All Safe As Small Aircraft Makes Forced Landing

BILL MITCHELL . . . a passenger in this single-engine plane, stands on the wing of the ship following its landing on a rural dirt road north of Greenville yesterday.

Arrests In Cuba Said Mounting

HAVANA (AP)—Fidel Castro's battle against the first major conspiracy threatening his revolutionary regime swept into the Cuban countryside today. New arrests and armed clashes were reported in several places. Officials claimed the plot was crushed. Unofficial reports said as many as 1,500 persons had been arrested up to late Monday. Havana was quiet after a night of disturbances. About a dozen cases of street shooting were reported, but no casualties. A police spokesman said conspirators fired on official automobiles and public buildings in an unsuccessful attempt to create panic. The newspaper Revolution, organ of Castro's 26th of July Movement, blamed the conspiracy on three elements—members of the former Batista army, some large landowners affected by the land redistribution law, and mercenaries hired by Generalissimo Rafael L. Trujillo, dictator of the Dominican Republic. The Cuban leader is expected to address Cubans on radio and TV later. No time was announced. Remnants of an armed band that clashed with Castro's army Sunday reportedly took to the hills in the southern part of the province, where a number of conspirators have been reported arrested. Observers also considered it significant that Castro suddenly changed his mind about going to the Inter-American Foreign Ministers Conference in Santiago, Chile. They looked on this as a measure of the gravity of the situation in Cuba. From reliable sources both in and out of the government, these were developments: 1. Camp Libertad on the edge of Havana where the bulk of the conspiracy suspects were reported being questioned, remained cut off to all but officials with special permits. 2. The telephone blackout to Las Villas was government ordered with supervisors monitoring other calls inside Cuba and from abroad. 3. A large number of those detained are being held for precautionary purposes and will be released soon. 4. Scattered shooting was heard in various sections of Havana during the night. There were no casualties reported and no explanation of the firing, but the police radio revealed that at least one person had been picked up in connection with the gunfire.

Some Damage To Craft Landing On A Dirt Road

By STUART SAVAGE, Reflector Staff Writer. None of the three passengers were injured when a single engine light plane was forced to make a landing north of Greenville on a rural dirt road yesterday afternoon. The aircraft was reported running low on gas and the pilot could not find the local airport due to the hazy atmospheric conditions which prevailed. The plane, carrying James G. Mitchell, vice president of H. L. Gearty Construction Co., which is laying the natural gas pipe line in the area, and his son Bill, was being piloted by Fred Wright, a pilot for a Toledo, Ohio, air service. The aircraft landed on a dirt road just off N. C. 11 about seven miles north of Greenville around 3:45 p.m. According to Mitchell, the plane left Toledo about 11:30 and arrived in the area with about a 30-minute supply of gas left in the tanks. They circled the area, he said, for almost a half-hour trying to locate the airport, but due to the low visibility they could not find it. Mitchell said the pilot then decided to land the ship on a road while they still had power. Wright made a perfect three-point landing, Mitchell added, but he could not hold the plane straight due to the soft dirt. One of the wheels went into a ditch causing the plane to spin around, striking the bank of the ditch. An estimated $3,000 damage resulted to the ship's propeller, right wing, and landing gear. The new plane had only 75 hours of flying time logged before the mishap yesterday, it was reported. Mitchell's son, Billy, said as they were coming in for the landing he fastened his seat belt. When the plane hit the ditch, the door on the right side next to him flew open and the first aid kit, which was located just in front of him, was thrown out and landed on the wing next to him. Both the Greenville Rescue Squad and local ambulances were called to the scene by residents of the area but neither was needed as no one was injured in the mishap.

Fires Laid To Hunters And Youths

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Smoke hung over Northern California mountains today as firemen fought new flames in forests near Ukiah and Willits, about 100 miles north of San Francisco. Every able-bodied man in Ukiah turned out Monday to save the city of 15,000. Women and children used garden hoses and buckets to wet roofs as wind-swept embers cascaded down from flaming forests just beyond city limits. A ranger said fires near Ukiah had been set by children and hunters. In southern California, 500 men ringed the Decker Canyon blaze near Lake Elsinore after it claimed 2 lives, injured 27 and burned 1,600 acres. For five weeks blazes in tinder-dry California forests and brushland have kept firemen on the run. The state got less rain and snow than usual last winter and heavy rains are not due for months. Near Yuba City, 100 miles north-west of San Francisco, Sheriff's deputies reported 17 fires in an hour within a four-mile radius. All were extinguished quickly and officers said they appeared to be the work of juveniles. Frank Weatherford, a Ukiah forest ranger, said the Cow Mountain fires apparently were set by children and hunters. "They waited until we rolled every thing we had up on the fire at Spanish Mountain and then they started the other," he continued. "They wanted to burn the brush so the animals wouldn't have a place to hide. And they knew there wasn't a damn thing we could do."

Approve Funds For New Armory

The U. S. House of Representatives yesterday passed a military construction appropriation bill which includes $105,000 for a new National Guard armory in Farmville, according to a telegram received by the Daily Reflector this morning. The bill, which must now pass the Senate to become final, will provide Farmville with the armory it had previously arranged a site for. Due to increased size of the newly proposed structure, however, the previously selected site will have to be replaced by a larger one. Mayor Charles S. Edwards told the Reflector this morning that the lot now being sought would be at least a five-acre tract. A short while ago, a committee in Farmville made a brief inventory of the town's available building sites in an attempt to locate an adequate and suitable site for a new armory. The $105,000 will be supplemented by both the town of Farmville and Pitt County. In a previous arrangement, the town had appropriated $7,500 for supplement to armory construction funds and the county matched this sum. Mayor Edwards said he believes those figures will probably apply to the new proposal.

Chessman Death Date Again Set

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Caryl Chessman, artful dodger of San Quentin prison's gas chamber, is sentenced to die Oct. 23. His attorneys plan another appeal because the convict-author wasn't present when Superior Judge Herbert V. Walker set the death date Monday. Chessman had written from San Quentin's death row that he wanted to be present to challenge the court's jurisdiction. Chessman's legal maneuvering has delayed his execution 11 years. He was convicted in 1948 of a series of robberies, kidnappings and sex crimes.

Halleck Predicts House To Support Ike On Labor Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—Republican congressional leaders predicted to President Eisenhower today that the labor bill backed by the President will pass the House. House GOP Chief Charles A. Halleck of Indiana said he expects that outcome even though he said, "Mr. Hoffa's people are here with all sorts of threats, trying to get the Hoffa bill through." Halleck referred to James R. Hoffa, president of the International Teamsters Union. By the Hoffa Bill, he said he meant the one sponsored by Rep. John F. Shelley (D-Calif.). Shelley's bill is less far reaching than the Landrum-Griffin measure which Eisenhower has endorsed. The Republican congressional chiefs made their forecast as the House headed into its most bitter fight in a decade over the shape of management-labor control legislation. With a week of wide-open floor battling scheduled, the House called up the Shelley and Landrum-Griffin proposals along with a third measure labeled by sponsors as a middle-of-the-road plan. All three are aimed—with varying degrees of stringency—at curbing racketeering and abuse of power in the labor-management field. The outcome was rated a toss-up. The first votes may come late Wednesday or Thursday.

Halleck and Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, the Senate GOP leader, talked with newsmen after their weekly White House session with Eisenhower. Asked what kind of threats he was talking about, Halleck replied: "Well, political recriminations, defeat at the polls, the things that everybody who has been around here knows about. I don't think anybody has been threatened with any bodily injury and I don't know as it's had any effect." As for the presidential reaction to the forecast that the Landrum-Griffin bill will win House approval, Halleck replied: "I would say he was quite happy." Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell sat in on the White House conference. Halleck said that in spite of reports to the contrary in some places, Mitchell is for the Landrum-Griffin bill. Halleck also predicted that the Landrum-Griffin bill wouldn't bog down in a dispute with the Senate, which has passed its own version of a labor measure. He said he thinks differences could be composed as they were when the Taft-Hartley labor law was enacted. Arrived in favor of the most restrictive of the three bills were President Eisenhower and a Republican House minority. Supporting what its sponsors called a moderate middle-of-the-road approach were a majority of House Democrats headed by Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Tex.). A smaller group of Democrats was supporting a third measure, backed by AFL-CIO chiefs and making fewer changes in present law. In advance of showdown voting later this week, the balance of power appeared to reside in a small but potent coalition of Southern and Midwestern conservatives of both parties. The nation got a preview of the forthcoming House debate Monday night as Rayburn spoke over MBS radio network and supporters of all three measures discussed them on an NBC television program. Each contended his bill was best for the nation. The programs followed up Eisenhower's radio-TV appeal last Thursday for passage of a bill strong enough to end labor-management racketeering practices which he called "a national disgrace."

Employment Hit Record For July

WASHINGTON (AP)—Employment hit another record high in July. The number of jobs rose about one quarter million while unemployment declined by nearly the same amount. The Labor Department reported July employment reached a record 67,594,000, up 252,000 from June and an increase of 2,415,000 over July last year. Unemployment declined by 238,000 to 3,744,000 in July. This was 1,550,000 less than July 1958. Employment had also reached a record in June. The number of workers with jobs has been steadily increasing all year. Seymour Wolfbein, deputy assistant secretary of labor for manpower, told a news conference that the July figures reflected a continued basic improvement in the over-all employment situation. The July increases were recorded despite a rather sharp drop in farm employment because of poor weather in many farm areas, particularly in the South. On the other hand the large number of teenagers seeking temporary jobs—which forced up unemployment in June by 600,000—diminished in July. Many of the youngsters found work. The July survey was taken in mid-month just as the nationwide steel strike began. Little of the steel strike consequences were reflected in the July figures. However, a special survey of steel strike effects showed that approximately 100,000 workers have been laid off in allied industries such as coal, railroads, ore shipping and some construction work.

Bazooka Rocket Kills Instructor

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP)—The explosion of a rocket immediately after it left the muzzle of a bazooka Monday left one Marine dead and eight others injured. An investigation was due to be launched into the accident which occurred as a group of Marine Reservists were undergoing training in bazooka firing. More than 100 rounds had been fired before the fatal rocket went off prematurely. Killed was the group's instructor, Acting S. Sgt. Henry Carbaljal, 29, father of two and son of Mrs. Mary Huerta Tafaya of Detroit, Mich. Treated and released from the hospital was the range safety officer, 2nd Lt. Dale Adams. Pfc. Richard R. Kempt, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Kemp of Roanoke Va., was f. st reported in serious condition. However, the naval hospital said today he had shown improvement and was now in satisfactory condition. Six other marines were hospitalized and were reported in satisfactory condition.

Two Appointed, C&D Board At Full Strength

RALEIGH (AP)—A Greensboro civic leader and a former state senator from Laurinburg are new members of the Board of Conservation and Development. Gov. Hodges brought the board up to its full 18-member strength Monday, naming Orton A. Boren of Greensboro to succeed the late Robert M. Hanes of Winston-Salem and Edwin Pace of Laurinburg to fill a vacancy created by the death of Lee Harvey of Kinston. Their terms expire next June 30. Hodges also reappointed five members to the board. They were Hugh Morton of Linville, Max Watson of Forest City, W. H. Austin of Jefferson, Carl Buchan Jr. of North Wilkesboro and H. C. Kennett of Durham. Each will serve until June 30, 1965.

Bloodmobile Visits City Tomorrow

The Bloodmobile, sponsored by the local Jaycees will be in Greenville tomorrow from 11 a.m. until 5 p.m. at the Moose Temple at West End Circle. According to Red Cross officials, O-positive, O-negative and B-negative types of blood are especially needed as the supply of these types of blood has been depleted this summer. Last year only 71 per cent of the County's 1,500 pint quota was reached and officials say if the quota is not reached this year Pitt could lose the blood program. The quota for this year has been reduced to 1,450 pints of blood, which means the Bloodmobile must collect over 120 pints of blood each time it visits the county in order to meet the quota. Persons who have received blood are urged to replace the blood, pint for pint. Persons 21 to 59 may donate blood. Those from 18 to 21 may donate provided they have a signed release from their parents. The signed release is not needed if the person is self-supporting or a member of the armed services. According to Dr. Howard Gradis, Chairman of the Pitt County American Red Cross Blood Program, "If the Pitt County Blood Program is to continue to serve the people of Pitt County we must have blood. So 'Be a Donor.'"

No Penalty Cards Mailed In Pitt Marketing Cards

There will be no penalty cards among the marketing cards which have been mailed to over 2,600 tobacco producers in Pitt County. ASC Office Manager Walter A. Hasty Jr. said there is not a red or blue card among the white cards which were sent out yesterday. This means that not a single farmer in Pitt County overplanted his allotment or violated other regulations and no one planted discount varieties this year, Hasty said. Red cards are sent to farmers who overplant or violate regulations. Such cards mean the producer is not entitled to tobacco price supports. Blue cards are designed to go to planters of discount varieties. Some producers picked up their cards early presumably to sell on other belts, but most are receiving them through the mails. "On these cards will be sold the largest tobacco acreage of any county in the world—over 25,000 acres," Hasty pointed out. The office manager emphasized the "great privilege these cards afford the producers when properly used." He noted that the white (within quota) card means that the farmer has planted within his allotment or destroyed his excess. "It also means he has cooperated with the program requirements, he has planted an acceptable variety of tobacco and, last and most important, the farmer is eligible for price support on his tobacco at 90 percent of parity which has been set at 55.5 cents per pound for 1959," Hasty said. The manager urged farmers to observe the following rules in using their marketing cards: 1. Always take it with you to market. 2. Keep it in a safe place. 3. Do not get it wet or mutilated. 4. Never permit anyone to sell any tobacco on your card other than that grown on the farm for which it was issued. 5. When you are through selling return the card to the county ASC office. Hasty said farmers are held accountable for the tobacco sold on cards issued for their farms. A producer could lose all or a portion of his allotment if the card is misused or not returned to the ASC office at the end of the season. Farmers must present the card at the warehouse before he can place his tobacco on the floor for sale.

Dollar Day Set Here Thursday

Leading Greenville Merchants will sponsor one of Greenville's Dollar Days this Thursday. For 25 years Greenville businesses have purchased special merchandise and offered special bargains on broken sizes and given liberal discounts on the semi-annual Dollar Day. City Manager Leonard Bloxam has declared all parking meters, both on the street and in the City Owned lots free for the day. However, Greenville store employees are urged to leave their cars at home or park them off the streets and leave the parking space for out-of-town shoppers. According to spokesmen for the Merchants Association who sponsor the event, participating merchants will display window trims. J. G. Proctor, Chairman of the Merchants Association's Trade Promotion Committee said "I think it will be the largest Dollar Day we have had." Proctor added that "the merchants will have more merchandise to offer than they have ever had in previous years, too."

