America to lend his talents to building a unique golf course at Tides Inn in Irvington, Va. He hopes to duplicate some of the famous holes of old Scottish courses.

"I feel that the ball is one way of solving our problems," states Sir Guy. "Today because of our improved equipment, fine steel shafts and atomic golf balls, most of our par holes have become a drive and wedge shot. The game has developed into one with the accent on power. This situation should be stabilized."

"We can't make longer courses—we haven't the space. We can't alter our old courses without destroying their character. We have reached the saturation point so far as implements are concerned. That leaves the ball."

Floating Ball Once Used

According to reports, the floating ball was used by the British until 1921 and by Americans until 1922 when both countries adopted a heavier and livelier ball. The ball used in the period just before and after World War I weighed 1.5 ounces and was called the floating ball because it was light enough to float on water.

"If the U. S. Golf Association and the Royal and Ancient got together, they could get manufacturers to produce such a ball—a perfect ball, mind you, but one which the top-flight shotmakers could not hit as far. Changes could be in construction and markings," concluded Campbell.

Three Cuban Invaders Win First Fights At Garden

NEW YORK (AP)—The Cubans have landed and the situation is well in hand.

A three-man invasion team from Havana established a beach head Friday night at Madison Square Garden. All three will be back August 7.

The familiar cry of "arriba" that used to greet Kid Gavilan's flurries echoed in the Garden for welterweight Florentino Fernandez and lightweight Carlos Hernandez and Douglas Vaillant. Although Hernandez was born in Caracas, Venezuela, Cuba claims him as its own because he has had all his pro fights in Havana.

Fernandez, the "big boy" of the trio, stopped Stefan Redl, Hungarian-born resident of Passaic, N.J., in 1:07 of the seventh round. Fernandez is a well-packed 144-pounder with a solid left hook. Redl, stopped for the first time in his 28-bout career, weighed 147 pounds.

It was a strange ending. Fernandez was running going away when he planted a left hook on Redl's jaw. Down went Stefan in his own corner. He came up at nine, just beating the 10-count. Referee Harry Ebbets took a look and asked, "Are you all right?" Redl said, "Yes" and then proceeded to walk out with his hands down. Ebbets quickly jumped between the men to stop it.

In his dressing room Redl said he thought the fight was over but claimed he could have continued. All three officials had Fernandez, a 23-year-old unbeaten boxer-puncher, way out front. It was the amazing agent chlorophyll in the leaves absorb carbon from the air which gives it most of its substance, while the roots drink water from the soil with all of its chemical materials essential to production of more chlorophyll and growth of the tree or plant. Most trees and plants use NINE MORE elements in their growth than used by animal life, including: carbon, oxygen, hydrogen, nitrogen, sulfur, phosphorus, potassium, calcium, magnesium, iron, manganese, boron, copper, and zinc. After the needed elements are separated from the water taken in by the roots, the excess water is then given off by the leaves in the form of vapor. It is estimated that an ordinary elm tree of medium size will transpire up to 20,000 pounds of water in one single warm dry day. And we think of a tree as still life! Obviously there is more truth than poetry in the poem TREES, by Joyce Kilmer, wherein he says, "Only God can make a tree." Until we think of things like this we think of the maintenance and service of today's motors as complex... and by man's standards we believe it is. That's why we are dedicated to our job of providing you with, and conscientiously taking care of your automobile.

Fernandez left hand that floored Redl was badly swollen in the room. He will have X-rays taken when he and the others return to Havana.

About 5,000 saw Hernandez, 133%, win his ninth straight by outpointing Luke Easter of Pittsburgh, 136, in eight rounds. Easter was down for an automatic eighth round in the sixth. He was the first of Hernandez' pro foes to go the distance.

The other Cuban making his U.S. debut was Vaillant, 134½, a lonesided winner over Jimmy Grow of Lewiston, Idaho, 136, in a 10-rounder. Two officials scored it 10-0 and the other had it 8-1-1. Grow was cut under the left eye and on the bridge of the nose. Vaillant, 21, is unbeaten in 18 pro fights.

Luis Rodriguez, another Cuban, actually had started the big push Wednesday night when he whipped Virgil Akine, the former welter champ, in Miami Beach, Fla.

Very much in the running with 137s were Doug Ford and Jay Herbert while Billy Maxwell, Don Fairfield and Walker Inman Jr. had 138s.

Webb Leads Local Golfers At Wilson

By JOHNNY HUDSON

Greenville golfers found the Wilson Country Club course a little rougher than anticipated yesterday as all five local golfers in the championship flight had their troubles while Bill Harvey, a Greensboro linksman, shot his way into the lead of the opening round of the North Carolina golf tournament now being held at Wilson.

Ercell Webb led the Greenville golfers with a 37 on the front nine and then finished with a 36 for a total of 73, one over par.

Bobby Thomas had his second consecutive bad day as he faltered on the second hole and also had putting problems to finish with a 75. The Greenville youngster took a six on the second hole after a birdie on the first.

Joe Exum was next in line with a 76 and Si Moye entered the second round in bad need of a good round following his 79 yesterday. Reynolds May had an unusually bad day to finish with an 84, way down the line of opening round scores.

Harvey, still in his early 20s but a veteran in tournament competition, had a 37 on the front nine yesterday afternoon but came back with a 32 to finish three under par with a 69.

Breathing heavily on the back of the leader was Larry Beck, young Winston-Salem golfer and former Junior National champion, and Tom McGhee of Camp Lejeune, each with 70s.

Then came Van Ray Poindexter of Winston-Salem and Ed Gravelly of Rocky Mount, each with 71, and Leroy Bateman of Plymouth and Charles Martin of Winston-Salem, each with 72.

Five players were tied with 73, including Ercell Webb and Graydon Liles of Farmville.

Reynolds May will lead-off for the Greenville golfers today in the second round of the 54-hole tournament starting at 11:00.

