Warm Welcome For Vice President

FLOWERY WELCOME FOR NIXON—Two women run to present flowers to Vice President Nixon who stands in automobile during the rousing ovation given him in Warsaw, Poland. A cheering, singing crowd of 250,000 Poles extended to him the greatest reception he has ever had during his travels in many foreign countries. Nixon Continues Visit With Sightseeing Tour

By A. I. GOLDBERG

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon continues his triumphal whirlwind visit to Communist-ruled Poland today with an official luncheon and a sightseeing tour of Warsaw.

Today's itinerary included lunch with Premier Josef Cyrankiewicz, a visit to a housing development, a three-hour drive through Warsaw's suburbs, and a talk with students at the University of Warsaw.

U.S. Ambassador Jacob D. Beam gives a reception for the visitors tonight, and they fly back to Washington Wednesday. During another day of cheers from wildly enthusiastic Polish crowds, Nixon spent 5½ hours Monday discussing international issues and Polish-American problems with Communist party leader Wladyslaw Gomulka. He wound up his arduous day as guest of honor at a reception by President Aleksandr Zawaski.

Nixon was accompanied by Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, brother of the President, at his long talk with Gomulka. Three hours had been allotted for the visit, but the party chief had lunch brought to his office so the discussion could continue.

Also present were Premier Cyrankiewicz and Foreign Minister Adam Rapacki, author of a Soviet-supported plan for an atomic-free zone in central Europe which the United States has opposed.

Nixon said later the talk had ranged over international matters as well as Polish-American problems.

The length of the talk forced Nixon to cancel a visit to the remnant of Warsaw's Jewish ghetto, where about 500 persons waited patiently to get a look at the vice president. At the president's reception, Nixon won applause from Polish officials and foreign diplomats with a toast to peace.

Speaking in the great hall of the palace of Poland's cabinet, the vice president recalled that President Eisenhower had seen the war destruction in Poland 14 years ago and that Nixon himself had seen Warsaw's reconstruction.

Nixon referred to his talks with Polish leaders during the day.

"There was complete agreement on this one issue: what happened to Warsaw, what happened to Poland in the last war, to Poland that suffered in two wars, must not happen again either to Poland or any other country on earth," he declared.

Amid a roar of applause, he continued: "And statesmen who disagree on economic and foreign policies can and will find a way to settle their differences without the resort to force. I know I speak from the heart of the President."

Red Chinese Ambassador Wang Ping-nan was not present at the reception. Nor was Gomulka, who had interrupted a vacation to attend the afternoon talk with Nixon.

Nikita Said Taking Risk To Visit

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst

Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev is taking a calculated risk in accepting an invitation to visit the United States.

His exchange of visits with President Eisenhower will permit an unusual calm to settle over the main arenas of the cold war for a couple of months. But there is no reason to suppose that peace has broken out.

Khrushchev has long indicated he badly wanted the invitation to America. He maneuvered industriously to get it. But why was he so eager?

Khrushchev's projected few days in Washington and President Eisenhower's in Moscow will be in effect a meeting at the summit, a two-sided meeting with other countries on the outside.

The Western Allies are being reassured and are making noises like they are welcoming the exchange. By the time Khrushchev gets through, they possibly will be wondering what really went on behind closed doors. The idea that Khrushchev is thinking along such lines cannot be discarded, for he is known to have entertained a notion of splitting the Allies by hinting at a possible two-way deal to keep the world in its place.

But there is some risk for Khrushchev himself. The same uneasiness he may seek to arouse among the Western Europeans, Chinese, Communists, A Moscow- (continued on page ten)

Sept. 15 Appears Set For Khrushchev Visit To U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — It now appears that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev will begin his visit to the United States on Sept. 15.

State Department officials said today it is safe to assume he will arrive here that day. They said they could not officially confirm that date. The final word has to come from Khrushchev himself.

It is expected he will come directly to Washington.

Informants said that since Khrushchev is an official guest of the United States, his visit to Washington would by all means precede an eventual appearance elsewhere, such as the United Nations General Assembly in New York.

President Eisenhower mentioned only September in announcing Monday that Khrushchev would come here, and that later in the fall he would return the Russian's visit.

In any event the exchange of visits raises U.S.-Soviet diplomacy to the summit level, whether or not it results in a formal summit conference on a broader scale.

His exchange of visits with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev and an earlier trip to Europe to confer with heads of the major western Allies will give Eisenhower direct contacts with the participants in any later summit meeting.

A generally favorable reaction, both in this country and elsewhere in the world, greeted Monday's announcement that Khrushchev has accepted Eisenhower's invitation to visit the United States next month.

Many expressed hope that East-West tensions would be eased if Khrushchev were impressed first hand with the nation's strength and peaceful intentions.

Communist China was notably absent from the chorus of praise on both sides of the Iron Curtain.

This increased the feeling in the West that party Chairman Mao Tse-tung and his associates were troubled over the top-level East-West meetings from which they will be excluded.

Talks with Eisenhower and a 10-day tour of the country are among the plans for the Khrushchev visit. Reports from Moscow said the Soviet Premier is expected to bring along his wife, son and daughter.

With most details still uncertain, there has been no announcement whether Mrs. Eisenhower will accompany her husband to Europe. The Khrushchev announcement overshadowed Eisenhower's plans for an earlier series of meetings with British, French, and West German heads of government. These could bear importantly on his talks with Khrushchev.

U.S. officials said details of the newly announced travels must be worked out. But they spoke in terms of Eisenhower's attending a Western Big Three summit meeting in Paris, plus talking separately with the British and French chiefs and with Germany's Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

Eisenhower was expected to go to Paris in the latter part of August, perhaps around mid-month. No date has been fixed for Eisenhower's own later visit to the Soviet Union.

From the standpoint of diplomatic troubleshooting, Eisenhower's trip to Western Europe shaped up as a picnic compared with the tough task of dealing with the Russians on East-West issues. Eisenhower will be returning to the area where he served many years as an international military commander. The Allies, despite some differences, see eye to eye on most problems.

The largest exception in this harmony scene is the towering figure of French President Charles de Gaulle, whose ideas about France's destiny have caused concern in the Western camp.

De Gaulle has demanded a voice for France in the use of atomic weapons, has withdrawn the French Mediterranean Fleet from NATO combat command, and has embarked on a controversial campaign to quell the Algerian insurrection.

Eisenhower has not met with De Gaulle since he took office. Britain's Prime Minister Harold Macmillan and Adenauer both have been to Washington this year. But the nationalistic Frenchman has brushed aside invitations to visit.

Needs More

SNOW HILL (AP) — The Greene County Board of Education says it needs more information before it can decide whether to approve applications of five Negroes seeking admission to white schools.

The board scheduled a meeting for Aug. 14 to give further consideration to the transfer requests.

Two of its attorneys, at a meeting Monday, requested the additional information from parents of the students. K. A. Pittman asked that evidence relative to distances between home and school be supplied. He also asked for scholastic records.

Arrests Made, Stills Captured

Pitt County ABC officers and Federal ATU agents destroyed two 55-gallon stills and a quantity of illegal booze in Pactolus Township last night and arrested two Negroes on charges of operating the plant.

According to Pitt ABC Chief J. M. Ward, the officers discovered the still, located near the Sticks Road in Pactolus Township, early yesterday and found 16 gallons of non-tax-paid whiskey hidden on the road that led to the plant.

Ward said officers then kept watch on the distillery and the booze until about 7 p.m. yesterday when two Negro men were observed loading the 16 gallons of liquor onto a mule-drawn cart. Both were taken into custody.

The two Negroes were identified as Hubert Pitt, 38, of Route 3, Washington, and Annias Moore, 37, of 415 Jones St., Williamston. Both were given hearings before U.S. Commissioner W. M. Tetterton of Williamston, and released under $500 bond each for appearance at the October term of Federal Court in Washington.

Ward said the two 55-gallon stills appeared to have been operated Sunday or Sunday night. The stills along with the 55-gallon cooler with copper condenser, 400 gallons of mash and the 60 gallon drum-type boiler were all destroyed with dynamite.

Ward added the unit was fired by wood.

Participating in the raid were Ward and Walter Taylor of the Pitt office and Paul Underwood, Jim Saunders, and Don Alphin of the ATU office in New Bern.

Youth Saws Way Out Of Prison

A 19-year-old youth with six months left to serve on a two and one-half year sentence for escape, forcible entry, and trespassing was escaped from the Pitt County Prison Camp yesterday by cutting his way through the bars on the windows with a hacksaw blade.

According to Capt. L. F. Dail, superintendent of the camp, the youth, Larry Baker, sawed through the barred windows sometime between 6:30 and 8:00 a.m. Dail added someone had given the boy the hacksaw blade but he did not know who. However, an investigation has been launched to find out.

Dail said the youth is five feet, six inches tall and weighs 121 pounds, with blond, crew-cut hair and blue eyes. He was wearing brown prison clothes. Anyone seen answering that description, Dail said, should be reported to prison officials.

The youth was sentenced from Harnett County.

Two long-term prisoners, George Brown of Kinston and Edward Harmon, a Virginia native, who escaped late Friday from a Pitt road gang near Ayden, have not been apprehended yet, Dail said.

According to the superintendent, the guard shot at the escaping convicts and believes he hit one. Both men are believed to still be in the area.

Greenville Man Shot By Wife After Argument

A 35-year-old Negro man allegedly was shot in the arm yesterday by his 19-year-old wife following an argument after he was said to have stayed out two days and night without returning home.

According to investigating officers, Alex Waller was shot by his wife, Mary Alice Waller, at their home at 200 B. Cadillac St. yesterday when he returned home and the two started arguing.

Police, who quoted Waller as saying, "It was all my fault," charged Mrs. Waller with discharging firearms in the city limits after Waller said he did not wish to sign a warrant against his wife for inflicting the minor wound.

The weapon was identified as being a .25 caliber automatic.

