Minimum Wage, Withholding Tax Said Big Items

Establishment of a minimum wage law and authorization of a withholding system for state income taxes were the most significant pieces of legislation passed by the 1959 North Carolina General Assembly, two Pitt County lawmakers said today.

Senator Robert Lee Humber of Greenville and Representative Walter B. Jones of Farmville shared the view in separate interviews today. They and Pitt's third legislator, Representative Frank M. Wooten Jr. of Greenville, returned over the weekend from Raleigh where the '59 session which was adjourned Saturday afternoon.

Wooten was out of town this morning and could not be reached for his comments on the session's work.

Representative Jones declared, "The minimum wage measure is the most far-reaching of all the legislature's actions. The withholding system of taxes reflects the federal pattern all states are coming to."

Senator Humber agreed, pointing out that the minimum wage law makes North Carolina the first state in the South to establish such a law and that the withholding proposal "merely applies to North Carolina" a procedure already practiced by the federal government.

Both Humber and Jones expressed disappointment that the Assembly "did not do more" for public education, with particular reference to teachers' salaries.

"We have not yet established a remuneration for public school teachers which is commensurate with the requirements imposed by the state," Senator Humber said. "That was a disappointment (because) I felt the state should assume such a responsibility. . . . The five per cent salary increase is a gesture in the right direction and the five per cent contingency increase is one I do hope will be complied with."

The Senator and the Representative agreed that the Assembly was a hard-working one, but they disagreed, in degree, to the effect of Governor Luther H. Hodges' influence.

Jones said, "It was significant to note the influence the governor exercised. There were no personalities involved, but a governor serving the last two years of his tenure is usually not of any great influence. However, with but a few exceptions, the administration influence was strong, especially in the Senate."

Senator Humber declared, "The influence of Governor Hodges was effective, but not dominant. No pressure groups from any source controlled legislation, and even close friends and colleagues divided fundamentally on issues. A striking impression of the operation of legislation through the General Assembly was the thoughtful personal approach made by each legislator in the discharge of his own obligations and personal convictions."

Jones, who worked hard for a measure which would have revised the State Highway Commission only to see the proposal knocked out, expressed disappointment that "the Assembly didn't do more in the field of highway safety." He added, however, "It was a very unpredictable session, in that some legislation which should have been passed was defeated soundly and some other measures which should not have passed were approved."

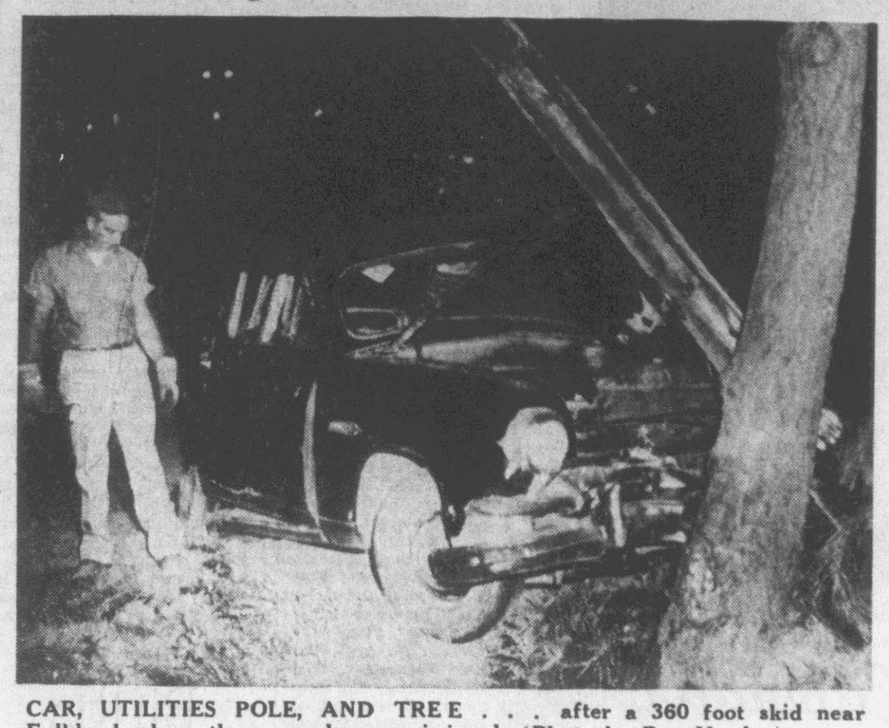

The two men said they were pleased with the Assembly's treatment of higher education, with Jones citing, particularly, establishment of a school of nursing at East Carolina College.

Humber pointed to passage of a bill which he introduced "to standardize collegiate education in North Carolina" as "a landmark."

The Senator said, "The bill will make it possible for professors in any state institution to be remunerated identically and permits knowledge content in courses given in any institution to be identical. Any student should be able to receive, as a consequence of the bill, equally sound training in any fundamental subject at Greenville as well as Greensboro."

The session was the first for Senator Humber, who took the Senate seat vacated by Dr. Paul E. Jones of Farmville. Representative Jones had served in the 1955 and 1957 regular sessions and in a special session in 1956.

Long Skidmarks Led Patrolman

CAR, UTILITIES POLE, AND TREE . . . after a 360 foot skid near Falkland where three people were injured. (Photo by Roy Hardee)

Three Are Injured In Car Smashup

An investigating patrolman found 360 feet of skid marks leading to a demolished car at the city limits of Falkland early Sunday morning in which three men were injured.

Patrolman J. B. Surles said the wreck occurred about 2:55 a.m. Sunday when the car, driven by John Henry Bridges, 28, of 707 Academy Street, Wilson, left N. C. 43 and struck a utilities pole and a tree. The pole was broken as a result of the collision, and the car was listed as a total loss.

According to doctors this morning, John Bridges is in satisfactory condition with a fractured pelvis and lacerations of the head and face.

The two passengers in the car, Art Bobbitt, 43, of Tarboro, and T. R. Bridges, 27, of Pinetops, also received slight injuries as a result of the crash. Bobbitt was released this morning and, according to doctors, T. R. Bridges will probably be released tomorrow.

Surles charged John Bridges with exceeding the safe speed and driving on the wrong side of the road.

County Fair Is Scheduled For October 5-10

The annual Pitt County American Legion Agricultural Fair will be held October 5 through October 10, it was announced today by President Ed Harris of Greenville.

A total of $3,800 in premiums will be offered by the fair for agricultural exhibits, livestock and swine displayed during the one-week event. Agricultural exhibits will be housed, as in the past, in the main building at the fair grounds while livestock and swine entries will be housed in the livestock building now being used by the Pitt County Livestock Association.

Manager Norman Y. Chambliss said today the premium book for the 1959 fair is now being revised for distribution in August. There will be no material changes, he said, from 1958 offers.

Chambliss added that the fair will continue to feature agricultural exhibits, livestock and swine in a show of "Pitt County on Parade." Agricultural exhibits will include educational entries from Home Demonstration clubs, Home Economics, Vocational Agriculture, 4-H and other groups.

County Agent Sam Winchester is director of the Men's Division and Mrs. Sue B. May, Home Demonstration Agent, is director of the Women's Division. Negro divisions will be directed by Mrs. Amelia S. Capehart, Negro Home Demonstration Agent, and Warren Barnes, Assistant Negro Farm Agent. Mrs. Norman Stanley will be entry clerk and receptionist.

Members of the fair's executive committee include President Harris, J. Howard Moye, Ford McGowan, Lester Turnage and J. Hicks Corey, all of Greenville; Dr. Paul E. Jones and C. F. Baucom of Farmville; and C. E. Hart of Ayden.

Herter Reports To Public On Tuesday

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Christian A. Herter today gave President Eisenhower an hour-long report on the deadlocked Geneva foreign ministers talks, now recessed until July 13.

After the conference, Herter confirmed he will go on nationwide television and radio Tuesday night to tell the American people about the thus-far futile efforts to reach agreement with the Soviet Union regarding Berlin and other problems.

Herter's 15-minute broadcast starting at 8:00 p.m. EST will be carried live by all the major radio networks and by the NBC and CBS television networks. ABC TV will carry a delayed broadcast at 9:30 p.m. EST.

Herter said he reported to Eisenhower in general terms and that they discussed "just where we are" in efforts to ease East-West tensions.

A reporter asked about prospects for an eventual summit conference of the Western heads of government with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

"That is something I just don't want to go into at the present time," Herter replied.

Then he went on to say that at no time during the six weeks of Geneva talks did the Western foreign ministers discuss with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko the possibility of a summit meeting. That matter did not come up at all, the secretary said.

Herter flew in Sunday from the fruitless first round of the foreign ministers meeting. He said then the Soviets had revealed that their real aim is to absorb free West Berlin and keep Germany divided until they can bring the whole country under Communist influence.

U. S. authorites figured the best course for the West was to stand firm and see what the Soviet Union comes up with when the Geneva foreign ministers conference resumes July 13. That meeting recessed Saturday after six weeks of deadlock.

Washington's view was that Britain, France and the United States had hit rock bottom in the concessions they could offer the U.S.S.R on Berlin. But officials intended to return to Geneva still willing to bargain sincerely if the Reds, forsaking their uncompromising stand, will do so too.

There was no support evident here for a pre-July 13 Western summit conference to shore up the allies, or even for a Western foreign ministers gathering except at Geneva a day or two before the East-West talks resume.

Herter talked with Eisenhower by telephone Sunda, but a scheduled Sunday White House appointment was postponed.

Eisenhower had spent the weekend at his Gettysburg, Pa., farm, but returned to Washington a few hours after Herter completed a 24-hour flight from Geneva.

In addition to reporting to Eisenhower, Herter also arranged to brief legislators during the week and to deliver a radio-TV address to the nation, probably Tuesday night.

In an airport statement, Herter said the Soviet Union at Geneva "clearly revealed that its true desire is to absorb West Berlin into East Germany and to keep Germany divided until it can be brought under Soviet influence."

He backed a U. S. government statement issued Saturday voicing support for "the courageous people of West Berlin" against renewed Communist threats.

"My Western colleagues and I had foremost in mind the freedom of the more than two million people of West Berlin," Herter said. "We were determined, and remain determined, to make no arrangements with the Soviet Union which would undermine that freedom."

Critic Says U. S. Reserve Bank Audit Has Shortage

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Robert L. Cherry, vice president of the Federal Reserve Bank branch here, says he has no comment on a statement by Rep. Wright Patman (D - Texas) that audit reports showed $100,000 in U.S. Treasury certificates disappeared at the Charlotte branch.

Patman, a longtime critic of Federal Reserve banking operations and credit policies, said Sunday in Washington that Federal Reserve audit reports disclosed "unbelievably shocking" management deficiencies.

On the Charlotte situation, Patman said an investigation of the mysterious disappearance of $100,000 in certificates revealed only that they had not been removed from an envelope after delivery and were destroyed with trash burned up by the member bank.

In pointing to a 1957 audit report, the congressman said the $100,000 certificates were 2¾ per cent indebtedness, series B-1957 tax anticipation notes. He said they had been allotted on direct subscription to an undisclosed South Carolina bank which, in turn, requested that they be delivered to an unidentified company in North Carolina for safe keeping.

Patman added that the South Carolina company received a signed receipt for the total amount, but the consignee bank admits it did not open the package to verify its contents at time of delivery.

"When the package later was opened," Patman added, "it reportedly contained only six lots of securities totaling $785,000 to which attached receipts number 36 to 41."

Life Terms For Florida Rapists

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)—All four white youths convicted of raping a Negro coed were handed life prison sentences today by Circuit Judge W. May Walker.

Life sentences were the maximum possible under the June 14 verdict of guilty with a recommendation of mercy.

The electric chair would have been automatic if the jury had returned a verdict of guilty without a recommendation of mercy. No white man ever has gone to the chair in Florida or any other state for raping a Negro.

In pronouncing sentence the white-haired 54-year-old jurist told the four he had never imposed less than a death sentence or life imprisonment on conviction of rape.

The four youths paled as the sentence was pronounced but showed no other trace of emotion.

Under Florida law, parole from a life sentence is possible after six months but lifers convicted of rape customarily serve at least 10 years before being considered for parole.

The four drawing life sentences were Willion (Ted) Collinsworth, 23, a telephone company lineman; David Ervin Beagles, a husky 18-year-old high school senior; Patrick (Gene) Scarborough, a 20-year-old Air Force man and Ollie Stoutamire, a skinny, pale-faced 16-year-old high school dropout.

Judge Walker told the four as he prepared to pronounce sentence, "You have been convicted of a very serious offense. It is an offense that is horrible and under horrible circumstances. The court feels sorry for you and for the prosecutrix (the 19-year-old coed). You are fortunate that the jury recommended mercy."

Hunting Man On Murder Warrant

FARMVILLE — A 44-year-old Negro woman was shot to death about nine o'clock Saturday night on the street in front of her house.

According to Farmville officers, the woman, Ada Ellis, of 706 Walnut Street, Farmville, was allegedly shot by Charlie Barnes, 47, who lived next door with his mother.

Officers said the two Negroes were involved in an argument last Sunday, and the Ellis woman had sworn out a warrant for Barnes' arrest, charging him with assault on a female. He was arrested and released under a $100 bond and was to be tried in Farmville Saturday morning but the case was continued to a later date.

According to Pitt County Coroner E. W. Harvey, the pregnant woman was shot at least once in the stomach with a shot gun.

Investigators found a .12 guage shot gun shell at the scene of the killing but have not found the murder weapon.

Barnes fled immediately after the shooting and has not been taken into custody. A warrant charging him with the murder is on file at the Farmville Police Department.

Members of the Pitt County Sheriff's Department are assisting Farmville officers in the investigation.

Mixed Term Of Court Is Opened

A one-week mixed term of Superior Court was opened this morning under Judge Henry L. Stevens, Jr., of Warsaw.

The term is calendared to continue through Thursday. Some civil issues were heard in this morning's session, although the term is expected to be devoted largely to trial of criminal cases.

The Pitt County Grand Jury is sitting in conjunction with the term of court.

PLANS NEW RESORT

NEW YORK (AP) — Financier Huntington Hartford says he plans a multi-million-dollar resort in the Bahamas. Hartford, the A&P heir, announced he is buying most of four-mile long Hog Island across the harbor from Nassau from Dr Axel Wenner-Gren, Swedish industrialist.

Five Wounded In Shooting Spree

Five Greenville Negros were victims of a shooting spree on South Pitt Street about 3 p.m. Saturday.

Warrants charging Joe Nathan Brown, 37-year-old Negro of 613 Howell St. with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill have been issued as a result of the incident.

According to investigators, Brown allegedly entered a building at 1601 South Pitt Street, known as "The hole in the wall", and shot 23-year-old James Mack Little of 1609-A South Pitt St., in the head with a .410 gauge shot gun.

Police said Brown then left the building and walked up the street to the 1700 block of Pitt, where he fired the gun into a crowd of people standing in the street in front of Norfleet's Grocery, wounding four of them.

The four victims were identified as John Harris, 42, of 1711 South Pitt; Patsy Moye, 29, 711 McClellen St.; Rosalie Hopkins, 25, of 1804-B McClellen St.; and Albert R. Atkinson, 25, of 403-B Deck St. Doctors said their injuries were not serious.

Little was admitted to the hospital and X-rays were to be made today to determine if any of the shot had penetrated his skull and entered his brain.

Investigators said no reason for the shootings could be given.

The search for Brown, who is still at large, is continuing.

Some Early Rain Could Make For A Good Crop

"At the moment everything looks like we have good prospects. If we can get some rain quickly we should make out a better than normal crop, better than average."

That was the evaluation of Pitt's crop conditions this morning by County Agent S. C. Winchester.

