Tobacco, Wheat Vetoes Seen Setting Stage For Battle Over Farm Issues

By OVID A. MARTIN

WASHINGTON (AP)—Vetoes of two farm bills may well have set the stage for bitter struggles over farm issues next year, both in Congress and in the presidential election campaign.

President Eisenhower rejected Thursday bills affecting wheat and tobacco, saying they failed to meet needs of growers in expanding markets and in curbing costly surplus production.

Under the bills, he said in effect, an already bad situation would have been made worse instead of better.

Eisenhower's action — which had been recommended by Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson — apparently killed all prospects of legislation for these two crops this year.

Wheat is in serious trouble because of surpluses and past failure of the present program to control production.

Tobacco is in serious trouble because of its rigid support system keeps prices going up. The tobacco bill would have stopped the increase, but would not have lowered the prices.

Democratic leaders in Congress sharply criticized the President's action. Disagreeing with his conclusions they prepared to carry to the voters their contentions that the rejected measures would have reduced wheat production and cut the cost of farm programs to taxpayers.

Secretary Benson apparently had no hope of further action on wheat and tobacco at this session. He left Thursday night for a 10-day farm trade trip to Switzerland.

land, West Germany and Denmark.

Backers of the bills virtually abandoned any hope of overriding the vetoes. Most of them talked in terms of trying again next year, but then on a broad approach to the problems of farm income and supply stabilization.

The House Agriculture Committee will open such long-range hearings Monday.

The vetoed bill would have reduced allotments 25 per cent but would have raised support to 90 per cent of parity.

Parity is a standard for measuring farm prices declared by law to be fair to farmers in relation to prices charged them.

Tobacco Growers Offered Republican Support Plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—Tobacco growers were offered a GOP-sponsored price support program today as a substitute for a bill vetoed by President Eisenhower.

Sponsored by Sen. Thruston B. Morton (R-Ky.), the bill would freeze prices for the 1959 and 1960 crop years and prevent a reduction in acreage allotments for the 1959 crop.

Some backers of the bill rejected Thursday by Eisenhower called the Morton bill a repetition of the American Farm Bureau Federation proposal — sweetened by the promise of no acreage cuts.

Sen. B. Everett Jordan (D-NC), in fact, said he didn't like Morton's bill and that he thought it would create chaos in tobacco marketing.

His cosponsor on the bill that was vetoed, Sen. John Sherman Cooper (R-Ky.), said he wouldn't go along with it either, unless he finds the industry will accept it. Cooper made no effort to conceal his strong disappointment at the veto of a bill more permanent than Morton's and one designed to hold prices at present levels at least five years.

In turning the measure down, Cooper said, the President used unsound and inconsistent arguments that Cooper said he believed came from Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson and the American Farm Bureau.

"I think the President was poorly advised," Cooper told the Senate. "I think he made a mistake."

In his veto message, Eisenhower acknowledged the bill had the merit of saving the government 14 million dollars in the first year.

"The bill's demerits, however, are fundamental and far reaching," the President said. "... I cannot approve a bill that holds out hope to the tobacco farmer that it will help solve his problems, when such is not the case."

"United States growers of many types of tobacco are heavily dependent upon exports. Yet we have been fast losing our fair share of foreign markets."

The trouble with the bill, he said, is that it doesn't go far enough in reducing price supports.

Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.), describing the veto action as "most unfortunate," said:

"It is another illustration of the diabolical influence of Ezra Taft Benson on the lives of the farmers of this country."

Weed Men Told Outlook Gloomy

RALEIGH (AP) — A mounting surplus and continued use of poor farm practices threaten to wreck the flue-cured tobacco program, growers from five states were told today.

An audience of several hundred at the annual stockholders meeting of the Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corp. heard General Manager L. T. Weeks report the dark outlook is gloomy.

As of June 23, he said, the corp. was holding 627½ million pounds of tobacco, a gain of 55.7 million pounds over the same time last year.

Despite strenuous sales efforts, Weeks continued, stabilization has been able to move only a small part of the stocks it holds under the government price support program. He referred to poor sales of 1958 crop tobacco, and listed the following three reasons: "1. the long supply situation; 2. the use of unacceptable varieties in some areas, plus poor cultural practices; and 3. use of chemicals for control of suckers, principally maleic hydrazide."

Carl T. Hicks of Walstonburg, co-op president, said the surplus is "a burden upon the market" and a handicap for farmers.

The meeting also heard James P. Richards, former South Carolina congressman and president of the Tobacco Institute Inc., urge a rally to meet the challenge of anti-tobacco forces.

Hicks commented on President Eisenhower's veto of a bill to freeze tobacco price supports. Hicks said it was the first time in 25 years the administration had failed to follow advice of tobacco leaders on legislation.

"I pose this question without attempting to answer," he said. "If growers, warehousemen, processors, manufacturers—all the leadership of the tobacco industry—is incompetent, then who are you and I as farmers going to look to for attention to our best interests?"

Richards warned that campaigners against tobacco are stepping up efforts through state legislation and through health scares.

He said tobacco growers and manufacturers "believe that the health of the American people is more important than the financial success of an enterprise."

But he added emphatically, "We do not intend to be destroyed, if we can prevent it, by assumptions of extreme anti-tobacco people — assumptions that have not been proven."

Ayden Is Offered Nat'l Guard Unit

AYDEN—Ayden's effort to acquire a National Guard unit have been rewarded with its being designated for the medical platoon of the headquarters company for the First Battle Group of the state's National Guard.

The offer has been made conditional on Ayden's recruiting a sufficient number of men to man the unit.

Dr. Clifton Davenport of Ayden, who made the announcement today, said the first meeting with Guard officials and interested personnel was held this morning.

"Full strength of the unit would be 51 men," Dr. Davenport said, "but we feel we can get by with 30 to 36 men." He added that any interested reservists, prior-service personnel or anyone with military obligations or interest who would like to join the unit should contact him at Ayden Clinic.

Efforts by Ayden to obtain a National Guard unit began back in March when a delegation of Ayden citizens, accompanied by Sen. Robert Lee Humber, presented Maj. Gen. Caus Wainwright a petition signed by the Ayden town board and presidents of Ayden civic clubs requesting establishment of a Guard unit in Ayden.

Dr. Davenport said today facilities for housing the unit in the Ayden Recreation Building have been promised by the Recreation Commission and support for the unit has been pledged by Ayden's town board and civic organizations.

Airliner Falls

A Trans World Airlines spokesman in Rome said the TWA office in Milan reported the crash.

Rep. Wooten Puts Value On Unnoted Bill And Court Reform

By JIMMY ELLIS

Reflector Staff Writer

A legislative proposal which failed to pass and a bill which received little publicity were cited today by Representative Frank M. Wooten Jr. as the "most important" pieces of business considered by the 1959 North Carolina General Assembly.

Wooten put the tag of importance on the defeated court reform bill and a measure changing the state's laws regarding estates of persons who died without wills.

Both were so-called "lawyer bills," which would give them a natural significance for Wooten, a Greenville attorney.

A failure of the court reform bill to pass was Wooten's "biggest disappointment" of the session, but he has not given up the idea that basic provisions of the measure will be passed.

"I have recommended, and urged, that Governor (Luther) Hodges and Senator J. Spencer Bell call for a special session this fall to consider the measure again, in the hope that a satisfactory proposal can be agreed upon and presented to the state's voters at the next general election."

"Court reform affects every person in the state, and the proposed measure was an attempt to modify an antiquated structure. Courts should be the same everywhere within the state, with the same qualifications for judges and other personnel."

As far-reaching as court reform would be, Wooten says, the changes in the inheritance laws are equally important. They represent, he claims, the first changes in interstate (without wills) laws since the state was organized.

"The bill is an equalizer, giving husbands and wives the same rights in estates," Wooten says. Under the old inheritance laws affecting persons who die without wills, surviving husbands, generally, received more favorable considerations than surviving wives. One of element of the Assembly's work which meant much to Wooten, personally, was the manner in which recommendations of the Municipal Study Commission were received. Wooten was a member of the commission which, he says, the only one which had its recommendations adopted without major changes.

"The measures are far-reaching ones in the development of the state," according to Wooten. "They provide modern annexation laws, to give protection to the person living outside a municipality, and they also include permissive legislation to enable counties which desire to do so to control subdivision and to zone property."

Wooten has certain objections to measures passed by the General Assembly which are being hailed as the most significant establishment of a minimum wage and provisions for a withholding system to collect state income tax-

President And Queen Elizabeth Formally Open New Water Route

MONTREAL (AP) — President

Eisenhower, at ceremonies formally opening the St. Lawrence Seaway today, called the new water route "a magnificent symbol to the entire world of the achievements possible to Democratic nations peacefully working together for the common good."

The President joined Queen Elizabeth II here for a five-hour cruise through 31 miles of the seaway aboard the royal yacht Britannia.

In her speech the Queen emphasized that the seaway is a product of the joint efforts of the United States and Canada, a "monument to the enduring friendship of our two nations."

Both the Queen and the President spoke from brief prepared texts.

President and Mrs. Eisenhower flew from Washington to Canada's St. Hubert Air Force Base near Montreal this morning. Elizabeth and Prince Philip, who are on a six-week tour of Canada, met them there. Canadian Prime Minister John Diefenbaker and his wife were present when the presidential party arrived.

The main ceremonies took place at St. Lambert Lock, the eastern gate of the seaway, on Montreal's doorstep.

Eisenhower said Americans cherish a record of cooperation and the development of reciprocal trade with Canada.

"There have been and are still problems to solve between us," he said. "But in the past as now we never have faltered in our conviction that these must be settled by patient and understanding negotiation, never by violence."

Eisenhower saluted the architects, planners and workmen who brought the seaway to reality and said former President Herbert Hoover and Canada's former Prime Minister R. B. Bennett "helped create the sentiment for this great development."

The Queen opened her speech with a personal tribute to the President. She said thousands of British Commonwealth fighting men were "proud to serve under your leadership until the ultimate victory was won. We have a special welcome for you as Gen. Eisenhower."

Elizabeth recalled centuries-old dreams and plans for a deep-water route to the Great Lakes and praised the common efforts of Canada and the United States in bringing them to reality.

"The two nations built it together and the two nations will share its benefits," she said. "More than all this, it is a magnificent monument to the enduring friendship of our two nations and to their partnership in the development of North America."

It was a great day for both chiefs of state.

For President Eisenhower, it was the mark of his success in getting U. S. participation in the St. Lawrence seaway approved by Congress after other presidents before him had failed.

For Elizabeth, it emphasized place as Queen of Canada, and was the high point of her current tour across her North American territory. The seaway has been in actual operation since April, but the ceremonial opening was delayed for the Queen's participation.

Today's highlight, after brief remarks by the President and Queen, was a 31-mile cruise into the seaway through some of the locks which enable ocean ships to rise from sea level to the Great Lakes and proceed as far as Duluth, Minn.

The Queen's six-million-dollar yacht Britannia was polished for the five-hour tripp carrying the President and Elizabeth from the St. Lambert Locks, at Montreal's doorstep, to the Beauharnois Locks upstream.

The President's schedule in Canada covered 7½ hours beginning with Elizabeth's greeting at nearby St. Hubert Air Base where U. S. and Canadian defense units operate. President and Mrs. Eisenhower were flying in from Washington to meet the Queen, her husband, Prince Philip, and Canada's Prime Minister John Diefenbaker and his wife at the air base.

After a 21-gun salute to the President, he and the Queen were to make an eight-mile automobile ride through crowds of cheering Canadians to the St. Lambert Locks for the ceremonies.

More than 500 guests, including officials and dignitaries of 30 nations, were invited to the St. Lambert ceremony.

The President's party included Lewis L. Strauss, spending his last days as the secretary of commerce after Senate rejection of his nomination. Others on the President's list were his secretaries of state, army and labor, the U. S. attorney general, and Sens. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark, and Alexander Wiley, R-Wis., the ranking members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Warships of the United States, Canada and Britain were to escort the Britannia through the St. Lambert Locks, the seaway's eastern gate. To the west, in Lake St. Louis, 16 more naval vessels of Canada, Britain and the United States lined up for a salute to the royal yacht.

Governor Long Is Freed By Court

COVINGTON, La. (AP)—A state court today ordered Gov. Earl K. Long of Louisiana released from the Southeast Louisiana (mental) Hospital at Mandeville. Long is now free to resume his duties as governor.

Judge Robert Jones of the 22nd Judicial District signed a dismissal of the order committing Long to the hospital at 10:44 a.m. (CST).