Ercell Webb, still a big contender, will leave the post at 11:42 and Simon Moye will follow at 12:17. The other two local golfers, Joe Exum and Bobby Thomas, will leave at 12:31 and 1:20, respectively.

Hodgdon gave up only three hits, one a two-run homer, to notch his eighth victory and keep Raleigh within three games of Wilson.

Yastrzemski went two for three, belting a three-run homer and driving in five runs in all. He hit the four-bagger in a six-run fourth to clinch the victory.

Wilson totaled 11 hits while two pitchers Bob Veale and Ben Rich combined to hold Greensboro to only four.

Durham, outthit 13-12 by Winston-Salem, tallied four runs in the eighth inning to overcome a 6-3 lead.

Tonight Raleigh plays at Greensboro, Durham at Wilson and Winston-Salem at Alamance.

It was a strange ending. Fernandez was running going away when he planted a left hook on Redl's jaw. Down went Stefan in his own corner. He came up at nine, just beating the 10-count. Jaycees Defeat Texaco By 9-4

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Jaycees indicated yesterday that they were out to make a race out of the second half of the Little League season, despite an opening loss, as they dumped Texaco, 9-4.

Texaco, the only club that was able to beat the champions in the first half season, were never in the contest yesterday as they were unable to find the range against Charles Vincent until the fourth and by that time they were six runs down.

Danny Singleton of Texaco had a perfect day at the plate with three hits. He had singles in the first and fifth and a double in the fourth.

The Lions, one of the two undefeated clubs in the loop, take on the VFW today in North State action.

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—Eleven of the country's best crews prepared to battle choppy Onondaga Lake today in the 57th Inter-Collegiate Rowing Assn. Regatta. Syracuse was a strong choice to take its first title in 39 years.

Cornell's Big Red, running a string of four straight IRA victories, and the huskies of Washington rated the best chance of defeating the veteran Syracuse boat.

Headwinds of 15 miles an hour forecast by the Weather Bureau would slow the pace for the three-mile haul but could help such crews as Syracuse and Cornell, which emphasize the low stroke.

Navy, Penn. California and Wisconsin fall in the darkhorse category for college rowing's big prize. Princeton, Dartmouth, MIT and Columbia round out the varsity field.

Ten colleges were entered in the freshmen and junior varsity races.

Cornell's freshmen were heavily favored to win the two-mile opening event, Penn was the choice in the three-mile junior varsity pull.

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP)—They gave Silky Sullivan something less than a standing ovation when he came onto the track.

But when the race was run, most of the 24,000 horse racing fans were on their feet cheering.

For Silky, the unpredictable, had done it again. Win, that is, with his customary pulse-straining burst of speed down the stretch at Hollywood Park.

In two previous races, the rasal had flopped. His admirers were plainly annoyed. There was hardly a hand clapped as he paraded past the clubhouse, and just a scattering of welcome as he trotted on down past the grandstand.

LE MANS, France (AP)—American drivers and Italian Ferraris were established as firm favorites in the punishing Le Mans 24-hour sports car endurance race, which got under way today.

The dark horse was the British Aston-Martin team headed by Stirling Moss.

But America's Phil Hill and Dan Gurney, in Ferraris, were clear favorites.

San Francisco 'Evicts' Braves From NL Lead

By ED WILKS

Associated Press Sports Writer
If you think Sam Jones is the hero of the hour now that San Francisco has shoved Milwaukee's Braves out of the National League lead, forget it. Sad Sam is the Giants' hero of the month.

It took Jackie Brandt's two-run single in the bottom of the 10th to put the Giants 300 percentage points and a half-game ahead with a 4-3 victory over the Braves Friday night, but it figures as the least they could do for Jones.

The big right-hander had given up two runs and five hits in the first three innings—then allowed only three hits the rest of the way. Two of those came in the 10th and two were by Billy Brubaker, whose fifth homer gave Milwaukee a 3-2 edge in the top of the 10th.

Then the Giants got busy, chasing Bob Buhl and ending Milwaukee's first-place stay that had begun May 13.

Ironically, it was Jones who was the loser when the Giants fell from first place May 5. And it was Jones who was beaten 4-2 by Milwaukee May 18, the day before the Braves took a 4½-game lead over the Giants.

Since then, a month to the day, the Giants have won 19—and Sad Sam has figured in more than a third of those victories. Now 8-6 Jones has won five of six decisions in that span and has added two saves in relief, having a hand in seven of the 19 victories in the Giants' comeback.

While the Giants and Milwaukee were having at it in the opener of a three game set at San Francisco, third-place Pittsburgh closed within two games of the top with a 6-0 victory over St. Louis. Angeles rapped Cincinnati 6-2, and Philadelphia defeated Chicago's Cubs 8-7.

In the American League, New York's Fifth-place Yankees clipped Cleveland 3-2 trimming the Indians' lead to two games. Baltimore gained a virtual second-place tie with the Chicago White Sox (tied by rain at Boston) by sweeping a two-night pair from Kansas City 8-2 and 2-0. Detroit beat Washington 6-4 in 13 innings.

The Giants, who tied 2-1 on Jim Davenport's single, a walk and two force outs in the fifth, put it away after Buhl (6-5) walked Willie Mays leading off the 10th. Orlando Cepeda's only hit, a single, sent Willie scrambling to third and chased Buhl. Reliever Don McMahon then walked Darryl Spencer, loading the bases for Brandt's third single that brought San Francisco's largest crowd of the year—22,984—to its feet screaming.

Jones struck out nine and walked but three while gaining a 3-1 season record against the Braves. He was 1-3 against them last year with the Cards, who traded him to the Giants last winter.

The Giants, who had 11 hits, now have won three in a row, while the Braves have lost five of their last seven.