Though dry weather in the past few weeks has retarded Pitt County's agricultural crops, Winchester said, "We feel that there hasn't been any permanent damage done yet With some rain this week, we should come out in mighty good shape."

The weatherman was offering some slight encouragement to Pitt farmers concerned over the dry conditions which have existed recently. Scattered afternoon and evening showers have been predicted for this area through Wednesday, but so far the weatherman hasn't predicted the general rains which are needed to boost crops throughout Pitt County.

"I won't be as optimistic about our crop conditions next Monday if we don't have some rain between now and then," Winchester told The Daily Reflector this morning.

The crop which has suffered most during the dry weather, Winchester said, is cucumbers. The 1,300 to 1,500 acres of cucumbers planted in Pitt "is supposed to be fruiting now," the county agent said. "With this dry weather they are not putting on much fruit. It would have to rain mighty quick to help this crop."

Normally, Winchester said, Pitt's cucumber crop yields until July 10th to 15th.

Tobacco, the county's major money crop, has suffered no permanent damage so far during the dry spell, Winchester said, this morning. He said that the unseasonably cold weather last week probably did the tobacco crop as much harm as the dry conditions. A hardening up of the crop and a narrowing in the top of the plants have been noted during the past week.

"Tobacco doesn't look nearly as good as it did last weekend," Winchester said, "but with warm nights and moisture this week we can still make a mighty good crop."

As for corn, the county's second most important crop, the county agent said no permanent damage has yet resulted from the dry weather. "The corn is not yet to the tassling or silking stage," Winchester explained. "We are still growing a plant rather than producing yield. Moisture in the next week or 10 days will still make a good corn crop."

The county agent said the county's peanut and cotton crops are at the stage where the dry weather has not caused them any damage. If the rain doesn't hold off too long, he opined, conditions for these crops should be normal

Pitt Man Caught In Texas On Local Warrants

A Route 4, Greenville, man, arrested in Texas last week, waived extradition and was returned here last Friday to face multiple charges of forgery and embezzlement.

According to investigators, Allen D. Tyson, 28, was arrested in Garland, Texas, and held at the Dallas County jail in Dallas on warrants from Greenville, charging him on 11 counts of forgery and embezzlement from a local soft drink bottling company.

Officer R. E. Joyner made the trip to Dallas for the prisoner, who is being held in jail under a $3,500 bond.

Investigation showed Tyson left town June 6 and went to Albuquerque, New Mexico, then to Garland Texas where he was arrested.

A hearing for Tyson was scheduled for today.

Gov. Long Girding For Court Battle

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Gov. Earl K. Long's new attorney, Joe Arthur Sims, said today the governor's bid for freedom from a mental clinic might develop in the courts as early as Wednesday.

'I'm kind of thinking court action might be attempted by Wednesday," he said, "but I won't know until later."

Sims, an old political buddy and onetime attorney general candidate on a Long-backed ticket in 1952, said he will see Gov. Long again this afternoon.

He visited the ailing Long the first time Sunday at Southeast Louisiana Hospital in Mandeville, the state institution where Long is confined.

Sims declined any comment on why the governor still wants to pursue legal action rather than seek the rest under hospital care physicians say he needs.

Lt. Gov. Lether Frazar, meanwhile, still not clear whether he is acting governor, indicated he expected a legal answer to that headache Tuesday, instead of today.

Louisiana, faced with a tangled routine of government because of the presence within the state of her ailing governor, may find the answers to some momentous questions this week:

1. Is Gov. Earl K. Long legally insane?

2. If not, can he get out of a state mental hospital?

3. Meanwhile, who is the state's chief executive?

Physicians who visited Long Sunday at Southeast Louisiana Hospital, 54 miles east of the capital, reported he was "quite cooperative and his general condition satisfactory."

Five days ago the governor, cursing and fighting, was taken to the mental hospital in Mandeville, La. He was arrested near here after he had sped away from a New Orleans hospital.

Dr. Chester Williams, coroner for East Baton Rouge Parish, and a psychiatrist said Long was suffering from paranoid schizophrenia—delusions of persecution. Long was ordered taken to the mental hospital for observation and treatment.

Long, who was on his way to the capital to resume executive powers when he was arrested, has engaged counsel to protect his legal rights. Joseph Arthur Sims of Hammond, La., was named his chief counsel.

House In Black Jack Is Burned

Greenville firemen answered a call to Black Jack Saturday when a house occupied by Frank Phillips caught fire.

Firemen said the dwelling was destroyed by the blaze which originated in the kitchen of the house.

The fire department also answered a call to a grass fire on East Tenth St. Extension Saturday. No damage resulted from the blaze near the Highway Patrol Station.

To Everyone's Surprise, General Assembly Was Able To Adjourn A Bit Early

By LYNN NISBET
Reflector Raleigh Bureau

RALEIGH—With sine die adjournment Saturday afternoon the North Carolina General Assembly of 1959 became historic, rather than a current event.

The enrolling office got along faster than had been expected and adjournment was reached several hours earlier than was embodied in the first joint resolution fixing the time at 6:00 p.m., June 20, 1959.

At about five minutes after three o'clock the clocks had been stopped at half a minute before three presiding officers of the two branches announced that work of the session had been completed.

Lieutenant Governor Luther Barnhardt, President of the Senate, and Rep. Addison Hewlett, Speaker of the House, took their stations with gavels poised. The big doors were opened permitting a view across the expanse of the capitol building. Ray Byerly, principal clerk of the Senate, and Mrs. Annie Cooper, principal clerk of the House, stood just in front of their respective presiding officers holding white handkerchiefs high above their heads. Handkerchiefs and gavels fell simultaneously and the 1959 General Assembly was no more.

There is an element of the dramatic in every adjournment of a Legislature. Comedy and pathos are intermingled. Everybody is glad it is over, and sad at the breaking up of associations which for several months have been intimate and pleasant. The demise of the 1959 session was marked with extreme apathy Nobody seemed to be very glad or very sad about it. It was just one of the things that had to happen.

Expresions accompanying the goodbye handshakes lacked their usual warmth. Many of them went something like this:

"It's been fine knowing, I've enjoyed associating and working with you. I hope I've got all the stuff in my car that I have to take home. Come to see me when you are in my part of the state. The wife is supposed to have the car ready, so I've got to run. Goodbye."

The "at ease" periods during the final day when traditionally horseplay and humor are indulged, this time were just waiting periods, with members milling around with no evident purpose except to get away from all as quickly as possible. Nobody suggested singing "Auld Lange Sine" or "God Be With You Till We Meet Again" or any of the other songs that have featured previous adjournment hours.

There was noticeable absence of news photographers to pictorially record the death of a General Assembly. It died, as it had lived for the third longest time of any session in recent years, very unostentatiously.

Rep. Frank Snepp of Mecklenburg and Speaker Addison Hewlett won the blue ribbon and the booby prize for bill introductions. Which designation fits which introducer is matter opinion. Snepp signed 75 bills and resolutions. Hewlett's name appears on the record book as having signed only one resolution, that designating William Rand Kenan a lifetime honorary trustee of the University. He also signed the bill naming the mental hospital at Butner for John W. Umstead — a bill which bore the signatures of 119 members of the House, everyone except Umstead himself.

The Motor Vehicles Department, highway patrol, had its day Friday. The Department has not fared very well with its highway safety program. With monotonous regularity bills sponsored by the agency were defeated, and several which were opposed got on the lawbooks. But last Friday, after more than two hours debate, the House passed an amended bill establishing a point system for revocation of driver's license. A few minutes later without fanfare the Senate concurred in the House version and the bill went on to the enrolling office.

Many of the legislators ducked out Friday night or early Saturday morning. Top roll call in the House on the financial day yielded only 87 votes — barely more than two-thirds of the membership. Biggest Senate vote 40 out of a possible 50.

Sen. Lunsford Crew of Halifax was called to the chair several times Friday and Saturday to wield the gavel over the Senate. That occasioned comment among the news ocrps and elsewhere that Crew might be the favorite for President pro tem of the 1961 Senate—an office that has been discussed very little as compared with the interest generated on the House side in the three-way race for Speakership among Clyde Harriss of Rowan, Joe Hunt of Guilford and Cloyd Philpott of Davidson. Under rotation practice, well observed with respect to these posts, the Senate pro tem president will come from the east, the House Speaker from the west, next time.

Oldtimers have missed this year the group singing around the brass rail in the rotunda of the capitol. In previous sessions these song fests have heralded adjournment. This year the fellows were not in a singing mood.

Although they didn't sing much the legislators were more comfortable and happy when leaving Raleigh this time than ever before. During the last two or three days Checks were distributed covering expenses of travel to and from home once a week since the first weekend in February. Distances traveled ranged from 13 to 355 miles (36 to 710 round trip) at 7c a mile. Because some went home every week, others less frequently and more rode their thumbs for free rides, the checks varied from a few buck to $650. This winfall (?) of new money, never paid before, plus the $8 a day subsistence allowance, enabled most of the fellows to pay their hotel bills for the period after the $15 per diem salary stopped on June 3, without having to write checks on their personal bank accounts or sign notes.

William Cozart, Jr. Takes Durham Bride

DURHAM—Saturday morning, the wedding of Miss June Travis Hall and William Carlton Cozart Jr. of Greenville took place in the Grace Baptist Church. The Rev. Henry B. Anderson officiated during the double ring ceremony.

Miss Hall is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Travis Veasey Hall of 648 Club Blvd., Durham. Mr. Cozart is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Cozart of Greenville.

The nuptial music was furnished by Miss Carol Lloyd, organist. She played the traditional Wedding March and Recessional.

A setting of white bridal flowers, fern and candelabra was the background for the ritual vows.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a wedding dress of Chantilly lace and tulle designed in a ballerina length. The fitted lace bodice featured a scalloped Italian neckline and brief shirred sleeves. A bouffant skirt overlaid with a lace peplum and lace panels extended from the waist to the hem at each side. A flat bow of lace with hem length panels accented the waistline at the center back. Her tiered veil of imported illusion was attached to a Chantilly lace crown re-embroidered in seed pearls. She carried a white Bible topped with a white orchid and white ribbon streamers.

Mrs. Murrell Ashworth was matron of honor. She wore a ballerina dress of chiffon in white, sprinkled with yellow embroidery The circle neckline was formed by a deep lace yoke, matching headdress. She carried a nosegay of white Garla daisies, white carnations, and yellow rosebuds with white ribbon streamers.

Mr. Cozart, father of the bridegroom, acted as best man.

Mrs. Hall, mother of the bride, chose for her daughter's wedding a dress of sheer linen of beige, fashioned with brief sleeves and circle neckline accented with Venice lace motifs. Matching accessories and a corsage of pale green cymbidium orchids completed her attire.

The mother of the bridegroom wore a sheath dress of Diupioni silk in mint. She chose white accessories and a corsage of white cymbidium orchids.

For the wedding trip, the new Mrs. Cozart wore an embroidered cotton sheath in beige, with matching accessories. She wore the orchid lifted from her Bible.

After the wedding trip the couple will reside at 407 Holly Street, Greenville.

The bride is a graduate of Durham High School and attended East Carolina College, Greenville. She received a two-year business certificate and has worked in an insurance company in Durham for the past year.

A graduate of East Carolina College, Greenville, the bridegroom is a member of Sigma Nu Social Fraternity. He is now furthering his education at East Carolina College. Also he is a graduate of Greenville High School.

Mrs. William Carlton Cozart, Jr.

Mrs. Whitehurst Gives Report On State Meeting

BETHEL—Mrs. E. G. Whitehurst, a member of Mayo X Roads Home Demonstration Club, gave a report on her experiences while attending the Farm and Home Week at N. C. State College to the club recently. She told of the following subjects which wehe studied, discussed and demonstrations were given to illustrate "New Furniture From Old", Are You alive to Beautification and "Money Makers From the Kitchen."

During one of the three days of this meeting, they toured the John Harris home and gardens. Harris is employed by the College in the field of landscaping. While making the tour through his gardens, a talk describing the different trees, shrub plants and lawn grass was given.

Each night following the days work and pleasure, they assembled in the colliseum for singing and other entertainment.

June 22, 1929

Mrs. James Brown Jr. of Baltimore, Md. was honor guest at a bridge party given Friday evening by Mrs. J. Key Brown at her home on Eighth St.

Summer flowers were arranged throughout the rooms of the home, where six tables were placed for the games.

After several progressions Mrs. D. M. Clark was awarded high score prize and Mrs. R. A. Tyson Jr., prize for low score.

Dainty handkerchiefs were given as table prizes and the honoree was remembered with a gift.

Today's Menu

GOOD DINNER

If you've never broiled flank steak we urge you to try this good meat this way!

Broiled Flank Steak
Mashed Potatoes Asparagus
Fruit Salad Beverage

BROILED FLANK STEAK

Ingredients: 1 top quality flank steak (about 2 pounds), 1 table spoon butter (melted), garlic salt, freshly-ground pepper, salt.

Method: Place steak on broiler rack; brush with half the melted butter; sprinkle lightly with garlic salt and pepper. Place broiler pan close to high heat; broil 3 to 5 minutes. Turn steak; brush with remaining butter and sprinkle with garlic salt and pepper; broil this side as before. Sprinkle steak with salt and serve at once, cutting with knife held at an angle so as to achieve wide thin slices. Makes 6 servings.

Mrs. James Shower Honoree

BETHEL—A stork shower was given recently in the home of Mrs. E. E. Dennis on McWhorter Street in honor of Mrs. Curtis James. Cohostesses were Mrs. Rufus E. Coltrain and Mrs. James H. Dupree.

Throughout the house Easter Lillies and petunias were used to decorate.

As the guests arrived they were greeted by Mrs. Dupree and directed to the gift room. After the arrival of all the guests, they were invited into the dining room where the appointed table covered with a white linen cloth and centered with an arrangement of roses flanked by burning blue candles. Mrs. Coltrain served the punch and the 30 guests served themselves open-face sandwiches, lady fingers and pickles.

When you use canned fruit as a garnish for meat or poultry, you'll have syrup left over. Combine the syrup with ginger ale or club soda, with other fruit juices or tea for a good drink

Pilgrim-Caison Marry

KENANSVILLE—In the Kenansville Baptist Church on Sunday afternoon Miss Doris Jane Caison became the bride of Earl Thaddeus Pilgrim.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Robert Caison of Kenansville and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Nancy T. Pilgrim of Greenville and the late Mr. Pilgrim.

The Rev. Lauren Sharpe of Kenansville officiated. Music was presented by Mrs. Lauren Sharpe, organist, and Mr. Joe West, vocalist.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a dress of alencon lace over tulle and taffeta fashioned with a sweetheart neckline. The bouffant skirt of tulle over taffeta with a vanel of lace extended into a cathedral train. Her veil of French illusion and re-embroidered lace was attached to a headniece of appliqued lace and pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of lilies-of-the-valley, feathered carnations, and stephanotis centered with a white orchid.

