Among The Debs

Visits In N. Y.

MISS NANCY ANN HOOT . . . listens to music and reads for relaxation. She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. M. P. Hoot of 1505 E. Fifth Street.

(Editor's Note: This is the third in a series of articles on the 1959 Pitt County debutantes.)

By PEGGY SMITH
Reflector Woman's Editor

This summer will be long remembered by Nancy Ann Hoot who began it on a Tri Delta Sorority houseparty at Myrtle Beach, vacationed with a sorority sister in New York City, and spent a month at Island View Shores with her family.

"Usually when one hears a great deal about a place, it's exaggerated; but, things I heard about New York were not in the least. I didn't suffer any disillusionment," she commented.

"I wouldn't live there because I like a small community where you have a chance to know everybody. And I don't like the pace of life there." While there she saw the Broadway play, "My Fair Lady."

During July water-skiing filled every spare moment for the Hoot family while they were at their summer home.

Getting ready for the Deb Weekend and attending parties make up this deb's agenda for August. "The originality of the deb parties this year is really outstanding," she noted.

To make her debut on September 11 Nancy Ann has chosen an original gown by Madame Barnes of Wilson. The gown is of Chantilly lace over Italian silk featuring the bouffant skirt. The bodice is designed with a round neckline and cap sleeves and re-embroidered with iridescent sequins. Appliqued Chantilly lace designs are found on the skirt. The back of the gown is fashioned with a pouf of appliqued silk and sequins.

William H. Taft Jr. will act as chief marshal and Vernon "Poo" Rochelle of Kinston and Edwin Wilkerson have been selected as her other two escorts.

Next fall Nancy Ann will re-enter Duke University where she will be a junior. A primary education major, she is looking forward to taking a course in music appreciation. Since college closed in June, she has bought various classical music albums. In the past Nancy spent her spare time listening to the "latest pop tune to the latest Johnnie Mathis album."

Children Invited to the church Friday morning from 9:30 to 11 o'clock for an informal session of stories, games, movies and refreshments. Children of the Kindergarten Department of the First Presby. terian Church School are invited.

Gardening Today

By JOHN G. DUNCAN

There are no fast and hard rules that govern the landscaping of the public area (the picture of your home grounds seen from street). After all, the plants a person wants in his yard are usually the ones he ends up with. However, the ideal view from the street is an unbroken lawn area that extends from walk or curb up to the foundation planting — not only from the fact that it is more appealing to the eye, it is a saving in initial outlay and later maintenance.

Too many plants dotting the lawn area detract from the central theme (the house) and cause a confused picture. Simplicity should be the keynote in planting this area. Too many contrasts in growth habit, kinds of foliage, is like using the wrong kind of paint for use in a painting. It just doesn't turn out right.

Use trees to frame the house—not hide it. In the planting around the front of the house a few well placed shrubs that fit the area in which they have been placed look better than a solid mass of plants. Let some of the brick foundation show. We have a tendency to pay a good price for a house that looks well—fits the lot correctly—then smother it with plants. Let such a planting emphasize points where the vertical lines of the house come to the ground. (Entrance and at corners). Place plants that fit the other areas without crowding, or obstructing windows.

You will find that the public area that is not overplanted with plants placed where they do not hinder mowing, and foliage contracts held to a minimum will make a nice picture and keep fertilizing, spraying, pruning and other costs at a low figure.

Pork Prices To Be Lower In Fall, Winter

RALEIGH—Larger numbers of swine to be marketed this fall and winter should lower pork prices for the homemaker over the next 12 months. Good value moneywise will be found in hams, picnics, chops, sausage and bacon.

Mrs. Ruby P. Uzzle, consumer marketing specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service, also reports beef prices remain fairly stable. There has been no advance in price in recent months, and no indication of sizable change for the remainder of 1959. Many "specials" to be featured may offer best buys. Forequarter cuts are being offered at attractive prices. Late summer cabbage, sweet corn, snaps, and field peas from North Carolina are at peak supply, low in price and high in quality. "Salad making" vegetables can be found at reasonable prices. These include carrots, lettuce, celery, onions, cukes, tomatoes, and peppers. Potatoes are declining in price due to abundant supplies. Check canned and frozen vegetable prices; many are reduced in price as a result of large fresh supplies.

Supplies of watermelons, cantaloupes, and honey dews are reduced, but you can still find them at reasonable prices. White seedless, malaga, and Cardinal grapes offer good eating at attractive prices. Look for increased supplies of fall apples—both red and green. Supplies of grade A medium-size eggs are plentiful. Fryers and turkeys remain good buys at steady prices.

Farewell Party Fetes Miss Price

GRIFTON—Miss Mary Jo Quinler entertained Wednesday afternoon at the home of her aunt, Miss Hazel Patrick, on Queen Street at an informal party in honor of Miss Kathy Price. Iced drinks, party sandwiches, cookies and salted nuts were enjoyed. Miss Price was remembered with a shower of going away gifts from the 12 guests present for the afternoon.

Survivors Say Mountain Fell, Then Came Water

By DWIGHT JONES
 BOZEMAN, Mont. (AP) — The mountain fell first—and then the water came.
 That's the account of a California dentist and his friends who survived the Madison Canyon earthquake and avalanche below Hebgen Dam Monday night.
 Dr. Reed Quesnell of Arcadia, Calif., gave the account when questioned concerning a theory that water spilling over the dam raced through the canyon and swept some campers away before the mountain collapsed.
 "Not so," said Dr. Quesnell. "First came the earthquake. Then the mountain collapsed into the canyon. And after that came a wave of water. This wave is what hit and injured a number of those hurt in the disaster."
 Dr. Quesnell, his wife, and two friends and their families — Sam Kueuing of Lakewood, Calif., and Ike Kueuing of La Puente, Calif., said they believed an unknown number of campers in the area were buried by the big slide.

