Guardsmen Withdrawn At Henderson Strike Scene

HENDERSON, N.C. (AP) — Local police and sheriff's officers resumed the job at keeping peace at the struck Harriet-Henderson Cotton Mills today.

National Guardsmen, on the scene here since May 12, were withdrawn Sunday by Gov. Hodges after weekend conferences with Henderson and Vance County officials.

Police reported that all was quiet at the opening of the mills' two plants this morning.

Adj. Gen. Capus Waynick, who talked with Hodges Thursday, said he felt the quiet which has settled over the strike scene indicated that the troops no longer were needed.

The police guarded the South Henderson mill today as non-striking employees drove to work. The sheriff's department took charge of the plant in the south part of town.

Judge Bickett's order and the activation of the Guard were prompted when increased violence followed Hodges' withdrawal of a large contingent of highway patrolmen.

The strike force, which numbered about 300 at the start but which was cut to the 20 men who left Sunday, cost the state nearly $203,000 up to the early part of August.

For about three weeks prior to their withdrawal the Guardsmen limited their activity to jeep patrols. When first called out they stood at the mill gates in force with unheated bayonets.

The strike, which began Nov. 17, became violent in February when the mills reopened on a limited basis. Replacement workers continued to sign up and the mills resumed full 24-hour operations shortly after the Guard was activated.

The Textile Workers Union of America walked out over a contract dispute on an arbitration provision. Hodges attempted to mediate a settlement last spring, but was unsuccessful.

Dynamites, rock throwing and shootings, aimed at keeping non-strikers from going to work, marked the dispute until the Guard was called out.

Eight union men including strike leader Boyd Payton, were convicted last month of plotting to cripple the mills' operation with dynamite. Their convictions and long prison terms are under appeal to the State Supreme Court.

Today's report estimated the acreage to be harvested this year at 14,991,000 acres compared with 11,849,000 last year and 21,078,000 for the ten-year average.

The yield of cotton per harvested acre was forecast at 47.5 pounds compared with 46.6 pounds last year and 329 for the ten-year average.

The production of American-Egyptian type—long staple—cotton was forecast at 71,800 bales compared with 83,600 last year and 49,700 for the ten-year average.

The acreage for harvest, the yield per acre and the production, respectively, of cotton by states included:

North Carolina 395,000 acres for harvest; 419 pounds per acre and production 345,000 bales.

South Carolina 565,000; 370 and 435,000.

In an accompanying report, the Census Bureau said 141,444 running bales from this year's crop were ginned prior to Aug. 1. This compared with 212,569 ginned to the same date last year.

The department said preliminary reports on acreage measurements in some states indicate that underplanting of cotton allotments this year was larger than estimated a month ago.

In the Carolinas, frequent July rains following a dry June promoted rapid plant growth and buildup of boll weevil infestation toward the end of the month.

Nixon Points To An Alternative

WASHINGTON (AP) — You either talk to the Russians or eventually you are going to fight them, Vice President Richard M. Nixon has told American television audiences.

"The alternative, to me, is unacceptable, not only for us, but to them, and for the world generally," Nixon said.

Nixon expressed his views Sunday on the exchange of visits by top U.S. and Soviet officials while narrating CBS and NBC telecasts of films made during his recent visit to the Soviet Union.

His opinions were in reply to the criticism of his trip and the scheduled exchange of visits by Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev and President Eisenhower are hypocritical and immoral.

Hobo Is Charged With Slaying Of Raleigh Man

RALEIGH (AP) — A Florida hobo faced a first-degree murder charge today in the rifle slaying of William Trent Ragland, 64-year-old wealthy Raleigh businessman.

Lloyd Burton Walker, 25, was arrested Sunday after a wild chase by police down a busy Raleigh boulevard. About the same time, Ragland's body was found at his secluded cabin on the edge of the city.

Police said they started the chase for Walker, who was released from the Polk Prison Camp earlier in the day, after two teenagers said their car had been stolen at gunpoint. The youths said their car collided with a Cadillac, which belonged to Ragland.

Walker was captured after a police car rammed the vehicle. He was described by officers as wild and screaming when removed from the car. Walker was taken to a hospital, then lodged in Wake County Jail after he was given a sedative.

Officers found Ragland's body when they went to inform him that his Cadillac had been in the collision. They said the cabin was a shambles and a pet dog lay nearby, also shot.

Mrs. Ruth D. Duval, who lives near Ragland's cabin in the rural Cary area, identified Walker as the man who had broken into her home earlier Sunday. She said she chased him away with a hammer.

Walker said he was a native of Texas. He gave his last address as a Leesburg, Fla. motel.

Ragland was chairman of the board of Superior Stone Co. division of the American Marietta Co. of Chicago. He organized Superior in 1939 and was its president until 1954 when his son, William Trent Ragland Jr., took over the post. Superior was merged with the Chicago firm several months ago.

Besides his widow and son, he is survived by another son, William R. Ragland, of Raleigh; a sister, Mrs. Edgar B. Neff, of Little Rock, Ark., and five grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at the Church of the Good Shepherd at 11 a.m. Tuesday.

Help Being Rushed To Blasted Oregon City

ROSEBURG, Ore. (AP)—Relief agencies sped aid to this stricken southern Oregon city today as construction workers battered down the charred remnants of blasted buildings.

At least 13 persons were killed. More than 100 were injured. Property damage in a 22-block area around the blast scene totals more than 10 million dollars.

Small Business Administration is taking applications for loans from homeowners and businessmen who can't get money from other sources.

Guard is patrolling the area to enforce the closure and prevent looting of the damaged stores and warehouses.

Preparing Attack On Old Coal Mine Fire

CARBODALE, Pa. (AP)—A three-million-dollar three-year project will start here soon to eliminate an underground mine fire that threatens to spread under the city's business district.

The fire broke out when rubbish dumped by the city into abandoned coal stripping craters in the 130-acre area started burning.

The underground fire broke out in 1946 on the west side of this northeastern Pennsylvania community.

As a precaution against the fumes, many families keep fans running in cellars and sleep with windows partly open.

Officials over the years have tried to kill the fire by drilling holes into the earth and pumping silt-bearing water into them.

The federal government plans to spend two million dollars and the state another million to dig out the fire.

Engineers feel that the earth must be ripped apart to get at the mine fire and put it out once and for all.

The mine fire has been an additional burden to the community which is trying to rebuild its economy dealt a severe blow by the decline of anthracite mining.

Crafty Speeder Meets Craftier Policeman On Job

BURLINGAME, Calif. (AP)—The speeder was crafty, but the policeman was craftier.

Patrolman Robert Quinn cited William J. McDonald, 20, for driving 45 miles an hour in a 25-mile zone. McDonald went speeding off.

Quinn, annoyed at the fast departure, pursued. McDonald pulled into a quiet residential area, parked and turned off his lights.

The officer located the car, found McDonald gone, and removed the cap from the distributor.

The driver reappeared and was trying vainly to start his car when the officer showed himself, ticket book in hand. Policeman Quinn said motorist McDonald reacted violently.

In addition to the speeding citation, McDonald was charged with: Reckless driving, running a stop sign, ignoring a police siren and red light, evading and resisting arrest and assault and battery.

Will Compromise On Ticket Issue

LOS ANGELES (AP)—California oilman Edwin W. Pauley says he is willing to compromise on his demand for 5,000 tickets to the Democratic national convention next year.

He said Sunday he will accept 3,133 seats.

The trouble is the compromise was proposed by Los Angeles Mayor Norris Poulson, a Republican who has no authority to allocate tickets.

Pouley cabled from his home in Hawaii that he will return here for a meeting Tuesday with a committee set up by Poulson to try to mediate the dispute, which has been going on for months.

Pouley, credited with soliciting the $350,000 guarantee necessary for convention expenses, feels his host committee should get the big bloc of seats.

Rush Is On To Garner On-The-Cuff Dollars

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—The rush is on to garner on-the-cuff dollars. And some of the competitors for consumer credit are causing headwagging today among the old timers.

Take the banks. On the one hand they urge you to save money—and deposit it with them. On the other hand many of them are making it easier for your wife to run up charge accounts at the stores—a lot of stores.

Take the stores. They're thinking up new switches on the old charge account. And some of the long-time all-cash holdouts are coming out with new gimmicks that let you take it home now and pay later.

It's just recognition that consumer credit plays a major role today in American life. The total is now around 46 billion dollars. Of that, 35 billion dollars are of the installment payment type. Of the rest some four billion dollars are carried as charge accounts.

This old faithful of family life is gathering new recruits and new variations.

Among the latest is Macy's, the giant New York department store which boomed for 100 years it could sell for 6 per cent less than its competitors because of its all-cash policy.

It has just come out with a charge account variation which lets it balance its books each night on a cash basis, but lets its customary pay later—some times quite a bit later by paying more.

Macy's officials say initial response was way beyond expectations.

Other variations on the old-fashioned charge account are the budget plan, which calls for a monthly payment based on the amount owed, and the open-end account, which is a fixed payment each month despite what the month's new charges may have been.

Macy's, as far back as 1914, yielded to its customer's desire to order without cash in pocket by setting up Macy's Bank. It takes customer's deposits—the total of late running as high as five million dollars—against which the customer can charge. If his deposit stays in long enough he gets 1 1/2 per cent interest at an annual rate.

The store's new plan lets customers set up a credit rating and then charge purchases. The bank pays Macy's the total of such chargings each night. But the customer has the choice of paying without cost within 10 days of billing, or paying at least one-fifth in cash and being charged by Macy's Bank 1 1/2 per cent a month service charge on the unpaid balance.

Commercial banks are out for this retail credit business. More than 200 have gone in for charge account banking this year.

A typical charge account system is that of the Chase Manhattan Bank of New York.

Merchants pay a $25 entrance fee and a service charge that varies between 6 per cent and 3 per cent a month depending on size of credit sales.

The consumer can buy at any or all of the member stores but gets just one monthly bill. There's no charge if the bill is paid within 10 days. If not, he must pay at least one-fifth in cash and is charged 1 per cent a month on the remainder.

Typical of the revolving credit plan is the one used by another New York giant, the First National City Bank.

You set up a credit rating at the bank with a fixed limit. The bank issues you specially numbered checks with which you can purchase goods from member merchants up to your total credit limit. You repay the bank along lines set up in the original contract.

