Slashed Housing Bill Confronted By Possible Veto

Senators Hail Herter Report On Geneva Stand, Pledge Support Berlin Policies

WASHINGTON (AP) — A catchall $1,375,000,000 housing bill faced today the possibility of a veto it was tailored to avoid.

A cut-down compromise of larger Senate and House bills, it was trimmed to a two-year program in an avowed effort to make it veto-proof.

With 10 days to decide, President Eisenhower was keeping his own counsel about disposing of it, but Congressional Republicans expected a veto. Both Budget Director Maurice H. Stans and Housing Administrator Norman P. Mason have indicated they would recommend rejection.

The bill was sent to the President Tuesday by a 241-177 House vote. The margin of passage was nearly 40 votes short of the two-thirds vote necessary to override a veto. The 56-31 vote by which the Senate passed it Monday also fell short of a two-thirds margin.

A veto now, with Congress talking of adjournment in August, would probably mean another housing bill ending in adoption of about what Republicans proposed when Congress convened Jan. 7.

This would renew the Federal Housing Administration's mortgage insurance authority, now almost exhausted; extend the college dormitory loan program; and continue on a limited basis the urban renewal and slum elimination program.

Some members feel this would be about the best Congress could expect to get if the President uses his veto power.

Although less in dollar amounts than the administration program, the bill nonetheless clearly exceeds spending rates proposed by Eisenhower.

The compromise provides for a two-year urban renewal program totaling only 900 million dollars, for example, against a six-year $1,350,000,000 program asked by Eisenhower.

Spending for the two years, however, would be at the rate of 500 million the first year and 400 million the second, while Eisenhower's top recommendation for any one year was 250 million.

The completed bill cut down new public housing units from 140,000 to 45,000, but also activated 145,000 more at the discretion of the President. Republicans figured the cost of the 45,000 new public housing units, not figured in the bill, at an additional 875 million.

"This is known as saving money by spending it faster," charged House GOP leader Charles A. Halleck of Indiana. "A few more gimmicks like this by the spend-hungry will save us into bankruptcy."

But Rep. Albert Rains (D-La.), Democratic housing leader, contended the final measure could no longer be called a budget buster.

"It will have less than 68 million dollars of impact on President Eisenhower's 1960 budget next year," he said. "This is less than one-tenth of one per cent of the budget."

The Senate originally passed a six-year, $2,675,000,000 authorization measure which the House cut to three years and $2,100,000,000. These compared with the $1,650,000,000 suggested by the President for a six-year program.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate leaders of both parties pledged support today to Secretary of State Christian A. Herter in his Berlin policies.

Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas told the Senate that the country is behind Herter in his firm stand against sacrificing the freedom of the people of West Berlin in any agreement with the Russians.

Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois said he was "ever so proud of our secretary of state as I was last night" when Herter reported to the nation on the Geneva conference.

"He demonstrated forcefully that he deserves his spurs," Dirksen said.

Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, assistant Democratic leader, said the statements of Johnson and Dirksen "once again indicated to the world that Congress, regardless of party, is behind Secretary Herter."

Sen. George D. Aiken (R-Vt.), a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said Congress will back Herter to the hilt when negotiations are resumed at Geneva.

Herter's stand drew similar expressions of support from House members.

U. S. diplomats hoped the evidence of solid congressional backing in both parties would help impress in Communist minds the need for a change in Moscow's policy if there is ever to be a peaceful solution to the German crisis.

Herter spoke "grimly Tuesday night in reporting to the American people on the six weeks of deadlock at the Geneva foreign ministers conference on Germany. The negotiations recessed last Saturday until July 13.

In a 15-minute radio-TV speech, the American foreign affairs chief called on the Soviets to abandon their drive "to add more than two million free West Berliners to the captive peoples of Eastern Europe."

"This is the critical question," he said. "If the Soviets do not hold to this annexationist design, we should be able to reach agreements on Berlin consistent with the honor and interest of all our countries."

The Reds touched off the crisis by demanding an end to the post-war Allied occupation of West Berlin. Britain, France and the United States refused to pull out of the Communist-encircled city without an arrangement for its freedom. The Soviets rejected all Western offers.

Herter linked West Berlin's freedom to America's own. "When their freedom is diminished, our freedom is inevitably diminished," he said.

He pictured Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko as uttering threats and "Communist upside-down talk," aided by the "baneful influence" of speechmaking by Premier Nikita Khrushchev in Moscow and elsewhere while the foreign ministers sat at Geneva.

He won widespread backing from congressmen.

The assistant Democratic leader of the Senate, Mike Mansfield of Montana, voiced hope that Congress similarly supported Herter's stand, and many praised his performance at Geneva.

Herter said "some degree of progress" must be made at Geneva in order to warrant a meeting of heads of state afterwards. "Regrettably," he said, "no such progress has as yet been registered at Geneva."

On the plus side he reported the negotiations had:

1. Produced worldwide approval of the Western powers' plan for solving the Berlin problem, and the problem of a divided Germany, through a peaceful reunification of Germany with Berlin to be the capital.

2. Demonstrated a high degree of unity among the Allies.

3. Disclosed possible means of specific agreement with the Communists on Berlin.

"I believe that it may be possible to build on these areas of agreement if the Soviet Union is prepared to accept the continued existence of a free West Berlin under Western protection," he said.

"The path to a just peace will be long and difficult," he added. "We will continue with the patience and understanding and firmness needed to travel that path so long as it remains open."

Tear Gas Clears Way For Quelling Hospital Rioters

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — Sixteen hours of rioting in the federal prison system's big medical center here left a backwash of tin cans marked, "Masks, Gas M-9."

"That gas sure did the trick," said Leonard Appleby, 55.

For 19 years Appleby has been a guard at the big U. S. prison hospital, where 60 per cent of the 1,000 prisoners are insane criminals.

Monday night at 9:55 o'clock, Appleby was sitting in a small office censoring the prisoners' mail.

"Earl Taylor (a prisoner) charged in with a knife in his hand," Appleby said. "Before I could realize what was up he had that knife under my throat."

"You make one move and I'll kill you right here," Taylor said. "Be quiet."

In the next few minutes, Taylor and 105 other prisoners in the "10 North" section of the hospital took Appleby and four other guards as hostages.

"All was pretty quiet," Appleby said. "The inmates took open of tin cans and medical chests and loaded up on tranquilizers and phenol barbitol—that is, about all except the leaders. They did not settle down."

The riot leaders were identified as Taylor, 31, serving 9 years for violating the federal firearms act; George D. Clyde, 44, for assault, escape and theft; Carl Roberts, 19, serving 4½ years for car theft; and Bryan D. Reed, 24, a military prisoner serving life for murder.

Had Better Hurry Remediating Law

Refusal of the Federal Communications Commission to alter its "equal time" declaration as it applies to television newscasts concerning political candidates points to the necessity of altering the law under which the FCC made its ruling.

Unless the ruling is changed—either by the FCC or by Congress—it will virtually eliminate any mention of political candidates of campaigns in regular news programs. It deprives television stations from making their own free choice of what news should be broadcast, and puts the FCC in a position of dictating news policies to every television station in the nation.

Such a situation should not more be tolerated by the American people than the establishment of a federal agency which would tell newspapers what news they can and cannot print.

The Justice Department in a brief filed with the FCC requested that the agency repeal its previous ruling and take a more common sense approach to the matter of newscasts. The FCC retorted that it was merely following the law in its ruling that even on news programs every candidate for public office had to be given time equal to that given every other.

In view of the position taken by the FCC, Congress should quickly enact legislation which will exempt news programs from the "equal time" provision that applies to political candidates. Certainly the matter must be cleared up before next year when political campaigns will be carried on for local, state and national officers in every part of the nation.

As an important information medium in a free nation where freedom of the press is specifically guaranteed, legitimate television newscasts should not be fettered by such unreasonable rulings of the FCC as the one now in question.

The ruling of equal time for candidates which applies to other phases of telecasts certainly cannot be reasonably applied to regular news programs. To impose such restrictions on news programs is to deny the freedom of the press which traditionally has applied the spoken as well as the printed word.

Hodges' Trip Could Have Political Value

On his trip to Russia Gov. Hodges says he is taking along travel folders of North Carolina, that he will discuss American tobacco with Kremlin officials and look into other matters which might help the promotion of the Tar Heel State.

Promotion-minded as he is about North Carolina, we have no doubt that Gov. Hodges will try to sell even the Russian commissars on the merits of Tar Heel and what it has to offer.

But for all our confidence in Gov. Hodges' ability to promote and sell the state to "outsiders", we have the distinct impression that this jaunt to Moscow has more national political overtones than it does economic development potential for our state.

Prominently and often mentioned as a possible vice presidential candidate for the Democratic ticket next year, Gov. Hodges trip to Russia this summer certainly could do no harm to his qualifications for the number-two place on the party ticket in 1960.

Over the years, Gov. Hodges has been a fairly frequent visitor to Europe. Last year to Communist Yugoslavia, and this summer he spends three weeks in Russia itself.

In recent years it has apparently become a custom for hopefuls for national office to visit key nations about the globe to familiarize themselves first hand with international situations. Remember how Adlai Stevenson spent a considerable time between 1952 and 1956 in world travel, conferring with officials of other nations? And of course most people recall Vice President Nixon's foreign trips in recent years as well as his forthcoming trip to Moscow this summer.

Along with the eight other governors on this current jaunt to Russia, Gov. Hodges' immediate purpose will be the promotion of understanding between the U. S. and the USSR.