 "We have vacationed there every summer for 10 years," Dr. Quesnell said. "And every year there have been the same two trailers in the same place. They were there again this year, so close to the river they could fish from their doors. And those two trailers did not come out of the canyon when we were evacuated Wednesday. There undoubtedly are many others buried with them."
 He said he does not know the names of the occupants, but believed his father, Dr. A. J. Quesnell does know them. The elder Dr. Quesnell is in Lee Vining, Calif.
 Dr. Quesnell and the Keunings also declared—as have others—that a heroine was a nurse, Toodie Green of Billings, Mont.
 They said Mrs. Green gave first aid to nearly every one of the injured and checked on them constantly until they were rescued.

Twenty Killed By Mad Elephant

KANDY, Ceylon (AP)—A maddened temple elephant charged a crowd of 200,000 at a religious festival Wednesday night. Twenty persons were reported killed in the crush and thousands injured. Several persons were reported missing. It was feared some had fallen or jumped into Kandy Lake nearby.

The elephant was one of more than 100 participating with dancers and drummers in an annual Buddhist pageant called Perahera.

The animal became infuriated when it stepped on burning coals which had dropped from a flaming torch. It wheeled about and charged, and the crowd ran screaming in panic, seeking shelter in nearby buildings, atop walls and in trees.

Two mahouts clung to the elephant's tail and trunk. They finally stopped it and chained it to a lamppost. But the noise of the surging crowd set the beast off again and it broke loose, smashing shop fronts and trampling obstacles in its path.

Police finally shot and killed the animal on the street.

The Perahera pageant centered on the Temple of the Holy Tooth, one of Buddhism's most sacred spots. The temple houses a tooth supposed to have come from the jaw of Buddha, who founded the religion 25 centuries ago.

The temple is in one of Kandy's business sectors, surrounded by shops and near the popular Queen's Hotel.

A similar incident occurred during a Buddhist procession five days ago near Colombo and 100 persons were injured.

Back-To-School Advice Sounded

State Labor Commissioner Frank Crane today urged school-age youngsters who have been working this summer to return to the classrooms when the school bells ring.
 For some 8,000 Tar Heel youngsters who were issued employment certificates during the last three months, Commissioner Crane had a word of commendation and advice:
 "Your spirit and initiative have caused you to turn the summer to good account," Crane said. "The same spirit should now take you back to the classrooms. With our ever-increasing industrialization, population growth and economic development, North Carolina faces a great future. Make sure you are well prepared to share in that future, both in building it and enjoying it."
 "Earnings from a job may look good to you now, but don't forget the long haul ahead. Only the best possible education can give you the real break you need in this fast-moving, technological age."
 Crane cited Census figures showing that every year of schooling increases adult income. On the average, he said, high school graduates earn almost as much at age 25 as 8th grade graduates at 45.

The workshop is sponsored by the North Carolina Kindergarten Association of which Mrs. Ralph Miller of High Point is state president.

Fuller, former civic affairs chairman of the Greenville lodge, at ceremonies to be held in the local lodge in a few weeks, according to Carl A. Weis, international director of civic affairs of the Moose Fraternity.

In announcing the awards, Weis told the delegates assembled that Moose lodges have contributed more than $5 million and more than one million man hours of voluntary labor in service to local communities during the past year.

Gold awards representing firsts in the three divisions of the international competition were presented to the following: Chicago Lawn, Ill.; Parkersburg, W. Va.; and Sidney, N. Y. Silver awards for second went to San Francisco, Calif.; Portsmouth, Va.; and Adrian, Mich. Bronze awards for third were given to Macon, Ga.; Oneida, N. Y.; and East Point, Ga.

Special citations were also presented to 24 other Moose lodges.

Drop One Block In Paving Plans

One block of Spruce St. has been dropped from the city's proposed paving projects because property owners did not pay their share of the costs.

Mayor S. Eugene West said curbing has been installed on Spruce St. from Boyd to Pennsylvania Ave. and paving of the block will be done shortly.

However, he said, a block from Pennsylvania to Myrtle has been dropped from the paving projects "because the money didn't come in."

Mayor West said the Powell Bill funds which would have been used for that project will be transferred to other paving projects where the property owners have put up their share of the money.

Civil Defense Value Already Seen

On a number of occasions in recent years Civil Defense organizations around the nation have been the subject of severe criticism from two distinct sources.

In some instances the criticism has come from people who view present Civil Defense organizations as far below that which will be required to deal with an emergency such as a surprise nuclear attack. These critics urge greater emphasis on CD; better training of personnel, greater cooperation from the public, more realistic approaches to the problems which may lie ahead.

Other critics of Civil Defense hoot at the whole idea of preparing for an emergency which may never exist. They decry the "waste" of money, time and effort which go into the Civil Defense program. They see little to be gained in playing at war, getting the civilian population disturbed about such matters.

Both these groups of critics fail to recognize the importance of Civil Defense in coping with disasters short of total nuclear war.

In recent years there have been many occasions in various parts of the nation in which CD personnel have been called into action and their efforts saved countless lives and prevented untold suffering on the part of literally thousands of people. Coastal North Carolina and the coastal areas of other states are well

Special Session Pressure Grows

By LYNN NISBET
SPECIAL SESSION — The same folks who six months ago scoffed the idea of a special session of the General Assembly to handle constitutional revision are now putting tremendous pressure on the Governor and Council of State to call an extra session for that purpose. The pressure is coming chiefly from staunch advocates of the Bell Committee court reform program. These are the same people who most vigorously opposed the idea when it was first proposed in this column on March 12, as committee consideration of the constitutional changes began. Two days later the Young Democratic Clubs adopted a resolution calling for that procedure, and a number of newspapers gave it editorial support.