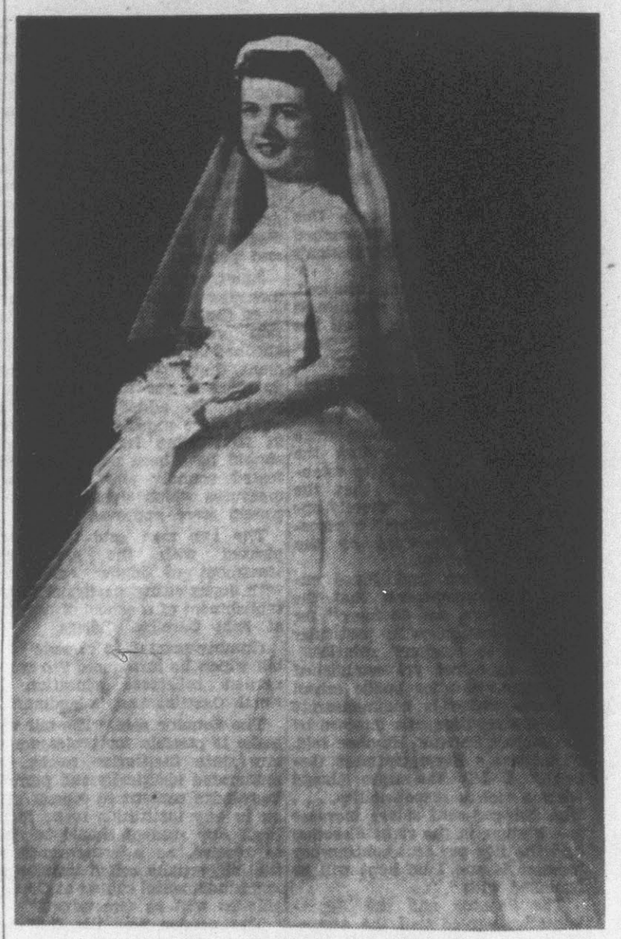

Miss Dianne Stokes of Kenansville was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Margarette Wiggs of Selma, Miss Ruth Lineberger of Wallace, and Miss Peggy Caison of Currie, cousin of the bride. Miss Sarah Dixon of New Bern was junior bridesmaid.

The attendants wore street length dresses of pink and blue silk organza over taffeta. They wore matching bandeaus in their hair. Their flowers were nosegays of American Beauty Roses and pink carnations tied with satin streamers.

L. M. Wallace of Washington was best man. Ushers were James Pilgrim, brother of the bridegroom, Grover Edwards of Washington, Leroy Carpenter of Greenville, and Robert Caison, brother of the bride.

The bride's parents entertained at a reception at the church after which the couple left for a wedding trip to the mountains. For traveling the bride wore a light blue ensemble with white accessories and the white orchid lifted from her bouquet.

The couple will spend the summer in Greenville and attend summer school Then they will go to Newport News, Va., where they will both teach.

To Marry In Mid-August

MISS EULA MAE BUCK . . . is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Buck, of Greenville, who announce her engagement to Dempsey D. Parker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dempsey H. Parker of Greenville. The wedding will take place August 16.

Miss Joanna Hardee Becomes June Bride Sunday

Miss Evelyn Joanna Hardee and Frederick Charles James were married Sunday afternoon in Memorial Baptist Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Herman Hardee of Greenville, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles James of Portsmouth, Va.

The Rev. Percy B. Upchurch officiated at the double ring ceremony. A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Claude Kidd, organist, and Miss Jane Fuller, soloist. Miss Fuller sang "Beloved It Is Morn" by Aylward, "Entreat Me Not To Leave Thee" by Gounod, and "A Wedding Benediction" by Lovelace. The traditional wedding marches were used as the processional and recessional.

The vows were spoken amidst a setting of emeral palms and seven branched candelabras. Arrangements of white gladiolas and carnations were used on either side of the pulpit.

The bride entered the church with her father who gave her in marriage. She wore a waltz-length gown of hand-clipped Chantilly lace and nylon tulle over bridal satin. The basque bodice of lace featured a sabrina neckline and full-length pointed sleeves. Scalloped lace fashioned a peplum and encircled the sweep skirt of tulle. Her two-tiered, fingertip veil of French illusion was attached to an off-face tiara of pearls and iridescent sequins.

She carried a cascade bouquet of white feathered carnations centered with a white orchid.

Mrs. John Borders Jr. served as matron of honor. She wore a sheath dress of blue lace over taffeta, featuring an empire waistline. Her headpiece of blue organza was fashioned of flower petals and seed pearls with a circular veil. She carried an arm bouquet of Happiness Roses.

Miss Carolyn Tripp of Greenville was a bridesmaid and her dress was identical to that of the matron of honor. Miss Sandra James, sister of the bridegroom, was the junior bridesmaid. Her dress was of blue taffeta featuring a blue lace bolero jacket. They both carried arm bouquets of Happiness Roses.

Gus Manos of Greenville served as best man. Ushers were Ronnie Collier of Norfolk, Va.; Kenneth Royal of Supply; Frank Moore of East Orange, N. J.; and Bobby Hardee of Greenville, brother of the bride.

Mrs. Hardee, mother of the bride, wore a beige lace sheath dress with matching accessories and her corsage was a purple orchid.

Mrs. James, mother of the bridegroom, wore a blue lace dress with matching accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

Immediately fellowing the ceremony the couple received in the church vestibule.

For her wedding trip to the mountains of North Carolina, Mrs. James wore a beige ensemble of pure silk with matching accessories. Her corsage was a white orchid lifted from her bouquet.

Mrs. James is a graduate of East Carolina College where he was a member of Phi Sigma Pi, Sigma Rho Phi, and Chi Beta Phi fraternities. He is a member of the Great Bridge High School faculty in Great Bridge, Va., where he teaches science.

After July 1st, the couple will reside in Great Bridge, Va.

Out-of-Town Guests

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Charles James, Kevin and Sandra James, Mrs. Florence Figarado of Portsmouth, Va.; Mrs. R. F. Rhodes, Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Collier, Mr. and Mrs. Alton Hardee, Lynn and Verna Jean Hardee of Norfolk, Va.; Kenneth Royal of Supply; Charles Bedford of Arlington, Va.; Frank Moore of East Orange, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Meredith of New Bern; Miss Florence Gibbs of Richmond, Va.; and Mr. and Mrs. John Borders Jr. of Lexington, Va.

Wedding Breakfast

Sunday morning preceding the James-Hardee nuptials, Miss Esther Hardee, Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Joyner, and Mr. and Mrs. Lee Ward Hardee, aunts and uncles of the bride, honored the wedding party and out-of-town guests at a wedding breakfast which was held at the Silo Restaurant.

Arrangements of pink carnations, larkspur, and ivy streamers were used. Covers were laid for 38 guests at the two-course meal.

Cake Cutting

Following the wedding rehearsal Saturday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Ernul Willis, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Jones, and Mr. and Mrs. James T. Meredith entertained the wedding party, out-of-town guests, and close friends of the bride at a cake cutting at the Willis home on Beaumont Road.

The refreshment table was covered with an imported cutwork cloth and featured a center arrangement of pink and white flowers against a background of burning tapers in a crystal candelabra. At either end of the table were the punch bowl and the three-tiered wedding cake.

After the couple had cut the first slice of wedding cake, Mrs. Raymond Rhodes, aunt of the bride-elect, served the cake to the guests. Mrs. Charles James, mother of the bridegroom-elect, presided at the crystal punch bowl.

During the evening Miss Hardee and Mr. James presented gifts to their attendants.

Goodbyes were said to Mr. and Mrs. Cleve Hardee.

With Farm Women

By MAIDRED MORRIS

(Items this week from: Clay, Pitt, Cabarrus, Washington, Caswell, and Sampson Counties.)

Brides Packets

"Brides Packets" are being prepared in Clay County, according to Mrs. Mena Woodle, home economics agent.

Collections of North Carolina State College Extension circulars are packaged and sent to new brides. Subject matter leaflets varying from feeding the man of the house to destruction of a nematode are included in the packet. Monthly newsletters concerning homemaker's problems are mailed to young homemakers.

Bank Business

Home Demonstration Club women in Pitt County learned to do business at the bank. Deposit slips, various types of checks, saving funds, and joint accounts were discussed at April club meetings.

According to Mrs. Sue B. May, home economics agent, a representative from the Guaranty Bank & Trust Company in Greenville, explained the correct way of doing bank business.

Nutritious Packed Lunches

Textile workers in Cabarrus County recently attended a program on packing lunches. Packed lunches presents problems and few people realize that it should furnish one-third of the day's needs.

According to Mrs. Sarah W. Walker, home economics agent, the women were shown how to plan balanced meals including a packed lunch. Lunches were prepared showing hot dishes and nutritious bread fillers.

Learn Machine Mechanism

Sewing machines are working better in Washington County since the demonstration on "Use and Care of the Sewing Machine" was presented by Mrs. Frances Darden, home economics agent.

Some machines had never been cleaned because the Home Demonstration women did not understand the mechanism of the machine. Now the women remove dust, lint, and threads from their machines and oil them regularly.

Refinishing Picture Frames

Mrs. Odell Gregory said, 'We had so many old picture frames that I never thought I could afford to have them refinished but I have restored many at these workshops and best of all, I did it myself."

Miss Louise Homewood, home economics agent in Caswell County, reports that 59 frames were restored in four workshops. The home demonstration women worked to keep the original design in the refinishing.

Family Room Added

Mrs. Estel McLamb of Sampson County is adding a family room to her home. Construction has been completed with a well arranged traffic lane, closet and business center.

Mrs. Virginia B. Evins, home economics agent, says that Mrs. McLamb has carefully planned her room and is now in the process of having her furniture re-upholstered and is making draperies.

Peach Hints

RALEIGH—Those full-of-flavor peaches that some folks take out of their freezer in winter don't just happen. They are the result of following certain rules.

According to Miss Nita Orr, frozen food specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service, certain varieties of peaches freeze well. Dixie Gem, Red Haven, Alberta, Georgia Belle, and Jubilee are a few of the recommended varieties.

A peach is ripe when its background color has lost all its greenish tinge. When peaches are left on the tree until they are fully grown they have the best flavor. Peaches picked green are not good for freezing. Although there are many factors in having good frozen peaches, ripeness is the most important single factor.

Never let the water in the bottom of a double broiler boil while you are cooking a custard on the top of the stove. If it does boil it may cause your custard to curdle.

When buying a portable mixer, look for a lightweight but well-balanced model with a convenient heel rest.

The President's Biggest Setback

Senate rejection of Lewis Strauss as Secretary of Commerce is the greatest personal defeat President Eisenhower has suffered since he gained the GOP presidential nomination in 1952.

It is the first time in 34 years that a nominee for a Cabinet post has been rejected by the Senate, and only the eighth time such a thing has happened in the history of the nation. Men much more politically controversial than Strauss have been approved for cabinet posts even though serious objections were raised in the Senate. Yet, in the case of Strauss, President Eisenhower did not command sufficient strength in the Senate to obtain approval for the man he wanted for the post.

Certainly the Democratic majority of the Senate will be credited for rejection of Strauss, but in times past cabinet appointments by a President of one party have been approved by the Senate controlled by the opposing party.

The rejection of Strauss immediately brings up many questions:

Is the rejection of Strauss an indication that President Eisenhower will face an increasingly difficult time with Congress during the remainder of his term?

Was the real key to the issue Senate objections to Strauss, or did the issue also involve a determiination of Democratic Senate leadership to put the Presidential influence of Mr. Eisenhower to an acid test?

What repercussions to the rejection of Strauss may be expected in the administration as well as on the national political scene?

In spite of the questions which must be answered only by time, there can be no doubt that the Strauss incident will continue to crop up as an issue in national politics.

New Leadership Didn't Show Up

By LYNN NISBET

LEADERS — At the risk of fatuous repetition it can be said that the 1959 General Assembly developed or produced very little new leadership in the area of State government.

Most obvious candidates for recognition in that field and for different reasons are Speaker Addison Hewlett of New Hanover and Sen. C.V. Henkel of Iredell. As your reporter sees it, they are the only men who came out of the Legislature with substantially more statewide prestige than when the session began.

Top honors for controlling influence over legislation go to Governor Luther Hodges. Whether his status as a leader was enhanced by this record is questionable, because he was recognized long before the Legislature convened as a power in State government, and a figure of importance in national circles.

It is a distinction, perhaps basic difference, as compared with predecessor chief executives that he presented and valiantly championed a program as progressive and forward-looking in his last Legislature as he offered in his first. Whatever other tag may be put upon him, it cannot be said he was in any sense a "lame duck" Governor.

Largely because Governor Hodges' personality and vigor dominated the situations, and because he had a corps of able lieutenants to further his program, no one of these lieutenants was in position to obtain great individual prestige for achieving the administration objectives.

HEWLETT — Addison Hewlett had represented New Hanover county in the Legislature for several terms, but his election as Speaker, constituting what many political observers regarded as an upset in long range administration schemes, catapulated him into statewide prominence. As the session ends he is a recognized potential candidate for Governor. The fact that he could not have attained or maintained the prestige which puts him in this position without full cooperation of House leaders who voted for the other Speakership candidate is testimony to the patriotism of members of the General Assembly—but does not change the basic fact thath e emerges as a statewide figure.

Henkel — Although he has been identified with the minority ever since the first vote in which he lost the pro tem presidency in the Senate by a 26-22 vote, Sen. C.V. Henkel probably deserves the laurels for individual development as a leader. As a business industrialist executive he naturally belongs with the Hodges administration group. Exigencies of legislative procedure and practical politics when he could not go along with every item, forced him into the role of anti-administrationist. By common consent and because of this recognized ability other anti-administration Senators chose him as their principal spokesman. Result is that Henkeh could win very few all-out fights on floor of the Senate, but he has perhaps a larger and more coherently loyal following than any other member of the General Assembly. If he should decide to get into the race for Governor or any other statewide office these associates will be found in his camp.

CANDIDATES — Revelation that Rep. Carson Gregory of Harnett had been approached by numbers of people and has actually given somet hought to running for Governor focused attention on the budding campaign of Speaker Addison Hewlett for the office.

Invitations were distributed among members and attaches of the Legislature Friday, signed by "Friends of Addison Hewlett", for a party given in his honor that evening at the Sir Walter Hotel. Further impetus was given the Hewlett movement when Congressman Alton Lenon of Wilmington announced positively that he will not be a candidate for either Governor or United States Senator next year. He had been mentioned as a potential in both capacities. His stepping out entirely leaves the way clear for Hewlett to claim the undivided support of the Wilmington area.

Meantime reports come from all parts of the state that Terry Sanford and John Larkins are vigorously campaigning. As usual at this stage, rumors are floating around that both men have assurances of reasonably ample financing. The tempo of these races is expected to speed up now that the General Assembly has folded — without doing a great deal to change the probable issue.

There is already evidence that court reform may have considerable influence on legislative races, as will the voting record of members on tax withholding, but the effect on the gubernatorial race probably will not be as important as will the situation in public schools.

A Positive Approach To Safety On Highway

North Carolina's new law designed to deal with habitual traffic law violators is another major step by the state toward better highway safety.

Being enacted on the evening of adjournment of the General Assembly, this new law received approval of the legislators after two other major pieces of highway safety legislation had been killed during the session. Passage of the law without its being weakened by adverse admendments, suggests an eleventh hour awareness among legislators that the highway safety laws of North Carolina need strengthening.

To be sure the law will work a hardship on some habitual violators of traffic regulations. But any law worth the paper it is written on provides hardship for those who violate it. Under the point system for suspension of operator's licenses, those who repeatedly violate even minor highway safety regulations will be subject to lose their licenses for period ranging from 60 days to six months. And in many cases it is the habitual offender who usually winds up in a major highway tragedy.

In addition to empowering the state to suspend the operator's licenses of a habitual traffic law violator, this new law should make all the drivers of North Carolina more conscious of obeying even the minor traffic regulations. It will improve the driving habits of those who want to avoid the teeth of this new law and encourage those who are habitual violators to be more careful when they are behind the wheeel.

This new law represents another positive approach by North Carolina to making its highways safer and offering greater protection to the lives and property of the citizens of the state.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

MAKE CENTRAL THINGS CENTRAL

The Bible speaks of our putting on Christ. We are to put off the old man of sin as we put off a filthy garment. We are to put on Christ as we put on a new and glorious garment.