In the future, the trip might also be used in helping to promote Luther H. Hodges of North Carolina as a candidate for vice president on the Democratic ticket.

More Criticize Senator Johnson

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — Time was when Sen. Lyndon Johnson never got his hair mussed. Now criticism is piling up on the Texan who has been mentioned as a Democratic presidential possibility in 1960.

But Johnson, a pretty cool, hardworking customer, will probably play mum to most of the attacks. He plays it that way. There are two main complaints against him:

1. From inside — that he runs the Senate with too much of a daddy-knows-best leadership and doesn't consult enough with his fellow Democrats who overwhelmingly outnumber the Republicans.

2. From outside — that Johnson, despite his big Democratic majority, is letting President Eisenhower buffalo him into needless, conservative compromises and watering down of legislation to avoid a threatened presidential veto. Some of that opinion also was expressed on the Senate floor Monday.

The political reality, however, is this: The 31-year old Texan is a natural born compromiser and through that kind has been able to get a lot of work done. He himself is a conservative as are most Democrats and Republicans. Only a handful in both parties in Congress can be called front-line liberals.

Johnson's magic spell over the Senate — where the members followed him as if enchanted — was broken earlier this year. A comparative newcomer, Sen. William Fulbright, Wisconsin Democrat, took off on his brand of leadership with the complaint that Johnson's was too much of a one-man show and he didn't consult enough.

Sen. Pat McNamara, Michigan Democrat, followed up with criticism of the way Johnson acted, or failed to act, on the jobless pay bill. It didn't go far enough for McNamara. Then Sen. Wayne Morse, Oregon Democrat, cut loose.

He didn't name Johnson directly, but he scorched the "Democratic leadership on Capitol Hill" and asked whether both political parties were in the grip of "old, tired, sick and reactionary men."

If Johnson felt wounded, he nursed the bleeding spots quietly for a few weeks. Then, one day when Proxmire was talking again, Johnson took a crack at him without naming him. "It does not take much courage, I may say, to make the leadership a punching bag." But then Johnson got it from the outside.

A week ago the Democratic National Committee's Advisory Council — made up of many top Democrats but not Johnson or his Texas counterpart in the House, Speaker Sam Rayburn — issued a statement of many pages, although not naming Johnson directly.

The council looked back to the 1953 elections when the Democrats wound up outnumbering

The West Is So Unreasonable

Baby Contest Of 1929

What happened to the good, old-fashioned baby contests? Surely the mothers of the pump, gurgling babies of today think that their little darlings are the cutest.

Thirty years ago people were interested in showing off their babies. The June 18, 1929, edition of the Daily Reflector carried the headline, "Kings Daughters Plan to Launch Big Baby Contest."

An interesting note is that many of the angelic faces that were pictured at Hill Home's Drug Store for the contest can still be seen about town. Some of the little darlings aren't so little any more. Some that had only baby fuzz now sport large crops of hair; while others, well, anyway, they had hair then, Robert Hogan Gaskins, Jr., was leading the babies of Greenville with 976 votes on the last day of the contest. Herbert White Lee was running second with 564 votes.

Some of the other beautiful babies in the contest were Sammie White, Ed Williams Jr., Knott Fructer, Jr., Virginia Gaylord, Herbert Waldrop, Jr., James Lanier, C. B. West, III, Moulton D. Massey, Dicky Worley, Bettie Tyson, Fay Duval, Billie Horne, William Henry White, Jr., Evelyn Glenn, Ann Dardee, Joy Flanagan, Rosamond Nicholson, Peggy Rose Smith, Jean Hilton, Nancy Arthur Poindexter, Christine Beaty, Lillian Renfrew, Eloise Tucker, Arline Caswell, Francis Jordan, Jimmie Turner, and Billie Turner.

Only three of the top ten were girls. It should be mentioned that neither of the top two, Herbert Lee or Robert Gaskins, Jr., went on to win any more beauty contests. Possibly they lost interest, or perhaps they came to think that brains were better than beauty.

Who knows? Maybe among the bronze shoes and baby clothes you, too, have a prize for being the biggest baby, the fattest baby or the loudest baby. Or maybe like most of us, you were among the nondescript babies, who can say, "Well, my mother loved me."

Some of the "hep" teens around Washington who delight in making some of the over-40 crowd look "slow" had a damper put on their latest joke.

A car-load of young girls drove up beside a man who was stopped at a stop light on a main street in Washington and said, "Hey mister, can you tell us how to get to Washington?"

"Which Washington do you mean?" he asked.

Their answer of Washington, N.C., made the older man suspect that he was about to be the butt of a joke so he looked straight ahead and replied, "Never heard of it."

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

PLEASE CLOSE THAT DOOR. A door that is always left standing open warps at last. Carpenters say that this is practically inevitable.

Now this writing today is going to be a nasty little diatribe against a certain variety of open-mindedness which has always appeared to me to be even worse than the closed mind. I refer to people who talk this way: "One religion is as good as another... I'm an internationalist; don't think any more of my own country than of any other... I believe in trying everything once; the bad things of life as well as the good... It's nonsense for a man to talk about loving one woman forever; broadmindedness calls for spreading out and experimentation... I don't belong to any political party; I always vote for the best man... The Bible is a fine book... But there are a lot of other books in the world just as good

Secret Of Tip Policy

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Many people who go abroad say their trip is ruined because they don't know how to tip properly.

"I don't want to slight anybody," they often say. "But I do want to come home solvent." Of course, with an attitude like that they are bound to get off on the wrong foot. Anybody whose primary interest is personal solvency has no business going abroad. He should stay home and hire a small trustworthy Boy Scout to count his money for him.

But tipping shouldn't be an ordeal. Once you get the hang of it, it even can become exciting. The first problem, naturally, is whom to tip. In general the rule is the same in Europe as in the United States — you tip everybody who speaks to you and isn't a close relative. There are certain exceptions, however, and nothing is more embarrassing than to tip the wrong persons.

Fortunately for the beginning traveler's peace of mind, the exceptions are easy to learn. In Britain you tip everything except museum statues and members of the Buckingham Palace Guard.

In France you tip museum statues but you don't tip Brigitte Bardot, members of the French Academy or gendarmes in the process of making an arrest — as they already have their hands full.

In Switzerland you tip everything that comes near you but doesn't have a bell around its neck or say "moo."

In Germany you tip everything that says "ja," which is pronounced "Yah." If someone says "yeh," don't bother to tip him. He is probably an American soldier in civilian dress.

In Italy there are no exceptions. You tip everything that moves.

The safe rule in all countries is to tip every hand you see that is stretched toward you palm upward. Recently in Paris a tourist held his palm out to see if it was raining, and before he could get it back in his pocket other U.S. tourists, mistaking him for a native, had dropped $8.12 in it. His take even included a Canadian dime.

The next question is, "How much should you tip?" The answer here depends on another question: "How much have you got?"

It is wrong and unfair to think every European is out to rob you, or that he regards every American as a millionaire.

He is more likely to regard you as a human slot machine. He is reasonable. He doesn't expect to hit the jackpot every time he plays a slot machine.

Half of what he thinks you have will generally satisfy him.

The thing to do is to buy a dozen cheap, shabby wallets and divide among them equally all the tipping money you can afford that day.

When it becomes necessary to tip anyone, you simply fish out one of the wallets and hand it over to the person you are tipping. He will go through it carefully, take out exactly half then smile and hand the wallet back to you.

If you put a photo of your dear old gray-haired mother in the wallet, he may even only take a fourth.

The tip he gets may be either more or less than he expected, but in any case he will be satisfied. He will think you're a game sport about the whole matter.

That's the whole secret of successful tipping — you make a game of it for everyone concerned.

Other Editors Saying Peanut For Your Thoughts

(Greensboro Daily News)

How much does pure research cost?

This is a pertinent question for Tar Heels. When the Research Triangle Institute gets under way, President George Herbert recently told North Carolina editorial writers, pure as well as applied research is planned.

Last month some 250 of the nation's top-drawer scientists and administrators, meeting at the Rockefeller Institute in New York, took up the subject of the cost of ideas.

In their Symposium on Basic Research the scientists agreed that the U.S. is not spending enough money on creative thinking or pure research. Historically, Dr. Alan Waterman of the National Science Foundation pointed out, Americans are a nation of thinkers and technologists, good at applying the theoretical insights of others — "Yankee ingenuity," in a word — but short on original scientific thought.

Prime example is the atomic bomb, built in this country but based almost wholly on European research.

Even today the American investment in basic research is $670,000,000. It is spent annually on basic research compared with $400,000,000 spent on military "hardware" alone.

Two solutions were put forward at the New York scientific symposium: (1) Doubling basic research expenditures within the next five years, and (2) revising the income tax laws to encourage private support of science.

But one participant held that the problem was not solely financial. It is a question, said Dr. William O. Baker, vice president in charge of research of Bell Telephone Laboratories, of time and altitude. He explained:

The conservation of resources and of materials achieved by operating on ideas instead of on impulsive and empirical trials of hardware and (in the case of public health) on human specimens is huge.

The raw material consumed in having an idea is negligible. The incremental fuel cost of intense mental effort has been estimated as one peanut of energy per hour.

The Bell scientist is pulling our leg, of course. He is asking for time away from the bureaucratic paper shuffling as endemic in large corporations as in government offices. But his point is intriguing.

Think, for instance, how many peanuts we produce here in North Carolina. Why, if we could get a good idea for every peanut we feed future Research Triangle scientists, North Carolina would rapidly speed ahead not only of the Southeastern states but the rest of the world.