Grifton Man Held In Death

Pitt County Coroner E. W. Harvey said today an autopsy performed on a Grifton man found dead in his apartment about 9:15 a.m. Sunday showed he died of a brain hemorrhage which was caused by a fractured skull.

Earl Dennis, 38-year-old laborer, was found dead in his apartment by a friend Sunday when the friend went to the house and tried to awaken him.

According to Police Chief Ralph Coley of Grifton, Lenoir County sheriff's deputies are holding a Grifton man, James Braxton, 43, in connection with the death.

Coley said Dennis is alleged to have been drinking and been in a fight with Braxton Saturday night at Braxton's store near Grifton in Lenoir County.

Coley added Dennis was taken home following the fight by friends and put to bed. As the injury which caused Dennis' death occurred in Lenoir County, Lenoir officers are investigating the death.

A spokesman for the Lenoir County Sheriff's Department said investigation of the death was continuing and no charges have been placed against Braxton even though he is being held.

Dennis lived alone in the Pitt Street apartment.

Family Away As House Burns

A frame house on the Ramhorn Road just off the Pactolus Highway near Greenville was destroyed by flames late Sunday night while the owner, H. B. House Jr., and his family were at a doctor's office in Bethel.

According to witnesses, the fire had engulfed the dwelling by the time the flames were discovered and no fire department was called because the house was too far gone to be saved.

None of the possessions were saved and he, his wife and two children are now living with relatives.

Origin of the fire was not determined but it is believed to have started from faulty wiring.

Border Belt Sales Average Hits $60.22

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Markets of the South Carolina-Border North Carolina Belt registered a general average of $60.22 per 100 pounds Monday on flue-cured tobacco sales of 6,295,396 pounds.

The Federal-State Market News Service reported the average was the highest yet for the first three days of sales on the belt.

Some officials of the North Carolina Department of Agriculture have expressed disappointment over prices paid for flue-cured tobacco on the Carolinas Border Belt.

The average for the first two days of the season last Thursday and Friday was $58.96, a decline from the $59.45 for the same period last season.

Prices were about the same Monday as on the first two days. Meanwhile, a predicted decline in yield is expected to cut into North Carolina's tobacco income this year. Income this season is expected to range between 400 and 410 million dollars. Last year, farmers received about 427 million dollars.

W. P. Hedrick of the N.C. Dept. of Agriculture predicted that the big Eastern Belt would bear the heaviest loss. He predicted slight increases for the North Carolina Middle Belt and North Carolina Virginia Old Belt, and stable conditions for the Carolinas Border Belt.

Hedrick estimated that poundage in the Eastern Belt this season will be down about 200 pounds at 1,600 pounds an acre compared with 1,825 last year.

Hedrick said Eastern Belt farmers will gross about 200 million dollars this year, compared with the $224,300,000 crop last year.

He expressed optimism about the prospects for the Middle and Old Belts.

Hedrick was among those expressing disappointment over the prices the first two days on the Border Belt.

Here are Border Belt auction bid averages on a limited number of grades Monday, with changes from Friday:

Cutters — Low lemon $70, unchanged; low orange, $71, up $1.

Lugs — Good lemon $70, unchanged; fair lemon $68, unchanged; good orange $70, unchanged; fair orange $68, up $1.

Primings—Good lemon $68, unchanged; fair lemon $65, unchanged; low lemon $55, down $1; good orange $67, unchanged; fair orange $63, up $1; low orange $50, unchanged.

Nondescript — Best thin body $33, up $1.

Group Protests Ike's Invitation

LOS ANGELES (AP) — President Eisenhower's invitation for Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev to visit the United States has drawn a protest from the president of the American Council of Christian Churches.

Dr. Clyde J. Kennedy, who also is pastor of the Bible Presbyterian Church, Tacoma, Wash., said Monday, "It is morally wrong to extend an invitation to the bloody butcher of Hungary, who has announced his intention to bury us. Nothing but harm can come to our nation by welcoming and honoring this international Dillinger."

The ministers reason that they now can end their conference with Gromyko in failure and leave the Berlin crisis in a state of suspension, without the prospect of an imminent Soviet move against West Berlin which would create a new danger of war. The Allies figure Khrushchev will want a good atmosphere for his American trip and will avoid unfriendly acts and belligerent talk.

The French government reacted slowly and with apparent coolness to the announcement of the impending visit exchange. But informants said the French government welcomed it as a means of buying time and stalling off the Soviet threat to Berlin.

The last session of the foreign ministers' conference is set for Wednesday. It is expected that the conference will end with a brief communique announcing agreement to disagree and declaring the meeting in recess. The next round of talks may come at New York in mid-September.

The ministers are expected to be on hand for the opening days of the annual U.N. General Assembly.

The possibility that Gromyko might make some dramatic, last-minute proposal for a limited Berlin deal was not ruled out entirely. But in a luncheon talk with Lloyd Monday, he reportedly gave no sign of any such intention.

He did, however, indicate that a recess of the present talks would be agreeable to him. There had been some fear he might try to keep the conference in session or veto a recess in an effort to force Herter to take full responsibility for a breakoff.

Allies Assured They Will Be Informed On Talks

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
GENEVA (AP) — The United States has assured its chief Western Allies it will inform them fully of developments in the talks between President Eisenhower and Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev and will consult them on specific agreements which may be proposed.

Eisenhower officials say, it is determined not to give Khrushchev any opening for a wedge between the United States and other countries in the Western Alliance.

Informed officials said the President, in his European swing before he meets Khrushchev, will assure British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, French President Charles de Gaulle, and West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer that no deals will be made behind their backs.

He also wants to get their ideas about problems he and Khrushchev may take up and their suggestions for improving East-West relations.

Secretary of State Christian A. Herter, British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd, and French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville are reported to have agreed that, in view of their deadlock with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko over Berlin, the Eisenhower-Khrushchev talks are highly desirable.

The ministers reason that they now can end their conference with Gromyko in failure and leave the Berlin crisis in a state of suspension, without the prospect of an imminent Soviet move against West Berlin which would create a new danger of war. The Allies figure Khrushchev will want a good atmosphere for his American trip and will avoid unfriendly acts and belligerent talk.

The French government reacted slowly and with apparent coolness

Moscow Model Sews Her Own

OFF TO THE FAIR . . . Mary Whelchel, American model in Moscow, wears a shirt dress in sheer knit.

TRAVEL SUIT . . . Mary chose Glen plaid non-crush fabric for the trip, with stitched pleated skirt.

SIGHTSEEING . . . Beige jersey suit has hooded leopard-print chiffon blouse and extra chiffon skirt.

AP Newsfeatures

IT PAYS for even a model to sew her own clothes, says charming, silver-haired Mary Whelchel, who is modeling the "mature" fashions at the American Exhibition in Moscow. So she took to her sewing machine to turn out an eight-outfit wardrobe for her trip abroad.

Mary, who has been modeling only a little over a year, has achieved wide recognition as a model for "older woman" home-sewing patterns designed by Vogue. Born in Chickamauga, Ga., she attended Chattanooga University in Tennessee and studied fashion design in New York.

Her personal wardrobe for the Moscow trip was selected for easy packability, lightness and versatility. She chose a basic color scheme of black and white, to simplify the problem of accessories. After consultation at her local sewing center, she chose a black-and-white Glen plaid silk-and-viscose fabric, virtually wrinkle-proof, for her travel suit, and made it with two skirts—a pleated one to wear on the plane, a straight one to wear on arrival.

Other items in the wardrobe include: a beige knit suit with hooded blouse of leopard-printed chiffon, and an extra matching pleated skirt of the leopard print, to team with the blouse for an afternoon dress; a third suit of white and black sharkskin, with dotted silk blouse; a dressy shirtwaist dress of shimmering, silvery sheer knit; a black silk jersey dinner dress; an olive green evening coat with matching chiffon dress.

To other women planning a trip she advises: select patterns with simple lines and fabrics that won't wilt in a suitcase. Pleated skirts of crease-resistant fabric are comfortable for traveling and won't muss if pleats are stitched in place. Avoid fussy lines, fussy prints and too much color. And to save money, sew your own.

Ike-Khrushchev Visits Offer Hope

The exchange of visits between President Eisenhower and Soviet Premier Khrushchev has abruptly put relationships between the two nations in a new light.

Coming just prior to the complete breakdown of the Geneva Conference in which foreign ministers of East and West have sought unsuccessfully to reach a solution to the Berlin crisis, the reciprocal visits of the two world leaders sets the stage for a dramatic new chapter in East-West relations. While the visits will include only "unofficial" talks between President Eisenhower and Premier Khrushchev, they will be tantamount to a two-way summit conference. Unless they explode into unexpected hostile visits, they certainly will lead to an official summit conference between top officials of East and West.

What does this mean in terms of world tension, hopes for a more stable peace and a meeting of minds between the Soviet Union and the Western Allies?

It is the beginning of a new era of the "peaceful co-existence" that has been talked so frequently in recent years? Does it mark the beginning of an extended period of good relationships without the recurrence of crises several times a year throughout the globe?

Or is this merely another lull, the calm before a storm which is brewing on the world scene and will break as soon as the West becomes drowsy in a false sense of security?

From the standpoint of receiving first-hand information and impressions, the exchange of visits between President Eisenhower and Premier Khrushchev will be of immense value. Each will get a look at the other country and an opportunity to evaluate for himself conditions and the feeling of the people. At the same time the visits will afford a natural occasion for the unleashing of propaganda campaigns by both nations to be absorbed by other people throughout the world.

Reaction to the visits outside either the United States or the Soviet Union will be as important to future world events as the reaction within the two nations.

For all the unanswered questions which still surround this exchange of visits, the balance appears to tilt in favor of better relations between East and West after the visits. At least the United States and the Soviet Union have reached the point where their top officials can again sit across the table from one another and talk things over. For all the charges and counter-charges which have been exchanged between the United States and the Soviet Union in recent years, each considers it safe and wise for its head of government to visit the other nation.