Honor Postmaster For His Routing Old Superstition

INDIAN WELLS, Ariz. (AP)—The postmaster of this tiny Navajo reservation community will be honored Friday by the Post Office Department for defying a superstition as old as man himself.

He is to receive a story of death, fear and friendship that goes back to the hot afternoon of July 15.

That day, Harry Joe, a 17-year-old Navajo, was struck and killed by lightning while tending a flock of sheep near his family's hogan.

His elderly parents found his body lying under an abandoned wagon.

Joe had been struck dead by the evil spirit of lightning, they believed, and an ancient Navajo superstition came back to haunt them. They refused to go near their son's body.

Indian police also refused to touch the corpse.

"They built a fire about 50 yards from the body that night," Hukriede recalled Sunday, "but they wouldn't go near it. Next day they asked me to help."

Hukriede transported the body to the mission.

"They wanted a Christian burial for the boy," he replied, "but the missionary, Glen Davis, wasn't due back until the next day. It was pretty hot, so I sent a cou-

Adding New Incentive To America For Staying Up

By CHARLES MERCER NEW YORK (AP)—Maybe there is something to the frequently discussed "trend" among Americans to stay up later and later.

The Jack Paar Show and the late late movies are generally credited for increasing numbers of wakeful citizens after midnight.

Now the New York local outlet of NBC-TV-WRCA-TV-2 is offering an added incentive to stay up.

Beginning tonight it's presenting Dr. Joyce Brothers in a 15-minute "Consult Dr. Brothers" program following the Paar Show.

Dr. Brothers, a psychologist who won a pot of money as a TV quiz champion some time ago, has been doing a morning show for the station. Her new one will concern family problems which presumably are better discussed after the kids are asleep.

TV trade sources are betting that this late program will go network before the season's over.

Fleeting Success In Hollywood Is Shown

By BOB THOMAS HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The death of Preston Sturges gives further testimony to the fleeting nature of success in the movie jungle.

When I started on this beat 15 years ago, there was no hotter film creator than Sturges. He had filmed a string of dazzling hits: "The Great McGinty," "Sullivan's Travels," "Palm Beach Story," "The Lady Eve," "Miracle of Morgan's Creek," "Hale the Conquering Hero."

A top screen writer, he had convinced Paramount to let him direct "McGinty" by selling the studio the script for $10. The picture won him an Oscar. His success was significant. It helped convince studios to let other writers like John Huston, Delmer Daves, Robert Rossen and Joe Mankiewicz to direct.

Sturges' decline started when he left the discipline of the big-studio operation. He hooked up with another eccentric, Howard Hughes, in an independent company. Their first film was a Harold Lloyd comedy, "The Sin of Harold Diddlebock." This typified Sturges' passion for long, unusual titles.

"Diddlebock" was not a success—it was released years later as "Mad Wednesday." Sturges went on to film a period piece, "Veronica," while he and Hughes were having one of their own. Their partnership broke up and four or five other directors tried to finish the film to Hughes' satisfaction.

Sturges never recovered his spark. Darryl Zanuck hired him to pump some life into Betty Grable's sagging career. The result was "Beautiful Blonde from Bashful Bend." Satires on Westerns have never been successful, and this one was no exception.

The studios were afraid of Sturges' erratic behavior and none would hire him. He went off to Paris and gave biting interviews about contempt for the artist in Hollywood.

I saw him again a few years ago at Paramount. He was lurching alone, in contrast to the days when he held court with his staff and the corps of veteran actors he used in his films.

He had been brought back to polish the script of the Mack Sennett-Mabel Normand story, but the project never got off the ground. And so he was to end his days in bitterness against the Hollywood that had once called him master.

Now, The Long Road Back To Normal

Withdrawal of the last of the National Guardsmen from patrol of the Harrett-Henderson Cotton Mills in Henderson offers hope that the violence which flared repeatedly in connection with the bitter textile strike has permanently ended.

Since May 12 National Guardsmen had been on duty in Henderson to prevent the recurrence of violence which flared during the strike. They were sent to Henderson by Gov. Hodges only after repeated appeals from officials of Henderson and Vance County who asserted local law enforcement agencies were unable to cope with the violence.

With the Guardsmen on duty, things gradually began to return to normal in Henderson, and it is to be hoped that the withdrawal of the Guard will not bring about new flashes of violence. The final answer to this question, remains in the hands of the people of that community.

The violence in connection with the strike was harmful to the entire community of Henderson, and indeed it was detrimental to the state as a whole. It did not help the strikers or the union which represented them, and certainly it gave the community as a whole a reputation which will take years to live down.

By and large, the people of Henderson are peaceful, law abiding citizens. The violence which erupted in connection with the long and bitter textile strike obviously was the work of a relatively few people. But the work of those few caused the entire community to suffer. And as is always the case when violence is resorted to, it was harmful to everyone and beneficial to no one in the end.

Having the Guard on duty in Henderson for almost three months was costly to North Carolina taxpayers in terms of dollars. In all probability, however, the very fact that conditions necessitated calling Guardsmen to Henderson will be far more costly to the people of the state in terms of industrial prospects who will shy away from North Carolina because of the bitter labor-management dispute that took place in Henderson.

Now that the last of the Guard has been pulled out of Henderson, it is to be hoped that conditions there can in truth return to normal. It will take Vance County and the state as a whole a long time to overcome the ill effects of the dispute, but in the interest of all, it behooves every citizen devote his efforts to overcoming the ill effects left in the wake of the strike.

He Always Had Time For Greenville Kids

There are few police officers anywhere who have served their communities more devotedly or endeared themselves to more youngsters than Assistant Police Chief H. E. Wooten who retired from the Greenville Police Department recently.

It was 33 years ago that "Mr. Wooten" started pounding a beat for the Greenville Police Department. The following year he became the town's first mechanized law officer, riding a motor cycle. For years he and his motorcycle were synonymous with law and order, law enforcement and good citizenship to countless Greenville youngsters.

Many was the day he stood at a school crossing and shepherded youngsters from one side of the street to the other. And many is the man in Greenville today who remembers with fondness the motorcycle ride he received years ago from the kind man with the black boots and blue uniform.

On many corners in the residential areas of Greenville through the years, they gathered to await the daily visit of the friend who rode the noisy two-wheeled thing. Always they waved and shouted, confident of a smile and a wave as he passed. Especially did they look forward to those special days when the big man would pull to the curb, chat with them, let them climb over his big bike.

For almost three decades, the first contact with the law for many Greenville youngsters was Mr. Wooten. From him they learned to respect, not fear the law. From him they learned by association their first lessons in good citizenship.

Greenville is a better community today because Mr. Wooten, during his 34 years as a policeman, always had time for kids.

Steel Strike Brings Change

By RALPH ROBEY
So much has been written about the steel strike that every newspaper reader is pretty well informed on the issues involved. There are, however, a few points left for consideration.

First, how long can the strike last without being seriously felt by other industries? This, of course, depends on steel inventories in the hands much to be desired. We have specific information on how much steel has been produced over a given period, but nothing more than a guess as to how much of that output has been used up. By subtracting the latter from the known production we get an estimate of steel inventory.

Second, the strike is proving a boon to steel imports. For the five months through May imports regularly exceeded exports. The nature of these imports is important. By and large, items in which labor is an important element of cost are those having the most competitive advantage. This is because labor cost is lower in foreign steel companies. In products where labor costs are a relatively unimportant factor, American producers are not at such a great disadvantage.

Third, this is one of the major reasons steel companies are so insistent that they have the right to determine working rules to a greater extent than at present. This is no matter of erasing all labor's gains of the past decade, as Mr. McDonald says, but is simply to eliminate much of the feather bedding that has gradually been forced on the industry. In other words, it is a question of getting more production per dollar of wages. And to the extent this can be done, the savings can be paid in wages. That was management's offer which the union flatly rejected.

Fourth, is the matter of company profits. As compared with the second quarter of last year all companies several large profit increases. As expected, the union made the most of this. Steelworker boss, David McDonald, interpreted the profits as proving that steel companies are "rolling in wealth."

Actually the profit picture indicates nothing of the kind. For months before the strike there was a feverish rush to build steel inventories. This kept companies operating at a high rate of capacity, which meant that profits would be up. If they had not increased under such conditions, no one would even consider making a further capital investment in the industry.

Higher profits do not mean that wages can be increased by any significant amount without prices being advanced. Some few companies might adjust wages slightly without raising prices, but not the industry as a whole. The union, nevertheless, demands that the industry behave as a unit in regard to wage increases.

Finally, how long will the strike last? No one either in or out of the industry, or in or out of the union, can answer this question. In the meantime everyone is suffering: workers are losing wages; companies are losing profits plus the continuing expenditures for taxes, maintenance, etc.; government is losing tax revenues; and steel production communities are losing across the board on retail trade.

This is regrettable. But someone, sometime, had to stand up and refuse to give in to excessive union demands. The companies, therefore, deserve commendation for their courage.

Items Found In The Mail

NEW YORK (AP)—Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

The Negro Tribe in the South Pacific has one of the world's simplest marriage ceremonies. The bride and groom appear before the chief, who briskly knocks their heads together, then declares them man and wife. In civilized countries, the head-knocking usually comes after the honeymoon.

Weddings in Finland are sometimes more doleful than funerals. The bride cries throughout the ceremony—to show her grief at leaving her parents and girlhood. Do you know which ocean is the least salty? The Arctic Ocean. Don't just take our words for this. Taste and compare them yourself.

Thought for today: Comics Phil Ford and Mimi Hines point out that many movies on TV are just like furniture — they're either Early American or Old English. Skill pays off in fishing, as in any other art. Studies show that 60 per cent of the fish are caught by 10 per cent of the fishermen.

Few kids know this, but it was a schoolteacher, Lamarcus Thompson, who designed the world's first roller coaster at Coney Island in 1884. The Soviet Encyclopedia devotes 78 lines to the dean of Canterbury, known as "The Red Dean," but only eight lines to Jesus Christ. Don't lose your credit card.

Other Editors Saying Turner Is Very Right

(Kinston Free Press)
Congratulations to Representative Thomas Turner of Guilford County, who was a member of the last General Assembly.