Jones took the action after Joe Arthur Sims, named of the 63-year-old governor's 11-man legal staff, told the court the State Hospital board dismissed officials opposing Long's release.

The board met in an emergency session on Long's order before the hearing and cited the removal of State Hospital Director Jesse Bankston and Dr. Charles Belcher, acting superintendent at the hospital.

The ruling ended 27 days of confinement for the governor in two mental hospitals. His family had him flown to Galveston, Tex., on May 30—much against the governor's will — after he profanely faced political foes during legislative hearings.

Long zipped away from the schoolhouse where the hearing was held less than three minutes after Jones freed him.

A crowd jammed outside to cheer as Long entered the sleek limousine and apparently headed for his governor's chair in the state capitol at Baton Rouge.

Neither Mrs. Long, from whom the governor asked the court for separation Thursday, nor any other member of the Long family was present.

Fast Action On Debt Limit Hike

WASHINGTON (AP)—Fast Senate action has authorized a seven-billion-dollar increase in the national debt to a peacetime record of 295 billion dollars.

With equal speed, the Treasury announced less than an hour later it would take advantage of the new debt ceiling by borrowing five billion dollars in new cash early next month.

Usual Senate procedure was pushed aside for the House-passed measure after Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, Democratic leader, said the Treasury was holding up action on a big re-financing operation until the new ceiling was set.

Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.) voiced the only opposition vote heard. He said the government ought to practice more economy.

If Congress had not acted, the present temporary 288-billion-dollar limit would have dropped to the permanent 283-billion limit next Tuesday, the start of the new fiscal year.

The debt varies from day to day and now ranges around 286 billion dollars.

GLOOMY OUTLOOK

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—After days of rain, the Weather Bureau issued this forecast: "Cloudy with showers. What else?"

'Satchmo' Sits Up; Jokes Again

SPOLETO, Italy (AP)—Trumpet man Louis Armstrong sat up in bed today, chuckled over telegrams of good cheer and joked with his nurse.

Doctors even let him walk to the bathroom unaided.

The king of jazz appeared to rally strongly from a grave attack of pneumonia, complicated by a strained heart and stretched lungs resulting from 45 years of blowing on his magic horn.

Despite Armstrong's apparent improvement, doctors still were watching closely for any sign of complications.

Thursdays Armstrong's temperature shot up to a dangerous 102. He survived two fever crises.

A medical bulletin shortly after 7 a.m. said his temperature was down to normal. His blood pressure was described as low and his pulse 100.

The medical bulletin said he "showed notable improvement."

That was reflected in other reports coming from Armstrong's room on the third floor of the little hospital here.

His wife left his bedside, Anna Venturini, his English-speaking nurse, said he joked with her cheerfully.

"If this continues without complications," a doctor said, "he will be all right in two or three days."

DIED IN ACID VAT

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—An explosion Thursday night hurled two chemical plant workers to their deaths in a 13,000-gallon vat of acid. Firemen recovered the bodies of Albert Hurst and Mac Cox from the vat at the Foote Mineral Co. plant early today.

Hodges Hunting Cigarette Plant

MOSCOW (AP)—Seven visiting U. S. governors look off today for Dubna to take a look at the Soviet Union's atom smasher, the biggest in the world. And tonight they'll become Volga boatmen.

Two others—Robert B. Meyer of New Jersey and Luther H. Hodges of North Carolina—stayed in Moscow.

Hodges wanted to make arrangements to visit a cigarette factory. He began knocking on doors Thursday in attempt to arrange the visit, but so far has not received a definite answer.

The seven governors left for Dubna, about 90 miles north of Moscow, in a fleet of Soviet limousines.

Soviet officials like to take visitors to the atom center on the Volga River. Scientifically minded tourists find it an interesting place. It takes considerable agility to climb around the huge atom smasher that is the feature attraction, and the governors are bound to get tired.

With this in mind Soviet officials arranged for a restful return trip aboard a Volga River steamer.

Saturday the governors leave for a four-day stay in Leningrad.

House Leaders Balk Over Senate Changes In Tax Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—House tax leaders balked today at accepting major tax law changes added by the Senate to a bill to continue corporate and excise tax rates at their Korean War level for another year.

Rep. Wilbur D. Mills (D-Ark.), chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, told a reporter the House would insist on limiting the legislation to a simple extension of the current rates.

In a session running past midnight, the Senate voted to repeal the 10 per cent passenger travel tax, kill the 4 per cent dividend tax credit, repeal the 10 per cent communication tax next year, and increase federal old age grants 142 million dollars.

If enacted, the Senate tax cuts and additional old age grants would throw the President's budget out of balance several hundred million dollars next year.

Mills' stand for the bill as passed by the House was to be expected in advance of negotiations on Senate-House differences.

It did not foreclose House agreement to go along with some of the Senate amendments.

Mills' statement was made as Senate and House conferees met to seek a compromise on the tax and on a bill to continue the present law as to renegotiation of defense contracts.

Before going into the closed-door sessions, Mills had a long discussion with Senate tax leaders.

The Senate-House subcommittee on tax war has been told 42,900,000 men, women and children would have perished in the imaginary assault.

An additional 28 million would have been injured.

About three of every four persons would have lived on.

The Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization, which gave the estimates, also drew up reports on each of the 71 population and industrial centers marked for bombardment.

Rep. Chet Holifield (D-Calif.), subcommittee chairman, said no figures would be given for 153 military and atomic installations also on the attack list.

Dr. John N. Wolfe of the Atomic Energy Commission staff said nuclear war could incinerate forests, precipitate floods and land erosion, bring on disease, pestilence and the threat of famine, hydrogen bomb attack.

Wolfe is chief of AEC environmental sciences branch.

"I visualize those people unsheltered in heavy fallout areas after three months to be dead, dying, sick or helpless; those sheltered, if they can psychologically withstand confinement for that period, to emerge to a strange landscape," he said of an October-time attack.

"The sun will shine through a dust-laden atmosphere, the landscape in mid-July would be snow-covered or blackened by fire."

Spring, Wolfe said, would launch a gradual restoration of human, animal and plant life. But he said full recovery would require decades.

Congress Told Terrible Toll In H-Bomb Attack

WASHINGTON (AP) — With gloomy reports already in hand, Congress received a breakdown of hypothetical casualties suffered in 71 U.S. targets of a make-believe hydrogen bomb attack.

The Senate-House subcommittee on tax war has been told 42,900,000 men, women and children would have perished in the imaginary assault.

An additional 28 million would have been injured.

About three of every four persons would have lived on.

Beaten Child Clutches Rag Doll

Fifteen-month-old Debbie Faye Mize, beaten fearfully about the head when she was slammed into a door, clutches a rag doll as she sits in her crib at a Covington, Ky., hospital. Her 19-year-old stepfather, Harold Wayne Rouse, is in jail on an assault and battery charge and held in lieu of $5,000 bond. Police quoted him as saying he resented the child, born out of wedlock to his 17-year-old bride of three months. Officers quoted Rouse as saying "I picked her up by the heels and banged her head against a door." (AP Wirephoto)

Bells Ring For Edmonds-Rawls

HENDERSON—The Congregational Christian Church was the setting Sunday afternoon for the wedding of Miss Nancy Louise Rawls and William Payne Edmonds, Jr. Officiating was Rev. J. Frank Apple, a former pastor. The bride is the daughter of Mr.

Mrs. William Payne Edmonds, Jr.

and Mrs. Vernon Edward Rawls Jr. of Henderson. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. William Payne Edmonds, also of Henderson, and nephew of Mrs. B. D. Johnston of Greenville. The vows were spoken before a background of emerald palms and pink flowers interspersed with seven branched candelabra holding pink tapers. Prior to the ceremony Mrs. Brooks Harris, organist, and Alex Edmonds, brother of the groom, rendered a program of nuptial music. Mr. Edmonds sang "Because," "Whither Thou Goest," and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an afternoon length gown of French illusion and Chantilly lace over bridal satin and seeded pearl tiara holding a fingertip veil of illusion and carried a bouquet of white gardenias centered with white purple throat orchids. Her only ornaments were a pearl pin, gift of the groom, and pearl earrings.

Miss Ruby Kay Rawls of Henderson was maid of honor. Mrs. D. M. Wall of Youngsville attended as matron of honor. Both wore afternoon length dresses of baby pink chiffon over taffeta designed with shirred bodice in deeper pink ending in back in a V neckline from which trailed baby pink sashes. They wore matching mits and picture hats and carried cascade of pink carnations.

Serving as the groom's best man was his father. Ushers were D. M. Wall of Youngsville and M. V. Stainback of Henderson, brothers-in-law of the bride, and C. C. Laughlin and Maurice Allen of Henderson.

Mrs. Rawls chose for her daughter's wedding a dress of white lace over sky blue taffeta with white accessories and a white purple throat orchid. The groom's mother was attired in a horizon blue lace dress with matching accessories and a white orchid. The bride is a graduate of Henderson High School and now a rising junior at East Carolina College where she is a member of Sigma Pi Alpha fraternity and the Pi Kappa Sorority.

Also a graduate of Henderson High School, the groom attended Fork Union Military Academy and Louisville College. He is presently employed as a radio and TV technician.

Gardening Today

By JOHN DUNCAN

Fifty years from now what will gardening be like? Will methods of gardening be so radically different that the present day ones will seem as obsolete as a streetcar? What future will chemistry play in such a program?

Chemistry is playing an important role now in agriculture. To speculate on its future and its potential is apt to smack of Jules Verneism.

Someday there may be grass that comes up in a day or so, stays green all the time and never exceeds 2 inches. This, of course, would cause lawn mower makers to have an economic running spell. There is, however, no progress that does not leave a hurt somewhere.

Systemics sprayed on the ground around a plant insuring it immunity to both insects and diseases. Combine this with fertilizer and soil conditioner and a non-selective herbicide and you eliminate four garden chores (feeding, spraying, weed pulling and cultivating).

Hedges can be arrested at any height by spraying them with a growth inhibitor. The size of fruits increased by use of hormones to fantastic sizes. (A strawberry as large as a peach?)

Your flower seed will come in bottles and you plant them by spraying on any likely spot. They will not cause you any trouble at all, they have everything built in (small included).

Don't count on this rebirth of Eden. For this future garden magic is perhaps wishful thinking bordering on Horticulture Hysteria. Fifty years is a long time, so in the meantime keep your hoe sharp. And if it ever does happen don't worry (you probably won't be here anyhow).

Clifford-Smith Wed

ATLANTA, Ga.—At a Saturday afternoon ceremony solemnized at Weleca Road Baptist Church, Miss Angelina Smith, daughter of Mrs. Ann Byars Smith and Frank S. Smith, became the bride of John Charles Clifford III, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Charles Clifford, Winston-Salem, N. C.

The bride wore a gown of peau de sole and Alencon lace, embroidered with a delicate tracing of seed pearls. Her fingertip veil of illusion was attached to a coronet of seed pearls. She carried white orchids and valley lilies. Mr. Smith gave his daughter away and she was attended by her sister, Miss Jacqueline Smith, as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Ladye Jernigan and Marilyn Helzel.

David Spencer Clifford was his brother's best man. Serving in the joint role of groomsmen and ushers were Frank Phillips, cousin of the groom, William Helzel, David McClurkin and John W. Helzel.

The ceremony, performed by Dr. J. T. Ford, was followed by a reception in the Church Parlor. After a wedding trip the couple will reside in Atlanta, where Mr. Clifford will resume his studies at Georgia Tech.

Bridal Pair Feted At Reception

BETHEL—Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Whitehead Jr. were honored at a reception recently in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Whitehurst, with Mrs. Bill Goode of St. Petersburg, Fla. and Mrs. L. R. Osborn of Rocky Mount as hostesses.

On arrival, the guests were greeted at the door by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Whitehurst who introduced them to the receiving line composed of Mrs. Bill Goode, mother of the bride; the honorees, Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Whitehead; the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Whitehead Sr.; and his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Marks of Whitakers. Mrs. B. P. Bullock directed the guests to the dining room where the appointed table was covered with a lace cloth, centered with a silver bowl holding an arrangement of pink carnations and white baby's breath, and flanked by silver candelabra with burning pink candles. Mrs. Ralph Carson poured punch and the guests helped themselves to sausage rings, cheese straws, toasted nuts, mints and bridal cakes.

Miss Kay Rogerson, Mrs. Lewis Taylor and Miss Shirley Ann Hardy assisted in the dining room. Mrs. Height Weeks presided at the register and Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Everett said the goodbyes to approximately 85 persons who were present for the occasion.