Perhaps no issue before any General Assembly ever got more thorough analytical consideration by the appropriate committees than did court reform in 1959. Trouble was, as was pointed out at the time, less than one-third of the legislators were on the committees which heard the discussion. Even among the committee members there was wide divergence of opinion, and numerous compromises were agreed upon.

In a special message delivered to a joint session of the General Assembly, Governor Hodges abandoned the proposals of the Constitutional Commission which he had appointed and supported in the main recommendations of the Bell Committee, which had been named by the N.C. Bar Association.

When the matter came on to the floor for full debate and determinate vote as to whether the constitutional revisions should be submitted to vote of the people, there developed one of the bitterest legislative fights in modern times.

DEBACLE — It was chiefly a fight between those who wanted overall revision of the constitution and those who paraded court reform above everything else. The scrap found staunch administration supporters on both sides, with some evidence of political opportunists apparently thinking more about their own fate than total good for the State.

The fight resulted in a debacle. On the day before the General Assembly adjourned leaders of both sides, with full concurrence of Governor Hodges, agreed to throw the whole business of constitutional revision into the trash can for the session. Although the legislative journals will show unanimity on this point, there was—and still is—under surface ill-feeling. Those who paraded court reform above everything else, blame those who advocated general revision of the Constitution for "killing" improvement in judicial process. Those who contended for a modernized Constitution blame failure on the "stubbornness" of the court reformers.

ASME FOLKS — If a special session should be called it would have substantially the same membership as the regular session, very probably with the same sentiments and the same attitude of "stubbornness" on both sides. Advocates of the extra session believe that if the constitutional questions can be considered in an atmosphere cleared of other problems they can be discussed without rancor. That was sound argument before the debacle. Many impartial observers doubt that the atmosphere can be cleared of the overhanging smog resulting from the previous bitter debate—in which the same people participated under the same election to their offices. Some observers fear that repetition—or continuance—of the June fight might actually delay constitutional reform, rather than accelerate it.

SMOG — There is widespread opinion among citizens, other than the "stubborn" core of champions for this or that provision, that the hangover smog from last June might be intensified by the upcoming campaign for Governor and a newly elected Legislature.
Most frequently mentioned date for a special session, if held, is mid-February. By that time it is expected that all candidates for Governor, and most of those for legislative seats, will have announced. Consideration of constitutional reform inevitably would be colored by that fact.

The calmly deliberate discussion of issues that could have been possible in a special session this fall, without the regular session debacle, will be impossible in the heat of a political campaign next spring.

Furthermore, it will be extremely difficult to get binding commitments from legislators that they will consider nothing but constitutional revision at a special session, when opportunities are so readily at hand to make capital for their own reelection or in favor of their choice for Governor. Governor Ehringhaus had no difficulty in getting such commitments for the session in 1956, which set up the Employment Security Commission. Governor Hoey had no difficulty in the 1958 special session, which authorized bonds to match Federal money for construction. Governor Hodges found it easy to get promises that nothing but the public issue would be considerable in the 1956 special session.

The situation is different now, and it must be remembered that the General Assembly is its own boss and that no special session is limited to the main purpose set out in the call. For these reasons, a preponderant majority of the people whom you reporter has interviewed think there will be no special session of the 1959 General Assembly.

So it was no wonder, either, that on Aug. 14 he said he wouldn't influence his decision about seeking the nomination. He said: "In one respect I'm like Harry Truman. I believe the only poll that counts is on election day."

Then, also, Rockefeller last week had dinner with Dewey, aware of the important role played by Civil Defense when hurricanes and other natural disasters strike. Other areas which have experienced serious floods are aware of the vital part an adequate Civil Defense organization may play in the life of a community.

Areas which bore the brunt of the earthquakes that ravaged parts of Montana and Wyoming this week probably have come to know in the past few days the value of a good Civil Defense organization.

The point is that Civil Defense plays an important role in any community where a natural or man-made disaster strikes. The organizations stand ready to cope with such emergencies, and the fact that they are ready enables the affected area—large or small—to better cope with the emergency.

Certainly the overall Civil Defense operation as now constituted has its shortcomings. Nevertheless, it has proved its worth many times over in recent years in dealing with natural disasters. If CD never is needed to cope with the ravages of a nuclear attack—and we pray it isn't—it is worth every cent of money, every minute of time and every degree of effort which goes into it simply to have the organization ready to function instantly in case of natural disasters.

Old Occupational Hazard

Dr. Joseph G. Molner, medical columnist with the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, wrote an article in this month's edition of Editor and Publisher, the newspaper trade magazine.

It was entitled, as you might guess, "How to Be a Healthy Newsmen: Follow Doctor's Prescription."

This, of course, is a subject dear to the hearts of anyone who has stumbled into this ulcer producing, nerve wracking, deadline-happy profession and naturally your nerve wracked columnist read on.

Dr. Molner, a well-known columnist who receives upwards of 60,000 letters a month, set up 10 rules for health.

As we read through the ten rules, all of which because of space, we can't discuss here, we found ourselves nodding our aching head and muttering "so true" on numerous occasions.

First, Dr. Molner mentioned the "C. and C. habit." That's short for coffee-and-cigarette habit, and Dr. Molner said he was putting it first, not because it necessarily does the most damage, "but because it is an insidious habit that creeps up gradually, and when (or if) it begins to do some mischief you start looking for some other cause."