This is at least an encouraging change from the situation which has existed most of the period since World War II.

Local Effort Means Most To Industry

Those who know most about the complicated business of bringing about industrial development in an area have long insisted that what is done locally to attract an industry is far more important than what is done at any other level in the process.

If the people of a community are not sold on industrial development, they can't expect to sell prospects on the idea of locating in the community. If local people can't sell their community to a prospect, then no "outsider" can do the job either.

Some 276 New Bern business men have taken a positive approach to this matter of doing something on the local level to attract and hold industrial prospects. They have banded together and raised $400,000 to be used for purchasing business and industrial property and erecting buildings suitable for industries that want to locate in or near New Bern. These business men are not planning to give away the land or buildings, but rather to make sure what prospective industries want and need will be available in that community.

Nothing quite as spectacular as the $400,000 venture at New Bern has been done in Pitt County, but several communities of the county at present are in the process of following a similar plan to attract industry. They are seeing to it that the lack of adequate sites and buildings does not become a stumbling block to an industry settling in their community.

The greater effort put forth on the local level in Pitt County in behalf of economic development, the greater results we may expect. The time has long since passed when a community could sit by and ride the coattails of its aggressive neighbor.

What is done in Pitt County by local citizens in an effort to develop industry will account for a great deal more than all the work done in behalf of this or any other section of North Carolina by the Department of Conservation and Development or other state agencies.

Outsiders can send us prospects, but it is up to the local people to sell the prospects on the community.

Ike Prefers 19th Century Methods

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower's ideas on diplomacy go back to the 19th century. That explains in part his lack of eagerness for a summit conference and the great free-rein he gave his late secretary of state, John Foster Dulles.

Some of his views, not stated publicly, can be given here on excellent authority. Others he has expressed at his news conferences. His ideas are in the numbered paragraphs below.

1. He does not like the modern development of diplomacy—summit conferences—and considers it a step backward for the heads of state to spend their time on work that belongs to specialists, like foreign ministers.

Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev is the advocate of summit conferences. Now British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan backs the idea. Khrushchev considers foreign ministers messenger boys and says only the heavyweights can get things done.

2. Eisenhower prefers seeing foreign ministers enjoy the exercise of the great authority given them in the 19th century. He says their governments normally try to establish limits within which they can negotiate.

Dulles, who ran American foreign affairs like a one-man show, was given a freer hand by Eisenhower than any American Secretary of State enjoyed in this century. But he insisted that Eisenhower approve every move before he made it.

3. Eisenhower considers the congress of Vienna in 1814-15, called to reorganize Europe, after the downfall of Napoleon, an example of foreign ministers' exercising the ultimate in authority, both in negotiating and in making agreements.

Some historians, judging from their appraisal of the Congress of Vienna, might think Eisenhower an unfortunate example of what foreign ministers can do when they have the ultimate in authority.

4. He has cited as an example of what he doesn't like about summit conferences the 1807 meeting between Napoleon and Czar Alexander I of Russia on a raft in the River Niemen near Tilsit.

That was a meeting between a bamboozler, Napoleon, and a half-baked mystic, Alexander, who at first admired each other, talked of dividing the world up between them, and then would up fighting each other.

Khrushchev has been trying for more than a year and a half to get Eisenhower into a conference with him. At first the President was downright reluctant. Then he seemed to yield a bit.

Lately he has been saying he'd go to the summit if the foreign ministers, discussing the Berlin problem at Geneva, showed some progress. He has never said precisely what he considers progress.

There's a chance a summit meeting might make things worse instead of better. And there has been no angrier result from the first summit meeting Eisenhower had in 1955 with Khrushchev and the then Soviet Premier, Nikolai Bulganin.

These may be factors in his hesitancy about trying it again. But the memory of the meeting between Napoleon and Alexander seems to be high in his wariness about a second summit get-together. He has referred to it repeatedly.

Napoleon had so scrambled Europe—changing governments, unseating old kings, making new ones—that after his defeat and exile the crowned heads of Europe called the Congress of Vienna to undo and redo what he had done.

The congress made Europe safe for kings for years. Frontiers were rearranged without any concern for the ordinary people involved. They didn't have any say anyway. Only the kings and their foreign ministers did.

Looking back on the work of the congress, where foreign ministers had ultimate authority, British historian George Macaulay Trevelyan said that, while the congress had given Europe peace for 40 years, it made war inevitable.

H.G. Wells went further. He called the results of the congress a "crazy tangle, an outrage on the common sense of mankind."

One thing is certain: no American Congress would ever let an American secretary of state have the kind of blank check the ministers at Vienna used. But they were not answerable to a Congress. They worked for kings.

Getting Harder To Sell It

By HENRY HOWARD

Label Proves Effective

The other day we came across an interesting item in a nearby hospital that may be worth passing along.

There was a huge water jug in the hospital's laboratory with a curiously marked label on it. The size of the jug was impressive to say the least. Must have been about a 20-gallon thing.

Contents of this jug looked, for the world, like clear water, so the lab technician was asked: "Why you got that label on that big jug."

Patiently, he explains that he has considerable difficulty keeping "this" property available when he needs it. He says, "Every time I turn around somebody has made off with the very thing I need for a test." And, sure enough, while we were talking, some employee or other had robbed the test tube rack and about five of his "favorites" were missing.

"By Golly," he says, "they'll steal you blind if you don't watch 'em." Then, turning toward the huge jug, he points and says, "Bet nobody's gonna mess with my distilled water with THAT label on it."

As far as we were concerned, he was right. The label read: "Beware — CANCER WATER."

Other Editors Saying ... Blue Laws Again

Rocky Mount Telegram)

A Pennsylvania justice of the peace created quite a sensation the other Sunday when he roamed around passing out "convictions" for violations of the state's ancient Blue Laws. And the Pennsylvania House of Representatives is now considering a Senate-passed bill drastically increasing the fine for violating the state's Blue Laws. Counties in neighboring New Jersey will hold a referendum on November 3 on banning Sunday sales of certain commodities.

Six centuries old—and once thought archaic—a form of legislation generally identified as Blue Laws is having a considerable re-birth in some areas. Pennsylvania is moving to toughen its 1794 law against Sunday sales by raising the penalty from a $4 fine to $100 for the first offense and $200 for each subsequent offense. The purpose is to discourage merchants who consider the $4 fine merely an expense of doing business. Certain obvious exemptions—for example, for news vendors—are provided.

New Jersey is reviving an effort to ban Sunday sales of clothing, home and office furnishings, appliances and building materials. An almost identical law was struck down by the state Superior Court last May 8 because it applied to only 18 of the state's 21 counties.

Ocean, Cape May, and Monmouth counties had been exempted for fear that the law would have a disastrous effect on boardwalk business in resort areas. The new law provides for referendum by counties.

Historians generally apply the term "blue laws" to certain measures of extreme rigor described by the Rev. Samuel A. Peters in his A General History of Connecticut, published in London in 1781. A typical blue law of the period provided a fine of 20 shillings for an unmarried couple discovered kissing. Another allowed a father to punish a rebellious child by forcing him to work with a locked chain on his leg. And at one time Connecticut was popularly nicknamed the Blue Law State.

Popularly, the term is applied to laws of a sumptuary nature enacted in Puritan New England centering around rigid Sabbath observance. But sumptuary legislation—regulating the expenditures, apparel, and even diet of certain groups and classes—goes back to the legal codes of early fourteenth century Western Europe. A little later in the same century strict Sabbath observance laws were enacted.

The founding father brought over to this country the principle of sumptuary legislation, and Blue Laws could be found in every one of the American colonies. "The Georgia Act of 1732," Prof. Gustavus Myers points out in a special study, "was as sweeping an interdiction as any law ever passed by Puritans; it prohibited games, sports, merchandising, travel, work and almost any other activity on Sunday except church going."

Blue Laws, always difficult to enforce, became in the main dead letters not long after the American revolution, but many of the old laws remain on the statute books. The spirit is revived from time to time—witness National Prohibition. The Lord's Day Alliance continues to press for enforcement of Sabbath observance measures. Seventh Day Adventists and Jews, who in general do not recognize Sunday as their day of rest and worship, lead the opposition. But the recent agitation in Pennsylvania—where arrests have been state-wide—began two years ago when a department store owner objected to the Sunday business of a nearby discount house.

In a sense almost every state and municipality has some Sunday observance law. Witness those closing legitimate theatres, providing curfews for professional baseball games, or, as in Pennsylvania, forbidding the sale of liquor on Sunday except in clubs. Even sinful New York City curtails the legal hours during which drinks can be sold on the Sabbath.

Many businesses go on for years without ever knowing that their printer has no presses, or that their office equipment supplies has neither equipment nor warehouse. Sometimes they find out only after the subcontractor calls up with some question: "Where do we deliver the catalogs?" or "Do you really want French accents marks on your new typewriters?"

There are tens of thousands of vest-pocket corporations working today. Consumers, as well as businessmen, are their prospects. A bright salesman will offer a good price on repairing a walk, painting a house or landscaping a yard, and then sell the contract at a quick profit to a local operator.

Young Men A Problem

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—"Young men today are impossible," said Elaine Malbin, the tiny spitfire of opera.

Miss Malbin has a problem. She is young and pretty and as vibrantly alive as a violin string. She has smoldering eyes the color of autumn leaves.

She has one of the best lyric soprano voices in the land. She makes up to $75,000 a year.

But she has a problem. It is the same problem faced by millions of other career women her age—finding the right guy.

The public never thinks the feminine part of the entertainment world has many dating woes. But they do. They have plenty.

The very gifts that make them famous turn out in a way to be a reverse curse. They scare away many men.

"That's part of my trouble," said Elaine ruefully.

"Of course, it's partly my fault too. I'm afraid I can't be attracted to just an ordinary guy. I hesitate to date a man who isn't interesting. And to me the interesting men are those I feel are above me mentally, or who have achieved more."

She finds the current crop of American young men pretty dull company—even "impossible."