MARKETING CARDS GO OUT . . . ASC Clerk Aileen Clark mails cards as Manager Hasty and Clerk Jean Deal look on.

Herter Considers Verbal Blasts At Dictators

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP)—Secretary of State Christian A. Herter, flying here today for the Inter-American Conference of Foreign Ministers, was reported considering making a strong declaration of U.S. opposition to dictatorships. Herter was due late this afternoon in the Chilean capital after a night's stopover in Puerto Rico. Leaving Washington, he said the conference should take a candid look at troubles plaguing the Caribbean area and adopt measures to deal with them. Puerto Rico's Gov. Luis Munoz Marin, who talked with Herter in Washington Sunday, said the secretary likely would make clear that the United States does not condole dictators. Numerous Latin Americans have accused the United States of showing open favoritism to such dictators as former President Fulgenio Batista of Cuba, Marcos Pezuela Jimenez of Venezuela, now an exile in Florida, the Dominican Republic's Rafael Trujillo and Nicaragua's Luis Somoza. Presumably any U.S. declaration will be worded in general terms with no names called. Both Trujillo and Somoza are still in office, and any direct attack on them would bring accusations of U.S. interference in domestic affairs of other nations, as well as imperil relations between Washington and the Dominican and Nicaraguan governments. One potential source of fireworks at the conference was revealed Monday night. Cuba's ambassador announced that Prime Minister Fidel Castro would not attend. Apparently Castro is too busy at home, where his government claims it has just smashed a major plot by counter-revolutionaries. The meeting was called after a series of invasions by political exiles trying to overthrow the Trujillo and Somoza regimes and the Panamanian government. Herter, first U.S. secretary of state ever to visit Chile, was expected to swing soon after his arrival into private talks with various foreign ministers on the problems before the conference. The U.S. secretary is scheduled to reply on behalf of all the ministers Wednesday when Chile's President Jorge Alessandri opens the conference. But U.S. sources said his major speech will come after the meeting gets down to real business.

Miss Boehr, who has taught in Ohio for 30 years, will begin teaching this fall at Inanda Seminary in the Union of South Africa. She had retired from a professorship in home economics at Heidelberg College, Tiffin, Ohio. After sampling retirement for a few months in Florida, Miss Boehr decided that unemployment was "not for her cup of tea" and signed up for a three-year teaching post under the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions. Overseas service is not new to Miss Boehr. From 1949 to 1952 she worked in India as managing dietitian at the Kodak School for missionary children and later as director of the home economics department of the Agricultural Institute in Allahabad. She also worked for two years in Vienna, Austria, with the Voluntary Relief Service.

Coastal Carolina Area Is Changing

North Carolinians have heard for years that its coastal area would one day become one of the principal resort centers along the Atlantic Coast. The change taking place on our coast each summer bears out that prediction.

Those who frequent the coastal areas of the state are aware of the increasing number of out-of-state cars seen in the area. They come not only from adjacent states, but from states far to the north, south and midwest. Each year the number of motels and hotels increases, and proprietors report no business lag with the larger number of rooms and apartments available.

In the past, North Carolina's coastal area has served primarily as a summer retreat for residents of this state and a few people from our neighboring states. Now the picture is beginning to change. The out-of-state tourists are becoming more numerous all along the coast, and from all appearances, they are spending more time—and more dollars in North Carolina.

Within another month, the long-talked-of car ferry between Ocracoke and Atlantic will begin its operations under the auspices of the Taylor brothers who have done so much for Carteret County. This ferry will provide a direct auto link between the northernmost stretches of the Outer Banks and the southern portion of the banks. It will mean that motorists can travel the entire length of the Tar Heel coastal area without the long back-tracking that previously has been necessary. There can be no doubt that this new link will bring more north-south traffic down the coast of our state.

Neither can there be any doubt that many people who just "pass through" will return to North Carolina's coastal area to enjoy the relaxation and recreation the area offers.

The day is rapidly approaching when the state's coastal area will not only be a major tourist spot for a large area of the nation, but it will become in a much more real sense a year-round resort area that offers vacationers both summer and winter sports.

Big-time sports fishing already is catching on in the area with an increase in the number of marlin and other major sport fish taken. Its fame as a waterfowl area during the winter months is gaining greater recognition, and now that easier access is being provided to the area, we may expect more sportsmen to include it on their agenda.

All of this means, of course, that the once sleepy coastal area of the state is changing. Spots that once were tiny fishing villages are becoming towns boosted by tourist dollars. Stretches of dunes that once were left to the winds, sand and sea oats are now becoming dotted with motels and summer homes. Vast stretches of marsh land have been reclaimed into residential areas and paved roads have replaced the sand ruts which ran from one end of an island to another.

The transition is one which spells unprecedented prosperity for the coastal area of North Carolina, and one which, in time, will make the Tar Heel coast one of the most popular resort areas on the Atlantic Coast.

Satellites We Now Take For Granted?

It's sometimes amazing how quickly people, particularly Americans, begin to take things for granted.

Friday, shortly after the satellite laboratory was successfully put into orbit from Cape Canaveral, we heard a fellow comment, "Oh well, its just another satellite like all the rest."

Well maybe. But from the way he said it, one might have thought that satellites circling the earth have become as common as automobiles or jet planes.

Not many months ago Americans, like people all over the world, digested every word of reports of satellite launching. Excitement ran high when there was a successful launching, and average citizens pondered the achievement of man putting one of his homemade planets in orbit with the stars.

Has the real meaning of the achievement so quickly faded from our minds? Have we so quickly adjusted to the new space era into which we are moving? Have we become so sophisticated in our space-age thinking that no new achievement will excite us until a man lands on the moon?

From the standpoint of scientific advancement, every successful launching of a man-made satellite is much more significant than being "just another satellite." Each new achievement of the space age alters our lives whether we realize it or not. Every new launching takes us a step farther into the space age in which we or our children will live. It creates new human problems, opens new doors, and to some degree alters our pattern of life.

And yet most of us now just take such things for granted, closing our eyes to the impact each new feat has upon our lives.

Only An Expert Can Understand

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you look blank-thinking of the various labor control bills now kicking around in Congress—don't worry. Only experts could understand them thoroughly. And they disagree.

This is one of the greatest mish-mashes in years. So most members of the House — which Tuesday begins debate on passing some kind of bill — will probably have only a vague idea of what they're doing.

None of them, unless he was a specialist in labor problems, could possibly know or guess all the implications in all the details and differences, major and minor, between the bills. For example:

A bill passed by the Senate months ago has 51 sections, scores of sub-sections and sub-divisions. A bill approved by the House Labor Committee is similar to it but has at least 100 differences.

A third bill, similar to both of them, has some more differences of its own, and is much tougher on labor unions than either. Still a fourth bill, milder of all but in many ways similar to the others, is not quite the same as any of them.

All four bills, because of a general feeling in Congress that some labor controls are needed, propose doing something to the extent of setting up rules and penalties against despotic, unfair and corrupt labor practices.

And all contain a "bill of rights," or protections for individual union members in voting and saying what they think. But, starting there, the bills go in opposite directions. They differ on penalties and protections.

And they differ on what questionable union practices should be banned.

House members will not be acting in a pure and pious vacuum. They'll have different motives for the way they vote, for what they put in a bill or take out.

Some, particularly Democrats, are under obligation to organized labor for helping them get elected in 1958. They know they may lose their seats in the 1960 election if labor turns against them for what they do now.

Some House members, in sympathy with labor, want a mild bill. Some others will honestly want a tough one. Still others will want a tough one because they seem to have an ingrained antagonism to organized labor.

And some Republicans, being politicians, may be thinking how best they can create a profitable issue for themselves, and against the Democrats in 1960 on the subject of labor control.

That's not all. Most members of the House by now have probably been put under great pressure by organized labor and big business, on opposite sides of course, to vote tough or mild. The lobbying on a labor bill has been terrific.

Here's an example of the mish-mash:

First, there is the Kennedy bill, passed by the Senate 90-1 last April 25. It is named after its principal sponsor, Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.). But most organized labor, particularly the AFL-CIO, doesn't like it.

But President Eisenhower, as he revealed in his TV broadcast last week, doesn't like it, either. "Ineffective," he called it.

Then there's the Elliot bill named after its chief sponsor, Rep. Carl Elliott (D-Ala.)—which was approved July 15 by the House Labor Committee although only five of the 30 committee members had a kind word for it.

The rest either denounced it or looked down their noses at it. The only reason they let it get out of their committee was to get it up to the House floor for debate, changes, and a vote. It will certainly be changed on the floor.

Although the Elliot bill has been called a middle-of-the-road attempt to control bad labor practices, Eisenhower considers it inadequate to do the job he says needs doing.

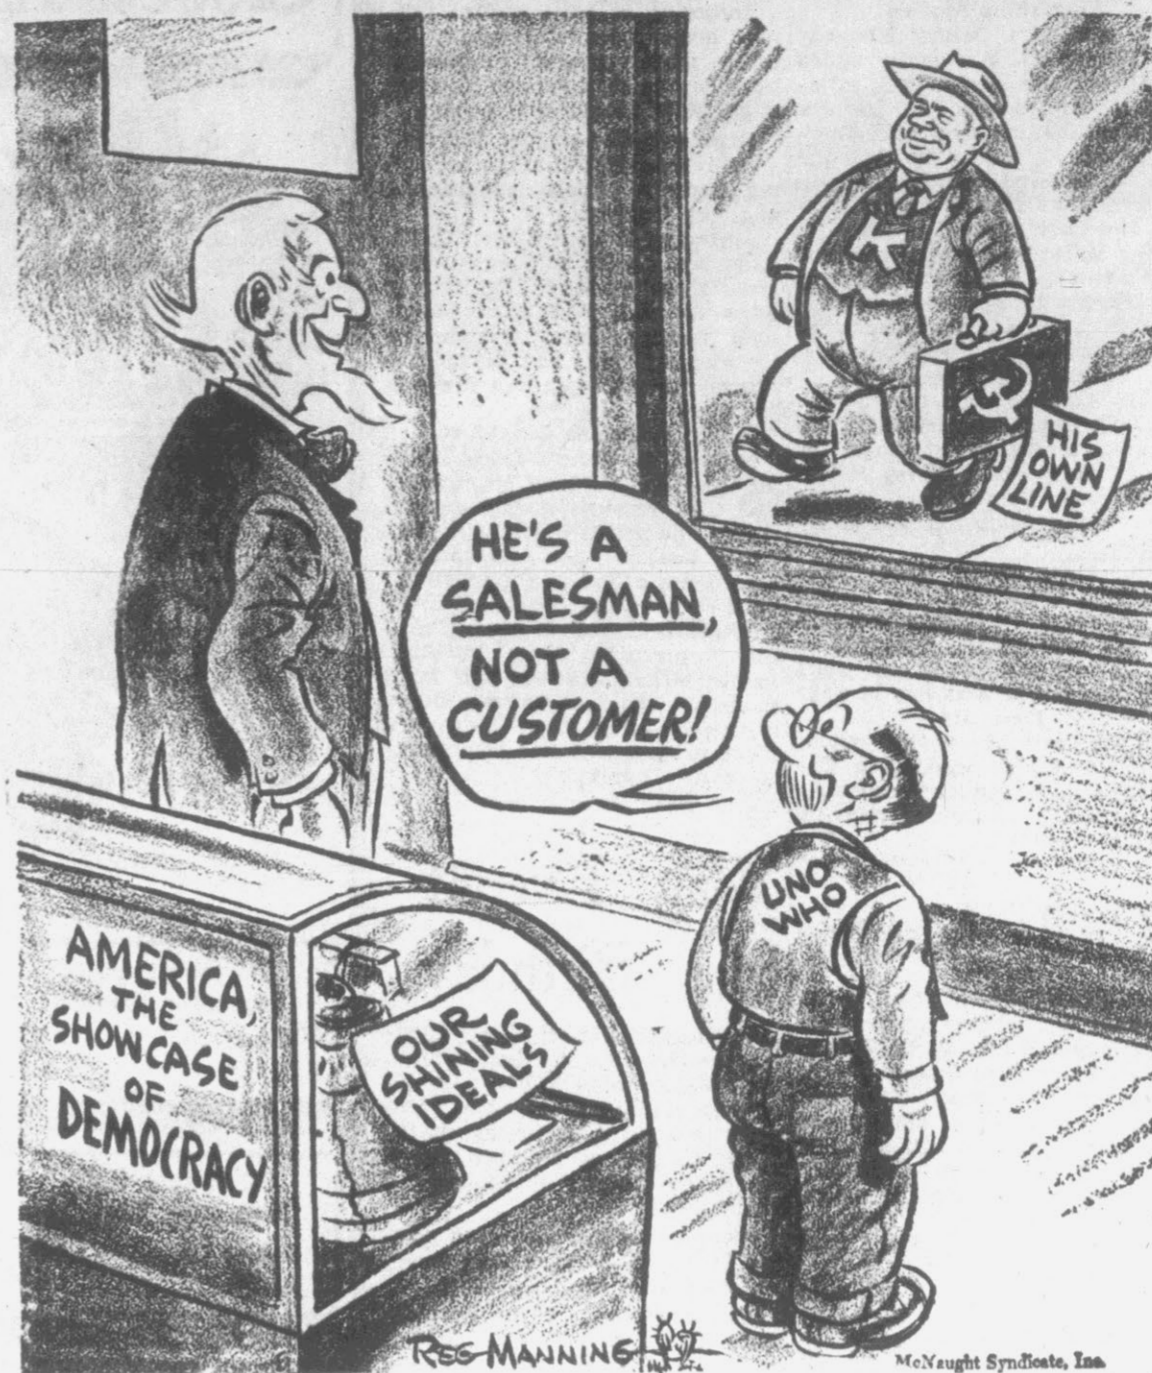

And AFL-CIO President George Meany, who doesn't like the Kennedy bill, either. He said it would make it "extremely difficult" to do his normal business.

The bill Meany likes—sponsored by Rep. John F. Shelley (D-Calif.) and the mildest of all—seems the one with the least chance of all.

What Eisenhower—and a bunch of Republicans and Southern Democrats—wants to accomplish is the Landrum-Griffin bill. This was offered by Reps. Phil M. Landrum (D-Ga.) and Robert P. Griffin (R-Mich.). This bill, toughest of all, is the one Meany likes least.

Until Eisenhower pitched for the Landrum-Griffin bill it seemed likely a middle-of-the-road bill had the best chance of passage. Now the whole thing seems up for grabs.

Don't Expect Him To "Buy" Our Program

By DON SCHLIENZ

That Nineteen-Hour Day

So I went to Griffith Stadium and helped 29,999 other people watch the White Sox beat the Senators, but the ballgame didn't leave any big impressions or after-thoughts.

Two things did: the youngsters who were guests of the Greenville Moose, and Washington itself.