The cigarette smoking didn't interest us because we don't smoke but, boy, did that coffee drinking catch our eye!

Your columnist is a chain drinker as are most folks around the newsroom. Dr. Molner says a cup of coffee is a reasonable stimulant and a good antidote for a long pull when you have to stay awake.

"But excess caffeine can cause jitters and irritability, elevate the blood pressure, cause, an abnormally fast heart beat."

"My point is that too much is too much—and a cigaret and black coffee for breakfast or lunch has O calories, O vitamins and O nutrition."

Another point made by Dr. Molner which caught my eye were his comments on stress—something that every newsmen sees plenty of.

"Stress, so much talked-about and so little understood, is a curious thing," he says. "Stress isn't necessarily bad. Without stress you might turn into a wonderful oyster or turnip, but not much of a man."

"Call it 'stress' or 'emergency' or 'deadline' or whatever," he continued. "We all know that when we have to, we can do more than we can do without that pressure."

"Stress isn't bad. It is good. I've seen city hall reporters seem to doze through a city council meeting—but suddenly come instantly awake when something newsworthy came up. That sort of alternate relaxing and steel-spring alertness is fine. That kind of stress isn't what causes ulcers."

"Stress with a purpose is good for us. Stress without a purpose—jitters, worry, anxiety, or fretting about things you can't help—that, I think, is the kind of 'false stress' that contributes to ulcers, bad hearts, bad nerves, bad everything."

"Don't stew about things, but don't worry about the stress that has a purpose."

The good doctor's advice was directed to newsmen, but, you know, we think most anyone could profit by it.

The picture accompanying this column isn't of your columnist, by the way. It was published with Dr. Molner's article.

Membership in a family gives us all a sense of confident security. We belong.

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
A CONTINUING FACTOR
The family appears to be a constant factor throughout the universe. That is, of course, the universe as we know it. We do not know much about the other planets, but we do know that heaven as set forth in the Bible is a great family which God has gathered about Him.

Family life exists here on earth. Family life exists in heaven. If the planets are populated, we can be pretty safe in assuming that family life exists there also. And in all probability such family life is not much different from the family life we have here on earth. The family as a pattern and an urge appears to be a constant factor with which the whole life of the universe has to deal.

And can we think of anything better the Lord could have done for us than to have gathered us into His family? To be sure we are part of a great kingdom—the kingdom of God. But the unit within this kingdom is the family. Here on earth there is a father and there are children—and, of course, a mother. The highest form of family life is held together by the love of God. It is warmed and made vital by the love which the members have for each. It is illuminated by love and supported by love and pervaded through and through by love.

Membership in a family gives us all a sense of confident security. We belong.

BEAUTIFYING AMERICANS
A parallel program has been announced by American University in Washington. Beginning September 14, a course will be launched to train American businessmen to deal with business executives overseas — to eliminate "the ugly American." This already has the co-operation of the Departments of State and Commerce, of the United States Information Agency, Texaco, Republic Steel, RCA, Pan American and many other industrial giants.

3. An organization has been projected to encourage American businessmen to foster small, independent businesses in undeveloped nations as a good-will project, without hope of profit. This is the most interesting of the three ideas.

STARTED IN SHARED CAB
The idea was born in a taxi ride when Peter Vold, president of King Korn Stamp Co., and Clarence Randall, former Inland Steel board chairman, shared a cab at an airport.

Both men thought it would be a great idea if American businessmen would foster independent businesses abroad, as an extension of the government's Point Four program.

Mr. Vold thereupon made a 30-day tour of Europe and the Near East and found both foreign governments and American consular officers receptive. Under the plan, a successful small businessman would "adopt" a small business in another country. Then by "applying the ingenuity he developed on the way up, his technical know-how in the field, the American businessman would provide advice, know-how and encouragement on a continuing basis to his overseas business brother."

Care would be taken to avoid trying to make foreign business replicas of American enterprises. Local conditions and customs would be taken into full consideration. American businessmen would be encouraged to visit their adopted enterprises and to learn the language of the country.

It was picked up by U.S. Chamber of Commerce. Last year the publication was acquired by Chase, who had previously published a Calendar of Annual Events.

A 1960 edition is now in progress. There is no charge for listings, which will probably run from Apple Mary Sunday (January 3) to Zulu Zipper Week (December 15 to 21).

Exile Stanley Yankus Is Starting Over Again

By LEY OUTRIDGE
ADELAIDE, Australia (AP) — Five days a week a bespectacled American, slightly balding, leaves his house in the Kircaldy suburb of Adelaide, gets to work at 8:30 a.m. and leaves at 5 p.m. For his work as a clerk he is paid 16 Australian pounds—the equivalent of $36 — each week.

The clerk is Stanley Yankus, 40, who sold his Dowagiac, Mich., farm for $30,000 and came to Australia.

The U.S. government had fined Yankus $5,072 for planting 35 acres of wheat on his farm instead of the 15 acres he was allowed under his acreage allotment.

Yankus, who fed the extra wheat to his chickens, contended it was wrong to prevent a man from earning his living, and in violation of the Constitution of the United States. He quit the country last May.

Now, with Mrs. Yankus, Russell 13, Dennis 12, and Karen 3, he is in Adelaide. He works as a clerk in the suburban factory of Pope Products Ltd. The firm makes television sets, motorized lawn mowers, household appliances and garden tools. Yankus says he knows it is not a highly paid job.

"But it's legitimate, honest and it is a beginning," he adds. He has a desk in a small office in one of the sprawling factory buildings.

"I don't feel in the least hurt that I'm starting where I am," he said.