College Represented At Library Session

East Carolina College will be well represented at the annual convention of the American Library Association which is meeting this week in Washington, D. C. Wendell W. Smiley, librarian of the Joyner library, Miss Elizabeth Scott Walker, assistant librarian, and Mrs. Marguerite Vanderlock Crenshaw, assistant professor of library science, will attend section meetings.

Seven students from the present class in cataloging will also attend. They are Mrs. Earl Blalock, Miss Billie Bollinger, Mrs. Barbara P. Aycock, Mrs. Mary P. Shackelford, Miss Lola Sawyer, Miss Sylvia Taylor and Miss Frances Moore.

A strip of plywood was cut into sections and petitions were set in a cabinet drawer. Utensils can now be stored with ease. The mixer was moved on the counter where it is convenient for use. Mrs. Goswick did the work herself and has arranged many more time saving conveniences.

According to Miss Whisnant, many steps, stoops, and bends have been saved since Mrs. Goswick changed her work habits.

Mrs. Goswick Turns Carpenter

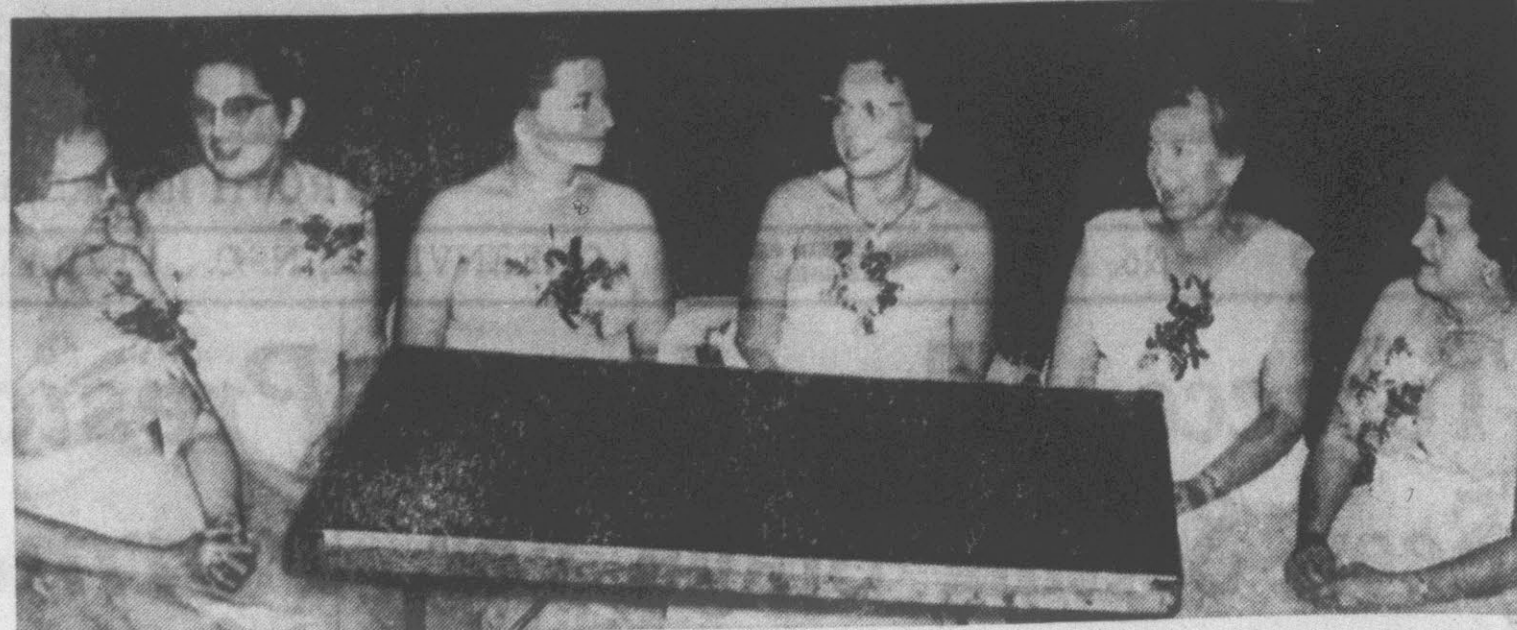

RALEIGH—Mrs. Robert Goswick of Franklin County turned carpenter recently to make her kitchen more convenient.

Miss Mamie Whisnant, home management specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service, says that following a demonstration on "The Arrangement of Materials and Appliances for Greater Convenience," Mrs. Goswick started making plans for her kitchen.

30 Years Ago Today

June 26, 1929

The new motor truck law recently passed by the North Carolina Legislature was declared unconstitutional in a ruling handed down today by Judge W. C. Harris of the Superior Court of North Carolina, according to a message received in this city today from Judge Albion Dunn.

The decision was the outcome of a test case made against a law which virtually confiscated the trucks of the farmers of North Carolina, and put them in one of the worst positions in transportation history. It trebled the license tax of a truck operation over a distance of 50 miles and hit at the very life of the farming industry of this community.

Stretching Dollars

Pitt County food shoppers will be able to find a variety of fruits at the produce counters of the local markets this week. North Carolina Sandhills peaches, all melons—cantaloupes, watermelons and honey dews—are available. When buying melons compare size with price or best value.

The larger size melons are generally preferred because they have more heart or flesh that is free from seed, although many varieties have been developed recently that are seedless. The essential factor of the quality of watermelons is the degree of maturity. It is often difficult for even an experienced food shopper to determine the state of ripeness without plugging or cutting the melon. Usually the ripe melons are firm, symmetrical, fresh and attractive in appearance, and of good color which may vary from a deep solid green to a gray according to the variety. A bloom is over the surface of the melon giving it a somewhat veiled appearance and the lower side is somewhat yellowish. Generally such melons will have a crisp, juicy, sweet flesh.

Sweetness, however, is largely dependent on variety. A common test for ripeness or maturity is a kind of sound given off when the melon is "thumped". It is assumed that the melon is ripe when a dull hollow sound is heard and that it is immature when a ringing sound is emitted.

This type of test has definite limitations; however, avoid buying watermelons that are ill-shaped, immature—these present a hard greenish appearance, injured by worms and have bruises, cut in places and discolored or soft places around the stem or blossom end. This indicates decay and will spread rapidly.

Watermelons should be refrigerated unless the fruit is immature. It takes considerable time to chill watermelons—chill at least 12 hours before serving. Lemons are increasing in supply and quality at the markets, with apples, plums, grapes and avocados limited in supplies with higher prices.

Poultry continues in the spotlight as an outstanding protein buy. Eggs have advanced a few cents, but are still relatively low in price. Fryers and heavy hens remain a bargain buy.

Heavy cabbage and green bean harvesting has brought lower prices, with white and yellow squash in good supply. Good supplies of spring onions, beets and cucumbers can be purchased.

Fresh and smoked pork chops are better values in red meats. Beef specials may be found in roasts and round steak cuts. Consider frozen and canned fish for variety and economy in spending the meat dollar this weekend.

Informal Coffee Hour Entertains

GRIFTON—Mrs. Quincey Hill entertained Wednesday morning at an informal coffee hour at her home in Pine Villa. In the hall decorations featured gladioli and in the living room bright hued zinnias.

A cutwork linen cloth was used on the coffee table and guests were served assorted sandwiches, cinnamon buns, nut rolls with coffee.

A special guest of the morning was Mrs. Emily Stark of Portsmouth, Va., a guest of her daughter, Mrs. Jerry Incoe. Others enjoying the occasion were Mesdames Incoe, Wayne Lanka, Richard Cavanaugh, C. C. Calicut, C. M. Batten, Eugene Fleming, Lindey Speight.

Mrs. Whitehead Shower Honoree

BETHEL—Tuesday night Mrs. Clayton Purvis and Mrs. Dalton Purvis entertained Mrs. Lyman Whitehead, the former Loretta Bullock, at a kitchen miscellaneous shower in the home of Mrs. Clayton Purvis on Jefferson St. A pink and white motif was used for the occasion. On the table, covered with white linen, the centerpiece was an arrangement of pink carnations flanked by crystal candleholders with burning pink tapers.

The 26 guests were served party dainties buffet style. Many useful gifts were opened and displayed.

Frost It

Quick frosting: Bake a chocolate cake in a 13 by 9 by 2 inch pan. As soon as you take the cake from the oven sprinkle the top surface with semi-sweet chocolate pieces from a six-ounce package. Return to the oven until chocolate softens—about 5 minutes. Spread the chocolate evenly and sprinkle with nuts.

PLAN AHEAD Count on six to eight portions per quart of ice cream if you are serving it plain or with a sauce.

FROM THE GARDEN

Mince fresh parsley and basil from the garden plus grated Romano or Parmesan cheese added to ground beef produce wonderful Italian-type meat balls for tomato sauce to be served with pasta.

Informal Hour Fetes Bride

BETHEL—Mrs. Bradley Gray, the former Margaret Conyers, was honored with an informal hour Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. Alton Carson with Mrs. Benjamin F. Manning and Mrs. Abbott Milton McWhorter as co-hostesses.

Honors were also extended to recent brides, Mrs. Carlton Keel, Mrs. Bruton Edmondson Jr. and Mrs. Lyman Whitehead.

A centerpiece of white carnations, baby's breath and lace fern decorated the dining table from which various party foods and orange frosted drinks were served. The bridal motif was carried out with the use of white gladioli, magnolia and white tapers in the living room and den.

The brides were presented gifts of silver and china. Approximately 50 guests attended.

Bridge Parties

BETHEL—Mrs. Elizabeth Benton was hostess to the six members of her bridge club last week with two visitors present to take part in the game. The visitors were Miss Camille Staton and Mrs. T. R. Andrews Sr.

Three progressions were made. Between the second and third, ice cream, cake and coffee were served.

At the conclusion of play, Mrs. William Andrews was awarded a prize for scoring high and Mrs. T. R. Andrews was awarded low prize.

Mrs. Bunting Entertains

Mrs. J. R. Bunting entertained at bridge in her home on McWhorter Street Tuesday night at eight.

Those who were present to take their places at the three tables arranged for play were Mesdames Van Taylor Jr., Bob Young, James Crandell, Eugene Carson, Bill Whitehurst, Frank Hemmingway, T. R. Andrews Jr. and the hostess. At the end of progressions Mrs. Height Weeks was counted high score winner.

The hostess served angel food cake, nuts and drinks.

FISH SHOULD FLAKE

To test fish to find out whether it is done, poke it with a fork and note whether it flakes. Use a visual test, too! The transparent raw flesh should have turned opaque.

DRESS IT UP

Use minced scallions (green onions) to pep up tuna or chicken salad; be sure to add some of the green tops.

Gov. Hodges Scored Big In 1959 Assembly

By BRYAN HANSLIP
RALEIGH (AP) — When salesmen Luther Hodges returns from Russia, there are legislators who won't be surprised if he announces plans for a North Carolina caviar factory.

And if he doesn't, some will say it's only because he didn't take Joe Eagles along to lobby the Reds.

Whatever success the governor has with the Russians, it will have to be good to top the record he and Eagles, Wilson businessman and former legislator, accomplished with the 1959 General Assembly.

Traditionally, a chief executive nearing the end of his term is a "lame duck" who fares ill with his final legislature. Not so for Hodges; with Eagles as contact man to rally legislative support, he saw major portions of an ambitious program written into law.

Perhaps significantly, the businessman governor had his greatest success in the economic sphere, while his program floundered in the legal field of constitutional revision and court reform.

Thus, Hodges sold the lawmakers an optimistic, no-new-taxes budget, but failed to convince a critical group of lawyers that proposed court changes were sound.

The defeat of bills to rewrite the state constitution and to lay groundwork for a uniform court system represented the session's prime setback for the administration. Hodges had promoted and praised the work of study groups which brought in the proposals. Before the legislature, he gave them full weight of his support.

Legislators, led by venerable Sen. Lindsay Warren of Beaufort and sharp-tongued Rep. John Kerr of Warren, balked at surrendering authority over the court system to the office of chief justice. Another factor in wrecking the bills was political antagonism between small county leaders and legislators from population centers, which resulted in amputation of provisions to assure reapportionment of legislative seats after census counts.

On the plus side, the governor's forces pushed through spending and revenue measures largely along the lines recommended by Hodges and the Advisory Budget Commission.

Hodges and his revenue chiefs helped ease pressure for increased spending by raising by 20 million dollars estimates of tax collections in the two fiscal years ahead. This gave lawmakers additional spending money without the worry of new taxes.