Jap Investors Push Stocks Up

By ELMER ROESSNER

(Elmer Roessner covered the inaugural flight of Japan Air Lines from Los Angeles to Tokyo. While in Japan he obtained a first-hand view of the Japanese economy. This is the second of a series of columns on business today in Japan.)

Japan is in the midst of a frenzied stock market boom. The public is buying frantically. Prices keep shooting up. Japanese businessmen are ignoring the songs of geisha girls to discuss the market.

"I've never seen anything like it," said Shinya Hotta, chief of the foreign news section of the Sankei Shimbun, which could be translated as "The Industry and Economic Newspaper." Over our dishes of tempura (crisp shrimp with a pungent sauce for dipping) in the Tokyo Press Club he gave me the facts about the boom.

One of the major supports is the Japanese version of mutual funds. This is how they work:

Financial houses announce the formation of a fund, and shares are offered for sale. Investors can plunge as little as the equivalent of $14.

On a specified day, operators of the fund use all the cash to buy certain stocks on the market. Stocks are held for five years and sold on the anniversary of the purchase.

Share holders get accumulated dividends plus their share of the sale prices. Because most stocks have been rising since the war, the return is often large.

Good Japanese stocks pay handsomely. They have to. Bank interest on one-year deposits is 6 per cent. Industrial bank deposits pay 7 per cent. Prime business borrowers must pay from 8 to 10 per cent. To interest venture capital, corporations must pay more than that. Dividends of 15 per cent are not uncommon.

EVERYBODY PLAYS MARKET. "Housewives are saving money out of their food allowances, college students are skipping lunches to accumulate enough for shares in these funds," Mr. Hotta said. "Most shares are sold to little people, but totals are large."

There are hazards of course. While stocks have been rising, there is also the chance they may fall. One broker, who seems to have bucketed his orders, went broke with losses of $1,000,000 to investors.

"But people seem to feel that so many people are in the market, the government cannot let the entire nation lose money," Mr. Hotta said. "They feel that if anything happens, the government will bail them out. However, I see no sound basis for that belief."

Meanwhile, there is a rising amount of speculation in individual stocks. As in the United States, steel and electric company shares are most popular.

FAVORITE STOCKS. Brisk trading is in Toshiba Electric Manufacturing, Hitachi Electric Manufacturing, Toyota Car, Yawata Steel, Fuji Iron & Steel, Kansai Electric Power, Chubu Electric Power, Mitsui Shipbuilding and Mitsubishi Shipbuilding. An average of 80,000 shares a day change hands; on June 1, sales of 141,300 shares were reported.

Many observers fear that funds and speculation have pushed the market too high. The Finance Ministry has already warned against excessive speculation. The Tokyo Mainichi, in a page one editorial, says, "The Dow-Jones average on the Tokyo stock market has finally gone over the 800-yen mark, spurred by the selection of Tokyo as the site for the 1964 Olympics... We cannot but express the fear that marketmen are too hasty in trying to cash in on an affair scheduled some five years ahead... Now is the time when sound judgment should prevail in the market... A Japanese saying has it that when the mountain is high, the valley is deep. The reaction may be precipitous when people are least prepared."

MAN WHO MISSED THE MOON

by EDMOND HAMILTON

From "The Star of Life," published by Thorpe Books, Inc. © 1958 by Edmond Hamilton. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

CHAPTER 1

He was alone more than any one had ever been before. He was alone, and he was dead.

His heart beat. His eyes saw, and his ears heard, and he felt. And yet, thought Kirk Hammond, he was a dead man and already in his tomb, this spheroid of magnesium and steel, this bubble of air and light flying silently out into the depths of space, the vast and illimitable oceans of night.

It was funny. It was so funny that the sun and moon and stars were screaming with soundless laughter.

A great nation had aspired, and many hundreds of brilliant men had worried and sweated, and many millions of dollars had been spent, and all of it just to give Kirk Hammond a funeral like nobody had ever had before.

He laughed about it. He sobbed.

The radio was buzzing, the last thin thread of coded sounds that still bound him to Earth. Soon, very soon, that umbilical cord of sound that tied him to his birth-world would break, and he would be dead to Earth.

"Canaveral to Explorer Nineteen, 17:44. The President announces award of the Congressional Medal of Honor to Kirk Hammond. The President adds, 'With it goes a nation's thanks to its hero.' End message."

That's fine, thought Hammond. I'm a hero. I've got a medal. They might as well have called it a posthumous award. That's what it is.

The radio buzzed again, almost at once.

"Canaveral to Explorer Nineteen, 17:47. World-wide gatherings are praying for you, Hammond. Every church, every creed, is holding special prayer services. End of message."

Prayers for the dead, he thought dully. That was nice of them. Very nice.

He could imagine the great wave of emotion sweeping around the world, the horror and pity of his fate. Those people didn't know him. Until the firing of Explorer Nineteen that he never heard of him. But now he was trapped by a doom unlike any that had ever befallen a man before, their emotions would be real enough.

Hammond was tired. For more than a hundred hours he had been sitting strapped into his chair in this little sphere, and his body was cramped and numb. His mind was numb, too. He had had too much, in too short a time.

The shock of the first firing. The blackout. The coming to, the struggle to breathe, to think, to raise his hand to the radio key and send back the signal that he still lived. The thunder of God when the second stage of the rocket let go and hurled him into complete unconsciousness. He had come out of that shaken and sick, but with nothing inside him broken.

'Gator Bit The Hand That Fed It

ST. LOUIS (AP) — An alligator lost a home by biting the hand that fed it.

Someone sent the baby alligator to 16-year-old Victor A. Cohn of suburban University City. He wanted to keep it. His parents said no. Victor took it to work with him at the car-wash where he is employed.

Victor put the gator in a water-filled hole, but when he went to feed the animal he was bitten twice on the hand. Antidote shots followed, and Victor's attitude changed.

Unless an alligator-lover shows up, the pet will be given to the Animal Protective Society.

And then had come the tensest wait of all, the waiting for the third stage to fire, the one that would hurl the little spherical shell of Hammond's satellite into its pre-calculated orbit. An orbit that would carry Kirk Hammond, first of all men, out around the Moon and back again to Earth.

Since years before, since 1957 and the first Russian Sputnik, they had been sending up satellites. First, in orbit around the Earth, unmanned ones to begin with and then when the election-escape mechanism had been perfected with a man inside. Then the first unmanned satellite had been sent out in an orbit around the Moon.

Now a man was going out, not to land upon the Moon but to fly out around it and back again and to land — if the election gimmick worked! — safe and alive on Earth. And Hammond was the man, the man who had waited tautly for that third stage to fire as he whirled high over Earth in the steep trajectory.

Too soon! He had known from the very instant that the third stage exploded that something had gone wrong with the timer-relays, that the third stage had fired too soon. The curve was too steep, and the orbit was all wrong.

Explorer Nineteen would not come nearly as close to the Moon as planned. It would be far enough to keep clear of the Moon's gravitational pull.

It meant that the satellite would not swing around the Moon at all but would pass it, and would go on, and on, and on.

The radio buzzed again.

"Canaveral to Explorer Nineteen, 18:01. Your hourly report is two minutes overdue. Please give your readings. End message."

Hammond smiled mirthlessly. That was John Willing. He could imagine Willing down there in Communications, sweating blood, keeping up a pretense with him that everything was still routine. He switched on and tapped out the figures that he read off the meters, the dust-density, radiation, temperature outside and inside. Before he continued, he turned for a look back through the Number Four filter-glass port.

A gigantic shadowed silhouette flared at him, filling much of the star-decked black firmament. It was a little off to his right and

Filmed TV Commercials Are Rerun For A Reason

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Ask almost any television viewer his pet gripe about his favorite pastime and he'll complain about exposure to the same commercials over and over and over.

Some commercials, he'll concede, were entertaining at first—but repetition of even a funny one loses its charm.

But filmed commercials are deliberately rerun, say the experts, for a variety of reasons. One theory of successful television selling is based on heavy hammering on the viewer's consciousness. The viewer may not like it but the message has sunk in—like a harpoon.

One major advertising agency, in fact, is dedicated to the proposition that all the key words should be repeated three times during each commercial message.

Another reason commercials are repeated is to catch viewers who missed it the first or second time around.

But, undoubtedly, the most popular reason for frequent repeats is economic: filmed commercials are expensive to make. They range in time from 6 seconds to 2 1/2 minutes and cost from $3,500 to $30,000 each.

Time was when every outfit with a movie camera and studio facilities was ready and eager to make commercials. As TV developed, however, companies have come to specialize. There are now a number of companies who do nothing else. One of the largest, MPO, last year turned out about five-million-dollars worth of sponsors' messages. Marvin Rothenstein, a company vice president who directs many of the short films, says

There is no written language among the natives of French, British and what was Italian Somaliland. The Somalians speak a thousand and one native dialects.

Unwed Mothers Received Much Assembly Attention

By PHIL CORNER

RALEIGH (AP) — The 1959 General Assembly rejected the stern and adopted the mild in dealing with the perennial issue of unwed mothers on relief.

Out of the tumult which marked consideration of the problem, emerged several measures. Welfare Commissioner Ellen Winston feels will strengthen her department's administrative role.

These would:

1. Grant authority to local welfare departments to appoint personal representatives for persons they deem unfit to manage their public assistance payments.
2. Enable counties to hire part-time attorneys to specialize in welfare cases, including actions designed to locate fathers of illegitimate children and force them to provide support.
3. Enable solicitors to investigate illegitimate births and bring legal action against women who misuse aid-to-dependent - children welfare checks.