In a talk to the Greensboro Lions Club Monday Mr. Turner is quoted as saying: "It is not a withholding tax but a holding tax." He went on to say that in his opinion the principle was wrong. He made a point that has been frequently made in these columns since the state withholding tax was first considered and that is that it's unfair to ask employers of the State to collect taxes while those who are paid for that purpose are sitting on plush cushions in Raleigh awaiting the returns.

In the first place for many employers it involves additional bookkeeping which adds to the cost. The federal withholding tax handling by employers represents, we believe, about 50 per cent of the bookkeeping responsibility. Both federal and state governments which have prescribed withholding taxes ought to pay for the bookkeeping expense, postage and clerical work necessary.

Mr. Turner pointed out that when the federal government enacted the withholding tax it cancelled three-fourths of the current year's taxes. When the state of New York enacted its withholding tax it gave the taxpayers a whole year's state taxes.

That's not so with the North Carolina plan. The withholding taxes begin, we believe, January 1, 1960. It should be borne in mind that the taxes deducted then will be for the respective payrolls for 1960. The same taxpayers will on April 15 pay the first instalment of their 1959 taxes, or if they are in position to save the interest charged they can pay the whole 1959 taxes then.

That means that they will have already had taken out of their 1960 income the first three months taxes. Mr. Turner makes a good point in this regard that it is double taxation and there is no other way to consider or describe it.

The Free Press considered the state withholding tax one of the most obnoxious enactments of any state legislature on record.

Some people never wake up until they get a terrific wallop. It is too bad that we are made in such a way that this is true. If we could just be receptive to truth as it is presented to us, the human race would be spared a great deal of anguish.

But we are otherwise constructed. Much of life's important truth we will not learn until it is fashioned into a club and we are belabored with it. Pride just will not allow us to admit that a certain course of action is reasonable and wise. The policy has to be made into a pair of brass knuckles and we have to be prostrated as the result of a terrific wallop with the first of truth wearing these knuckles.

Some people never get over their wallpops. Some lie on the ground and whimper. Others sit up and rub their heads. Still others gather themselves up and spend the rest of their lives telling you in all bitterness that there is no justice in the world.

But there are a few who learn from their wallpops. They are not holy angels; they are just plain folk like you and me. But God loves them. He has great plans for them. The whole of infinity opens before them and the hands of myriads of angels beckon them to come up higher.

Strength For Today

We must work to make harder citizens, anxious to render service rather than to get profits or security. We must not let our children become "softies." Library Is Big Asset

By ROGER BABSON
BABBON PARK, Mass. — I am a great believer in public libraries; I believe every city should support a good one. I am especially interested in the work my friend Thomas Drier is doing to encourage such libraries. Andrew Carnegie showed wisdom in selecting public libraries for his gifts. Whether, however, he would make the same choice today, we do not know. Certainly, public libraries now have great competition from radio, television, and "paper back" books.

RADIO AND TELEVISION
I would not object to these new developments if they were putting out better material. The librarian can urge readers to take out good books; but listeners to radio and television get too much of the stuff which is thrown out on the air whether good or bad. Is such material making our people softer, or harder?

I wish that cities would support their public libraries through paid advertisements in local papers. Working with the librarian, they could do much to improve their citizenry. Just think, one can get absolutely free the novels, histories, and life observations of the most prominent writers of the world; the life thoughts and life works of great teachers, preachers, scientists, bankers, merchants, manufacturers, and shopkeepers. The opportunity truly is terrific. For free material thereon, write Mr. Thomas Drier, St. Petersburg, Florida.

WHAT ARE PEOPLE READING?
We must encourage people not only to use their public libraries but to get the best reading material. In a recent trip to the Boston Public Library's periodical reading room, I found 35 per cent of the people there reading the funnies, 25 per cent reading about sports, 20 per cent accounts of murders and other crimes, 15 per cent features and ads; while only 5 per cent appeared to be reading editorials or other worthwhile material. According to ex-Governor Harrison who recently returned from Russia, a situation like this makes Mr. Khrushchev very happy.

WHAT MAKES CHARACTER
Psychologists tell us that most of what we hear and read "goes in one ear and out the other." This may be good news to educators and parents, but not to those who sponsor radio and TV programs. It is said that less than 20 per cent of the possible television viewers see any given program, while less than 1 per cent remember it or the name of the sponsor.

Although I am a great believer in intelligent advertising of all kinds (except billboards), I feel that there is a tremendous waste of money in much of the radio and television advertising. Unsound material sent out over the air undermines American character, which is the real defense of the United States.

NEEDED: MORE OPEN LIBRARIES AND MORE OPEN CHURCHES

When I was at Cape Canaveral in Florida a short time ago, I was astounded at the many billions we are spending on missiles compared with the 3 billion we are spending annually on Christian education. Furthermore, while these experimental missiles and anti-missiles are being sent up every hour of the day, comparatively few churches are open each day. The Roman Catholics set a good example in keeping their churches open; but of the 275,000 Protestant churches, only about 13,500 are registered as open every day. Those desiring detailed free information on keeping churches open should write the Open-Church Foundation at its National Headquarters in Gloucester, Mass.

America was built by church people. New England was settled by the Pilgrims and Puritans; Pennsylvania by the Quakers; Virginia by people from the Church of England. The first thing built in each new community was a church, and the next a schoolhouse. Academies and small colleges followed. Khrushchev hopes that we will kick down this ladder by which we climbed; but let us be careful not to do this.

CONCLUSION
Churches, schools, and governments must realize that we are living in a critical period. We must not let these organizations become social clubs. We must work to make harder citizens, anxious to render service rather than to get profits or security. We must not let our children become "softies." If they can no longer work in the cornfield or at the woodpile, we must give them something to take the place of these great fundamental educators.

Old Fire Engine Is Retiring To South Greenville Park

OLD TRUCK'S EQUIPMENT REMOVED . . . vehicle to be enshrined at South Greenville Park.

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector City Editor

Engine Number One is not just an ordinary fire wagon.

The old Reo Speed Wagon retired from service last week, was the work horse of the Greenville Fire Department's equipment for 19 years. It answered every call from 1933 until 1952. Then it was made the department's rural fire truck and it has made some long hauls throughout Pitt County since.

But to volunteer firemen the Reo holds particularly fond memories.

For this is one piece of fire fighting equipment which was not purchased by the city. It was bought by the volunteers themselves. They turned over the pay they should have received for fighting fires to the city to raise the money for the fire vehicle.

This was in 1933, the dark days of the Great Depression, of course, when the city just didn't have the money to purchase the badly-needed fire truck. But more than likely most of the volunteers could have used the extra money to which they are entitled, too.

In all, according to Fire Chief George Gardner, a total of $3,000 was turned over to the city. Of this amount $2,000 was to go for purchase of the truck and another $1,000 for hose. The truck was purchased but the two-and-a-half-inch hose never was.

Chief Gardner in a letter to the city manager which was read at last week's council meeting said he felt that "26 years of service has been very good for this truck with the number of miles it has been driven on rural work."

He also said he felt it would "not be economical to continue any further repairs on this unit."

That was almost an understatement. The chief listed the following ailments affecting the truck:

1. Motor using considerable oil.
2. Main drive transmission quite noisy and indicates it will be necessary to replace certain gears in this unit.
3. The mid-shift pump will not hold water due to worn seals on the pump shaft which means the replacement of seals and shaft.
4. The mid-shift transmission to the pump will not engage (caused by the bearings being worn out in the transmission being worn to such a condition that they do not stay in place for proper mesh).
5. Brakes are not satisfactory to present day driving.

5. Tires have been re-capped and have deteriorated from age. (The chief said only complete replacement of the tires would be recommended.)

6. The body of this truck is rusty and although it has been patched it is almost impossible to keep repairing the vehicle on the present basis.

"The last time work was accomplished on the pump and the engine we had much difficulty in locating parts for this 1933 Reo and it is apparent that most of these units are obsolete now," the chief said.

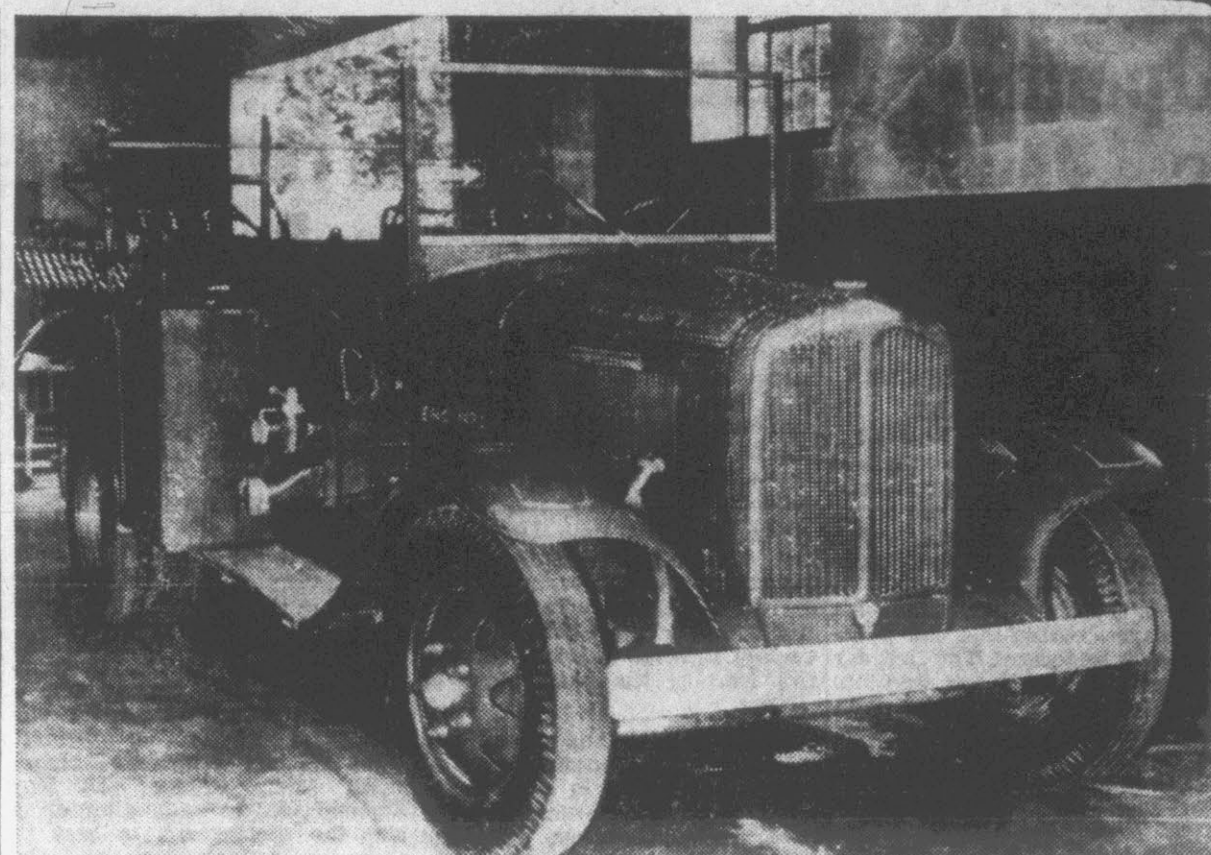

Councilmen lost no time in approving City Manager Leonard Bloxam's recommendation based on the chief's letter, that the vehicle be retired from service.