One of the stiff battles for administration generals was on a withholding plan for state income tax collection. The governor balanced his budget on the 27½ million dollar windfall to be realized from speeded-up collections in the switch to withholding.

Outcries of "gimmick budgeting" and gloomy predictions of de-laying the need for new taxes until 1961 were stifled, and withholding became law.

Administration men succeeded in holding the spending line when a strong House bloc rose up to demand an extra 10 million dollars for school teacher pay.

The House first voted for the pay boost, with a final decision delayed over a weekend. Eagles maneuvered busily, and four switched votes helped mend the crack in the budget dike.

The one significant reverse for Hodges in the fiscal field was rejection of a pet project—a scheme to entice local governments to put more money into schools. The

Ordination Services Set Here Saturday

Wallace Irving Wolverton, Jr. will be ordained deacon in the Episcopal Church in a service to be held at St. Paul's Church, Greenville, Saturday, at 11:00 a.m. The Ordination will be performed by the Rt. Rev. Thomas H. Wright, Bishop of the Diocese of East Carolina.

The ordination sermon will be preached by his father, The Very Reverend Canon Wallace L. Wolverton, Dean of Divinity, St. John's College, Winnipeg, Canada.

Other clergymen from this area will take part in the service. The Rev. John W. Drake, Jr., rector of the local church, will present Mr. Wolverton for ordination. The Rev. Charles A. Taylor, Jr., rector of St. Matthias Church, Toocoo, Georgia, will read the Preface. The Rev. Don Raby Edwards, rector of St. Christopher's Church, Havelock, will act as Litanist, and the Rev. Charles Edward Sharp, St. Paul's Church, Beaufort, as Epistler.

Evangelist Will Hold Services

The Rev. Ralph McGilvra (above) will conduct two weeks of evangelistic services in Grace Free Will Baptist Church of Greenville June 28-July 12.

Probably best remembered in Greenville for his appearance here three years ago in a union city-wide campaign, Mr. McGilvra then served in the capacity of song-leader and soloist. During that time he also spoke at several local churches.

For nearly 11 years after his graduation from Bob Jones University in South Carolina, Mr. McGilvra served as associate pastor or pastor of churches in three states, and for 29 months conducted his own daily radio broadcast in Oklahoma during a pastorate term there. For four years after the pastoral experience he has travelled in full-time evangelistic work. Since fall of 1957 he has been teaching at Bob Jones University.

Rev. Rashie Kennedy, pastor of Grace Free Will Baptist Church, has announced services will be held each night at 7:45, with a nursery for children of three years of age and under. The pastor and evangelist will be on WNCN June 29 through July 3 for morning devotions, and on radio WGTC July 5 through July 11 for morning devotions.

Reports Nikita Won't Retreat

MOSCOW (AP) — W. Averell Harriman says Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev told him the Soviet Union will not retreat from its demand that the Western Allies get out of Berlin.

The former governor of New York spoke with newsmen after he and Khrushchev lunched at the U.S. Embassy Thursday. U.S. Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson gave the farewell luncheon to Harriman, who leaves Moscow today after a six-week tour of the Soviet Union.

FAA To Elect State Officers

RALEIGH (AP) — Election of state officers headed the program for today's wind-up session of the 31st annual state convention of the Future Farmers of America.

More than 2,000 delegates and their guests watched Thursday as some $16,000 in cash awards were presented to outstanding FFA members.

The Mount Pleasant chapter won a $100 award as state winner of the FFA crops production program.

The state star dairy farmer was John O'Bryant of Reidsville, who received $100 and a plaque. In the FFA crops judging program, the Bandys chapter took first place and $50.

Receiving National FFA Foundation awards were Milton Sharpe of Elm City, state winner of the farm mechanics contest, who won $100 in cash, and the South Edgecombe chapter, the farm safety contest winner, which was awarded $100.

The North Davidson chapter was state winner of the dairy cattle division of the livestock improvement program. The team members, Norman Nifong, Charles Leonard and Wayne Warden, each received $100.

The state forestry contest winner was Harold Howard of Apex, who received $125 as did his FFA adviser, T. B. Holland. The state chapter winner in the forestry contest was the Wesley Chapel chapter, which was awarded $100.

Edward Boston of Bunker Hill won first place prize of $100 in the public speaking contest.

The Oak City chapter, first in the ritual and parliamentary procedure contest, was awarded $150.

Tobacco Industry To Be Sacrificed

President Eisenhower's veto of the tobacco price support freeze bill indicates a determination of the administration to wreck the tobacco price support program even if it means ruining the American tobacco industry by doing so.

Without the bill passed by congress which would freeze tobacco support prices at the 1958 level for the next four to five years, American tobacco will automatically be priced higher, curtailing more drastically the amount of American leaf now moving into world markets. Already in recent years American tobacco sales abroad have been sharply reduced because the price support program prevented it from competing with tobacco produced in other areas.

Unless it can regain some of its foreign markets—or at least retain those markets which it now has—tobacco production in the United States will have to be curtailed sharply. There seems little hope of doing either if the price support freeze passed by Congress does not become law.

It means therefore, that the tobacco industry must either accept price supports of less than 90 per cent of parity which Secretary Benson has long fought for, or face greater loss of foreign markets and resulting curtailment of production.

Neither is a happy prospect.

There can be little doubt that the President's veto of the bill is a move calculated to force the tobacco industry to bow to Secretary Benson's less-than-90-per-cent-parity proposals. Congress steadfastly has refused to approve less than 90 per cent of parity for tobacco supports in spite of the urgings by Secretary Benson.

It likewise rejected Benson's plan for freezing tobacco prices by a 128-65 vote in the House which subsequently approved the price freeze program advocated by the tobacco industry.

Now the presidential veto will be used in an effort to carry the point of the Secretary of Agriculture. The President apparently is willing to see that the Secretary's proposals are followed even if it spells ruin to an industry which provided the livelihood of millions of Americans and provides billions of income to this country.

To sacrifice a major industry of this country to satisfy the vanity of one member of the cabinet is going too far.

By his veto, President Eisenhower has shown his utter disregard for the American tobacco industry, the welfare of the nation's foreign sales of this important product, and the welfare of the millions in this and other areas who depend on tobacco for their livelihood.

In the balance now hangs the fate of the tobacco industry as we know it.

Unless Congress overrides this presidential veto, we may expect two things to happen:

1. Sales of American leaf abroad will continue to decline, causing greater restrictions on tobacco production in this nation.

2. Building up surplus stocks of tobacco in this country until the tobacco industry will be forced either to surrender unconditionally to Secretary Benson or face complete collapse of the tobacco program.

President Eisenhower's veto of this bill is a vicious thrust at the tobacco industry which every area in which tobacco is produced must fight with every ounce of its vigor.

Congress must be persuaded to override the President's veto.

One Of Most Valuable Man-Made Waterways

Dedication of the St. Lawrence Seaway today by President Eisenhower and Queen Elizabeth formally opens a fourth coast for the United States.

Since it was opened for business two months ago yesterday, more than 1,500 ships have used the waterway . . . a number that would rival the usage of the seacoasts of many nations of the world. So constructed that three-fourths of the world's ships will have access to the inland heart of America, the Seaway becomes the equivalent of a fourth coast of this country to be used in conjunction with the Atlantic, Pacific and Gulf coasts.

What it will mean to this nation and Canada in terms of a new access to world markets, and also in terms of economic development is difficult to estimate. Suffice it to say it will prove one of the most valuable man-made waterways on the face of the earth.

Already along the Seaway there has begun the development of port facilities which are destined to become of international importance. Formal opening of the passage thrusts a broad inland area of both the United States and Canada into new importance in the highly sensitive arena of international trade.

Berlin Issue To Be Faced Again

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — Time, like an old lady with a broom, has swept the Berlin crisis under the rug. But it's still there and pretty soon it will have to be faced again.

Strangely, although everybody knows how the crisis started, nobody seems to know why even though it's been examined and talked about for almost seven months.

It was last Nov. 27 that Premier Nikita Khrushchev warned the Western Allies to get their troops out of West Berlin although they've had them there since World War II days.

Since then most Western thinking has been occupied with wondering whether Khrushchev was determined to force a showdown with the West or whether he could be negotiated out of it. But the why of what he did remains a mystery. So does his yearning for a summit conference, which began about the same time.

Secretary of State Christian A. Herter, who told the nation Tuesday night about his troubles with the Soviets, negotiated six weeks with them at Geneva to reach some understanding about Berlin.

Then the West and the Soviet Union decided to take a breather. They recessed until July 13 when they'll meet again in Geneva. At the rate they've been going, the summer may be over before they reach an agreement or break off altogether.

So the crisis, out of sight at least until mid-July, must be faced again.

The Soviets, who have striven hard to keep their satellite world tight and intact, must consider the Western troops in West Berlin, and even the city itself with its inhabitants linked to the West, as a cancerous condition.

The city, 110 miles inland Communist East Germany, is an island of two million free people right in the heart of the Communist world. And their interests, the allegiances are turned westward.

Khrushchev could have had several reasons for precipitating this crisis with his Nov. 27 warning:

1. He may have felt that the Soviet Union — for whom the West Berlin situation has long been a sore spot — is now sufficiently powerful to force a showdown with the West, in the hope the latter would let the city go.

2. He may have felt this was as good a time as any to test or try to shake the solidarity of the United States and West European alliance. Would some of the West Europeans, or even the United States, be willing to face the war over Berlin?

That's a question which must have been in the Soviet mind a long time. Khrushchev may have decided it was time to look for an answer. One thing is certain:

If the West backs down on Berlin, reaching an agreement which would leave the city and its people open to Communist absorption, the whole Western alliance is weakened and may be ruined.

That would be a wonderful bargain for Khrushchev at very little expense. The only expense would be the time and the wind he used up in making the threat. These are exactly what they appear to be: Guesses, even though they look like obvious ones. But no one can pretend he has the positive answers. And because the West doesn't have the answer it is to that degree involved in a guessing game.

That alone puts it at a disadvantage in trying to negotiate a settlement with Khrushchev. In the end the only way open to the West to overcome this disadvantage may be to end negotiations and tell Khrushchev:

"We made the threat, now make good."

If the West reaches that point the crisis will be here in earnest.

The Most Feared Man

By JIMMY ELLIS

They'll Play Top Teams

The 1959 football season is a good two months or more away, but a note in the mail this week brought it sharply into focus.

Commissioner Jim Weaver of the Atlantic Coast Conference has sent out a digest of coaches' comments on prospects for the coming season. The comments are interesting enough, but a look at the composite schedule for ACC teams is perhaps more interesting.

The league's eight teams will play a total of 80 games. Included in the list of their opponents are 24 of the nation's highly regarded football teams.

Duke bites off possibly the biggest chunk of football talent with its schedule. In addition to ACC foes South Carolina, N.C. State, Clemson, Wake Forest and North Carolina, the Blue Devils will take on Ohio State, Rice, Pittsburgh, Army and Georgia Tech.

The Tar Heels, who, according to Coach Jim Tatum, "may be overscheduled", will play each of the other seven members of the ACC. On their "off" Saturdays, they will take on Notre Dame, Tennessee and Miami.

Clemson, which so many of the nation's football "experts" manage to overlook every year, has another tough schedule for 1959. The Tigers play all of the other ACC teams in addition to outsiders Georgia Tech, Rice and Furman.

Maryland, still operating under the atmosphere that Tatum built when he was there, plays West Virginia, Texas, Syracuse and Navy, plus six conference games.

South Carolina, trying hard for a place in the national football sun, goes against Furman, Georgia and Miami outside the conference. They also play the other seven league teams.

N.C. State, working gradually into a genuine big-time schedule without any breakers, takes on six conference opponents, plus Virginia Tech, Wyoming, Mississippi Southern and UCLA.

Virginia, which will go into the 1959 season with much less than it had in 1958, has what appears to be more of a schedule. The Cavaliers will play five conference games, traditional contests with William and Mary, Virginia Military Institute and Virginia Tech, and other games with Vanderbilt and Florida.

Wake Forest, trying to work back up to the level of national prominence it had under Peabody Walker, has scheduled games with seven conference opponents after first meeting Florida State, Virginia Tech and Tulane.

In their comments about the coming season, none of the coaches have any reservations about the schedules facing them. They all recognize, however, that their work is cut out for them.

The whole situation is one which makes ACC football especially interesting to the person who really enjoys the sport.

It is also a situation which makes those of us who are not coaches appreciate the security of other jobs.