The assembly spent about as much time on the illegitimacy problem as it did on court reform, minimum wage and safety legislation.

Several lawmakers were disturbed over what they termed the "business" of having illegitimate children. They felt the unwed mothers were missing aid-to-dependent-children payments.

Previous legislatures considered handling the problem by refusing grants in such cases. They learned through Dr. Winston that this would cripple the entire program, as the federal government permits no discrimination between legitimate and illegitimate children in its top - heavy matching fund payments.

Dr. Winston approved the assembly's actions and said "less than 5 per cent of the welfare cases are real headaches." The personal representative act would help take care of those situations, she said.

She also cited a new law enabling the counties to make the assistance payments twice a month. "Many people are able to use their money more wisely if they get a lesser amount twice," she remarked.

The results of the assembly's considerations on the problem were far less spectacular than original bills.

One calling for sterilization of "grossly sexually delinquent" women was killed by its own sponsors after it aroused heated opposition. Another, which would have punished mothers of two or more illegitimate children with prison terms, was laughed to its death in the house.

The law which permits solicitors to investigate illegitimate births was watered down committee substitute for the sterilization bill as originally introduced by freshman Rep. Rachel Davis and Sen. Wilbur Jolly.

The Senate was told that at least 16 solicitors would ignore the act because of already overburdened workloads.

While the lawmakers recognized the expensive problem, they were hesitant to be harsh. They examined each of the bills with microscopic scrutiny.

Dr. Davis, Lenoir obstetrician, said her sterilization bill was the result of an "extensive survey." When it was called back amid a furor which had racial overtones, she was satisfied that at least she had called public attention to the problem.

Cede Honor Of Biggest Book

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago is ceding to New York the honor of having the world's fastest telephone directory.

The new Chicago directory has 1,779 pages, compared with 1,836 pages in New York's Manhattan directory.

The old Chicago directory had 2,133 pages, but the Illinois Bell Telephone Co. cut the size by using five columns of listings per page instead of four.

Chicago still claims the most listings, about one million in its directory compared with 776,000 in the Manhattan book.

Openings For 30 More Personnel In Guard Units

Greenville's two National Guard units today announced openings for approximately 30 additional personnel as a result of increased strength levels authorized by the North Carolina National Guard.

Captain Norman Harris and Lieutenant Charles Camp, commanding officers of the units, said the openings will be available until June 30 when Guard strength levels will be frozen again. The openings are available, they said, to both prior service and non-prior service men in enlisted ranks.

The increased number of personnel slots available were authorized last week when North Carolina National Guardsmen were completing an annual two-week summer training program at Fort Bragg. Enlistments in the Guard had been frozen for approximately four months prior to last week's action.

Information about the available positions can be obtained at the National Guard Armory on Evans Street. Warrant Officer Mayu E. Allen of Battery A and Master Sergeant Paul E. Jewett of Battery B full-time administrative-supply technicians for the two artillery units, are on duty at the armory from 8 a.m. through 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Battery A holds weekly drill sessions Monday evenings at 7:30 and Battery B holds weekly drill sessions on Tuesday evenings at 8 o'clock. Combined strength of the two units at the present time is about 120 officers and enlisted men.

Spy Disappears Behind 'Curtain'

BERLIN (AP) — Klaus Fuchs disappeared behind the Iron Curtain Tuesday night saying he bears no grudge against the British for his nine years in prison as an atom spy.

The German-born scientist was hustled out of England after his release from a 14-year sentence for being secrets of the atomic bomb to the Soviet Union. He had been stripped of his naturalized British citizenship upon his conviction, and the British government did not try to prevent him from joining his father in Communist East Germany.

Newsmen were barred from speaking to Fuchs during his last hours in England. But several booked seats aboard the Polish airliner that flew him to Germany and reported their interviews with him today.

"I wish to say that I bear no resentment whatever against Britain or any of the Western countries for what has happened," the 47-year-old physicist said.

"I would also say that I am pleased to be going to the (East) German Democratic Republic. But about my future plans I have made no definite arrangements."

He would only say he is rejoining his father, Dr. Emil Fuchs, a professor of theology in Leipzig. Fuchs worked with British and American scientists on the development of the atomic bomb and at the time of his arrest was chief of theoretical physics at Britain's Harwell nuclear research establishment.

Asked what he thought about East-West political conflicts, Fuchs said: "The trouble arises when people begin to believe lies of their own making."

Newsmen pressed him to elaborate but he declined.

Simple Space Navigation Instrument Ready For Use

By HERBERT THOMPSON
ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) —When an early rocket pilot tries to decide where he is in space, he may get his answer from a transparent plastic hemisphere about the size of half a basketball.

Peering through it at the earth he will see our planet against a backdrop of navigational stars. Two simple maneuvers of the plastic bowl and he can read off his position—say, 15,000 miles above some point in the western Pacific Ocean.

No electronics involved. No long hair mathematical computations. Just a quick visual observation and an easy mental calculation.

That's the amazing claim for a new invention by Capt. P. V. H. Weems, 70, a retired Navy captain whose name has become synonymous with speed and simplicity in the field of celestial navigation.

Capt. Weems has designed the method specifically for manned satellites orbiting the earth and for flights to and from the moon. He has applied for a patent and says the National Aeronautics and Space Administration has expressed interest.

Weems calls the new navigational method "space piloting" since it utilizes the center of the earth for position finding in much the same way a lighthouse is used in coastal navigation. Combined with known positions of the stars, it provides a three-dimensional fix in space.

The major tool involved is a clear plastic hemisphere with a field of navigational stars engraved in positions corresponding to their actual locations in the heavens. It also is marked with concentric circles placed to show distances in nautical miles from the earth.

The first operation is to find latitude and longitude. Looking at the earth and its backdrop of stars, the space navigator picks out two navigational stars and then orients his globe until he matches the same stars on his globe with their selected counterparts in space.

He can read his latitude—north or south—directly from a grid and can quickly compute his longitude—east or west position—by picking off a navigational compass known as sidereal hour angle and adding to it the Greenwich hour angle of Aries. This latter value is pre-computed for given times in the Air Almanac, which Weems designed in the 1930s to speed up celestial navigation from airplanes.

These two dimensions will tell him what point on earth he was above when he made the observation.

To get the third dimension necessary for a navigational fix in space, the navigator quickly aims the plastic half-globe at the center of the earth and notes which of the concentric circles fall on the outline of the earth. The farther he is from earth, the smaller it will appear.

Capt. Weems and his associates in the Weems system of navigation here have developed the device over the past six months.

"We know the position of the stars for any given time, and because of their vast distances from us these positions are not going to change in space," he says. "We also know the diameter of the earth. With this information we can proceed to direct observations from the space vehicle to determine a three-dimensional position."

Capt. Weems concedes there may be some loss of accuracy inherent in visual observations but says the vastness of space shrinks the importance of the error.

"For the purpose intended, speed and simplicity are more important than pinpoint accuracy."

cy," he says.

He considers the light weight of the device—two or three pounds—to be of vital importance since an estimated 1,000 pounds of thrust is required to lift one pound through the earth's atmosphere.

Weems says the earth is a practical reference point for space navigation because all of our early operations will begin and terminate here. And any space object other than the moon is probably too far off in distance to be reached until technical knowledge advances much farther.

"Let's not kid ourselves," he says. "The moon is only a hop, skip and jump away in terms of space travel — 207,000 nautical miles—but it is the only practical objective in the solar system in the near future."

More Pain For 'Little Mike'

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Mike Sibole, the little boy who lost his eyes in a fight against cancer, faces the possibility of new pain. Doctors at Miami Cancer Institute say they have found strong evidence cancer cells may have moved into his lungs.

Mike, now 7, is unaware of the new threat. He only knows of periodic brushings of his throat and that he must take shots at the institute.

These, he believes, are to "build him up" for a vacation camping trip with his parents, the Rev. and Mrs. James Sibole, and his brother, Jerry, 4.

In 1954, the parents agreed to the first eye removal; in 1956, they agreed to the second. Without the operations, specialists said, the cancer would have moved into the lad's brain and brought death.

"We have done all we can," Sibole said Tuesday. "We can now only hope and pray. In the meantime, we want to give Mike all of the happiness we can. He's really looking forward to this camping trip."

Flood Converges On Chinese City

TOKYO (AP) — Flood waters converged today on the South China metropolis of Canton. The floods in Kwangtung province already had caused the death of at least 167 persons and made 200,000 homeless.

Flood crests of the North and West rivers were expected to strike Canton—a city of a million and a half people—with devastating force sometime today, Peiping news reports said.

The danger was heightened by new torrential rains which lashed the North River Tuesday. Two million men worked with picks, shovels, bales and sandbags to save Canton.

Black Coffee No Cure For Drunks

ROCKLAND, Maine (AP) — An authority on alcoholic studies says pouring black coffee into an intoxicated person or making him jog around the block won't sober him up.

"All that happens is that you have a wide awake drunk on your hands, instead of a sleepy one," said Dr. Leon A. Greenberg, director of the Yale Center of Alcohol Studies.

He spoke at a meeting of the Maine Medical Assn.

ECC Student Government Officers Begin Duties

Jimmie E. Wall of Garner has assumed his duties as president of the East Carolina College Student Government Association for the 1959 Summer Session. With other officers chosen in a campus election, he will direct SGA activities during both the first and the second terms of the summer quarter.

A senior at East Carolina, Wall has an outstanding record as a student leader on the campus. Last fall he acted as chairman of the Student Government Committee assisting with staging Homecoming Day for Alumni of the college. This spring he was chairman of the May Day Committee.