As for our capital city, most visitors see the magnificent buildings and memorials. . . thrill to the orderly streets and beautiful landscaping. In other years, the writer passed through Washington in a hurry. . . hoping to someday repeat a tour of early childhood days.

Last Sunday's trip via bus was different in that the approach to the stadium was in a roundabout way, swinging through the eastern and southeast sections. The impression was not favorable. Long blocks of box-like dwellings slacked side-by-side some converted to business uses; vacant buildings; occupied buildings; thousands of broken windows; all lined up on the street with the sides of each narrow little box touching boxes on either side, no space in their "yards" for children. . . nothing "gracious" nor happy about the vista. It isn't the sort of thing I'd show off in what should be the "showcase of America".

Of course, there's a matter of perspective. We saw just a relatively small part of a very large and truly beautiful city.

All big cities have a similar blight. Smaller cities also have their slums, but again, on a smaller scale. The effect of the new Washington view was more striking because it was unexpected.

As for the youngsters who rallied at 5:00 a.m. Sunday, they were a lively bunch of happy people.

The adults who escorted them had an easy time preventing straying and filling their needs. The nurse, Mrs. Louise Shafer, kept the two youngest boys under her wing and made the male role a "breeze".

There were real baseball fans in the crowd, and watching some of the best-in-the-business performance, proved an obvious thrill. Even so, there were no protests when it was decided to move out shortly after the start of the second game of a doubleheader.

And of course, there's nothing like the chatter of small boys on a bus ride. . . nor the aura of excitement in seeing new sights.

Some of the Moose are talking about making the trip an annual event, but that really hasn't been settled yet.

There were some misgivings before the trip about (a) sitting out a baseball game in Griffith Stadium, (b) helping to ride herd on a bunch of kids.

Actually it turned out to be an enjoyable 19-hour day.

Other Editors Saying The Free Press

(Washington News)

One of the bulwarks of the American press is its freedom. But freedom of the press also means responsibility of the press. Freedom without responsibility is dangerous.

In the American press freedom is guaranteed, but responsibility is more or less self-assumed. And we cannot discuss the subject without agreeing that freedom and responsibility go hand in hand.

It has been said that the American press is neither free nor responsible. Russians have asserted that we have a capitalist press, and that the newspapers are privately owned. In Russia we are told that the people own the papers, and that it is the freest press in the world. That is not true in the latter instance.

Whenever and wherever we have a press whose work is censored or regulated, we have the people receiving only the news which officials want them to know. There is no room for disagreement, and none actually exists insofar as the individual newspapers are concerned.

In America two newspapers only a few miles apart or two newspapers in the same city often disagree with each other on policy. One might be Republican and the other Democrat. One may be liberal and the other conservative. But both of the newspapers in question have one fundamental right—to print the news as each sees it. And each has the right to express whatever opinions each might hold on any question.

We could hardly lose freedom of the press without losing our other freedoms at the same time. The press is the champion torch bearer for all freedoms, and with out freedom of the press, we'd lose freedom of speech, freedom of worship, and freedom of assembly also.

When any individual newspaper asks itself three questions and can answer them affirmatively, then it is a responsible newspaper. Is it honest? Is it fair? Is it accurate?

If all three ingredients are not present, then the newspaper is not doing its proper job nor is it accepting its moral responsibilities.

The Daily News feels that it has a moral responsibility to fight for better things for our area. If our fight does not meet with approval, then we'll defend the right of those to disagree with us as vigorously as we defend our right to make the fight in the first place.

If the community does not make the fight for a better community, then is there any medium left to make the determined fight?

We recognize the fact that some people do not want progress. We realize that some people perhaps do not want freedom of the press. Just as freedom and responsibility go hand in hand, so do license and selfish motivation go hand in hand.

This Pamlico area belongs to each of us who lives here and to all of us. If a newspaper bases its editorial stand on what is popular or most profitable financially, then it has confused freedom of the press with license of the press. It has accepted freedom without accepting responsibility.

So long as newspapers accept a full measure of responsibility with a guaranteed measure of full freedom, then all our American freedoms will remain intact.

Hobby That Is Paying

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—"I'm a hobbyist saloonkeeper, and a reluctant success," according to Burton Browne, who is making a fortune out of male nostalgia. "I'm the only saloonkeeper who is listed in Who's Who in America, the Social Register, and Dun & Bradstreet."

An ex-commercial artist who once felt lucky if he got $18 for a gag cartoon, Browne is now head of a large Chicago advertising firm specializing in electronics.

But conviviality has been a life-long hobby with the big, bluff, gray-haired executive. And now his hobby has become a big business. He's on the way to become the J.C. Penney of chain-store conviviality.

"In business today you have to entertain a lot," he remarked. "But there aren't very many places where men can entertain men."

"You take a client to a supper club for a couple of drinks and a steak dinner, and what happens? By 9:30 you're both standing outside on the curb wondering what to do."

Browne and a group of friends solved the problem in 1953 by organizing a private key club "for gentlemen," deliberately decorated in the plush decor of 1906.

There the tired businessman could foregather with his pals around the bowl that cheers, make deals, be pampered by beautiful waitresses dressed in scanty turn-of-the-century dance hall costumes, and sing old-time songs around an old-time tinkling piano.

"We picked a 1906 atmosphere," said Browne, "because that was the last time man was really king and millionaires really lived like millionaires."

The club was a huge success from the start. So were later clubs he organized in Manhattan and the nation's capital.

But they are only the beginning in Browne's big nostalgia bonanza. So many members complained of a lack of robust male conviviality in their own hometowns that Browne now is franchising a nationwide chain.

Twenty clubs are already uncanny way—or being planned—in cities ranging from San Francisco to Atlanta. Browne eventually foresees a network of 200.

They are ideal for America's booming new expense account aristocracy. A lifetime membership costs $25. Any drink—from ginger ale to 50-year-old brandy—is $1.25. Sandwiches are a nickel.

"When you walk into one of the clubs," said Browne, "you are automatically a millionaire, 1906 vintage."

Although they are strictly gentlemen's clubs, members can bring their wives. But wives can't come alone.

"Surprisingly, we haven't had any objections from the wives," said Browne. "Our waitresses have to be pretty, but after five minutes a wife can see they are no threat."

"Most of our members have daughters as old as the waitresses. It's all innocent fun. The waitress — some of them are young actresses — are for looking, not pinching," Browne said.

"If a member dates a waitress, his key is lifted—and she is fired."

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

EVERYTHING HAS A PRICE TAG

For some people one of life's hardest lessons is to learn that goodness of life comes through effort.

These same people are perfectly willing to admit that there can be no business success without effort. They will tell you that the body cannot be made strong without exercise. They will even admit that the finest qualities of character are built up as the result of one's meeting life's hard circumstances and wrestling with them.

That figure of wrestling reminds us of the patriarch Jacob who, we are told in the Book of Genesis, thought he could rise up and cross the stream Jabbok and on the other side meet his brother Esau whom he had wronged, and again hoo-wink that stupid, evil brother.

But as he got to the other side of the stream he found himself grasped by the strong arms of a man—or was it an angel?—and then a wrestling match started. Jacob and his opponent wrestled through the night. In the morning Jacob and his opponent wrestled through the night. In the morning Jacob had a new name, but what was vastly more important, he had a new nature. He thought he could triumph just as he was; God showed him that it would take a new—a renewed—Jacob to win a real victory.

It takes effort to achieve goodness just as it takes effort to achieve success in any field. We wrestle with angels, with men—men often, with ourselves. A million dollars cannot be earned without effort. Neither can good character or self-restraint be otherwise achieved.

Vets Abandon Borrowing Power

By ELMER ROESSNER

It appears that veterans of World War II are abandoning about $65 billion in borrowing power.

In 1944, Congress passed law granting the veterans generous backing for loans. It authorized the Veterans Administration to guarantee loans to qualified veterans for purchasing, building or improving a home; for buying a farm or farm supplies, or for buying a business.

Congress has set July 25, 1960, as the cut-off date for these benefits. An additional year is allowed for processing or actual closing of these loans. Korean veterans, under similar legislation, have until January 31, 1965, to make loan applications.

$40 BILLION BORROWED
 So far, almost 5,000,000 veterans have made GI loans of a total face value of almost $40 billion. But that's only 35 per cent of the veterans eligible.

Conceivably, the other 9,000,000 veterans could ask for more than $65 billion more in home building and farm and business expansion.

However, there are some natural checks. First, many of the veterans don't need government-guaranteed loans for those purposes. Second, if they all did, the government would have to raise the money. It simply guarantees repayment. Veterans first have to find some institution or person to lend the money under Veterans Administration terms. Then the government will guarantee repayment. And veterans (and everyone else) are having a hard time finding money under those terms.

BUY-NOW DRIVES

In the months ahead, there will surely be many campaigns urging veterans to utilize their rights. But these drives will be self-defeating. The more veterans seek lending money, the higher it will be. In fact, most money offered to borrowers today is offered at rates higher than VA limits.

This situation may be a factor in the Federal Reserve's present decision to raise the discount lending rates down. If it did reduce them—and it has powers with which it can—it would channel billion of dollars into the veterans' market, whipping up more inflation than you can get out of an aerosol can.

Nevertheless, eligible veterans who can use these benefits should explore the possibilities of gaining advantages, and builders, farm dealers and suppliers, and business brokers should have no qualms about encouraging veterans to make these loans if they can and if the borrowing benefits them. The existing checks will prevent such loans from becoming greatly inflationary.

AUTHOR FINDS HIS HE MAKES AS MUCH AS HE USES
 Paul Steiner, author of "Useless Information," the encyclopedia of useless facts discovered he is in a limited partnership with New York City. On every copy of his book sold in New York—one of his best markets—he gets a 3-cent royalty. The city gets the same amount in sales tax. Mr. Steiner talked to his lawyer who assured him that there was no way of getting the city to reciprocate by giving him half of its income.

Guests were greeted by the hostesses, and seated at tables where they were served sherbet fruit cups by Miss Joanne Eagles, sister of the hostess. A turkey course with creamed potatoes, green peas, cranberry sauce rolls, iced cakes and tea were served to the 12 guests. The honoree received many useful gifts. She was presented a silver tray by the hostess.

RALEIGH—Fashionable, comfortable shoes are an everyday matter for the average American, with 95 per cent of all our shoe purchases in the low and medium price ranges. It is the theme to be stressed at the American National Exhibition in Moscow.
 Miss Julia McIver, clothing specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service, says that highlights for the fall were recently shown at the New York show. The hues in women's shoes in American leathers will make for an exciting autumn harvest when you go shoe shopping. Soft, supple leathers—smooth, grained, suede, brushed and patents—are vividly dramatized in six leading color families: browns, neutrals, greens, blues, reds, and grays.
 Browns, from mellow golden shades to reddish caramels and deep nutty browns, are seen in a complete range of glove-soft calf and kid, fine-napped sueded and brushed leathers and gleaming lusters and patents. Misty and subtle neutrals, including bone, beige and rutted off-whites, are especially prominent in campus and casual shoes.
 Forest and olive greens, wine and cherry reds, flight blues, and gunmetal and darker grays ranging to charcoal and black add to the richness of the new fall and winter leathers.
 The shoe silhouette is a softer version of the pointed shape, says Miss McIver. Leathers in soft tan-nanges lighten the lightness and femininity of the shoes, in keeping with the softer, more feminine lines of the season's apparel fashions.

MYSTERY BISQUE
 Ingredients: 1 pound medium-sized shrimp, 2 cups water, 1 teaspoon whole mixed spice especially prepared for seafood, 1 can (10 1-4 ounces) frozen condensed cream of potato soup, paprika, cucumber sticks.
 Method: Wash shrimp in cold water. Place in a 1 1/2-quart saucepan with the 2 cups water and spice; simmer 3 to 5 minutes; partly cover saucepan. Allow to stand in covered saucepan off heat until cool enough to handle. Remove shrimp with slotted spoon and save for main course. Strain shrimp stock. Empty potato soup into a saucepan; fill can with shrimp stock (1-1 1/4 cups) and add. Bring slowly to a boil; cool and blend smooth in electric blender. Chill several hours or overnight. Serve in cups and sprinkle with paprika; serve with cucumber sticks. Makes 3 servings. The seafood seasoning gives this bisque a spicy flavor that is a pleasant contrast in a chilled soup.

Multiple-Minded Man Is Novelist Frank Slaughter

By ANDY ANDERSON
JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—A man who quit the medical profession to become a writer so he would have more leisure soon found he was involved in two to four books at once.

A result of this bear-by-the-tail situation is that Dr. Frank Slaughter, after 34 books in 18 years, is among the best selling authors in the country and perhaps the world.

Housewives, he says, can make or break an author because "they are the reading public." They are the reading public.

His paperback reprints sell two million a year and all other editions including book clubs bring his total sales to over three million yearly. Only Erskine Caldwell and mystery writer Earl Stanley Gardner outsell him, Slaughter claims.

afternoon, gives it to a typist, then starts revisions.

Changes Needed

"There are not two consecutive sentences in the first draft which aren't revised," he said.

Slaughter's hands move constantly as he talks. Only now and then can one tell by his speech that he was brought up in North Carolina. He was born in 1908 in Washington, D.C.

His eyes behind rimless glasses are direct. He is extremely neat, does not drink or smoke but objects to neither and is a bargain book-hunter, keeping a constant lookout for reduced-priced source material.

Slaughter was graduated magna cum laude from Duke University in 1926 when he was 18; entered Johns Hopkins in 1926 and received his M.D. four years later. He was a Jacksonville surgeon when he was commissioned a major in the medical corps in 1942. He came out of World War II a lieutenant colonel in 1945.

"At times I've built historical fiction as I thought it might have been and then in later research found out it actually happened — you take a set of humans and they'll usually react in normal fashion under given circumstances."

Cuts 25 to 30 Per Cent

His Biblical novels take about five months for the first draft, his others a month or so less. He writes 2,000 to 3,000 words a day; cuts 25 to 30 per cent out of his manuscripts for the finished product.

Slaughter never stops writing at the end of a sentence, paragraph or chapter. He stops in the middle, "because when I take up work again I'm caught in the sweep of movement. It's very effective for me."

Three Fields

He used to write fiction each morning, nonfiction each afternoon. Now to give his output variety and to keep his interest up he writes a Biblical story, a modern medical story and a serious historical novel. But he is hunting for a fourth field.

His next book, "Lorena," a Civil War novel, will be published by Doubleday Aug. 6 and he has just completed "Pilgrims in Paradise," about a group of pilgrims in the Bahamas in the 1600s.

The project uppermost in his mind is a story with a 2,000 B.C. setting.

Slaughter works 50 hours or more each week. He writes in longhand on a yellow tablet, dictates it each

Five Years Writing — $12

In 1935 he began writing as a hobby and in the next five years sold $12 worth of fiction. He has written two movies and two TV shows. He lectures; has written countless articles and some short stories; and has repeated college offers to teach fiction.