Opinions In Brief

"To unite Europe in wealth and strength, it is not the sovereignty of many states which has to be destroyed, but the fatal belief of her peoples in state economic planning. . . . Unity is not brought about by laws to control trade but by the absence of such laws." — George Winder, in The Freeman.

"The cost of living has always been the same—just about what you earn or a little more." — Greenville (S.C.) Piedmont.

"Twenty years ago it cost only as much to run the entire federal government as our annual cost for interest alone on the national debt today." — Fort Payne (Ala.) Times-Journal.

Dance Under Guard

By ANDREW BOROWIEZ ALGIERS (AP) — They dance from 9 p.m. to 5 o'clock in the morning in swank villas along Algeria's beaches.

No one can come later or leave earlier because of curfew.

In the evening twilight, armored cars slowly patrol the road, some 20 miles from Algiers. A territorial sentry leans lazily against a sandbag gun emplacement.

On the oval floor of the giant, flower-bedecked living room, some 40 French couples whirl to the latest American tunes.

"You see, mama said we should never trust these people," said a pretty brunette. "Even since the gardener stole papa's gun and joined the guerrillas we never hire Arab servants. We import them from Spain."

"Feel my gun," said a young lawyer. "I had this suit cut so no one could tell I carry it. I never leave the house without it. You can't trust the Arabs."

On the terrace overlooking the Mediterranean glittering in the moonlight, a young lieutenant smokes his cigarette.

"Two years of this mess," he said. "I have wasted two years here. Don't ask me how the army feels. I don't represent the army. I hate it."

"It's all settled," an oil engineer said. He had just been to the new Sahara oilfields and beamed enthusiasm. "In two or three months the whole war will be over. We will negotiate with the rebels if necessary. We have to keep this country because of the oil. We will give the rebels some concessions but the oil must be ours."

"You see here 'papa's' Algeria," said a psychological warfare officer pointing to the dance floor. "Daughters and sons of rich settlers, Handsome, well-dressed, carefree. They think the army's job here is to make sure that Algeria of tomorrow will be the same bed of roses for them and their kind."

A searchlight stabbed the darkness. The guiding lights of a nearby airbase glittered in even strings.

At 5 a.m., girls in party dresses and their young men began to leave. They formed small convoys of two to three cars for it still was dark.

Slowly, dawn began to break over Algeria.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

EVEN THOUGH DIMLY

Are we really bad?

Yes and no. You may reply that this is the answer always given by persons who don't know what they're talking about, and to that I agree and confess that I am a limited and humble individual.

Yes, we are all bad. Let us look at straight in the eye for a moment. Everybody makes mistakes. Everybody at some time deliberately does what he knows is not right. Furthermore, we are members of a fallen race. God made man in his own image, but man lost no time marring that image by disobedience and sin. Regardless of whether there are people on other planets or not, God has evidently disapproved of this one pretty dismal-looking lot of delinquents. There may be worse people in the universe than the worst of human beings, but that is hard to believe.

And yet, we are also basically good. A fragment of God is in every one of us. The image of God is still the distinguishing mark of our being. Put to the test, mankind usually responds nobly and with unlimited self-sacrifice. Homo sapiens can be mean, little, selfish, and miserable, but when he sets in a tight place, the good usually comes out. God shines through, even though very dimly.

Other Editors Saying Cutting Education Cost

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

An arrangement whereby students at the University of Maryland, or other Maryland residents, may attend the University of North Carolina for study leading to a master's degree in library science is an example of how well aims of higher education can be furthered at a minimum of cost through cooperation.

The cooperative arrangement between UNC and Maryland comes under the student aid contract program of the Southern Regional Education Board, and was made in lieu of establishing a library science program at the University of Maryland. Under the agreement Maryland students interested in obtaining a master's degree in library science apply directly to the University of Maryland. The state of Maryland then covers the out-of-state tuition of its students wishing to enroll in the program.

Through this Southern Regional Education Board program Maryland is able to meet the educational needs of a small number of its residents that a great deal of money. The student aid contract program can cover any phase of education, and enables a state to send its citizens to schools in other states and thereby part of the students' costs.

Cooperating schools are thus strengthened by additional students and the sending state is spared the expense of adding an expensive program that would not be filled to capacity. This type of cooperative agreement could be one of the answers to the rising costs of education. A similar agreement has been in operation for two years involving the state of Tennessee and institutions in four other states to provide education in forestry and architecture for interested Tennessee students.

The student aid contract program is one of many programs sponsored by the Southern Regional Education Board in a successful effort to improve the quality of higher education. The SREB was established in 1949, and has been ratified by the legislatures of 16 Southern states. It is devoted to help Southern colleges build high quality research and educational programs by providing regional support and utilization of advanced programs, and by avoiding costly and unnecessary duplication of facilities among the compact states.

This organization strives to aid in the social and economic advancement of the South by assisting states in improving the quality of higher education. Its purpose is to provide the widest opportunity possible in higher education by building educational programs which meet the social and economic needs of the region.

The Southern Regional Education Board is helping the South meet and conquer the challenges of education.

Japanese TV Is Like America's

By ELMER ROESSNER

(This is the fourth of a series of columns on business today in Japan. Roessner visited Japan on Japan Air Lines' inaugural flight from Los Angeles.)

Tune in a Japanese television or radio station almost any time and you're likely to hear:

"Kang, kang, Kanebo! Kang kang, Kanebo! Akachan no toki kang Kanebo keito."

It's as catchy as the old "nickel, nickel, nickel" Pepsi jingle. Translated:

"Clang, clang, Kanebo! Clang, clang, Kanebo! Since the days of my babyhood I've been using Kanebo woolsens."

Kanebo is the trade name of one of the largest manufacturers of woolen goods in Japan.

Television and radio in Japan are much the same as in the United States. There are spot commercials, long commercials on sponsored programs, soap operas, horse operas, special events coverage, wrestling and a rating system similar to Trendex or Pulse.

NUMBER ONE SHOW: LASSIE In fact, some of the top Japanese shows are simply well-known American shows with Japanese sound tracks.

The rating system, called "MMR," showed that the most popular show was "Lassie" when I was there. It was followed by "What's My Line?," "Superman," "Gekkokamen," a Japanese version of Superman; and "The Diamond Hour," a weekly program alternating "Disneyland" and American wrestling on tape. That's right: In Japan, home of the classic Japanese style of wrestling, American grunts share the fifth TV spot.

There is one program in English, "Private Secretary," called "Susie" in Japan. It has a very low MMR rating and was dropped for a while. Its audience, consisting of Americans, Britishers and serious Japanese students of English, raised such a ruckus that it was reinstated.

the five boosters are operated by the government's NHK corporation, which is similar to BBC in Britain. The other 35 stations are operated by 35 private-enterprise companies.

Each set is supposed to be licensed, and there are 2,158,450 registered receivers. In addition, there are an estimated 600,000 clandestine shun-tax sets.

Japanese-made 14-inch sets sell for around $190. The 17-inch sets average $280 and 21-inch sets, $380. The 14-inch set is most popular, partly because the Japanese are thrifty; mostly because Japanese rooms are small. A 10-by-10-foot room is large.

While about one in 20 Japanese families have television sets, practically every family has a radio receiver.

CHANGING LIFE IN JAPAN Television has had a terrific, almost incredible, impact on Japanese life — far greater than that upon American ways — Haru Yoneda, of YOKO-TV, Channel 6, told me. Mr. Yoneda, a Columbia University graduate, learned television working for CBS, New York. He took me on a tour of the JOKR studios to show what he meant. Japan is in transition. Part of the population lives a Western style of life; part a traditional Japanese way. In its live dramas, should television show Japanese squatting on mats on the floor or sitting in chairs at tables? Should it show Japanese women cooking over charcoal, or facing modern stoves?

Except in historical dramas the West won. The sets Mr. Yoneda showed me were all modern. Living rooms had chairs and tables. Kitchens had gleamed with white ranges and refrigerators. Pots and pans were of aluminum, not cast iron.

The consequences are that hundreds of thousands of Japanese wives — the humble creatures dedicated to a life of serving the master-husbands — are now working on the men. The men, too, are getting The Message from those 14-inch screens.

There is scarcely a home in Japan today without at least one major electric appliance. Renchi Yatsunami, director of JOKR programs, said:

Priest and King in Judah

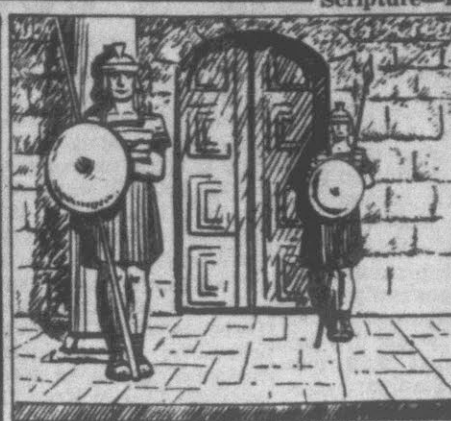

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—II Kings 11-12.

Joash, young son of King Ahaziah, was forced to flee from his home with his nurse because a wicked woman sought to kill him. He was hidden in the house of the Lord for six years.—II Kings 11:2-3.

Jehoiada, the priest, fetched soldiers to the house of the Lord and showed the child to them. He then set the fully armed soldiers as guards to see that no harm came to Joash.—II Kings 11:4-8.

Then Jehoiada brought forth the seven-year-old boy, put the crown upon him and gave him the testimony, anointing him king. All the people cried, "God save the king!"—II Kings 11:12.

Then Jehoiada made a covenant between the Lord and the king and the people, that they should be the Lord's people, and the people rejoiced.—II Kings 11:17-20.
MEMORY VERSE—Joshua 24:18.

Priest and King in Judah

THE BOY, JOASH, BECAME KING OF JUDAH AND THE USURPER, ATHALIAH, WAS SLAIN

Scripture—II Kings 11-12.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
ATHALIAH, daughter of Ahab, king of Jordan, married Jehoram, king of Judah. They had a son, Ahaziah, who died. After his death, "she arose and destroyed all the seed royal," apparently to pave her own way to the throne. She also introduced the worship of Baal.

Ahaziah's son, Joash, was rescued by his aunt, Jehosheba, with his nurse. "He was with her hid in the house of the Lord six years. And Athaliah did reign over the land."—II Kings 11:2-3.
"And the seventh year Jehoiada sent and fetched the rulers over hundreds, with the captains and the guard, and brought them to him into the house of the Lord, and made a covenant with them, and took an oath of them in the house of the Lord, and shewed them the king's son."—II Kings 11:4.

Then Jehoiada set guards to protect the young boy from being attacked. He commanded: "A third of part of you that enter in on the sabbath shall even be keepers of the watch of the king's house; and a third part shall be clapped their hands, and said, God save the king."—II Kings 11:12.

Why did Athaliah murder all these innocent little ones? Possibly, after her son died, she was insanely jealous of other mothers whose babes were living. She may also have inherited the traits of her mother, the wicked Jezebel.

In our generation, a person who commits such a dreadful deed is given mental tests to determine if he was responsible for his actions. In those far-off days they did not have our modern methods of determining this. There were no psychiatrists to give aid to such mentally disturbed people.
"And Jehoiada did that which was right in the sight of the Lord all his days wherein Jehoiada the priest instructed him."—II Kings 12:2.

His people "went into the house of Baal, and brake it down; his altars and his images brake they in pieces thoroughly, and slew the priest of Baal before the altars."—II Kings 11:18.
The high places, however, were not taken away, and people still at the gate of Sur; and a third part at the gate behind the guard: so shall ye keep the watch of the house, that it be not broken down."

"And two parts of all you that go forth on the sabbath, even they shall keep the watch of the house of the Lord about the king. And ye shall compass the king round about, every man with his weapons in his hand; and he that cometh within the ranges, let him be slain: and be ye with the king as he goeth out and as he cometh in."—II Kings 11:5-8.

So "the captains over the hundreds did according to all things that Jehoiada the priest commanded; and they took every man his men that were to come in on the sabbath, with them that should go out on the sabbath, and came to Jehoiada the priest."—II Kings 11:9.

Then the priest gave to the captains King David's spears and shields that were in the Lord's temple. "And he brought forth the king's son, and put the crown upon him, and gave him the testimony; and they made him king, and anointed him; and they sacrificed in these places.—II Kings 12:3.

Jehoiada told the priest that all moneys given in gifts or tithes by the people should be dedicated to repairing the temple. "But it was so, that in the three and twentieth year of King Jehoiash the priests had not repaired the breaches of the house."