So many Biblical expressions and symbols fail to mean what they should to the average Bible reader today. Here is a magnificent one. "Put on Christ" (Galatians 3:27). Paul also speaks of putting on the new man.

When will we get away from the superficial idea that Christian discipleship involves nothing more than believing a few divine truths and attending to a few stipulated duties? Belief and fidelity to many customs laid down by the Bible and the church are real factors in every Christian experience. But the central and essential factor is Jesus Christ himself. He is a person. This Person is described in a number of different ways. Jesus called himself the Door—"By me if any man enter in he shall be saved." He called himself the Way, the Truth, and the Life. And St. Paul referred to him as a garment which we put on—by which we clothe ourselves after we have taken off a soiled garment.

Put off the old man, put on the new. Put off sin, put on Christ. The Christian religion means more than believing something and going through certain motions It involves purposeful and very joyous living. Christ is the central fact of the religion which bears his name. Loyalty to him and oneness with him are the central factors of our faith.

An Issue In The Increased Debt?

By RALPH ROBEY

New Deal Democrats have decided to make a party political issue over the Administration's request for a higher public debt ceiling, anl for removal of the present limit on the interest rate which the treasury may offer on obligations of more than five years maturity. Conservative Democrats may not go along with this decision of the "liberal" wing of the party, but the issue promises to be one of the great controversies of the present Congress.

The Administration has asked for three things: an increase of $5 billion in debt ceiling; the right to increase the interest on savings bonds; and removal of the present 4 1-4 per cent interest limitation on all Treasury obligations maturing in more than five years.

Treasury Needs Some Elbow Room

Back of the request for the higher debt ceiling is the hard fact that at the end of this fiscal year, June 30, the debt will some $2 billion above the present ceiling This can be taken care of on a temporary basis, but indefinitely, and the Treasury is of the opinion that it must have some elbow room.

Actually, there is a large seasonal variation in the Treasury receipts. They always are relatively low in the first six months of a fiscal year, and much higher in the second six months. Even with a balanced budget for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1960, which is a possibility, there will be a substantial deficit between now and next December. This can be met, as it has been in the past, by providing for a temporary bulge in the debt ceiling, or by making the legal debt limit apply only at the end of the fiscal year.

It is assumed that the increase of the debt ceiling will be passed by Congress. It has to be if the nation is not going to get into a seriously embarrassed financial position, and it is unthinkable that anyone would deliberately bring that about.

The argument for increasing the interest on savings bonds is simple. At present 3¼ per cent, which is what these bonds now pay, is below many other investments of virtually equal safety and greater liquidity. This is one of the reasons for the fairly consistent redemption of savings bonds above new sales. In other words, these obligations no longer are a source of new funds to the Treasury but on the contrary have become a drain on the cash balance of the Government. It is proposed to raise the interest rate to 3¾ per cent for all such bonds sold after June 1o of this year, and to adjustt he yield to the same figure on those already outstanding.

It is also assumed that these changes will be authorized without much difficulty.

The reasons for requesting elimination of the present 4¼ interest limitation on obligations of more than five years maturity are two facts: first, many of the issues now outstanding yield more than 4¼ per cent, which means that the Treasury today cannot sell a long term bond; second, if Treasury borrowing has to be limited to short term issues it has great inflationary potentials, because such issues are taken largely by the banks and paid for by bookkeeping entries, which means an increase in the money supply.

Make The Issues More Attractive

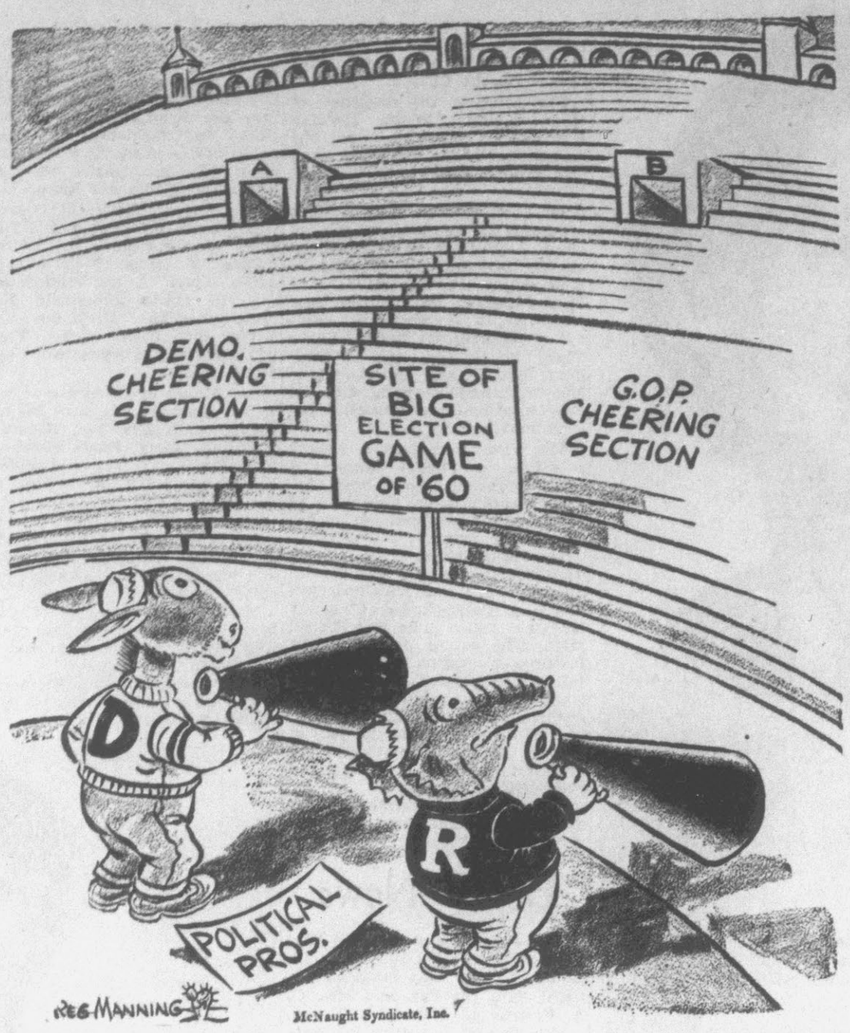

The great argument being developed against the elimination of this interest rate restriction is that it would involve higher rates across the board. In hearings before the House Ways and Means Committee, both Secretary of the Treasury Anderson, speaking for the Administration, and William Martin, Jr., speaking as Chairman of the Federal Reserve Board of Governors, denied that this would be the result. Both insisted that the general level of interest rates would not advance and that the cost of carrying the public debt might actually decline. Their argument was that such freeing of the hands of the Treasury would enable issues to be better tailored to the market, would make possible better timing of the offerings and would tend to allay the fears of inflation, thus creating more willingness on the part of investors to buy obligations which carry a fixed rate of interest.

It is too early to be dogmatic on how this particular controversy will end. The expectation is that the House will pass a bill fairly quickly, probably giving the Administration what it has asked. The Senate, then, will be the real battle ground. What will happen there is anyone's guess. My guess is that after a hard fight the Administration will win on all three of its requests.

Let's Use Big Stick

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

A ludicrous situation, with overtones of seriousness, has been created by the incident over the Sea of Japan in which an American Navy plane was attacked by Communist jet fighters. Ludicrous because the plane's pilot was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross while it was known that several of the guns aboard the plane had been dismantled and the plane's communications were faulty. Serious because we continue to allow Communists to make unprovoked, flagrant attacks upon our aircraft without attempting to do anything more than send notes of protest through the usual diplomatic channels.

But this incident has brought unusual reaction in Washington. First, President Eisenhower himself has called for an explanation as to the lack of return fire and why the guns were not functioning. The Pentagon and several critical senators have also demanded a report. Eisenhower said he was greatly concerned about the reports of missing gun parts cutting down the ability of the plane to fight back.

Confusion in phone conversation between the pilot and the crew resulted in failure of the only functioning gun to return the Communist fire. Now one wonders why such a situation should be allowed to crop up. Surely the Navy must know we are not on the friendliest of terms with either the Chinese Reds or the Russians. They must know there have been numerous incidents in which our planes have been attacked.

A preliminary report ordered by Adm. Arleigh Burke, chief of naval operations, shows that this particular plane was assigned to reconnaisance missions rather than anti-submarine duty. Because of this the forward turrett, used only against surface targets was deliberately rendered inoperable by utilizing the space for reconnaisance type equipment. For a similar reason, and to compensate for the weight of the additional equipment, the top turrent had been removed.

Now the next logical question arises. If this reconnaisance plane was defenseless, why were there no escort fighters with it? Adm. Frederic Withington, commander of U.S. naval forces in Japan, said he did not send fighter escorts for the patrol planes because "that would be more provocative than usual." That seems to be an amazing policy in view of the continued attacks on our planes and personnel. In order not to provoke the enemy, we must not defend ourselves from Communist attacks.

We have pointed out before, in commenting on these attacks, that if our military would knock down a couple of these Red bandits, the attacks would cease. By knocking them down, there would be no increased risk of war, because Russia will not start a big war over such a small incident. Besides, the Reds know they are way off base in these attacks because they are usually far from Russian territory. In truth, we would be more than justified in splashing a few of them in the drink.

Gentle Leveling Off In Business

By ELMER ROESSNER

Business, which has been burbling like a crock of beer, will become quieter. Current effervescence will lessen.

For the next three months, there will be a gentle leveling off.

There are many reasons. Growth in the last three months has been greater than justified by demand. A boom psychology has affected commerce no less than it has affected the stock market. The maggots of 1929 are again infesting national thinking.

Now the threat of a steel strike and the fear of a summer lag are about the to be felt.

It will be temporary. The fall pick-up will be vigorous and all signs point to new highs later this year.

OTHER LOOK-AHEADS IN BUSINESS

Here are more forecasts, based on analyses of developing trends and some advance information:

Taxes on credit cards. Growth of credit cards has been so spectacular that several states are considering laying taxes on them. The argument: CREDIT cards enable users to reduce Federal taxes (by substantiating deductions) so states, under whose laws they are issued, should gain compensatory advantages.

Franchising crackdown. Franchising plans have been spreading faster than credit cards. Most plans are sound, but some odorous camels are trying to get under the tent. Look for Better Business Bureau, the Federal Trade Commission and State authorities to move against some of the almost-fraudulent kind. Note: Some of the ethical franchisers are feeding information on shady competitors to proper authorities.

High summer sales. Despite the leveling off, predicted a few paragraphs above, retail sales will hold up this summer. An important factor is that many merchandisers are determined to "sell through" the traditional summer slump.

OTHER LOOK FOR'S

Costlier credit. The rise in bank rates will eventually be reflected in costs of credit. Revolving credit plans will charge more; stores will tighten up on charge accounts.

Container rise. The higher standard of living switches tastes from cans to glass. Glass container use may rise 2 per cent this year.

Rise in boat rentals. The boom in boating is interesting financiers in underwriting boat rentals. It will be easier to rent yachts and smaller craft this year at less than usurious rates.

Motel bargains. There will be amazing buys in motels this year. Shifting highways will strand many of them. Note: Before investing in a motel, check local highway plans to make sure it won't be an orphan. Note: Before investing in a motel, make sure it isn't a quickie structure with a lot of outward glamor applied for quick resale. Note: If you have a family of 24, a motel on a highway about to be abandoned may be a wonderful buy.

Aluminum hubcaps: Most of the cars you may be interested in may have aluminum hubcaps next year. They are cheaper, lighter and good-looking.

Higher copper. Supplies are still tightening and higher prices are in prospect.

More menthol cigarettes. Manufacturers have all but exhausted the filter appeal, and menthol treatments are next on the turn of the promotional wheel. Manufacturers without mentholated brands will come out with new ones in the next few months.

Columns on Japan. This is about the surest prediction ever made here. Your columnist has been visiting Japan and will report the thinking of industrial and government leaders.

Small Cities 'Best'

By ROGER BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass., — Wi nearly 10 per cent of our popu lation changing locations eac year, these people are face with the question: "Where shal we establish our permanent home I shall not recommend any one state. Every state has its advant ages and disadvantages. Much depends upon the health of the parents and children,—whether they should go to a dry climate or a normal climate,—to a hot climate or a cool climate. This is something you should talk over with your local doctor before making a decision.

LARGE VS. SMALL CITIES OR TOWNS

I, however, will take the responsibility of advising you to avoid big cities such as New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, New Orleans, Cleveland, Detroit, and perhaps San Francisco and Los Angeles. If you have young children, I would advise you not to locate even in any of the suburbs of these. With a total population of over 20,000,000 people, they could all expect destruction in event of World War III. Only a few cities might be destroyed; but no one knows which ones.

I do not expect to see a World War III for at least ten or more years, but the chances are that the United States will sometime be in some major war. Such a war will be fought by missiles of various kinds carrying atomic warheads. This means that one or more of the above cities will be wiped out during the first 24 hours of the war. No advance notice will be given. The surprise attacks will come as suddenly as that on Pearl Harbor. In the same way, our enemies will strike while our delegates and theirs are discussing possible peace.

ADVANTAGES OF SMALL CITIES

Were I looking for a job today, I should choose some small city or town fifty to one hundred miles from one of the ten big cities mentioned above. My reasons: (1) Such smaller places will never be targets of intercontinental missiles. (2) Their churches, schools, and clubs are much better for your family's future. (3) The cost-of-living is less than in a big city. (4) Your living conditions — whether in a small house or an apartment — will be much better for the rent you pay. (5) Your children will make better friends — especially if you join some church and the children attend Sunday School.

LAND PRICES AND PROFITS

The price of land varies largely with the population of the community. This means you will get more real health and joy for a dollar invested in a small city. Furthermore, land in most large cities is at its peak for this cycle; while land in smaller cities should still be on the way up. Be sure to settle in a progressive and growing location, not one that has seen its best days.

When buying a home be sure to get enough land. Buy a small house, but get an extra adjoining lot if possible. Buy them on the right side of a well-drained and growing city or town. Every community has its growing and most "aristocratic" portion. Start out with the prestige of living in the right section with the best neighbors — who own their homes.

ADVANTAGES OF "COLLEGE TOWNS"

Personally, if my wife and I were a young couple, all else being equal, we would settle in a "college town." There are nearly 500 scattered throughout the nation. These small cities and towns have especially good families and attractive atmosphere. These always have concerts and lectures which you can attend. If you can find such a community on a lake or river, which will give you employment in the line for which you are best fitted, this may be the place to settle.

What about the subdivisions which are springing up from Richmond southward to Florida and from Atlanta westward to Texas, New Mexico, and Arizona? Many of these are attractive, but before buying see with your own eyes what you are to get for your money. Insist upon good drainage, a fireproof house built of sand blocks which is also termite proof. Visit several subdivisions before you buy. Spend at least a month looking about in the state which you select. One more thought: Buy a house near enough to a hotel or restaurant so that you can walk if you wish to get out for a meal.

Cleveland Drops Yankees Twice To Boost Margin

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Cleveland Indians owned their biggest lead in the American League since May 26 today and they owe it to the determination and the strong right arms of pitchers Cal McLish and Jim Grant.

It was McLish and Grant who slowed up the on-rushing New York Yankees Sunday by pitching the Indians to a doubleheader sweep, 4-2 and 5-4 in 14 innings The victories boosted the Indians' first place margin to two games over Chicago and shoved the defending champion Yanks back into the second division.

The largest crowd of the major league season — 68,680 Yankee Stadium spectators — sat through seven hours and 14 minutes and saw McLish and Grant go all the way although giving up 25 hits between them.

