

Telephoto Lens Picture Is Shown In Conspiracy Trial

HENDERSON, N.C. (AP)—The state introduced in evidence today a picture made by a telephoto lens in its effort to link defendants in a dynamite conspiracy trial with a conference it contends was held in a Roanoke Rapids motel by eight members of the Textile Workers Union of America.

Charles E. Whitman of Carey, a photographer in the identification division of the State Bureau of Identification (SBI), told the jury that the three men in the picture were Lawrence Gore, Warren Walker and Harold Aaron, an SBI undercover agent.

Gore is an aide to Boyd Payton, Carolinas director of the TWUA, one of eight men accused of plotting to blow up a boiler room, of a building and power substation of the South Henderson plant of the struck Harriet-Henderson Cotton Mills.

Aaron had testified earlier that Gore and Walker showed up at Brookwood Motel at Roanoke Rapids the morning of June 5 and that at that meeting Gore gave him $20 expense money.

Whitman testified he took seven pictures with the telephoto lens from a window of another room in the motel.

The state hoped to offer in evidence transcripts of tape recordings which the SBI says were made at a meeting at which the alleged dynamite plot was discussed.

J. N. Minter, SBI agent, from Reidsville, said Aaron told him he decided to tell authorities about the alleged plot because "somebody was going to get hurt and he didn't like to see houses with small children getting dynamited."

The defense objected to this statement and the judge ordered it stricken from the record.

J. M. Varner, state highway patrolman, also testified that he had met with Aaron to get information on the purported conspiracy.

The state had sought to introduce the transcripts Monday. A check was to be made to compare the transcripts with the actual recordings.

Meanwhile, an agent of the SBI testified Monday that one of the defendants, Abbott, admitted attending a meeting at Roanoke Rapids at which the alleged plot was discussed.

The agent, Claude Davis, quoted Abbott as saying this: He accompanied Pegram, Walker and Jarrell to the meeting. He went to a second meeting but remained in a car with Pegram and heard no reference to the alleged conspiracy.

The SBI says it was at these meetings that the tape recordings were made.

Davis said he and other SBI agents arrested Abbott, Walker and Pegram the night of June 13 at a rendezvous provided by Harold Aaron, an SBI undercover agent. Davis said they had no dynamite in their possession.

Aaron had testified earlier that the men were to meet that night to decide whether to proceed with the dynamite plan.

Representatives of four telephone companies testified for the state Monday in connection with telephone calls Aaron had said were made in connection with the alleged plot.

One of the witnesses, Lloyd T. Hepler of Hickory, commercial engineer of the Central Telephone Co. of Hickory, said his records showed a call was made from the TWUA office in Spray, N.C., to Spartanburg, S.C., on June 5.

This was in connection with testimony by Aaron that Auslander telephoned Spartanburg on or about June 5 to get some dynamite.

President Said To Think Summit Chances Dimmer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower believes the chances for a summit conference have become steadily dimmer in the last 10 days. He feels Russia's attitude regarding Berlin now is tougher than ever.

This Eisenhower pessimism — based on confidential reports from the Geneva foreign ministers meeting — is known on excellent authority. It embraces his view that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev may not even want a summit meeting.

It also is known on high authority that Eisenhower still is dead set against any recognition of Red China. The Communists there still are holding Americans as prisoners.

It can be reported, too, on similar authority that:

1. Despite his pessimism, Eisenhower remains perfectly willing to attend a summit meeting, provided there is decent progress at Geneva. That means Soviet recognition of Western rights and responsibilities in West Berlin.

2. Regardless of talk by Kremlin officials, Eisenhower is not convinced the Russians really want a summit meeting. He thinks the Soviets' real objective may be to split the Western allies, particularly the United States and Britain.

3. The President is convinced the Soviet leaders do not want a major war. But he is fearful that Kremlin miscalculations or some series of developments could touch off a conflict.

4. If war should come, the Western allies would have to decide whether to use nuclear weapons. So far as the United States is concerned, it would depend on what is best for the security of the country.

5. The greatest fear of the Kremlin chiefs, Eisenhower believes, is a resurgent Germany and a strong Red China.

6. In event of any new Berlin blockade, Eisenhower believes the tactical military position of the Western Allies would be just about as poor as possible. He feels that even passive resistance on the part of the Communists would jeopardize the Allies' land routes into Berlin and that Red jamming of Western radar could make a mass airlift operation very difficult.

The President's view is that a new blockade would be much tougher to crack than the one 10 years ago. He feels the Allies could not supply West Berlin with enough of the raw materials which its economy needs.

7. As for Vice President Richard M. Nixon's forthcoming visit to Russia, he will carry no important new messages to the Kremlin, nor will he be empowered by the President to negotiate East-West differences.

Eisenhower feels the United States could be represented by no more capable man than Nixon, who leaves Wednesday for Moscow. And the President also believes that Khrushchev, in talks with Nixon, may make some proposal of substance regarding East-West differences. If that should happen, Nixon has been instructed to cable Eisenhower immediately for word on how he should react.

New Tax Notices Are Being Readied For Mail

COUNTING PITT'S TAX DOLLARS . . . Mrs. Lucille Moore, secretary in the Tax Supervisor and Tax Collector office, calculates the new tax notices.

Pitt County Tax Supervisor and Tax Collector Robert S. Moyer and his office staff are currently busy preparing the new tax notices to be mailed by Sept. 1.

With some 23,000 individual notices to calculate for Pitt's 15 townships, the office has quite a job. The new notices, of course, are being calculated using the new $123 county-wide tax rate recently approved by the Pitt Board of Commissioners.

The office's calculating machines are kept humming by secretaries Mrs. Lucille Moore and Mrs. Jean Cox, while Moyer and A. L. Woolard are busy compiling township summary sheets.

"We've got an awful lot of figures to do before September 1," says Moyer, who has been Pitt's Tax Supervisor and Tax Collector for only a little over a year.

Citizens may pay their taxes in September, October, or November and enjoy a discount of one and one-half per cent, one percent, or one-half per cent, respectively. During the months of December and January, there is no discount or penalty.

Taxes paid after Feb. 1, 1960, will be penalized by payment of one per cent extra. After March 1, the penalty will be two per cent with an added monthly penalty of one-half per cent for each month thereafter.

West Threatens Break Off Talks

GENEVA (AP) — The Western Allies have warned Russia they will break off the Big Four conference if the Soviets continue to insist that East and West Germany negotiate on reunification as equals as the price for a Berlin truce.

U.S. Secretary of State Christian A. Herter gave the warning to Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko during a private luncheon meeting Monday.

Gromyko did not at that time say the Soviet demand for an all-German committee on reunification was unalterable. But subsequently he gave a preliminary rejection to a new Western proposal for reunification negotiations by the Big Four and said the Soviets would not agree to any plan which barred direct negotiations between the two Germanys.

The Western plan called for the East and West Germans to serve as advisers to the Big Four negotiators, with direct negotiations between the two German governments only when the Big Four considered them necessary.

Informants said all the Western ministers were ready to break off the talks almost immediately unless Gromyko softens his position.

Western leaders feel the conference has now reached a real and serious impasse which could lead to a breakdown within a matter of days unless Gromyko backs down.

High Western officials said the West never will agree to the all-German committee because the real Soviet purpose is to open up opportunities for Communism in West Germany.

The West today looked to Gromyko for a new proposal that might break the stalemate and save the conference from failure.

Gromyko was assumed to be seeking instructions from Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

Hodges Tells Californian Audience Public Attitude On Rights Seeing Change

LOS ANGELES, Calif. (AP) — North Carolina's Gov. Luther Hodges said today the attitude of the average person throughout the nation is changing on the volatile question of race relations.

"Attitudes are changing," Hodges added, "not only about the school segregation problem, but about other things on which the United States Supreme Court has recently ruled, especially those affecting so-called individual rights. I think there is a deepening concern on the part of the average man. . . . There is a genuine concern about where we are going. He is concerned that in our seeming desire to protect individual liberties we are often throwing individual responsibility to the wind."

Hodges, just back from a three-week tour of Russia, made the statement in a speech prepared for a luncheon meeting of Town Hall, a Los Angeles civic organization.

The Tar Heel governor said the Southern point of view on questions such as racial equality "means the preservation of the initiative and personality of the individual, of the local governmental unit, and of the state. This point of view carries with it a reverence for our forefathers and for the principles which inspired them. It includes a deep and abiding sense of patriotism for state and nation. It means that we do not hastily take up fancy new theories and that we do not like undue concentration of governmental power nor an exaggerated influence of minority pressure groups."