However, Jehoiada safeguarded money and so the temple was restored.—II Kings 12:6.

We have no space here to tell how the king of Syria, Hazael, attacked Jerusalem and how the king sinned by making him gifts of all the hallowed treasures of the temple, but the teachers should read the scripture carefully and impart it to their pupils.
Joash came to a sad end; he was killed by his own servants. So ended the life of a man who forsook the Lord's ways and was punished.—II Kings 12:20.

Let us all, parents in the home and teachers in the Sunday school, impress on children the wisdom of obeying the laws of right as taught in this lesson.

Thor Missile Given New Test

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The Air Force fired its Thor intermediate range ballistic missile on a 1,500-mile reliability flight Thursday night.
The 65-foot Thor, which doubles in brass as a war rocket and satellite booster, carved a fiery path through a clear sky in what appeared to be a perfect launch. Earlier, another Thor served as the first stage for a Discoverer satellite rocket launched at Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif. The satellite did not orbit, however.
The Air Force missile training center announced that the Cape shot was another in a series to improve the missile's accuracy as a war weapon.

Sports Scope

by Johnny Hudson

Tonight, thousands of fight fans will jam into New York to witness another heavyweight title. This time the champion, Floyd Patterson, will take on another unknown opponent, Ingemar Johansson of Sweden.

The blood-thirsty instinct of man has continued to keep boxing as a large spectator sport in our country but the fight game has also become a farce to many.

Cus D'Amato, noted as the money-hungry manager of the champion, has succeeded in breaking up the International Boxing Club. This has not set good with New York writers and they have let the public know of their feelings toward D'Amato and his fighter.

According to reports, D'Amato will have little to lose if Patterson would get upset by the Swedish challenger. It seems that in the contract, D'Amato has cited that if the challenger would win, he would immediately become his manager. Thus, the fighter is only a little spoke in the big wheel which involves everything from million dollar gambling to politics.

Hurt Fight Game

Patterson and Sugar Ray Robinson have hurt the fight racket in recent years. They have side-tracked championship bouts in the past and have risked their title only when forced to.

Robinson has reached an old age as far as fighting is concerned and is no longer considered a real strong fighter. Yet, he holds the title and is taking his time in scheduling a fight. Recently his title was taken away from him but was restored a couple of weeks later when disclosed that he would fight Carmen Basilio. This all came as a surprise to Basilio.

The rain yesterday added more controversy to one of the most unusual fights in our history. Promoter Bill Rosensohn has caused a stir on his refusal to make refunds even though ordered to do so by Gen. Melvin Krulwich, chairman of the State Athletic Commission.

"I don't want to hurt anybody but I've got to protect the promotion," Stated Rosensohn.

The promotion also received legal papers from Eddie Machen and the Chicago Stadium, Corp. yesterday. Machen, a first round knockout victim of Johansson, claims that the challenger was to give him a return match and is seeking to tie up Johansson's purse.

This along with D'Amato's frequent threat to move the fight from New York has made the bout one of the most publicized fights in recent years. The actions of D'Amato's may have been just to create interest and publicity for the fight since Johansson is an unknown fighter with a supposedly "atomic" right hand.

Golf Tournament for Juniors

Harold Thomas and the Junior Chamber of Commerce are urging all boys who will not be 18 before August to sign up for the Greenville Junior Golf Tournament slated for Monday and Tuesday.

The four winners will advance to the state tournament which will be held in July at Kinston. From there the top golfers move on to Portsmouth, Virginia for the national tournament.

Bobby Thomas is the defending champion and will head the field once again as favorite. But in golf anything can happen and now is the time for the young golfers to make their move.

Young Billy Womack Is On Verge Of Opportunity

GREENSBORO (AP) — Billy Womack has played in the shadow of his friendly rival from Florence, S.C., Buddy Baker, in recent years, but today Womack has a chance to strike out on his own.

He meets Harvie Hill of Plymouth in the 36-hole final of the Carolina Golf Assn. Junior tournament at the Greensboro Country Club.

Womack, pressed beyond the 15th hole for the first time in four matches, beat Mickey Goodman of Salisbury 2 up in Thursday's semifinals. It was Goodman who on Wednesday trimmed national junior champion Baker, the No. 1 favorite here.

Chappy Bradner, a Greenville entry, continued his bid for championship honors in the seventh flight yesterday as he fired a 79 to win 2-1 over his foe and advance into the finals today.

It was the third victory for the Greenville youth and it marked the first time that he has gone this far in a state tournament. Bradner was confident last night that he could win today's match.

Hill, who had trailed by two holes at the turn, was five over par. He had three rough matches in four outings this week after qualifying with a 73, two over par. In addition to the 19-hole, he won two on the 18th green. Only a 5 and 4 second round victory over Sandy Sneed of Rockingham was relatively easy.

Womack, even par for the front nine, won seven holes and lost a pair for a 5 up lead over Goodman at the turn. Billy lost three holes on the back nine when he was trapped and another to a birdie.

'Dead' Dodgers Show New Punch And Are Moving Up

By ED WILKS

Put the wreaths on ice, Duke Snider and Gil Hodges are hammerin' homers again, the Dodgers have hit a winning pattern of pitchers and Los Angeles is just two games shy of the National League lead.

Those dead Dodgers of last season have come alive, moving within one percentage point of second place on a three-hitter by Don Drysdale backed by Snider and Hodges home runs for a 5-2 victory over Philadelphia Thursday night.

Drysdale (8-5), who also homered, had a no-hitter for six innings while winning his third in a row in a 9-out-of-12 rally that has hoisted the Dodgers from fifth place. A blop single by Harry Anderson, leading off the seventh inning, and Wally Post's follow-up 10th homer junked Drysdale's no-hit and shutout bid.

Second place San Francisco blew a chance to move within a game of first, losing 3-1 in 12 innings to Pittsburgh when Ramon Mejias' two-run homer gave reliever Roy Face his 17th consecutive victory. First place Milwaukee gave St. Louis three unearned runs and lost 3-2 to the Cards. Chicago's Cubs rapped Cincinnati 6-2.

In the American League, Cleveland saved the lead by beating Baltimore 3-2. The Chicago White Sox reclaimed second, a game behind, with a 4-1 victory over Washington. New York beat Kansas City 5-4, and Detroit shook its slump with a 10-5 victory over Boston.

Snider and Hodges connected in a four run first inning against loser Robin Roberts (6-6). The Duke is batting .310 for the season. Hodges is 18 for 44 in the dozen games and .302 for the year.

The Cards, gaining a tie with two runs in the sixth after Felix Mantilla's two-out error, won it in the seventh when Hank Aaron bobbled the ball on Joe Cunningham's single and Ken Boyer followed with an rbi single. Lew Burdette (11-6) was the victim after getting a 2-0 lead in Hank Aaron's 21st homer. Lindy McDaniel (6-8) was the winner with four innings of hitless relief.

Face, top winner in the majors at 12-0 and unbeaten since May 30, 1958, worked three shutout innings in relief of Harvey Haddix, who allowed the Giants four hits in his nine frames. Ed Bressoud homered for the Giants in the fourth inning, but bounced to Face for the final out with the bases loaded. Rookie Ed Fisher lost it in relief after Stu Miller had given up but five hits in 11 innings.

A single by Lee Walls scored the clincher for the Cubs in a four-run eighth. Reliever Bill Henry saved the victory for Bob Anderson (4-6). Bob Purkey (6-9) was the loser.

Top Women Net Stars Now Play Like The Men

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—The revolution in women's tennis is nearly complete.

All the top class women, with just one or two exceptions, now serve and rush the net just like the men.

Althea Gibson was one of the first women net rushers and as the 73rd Wimbledon championships went into the fifth day it was apparent that her man-copying style has supplanted the lady like technique of Maureen Connolly.

Miss Connolly, retired and a mother back in California, was the last of the great baseline hitters. Miss Gibson is in semi-retirement and attending Wimbledon only as a special writer for a London newspaper.

While Miss Gibson, winner of the last two Wimbledon, sits in the stands and watches, the present play crop plays the male game more and more.

Christine Truman of London, the No. 1 seed, is a 6 footer with the reach to cover the net almost perfectly. Little Darlene Hard of Montebello, Calif., bounces up and down just short of the net.

Beverly Baker Fleitz of Long Beach, Calif., is a hitter with either the right or left hand and she is going to the net more and more.

Sally Moore of Bakersfield, Calif., is a big girl with a huge reach and perfect for the net. Maria Bueno of Brazil is about the best volleyer at Wimbledon. Most of them were scheduled to play today.

So was Angela Mortimer of England, the only girl in the upper reaches of tennis who stays back and pounds away. She is seeded No. 2 behind Miss Truman, whom she has beaten three times this year.

Only four American men remain in the singles unless you want to count top-seeded Alex Olmedo, the Peruvian who starred for the United States in winning back the Davis Cup last December. The four are fifth seeded Barry MacKay of Dayton, Ohio, youthful Earl Buchholz of St.

Paul Smith of New York, who has only 1 up playing 18. Here his par gave him his only back nine winning hole and a 2 up margin. He was three over for the distance.

Wended is headed for the University of Georgia in the fall.

Enthusiased About Relief Pitcher

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "This little guy sure helps us. He's a little man most people realize, just amazing. That's 12 and zero now."

Manager Danny Mortaugh again waxed enthusiastic over his 152-pound relief pitching ace, Elroy Face, who blanked the San Francisco Giants for three innings Thursday as the Pirates won 3-1 in the 12th.

The bases were loaded with two out in the 12th half of the inning when Elroy coolly threw a slider to Eddie Bressoud. Eddie bounced it right back to the pitcher for the final out. Eddie had homered in the third and poled a long fly near the left center field fence in the tenth.

"Face has been in those spots before. He knows what to do," the manager declared.

The 5-foot-7 right-hander has run up 17 consecutive victories, all in relief, since he last lost a game on May 30, 1958. His 1959 record is 12-0, the best in the major leagues.

He's given up just five earned runs in the 52 innings he's pitched. And he says he'll be ready to go tonight against the Dodgers in Los Angeles if needed.

"I appeared in nine in a row in 1956," he explains. "I pitched two innings Wednesday and three yesterday. Sure, I could go again tonight."

Leonardo da Vinci's famed "The Last Supper" is painted on the wall of the Church of Santa Maria delle Grazie in Milan, Italy.

Home Builders Top College View By 15-3 Margin

The Home Builders wrapped their College View pitchers for 14 hits and a 15-3 Teer-League victory last night in a game called at the end of five innings.

The winners spotted College View a run in the first but rolled back with nine runs in the second inning. Benny Hardy, the winning pitcher, ran into trouble in the third and Jack Polley finished the game, holding College View scoreless.

Kenneth Joyner started on the mound for College View and gave way to Dan Johnson and Spencer Harrington before the game was finally called due to the time element.

Tonight, State Bank and Guaranty Bank meet with Alan McArthur slated to work against David Boyd.

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK (AP) — Another three of rain and a ticket-rhubarb today hung over the once-postponed Floyd Patterson-Ingemar Johansson heavyweight title fight—probably the most harassed heavyweight promotion ever.

The fighters and promoter Bill Rosensohn peered anxiously at the lowering sky, wondering whether the 15-round show would be able to go on tonight at 9:30 p.m. (EST) at Yankee Stadium.

The forecast was far from promising. The weatherman predicted another warm, humid day with scattered thundershowers this afternoon and night.

It was virtually the same forecast that was made Thursday and came true. Rain muddled the field at the stadium, forcing Rosensohn to announce the postponement at 1:05 p.m.

Ironically, the rain stopped in the evening. At the scheduled fight time, it was cool but a heavy mist shrouded the tops of the skyscrapers. The $100 "deluxe, red carpet" customers, however, would have been ankle deep in mud.

Another bad break like that may delay the long-awaited scrap until Monday. Rosensohn and Irving Kahn, president of TelePrompTer, which is running the closed circuit telecast to theaters, said that if the weather was bad today and the forecast was not optimistic for Saturday, they might put it over until Monday.

The ticket hassle may come to a showdown today. Rosensohn refused to make refunds Thursday after the postponement was announced despite an order to do so by Gen. Melvin Krulwich, chairman of the State Athletic Commission.

Krulwich said the commission rules required the promoter to make refunds on demand. Rosensohn said his lawyer's interpretation of the rules indicated no refund was mandatory.

"I don't want to hurt any people but I've got to protect the promotion," said the weary, Rosensohn.

The commission rule is vague, but it has been observed by other promoters in the past. Krulwich said he would take it up with a lawyer.