He has served also as vice president of the College Union Student Board and as a member of the staff of the East Carolina student yearbook "The Buceanier."

Cautious Alston Ready To Say 'Could Win'

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Walter Alston, a fellow who might hesitate to predict next Easter will fall on a Sunday, is now prepared to say his Los Angeles Dodgers could win the National League pennant.

The quiet, cautious man from Ohio hasn't reached the point where he's worried about what pitching rotation he might use in the World Series. But, after the Dodgers moved to within a game of second place Tuesday night by beating Philadelphia 4-3, Alston volunteered these remarks:

"If Gil Hodges and Duke Snider keep on hitting, we've got a chance.

"That is, if the pitching holds out.

"Now, I don't want it to sound as though I'm pinning it all on one or two men. We'd need help from the others too. It's gotta be a team effort—all the way down to the batboy almost.

"But when Hodges is hitting, it certainly makes a difference. I know Snider's got to be rested once in a while (because of a knee injury) but he's hitting over .300 and he's hitting with power."

Alston readily acknowledged other things have helped make the team look considerably different from the one he finished seventh with last year.

Wally Moon, for example, has a 16-game hitting streak going and is batting .333. Jim Gilliam, who has reached base 12 times in his last 17 at bats, is hitting .326. And Don Demeter has 14 homers, 50 RBIs.

Hodges, however, probably figures in the change as much as anyone. He has hit safely in his last eight games, raising his average to .298. He has 42 RBIs—12 in his last nine games.

Gil gained additional stature among the game's power hitters when he hit his 11th homer of the season Tuesday night. It was his 331st in the majors and it moved him into a tie with Hank Greenberg for 11th place among all-time home run leaders.

Bankers Defeat Builders 6-3

Catcher Tommy Riley blasted a pair of homers last night to back Bernie Morris' five-hit pitching and give Guaranty Bank a 6-3 win over the Home Builders in the Teen-er League.

Riley drove his first blast out of the park in the first inning with Billy James on base. Rommie Brock, Guaranty's clean-up man, followed with another four-bagger to give Guaranty a 3-0 lead.

Riley's second blast came in the fifth inning with nobody on base.

Bernie Morris was in complete control most of the way but needed help from David Boyd in the seventh as the Home Builders rallied for two runs.

Elbert Felton collected two of the four hits given up by Morris. Collins, Foley, and Gidley had the other hits.

Tranquilizers Are Shot In Gun

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—A gun that shoots tranquilizer pellets instead of bullets is being used in this city's anti-rabies drive against wild and stray dogs.

Fourteen dogs have been knocked out so far with the hypo-dermic-like pellets by four hunters. The dogs were turned over to the dog pound, which estimates the city has about 40,000 unvaccinated dogs.

SCRATCH AND BUMP

HART'S LOCATION, N.H. (AP)—Fred Arnold, 14, of Malden, Mass., fell 80 feet from Jacob's Ladder at Crawford Notch State Park Tuesday and suffered only a scratched knee and a bump on the head. Park officials said Arnold was near the top of the sheer cliff on Webster Mountain when he lost his grip and fell.

Raleigh, Wilson Split Twin Bill

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Raleigh's Caps split a doubleheader with Wilson Tuesday night but won their series 2-1 and trail the top place Tobs by only 1½ games in the tight Carolina League pennant battle.

Two home runs were the big blows as Wilson won the seven-inning opener 5-3. The Caps came back to take the second game 7-1 behind the four-hit pitching of Warren Hodgson.

In the opening game, Duncan Campbell homered for Wilson in the first inning and Larry Elliott blasted a four-bagger in the fourth with one aboard. Raleigh loaded the bases in the seventh, but Don Dobrin came on in relief to strike out John Gibson and end the game. Hodgson struck out five and walked three in winning his ninth game without a loss.

Burlington rallied for three runs in the bottom of the ninth to edge Durham 7-6. The Bulls had gone ahead with four runs in the eighth. Burlington did all its scoring in the last three innings.

The Indians collected 12 hits to Durham's nine.
Winston-Salem's Red Birds withstood a late surge by Greensboro to gain an 8-7 victory. Winston-Salem scored six runs in the third inning and had an 8-1 lead at the end of the sixth before Greensboro began its late rallies.

Houston Golfers In Record Play

EUGENE, Ore. (AP)—Bob Pratt and Jack Cupit led a record breaking Houston University team into match play in the National Collegiate Golf tournament today.

Both Pratt and Cupit tied the National Collegiate Athletic Assn. record for qualifying play Tuesday as they wound up two days of play on the Eugene Country Club course with 136 strokes each, 6 under par on the 37-34-71 course.

Pratt had rounds of 66 and 70. Cupit 69 and 67. The record is shared with Don Albert of Purdue, who set it in 1954, and John Pott, of Louisiana State, who tied it in 1955.

Houston smashed the team record in carrying off the team title a fourth consecutive year. The record was 570 strokes by four players set by Houston last year. Now the mark is 561.

POSSIBLE SHOWERS

NEW YORK (AP)—Possible showers Thursday afternoon or night were forecast today in New York. These could interfere with the heavyweight championship fight between Floyd Patterson and Ingemar Johansson in Yankee Stadium. In event of rain the fight would be held Friday night.

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer
What's kept Pittsburgh's Pirates so close to the National League lead? The answer is the pitching of Vern Law and Roy Face, a starter-reliever pair who have put away more than half of the Bucs' victories.

Law and Face were the only winners when the Pirates lost seven of their first nine games and plunged to the cellar. Now Law, ace of the starters with an 8-4 record, and Face, the majors' top winner at 11-0, have won 19 between them and the Bucs hold fourth place with a 37-33 record.

Law, 29, a right-hander who's been around since 1950, put away his third in a row Tuesday night, keeping the Pirates within 3½ games of first place with a six-hit, 5-1 victory over San Francisco. That made Law the first NL pitcher to beat every other club in his season.

The defeat once against dropped the second place Giants two games behind the league leading Milwaukee Braves, who whipped St. Louis 9-5. Third place Los Angeles stayed a half-game ahead of Pittsburgh by beating Philadelphia 4-3. The Chicago Cubs defeated Cincinnati 3-1.

In the American League, Baltimore defeated Cleveland 5-1, trimming the Indians' lead to one game over Chicago's second place White Sox, who beat Washington 4-1. The New York Yankees took fourth, rapping Kansas City 10-2 while Detroit slipped to fifth with a 10-4 thumping from Boston.

Law missed a second consecutive shutout when a walk and Jackie Brandt's double gave the Giants a fourth-inning run. The big right-hander batted in two of the Bucs' first three runs. Dick Stuart hit his 14th homer and had four of the Pirates' 15 hits.

Sam Jones (8-7) was the loser, giving up 10 hits and three runs in his first start since pitching the Giants into their short stay in first place last Friday night.

Del Crandall drove in four runs for the Braves, breaking a 3-3 tie with a one-on homer, his 12th, in the fifth inning against loser Hal Jeffcoat. Wes Covington, who drove in a pair of runs, followed Crandall's shot with his fifth homer. Carl Willey (3-1) was the winner, giving up 10 hits but gaining a complete game in his first start since May 29. Ken Boyer hit a two-run homer for the Cards, who lost starter Alex Kellner when he hurt his elbow pitching in the first inning.

Home runs by Junior Gilliam, Gil Hodges and Don Demter got the job done for the Dodgers, who had only two other hits off loser Gene Conley (4-1). Danny McDewitt (6-6) was the winner.

Demeter and Hodges homered in a deciding, three-run fourth, with Hodges' tying Hank Greenberg for 11th place on the all-time major league list at 331. It was his 11th of the season and followed a double by Wally Moon, who now has hit in 16 consecutive games.

Lee Walls doubled home a run in the first inning, then added an RBI single in a two-run, wrap-up fifth for the Cubs against loser Joe Nuxhall (3-6). Glen Hobbie (7-6) was the winner, giving up eight hits, but blanking the Reds after they scored in the first inning. It was his first complete game in seven starts since May 13—when he shut out Cincinnati.

Ted Williams Still Thinks Can Beat Batting Slump

DETROIT (AP)—"They'd better not count me out yet," insists Ted Williams. "They might be counting too soon."

The Boston slugger, nearing 41, admits he is a trifle worried about the worst batting slump of his long and brilliant career.

"But if I didn't think I'd come out of it," he snapped, "I'd quit right now. Better yet, I'd have packed it in last month."

The big fellow has bounced back before. He has had his share of injuries and there were a couple of interruptions for Marine duty.

Tuesday he got a rousing ovation from a Briggs Stadium crowd of 40,085 when he slammed an eighth inning home run against the second deck facing in right field. It helped the Sox to a 10-4 victory. Williams also had a ground single in three trips, boosting his average to an anemic .202.

"I know a lot of people are saying the old guy is washed up, but it just isn't true," said Williams. "I've been around longer than anyone except Enos Slaughter. Now I ask you—shouldn't I know myself pretty well?"

"Sure—better than anyone. And I know damn well, I'm no through as a hitter. I can't run and my arm isn't very strong, but I can still hit. And I'll prove it."

"If I had hit 200 last year I'd know my time had come. But I hit pretty well, especially in the last two months of the season. No one in the majors hit any better over that span."

Williams, who led the American League with a .328 mark in 1958, says he knows why he hasn't been hitting.

"I don't want it to sound like an alibi," he emphasized, "but look at it this way. Seven days after I got to spring training my neck started to pain me. Finally I couldn't move and I went to Boston—missed practically all of spring training."