McLish registered his seventh victory despite allowing 11 hits in the opener. He left 13 Yankees stranded. Grant hurled all 14 innings in the nightcap, winning his fifth as he yielded 14 hits. He left 12 Yankees stranded.

Billy Pierce pitched the White Sox into second place, with a 3-2 triumph over Boston that dropped the Red Sox into the American League cellar, two percentage points behind Washington. The Senators climbed up to seventh by thrashing Detroit 4-3 and 7-5. The double defeat lowered the Tigers into a third place tie with Baltimore, which bowed to Kansas City 7-0.

Milwaukee's Braves opened up a game and a half lead over San Francisco in the National League as they thrashed the Giants 13-3. Pittsburgh's third place Pirates split a doubleheader with St. Louis, winning 10-8 after the Cardinals had won the opener 5-1. Cincinnati walloped Los Angeles 17-3 and the Chicago Cubs blanked the Philadelphia Phillies 4-0 behind the one-hit pitching of Johnny Buzhardt.

Rocky Colavito and Vic Power shared the hitting honors for the Indians. Each hit two homers, one in each game. Colavito's first game homer, with a man on base in the third inning, proved to be the winning blow. Power's second homer came in the 14th inning of the nightcap and snapped a 4-4 tie. The blow came off Jim Coates, third Yankee pitcher, who had given up a run in the 13th only to have the Yankees get it back in their half of the inning.

The double defeat dropped the Yankees into fifth place, 3½ games off the pace. A sweep would have boosted the Yankees, who had won five straight and 17 of their last 23, into first place by half a game.

Pierce won his eighth game with a six-hitter against the Red Sox. He got one of Chicago's seven hits and drove in what proved to be the winning run with a force play in the fourth.

Boston had the tying run on second with one out in the ninth but the veteran southpaw disposed of the next two batters without further damage. Home runs by Harry Simpson and Sammy Esposito accounted for Chicago's first two runs.

Washington's double win was its first of the season. The Senators overcame a 3-0 deficit in the opener, then scored the winning run in the ninth when Detroit pitcher Barney Schultz let Harmon Killebrew's two-out grounder with the bases full go through his legs.

A home run by rookie Bob Allison, his 18th, featured Washington's six-run blast in the fourth inning of the nightcap. Roy Sievers also homered for Washington, the 200th of his career.

Veteran Ned Garver not only pitched a three-hit shutout for Kansas City, but hit a home run, double and single as the A's rapped loser Arnie Portocarrero and Billy Hoeft for 16 hits.

Raleigh Goes On Hitting Spree

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Raleigh's Caps went on a batting rampage Sunday, collecting 18 hits, while other Carolina League teams were having a tough time at bat.

Raleigh shelled four Greensboro pitchers to trounce the Yankees 17-2. The Caps unleashed six home runs. They scored seven runs in each of the second and eighth innings. Three homers came in the eighth.

By virtue of the victory, Raleigh picked up a full game on league leading Wilson, which dropped a 3-2 decision to Durham. Raleigh now trails by 2½ games. Dick Kliewer bested Jose Aaron in a tight mound duel. Kliewer gave up five hits and Aaron seven. Dan Briner and Jack Bowen homered for Durham. Ray Looney and Dock Hoth hit home runs for Wilson.

Winston - Salem scored four runs in the top of the 12th to defeat Burlington 6-2.

A two-run double by Burlington's Reggie Heavener in the eighth had sent the game into extra innings. Sam McIntyre, who went the distance for Winston-Salem, gave up eight hits. Winston-Salem collected seven.

Tonight's games: Wilson at Raleigh, Greensboro at Winston-Salem and Burlington at Durham.

Lions Win 5-0 Against VFW

Clinton Joyner hurled a three-hitter Saturday afternoon to give the Lions their second victory of the season, a 5-0 decision over VFW.

The winners scored single runs in the third and fourth innings and then tallied three in the fifth to put the game on ice.

James Gilliam had two hits to load the Lions. James Williams, VFW first baseman, had two of the hits off Joyner. Daniel Owens had the other blow, a single in the fifth.

Thomas Has Tie For 3rd At Tourney

WILSON — Bobby Thomas finished strong yesterday afternoon with a 72 to gain a third place tie in the State Amateur Tournament which was concluded at the Wilson Country Club.

Thomas, who could become the youngest champion of the tournament before reaching his 20th birthday, shot a par 72 yesterday to finish at 220, seven strokes behind champion Larry Beck of Kinston.

The 15-year-old Greenville youth had a bad opening round of 75 and then shot himself out of contention Saturday. He dropped six birdies and was two under par going into the par three 18th hole. He took a six and thus finished with a 73, one over par.

Joe Exum was the next Greenville golfer in line as he finished with a 78 yesterday to post a 236 for the tournament.

Buddy Murray was the lone Greenville golfer to bring back a trophy as he came from behind to defeat Jim Briley of Henderson in match play and win the second flight championship.

Murray was one down most of the way but tied the match on the 13th hole and went ahead with wins on the 14th and 15th. He finally won the match 2-1.

The 20-year-old Beck won the North Carolina Amateur golf tournament here Sunday with a three-under par 213 for the 54-hole test over the Wilson Country Club course.

There were some interesting sidelights in his victory. At 20, Beck is the youngest golfer to win this tournament. Fourteen years ago it was his father, Avery Beck, who won the initial tournament. Avery now is the pro at Kinston.

On two previous occasions, young Beck came close to winning this tournament. In 1956 he missed a two-foot putt and a chance at a three-way playoff for the title. In 1957 Lawrence Cook of Wilmington defeated young Beck in a playoff.

Harvey Ward, the Tarboro native who now plays out of San Francisco, had been the youngest player to win the amateur tournament. He was 21 and a student at the University of North Carolina when he won in 1948.

Bill Harvey of Greensboro who was playing with Beck looked like he might win the tournament Sunday when he led the Kinston youngster by one stroke on the 13th hole. Beck knuckled down to his task and birdied three of the remaining five holes while Harvey was taking a double bogie and a bogie on the way in.

Beck had rounds of 70, 71 and 72 for his winning total. Harvey finished with a 217 in second place. Tied for third were Graydon Liles of Farmville and Bobby Thomas of Greenville at 220. Then came Ed Gravely of Rocky Mount, a former champ, with 221; and Jimmy Dempsey and Bob Smith, both of Wilson, Horace Ervin of Kinston and Clarence Alexander of Raleigh, another former champ, all with 222.

Benny Goodes of Reidsville, Archie Clark Jr. of Fayetteville and Tom McGhee of Camp Lejeune followed with 223.

Football Coach Is Buried Today

BOONE, N.C. (AP) — Veteran football coach Robert William Broome was to be buried here today. Broome, 42, head football coach at Appalachian College here, died Saturday in Duke Hospital after a long illness.

Broome was graduated from Appalachian in 1940 and became head coach of the Apps four years ago.

The Rev. L. H. Hollingsworth, pastor of the Boone Baptist Church, officiated at the funeral services in the church. Burial was in Mount Lawn Memorial Park.

Survivors include his wife, one son and a daughter, a brother and a sister, and his parents, L. E. Broome of Marion and Mrs. William Delisle of Greenville, S.C.

Teamed Up, Won Endurance Race

LE MANS, France (AP)—Carroll Shelby of Dallas, Tex., and Roya Salvadori of Great Britain piloted Aston Martin to victory Saturday in the Le Mans 24-hour endurance race.

They covered 2,720 miles at an average speed of 112.5 miles an hour. Second was the car driven by Maurice Trintignant of France and Paul Frere of Belgium.

Drought Is Over For Doug Ford

MONTREAL (AP) — The long drought has ended for 36-year-old Doug Ford.

The free-swinging veteran from Paradise, Fla., was beginning to think that perhaps he'd never win another golf tournament. All through the pro circuit this year, he has been near, but never quite at the top.

But Sunday he came from benind a one-stroke deficit to capture the Canadian Open with a 72-hole total of 276, and haul down top prize of $3,500.

Ford shot a final round of 2-under par 70 to finish the tournament 12 strokes under regulation figures. He was two strokes to the good of three runners-up at the end.

One of them was Dow Finsterwald of Tequesta, Fla., who shared the third-round lead at 205 Saturday with Bruce Crampton of Sydney, Australia.

But Finsterwald blew to a 3-over-par 8 on the second hole. He finished with 73 for a 278 total.

Tied with him for second place and collecting a $1,866 each were Art Wall Jr., of Pocono Manor, Pa., who lost his chance for top money when he hooked into the rough and bogied the 17th, and Bo Winger of Odessa, Tex., who shot a 68 on the last round.

Crampton, 23 - year - old blond Australian who became a gallery favorite after taking the lead on the second round, fell apart completely. He soared to a 75, three over par, and was left in a tie for fifth at 280.

U.S. Open champion Billy Casper had a 66 on the final round but finished well back at 283.

BUDDY MURRAY won the championship in the second flight of the State Amateur Golf Tournament at Wilson yesterday.

Local Youth Wins Golf Trophy In Wilson Play

By JOHNNY HUDSON

Buddy Murray, the little boy with the big club, was all smiles last night as he returned from the Wilson Country Club with a big silver plate which represented the championship in the second flight of the State Amateur Golf Tournament.

Buddy, boasting plenty of confidence in his ever-improving game, stated Saturday night that he felt he could win his championship match and that he did, although forced to do it the hard way.

The 16-year-old youth was pitted against Jim Briley of Henderson, a veteran of some 25 years of golf competition, in the championship round of the match play flight.

Two Down

Briley held the lead most of the way and at the ninth hole, Murray was one down. Murray was two down after the tenth but came back to tie the match with wins on the 12th and 13 holes. He also won the 14th and 15th to sew up the match. Murray finally won the match 2-1 from his older opponent.

Murray considers the battle to the championship round harder than the final match. He defeated Jerry Jarrett on Friday and then swept two big matches Saturday. The frist came over Tommy Ruffin of Wilson, brother of famed golfer Art Ruffin, and the final win was over A. G. Mills, club champion of Henderson.

Respected Golfer

Buddy, a dark-skinned crew-cut youth, is a rising senior at Rose High School and has joined other athletes such as Lou Pucillo in proving the theory that size isn't everything.

Murray carries only 120 pounds on his 5-4 frame but his desire and constant practice has made him one of the most respected golfers in this area.

He was the number one man on the high school golf team this past spring and recently upset two noted Greenville golfers in a bid for the local club championship. He was finally ousted but not without a bitter fight.

"The greens putted read good but were a little bit hard. The competition was real tough," stated Murray concerning his championship play.

Makes Prediction

The State Amateur is over and Buddy has a trophy but he was still a little distressed over not qualifying for the championship flight. He shot an 81 in qualifying, his highest score of the three-day tournament.

Murray concluded his summation of the tournament by predicting that he would be in the championship flight next summer.

He will have little rest from the game as he will join Bobby Thomas and Chappy Bradner today as they journey to Greensboro for the Carolinas Junior Tournament.

Array Of Champs On U.S. Squad

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — The Stars and Stripes will be carried into international track and field competition this summer by a balanced array of veteran champions and bright young newcomers.

The athletes who finished 1-2-3 in the National AAU Championships during the weekend will represent the United States in the Pan-American Games at Chicago beginning Aug. 28.

Thet op two finishers meet a Russian dual team in Philadelphia July 18-19. Other leading performers were picked on squads to tour Germany and Scandinavia.

Three of the brilliant youngsters are sprinter Ray Norton, San Jose State senior; miler Dyrol Burleson, Oregon's freshman sensation, and Tom Murphy, the New York Athletic Club's 800-meter runner.

But one of the best in the AAU, Charlie Tidwell, Kansas University junior, failed to make the traveling teams because his specialty—200 meters hurdles—is not an international event.

Tidwell raced to an AAU and American record in winning the race in 22.6 seconds. That erased Harrison Dillard's AAU record of 23.5 and Tidwell's American mark of 22.7.

Norton, winner of the 100 and 200 meters dashes, was voted the outstanding athlete at the two-day meet.

Burleson smashed the AAU 150 meters record with a 3 minute 47.5 seconds clocking over the course, 120 yards short of a mile.

Frank Potts, University of Colorado coach who will guide the U. S. team against Russia, called Burleson "the finest young miler in the United States—capable of running a four-minute mile."

Murphy a grad student at Manhattan College, won the 800 meters in 1:47.9, just three-tenths of a second off the AAU record set in 1955 by Arnie Sowell of Pittsburgh.

Belvoir Falkland Set Back Twice

Belvoir-Falkland took a double setback Saturday from an up-and-coming Bethel club but bounced back Sunday with a win to retain a comfortable margin in the Pitt County Little Tar Heel loop.

Stokes and Meadowbrook were able to make little gain on the leaders as they split their two game series. Stokes took a 7-2 decision Saturday to move into the third spot but Meadowbrook came back with a 4-1 win yesterday to tie the two clubs again.

Bethel, off to a slow start, got good pitching from Frank Whitehurst and Jim Taylor Saturday to spill the leaders in a double-header. The win moved Bethel into second place and to the .500 mark for the first time this season.

Bethel swamped Belvoir-Falkland 14-4 in the first game and then 7-4 in the second tilt.

The booming bat of Tommy Meeks dropped Bethel back to an even .500 mark yesterday as Belvoir-Falkland took the final game of the series, 5-4. Meeks had two doubles, a triple, and a single in the victory.

David Warren, a southpaw gained credit for the win.

Johansson Loafing As Floyd Sweats In Heavy Training

CHATHAM, N.J. (AP) — While Ingemar Johansson played golf and swam with his fiance at a plush mountain resort, heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson sweated out 4½ pounds in the oven heat of an old-fashioned training camp.

The contrast between the training methods of the unbeaten challenger from Sweden and the champion never was more pronounced than it was Sunday.

Johansson finished his boxing Saturday at Grossinger, N.Y., sparring six rounds without throwing his right hand more than six of seven times. He will do no more ring work until the fight Thursday night at Yankee Stadium.

Patterson cut his work to two rounds at Ehsan's camp where about 1,000 spectators crowded inside and around the tiny gymnasium. Trainer Dan Florio said Floyd weighed 184½ pounds when he started. After the workout, the champ said he weighed 180.

In many ways the scene at Chatham reminded you of the old days at Pompton Lakes, N.J. when Joe Louis' camp drew busloads of Sunday visitors at a fee. There was one important difference. No admission is charged at Patterson's camp. Somebody spread a rumor that there was free beer.

The champ had planned to box three or four rounds. Instead he went only two, one each with Bill Tate of Chicago and Lou Jones of Rockford, Ill. He concentrated on defense but had to be called off by his trainer while battering Tate against the ropes. He also threw a fast flurry at Jones.

Rocky Marciano, the retired undefeated champ, was at ringside.

"This is the fastest heavyweight I ever saw," said Marciano, who said he weighed 220 pounds. "I wouldn't like to compare him with Johansson. I only saw Johansson two rounds Saturday."

Meanwhile, back in the Catskills, Johansson had finished 18 holes of golf and a 10-minute swim in the pool with his fiance, Birgit Lundgren, and his sister, Eva.

Newsmen crowded around him. Someone said, "Are you nervous with the fight close at hand."

The handsome Swede answered quickly and clearly.

"Why should I be? I am a professional."

Moose Take 3-0 Win Saturday

The Moose handed Greenville Tobacco Company their second straight defeat Saturday as Danny Keel hurled a two hitter in spilling the first-half co-champions, 3-0.

A double by Bill Calloway in the first, and a double by Chandler Richardson in the second were the only hits that the Tobs were able to touch Keel for.

The Moose pushed across single runs in the first, third, and fourth innings.

Hubert Evans, Randy Whitehurst, Charles Hudson, and Malcolm collected a double each to pace the winners at the plate.