If another postponement is required, however, Rosensohn said the return policy would be reviewed. He said that he is making refunds for hardship cases.

That would have to include Swedes and out-of-towners who have booked transportation today. As for the fighters, they took the delay calmly enough. After all this was just one of many incidents that have plagued the promotion. There have been lawsuits, a threat by Patterson's manager, a threat by Patterson's manager to sue, a threat by Patterson's manager to sue, a threat by Patterson's manager to sue.

Machen obtained a writ of attachment in federal court to tie up Johansson's purse. Machen and the Chicago Stadium are seeking $1,229,375 damages because Johansson allegedly violated a contract to give Machen a return bout.

"I will be stronger," said Johansson who did some shadow boxing Thursday, his first lack of work since last Saturday. "Certainly I don't like the delay," he said, "but I'm sure the delay will not bother me. I feel fine now and I will not lose my edge." The 26-year-old unbeaten European champion had a steak dinner at his midtown hotel, then took a stroll through the streets. He topped off the evening by taking in a movie with his pretty fiancée, Birgit Lundgren.

Patterson loosened up somewhere in town. Manager Cus D'Amato wouldn't say where. Then the 24-year-old champ went into seclusion.

There were reports that the odds favoring Patterson had jumped from 4-2 to 5-1. Several of the bigger bookies, however, held the price at 4-1 but reported very light betting.

The heavyweight fight will get some competition from the regular Madison Square Garden and national television bout featuring middleweights Ralph (Tiger) Jones of Yonkers, N.Y., and Victor Zalazar of Argentina.

MAN WHO MISSED THE MOON

By EDMOND HAMILTON

From the novel, "The Star Line" by Edmond Hamilton. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED
Kirk Hammond was a man alone. He had been chosen as the first man to swing around the Moon in a satellite and return safely to Earth. Strapped to his seat in Explorer Nineteen, he had been launched into space from Cape Canaveral.

The third stage of the rocket misfired and Hammond's cozy enclosure seemed certain to be his tomb. It went on past the Moon into the depths of illimitable space, and in a whole world listened helplessly as Explorer Nineteen bore him away into the outer reaches of the solar system.

His oxygen supply running low, Hammond smashed his radio so that the panic he felt would not be revealed to the people of Earth. Then he opened the air hatch to avoid going mad in a lingering death.

Hammond's next dazed thought was, how could he still breathe, see and hear, when he already had died?

CHAPTER 3

The blessed relief of the oxygen pouring into Kirk Hammond's lungs set him to quivering and shaking. He sat breathing, trembling, looking with vacant and uncomprehending eyes at the blazing starfields that slid by outside the forward port as the satellite slowly rotated.

Swinging slowly and majestically into view, came a gray-green thing so vast that it completely filled the port.

Hammond watched, numbly. In less than a minute the phenomenon was repeated.

Now the first faint curiosity stirred in his dulled brain. The oxygen was taking effect, and he could think and wonder, and it was about the vast gray-green object that he wondered. He hitched the chair forward in its gimbal so that he could get a better view through the port.

A hoarse cry burst from Hammond. Gigantic in starry space beneath the satellite, arcing vastly across the heavens, was a familiar spherical bulk of gray and green. "Earth," he whispered the word, but it was only an automatic recognition, he did not believe it yet.

The glass was blistering his face, the whole satellite was heating up by the minute, yet he would not take his face away from the glass until the revolving of the satellite brought the vast bulk again into view.

After this second look, there was no doubt about it at all. His brain suddenly clamored, shocked into full wakefulness. He yelled the name this time. He waited, trembling, unbelieving, until the rotation of the satellite brought Earth, or him, around again. This time he studied its surface with more care. He estimated that Explorer Nineteen was no more than four miles above the surface of Earth, and revolving around it at a velocity in excess of twenty thousand miles an hour.

He had been headed for the outer reaches of the solar system, when he had opened the hatch. He had been certain that Nineteen would go out and out, for days, for years. There seemed no way in which it could return to Earth. Yet, somehow, it had.

"—a chance unknown gravitational factors might bring you back into orbit—"

He remembered that penultimate message from Cape Canaveral. He had thought that they were merely trying to soften the end for him with a little hope. But maybe they had been right?

One thing was sure. Nineteen had fallen back toward Earth, and was now spinning around it in a tightening spiral.

But there was a bigger mystery. He had sought quick death by opening the hatch in space. He had died. Yet now he was alive. How could a man be frozen instantly in death, and then live again?

Solemn, majestic, the vast sphere of Earth returned into his view each few minutes, and he clung, and gasped the life-giving oxygen, and stared. His body was one great ache, and the scorching breath from the hot metal and the icy blast of thin air that screamed through the partly opened hatch simultaneously blistered and froze him.

Hammond's dazed mind groped for some explanation of the incredible fact of his awakening. Suppose, instead of being really dead, he had only been in a state of ultra-hypothermia?

Hypothermia, or radically lowered body temperatures, was a common tool of medicine and surgery these days. What if the thing were done suddenly as it had never been done before, as it could not be done in any laboratory, by the absolute cold of space?

A super-hypothermia acting with incredible speed, freezing every cell in his body rigid before any cellular or organic damage could begin, plunging him into a rock-like state of suspended animation. And then, when the satellite dropped back toward Earth, wouldn't the thin air of the upper atmosphere and the increasing warmth of the friction-heated sphere gradually revive him?

Hammond suddenly realized that however he had come back to life he had done so only to die again very quickly, unless he did something. The satellite was getting hotter by the minute. He could no longer stand the touch of the hot metal.

As it whirled round and round Earth in the upper atmosphere, friction was heating Explorer Nineteen to the point where it would soon burn up like a falling meteor. He would burn up with it, if he didn't get out.

Until now, he had been too amazed ed and numb with wonder to feel a personal concern. But now the instinct of self-preservation set up a frantic clamor in his mind. By some strange freak of cosmic factors, Explorer Nineteen had been brought back to Earth.

It was up to him now to get out of it in time. His body still felt leaden, his head heavy to bursting, but he began an urgent study of his exact situation.

Below lay the sunlit side of Earth, most of it veiled in drifting cloud. He thought he could recognize the coastline of the Iberian Peninsula through a gap in the clouds.

If that were so, he was moving westward over the Atlantic toward North America, that was now on the night side. He must time his ejection from the satellite to make sure he came down over land.

As Hammond's fingers fumbled clumsily over the levers and switches, an oddly humorous thought shot across his mind.

"Won't they be surprised when their dead hero chutes down alive? Wonder if they'll take that medal away from me?"

The chair in which Hammond sat strapped was suspended so that it hung inside a semi-globular plastic bowl, inside the satellite. Now, as the controls sectioned, other curved plastic sections swung up from underneath him, enclosing him and the chair and the ejection emergency gimmicks inside a round plastic sphere. That type of enclosure has been mandatory in planning for a man to bail out of a satellite.

Hammond kept the oxygen-tube in his mouth, and peered through both the plastic and the filterglass port together, to estimate Nineteen's progress around the Earth. Nineteen was rushing on toward the dark shadow of Earth, toward its night side. And below, the clouds were an almost solid mass.

Inside the closer confines of the plastic sphere, it was getting hotter very rapidly. His skin felt parched and withering. And now, with sudden sharp alarm, he saw that the aluminum rim of the filter port was glowing faintly in the darkness.

Explorer Nineteen, sinking into denser atmosphere with each pass around the Earth, was beginning to reach the critical stage of frictional heat.

Graduation Time In Little Rock's Private High School

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—The T. J. Raney High School—a practical experiment in resistance to integration—graduates its first senior class tonight.

The 196 seniors will hear a commencement address by Gov. Orval E. Faubus who paved the way for creation of the all-white private school by shutting Little Rock's public high schools against integration.

Raney enrolled about 850 of the 3,700 Little Rock students displaced by school closing. Its doors opened Oct. 20 and its students had a full 180-day term.

Diplomas will be awarded by the man for whom the school was named, Dr. T. J. Raney, president of the Little Rock Private School Corp., which operates Raney High.

Even as plans for commencement were completed, Raney planned for next year by registering about 1,000 students for 1959-60 classes. The number includes most of the 10th and 11th graders who attended this year and some 300 ninth graders from five junior high schools.

Some of those who registered probably will not attend Raney next year if the public schools are open. A three-judge federal court recently struck down Faubus' school closing law and the Little Rock school board Thursday night officially announced it would open the public schools this fall under a court-approved plan of token integration.

Raney students had little criticism to offer of their school, which was organized from scratch and operating within 40 days after the public schools were closed.

Most said they preferred the smaller school, that students seemed more friendly than they had at Central High and Hall High, that school spirit was better and the teaching staff competent.

And many said their grades had improved. Some attributed this to increased personal interest in studies, others said frankly that Raney was "easier" than Central or Hall.

Raney offered all the basic high school courses. It had a student newspaper, an annual, a basketball team and a track team. There was no band, but Supt. W. C. Brashears said one would be organized next year.

The school opened too late to field a football team, but a coach has been hired for next season. And college preparatory courses—such as Latin, French and Spanish—will be added to the curriculum.

Brashears, who has been a school-man for 35 years, said Raney would have to be classed as "a first rate high school." He said it compared favorably with high schools he had administered in Texas. He said Raney's 11th graders ranked above the national norm on a series of standardized tests.

Linda Beth Davis, editor of the Raney Rebel, called her year at Raney "the best of my high school career."

Nicky Avants, a junior, said he planned to return to Raney next year.

"The facilities weren't new and modern like at Hall," Avants said. "But I think they (Raney officials) did a marvelous job with what they had."

The $15 monthly tuition Raney proposes to charge next year apparently was not deterring students from registering. Raney charged no tuition this year.

There seems little doubt at this point that Raney will be open next year, whether the public schools are or not. Faubus had indicated often that he will not interfere with the public schools if a 1959 law, which would permit disbursement of state funds to schools such as Raney, is permitted to stand.

MOSCOW (AP) — Nine American governors touring Russia engaged in a friendly argument with a Russian official over the merits of their respective systems Thursday. The group includes Gov. Luther Hodges of North Carolina, Evgeni I. Afanasev, minister of education of the Russian Federated Republic, briefed the governors on the Russian educational system.

He said a recent change in the system is to "develop love for labor," and that children will receive less classroom instruction and spend more time learning trades.

Gov. Leroy Collins of Florida said "From what you say, your educational system is designed to serve the needs of the state. Ours is designed to serve the needs of the individual and we intend to keep it that way. We believe the state benefits best that way."

"You keep your school system and we will keep ours," Afanasev said in closing.

J. H. Warren Ordained At Methodist Session
James H. Warren, son of Mrs. Burney S. Warren of 409 Maple St. and the late Mr. Warren, was ordained a Methodist Minister by the N. C. Methodist Conference in Wilmington Wednesday.

Warren is a 1942 graduate of Greenville High School. He studied at East Carolina college from 1942-1944 and received his A.B. from the University of North Carolina in 1947. He received a M.A. Degree in Theater and Radio at Northwestern University in 1948 and M.A. in Religious Education from Scarret College for Christian Workers in 1950.

Special study was done by Warren at Columbia University, Union Theological Seminary, and Vanderbilt Divinity School. He was an instructor in speech and religious drama at Athens College, Athens, Ala., 1950-52; assistant professor in speech and religious drama at Scarret College, 1952-59 and Associate Professor at Scarret College, 1959.

Articles by Warren have been published in International Journal of Religious Education, Methodist Church School, Adult Worker;

SPILL SPORT
CHICKASHA, Okla. (AP)—Sheriff Emmett Watson, armed with a court order to padlock an illegal whisky joint, found on arrival that the owner had removed both the front and back doors, leaving him nothing to lock.

McDowell County officers who patrolled the plant Thursday reported no other incidents. However, Jimmy Saypoch, 21, of Blacksburg, S.C., said he was beaten Wednesday when he went to the plant to apply for work.

The company said no new negotiations are planned with the union, which has 385 men on strike.

BEAR FINE

STANTON, Va. (AP)—Frank Drito brought home one of three bear cubs his children found in a tree. A game warden ordered the bear returned. Drito couldn't find the spot where he found the cub and returned it to his home. He was fined $100 for illegal possession of wildlife.

In area, Brazil is 15 times larger than France. Each has about 42 million inhabitants.

Believe Wanted Man Skipped After One Day

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (AP)—A man believed to be on the FBI's most wanted list apparently skipped town here last week-end after a one day stay.