"I work in the purchasing department. It is nothing complicated. No skill, but accuracy, is required."
"it gives a chance to begin slowly in Australia. But I've been given to understand that there may be some more interesting work for me later in the air-conditioning section."

Yankus turned down offers to manage chicken farms, as well as a host of jobs as a salesman. His plans for the future?

"I like this job," he said. "I am starting at the bottom. I hope to climb up to the top. If I am given the opportunity to show my ability, then I feel my prospects of staying permanently with this firm are bright."

The first few weeks in the job produced some minor complications for a man used to the American way of weighing materials and writing receipts.

"In America we wrote month, day, year on a receipt," he said. "here it's a day, month and year."

"In the U.S. a hundredweight is 100 lbs. — here it is 112 lbs. A ton in the U.S. is 2,000 lbs. — here it is 2,240 lbs. Of course, there is the question of spelling, too. We write 'center' in America and here it is 'centre.' But I'm learning the Australian way of writing English very quickly."

Yankus is happy with his workmates. "No hostility because I'm a Yank and they're always ready to explain things to me."

Yankus said the five-day-week job leaves him weekends free to explore Adelaide—population 600,000—and the countryside with his family. He travels to and from work in a suburban train.

Other things are beginning to work out, too, for the Yankus family. Mildred Yankus was not too happy when she arrived in Adelaide and realized her husband would have to start from scratch again. But now she is settling down, chatting with the neighbors, visiting for morning and afternoon teas, and running the home.

Yankus bought a special foam pillow. "I guess she must now figure on sleeping in Australia for a while," he said with a smile.

"The children are doing fine. Both Russell and Dennis are getting along well at school. Russell topped his class twice—in history and algebra. He never learned algebra until he came to Australia."

"The family is happier now that dad has bought a car. They are planning to build a brick garage onto the side of their six-room house."

Yankus said there was one question the folks back home would want answered: "Do you feel you aren't wanted?"

He gave this reply: "I have not felt that way at any time. I feel that people are willing to give me a chance. I don't want people to sweep the sidewalk for me—but they've been very courteous."

Meat Industry Union Talk Up Big Strike In September

FOREST PARK, Pa. (AP)—A walkout of nearly 200,000 workers in the giant meat processing industry next month was threatened today on issues similar to those involved in the continuing steel strike.

Union officials said the industry's two major unions, the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and the Packinghouse Workers, have met much the same management wage freeze and other proposals for stockyard workers as were experienced in the steel dispute.

AFL-CIO leaders, meeting in summer session here, expressed concern that the steel strike is a symptom of what they consider a growing management refusal to give workers a share in expanding industry profits.

The International Union of Electrical Workers, voting a $100,000 donation to the steel strikers, said big business generally has decided to "wreck the hard-won gains of workers" and reverse the system of sharing profits with labor.

The two meat industry unions, after nearly a month of bargaining, have met an almost solid front of packer proposals to freeze present wage rates, averaging about $2.50 an hour.

In a further similarity to the steel bargaining picture, the packing unions say they also face company proposals to give employers a freer hand in achieving manpower and other economies.

Like the steel strikers, the meat processing workers seek wage boosts of about 15 cents per hour.

Both packing unions are taking strike votes. The workers in many plants were said to have already authorized a strike Sept. 1 when current three-year contracts expire. However, both unions said they hoped bargaining developments in the near future would avert any shutdown.

Members of the AFL-CIO Executive Council were expected to approve today a plan to mobilize all AFL-CIO unions behind the steel strike.

The plan includes a rally of all union officers at San Francisco on Sept. 18, as part of the AFL-CIO's biennial convention, in behalf of the steel strikers.

One proposal under consideration would call for a penny a day allotment from every AFL-CIO member for the strikers—a move that could yield up to four million dollars a month in strike aid.

Federation chiefs also are expected to appeal to President Eisenhower to call steel management and labor into White House conferences in an effort to end the stalemate. Eisenhower has declined similar prior proposals.

Under and by virtue of the power vested in me by the laws of the State of North Carolina, particularly Chapter 310 of the Public Laws of 1939, as amended, and pursuant to an order of Pitt County Board of Commissioners, I will offer for sale and will sell at public auction for cash to the highest bidder, at the courthouse door in Greenville at 12 o'clock noon on Thursday the 3rd day of September, 1959, liens upon the real estate described below for the non-payment of taxes owing for the year 1958, the name of the owner or person who listed the real estate for taxes, the real estate which is subject to the lien, and the amount of the lien being set out below. Want Real Fruit Sent Into Orbit

MISSION, Tex. (AP) — The Chamber of Commerce of this Rio Grande Valley citrus center posed a question for U.S. space scientists today:

As long as we're going to fire grapefruit-shaped satellites into space, why not put a real grapefruit in orbit?

The Chamber manager, Al Ady, wrote to authorities at the Florida test center offering a red Texas grapefruit for inclusion in a future satellite firing.

Not exactly by coincidence, Ady noted that "citrus in orbit" is the theme of the Texas Citrus Fiesta, scheduled here Jan. 20-23, 1960.

Idaho was established as a pioneer state by Nathaniel J. Wyeth, a merchant of Massachusetts.

Rescue Squad Also Teaching Public

GREENVILLE SQUAD GIVES DEMONSTRATION . . . before TV camera for morning program.

SQUAD MEMBER HITS NET . . . as early morning television audience looks on.

The Greenville Rescue Squad, in addition to caring for injured persons in accidents and related incidents has launched an intensive educational program.

Weekly the squad conducts a one-hour television show over WNCN, Ch 9, aimed at teaching the viewing audience various things about rescue work and ways in which the layman can better prepare himself to aid injured persons.