"Then I spent 40 days in traction and a collar. Ten days later I was in the lineup. I just hurried myself that's all. My neck and the muscles in my back still give me trouble. Once I get that straightened around, I'll be all right. Just you wait and see."

Williams explained that he cannot turn his head to get a good look at the pitcher. Because of the pain he is altering his stance and not getting a full, normal cut at the ball.

Kramer Praises Buchholz Talent

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP)—Pro tennis czar Jack Kramer today called temperamental teen-ager Earl Buchholz of St. Louis the "greatest tennis talent" in the amateur ranks "and I can hardly wait to get him."

This was Kramer's answer to Buchholz statement that "I can hardly wait to turn professional" after his first-round upset of Italy's Nicola Pietrangeli at Wimbledon.

"Of all the amateurs around, Buchholz has the most talent," Kramer said. "More than Alex Olmedo, more than any of them. And don't worry about his temperament. I'll change when he turns pro. They all do."

Rocky Colavito joined the exclusive Four Homers in a Row Club when he clouted three Baltimore pitchers for four successive round-trippers in a game on June 11. Only one other major leaguer, Lou Gehrig, had previously accomplished that feat in modern baseball history. Bobby Lowe of the Boston Nationals also hit four home runs in as many times at bat during a single game but that was way back in 1894. Five others — Ed Delany (1896), Chuck Klein (1936), Pat Seery (1948), Gil Hodges (1950), and Joe Adcock (1954), also hit four home runs in one game but not in successive times at bat.

The young Cleveland slugger was born some 14 months after Gehrig stroked his four homers against the Athletics on June 3, 1922, so he'll never know just how close the great Yankee hitter came to adding a fifth home run to the record. And he can thank a ninth inning switch by Manager Connie Mack for what proved a tremendous defensive move. With the Athletics trailing the Yankees by seven runs in the ninth, Mack switched Al Simmons from left field to center.

In his fifth and final rip to the plate, Gehrig connected with a tremendous drive which Simmons managed to snare after dashing back to the center field wall. Simmons described the catch as "the greatest catch of my career." Had Simmons missed that catch it is quite likely that the velocity of the ball could have given Gehrig an inside the park home run and written a new record.

Earlier in the season, Colavito pointed out that he was not swinging for the fences this season, just trying to meet the ball and letting

Patterson Geared For Fast KO Victory

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Heavyweight Champion Floyd Patterson will knock out Sweden's Ingemar Johansson in the first round of an explosive, bloody battle at Yankee Stadium Thursday night.

This is the prediction of the writer after a study of the two fighters in their training camps, deep research of their careers, a look at a crystal ball and a consultation with a witch doctor.

Johansson's only chance appears to rest with his "thunder and lightning" right hand. "Blood and thunder" is the way Edwin Ahlquist, Johansson's advisor, describes the mighty right and Ingemar, himself, appears to agree.

Ingo has kept the mighty right under wraps in training. There's not much question that he has the power in that fist, as evidence by his first-round knockout of Eddie Machen, then the No. 1 contender, at Goteborg, Sweden, last Sept. 14, and his fifth-round kayo of Britain's Henry Cooper at Stockholm, May 19, 1957.

Both Machen and Cooper, however, are standup fighters. Both box in the classic style Johansson is accustomed to. Neither does much body punching. Johansson, too, is a standup fighter who peaces with an orthodox left jab and follows with straight right hands. In training, however, Ingo has shown nothing. He floundered like an amateur when he was pressed.

Patterson is completely different in his mode of fighting. The lithe, pantherish champion fights out of a crouch. He bobs and weaves, holding both gloves in front of his face, in a peek-a-boo style. His forearms protect his body.

Floyd moves quickly from side to side. Once in a while he shifts to a left-handed stance. He is hard to hit squarely. True, he has been knocked down in title fights by Pete Rademacher and Roy Harris. But he got up quickly and fired away faster.

Floyd still leaps in with his gazelle right — a punch thrown while he springs into the air with a catlike motion. But most important of all is his devastating combinations, especially to the body.

The 24-year old champion lets loose with hooking flurries of 10 to 12 punches at times. Those blurring-fast combinations to the body—something Ingo never has had to cope with—will be his undoing.

This observer believes Patterson will move right in on the unbeaten European champion seconds after the opening bell. He probably will bang away at the body to bring down Johansson's hands and then shoot for the head. He may get nailed in this all-out assault.

If he does, and goes down, the story could be different. I think Patterson will be too close to his opponent to get hit by such a punishing blow.

Patterson has won 16 of his last 17 fights by knockouts. He kayoed Archie Moore in five to win the title, and in his defenses stopped

Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson in 10, Rademacher in six, Harris in 12, and London in 11, last May 1.

There will be close to 1,000 writers in the eight press rows. There is a definite upwelling to the fight. Promoter Bill Rosensohn said his advance sale Tuesday was $450,000 and he predicted a gate of over $600,000. He said he needs $500,000 to break even.

With predictions of fair weather for Thursday night, the gate may even hit the $700,000 mark. Receipts from closed circuit TV, movies and radio may add an additional 1 1/2 million dollars to the gate.

Patterson still held as a 3-1 favorite to win, and a 2-1 choice to score a knockout. It was 6-1 that Johansson would not knock out the champion.

Thomas Defeated In First Round Junior Golf Event

GREENSBORO — Medalist Doug Rangeley of Salisbury shot a one over par yesterday to defeat Bobby Thomas of Greenville 3 and 1 in the opening round of the Carolinas Junior Golf Tournament.

Thomas shot a 74 during the evening and was all even with his foe on the front nine but faltered in the home stretch. Bobby once again had trouble with his putting and missed several three-footers. Chappy Bradner, the other Greenville entry, shot a 77 in his match to win 4-3. Bradner, a relatively newcomer to the golf scene, is in the seventh flight.

GREENSBORO (AP) — Buddy Baker of Florence, S.C., winner of the Carolina Golf Assn. Junior title two weeks ago at Salisbury, is living up to the favorite's role in the 33rd annual Carolinas Junior tournament.

The stocky South Carolinian, one of the three Florence players to survive opening round lower bracket matches Tuesday, shot the best golf of the day. The 1958 winner of the National Junior crown, a losing semifinalist here last summer, was three under par as he brushed aside Roger Watson of High Point 4 and 3.

Billy Womack, losing semifinalist here, along with Baker a year ago, and a Florence rival, was a 4 and 3 winner over Reid Tull of Salisbury. Tull had shot a three-under par 68 in the qualifying round to be runnerup to medalist Doug Rangeley of Salisbury.

Qualifying scores meant little in match play. Seven of the 16 matches were won by players with higher qualifying scores. Among them was Sandy Sneed of Rockingham, who qualified with 74 and edged Pat Harman of Burlington, a 69 qualifier, 1 up.

Two matches went 20 holes. Doug Gallimore of Asheboro won over Johnny Leach of Troy and Mickey Goodman of Salisbury eliminated Sammy Estridge of Badin in the marathons.

Two matches today will leave semifinalists for Thursday action. The 36-hole finals will be played Friday.

Rangeley met Jim Belton of Gastonia in the initial upper bracket second round match today. Others paired Sammy McNairy, Greensboro, against John Morrow, Winston-Salem; Sneed against Harvie Hill, Plymouth, and William Tiller, Camden, S.C., against Stan Kinney, High Point.

Womack led off the lower bracket against Gallimore. Ken Fowlkes of Concord drew Bick Long of Burlington. Goodman met Joe Moses of Florence and Baker played Jay Harris of Mebane.

New Baseball Loop In Western North Carolina

NEWTON, N.C. (AP) — A new professional baseball circuit—the Western Carolinas League—has been organized and President J. H. Moss of Kings Mountain says it is to begin operating next year.

Representatives of six cities organized the league at a meeting here Tuesday night and named Moss president.

The cities are Hickory, Lenoir, and North Carolina, and Rock Hill, S.C.

Moss said Marion, Shelby and Rutherford County also are interested in the league, and it may be an 8-team loop.

Moss said, "Baseball can become a reality in these cities with proper local support and successful negotiations for membership in the National Assn. of Professional Baseball Leagues."

He said a meeting will be held next month to determine the league's classification and iron out other details.

Local Governments Fared Well In New Legislation

By MYRTLE ELLEN LABARR
Reflector Raleigh Bureau
RALEIGH — It is tradition in North Carolina for a county or a municipality or officials of either to find they have to ask mommy, "May I?" before they can use public money for some new purpose, create an office, fix a salary, allow the sheriff to wear a siren and a red blinker on his patrol car, or give the local dog catcher authority to cope with citizens who let the family hound stray off the premises. The 1959 General Assembly, like its predecessors, has hundreds of these local government requests to consider. A negative answer is easy, one house or the other simply declines to pass the bill or loses it in one of its committees. Since a majority of these bills concern only the county whose delegation offers one, it is tradition for other delegations to approve the bills and make a duly passed and ratified law out of it, expecting the same cooperation in return. That is easy, too.

Sometimes, it is not simply nor easy, and that is traditional, too. Human nature is very prevalent, but nowhere more prevalent than in any assembly bent on making laws. Personal grudges can be liquidated and county political rows can, and often do, spill over onto the floors of the General Assembly. When a county delegation gets to feuding and a-fussing with itself or the crowd back home, pyrotechnics can get hot and fancy. A wrong move in Raleigh can bring a deluge of home-folks with blood in their eyes to

Faced Execution, Now On Parole

RALEIGH (AP)—A 40-year-old Negro who entered prison in 1937 under sentence to die for murder was one of 11 prisoners released recently on parole, the State Parole Board reported today.

