

Tobacco Shows Effects Of Heavy Rainfall

USELESS LABOR . . . went into the digging of a ditch through the middle of this tobacco field on the Dunn Farm near Hanrahan, South of Ayden.

Perhaps 1,000 To 1,500 Acres Of Pitt Tobacco Has 'Flopped'

Perhaps 1,000 to 1,500 acres of Pitt County's 25,000 allotted acres of tobacco have flopped due to heavy rains.

Farm Agent S.C. Winchester estimated that much acreage had been damaged so far by the steady rains of several days duration.

Farm agents said the worst hit area in Pitt County is the St. Johns-Hanrahan-Gum Swamp area south of Ayden and extending to Grifton.

Assistant Agent S.J. Weeks said the area of worst damage extends in a fan shape south of Ayden. Negro Farm Agent James Goode, who made a trip into the section yesterday afternoon described the situation as a "terrible thing."

In some sections flopping has wiped out most of the tobacco, he said. He said William Pittman had lost four acres of tobacco, Walter Garrett, three acres, Hosea Allen, four acres, Clifton Jackson with a 25 acre allotment, has lost 15 acres. J.J. Perkins has had 18 acres to flop.

Those farms were just "typical" of many farms in the south Pitt County section.

And to make matters worse, another rain came yesterday afternoon while Goode was touring the section.

While that section is worst hit "we've got it in spots all over the county," the Negro Farm Agent declared.

Tremendous Amount Flops

Farm Agent Winchester said, "A tremendous amount of tobacco is flopping. Just a lot of it. In some instances over half of a grower's crop has drowned.

"We are afraid it is beyond help. There is some indication that maybe if they go in there and open up the ground between the rows to provide additional drainage it might come back where it hasn't been damaged too awfully bad."

Farmers would have to use a mule and a bull tongue plow or a turning plow with mold board off using just the point of the plow.

The plow should be put in the ground in the middle of the row just as deep as possible, Winchester advised.

While the St. Johns-Hanrahan area near Grifton is worst hit, tobacco is flopping generally in low spots throughout the county, Winchester stated. And if more rain comes more of the crop could be expected to drown.

For that reason he advised farmers with fields where surface water has a tendency to remain "to exhaust every means for getting that surface water off the ground."

Extensive tobacco drowning is unusual and Winchester said the last time such a thing happened in Pitt County was before he came to the county. There was a prolonged rainy spell in the late 1920s and a lot of tobacco drowned.

"We have had some drowning in years since but it has been negligible."

"We know precious little about how to handle tobacco once it has flopped so it is a matter of each individual grower trying something and seeing if it will work."

"As our growers attempt such things to see what will work, if they find something we would appreciate their passing it along to us since our information on such situations is limited," Winchester stated.

While the percentage of tobacco acreage throughout the county which has drowned is still relatively small, the individual farmers affected are hard hit, the farm agent pointed out.

Offers Steps To Minimize Loss

Farmers whose tobacco is beginning to flop but not completely drowned should get as much excess water off the fields as possible, Assistant County Agent S.J. Weeks said this morning.

However, he said, it was recognized that in some cases there is not a lot that can be done because the water has risen in the ditches and overflowed into the fields.

He gave the following tips for minimizing the rain damage in flooded fields:

Farmers should keep suckers and tops broken out so that all elements the root system can provide will go to the tobacco leaves.

In fields where flopping has begun, it is advisable to try plowing deep in the row middle with a one horse turning plow with mold board (wing) removed. This might help give some oxygen to the roots.

In harvesting, farmers should take only a few leaves at the time as they ripe but they should harvest often. They should do this until new roots are established and the remaining leaves appear to be taking a second growth.

If the plants do begin a second growth it might be advisable to leave the top suckers to improve the quality of tip leaves.

In curing tobacco farmers should provide maximum ventilation during the yellowing period. This would tend to help eliminate the excess water in the leaves thus reducing the possibility of sweating. It would also help improve the color of the cured tobacco.

U.S. Exhibition Tickets On Sale

MOSCOW (AP)—The first tickets for public admission to the U.S. Exhibit opening here July 25 went on sale Friday.

Fair authorities, however, said too early to determine just how many tickets were sold at kiosks where they were placed alongside tickets for theatrical attractions in the city.

The exhibit will be dedicated next Friday by Vice president Richard M. Nixon, who is scheduled to arrive in the Soviet capital the day before.

Rains Heavy

Edward Dunn of Rt. 2, Ayden who operates a farm east of Hanrahan near St. Johns said this morning, "It beats anything I have ever seen. We've had a total of 14 1/2 inches of rain since Monday. From about 8:30 to 11 Monday we had six and a half inches."

Dunn has a rain gauge near his house.

The farm operator said there were only three out of ten acres of tobacco left on the farm "and it is

Man Arrested For False Alarm

A former Negro volunteer fireman was arrested about 3:25 this morning by Greenville police on charges of turning in a false alarm at Fifth and Tyson Sts. at 3:15.

According to police reports, a patrol car was proceeding north on Memorial Drive near the intersection of Fifth St. when the fire whistle started blowing. The driver of the car, Lt. J. W. Piver said he then started down Fifth St. to Box 156 at the corner of Fifth and Tyson and saw a subject, who he later identified as Walter Frank Gray, 31-year-old Negro of 1119 A. West Fifth St., run from the corner and get into a car. Lt. Piver said the Negro then started his car and sped away from the curb, headed west toward the police car.

Lt. Piver said he turned the patrol car around and gave chase. The vehicle was stopped on Nash St. near Colonial Ave., he added.

Police quoted Gray as saying he was a volunteer fireman and was heading to the fire. He said he thought the alarm had blown 157 which is Fifth and Nash Sts.

Lt. Piver said he measured 41 feet of skid marks which were made by the spinning tires of the Gray vehicle as it sped away from the curb near the fire alarm box.

Gray was released under $100 bond for appearance in Recorder's Court August 3.

Fire Department officials said Gray had been a volunteer fireman but had been discharged from the Negro Company about two years ago. No reason was given for his dismissal, however.

Demolition Expert Claims Union People Were In Plot

HENDERSON, N.C. (AP) — A machinist gave testimony today that he was contacted by a textile union official to blow up property of the struck Harriet-Henderson Cotton Mills last May.

But, said Harold Aaron, he reported the plan to the mill president and the State Bureau of Investigation because he feared "somebody would have been killed."

Aaron, an automobile mechanic sent by the state in the trial of eight members of the Textile Workers Union of America, then described how he served as an undercover agent for the SBI in subsequent meetings concerning the alleged bombing conspiracy.

Aaron, now an auto mechanic in Leaksville, said he was first contacted by Charles Auslander, a TWUA official from Spray near Leaksville. They discussed the possibility of putting the Henderson mill out of operation, Aaron said, and he agreed to help.

After a second meeting with Auslander, Aaron said that he decided to report the situation to John D. Cooper, president of the mills, which were struck by the TWUA last November.

"I told him of the plans that were being made to bomb the boiler room and (power) substation. I told him he had better put guards on the substation," Aaron testified.

Then the handsome, blond witness said he reported to SBI agent J. N. (Red) Minter and met with Minter and agent L. E. Allen before starting a series of meetings with defendants in the case.

Aaron's testimony implicated Johnny Martin and Warren Walker, making seven of the eight defendants named so far in testimony. The only defendant not yet named is Boyd Payton of Charlotte, the TWUA's Carolinas director.

The Harriet-Henderson mills have been the scene of a bitter and violent strike since last November. They were reopened in February without a TWUA contract and have been operating under the watchful eye of National Guardsmen.

Judge Raymond Mallard ordered a full session of court today to make up for time lost during 4 1/2 days spent in selecting 12 regular jurors and two alternates. Judge Mallard and opposing lawyers have indicated the trial may be a lengthy one.

Defendants in addition to Payton are his aide, Lawrence Gore; Charles Auslander, chairman of the Tri-County TWUA Joint Board at Spray; Warren Walker, Malcolm Jarrell, Calvin Ray Pegram, Robert Edward Abbott and Johnny Martin, the last five being members of the two Henderson locals of the TWUA.

The testimony linking at least four of the defendants with the alleged dynamiting plot came from W. C. Wilson, an agent for the State Bureau of Investigation which set up a sub-bureau here during the height of the strike violence at the mill.

Wilson the prosecution's third witness, said he interrogated defendants Walker and Jarrell shortly after they were arrested on the night of June 13. He said both Walker and Wilson admitted having attended meetings of unionists at nearby Roanoke Rapids during a two week period.

The agent quoted Walker as saying the plot to dynamite the power substation at the mills, to blow up the boiler room and burn the office building was formulated at the Roanoke Rapids meetings.

Walker, Wilson testified, told him Gore, Payton's assistant, was the architect of the plot.

According to Wilson, the 26-year-old Walker's assignment in the plot was to burn the office building. He was to have help from a man the agent said Walker identified only as Harold Aaron, described as a demolition expert. Walker was quoted as saying Abbott and Pegram were to blow up the substation and Jarrell was to drive the auto taking the men to and from the scene. Walker, the agent said, told him that the plan to burn the office building later was dropped because it was termed too risky.

City Schools To See Opening On September 1

The Greenville City Schools' opening date for the 1959-60 school year was set for Tuesday, September 1 by the Greenville Board of Education in a meeting yesterday at Junius H. Rose High School's gymnasium.

Schools will close again for the summer on June 1, 1960.

Under a new state law, teachers will begin their work two days before the official school opening for which they will be duly paid. Teachers begin their year on Friday, August 28 and work their last day of the school year on Thursday, June 2.

The city schools will observe Labor Day as a holiday this year. The national holiday falls on Monday, Sept. 7, after schools have opened. Other holidays scheduled for the school year are: Thanksgiving—Nov. 26-27; Christmas—Dec. 18-Jan. 4; and Easter—April 18-20.

Further Board action elected the following teachers for the city schools: Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Wiggins and Mrs. Lucy Worsley—Junius H. Rose High School; Mrs. Esther J. Warren and Mrs. Catherine Smith—Elmhurst School; Miss Ruby Hard—Wahl-Coates School; and Miss Charlotte Jenkins—C. M. Eppes School.

The Board employed R. B. Lee, attorney, to prepare the necessary papers for the acquisition of land to be bought for the C. M. Eppes School for the construction of a lunchroom and other rooms.

A motion was approved unanimously by the Board to request W. G. Dunn, contractor for the Junius H. Rose High School, to complete the rework of the gymnasium floor there.

Upon completion of the work and upon approval of the school architect, J. W. Griffith, and Dr. J. L. Pierce of the State School Building Division, Dunn will be paid $5,000 of the $7,500 now due on the General Contract of the school.

'Miss Universe' Pageant Begins Course Tonight

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — For the fellows who like to whistle at girls, this seaside city—crowded with Miss Universe beauties—is the best spot to start.

Seventy-six lovelies from all over the world are on hand for the annual international beauty pageant. At least three more are expected to check in by Monday.

The pageant begins officially tonight when the reigning Miss Universe, Luz Marina Zuluaga of Colombia, sets a giant globe spinning on its axis in a ceremony at Memorial Stadium.

Each girl gets a key to the city and then presents Mayor Ray Keeler of Long Beach with a traditional gift from her country or state.

The Miss Universe parade of floats, brass bands and marching military units will be held Sunday afternoon through downtown Long Beach.

There's A Little Pig In The Crowd

"LADY," 10 PUPPIES, AND "GRUNT"—"Lady," this three-year-old mother pointer, gave birth to eight puppies Tuesday night and two more on Wednesday night. But that's not all, says the owner of this remarkable dog, Milton R. Spain of Route 6, Greenville. "Lady" is also nursing a three-week-old baby pig named "Grunt" (arrow). According to Mrs. Spain, the runt pig was one of 12 and was not being taken care of by its mother, so Mrs. Spain started feeding it on a bottle. A pen was built for it in the yard and much to the surprise of everyone "Lady" chose "Grunt's" house for the delivery room and adopted the young animal. The latest reports are both the puppies and the pig are faring well. (Reflector Photo by Stuart Savage)

U. S. Spokesman Opines Kremlin Wants A Divided Germany

GENEVA (AP)—A U.S. spokesman charged today that Premier Khrushchev's latest speeches show the Soviet Union wants to perpetuate the division of Germany.

Assistant Secretary of State Andrew H. Cordell declared that in statements made by the Soviet premier on his current visit to Poland "we find a strange contradiction to any idea of reunification of East and West Germany."

"It looks like (he wants) the perpetuation of the present division of Germany," Cordell said.

He spoke with newsmen soon after foreign ministers of the United States, Britain, France and West Germany met for 90 minutes on strategy in the Big Four conference.

Western informants said the four remained pessimistic about chances of working out a stopgap Berlin settlement with Russia.

High Western leaders said Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko is trying to exploit Western differences and that the need for unity is growing more urgent daily.

Some experts believe that, until the West can present a united front in the Big Four foreign ministers' conference, it has little prospect of achieving any of its objectives in the current phase of negotiations on Berlin.

The issue dividing the United States and Britain from France and West Germany is what kind of negotiations should be proposed to Gromyko on a German peace settlement during the period of a Berlin truce agreement.

Western officials said it probably would be sometime next week before a decision could be reached among the Allies on this problem. But several informants privately conceded it was the crucial question before the Western foreign ministers in their discussions.

U.S. Secretary of State Christian A. Herter, Britain's Selwyn Lloyd, Maurice Couve de Murville of France and West Germany's Heinrich Von Brentano arranged to hold strategy talks during the weekend lull in their sessions with Gromyko.