Firemen are stripping all the equipment from the proud old vehicle in preparation for installing it at South Greenville Park for Negroes where children will be allowed to play on it.

Moving parts are being removed from the vehicle to make it safe for the children.

So the once workhorse Reo is no longer a part of the fire department's equipment. Retiring of the 1933 truck leaves the department with an aerial truck, a Mack pumper and two modern high pressure trucks, which helped make the Reo obsolete, in the main fire station. In the West End Substation there is one high pressure truck and a 500-gallon trailer pumper.

There is also an ancient Stutz pumper in the substation but, though it is kept in running condition, the vehicle is almost a museum piece.

Hoover Says Khrushchev Could Bring 'Great Gift'

NEW YORK (AP) — Herbert Hoover, 85 today, says Nikita Khrushchev could bring with him to the United States the greatest gift mankind has received in 1,000 years — peace.

"But this is unlikely to be the result of this visit," the former President added.

"He could interpret his oft-repeated statement as to peaceful coexistence," Hoover said Sunday, "as eliminating all international demands, all warnings, all threats, and all conspiracies against free people."

Such a move, said Hoover, could win the Soviet premier "immortality among the leaders of all men."

But he added the possibility that Khrushchev would make such a move is remote because "the tactics of the Communists may change, but their determination to dominate the world continues."

Hoover appeared on "Meet the Press" over NBC-TV.

The forthcoming visit of the Soviet leader has hopeful possibilities, said Hoover. "It could lead to a decrease in tension that might tide us over for a period in which there may be hopes of greater steps in peace," he said. Meanwhile, he said, "We must not be lulled into any complacency. We must be alert and armed to the teeth."

Only one other former president, John Adams, celebrated more birthdays than Hoover. Adams died when he was 90.

The ruddy-faced, white-haired Hoover has a simple formula for longevity — work. He illustrates it today by spending his birthday at his desk.

He keeps six secretaries busy with his massive correspondence and activities in various organizations.

He indicated in the interview that he was confident of America's ability to meet any crisis that might occur, and to defend herself successfully if necessary. But he also saw room for improvement.

He saw need to curb "inflation, unbalanced budgets, overspending by Congress, and the growth of crime." He was outspoken on the need for improving the American educational system.

"We have one great difficulty in our competition with Russia," he said, "and I think it is greater than all others, and that is the lag in our training of the best brains we have in the United States, the creation of enough scientists and engineers to carry our productive system forward."

"The Russians are outnumbering us about five to one in those professions which we are solely dependent upon for our defense and for our progress and well-being. I think we ought to reorganize the high schools of the United States where we have a system which lacks entirely in discipline and in effective training."

Scots Failed To Glimpse Queen

BALMORAL, Scotland (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II disappointed a huge crowd of her subjects who descended on Balmoral Sunday to see their sovereign on the first Sunday since announcement that she is expecting her third child.

Elizabeth did not come to Craigmiles Church, less than half a mile from the castle. Instead she asked the Church of Scotland—Presbyterian—pastor to hold services inside the well-guarded castle.

Dutch Arrested American Youth

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands (AP)—Dutch police today arrested an American classical student accused of stealing $19,000 from a state liquor store his father manages in Seabrook, N.H.

Emory N. Eaton Jr., 26, was arrested in an Amsterdam hotel as an undesirable alien after police were informed of press reports on the alleged theft.

In Concord, N.H., Deputy Atty. Gen. Warren Waters said his government would seek Eaton's extradition.

Eaton arrived in Amsterdam Wednesday by plane from the United States.

Composer George Gershwin was 39 when he died in 1937.

Hold Youth In Waitress' Death

RALEIGH (AP) — Doctors examined the battered body of a teen-age Raleigh waitress today while her paratrooper boyfriend remained in jail.

Sgt. I. C. Harry Hugh Pope, 30, of Jackson, Mich., stopped a police patrol car early Sunday morning and showed the officers the bloody corpse of Miss Mary Lee Duncan, 19.

The body was sent to Memorial Hospital at Chapel Hill for an autopsy to determine what caused her death. Her back was scraped and raw as if it had been dragged over a rough surface. In her head was a three-inch X-shaped gash.

Pope was held in Wake County Jail on an open charge.

Pope, a member of the 82nd Airborne Division at Fort Bragg, said he and the girl, whom he had been coming to see frequently, were dancing and drinking at a nearby night spot.

Other than that, he told police, he could not remember what happened. He said he "blacked out."

A garner man, Robert J. Hamilton, told police, he saw a man dragging a girl toward the rear of an auto late Saturday night. Hamilton was leaving a drive-in theater at the time.

Sees Moderate Civil Rights Bill During Session

DURHAM (AP) — The junior senator from Wyoming predicts that Congress will pass a moderate civil rights bill during the present session.

Sen. Gale McGee (D-Wyo) said here Saturday he thought a very moderate civil rights bill will be passed because of the "fact of the national mind."

Speaking at a statewide Young Democratic Clubs rally, McGee said northern liberal Democrats are more interested in vote getting than "in helping the people of the South."

McGee criticized President Eisenhower for vetoing the housing bill, the tobacco price bill and for calling Congressional Democrats spenders.

He also criticized the president for his television speech Thursday in which he called for a tough labor law. He said it could cause another impasse on labor legislation.

Committee Votes Take Up New Civil Rights Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Judiciary Committee today took up the civil rights issue again today amid signs that leaders of both parties are hopeful of an early breakthrough.

The committee, at its meeting last week, overrode the opposition of Chairman James O. Eastland (D-Miss) and other Southerners and voted 10-5 to take a bill up for consideration.

The bill, called just a skeleton by advocates of stronger legislation, would extend the life of the civil rights commission from Sept. 9 of this year until Jan. 31, 1961.

It also would require that voting records be preserved for up to three years and be made available to the attorney general upon demand for use in investigations of alleged denial of voting rights.

Numerous proposed amendments are expected from both sides. Discussion of these could run on indefinitely, particularly if the committee should adhere to its regular schedule of meeting only once a week.

However, Sen. Everett M. Dirksen (R-Ill.), a committee member and the Senate GOP Leader, said he had been assured that at least two meetings will be held this week.

Eastland, when asked about this by a reporter, said he had no comment.

Dirksen also told newsmen that an effort would be made to limit debate on each amendment to 10 or 15 minutes to a side.

Like Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex), Dirksen has predicted that it will be possible to get a civil rights bill out of

Woman Claiming Set Underwater Swimming Mark

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP)—Pretty 24-year-old Jane Baldasare today claimed the record for underwater swimming — 14 miles without surfacing.

The mermaid, a former beauty queen and part-time model, said she planned a vacation some where near the water "but if somebody breaks my record, I'll try it again."

Mrs. Baldasare rose to the surface of Sabine Bay Sunday after 21 hours and 17 minutes in the drink.

She bettered the listed record of 13.2 miles set by her husband, Fred, at Ft. Rucker, Ala., earlier this summer. In so doing, she doubled the women's mark of 7 miles set by Ginger Stanley at Silver River, Fla., in 1931.

Mrs. Baldasare entered the water at 3:52 (CST) Saturday afternoon and emerged at 1:08 p.m. Sunday.

Mrs. Baldasare used about 30 tanks of oxygen during her stint up and down a measured one-fifth mile course.

Hunting Killer Of Three People

WESTHAMPTON, N. Y. (AP) — Uneasiness spread over Long Island today as police stepped up the search for a killer they say has struck three times—and may strike again.

Three people have been shot to death during holdups around midnight all within a week. In each case the victim was working alone, in a diner or delicatessen.

Many businesses are closing earlier since the third shooting last Friday night. A 50-year-old woman, bound and gagged, was found shot to death in the diner she owned. The cash register was empty.

All three victims were shot with a .32-caliber pistol. But police say ballistics tests show that several guns were used. Despite this, they believe the killings were the work of the same man.

The latest victim, Irene Currier, had just purchased the diner with her husband. They had saved the money working as a bartender and waitress in Manhattan.

The other two victims were Hans Hachmann, 54, who ran a delicatessen at Islip, N.Y., and Lawrence Kirchner, 53, a counter-man in an all night diner near Smithtown, N.Y. All three killings took place in a 30-mile-wide area.

Opening Week Brings Sores And Bruises

Editor's Note: This is the third in a series of articles written by Coach Jack Boone of East Carolina College.

GETTING READY FOR THE FIRST GAME

The coaches have checked and double-checked every detail and know that every minute will count. Nothing is left to chance. With only two weeks before our opening game with Presbyterian in Clinton, South Carolina, coaches and players realize that this opening day is important. The first day we practice at 10:00 a.m. and 3:00 p.m., and have a review at night from 8:00 to 10:00 p.m. The boys are sore and tired and it is difficult to keep attention. The weight chart indicated weight losses up to fifteen pounds the first day! No wonder Mr. Julian, our dietitian, complained about some of our boys drinking seven glasses of tea and four glasses of milk for supper! Since some boys are having difficulty in keeping their eyes open they are dismissed to go to their beds for a well deserved rest. Tired, yes, but with a new year, new hope has sprung up in the hearts of these boys. The hard week of work is gone and interest is really generating for that opening game.

Next Story—"The Second Week—or "The Frustrations of the Coaches' Staff.