"Young men are too glib," she said. "They are glib about things they know nothing about—such as work. I have worked too long and too hard myself to care for glibness. I like older men because they appreciate you more, but the best ones are already taken."

Why not fall in love with someone in her own field? Miss Malbin shook her midnight mane vehemently.

"I don't find American male opera stars very sexy," she said flatly.

"I prefer businessmen and writers."

Brooklyn — born Miss Malbin started singing at 11, made her debut here at the age of 14. She wears sometimes of the exacting discipline of opera, particularly since the said it is financially far less rewarding than television or the supper club circuit.

She still practices three hours every day.

"But the hardest thing to me is that I have to live in accord with the demands of my vocal art," she said.

"It means I can't talk as much as I want to; smoke at all; or stay up late at night."

"I've worked very hard and long. I've worked and watched the world go by. Now I feel I want to see more of the world—and watch the work go by."

"I never regret what I've done, and I don't want to live to regret what I have not done. I'm very stormy, and I guess I like stormy people who are tremendous workers."

She paused, brooding. Asked if there was anything else she wanted to say, the little girl with the big fine voice smiled and said:

"Help!"

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

UNEXPECTED TREASURE

A few evenings ago I went to hear a well-known soprano. She had gone to a music school some years before to be trained in instrumental music. There she discovered—and her teachers discovered—that she had a voice. She had never suspected it before. Today she is on the way to becoming a famous singer.

How often this thing has happened. And in the case of all of us, it can with confidence be said that we have abilities tucked away in our body who made a success in a field where he or she had no idea that any success lay. An opportunity, a circumstance, sometimes even tragedy occurred and the mud of the person was turned in a new direction—and toward a new and shining light.

We need all to remind ourselves that none of what we are is not only not known to the world but is not known even to ourselves. Accordingly, we should never lose hope. Because away down in our hearts and in the center of our minds are resources we have never tapped.

Abraham Lincoln said he simply intended to go along doing his best every day and the time would come when he might be used.

There are treasures in our nature the existence of which we do not suspect. Believe in them.

Businessmen Dealing With Ghosts

By ELMER ROESSNER

"Am I dealing with a ghost?" businessmen sometimes ask today.

There are indeed many ghost companies. They have impressive names; many of them are incorporated, and while most have offices or desk space, the quiddity of most companies is carried around in someone's pocket.

Some examples will explain it: Jiggers, representing the Pan-Univers Printing Co., will solicit a job from a businessman. Jiggers is the Pan-Univers company. If he gets the bid, he will farm it out at a profit to established printers hungry for work.

Shotte represents (and is) the Outerspace Publishing Co. He solicits jobs publishing booklets, catalogs and so on. When he gets one, he hires an editor and makes a deal with a printer.

Mugg is the Ultrasonic Air-conditioning Corp. He'll contract to install air-conditioning in an office or plant, then sell the contract to an operating company.

HOW BUSINESS LEARNS Many businesses go on for years without ever knowing that their printer has no presses, or that their office equipment supplies has neither equipment nor warehouse.

Sometimes they find out only after the subcontractor calls up with some question: "Where do we deliver the catalogs?" or "Do you really want French accents marks on your new typewriters?"

There are tens of thousands of vest-pocket corporations working today. Consumers, as well as businessmen, are their prospects. A bright salesman will offer a good price on repairing a walk, painting a house or landscaping a yard, and then sell the contract at a quick profit to a local operator.

And even in the higher echelons of business, there are similar operators. One may offer to sell the X company to the Y company and, after getting a purchase agreement, hasten to make a sales agreement with the X company Commissionable, of course.

IS IT RIGHT? Are such operations legal? Basically, yes—as long as the operator does not misrepresent. He can call himself a printing company, agree to deliver printing, and then sell the contract—as long as he doesn't claim to have presses or plants.

Are they ethical? If they are intended to deceive, no matter how true each separate word is, they are unethical. Many do not misrepresent. They won't say anything about facilities unless questioned, then they may answer, "I don't own a single press or linotype machine. I have no capital investment, no union contracts, no overhead. I simply place the work where I can get the best price."

That seems honest. Furthermore, these ghost companies have won a certain amount of acceptance. Some business would rather deal with them because they can often get lower prices. An art studio, for example, with artists drawing pay but not working, will take a job at almost any price from a ghost company simply to stop its losses. But it couldn't cut prices for a regular customer because that would set a precedent.

It's accepted in other areas, too. Many authors or salesmen's books have written that when a salesman reaches certain stages of excellence, he cannot afford to work for other people. His only way of getting his true value is to work for himself, which may often mean becoming a ghost company.

New Season Will See ABC-TV Continuing Adventure Movies

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—In the coming season ABC-TV will continue the type of filmed action television programming that brought it increased audiences and dollars last season.

"The mass culture of this country is escape," says Thomas W. Moore, vice president in charge of programming for the network, in describing ABC-TV's plans.

"Action — adventure is at the moment the most effective entertainment in our medium. It will continue as long as we can't come up with something more appealing."

"The coming season will see a continuation of our programming philosophy of the past few years. The emphasis will be on action and adventure. We would have liked to add new situation comedies."

"But the successes we have had indicate it's quicker to get an audience with action adventure than to pioneer a situation comedy."

Nearly all of the network's programs in prime evening viewing time will be on film.

ABC-TV will have very few specials, compared to the other networks. Walt Disney plans three on man in relation to space, and three others will feature Bing Crosby, Pat Boone and Frank Sinatra.

An Ethiopian dollar (or thaler), which used to be par with the United States dollar now brings only 40 cents.

"We believe specials should be just that," says Moore. "A program by Crosby or Sinatra certainly constitutes a special. But it seems kind of silly to program specials just for the sake of calling them specials."

In 50 half-hour periods during prime evening viewing time, the network has scheduled 13 Westerns, 17 adventure and detections, seven varieties, and five situation comedies.

The action detection-romance concept of "77 Sunset Strip" has been expanded into two other hour programs, "Bourbon Street Beat" on Mondays at 8:30 p.m., will carry the concept into a New Orleans background.

Playhouse Fire Kills 3 Children

NAMPA, Idaho (AP) — Fire swept through a wooden playhouse here Monday and killed three small children before a neighbor could rescue them.

The victims were Mary, 4, Mark, 5, and Kathy Bryant, 6, children of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Bryant.

"I kicked in the front door, but it was too late," said Willard Bradbury, a fireman who lives next door and discovered the fire. The four-foot high playhouse was located in a corner of the family's yard. There was no immediate explanation of how the fire began.

The children's parents were at work, and a babysitter was tending three other Bryant children in the house.

background. "Hawaiian Eye" Wednesdays at 9 p.m. will carry it to Hawaii.

On Sunday nights the ABC-TV screen will bristle with action. "Maverick" at 7:30 is followed by "Lawman" and then a new Western, "The Rebel," which Moore describes as "the adventures of a Reconstruction beatnik." Then comes a new hour adventure series, "The Alaskans."

Three hour-length action programs stand back-to-back on Mondays: "Cheyenne," "Bourbon Street Beat," and the new adventures in Paradise, "concerning the skipper of a schooner in the southwest Pacific who seeks adventure."

The situation comedies returning to the network are the Gale Storm show, the Donna Reed show, "Ozzie and Harriet," "The Real McCoys," and "Leave It to Beaver."

Just Wants To Get Fourth Shot

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — The caller was concerned about Arkansas' polio epidemic.

"I want to know where I can get my fourth polio shot," he asked. "Why not go back where you got the first three," suggested Dr. E. J. Easley, assistant state health officer.

"Oh, I haven't had the first three," the man said. "I just want the fourth one. I've heard that's the best."

New Bill To Save Shores Has Powerful Support

By JOHN KAMPS

Associated Press Special Service

WASHINGTON (AP)—A bill to set up recreation areas at 10 ocean and lakeshore sites has powerful support in the Senate. The sites are in the Atlantic, Pacific, Gulf and Great Lakes areas. The SOS (Save Our Shores) bill was introduced Wednesday by Sen. James E. Murray (D-Mont.) and referred to the Interior and Insular Affairs Committee. Murray is chairman and five of the bill's 18 cosponsors are members of the committee.

When and if the measure clears the committee, Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.), a cosponsor, will be expected to get prompt Senate action. As assistant majority leader he has a hand in calling up bills.

A similar bill has been introduced in the house by Rep. John D. Dingell (D-Mich.). The measures provide for federal acquisition of 10 recreation areas, studies of 10 more, and aid to states in establishing beach parks.

Proposed for acquisition area areas at Cape Cod, Mass.; Padre Island, Tex.; Oregon Dunes, Ore. gon; Lake Michigan Dunes, Ind.; Point Reyes and Channel Islands, Calif.; Cumberland Island, Ga.; Huron Mountains, Sleeping Bear Dunes and Grand Sable Dunes, Mich.

The bills would instruct the Park Service to make studies of potential recreation areas at Fire Island, N.Y.; Cape Flattery and Leadbetter Point, Wash.; Mosquito Lagoon, Fla.; Pigeon Point, Minn.; Debidue and Kiawah Islands, S.C.; Popham - St. John, Maine; Parramoure Island, Va., and Smith Island, N.C.

The bills would authorize appropriations of 50 million dollars for acquisition of the first 10 areas and 10 million annually for help to states.

Sen. Frank Moss (D. Utah), another sponsor, said, "The development incident to our rapid increase in population and standard of living is encroaching on much of the most desirable shoreline acreage of the United States."

"This bill is the beginning of a program to conserve some of these irreplaceable areas for the public use and benefit," he added.

1928 Frosh Now Will Be '59 Grad

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Mrs. Stanley Katherine Apfelbeck started college in 1928. Next Friday she will graduate from Florida Southern College with a bachelor of science degree.

The 53-year-old grandmother eloped after her first year at Doane College, Crete, Neb., reared a family and worked part-time as a newspaper reporter.

In 1954 Mrs. Apfelbeck decided to resume work on her degree. It was back to Doane and the University of Nebraska.