Before them was the record of a secret three-hour conference they had with the Soviet foreign minister Friday—a record that Herter reportedly found discouraging because it produced no progress toward narrowing East-West differences.

Herter, Lloyd and Couve de Murville made repeated efforts to find out from Gromyko what specific pledge he Soviet Union is willing to give to protect the Western position in West Berlin during and after the proposed 18-month truce period.

Authoritative sources said he consistently refused to give direct replies.

This led the Western ministers to conclude that Gromyko is more interested in winning East German equality with West Germany, and in forcing a Western agreement to hand over the unification problem to the Germans themselves, than he is in resolving the Berlin dispute.

Gromyko already has been told that his proposal for an all-German committee to study a German settlement was unacceptable to the West.

Western leaders agreed that some kind of negotiations on a German settlement would be necessary once the Berlin issue is shelved. But they have been unable to agree in what form it should be.

The French foreign minister was reported to believe that any kind of new international machinery to deal with this problem would be a mistake.

The West German delegation has suggested the formation of a Big Four group to which German advisers would be attached but without any specific arrangement for the two German groups to negotiate directly.

Lloyd, reportedly with some American support, was said to favor creation of a group which might come nearer to meeting Gromyko's demand thought it would seem to stop far short of what Gromyko has actually asked.

Music Camp At ECC Opens Session Sunday

The 6th annual summer music camp at East Carolina College opens Sunday for a two-week session, ending Saturday, August 1, with a concert featuring all performing groups and activities.

Registration for the camp opens Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, in Wright Auditorium, announced Prof. Earl Beach, director of the East Carolina College Department of Music, who heads a staff of more than 30 people in charge of various phases of the summer camp program.

The summer music camp is open to qualified junior and senior high school musicians, majorettes, drum majors, art, and creative dance students who are recommended by their teachers.

Herbert L. Carter, director of bands at East Carolina, is associated with Prof. Beach in operating the overall camp program. Working with Mr. Carter in conducting the camp bands will be Fred Bouknight, supervisor of music, Wilmington city schools, and Spencer Mims, Meyers Park high school, Charlotte.

Other department directors will be Dr. Carl Hjortsvang, East Carolina College Music Department, choral organizations; Donald H. Hayes, East Carolina College Symphony Orchestra, conductor, camp orchestra; Dr. Robert Carter, East Carolina College Music Department, piano; Thomas E. Mims, East Carolina Art Department, Art; Miss Gayle Clapp, East Carolina College Health and Physical Education graduate student, dance.

Near 20 instructors from East Carolina College Music Department and high school band directors will assist in the program, and there will be adult counselors in girls and boys dormitories.

Bible Background Study Is Begun

East Carolina College's summer workshops in "The Bible and Its Background" opened its two-week course of study and presented Friday afternoon the first of four full-length films, supplied by the American Bible Society, on "Our Bible—How It Came To Us."

Dr. Cleveland J. Bradner Jr., director of religious activities at the college, is directing the course. He has announced that other American Bible Society films, to be used as part of the workshop program are scheduled for July 20, "God's Word in Man's Language"; July 24, "Thy Word Giveth Light"; and July 27, "Bearer of the Book." All films will be exhibited in the Joyner Memorial Library and the public is invited to see them to the extent of the auditorium capacity.

Several exhibitions of materials about the Bible will be on display during the workshop.

WEDDING DELAYED

FALLS, Pa. (AP)—The marriage of Edward Wayne Brown, 19, and Betty Wisneski, 18, planned for today, has been postponed. A beer truck collided with Brown's automobile Friday, sending the two of them—and their best man as well—to the hospital.

the leap of FAITH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

The paratrooper has faith in his "chute." The motorist has faith in his brakes. The shopper has faith in the brand-name she buys. All of us exercise our faith a hundred times a day.

Religious faith is like its every-day cousin. It is the same implicit reliance . . . the same daring confidence.

Religious faith comes when we seek it. But there is always the leap. Man has to step from his worldly floor into the spiritual space where God reveals his power and love. He must decide to believe what he cannot prove!

Like the leap of the paratrooper, the leap of faith begins months earlier in careful training.

The day a family starts to attend Church regularly . . . the training begins.

Hope Chest Makes Hoping Fun

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The hope chest is coming back with a bang. Early marriages have made young people conscious that they must have a few things when they set up housekeeping. They can't depend on parents to supply them with basic necessities, and they can't do without them.

You may eat off a packing box, suitcase or orange crate, but you can't eat with your fingers and maintain dignity. And in addition to the No. 1 requirement, knives and forks, the other home "fixtures" should be on tap. You can't depend on wedding presents to supply them, as somehow many people want to give gifts that are strictly for display.

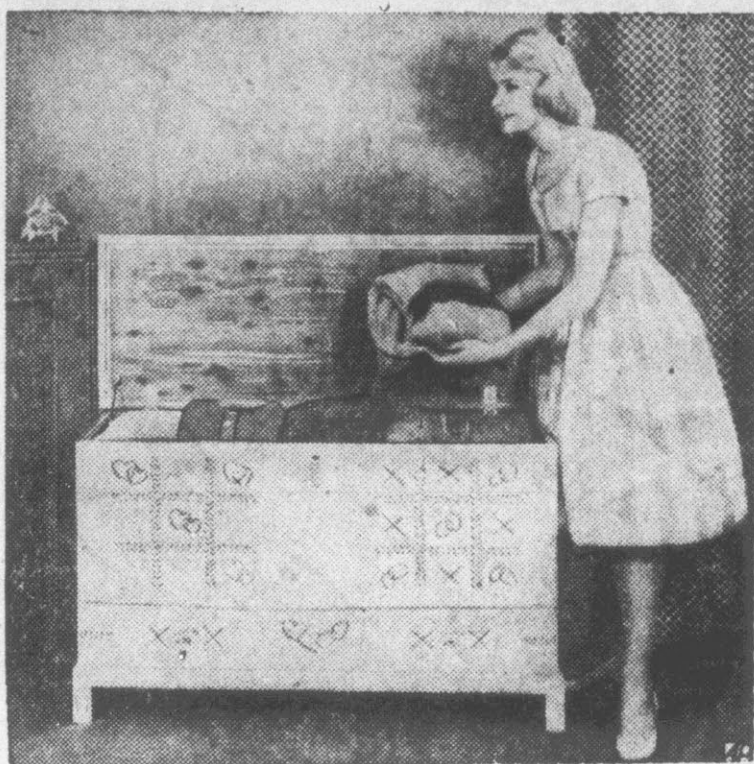

It is worthwhile to stash away sheets, pillow cases, bath towels, hand towels, guest towels, table linens, place mats, table silver, china. Blankets also are a good bet.

White Is Reliable

If you hesitate to choose linens because you do not know your future color scheme, white may fill the void, as linens should be treated more in the light of necessities than decorative accessories at this stage. They can be initiated later in a color to match your color scheme when a decision is made.

You may not be sure of a silver pattern either. In that case acquire a smaller amount of tableware for every day use in stainless steel or silver plate. Place mats may be acquired in any decorator color as these usually harmonize with anything.

The girl who has a favorite color scheme will have no difficulty in selecting her linens, and may even need to be restrained from overburdening her hope chest with that blue that matches her eyes or that daffodil yellow she adores. She may be all set with a basic silver pattern also, if she has inherited some from grandma or Mom insists on passing on her silver. She may wish to add to this as time goes on.

CHEST OF DREAMS . . . Whimsical tic-tac-toe motif on this chest designed by Lane should harmonize with any decor. Chest has a felt-lined base drawer for silverware.

Many hope chests are given for graduation gifts these days, and about 80 per cent of them are bought as gifts for girls between the ages of 17 and 24, sometimes by her fiancé.

Today's hope chest is a far cry from the old fashioned cedar type. There are Pennsylvania Dutch styles that may be used with any furniture decor, their quaint reproductions of authentic early Dutch settler signs and symbols adding charm to a young girl's bedroom. Some of the newer chests are undecorated and have upholstered washable cushion tops which give added function, besides providing ample cedar storage space. A chest of this sort can serve as a comfortable bench in a girl's room at the foot of her bed or between two windows.

There are special design features such as self-rising trays on the interior lid of the chests, useful for delicate lingerie, gloves or other accessories. There are lower shelves for books or magazines. Many chests have felt lined base drawers for silver or other articles needing a separate place away from the moth-proof cedar interior.

In any case, a chest may be used before and after its main purpose is fulfilled. That extra storage space it provides is always appreciated.

Jiggers, The Cop!

By DOROTHY V. WHIPPLE, M.D.
AP Newsfeatures

"WATCH OUT, the cops will get you," said Dad sternly to 4-year-old Freddy. "Better put it back quick."

Freddy turned toward Dad, fear sweeping across his round little face. He put the hammer back in the tool box.

"What would the cop do to me, Daddy?" he whispered.

"Cops put boys in jail—boys who take things that don't belong to them," said Dad very seriously.

"What's jail?" asked the child. "It's a place for bad people. They lock you up and don't give you anything but bread and water to eat."

"Could I have toys?" "I should say not, it's no fun in jail, no toys and no friends. Most of the time you are all by yourself in jail."

"Jail wouldn't be nice."

"No indeed; you'd better be good, then you won't have to go to jail."

Cop Complex

A few days later Freddy went to the store with his mother. On the way they saw a policeman walking down the street. Freddy hid behind his mother and hung tight to her skirt. Finally they passed the officer and Freddy said with evident relief:

"He didn't see me, Mommy."

"Who didn't see you?"

"The cop," said the child. "He might take me to jail if he saw me."

This is certainly no way for a child to feel about an officer of the law. And yet many a youngster is brought up to be frightened of policemen, to feel that they are strong, stern men ready and anxious to punish little children. It seems to me there are two unfortunate results of using the police and the law as threats to make a child behave.

Junior Ethics

The first is the moral one. We want our children to grow up with a set of ethics that are as much a part of them as the air they breathe. We do not want them to steal or lie or cheat, not because of fear of being caught but because there is something within each child that tells him not to do such things. A person who behaves only out of fear will try to get away with as much as possible when he thinks no one will know. This is certainly not the kind of ethical values we want our children to have.

The second reason why children should not fear the police is the practical one that the child who is scared of a policeman is not likely to seek one out, should he be in trouble. Instead of teaching children to fear the police, the better policy is exactly the reverse. Teach a child that the policeman is his friend. Tell the child that should he ever become lost, be locked out of his house, lose his money, or have anything happen to him where he needs an adult's help, the policeman is the one to go to.

Friendly Policeman

The policeman is the friend to children. Get to know the policeman in your neighborhood. Make sure your children know him, too. Call him by name stop him and talk as often as possible.

To a little child a policeman should be known as a friendly grown-up who is always around ready to give a youngster a hand if he needs help. If the child knows a few officers personally this will make it much easier for him to generalize about all policemen everywhere.

Years later the child will come to know that policemen also "catch law breakers." But by this time the child's own sense of right and wrong is so firmly established that he does not need the fear of getting caught to tell him how to act. In addition the child's feeling that the policeman is his friend helps protect everyone from the wrongdoer.

Home Slave, Take A Second Look At Shortcuts

Are you a slave to your home? Do you pass up weekends, dinner parties and entertaining your friends because there is always something to be done around the house?

If so, take a second look—there always will be work around a house, and giving up fun and friendships won't solve the problem.

Your reaction to these five common situations will show whether or not your home is getting the best of you:

1. Your guests yeave at a late hour, and you are so tired you can't hold your head up. But there the dishes loom menacingly in the kitchen, and you can't go to bed until the kitchen is cleaned up. Why not? Stack dishes and pots neatly in the sink (or the oven) and pretend they're sink, cover the whole array with a dishwater, if you don't have one. In lieu of a sloopover for a couple of clean dish towels. Go to bed and relax. In the morning you'll be in better shape to face the situation, and the job may be done better and in much less time.
2. You feel the need of company, but the house is in such a disheveled state that you are embarrassed to invite your friends. If you attempt to clean it thoroughly you know you'll be too tired to cook the dinner. Well, size up the problem. How much of the mess is paraphernalia that is just misplaced? Take a pillow case or laundry bag and load it with the old magazines and newspapers, stack them up and put them in the closet. (Some people stack them under the bed.) After that you may not have much more to do than vacuuming, dusting, wiping mirrors and ash trays. You'll be surprised how easy it is after you remove extraneous stuff that somehow makes a room look tacky. Remove the clutter and live again.

3. You want to have people to dinner, but you've got a back breaking job in the garden, and you wonder if you will be able to drag yourself around after that. Use the easy method of entertaining: Plan a cookout. Prepare all the greens in the morning, wrap them in a towel, put them in the refrigerator. Prepare the salad dressing. Dress up the garlic bread, butter the rolls or other bread and wrap it in foil. Put out the hamburger or marinate the chicken, and have it set for the fire. Remove corn husks, butter and wrap in foil. Put it in the ice box. Now you're all set. After your garden chores, take a shower, and relax until the guests arrive. Set the bargeeue table, and you'll have nothing to do but entertain the guests, assuming you can persuade the man of the house to take over the outdoor cooking.
4. Do you give up weekends away from home because "the weeds will take over and the grass will be sky-high? If you don't stick around? There are usually small boys around eager to do the job for pin money. They can also take care of those other "excuses" that keep you at home—feeding the dog and cat and watering the lawn.

5. Do you stay indoors because you fear the sun, and the house is so cool? There are many advantages to be gained being outdoors, and equipped properly with sun glasses, beach umbrella and straw hat, you can enjoy the outdoors without getting sunburned. Better still, find a shady spot, but get out of the rut of sticking close to home. Home is a wonderful place, but you never have a change of scenery.