Roy K. Moore, special agent in charge of the Charlotte FBI office, said a man believed to be Edwin Sanford Garrison, 59, apparently worked here one day as a painter, then left. The FBI started its search for him Wednesday.

Garrison, an escapee of the Kilby Prison in Alabama, is known as a "human adding machine" and can compute arithmetic problems mentally faster than others can work them on an adding machine. He told police he learned to do this in figuring horse races.

Garrison was serving concurrent sentences of 15 to 20 years for burglary and grand larceny and life for robbery when he escaped from the Atmore Prison Farm in Alabama Aug. 23, 1958, his second escape.

Castro Critics' Land Is Seized

HAVANA (AP)—Prime Minister Fidel Castro has cracked down on the loudest critics of his land redistribution program, seizing 2,355,242 acres of cattle ranch land.

Castro sent troops to 400 ranches in Camaguey province to occupy land belonging to 131 cattle-men. He said they had refused to pay small breeders profitable prices for their cattle. Castro acted under government powers to take over property used for counter-revolutionary activities.

Canton Is Saved From Big Flood

TOKYO (AP)—Flood-swollen rivers receded slowly at Canton today, Peiping radio said.

Peiping credited "millions of heroic people of Kwantung province" mobilized to raise the dikes 1 1/2 to 3 feet, with saving the city of 1 1/2 million from one of south China's worst floods.

However, some parts of the city were reported still under water and the situation in the Pearl River delta was described as tense.

Maltreatment Is Charged NCO

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP)—A Marine sergeant has been accused of maltreating members of his training platoon here. An official investigation of the accusations, however, has been temporarily suspended, pending his return from unauthorized absence.

A spokesman at this base said today that Acting Sgt. Woodrow P. Hoover, 20, a troop handler of the First Training Regiment, allegedly maltreated and caused enforced contributions from the personnel under his supervision. Details of the accusations were not disclosed.

The Marine Corps announcement today coincided with the graduation and start of 20 days of leave for the members of Sgt. Hoover's training platoon.

Sgt. Hoover has been declared a deserter, a spokesman said, which is a technical designation meaning he has been absent without authorization for 30 days.

Hoover, a native of Salt Lake City, Utah, enlisted in the Marine Corps Sept. 9, 1955. He was assigned as a troop handler to the organization here which gives advanced combat training to all East coast Marine enlistees after they complete recruit training at Parris Island, S.C.

H. G. Stocks — Greenville

I bought my irrigation system from Hendrix-Barnhill in 1956. I think it paid over one-half cost of system the first year in increased yield and quality. I have had it three years and my yield and quality of tobacco has been good. I would hate to farm without an irrigation system. The service at Hendrix-Barnhill is excellent.

J. H. Tucker — Simpson

My four acre irrigation system was purchased from Hendrix-Barnhill Company during 1958. In my opinion, it is the finest system bought anywhere. It, no doubt, added two hundred fifty ($250.00) dollars per acre to my tobacco sales this year. I hope the time will never come when I will have to be without it, because I can fertilize as heavy as I like knowing that my system is available to provide ample water. All in all, this fine system causes worry and doubt to decrease while the profit dollars increase.

When shopping in confidence, always remember Hendrix-Barnhill Company in Greenville, North Carolina.

H. R. and Carl Crawford — Greenville

We used a Hendrix-Barnhill System this year. We believe it made us from two to three hundred dollars per acre on 27 acres. We liked the service we received at Hendrix-Barnhill Company.

Lester Branch & Bernice Branch
Winterville

We purchased an irrigation system from Hendrix-Barnhill in July just before we topped our tobacco out. We irrigated our crop twice. It added more than $200 per acre on our 22 acres that we irrigated. Therefore, we know it overpaid for itself during the 1958 season.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market maintained an irregular edge to the upside early this afternoon. Trading was fairly active. Gains of fractions to about a point among key stocks were somewhat more numerous than losses in the same range. An assortment of stocks not represented in the popular market averages posted gains running from 1 to 3 points.

General Telephone and American Machine & Foundry were among the better gainers, adding more than 3 points apiece. Texas Instrument spurred more than 4 and Polaroid more than 5.

International Paper and Du Pont were more than 2 points higher. Allied Chemical slipped more than a point on profit taking. American Motors was clipped for a loss of about a point, also on profit taking.

Sudbaker-Packard and Chrysler lost fractions. Northern Pacific, Illinois Central, Southern Railway and Pennsylvania Railroad sheared fractions from recent gains.

Lukens Steel was up about 2, helped by estimates of better earnings. Bethlehem, U. S. Steel and Jones & Laughlin kept ahead slightly.

U. S. government bonds were steady to a bit higher.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA) — Hog prices steady to 25 lower. Tops of 17.00 to 17.50 at Nahant; 16.25 to 16.75 at Wilson; 16.50 at New Bern, Rocky Mount, Kinston, Benson and Mount Olive; 16.00 to 16.75 at Albion, Housh's Mill and Lillington; 16.25 to 16.75 at Greensboro; 16.00 to 16.50 at Tarboro, Enfield, Scotland Neck, Bethel, Murfreesboro, Edenton, Grimesland, Sunbury, Harrellville and Farmville; 16.75 at Clinton, Fayetteville and Elizabeth; 16.50 to 16.75 at Goldsboro; 16.25 at Smithfield and Dunn; 16.00 to 16.50 at Lumberton, Rich Square, Castle Hayne, Burgaw, Clarkton, Four Oaks, Laurel Hill, Wingate, Tabor City, Whiteville and Shallotte.

Wilson cash cattle prices steady: Steers and heifers, choice, 23.25 to 29.00, good 23.75 to 26.25, commercial 22.50 to 25.00; cows, light type 17.75 to 20.25; heavy cutters 16.00 to 18.50; bulls, light weights 17.00 to 19.00, heavy weights 19.00 to 23.00.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA) — North Carolina poultry markets: fryers and broilers, farm price 15 1/2 to 17, mostly 17.

Eggs — prices paid for graded, size, minimum 80 per cent A quality: Raleigh and Charlotte, stronger, large 41; prices paid on graded out basis: Asheville, farm, A large 40.

LAYING CABLE — Utilities crews yesterday were feeding cable into an open manhole to be forced underground to the recently completed transformer vault on Fifth St. The transformer will be installed within the next few weeks.

Local Jaycees To Be District Meet Host

Greenville Jaycees will be host to the Jaycees of the 11th North Carolina district at a district meeting here July 22.

Knot Proctor, in charge of the meeting for local Jaycees, told members of the club last night arrangements are being completed for the meeting.

Jaycee President Brooks Beddingfield reported that 1,170 people visited the Aloma for Peace exhibit which was in Greenville for one day under Jaycee sponsorship. He added that the crowd drawn by the exhibit in Greenville was the third largest crowd to see the exhibit in one day in the two Carolinas.

Jack Whichard, chairman of the Junior Golf Tournament Committee, announced that a 36-hole tournament will be held next to pick Greenville's representatives in the State Jaycee Junior Golf Tournament to be held in Kinston, Greenville will be represented by a four-man team, and four winners in the state play-offs will be chosen to represent North Carolina in national competition.

President Beddingfield announced that Claude Plyler had been named to the club's board of directors to fill an unexpired term on the board.

Tommy Braxton, member of the Winterville-Greenville 4-H Club addressed the Jaycees briefly, pointing out the values of 4-H activities to rural youths. Braxton was slated to compete today in a district 4-H public speaking contest to be held in Raleigh.

At South Pole, Got News Quick

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — George A. Douman, 10,000 miles away at the South Pole, got news of the birth of his first son almost quicker than if he'd been here at home.

Excitedly, his wife, Julie, 30, exclaimed into the telephone "Victor is here!"

Amateur Radio Operator W. Lord Tonsley had set up the radio-telephone call.

The Doumans have a daughter, Sandra, 15 months.

Representatives of the white pickets and Queens Borough President John Clancy conferred with the mayor for half an hour. It was at this conference that Wagner said he would get in touch with Theobald about the transfer plans.

The board of education said that while Bedford-Stuyvesant schools are overcrowded, those in Glendale are not being used to maximum capacity. Board officials said it would cost more to reopen a closed school in Brooklyn than to shift the pupils to Queens.

PARIS (AP) — A French Senate committee has estimated that President Charles de Gaulle's five-year development plan for rebellious Algeria will cost five billion dollars. That is about half the total budget for the French government last year.

Three Killed In Speeding Crash

LENOIR, N.C. (AP) — An automobile running at high speed and containing three young men crashed into the front of a hard-top Lenoir before dawn today. The heavy impact killed all three outright.

Those killed were listed as Bobby Gene Hamby, 23; Buddy Anson Pope, 19, and Earl Gragg, 18, all of whom lived near Whitel, a village of 1,500 population two miles south of Lenoir.

Officers who reached the scene after the 2 a. m. crash were unable to supply an explanation as to what caused the wreck. The highway at that point is straight and about 75 yards to the south the road takes a slight curve. The young men were northbound when they struck the building, which is a short distance south of Whitel.

The impact was so great that the motor was rammed back inside the 1955 Chevrolet.

A night watchman who saw the wreck said the automobile, souped up with a 1958 motor and dual carburetors, was traveling faster than he ever had seen one go before. Coroner Claude Gobel viewed the damage and estimated speed at more than 100 miles an hour.

Highway Patrolman John Spencer said that before the car hit the building, it had hit a safety island at a gasoline station and caromed off a parked truck, damaging it severely.

Attendants from two funeral homes, rescue squad members and a wrecker service needed more than an hour to free the smashed bodies. Both Hamby and Pope were married but had no children, according to first reports.

No Odd-Jobs For Him Unless Paid

CHICAGO (AP) — Mildred Baughman, 44, complained in Superior Court that her husband, Max, 45, an $18,000-a-year bank vice president, is willing to do odd jobs around the house only if she pays him union scale rates.

And, said Mrs. Baughman Thursday in her petition for a divorce, she has to pay out of her personal funds for painting, fixing the screens, waxing floors and other household chores.

Mrs. Baughman charged cruelty. She asked that Baughman be ordered out of their suburban Kenilworth home. She said she owns it.

The Only One To Help Practice

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Jane Hadley, 12, returned from her swimming class, her brown hair a mass of tangles.

Questioning brought out the reason: "I'm the only girl in the swimming class and all the boys have crew cuts. I'm the only one they can practice the hair-carry on in our life-saving lessons."

TO PAY HIGHER RATE WILSON — Property owners in Wilson county will pay taxes on their property at an assessment rate of 45 per cent of its new market value under the current revaluation Wilson County commissioners decided yesterday. Previously property was assessed at around 33 per cent.

BIDS OPENED TARBORO — Bids on equipment for the new Edcombe General Hospital, now under construction were opened here this week. The hospital's committees and directors will study the more than 60 bids before awarding contracts.

NINE PERMITS ISSUED GOLDSBORO — Permits for nine dwellings, including one for $25,000 and another for $20,000, have helped boost new construction in Goldsboro this month past $200,000.

TAX RATE THREATENED WINTON — A board of commissioners with the majority committed to not raise taxes sat down to study $464,000 in budget requests Monday. The total would necessitate about a 35 cent hike in the tax rate if all requests were approved. The commissioners decided to raise the pay of all county employees paid entirely by county funds 10 per cent.

INCORPORATING TOWN NEW BERN — The General Assembly of North Carolina recently enacted a bill entitled an act to incorporate the town of Havelock. The Craven County Board of Elections will conduct an election in the area on Saturday to determine whether or not the area shall be incorporated as a municipal corporation, and to elect the members of the governing body if the area is incorporated.

FARMS OVER PLANTED AHOSKIE — Bertie County ASC reporters have found approximately 48 per cent of the farms measured are overplanted on some corn, mostly according to John T. Moore, county manager.

ZOO GETS BEAR ROCKY MOUNT — The newest member of Rocky Mount's zoo family is a 250-pound black bear from the low country of Eastern North Carolina. The she-bear was given by Alton Pierce of Woodville, a small town just outside Elizabeth City. Pierce raised the two-year-old bear from a cub, feeding it from a bottle.

Teachers Might Learn Thursday RALEIGH (AP) — Tar Heel school teachers may learn Thursday how much of a pay raise they will receive as a result of action by the 1959 General Assembly.

The State Board of Education will decide whether to use $14,300,000 in legislative appropriations for a across-the-board pay raise, an extra week's pay or clerical assistance for school principals.

In allocating the money, the Assembly said the board could use it for any or all of the three purposes.

If the board decides to use the full 14 million for pay raises, each teacher would receive a $192.50 yearly increase based on the average salary of $9,850.