He would like to do a little teaching — if he can ever find time.

Slaughter thinks out his plot ahead of time but says it must come spontaneously or it is harsh.

Judge Blaming Court For New Crime Wave

COLUMBIA (AP) — A federal judge indicated here he thinks U.S. Supreme Court decisions on racial questions are responsible for much of the crime in Northern cities.

"What is influencing that conduct didn't come out of the South," said Judge George Bell Timmerman Sr. "It came out of Washington."

The South Carolina federal court jurist mentioned New York, Washington, Chicago and Detroit as cities having a "rash of law violations" attributed to racial unrest.

Judge Timmerman, in an address Monday to the Columbia Civic Club, accused the Supreme Court with repudiating American history and traditions in some of its rulings.

"The Supreme Court is putting itself above the law," said Judge Timmerman, "and it is putting the people under the law as the Supreme Court makes it."

The judge said the effect of the court's 1954 decision against public school segregation was to declare that "equality equals inequality."

He accused the high court of failing to interpret the U.S. Constitution as it is written, hereby creating new legislation a function limited to Congress.

"We cannot meet the threat to heads in he sand—by agreeing with those who would destroy us," Judge Timmerman added.

Judge Timmerman is the father of former South Carolina Gov. George Bell Timmerman Jr.

Last week the federal judge threw out a civil rights suit brought by a Michigan negro who claimed he was forced to use a segregated waiting room at a Greenville Airport.

"The right of equality before the law, to be free from discrimination, invests no one with authority to require others to accept him as a companion or social equal," his opinion said in part.

THEY OUGHTA BE A LAW! By FAGALY and SHORTEN

President Preparing For Gettysburg Stay

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower cleans up some long-standing Washington appointments today before hopping back to Gettysburg, Pa., for a vacation.

Frantic Father Digs Out His Son

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—A desperate father dug frantically with his bare hands for almost an hour Monday to free his 4-year-old son, trapped by a ditch cave-in.

One is to greet the National Rural Letter Carriers Assn., which opens its convention here today.

The vacation, with golf at the top of the menu, will include considerable work leading up to the President's meetings late this month in Europe with leaders of the Western alliance. He is expected to remain in Gettysburg until near the time of his departure Aug. 26.

Eisenhower Monday set up a Summer White House office in a three-room suite of the Hotel Gettysburg, which overlooks the town's central square. He usually works at his farm outside town when he stays at Gettysburg.

His conferences with European leaders are a prelude to the visit of Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev that starts Sept. 15. Although he notified the small hotel in advance, Eisenhower's appearance there Monday to inspect the office space took townspeople by surprise. By the time Eisenhower left the hotel half an hour later a large crowd had collected to cheer him across the sidewalk.

One aspect of the hotel visit took Eisenhower by surprise too. When he reached the hotel lobby he discovered that he was wearing one street shoe and one spikd golf shoe. He had come directly from the golf course and somehow had changed only one shoe on the way. A secret service man made a quick trip back to the car to collect the other shoe for the President.

Four In Singing Group Charged On Vice Count

CINCINNATI (AP)—Four members of The Platters, a nationally known rock 'n' roll singing group, have been freed on bond under charges of aiding and abetting prostitution.

A professional bondsman put up $1,000 bond each Monday for David Lynch Jr., 30, and Tony Williams, 31, of Hollywood, Calif., Herbert A. Reed, 31, Los Angeles, and Irvin Robi, 26, of El Centro, Calif.

Vice squad detectives arrested the four Negro singers in a raid early Monday at a downtown hotel.

Four 19-year-old girls, three white and one Negro, were also arrested and charged with engaging in prostitution. They were held under $1,000 bond each.

The singers said they had just completed a three-day engagement at the Copa Club in nearby Newport, Ky.

A White House desk, swivel chair, lamp and pen were brought to the hotel office from Washington. The hotel furniture includes three maple chairs, a cane chair, end tables with lamps, a small davenport, and a mirror. There also is a 21-inch television set.

One of the two telephones is booked to the White House. The other is No. 1 on the hotel switchboard.

Hotel Manager Henry M. Scharf, who greeted the President at the hotel door, was asked if the rooms were called the presidential suit. "It will be from now on," he grinned.

Claims Romance Is No Surprise

KRISTIANSAND, Norway (AP)—Steven Rockefeller and the Norwegian girl he marries Aug. 22 plan an extended honeymoon in the hills of Wyoming, friends here said today.

After their return to New York, Anne Marie Rasmussen Rockefeller will enroll at Columbia University to continue art studies she began at New York's Metropolitan Museum during the months Steven was courting her.

Steven has said he would go into "family business," training to play a role in the administration of one of the greatest fortunes in the world.

For the present the son of New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and the one-time maid in the Rockefeller home kept their whereabouts a secret from the world.

Steven, Anne Marie, and her parents motored out of Rasmussen's home village of Sogne, near here for a week of privacy.

The wedding was in the cards for a year and a half, said Andreas Hoelaa, 27-year-old architect who once studied at Columbia in New York. His father bought the old Rasmussen home, a 200-year-old beauty spot, and the two families have been close friends.

"We knew about the romance long before it hit the headlines," he said in an interview.

"Anne Marie told us she was secretly engaged, but she asked us never to tell anyone of her ties to the Rockefeller family as she did not want any sensationalism to spoil it. Steven came here later. He wore blue jeans and rubber

Bicyclist Hurt By Firecracker

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—As David Vandyke, 13, rode his bicycle in East Denver Sunday night, someone threw an object from an automobile. It landed in a newspaper bag slung from the boy's handlebars. "I could hear it sputtering," David said from his hospital bed Monday.

He reached for the object "about the size of a large firecracker"—and tried to hurl it away, but it exploded.

The boy suffered brain concussion, lacerations and the loss of a finger. Physicians said David will recover.

"I'd sure like to know who did this to me and why they did it," said David.

Three boys were playing in a ditch near Billy's home when the walls suddenly caved in. Billy's older brother, Donald, 9, was buried chest deep, and a neighbor boy, Marvin Connet, 8, was buried up to his neck.

Donald managed to free himself and ran for his father. Police and fire departments were called.

The Connet boy had his head out, but he was moaning "I'm going to die, I'm going to die."

After more than 45 minutes of frantic work, Billy was lifted to safety.

Kannapolis Man Fireman Of Year

DURHAM (AP)—Ed A. Johnson, assistant chief of the Kannapolis Volunteer Fire Dept., is North Carolina's Fireman of the Year.

His selection was announced Monday at the opening of the State Firemen's Assn. convention.

SOVIET FAIR CLOSES NEW YORK (AP)—The Soviet Scientific and Cultural Exhibition has ended its 42-day stand here. Attendance was estimated at 1,100,000.

CHAPTER 6

Sue Vincent set white teeth against a soft, red underlip. "I don't like it," she told Link Asbell. "Risking big trouble over just a little talk. For that matter, why should they talk about me? What could they say?"

Asbell made a prowling swing about the room.

"As to the why, there are a couple of reasons. First, I'll say against what your father said they do not like us and they never will. So they were out to stir up an argument and evidently figured some slighting talk was the best and quickest way. For the rest, well, there's been a lot going on around Big Five that hardly rates as legitimate ranch business. And when people don't like you it doesn't take much to start them talking."

Deepening color stole through Sue Vincent's cheeks and her head tilted in a small flare of defiance.

"This activity you mention—would you by any chance be referring to my party tonight?"

"And a flock of others like it?"

"Is there any good reason why I shouldn't have my friends in for a social evening if I want to do so?"

"None at all—within the bounds of common sense. But as Tonio says, life can't be all fiesta."

"So! Tonio would dare be critical, too, would he? Which is impertinence on his part, and I'll tell him so. If he and Rosa don't like the way things are around here, they can move out!"

"Who—hold it! That's no way to talk. That's spoiled kid stuff. Asbell perched on the edge of the table and looked down at her. "In fact, you should be ashamed of yourself."

Her small flare of defiance swiftly became a much larger one. "Careful, Link! There are some things you can say to me, and some that you can't. You may be foreman of Big Five, but nothing more than that. Please remember that!"

Far back in Asbell's eyes a flicker of feeling showed, then quickly faded. All expression left his face, and he spoke quickly.

"Sure, I'm only foreman. But Mike Vincent made me such, and when I took on the job a lot of obligations went with it, some spoken, some unspoken. I'm trying to live up to both kinds."

Sue Vincent was on her feet, now, drawing her robe tightly about her, defiance really blazing.

"These obligations," she challenged—"would any of them include advising Mike Vincent's daughter on her social activities? If so, please understand that she appreciates neither the advice nor the concern, and suggests that you and all the other hired hands tend to your own affairs and leave her free to attend to hers!"

She was slim and taut and to Link Asbell, the fairest thing under the stars. Also, at this moment, the most aggravating. Anger stirred in him.

"All right," he said with some harshness. "I'd hoped you'd show some sense of your own accord, but it seems you won't. So I'll just have to hit out. Among other things I learned from Mike Vincent was how to recognize signs and be guided by them. Which I'm doing. You know what I found up at the Rosebud Creek line camp. Well, there are things about it which don't look right to me. Signs, Mike Vincent would have called them. Then, in town tonight, Jonas Dalmar and Bardo Sampson go out of their way to stir up a ruckus with me. Why? Another sign, pointing to something."

"Signs, you call them. Signs of what?" demanded Sue Vincent.

"What are you driving at?"

"This," Asbell said curtly. "I'm trying to make you understand that Big Five could very well be facing something aimed at its very life. And because of that, there are so many things to think about more important than a continual round of good times."

"Nonsense!" she scoffed. "Pure nonsense! Naturally I feel terrible about Packy. I've thought of nothing else since you first told me about him. I could weep my eyes out if it would do any good. But I'm certain what happened to him was accidental. Which brings us to your fight in the Imperial. No doubt Jonas Dalmar and Bardo Sampson had been drinking, and because of that, were loose-tongued. You took offense at some remark they made. It was as simple a thing as that. Now you're trying to read some deep and ominous significance into it all. Again I say nonsense!"

Asbell gave her another moment of somber regard. He shook his head.

"You never used to be so cussed contrary. And you used to be smart—smart as a whip."

"Meaning," she said, with swift perversity, "that I'm no longer so? That I've become stupid?"

Again he shook his head.

"It's no use. I never could get anywhere with you trying to win a point with words. So I'll have just one more say, then call it a night. Here it is. Starting tomorrow, I don't want to see Frank Dalmar hanging around this ranch any more!"

For a moment she was too startled to speak. She just stared at him. Then the storm broke.

"That will do! You've said enough Link Asbell! You've said more than enough! You presume far beyond your right. Frank Dalmar is my friend—my very good friend. He is welcome at any time. And you're making me very angry with you."

"That," he admitted "is pretty plain." Through the somberness of his mood crept the bare ghost of a mirthless grin. "But wrapped up in that robe and looking more like a sleepy kid than the owner of a big ranch, your mad kind of bounces off me. Best thing you can do is go to bed."

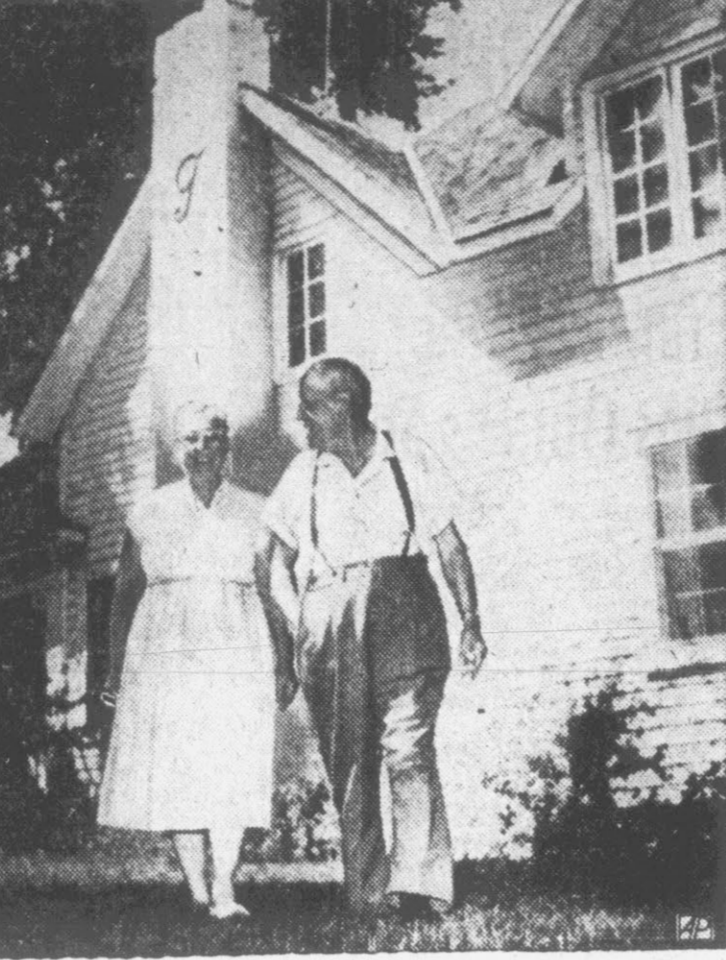

She faced him, her head high, and now her cheeks went chilled and set. When she spoke her words sounded slightly choked, as though they were tight in her throat.

"Link—I'm warning you again. Keep out of my private affairs!"

He pushed a weary hand across his face. He didn't want to hurt her. Yet, here was a thing, now that it had been brought into the open, which had to be carried through. Doggedly, he went on.

"I don't pretend to know how a woman's mind works, or her heart either, for that matter. But this I do know. You're an intelligent girl, Sue Vincent, and you've got courage. So, why don't you face up to a fact and admit it? Which is—that they do not like us and they never will. And that Frank Dalmar is out of the enemy camp. Why don't you admit that fact?"

All the while he spoke, she faced him, with that set chilled look. Then, of a sudden, her eyes flooded with tears and she whirled away to the room's inner door, opened it and was swiftly gone, leaving behind the echo and fragrance of a presence that was warm and disturbing.

"With you reminding me of the fact twice in the last five minutes, I'm not liable to forget it," Asbell said quietly. "Yet, so long as I am, I intend to look after Big Five interests as though they were my own. I'm doing it, now."

"You are not!" she flamed. "You're being a perfect idiot. And you're making me very angry with you."

Little Rock Segregationists Prepare To Stage Rally

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Segregationists rounded up support today for a rally on the state capitol lawn to ask Gov. Orval E. Faubus to "do something" about impending integration of two Little Rock white high schools. The schools are to open Wednesday.

Margaret Jackson, president of the League of Central High Mothers, said she had had "dozens of calls" from people wanting to know what could be done to stop integration.