The rest of the first week is rush-hurry. The coaches are now burning the midnight oil. Plans are being formulated for Presbyterian. Since we cannot scout Presbyterian College, this being their opening game also, all the available material and pictures have been studied, analyzed and evaluated. Coach Bill McDonald, our offensive line coach, is worried about the timing and what types of blocking will go best against P.C. Besides, his big linemen are suffering from blisters on the feet and cannot move effectively. He realizes now that his linemen have been eating too much during the summer!

Coach Frank Madigan, who coaches the centers, linebackers, and directs the over-all defensive play, is beginning to worry how to stop the powerful deceptive wing T attack of P.C. Also, he is plagued because of inability of the backs or the second line of defense usually referred to as the "containing portion of our defense" to rotate properly or fast enough. What shall we use? A five man line, or a six man line? Gosh, I wish we could put eleven men up there to stop those powerful runners of the "Blue Hose". We can still see Bobby Pate, No. 33, left halfback from P.C., running our ends. Remember how he bowled over ends, kept going over our halfbacks until he reached that little white line called the goal line. Seems like some boys like to smell that goal line and do not stop until they cross it. No wonder Coach Madigan is up-set!

Coach George Tucker, our new end coach and assistant defensive coach, is still having a hard time remembering his new boys' names. He has a group of ends who seem like they have never seen a football as they keep missing those passes! I keep reminding them from all those push-ups he's been giving them! Also, he knows the important job the ends have on defense.

Worried about time—Gosh, the first week is gone—seems like we did not get through everything we wanted to do. Most of the blisters and sore muscles are gone. Routine week of running, blocking, talking, and learning the basic plays of offense.

The first week has passed and the objective is accomplished—getting the squad in good shape (good physical condition) for the hard, rigorous contact that will follow in the weeks to come. Tomorrow is Sunday and a day of rest for the squad. They attend the Sunday School and Church of their own choice. The squad will eat together down town for supper. After that they will look for the first time at pictures of P.C., their rival and enemy. The 24 to 16 licking they took from P.C. last year now stands out pretty big. Gosh, we made a lot of mistakes in the opening game last year. With a new year, new hope has sprung up in the hearts of these boys. The hard week of work is gone and interest is really generating for that opening game.

Australia Rates As Favorites For Davis Cup

By WILL GRIMSLEY

Associated Press Sports Writer PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Harry Hopman, Australia's whip-cracking Davis Cup captain, threw down the gauntlet today to America's defenders. "Now I think we can win back the cup," said the stringy strategist from down under. "I have felt all along that if we could get past Mexico and Italy we could do it. I am very optimistic."

The Australians hurled the Italian obstacle at the German-town Cricket Club Sunday with a soggy but refreshing doubles victory.

The reigning Wimbledon champions, Neale Fraser and Roy Emerson, fought back after dropping the opening set to beat Italy's Nicola Pietrangeli and Orlando Sirola 3-6, 11-9, 6-3, 7-5.

Afterwards, Hopman announced he would quit experimenting with combinations and would stick with his winning pair—a team he considers his ace in the hole in the challenge round at Forest Hills, N.Y., Aug. 28-30.

The Aussies, 3-0 over Italy with two meaningless singles matches to be played today, now go to Brookline, Mass., for the inter-zone finals against India next week-end. But Hopman considers this one cut-and-dried.

The reigning Perry Jones of the U.S. team still hopes for a miracle in doubles but chances are he will wind up with Alex Olmedo and the slow-footed but hard-serving Barry Mackay.

GIANT TACKLE FOR TULANE—Tulane comes up this season with one of the football giants of the nation. He is Dave Painter (above), a tackle who stands 6 feet, 7 inches and weighs 235 pounds. A senior, Dave was switched from center and is showing great strength and fast speed at tackle. (AP Wirephoto)

Trades Aid Giants; Braves Nip Dodgers

By JOE REICHLER

Associated Press Sports Writer The New York Giants won the 1951 pennant because of the trades they made the year before for Eddie Stanky and Alvin Dark. They repeated in 1954 because of the trade they made the winter before for Johnny Antonelli.

If the San Francisco Giants win in 1959 it may be because of the trades they made for pitchers Jack Sanford and Sam Jones.

Sanford and Jones along with southpaw Johnny Antonelli, are chiefly responsible for the Giants' game and a half lead over Los Angeles and 2 1/2 game bulge over Milwaukee today.

Jones, who is due to pitch against the Cardinals tonight, has won 15 and saved a number of others in relief roles. Sanford now 11-9, hurled a strong five-hitter against Cincinnati Sunday as the Giants won in 10 innings, 4-3, on Orlando Cepeda's home run.

The triumph enabled the league leaders to pick up a full game on the Dodgers, who were beaten 3-7 by the Braves. Pittsburgh defeated Chicago's Cubs 5-3 in 10 innings for Elroy Face's 15th triumph without a defeat. It also was the Pirates' 15th victory in 16 overtime games this season.

Philadelphia's last game Phillies swept a doubleheader from St. Louis, 8-3 and 6-2.

Chicago's White Sox extended their American League lead to three games over Cleveland, whipping Washington twice, 4-3 and 9-0, as Baltimore was defeating the Indians 4-3. Detroit beat Boston 11-9 in the ninth.

7-3 and the New York Yankees downed Kansas City twice, 4-3 in 14 innings and 3-2 in 11 innings.

Cepeda's homer, his 23rd of the year, enabled the Giants to defeat Don Newcombe for the first time. The Reds forced the game into overtime when Jerry Lynch smacked a game-tying home run with one out in the ninth.

The Braves gave Bob Buhl an early 8-0 lead with six runs in the third and two more in the fourth. But he couldn't stand prosperity. The veteran righthander gave back all but one of the runs and finally gave way to Don McMahon in the ninth after Duke Snider's two-run homer had narrowed Milwaukee's margin to one-run. McMahon preserved Buhl's ninth victory but not before the Dodgers had sent the potential tying run to third. Don Zimmer's force play ended the game.

Joe Adcock highlighted Milwaukee's six-run rally by smashing his 14th home run with two on base. Eddie Mathews hit his 31st home run with a man on in the fourth.

Dick Groat's single in the 10th broke a 3-3 tie and gave the Pirates their second overtime victory over the Cubs in two days. Face, who relieved Vern Law in the eighth, was rewarded with his 20th straight victory since May 31, 1958.

Gene Conley and Jim Owens pitched Philadelphia to its double win over the Cards who had beaten them eight straight times. Ed Bouchee's grand slam homer iced it in the ninth.

Finsterwald Wins Cleveland Tourney

By FRITZ HOWELL

Associated Press Sports Writer CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—Dapper Dow Finsterwald, with $8,800 of Cleveland Open golf winnings in his wallet, flew home to Tequesta, Fla., today to see his wife and three youngsters.

The rest of the touring professionals headed for Detroit and the Motor City Open. Finsterwald will fly back and play there without benefit of a practice round over the unfamiliar layout.

Dow, the 1958 PGA champ from Athens, Ohio, roamed from a seventh place deadlock and a three-stroke deficit Sunday to take the $25,000 Cleveland event in a hair-raising finish. He had a closing 68, three under par for the 6,966-yard Seneca course and an eight under par total of 276.

Gene Littler, the 1953 amateur king from Singing Hills, Calif., wound up a stroke back, tied with Duke Mike Soucak, the former Duke footballer from Grossinger, N.Y.

Finsterwald, runnerup in 20 tournaments since he hit the trail in 1952, thought he was second again when he took his lone bogey on the closing hole, where he blasted a trap shot far over the green. But his challengers failed to take advantage of the lapse and Dow picked up the $3,500 top prize, a bonus of $5,000 for repeating his 1956 victory and $300 in appearance money.

For a 28-year-old whose dad wanted him to study law, Finsterwald has found golf a gold mine. Since taking the tour seriously in 1955, when he came out of the military service, he has picked up $157,713 in tournament winnings.

Salisbury Wins Archery Shoot

GREENSBORO (AP)—The champion of the North Carolina team archery shoot is Salisbury.

Salisbury's four-man team scored 5,248 points here Sunday. Second was Winston-Salem with 5,158 followed by Charlotte with 5,111 points.

Sox Continue To Win Close Ones

By JOE REICHLER

Associated Press Sports Writer Ability to win the close ones is what makes championship clubs and the Chicago White Sox have won 28 of the 33 one-run games they've played this season.

Therein lies the reason why Al Lopez' dashing White Sox are in first place in the American League, enjoying a three-game lead over runner-up Cleveland.

The White Sox swept a double-header from hapless Washington Sunday, winning the first game 4-3 on the superb relief pitching of 37-year-old Gerry Staley and adding the second game 9-0 on the shutout pitching of another 39-year-old, Early Wynn.

The New York Yankees won two uphill battles from Kansas City, 4-3 in 14 innings and 3-2 in 11 while the third place Milwaukee Braves were beating the Dodgers 8-7. Pittsburgh won its second straight overtime game from Chicago's Cubs, 5-3, in 10 innings and Philadelphia swept a double header from St. Louis 8-3 and 4-2.

Wynn became the American League's biggest winner when he blanked the Senators on three hits in the nightcap for his 15th triumph.

Chicago won the opener in the ninth. A poor throw by Roy Sievers on an easy roller allowed Jim Landis to score the winning run. Landis had singled for his third hit of the game, and advanced to second on a wild pitch by reliever Dick Hyde. Staley, third Chicago pitcher, halted a Washington rally in the fifth and pitched one-hit, runless ball thereafter to pick up his fourth victory. One of Washington's runs came on Harmon Killebrew's 35th homer of the year.

Milt Pappas, Baltimore's 20-year-old right-hander, limited the Indians to six hits for his 12th victory against five defeats. Jim Perry lost his fourth of 12 decisions.

A four-run ninth, featured by Harvey Kuenn's run-scoring single and Gus Zernial's single that drove in two more, gave Detroit's Don Mossi his 11th triumph against five defeats.

Gl McDougald's bases-loaded single in the 14th inning of the opener and Elston Howard's home run in the 11th inning of the nightcap gave the Yankees a double triumph over Kansas City and stretched their winning streak to four straight, longest since they won five in a row in June. The defeats ran the A's losing streak to six in a row.

Swim Records Fall In Meet

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Charlotte swimmers dominated the Carolina Junior Olympic swimming meet which closed here Saturday, but a strong field cracked 24 records during the two-day swims.