Hodges told the civic group that so far North Carolina's approach of moderation in dealing with the school segregation problem has operated satisfactorily. He said, "Several of our cities have voluntarily accepted Negro applicants to white schools although the vast majority of Negro children are voluntarily attending their own public schools."

The North Carolina governor declared, "It is high time more of our political leaders came out for the 'majority' in this country instead of persisting in an unsightly scramble to appease 'minorities' as a means of gaining political advantage."

"What we need in both our major political parties and in all sections of this nation is love and concern for our country first with political expediency of advantage placed last."

Greenville Sewage Disposal Plant Is One Step Nearer

LAYOUT OF PROPOSED SEWAGE DISPOSAL PLANT . . . planned for property behind Greenwood Cemetery.

Requested Federal Grant For City's Sewage Disposal Plant Is Approved

Greenville's request for a federal grant of $250,000 to be used in constructing a sewage disposal plant has been approved by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The funds, maximum amount that any city can receive, will be used in building the city's proposed $1,150,000 plant.

The installation is to be built on seven acres of land, recently purchased from the city by the Utilities Commission. The site is located behind Greenwood Cemetery.

City Manager and Utilities Superintendent Leonard Bloxam said in a telephone conversation with the Daily Reflector from Raleigh this morning that, while the grant had been approved by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, funds still have not been approved by Congress.

However, he said he had learned in Raleigh that funds are in the budget and it is anticipated they will be approved.

He said the city will receive a letter formally notifying it that the grant has been approved.

"At that time we will have to tell them whether we will accept or not," Bloxam said.

The commission will have to begin work on the sewage disposal plant within one year to remain qualified for the funds.

Bloxam pointed out that the $1,150,000 estimated cost of the plant does not include an outlay for interceptor lines which will tie in the city's sewer system to the plant.

Presently Greenville dumps its raw sewage into the Tar River. The proposed plant will eliminate this, however.

Bloxam said he was "very pleased" with the federal approval of the grant. "I think all our efforts have been worth while."

The Reflector was notified late yesterday afternoon by a telegram from Rep. Herbert C. Bonner, that the Department of Health, Education and Welfare had approved the grant to Greenville.

Charles Horne, who was recently elected chairman of the Greenville Utilities Commission, said this morning, "I'm delighted that we have at least proceeded to the point where we have been notified the grant will be forthcoming."

"If the grant goes on through, which I feel certain it will, the credit should go to Leonard (Supt. Bloxam) as superintendent and to the older members of the commission and to some who have been retired, for their long range planning."

"Those things take a lot of planning, a lot of talking and a lot of doing."

If the grant is forthcoming it would be "within our time schedule" to begin work within the time limit set for accepting the Federal money, Horne said.

"Roughly, we hope to complete the plans and have it out for bids by the middle part of next year. The plant would be finished and in operation by the middle of 1961."

Horne said the final total cost of the plant and interceptor lines still is not definite. "We have high hopes we will be able to get out of a bond issue," he said. However, the overall cost of the project will determine that. If bonds are issued they will probably be some type of revenue bonds.

The commission set up a sinking fund some years ago in anticipation of constructing a sewage disposal plant. Funds from the sale of Vanceboro electrical properties were included in the fund and amounts have been set aside each year until now the sinking fund has grown to approximately $1 million.

Cost of operating the plant and retiring bonds if they are issued, will be taken care of with a sewer tax.

Horne said the commission hasn't yet determined the amount of the sewer tax.

However, he said, "There will have to be some charge made. You can't operate a $1½ million plant—any kind of plant—with no revenue. And at present we have no charge for sewage."

The charge would be collected with the water, light and gas bill.

Atom-Powered Merchant Vessel Is Launched Today

CAMDEN, N.J. (AP) — The launching of the first atom-powered merchant ship, Savannah, was hailed today as a "bold and enterprising experiment in the daring and distinguished annals" of American science and seafaring.

Acting Secretary of Commerce Frederick H. Mueller set forth that view in an address a few minutes before the 21,000-ton Savannah slid down the launching ways.

"This ship," Mueller said, "was born of the inspiration of our distinguished president, Dwight D. Eisenhower, and became a reality through his leadership and enthusiasm translated into legislation by the Congress of the United States."

The President's wife was there for the traditional ceremony of giving the ship its name and sending the Savannah into the water. It is the country's first non-military atomic vessel.

Another speaker, Sen. Clifford P. Case (R-N.J.), said the Savannah was "only the beginning of development of nuclear vessels of all kinds." He noted that elsewhere in the building yards work was under way on a nuclear submarine and that Congress is considering a proposal for the Navy to build a second nuclear-powered aircraft carrier.

After the speeches, Mrs. Eisenhower was to strike a bottle of champagne and speak the brief allotted by tradition to ship sponsors.

"I christen thee Savannah."

It has been a long time, more than 140 years, since those words were first spoken and a little 320-ton paddle wheel steamer also called Savannah slid into the water.

That ship was the first ship with steam power built for Atlantic crossings. It carried an 89-hour supply of coal and wood to provide steam, and reeled heavily at its sails for an initial ocean crossing that took 29 days.

Today's Savannah is steam-powered, too, but the fire will come from nuclear fission. The atomic reactor indirectly will heat the water and create the steam to spin its giant turbines.

In christening the Savannah at the launching today Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower completes a construction ceremony started on May 22, 1958 when Mrs. Richard M. Nixon, wife of the vice president, presided at the ceremonial keel laying.

The Savannah was built primarily because President Eisenhower wanted a ship now as an example of his campaign for peaceful use of atomic energy. He also wanted a basic prototype from which other and better merchantmen will be built.

Shipbuilders might have taken longer to design and construct a vessel that could earn her way in commerce.

Miss Sylvia Lee Gardner Becomes July Bride

FOUNTAIN—Sunday afternoon in Aspen Grove Free Will Baptist Church Miss Sylvia Lee Gardner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Lorenzo Gardner of Fountain, became the bride of First Lieutenant Ira Joel Ellis Jr., U.S.A.F., son of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Joel Ellis of Saratoga.

The Rev. M. E. Godwin, former pastor, officiated at the candle-light ceremony.

The sanctuary was decorated with white gladioli, greenery and by Barnby were played during the ceremony. "The Bridal Chorus" from "Lohengrin" by Wagner was played as the processional and Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" was used as the other recessional.

Mrs. Fred Hair of Dunn sang "Through The Years" by Youmans and "I Love Thee" by Grieg. "The Lord's Prayer" was the vocal benediction.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a ballerina length gown of all-imported Chantilly lace and tulle over satin. The basque waist and Sabrina neckline were re-embroidered with pearls and sequins featuring lace sleeves and lace covered buttons at the wrist of the sleeve and down the back of the bodice. The full flowing skirt featured lace forming four points over tulle. Her veil of French illusion fell from a tiara of seeded pearls and iridescent sequins.

Her only jewelry was a diamond and pearl necklace and earrings, a gift of the bridegroom. She carried a white Bible covered with white lace and topped with a white orchid showered with white flowers and Stephanotis.

Mrs. Bobby Dean Conway of Farmville was matron of honor. Her dress of white lace over blue taffeta featured a square neckline with full puff sleeves and a satin bow trim in the back. She wore a nose-length veil of blue illusion attached to a headband of net with pearls trim, matching blue satin shoes and white wrist length gloves. She carried a bouquet of blue pom poms with blue trim.

Miss Jennie Ruth Ellis of Saratoga, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid and Miss Connie Killebrew of Fountain, cousin of the bride, was junior bridesmaid. Their gowns were like that of the honor attendant and they carried blue pom poms in crescent form with blue ribbon trim.

Jonathan Barnes Ellis of Saratoga, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man.

Ushers were Carlton Lorenzo Gardner Jr. of Fountain, brother of the bride, and First Lieutenant Jim Ellis, U.S.A., of Tarboro, cousin of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Gardner, mother of the bride, wore a dress of Marine Blue lace with matching lace hat and shoes and wore a white orchid corsage.

Mrs. Ellis, mother of the bridegroom, chose a Dior blue silk shantung dress with white accessories and wore a white orchid corsage.

The couple received in the vestibule.

The bride is a graduate of Farmville High School and King's Business College and was formerly employed by Land's Jewelers in Raleigh.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Saratoga High School and N. C. State College. He is now assigned to Shaw Air Force Base at Sumter, S. C.