Girl Fans Mob This Teen Hero

AH, THE TROUBLES of a poor hero pursued by his adoring fans. Take Frankie Avalon, for instance. The handsome 19-year-old singer and trumpet player was old Milwaukee ace by storm when he was almost hit by a tornado—three persistent fans.

Police were escorting him around town to protect him from bodily injury and the loss of clothing snatched by enthusiastic fans, when three girls managed to corner him at his hotel suite. He and his manager talked to the girls, signed some autographs and advised them to get home at once because of the 10:30 p.m. teen-age curfew in Milwaukee. But the law was at hand, and arrived to enforce the rule and Frankie was involved because of his fans' thoughtlessness.

"I had a happy ending though," explains Frankie, who says he almost had a heart attack. "The girls' parents apologized for their actions and the law officers were sorry about it, too."

Frankie forgave his fans, having been one himself since the age of 10 when he sent his first fan letter to Frank Sinatra and bought his first Sinatra record. He has every record Sinatra made. "I'm still a fan of his. I idolize him," says Frankie, who gets 1,000 to 1,500 fan letters a day. He describes his first meeting with Sinatra that occurred a few months ago.

FRANKIE AVALON . . . young man with a horn

"I was in Hawaii and heard that Sinatra was there. I called every hotel to locate him, finally got his manager and told him I'd like to meet him. He said fine, and made a date."

"I was so nervous, I couldn't eat. I knocked on the hotel room door. He said 'come in.' He was sitting down. My legs were trembling, and then he put me at ease by saying, 'Come here, son, I've heard a lot about you, sit down and talk awhile.'"

Frankie's 20-minute session with Sinatra is the highlight of his life, and he got an autograph on an old snapshot of his hero.

A further thrill came on the set of "Guns of the Timberland" when Robert Walker said, "You know who was talking about you last night?—Frank Sinatra. He thought you were real nice." Frankie beams from ear to ear when he tells the story.

His own career started with the trumpet on the Jackie Gleason show at age 11. He'll play the trumpet again on the Ed Sullivan show soon, but it's his singing that has made him a star. His "Venus" record is a million-and-a-half seller, and his newest record is a two-sided hit—"Boy With a Girl" and "Bobby Sox to Stockings."

Fall Fashions Show Closes In New York

NEW YORK (AP)—Closing sessions of this week's fall fashion showings by New York designers resembled a meeting of the United Nations, as 25 women from foreign consulates and three Moscow fashion experts viewed American styles.

The consular ladies were present at the invitation of Leonard and Andrew Arkin, father-and-son team presenting a group of typically American, moderately-priced fashions. A number appeared in native dress, and all applauded the smart, wearable clothes. Their favorite of the Arkin collection was a black broadcloth cocktail dress, cut on slender lines, with plunging back neckline and a satin belt.

All those present appeared captivated by the children's fashions shown by Helen Lee, featuring pint-sized school and party dresses worn by small glamor girls, aged four to eight. A favorite of this group was a red calico smock over a black cotton full-skirted dress, for the smart kindergartner.

Suzie Perette, who often sells as many as 10,000 copies of a single dress, showed a group of the top fashions already ordered in volume by store buyers throughout the country. Best-sellers included:

A plaid sheer wool dress with waister to top and full skirt; a black jersey sheath with square neck, long sleeves and a wide leather belt; a dress and jacket in violet wool jersey; and a dress-and-jacket outfit in dark green and red-checked wool, with waist-length jacket and scarf neckline. Betty Carol, of Mam'selle, showed a slick group of junior fashions which stressed dress-and-jacket costumes with "space girl" capes and hoods.

Paula Dean showed a flattering line of clothes for the woman who is too busy to watch her figure, featuring sheer, chiffon-weight wools and simple jersey dress-and-jacket costumes in high colors.

Black Mink Trimming Is Girls' Best Companion

By SUE CARDOZO

ROME (AP)—Black mink will be a girl's best companion next winter if not her most valuable friend.

Black mink has been made into head coverings and trimmed into collars and cuffs. It shortly will reach vaster proportions, but for now at least, one leading Roman couturiere has used it in small but important accessories as in scarves or in wrist-winding pels.

At the dress rehearsal of Mingol-Gugenheim's autumn-winter collection to be presented to the buyers this afternoon the glistering long-haired fur was tucked into the v of a tailored oxford-grey coat. And a belt braced the forearm of a demure street-length black cocktail dress.

Typically elegant and adapted to suit many tastes, the Mingol-Gugenheim 1960 line is flexible, following and tends to be draped above and simple below the waist.

Black, in all its dimensions, is the dominant hue with eggplant purple an important contender for attention. It is the next to last day of the Rome high-fashion showing and the turnout of visiting buyers, manufacturers and press has never been greater.

Reports from Florence, where another syndicate of Italian designers will pick up the fall fashion spotlight on Monday indicates that attendance there will also reach unprecedented heights, with at least 10 non-Italian nations represented.

Oh Happy Electronic Housewife

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

MODERN HOUSEWIVES have found a way to lick the servant problem.

They now may have a staff of cook, house-cleaner, baby-sitter, butler and secretary—all worked by pushbuttons.

The modern stove does the cooking—turns on at a prearranged signal, turns itself off when the food is done, while the lady of the house is out playing bridge.

New automatic dishwashers and vacuum cleaners need only slight human direction, and new TV and intercom gadgets enable Mom to watch the nursery at a distance.

Newest in the electronic household staff are the electronic butler and secretary.

The butler answer the doorbell by remote control, inquires the caller's business and gives the answer. It's a new gadget by which the doorbell is hooked up to the telephone in the house, so that if Mom happens to be in the tub when the bell rings she can simply pick up a phone and answer it.

If it's a salesman, a microphone OUTSIDE the door can say—"We don't need any today."

If she goes shopping for the day, the lady of the house may leave her electronic secretary in charge, to answer the telephone, give and take messages, all by means of a recording device. Mom needn't even come back home to get her messages. All she has to do is call her number from any phone, hold a small oscillator near the mouthpiece, and find out what time Dad will be home from work or when she's supposed to pick up the children.

Automation can even save her the trouble of dialing numbers any more. There is a new index which may be attached to the phone, listing as many as 800 names and numbers. When she wants to talk to a friend, either in the neighborhood or 1,000 miles away, all she has to do is turn the index to the right name, push a button and talk.

What next?

"Well," says Donald C. Power, whose company is responsible for many electronic marvels, "the day is not far off when the United States will be linked by a nationwide electronic telephone system, directed by electronic brains."

Now maybe somebody will invent an electronic parent to keep the children in line.

ENTHUSIASM ON INCREASE

Reports from Japan say that department stores are rapidly expanding their infants' wear sections. This is partly due to increasing enthusiasm for washable everyday wear for babies, as opposed to hard-to-wash "special occasion" garments—just about the only type available presently.

Parties Fete Bride-Elect

AYDEN — Mesdames Vernon Warren, Eugene Hart and Kenneth Long entertained at a miscellaneous shower on Thursday night at the Ayden Community Building in honor of Miss Peggy Wadkins, bride-elect. On arrival Miss Wadkins was presented a white mink corsage.

Mrs. Kenneth Long directed the guests in several contests.

The refreshment table was centered with arrangements of white mums arranged in a silver bowl. Bridal cake, nuts, mints and punch were served.

Approximately fifty guests attended.

Entertain Bridal Party

Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Jenkins and Mr. and Mrs. Grover Morris entertained the Smith-Wadkins bridal party and other guests at a dinner party at the Jenkins home on Terrace Drive.

Miss Wadkins was remembered by the hosts and hostesses with a white mink corsage and a gift of china in her chosen pattern.

The guests found their places at auxiliary tables which were centered with arrangements of bridal flowers.

Dinner Honors Noah Barber

Honoring her husband, Noah Barber, at a birthday dinner last Sunday, Mrs. Barber of the Ballards Crossroads community entertained at a barbecue and chicken dinner. Due to the weather, the dinner was served buffet style indoors.

Approximately 70 relatives and friends were present for this occasion.

County Govm't Problems Growing

Editor's note: The following editorial was prepared by R. L. MARTIN, Chairman of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners.

The State of North Carolina accepts federal welfare aid they accept for and bind the counties of North Carolina with certain laws, rules and regulations. The state adds their portion of the grant and other regulations that must be accepted and complied with by the County Board of Public Welfare. Applicants, if they meet certain requirements, must be placed on the public welfare.

Estimates must be made by the Board and incorporated in a welfare budget and agreed upon in joint session with the Board of County Commissioners; and these figures passed on to the State Board of Public Welfare who may think that estimates are too small and increase the County appropriations for public welfare and the Board of County Commissioners must comply or give assurance that they will appropriate the money if needed during the fiscal year.

This creates a problem for any Board of County

Commissioners, and with the current trend of an increasing number becoming eligible each year the trend of appropriations take the same turn—upward. Increased grants per applicant must be made by the state and federal government with a corresponding decrease in the County appropriation, or less liberal requirement for admission to the public welfare rolls must be made or we continue in a vicious cycle.

To lighten this load, Pitt County, with the assistance of the Welfare Superintendent and Mr. W. K. Whichard, is screening welfare recipients for possible Social Security coverage, and those with partial coverage are being encouraged and helped to complete their coverage and be placed on Social Security.

Another major problem is that of public health which includes mental health. The laws and regulations of the State Merit System must be complied with in the operation of this department in order to receive grants toward the administrative costs of operating a health department. Classification of personnel is done by the State Merit System Council and salaries established by them for each classification. Again full control is lost. Less State administrative control would answer this problem.

County Homes, once the order of the day, presents a major problem today.

With participating grants by the State and Federal government for the aged, county government should establish a rest home, or at least encourage and promote private rest homes in the County to lighten the load or to eliminate it. The problem: Where is the hundred thousand dollars coming from? The people of Pitt County could decide this by a popular vote.

County government also faces the many problems present today in business... rising prices, replacement costs and the increasing Social Security and State retirement burden over which they have no control.

Schools present the major problem for county government, and not only for the Board of County Commissioners but also for the County Board of Education, which is directly responsible to the people of Pitt County for the operation of and the standards of the school system in the County. The Board of County Commissioners are faced with the major problem of trying to determine just how far we can and should go toward appropriating the necessary money for the building of schools and helping the school board meet a standard of education for the children of Pitt County. If the Board of County Commissioners do not agree with budget requests made by the school board. The school board holds the power of appeal and could well exercise this in case of disagreement.

Obviously the answer should be that the necessary money should be appropriated to make our schools first class throughout the county. It should be this way, but many problems of money arise as it does in the case of business or an individual. The answer is not so simple. The enrollment of Pitt County schools is growing at a much faster pace than the valuations of the County. The ability of the taxpayer to pay must be weighed, which includes the economic situation facing us at this time. So the problems are many.

How fast should we proceed with capital outlay? At present the school budget represents more than fifty percent of the county budget.

How much more should we appropriate? Should we or can we make more use of the present school structure?

How can we meet the growing demand of increased enrollment which is outgrowing valuations? Should the school system of Pitt County be centralized?

What saving would be effected in such a program?

With a debt service fund of seventeen cents per hundred dollar valuation how much farther can we go in financing?

Would we have a surplus of buildings in such a program?

Many questions could be raised as to the school problem, and many will be raised and they must be answered in the near future if educational standards are set to meet the time in which we live. A careful study should be made by a school planning committee and long range planning programed.

Governor Hodges has recently proposed that local governments accept more of the school burden by increased participation. Local government cannot assume more of the burden and remain solvent. The ad-valorem tax, like tobacco, is already carrying a heavy end of the tax burden and no further burden should be placed upon it. The State of North Carolina with its many sources of revenue should accept more of the responsibility and see that the schools throughout the state are made uniform and provide the same standards for all schools.

The children in Pitt County should receive the same type education that is provided by the best school system in the State.

Y'Planning Some House Cleaning?

Honesty Is Still Around

Are there still honest people in the world?
Yes, says J. L. Page, manager of Three Guys from Dixie store here.

A letter Page received in the mails the other day bore him out in this opinion.

Inside was a plain piece of paper. Attached to the paper with cellophane tape were four 4 cent stamps and two pennies.

Typed across the top were a couple of lines: "You short changed yourself the other day. Here it is."

"I've never had it happen before," said Page. "I've had people tell me at the counter, but I've never had them go to the trouble to mail it in.

"It just goes to show you there are still a lot of honest people in the country."

Page said he wanted to thank the person who did it, even though it was only a small amount involved.

"We will probably never know who it was," he declared.

The Daily Reflector is read — or at least has been in Tehran, Iran.

Roy Phelps has recently returned to Greenville from Iran.

He received the Reflector while he was there and passed it on to friends at the NCO Club in Tehran.

We doubt if the local news from Greenville interested the folks in Iran too much — other than Roy — but at least it can be said that the paper was read there.

Roy, incidentally was employed by a private American firm who had lent him to the American government, which in turn sent him to Tehran to assist the Iranian army.

That's a complicated situation but it's the way it worked out. Roy was assisting the Iranian army with modern shortwave radio equipment.

Iran, by the way, borders the Soviet Union and Roy says he has been to the border and could see the Russian border guards on the opposite side. Roy stayed entirely on Iranian soil.

Other Editors Saying... Cursiosity Could Be Fatal

(Henderson Dispatch)
Tragedy involving human lives was narrowly averted in two different ways when a disabled jet airliner carrying 113 persons made a safe emergency landing at New York's Idlewild airport last Saturday night.