Vern Law (7-4) shut out the seventh-place Cardinals, who had won nine of 11, on four singles. Exchange, with two on, triggered a five-run first inning that handed Brooks Lawrence (3-8) his seventh defeat in a row. Rober Craig was the winner. He walked but one, struck out six and allowed only five hits, two by Frank Thomas, who hit his fourth home run.

The Phils had homers from Harry Anderson and Ed Bouchee while building a 7-2 lead, but needed an unearned run in the seventh to nail it. Gene Conley (4-3) won it, but gave way to relief after Ernie Banks' two-run, 19th homer in the sixth inning. Rookie Bob Anderson (3-6) was the loser for the sixth time in his last seven decisions.

Sees No Extra Hazards In Atomic Plane Crash

GATLINBURG, Tenn. (AP)—Atomic-powered airplanes, even if they crash, will be no more dangerous than "other hazards routinely accepted by the public," a General Electric scientist said today.

In fact, he said, the chances of a person being killed in a traffic accident are 80 times greater than the chances he will receive a lethal dose of atomic radiation from a nuclear plane crash.

The findings were presented by Dr. C. C. Gamertsfelder of the GE Aircraft Nuclear Propulsion Department at Cincinnati, in a paper prepared for the Health Physics Society meeting here.

The national organization is made up of the physicians and other specialists in the study and treatment of the effects of atomic radiation on health.

Gamertsfelder has been engaged in experiments at the Oak Ridge (Tenn.) National Laboratory and East Carolina College will offer its second summer travel-study tour in geography July 20-August 12 when a group of students, traveling in ten states in this country and five Canadian provinces, will observe and study industry, agriculture, natural resources, historical background, and other aspects of the places visited.

Under the direction of Dr. Robert E. Cramer of the college geography department, who will act as instructor on the travel-study tour, plans are now nearing completion. Only a few reservations in the chartered air-conditioned bus which will be used for the trip are now available, Dr. Cramer stated. More than fifty places of interest included in the tour include New York City, Boston, Cape Cod, Toronto, the Gaspé Peninsula, Prince Edward Island, and Niagara Falls. Students on the tour will visit a number of places important for their industries. These include a sugar refinery, the Corning Glass works, the Hamilton Watch Factory, a Canadian woolen mill, and a pretzel factory.

A visit to cranberry bogs in Massachusetts, and to farms in the Tantarum Marshes of Nova Scotia and observation of the Farmers Market at Lancaster, Pa., are among experiences planned to give students an idea of agriculture in the areas visited.

The travel-study tourists will see also Plymouth Rock; the Mayflower II; the restored 18th century seaport at Mystic, Conn.; and famous Ephrata Cloister, pre-Revolutionary religious shrine.

Conducted tours will include the Fundy Bay National Park, the Acadia National Park, Quebec, Ottawa, Montreal, and other places of interest.

A visit with an Amish family in Pennsylvania and an interview with the Superintendent of Schools, St. John, New Brunswick, will be among personal contacts between tourists and residents of places on the route.

Vacationers really don't have to leave the state to find what they're seeking. Available for summer vacations here in North Carolina are the State Parks.

Recreational activities available at the parks include swimming, boating, picnicking, camping, hiking, scenic beauty and nature study.

National and State Parks, parkways, forests, historic sites, lakes and dams in North Carolina cover a range of over 500 miles from the Great Smoky Mountains to the Atlantic Ocean at Cape Hatteras. These include hundreds of public recreational areas, refuges, game management areas, hiking and maintained outdoor attractions are well distributed throughout North Carolina's Variety Vacationland.

The summer season for state parks began June 3. The parks are opened the year-round for sight seeing, nature study and similar uses. Swimming facilities and refreshment stands operate June 1 through Labor Day. Tent and trailer campgrounds are operated from about March 15 to about November 1, depending on weather conditions. The campgrounds have roads over which campers may drive cars, and trailers to individual camp sites.

Each site is equipped with tables and benches, outdoor fireplaces and parking spaces for cars and trailers.