"We would much rather spend hours teaching and pointing out these danger points and items to watch than to have to care for one single victim," a squad official pointed out. "If we can prevent an accident or show someone the correct method of meeting any situation, then it is more than worth the effort."

The Greenville squad, which has added many firsts to its records since formed, is the only squad in the State and possibly the South which regularly conducts a weekly education first aid training type of program.

"We adapt our weekly program to the season. If it is the start of the summer season then for several weeks we hit the dangers of swimming in unknown waters, boating tips, artificial respiration—the latest types, and old methods. On holidays we warn of the traffic danger and point out common types of injuries sustained in accidents and what the motoring public can do and should do when an injured highway case is dumped in their laps."

Fire safety, and other situations, all come under the scope of the year long program.

In addition, the squad conducts training programs for its own men and programs before civic organizations and other groups.

"We are more than glad to appear before groups in our county and tell the rescue story of 'your rescue squad,'" Captain Roy Hardee said. "We think that everyone in Pitt County can be justly proud of their rescue squad and the work it is doing."

First aid classes are taught by qualified instructors in the squad and several hundred persons have received training by squad members in this manner.

"We try to have members attend any type of training program which is offered in our line of work," Hardee pointed out. "Today a well qualified squad must be training and preparing itself every minute."

A special 30 minute show on rescue work will be featured on WNCN, Saturday morning 10:30-11:00.

Blandly Claim They Can Listen

LONDON (AP)—The Soviets are quite free to listen to foreign radio broadcasts, Radio Moscow said today.

"Not only are we allowed to hear foreign radio broadcasts but we do," said a commentator.

Practically every set on sale in the Soviet Union has a short-wave band, Moscow said, "and that means everybody has all the chance in the world to tune in to foreign broadcasts."

The broadcaster made no mention of the frequent Soviet jamming of Western programs.

Admiral Halsey To Be Buried At Arlington Today

WASHINGTON (AP)—The nation today buries one of its great naval heroes, Fleet Adm. William F. Halsey.

Final military tribute was prepared for the pugnacious "Bull" Halsey, whose 3rd Fleet outfoxed the Japanese Admiralty and sank the best of its fighting ships in World War II.

His body lay, with honor guard, in Washington National Cathedral. It was brought here Wednesday from Fishers Island, N.Y., where he died Sunday. The retired admiral was 76.

Gathering for the Cathedral services and the burial in Arlington National Cemetery this afternoon were the chief civilian and military leaders of the Defense Department, government officials, many personal friends and some of those who served with Halsey in the great days of the mighty Pacific campaigns.

At the cemetery gate, the casket would be transferred to a horse drawn caisson. Troops from each of the military services awaited to march the final way with Halsey, with a Navy band measuring the slow pace and a cannon shot counting off each minute on the way to the grave site.

There, on a hillside, the admiral would join in death his father and mother. Navy Capt. William F. Halsey Sr. and Mrs. Halsey are buried beside the place chosen for their famous son.

Halsey had a special honor guard for the funeral—Gen. Nathan Twining, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff; Adm. Arleigh A. Burke, chief of naval operations; Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, Army chief of staff; Gen. Thomas D. White, Air Force chief of staff; Gen. Randolph M. Pele, Marine commandant, and Rear Adm. James A. Hirschfield, commandant of the Coast Guard.

Old Veteran In Brief Delirium

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—The last survivor of the Civil War armies sank into delirium for a time Wednesday, then rallied slightly.

The condition of Walter W. Williams, 116-year-old Confederate veteran, remained critical.

Williams has been near death since his strength was sapped by a recent bout with pneumonia.

The old soldier, blind and almost deaf, was visited Wednesday by Bobby Vaughn, 15, a Norris, Tenn., youth who said he had always yearned to meet and talk with a Rebel cavalrman.

Williams was unable to speak to young Vaughn, so the boy shook Williams' hand and chatted for three hours with Willie Mae Bowles, the veteran's daughter.

Trautman Says New Loop Is By-Passing The Minors

NEW YORK (AP) — George Trautman, head of the minor leagues, today charged the newly organized Continental League with completely ignoring the minors in its efforts to gain major league status.

Trautman's accusation came after chiefs of top individual minor circuits said they would demand heavy damages, totaling around $8,000,000 from the proposed circuit for invasion of their territories.

"I keep reading about a number of our cities being considered for inclusion in this new league," said Trautman, "but never once have we been approached by these people. I think it would be a sort of courteous thing if we were considered. There have been numerous conferences but we've never been invited to attend any of them."

Trautman made it plain he was not opposed to minor league cities advancing to major league status. "We've never resisted any of our cities that desired to become major," he said. "But we've got a structure that must be preserved. I'm sure a man like Branch Rickey (president of the Continental League) is aware of this as well as I am, and he knows that any league affected must be consulted."

"After all, there are human beings and peoples' livelihoods they are dealing with. You don't just pick up baseball clubs as you would a bunch of bananas.

"Our leagues cannot be destroyed by a mere wave of the hand without being adequately compensated and getting other cities as replacements. We've got to find cities and towns, realign, get the players and we can't do it by waving a wand."

"We want to help this new league and we can but at the same time we don't want them to destroy us. All we want to do is survive."

Ed Doherty, president of the American Association, said Wednesday he already has demanded a million dollars indemnity for each of the cities taken by the Continental League.

The AA may lose six of its 10 franchises. Houston, Denver and the twin-cities of Minneapolis-St. Paul are among the five founders of the new league. The Dallas-Fort Worth area also is being eyed by the new organization.