"So in response to this," she said, "we are inviting every patriotic citizen to meet us on the state capitol grounds to pay tribute to our great governor and tell him that we need and want his continued leadership in our fight against federal dictatorship."

Faubus has remained silent on his plans to take a hand against the impending desegregation. But he has said he does have plans. The governor stopped integration in the high schools last fall by closing them. But the law he used has been struck down by federal court.

The Little Rock school board issued a statement saying it was confident "the people of Little Rock will accept this challenge to resume the peaceful operation of its high schools. There is no reason to anticipate anything else."

The school board has assigned three Negroes to Central and three to Hall high. It used a court-approved pupil placement law to keep out some 55 other Negroes who applied to attend the white schools.

Support for another last-minute segregationist maneuver was not evident. A boycott of Main Street stores began Monday. Amis Guthridge, attorney for the segregationist Capital Citizens Council, charging that Main Street merchants were helping Negro leaders to obtain integration.

But spot checks of stores showed plenty of customers and Chamber of Commerce officials ignored the threat.

Guthridge also urged persons not to patronize firms which had Negro employees.

The segregationist leader said he opposed violence at the school openings—such as that which occurred at Central in 1957 when nine Negroes entered. Federal troops restored order then.

Reports that "simulated widespread violence" would be staged at Central were carried by the Arkansas Gazette. The newspaper said city officials had heard the capitol grounds rally would flow on to Central high, where firecrackers would be exploded and faked fist-fights staged to create an illusion of mass disorder.

But Police Chief Gene Smith and Mayor Werner Knopp said they had not heard any such reports.

Guthridge, Mrs. Jackson and other segregationists also denied knowledge of them and Mrs. Jackson called them "real funny."

Smith has ordered all patrolmen to be on duty Wednesday. Identification cards will be issued to students and faculty, to keep unauthorized persons away from the schools. The school board warned that any infraction of rules in the schools would be dealt with firmly.

It appeared that only one Negro would attend Central. Mrs. L. C. Bates, Arkansas president of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, said one of the three assigned there was attending summer school at Chicago and another apparently had enough credits for graduation.

Fifty students of defunct Raney High School, a private, white institution, rallied on the school grounds Monday to protest integration. Waving Confederate flags, they also displayed placards and banners reading, "Should your children call you daddy or coward?" and "have cowards, will integrate."

Bits Of History Are Made Into A Fence

VICTOR RAHNER... walled in with history.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP)—When Victor Rahner decided to build a fence in his back yard, he had some unusual material to work with, including a piece of coffin dating back to 1574.

The idea of a historic fence came to Rahner when work started on widening a street near his home.

Rahner, who had collected historic objects for years, joined others in hunting souvenirs uncovered when the dredge started pumping sand from the bayfront.

He found such souvenirs as pottery, broken bottles, ammunition pellets and parts of old ships.

"I collected a number of objects and friends gave me quite a few," he says. "I had planned to build a fence in the back yard for several years so I got the idea of embedding these historic objects in the fence."

To keep everything on a historic plane, Rahner hired Louis Solana to put the fence together. Solana is a descendant of the oldest documented family in the continental United States as well as a brick mason.

The fence was built primarily of brick and coquina rock, much of it used in early construction in this city. The chunks of coquina came from the old governor's palace, a fort, city library, old city gates, oldest house and other historic buildings while renovations were being made.

Bits of pottery, olive jars, rum bottles and other items were added to the fence for a colorful effect. There also are bottles of sand, ink wells, ammunition pellets, steer horns found in the bay and a piece of an old Spanish sailing vessel.

The prized item is a piece of the coffin of Pedro Menendez de Aviles, who founded this city in 1565 and died in 1574.

Paint Industries Now Use Marbles

NEW YORK (AP) — Marbles, one of the most enduring playthings, have been put to work by the paint industry.

Manufacturers of spray-on paints in aerosol cans place a marble in each can, reports the American Can Co. These marbles are identical to the "shooters" used by schoolyard marble champs.

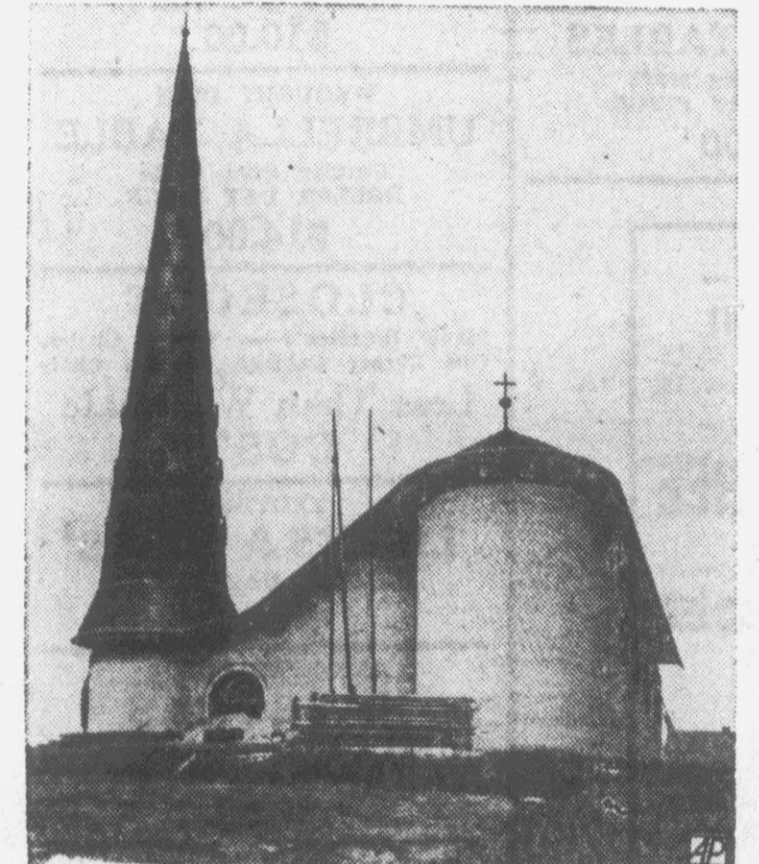

The paint is mixed by shaking the can. The marble breaks up pigment which may have settled between uses and rattles freely when the paint is well mixed. One manufacturer uses more than 20 million marbles a year.

Can't Fly, But Has Business

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Guy Drake can't fix airplanes or fly them but at 27 he's head of the Newark Air Service at Newark Airport, one of the country's largest general aviation bases.

"Aviation-wise I'm just a neophyte," says the blond executive who took over the family business a year ago and since then has made it pay.

Drake has started serving posts of coffee to pilots and customers who look like they need a lift. "It's just a question of applying the important service philosophy of keeping the customer happy," he says.

Stock Market Peace Scare Is Bringing Forth Some Doubts

By SAM DAWSON
 NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market's peace scare is bringing forth a bevy of doubters. Everyone hopes that the Eisenhower-Khrushchev talks can live up to advance billing and lead to a thaw in the cold war. But just how much of a thaw is likely and how it would affect American industry is another matter. Those who doubt that more than a temporary thaw can be expected have precedents for their views. They can point to the last summit meeting in Geneva where Soviet promises were made—and later broken. And if the forthcoming talks bring more promises, there's considerable difference of opinion as to how much of a cut in defense spending would follow. Some believe the most that could happen would be a drop in defense spending of around 10 billion dollars a year. That is the amount that fell in the two years after the end of the Korean war. Those two years saw the 1953-54 recession. But they also saw the start of the business boom that lasted into 1957. And with the launching of the first sputnik came the big build-up in U.S. defense spending that has thrown the federal budget out of kilter and stifled hopes for tax cuts. Supposing that the Eisenhower-Khrushchev talks do lead to a cold war thaw that looks trustworthy, what would happen to the economy? If defense spending can be cut by 10 billion dollars or more, the first to feel it adversely would be the defense industries. And the next to feel it may be the taxpayer—and pleasantly. That makers of armaments would be hurt is accepted as a truism by stock traders. But many companies making weapons also are heavily involved in the space age. The urge to conquer outer space may well go on unabated with or without a cold war thaw. Communities where armament factories are a mainstay would be hit hard by a 10-billion-dollar drop in defense spending — supposing that to be possible after the summit talks. But observers point to the big upsurge in the over-all economy in 1955 when defense spending was 10 billion dollars less than in 1953. Consumers' peacetime needs more than took up the slack. The biggest hope this time would lie in the chance of a cut in federal spending that would justify a comparable cut in federal taxes. If this puts more money into consumer pockets, many economists hold that increased civilian spending would keep the over-all economy on a high level and might again lead it to new heights. In Mrs. Elizabeth Kraiwec's office, she saw a painting of New York on the wall. As she stared at the icy blue pigment, the lonely looking bridge and skyscrapers tears formed in her eyes. "I can handle my husband but not that big, cold city," she said and headed back home.

Retrieves Own Stolen Pick-Up

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. (AP) — Glenn McNeese was walking along the street when he saw his stolen pickup truck with a stranger at the wheel. He borrowed a car from a friend and gave chase as the stranger fled. McNeese overtook the thief six miles from town, forced the pickup to the side of the road, climbed in and drove it and the occupant to jail.

Air Force Cancels Big Engine Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force has canceled a 100-million-dollar program for an advanced aircraft engine using high-energy chemical fuel. It appeared to be another step in the switch from manned aircraft to rocket missiles as the chief instrument of modern warfare. The Defense Department has been under heavy criticism for continuing development of expensive new manned aircraft programs instead of concentrating on missiles. The contract canceled Monday was for development of the General Electric Co.'s J93-5 engine. The action also knocks out of operation a new 45-million dollar chemical plant built by the Olin Mathieson Chemical Corp. near Buffalo, N.Y., which was to produce the fuel. The J93-5 engine was an improved version of the J93-3. Both engines were slated for the 1970 bomber and the F108 Rapier fighter-interceptor. These planes are designed to fly 2,000 miles an hour at altitudes of 70,000 feet. An Air Force spokesman said the prototypes of these planes will not be affected by the cancellation. They will use the earlier J93-3 engine and still attain the planned speeds, he said. The advanced turbo-jet engine had an afterburner that would use boron fuel to give additional bursts of speed. Boron is a non-metallic chemical element. The F108 is to be completed in 1960, with the B70 slated for production 18 months later. An informed official, who refused to be quoted by name, said he believed the B70 and F108 would never get beyond the prototype stage and would never go into production. The United States has 7 per cent of the world's total population.

Boys Play With Matches And Die

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP) — Two little boys played with matches in a basement room Monday. They burned the house down and died screaming in the flames. Dead were Robert and Rocky Wilson, aged 3 and 2, youngest of the eight children of Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow H. Wilson. A playmate, Barbara Stevens, 9, told police the boys were striking matches, then stamping them out. Barbara escaped from the basement, which had only one exit.

Mays Sparks Giant Win

Complacency Big Problem In Colt Camp

(First in a series on NFL prospects) By GEORGE BOWEN Associated Press Sports Writer BALTIMORE (AP) — Complacency is the biggest bugaboo hovering around the squad of the Baltimore Colts this season.

good prospect of making the squad as relief for the sturdy regulars, Raymond Berry and Jim Mutscheller. Barring injury, no one is going to break into the Colt mountainous wall of defense — Gino Marchetti, Art Donovan, Gene Lipscomb and Don Joyce.

Every first line position is manned by the same player as last year.

Ewbank has made only two trades, substitute offensive guard Fred Thurston for linebacker Marv Matuszak of Green Bay and substitute quarterback George Shaw to the New York Giants for two draft choices next year.

The linebacking positions were rated by Ewbank as the one he wanted to strengthen most. Even without Matuszak and Leo Sanford, who is questionable because of two knee operations, the Colts remain formidable with the trio of Bill Pellington, Dick Szymanski and Don Shinnick.

Ewbank looks upon the release of Shaw as "picking up another player." With the sensational John Unitas cemented in the quarterback spot, Ewbank is tutoring Andy Nelson and Ray Brown as "in case" signal callers. Brown and Nelson both played regularly as defensive halfbacks last season and Brown also will do the punting.

The rest of the first string of offensive backfield is set with the same L. G. Dupre and Lenny Moore at the halves and Alan Ameche at full.

The only question remaining is who will be the second string halfbacks. There are three holdovers, speed demerit but weak pass catching Lenny Lyles, Jack Call and Jackie Simpson. Curly Johnson from Houston and Ferd Burket from Southeastern Oklahoma are the only rookies with an outside chance of sticking.

Two rookie ends, Jerry Richardson of Wofford and Dave Sherer of Southern Methodist, have a

By JOE REICHLER Associated Press Sports Writer Pity poor Willie Mays. He's having a bad year. He's hitting under .300. His home run output is way below par. Even his fielding has been somewhat less than spectacular.

San Francisco fans can't understand all these raves that emanate from the East where Willie Mays was the pride of the Polo Grounds. Last year while Mays was struggling to reach .350 and hit 30 home runs (he finished with .347 and 29 homers), it was a rookie, Orlando Cepeda, who became the darling of Seals Stadium.

This year Mays continued to be just a mirage, an over-rated player. The real thing, the new darling, has been another Willie—Willie McCovey.

McCovey captured the fancy of the fans by hitting four home runs in his first eight games as a Giant. He won game after game since his elevation from Phoenix of the Pacific Coast League late last month.

McCovey gave the Giants a much-needed shot in the arm with his prodigious hitting. But Willie Mays hasn't been exactly loafing either during the past week. Take last night, for instance. Shut out by Larry Jackson for eight innings, the Giants rallied for three runs in the ninth to defeat the St. Louis Cardinals 3-2. All Mays did was drive in the first Giant run with a single and score the winning run on a double by still another Willie — Willie Kirkland.

The victory, fifth in the last six games, extended the Giants' first place lead over the idle Los Angeles Dodgers to two games. Milwaukee, also idle, fell three games back. No other National League team was scheduled.

In the two scheduled American League games, Cleveland defeated Kansas City 6-4 and the New York Yankees downed the Boston Red Sox 7-4 in 10 innings.

It was Mays who either scored or drove in the key run in each of the last five Giants victories. In the only game they've lost since Tuesday, Aug. 4, Mays sat on the bench with an injury.

Here's the rundown: Aug. 5—San Francisco 4, Milwaukee 1. With the score tied at 1-1 in the eighth, Mays doubled home the winning run. McCovey followed with his second homerun.

Aug. 6—San Francisco 7, Milwaukee 1. Mays got three hits including a home run, drove in a run and scored two.

Aug. 7—San Francisco 3, Cincinnati 2. Mays got three hits and singled in the winning run in the ninth after making a spectacular catch of Johnny Temple's bid for a three bagger. Willie was injured crashing into the fence in making the catch.

Aug. 8—Cincinnati 9, San Francisco 6. The injury kept Mays out of the game.

Aug. 9—San Francisco 4, Cincinnati 3. Orlando Cepeda's 10th inning homerun won the game but it was Mays' eighth inning single that made it possible. He scored on an infield out to give the Giants a temporary 3-2 lead.