Mrs. Apfelbeck dropped out of college again in 1956 when she and her husband moved to Lakeland.

Still determined to get her sheepskin, she enrolled at Florida Southern.

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP)—The dean of the University of North Carolina Law School quit the local board of education Monday night, calling its action in refusing to admit a Negro to a white school here "legally and morally indefensible."

Dr. Henry P. Brandis sought unsuccessfully to have 11-year-old Stanley Vickers transferred to white elementary schools either in Chapel Hill or nearby Carrboro.

After his motions were defeated by 42 votes, Brandis stalked from the meeting. Later, he said: "I am resigning because tonight the Chapel Hill Board of Education took action on the Vickers application which I think is both legally and morally indefensible. Therefore I do not wish to take any part in defending it."

Earlier the board adopted a policy which could lead to gradual integration beginning in 1960 in the first grade.

Under the new policy, the board would set up geographical attendance areas for all local schools. "Each such application will be considered on its merits," the board said.

Brandis and the Rev. J. R. Manley, newly elected Negro board member, were the only two favoring the motions to admit Vickers this year.

Brandis said if the Vickers case were carried to the U.S. Supreme Court, he would win admission to a white school.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Vickers, the boy's parents, were present, but did not speak to the board.

Brandis was reelected last spring to a new four-year term as a board member and was sworn in shortly before he walked from the meeting and resigned.

details of how the Saudi Arabian slave market operates. It made no bones about explaining that the slaves were by far the most profitable when sold to supplement harems.

It seems that the largest volume of the Arabian human market is the young girl segment. Teenage girls, whose appearance satisfies the princes, merchants, or whoever buys them, bring a pretty fancy price and are constantly in great demand.

Of course, these harems are not the best thing that ever happened to the campaign for birth control.

Third and last, there was a commentary provided by someone about the now-famous Bridgitte Bardot in her latest movie. Maybe we're pretty far-removed from the first two items but the third, which was described in the commentary as "not recommended for the kiddies," is pretty darn close to home.

It's a bad thing to seem old-fashioned about a thing like that, but some of the movies currently appearing on our screens are no "shot in the arm" to solution of any kind of problems we might have.

Sports Scope

Yesterday, I made a mild verbal blast on the faults that could become apparent in Little League baseball. I wrote a column earlier in the summer praising the good of the program. I can still see that good and the many potentials that it has.

It can become a "farm club" system in supplying players for our high school and college teams. It has cut down on juvenile delinquency and has become a safe place for parents to send their children. They also receive supervised instructions which aid in developing correct skills in the sport.

The 1959 season for the tots is over but in the future we should note that this is not "big league stuff" and it is unfair to treat it as such. The kids enjoy the game of baseball—with or without publicity. But we should let them play it their way.

Big Week For North Carolinians

By this coming Sunday, some North Carolina fans can say that they have had a full week of sports. It all started this weekend with an array of events on TV. Along with the major league "Game of the Week" on Saturday and Sunday came horse-racing and the final rounds of the PGA Golf Tournament.

Yesterday, it was the second All-Star clash in Los Angeles although it lacked the luster of the original one. Tonight, Tar Heel fans will be able to see the real thing at Greensboro when the best prep basketball players in North Carolina tangle in the East-West game.

Friday, it will be an early return to our popular Fall sport—football—when the East gridders match their passing game against a highly-touted running attack of the West in Greensboro.

We will be able to return to our normal mode of living this weekend with the usual Saturday and Sunday afternoon baseball game. And then we could make it an extra special week by visiting the ocean resorts and enjoying a fishing trip.

Barber Has Plenty of Following

Jerry Barber, the little man of golf, had gained the admiration of the gallery as he made his final bid for the winners circle in the PGA tournament Sunday. After leading the pack all the way until the final holes, the pressure just seemed to wear the wiry competitor down.

The way Barber faltered over the final holes indicated the need of experience in playing in major tournaments. The 134 pounder has not been on the pro trail for several years and did not finish with the poise and calmness that might have been expected of a pro constantly under pressure.

Barber did prove one thing—that the little man still owns a spot in America's fastest growing sport. He was able to drive with the best and his putting game—excluding the final two holes—was unbeatable.

For Rosburg, it was a great victory after finishing second for so many tournaments. The unknown stars dominated much of the attention in the tournament while some of the top stars such as Art Wall and Sam Snead finished way down the line of money-winners.

Gordon Hurls Graniteers To Victory

American Leaguers Take Second Tilt Carolina Dairy To Play Tonight

East Carolina Coaches To Observe All-Stars

By JOHNNY HUDSON
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina College's coaching triad will be on the road much of this week as prep All-Star coaches in both Virginia and North Carolina will be in the limelight. Coach Earl Smith, newly appointed basketball mentor, was the first to leave Greenville as he departed for Greensboro and the coaching clinic yesterday. Smith will tarry for a couple of days and attend tonight's hardwood battle between the East and West prep stars.

Smith, no doubt, will stick around to keep his interest in "Cotton" Clayton, considered the best among the prep All-Stars. According to reports, the crimson-headed star is still being approached by the larger schools in this area. Smith will also have his eyes on a couple of other prep stars as he prepares to try and rebuild a basketball powerhouse at East Carolina. Four of the five starters from last year's team were graduated, leaving quite a rebuilding job ahead.

Coach Jack Boone, also hunting for good freshman talent, was slated to leave late this afternoon for the football clinic at Greensboro. The Pirate grid coach will be around "the Gate City" until Saturday and plans to take in the East-West grid tilt Friday night.

Although scholarship help for freshmen is limited this season, Boone left with his eyes open and still hoping to land a few more.

Severals EOC prospects will be playing in the game and a couple of others who are "undecided" but rate EOC as a high choice will be in action.

Coaches Bill McDonald and Frank Madigan will return to their home state—Virginia—this weekend for the Old Dominion All-Star classic.

Halfback Marion Carroll will be the big boy that the Pirate assistant coaches will be watching. A sought-after schoolboy attraction, Carroll has indicated plans to attend East Carolina this fall.

All in all, it will be a busy week for the Pirate tutors as they put in their "last dollar's worth" before the opening of another football season.

Caps Regain First Place

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Five games were played Monday night in the torrid Carolina League and when the activity was ended, Raleigh was back in first place, one percentage point over second place Wilson.

The Caps scored two decisions over third place Durham. They completed a game suspended July 29 with a 6-4 triumph and then won the regulation game 6-2.

Wilson, meanwhile, split a twin-bill with Winston-Salem. The Tobs capped the opener 7-2 and Winston the second game 5-4.

Greensboro made a move to creep out of the league cellar with a 4-0 whitewashing of Alamance. Lefty Bill Spanswick finished up the suspended game for Raleigh and got the victory in that one.

Then he hung around and went the distance in the nine inning contest, running his record to 11-4. Mike Shannon's home run in the eighth broke a 4-4 tie and gave Winston the decision and knocked Wilson out of first place. Wilson won the opener with a six-run first inning.

Dick Stewart, Chunky Greensboro right-hander, gave up only five hits in recording his seventh victory of the season against eight losses.

Winston-Salem plays Wilson again tonight with Greensboro at Alamance and Raleigh moving over to Durham.

Green To Open With Red Sox

BOSTON (AP)—Pumpsie Green, once the center of a racial protest, makes his Fenway Park debut tonight.

Green, the first Negro player ever to play for Boston, was called up from Minneapolis during the Red Sox' recent road trip. Since then he has established himself as a Red Sox regular.

Pennant Races Resume In Full Force For Both Loops

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

Now that the player pension fund is rolling in crisp All-Star dollars, the athletes can turn their undivided attention to the bread and butter realities of the pennant races.

The National League struggle could be cleared up considerably in the next few days when the third-place Milwaukee Braves visit both the leading San Francisco Giants and the runner-up Los Angeles Dodgers.

The Giants, clinging to a half game lead over the Dodgers, entertain the Braves for the next three days, starting tonight. Milwaukee then moves on to the Coliseum for two big weekend games.

The two-team race in the American League in which Chicago holds a three-game edge over the Cleveland Indians, finds both clubs stepping off on long road trips.

Chicago will play 13 games at Baltimore, Washington, Detroit and Kansas City before returning home for the final visit of the Eastern teams. Cleveland will hit the same cities in a different rotation for a total of 14 consecutive road games.

Unless both the White Sox and Indians collapse completely on this journey, they should have things all to themselves the rest of the way. Baltimore and Kansas City, tied for third, are 11 games back, New York in fifth place is 12 games off the pace and Detroit in sixth trails by 13.

Both races may be won on the road this season. A look at the schedules of the top teams for the rest of the season shows that Chicago plays 29 of its remaining 52 games away, and the Indians have 29 of 30 out of town. In the NL, the Braves have 29 of 50, the Dodgers 25 of 47 and the Giants 26 of 50.

For its opener of the big series at San Francisco, Manager Fred Haney is calling on veteran Warren Spahn, a 14-game winner, to oppose young Mike McCormick who has won 10 games. It will be the Braves' first loss at young Willie McCovey, the Giants' sensational new first baseman who is hitting .500 in four games.

While the Giants and Braves are trying to cut each other's throats, the Dodgers have two games with a Cincinnati club that seems to have come alive.

As the White Sox and Indians start on their long road trips, an analysis of the standings shows it would be next to impossible for any other club to shoulder its way to the pennant.

Chicago has won 62 games with 52 to go if they play .500 ball, winning only 26 of the rest, they will have won 88 games. A similar pace by Cleveland in its last 50 games would give them 85 victories.

Clayton To Pace All-Stars In East-West Tilt

GREENSBORO (AP) — East and West all-star teams—chosen from among the top high school basketball players in the state—collide here tonight.

East Coach Bill Sweel of Washington and West Coach Melvin Ruggles of Hildebrand have a problem every coach wishes he had. With all the talent, who starts the game? Of course, all the players will see plenty of action regardless of the starting five.