The Queen City captured 31 first places in 74 events. Three swimmers set two records each and three swimmers won three events each.

Bettering two records each were Penny Taliaferro of Greensboro, Karen Gill of Greensboro and Susie Ressegutte of Ft. Bragg.

Miss Taliaferro set records in the senior girls 200-meter individual medley and the senior girls 100-meter butterfly. Miss Gill had record times in the 400-meter freestyle and the 200-meter freestyle; and Miss Ressegutte set records in the junior girls 50-meter freestyle and the junior girls 100-meter individual medley.

Winning three events each were Thad Adams of Charlotte, Rayner Kandle of Aiken, S.C., and Kathy Helrich of Spartanburg, S.C.

Stead Wins Boat Race

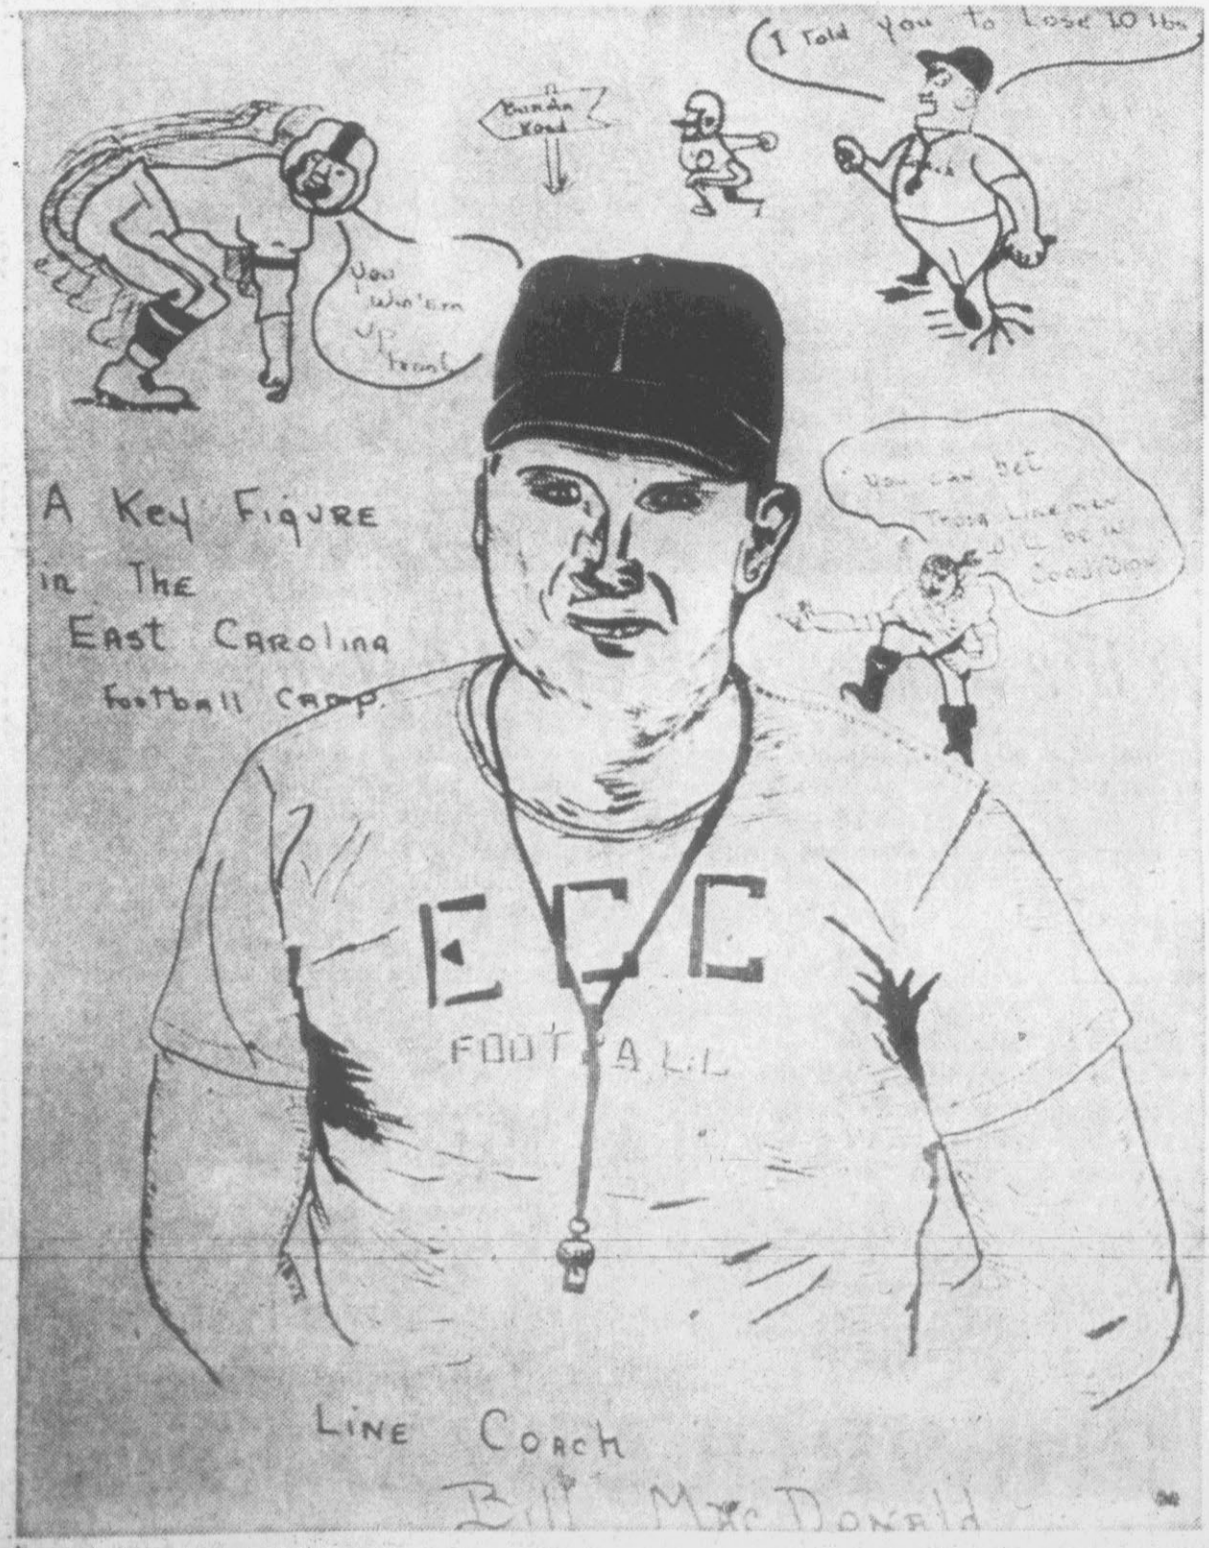

SEATTLE (AP)—Cowboy Bill Stead rode the unruly averick of Lake Mead Nev., to victory Sunday in the Gold Cup Speedboat Race and his churning wake left Seattle drenched today in sorrow.

Only one other time in 10 years has this hydroplane-happy city lost the Gold Cup—in 1956, when it moved to Detroit. The winner designates the site for the next race and William Waggoner of Phoenix, who owns the Maverick, is expected to set the defense for Lake Mead, where he bases the boat.

Stead's margin of victory over a local favorite—Bill Muncey in Miss Thriftway—was so small the unlimited hydroplane race was over for two hours before officials came up with the decision: Most of the crowd, estimated at more than 250,000, waited for the announcement.

Minor Leagues Empire Has Dwindled Steadily

First of a series on minor league baseball's crumbling empire—and what the game's biggest names think about it.

Next: What does Commissioner Fredrick think of the minors' plight?

By FRITZ HOWELL

Associated Press Sports Writer COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Minor league baseball, once a sprawling empire which reached into the nation's every nook and cranny, is toboggan-bound to no one knows where.

In the last 10 years the minors have dwindled from 59 leagues to 21 and the number of clubs has skidded from 446 to 150, only 139 of which are in the United States. Attendance in 1949 was over 41 million. Last year it fell to under 13 million.

Now the Continental League, aiming to be a third major league, is already training its sights on such rich minor league cities as Toronto, Denver, Minneapolis, St. Paul and Houston.

Since the National Assn. of Professional Baseball Leagues was founded in 1901, the game has survived wars, depressions, floods and fights with the majors. But this new attendance drop has come while the national economy has soared to record heights.

Some baseball men blame big league telecasts for the dwindling game. Others point a finger at a public apathy, huge major league bonuses to untied rookies, the farm system and working agreements. Some say leadership in both the majors and minors is wanting.

Everyone has a reason for the big decline—few have a cure. New England, where 60 teams once thrived, now has one. Thirteen states, once represented by 173 clubs, now have none. Ohio and its border states—Michigan, Indiana, Kentucky, West Virginia and Pennsylvania—once a minor loop hotbed with 211 cities in leagues, is down to 13 and 13 states now are teamless.

In the Carolinas, there are these figures: North Carolina once had 69 cities in baseball, now has 9.

Ancient Archie Ready To Fight

MONTREAL (AP)—Ancient Archie Moore tipped the scales at an even 175 pounds—the lightweight limit—today and was pronounced fit and ready for his title defense against Yvon Durelle of Baie Ste. Anne, N.B., Wednesday night.

"We'll have no excuses," said Moore's manager Jack (Doc) Kearns. "We've had plenty of time. Moore is in good shape."

Reports from Durelle's side of the gym—both fighters are training in the same East-End gym—indicate the fighting Irishman also is in top shape. The challenger weighs 176.

Durelle's trainer, Charlie Goldman, thinks the challenger has polished his boxing and won't be as open to lefts as he was in his first title go with Moore Dec. 10, 1958. In that wild brawl Moore, after being decked three times in the first round, wore Durelle down with left jabs and hooks and finally knocked him out in the 11th.

TOUGH SADDLE

By MATT STUART

© By Matt Stuart, 1959; from the Dodd, Mead & Co. novel; distributed by King Features Syndicate.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED

The only girl who ever stirred Link Asbell has become a worry to him. Her father's death left Sue Vincent with the responsibility of maintaining the Big Five ranch against rivals and outlaws. She has given her attention to little except a round of gala parties. As foreman of the ranch, Asbell has had to make all the decisions and face all the problems alone.