Aug. 10—Pinch hitter Leon Wagner opened the winning ninth with a single and Jimmy Davenport followed with another single. Mays' hit drove in pinch runner Jose Pagan to cut the Cards' lead to 2-1. McCovey grounded to second and Davenport scored the tying run, beating Don Blasingame's throw to the plate. After Cepeda went out, Kirkland doubled to score Mays with the winning run.

The Cardinals threatened in their half of the ninth. With one out, singles by Gene Oliver and Alex Grammas and a wild pitch by Mike McCormick, third Giant pitcher, put runners on second and third. The young southpaw then fanned Dick Gray and got Ray Jablonski to ground out ending the game.

Stu Miller was the winning pitcher in relief of Sam Jones, who gave up two runs and four hits in six innings before bowing out for a pinch hitter. The loss was charged to Jackson, who got ineffectual relief from left-hander Dean Stone and right-hander Ernie Broglio in the ninth.

Indians Rap KC; Yanks Win Again

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer
Rocky Colavito, the guy who must hit if the Indians are to win the American League pennant, is back on the beam and all Cleveland fans are breathing easier today.

In 25 games before Monday night, Colavito managed only 17 hits in 94 times at bat for a .181 average and the Indians dropped from a first place tie with Chicago to three games in back of the league leading White Sox.

In five times at bat Monday Colavito, hammered a homerun, a double and two singles. He drove in two runs and scored twice to take personal charge of the Indians 6-4 victory over Kansas City.

The triumph inched the Indians up to within 2½ games of the idle White Sox.

In the only other league scheduled game, the New York Yankees defeated the Boston Red Sox 7-4 in 10 innings for their fifth straight triumph.

The San Francisco Giants nipped the St. Louis Cardinals 3-2 in the only game played in the National League.

Colavito's clutching moved him nearer to league leader Harmon Killebrew in the battle for the homerun and runs batted in titles. Rocky hit his 33rd four-bagger in the fourth inning off loser Rip Coleman for Cleveland's first run. That put him two behind Killebrew. His two runs batted in boosted his total to 85, one under Killebrew's total.

Cal McLish was credited with the victory, his 14th, although he needed help from Jack Harshman in the eighth.

The Yankees staged a real Merriwell finish to defeat the Red Sox. Held to four hits and no runs through eight innings by Frank Sullivan, and trailing 4-0, they put together a walk, hit batsman and four singles to score four runs in the ninth to tie. Elston Howard, Heck Lopez, Cletis Boyer and pinch hitter Norm Siebern got the hits, all singles.

In the tenth, two walks and singles by Yogi Berra, Howard and Lopez, off loser Al Schroll and Nelson Chittum, produced three runs for New York.

Whitey Ford, fourth Yankee pitcher, was credited with the victory, his 12th against six defeats. Boston outhit the Yankees, 15 to 11. Pumpsie Green, rookie Negro infielder, rapped four hits for the Red Sox. He drove in one run and scored two.

The victory enabled the Yankees to break their third place tie with Baltimore but still left them 11 games in back of the White Sox.

Preparing For PC Is Big Ordeal For Bucs

(Editor's Note: This is the fourth in a series of articles written by Coach Jack Boone of East Carolina College.)

PREPARING FOR THE OPENING GAME

SECOND WEEK OF PRACTICE

Since our opening game is with Presbyterian and in Clinton, South Carolina on the 12th of September, we will not be burdened with the extra work that comes with playing at home. Also, this will give Dr. Jorgensen, our Athletic Director, a little more time to get numbers on those seats, get bleachers set up, lights straightened out and focused just right. The extra week will give us a little more time to work on our Pirates Club. Sure want to fill that North Side this year.

The varsity boys have finished registering and are now reporting for practice—Our plans call for a day of running, putting in our offense for Presbyterian College. The day is finished with passing and kicking drills. Although the field is filled with football players, our main emphasis is on the varsity, as we have only five days left before our opening game.

After supper, the boys will report to the gym for their last scouting report on P.C. After going over our opponents probable offense, defense and personnel; the squad is adjourned for the night. It is 10:30—they will have to get up early to meet those classes.

Washington Pilot Conducts Lecture

School is now getting underway and the coaches are registering incoming students in the Wright Building. Classes will begin tomorrow—got to cut out two practices a day—only one workout which will begin at 3 p.m. I know the boys won't mind this, as those two workouts are rough! It does not give enough time for the practice uniforms to dry out.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cookie Lavagetto, a usually mild-mannered manager, has changed his manner in an attempt to take up the listless and losing Washington Senators.

For 30 minutes Monday night, he sternly lectured his players, who have lost 22 of their last 23 games.

Lavagetto will see whether his new approach has worked when the last-place Senators open a two-game series against the Yankees in New York Wednesday night. They have no game today.

It didn't show any immediate results. Right after his lecture in Philadelphia, the Senators went out and dropped a 3-1 exhibition game to the Phillies, the National League's cellar team.

Pros Set Sights For Big Motor City Golf Tourney

By DAVE DILES
AP Sports Writer

DETROIT (AP)—A bulky field of 169 entries made qualifying necessary today for the $25,000 Motor City Open golf tournament.

The Professional Golfers' Assn. restricts the starting field to 150 and had 80 players here exempt from qualifying. That left 89 players to compete today over the Meadowbrook Country Club course for the 70 remaining spots.

Late withdrawals included Chandler Harper, Bo Winger, Don January and Ernie Vossler. But of the top 15 money-winners on the current tour, only one will be absent. Youthful Ken Venturi, recent winner of the Chicago Open, is passing up the Motor City event to be with his family.

No one dares pick a favorite. The field is so classy that most professional Chick Harbert has predicted that the 72-hole course record of 273 will be threatened. Dr. Cary Middlecoff and Lloyd Mangrum each shot 273, bettering par by 11 strokes, in their deadlock for the 1949 tournament. That was the year Middlecoff and Mangrum went 11 holes in a sudden-death playoff without deciding the championship.

Darkness set in, the match was called and Middlecoff and Mangrum became co-champions.

Ben Hogan won the first Motor City open in 1948 but passed up this year's event.

The Meadowbrook course, which hosted the tournament in 1948 and 1954, is a rolling layout that extends for 6,616 yards for tournament play. Par there is 71 and first place is worth $3,500.

TV Is Large Factor In Minor Leagues

By FRITZ HOWELL
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Commissioner Ford Frick, who signs the World Series and All-Star game telecast contracts, believes television and modern transportation are huge factors in the dwindling interest in minor league baseball.

He also says he believes it undesirable to return to 59 minor leagues, which operated in 1949. Only 21 are now in existence.

"The telecasting of major league games into minor league territory is always cited as the primary cause," he said. "Unquestionably this practice, which incidentally we have no way of controlling, has affected minor league interest but so, too, has the impact of television as an entertainment."

"A great many people who used to go to ball games now stay home in the evenings to watch their favorites in television."

"To me, more important than any of this is the fact that modern transportation and modern communications have made it possible for people in smaller towns to enjoy the advantages of big town living."

Back in 1947 a survey of the minors by President George M. Trautman disclosed that 343 of 344 clubs said they wanted their games broadcast by radio, whether compensated or not.

In 1950, when major league broadcasts started flooding the airways, the late Robert L. Finch, minor league promotional director, wrote in his authoritative "Story of Minor League Baseball":

"The business managers of minor leagues throughout the nation think they know the answer—the death of minor league baseball."

His words were prophetic.

On the crumbling of the minors, the commissioner said:

"I don't believe we will ever again see 59 minor leagues in operation. Nor do I think it is desirable."

"I would rather see 30 solid, financially sound leagues than to return to a 50-league level with half the leagues on the verge of bankruptcy."

NEXT: President Warren Giles looks at the minor league problem.

Three Conquer Asheville Par

ASHEVILLE (AP)—Joe Bryan of St. Petersburg Fla., and Richard Rendleman of Salisbury carried three-over-par 68s into today's second qualifying round for the Country Club of Asheville Invitation Golf Tournament.

Erly 1. Rendleman and three others were the only players in the field of 176 to conquer the par 71, 6,290-yard course.

Tied at 69 were Jerry Tarnow of Tampa, Fla., and John Sronce of Asheville. Frank Gross of Asheville had a 70.

The low 32 after today's round will make up the championship flight. The others will compete in flights of 16. Match play begins Wednesday.

Deadlocked at 72 Monday were Joe Byars of Tampa, Fla., Bie-man McKenzie Jr. of Asheville, Fleming Browne, Asheville, Jack Smith, Clearwater, Fla., Armin Smith of Tampa, and Brad Anderson of Greensboro.

Durelle To Go For Knockout Wednesday

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer

MONTREAL (AP)—Yvon Durelle vowed today that if he floors Archie Moore first again he's going to finish him off and grab the old master's light heavyweight crown.

"I'll go after him with all I've got," said the fighting fisherman from Baie Anne, N.B. "He won't get off my hook."

The rugged Canadian and British Empire 175-pound ruler gets a second crack at Moore's world title at the forum here Wednesday. He's a 3-1 underdog despite the facts he dumped the American four times, three times in the first round, before being knocked out in the 11th round last Dec. 10.

"I got bad advice from my seconds that night," Yvon said bitterly. "After I had Moore down three times in the first round they told me to box in the second round. Me box? I don't know how to box. I should have gone right after him. I would have had the championship if I did."

The 29-year-old challenger is grim compared to his happy-go-lucky attitude before the first fight. He said his fishing boats have been losing money lately and he's turning over his $15,000 guarantee for the fight, a puny sum compared to Moore's $175,000 guarantee.

Just talking about the figures got him so upset Monday that he staged short-lived revolt against signing a return bout contract. This pact calls for each fighter to get 30 per cent of the receipts for another fight if Durelle should beat Moore Wednesday.

After telling newsmen that he would toss the return contract out of the window, he changed his attitude following talks with Manager Chris Shaban and Truman Gibson, president of the National Boxing Enterprises of Chicago. The NBC paid 100,000 for the U.S. television rights. The fight will be seen on the ABC network starting at 9 p.m. (EST) but will not be shown in Canada and some U.S. border cities.

Both Durelle and Moore wind up their training today with light limbering exercises.

"I weighed 175 (the division limit) Sunday and won't have any trouble with the scales," said the 42-year-old Moore. "I feel real

Fullmer And Basilio Fight For Title

By ALAN CLINE
SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The oldtime fight manager, walking into Billy Newman's downtown gym, heard a tremendous splat of something hitting a heavy bag.

"Holy cow," the manager cried. "Find me a contract. Any tiser who can hit like that is a cinch to take a title."

Sorry, old timer, that noise you heard was a baseball bat — not a fist — hitting the heavy bag.

Middleweight Gene Fullmer, an ex-champ, was on the swinging end. And he's signed.

Fullmer and Carmen Basilio fight Aug. 28 at the Cow Palace for the National Boxing Assn. middleweight title. The NBA took the crown from Sugar Ray Robinson for lack of activity. Both contenders are former champions who lost to Robinson.

Fullmer's manager, Marv Jensen, started the bat routine.

He painted a bag with baseballs and told his son Ray, 13, to swing away in their West Jordan, Utah, gym. Marv thought it would help the lad learn to keep his eye on the ball.

Then the manager decided it would be good for his fighter.

Jensen claims and Fullmer agree that whapping the bat into the bag strengthens the shoulder muscles, wrists and hands and improves timing.

TAXES FAMILY

If these pictures have changed since you made your Will . . .

It's time to review your Estate plans

Perhaps you made a good Will when taxes were low and before the children grew up and got married. Changes in your family and tax pictures may have made that good Will into a "bad" one.

If your Will is several years old, it will probably pay you to reexamine it closely. If you are married, taking advantage of the "marital deduction" might save your estate thousands of tax dollars. If there is a baby in your family, he's not in your Will, no matter how much you want him to be. Other recent changes aren't covered either!

HERE ARE some typical patterns for stone patios: A. Irregular, not fitted. B. Irregular, fitted. C. Semi-regular. D. Random regular.

By ANDREW C. LANG
AP Newfeatures

Building a patio with natural stone or flagstone is a reasonably inexpensive way to add to your home's usefulness, appearance and resale value.

There are two methods for building a patio — wet and dry construction. The former uses a concrete-setting bed and the latter a sand-setting bed. Advantages of the wet method are cement joints, more durability, cleaning ease and the fact that the patio can be built above ground level. Advantages of the dry method are lower cost, less work and skill required for the building and the fact that grass can be grown between the slate or flagstone pieces.

Solid Method

In the wet construction system, the materials needed are crushed stone or cinders, form boards, two wooden stakes for each corner, sand, cement and nails. The form boards should be 1 by 10 inches or 1 by 12 inches, depending on the thickness of the stone used and long enough to enclose the patio perimeter. Correct board width can be estimated on the basis of 9 inches plus the thickness of the stone.

Excavate an area slightly larger than the patio with a shovel. Its depth should be below the frost line, usually about 10 inches. Put the form boards in place so that they completely enclose the patio area and their top edges are even and level with the top of the proposed patio. Next, secure them firmly with the wood stakes about 16 inches from the corners. Fill the excavation with crushed stone or cinders to a point within 4 inches, plus the flagstone's thickness, of the top. Rake this material level, wet it down and tamp it firm.

For the concrete, either buy the ready-mixed type that requires only the addition of water or mix your own — using three parts of crushed stone, two parts of sand and one part of cement. Pour the mixture over the tamped stone or cinders to within one inch, plus the flagstone's thickness, of the top. Finish reasonably level with the rake.

Allow the concrete to set for 48 hours. Thoroughly mix dry three or four parts of sand to one part of cement. Add only enough water to hold the mix together. Spread this over the concrete slab to within 1/4 inch of the top of the form, approximately two square feet at a time, and dust with dry cement. Butter the bottom side of each slate or flagstone piece with a mixture of pure cement and water and put it firmly in place. Tamp with a wooden block to insure the bond.

Arrange Pattern First

For fast, sure results, it's advisable to lay out the entire flagstone or slate pattern alongside the concrete slab. Starting at one corner, work away from it so that you won't have to kneel on the stones already set. A true board or mason's level will help establish a level surface for the finished patio. Immediately sponge off any excess cement that oozes out over the stone surface. After a 48-year period, any cement adhering to the stone will have to be washed off with a solution consisting of 95 per cent water and 5 per cent muriatic acid.