Due For Change, Asserts Haney

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "We were due to start hitting," declared Milwaukee Manager Fred Haney today after his Braves repulsed another challenge by the San Francisco Giants.

Hank Aaron knocked in six runs with three homers to lead the 15 - hit Milwaukee assault that swamped the Giants 13-3 and provided the Braves a 1½ game lead in the National League chase.

"We've been floundering around for a month," Haney said. He reiterated, "we were due t ostart hitting."

The Braves hadn't won a series in three weeks, and San Francisco had grabbed a half game league lead by winning the opener of a three game set.

Then, Milwaukee, surged back behind Lew Burdette and Warren Spahn for two victories.

Until Burdette turned the trick, no Milwaukee pitcher had gone the full route in 10 previous games.

Aaron who boosted his league leading batting average to .391 sees more good hitting days for his club.

"We're like that," he declared. "We go along for a week without hitting much and then break out with good hitting for three or four weeks."

It marked the first time Aaron hit three homers in one game so he declared with a grin, "It has to be one of my better days."

Three sellout crowds totaled 68,823 for the series and swelled the Giants' 1959 attendance for 33 games to 569,807.

Race Driver Is Severely Burned

CHESTER, S.C. (AP)—A race driver attempting to break his own world record of 177 miles an hour is being treated at the hospital here for second degree burns suffered when his drag racer engine caught fire Saturday.

Don Garlits of Tampa, Fla., had set the record speed for the Chester drag strip, a quarter - mile paved runway, during a race meeting sponsored by the International Timing Assn.

He was trying to break that record when his engine caught fire.

Hospital attendants reported his condition fair.

Bob Leasher of Anaheim, Calif., had 173 miles an hour, the second fastest time, before withdrawing because of mechanical trouble

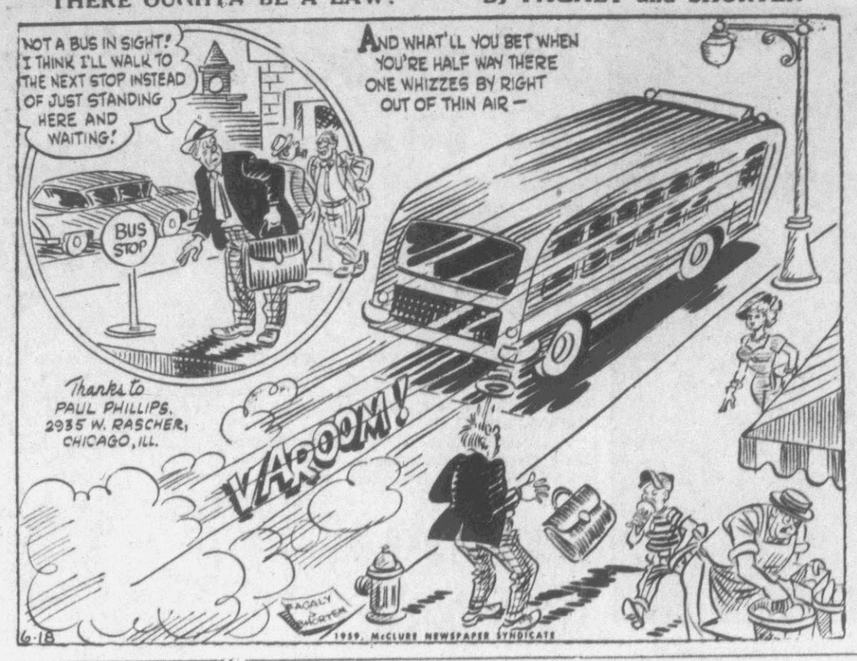

Thirty classes of timed speed runs drew 207 cars and more than 3,000 spectators.

THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW! By FAGALY and SHORTEN

Havana's Gambling Casinos Are Reeling

HAVANA (AP)—The gambling belt that started out a few years ago to become the Las Vegas of the Caribbean is taking on the air instead of one of Nevada's ghost towns.

With few tourists, the luxury casinos that were thriving a year ago in a cascade of dollars are playing today to lots of empty seats. The outlook is grim, gambling operators say.

They are hanging on in hopes the start of the next tourist season will bring back the well heeled traveler. The tourist period is best between Dec. 1 and April 1.

The National Tourist Commission, with Prime Minister Fidel Castro's support, is running a promotion campaign. But Casino operators claim the government hasn't done much to help them.

They would like to have slot machines. The one-armed bandits — together with personnel termed "undesirable" by the government—were the first to go when Castro allowed the casinos to reopen in February.

Operators say slot machines are important because of their appeal to women.

The revolution killed the last tourist season and sent the casinos reeling. They were closed for nearly two months after Dictator Fulgencio Batista fled on Jan. 1.

Of nine Havana casinos permitted to reopen, seven accepted. Two have closed because of no business in the last month — the Deauville and Sans Souci. The five remaining of a multi-million dollar investment are: Habana Hilton, Riviera, Tropicana, Capri and Hotel Nacional.

Less enthusiastic operators are wondering if the tourists ever will come back in large numbers. Although Castro himself often has cited the importance of tourism to the country, operators contend some government orders frighten the tourist away.

They cite the airport frisking of visitors—an order only recently lifted—for illegal Cuban pesos. Some arrests were made and the adverse publicity didn't help the casino or hotel business.

Although barred by an army order from the hotels, soldiers carrying long arms and submachine guns can be seen around the streets.

The government undertook a cleanup drive that hit at the city's usually uninhibited night life Scores of houses of prostitution, suburban "shows" and other nocturnal features that made Havana the wicked lady of the Antilles were shuttered.

The casinos that are sticking it out must maintain large staffs. Cuba's labor laws don't permit dismissals for economic reasons.

Anxious To Save Wild Mustangs

WASHINGTON (AP) —A congressman wants to save the wild mustang —a symbol of the West —from extinction.

About 20,000 of the horses roam the Western states. But their number grows smaller, says Rep. Walter S. Baring (D-Nev), as modern roundups, using planes and trucks, capture the mustangs for dog food.

Baring has introduced a bill aimed at stopping mechanized wild horse roundups.

Under his bill, hunters could not use planes or trucks to catch horses or burros on public lands. In addition, they could not pollute watering holes to trap the animals.

A House Judiciary subcommittee, besieged with mail on the subject, has scheduled a hearing on the measure July 15.

In an interview, Baring gave a vivid description of the mechanized roundup: Low-flying planes herd the horses to flatlands, where other hunters, waiting in trucks, run the animals to exhaustion. The horses then are roped and hobbled until they can be hauled to slaughter.

"By the time they reach the slaughterhouses their hides have been practically torn to pieces and they are more dead than alive from the brutal treatment they have received," Baring said.

In Nevada alone, he said, there are but 5,000 mustangs remaining of a herd that at one time numbered 70,000.

Baring said his bill was aimed both at securing humane treatment for the animals and saving them from extinction.

"Mustangs," he said, "are as traditional to the West as the six gun."

Two Jumps Save Father And Baby

NEW YORK (AP) — A father jumped from the attic window of his burning house Sunday with his one-year-old daughter in his arms.

He landed 15 feet below on the roof of a one-story extension. Then he dropped the child to a man among the spectators below. The father jumped and landed safely on a grassy spot.

Robert Reynolds, 31, and his daughter Barbara were treated for burns, but were otherwise uninjured.

Special Unit Of Guard For Vance

RALEIGH (AP)—The job of patrolling the Henderson textile strike scene was taken over Sunday by a special National Guard task force which will remain on duty as long as it is needed here.

The special contingent came here directly from Ft. Bragg, where it has been in training the past two weeks as part of the 30th Infantry. The group is commanded by Lt. Col. Junius S. Stearns Jr. of Laurinburg, a building contractor in civilian life.

State Adj. Gen. Capus Waynick has said the special force will reduce the hardship of active duty to individual Guardsmen and reduce the cost to the state.

Air National Guardsmen from Charlotte and Wadesboro have been on duty at the struck Harriet-Henderson Mills the past two weeks.

The new group, Wanick said, is composed "of officers and men whose absence from their regular work will constitute less of a hardship to them and to their employers."

Gov. Hodges summoned National Guardsmen to the strike scene May 12, a few days after he had withdrawn Highway Patrolmen from patrol duty at the mills. Local officials requested Guard aid when law enforcement officers were unable to maintain order. Little violence has occurred since the arrival of the troops.

The two mills have been operating on three full shifts the past four weeks.

Five Years Of Work Washed Out

MERCER, Mo. (AP) — Five years ago, Wayne Kelley, a merchant seaman, bought 220 acres near Mercer and started converting an abandoned railroad fill into a dam and lake.

Planning a fishing resort, he spent all his time on leave and $35,000 on the project. He was ready to start building stone cabins this summer.

The dam burst Saturday. The 30-acre lake and its stock of fish drained into the Weldon River.

Kelley, 38, a third mate aboard an oil tanker, learned of his misfortune when his ship docked Sunday at Port Arthur, Tex.

"I guess we'll just have to start over," he told a relative.

Tuesday Is Last Blue Stamp Day

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP)—You won't be seeing that blue federal tax stamp on cigarette packages any more.

The manufacturers have won a battle. No more prepayment of excise taxes. Instead of having to buy the stamps every day they will pay the government only twice a month.

R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. had to buy more than 2 million dollars worth of stamps every day for its products. But Tuesday will be the last day it will have to send two men to pick up the stamps for cigarettes, smoking tobacco and chewing tobacco.

Instead of the stamps, Reynolds will use a closure of the same blue paper which will tell you: "federal stamps no longer required." But smokes still will cost the same.

Near-Mishap By Jet Airliner

NEW YORK (AP) — A British jet airliner with 45 persons abroad clipped the top of a steel barrier during a landing Sunday. No one was injured.

The barrier at the beginning of the 10,000-foot-long runway at Idlewild Airport is 10 feet tall, and is designed to prevent rubbish from being blown onto a highway by the prop wash of landing airplanes.

The nose wheel and landing flaps of the Comet IV jet were badly damaged.

Capt. John A. Kelly, the pilot, said he was making a routine landing when the plane suddenly dipped downward, apparently because of air turbulence.

Four Of Six Rapists Held Under $25,000 Bail Each

NEW YORK (AP)—Two of six Negro youths accused in the rape of a pretty, blonde eighth grader have been released in their parents' custody because they are underage.

The other four are being held on first degree rape charges.

The two younger boys, aged 14 and 15, are charged with juvenile delinquency. They will appear for a hearing Tuesday in Children's Court.

The four, aged 16 and 17, are held under $25,000 bail each at the Brooklyn Youth House. They will have a further court hearing Wednesday.

Police said one of the older boys threatened the 14-year-old white girl as she identified them in a police station. "I'll get you," he was quoted as saying.

The six are accused of attacking the girl as she walked home from school with several girl friends about 9 p.m. last Thursday, punching her in the eye, and dragging her in an alley near the schoolyard. There, police say, she was gagged and raped three times.

The girls were leaving a junior high school in the Corona section of Queens after a recreation program. The school is in a lower middle class neighborhood, divided about equally between whites and Negroes.

The friends of the attacked girl ran for help. Meanwhile she worked the gag free and screamed. The woman director of the recreation program, who is white, heard her screams and rushed into the schoolyard. When the youths saw her coming they fled. The girl was taken to a hospital.

The girl is 5 feet 6 and weighs 130 pounds. She is said to look about 16. In court Saturday, when the four older boys were arraigned, she wore dark glasses, concealing a bruise around her eye.

Because of their age, the two younger boys and the girl were not identified by authorities. The other four boys were identified as John Rich, Jacob Bethea and Henry Stokes, all 16, and Edward Jacobs, 17.

Police said Bethea was the ringleader, and the first to rape the girl. They also said he was the one who threatened her in the police station. Police claim he was the first to grab her, and the one who punched her.

Police said Stokes admitted holding her down while the others attacked her. Police said Rich and Bethea admitted raping the girl but Jacobs denied it.

Rich was employed as a messenger boy. The others were students at a Brooklyn automotive school.

Police said the youths had been high-spirited at the time of their arrest, and talked animatedly in jive talk to each other. They were quiet at the arraignment in felony court, standing only a few feet from the girl.

Four times the clerk read the complaints, charging each of the boys with taking part in the attack. Four times the girl was asked to swear the complaints were true. Four times she raised her right hand and answered "I do."

An attorney for one of the boys asked the court to set a reasonable bail, maintaining that the charges were merely accusations.

At this, Magistrate Milton Solomon exploded. "If this complaint is true, they should be held without bail," he said. "I thought the days of barbarism were over. This is an outrageous, unconscionable, dastardly crime." The $25,000 bail was about 10 times the usual bail set in rape cases.

Since the beginning of the year there have been at least five cases in New York in which Negroes have been involved in rape charges concerning white women. There have been arrests in two cases.

Last year, there were 1,115 rape cases reported in the city and 872 were solved. Police records don't specify the race involved.

There is no death penalty in New York for rape. Conviction can result in long prison terms.

Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, said of the case:

"We deplore crime anywhere, irrespective of the persons who perpetrate it or who is the victim. . . A crime is a crime, and it calls for equal punishment.

"The point we have tried to make is the comparison between punishment given to Negroes in the South and in other areas—it is not the same."

Asked about the recent conviction of four white youths in Florida for raping a Negro coed, Wilkins said:

"We did not ask for the death penalty in the Florida case. . . We simply asked that justice be done according to the evidence, and we ask that for crimes in New York or anywhere."

Term 'Cop' Said Unwanted Title

NEW YORK (AP) — A policeman's lot is not a happy one — and you don't make him any happier by calling him a cop.

So says FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, sometimes called the nation's top cop, or if you want to get him really riled, the head fed.

Hoover says calling a policeman a cop is like calling a doctor a quack or a writer a hack. His written views on the matter came up for debate on a television program Sunday.

One member of the four-man panel disagreed with Hoover. Former U. S. Sen. William Benton, now publisher of the Encyclopedia Britannica, said he likes the word cop. "I think it's vigorous, strong and tough—a good word," he said.

No so moderator Bergen Evans. He said cop is an underworld term, and said he wouldn't apply it to a policeman even in thinking about him.

Panelist Murice Dolbier of the New York Herald Tribune agreed the word is degrading.

Panelist John Mason Brown said "I would employ the word cop in dire need, but I would never say cop to a policeman's face."

Cats Are Dying, Rats Take Over

HUITZUCO, Mexico (AP)—Cats in this town are dying and the rats threaten to take over.

Residents attribute the numerous cat deaths to fumingations in an anti-malaria campaign.

The rats are multiplying fast and are invading fields, barns and homes.

As a result of the cat shortage, the price of kittens has gone up to 80 cents.

Rescued 3, One Burns To Death

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — A child burned to death Sunday while a babysitter rescued his brother and two sisters from the second floor bedroom of an apartment house.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Creed, both work nights.

Valerie Pool, the babysitter, rescued Kathy, 6, a polio victim who uses crutches, Gail, 5, and Ricky, 3. She said she thought Stephen, 3, was with the group.

The boy's body was found wedged between a wall and his bed, only a few feet from the back door of the house.

CHAPTER 29

Unexpectedly the lights in the room jumped on, their sudden brilliance blinding Mark Travers momentarily. "Here?" he asked incredulously, "Timgad is here already?" And then he saw the gun.

It was in Perrier's hand and it was aimed at him.

"I'm sorry," said Perrier, "but I warned you, Travers. If you remember, I warned you from the beginning. And nothing would have happened to you if you had followed my advice."

Mark could only stare at the man whom he had trusted implicitly. "Impossible."

"And may I ask why?"

"You? An Inspector of the Surete?"

"It can be a fascinating job if you know how to take advantage of it. As you see, it fits my needs admirably."