The pilot, Capt. Edward F. Sommers, had his mind and his hands full in trying to figure out the safest way to land 100 tons of airplane at 150 miles an hour, with two of the craft's ten wheels missing. And at the last minute, after circling—and worrying—for four hours to burn out fuel and reduce fire danger, he faced the new problem of considering the safety of an estimated 50,000 curiosity seekers who had overrun barriers and crowded dangerously close to the runway.

Ground crewmen had seen something fall from the plane as it left the ground on a flight destined for London. Capt. Sommers was immediately advised of trouble by radio, and plans were started for an emergency landing.

But while the plane was using up fuel, and fire trucks and other safety equipment were being assembled at the scene, word of trouble spread to the public and brought out hordes of spectators.

As it turned out, Capt. Sommers made a good landing on a foam-covered runway; he reportedly kept perfect control of the huge plane, and nobody was hurt. But until the landing was complete, nobody—not even the pilot—knew exactly what was going to take place. Had the main landing wheels collapsed, the plane could have bounded or skidded off the runway and into the crowd with tragic results; too, it could have burst into flame from metal gnashing into concrete, and the 113 persons inside would have been endangered.

The result has been a sharp exchange of criticism between airport officials and the New York City fire commissioner. The fire department charges that airport police were negligent in failing to restrain the crowds and keep streets clear for emergency vehicles. Airport spokesmen, on the other hand, say their forces were inadequate to handle such a surge of spectators, and that they were powerless to break up the gathering.

But while the high level officials are sniping at each other, the persons really at fault are going their merry ways, waiting for something else to happen. The only ones to blame are those curiosity-seekers who risked their own lives and possibly endangered the lives of others to satisfy a lust for excitement, many of them probably expecting to see tragedy take place.

The New York incident is just a spotlighted example of what takes place around the country every day at plane crashes, automobile wrecks, fires and other emergencies. It is a nationwide problem, and the solution is in the hands of the public. In this connection, every motorist should keep in mind that his decision to stay away from a scene of congestion might help to save the lives or property of others, as well as his own.

Instead of counting on policemen to hold back unnecessary crowds, let's keep such crowds from forming by staying away to give firemen, police and rescue workers room to carry out their work.

For the benefit of all who might be interested there are several important events coming up next week. On July 21, Mrs. Eisenhower will christen the world's first nuclear powered merchant ship at Camden, N.J.

July 24, 1898 Aviatix Amelia Earhart was born; July 25, Vice President Nixon will open the American Exhibit in Moscow. July 25 is the 50th anniversary of the world's first airplane flight across the English Channel.

Oh yes, 98 years ago next Tuesday the Confederates defeated the Union Army at Bull Run, Va. in the first major engagement of the Civil War. (I knew those Yankees wouldn't fight!)

Keeps Fire Vigil

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — "When there is a bad fire, it seems to still the air. And the loneliness creeps in," the middle-aged widow says.

As she stands in her lofty perch atop Sugar Hill in Schuylkill County northwest of Elmira, N.Y., Mrs. Lorna Dewitt watches for forest fires as do three other women in other parts of New York State.

The four, among New York's 108 fire-spotters, have been keeping vigil for a total of 35 years.

The veteran is Mrs. Helen Ellett, 45, who has watched near Troy for 12 years. Mrs. Sophia Anderson, 60, has been on duty southeast of Syracuse for 10 years; Mrs. Leona Borst, 53, has watched west of Albany for nine years, and Mrs. Dewitt for four years.

"They are real experts at scanning the horizons for fire," says Solon J. Hyde, head of the New York State Conservation Department's Bureau of Forest Fire Control. "They are very reliable."

When the trees are green, the grass lush and fire danger low, the women occupy themselves with planting trees, reading, fixing screens, cutting brush, mending the family clothing, painting, watching creatures of the forest or tending the recreation sites the state has built at many towers.

Mrs. Anderson has spent up to 18 consecutive days on the job in or beside her 90 foot tower.

"No one relieves me," she says. "I just go on duty until a rainy day, then I call in and get the day off."

To Mrs. Ellett, "All fires are exciting, and not to be taken lightly."

Hyde discourages assignment of women to isolated towers, even though there is a cabin at the foot of each observatory. Watchers, who earn $61 a week, are not required to live at their posts but many do during very dry spells. They work about seven months a year.

Few cabins have electricity. All have telephones to spread word of danger.

Mrs. Ellett's home is 5½ miles from her tower. When spring and fall mud discouraged motor travel, she mounts a horse for the trip.

"But the ones where the wardens call the tower and ask for all the help they can get are especially exciting," she says. "I call the stores and other places and ask them to tell the men who are there of the fires, and call the wardens and rangers to get all help available and take them to the fires."

Mrs. Borst has worked 70 hours a week on critical times.

But to Mrs. Dewitt, the "unsung heroines" of the fire control service are the wives of the rangers.

"While their husbands are on duty, they take reports, locate help, direct and receive countless telephone calls."

"If we don't take advantage of the freedoms which are ours we might as well be living under a dictatorship such as that which exists in Russia." — Hartland (Canada) Observer.

"Violence by strikers or strike sympathizers is no different from violence by common criminals. Every resource of law enforcing agencies should be used to protect the innocent citizen exercising his right to work and to apprehend the guilty who would, by terror, deny that right." — Tampa (Fla.) Tribune.

"Today's monopolists have not, as a group, committed all the sins of their 1912 prototypes. But monopoly unionism is as clearly dedicated to causes against the public interest as was business monopoly 47 years ago. Monopoly of the labor market is proving equally as dangerous as monopoly of the money market." — Huntington Herald-Advertiser.

Strength For Today Gravy In Those Fringe Benefits

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
HOW DO WE CHECK UP?

"I'll be seeing you."
Of course, he will never see anyone. He has been blind now for forty years. I heard him say this to a clerk. This blind man is apparently one of the happiest men in our village. When he comes to a curb, there are always hands ready to take him across to the other side of the street. And he talks merrily to the people as they help him and thanks them when he gets to the other side.

Blind? Yes, physically so. Yet many a person with 20-20 vision does not have the sight and insight often possessed by supposedly blind people. It was the blind minister Matheson who wrote the hymn, "O Love That Will Not Let Me Go." Science and learning are full of inspiring biographies of men and women who could not see as you and I see and yet who often saw further and deeper than any of us will ever be permitted to see. Helen Keller is not only the great modern example of this sight and insight; she is probably the greatest example of this inspiring reality in the whole of human history.

How much, as an actual reality, do you and I really see? How deep does our wisdom go? How lovingly can we look into the heart and see its needs?

"I'll be seeing you," said the blind man—or was he blind?

Quote...

"With the great responsibility we have to defend the United States we cannot discard our tried and proved manned aircraft weapons systems until we find something that we positively know is better. We know that the manned systems we have in the Air Force today are dependable and out to the job." — Lt. General Roscoe Wilson, USAF.

"A great many of us are terrified of being different, which is the same thing as being afraid to be free." — Hartland (N.B., Canada) Observer.

By ELMER ROESSNER

The rich are in a position to take many tax advantages: capital gains, depletion allowance for oil wells and mines, tax-free bond interest—but the working man often gets a full dish of gravy, too.

There are, of course, usual fringe benefits.

Some are taxed as income, most are not. There are more rules than Treasury Secretary Robert B. Anderson can shake a collector at. In general, the theory is that if a meal, salt pill or other boon is for the benefit of the employee, it is tax-free to the employee.

Rules about pensions, death benefits and other payments are more complicated. Employees usually get about a 50-50 break. THE BITTIE BENEFITS

In addition to those fringes, there are countless smaller boons and advantages, often too insignificant for tax rulings on individual reckonings but large in total.

Take meals. If an employer gives a night watchman supper because there is no place he can eat at midnight, or if a housewife gives her maid lunch, those are not considered wages and their value is not taxed.

Again, many employers give workers lunches at discounts in company cafeterias. In many plants, a worker can get a meal costing his employer a dollar for 50 cents. Is the 50 cents a day he saves income? It seems to be. But it isn't taxed.

There are other benefits, worth cash, that are not usually ruled income.

Take parking. Many employees park free in company parking lots. Parking across the street may cost 50 cents to $1. Is the difference taxable income? No, it may be for the employer's benefit, of course. But it saves the employee both parking fees and taxes.

FREE TALK-TALK

Take health benefits. In many union contracts, health and hospitalization benefits are written in. And their value as income is taxed or not, depending on the setup.

But there are many similar benefits in nonunion offices that are not taxed. Many employers arrange to give workers benefits of group insurance at lower rates than they could buy it. The workers get an untaxed cash saving.

And in both union and non-union places of labor, there are often free and untaxed advantages. In some plants, company doctors will do almost everything short of surgery at no cost to the worker. An acher may save many $5 and $10 doctor bills in the course of the year.

Other professional services are included in the little fringes given employees. They can get counseling on family financing problems free when a professional debt counselor might charge 5 per cent of the unpaid bills. They can get company help in filling income tax forms, thereby saving from $5 to $25 a year.

Some companies arrange psychological consultations for their employees who need it. Still others have arrangements to help alcoholics. All of these treatments are worth cash; but the government does not levy on their value as it says it levies on executives' travel when it is really added compensation.

Your correspondent has one editorial comment. To the next labor state who claims the bosses get unfair advantages under the tax laws:

Shut up! SCIENCE MARCHES ON—THROUGH THE BARNYARD

The Valley National Bank of Phoenix, Ariz., says that a Minnesota livestock bulletin reports that some Nebraska scientists are working on a miniature, battery-powered radio which cows are to be induced to swallow. When the cow gets bloated, the radio starts broadcasting a signal which alerts the farmer, who dashes out with a bucket of bicarb. That's what it says.

The next step, of course, is to develop a radio that will activate milking machines when a cow is ready.

East Carolina College is lingering through summer school at the present time but in about another month and a half, things will pick up and another interesting season should begin for East Carolina College athletes.

The local coaching staff has taken a mild shake-up since this time last fall and the results should be interesting.

Two New Heads

Coach Jack Boone, gridiron boss, will have only two of his assistants—Frank Madigan and Bill McDonald—back from the coaching brigade which guided the Pirates to a 6-4 mark last season.

Jim Mallory, end coach, has taken over the position of Dean of Men at the college and will not be available for football coaching duties. Earl Smith, freshman coach and a line assistant, will also be missing from Boone's ranks. Smith has taken over as head basketball coach and will devote full-time service here.

Two new men—Windell Carr and George Tucker—will join the East Carolina College staff come September. Carr, a Wake Forest graduate, was a hard-work star for the Deacons and will work only with basketball at ECC.

Tucker is a former East Carolina star, playing under Boone in the early 1950's. George has been a big success in his coaching tenure. He orientated football at Wingate Junior College and then produced a championship club in his second year there.

Although away from ECC, Tucker has been a loyal supporter of the local football program, sending numerous junior college athletes here. The Monroe native gave up his Wingate job in 1958 to accept a coaching position at Davidson College where he served the past season.

What About Freshman Program?

In all the changing and addition of coaches, Boone will still have one less coach on his staff than last year.

Unless another one is added before September, the local freshmen program could take a jolt this coming fall.

Boone will be unable to sacrifice any of his front line coaches for the Bucs will have a busy schedule ahead preparing for their first encounter, a tough North State slate and the eleven game schedule as a whole.

The freshman football program at the college has never been really strong due to lack of coaching personnel and also a diminishing amount of funds.

Last season was probably the most beneficial year for the yearling crop as a good number of games were played and the experience enabled the freshmen to get the hang of Boone's system. Boone was able to utilize several of his freshmen in the final games of the season and the group should be a valuable asset to this year's club.

Freshmen Program Is Needed

A freshmen program at the college is definitely needed and if another coach is not brought in, provisions should be made for the above-mentioned program.

The addition of Tucker to the ECC staff could bring outstanding results. Smith and Mallory were both veterans of the game but while rendering their services to the football field, they were still tied down with other sports.

Mallory was serving as head baseball coach and Smith was an assistant in basketball and baseball. This did not allow them to put full-time effort to football which Tucker will be able to.

Billy Joe Is Ready To Defend His Title

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Billy Joe Patton, who apparently has shaken off the effects of a hand injury, was ready today to defend his Carolina Golf Assn. amateur title.

The bespectacled Morganton, N.C., lumberman hurt a finger on his left hand in a business accident recently but those who saw him play at the Forest Lake Country Club course here Friday said Patton didn't seem to be bothered.

Patton and 63 other top Carolina golfers begin match play today in the championship flight of the tournament which has a record field of 261.

Patton earned a place in the select flight without qualifying because he is defending champion. On the basis of Friday's qualifying round, Ed Justa of Rocky Mount, N.C., must be considered a strong contender for the championship. Justa took medalist honors with a two-under par 70.

The University of North Carolina student carded only one bogey in his tour of the 6,449-yard course.

Only other sub-par round was a 71 by last year's runnerup, Charles Smith of Gastonia, N.C.

Qualifying scores generally soared because of erratic weather.

Pirate Catcher
Owes League $50

WILSON, N.C. (AP) — A Pittsburgh Pirate catcher owes the Class B Carolina League $50. League President Bill Jessup announced Friday he had fined Harding Peterson $50. Peterson was managing Wilson when Jessup said he bumped and shoved umpire Ken Hall at Raleigh July 13.

Jessup said he considered suspending Peterson who was called up by the Pirates after the incident. However, Jessup said he did not suspend Peterson because he did not want to penalize a major league club.

er. Showers fell frequently during the hot and humid day.