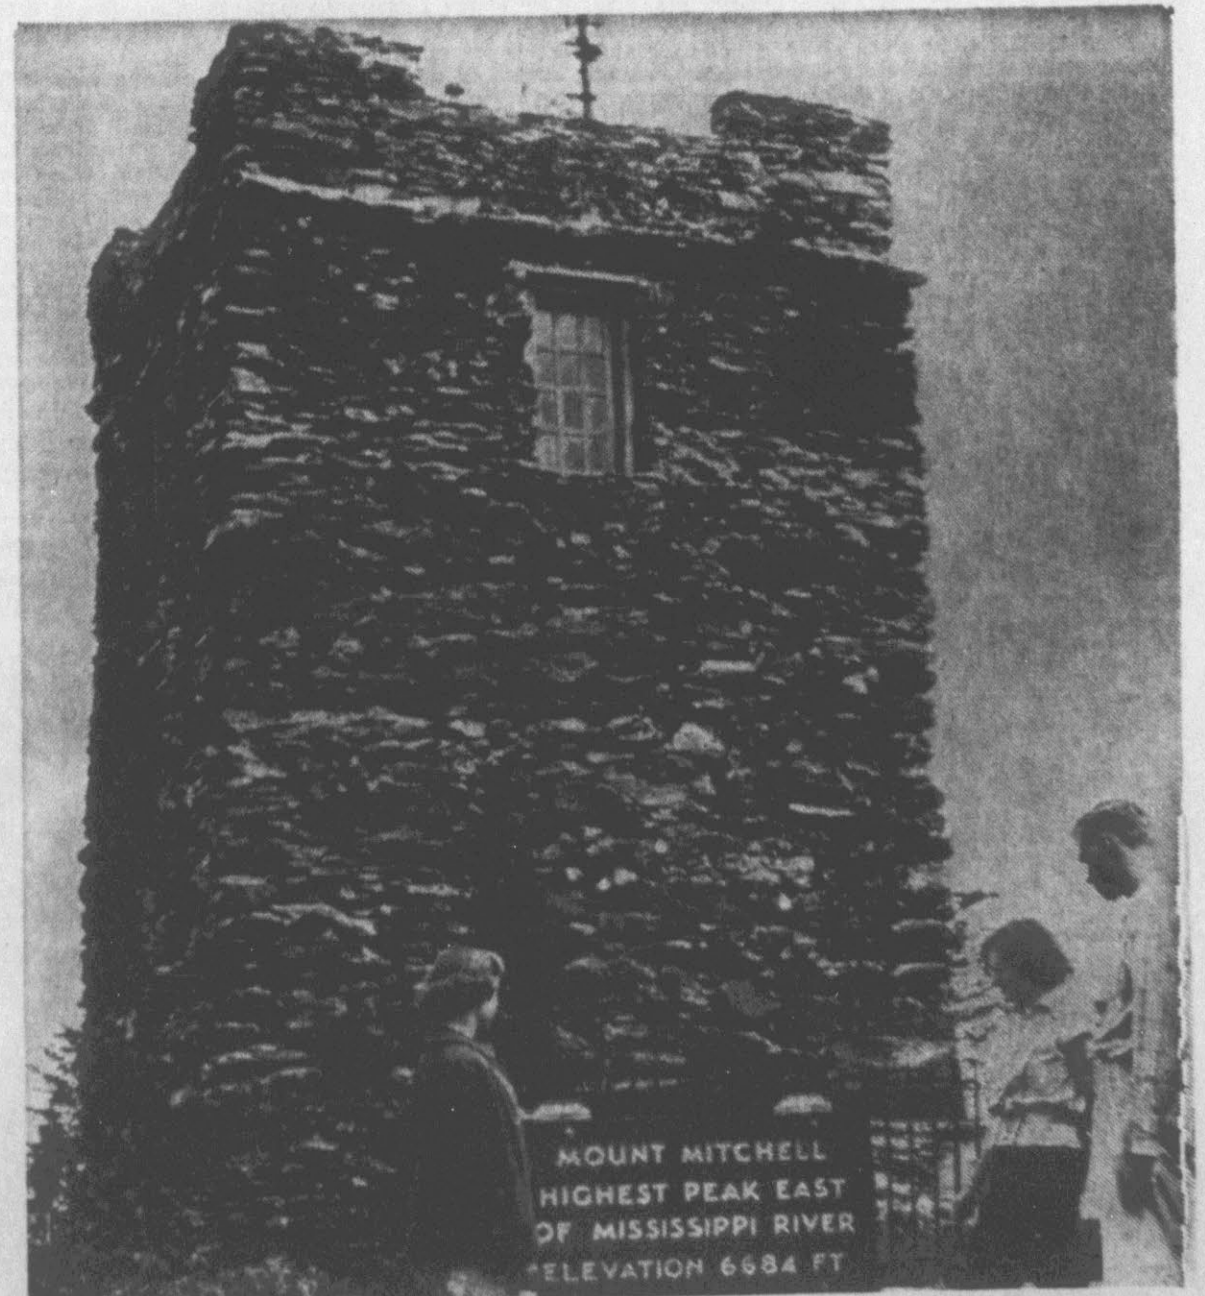

All parks are wildlife sanctuaries. Firearms, cats and dogs (except on leash) are not permitted. Excellent opportunities for nature study are offered. Naturalists are on duty at Cliffs of the Neuse, William B. Umstead, Hanging Rock, Morrow Mountain, Mount Mitchell, Mount Jefferson, and Mount Mitchell State Parks during the summer months.

The state parks are Cliffs of the Neuse, in Wayne County on the Neuse River; William B. Umstead, in Wake County; Fort Macon, in Carteret County; Hanging Rock, in Stokes County; Morrow Mountain, in Stanly County; Mount Mitchell, in Yancey County; Pettigrew, in Washington and Tyrell Counties; Singletary Lake, in Bladen County; Rendezvous Mountain, in Wilkes County and Mount Jefferson, in Ashe County. Jones Lake in Bladen County and Reedy Creek in Wake County are for Negroes only.