Hudson Robinson was convicted in Mecklenburg County in June, 1937. His death sentence was commuted to life imprisonment in February, 1938. It was reduced to 40 years on Nov. 7, 1955.

Others paroled were:

Thurman McDuffie, 23, Negro, sentenced in Columbus in January 1957 to 5-10 years for breaking, entering, larceny and receiving; Jordan Tyson Melver, 36, convicted in New Hanover in July, 1948, of non-burglary breaking and entering (four counts) and sentenced to 17-20 years; Warren Thompson, 44, Negro, convicted in Robeson last November of assault with a deadly weapon (two counts) and sentenced to 24 months; Carroll Penland, 25, convicted in Yancey and Granville in April, 1953, and October, 1954, of manslaughter and escape and sentenced to 19-20 years and 12 months.

Leroy Jackson Emory, 32, convicted in Durham in January, 1958, of robbery with a dangerous weapon and sentenced to 5-10 years; Ella Mae Davis, 25, Negro, convicted in Forsyth in July, 1956, of manslaughter and sentenced to 7-15 years; James Thomas Sims, 29, Negro, convicted in Catawba in February, 1951, of second degree murder and sentenced to 25-30 years; Charlie Moyer, 40, Negro, convicted in Pitt in January, 1939, March, 1938, and September, 1942, of breaking, entering and larceny (three counts) and sentenced to 19-29 years and 24 months.

Troy Arvel Welch, 22, convicted in Macon last December of driving after license revoked and sentenced to 12 months; Dewey Hunt Moore, convicted in Johnston, Wake, Nash and Cleveland in June, 1956, and November, 1956, of armed robbery, possession of burglary tools, breaking and entering and larceny, and sentenced to serve two consecutive terms of 8-16 years, the latter sentence being commuted on July 2, 1958, to run concurrently with the first.

Big Jet Bomber Crashes; 5 Die

BURNS, Ore. (AP)—A B52 jet bomber on an experimental low-level flight for the Strategic Air Command crashed in flames Tuesday. The five men aboard were killed.

Witnesses said the eight-jet plane caught fire and was enveloped in flames when it crashed in a remote area 35 miles east of this central Oregon town.

The plane exploded and scattered wreckage and bodies over a mile area.

Boeing Airplane Co. of Seattle built the plane and was conducting tests for the Air Force.

A Boeing spokesman said these civilian employees were aboard the plane: pilot Lewis Moore, 44, Kirkland, Wash.; copilot Joseph Keller, Bellevue, Wash.; navigator Gerald Green, 37, Kent, Wash.; and flight engineers Charles McDaniell, 29, and Neil Johnson, 29, both of Seattle.

Jetliner Turned Back By Threat

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A New York-bound jet airliner with 107 passengers aboard was forced to return to Los Angeles International Airport Tuesday night because of a bomb scare.

A ticket agent said a woman phoned moments after the liner took off and warned him that her husband had placed an incendiary bomb "in the body of the plane." The TWA jet was ordered back to the field. Nothing was found.

the capitol in a hurry. Such developments consume time. They sometimes spice the legislative halls with a show that runs the gamut of emotions from the ridiculous to the near sublime. Often they are resolved by compromise that leaves everybody happy or at least partly happy.

An example was the happy solution found for the ABC board fracas that has blazed for sometime in Halifax county. Senator W. Lunsford Crew was dead set on his pet formula for naming the board and Representative Willis Murphy was dead set on a formula

Unlike Other Bosses, He Hires Only Handicapped

By BARRY SCHWEID
ALBERTSON, N.Y. (AP)—Henry Viscardi Jr. is unlike any other boss. He won't hire a healthy worker.

Within the walls of his factory on Long Island the legless, the armless and the blind produce more than two million dollars worth of electronic equipment a year, Viscardi said in an interview.

Now persons who were mentally disturbed are coming to work. An armless, legless man is a foreman in the packaging department. Another supervisor works flat on his back from a litter. His back and legs are fused as a result of spinal injuries.

Viscardi has known of afflictions since birth. He was born with two short stumps where legs should have been.

In 1947, aged 35, Viscardi quit his job as director of personnel for a large textile firm to devote his time to a new idea in rehabilitation.

Five years later, four crippled persons began Abilities, Inc., in a garage.

Today, 421 employees labor in a brand-new plant, soon to be accompanied by a new gymnasium, swimming pool and facilities for music societies, adult education, a camera club and arts and crafts.

Viscardi is married and has four daughters, the oldest 11 and the youngest 3.

His cheerful outlook becomes even sunnier when he discusses the plant's safety record. There have been two reportable injuries in six years, a far safer situation than the national average, he says.

Recently Abilities, Inc., began hiring persons discharged from mental institutions. Already employed were paraplegics, epileptics, cardiacs, amputees, the blind, deaf mutes and victims of cerebral palsy, rheumatoid arthritis, multiple sclerosis, polio and cancer.

Seriously disabled, from floor-sweeper up to the boss, the men and women at Abilities, Inc., work for wages comparable to other firms of its size and get their jobs done on schedule—without rejects, Viscardi says.

la of his own. In the twilight of the lengthy 1959 session, a compromise plan to let the voters of Halifax decide the issue was voted into law.

A group of related bills incorporating recommendations of the Municipal Government Study Commission, of which Guilford's Joe Hunt was original chairman, have statewide significance. They moved up into law with but minor amendment. They deal with two matters preoccupying many local governments in recent years—municipal annexation of fringe areas and planning and zoning.

The annexation acts do several things. They authorize a municipality to annex contiguous territory without the necessity of submitting the issue to a vote. Some of the lawmakers felt such procedure would take such municipal expansions moves out of politics and establish them on a merit basis. Areas that meet certain standards specified in the laws may be annexed. On the other hand, municipalities undertaking to annex such areas must be prepared to supply complete municipal services, and within a reasonable time, for the annexed areas. Procedures are given. Provision is made for appeals of property owners to the courts. Simplification of the existing law regarding petitions for annexation were made.

The zoning acts reflect the growing spread of local planning and zoning from urban to rural governmental units. Population growth and land-use experts are convinced that long range planning for orderly development and growth of counties as well as cities is vital.

The new laws permit governmental units to contract with both state and federal governments for expert planning service. The municipal subdivision act, which covered less than half the state's counties, was amended to apply statewide. With the approval of county boards of commissioners, cities of 10,000 and above may zone areas up to five miles from their limits, while those of 2,500 and over may zone areas up to one mile. As for the counties, they may adopt zoning ordinance and regulate buildings and land use, except for farms; regulate subdivisions of land, except for areas under municipal jurisdiction; and appoint building inspectors to enforce their building and zoning ordinances and the state building code. Counties may employ county surveyors. Another bill authorizes the counties to employ county fire marshals to coordinate fire fighting activities.

A new pension fund for firemen was enacted to replace one found unconstitutional by the State Supreme Court. The measure drew opposition from rural areas without fire fighting service because it can, and probably will, mean some increase in fire insurance premiums. The fund will be supported by a one per cent tax on such premiums. Legislation to provide for uniform property as-essment and countywide revaluation every eight years on a rotating basis was passed. Local government were authorized to levy taxes or issue bonds to provide extra personnel and equipment needed to suppress riots and unusual violations of law and order.

Several of the numerous local government measures passed have more or less statewide application. For the most part, however, they are administrative details rather than matters of general public interest. That, too, is traditional in North Carolina.

It is worth mentioning that the City of Greensboro got a new charter via the most voluminous bill of the General Assembly's entire session. In contrast to the brief, uncomplicated original charter granted the Gate City back in 1808, the new one has pages enough to fill a fat best-seller. Again, growth of its cities is traditional in the Tar Heel state.

Steel Talk Stalemated, Time To Make Deals

By NORMAN WALKER
NEW YORK (AP)—Steel negotiators entered the big buy-and-sell period today. They have talked without accomplishing anything for seven weeks. Now is the time to do business if a July 1 strike is to be avoided.

The steel talks are in a stalemate. Neither side has made any concessions. But with the strike date rapidly approaching, the Steelworkers Union and industry were beginning to do a bit of quiet horse trading.

R. Conrad Cooper, executive vice president of U.S. Steel Corp. and top bargainer for the industry, said steel companies have received no reasonable union offer worth considering.

President David J. McDonald of the Steelworkers Union said the industry has made no money of fers.

Both carefully guarded their comments, under a common secrecy ban. It seemed reasonable that at this stage of the game both had begun trading settlement offers.

Cooper, although reluctant to talk about it, said steel mills will have to start banking furnaces within a few days anticipating a July 1 strike. Present contracts expire June 30.

There was speculation that, barring any settlement, the union might agree to extend the current agreements. This was considered a bare possibility, but McDonald declined to comment on it.

Second-quarter steel profits statements are due in late July and there has been speculation that the union may delay a strike in a gesture of public consideration and await the new industry profits results.

First-quarter profits approached a record. Second-quarter statements are expected to be even better. The industry, however, has said it can do nothing that would cause inflation. In this, steelmakers have been encouraged by President Eisenhower.

The union announced that it has summoned its 171-man wage-policy committee for a session here Thursday. The group could ratify any proposed settlement or okay plans to tie up the steel industry in a strike shutdown.

The present sumup of the steel negotiations is that they have gotten nowhere so far. Barely a week remains to negotiate successor contracts. Neither side says it wants a strike.

Both the industry and its workers are making money. While there are large steel stockpiles, industry steel consumption has been high. The workers are averaging a record $3.10 per hour.