The schoolboy dream teams have been working out for the past four days in preparation for tonight's game. The annual series is even at five games each.

The tilt will be televised over a 14-station hookup. The audio portion of the so-called "broadvision" telecast will be provided by a radio network.

Probably the most publicized among the top-notch players to appear in the game is Cotton Clayton of Zeb Vance, who averaged above 25 points a game for three years. The 6-3 youngster from near Henderson paced his team to the Class A state tournament twice.

He is expected to start for the East, along with Haywood Evans of Rocky Mount, Melvin Gibson of Rockingham, Larry Edens of Wilmington and Gene Jackson of St. Pauls.

Ruggles is expected to start Lacy West of Asheboro, Bill Jarman of Gastonia, Jerry Wells of Bethel, Larry Hudson of Greensboro and Tommy Burton of High Point.

Also on the West team are Phil Brintall of Bryson City, Tom Roberts of Salisbury, Mike Croce of Asheville, Danny Bowen of Northwest (Winston-Salem) and Jimmy Speaks of Copehland.

Others on the East squad are Ray Smith of Robbins, Roland Parker of Rocky Mount, Pat McDowell of Elizabeth City, Larry Ferrell of Durham Southern, Wayne Harris of Bath, and Scott Williamson of Sanford.

Reedy Branch Surges In Winterville Loop

The Winterville Baptist held on to first place in the Winterville Softball League last night as they choked off several rallies by Bethany to take a 10-6 victory.

Reedy Branch continued to climb into the standings, moving to third place with a 13-1 win over Red Oak, and Piney Grove upset Rose Hill, 16-3.

Bethany outthit the leaders 13-6 but were unable to come away with an upset win. Archie Nobles led the losers with three hits, including a triple.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The count stood all square at one apiece for the 1959 All-Star classics between the American and National League today. And back to the formal pennant races went the ballplayers.

Manager Casey Stengel's American Leaguers pinned a 5-3 defeat on Fred Haney's Nationals as a paid attendance of 54,982, fourth highest in the game's history, sat through the game in sun-baked Memorial Coliseum Monday.

The victory avenged a 5-4 setback absorbed by the Stengel men in the first All-Star game July 7 at Pittsburgh.

The game grossed $283,120 and netted, after taxes, $262,336.47.

The Pittsburgh game grossed $229,636 and netted $194,305.46. Individual honors went to catcher Yogi Berra of the Yankees, whose two-run blast off Dodger pitcher Don Drysdale put the Americans in front, 3-1, in the third inning for a lead they never relinquished.

Oddly enough, this was Yogi's 11th All-Star appearance but the first time he had hit for extra bases.

Collective honors went to the American League pitchers who throttled such sluggers as Hank Aaron, Ernie Banks, and Willie Mays.

The winning pitcher was Jerry Walker of Baltimore, 20, who just a year ago was laboring for Knoxville, Tenn. in the Class A Sally League.

Walker, inserted into the squad the afternoon before, yielded but one run and two hits in the three innings he worked.

The loser was strikeout artist Don Alzone of the Red Sox and Berra.

"This was a great day for the Italians," said Yogi, referring to the homerun by Rocky Colavito of Cleveland in the eighth inning and Malone's four bagger.

Sharing pitching honors with Walker were Early Wynn, Hoyt Wilhelm, Billy O'Dell and Cal McLish.

For the Nationals, Dodger Jim Gilliam and Frank Robinson of Cincinnati smacked homeruns.

The contest, which lasted 2 hours and 42 minutes, had its moments. One came with the introduction of the All-Stars. It was hard to say which, if either, drew the biggest hand — big Ted Williams or Stan Musial.

ROANOKE RAPIDS—Dan Gordon proved to be the complete master of the Romano club last night as the Graniteers led all the way in downing the strong host club, 3-1, in the opener of the Northeastern District Softball Tournament.

Tonight at 8:00, Carolina Dairy, defending district champion, will battle a strong Seymour Johnson outfit from Goldsboro.

The Graniteers only picked up three hits in the tight defensive battle but made the most of them and also used some alert base running to gain their first victory in the tournament.

The Greenville club broke the scoring ice in the third when they picked up two of their three hits. With two out and Mack Roebuck on second, following an early inning single, Ike Riddick lashed out a base hit to score Roebuck with the first run of the game.

In the fourth, Lloyd Nethercutt, Romano's starting pitcher, ran into trouble, walking the first two batters, and was relieved by the Roanoke Rapid club's ace, Maxie Clifford.

With Conway and Tingle on base and nobody out, Gordon hit one back to the pitcher which was error, allowing Conway to score from second. A passed ball enabled Tingle to score the third Graniteer run later in the inning.

Clifford finished the game holding the Graniteers hitless but his fourth inning error was a costly one and sent the Romano club into Wednesday night's losers bracket.

The only other hit off the fast-working Gordon came in the first when Sims beat out a single. Johnny Foell had the other Greenville hit, a single in the first.

Howard Outland was slated to pitch for the Carolina Dairy tonight as they make their debut in the double elimination tournament.

MAN WHO MISSED THE NOON

by EDMOND HAMILTON

Story by Edmond Hamilton, Author of "The Third Man" and "The Fourth Man"

CHAPTER 36

There was silence, and the Third Man rather and Clede and his three small companions went to ward them. How the four Fourth Men had come to Sharanna, Kirk Hammond could not guess.

They might have landed in a flier behind the broken pylon. Or they might well, he thought, know the ways of teleportation.

The four little figures faced the godlike crowd of their parents, the Third Men, and Rymer stared and was silent and Hammond watched from where he had stopped. So at last all of the four human species had come together on this world.

Clede's voice was soft and bitter as he spoke to the Third Men. "You are happy. You have filled Althar with war and confusion, and you think it good."

Holl Gormon spoke from among the Third Men. "Our children are come to lesson us—listen carefully, all!" He laughed scornfully and then his eyes blazed. "Dreamers, fools besotted with too much thought, it is you who shall learn now! We fathered you. Your brains were to be for our use, and now they shall be. You will serve us from now on in proper filial piety, or perish. Go back and tell your weakling people that!"

"There is no need," murmured Clede. "The minds of all are linked with ours at this moment. And we are all agreed. You are our fathers but you must not destroy us and yourselves, and all peace and thought on Althar. We must save you from that—now!"

A shade of anxiety flashed into Holl Gormon's face and he opened his mouth to shout, but before he could utter a sound it happened. Hammond felt in his mind the explosion of a mental force that seemed to rive his brain. Yet even as he staggered and cried out, he felt that it was only the fringes of that explosion that reached him, that it was directed elsewhere.

He shut his eyes and pressed his hands against them. He knew—and this was a knowledge not born of his own mind—that it was the immeasurable massed mental power of all the distant Fourth Men, channeled through Clede and his three companions, whose edge he felt.

As swiftly as it had come that violent mental explosion faded. Hammond opened his eyes and blinked dazedly.

It seemed to him that there was something odd now about the Third Men.

They no longer stood defiant and lordly. Some of them smiled vacantly. Some of them sat down in the dust and played with little bits of charred destruction. Some wept, or stumbled about whimpering like very small, lost babies.

"My God," said Rymer. "You—"

Clede turned on him and Rymer stopped as though he had been struck in the face.

"What we have done is not for your sake!" said Clede in a bitter voice. There was a cold and terrible anger in his face and it was reflected in the eyes of his companions.

"We have not blasted our father's minds," said Clede. "We have only wiped them clean—of hate and hunger, of all hope and all memory. They are infants again—mentally they are as when you birthed them, but they are our charges now, and we will care for them and teach them and perhaps make better men out of them than you did. But it was done for them and for us—not for your Vramen whose ambition for immorality brought us all to this!"

Clede added, "You have done enough harm here on Althar. We will have no Vramen or Hoomen here. Recall the ships you sent forth, and leave in them. And come here no more."

"But—" said Rymer.

Clede put out a small hand and touched the cheek of a Third Man who played babylike in the dust curiously compounded of tenderness and cruel mockery. He did not repeat his words, but he looked at Rymer steadily.

Rymer took a step backward. "Very well," he said. "We'll go."

Clede smiled. He looked up at the Star of Life, the peacock blaze of it beating of his face, catching in uncanny flashes in his eyes.

"It's an evil star," he murmured. "Men have found it twice now. They will find it again. They'll hunt for it, or the legend of it, as long as its rays hold life. Well, I think we can end all that. It should not be too hard for us to alter its gravitational field so that it draws the nebula dust in upon itself to smother it in burning dust so its rays no longer have that power. Then we shall have peace here."

He turned his back on the Vramen and stretched out his hands to the Third Man who sat beside him in the dust.

"Come," he said gently. "It is time to go home."

After that, time stopped for Hammond. He sat in the shadow of the broken pylon and looked at nothing and there was a great weariness in him. Ships landed, and Vramen came and spoke to him, and he would not answer.

Time passed and others came and spoke to him, in the voices of Iva Wilson and Quobba and Thol Orr, voices shaken and wild, telling how the Fourth Men had come to Vonn and how the Third Men there had been made like children and the Hoomen had been sent to Sharanna.

Hammond heard their voices and they were like voices in a dream, and he saw through a gray mist.

The mist lifted, finally. He was in a Vramen ship that droned through the scanner he could see quite clearly. He saw the Star. It blazed in triumphant opal glory, pouring its iridescence upon its little planet. He did not think it would blaze long. He thought that if men ever came again they would find it drowned in dust as Clede had promised, and so the long fight between Vramen and Hoomen was over. Men would no longer search for Althar, and Thavn Marden would have the quiet of eternity around her.

"Hammond—"

Quobba spoke beside him. He could see the others, Iva looking earnestly toward him, Jon Wilson sitting sunken and sad amid the wreck of his long hopes. But of them only Quobba had quite dared approach him.

"It's not the end of everything," he said. "They'll take us back to Kuum, but they way things turned out I think they'll soon let us go. You'll forget."