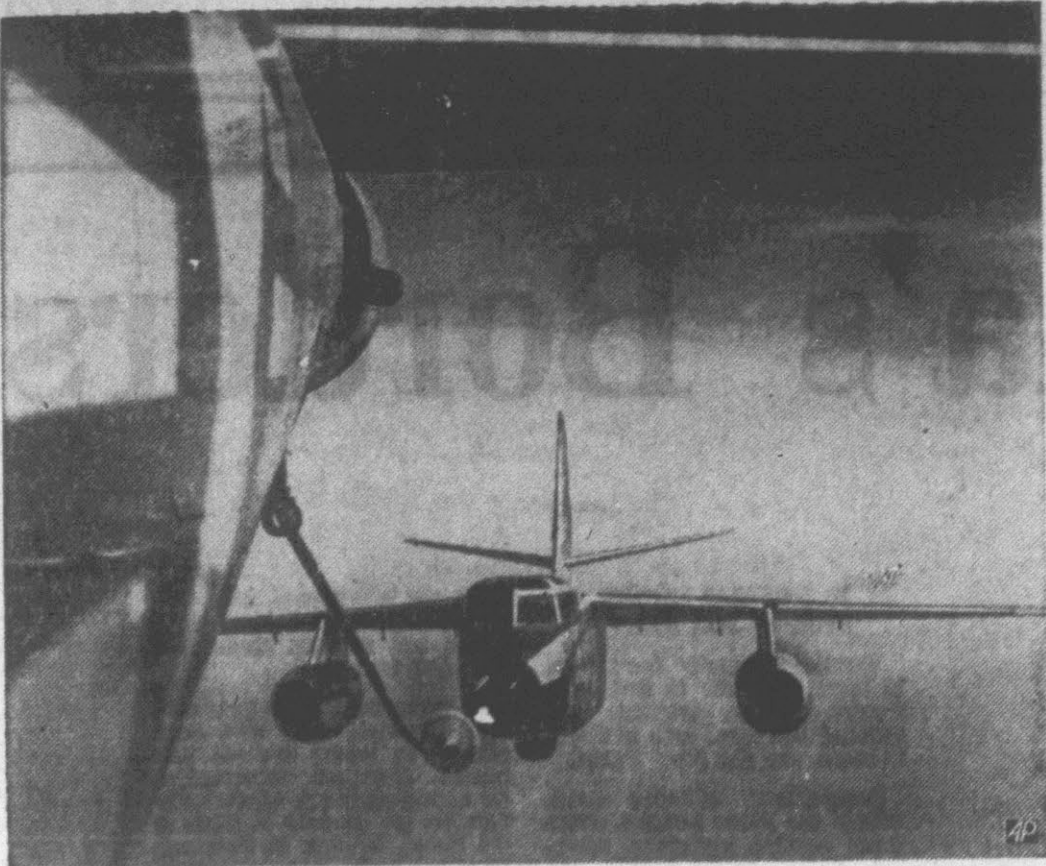

The broad range of attractions within North Carolina's borders afford the grandeur of view and "new life" of the mountains to dwellers of the plain and coastal areas, and the salty sweep of the beaches to visitors from the foothills and beyond. Vast forestlands are open to all.

MOUNT JEFFERSON . . . is a newly established state park located four miles from Jefferson.

MOUNT MITCHELL . . . is atop the highest peak in eastern America. Tent camping facilities are located one mile south of summit on main public road.

NEW YORK (AP)—Rising costs have caused hundreds of newspapers to raise their prices in recent years—57 in the first four months of this year alone.

Some 400 increased prices in one or more circulation categories in 1958.

In announcing the new prices, the newspapers have cited increased costs of newsprint, wages, fringe benefits and various materials and services.

The trend is to more 7-cent and 10-cent papers.

A survey of more than 1,700 newspapers by the American Newspaper Publishers Assn. shows 483 now selling at 7 cents and 170 at 10 cents. Forty-nine cost six cents and eight of them eight cents.

The increases have diminished the number still selling for five cents to 991 — and in the whole United States only 13 still sell for less than a nickel.

The day of the two-cent paper of childhood memory is gone. The last to sell at that price was the Hanover, Pa. Sun which went to five cents last September. Five sell for three cents and eight for four cents.

The newspapers, in raising prices, have stressed particularly their higher costs for newsprint.

One newspaper, in advancing its price last year, noted:

"Today, just the paper on which your newspaper is printed costs us more than the revenue we receive from our subscribers."

Another specified that "Since 1937 the cost of newsprint has increased from $43.50 a ton to $135."

Higher wages and general business costs such as telephones and wires are among other factors cited.

A newspaper raising its price for the first time in 13 years said:

"The price of newsprint during these 13 years had more than doubled. Average wages have also more than doubled during the 13-year period."

A substantial number of the announcements point out that a share in the increased prices will go to newsboys.

The ANPA figures show that 165 newspapers have increased their price to 10 cents and 471 to 7 cents in the past 10 years while the number selling for 5 cents has dropped by 527.

The following chart, showing prices and number of newspapers charging them, reflects the change in the past decade:

	1959	1949
10 cents	170	5
8 cents	8	0
7 cents	463	12
6 cents	49	0
5 cents	991	1,518
4 cents	8	119
3 cents	4	91
2 cents	0	10

Six Negro Youths Arrested In Assault

NEW YORK (AP) — Six Negro youths, aged 14 to 17 have been arrested in the Corona, Queens, school yard rape of a 14-year-old white girl. She was attacked three times.

The victim, a pretty blonde eighth grader in the junior high school, was assaulted Thursday night after attending a recreation program at the school. Her name was withheld by police.

The girl identified as her assailants John Rich, 16, Edward Jacobs, 17, and Jacob Bethea and Henry Stokes, both 16. All four were charged with rape.

Police said Rich and Bethea admitted assaulting the girl, but that Jacobs denied it. They said Stokes admitted holding the girl down while the others attacked her. Rich is employed as a messenger boy. The others were students at the Brooklyn Automotive School.

All four will be arraigned today in Ridgewood Felony Court.

Arraigned Friday and charged with juvenile delinquency were a 14-year-old and 15-year-old boy. Their names were not made public. The 14-year-old, accused of being the lookout, was a student in a school for problem children. The 15-year-old was a student at Flushing, Queens, High School.

Police said Bethea was the youth who first grabbed the girl, hit her with his fist, and raped her the first time.

The victim's girl companions fled in panic. Police said the girl who was assaulted had been ragged, but that she managed to work the gag free and screamed. Her screams were heard by Mrs. Louis Clifford, director of the recreation program, who rushed into the school yard. The youths fled.

The Corona section's population is about equally divided between white and Negroes. An unidentified detective told newsmen:

"There was nothing racial about the attack. It was just a punk kid trying to prove himself in front of his friends."

Rape is punishable by a prison sentence in New York State.