In making the rounds of line camps on the Big Five, Asbell found a cabin burned to the ground, and its sole occupant, Packy Lane, dead in his bunk. Convinced it was a case of murder, Link rode to Big Five headquarters to inform Sue. He had difficulty wrestling her away from a noisy party.

She was angry at his suggestion that Packy may have died as a result of the old feud of Jonas Dalmar and Bardo Sampson with Sue's father. Jonas is the father of one of Sue's suitors, Frank Dalmar, and co-owner of the Double Diamond ranch with Sampson.

Something else gave Asbell himself reason for anger. On his going to Doc Jerome to report Packy's death, he found the doctor with Sampson and Dalmar. Dalmar made no pretense of concern over happenings to either Packy or Link, and Sage Wing, a Double Diamond rider, challenged Link to fight. Asbell literally had his hands full with Sampson, Dalmar and Wingo.

CHAPTER 5

There was a light in the rear of Doctor Lemuel Jerome's cottage and when he opened the front door and ushered Link Asbell in, a woman's serene, cheerful voice called forward.

"Lemuel?"

"Yes, Addie."

"You're not alone. Do you need me?"

Doc, having set a lamp alight, glanced at Link Asbell and chuckled as he answered.

"Only if you think a cup of hot coffee might be good for the beginnings of a first-class black eye."

"Lemuel Jerome—what are you talking about?"

She came along a short hall and turned into the office, a tall, strong woman, sweet faced, kindly, and with snowy hair. At sight of Asbell, she exclaimed:

"Link! Don't tell me that old steady you have been brawling?"

Doc chuckled again.

"I doubt that brawl is exactly the right word, my dear. Something considerably stronger would be nearer the truth. I never saw certain dignities so upset—literally! Link, you grab a chair, I'm putting some compresses on that eye, else it may swell shut on you. And, Addie—the idea of some coffee still goes."

"I don't want to cause any bother, Doc," Asbell protested.

"What I got to say won't take long."

Doc waved a commanding hand.

"Never argue with a medical man when his professional instincts are aroused. That eye needs care and is going to get it. Sit down!"

The chair, decided Asbell, after taking it, was very welcome. Reaction had set in and it was good to get off his feet, to relax and let the combative tautness leak out of his muscles.

After several compresses, plus sipping cup of coffee, Doc was ready to continue other business. He pulled a chair up beside Asbell.

"All right, boy—let's have it. What's bothering you?"

Listening intently, Doc's casual attitude faded as he heard Asbell through.

"You make it pretty plain, Link, that you feel it was more than a thing of accidental chance."

"I can't help but feel that way, Doc," Asbell vowed.

Doc considered soberly. "It's the fact that he was lying on the bunk that you can't accept?"

"Along with certain others," Asbell nodded. "And sundown was when Packy ate supper, not when he went to bed."

"All that could be very true," Doc admitted. "But let's not forget that Packy was getting along in years. He could have taken sick, and so sought his bunk much earlier in the day than usual."

"And then set things afire?"

"If he'd been smoking, yes."

"Somehow I don't feel the real answer is in any of such," said Asbell. "And there are still other angles."

Doc shrugged.

"I won't say you're wrong, Link. For there are times when a man's instincts in such things are entirely reliable. So I'll go along with you. In the morning I'll drive as far as the mouth of Rosebud Canyon and meet you there."

"Thanks, Doc," Asbell got to his feet. "I'll bring along an extra saddle bronc for you. Around eight o'clock?"

"Eight o'clock it is," Doc promised.

It was after midnight when Link Asbell left town. Well toward home, shortly after crossing Burro Wash, he began meeting rigs along the road and he swung wide into the plain's deep dark to let them pass.

One of them left the smoke of Charley Tunison's aromatic cigar hanging in the chilling air.

From another echoed the rich rumble of Nels Madison's growling laughter. Then too, a couple of saddle mounts went by, one at a brisk jog, one at a lope.

With such evidence that the social affair at Big Five had broken up, Asbell, on reaching headquarters, knew speculation at the light still burning in the ranch office, which was a center room in the east wing of the ranchhouse.

Unsaddling and putting his horse away, he crossed to the office, opened the door and stepped quietly through.

Curled up in an old easy chair and half asleep was Sue Vincent. She was swathed to the chin in the folds of a blue woolen robe and sat with her feet tucked under her. She had let her hair down and brushed it until it reflected soft glints in the lamplight. As much as anything, she looked like a sleepy, somewhat tousled child.

At Asbell's entrance she blinked, yawned, and surveyed him in drowsy silence until he moved close enough to the light to disclose his bruised cheek and the darkening area around his left eye. This brought her up straight.

"Link! You've been fighting!"

He considered her for a grave moment. "That's right."

"Who with?"

"Sage Wingo."

"Sage Wingo! Why?"

He did not immediately reply, but pulled a chair up to the table and settled into it. He thumbed tobacco and papers from a shirt pocket and built a cigarette which turned out to be anything but a good one, for there was a soreness in his knuckles and stiffness in his fingers which made them clumsy and fumbling. He must, he decided wryly, have hit Wingo harder than he realized.

Cigar finally alight, he looked through the smoke at Sue Vincent.

"You should be in bed. Why aren't you?"

"I know I wouldn't be able to sleep. I keep thinking about Packy Lane. Why did you fight with Sage Wingo?"

"Put it down that I never have cared for him."

"That won't do," she said flatly.

"You're not the sort to get in a violent fight with somebody just because you don't happen to like them. What's the real reason?"

Again he peered at her through the blue, sifting smoke, silent for another short moment. He nodded.

"All right. I was looking for Do Jerome. I found him in the Imperial with Whit Henderson. Jonas Dalmar and Bardo Sampson and Sage Wingo were there, too. There was some talk. One word led to another until—well—that's it."

"You make it sound very simple and matter-of-fact. Which of course it isn't. Sage Wingo is riding boss for Dalmar & Sampson. If he fought with you while they were present, then it must have been with their consent."

Asbell's smile was faint and mirthless.

"I think you could call it so."

"I don't like it, Link," she said.

"No, I don't like it at all! I want nothing to happen that could stir up the old hates, the old quarrels. I saw enough of that sort of thing while father was alive."

Asbell shrugged.

"I don't want trouble, either—not if it's at all possible to get by without acting like a damned, scared coyote. But when the other fellow deliberately throws the rawhide at you, what are you going to do about it?"

Race For Demo Nomination Seen Tightening

WASHINGTON (AP)—The contest for the Democratic presidential nomination appears to be tightening, with indications that top contenders may be able to push some favorite sons out of the running early in 1960.

The 51st Annual Governors' Conference in San Juan, Puerto Rico, last week gave little apparent support to the aspirations of Democratic Govs. Robert B. Meyner of New Jersey and G. Mennen Williams of Michigan.

Meyner and Williams were unusually vocal in conference sessions but it was not noticeable that they made any political headway. Neither was there any outward surge of support for any of the other potential candidates.

Gov. Orville L. Freeman of Minnesota got a polite reception but no public recruits—when he sang the praises of Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn). Humphrey is billing himself these days as a sort of favorite son of the Middle West.

There was discussion, but again no burst of support, for Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo) and Sen. Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas.

Humphrey is pitching his entire campaign on the assumption he can beat Kennedy in the April 5 Wisconsin primary. If he should lose there, he probably would be out of the race quickly.

Kennedy is almost certain to challenge Gov. Michael V. DeSalle in Ohio's May 3 primary if the latter assays a favorite son role. The Massachusetts senator is determined also that Gov. J. Millard Tawes shall not block Maryland off from him with an uninstructed delegate slate.

There have even been hints that Kennedy might take on Meyner in New Jersey's April 19 primary, although the result of the vote would not be binding on the delegates. Pennsylvania, where Gov. David L. Lawrence remains publicly undecided, also may offer Kennedy a target in its April 26 non-binding primary.

The one state that seems to be Kennedy-proof, so to speak, is California. There Gov. Edmund G. Brown has erected a fence against candidates in the primary that neither Kennedy nor Humphrey seems ready to attempt to leap.

In a reversal of what appears to be the static fortunes of other favorite sons, Brown now gives the appearance of a man who has thought the matter over and has come to the conclusion he is about as well qualified for first place on the ticket as any of the others.

RECORD JUICE CROP

HONOLULU (AP) — Hawaii's pineapple industry squeezed a record amount of juice out of its crop for the year ending May 31, 1959.

It reports a total of 38,396,300 cases of pineapple juice, well above the 27 million cases reported for the previous year.

However, the 1957-58 figure did not include production of concentrated pineapple juice.

Faubus Squelches An Old Rumor

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Gov. Orval E. Faubus has apparently squelched persistent reports that he would take a hand against approaching school integration via a quick special legislative session.

The governor said he still had tentative plans to call a special session "within the next one to six months." But he said it would deal primarily "with industrial financing and perhaps some other minor problems."

He indicated he had plans connected with desegregation—scheduled to start in two Little Rock high schools Wednesday—but wouldn't say what they were. He said he had "no concrete reports at this time" about impending trouble over the integration.

Faubus closed the four public high schools last fall to block integration but the law he used has been struck down by federal court. Violence accompanied the initial integration of Central High School by nine Negroes in 1957. Three of the nine who went to Central then have been assigned there again by the school board. Three Negroes also have been assigned to Hall High.

The board used a pupil-placement law in holding down integration. Some 55 other Negroes who applied to enter white schools were assigned to Horace Mann High for Negroes.

Meanwhile, a "buyer's strike" against downtown merchants was scheduled to begin today. It was called by the segregationist Capital Citizens Council. Amis Guthridge, council attorney, charged the merchants with aiding the integration movement.

Reports circulated that a mass rally would be held Wednesday morning to ask Faubus to do something about stopping integration, but segregation leaders denied knowledge of it.

Faubus Sunday had no comment on new court action aimed at making the school board admit to white high schools any Negroes living in attendance areas of those schools.

Attorneys for the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People filed the action of U.S. District Court Saturday. They asked for an order restraining the board from using the pupil-placement law, on grounds that it denied the Negro students benefits of previous court decrees in connection with the court approved plan of integration here.

No date was set for action on the motion.

Meanwhile, anti-integration posters appeared in the Dollarway district near Pine Bluff, 40 miles southeast of here. The district recently was ordered by a federal court to admit three Negroes to a white high school.