For traveling, the bride chose a light blue original sheath with an empire waistline with a bow and round neckline with a short Ellen lace jacket. She used white accessories and the orchid lifted from her bridal bouquet.

After a wedding trip to Florida and other points of interest the couple will live at 1934 Georgiana Drive, Sumter, S. C.

Cake Cutting

A cake cutting at the Fountain Community Building immediately following the rehearsal was given by the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Lorenzo Gardner of Fountain, Saturday night.

Pink roses and gladioli were used on the banquet table covered in organza and lace cloth over pink with pink tapers. Other floral arrangements were of snapdragons, roses and pink phlox, crape myrtle, tall baskets of magnolia on each side of the mantel.

Guests were greeted at the front door by Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Trevathan.

Assisting in serving were Mrs. Anton Moore, Mrs. Albert Bell, Mrs. Joe Gay, Mrs. Hardy Killebrew, Mrs. Sim Weisner, Mrs. Eddie Corbett and Mrs. Ruel Dilda.

Mrs. Willie Owens directed guests to the register and Mrs. Della Owens Killebrew presided over the register.

Guests included the wedding party, relatives and friends.

Goodbyes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Pat Killebrew.

Informal Party

Miss Gardner was entertained Wednesday afternoon at an informal party in the home of the hostess, Mrs. Bobby Dean Conway, 511 West Church Street, Farmville.

The home was decorated with an arrangement of mixed summer flowers carrying out a pink color scheme.

The hostess presented the bride-to-be a white corsage.

The hostess served brownies, date rolls, open face and ribbon sandwiches, mints, pecans, peanuts, olives, pickles, potato chips, cheese crackers and cakes.

Bridesmaids Luncheon

A bridesmaids luncheon was held Friday afternoon at the Silo Restaurant in Greenville. For decorations a white and green center gladioli arrangement was used.

Hostess was Mrs. Patrick Killebrew of Fountain.

Guests found their places by place cards on the end of white satin ribbons.

Gifts were presented Mrs. Albert Bell, director of the wedding; Mrs. Bobby Conway, matron of honor; Miss Jennie Ellis, bridesmaid; and Miss Connie Killebrew, junior bridesmaid.

Other guests were Miss Sylvia Lee Gardner, bride-elect; Mrs. Carlton Gardner, the bride's mother; Mrs. Joel Ellis, the bridegroom's mother; Mrs. William Forbes of Farmville and Mrs. Willie Owens, aunts of the bride.

Miscellaneous Shower

Miss Sylvia Lee Gardner was entertained July 11 at a miscellaneous shower.

The affair took place in the Saratoga Community Building with Mrs. William H. Jones and Misses Jessie and Callie Ellis as hostesses.

The hostesses presented the bride-to-be with a white carnation corsage.

Guests were greeted at the door by Miss Jennie Ellis, Miss Jessie Ellis, Miss Callie Ellis and Mrs. William Jones.

A pink and green color scheme featuring bridal shower favors was used. A lace table cloth over pink was used for the occasion.

Lime sherbet punch was poured by Mrs. Joel Ellis and guests helped themselves to individual bridal cakes, nuts, mints, ribbon sandwiches.

Miss Jones Given Shower

Miss Louise Jones, bride-elect of August, was honored at a floating shower by Circle No. 8 of Eighth St. Christian Church at the home of Mrs. L. B. Tucker Friday evening.

The guest of honor was presented a white chrysanthemum corsage.

Guests were invited into the dining room where a lace covered table was centered with an arrangement of pink and white Clematis. Fruit punch, bridal cakes, mints and nuts were served. A miniature bride and groom decorated the buffet.

Gifts of china, silver, crystal and linen were received by the honoree.

Houseguests Are Honored

ROBERSONVILLE—Mrs. Kelly Rawls honored her house guests, the Rev. and Mrs. J. Bascom Hurley, at an informal party Thursday evening.

The hostess greeted the callers at the door and invited them into the living room decorated with several vases of roses.

Fruit punch and homemade chocolate layer cake with white icing were served to the 25 friends who were invited to meet the former pastor of the Robersonville Methodist Church and his wife.

Mrs. Rawls and Mrs. Hurley were classmates at East Carolina College, Greenville.

Creeping Inflation Is Bad Enough

Editor's note: The following editorial was prepared by J. H. Waldrop, President of Guaranty Bank and Trust Company.

Would it make you happy if you were told that you would receive a raise on the first of the month? Certainly it would. It would make me happy too if I were told I would. Would it make us all happy if we all received a raise right now? Surely it would. But how long would we stay happy? It would mean higher prices and taxes, and prices for everything.

Advocates of a moderate but continuous rise in prices "creeping inflation" seem implicitly to assume that all the results are, on balance, beneficial. They visualize no harmful side effects or at least none that cannot be "controlled" or compensated by other measures.

Basic to all the arguments in favor of creeping inflation is the assumption that, by one means or another, the inflation can be limited to a creep; none will argue for a runaway inflation. This is difficult, as experience in many European countries has shown. Some may say that our circumstances are different, or that our legislators and planners are smarter than those who have let it happen elsewhere—in short it can't happen here. Even if inflation was kept to a creep, it has been bad enough as we may well have observed continuously during the past twenty-five years. Even creeping inflation continues to lead to higher prices, higher interest rates, and eventual impairment of savings, insurance and investments. Moreover there is no gain to offset these grave consequences.

Time moves on, the pendulum swings, history repeats itself, gravity continues to work and what goes up is bound to come down. Even in a controlled economy such as ours, with only creeping inflation, we learn to depend on it, expect it and plan for it. Continued expectation of creeping inflation will some day lead to fear or runaway inflation. Wage earners, businessmen, retired persons on fixed income and savers will be the worst sufferers. People begin to look for protection and more and more attention is given to hedging—storing up of durable goods, purchases of real property and a frantic flight from the currency of the land. Prices go sky high. People will think that government policy is determined that prices must continue to rise and never fall. There will be much unhappiness and hardship among all the people with fixed income.

Some people are already telling their children a new bedtime story—"I am not supporting you—you are supporting me". Meaning that we have already borrowed and spent the billions that you are going to have to pay back, if they are ever paid. As long as inflation can be kept in narrow limits we are safe. But the fact is that inflation is progressive and eventually becomes full blown. That point is reached when people begin to lose faith in the stability of the dollar. There seem to be more advocates of creeping inflation than of any kind of deflation. Some deflation may be better for all of us in the long run.

We had a slight recession starting in late 1957 and continuing during 1958. Now all of that has changed. Everything is up-up-up—Gross National Product, Personal Income, Production Index, Consumer Prices, Retail and Wholesale Sales and Manufacturing, Demand Deposits, Time Deposits, Bank Loans, Installment Credit, in fact everything except Unemployment and it is down considerably. The outlook is good and never seemed better according to all the economists. The farmer has benefitted least because of over production, or the law of supply and demand.

What can you do? Continue to save. Own your own home and invest wisely rather than spend indiscriminately. In the end you will be a happier and wiser person.

Growing Public Relations Work

By LYNN NISBET
PUBLIC RELATIONS — Developments of the past three or four years, emphasized by discussions—many of them informal—during the recent C&D board meeting at Morehead City, point the growing importance of public relations in the progress of North Carolina.

The term "public relations" is a relative newcomer to the everyday language. It involves advertising and all kinds of publicity as well as promoting good publicity. An official dictionary published in 1938 and kept in reserve for such comparison does not contain the double word. A later edition published in 1955 gives this definition of public relations:

"The activities of a corporation, union, government or other organization in building and maintaining sound and productive relations with special publics, such as customers, employees, or stockholders, and with the public at large, so as to adapt itself to its environment and interpret itself to society."

The modern version of the public relations counselor had not been developed when the late Irvin Cobb said that what North Carolina needed was a good press agent. This State has had, and now has excellent highly skilled advertising men to publicize its attractions to the world. The complexities of modern economics demand equally well trained personnel to aid the State "to adapt itself to its environment and interpret itself to society."

Two or three illustrations will suffice to make this point clear. AUXILIARY — A great deal of publicity has been given to the success of the industry-hunting safaris led by Governor Hodges into the New York, Chicago and Philadelphia areas last year. It is also known that before these expeditions set out on their industry-hunt many thousands of dollars had been spent in magazine, newspaper, direct mail and personal contact advertising to prepare the field.