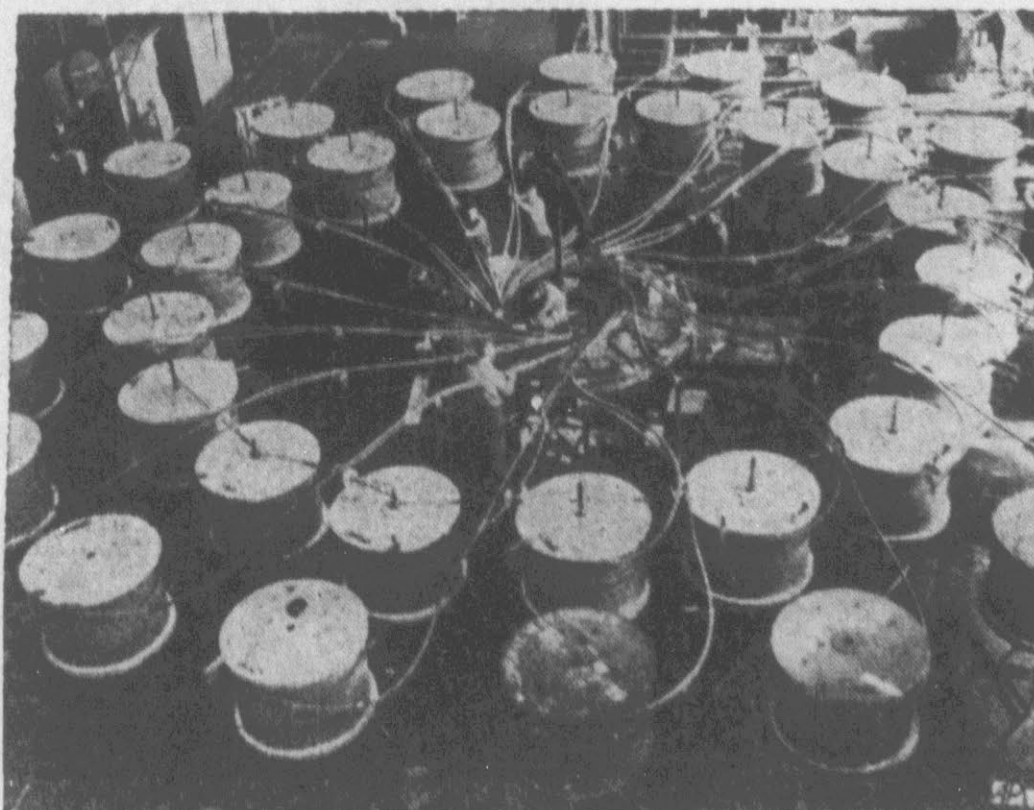

Forty Students Attend Institute

Forty secondary-school students chosen for their high academic standing are participating in the science institute for high school sophomores, juniors, and seniors now in progress at East Carolina College. They represent 32 schools in North Carolina, and one each in Virginia and South Carolina.

Dr. Frank W. Eller of the East Carolina College science faculty is director and coordinator of the science institute, which is sponsored by the college here and financed by the National Science Foundation. It will continue through June 27.

Wallace Thomas Gray, Jr. of Aboakie and Nancy Jane Hatley of Oakboro are co-chairmen of the student committee of the institute program.

The intensive program of instruction at the institute includes work in physics, chemistry, biology, and the earth sciences, including physiology, meteorology, and mathematical geography. Nine teachers from the college and from high schools of the state make up the staff.

BIG SCALE WINDUP — Reels feed copper cable to workmen winding huge induction coils at Pittsfield, Mass., plant. Finished coil weighing 60 tons will be used as part of an electrical power supply system for an Air Force hypersonic wind tunnel.

Bible Workshop Planned In July

The Bible and Its Background will be discussed at a workshop to be presented at East Carolina College July 16 through July 28. In addition to special events already scheduled for the summer season, the workshop has just been announced by Dean of Instruction Leo W. Jenkins.

Listed in the college catalog as Humanities 50, the Bible and Its Background will be open to undergraduate students. Those who complete requirements will earn three quarter hours of college credit. Classes will meet Monday through Friday from 3 to 6 p.m. in the Joyner Library.

Dr. Cleveland J. Bradner, Jr., director of religious activities at East Carolina College, will be director of the workshop. An instructor in courses in Bible and Biblical Literature offered on East Carolina's Educational Television Program, he is known to audiences throughout Eastern North Carolina.

He holds degrees from Atlantic Christian College, the University of Chicago, and Columbia University. Before coming to Greenville, he was director of religious activities at Denison University at Granville, Ohio.

The Bible and Its Background is planned to interest and benefit teachers, church workers, ministers, and students who meet problems arising out of the direct or indirect use of the Bible in their lives and work. Dr. Bradner stated in describing the course of study.

See No Changes In Old Doctrines

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Discovery of life on other planets will not alter Christian doctrines, a large Lutheran denomination decided Friday.

The Augustana Lutheran Church, at its 100th Synod, approved a resolution concerning the church and future space discoveries. The idea for the resolution came from St. John's Lutheran Church in Stamford, Conn.

Roy W. Johnson, director of advanced research projects for the Defense Department, is a member of the St. John's Board of Deacons.

Delegates, representing the denomination's 600,000 members, agreed that space explorations could not damage the traditional church concepts of a Holy Trinity — the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost.

"We need not be afraid of what we may find," said the resolution. "If our faith is to be living, our footings forward must be confident and inspired."

The resolution said Christians should not be apprehensive about what may live in the reaches of space, for God is "infinitely greater than the universe He has created."

All Worked Fine Except For Four

EDINBURG, Tex. (AP) — "There is no legacy like honesty," the sign said.

Below it, on the bulletin board of Pan American College, were tacked dollar bills. A student needing a small loan could take a bill or two, with the understanding it would be repaid as soon as possible.

It all worked fine, officials said, until four nonstudent juveniles dropped in. They cleaned off the board — $27 worth — with no plans for repayment.

Juvenile officers picked up the quartet and turned them over to their parents. Police didn't say how much money was recovered.

Sees Potential Moral Training

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP) — Because TV programs present good and evil in simple ways, TV probably does children more good than harm, a network executive said here.

"It isn't the violence on a program that makes it unacceptable for young viewers, but the difficulty in distinguishing what's right and what's wrong," said George D. Crothers. He is director of public service broadcasts for the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Crothers told the National Council of Juvenile Court Judges that TV must be considered a plus force in the moral training of children.