President Frank Shaughnessy of the International League said he also would ask for approximately a million dollars for the loss of Toronto and any other cities. Toronto is among the five charter members and Montreal and Buffalo are being mentioned as possible members.

Leslie O'Connor, whose Pacific Coast League had to rebuild when the Dodgers and Giants moved to the West Coast, and President Charles Hurt of the Southern Association doubt if any of their cities would be included in the Continental League.

But Hurt said he is prepared to demand payment if Atlanta or New Orleans joins the new loop.

Game Bird Rules Are Announced

Migratory Game Bird Regulations for North Carolina Mourning Dove, Rail (Marsh Hen) and Gallinule seasons were announced today by Pitt County Wildlife Protector J. O. Teel.

Teel said there would be two periods totaling 65 half-days for morning Dove. The first period will open September 12 and run to October 10, with the second period running from December 11 to January 15. Shooting is to start at 12 Noon and end at sunset each day. The bag limit is 10 with the possession limit set at 20.

The Rail (Marsh Hen) and Gallinule season will run for 70 consecutive days starting September 5 and ending November 13. The bag limit for Rail and Gallinule is 15 with possession limit set at 20. Teel added shooting hours would start one-half hour before sunrise and go to sunset each day.

The only change in the basic regulations from those of last year provides that "All migratory game birds (except Mourning and White Winged Doves) if dressed, must have head, head plumage and feet attached in such a manner as to permit identification of their species while being transported between the place where they were taken and the location where such birds are to be consumed or refrigerated, smoked or otherwise preserved." Teel concluded.

Three Big Stars To Bolster Cleveland

CLEVELAND (AP) — Three tackle job to a relief role, but McCormack's misfortune forced the 35-year-old veteran to return to full time duty.

The Browns aren't too deep at the offensive tackle berths, and the holes must be plugged if Ninowski is to get adequate pass protection.

The Browns have enough running threats to keep the opposing defense honest. Fullback Brown set a league rushing record of 1527 yards in 257 tries last year, and tied the touchdown record with 18. Groza added 60 points on field goals and conversions, so he and Brown counted 168 of the team's 302 total.

Intense speed at end and halfback, plus improved pass-catching, should help the Browns as they attempt to win their 12th division title in 14 years extending through their All-America Conference and National League career.

Mulloy, Talbert Show Old Talent

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — A pair of players who won the National Doubles tennis title 17 years ago held the center of attention in the 1959 edition of the championships Wednesday.

Gardnar Mulloy and Billy Talbert, now 45 and 41 respectively, won the title in 1942. Gardnar almost pulled off an upset of major proportions Wednesday against a high-ranking Australian duo, while Talbert engineered a decision over a top English team.

Mulloy and Jack Frost forced Robert Mark and Rodney Laver, a couple of Australian Davis Cup players, back to the wall before age caught up with Mulloy.

The Australians, second-seeded among the foreign entrants in the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association's National Doubles tourney, finally won 12-10, 3-6, 5-7, 6-3, 6-4.

Talbert teamed with John Leach to oust England's Tony Pickard and Robert Wilson, third ranked among the foreign teams, 6-4, 6-2, 7-5.

All other top teams, including America's Barry MacKay and Mike Franks, and Alex Olmedo and Earl Buchholz and Australia's Neale Fraser and Roy Emerson.

Bassey Pounded By Moore For 10; Refuses Continue

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A title fight with Lightweight Champion Joe Brown may be in the works for World Featherweight Champion Davey Moore, who Wednesday night stopped Hogan Bassey in 11 rounds.

Moore's manager, Willie Ketchum, said the Brown fight was fine with him "providing the money is right."

Moore, who bombed out Bassey, said he isn't trying to invade other divisions. But he added: "Frankly, I'd like to meet (World Bantamweight Champion Jose) Becerra for my featherweight championship. But, I'm in this business for the money and I'll fight anybody if the price is right."

Matchmaker George Parnassus, who masterminded the Moore-Bassey title fight, said a Moore-Brown battle for the lightweight title would be a natural.

"It took Moore seven times on the scale to make the 126-pound limit for Bassey," Parnassus said. "He could easily come in at '32 or '33." Moore finally weighed in at 126, a pound more than Bassey.

A Moore-Becerra featherweight title scrap would be a natural too, especially in Los Angeles, where the large Mexican population idolizes the little 116-pound champ from Mexico. But Becerra is committed for an October rematch with Alphonse Halimi of France, from whom he won the title last month.

Moore stopped Bassey so convincingly at the Olympic Auditorium that the little battler from British West Africa was asked to retire by his manager, George Biddies.

Bassey, who appeared at a press party with dark glasses hiding a swollen right eye and a bandage over a badly bruised right hand, said:

"This is not a decision I can make in a moment. I must think it over."

Sharp-shooting Moore, who took the title from Bassey last March, counter-punched Bassey into a tottering derelict at the end of the 10th round.

Bassey sprawled on his stool and refused to come out for the 11th round.

When Referee Frankie Van asked if he was all right, Bassey peered up with a partly-closed right eye and said:

"No, I don't wish to go out."

A second shouted "go, go" and tried to put the mouthpiece into Bassey's mouth. But the battered Nigerian merely shook his head.

By this time the bell had sounded for round 11 Moore had rushed across the ring and was jiggling happily in front of the anxious knot before Bassey's corner when Referee Van yelled and raised Moore's arm in victory.

A crowd of 7,450 paid a gross gate of $47,100.40 to watch the scrap, which was televised nationally over the ABC network.

TV receipts totaled $40,000. Each fighter got 30 per cent of all revenue.