What is not so well understood is the mass of detail work required to line up volunteer salesmen for the trip, to arrange public meetings and quasi-private conferences with prospects. Much of that work was done without fanfare, and cannot be accurately classed as advertising or publicity. It was the very essence of public relations. This will be more necessary for the contemplated invasion of Europe. North Carolina will entertain the Southern Governors' Conference next October. The governors will convene in Asheville, which means a heavy burden will be placed upon that community. But essentially and officially the host will be the State of North Carolina. An infinite amount of detail planning will be necessary to make the conference a success. Again, that is not advertising in its true sense, but will require expert public relations.

The importance of public relations and the distinction between that function and advertising publicity was recognized by the C&D board two or three years ago. Contracts with the advertising agency handling the State account included some auxiliary public relations services. These services paid dividends on the New York, Chicago and Philadelphia trips. The agreement recently negotiated calls for expanded activities in the public relations field.

If the present trend continues it may not be many years until the prime contract agreements will be made on basis of public relations, with the preparation and placement of advertising copy, in print or on the air, as the auxiliary service. In fact, the larger advertising agencies are waking up to the fact that even now in many instances the tail is trying to wag the dog.

TRAVEL — Reports made to the C&D board this week show that attendance at State parks was up about 14 percent the first half of this year over the comparable period in 1958. Visitors to National parks were up about 14 percent, and to the Kerr Reservoir area in North Carolina about 25 percent.

Reports of the State tax collecting agencies show that revenue from gasoline, auto licenses, and franchises and nearly all the other indices of travel show increases ranging from 2 percent to 15.

All of which means that more people are traveling more miles and visiting more places than ever before. And that is another way of saying the travel industry, for some years one of the major sources of public and private income, is becoming more important in the overall economy.

Muscle-Display On Both Sides

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — Each side in the steel dispute is beginning to look like a weight-lifter who wears too-tight sleeves so he can bust the seams to show his muscles.

Both sides have tremendous power, but if they keep up this posturing they'll be accused of overdoing it.

The steel union and the steel industry in their present strike-shutdown are following their own self established pattern — a kind of slow, ritual dance which always ends the same way.

This is the pattern: the union asks higher wages; the industry says it cannot raise wages without boosting prices, too. Then a strike. Then the union gets a wage boost or other benefits and the industry raises prices.

That's the way it has been in 1949, in 1952, in 1955, in 1956, with strikes averaging 34 days. And that is the way it probably will happen again.

This time a little self-consciousness was forced on both sides by President Eisenhower who called on them not to do anything which would add to inflation.

He said the public wouldn't stand for it. There doesn't seem much the public can do—if the 10-year pattern is repeated—unless Eisenhower does something. As of now there is no sign he intends to do anything.

Since steel is a key industry—supplying 40 percent of the raw materials for other manufacturers and products vital to most of the rest—what happens in steel can be expected to set off a chain reaction.

A steel wage boost, followed by a steel price boost, pretty surely will be followed by wage-price boosts elsewhere. It was just this inflationary spiral Eisenhower had in mind when he asked both sides in the steel dispute to reach a settlement that did not involve a price increase.

Since this plea focused public attention and opinion on both sides, neither wanted to look like a public villain. Both said they would show responsibility.

But the union insisted on a wage increase. The industry said this would be impossible without boosting prices. That's what it said in 1949 before it agreed to a wage increase and boosted prices.

The union suggested industry profits are so big it should be able to absorb the cost of a wage rise without raising prices. Both sides pumped out publicity.

Neither budged—just as neither budged in previous years—and the strike began. But which side is right, which wrong?

There's one way to find out. Eisenhower could appoint a fact-finding board to give the public an impartial opinion. He could do it on his own or by using the Taft-Hartley Act.

Under that act he could force postponement of the strike 80 days while his appointed fact-finders worked. He says he doesn't want to use the Taft-Hartley Act now, that there is no national emergency demanding it.

Eisenhower could ignore Taft-Hartley, appoint fact-finders, and ask both sides to cooperate. This is what President Truman did in 1949. But Eisenhower said last week "all the facts are pretty well known."

That's debatable, since so far all the public has heard is conflicting claims.

What probably is puzzling the public most is this. Since both sides have been through this dance time and again—with a big loss in profits to the industry and wages to the workers—why can't they reach a settlement by reason instead of by a test of strength?

Strength For Today

A GOOD PAST

Old people are inclined to reminisce. This is probably due to the fact that the future being so limited in extent older people tend to look back on the broader expanse of years, meditate upon it, and sometimes idealize it.

Of course, there is no reason why a person should refrain from reminiscing, that is, if he doesn't become tiresome and bore his hearers. Some of the most charming elderly people are the ones who are full of stories about their youth and middle age. In these older minds are sometimes stored up precious recollections — occasional — of real historical value — and if a person has the sparkle to tell stories of the past with enthusiasm and vitality, the person who reminisces often becomes a great social success instead of a bore.

What we should make sure about is that we have something good to look back upon. There is none of us who is not sorry for spots and areas in the past. Yet many a person comes to the threshold of old age and sometimes even beyond that looking back upon a life conspicuously full of happy memories. This person may not have been a great financial success.

Also, however, he may have been characterized by sorrow and disappointment.

But a good past means a past which can be recalled with a good conscience. It is a past of gentleness, kindness, tender-heartedness toward others — faith in God.

It's All Different, Now

"Have always much sand in the feet." This is one of the picturesque descriptions that Elsiebeth Klempert of Germany, a cousin of Mrs. Paul T. Ricks of 117 S. Harding St., included in her letters of her recent travels to Paris and Switzerland, and North Sea Islands.

Letters from Elsiebeth have been the only link Mrs. Ricks has had with the reminder of her father's family who live in Germany. Letters, cards, and packages have come intermittently over the years, keeping the spark of interest and friendship between the families alive. This correspondence between continents has had to bridge an ocean and a language barrier between dictionary English and spoke English. Mrs. Ricks and Elsiebeth, though cousins, have never met — but the warm overflow from Elsiebeth's letters spills her way of life into the Ricks' and through her letters, she has come alive.

In looking over the letters from Elsiebeth that have come since 1946, the rebirth of war-torn Germany into a new nation becomes evident in the change of tone in the letters. Tragedy and hardship came to Germany but time dims the memory of it, life picks up again, and today's involvements fill the emptiness of another time — emptiness of stomach and of hope.

Elsiebeth wrote in 1946: "We have much famine in Germany and I pray you to send me some food — perhaps a little grease or lard in boxes." This letter was written in French and echoed a need few in America know first hand. The same showed in a letter written a year later.

"Dear Beth, 'My English is bad . . . Sometimes my sister-in-law helps me and my letter is better. 'Can you send me some cinnamon, soap powder, thread, sugar, lard, tobacco from Carolina and cigarette paper? For so much I beg your pardon. You must not send all, only what you are able.

"It is a bad time and the future is not rosy.

"An egg in a year. Next week we receive an egg, last Easter the last egg."

In 1954 Col. and Mrs. Owen Marshburn visited Elsiebeth and Albrecht Klempert in Bonn, on Rhine — Western Sector of Germany. Elsiebeth had this to say of Mrs. Marshburn:

"Mrs. Marshburn is so young like a young lady and she was so cordial. I am glad to have seen a friend of you."

Sunning on the beaches on the islands in the North Sea, touring Laon, Paris, and Strasbourg, Switzerland near Lake Lucerne, these descriptions from recent letters paint a different, gayer picture of West German life.

She writes: "I am brown in the face. The air is wonderful, Kuhl and windy. Have always much sand in the feet. I would like you were near. No my dear, we do not come to America. Not this year. We are too old, perhaps later. Yours Cousin, Elsiebeth"

"Mount San Antonio College in California offers a course for credit called Hope Chest 61A and 61B for girls who want to 'experience the various phases of home living.' Students get instruction in the selection and care of linen, silverware, home appliances and are taught how to plan a trousseau and wedding party. Hope In The A-Bomb

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Marlon Brando is anxious to do a film about the United Nations.

"But so far we haven't been able to come up with the right script," he said.

The actor became interested in the U.N. during a tour of Southeast Asia a couple of years ago. "I was impressed by the fact that people all over the world had given up good jobs to go to work for peanuts for the United Nations on its technical assistance projects," he recalled.

"I'd like to do a story that would allow people access to information about the U.N., which I feel by and large has been overlooked. But it would have to be a picture vital and interesting enough to make people want to see it. Otherwise, it would be shown only in church basements."