A score of 79 was good enough for a spot in the championship flight. Thirteen golfers shot 80s and they were to play off to fill three open positions in the 64-player top flight.

Match play will continue each day with the climax coming with the 36-hole finals Tuesday.

There was a four-way tie for third in the qualifying. These were Howard Sullivan of Greenville, Buzzy Basinger of Charlotte, Joe Moses Jr. of Myrtle Beach and Aubrey Davis of Columbia, each with 73.

Seven players tied with 74. They were Hubert Scarborough of Raleigh, Horace Ervin of Winston, N.C., Bobby Chapman Jr. of Spartanburg, Jamie Gouge of Shaw Air Force Base, Pat Foy Brady of Reidsville, N.C., Bobby Howard of Columbia and Billy Higgins of Columbia.

Crocker Leading Alliance Tourney

ALLIANCE, Ohio (AP) — Fay Crocker, the golfing miss from Montevideo, Uruguay, has a two-stroke edge at the halfway point in the $12,500 Alliance International golf tournament, biggest on the feminine tour.

She sank an 18-foot birdie putt on the final hole Friday for a one-under-par 70 and a two-day total of 141 over the 6,253-yard course.

Patry Berg of St. Andrews, Ill., was second with 71-72-143.

The tourney's tiniest, 110-pound Marlene Haggee of Pittsburgh, held third place with 145. Deadlocked at 145 were Betsy Rawls of Spartanburg, S.C., the year's big money winner with $12,004; Mickey Wright of Bonita, Calif.; the National Open queen; Marilyn Smith, French Lick, Ind.; and Mary Lena Faulk of Thomasville, Ga.

The tournament winds up Sunday.

Wynn Wins 261st Game In Knocking Off The Yankees

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

At 39, Early Wynn is one of the winningest pitchers the majors have known.

Friday night, Wynn won his 261st. Backed by fine fielding, he knocked off the New York Yankees in a double two-hit duel with young Ralph Terry as the White Sox, hitless for eight innings, won 2-0 in the ninth and retained their one-game lead in the American League race.

Second place Cleveland barely managed to keep the pace, almost blowing a seven-run lead before beating Boston 8-7. Third place Baltimore handed Detroit a fifth straight loss 3-2 and Kansas City cooled off Washington 7-4.

In the National League, San Francisco beat Pittsburgh 4-1 for a two-game lead — their largest of the season — over second place Los Angeles, edged 3-2 by Philadelphia. Milwaukee lost its fourth straight, 4-3 at St. Louis.

The Chicago Cubs defeated Cincinnati 1-0.

Jim McAnany, a rookie batting .392 in 14 games since being called up by the White Sox, got the first hit off Terry, a clean single leading off the ninth. Then, after McAnany beat Terry's throw to second on Wynn's bunt and Luis Aparicio sacrificed the runners to third and second, Nellie Fox purposefully was walked.

With the bases loaded, Jim Landis sliced a two-run single to right — after Berra had dropped his two-strike foul tip — and it was Wynn's victory to lock up.

Wynn, 12-6, broke a tie with Ted Lyons for the No. 20 berth among all-time winners while bagging his 12th two-hitter. Terry, 23, has pitched two two-hitters in his brief career — and has lost both.

The first hit by the Yankees, still fourth, 6½ games behind, came when first base umpire Ed Rommel called Terry safe in the sixth after a one-bounce throw by Aparicio, who had made a fine backhand stop.

Cleveland, after losing three straight, came off a winner when reliever Gary Bell ended a second three-run Boston rally by putting a called third strike past Bobby Avila for the final out with the tying and lead runs on base. That saved rookie Larry Locke's first victory after he was chased by Marty Keough's one-on-one homer in a three-run seventh.

Rocky Colavito hit his 29th homer for the Indians, who lost manager Joe Gordon and left fielder Minnie Miñoso in rhubarbs. Brooks Robinson's first homer and a two-run error by Rocky Bridges with the bases loaded on walks gave the Orioles their three runs with two out in the second inning. Don Mossi (7-4) lost it, although allowing only three hits. Hec Brown (6-2) won it.

The A's broke a 3-3 tie at Washington with four runs in the seventh on Dick Williams' single and Harry Chitt's double. Ned Garver (7-9) was the winner, with Russ Kemmerer 5-10 taking the loss.

Close Games In Carolina League

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

They played the games close in the Carolina League Friday night, 1-0, 2-1 and 6-5.

Winston-Salem got only four hits, but defeated Raleigh's league leading Caps 1-0 to snap a Raleigh jinx. The Red Birds had dropped nine straight decisions in the Raleigh park this season and had won only two of 17 games with the Caps.

Righthander Sam McIntyre held Raleigh to five hits. Dick Radatz had a one-hitter until the ninth when Winston-Salem solved its offerings and scored its run.

Durham's Mickey Lollich and Dan Gallagher bested Danny McCarthy in a pitching duel as the Bulls edged Greensboro 2-1 at Greensboro. Each team got only three hits. Gallagher came on in the fourth after Lollich was wild. He stopped the Yanks on one hit.

Burlington put down a ninth inning rally to edge Wilson 6-5 at Graham. Wilson showed across two runs in the ninth and had the tying run at second before the rally was stifled.

Tonight's games: Durham at Winston-Salem, Greensboro at Winston and Raleigh at Burlington.

Cites Teamwork Important To All

BLUE RIDGE, N.C. (AP) — A winning football coach says teamwork is as necessary to management in industry as it is to the coach of a football team.

Coach Bobby Dodd of Georgia Tech stressed the value of teamwork in contributing to victory in a speech to the Southern Industrial Relations Conference here Friday night.

Dodd said his three-point program at Tech is "First we brag on the boy every time he makes a good play. Secondly, we instill pride in his team and in him. Third, we never criticize in generalities."

The conference closed here today with a talk by Dr. George D. Heaton of Charlotte, an industrial relations consultant.

PALATINE, Ill. (AP) — Buffalo farmer L. B. Anderson has discovered that one of the most effective taming devices is a supply of cigarettes or loose tobacco.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The biggest track and field extravaganza outside the Olympics pitting the two behemoths of the world — the U.S. and the Soviet Union — against each other opens a two-day stand at the University of Pennsylvania's Franklin Field today.

The two countries clashed in Moscow last year with the American men winning 14 firsts to 8 for the Soviets. The Soviet women won 6 firsts in their section against 4 for the American ladies.

A full Olympic program of events with the exception of the marathon was on the schedule. Opening event was the pole vault at 2:30 p.m. (EST). Sunday, between 3:30 p.m. and 5 p.m. (EST), NBC will televise the meet on a national hookup. The Soviets will be favored in two of the events that are on tap for the TV audience — the 3,000 meter steeplechase and the 5,000 meter run.

The others will be the 800 meter, the 1,500 meter and the 1,600 meter relay.

The final scores are bound to be close because the tally will be on a 5-3-2-1 basis, unusual in international competition. The relay will be scored 5-3. That means, with each country entering two competitors in each event, everyone who finishes will score.

While the American coaching staff, headed by Frank Potts of the University of Colorado, won't come right out and say so, there is a feeling that no matter how the meet is scored this time, the Soviets are going to come out on the short end of it.

True, both Rafer Johnson, who had hoped to reclaim the world decathlon record, and Glenn Davis, the world's No. 1 hurdler, are among those missing from the U.S. team because of injuries.

But the Yanks don't intend to let the Soviets upset them in the high jump and the pole vault as they did in Moscow.

The Soviets, on the other hand, are bound to win one test they lost last year — the decathlon. Vasily Kuznetsov broke Johnson's world record with 8,357 points two months ago.

The Americans figure they have a good chance of an upset in the 100-meter run in which they usually are notoriously weak. But Bill Dellinger of the Air Force hopes to change all that. He's been in serious training after eye-lash and thinks he may give Pyotr Bolotinikov a run for it.

Otherwise, the Americans are strong in their specialties and the Soviets powerful in their own top events.

Teenagers Dominating Swim Championships

REDDING, Calif. (AP) — Teenagers continued to dominate the National AAU Women's Swimming Championships today after a pair of them raced to world records in the 220-yard backstroke and 440-yard medley.

Record breakers were 19-year-old Carin Cone and blonde Sylvia Ruuska.

Shapely Carin beat defending champion Chris Von Saltza in the backstroke and went the distance in 2 minutes 27.9 seconds to erase the world mark of 2:38.5 by L. De Nijs of Holland in 1957.

Then came 17-year-old Sylvia and the greatest performance ever in the 440-yard medley in which the racers swim one lap each of breaststroke, backstroke, butterfly and freestyle.

Miss Ruuska, a senior at Berkeley High School, went the distance in 5 minutes 40.2 seconds. The International Swimming Federation last year in setting up the event for world competition had set 5:52 or better for recognition as record.

Other winners Friday included: Miss Von Saltza of Saratoga, Calif., with 1:04.8, and American citizen's record, in the 110-yard freestyle.

Ann Warner, 14-year-old from the Santa Clara Club with an American record of 3:02.4 for the 220-yard breaststroke.

A competition continued today in this 55-year-old Redding Park pool with the 3-meter springboard diving, 110-yard butterfly, 440-yard freestyle, 110-yard breaststroke, and 440-yard freestyle relay.

Calhoun Wins In Split Decision

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Sleepy-eyed Roy Calhoun, winner of a 10-round split decision, said today he had to chase Dick Tiger to make the fight.

Most of Friday night's crowd of 1,320 thought differently. They howled and tossed refuse into the ring after Judges Dick Fazio and Harold McGrath awarded the last three rounds to Calhoun and a 6-4 margin.

Referee Joe Palmer saw the middleweight scrap 5-3-2 for Tiger. So did the AP.

Calhoun, from White Plains, N.Y., closed last June 5 in New York's Madison Square Garden to earn a draw with Tiger in a fight good enough to win a quick rematch.

Friday night's effort probably sent a nationwide television and radio audience to bed early.

Calhoun, 24, and five years younger than Tiger, showed more aggressiveness toward the end. This probably impressed Fazio and McGrath.

The win boosted Calhoun's record to 40-7-2. Tiger, the British Empire middleweight champion, now is 32-9-2.

Lopez Exulting
In 'Good Plays'

NEW YORK (AP) — "There were more good plays than I ever saw in one game."

That was Al Lopez' tribute Friday night after his Chicago White Sox had shut out New York 2-0 with Early Wynn beating young Ralph Terry. Each pitcher allowed but two hits. Terry didn't give up until Jim McAnany singled in the ninth. Wynn also had a no-hitter going until Terry beat out a ground ball on a disputed call at first base in the sixth.

Chicago defenders turned in sensational plays back of Wynn. There was Jim Landis' long run to grab Mickey Mantle's drive in deep center in the fourth. Al Smith's tumbling catch of Enos Slaughter's fast-sinking fly in left center in the fifth.

Most important to Wynn was Earl Torgeson's play on the left. Torgeson's smash in the ninth that he turned into a rally-killing double play. "I just hoped it didn't drag Torgy out into the grass," said Wynn as he sank wearily to a stool in front of his locker. It was a great night for the 39-year-old Wynn whose total of 261 victories is tops in both leagues for active pitchers.

"How about all those great plays in back of you?" Wynn was asked. "Routine, just routine," he said with a grin. "You haven't been seeing our ball club enough. They could have been a couple of steps faster."

Littler's Putts
Provide Lead In Insurance City

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) — It's easy to figure why Gene Littler, the dandy pro from Singing Hills, Calif., holds a commanding lead today at the halfway mark in the $25,000 Insurance City Open Golf Tournament.

Littler has scored rounds of 64-66-130 for 36 holes, a blistering pace, over the par 71 Wethersfield Country Club's 6,548-yard course.

His brilliant putting and pinpoint drives have shot him five strokes ahead of his nearest challengers. Bruce Crampton of Sydney, Australia, and Bob Goaly of Crystal River, Fla.

He has used only 58 putts, 29 each day. He has missed only two greens and only one putt.

As the third round shaped up today, the field had been reduced from 155 to 88.

In addition to Crampton and Goaly, others ready to catch up on any lapses include Al Bessell of Grossinger, N.Y.; and Fred Hawkins, El Paso, Tex., 136s.

A year of self-imposed exile from baseball appears to have worked wonders for George Strickland. The 33-year-old Cleveland infielder retired from baseball "for personal reasons" after the 1957 season and spent 1958 working in a sporting goods store and as a mutual clerk at the race track.

He didn't see a baseball game all year. That lay-off must have done Strickland a world of good for he has been thumping the ball as never before and is helping the Indians in their stubborn battle for the pennant.

Early in the spring of 1958, when the Indians were convinced that Strickland was serious about retiring, General Manager Frank Lane gave Baltimore permission to try to bring him back to baseball. Manager Paul Richards failed to change Strickland's mind. Late last summer, George began to miss the game to which he had devoted 12 or 13 years of his life and wrote to Commissioner Ford Frick asking to be reinstated. Lane saw that Strickland was weak. Ening and bided his time. Sorely in need of infield talent, Lane contacted Strickland and made a strong pitch. Lane can be a very persuasive salesman, so Strickland agreed to give it another whirl.

Strickland was rated a fine fielding shortstop but his hitting had been weak. His lifetime batting average when he quit was only .222. Since returning to action, Strickland has been batting close to .300. He was shifted, from his familiar shortstop to third base, and he took it in stride.

His second lease on a baseball life looks as though it could be much better than his first fling. That year away from the game may have been just the tonic he needed to give his faded spirits a chance to perk up.