BLONDIE

Queen Elizabeth Puts In Full Day's Work, Shows The Strain

CORNER BROOK, Nfld. (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II, working nearly 12 hours a day on her tour of Canada, is already showing signs of weariness.

The queen and Prince Philip are passing through the "wilderness leg" of their six weeks journey, inspecting logging and paper-making operations and flying deep into the heart of Labrador today to descend into an iron mine.

The royal couple began the third day of their trip — and for the Queen it's not easy going.

The Queen dedicated a huge international air terminal at Gander Friday, shook nearly a thousand hands at a reception and trudged for nearly a hour through the noisy heat of the great Bowater paper mill.

Elizabeth looked tired during the morning and there were lines around her wide blue eyes. She smiled seldom and spoke little to persons presented.

In the afternoon, however, she seemed more spirited and her famed smile began flashing again. But, if it is hard work for the Queen, it is sheer delight for the people of Newfoundland.

The royal party drove through the beautiful northern forests past little settlements that were hardly more than clearings in the woods. But each little cluster of homes and stores was gaily decked out with flags and pennants.

Loggers and their families waited for hours beside the dusty road to catch a glimpse of the royal car.

Philip has been stopping to talk to everyone, shaking hands, smiling and asking questions. At the Gander ceremony, Elizabeth met another queen. She was Tina Carey, 16, of Tilt Cove, Nfld., who has been chosen "copper queen."

The royal party spent the night at Strawberry Hill on the bend of the Humber River.

Today's itinerary called for the Queen to attend more receptions in Stephenville and visit the U.S. Air Force Base at Harmon.

A four-engine plane waited to take them on a 600-mile flight to Lake Labrador and the iron mine at Schefferville.

The party was scheduled to return to Sept. Iles (Seven Islands) Quebec, tonight.

First Lady Had To Just Stand

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — "Sorry, lady, there's just no seats up here," said the Senate assistant sergeant-at-arms.

So California's First Lady, Mrs. Edmund G. Brown, stood in the rear of the Senate gallery Friday night.

The embarrassed guard quickly led Mrs. Brown to a seat after someone told him who she was. "This is the first time I've been here since the inauguration," she told a reporter.

LOOK AGAIN!

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — A radio newsmen, broadcasting traffic conditions from an airplane over the city, announced a terrific jam in one small area. Then he quickly corrected himself. He had sighted two used car lots.

Newcomers Told 'Avoid Hospitals'

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — "Buy a car. It's cheaper than taxis." "Try and survive without a doctor, because even a shot costs $10. Under no circumstances go into a hospital unless convinced you are dying, because it costs $20 a day." These are some of the suggestions left for a group of curly incoming European beauties by a group of curly outgoing European beauties.

The first troupe of girls from the Lido de Paris show spent nearly a year here. The new group arrives next Tuesday.

Robeson County Red Cross Will Close Up Shop

LUMBERTON, N.C. (AP)—The Robeson County chapter of the American Red Cross has decided to close up shop because it has run out of money.

Chairman I. M. Biggs has resigned effective June 30. For several years the county has failed to raise its Red Cross quota. A big deficit resulted in 1957 when the Red Cross provided emergency aid when a tornado struck in the Pembroke area.

A spokesman at southeastern Red Cross headquarters in Atlanta, Ga., said that if the office here closes, Robeson will be the only North Carolina county without a Red Cross office. The spokesman added that any action on closing would be delayed at least two weeks because the field representative is in Atlanta for a training course until then. After he returns, the spokesman said, a community meeting probably will be held. This spokesman said also that the national Red Cross sometimes makes grants if the trouble is strictly financial.

The decision to close was taken here Tuesday at a meeting of the directors.

CHAPTER 28

"There's nothing to worry about," Mark Travers said, when he stopped the car in front of the cottage where Fleur Constant lived. "Don't worry, Fleur. Inspector Perrier will be there; the police will be all over the place; nothing can happen. Get some sleep now. This day has been much too long."

"And it started so beautifully," she whispered, "with such a lovely cool morning, and then you nearly fell over me..."

"I must confess something," he said. "I saw you long before you saw me. I watched you dancing, and I tried to sketch you. It didn't turn out right."

"Was it then you fell in love with me?"

When he tried to think back to the beginning of this day, it seemed like years since he had seen her first. And he couldn't remember the exact second when she had begun to mean anything to him.

"I don't know," he said. "I only know that suddenly you meant life to me."

"That's enough," she said. "Don't say anything more. Mark, is there nothing I could say or do to stop you from going to find Timgad?"

He shook his head.

She looked away from him, up at the dark house. The moon was high now, painting the panes of the windows a metallic blue.

"I shall lie awake," she told him, "and relive all the hours we have known each other. Flirting a little, swimming away out and meeting at the Mulet, and the drive to Nice and all the plans we made then. And the pain, the hurt you made me feel when I was suddenly in the way, a girl you wanted to shake off, and the tears I cried because I thought I had lost you. And when you told me the reason why, and Raffaeli's note. Raffaeli," she repeated, then went on.

"And the fear while you were gone, and the joy when you came back from Eze, and the heart when you suspected my brother. No, I don't blame you for it. There were moments of which I am ashamed now, when I myself was no longer sure."

"And the way your arm felt around my shoulder as you led me away from the gambling table when the colonel died. The moments in the car when I could hear you fighting Louis and couldn't help you. My dearest, promise me, when it is all over, to drive by here and honk your horn three times. Then I shall know everything is all right and all asleep."

"I promise," he said.

"Be careful," she whispered. He nodded and watched her walk away through the moonlight, up the few wide steps to the terrace and stand there for a moment, pressing both hands to her lips, then disappearing into the dark, quiet house.

He waited until he saw a light go on, on the second floor, and heard the sound the window made as she opened it wide, then he turned the car in the direction from which they had come.