Brando, who has played everything from a rebellious longshoreman to Napoleon, has the role of a wandering guitarist in his 13th film, "The Fugitive Kind," costarring Anna Magnani and Joanne Woodward.

Marlon, who has trimmed down 15 pounds on a high-protein diet, still retains a glacial silence about his personal life. But during a short rehearsal break in his dressing room he was quite willing to talk . . . about the international situation. It is much on his mind.

For the benefit of his fans, here are his views: "I think this, sooner or later, we are bound to have a world federation of states — a world government. Economic facts can't be ignored much longer.

"It is my theory that world wars result from a multitude of civil wars within each individual.

"The thing that I hate most — that frightens me most — is the indifference and blind acceptance of the destructive impulses in people.

"When people cannot find a way somehow to resolve their own innate aggressiveness then they combine with other individuals, groups and movements and attack a symbol they call the enemy.

"But the enemy is simply their own unconscious projections symbolized by a racial, religious or economic issue. Or they may simply be against people with red hair or people who are cruel to their goldfish."

The result, Brando feels, is war, if no way is found to channel these mass hostilities safely. But he believes the atom bomb is the world's best hope for peace.

"If a man — or a statesman — feels that something of himself will live on — his principles or his children — he is willing to die for the preservation of what he believes in.

"But when he knows that he will die and nothing will be left — no one will remain to mourn his sacrifice, appreciate his heroism or carry on his principles — then he is bound to give a second thought about going to war.

"That is the singular change the atom bomb has made."

Steel Strike's Effect On You

By ELMER ROESSNER

Whoever you are — wherever you live — the steel strike means a lot to you. It's not just something to read about in the papers, something that's happening far away.

The steel strike is rearranging the cans in your cupboard, it's tinkering with your job, it's working on your budget, it's revising your tax bills, it's gnawing at your wallet.

"Nothing is made without steel," the industry has been hammering at you for years. Now it could just as truthfully tell you, "Nobody prospers without steel production."

Here's the rundown: Manufacturers have an estimated three-months supply of steel. It is admittedly spotty. Some firms, some industries, have enough for six months; some not enough for one.

THE PAINFUL FACTS

That means that some production will be cut back pretty soon and, unless there is a quick settlement, many more will be shut down. That will mean smaller sales, fewer jobs, less exports. Do you buy or sell? Work or export?

Merchandisers are being doubtful. They will soon be getting fewer goods to sell; they will soon have fewer customers. Steel workers will cut buying; families in other industries will buy less as unemployment spreads.

This will be true of merchants of intangibles. Steel workers will be unable to keep up payments on stock purchases or mutual fund shares. That's no idle remark. Union members are among the regular investors in mutual funds.

ANY EMPLOYMENT INSURANCE?

Then there's the matter of jobs. You may not be affected, but members of your family and friends may be.

Transportation companies are already laying off men. This will soon spread to companies that use steel.

Meanwhile, some of the strikers and all of the others laid off will be seeking part-time or tide-over jobs. Their wives and steel workers' wives, too, will be seeking office and household work. Of course, if you have employment with good seniority and built-in continuity, you have nothing to fear. But what about your brother-in-law? Maybe he will have to move in with you.

Then there's the cost of living. The initial reaction to the steel strike will be a drop. With steel workers, railroad men and others directly or almost directly involved out of work, there will be a lag in demand for food, and markets may have to unload perishables.

But eventually good prices must rise, because merchants will have to adjust for the loss in buying, or go broke.

TEETH SET APPOSITELY

The tax bite will become more painful.

With business and income slowed down, tax collections will be less. Of course, an immediate Federal tax rise is not in prospect. But some city and state taxes may have to be moved up quickly to compensate for losses on local business transactions, etc. And state and, eventually, Federal taxes will have to be higher to provide unemployment benefits for those on strike and, even quicker, for those thrown out of work because of the strike.

There will be other consequences: The effects on consumer credit as more workers are unable to meet installment payments because of the strike; the swelling demands on service organizations resulting from unemployment, and the rise of medical claim because of the greater inclination of going to hospitals when there is no work and little income.

A mess, indeed.

But don't blame labor; don't blame industry. Both are victims of the inflation merry-go-round.

This strike will be settled. There will be a raise for the workers, a rise in steel prices, hence a rise in the cost of living. This will lead to another strike in 1960 or 1961, more suffering and another rise.

Basically, the fault is in our monetary system, which is based on thin air, has the stability of hydrogen, and is certain to result in constant economic explosions.

Reminders Of Conflict In Boy Scout Jamboree

MOUNT MAKILING, Philippines (AP)—Some quiet reminders of the world outside the jamboree here where boys from 51 nations are gathered for the first World Boy Scout Jamboree ever held in Asia.

Jews chat with turbaned Arabs and blacks eat with whites in the multi-nation campsites spread over the rolling mountainside "Jamboree City" south of Manila. But there are also signs of world conflicts, old and new.

Even the youngest of the scouts in the big Japanese delegation, for example, might pause for thought at a banner in a Philippine camp which says "Remember Pearl Harbor." Another display by the delegation from Bataan province stresses the war theme and includes quotes from Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

World scouting leaders say they would like to hold the next jamboree in the Middle East, possibly in the United Arab Republic. But, because the Israeli delegation would not or could not attend, they say chances are very dim.

There are 28 scouts in exile who march proudly in parades and move among 12,000 scouts gathered here. They are from Communist countries where the scouting movement is banned. Twenty-five belong to the Council of Scout Associations in Emile. They include Hungarians, Russians, Lithuanians and Ukrainians, now living mostly in the United States, Britain and Australia.

The other three are Poles, not associated with the council but working in cooperation with it. Kazimierz Sabbat, international commissioner of the Polish Boy Scouts with headquarters in London, says there are 12,500 scouts in his organization, scattered throughout the world.

Dresser Fell On Four-Year-Old

DETROIT (AP)—Deborah Anne Tomanovich received a little red purse from her aunt Monday.

The 4-year-old girl was proud of the gift because she had clothes to match it. First she went to her bedroom and put on her red shorts.

Then, police said, she pulled out the bottom drawer of a dresser standing close to her sister's crib. Deborah stood on the bottom drawer and pulled out the top drawer to get her other red clothes.

Her weight tipped the dresser and it fell against her, pinning her by the neck to the crib. She was dead on arrival at a hospital.

Boy Injured In Fall From Car

A 15-year-old Route 3, Greenville boy was treated at Pitt Memorial Hospital for abrasions of the left knee and elbow after he was said to have fallen from a moving car at the intersection of First and Cotanche Sts. yesterday about 10:35 p.m.

Investigating officers identified the boy as Leo Starling of Route 3, Box 636, Greenville, Starling, who was seated in the right hand front seat, allegedly fell from the vehicle as it rounded the corner. According to officers, there were five other boys in the car including the driver, Ruel Stanell of Falkland. Young Starling was released following examination and treatment by a doctor.

TAKING CRUISE

NICE, France (AP)—Opera star Maria Callas flew here today from Milan to join Sir Winston and Lady Churchill in a three-week cruise off the Greek Archipelago. They will be guests of shipping magnate Aristide Onassis on his yacht.

Directors of the American Commercial are expected to meet later this week to give formal approval to the plan. Later, committees from both banks will meet to work out details. Then, the plans must be offered to stockholders of both banks.

Both the State Banking Commission and the Federal Reserve System must approve before the merger is completed.

Harold D. Coley, president of the insurance company, said joining the two banks will mean advantages to the public in the area. "It will greatly increase the scope of credit services, with a legal lending limit to any one borrower expanded to nearly 2 million dollars."

Under terms of the proposed merger, Coley said the Raleigh bank would continue under local management with maximum authority and responsibility. This, he noted, will maintain "its close identity with city and county activities."

Another Raleigh bank—the Hood System Industrial Bank—has indicated a willingness to talk merger plans with other banks, but no definite developments have been announced.

Branch Banking & Trust Co. of Wilson has filed an application to open a branch in Raleigh, and the State Banking Commission will take up the matter at its meeting Wednesday.

Drawbacks In Date 'Peace-Monger' Role For Nixon During Russian Trip

By PATRICK MCNULTY
LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—I had a date with Miss Turkey in the Miss Universe contest Monday night.

We went on a moonlight cruise on a yacht, and then had a candlelight dinner overlooking the twinkling lights of Alamitos Bay.

Sound romantic? Well, gather around me, all you bachelors, for this sad story. Miss Turkey has a chaperone. And I don't speak Turkish.