Top Tennis Brass To Discuss Alex

CHICAGO (AP) — The tournament brass of amateur tennis will decide what action, if any, it should recommend be taken against U.S. Davis Cup star and Wimbledon champion, Alex Olmedo.

In what they say is an unprecedented move since it involves a player's behavior, members of the Clay Court Championships committee of the U.S. Lawn Tennis Assn. will meet at the suburban River Forest club Sunday morning.

They could recommend a reprimand or even go so far as to recommend suspension. The latter is unlikely, even though some officials of the club staging the National Clay Court meet would like to see such a severe disciplinary measure.

The recommendation in all likelihood will come before the USLTA at its meeting during the nationals at Forest Hills Sept. 4-13.

Olmedo's slipshod, listless performance when he lost to Abe Segal of South Africa in the quarter-finals 6-2, 6-2, 6-0 brought the tournament officials' ire down on him. They defaulted him and his innocent doubles partner, Earl Buchholz Jr. of St. Louis in the "interests of better tennis for the spectators and the players."

Olmedo spent most of Friday in his hotel room regretful but declining

New Legislation Helps Efficiency Of Welfare Work

Recent legislation passed by the North Carolina General Assembly will help improve the efficiency of the Pitt County Welfare Department, according to Welfare Supt. Julius S. Grimes, III.

Grimes pointed out that four particular laws passed in the recently adjourned state law-making body will aid in the administration of welfare grants by the County Department.

Most important, according to the superintendent, is a new provision authorizing the County Board of Welfare to determine whether to award monthly grants in more than one installment.

"Many times, we find that a grant recipient is unable to budget a grant a month at a time," said Grimes. The new provision will allow the monthly grant, when deemed necessary, to be divided into two or more equal installments to allow for easier budgeting by the recipient. The payments would be forthcoming to recipients at more frequent intervals.

The installment plan of payments will help to prevent recipients from "running out of money," according to Grimes. The provision applies to all types of grants from the department.

Another enactment by the legislature which will be very useful, Grimes indicated, authorizes the court appointment of personal representatives to be responsible for the proper expenditure of individual grants.

For Pitt County's purposes, according to Grimes, the Clerk of Superior Court will be presented with a petition from the Superintendent of Welfare recommending the appointment of such a representative.

Personal representatives will serve as personal administrators for public welfare grants to specific individuals who have been deemed by the superintendent and the court, incapable of correctly self-administering the granted funds themselves.

Under the new provision, the appointed representatives are responsible to the court for correct administration of the grant and may be duly replaced by the court.

"This law enables us to make certain that our grants are being used properly, as we have intended," Grimes pointed out.

A third new enactment provides for the appointment of a special county attorney by the Board of County Commissioners, with the approval of the County Board of Welfare. Such an attorney would serve as legal advisor to the Welfare Superintendent, the County Welfare Board, and the Board of Commissioners in welfare matters; and as special prosecutor in actions brought to court by the Welfare Department.

The special attorney may be any licensed attorney and may be paid by a special tax levy for county welfare administration.

Grimes pointed out that the attorney will be useful in obtaining reimbursement from persons involved in proceedings brought under the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act.

This act is an interstate agreement to arrest fugitives from other states who are being sought for neglected support of their families.

The fourth enactment, in the form of an amendment to existing law vests in any "court of record in this state" the jurisdiction over all proceedings enacted to determine the liability of persons for the support of dependents.

Grimes emphasizes the fact that this law provides for the securing of reimbursement from persons financially able to support families which have been receiving county welfare grants.

The welfare superintendent said that there were other laws passed during the legislative period affecting welfare administration but added that these four would be the most helpful, especially in the Pitt County area.

Sign Up 2 More For Guard Unit

AYDEN — Two new members were signed up with the Ayden National Guard Medical Platoon Monday night.

Cecil Hemby Jr. and James Earl Conway, both of Ayden, bring to a total of six, the present membership of the unit.

Spokesmen for the unit said although these six represent a good start, an additional nine members must be signed up by the end of the month if the unit is to continue to meet in Ayden and be counted as Ayden's unit.

The meetings are held at the Ayden Clinic from 8 to 10 each Monday night. According to officials, ex-service men have a good opportunity to resume their military status with rating, and to provide financial security through this extra pay and retirement plan.

Young men with draft obligations may also benefit from the Guard. Draft age men who sign up for the Guard have to serve on active duty for only six months rather than two years. The time of departure for the six months active duty training can be delayed until fall, after the crop is harvested, and one would return from the training in the spring in time to help with next year's crop.

Senate's Labor Bill Now Is Virtually Re-written

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate's labor bill, controversial to start with, now has been almost completely rewritten in many important provisions by the House Labor Committee.

There is sure to be a free-wheeling donnybrook to "re-write" it when it reaches the House floor, probably next week.

Republicans said the House bill is much weaker in its labor control codes than the Senate-approved version. The committee Friday finished five weeks of working over the Senate bill.

More than 100 amendments took much of the severity out of the "bill of rights" for union members that was grafted onto the original Senate bill sponsored by Sens. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) and Sam Ervin (D-NC). The "bill of rights" was the contribution of Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark.), Chairman of the Senate committee which has been investigating labor abuses.

The House bill also rewrites provisions for union election safeguards, revision of the Taft-Hartley Act and other key sections.

As its final act the House committee eliminated the Senate proposal for a voluntary code of ethics to be adopted by unions and management.

Democrats were generally non-committal about the revised bill. Rep. Roy W. Wier (D-Minn.) said "it has something in it for everybody."

Privately, many congressmen conceded the House bill was one that nobody liked very much.

Committee Chairman Graham A. Barden (D-NC) also issued a strong broadside against "outside influences" he said tried to dictate to the committee while it was working on the bill.

He did not name them, but it was evident he was paraphrasing charges by some committee members that organized labor representatives had tried to put pressure on the committee to soften the bill.

Barden said the committee bill just about destroyed the Senate version. Only the framework of the Senate bill remains in the House revision.

The House bill:

1. Eliminates criminal penalties for violation of rights of union members as spelled out in the bill of rights section. It provides only that union members exhaust remedies within the union for six months. Then they can ask for a federal court injunction.
2. Removes proposed authority for the Secretary of Labor to investigate union elections, or to refer evidence of wrongdoing to any other government agency.

National Defense Feeling Strike

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The four-day-old steel strike, currently pinching the nation's economy, is beginning to put a dent in national defense work.

The strike has already snarled plans for the completion of three Atlas missile launching sites near Cheyenne, Wyo., according to construction officials.

The first site, scheduled for completion on Sept. 20, will be finished in time. But high pressure tanks for the other sites are not expected to be delivered in time for the November completion date because of the strike, the officials said.

As for the economic situation, the nation's steel production losses continue to mount. Production losses are estimated at 300 million dollars a week. Wage losses are running close to 70 million dollars a week.

The strike, which began at Tuesday midnight, has idled some 500,000 members of the United Steelworkers and some 35,000 workers in allied industries, such as railroads, coal mines and transportation.

Negotiations are stalemated. Federal mediation commissioners have slated separate talks with both sides for Monday in New York.

President Eisenhower and James P. Mitchell, secretary of labor, conferred on the situation in Washington Friday. Details of the conference were not released.

In Indianapolis, Sen. Vance Hartke (D-Ind.) charged that President Eisenhower should have tried harder to avert the steel strike.

"He could have called these people together," Hartke told newsmen Friday at the Young Democrats state convention. "He should have shown some leadership."

Planning Issue Town Brochure

FARMVILLE—Farmville's Economic Council will issue a town industrial brochure as soon as final editing is completed and printing can be done, according to an announcement by T. W. Willis, director of the Council.

"Such a brochure as ours is going to be," said Willis, "will be helpful in letting prospects know all about Farmville before we even make any personal contacts."

All phases of Farmville activity are included in the brochure, which will be printed on a heavy weight, glossy paper and bound in a clear plastic cover. The town's labor force, electrical and water availability, transportation, industrial sites, schools, churches, homes, human atmosphere, and other things will be presented in detail in the new brochure.

"The pleasant appearance and general atmosphere of Farmville are the things that really helped us to get the Formica flakeboard plant," Willis stated. "Those are the things that distinguish you from other towns with the same physical facilities," he added.

Pictures for the new publication, taken by a Snow Hill photographer, are diversified according to the topics covered in the text.

The brochure will be in black and white except for colored electrical, transportation, and general location maps.

Lanier Speaks To Kiwanis Club

J. Con Lanier, who spent 31 days in France and Poland this summer to interest the people of those countries in the flavor and quality of American leaf tobacco, reviewed some of his experiences at the Kiwanis Club last night.

Lanier, who is general counsel and executive secretary for the Tobacco Association of the United States and the Leaf Tobacco Exporters Association, described Paris as a "wonderful city."

He said "the people of Poland are a captive people under a Communist government, but they are grimly awaiting the day when they will be liberated."

He was escorted by a government official on a 1,500-mile tour of Poland and learned much of the oppression of the people by the Soviet Government.

The speaker reported that American tobacco is increasing in demand in that country, and the leaf interests of the United States are continuing their campaign to sell more tobacco there and elsewhere in Europe.

Kiwanian Ken Beatty introduced the speaker, President John A. Collins presided.

Kiwanian Harry Billica had a birthday and donated a dime for each year of his age. Robert Elks won the attendance prize.

Governors Prepare To Begin Return To U.S.

WARSAW (AP)—Govs. Luther H. Hodges of North Carolina and Robert B. Meyner of New Jersey arrived Friday for a brief visit to Poland.

They are en route home from a visit to the Soviet Union, where they toured for three weeks with seven other governors who also left Moscow Friday.

LeRoy Collins of Florida flew to London, Robert E. Smylie of Idaho to Stockholm and S.L.R. McNichols of Colorado. George Clyde of Utah and John Davis of North Dakota to Paris.

Govs. William Stratton of Illinois and Cecil Underwood of West Virginia also traveled with the party but left for the United States midway in the tour.

The governors will meet again in Washington July 31 to report to President Eisenhower on their mission to the Soviet Union.

They are expected to urge increased exchange of persons between the two nations, emphasizing visits by state and local officials.

A public report on the tour will be made at the National Governors' Conference in Puerto Rico opening Aug. 20.

As the governors departed Friday they laughingly recalled the efforts by the group's Democrats to pose for pictures with a donkey in Samarkand.

There are plenty of burros in Samarkand but none was available when the governors tried to hire one for a picture.

Hodges offered to pay a boy five rubles for use of a donkey. The lad thought Hodges was trying to buy the animal for five rubles ($1.25) and fled with the animal.

Word of Hodges attempted "purchase" quickly spread at the Samarkand Bazaar and whenever the Democratic governors approached a burro rider he headed for the hills.

An encounter between Hodges and an Uzbek official also was recounted.

The governors had been reeling under a flow of statistics dealing with housing agriculture and education from officials of the Uzbek Soviet Republic in Tashkent.

John Ivey, executive vice president of New York University, told the officials in an education discussion that about 95 per cent of American youngsters between 6 and 18 complete elementary and secondary schools.

The Uzbek education minister quickly countered: "Here it is 100 per cent."

Hodges snapped back saying "in North Carolina it is 105 per cent."

When the Russians looked puzzled Hodges explained pokerfaced: "That's because we produce more babies than other states."

This ended the presentation of statistics.

Brubeck Quartet Offers Pleasing Concert Here

In his second appearance on the East Carolina College campus in a concert, the Dave Brubeck Quartet Friday evening delighted a large audience of summer session students and Eastern Carolina Brubeck fans in a two-hour program of progressive jazz.

Brubeck played here in February as he began his four-month tour of Europe and Asia under State Department sponsorship.

Brubeck is recognized as the foremost exponent of this school of music in America today, and his appearance at summer concerts is headlined above other jazz artists. His performance with Paul Desmond, saxophonist; Eugene Wright, bass; and Joe Morello, drums, was exciting and exhilarating to lovers of music in the modern manner. Brubeck, pianist, is a serious minded musician, and his interpretations and impromptu arrangements in Friday's concert held his audience with rapt attention.

The Brubeck group played in Greenville, breaking the trip to Miami, Fla., for Columbia Records for a special performance here. Their appearance in Miami for top officials of Columbia Saturday night will be followed by a concert Sunday evening at the Tanglewood Music Festival in Massachusetts, next week a guest appearance with the Cleveland Symphony Orchestra in Cleveland's summer music series, and other music festivals in the East and Midwest.

For most of Friday, Brubeck, Wright, and Morello "sweated out" the delayed arrival of Desmond who had been enplaned in New York City to Greenville, S. C. Chartering a private plane in Greenville, S. C., Desmond flew to Greenville, North, and arrived here minutes before the concert in Wright Auditorium which drew an attendance of more than 900 persons.

Arrest Man On Liquor Charges

Pitt County ABC officers arrested Jesse Lee Willis, 24-year-old Negro of 110 South Side St. about 1:15 a.m. today on charges of possession of non-tax-paid whiskey for the purpose of sale when officers found a pint of bootleg liquor in his possession.

According to ABC Chief J. M. Ward, Willis was arrested at 602 River Drive and released under a $100 bond for appearance in the Greenville Recorder's Court.

Participating in the arrest with Ward was ABC Officer H. B. Lilly and Officer Walter Taylor.

Fifty years of 4-H Club work here in North Carolina will be recognized and celebrated July 20 through July 24 at 4-H State Week to be held in Raleigh. The theme for the week will be, "Keeping 4-H On The Climb — In '59."