The posters announced a meeting to be held Friday night.

And recruiting posters for the Ku Klux Klan were found tacked on telephone poles and posts south of Little Rock.

Formosa's Flash Floods Take Toll In Lives, Homes

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Formosa today mourned 498 dead and 541 missing in flash floods that followed the heaviest rains on the island in 62 years.

Another 563 persons were injured, and 134,779 were homeless in the national disaster.

The torrential rains fell Friday as Typhoon Ellen bore down on Japan after bypassing northern Formosa earlier in the week. But local weathermen said the rains on Formosa resulted from a storm in the South China Sea, not from Ellen.

The floods destroyed 9,782 houses and damaged 8,678 others. Much of the damage was in isolated communities.

Taipei, the capital and home of most Americans stationed on the Nationalist island, suffered little from the storm. Some low-lying streets were flooded Friday night, but there was little damage.

A spokesman for the U.S. command on Formosa said there were no reports of American casualties.

Elsewhere the floods wreaked havoc, sweeping away roads, railway beds and telephone and power lines.

In the central Formosan town of Miaoli, 75 persons died and 750 houses were washed away.

Nearly 2 1/2 inches of rain fell in 36 hours in Taichung, and water stood six feet deep in places.

President Chiang Kai-shek told the army to give all possible help to the flood victims and instructed the cabinet to get a relief program under way immediately.

The government estimated there was enough food on hand to cope with the crisis and threatened severe punishment for anyone boosting food prices.

Food Commissioner R. C. Li expressed hope that the crops might be saved if the waters recede quickly.

Peiping Radio meanwhile reported heavy rains around the Red Chinese capital. It said 20 1/2 inches fell there in the past 37 days and that several million peasants were battling floods.

Touring Eisenhower Likely To Face Some Arguments

By JOHN GALE
LONDON (AP)—It looks as if President Eisenhower will be forced into some hard and possibly defensive talking on his coming visits to Paris and Bonn.

Qualified informants expressed belief today that both President Charles de Gaulle of France and West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer have plenty in store for the American leader—and that some of it won't be so pleasant to hear.

These informants said De Gaulle will not confine himself to talk about Eisenhower's exchange of visits with Nikita Khrushchev. They said he will use the opportunity to argue his demands for a bigger French say in NATO, an issue sharply focused by France's refusal to let American nuclear warheads be stored on her soil.

Adenauer is considered to be basically unhappy about the Eisenhower-Khrushchev exchange. This belief has persisted although West German Foreign Minister Heinrich Von Brentano stated Friday his government welcomes and regards it as useful.

Some British newspapers reported both Adenauer and Von Brentano are under fire within their own Christian Democratic party for failing to prevent the exchange.

They say Adenauer is disturbed as the late John Foster Dulles' policy of keeping the Soviets at a distance appears to give way to a more flexible era of negotiation.

In contrast, Eisenhower's visit to Britain at the end of this month is expected to be uncomplicated.

There have been isolated complaints that the Big Four is becoming the Big Two and that Khrushchev has achieved his long standing aim of a face-to-face meeting with Eisenhower without giving anything away.

But the general tone of press comment from right to left has been warm and optimistic. Prime Minister Macmillan who himself visited Moscow in February has officially welcomed the exchange. The Labor party's foreign affairs spokesman, Aneurin Bevan, wrote in a Sunday newspaper that "the personal exchanges between the two should create a welcome oasis in the otherwise arid desert of existing international relations."

Wedding Is Set For New Church

KRISTIANSAND, Norway (AP)—Steven Rockefeller announced with a grin today he has lost his first real argument to his fiancée. Therefore his wedding will be performed two weeks from today in the "new" Lunde church.

The son of New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller appeared before reporters and photographers with Anne Marie Rasmussen outside the home of the bride's father.

He confined details of the nuptials to the choice of the church.

"If I give you everything about the wedding now," he said, "you won't have anything to write at the time of the wedding and then you'd be the ones who were sorry."

Steven had wanted to be married in the three-century-old church in Sogne because of its tradition and primitive beauty, but Anne Marie insisted on the "new" church where she was christened and confirmed in the Norwegian Lutheran faith. Steven yielded and judging from his good humor he regarded it as something less than a crisis.

The 23-year-old heir to some of the Rockefeller millions had been avoiding newsmen since he came here last week to culminate the romance which apparently started when Anne Marie was serving as a maid in the Rockefeller household.

Steven finally gave in and consented to today's conference. He emerged first, and alone, from the Rasmussen home to give the photographers a few details about arrangements for stills and TV film. Smiling and joking, he then went in and fetched his bride-to-be.

favoring tropical lagoon on coast.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—State Senator J. Eugene McAteer Sunday proposed a tropical lagoon in chilly San Francisco Bay shielded from sharks.

He asked the state park commission to wall in aquatic park, with a sliding panel allowing small boats in and out. He said large steam boilers could raise the temperature five degrees for swimming comfort.

Chairman Joseph E. Knowland said the commission is glad to consider the proposal... but financing is doubtful.

Boys Saw Major Leaguers In Action

EXCURSION INTERLUDE—The Greenville and Pitt County youngsters above comprised the group taken to see a major league baseball game at Griffith Stadium, Sunday. With them is Mrs. Louise Shafer, a registered nurse.

A sleepy band of baseball-happy boys dismounted from their bus late last night in Greenville, following a day-long excursion to see the Chicago White Sox clobber the Washington Senators.

As guests of the Greenville Moose, the boys gathered at 5:00 a.m. Sunday for the trip to Washington, D. C. aboard a chartered bus. They were accompanied by a registered nurse and a small number of men.

Picnic luncheon was served in the forenoon and in the late afternoon... augmented by hot dogs and ice cream, crackerjack, popcorn and soft drinks during the game at Griffith Stadium.

Film strips of the Washington trip will be shown over WNCN-TV during the early evening and late evening news programs.

Four Face Riot Charges In Big City Disturbance

NEW YORK (AP) — Four persons faced riot charges today after two white policemen, making an arrest in a Negro neighborhood, were roughed up by an angry crowd.

The crowd of about 300 persons, mostly Negroes, gathered Sunday when the officers made a raid on an East Bronx fish-and-chip store which allegedly sold bootleg liquor.

RALEIGH (AP) — The Motor Vehicles Department's tally of highway deaths and injuries for the period from 4 p.m. Friday through 10 a.m. today:

The plainclothesmen were trying to get a Negro man and woman into an unmarked police car.

GREENVILLE (AP) — A freakishly triggered fire in the Lake Elsinore resort area has covered at least 1,500 acres and has destroyed two homes and left more than two dozen men burned or injured. But firefighters said they have it virtually encircled.

In an article in the current issue, editor Douglas Haskell wrote that the building, which opened this session, illustrates "a state of architectural illness attended by extreme mental confusion, threatening to become chronic in Washington."

GREENVILLE (AP) — A Lee County jury deliberated only one hour Saturday before acquitting Norman Barber of the hammer slaying of a fellow worker.

Philip L. Roof, executive assistant to the Capitol architect, said Haskell was a little late with his criticism, since the designs had been available for years before construction started.

BARBER, 34-year-old machinist, was charged with first degree murder in the death July 11 of Henry Hight, 51. The state had asked the death penalty.

Find Big Shortage In Toll Bridge Funds

ROCK ISLAND, Ill. (AP) — Operators of the Centennial Bridge over the Mississippi River between Rock Island and Davenport, Iowa, have suspended all 13 toll collectors, after disclosing a shortage in toll funds up to $750,000.

The third gimmick was recording a passenger car-and-trailer toll after collecting the higher three-axle rate fixed for commercial truck-trailer rigs.

Acting on information supplied by state authorities and the FBI, the bridge commission Sunday suspended the collectors. City policemen took over their jobs in the emergency.

Tolls on the bridge are 10 cents for an auto; 15 cents for a car pulling a one-axle trailer; 35 cents for a commercial and semitrailer; 25 cents for two-axle truck, and up to 60 cents for four- and five-axle truck-trailer combinations.

Bernard J. Moran, Rock Island County state's attorney, said a wholesale looting of tolls probably started soon after the bridge, owned by the city, was opened in 1940. The bridge is used by an average of 10,000 autos and 2,000 trucks daily. Davenport's population is 81,000; Rock Island's about 50,000 and nearby Moline, Ill., 41,000.

Franklin Wingard of Rock Island, chairman of the commission, said thefts were made possible by defective design of a treadle system which automatically counted vehicles passing over the bridge and helped compute what each owed.

Alderman And 2 Companions Are Among Arrested

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — A Negro alderman and two companions were arrested Sunday night in a north St. Louis restaurant which refused to serve them.

Accidents . . .

Bethel, Sanders was headed toward Greenville when he hit a puddle of water on the right side of the road. Sanders was quoted as saying he then pulled the truck to the left and the vehicle went out of control, overturning and hitting the pole.

When Alderman William L. Clay and his friends refused to leave, the hostess at the Howard Johnson restaurant, Miss Dorothy Congleton, 32, called police.

Chapman said moderate damage resulted to the 1956 model truck. Both Sanders and a passenger in the vehicle, Essie Lou Forman of 8028 Bancroft Ave. were treated at Pitt Memorial Hospital for minor injuries.

Booked with Clay on charges of disturbing the peace were Ray Howard of St. Louis and Robert L. Schwerdtmann of suburban Richmond Heights. Schwerdtmann is white.

Sanders was charged with exceeding the safe speed as a result of investigation of the mishap. The accident occurred about four miles west of town.

The three men filed a peace disturbance charge against Miss Congleton and she also was booked. The four were released on bonds of $500 each and are scheduled to appear today in city court.

Firemen Respond To 2 Box Alarms

Firemen answered two box alarms over the weekend, one shortly after 7 a.m. yesterday and the second about 12:25 this morning.

Yesterday, firemen were called to box 17 at the Export Tobacco Co. when a pipe in the sprinkler system in the building broke, letting pressure off the lines.

Assistant Fire Chief Berry Sumrell said when a sprinkler head goes off or pressure on the system is reduced, the fire alarm is automatically sounded.

Box 22 was turned in at the corner of Evans and Third Sts. early this morning when an air conditioner in the County-owned Edwards Building shorted out, causing a small fire.