Quobba shuffled. "Well, maybe not. But remember, there's all space to roam, and it'll be free now that the Vramen have nothing more to hide. And you're a spaceman, one of the first of us all. That's something to hang to, Hammond."

"It is?" asked Hammond. "Was it such a good thing to conquer space? We thought it would be, back in the Twentieth Century. But was it?"

He looked out into the blind light and darkness of the universe but there was no answer there for his question. There would never be an answer, for it was not a matter of good or ill.

Man could not choose now, he had made his choice long ago when as half-man he had looked up at the stars and coveted them. He would look farther yet with desire, upon galaxies and realms beyond present thinking, and would struggle for them, falling in to many a cosmic trap like the one here, and always striving pitifully to snatch individual happiness before he died in that struggle.

It came to Hammond then that he had had the happiness which so many grasped for and missed. He had had to come far across time and space to find it and he had had it only for an hour, a day, but he had had it, and he had the memory of it, and of a sudden he was strangely content.

State Bank's new Circle Office, located in the circular building at West End Circle, is just as much a part of State Bank as the teller windows downtown. If you have an account one place, you have the same account at the other.

The Circle Office accepts deposits, cashes checks, prepares payrolls and sells cashier's and traveler's checks for both drive-in and walk-in customers. However, all loans and Trust Department activities are handled at the Main Office at Five Points.

NATO Has Served Europe For Ten Years As Sword And Shield

Editor's Note — As the North Atlantic Treaty Organization enters its second decade, just how much of a bulwark is it? Here is the first of four on-the-spot reports.

By BEM PRICE

PARIS (AP)—For 10 years now the North Atlantic Treaty Organization has been looked upon as the sword and shield of Europe.

NATO's defensive shield consists of ground troops with the task of stemming any Soviet attempt to overrun Europe quickly.

The sword is the retaliatory striking power of the West—nuclear or thermonuclear bombs delivered against the Soviet Union by manned aircraft or missiles.

U.S. Gen. Lauris Norstad, NATO's present military chief, once emphasized Europe's need for a strong defensive shield by observing that unless an aggression was soon halted, the Allies would be faced with the impossible task of separating the invaders from the invaded as targets for nuclear weapons.

At the moment, the shield appears thin and the sword, while still sharp, is losing some of its edge compared with the powerful and increasingly modern Communist forces arrayed against it.

A reporter's tour of NATO commands indicates that as matters now stand the Allies possess more than 250,000 men on the ground next to the Iron Curtain though not all would be mobile forces equipped with up-to-date arms.

The immediately available air cover for central Europe now consists of somewhere between 1,500 and 2,000 net aircraft of all types. The Allies also have a classified but apparently limited, missile counter-punch, mostly in the short range category.

This Allied force confronts a Soviet bloc in central Europe which Western sources say has 1 1/2 million men close to the borders of the free world and a 23,000-all-jet air force, most of which is concentrated in the western Soviet Union and the satellites.

In addition, the Soviets are said to be building large numbers of missile launching sites for their 700-mile range M103 missiles and their 1,500-mile T2 intermediate range missiles in the satellite areas west of the U.S.S.R.

Although written into existence April 4, 1949, military organization NATO really began Jan. 7, 1951, with the arrival of Dwight D. Eisenhower, then a five-star general, to assume command of Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers, Europe (SHAPE). The organization's assignment: to safeguard the freedom, common heritage and civilization of the signatory nations.

Upon his first inspection tour Eisenhower found only seven skinny divisions and an air force of about 400 planes, mostly piston-engine types.

But hopes were high. In November 1951 the French turned up at a NATO meeting in Rome happily pushing proposals for an international army.

Under the French plans all national forces would be organized into standard size divisions—13,000 men — and everyone would have a standard pay and but one uniform. Optimism ran high at the Rome meeting. The NATO Council even set itself a goal of 100 battle fit divisions in Europe by the end of 1954. It was claimed at the end of 1954 that NATO had 23 combat-ready divisions at hand.

A bare five months later—May 1952—found SHAPE officers, now commanded by Gen. Alfred Guenther, grumbling about the withdrawal of a French division from the shield forces to fight rebels in Algeria.

At that time Guenther had 15 divisions assigned to NATO and based in Germany—five each from France, the United Kingdom and the United States. Somehow those other eight divisions had not materialized.

What disturbed SHAPE was not so much the withdrawal of the French division but the precedent set in weakening the shield, in subordinating NATO interests to national interests.

France in 1952 had 100,000 men committed to the suppression of the Algerian revolt. Now France has 650,000 men in Algeria and the fighting continues.

Meanwhile, the technology of warfare was undergoing a steady evolution. The age of the guided missile and the battle-field rocket had arrived. Each can carry atomic warheads.

On June 6, 1959, Gen. Norstad said the Allies greatest danger might spring from weaknesses "which would invite Soviet exploitation."

Norstad told a long meeting that the weakness of NATO might start a Soviet probing operation "which might well get out of hand."

Norstad went to Washington last spring to report on NATO's military posture to the U.S. Congress. He said the 21 1-3 divisions now assigned to NATO were not enough, that he needed a minimum of 30 divisions equipped with atomic weapons and more missiles.

Whether NATO really possesses 21 1-3 combat effective divisions is open to debate.

The passing years, however, have seen some technical and logistical improvements in the military picture.

When NATO was born the aircraft detection radar operated 40 hours a week. Now the radar network scans the Iron Curtain around the clock. It still has a short range, reaching only to the Soviet border. But gaps in the network have been plugged.

Once it took SHAPE commanders eight hours to reach a subordinate command. Now a radio and telephone system provides immediate contact.

A spiderweb of supply dumps containing a 90-day stockpile of combat needs has come into being. About 2,000 miles of a projected 3,600 mile gas and oil pipeline now exists.

All these developments, however urgently needed, do not in themselves defend central Europe, which is the heart of NATO.

Capital Punishment Reduced In Canada

OTTAWA (AP)—Capital punishment has been reduced in Canada since the Conservatives came to power two years ago.

Prime Minister John Diefenbaker's Cabinet has commuted 25 of 32 death sentences since June, 1957. The previous Liberal Cabinet allowed 21 hangings and commuted 18 death sentences between 1954 and 1956.

Under Canadian criminal law, the courts must sentence anyone convicted of murder to death. But the federal Cabinet decides whether a murderer hangs or receives a life sentence instead.

TV Star Had Close Call With Clot

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Roger Smith passed unnoticed in the restaurant, though he was known by millions of movie and TV fans. I failed to recognize him myself, so changed was he.

Thirty pounds had dropped from his already slender frame, and his hair was close-cropped. But his spirits were bright, as any man's would be after returning from a brush with death.

Roger is one of the new crop of stars created by television. He plays one of the slick sleuths of the hit show, "77 Sunset Strip." He also scored as Rosalind Russell's grown-up nephew in "Auntie Mame."

Life was full for Roger. He was making money, had a happy marriage with actress Victoria Shaw, and they were blessed with two young children.

A month ago he was leaving his house for the studio. His vision was impeded by a hi-fi set he was carrying, and he stumbled over a flower planter. As he fell, his chin hit the record player and his head jarred backward. His wife rushed out to find him dazed and helpless.

He believed he was still in Chicago on a tour he had just completed. A doctor diagnosed his trouble as temporary amnesia, which he had suffered before in football at the University of Arizona. Rest was prescribed.

But he began suffering massive headaches and had to be hospitalized. This time he was said to have had strained neck ligaments, and he was placed in traction. Pain tortured him for five days, then vanished. He returned home, painted his garage and did some interviews. But the pain returned.

Now he was told he had migraine headaches and was given sedatives and tranquilizers.

"I could think about nothing but the pain," he recalled. "One night I lost the power to speak. My arm became paralyzed, then my tongue and my cheek. The pain was so great I went off my rocker. I rolled on the floor, rocking my head from side to side, trying to find some comfort."

They said Roger had a nervous breakdown and sent him to a private sanitarium. He prescribed a two-week treatment. But his wife felt he needed more help, and she brought in a psychiatrist-neurologist. He recognized Roger's trouble as physical and tested him at another hospital. The tests revealed a massive blood clot.

Five ounces of blood, discharged from veins by the impact of the fall, were drained from Roger's skull, for four days he was on the critical list; he remained paralyzed and speechless and had no will to live. His wife stayed with him constantly, trying with all her skill. For four days he was on the

On the fourth day he was on the her, and she knew he was going to be all right.

Roger is eager to get back to work as soon as he adds some hair and a few pounds.

State Wants Death For 3 Negroes

LAGRANGE, Ga. (AP)—The state will demand the death penalty for three Negroes accused of raping two white women last Saturday. Solicitor General Wright Linford said Monday.

The trio will go on trial next Monday.

A grand jury, which included one Negro, returned two indictments in the case Monday. The first charges Clifford Johnson, 32, Brannon Epps, 24, and George Alford Jr., 18, with raping one of the women. The other indictment charges Epps and Alford with raping the other victim.

Johnson and Epps are Lagrange laborers. Alford is a former soldier of Dayton, Ohio.

Police said the three Negroes had raped the women after first scaring them away from their escorts and finally snatching them from three would-be Negro protectors.

Soldier Of The Future Is 'Awesome-Looking'

WASHINGTON (AP)—The combat soldier of the future, an awesome-looking individual, was shown to a meeting of Army supporters Monday.

A briefing officer, pointing to a GI in futuristic battle dress, told the annual meeting of the Association of the United States Army, "This man is geared to the nuclear battlefield, equipped for what the Army thinks war will be like in the immediate future and from 1965 on."

The GI was a grim figure. His face was hidden behind a mask for protection against radioactive contamination. His carb consisted of contamination-resistant material and flexible body armor made of 16 layers of nylon.

Atop his head, he wore a radio helmet, already in use by the Army and designed to keep the individual soldier in constant contact with his command.

The Army added to the model's items a sample of some of the things to come in the near future, including a "jump belt."