Delegates eligible to go to State Week are required to be 14 years of age or older and members of a 4-H Club. The quota for each county is one boy and girl for each organized club.

Registration will take place in the lobby of William Neal Reynolds Coliseum on Monday morning.

State 4-H Club Week will officially get under way at 9:30 a.m. Monday morning with a livestock judging contest at the State Fair Grounds.

Four major classes will be conducted during the mornings: Automotive Care and Safety, Gracious Living in the Home, Beautification of Home Grounds and Opportunities in Agriculture and Home Economics.

Recreation will be under the direction of E. H. (Duke) Regnier, Rural Recreationist, University of Illinois.

Two special classes, Recreation Leadership taught by Regnier and Song Leadership taught by Miss Bobbie Pritchard, Music Staff of the State Department of Public Instruction, will be conducted for a chosen group of boys and girls. Parmie Moore and Lil Dilda of the Farmville Club will represent Pitt County in the special classes.

A cake cutting on Monday night will launch the first major event in the anniversary celebration. Members of the 1909 corn club in Ahoskie, who were North Carolina's first 4-H'ers, will be special guests. Another highlight of the celebration will be a luncheon for 4-H alumni on Friday.

Special events during State Week will include the State 4-H Council meeting to be held on Tuesday afternoon, with an "Outdoor Box Supper" to be given later in the afternoon. The State 4-H Health Pageant for Thursday evening and the Talent Parade for Friday evening. The election of state council officers will take place Friday.

Nesa Ann Page of the Winterville-Greenville Club and Alex Corbett of the Farmville Club will represent Pitt County as health queen and king in the State Health Pageant.

District winners will compete for state placings on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. The three district winners from Pitt County are Tommy Braxton of the Winterville-Greenville Club, public speaking, Carolyn Barnes of the Winterville-Greenville club, beekeeping, and Alex Corbett of the Farmville Club, tobacco demonstration.

General assemblies will be held for all delegates and agents each morning and night, with a Vesper service concluding the assemblies at night.

This year, for the first time, two volunteer 4-H leaders from each county will attend club week. The leaders have been selected for the expense-paid trip on the basis of their outstanding record of service to the local 4-H program. Mrs. Norman Savage, adult leader for the Bethany Community 4-H Club, plans to attend State Week. Mrs. Savage is a former 4-H member and she was state winner in clothing.

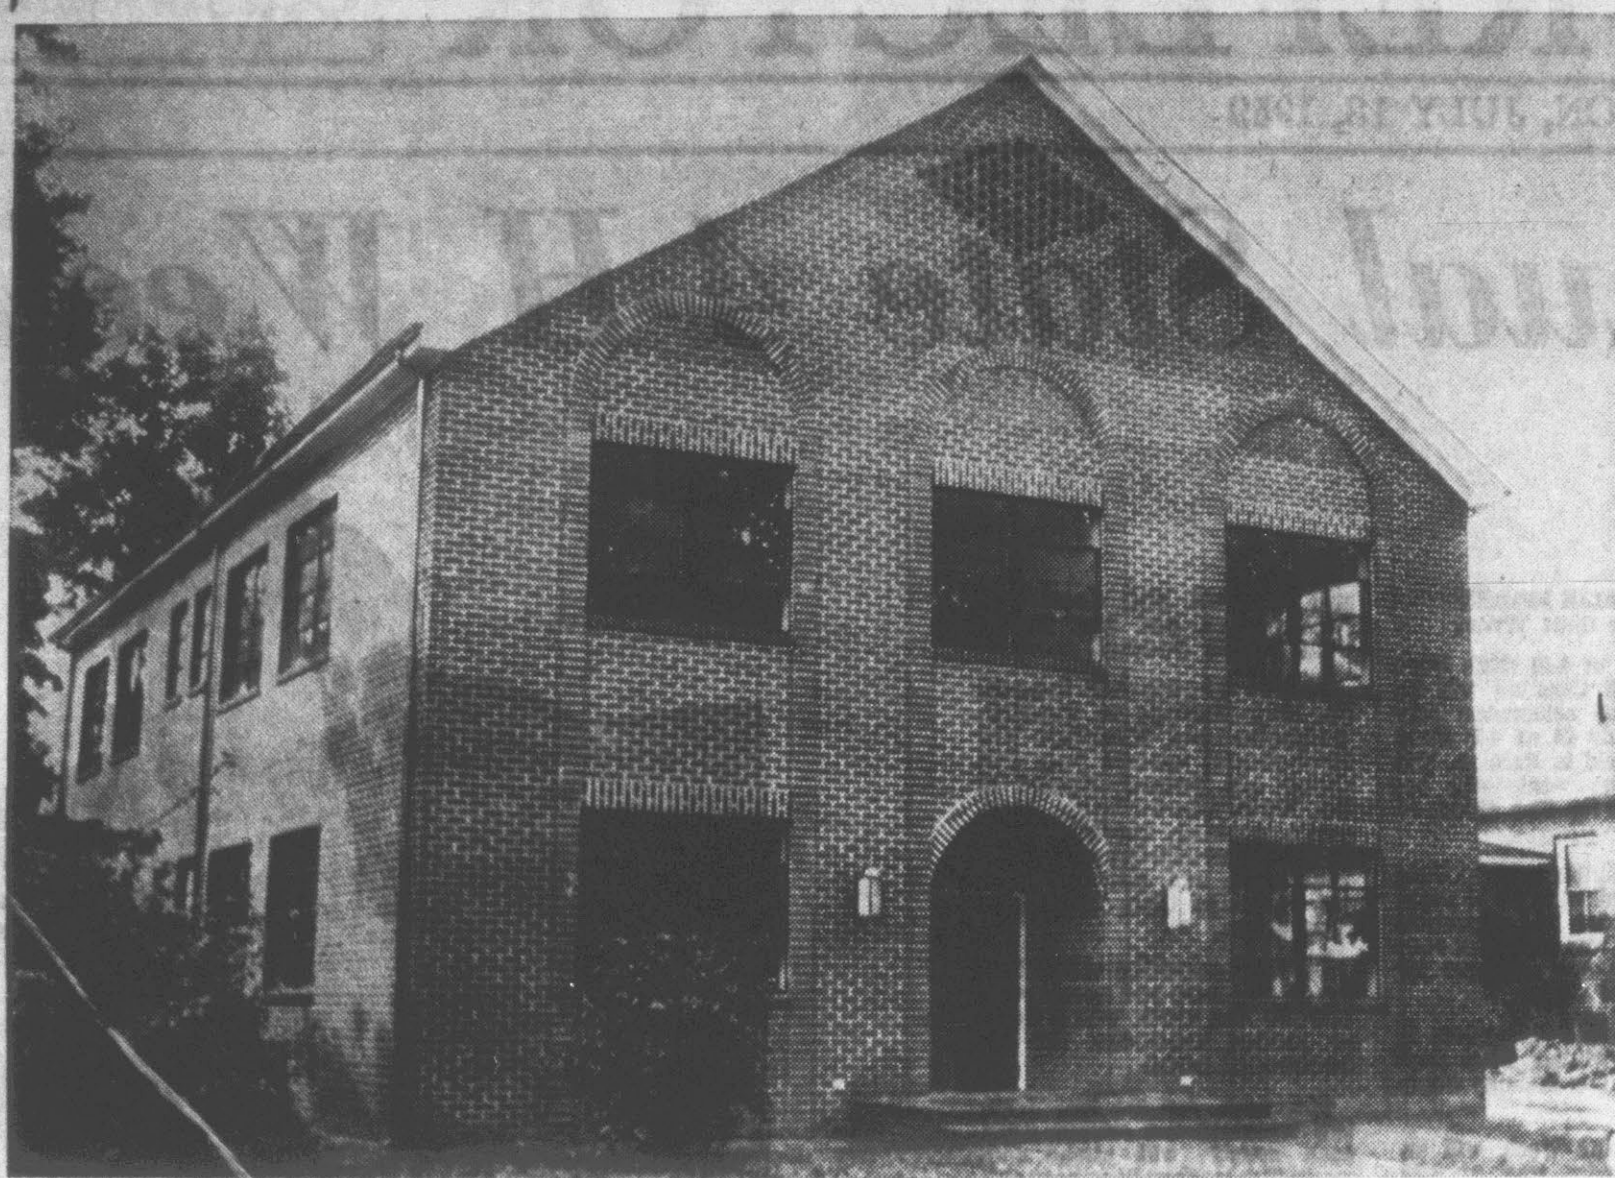

RECREATION PLANS . . . made by Parmie Moore, who will attend the special recreation class.

PITT COUNTY . . . will be represented in the state Health Pageant by Alex Corbett and Nesa Ann Page.

SONG LEADER . . . Lil Dilda of the Farmville Club will be in the special class for song leadership.

NEW EDUCATIONAL BUILDING . . . The Farmville Christian Church's new addition was dedicated in a special ceremony last Sunday afternoon. The Rev. Jack Daniell, pastor, presided over the service. The dedicatory address was by the Rev. Ross Allen of Wilson, executive secretary of the North Carolina Christian Missionary Society.

Police Wrap Up Details Of Two Murders, Dismembering

ANNISTON, Ala. (AP)—Police today were wrapping up details of two murders in which 30-year-old Viola Hyatt is accused of dismembering the bodies and scattering the remains over a wide area.

The tall, dark-haired woman is charged with murdering two brothers who lived in a house trailer on her father's farm.

She is accused of mutilating the victims and hauling the torsos to Gadsden, Ala., about 35 miles away, dumping them near abandoned houses. The arms and legs were discarded en route.

Her route to Gadsden from White Plains, Ala., about 30 miles from Anniston, covered a wide area. Police spent most of Friday with Miss Hyatt retracing the route.

At least two arms and two legs have been found. And when the search ended Friday night, officers had other evidence but they weren't talking.

They returned Miss Hyatt to jail in Anniston, where she is being held pending grand jury action. Officers said Miss Hyatt told them she killed Emmett Harper, 48, and Lee Anderson Harper, 55, on June 27 because they had abused her physically. She said they also abused her father. She gave them "drinking habits" and an argument over use of a car as other motives.

The Harpers' box-type house trailer is near the unpainted frame farm house where Miss Hyatt lived with her elderly father and stepmother, Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Hyatt. Officers found

This Sunday the Rev. Howard James has announced that he will preach on "Important Little Things." The Sanctuary Choir, whom he will be "I Will Lift Up Mine Eyes" by Ruebush with Mrs. Edgar Denton as soprano soloist.

Flowers for the services will be provided by Mrs. George Haddock and Mrs. Sadie Allen. Morning Worship will begin at 10:45.

Members of Red Oak Christian Church will be attending the Hookerton District Meeting at Ayden Christian Church Wednesday from 4:00 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. The Rev. Howard James will give the response to the address of welcome.

Boy Scout Troop 398 will meet Wednesday at 8:00 p.m. in the Scout Room in the Educational Building. Chester Don Worthington Jr. is Scoutmaster and Bobby Taylor and Larry Walston are Assistant Scoutmasters.

The July meeting of Christian Men's Fellowship will be held Thursday at 7:00 p.m. in the Community Building. Supper will be served with Ed Harris and Richard Squires as hosts. Jimmy Wynne and L. F. Worthington will give highlights of their recent trip to Philmont Ranch, Cimmaron, New Mexico.

On Sunday, July 26, the General Christian Women's Fellowship officers will be installed by Mrs. H. H. Settle, Executive Secretary of North Carolina CWF.

Build An Issue Of Adoptions By U.S. Families

ROME (AP) — Italian Communists are trying to raise a public storm over the adoption of Italian children by American couples. They are having some success.

The Communist press used bold headlines to describe what it called "baby slave traffic." Leftist deputies in Parliament submitted formal inquiries to the government.

Italian officials insisted all is in order in efforts by hundreds of childless couples to adopt Italian children.

Non-Communist newspapers suggested that adoptions, rather than being sordid, were noble in giving poverty-stricken Italian youngsters a chance at a new life.

Behind the agitation were two incidents in the past week at Rome's Ciampino Airport.

Last Saturday, an American attorney handling the adoption cases was boarding a plane for the United States with five Italian children headed for new homes in America.

The mother of two of the children watched from a distance as they prepared to leave. The emotion was too much for her. She rushed up and told the attorney she had decided to keep her children in Italy. The attorney departed with the other three children.

Several Italian newspapers said the matter looked illegal. Communist papers said speculators in babies were taking advantage of poor Italians to buy their children.

Italian officials replied briefly that all was legal. Otherwise, they said, the attorney would not have been permitted to leave with the other three children.

On Wednesday there was a second incident. A 10-year-old girl began to cry as she boarded a plane for the United States. She sobbed hysterically, asking to remain at home in Italy. Officials did not force her to leave, and she was taken back to her Naples home.

U.S. Embassy and Italian government officials said adoptions here are tightly regulated. Italian authorities said about 1,000 children have gone to the United States in recent months.

Dead Letter Is Saved And A Romance Is Saved

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—The dead letter office of the Dallas post office rescued a romance Friday. And without a moment to spare, it started last Friday when the office received a stamped letter with no address, containing a check for $300 and a letter signed "Ken."

Studying the letter for a clue as to the sender's identity, postal employees found it was from an American man, writing to a German girl to confirm wedding plans.

An appeal went out through newspapers for "Ken" to identify himself.

Kenneth Edmiston, 27, came forward Friday to claim the check and explain the blank envelope.

"I had a small envelope, addressed right. But when I got the check and saw it couldn't be folded, I got a long legal-size envelope, slipped the stamps on it and, obviously never thought about addressing it."