Still incredulous, Mark could think only of the events that had sent him on his search for Timgad. "Then it is you who are responsible for Philippe Langle's death."

"He was a very dangerous man. Too reasonable, too tolerant, too persuasive. I had to fear that he would manage to unite the different groups and find a solution to their problem. Only as long as France is split, as long as the various parties can be kept at cross-purposes, do we have a chance."

Mark felt himself shaking inside with rage. "And Corinne? She never talked to anyone?"

"That is correct." Perrier smiled. "It was you who betrayed her. Don't move," he added, as Mark made a step forward. "I rather liked her but, you see, she had the misfortune to come to the Select two nights ago to tell Louis Anet of some change in her plans.

"As it happened, she took a telephone call that was meant for Anet. But I was not sure how much she suspected until you very obligingly left a message that you were going to Monte Carlo to see her, because she seemed to have found out who Timgad was."

"That is why you could tell exactly how Anet killed her," said Mark. "He was carrying out your orders."

The blood began to hum in Mark's ears so strongly that, for a moment, he could not speak. Here, in the person of Perrier, stood the symbol of what he had fought ever since he had first seen totalitarian power at work.

"At least she did not suffer," said Perrier.

"You mean, unlike the people who were wounded by the bomb."

"The Arab who tried to make his way to us had long been suspected as a possible informer. He had to be dealt with. Fortunately I could stop the man following him from throwing the bomb in our direction."

"And Raffaeli?"

"What a methodical man you are. After you showed me the photograph, I realized that Corinne might have mentioned something to him. I had to find out. You see, he hates us and would do anything to quell the movement, as long as he doesn't get personally implicated. He is quite a coward.

"Since you trusted me, I could use you very well. I hoped you might encourage him to pass on information with which he would never have come out in the open for fear of getting involved. Unfortunately you got nothing out of him."

He sighed. "We didn't know anything about the colonel until we heard that he had tried to get into the morgue after it was closed, to see Corinne Javal once more."

So Perrier had not known that he had gone to Eze. Too sure of himself, he had failed to have Mark watched after their last meeting. Mark felt tempted to call Perrier's attention to the fact hat "Timgad" was not infallible.

Even though Baudon had been too shocked about Corinne's death, too drunk to remember to tell Mark about the Pension Select, Mark would never have gone to the Anemone had not the colonel mentioned the boat from which Corinne had dived. But Perrier did not notice Mark's surprise.

"When Baudon's room was searched," Perrier went on, "a note with your name and address was discovered. So I had to fear that Corinne had talked to him. I had to prevent you two from meeting. And we had our chance to do away with him at the Casino. Unfortunately not before he managed to . . . well, you know all that. But you will agree that his was a happy death. I was told he won. So he died seeing a dream come true, which is more than most of us are allowed."

Mark raised a fist and lowered it when he saw the gun move in the other's hand. "What a monster . . ."

Perrier shook his head. "You are being unjust. Only those who constitute a threat are not permitted to go on living. Take your case, for instance. I didn't mind your going around investigating people. I rather liked it, as long as I felt sure you discovered nothing. Some of your reports were of great interest to me.

"But when you didn't pay any attention to the note; when, even after you knew that Corinne Javal had been murdered because she knew too much, you would not give up — then you became a danger."

A sudden curiosity showed in his eyes. "Tell me, Travers, what made you go to the Anemone? Something Raffaeli said and you forgot to tell me? Or did you hear from Fleur Constant that Corinne had been diving from her brother's boat?"

Mark did not answer.

"Fleur Constant," Perrier went on. "We did not think that your connection with her might be dangerous. Knowing Constant's character, it was out of the question that you would succeed in setting foot on his boat so soon."

"And you would have had Anet kill her, too, if I had not over powered him?"

"Not necessarily," Perrier looked straight at him. "But if it had come to the worst — many young people are so much in love that they don't pay attention to the road at night. Drivingt hrough the mountains, a car can easily be carried out of a curve."

Mark had himself under control trol again. Keep him talking, he thought. The man is a megalomaniac. As long as I can keep him talking, I have a chance.

"And what kind of death have you in mind for me?"

"I have given the matter some thought," Perrier told him, in his sleepy, convsersational tone. "The best way, I think, is a little painless injection, then take you out in the boat you saw as you came up the steps, and throw your body into the sea. I'm glad to see you're not afraid."

The strange thing was that Perrier was right. Mark was not afraid.

"The people outside," said Mark, "the man who whistled, the other who told me you were inside, they are your men"

"Of course," said Perrier. "One is the fellow who poisoned the colonel's drink, the other is Anet."

"One day they will betray you."

"I won't give them the chance."

Mark found it hard to go on talking. "Then Anet didn't know you were Timgad when you interrogated him at the police station?"

Perrier shook his head. "He knew only that I was one of them. Didn't you notice what trouble I had getting him to say what I wanted him to say, so that you would come here? In the beginning he was quite confused. I thought he would never catch on."

"Until you started to whistle."

"You are very observant," said Perrier. "But now you must prepare to meet your Maker."

The story comes to an end here tomorrow. Don't miss the last chapter.

Last Survivor Of Civil War Is Again Ailing

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Walter Williams, last survivor of the Civil War, rested today in an oxygen tent, his condition unchanged in his bout with pneumonia.

"There's little or no change," Dr. Russell Wolfe said Sunday night.

"His temperature has dropped a little bit and his pulse is good," the doctor added. The 116-year-old veteran's temperature had risen to 101 during the day.

Missing from Williams' bedside was his small radio, which he usually kept tuned to a billbilly music station. His daughter, Willie Mae Bowles, said she removed it to give him more rest.

She said he appeared to have no trouble breathing although he suffered from congestion in his right lung. Williams took liquid nourishment in the form of a milk and egg drink.

Pay Damages In Aerial Collision

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Damages of nearly a half million dollars have been awarded for the deaths of three automobile executives in the collision of two airliners over the Grand Canyon in 1956.

A federal court jury fixed the amounts Saturday, awarding $142,200 to the estate of Carl J. Snyder, a Chrysler Corp. vice president: $147,300 to the widow of Donald F. Kehl, and $160,500 to the widow of Theodore M. Kubiniec.

Kehl and Kubiniec were attorneys for Ford Motor Co.

The same jury ruled two weeks earlier that the co-defendants, United Air Lines and Trans-World Airlines, were guilty of negligence in the collision that took 128 lives.

Song, History Are Re-Written

VANCOUVER, B. C. (AP)—"Cunnel Jackson, suh! they's re-writing history up Nawth again!"

And successfully, too. Because if you think the American rebels won the 1815 battle of New Orleans, you have another think coming—the Canadians won it.

Country singer Johnny Horton dug up the all-but forgotten battle between the rebels and the British Redcoats, grabbed his guitar and warbled himself to riches by recording "The Battle of New Orleans."

The record has sold more than a million copies but when it reached Canada—a member of the British Commonwealth — well suh, the Redcoats saw red.

Canadian record distributors were swamped by mail protesting the British didn't lose the battle as Horton sings.

One of the protests came from Tom Pakenham, 52, of Vancouver, the great-grand-nephew of Colonel Pakenham, who led the British during the battle.

The letters blasted Horton for "mutilating history" by singing how the "Bloody British:"

Ran through the briars, and
They ran through the
Brambles and they ran
Through the bushes
Where a rabbit wouldn't go.

"Tain't so," say the Canadians. The British didn't lose the battle.

It was just a strategic surrender.

So Horton recorded a new version of the tune, designed to placate the angry Canadian cousins of the British Redcoats.

Now Horton sings, for Canadian consumption, how the British troops stormed up the Mississippi and routed the "Blooming rebels," instead of the other way around.

Asthma Formula Prescribed Most By Doctors—Available Now Without Prescription

Stops Attacks in Minutes . . . Relief Lasts for Hours!

New York, N.Y. (Special)—The asthma formula prescribed more than any other by doctors for their private patients is now available to asthma sufferers without prescription.

Medical tests proved this formula stops asthma attacks in minutes and gives hours of freedom from recurrence of painful asthma spasms.

This formula is so effective that it is the physicians' leading asthma prescription—so safe that now it can be sold—without prescription—in tiny tablets called Primatene®.

Primatene opens bronchial tubes, loosens mucous congestion, relieves taut nervous tension. All this without taking painful injections.

The secret is—Primatene combines 3 medicines (in full prescription strength) found most effective in combination for asthma distress. Each performs a special purpose.

So look forward to sleep at night and freedom from asthma spasms . . . get Primatene, at any drugstore. Only 98¢—money-back-guarantee.

Steel Negotiators Confront Strike Deadline In 10 Days

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Steel negotiators have 10 days left to reach a peaceful settlement on a new labor contract. There is little to spark hope that differences will be settled by the June 30 deadline.

Stripped of the fanfare and window dressing the negotiations once more have become a test of economic strength.

The steel industry has given many indications it believes it can outlast the United Steelworkers Union in a strike. Executives feel they can avoid some of the pressures that forced them to settle in other years.

UAW President David J. McDonald shows no sign of relenting in his quest for a substantial wage increase and other economic USW President David J. McDonald shows no sign of relenting in his quest for a substantial wage increase and other economic gains. Workers now earn an average of $3.03 an hour.

The steel industry appears adamant in its stand that this is the year to halt a wage-price spiral that began in 1937. Since then steelworkers have received 14 wage increases. Prices have been boosted 12 times.

For the first time in the history of the USW-steel industry negotiations, company executives show no reluctance about saying they expect a strike. They have been preparing openly for one for months.

Steel officials announced their proposal for a one-year freeze on wages even before negotiations opened in New York last May. Since then they have said repeatedly they will concede nothing that will increase net labor costs.

In many ways the industry has taken the offensive in the 1959 contract talks. It has made its position known to the public as quickly as it informed the union. It has openly sought public support.

Customers have been alerted to the possibility of a strike and the industry has been operating at near capacity for months trying to build up customer inventories. It's hard to guess how successful this has been, because steel consumption also has been booming.

The companies insist any increase in labor costs would have to be met with higher steel prices. Twice since 1956 steel executives have been called to Washington to explain price increases to congressional groups. They don't want to go again.

In 1956 when the present contract was signed after a 43-day steel strike both customer and government pressure weighed heavily on industry officials.

Reserve steel stocks should reduce customer pressure—at least for a time.

President Eisenhower and other government officials are on record as opposing any settlement that would necessitate a price increase. Steel executives feel this puts the government in their corner.

The tough attitude of the steel companies has not caught McDonald by surprise. He told union members at the USW convention last year they faced a knock down, drag-out fight if they want to improve the contract.

McDonald repeatedly has referred to the steel firms' attitude as the opening effort of big industry to weaken the American labor movement. Such talk has aroused more than normal interest among other union leaders, makes them more likely than ever to lend moral and money support to the steel union. Support has been promised the USW by John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers, Walter Reuther's United Auto Workers and James R. Hoffa's Teamsters.

Despite some evidence of friction within the USW, there is no doubt that membership response will be 100 per cent if McDonald signals for a strike at midnight June 30.

If the industry stands pat on its proposal the only escape from a strike would be for McDonald to make some concessions to permit the steel companies to effect savings and put the money in workers' pay envelopes. This would be a reversal of McDonald's past practices.

As of now the negotiations appear to be on dead center with each side waiting for the other to make a new move. That is the way long strikes develop.

Frolic Outshines Sober Druid Salute To Summer

AMESBURY, England (AP) — Frolicking teen-agers and college students outdid the Ancient Order of Druids today in welcoming summer at Britain's historic Stonehenge.

Some 2,000 boys and girls, fortified by whisky, gin and beer, staged a pagan revel around the great stone slabs in southeast England believed to have been raised by sun worshippers about 1,500 B. C.

White - robed, solemn - faced Druids — members of a fraternal order — annually greet the sunrise at Stonehenge on June 22, the start of summer. This year the young folks came hours earlier and got a head start.

A glowing full moon rose over the downs while hot and fast Dixieland music provided an obligato to the dancing, shouting and laughing students.

Silhoueted in the moonlight, a pretty blonde whipped off her blouse and bra. Bare from the waist up, she danced a happy jive amid sprawling young people many entwined in embraces.

At 4 a. m. 14 Druids arrived in the midst of the revel.

At the head of their column was a tall sheeted man carrying a sword. Behind him a lady Druid held aloft a banner. Bringing up the rear was the chief Druid, holding a shepherd's crooked staff.

Flanked by policemen, they marched around the circle of 16-foot high stones. Hundreds of youths flocked along.

"If you think you are going to see a circus," boomed the chief Druid, "you are wrong."

"This is a serious, solemn ceremony which you would understand if you had the intelligence to understand."

A boy with black hair stood up and flapped his arms, yelling, "Omo washes whiter," the slogan of a well-known British detergent.

"I ask for reverence," pleaded the chief Druid, "if you've got any reverence in you."

Empty bottles littered the place. About 25 youths lay motionless on the ground, sound asleep.

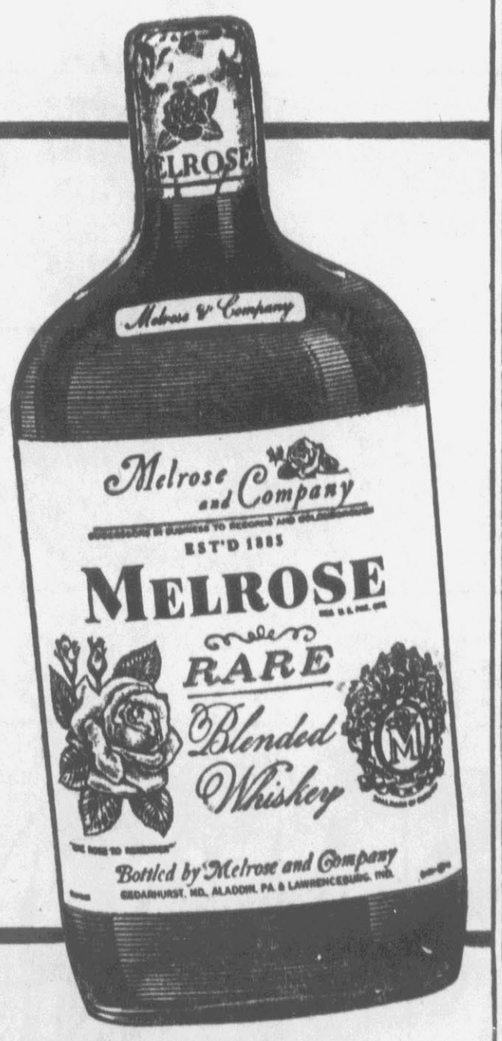

By this time, heavy clouds had drifted across the dawn sky and the Druids and everyone else were robbed of the opportunity of seeing the sun rise over Stonehenge's great Heel Stone.

It had been a hectic night, but no arrests were reported. Finally most of the teen-agers and Druids drifted off toward Amesbury, some three miles to the east, for breakfast.

Calmly Scalded Baby To Death

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—A youth told police Sunday he placed his 18-month-old stepson in a tub of scalding water and calmly washed a sinkful of dishes while listening to the child's screams.

Tony Ray East died Saturday of second and third degree burns which covered most of his body.

Police charged the stepfather, Leroy Joseph Rideaux, 19, with murder.

The Negro youth told Medical Investigator A. A. Martindale the incident occurred last Tuesday when he returned home from work. He became angry, he said, when he tried to feed the child grits and the child spat them out.

Girl Babies Have June 15 Habit

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The girl babies in Mrs. Don C. Bradley's family always arrive on June 15.

Mrs. Bradley's mother was born on that day, so was her aunt.

Matter of fact, so was she.

And so was her daughter, Kandyce Larae, born a week ago today.