Says Colleges' Fault If Students Poor Writers

By G. K. HODENFIELD
LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP)—Colleges and universities which complain that their students can't speak or write good English have themselves to blame, a college English professor said today.

"The great majority of our grade school and high school teachers were not properly prepared for their jobs in college," said Eugene E. Slaughter of Southeast Oklahoma State College. "They can't pass on to their students what they don't know themselves."

Slaughter is here to expound his theories at the annual Conference on Teacher Education and Professional Standards. Delegates are trying to work out a practical program of teacher education.

"Some of our colleges and universities insist that a student spend half his time on professional education courses, and others permit it," Slaughter said in an interview. "This is completely out of balance. Such institutions think it is enough to know how to teach, whether or not you know anything about what to teach."

The normal requirement for a college degree is 120 semester hours of work spread over four years, Slaughter said students go into teaching should take five-year courses of 150 semester hours.

"They should have 40 hours of liberal or general education, 40 hours of professional education courses, and 40 hours in a major field of study," he said. "That would leave them 30 hours of study in depth in their major field or related courses."

Slaughter said the National Council of Teachers of English, of which he is a member, believes every high school English teacher should have an absolute minimum of 24 semester hours of college work in English. Far too many, he said, have had 15 hours or less.

The picture isn't all dark, he said. "The public is gradually waking up to the fact that good teaching is important, and some of our universities and colleges are doing a fine job—such schools as Stanford, Goucher College, Ohio State University, the University of Illinois and the University of Wisconsin."

"But we still have a long way to go."

Thief Is Leaving Holes In Street

TULSA, Okla. (AP) Drilling has its pitfalls in an industrial area here due to a thief's penchant for profitable scrap-iron.

Deputy Sheriff Gene Maxey said 40 iron covers for storm sewers had been filched from streets in the sparsely traveled area, leaving gaping holes in the street.

Hodges' Office Lists Appointees

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Hodges' office announced several appointments Tuesday, including the reappointment of J. Clinton Newton of Shelby as a member of the State Board of Alcoholic Beverage Control.

His three-year term expires April 23, 1963.

Only two new appointments were in the list. Dr. Katherine Joehner of Chapel Hill was named to replace the Rev. J. B. Willis of Hamlet on the Merit System Council. W. Lamont Brown of Southern Pines will fill the unexpired term of the late Ray Galloway of Raleigh on the Governor Richard Caswell Memorial Commission.

Other reappointments: Humber State Sen. Robert H. Humber of Greensboro and Ralph C. Price of Greensboro to the North Carolina Art Society.

R. B. Justice of Enka to the Merit System Council.

Mrs. Louis V. Sutton of Raleigh and Rep. H. Pat Taylor Jr. of Wadesboro to the North Carolina Symphony Society.

And the following to the Charles B. Aycock Memorial Commission:

Joe Eagles Jr., Wilson; Dr. Frank P. Graham, New York; H. L. Stephenson, Smithfield; Hardy Tarlton, Pikeville; B. F. Aycock, Fremont; and Mrs. Ruth Pate Killelte, Henry Belk, William A. Dees, Hugh Dorch, Mrs. Fred Harrell, Emmett Robertson and Miss Gertrude Weill, all of Goldsboro.

Swift Employees Rejected Union

WILSON, N.C. (AP)—Affiliation with the Amalgamated Meat Cutters & Butchers Workmen of America (AFL-CIO) has been rejected by employees of the Swift & Co. packing plant here, but another election will be conducted to determine whether they will affiliate with another union.

The results in Tuesday's balloting showed 114 votes for no union representation, 107 votes for the United Packing House Workers of America (AFL-CIO), and 16 for Amalgamated.

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Actor George Reeves, who solved mysteries as Superman on television with unearthly strength and skill, continues to leave them in death.

Why did he complain to the city attorney's office that the woman to whom he left most of his estate—a movie executive's wife—was harassing him with phone calls?

Was the June 16 gunshot death of Reeves, 45, really a suicide?

Eddie Wants To Set It Straight

WASHINGTON (AP)—Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, the intrepid ace of World War I, wants the record straight. He says he shot down 27 German planes instead of 26.

The Air Force said Wednesday that Rickenbacker, now 68 and head of Eastern Air Lines, has asked that he be credited with "an additional aircraft" in that war more than 40 years ago.

"The matter will be studied by the Board of Correction of Military Records, which will make its recommendations to the secretary of the Air Force," the Air Force spokesman said.

Rickenbacker was a leader of the famous "Hat in the Ring" squadron of American aviators who scored so heavily against their German counterparts in the film, primitive aircraft of the day.

The Air Force gave no details of Rickenbacker's request that his record be upped.

But a reliable source said a former adjutant of his squadron, now working in the Panama Canal Zone, had provided the Air Force with old records proving Rickenbacker had downed a 27th enemy plane in the last days of the war.

In the confusion of the war's end, the record was not forwarded to headquarters.

The planes of World War I were in the Army's jurisdiction. When the Air Force was established as an independent unit in 1947, most individual records were turned over to it. A spokesman said it might be weeks or months before the records correction board makes its recommendation.

Miscalculated In A Jury Trial

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—William S. Wunch, Ph.D. in mathematics, miscalculated the odds in a jury trial.

Wunch, 34, an associate professor in math and physics at Arizona State University, recently was fined $15 for driving 80 miles an hour in a 60-mile zone.

He appealed to Superior Court. Acting as his own counsel Wunch used a time-distance formula to show why he couldn't have been doing 80. The jury disagreed.

Judge Renz L. Jennings did some quick figuring. His answer: a $50 fine.

Bandit Explains Must Dress Well

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—"Every time I do this I get sick inside," a young bandit explained to Irene Solomon. He and a companion robbed her of $67 in her home Tuesday.

"I have to do it to dress well," insisted the bandit, who wore a brown pork pie hat, an Ivy League dark gray suit, an olive green sports shirt, a yellow sweater and argyle socks.

"Why don't you go to a psychiatrist?" retorted Mrs. Solomon—whose husband is one.

Probably First

AMMAN, Jordan (AP)—Bill Johnson, 30, of Hendersonville, N.C., and Jackie Griffin, 24, of Douglas, Ga., were having a drink in a Dead Sea cafe.

They looked across the water and wondered idly what was on the other side. It wasn't long until they had decided to swim over and find out.

Griffin, an employee of the American embassy in Amman, covered the 10 miles in seven hours and two minutes. Johnson, from the American consulate in Cyprus, made it 48 minutes later.

The Jordan army gave them permission to make the swim and provided an escort motor boat.

The two apparently are the first to swim the Dead Sea. No one is known to have made the swim before.

Bette Davis Convinced Prices Crippled Movies

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—People want live entertainment, says Bette Davis, and she and husband Gary Merrill are going to give it to them.

"Five years ago, we were all intrigued by that little box in the living room," the dynamic actress said of TV. "But the novelty has dimmed. People have had enough of sitting around the house; they want to get out. They're tired of staring at the four walls."

She and Gary are going to provide Eastern folks with an excuse to leave their television sets.

Starting in October, they will make a 10-week tour in readings from the works of Carl Sandburg. They'll play mostly one-night stands at college towns and in auditoriums of the bigger cities.

As with all Davis projects, she is embarking on it with vast enthusiasm.

The film industry would do well to emulate some of Bette's enthusiasm. She observed that the movies could cash in on the public's disenchantment with TV—if the money minds changed their ways.

"I firmly believe that the movies have priced themselves out of the market," she said. "This used to be a nickel business. Prices have been hiked up and up until movie entertainment is out of the reach of a great number of the population. People no longer have the movie habit."

"I think it would be a smart move for the industry to drop its admission charge to 50 cents for a year or two. Then people would get back in the habit of going to films, and the movie business would be bigger than ever."

WAUKESHA, Wis. (AP) — The Waukesha County district attorney's office will review all cases since the first of the year in which speeds of motorists were clocked by squad cars.

Three Auto Accidents In City Reported Tuesday

Investigating officers charged a 35-year-old Negro with driving without a license and leaving the scene of an accident after the car he was operating ran into a house at the intersection of Boyd Ave. and Mills St. at 1:42 p.m. yesterday.

According to investigators, Herman Oscar Baker of Rt. 2, Greenville, was operating a car which ran into a house, owned by Mrs. R. M. Garrett, Ayden Highway, Greenville, and left the scene of the accident before the investigators arrived.

Officers listed damage to the car at $150 while the house was not hurt.

A car driven by Julius Caesar Streeter, 43-year-old Negro of 514 Roosevelt Ave., and a two-ton truck operated by Isaac Anderson, 59-year-old Negro of 105 Greenfield Terrace, collided at the intersection of East Tenth and Elm Sts. about 2:30 p.m. yesterday.

According to police, Streeter was headed east on Tenth and was in the left lane attempting to pass a barrier erected in the right lane by utilities crews, when the Anderson truck was sideswiped.

Damage to the Streeter car was set at $50 while the truck was not damaged.

Streeter was charged with failure to yield the right of way as a result of the investigation.

A rear end collision on East Fifth St. yesterday caused an estimated $525 damage to the two vehicles involved.

Officers listed drivers of the two cars, which were headed west on East Fifth St. as Eddie Jones, 63, of 1039 East Sixth St., Washington, and Herbert Roy Rogers, 65, of Route 3, Greenville.

According to the investigating officers, the Jones car was slowing down for a line of traffic when it was struck in the rear by the second auto.

Rogers was charged with following too closely as a result of the accident.