Edmiston addressed another envelope and sent it to Elfriede Prussing of Hamburg, Germany. He said he received the girl's name from a pen-pal list in 1948 while he was a student in Austin, Tex. High School.

After four years of corresponding, the couple met when the Army sent Edmiston to Germany in 1952. And, Edmiston said, "things just worked out."

Miss Prussing made plans to come to the United States in August. Edmiston was to meet her in New York.

"El paid $50 down on her ticket, and the people said the rest must be paid by the 20th (Monday)," Edmiston said. "Because of goofy me, it's going to be pretty close."

The letter mailed Friday was sent air mail, special delivery. Postal officials said it should reach Hamburg by Monday.

Will Consider Bank Requests

RALEIGH (AP) — The State Banking Commission will consider 16 bank applications next Wednesday.

Branch Banking & Trust Co. of Wilson and First Citizens Bank & Trust Co. of Smithfield are seeking permission to open a branch at Pollockville in Jones County.

Two banks at Rockingham, the Richmond County Bank and the Farmers Bank, want to open a branch in nearby Hamlet.

The Scottish Bank of Lumberton wants authority to merge with the Bank of Rockwell and to open a branch there.

Other applications include: Branch Banking & Trust Co., Winston-Salem, to open a branch in Goldsboro.

The Bank of Raeford to open a teller's window drive-in branch in Raeford.

The Carolina Bank, Pinehurst, to open a branch at West End.

The Northwestern Bank, North Wilkesboro, to open branches at Clemmons and East Hickory.

Security Bank & Trust Co., Salisbury, to open a branch in Monroe.

First Citizens Bank & Trust Co., Smithfield, to establish a branch in Kingston and a teller's window branch in Havelock.

Waccamaw Bank & Trust Co., Whiteville, to open a teller's window branch at Tabor City.

Patch Up Spat Of 64 Years Ago And Are Married

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—A spat that broke up their romance 64 years ago has been patched up by James P. Roderick and Rosa Adams, both 81.

The couple who had known each other since they were 3 years old in Missouri, was married Saturday night here.

"We went together about a year when we were 17 but then we had a spat," the bride said. "I don't remember what it was, just a little thing, but he left my house and never came back."

Both married. Her husband died here six years ago. Roderick's wife died six months ago.

Roderick, who lives in Marion, Ark., began writing Mrs. Adams. "Then a week ago Tuesday he came down, and we decided we wanted to spend the rest of our time together," the bride said.

Wouldn't Cook, He Gets Divorce

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Great-grandfather Sam Lieberman, 77, got a divorce from his third wife Friday after testifying:

"She said for me to do my own cooking. If I should do my own cooking, why should I need a wife?"

Lieberman, grandfather of the jockey, Willie Harnatz, was asked what his wife cooked. The reply: "Things my stomach couldn't take."

The couple married in 1954 and separated after eight months.

Actor Must Pay Back $178,674

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—Actor John Carroll must pay an elderly widow $178,674 under a court-approved settlement.

Maude Marron, 82, had sued for $228,000 she contended she gave Carroll, 54, as a confidential relationship developed between the pair over the years.

A judge Friday approved an arrangement in which Carroll would repay the widow on an installment plan. The conservator of Mrs. Marron's estate agreed to waive interest.

On Friday, August 14, 1959.

Any person claiming any interest or lien in or upon said automobile; title thereto having been heretofore vested in William Rogers Reeves, shall come in and assert his claim on or before the date of sale, to-wit: Eleven o'clock on Friday, August 14, 1959, or be forever barred.

This 18th day of July, 1959.

MAN WHO MISSED THE MOON

by EDMOND HAMILTON

© 1958 by Edmond Hamilton. All rights reserved. Published by King Features Syndicate.

CHAPTER 22
Only Thol Orr talked with Kirk Hammond, and lent him books and helped him to learn the written language.

But Hammond suspected that Thol did so only because of his deep scientific interest in Hammond's survival from the distant past of another planet.

The others did not have enough of that interest to counter-balance their hatred.

Let them hate him, Hammond thought. They had a right to. Wait till his chance came, a chance to pay back Thavn Marden and all the Vramen. A traitor, was he, and a Vramen spy? He would find that idea down their throats.

Holding to that grim determination, Hammond brooded over plans of escape as the days passed. No prisoner had ever got away from this prison planet Kuum. The great reason was the fact that few star-ships ever came here, and when one did come it stayed inside the barrier of the spaceport area into which prisoners could not go.

He kept running up against that insurmountable obstacle of the force-wall, discarding this plan and that because of it, and then suddenly he realized that he alone of all the prisoners here did have a way to get to a star-ship. Suddenly everything was clear. He thought out every detail in his long lonely hours, and he had plenty of them, until he was sure just how everything would go.

Then he realized that there was still another obstacle.

"It won't work unless the others follow me," he thought. "But they won't even listen to me. They'd think I was leading them into a Vramen trap."

And there it stood.

Weeks of labor in the jungle made Hammond hardy and sun-blackened and grimly accustomed to constant loneliness. He had learned to drive the power-dozer and was taking one of them along the edge of the jungle to where Thol Orr and his crew waited for the replacement vehicle, when he heard a choking cry from inside the brush.

The yell was cut off. But there had been in it a quality of desperate appeal that made Hammond swing his machine around and send it crashing into the brush.

A cold musk taint hit his nostrils and then he saw ahead the big-shelled black mound of a dead mud-phenox. The grotesque paws were just drawing a man in.

Hammond rammed the heavy dozer right at the thing, aiming to miss the man but knock the brute away from him. The impact of collision hurled him out of his seat and he crashed into the brush.

He got up to find that the dozer had run right over the mud-phenox before its safety-control stopped it.

A few feet away the man who had been caught by the phenox was scrambling to his feet, and Hammond saw that it was Rab Quobba, fouled with mud and slime but unhurt enough to stand staring at him with an expression of peculiar embarrassment.

"Hammond," he said. And then,

"Thanks. 'I'—He stopped, swore, and came forward to grasp Hammond's hand. 'I've been a fool.'"

"I see," said Hammond harshly. "Because I happen to save your neck, all of a sudden I'm not a Vramen spy any longer?"

Quobba shuffled his feet and said ruefully, "I never did believe that, to tell you the truth. I was just boiling mad because you let that Vramen wench wreck all our plans."

Hammond stopped bristling. "Well, you had a right to be," he said. And then suddenly he realized that there was the opportunity he had been waiting for. He grabbed it.

"Quobba, listen. Would you and the others escape from here and try for Althar again, if you could?"

Quobba said, "We would." His eyes narrowed, became bright and sharp. "How could we?"

"It'll take Wilson and all his people to help. They can run a star-ship, if we get our hands on one. But they won't trust me. They'd follow you."

"What's your idea?"

Hammond said, "There'll be a star-ship coming here soon—"

Quobba interrupted. "No. Not for almost a month. The last supply-ship was just here."

Hammond smiled. "I can make a ship come any time I choose, and not a supply-ship, either."

"Well," said Quobba, "go on. I'll listen."

He listened, and Hammond talked, and the Vramen's face got longer and longer, and when Hammond stopped he shook his head.

"It won't be easy. And you'd be taking the biggest share of the risk." He was silent a minute and then he said, "But it might work."

"Will you go along with it?"

Quobba grinned. "I'm a star-man. I never did take to grubbing in the dirt. What do I do?"

"I'll start things moving right away," Hammond said. "You talk to the others, get them ready to follow you in a break. Just don't mention my name, that's all. Tell them you have a plan in mind, but you don't want to tell it yet."

Quobba nodded. "I'll get them on their toes. But Hammond— you better look out. What you're going to do tonight will make the others more bitter against you than ever."

"I know that," said Hammond, and went away.

When the guard officer came through the barrack that evening on his usual inspection tour, Hammond stepped out and spoke to him.

"I have a request to make," he said, and saw that instantly the other prisoners turned to watch and listen.

"What is it, Hammond?"

"When I was sentenced to my term here," Hammond said carefully, "the court told me that whenever I was willing to cooperate with the Vramen in their historical researches, my sentence would be suspended. I am now willing to do so. Will you notify your authorities and also Thavn Marden, the chief Vramen representative at Earth?"

The officer was a loyal servant of the Federated Suns but he was a Hooman and not without Hooman prejudices. He stiffened a little and looked at Hammond with unfriendly eyes.

"Very well, I'll have a message sent to Earth at once."

When he had gone, Gurth Lund and the others glared at Hammond. "So you're going to quit spying and go back to your Vramen friends, are you?" Lund said.

Hammond did not answer. There was so much raw hatred of him in the room now that he felt a single word would bring an explosion.

The guard officer came back three hours later.

"Your request has been granted by the Federated Suns officials at Earth. Thavn Marden, representing the Vramen, will come at once to Kuum. She will interrogate you, and if she is satisfied of your sincerity you will be paroled."

"Thank you," said Hammond.

The officer left.

There was a strained silence. Hammond started toward his room. He looked at the faces of his fellow-prisoners as he went, and he thought that he would have to take care every moment now.

He thought that he would be lucky if he was still living when that star-ship came.

The star-ship arrives, and Thavn Marden with it, as "Man Who Missed the Moon" reaches a stirring climax here Monday.

Wants No Deputy With Rich Wife

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A sheriff who fired his No. 3 man because he plans to wed a well-to-do showgirl says he, too, would have put the girl ahead of the job.

Sheriff W. E. (Butch) Leypoldt gave the fired Detective Chief William O'Reilly Thursday, O'Reilly plans to marry 27-year-old Jackie Winter, former New York model and television actress, Aug. 2.

The sheriff's grounds: The marriage would impair the department's morale.

"I don't want any captain of mine coming to work in a Cadillac and living in a $50,000 house," Leypoldt said.

He gave O'Reilly a choice; resign or be fired.

"You'll have to fire me," the 45-year-old veteran of eight years on the force replied.

The sheriff said "it is the policy of police departments everywhere to terminate officers who marry wealthy."

He added: "If I was in the same position of really loving the girl and wanting to marry her and was given the choice he had, I'd do the same thing."

Miss Winters said her Cadillac is three years old and she's still paying on it. "I'm really not what you'd call wealthy," she said. "I own several parcels of property, but I'm paying on all of it, just like a lot of people."

O'Reilly's only comment: "I just can't believe I'm not a cop anymore."

Police Patience Nets A Suspect

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Because of a smudged handprint in a dead woman's apartment, a slightly built carpenter is in jail, accused of the 1957 rape murder of nurse Marjorie Hipperson.

Police had compiled a case file two feet thick, questioned hundreds of suspects and checked 187,000 hand prints in two years.

Friday they announced the 187,001st print they checked matched the one on Miss Hipperson's wall. It belonged to Darryl Kemp, 23, of Canoga Park, already in jail on an assault charge. Kemp was charged with the Hipperson slaying.

Married and described by his wife as a good provider, Kemp denied knowledge of the slaying. Police plan to question him about several other sex murders in the area.

The young carpenter was arrested Wednesday night after a housewife was beaten and raped in Griffith Park. Kemp said he beat the woman because of anger over a fight with his wife. He denied raping her. He was arrested on the basis of the woman's description of her assailant's pick-up truck.

Miss Hipperson, 28, was killed 13 days before she was to have been married. An assailant bound her hands with a nylon stocking and garroted her with another, then raped her.

For two years, police worked secretly to find the owner of a handprint on the wall near the dead woman's bed.

Police technicians checked the print against all prints on file and all those taken after new arrests. One detective team alone questioned 835 suspects while the case file was being amassed.

N.C. Press Ass'n Winds Up Annual Meeting Today

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (AP) — A business session and an address by the outgoing president wrapped up the three-day annual convention of the North Carolina Press Ass'n. here today.

The association's retiring president is John I. Anderson of the Transylvania Times at Brevard. The newspapermen elected new officers for their daily and non-daily divisions Friday then toured the Marine Corps Air Station at Cherry Point.

Lyle Edwards of the Gastonia Gazette was chosen president of the associated dailies. Reed Sarra of the Winston-Salem Journal and Sentinel was named vice president and Jack Whitchard of the Greenville Reflector, secretary-treasurer.

The associated non-dailies elected Gordon Tomlinson of the Mocksville Enterprise, president; Lockwood Phillips of the Carteret County News — Times, Morehead City, vice president; and Miss Grace Laffoon of the Elkin Tribune, secretary-treasurer.

IN FINAL DAY

Boom Laid To Future Highway

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—Asheville, Greensboro, Statesville and Charlotte are coming boom towns because they lie at future intersections of the intersection highway system now under construction.

This prediction was voiced here Friday by George M. Stephens Jr., regional planner in the advanced planning division of the State Highway Department.

Speaking to the summer meeting of the North Carolina chapter of the American Institute of Architects, Stephens said, "If I lived in a city at the intersection of two of the new interstate highways, I would be extremely concerned until I saw the public awareness and the plans, because these cities, by the stroke of a pen in Washington, have been designated 'Boom Town, N.C.' and boom towns have been notorious for their honky-tonk character."

Stephens said the new highway system will change states and cities even more than railroad construction did in the last century.

He said the public must understand what is happening and give its support to necessary plans and planning.

The meeting closed today with a business session.

Has Hopes For Polio Vaccine

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — A Soviet scientist Friday said he had high hopes for a live polio vaccine developed in the Soviet Union.

Dr. Valentine D. Soloviev said about four million Soviet children have been vaccinated with the serum. He said it is too early to tell whether it is a success.

Soloviev is one of four Soviet scientists on a seven-city tour sponsored by the State Department.