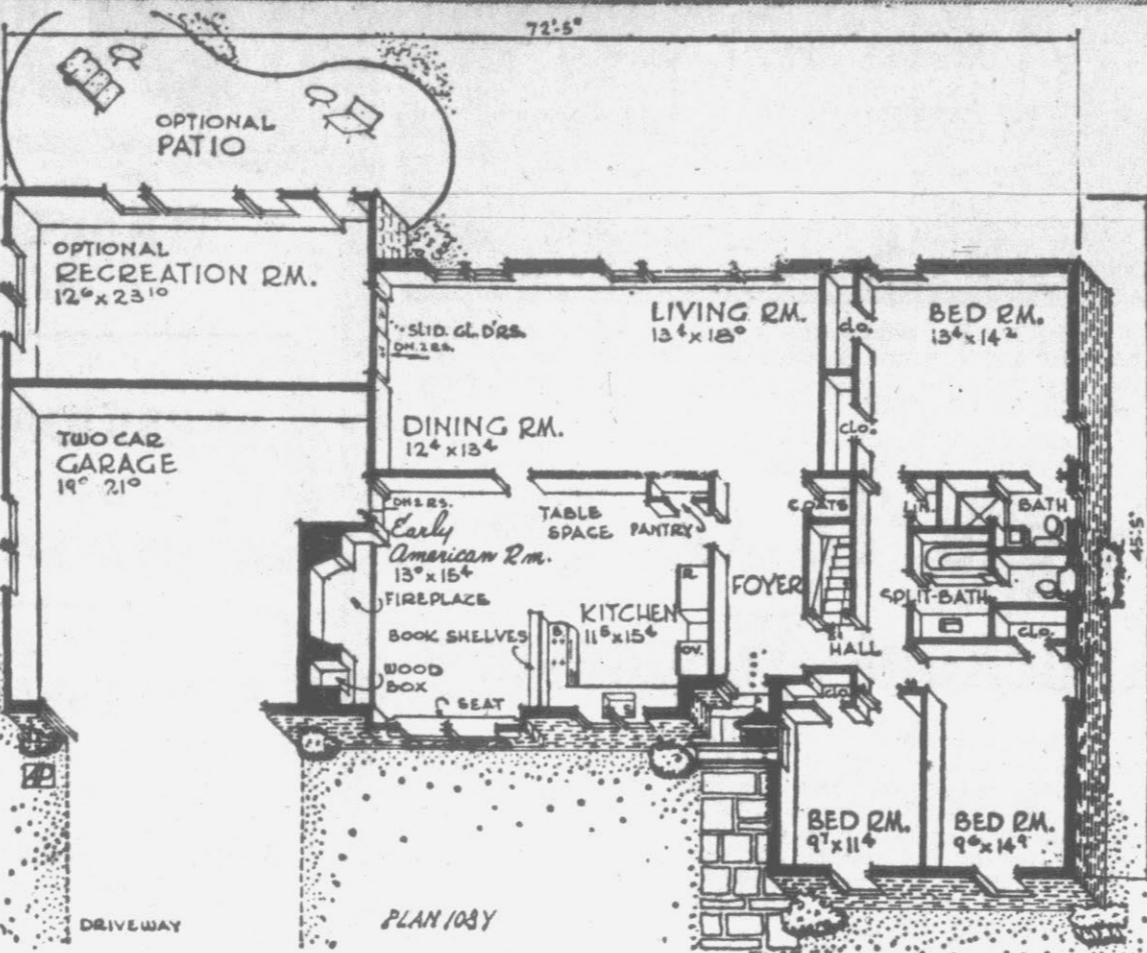

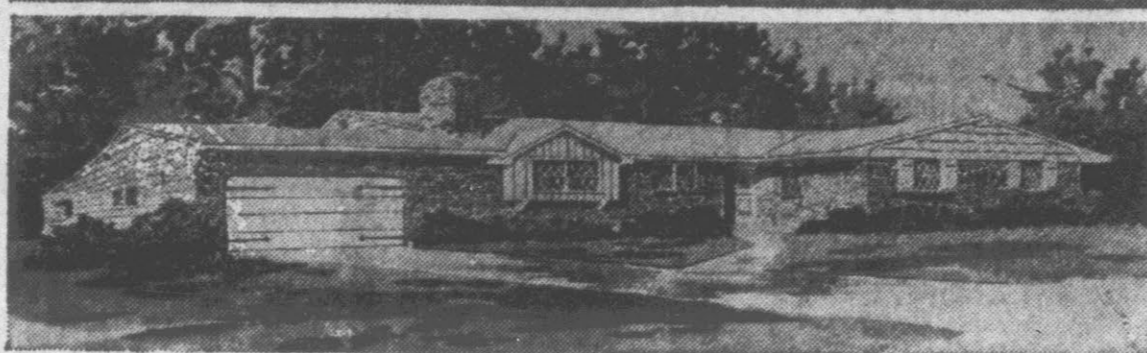

In the dry construction method, the materials needed are sand, 1 by 10 boards, wood stakes and nails. Excavate the ground to a depth of 6 inches and set up the form boards as in the wet method. Wet and tamp the earth at the bottom of the excavated area. Fill to within 1/2 inch of the top of the form with a sand-earth mix, leveling with the rake. Set each flagstone or slate piece in place and tamp with a wood block until level.

Boys Brave Herd To Be 'First'

ROCKFORD, Ill. (AP) — Freshman Wayne Perkins and senior Joseph Almburg refused to be cowed in their determination to be the first students to sleep on Rockford College's new campus. They borrowed a tent and sleeping bags to spend a night in the field where college dormitories will be erected this fall. "It was wonderful," Almburg says. "But once during the night we had to hold off a herd of cows by flashing lights at them."

Mail By Rocket Delivered Late

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A Thor-Able rocket carried two letters 5,000 miles in half an hour last May. But it was 2 1/2 months before they were delivered.

This is the story, as disclosed by the Air Force Missile Test Center Monday.

The Thor-Able hurled its nose cone 15,000 miles an hour to an Atlantic target off Ascension Island on May 21. The cone contained letters addressed to Maj. Gen. Donald N. Yates, commander of the test center, and Col. Henry F. Warden, deputy commander for tests.

A recovery ship plucked the cone from the ocean and brought it to Cape Canaveral. The letters were not found, however, and officials thought they may have burned up in the intense re-entry heat encountered by the cone.

A train carried the cone to Philadelphia for study. Two weeks later technicians there found the letters crammed among the many telemetry instruments in the front of the cone.

The undamaged mail was flown back to the test center and placed on the desk of Lt. Col. Thomas W. Morgan, Thor project officer, who sent them in the first place. Morgan was on temporary duty at another station and it was almost two months before he discovered the letters and delivered them to Yates and Warden.

So the mail had traveled several thousand miles to reach the addressees—who were both within 15 miles of the Cape when the Thor-Able was fired.

This was the first time an Air Force missile carried mail and the first time letters traveled intercontinental range distance. Army and Navy rockets accomplished the feat previously over much shorter distances.

'Holding Up' The Frisco Freight

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP)—Trainmen told the sheriff's office by telephone Monday that "a young man was holding up" a Frisco freight train.

Hurrying to the train, halted a few miles north of Joplin, officers found the "hold-up" was caused by 6-year-old Mark Fox who lives at Carthage, about eight miles away.

Trainmen said they discovered the youngster aboard and they didn't want him to get hurt. Turned over to his father, Lawrence Fox, barefoot, shirtless Mark explained: "I just wanted to take a little ride."

Jim II, A Crow, Is A Pal To Everybody

HITCH-HIKER—Jim, the crow on farmer Lorence Hubbell's shoulder, prefers to ride rather than fly.

HASTINGS, Mich. (AP)—One on a tractor or on the shoulders of anyone in the Hubbell family farm isn't convinced that distances are shorter as the crow flies. Jim, a 2-year-old crow, gets a great kick out of riding in a car, home but could find nothing wrong with the wily bird. They learned he was the Hubbell pet and returned him.

"He was mighty glad to be back," says Mrs. Hubbell. "He sat on a fence and just hollered."

She was surprised at his wandering away "For one thing, his wings are clipped and, for another, he's skeptical of strangers," she says.

Jim was raised from a fledgling and is on friendly terms with two dogs and two cats who round out the pet menagerie on the 630-acre Hubbell farm.

He succeeds the original Jim who fell victim two years ago to an apparently near-sighted chicken hawk.

The original Jim succeeded Roscoe who started the Hubbell family on its hobby of making pets of crows. "Roscoe just disappeared one day," Mrs. Hubbell says. "I don't think he cared much for civilization."

Only 7 Weeks Ago Cleared In Trial For Murder, Ex-Footballer Is Dead

HAMDEN, Conn. (AP)—Seven weeks ago, Joseph P. Crowley, a former Yale football star, was cleared in a sensational Tokyo trial of slaying his brother-in-law. Today Crowley himself lay dead, felled on his 50th birthday, the cause not precisely determined. Authorities indicate he may have died from barbiturates. Crowley's body was found by his son Joseph Monday on a bed in his home in Hamden, a New Haven suburb. He wore trousers and a sweater. Authorities said he probably died Sunday night while his family was at its summer home. Coroner James Corrigan said an autopsy revealed conditions "consistent with barbituric acid or barbiturate poisoning." But the coroner said the autopsy was inconclusive. A toxicological report expected today should clear up the cause of death, he said. Police suspected no foul play. Crowley's death came just as he was rebuilding the life he'd led up until May 1958—that of a prosperous businessman whose standing in the New Haven area was enhanced by his exploits nearly 30 years ago as a Yale football hero. Crowley's wife Betty is a daughter of the late T. A. D. Jones Sr., a famed football coach of years ago and a one-time All-America player. It was T. A. D. Jones Jr., 45, Crowley's business partner and Betty Crowley's brother, that Crowley was accused of killing in Tokyo last year. Crowley and Jones arrived in Tokyo May 5, 1958, looking for an oil tanker for their New Haven fuel oil firm, T. D. D. Jones Co. Three days later, Jones' battered body was found in the hotel room the two men shared. Blood was on walls and curtains. Crowley told police—and held to the story later in a manslaughter trial that lasted nearly 12 months—that he had nothing to do with Jones' death. He testified that the pair had gone out to sample the city's night life the night before, had done some drinking, and returned to their hotel. What happened after they got to the hotel was a blank in his memory, Crowley said. The prosecutors cited the husky ex-halfback's record as an athlete—he starred on Yale football teams of 1930-31-32. They charged that the defendant quarreled with Jones and used his fists to beat him to death. They asked that he be sentenced to four years at hard labor. Crowley's lawyers told the court's three judges that Jones probably caused his own death by falling about the room. On June 22, the judges announced the evidence was not sufficient to convict Crowley of having inflicted the injuries that caused Jones' death. Crowley and his wife, who had joined him in Tokyo, left by plane days later, despite the objections of the prosecutors. They said he was morally obligated to stay until they could decide if they wanted to appeal the verdict. Two days after Crowley returned to Hamden, with optimistic comments for newsmen who met him, the prosecutors announced they were dropping the case. He spoke of picking up where he had left off, of returning to his work with the T. A. D. Jones Co. and two other New Haven firms he headed. "I want to forget about my experience in Japan," he said. "It's been a rough time." Early last week, a rumor that Crowley had quit his job as executive vice president of the Jones Co. was circulating in New Haven. On Friday, the company issued an announcement confirming this. It said he had severed his connection with the company July 23 in order to look after his other business interests. Crowley was president of the New Haven Terminal and the Excello Corp. of New Haven, storage and shipping companies. Police said the last time Crowley's family saw him was Friday. They were at their summer home in Madison, Conn., and he said he was going back to the city to keep a Saturday appointment. Neighbors in Hamden saw his car outside the home from Friday on, police said. Crowley didn't keep the Saturday appointment. Minneapolis has 152 landscaped parks, covering 6,000 acres.

Louisiana Legislature Cuts Off Long Session

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—Frustrated Gov. Earl K. Long today planned to "carry my fight to the people" after a rebellious Legislature killed his special session before it was an hour old. Long, trying to rally forces after a stunning and swift defeat, had his sights set on a downtown New Orleans rally tonight — home grounds of his political foe, Mayor DeLesseps Morrison, one of his opponents in the December Democratic gubernatorial primary. The governor had little or nothing to say to newsmen after he shuffled from the Legislature ash-faced, behind him the echoes of lawmakers applauding their adjournment victory. But his cronies brushed aside the sudden end as an act of defiance. They contended that Long, now cast in an underdog role, would make political hay out of the incident. "This will mean 100,000 votes for the governor," said Lt. Gov. Lethier Frasier. Frasier who presides over the Senate, was unsuccessful in holding back an adjournment stampede, after news got to the Senate of the House's vote to quit. Rep. Ben Holt of Rapides Parish, a disenchanted Long supporter, led the move to end the 2-day session, which would have cost an estimated $148,000. Holt said the session "was called for vindictive and personal reasons." Many members listening were leery of possible new wild outbursts from Long such as those which came at the much-publicized fiscal legislature in May. Long later collapsed and was spirited by his wife to a Galveston, Tex., mental clinic.

LONG OVERDUE
TIPPIN, Ohio (AP)—A key from the Hotel Morcher was mailed back recently, but postmaster Paul B. Parkin isn't sure where to deliver it or how to collect postage due. The hotel hasn't been in business for almost 40 years.

PERSISTENT
ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Rufus Robinson was jailed three years ago for assaulting Abe Marion in an argument over ownership of a suit. Released last week, he looked up Marion and resumed the argument. Back in jail, Robinson declared: "I'm going to get that suit if I live long enough."

Japan To Probe Secrets Of Deep

TOKYO (AP)—For centuries Japan has been bothered by a hole in the floor of the Pacific Ocean. Now it wants to do something about it. The Japan Deep, a 1,840-mile-long trench, long has been associated in scientific theory with the earthquakes and tidal waves that have plagued this island nation. The Japanese government ship Ryofu Maru, manned by scientists, will sail Sept. 5 on a month long mission to unlock some of its mysteries. The Deep extends, by Japanese reckoning, from a point east of the Southern Kuriles south to the Bonin Islands. At one point near the southern end it is known to reach a depth of 34,038 feet—nearly 6½ miles—one of the deepest places in the Pacific. It is about 60 miles wide. Hidden in its dark reaches, scientists believe, are undersea volcanoes towering perhaps 10,000 feet from the bottom. Their violent rumblings and stirrings are a possible cause of the earthquakes that keep Japan jiggling and shaking like a bowl of jelly. The scientists will have aboard the most advanced instruments, purchased with a $130,000 Rockefeller Foundation grant, to take new measurements, soundings and samplings from the deepest areas. They hope to lift a five meter (about 16½ feet) long core sample from the bottom of the trench. This would provide a chronologica sample, from the top down, of sea life extending a million years into the past—to the period when man first inhabited the Japanese Islands. The scientists also will drop drag nets into the phosphorescent marine life that lives there.