Aboard the private yacht were several candidates in the annual international beauty pageant, along with a few reporters and chaperones.

After touring the harbor for about an hour, we settled down for dinner at a waterfront cafe. The chaperone, Imasad Kurkjian, explained that Miss Turkey is learning English at a surprising rate. "Offer her something," the chaperone said. I picked up a plate of hors d'oeuvres.

"Thank you very much," said Miss Turkey, delicately selecting an olive-wrapped anchovy.

"You see," said the chaperone, triumphantly, "Now tell her something in Turkish."

We finally worked out something that sounded like: "Chalk-you-sell." This, Mrs. Kurkjian said, means: "You are very pretty."

"Chalk-you-sell," I said, smiling like Cary Grant over my soft drink.

"Thank you very much," said Miss Turkey, looking my way with the biggest, brownest eyes this side of Istanbul.

My steak arrived. The waitress set down Miss Turkey's entree, believe it or not—turkey.

Scout's honor gentlemen, Miss Turkey had turkey. Mrs. Kurkjian, whose husband, James, is a rug merchant in Long Beach, explained that Turkish people, who raise few cattle, rarely eat beef.

Miss Turkey, who is 19-year-old Ezel Olcay, looked my way again with those big brown eyes. She pointed to her plate.

"Miss Turkey miss Turkey," she said, apparently nostalgically referring to her native land. "You speak English better than I supposed," I said, again looking over my glass like Cary Grant.

"Thank you very much," said Miss Turkey, lowering her brown eyes.

Where do you go from there? Why, back to the Miss Universe contest headquarters, that's where—and with the chaperone.

'Peace-Monger' Role For Nixon During Russian Trip

By JOHN SCALI
WASHINGTON (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon hopes to sell himself to the Soviet people as a "peace monger" sincerely dedicated to building lasting friendship with the Soviet government.

Nixon has set this as a prime role of the flying 11-day tour of the Soviet Union he is to begin Thursday.

The vice president, accompanied by newsmen and government aides, will take off Wednesday by jet airliner, a few hours after double checking with President Eisenhower what he should say to the Soviet leaders and their people.

Nixon is reported hoping to demonstrate by his comments and behavior that he is a reasonable man, not the aggressive war monger Moscow has pictured him.

But he is also ready to make clear that regardless of how much American leaders and their people want peace, they will never be frightened into a Munich-like deal under Soviet threats.

Nixon has scheduled a Sunday morning meeting with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev for what promises to be a sweeping, blunt discussion of the Berlin crisis, the Soviet-American deadlock on disarmament and nuclear testing, and the Soviet campaign for more American trade.

Khrushchev is expected to join Nixon in Friday's formal opening of the big American National Exhibition in Moscow's Sokolniki Park. Khrushchev is also to be Nixon's host at a buffet luncheon Friday. Nixon is to return the compliment at a small American Embassy dinner Saturday.

Their small scale foreign policy talk, however, has been set for Sunday at Khrushchev's summer home on the outskirts of the Soviet capital. This is Nixon's only engagement for the day, making it likely the two men will talk privately for some hours.

Nixon already has made it known he intends to treat Khrushchev's comments as private, to be relayed only to President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Christian A. Herter in Geneva.

Nixon and his party will spend three days in the Soviet capital, then move on for quick visits to Leningrad and four industrial cities in Siberia.

MAN WHO MISSED THE MOON

CHAPTER 24

Thayn Marden turned from the window beside which she had been standing, and her blue eyes searched Kirk Hammond's face quickly. He had forgotten, he thought, how beautiful she was.

In the black shorts and shirt that made her white limbs and ashen blonde hair stand out, she was breathtaking.

She said, "You're willing now to cooperate with our historians, to gain your freedom?"

Hammond nodded. "I might as well. The Hoomen think I'm a traitor to them anyway. It was easy to sound bitter.

"If you'll answer some preliminary questions to prove your sincerity," Thayn said, "I'll take you back to Earth. You'll work there with a special group of Vramen historians."

Hammond looked at the commandant standing by the door. "I've a certain condition to make first. But — it's for your ears alone, Marden."

The commandant shook his head. "The rules do not permit—"

Thayn said, "There'll be no danger. Give me your shocker and wait outside."

The commandant still looked doubtful, but he bowed and said, "Very well, if you wish it."

He took a little black plastic tube from a case at his belt and handed it to Thayn. He went out of the room and closed the door.

Thayn held the shocker in front of her and said quietly, "Keep at that distance. Now what is this condition that's so confidential?"

Hammond nerved himself for the part he had to play.

"Thayn, it isn't just freedom I'm doing this for," he said. "It's you. I want to see you, be near you again."

She looked at him, coolly, cynically. "Why?"

"Because I'm in love with you," Hammond said. "I'm the prize fool of the universe, but I can't help

FALSE TEETH
That Loosen
Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Hold false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug counter.

He expected her to laugh, to get angry, to voice some expression of contempt or call him a liar. She did none of these things.

He thought he must have put some real conviction in his voice, because she stared at him and there was suddenly a strange, strained look in her white face.

"No," she said finally. "It's not possible. Don't ever talk of love between you and me."

"Why not?" he demanded. "You may be immortal or nearly so, but you're still a woman. And I love you."

"You don't know what you're saying. No Vramen can love or marry in the way you mean— especially a Hooman. You haven't the faintest idea of all that stands between us."

Hammond was elated. She had not doubted him at all. He had gambled on that, gambled on her acceptance of the encephaloprobe record that had mistaken physical desire for love.

He was lying in his teeth when he talked of loving her, but the lie was only a just return for what she had done to him. He hoped it worked as well.

He took a step toward her and spread out his hands in a gesture of appeal.

"Thayn, it doesn't make sense! Why couldn't a Vramen marry a Hooman?"

There was a look of pain in her face as she said, "I can't tell you why. But you can believe me when I say that it would be easier for you to cross the ages back to your own time than to cross what separates us."

Hammond took a step closer. "Thayn, listen to me. Whatever separates us, we could overcome it."

She was shaking her head, her blue eyes haunted with a secret misery, as he took that step closer.

He swung his fist and hit her hard on the chin.

Thayn fell without a sound. He grabbed her and caught her before she hit the floor, but the shocker dropped from her limp hand and rolled across the floor.

He eased her down and hastily retrieved the weapon. Then he stood for a moment, breathing hard and trembling, looking down at Thayn's still white face.

His trick had worked. It had put Thayn off guard for the crucial moment he needed. But somehow he had not expected her to react to his avowal of love in quite the way she had.

He told himself that he was a fool to stand here wasting precious seconds. He examined the shocker, driven now by a feverish haste.

From what Quobba had told him, the shocker was merely a capacitor which held a certain electrical charge that could produce unconsciousness.

The drawbacks of the thing as a weapon were its extremely short range and the fact that in use the charge was rapidly exhausted.

Hammond gripped the thing in his hand and went to the door that led to the outer office. He opened it with a sudden movement.

There were three men in the room. They turned, and when they saw Hammond there alone with the shocker in his hand they moved fast.

Not fast enough. Hammond pressed the slide on the tube forward. It buzzed like an angry rattlesnake. He swept it back and forth with frantic awkwardness. The three charging men staggered and fell crashing to the floor.

It was so quick that it took Hammond a moment to realize he had dropped them and that he was wasting the shocker's limited charge. He hastily slid back the control.

He stuck his head cautiously out into the corridor. No one was there. He ran across it to the stairs, and ran up.

There was a closed door at the top of the stairs. He pulled it open, and there was the control room.

In the center of the room was a U-shaped bank of control panels. There was a guard inside this U peering into something that looked like a radar screen. There was another guard at the right-hand wall, looking out. The backs of both were to Hammond.

He pointed the shocker at the back of the man looking out and pressed the slide. The tube buzzed and the man fell.

The man in the U of switchboards turned a stricken, staring face toward Hammond. Hammond turned the shocker on him.

The shocker did not buzz. He realized suddenly that his inept handling had exhausted its charge.

The man in the U grabbed a mike and screeched into it. "Tower calling! Escaped prisoner—"

Hammond ran in and banged him on the head with the black shocker-tube, and the man crumpled to the floor.

Bells went off somewhere down in the main part of the building.

Hammond did a sort of frantic shuffle along the panels, peering at the legends underneath each bank of controls. He was searching for a particular legend that meant "Field Generator Control," which Quobba had taught him with great care.

He found it and swung it back around to the symbol that meant zero.