Near the end of the Avenue de Monte Carlo he stopped his car. The street was deserted, even the windows of the hotel at the point showed hardly any light. To his left was the beach, to his right the Avenue de Roquebrune. That was the road he had to take, for on it lay the house Anet had betrayed, where Timgad was supposed to appear — the Villa Mimosa.

Dimming his headlights, Mark drove slowly past the tall wrought-iron gate that led to the estate; then, a good three hundred yards from it, he parked the car and started to walk slowly back.

Suddenly the night seemed very quiet and his steps very loud, their echo the only sound. Mark hesitated for a second, then bent and took off his shoes. Carrying them, he went on. It was dark except for the pools of light the few street lamps threw onto the road.

Near by, he saw four parked cars. Perrier, he thought, standing still to look around. But nowhere could he discover him or any of his men.

He came to the gate, which was supported by two huge stone pillars, and stood still again, listening into the night.

Everything was as quiet as before. Nothing stirred that betrayed the presence of a human being. For a moment he didn't know if he should wait or try to gain entrance to the silent garden beyond.

Then, all of a sudden, his ears picked up a sound. It came from far away. Someone was whistling. After a second, Mark recognized the little tune Perrier always whistled. It stopped, then came again from somewhere deep inside the park.

Mark put one hand testily on the handle of the gate. As he had expected, it opened noiselessly. A broad gravel path, bordered by strips of lawn, stretched ahead of him.

Walking quickly across the grass in the direction from which the whistling had come, he could feel the heavy dew under his stocking-feet.

He had walked at least five minutes before he saw the house. It lay before him in the dark like a huge gray animal, with no sign that anyone was inside. Had he come too late? But no. The luminous dial of his watch showed ten minutes to two. And where was Perrier? Where were the police? With the tune still in his ears, had he mistaken some other sound for the inspector's whistling?

He bent, put on his shoes, and picked up a few small stones from the path that curved up to the house, forming a wide open space there. Very carefully, counting to himself, in order to space the intervals evenly, he threw a few gently onto the path. After the fifth he could hear somebody stir.

For an instant Mark hesitated; then, aware that he might betray himself to the wrong person, every muscle alert to danger, he whispered, "Perrier."

At once his whisper was answered. "Inside."

Of course, Perrier had hidden his men at strategic points. "Inside?" he repeated, but once more there was around him only the muteness of the night.

So Perrier had gotten inside before Timgad and his men. If there should prove inopportune, at least hidden in the house they would finally find out who Timgad was.

Keeping well within the deeper darkness of the shrubbery, Mark followed the path around the house. Here the moon painted a silvery line on the water. He could make out the dock and the shape of a boat fastened to it. He turned toward the stairs that swung from the house into the garden.

The moment he had reached the top and was standing on the terrace, one of the long French windows opened noiselessly.

"In here," said Perrier's voice in a half-whisper. "Close the door and draw the curtain before you follow me."

Seen from the inside, the night no longer seemed as black as a moment ago. Mark closed the door and let the heavy material of the curtain fall across it. And as he groped his way through the dark, following the direction of Perrier's steps, he could hear a clock ring out somewhere in the house. Once. Twice.

"Two o'clock. Where are they? You see, I was right. Anet lied." "On the contrary," said Perrier. "He spoke the truth. Timgad is here."

When Timgad's identity is barred, Mark faces a maniac. Don't miss the next chapter of "A Spy at Monte Carlo" Monday.

Perry Mason Wins His Case With N. C. Bar Association

BLOWING ROCK, N.C. (AP)—Perry Mason won his case with the North Carolina Bar Assn. Friday night.

Raymond Burr, handsome actor who plays the lawyer-sleuth Mason on television, rose to a standing ovation at the bar convention here.

Sustained applause followed his defense of the lawyer's dignity and role in society. Guffaws greeted his sallies at published criticism from Superior Court Judge Frank Armstrong of his show and appearance here.

Before and after his talk on "Lawyers in the Public View," Burr was swarmed on by autograph-seekers, including scores of pretty, chic wives of lawyers. Textile magnate J. Spencer Love observed this and remarked: "I think I must be in the wrong profession."

Burr solemnly told the hundreds of lawyers and wives that his show's first purpose is to entertain. "Closely interwoven with that," he said, "is our responsibility to be authentic in courtroom procedure and uphold the dignity of the law and courts. We will do nothing on our show to endanger the respect people should have for all of you."

He expressed belief that the world has two alternatives: "To blow everything to hell and gone with atomic bombs, or find a way to equal rights among men and nation through lawyers and the courts. The world needs to know more about you men and what you do."

He closed by inviting comment and questions about his show. There was none. "Is everybody here satisfied?" he asked. "Then I guess there's just one in North Carolina who's dissatisfied."

The man to whom he referred, Judge Armstrong, was absent through the four-day convention, which ended today. When the judge was asked by lawyers in court earlier this week if he would recess so they could attend, he loosed a blast both at Burr's appearance and at court reform, a Bar Assn. project.

"Perry Mason's program," said the judge tartly, "bears no semblance of the correct and proper means of administering justice or the proper conduct of the lawyer."

Little Rock May Reopen Schools

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Intendant Little Rock High School students face the possibility of a homecoming this fall.

Authorities generally agreed that the way to reopening four closed high schools was paved Thursday when a three-judge federal court struck down a state law Gov. Orval E. Faubus invoked to keep the schools shut throughout the 1958-59 academic year.

There was general agreement that the schools would operate under a token plan of integration previously approved by the federal courts.

Everett Tucker Jr., president of the Little Rock School Board, said the board felt it was bound by a previous court order to operate the schools under the integration plan if the school closing law was declared invalid.

SHE LIKES CATS

MUSKOGEE, Okla. (AP)—Miss Mary Carolyn Boudinot said she preferred her 40 cats to living in Muskogee. A court ruled she must give up all but four of her 40 cats but she said she would move first.