Scouts Complete Long Canoe Trip

CHARLOTTE (AP)— Four Explorer Boy Scouts are resting today following a 16-day, 300-mile upstream canoe trip from Charleston, S.C., to Charlotte.

The group, led by 21-year-old Bobby Pittman, arrived here Sunday. Also on the journey were Dewey Smith, Bill Crenshaw and Fred Buchan.

The group's sentiments were summed up by Buchan, who said: "It was a worthwhile trip. I would advise every young man to do something like it."

Teacher-Training Report Will Be Given Meeting

East Carolina College has accepted an invitation to present a report on its undergraduate program of teacher education at a national conference to be held June 23-26 at the University of Kansas in Lawrence under the sponsorship of the National Commission on Teacher Education and Professional Standards and the Kansas Conference Steering Committee.

East Carolina is one of thirty colleges and universities throughout the nation chosen to participate in the conference because of their outstanding programs in the training of teachers.

The purpose of the conference is to bring together some 900 professional educators, representatives of the academic disciplines in colleges, and elementary and secondary-school teachers and administrators to discuss through a partnership approach the improvement of teacher education. The conference theme is "The Education of Teachers: Curriculum Programs."

Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, dean of instruction and vice president, and Dr. Ed. J. Carter, director of the department of education, will represent East Carolina College at the conference.

Appearing as speakers at the Kansas meeting, they will present an analysis of the teacher-education program at East Carolina College. Their report will be distributed in written form to discussion groups at the conference, which will have the aim of determining the essentials of an ideal program for the training of teachers.

The materials presented by Dr. Jenkins and Dr. Carter will deal with such aspects of the East Carolina College program as policies relating to admission of students to the teacher-education program; component elements of the elementary and secondary teacher preparation programs; and courses offered teachers and prospective teachers in general education, professional education, and the field of specialization.

Turkey's population is about 19 million.

Two Lynched By Mexican Mob

JALAPA, Mexico (AP)—Authorities pressed an investigation today into the lynching of two men, one of whom may have been falsely accused of raping and killing a 3-year-old girl.

Julian Benitez, 26, and Francisco Cotla, 28, were torn from their jail cells in Isla Saturday, dragged to the village square and kicked, stoned and beaten to death by a mob of some 4,000 persons.

A member of the state attorney general's staff in Veracruz said one of the victims may have been innocent.

Benitez and Cotla were locked up after two women claimed they had seen them with the child.

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR CAROLINA

Through Saturday, temperatures will average from normal to three degrees above normal. Only minor day to day temperature changes expected. Rainfall may total three-fourths inch, occurring in scattered thunderstorms Tuesday through Saturday.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—Steels and aluminums were in demand as the stock market made a moderate advance in fairly active trading early this afternoon.

Pivotal issues were up from fractions to a point or so. The market was generally higher at the start, widened its gains, then eased below its best level.

Turnover dwindled to a very slow pace after the initial drive stalled.

U.S. Steel reached a new yearly high of 100⅛ then lost its fractional gain and traded about unchanged. Lukens halved a gain of about 2. Jones & Laughlin held 1-point rise. Bethlehem and Republic Steel were up fractions.

Reynolds Metals shaved a fraction from an advance of about 2. Aluminium Ltd. and Alcoa remained ahead about a point each.

Texaco continued to trade at a premium over Superior Oil of California which added about 50 points to its high price. The proposed acquisition of Superior by Texaco is on an exchange ration of 24-for-1.

Thiokol erased an early gain of about a point and good a fractional net loss. Texas Instrument held a 4-point gain.

Du Pont rose more than 2. Allied Chemical was up about a point. Union Carbide and American Cyanamid also were up about a point each.

Eastman Kodak and Merck dropped more than a point each.

U.S. government bonds were firm.

METHODIST DELEGATES—E. Hoover Taft, lay member, the Rev. W. M. Howard, the Rev. J. Malloy Owen and Bill Watson, lay member, are representing Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church and St. James Methodist Church at the annual conference meeting of the Methodist Church today through Thursday in Grace Methodist Church, Wilmington.

Local Pastors May Not Return

Two Greenville ministers have been advised by officials of the North Carolina Conference of the Methodist Church that there are possibilities they will not be returned to the churches each has served for the past six years.

The ministers are the Rev. W. M. Howard, Jr., of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, and the Rev. J. Mailoy Owen, III, of St. James Methodist Church. Both are attending the 124th annual meeting of the conference, which opened today in Wilmington.

The Rev. Mr. Howard announced to his congregation yesterday that he had been advised of the possibility that he will not be returned to Greenville. The Rev. Mr. Owen made a similar announcement to the St. James congregation some time ago.

Pastorial assignments for the coming year will be announced at the conference's concluding session Thursday. The assignments will be read by Bishop Paul N. Garber of Richmond, Va.

Colored News

A special meeting will be held tonight at 8 o'clock at York Memorial AME Zion Church. Business of importance will come up for consideration. Rev. W. C. Sapp is pastor.

The Meadowbrook Mothers Club will meet Wednesday night at 7:30 at the home of Mrs. Lucy Richardson, 410-W Moore St. Plans will be made for observing an anniversary, and all members are expected to attend.

Card of Thanks

Members of the family of Mrs. Louise Hyman Langley wish to express their many thanks and heartfelt appreciation for the cards, flowers and the expressions of sympathy sent by friends at the time of the death of our mother. The Short and Langley Families

Cars Collided At Intersection

About $700 damage resulted yesterday when two cars collided at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Dickinson Ave. at West End Circle at 2:30 p.m.

Police listed the drivers of the cars as E. L. Bryant, 40-year-old Negro of Winterville, and Miss Nan Taylor Meeks, 19, of 405 North Main St., Farmville.

No injuries were reported in the accident. amage to the Meeks car was listed as $400, while officers set damage to the Bryant vehicle at $300.

Investigators charged Miss Meeks with failure to yield the right of way.

'Dry Run' For Alerted Police

Greenville officers received a call from an unknown party Saturday night who reported a man was going to jump from the top of the State Bank Building at 12:00 midnight.

Officers immediately went to the building to check on the report.

At 11:50 officers reported the top door was hooked from the inside, however they checked the roof. No man, or woman for the matter, could be found.

Police, who waited at the scene until midnight, reported no one showed up to take the long dive.

KILLED IN STAMPEDE

TOLUCA, Mexico (AP) — Four persons were killed in a stampede to get out of a movie theater Sunday night after its roof was ripped off during a violent wind storm. About 20 persons were injured seriously in the panic.

The first visit of a member of Britain's royal family to Canada was in 1860 when the then Prince of Wales arrived at Montreal. Later he became King Edward VII.

Fishing Fleet Hard Hit By Bad Storm

ESCUMINAC, N.B. (AP) — At least 34 fishermen were dead or missing today as searching planes scoured the Northumberland Strait for survivors of the weekend storm that battered the Gulf of St. Lawrence fishing fleet.

Thirteen men were known dead and 21 were listed as missing.

The Royal Canadian Air Force reported 22 derelict boats were spotted by search planes Sunday along the 30-mile coastline between Point Escuminac and Richibucto. There were no signs of life.

The storm, described as the worst in 30 years, caught at least 50 salmon boats as it lashed the strait between New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island. The fleet was out in force to meet the heaviest salmon run in 10 years.

Two survivors were kept alive by an air bubble in the cabin of their overturned boat. Hilaire Gauvin, 25, and Germain Chaisson, 55, both of Lameque, were trapped in the cabin when their boat capsized. Another wave righted the vessel. Gauvin's uncle, Capt. Charles Gauvin, 53, was washed overboard.

Fishermen accused the weather bureau of failing to warn them of the approaching storm.

The Halifax Weather Bureau said gale warnings went out Friday night, but the fleet was out by then.

The storm did hundreds of thousands of dollars to boats, nets and lobster pots, dealing a heavy blow to the local fishing industry.

Local Guardsman On Strike Duty

Warrant Officer Mayo E. Allen, administrative and supply technician for one of Greenville's two National Guard units, has been ordered to duty with North Carolina National Guardsmen assigned to Henderson.

Allen, who returned yesterday from two weeks of summer training, left today for Henderson where he will join a force of National Guardsmen on duty at two strike-bound cotton mills.

Allen is a full-time National Guardsman with Battery A, Fourth Howitzer Battalion, 113th Artillery.

Several Arrests On Booze Counts

Pitt ABC officers arrested two Pinetops men near Fountain over the weekend on charges of possession of non-tax-paid whiskey for the purpose of sale.

According to Chief ABC officer J. M. Ward the two Negro men, Fred Gardner, 32, and Kenneth Smith, Jr., 24, were arrested when officers found a half-gallon of illegal spirits in a trap in the floor of a night-spot the men were operating.

It was pointed out that the drive-in, located one mile north of Fountain, had been re-opened recently after being padlocked by officers several weeks ago on other charges.

The two men were placed in Fountain jail under $200 bond for appearance in County Court here July 7.

Constable Leroy Owens assisted ABC officers Ward, H. B. Lilley, and Walter Taylor in the arrest.

ABC officers also assisted the Pitt County Sheriff's Department in arresting five Negros on varied charges Saturday night in Pactolus.

Officers raided the Pactolus Inn and arrested Clifton Ray Hardy, 19, of Route 5, Greenville, and John Henry Flemming, 24, of Pactolus, on charges of possession of non-tax-paid whiskey and home brew for the purpose of sale.

Also arrested at the Inn were John Hyman, 52, David Moore, 46, and Jimmy Williams, 28, all of Route 5, Greenville. Hyman and Moore were charged with public drunkenness, while Williams was charged with disorderly conduct.

Hardy and Flemming were released under $200 bond and the other three men were released under $50 bonds for appearance in County Court here July 7.

Summer Is Here, And It's Warm

The 1959 Summer Season for Pitt County moved in last night, making not even a tiny effort to conceal its arrival.

The season's official debut at 10:50 last night was forecast yesterday by an unofficial high of 94 degrees in Greenville and uncomfortably warm weather throughout the night. The first 12 hours of Summer's first full day — today — saw the temperature climb 24 degrees over last night's unofficial low of 72.

According to personnel of the Greenville Utilities Commission's weather station on Tar River, today's noon reading was 96 degrees —highest of the year. The temperature hovered around 72 between midnight and 4 a.m. and climbed up to 82 at 8 a.m.

Yesterday's high readings meant a definite end to the cool spell which had moved in a week ago and held temperatures down all of last week. The increased temperatures also held a slight chance of afternoon thundershowers, first in this area since the cool weather swept across North Carolina.

Tar River was reported fluctuating between 2.8 feet and 3.9 feet during the weekend, with an average level of about 3.5 feet. Personnel at the Utilities Commission weather station pointed out that levels of the river are affected by tides and winds coming off lower portions of the river in Beaufort County.

The full name of Madame de Pompadour, who really ruled France through King Louis XV for 20 years, was Jeanne Antoinette Poisson de Normant d'Etioles.

Queen's Attention Goes To Workmen And Wives

CHICOUTIMI, Que. (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II is beginning to talk with workmen, housewives and other people not on the official reception lists for her tour of Canada.

She and Prince Philip are moving through the fast-growing industrial region of Saguenay, northwest of Quebec City, heading for a meeting with President Eisenhower and the official opening of the St. Lawrence Seaway Friday.

They are visiting aluminum paper mills and hydroelectric power plants today. They have already taken a close look at other evidences of Canada's rapid industrial development including a spectacular open-cut iron mine on the remote edge of Labrador.

Standing on the floor of that mine amid swirling clouds of red dust and fierce heat, Elizabeth asked to speak with six members of a pit crew. Brawny miners and truck drivers, their faces caked with dust and sweat and holding hard hats under their arms, chatted with her and Philip, answering questions.

Ignoring her time schedule, she remained on the floor of the mine 250 feet below ground level well after the party was due to depart.

Dust powdered her chestnut hair where it curled out from under her small hat. Her white cheeks turned the color of television makeup. Finally she held out a white-gloved hand. The miners glanced at each other shyly. They rubbed their hands on their coveralls and shook her hand.

The Queen and Philip have now seen some of the wildest and most beautiful country in the world.

Flying north across Labrador, they passed over terrain that still shows marks of the Ice Age. Flat and forbidding, it looks as though the glaciers departed only last week. Retreating ice gouged out innumerable craters now filled with water. They range from pools to lakes hundreds of feet deep.

The couple met Montagnais and other Indians wearing native costumes blazing with red, blue and green. Some faces were obviously of Eskimo origin.

During the weekend the royal party boarded the yacht Britannia and sailed across the mouth of the silvery blue St. Lawrence to Gaspe, famed resort area of Quebec.

Attended 4-H Camp Held At Swansboro

Thirty-two Pitt County Negro members of 4-H clubs, three leaders and one county agricultural agent attended the State 4-H Camp at Swansboro last week.

While in camp the young people had opportunity to participate in such recreational activities as swimming, softball, baseball, races, games and volleyball.

Educational activities included discussions of safety, wildlife, arts and crafts, and the Pitt county 4-H'ers had fellowship with members from five other eastern counties.

Pitt county girls in camp were: Frances Boyd, Peggy Hardy, Annie Hall, Charlotte Carney, Mary Helen Monk, Vernon Hawkins, Aubrey Murrill, Gloria Monk, Erma Vines, Phyliss Daniel, Lillie Robbins, Brenda Gatlin, Susie Moore, Amy Mills, Elise Brooks and Adria Groves.

Pitt County boys at camp: Kenneth Bryant, Tyron Hopkins, Wilbur Wooten, Fred L. Midgett, Marion P. Gatlin, Rudolph Tyson, A. T. Mills, Jr., Fonnie Moore, Jr., Raymond Carney, James Hooks and Clifton Battle.

Junior leaders from Pitt County: Louise Langley, Thelma Suggs and Margie Gay.

Senior teacher with the camping group was Miss Christine Gardner.

Pitt County Negro Assistant Agricultural Agent W. G. Barnes, supervised the group while in camp.

Amy Mills of the Winterville 4-H Club was named "camper of the week."

Pitt County Negro Agricultural Agent J. M. Goode said "the camping trip to Swansboro was a success in every way."

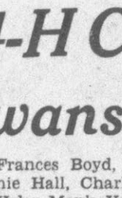

Murrell Attends Annual Institute

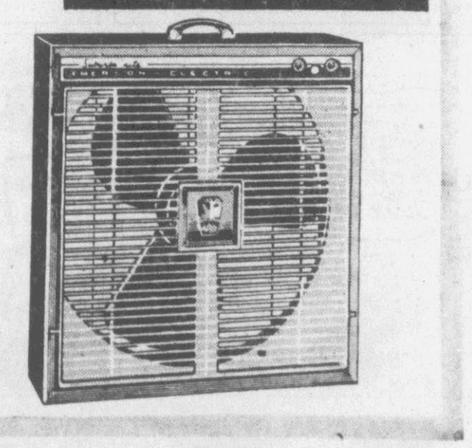

A. E. Murrell of Greenville is one of 53 teachers from throughout the United States who are attending the fourth annual Chemistry-Physics Teachers Institute which opened today at The American University in Washington, D. C.

Murrell is a science teacher at C. M. Eppes High School and a resident of 401 Nash St. The institute he is attending will continue through August 14 and is sponsored by a $65,900 grant from the National Science Foundation.

As a participant in the institute, Murrell will receive a $600 study grant, plus $120 for each dependent and a travel allowance. His study will be within a range of research projects to be conducted in laboratories of the National Institutes of Health, National Bureau of Standards, U. S. Weather Bureau and Harris Research Laboratory.

Miami, Fla., was explored in 1567, but little effort was made for a permanent settlement until 1836.