As he ran out from the U of panels toward the nearest window, he heard feet starting to pound up the stairs.

Hammond yelled when he looked out. It seemed six times as dark out there as before, for there was no shimmering, glowing barrier around the spaceport area now.

Rab Quobba had been as good as his word, the prisoners had been ready and their dark forms were swarming into the spaceport in scores.

The door banged open behind Hammond and he started to spin around. There was a buzzing sound and everything exploded into blackness.

What possible means of escape from the penal planet than there be for Hammond now? Read "Man Who Missed the Moon" here tomorrow.

TV Is Changing Language-Usage

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Television, while still in its infancy, is effecting some interesting changes in language usage. As a public service we present herewith some old words with new meanings.

Series—One idea repeated 39 different times by one or more steadily employed actors.

Guest star—A performer who couldn't get his own series.

Special added attraction—A performer with a better agent than a guest star's.

Ad lib—Any line on the cue cards misread by a performer.

New (motion picture use)—Seen by 100 million people since it was made in 1932, but never before shown on this channel in this town.

New (performer)—This actor never has been on the Ed Sullivan show.

Anthology—A batch of old reruns with a new host.

Host—Any performer who prepares the audience for the station break.

Station break—A period which seems to last slightly longer than the entertainment.

News-in-depth—A show equipped with a voice-of-doom commentator and a bunch of old newsreel clips.

Public service show—Any program without a sponsor.

Adult entertainment—Any program which includes one damn and two hells.

Original teleplay—This has been a book, a Broadway play and a movie, but it's never before been done in 30 minutes on TV.

Talented—he does imitations of James Cagney.

Chapel Hill—Music from Mozart to Gershwin will be sung by bass-baritone Paul Hickfang of Greenville in a public concert to be given tonight at the University of North Carolina.

The Student Activities Council will sponsor his program at 8 p.m. in Hill Hall on the campus. Wolfgang Fetsch will accompany Hickfang at the piano.

A professor of voice at East Carolina College, Hickfang has been guest soloist with the N. C. Symphony and directs ECC's Opera Theater. He was educated in Texas, his home state; in Michigan, and abroad.

Missouri Demos Believe Symington Is A Real Winner

By LARRY HALL
JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—Missouri Democrats believe they have a presidential winner in Sen. Stuart Symington so they're starting to tell the world about him.

Symington has insisted that he is not running for anything—just trying to do a job as Missouri's junior senator.

But the Democratic State Committee is introducing him to the party faithful around the country as a man who can win in 1960.

The committee is mailing Symington campaign material to delegates and alternates to the 1956 convention, state committee officials and national committee members.

State Chairman Wilbur F. Daniels and Symington's campaign manager, James H. Meredith, emphasize the action was taken without any authorization from Symington. In fact, Meredith says, Symington has kept him from trying to get delegate commitments or arrange to enter any presidential primaries.

"If he'd just turn me loose," Meredith said, "I'd be out flailing through the brush like an old hound dog chasing rabbits. If he'd just let that foot up off my neck a half an inch."

Meredith and Daniels are convinced Symington will win the Democratic nomination at next year's convention. Material in the current campaign includes a picture story of Symington's swift rise in government—left over from 1956 campaign, when he won a second term in the Senate by a majority of nearly 400,000 votes. That was a record for Missouri.

In his letter to Democratic party workers, Daniels described Symington as "a tremendous vote getter." He cited the 1952 election when Symington was elected to the Senate by 150,000 votes while President Eisenhower carried Missouri for the Republicans by almost 30,000.

Symington, 58, got into government at 44 in the midst of a successful business career.

NEW YORK (AP)—Business failures normally decline in June but last month they rose 10 per cent to 1,244, according to a Dun & Bradstreet Inc. survey. The total compared with 1,260 in June last year.

Before going to the Senate in 1952, he was in succession assistant secretary of war for air, and Resources Board and trouble plus property administrator, as the first secretary of the air force, shooter for the Reconstruction Finance Corp. chairman of the National Security

Fed Rat Poison To Her Husband

HARRISON, N.J. (AP)—Police say a 21-year-old blonde fed her husband rat poison in soup she said would heal a stab wound.

Police held Mary Provine Monday on an open charge of investigation of attempted murder.

Detectives Charles Hindcliffe Jr. and Edward Kennedy said Provine had been locked out of his apartment Sunday night.

When his wife let him in they argued. She said she loved someone else. They fought and she stabbed him in the shoulder with a bread knife.

After she tried to stop the bleeding, he pleaded with her to call a doctor. She refused and went out to get something for the wound.

She returned minutes later saying a druggist had given her some mustard seed. If she put it in soup, she said, it would stop the bleeding.

Provine wouldn't take the soup unless she first tasted it. She took a spoonful. Provine took eight. Then Provine's mother-in-law, Helen Vecchio, entered and called police.

Provine was taken to a hospital where his stomach was pumped out and the wound dressed. He was listed in fair condition.

ABC Enforcers Arrest Two On Bootleg Charges

Pitt County ABC officers arrested two Greenville Negroes last night on charges of illegal possession of non-tax-paid whiskey for the purpose of sale after officers found a gallon of bootleg in the closet of a house at 301 Boyd Ave.

According to J.M. Ward, County ABC Chief, the officers arrested Howard Brown, 40, at his home at 301 Boyd Ave. when officers found a gallon of illegal booze in a closet in the house. Ward added John Wesley Newborn of 1304 Factory St. was arrested a short time later when Brown told officers Newborn was the owner of the spirits.

Ward quoted Brown as saying Newborn brought the liquor to his house a short time before the officers arrived and asked him to keep it for him.

Both men were released under a $200 bond for appearance in City Court July 27.

ABC Officers Ward, H.B. Lilley and Walter Taylor participated in the arrests.

Greenville Optometrists Named To Committees

WILSON — Appointment of two Greenville optometrists to committees of the North Carolina State Optometric Society was announced today by Dr. J. Hugh Sowder of North Wilkesboro, president.

As first vice president of the society, Dr. Sam T. White of Greenville automatically becomes chairman of the Department of Public Information, Dr. Kenneth Quiggins, also of Greenville, has been named a member of the Department of Education.

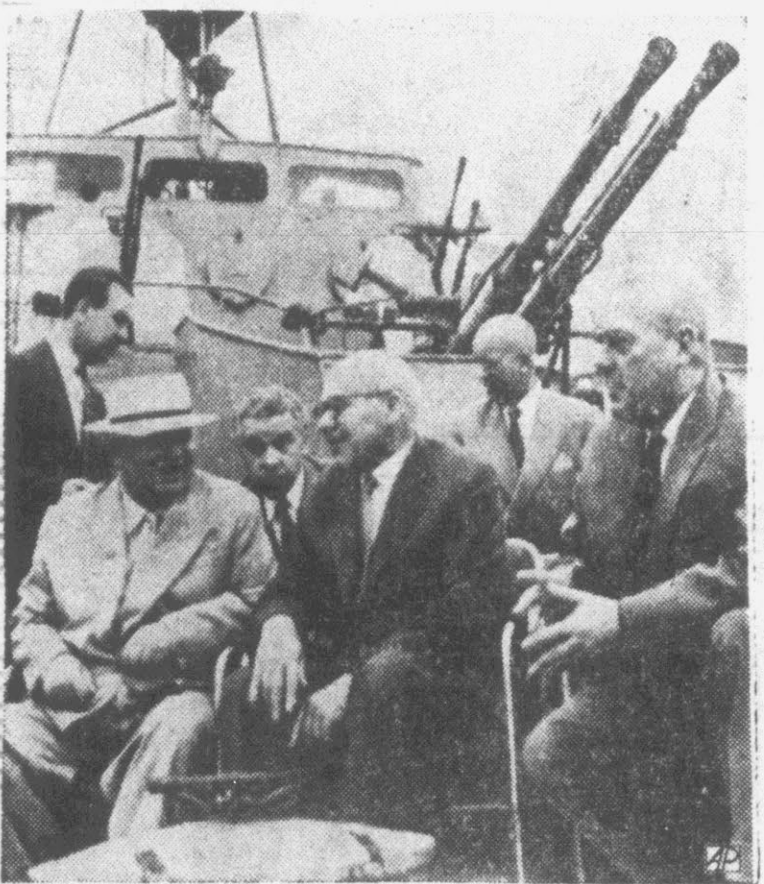

Dr. White succeeds Dr. Emanuel H. Robinson of Asheville as vice president and public information chairman. His department has won numerous awards on regional and national levels for newspaper, magazine, television and radio work.