Bomber Limped In To Safety On A Single Engine

HONOLULU (AP)—A Navy Neptune patrol bomber limped 1,100 miles on one engine Monday and landed safely at Hilo after a seven-hour struggle to stay aloft. The big two-engine plane, out of Whidby Island, Wash., and on a flight from Alameda, Calif. to Barbers Point Naval Air Station here with 10 men aboard, reported it had lost an engine as it passed the halfway point of no return on the 2,400 mile flight. The pilot, Lt. (J.G.) Braden R. Briggs, found one engine too weak to keep his craft steady at 1,000 feet, so he used his auxiliary jets to boost himself up. But his plane kept losing altitude and his jet fuel ran out. By the time he was still 400 miles out he was cruising at 250 feet, riding the cushion of air above the water. A naval spokesman said the last 40 miles was at the 100 foot level. He landed at Hilo on the big island of Hawaii as three rescue planes escorted him in.

She's About 115 Years Old, And Has Operation

DURHAM, N.C. (AP)—A Negro woman, born into slavery on a South Carolina plantation before the Civil War, had a foot amputated at a hospital here Monday. She is Maggie Wilson Sams of Hoffman. Her age is guessed at between 115 and 118. Mrs. Sams doesn't hear well but is still mentally alert, and talked to newsmen before and after the operation. She told of Civil War days, but said she saw no fighting. She's still active too. She said she hoed cotton shortly before a traffic accident which caused the foot to become infected. She was born on a Bishopville, S. C., plantation "where my own mama was the cook," she said. Mrs. Sams' husband died eight years ago. She lives with two of her six living children.

There was no anniversary celebration because their son Will, 78, who lives at their home, was feeling ill.

They'll Tell What's Right In Television

By CHARLES MERCER
NEW YORK (AP) — Many people are fond of saying "what's wrong with television. Few bother to say what's right with it — often because they don't know the facts about it."
 Now there is being formed the Television Information Office, supported by the industry, which will collect, coordinate and disseminate facts and trends in American TV.
 The idea was endorsed at the annual convention of the National Assn. of Broadcasters last spring. Subcommittees explored the various problems connected with it. As soon as a director has been appointed, the TIO will begin its work in New York with an annual budget of between $600,000 and $700,000.
 A pivotal person in the organization of the TIO is C. Wrede Petersmeyer, president of the Corinthian Broadcasting Corp. and head of the committee appointed to study means of improving the industry's relations with the public.
 Petersmeyer emphasized in a conversation the other day that the TIO is not designed to whitewash the industry against the attacks of any and every critic. Rather, it seeks to keep the public informed about the facts of television by means of studies, surveys and coordinating existing information.

 How does this affect you, as an individual viewer? Let Petersmeyer explain it:
 As a parent, you probably often wonder about the effects of TV viewing on your children. The TIO might encourage an objective, thorough study of the subject.
 As a taxpayer in an age of skyrocketing public school costs, you may have pondered the usefulness of local educational TV. But you and fellow citizens know nothing about it — not even where to obtain information about it. That information exists in numerous places. The TIO would collate it and make it available to you.
 As a TV viewer, you may think there are too many Westerns — or not enough; too many dramas — or not enough. But what are the actual facts on the proportion of various types of programs on the networks? Each can tell you what it is doing. But the TIO would be able to give you a complete picture of what all are doing.
 Petersmeyer is especially interested in the psychological effects and cultural influences of television. He feels that TV commercials represent a communication between the nation's producers and consumers that has become a significant element in our economy.

Just Jive It Up, Daddy-o, And You'll Get Results

The right approach puts youth to work.

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer
 Are you having trouble taming that teen-ager to domesticity this summer, dad? Well, stop nagging, you're real gone, man. Times have changed. A daddy-o has got to use his noggin' these days to impress the young folk that household chores are real cool, man. Put them in the mood. Try the Peter Gunn theme for openers, before clearing your throat. The approach must have finesse, dad. Don't bellow, man, it's bad for the ear drums. Give it to them soft, easy like.
 The intellectual type: Explain the atom, the breaking down of molecules, nuclear fission, protons, neutrons and the like. How does the lawn mower jive it up, dad? Start with its invention by Edwin Budding who conceived the idea of cutting grass the way nap was sheared off cloth in the English factory where he worked. That should get their attention. Bring them up to date on power, and how new quiet mowers are easy on the nerves and neighbors.

 Beauty at work: This should convince a budding Venus dad. Explain how proper circulation of the blood circulation of the blood nourishes hair, skin, nails, how exercise brings color to the cheeks, trims the hips, molds the waistline, better than dieting any day. Daughter should beat feet, daddy-o that she can have those goodies, and her figure, too.
 Amateur psychologist: He'll like that deduction that he doesn't appeal to marriageable girls because he's a fat cat with a deep-seated dread of household chores. Try it and see. Give him a chance to help you paint the house, daddy-o, don't hog those big deals.

Connie Francis Scores With The Teen Age Set

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A rare female amid leaders of today's record market is Connie Francis, better known to teen-agers as Connie Francis.
 The pert, dark-haired 20-year-old from Newark, N.J., is virtually the only female singer who can score with a million-seller these days — her current "You're Gonna Miss Me" appears headed for her fourth gold record.
 How does she succeed in this man's — or boy's world? "Because I sing cute songs," she explained. "Rock 'n' roll is a masculine kind of music."
 "The mistake that many girl singers have made is trying to compete with the men. I haven't done that."
 "Another reason why the established singers like Patti Page and Teresa Brewer and Jini James haven't been able to hit in the pop field now is teen-age identification. The teen-agers can't identify with some singer in her 30s or even 20s. They want to hear someone their own age."
 At 20, Connie realizes that she is in jeopardy. But she is planning for the future.

 She said that she isn't touching a cent of her record royalties — seven million discs come to quite a figure. They all go into a trust fund.
 Connie was here to tape a TV show with Roy Rogers and Dale Evans which will appear next month. She's a petite girl, but she admitted there was a time when she wasn't so.
 "When I was 12, I was 4 feet 11 and weighed 135 pounds," she recalled. "I played the accordion then, and it was good to hide behind."
 "I appeared on Arthur Godfrey's Talent Scouts Show one Christmas and decided I might do better if I sang as well as played. I wasn't very good. I got a week's engagement on his morning show, and he suggested I should develop my singing more."
 So she shed the accordion and 37 pounds as well, all in two months.
 Goodrich built the first rubber factory in Akron, Ohio, in 1870.

Bitter Exchange As Head Of Steel Union Steps Out Of Contract Talks

NEW YORK (AP)—The head of the striking steel union has stepped out of the contract talks here—temporarily at least—and left a "second string" of negotiators to represent the union.

The industry rebuked him for staying away, and answered his blast at the caliber of the industry negotiating team.

David J. McDonald, president of the United Steelworkers Union of America, said in Pittsburgh Monday: "I got sick of that show in New York. I will talk to people in authority. I refuse to talk with plians. I have no immediate plans for returning to New York."

R. Conrad Cooper, top industry negotiator and executive vice president of the United States Steel Corp., came back with his reply for the industry: "Mr. McDonald knows full well that the four-man negotiating team designated by 12 steel companies to handle the collective bargaining on their behalf has full authority to deal with the United Steelworkers Union."

"Mr. McDonald's efforts to downgrade the companies' negotiating team to the status of messenger boys is unfortunate because sooner or later he must confront his responsibility to bargain with this team."

Despite the bitter new clash between industry and union in the four-week-old strike, federal mediators continued efforts to settle the dispute.

The mediators scheduled another joint negotiating session today.

Robert Moore, chief deputy to Joseph F. Finnegan, director of the federal mediation and conciliation service, reported a certain amount of progress Monday on contract details and language. He said, however, that there was "no progress on the question of the basic economic differences of the parties."

Moore sat in on the negotiations because Finnegan was in Washington conferring with Budget Bureau officials on additional funds for his agency.

Finnegan said he would resume personal direction of the contract talks here today.

McDonald, who has not been here since negotiations recessed last Friday, attacked the stature of the industry negotiators while

Deadly Drought In Haiti Ended

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (AP)—Thousands of peasants on Haiti's parched northwest peninsula have been saved from starvation by heavy rains and six million pounds of U.S. surplus commodities.

A four-month crash program that provided food for about 150,000 drought victims was completed this week. U.S. distributors said it saved thousands of farmers and their families from certain death.

The arrival of the rains ended a withering drought that has plagued the poverty stricken area for five years and brought at least 200 persons to death by starvation. The last real rain was in 1954, when hurricane Hazel killed livestock and ravaged plantations.

When the United States launched its emergency aid program in April, the arid peninsula was a scene of desolation. Trees stood stark and lifeless. Even the weeds had withered.

Lester J. Gottlieb of the U.S. Operations Mission reported after traveling over the country for the past four months by foot, horse and jeep that the northwest peninsula is finally out of danger.

LOCKPORT, N. Y. (AP)—A Niagara County Court House secretary who bought a new bathing suit reported finding a note in the box that explained: "This puts all of you where it should be."

Hawaii Hubbies Get Many Kisses

HONOLULU (AP)—Bob Krauss, columnist for the Honolulu Advertiser, conducting a kissing survey, came up with the report that the average wife in Hawaii gets kissed nine times a day by her husband.

Krauss wrote that one 55-year-old Honolulu housewife, married for 32 years, claims that her husband kisses her 150 times a day.

"This would probably be an all time record but, since she didn't sign her name, I didn't include her in the averages."

Lions Told Seven On Blind List Removed

Seven Pitt County persons were removed from the classification of blindness during the month of July according to a report given the Greenville Lions Club last night.

The report, presented by O. E. Dowd, also showed that 43 persons were given eye examinations, glasses recommended for 23, surgery for 7, treatment for 11 and for two persons there was no recommendation for the improvement of vision. Three eye operations were performed during the month, and the Greenville Lions Club arranged for payment of glasses for 12 persons and an artificial eye for one person.

Dr. N. M. Jorgenson, Athletic Director of E.C.C. and Jack Boone, Head Football Coach, presented the Lions a pre-season view of the coming year in sports at the college. Both expressed enthusiasm over the prospects of having strong athletic teams in all sports. Jorgenson commented, "We're looking forward to the best year in athletics we've ever had."

Coach Boone was optimistic in his remarks concerning the coming football season. He stated "There are 17 seniors and 14 juniors returning to the squad this year which should give us one of the finest teams we've had at East Carolina College."

Autos Collided At Intersection

Patrolman W. E. Williams estimated damage in a collision of two 1951 model cars at Simpson last night at $550.

According to the Patrolman, a car driven by Hyman Lee Chapman, 36-year-old Negro of Route 2, Box 272, Greenville, was headed toward Black Jack when a car owned by Zeno Little, Negro, Route 2, Greenville, ran through a stop sign at the intersection in Simpson and struck the Chapman auto, knocking it about 48 feet into a ditch.

Williams said a passenger in the Little car, Huey Lee Jones, 24-year-old Negro of Route 2, Box 289, Greenville, received a small cut on the top of his head and was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment. Two stitches were required to close the wound.

Patrolman Williams said Little told him he was not driving the car at the time of the accident. Ben Little and Jones were charged with public drunkenness. No charges have been made as to the operation of the car pending further investigation as to who was driving at the time of the accident, Williams said.

Damage to the Little car, which traveled 81 feet after the collision was estimated at $350 while damage to the Chapman auto was set at $200.

Reunited With Dog Lost 3 Days

CHICAGO (AP) — An Alaskan woman wriggled inside a muddy sewer pipe for a happy but messy reunion with her lost dog Monday, ending three days of search for the little pooch.

Dorothy Hudson, 35, of Anchorage, interrupted her vacation in Miami, Fla., last Friday and flew to Chicago when she learned her dog, en route to her in another plane, had escaped from a crate at Midway Airport.

She tramped through fields near the airport over the weekend in search of the 11-year-old dog, named Wahine. Newspapers and animal welfare league officials alerted the public to watch for the dog, a part cocker spaniel.

Monday Bruno Stahlbusch, 14, of Elk Mound, Wis., who is vacationing in Chicago, spotted Wahine peeping from a sewer pipe used as a culvert. Mrs. Hudson was notified.

One end of the pipe was blocked off. At the other end, neighborhood children formed a v-shaped cordon and Mrs. Hudson went inside after her pet.

Emerging, the muddy dog was licking Mrs. Hudson's muddy face. Before she took Wahine to a motel, Mrs. Hudson spotted the boy who found the dog and gave him $50.

Ruritans Hear Bruce Sugg, Jr.

"Estate Taxes, Wills, and Inheritance" was the title of a talk given by Bruce Sugg, Jr., at the regular meeting of the Pictolus Ruritan Club last night.

Sugg used charts to show the amount of taxes that would be deducted from estates. He stated that wills were necessary and encouraged all members to draw up legal papers and wills.

President James H. Whichard presided over the business session during which the club voted to have a fish fry August 29 to raise money to finance club projects. The club decided to have its annual "Ladies and Faculty" night in September.

The members voted to each give one day's work toward rebuilding H. B. Harris, Jr.'s house, which burned.

Eugene Morris, S. Bowers, and B. T. Eastwood served the club members a barbecue dinner.

Bank Directors Vote For Merger

RALEIGH (AP) — Directors of the Hood System Industrial Bank voted Monday to merge with the Scottish Bank of Lumberton.

It was the first overt step in a sequence which must include similar approval by the Hood stockholders, the Scottish board and stockholders, the State Banking Commission and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

The Hood directors sent a plan of merger under a cover letter to the stockholders. The letter said the plan calls for an even exchange of stock between the two banks if the merger is effected.

Predicts Giants In Future Years

COLUMBIA (AP) — A generation of giants, with the average American weighing well over 300 pounds, is envisioned by a food expert for the year 2959.

A thousand years from now, predicts Don E. Grimes of Chicago, the average American male will weigh 370 pounds and his feminine counterpart will weigh 346 pounds.

Grimes, president of the Independent Grocers Alliance, based his predictions on the fact that people continue to eat more and grow bigger. Therefore, he told members of the South Carolina Food Retailers Assn. Monday, "You're in a good business."

Tobacco Prices Remain Steady

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Steady prices, improved quality and a larger volume was the story Monday on fine-cured tobacco markets of the Carolinas Border Belt.

Price fluctuations of $1 to $3 a hundred pounds were noted. There were a few more gains than losses.

Gross sales last week—the first full week the markets operated—amounted to 27,554,639 pounds for an average of $9.63 a hundred. Season sales total 42,836,955 pounds at an average $9.50.

Pilot Parachutes As Jet Crashes

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — An Air Force F100 jet crashed in swamps near here last night, its pilot parachuting to safety.

Officials said Capt. William Bolinger of the Myrtle Beach Air Force Base was on a night navigational exercise when he bailed out. Helicopters plucked him from marshes after spotting his flare.

The pilot, unharmed, was returned to Myrtle Beach.

An investigation was started to determine why the Super Sabre jet crashed.

An early report to military and naval authorities here mistakenly said the pilot had landed in the Atlantic, the Myrtle Beach base said.