This is a rocket device to assist soldiers in taking giant strides as they move about tomorrow's battlefields. With it, the Army said the soldier will be able to jump down cliffs, using the rockets to decelerate his drop; or leap over obstacles in apparent defiance of gravity.

He may move into battle in some type of "air car" like those already being tested by the armed forces. These vehicles use a downward directed blast of air to serve as a cushion and send them skimming across nearly any kind of terrain.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — Oils held their ground while aircrafts sold off rather sharply as the stock market underwent a moderate decline early this afternoon.

The drop in aircrafts, and also of some electronics, was ascribed by brokers to belated recognition of the chance that the exchange of visits between President Eisenhower and Soviet Premier Khrushchev may ease cold war tensions.

The immediate news Monday was no recognizable impact on the market for prominent publication since then has evidently had its effect on defense issues.

The rest of the market backed away gently from the level of its latest historic highs. Steels were narrowly mixed and motors little changed except for Chrysler which dropped a fraction.

Douglas Aircraft and Martin Co. slipped well over a point apiece. United Aircraft and General Dynamics were down about a point each.

Radio Corp. was traded heavily and down a point or more. Texas Instruments was down well over a point.

Polaroid raced ahead more than 4. Clevite jumped more than 2.

General Tire dropped about 2 and Goodrich around a point.

Caterpillar rose more than a point.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was down 50 cents to $235.30 with the industrials down $1.10, the rails down 10 cents and the utilities down 10 cents.

Government bonds were steady.

Walking Granny Might Give Up

THE DALLES, Ore. (AP)—The walking grandma from Ohio, Emma Gatewood, appeared today as if she might give up a 2,000-mile trek over the old Oregon Trail only 72 miles short of her destination.

Mrs. Gatewood, 71, Monday accepted a ride 10 miles east of here and an invitation to rest at the home of an unidentified woman from The Dalles after a brush with a welcoming committee.

Mrs. Gatewood, who declined to have any part in a civic reception planned for her at this Columbia River community 62 miles east of Portland, Ore., said she felt like a "sideshow freak."

The Gallipolis, Ohio, woman was fatigued and apparently near physical exhaustion. Her plans about continuing were uncertain.

Mrs. Gatewood left Independence, Mo., in May, headed for Portland for a look at the Oregon Centennial Exposition. She had been making as much as 30 miles a day.

Board Rescinds Former Action

An earlier action concerning a zoning law variance for the proposed construction of a house at Woodlawn and Park Dr. was rescinded by the Board of Zoning Adjustments yesterday morning.

The board took its action after it learned that restrictive covenants for the area covered the building situation.

The Board of Zoning Adjustments would have no authority to make changes in restrictive covenants.

Lubie Stocks, owner of adjoining property and local attorney, appeared before the board at yesterday's meeting.

Last week the board had approved a variance in the city's zoning law requirements for construction of a dwelling on the corner lot.

Former N. C. Legislator Indicted For Theft Of Three $20,000 Buses

RIO GRANDE CITY, Tex. (AP)—A Texas grand jury has indicted two Mexico City men and a former North Carolina legislator on charges of stealing three buses.

The indictment of grand larceny was returned Monday against Jose A. Fontecilla and Joe Castro of Mexico City, and Jack Love, vice president of the Queen City Coach Co., of Charlotte, N.C., and an ex-legislator.

Hamish Turner of the Carolina Scenic Stages Co., Spartanburg, S.C., accused the three of stealing three buses from his company. He estimated the buses to be worth $20,000 each.

Castro and Fontecilla were released on $5,000 bond each and both went to Laredo. Love has not been arrested and is believed to be in North Carolina. Officials began extradition proceedings against him.

The charges were filed last May and both Mexico City men were picked up in Roma, Tex.

Castro and Fontecilla contend they purchased the buses from Love. They said they picked them up in Laredo and took them to Mexico where they were re-sold. Turner contends Love got the buses from his company but no payment was received.

Attorneys for Fontecilla and Castro have filed suit for $7,500 each for false arrest. Magus Smith of McAllen, one of the attorneys, said he planned to "raise the amount to $100,000 each."

No hearing has been set on the false arrest suit.

County Atty. F. R. Nye Jr. said his information is that the buses were taken from a parking lot in Laredo, Tex., on a pretense of a road test.

Nye said authorities held two of the buses in Mexico City. The third is immediately across the border at Miguel Aleman.

The indictments were brought in this county because the buses crossed the border at Roma, Tex., in this county.

Fontecilla in late June said he was suing Turner for $250,000 for defamation. He said he had been accused of failing to pay for the buses. The Mexican added he had dealt only with Love and covered the purchase with what he called "irrevocable commercial letters of credit issued by the Bank of America in New York in the name of Jack Love."

Turner says he never received full payment.

A few weeks after the buses disappeared from a Laredo parking lot Turner asked Sen. Strom Thurford (D-S.C.) to see what could be done through the State Department to retrieve the buses from Mexico.

Room For More On Game Trip

About 33 boys, whose names were obtained from a list furnished by the Pitt County Orthopedic Clinic, have signified their intention of going to Washington, D. C. next Sunday to see a major league baseball game as guests of the Greenville Moose Lodge.

Civic Affairs Chairman James Harris, in announcing this at last night's meeting of the fraternal organization, said there was room for a number of other crippled boys between ages of 8 and 18 on the bus scheduled to leave early on the morning of August 9.

He suggested that interested parents, who had not been contacted, might telephone the lodge secretary to arrange inclusion of their sons on the list of those who will be going. There's room for another ten or so boys, said Harris.

A registered nurse, Mrs. Louise Schaefer, will accompany the party made up of boys from throughout Pitt County and a number of Moose members who will direct activities of the trip.

The boys will see a regularly-scheduled game between the Chicago White Sox and the Washington Senators. They are being taken to Washington as guests of the Moose.

The lodge is sponsoring a dance next Saturday night, proceeds of which, will go toward sponsoring the trip.

Tobacco Barn Blaze Destroys

FOUNTAIN—Fire destroyed a tobacco barn on the R. L. Goff farm about one and one-half miles from here around 4 a.m. Sunday.

The origin of the fire which destroyed the barn and tobacco was undetermined.

John Little, tenant on the farm, was asleep in his house at the time and a passing motorist, seeing the flames coming through the roof of the structure, blew his car horn to awaken Little who was unable to cope with the blaze.

Commission Approves Location For New Strip

STATESVILLE, N.C. (AP)—The State Highway Commission approved today the location of the Charlotte - Elkin segment of proposed Interstate 77, a route to the Midwest.

The segment, roughly following U.S. 21, will cost nearly 36 million dollars to construct.

It will start just north of Beaty's Ford Rd. in Charlotte at an intersection with Interstate 85, bypass Mooresville to the west and Statesville to the east and ending just east of Elkin.

The commission's action must be approved by the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads before the precise right-of-way can be laid out. Construction is a few years away, a commission source said.

A three-state group is deciding how Interstate 77 will run north from Elkin into Virginia, and West Virginia.

A committee representing North Carolina, Virginia and West Virginia, has been studying possible locations between Elkin and the state line. Preliminary engineering reports on a location between Charlotte and a point near Elkin also were to get commission attention.

Assistant Highway Director Cameron W. Lee, who recently returned from an interstate road meeting in Chicago, warned that the state would have to halt federal road construction unless Congress appropriates more money.

Under the federal aid formula, the states pay 10 per cent and the U.S. government 90 per cent.

Lee said some states already have held up interstate system work because of a delay in the federal payments.

Lee, Highway Director W. F. Babcock and Chairman Broughton, however, indicated there would be no immediate letup in federal aid projects.

Broughton said sufficient money is on hand for construction already begun. Babcock said he will recommend the awarding of $3,800,000 in interstate contracts from the July 28 letting.

Pitt Area Has Salk Shortage

By MARTHA PIERCE
Reflector Staff Writer

A big local demand for polio shots and the depleted supply at wholesalers has resulted in a temporary shortage of polio vaccine in this area, according to local doctors and druggists.

Several doctors contacted report that their supply of vaccine is out. One doctor reports that his supply of the vaccine is "not plentiful" but has not yet run out. Another doctor contacted says that she is limiting her supply of Salk vaccine to babies who have had no previous protection.

Some local druggists say they have been unable to get the vaccine from the wholesale or manufacturing sources. A run on the vaccine last week depleted supplies of the wholesalers in Wilson, Raleigh, Richmond, Va., and Norfolk, Va. Another drug store reports that they have some vaccine on hand but have not had a big demand for it.

"We have enough to hold us over this month," says Dr. Georgia V. Mills, Pitt County Health Officer. She says that no shortage is anticipated for the Health Department unless an epidemic spreads over the state.

Free vaccine is available at the Health Department only for children under seven years of age who cannot afford private medical care. All other persons must get their shots from private physicians, according to Dr. Mills.

The U. S. Public Health Service reports that the general shortage of vaccine has called a halt to the shipment of large quantities of vaccine out of the country.

Manufacturers cut production of the vaccine and let their supplies get low when the demand for the vaccine decreased. This was cited as the cause of the shortage by a local druggist.

One druggist feels that the shortage is more or less a local situation brought on by fright from Fort Bragg and Camp Lejeune areas. The situation is only temporary according to one druggist who says vaccine should be available in about ten days.

Only one case of paralytic polio has been reported in the county this year, and no area in the state has been declared epidemic, according to Dr. Mills.

Volume Tapering In Ga.-Fla. Mart

VALDOSTA, Ga. (AP)—There are indications that volume is tapering off in the Georgia-Florida flue-cured tobacco market.

Despite this, sales Monday were still in heavy volume and at rising prices.

The U.S. Agriculture Department said all grades of leaf averaged from $1 to $4 a hundred more than last Friday. A small amount of lugs and primings fell off from $1 to $3, mostly in the better grades.

Quality appears to be going up as tobacco companies paid $67 and $68 more frequently Monday. The practical top at most markets remained at $66.

For the first time this season a few markets cleared their floors.