Under Dr. White's leadership, the North Carolina State Optometric Society this year has undertaken the huge task of distributing one million copies of "Your Eyes and Your Optometrist," pictorial booklet on vision care, throughout the nation.

Dr. White also has outlined an ambitious program of press, television and radio coverage during the year to acquaint the public with the new concept of vision care through optometric services. His program will cover such subjects as career guidance, optometric rehabilitation of the partially sighted vision in the schools, contact lenses, and a host of other fields covered by optometry.

Dr. Quiggins, as a member of the important Department of Education, will assist in planning and carrying out an extensive program of postgraduate study and professional seminars on optometric subjects.

The work of Dr. Quiggins' committee is considered one of the most vital programs in the society. Last year, for example, attendance at seminars and post-

Playing 'Police' Was A Mistake

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — A factory worker, playing policeman, stopped a car on the Merritt Parkway Monday night and charged the driver with speeding. The driver heads the state police racket squad.

"Yours was the first Connecticut car I stopped," Camillo J. Spina told Lt. Samuel Rome of the state police. "I guess I made a mistake."

A mistake it was. Spina, 47, was arrested for impersonating an officer and carrying a concealed weapon.

Would Replace Erased Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Machinery for replacing Congress, in event it is wiped out by an atom bomb or other disaster, is proposed by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Under the proposal, in the form of a suggested constitutional amendment, state governors would be authorized to fill vacancies in the House when disaster wiped out more than half of its members.

Plan Planes To Top 2,000 MPH

LOS ANGELES (AP) — North American Aviation is developing two planes for the Air Force that will fly more than 2,000 miles an hour at 70,000 feet.

The highly secret planes are the B70 Valkyrie bomber and the F108 Rapier interceptor, both powered with jet engines.

The F108 is expected to be ready in the early 1960s, with the B70 due about 18 months later. Both planes will be short winged and will be able to fly their entire missions at top speed, informed sources said.

Gov. Earl Long Tired, Feels Altitude Effects

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP)—Louisiana Gov. Earl K. Long, obviously tired after a motor trip from El Paso, Tex., and seemingly feeling the effects of Santa Fe's high altitude, called a doctor and nurse to his motel suite late Monday night.

Dr. Richard Landmann of Santa Fe declined to comment on the governor's condition after completing an examination other than to say Long was "apparently alright" and was sleeping.

The doctor told Louisiana state police Lt. Bill Wisner, that he believed Santa Fe's altitude was causing a rapid pulse. New Mexico's state capital is more than 7,000 feet high.

The doctor and nurse Ruth Lemmon were called to the Town House Motel southeast of Santa Fe just after 10 p.m.

Long said after his arrival late Monday afternoon that he was feeling better. But he walked as though he was very tired and was helped by J. M. (Pete) Menefee, Louisiana state racing commissioner.

He was asked if his heart was affected by the altitude.

"I haven't had any trouble with my heart since 1950 when I had an attack," he replied. "I did feel a little nauseated just when I got out of the car, but I'm ok."

Long had a light supper of a bowl of soup and a beer. He made a few telephone calls from a telephone booth just outside the restaurant and then sat for a short period by the motel's swimming pool watching children in the water. He retired early to his suite far back from the highway.

His travel plans were indefinite, although he said he might be in New Mexico "a day or so" and then planned to be at the Brown Palace Hotel in Denver Thursday night.

Living On Hope In Red Prison

HONG KONG (AP) — John Downey of New Britain, Conn., serving a life sentence in a Red China prison, is living on hope, his brother William said today on arrival from Peiping.

But the Chinese he talked to during the week he spent in the Red capital gave him no indication that John will be released, William told reporters.

He said that despite requests through the Chinese Red Cross, no Chinese government official would receive him or listen to his appeal. The Communists jailed John Downey in 1952 on espionage charges.

"But my brother shows no sign of despair," William said. "He is quite cheerful, was very happy to see me and appears to be in very good health. He is living in hopes that he will be released."

William said he was not allowed to visit Richard G. Pecteau of Boston, Mass., who was sentenced to 20 years at the same time as John.

Pecteau and Downey, civilians, were captured when a U.S. Air Force plane in which they were traveling crashed on a flight from Japan to Korea.

William saw John three times for two hours each during the week he was in Peiping.

BOAT HIT SHOAL

FIRST POLIO CASE

ROCKY MOUNT—A local 14-year-old Negro has been struck down by severe paralytic polio, the Nash County Rocky Mount health office has reported. Dr. John S. Chamblee said Richard White Jr. became ill July 9. White is Rocky Mount's first polio case for the year. He had not received polio vaccine, according to Dr. Chamblee.

CHOIR THIEF STRIKES

FINAL BUDGET

GOLDSBORO—Final approval of Goldsboro's record budget of $1,174,356.50 for the 1959-60 fiscal year was expected at last night's meeting of the Board of Aldermen. It will up the city tax rate five cents to $1.51.

DR. LEE LEAVES CASWELL

KINSTON—Dr. Mike Lee, a member of the medical staff at Caswell School for the past 26 years, announced Monday that he has submitted his resignation effective August 1. Dr. Lee plans to devote his time to full-time work in the general practice of medicine at his office.

COURT PENALTIES DROP

WILSON—People are either behaving themselves better, or more of them are serving road, jail and prison sentences instead of paying off fines. This conclusion is based on a fines, forfeitures and penalties report compiled by H. D. Bowning, superintendent of Wilson county schools. State law requires the county superintendent to see that the proceeds from fines are accounted for to the school fund.

TO EMPLOY PSYCHOLOGIST

HALIFAX—The Halifax County Health Department soon will add a full-time clinical psychologist to its staff, it was announced by Dr. Robert F. Young, county health director. The new office was made possible through an allocation made in the 1959-60 county budget and from funds available through state appropriations. The psychologist will work primarily in the three school systems in the county and his duties will consist of helping children with special mental health problems.

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower sees no real hope for a tax cut during his remaining 18 months in office, it was reported today on high authority.

But it also is known that the President at this time is planning to call for a tax increase.

Eisenhower's views on this and other matters domestic and political can be reported on excellent authority.

STEEL—Eisenhower does not rule out the possibility of invoking the Taft-Hartley law in an effort to end the steel strike. But he is extremely reluctant, in part because he feels it would do little ultimate good.

POLITICS—He intends to say nothing to influence the Republican presidential nomination unless he sees a prospect that the choice might otherwise go to a candidate he feels does not embrace what Eisenhower calls his middle-of-the-road philosophy. New York

Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, along with Vice President Richard Nixon, is on the Eisenhower list of 10 possibilities he could support.

With respect to the steel strike, Eisenhower is known to feel an 80-day strike-halting injunction under the Taft-Hartley Act would serve little purpose because both sides are dug in for a struggle. He sees no need now for cooling off.

If the strike, now a week old, should eventually threaten defense production, Eisenhower might order allocation of steel for vital programs under his Korean war powers, still in effect.

The President is making no guess as to how long the strike may last. And he isn't tipping his hand as to how long the government will rely solely on mediation.

Eisenhower is known to feel that the steel companies acted stupidly with expletives—at the end of the 1956 steel strike. He takes the position that the companies increased steel prices more than $7 a ton at that time without calculating the exact cost to the wage hike they negotiated.

But the President believes that in the current dispute the companies are highly aware of the danger of inflation and are taking it into account in negotiations.

As for the United Steelworkers Union, Eisenhower feels its officials are much like politicians—dependent on their constituents and thus determined to get as big a wage increase as possible every time they approach the bargaining table.

Eisenhower is most anxious to avoid any sort of intervention which would have any appearance of favoring one side over the other. He thinks both sides are straining for any sign of that sort.

In politics, Eisenhower is not naming the other eight GOP possibilities he could support. But he refers to all of the group as young and able.

As for taxes, while Eisenhower sees no real hope for any reduction before he leaves office, he doesn't close the door to tax reform. His experts, including Secretary of the Treasury Robert B. Anderson, are studying many reform proposals but haven't settled on a program.

Anderson is understood to be considering the idea of lowering or eliminating certain tax deductions. Eisenhower is determined that the budget for the next fiscal year starting July 1, 1960, will show a surplus. He is equally determined that the budget for the current year be balanced.

The President concedes that spending next year may run about $80 billion dollars, as compared with the 77 billion he proposed this year. But he is counting on increasing revenues.