Bassey knew that, as challenger, he had to take the title from Moore, who hails from Springfield, Ohio. He tried gallantly to nail Moore, but the champion played a waiting game and picked Bassey apart with savage counter-punches.

When Bassey decided not to continue he was losing on all cards by three to seven points.

Every Play In Game Is Reviewed For Errors

Editor's note: This is the ninth in a series of articles written by Coach Jack Boone of East Carolina College.

SECOND WEEK OF WORK
By JACK BOONE

The day begins on Sunday around two o'clock. Sunday morning the coach who scouted Albright will be getting in and completing his report.

Our movies of the P. C. game will be back around 1:30 Sunday. The coaches will go over the film and review the mistakes made in the first game. Each coach will grade each boy on every play he participated in. The scores will be posted so each boy can benefit by his mistakes and try to correct them before the next game. This usually takes about three hours.

We take a break from the film and meet with the boys at a restaurant for supper. Since we rode all night, the boys are given the meal instead of stopping on the road, usually this is our procedure. Win or lose—we like to get together with our squad. Actually we do not have any meetings with

Injuns Junk Slump With A 5-4 Decision Over Nats

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

A right reluctant bunch of pennant contenders, these Cleveland Indians. They lose four in a row, blowing leads in three of them, and almost make it five—getting the cushion they needed on a bases-loaded walk.

Cleveland junked the slump with a 5-4 decision over last place Washington Wednesday night, moving within 3 1/2 games of Chicago in the American League race after the White Sox had been spilled 3-1 by Baltimore in an afternoon game.

The Injuns did some blowing in this one, too, after building a 4-1 lead on homers by Woody Held and Jim Baxes and making it 5-1 when reliever Camilo Pascual gave up a fourth-inning triple to Vic Power, then walked three in a row.

New York came from five runs back and beat Detroit 10-5. Kansas City beat Boston 6-3.

In the National League, third place Milwaukee moved within three games of first place San Francisco as Lew Burdette beat the Giants 5-2 with a six-hitter and became the majors' top winner with 17. Second place Los Angeles stayed two games behind, losing 9-4 when Cincinnati scored seven runs in the eighth inning.

The Chicago Cubs and Philadelphia played a 7-7, 12-inning curfewed tie after the Phils took the opener of the two-night pair 4-1. St. Louis beat Pittsburgh 8-5 in 10 innings in the completion of a July 12 suspended game, but the Bucs won the regularly scheduled game 4-2.

Rookie Larry Locke saved it for the Indians and Cal McLish (15-6), coming on with none out in the eighth after the Nats had scored three runs on Bob Allison's 28th homer and Harmon Killebrew's 37th.

Held's 22nd home run broke a 1-1 tie for the Indians in the second inning against loser Bill Fischer (8-9).

Baltimore beat the White Sox and Bob Shaw (12-4) on Bob Boyd's two-run single with two out in the first. Billy O'Dell (7-10) was the winner.

Frank Lary (15-8), who had won seven in a row from the Yankees since July of last year, was chased in a four-run fifth. Marv Throneberry and Hector Lopez hammered two-run homers for the Yankees while Whitey Ford (13-6) won his fifth in a row with 5 2/3 innings of shutout relief. The Tigers scored their five against Ell Griba and Bob Turley.

Bud Daley, (15-7) beat the Red Sox with a four-hitter giving up Dick Gerner's 10th home run and Jackie Jensen's 25th. Frank Sullivan (7-8) was the loser.

Stepin Fetchit Returns As 'Up-To-Date' Comedian

By STAN KOVEN
CHICAGO (AP)—Stepin Fetchit shambled and shuffled through an era when mumbling in dialect thick as cornpone and sporting a floppy, disreputable gray felt hat were staples of comedy.
They aren't anymore, says Stepin Fetchit, who at 66 is out of retirement and launching a new career as a television and night club entertainer.
"The character as I did it is out," he says with no regrets. "This is a new world, do you savvy? The Negro has advanced way past that stage."

my exit, but I got just as many laughs before that on straight comedy."
Stepin Fetchit, born Lincoln Theodore Andrew Perry in Key West, Fla., got his start in minstrel show in Montgomery, Ala., more than 50 years ago, teaming with Ed Lee in an act billed as "The Two Dancing Fools from Dixie, Step and Fetchit."
"I guess I got the lazy idea from my partner," he recalls. "He was so lazy he used to call a cab to get across the street. Pretty soon it got so bad he wasn't showing up for performances."
Silent pictures were at their Zenith when he got a part in MGM's "In Old Kentucky."
Movies followed movies in rapid succession. "All the top ones — nothing but deluxe." How many movies? "I counted them by money. I made two million dollars worth."
Then, in the early '40s, the bubble burst. He sank a wad into a planned film biography of Satchel Paige, the great Negro baseball star. Step was to play Satch, but he went bankrupt instead.
This time around, the billing is different: "Stepin Fetchit, the former lazybones of the screen."

Mountain's Caretaker For Seventy Years

By NANCY ALEXANDER
Lenoir News-Topic Staff Writer
Written for The Associated Press
LINVILLE, N.C. (AP)—"I've been caretaker of Grandfather Mountain for 70 years," reflected Joe L. Hartley.
A worn hat sat comfortably on the back of his head. With thumbs thrust through his galluses, the mustached, crinkle-eyed mountaineer continued.
"I'll be 88 in September. I've walked over every inch of the mountain many a time and I still do it. I've kept a pretty close record of how far I've walked in my lifetime and its getting close to 125,000 miles. I can still walk 25 or 30 miles a day," he commented.

"If you could have seen this land as it was 75 years ago you'd go into tears," he continued.
"This section of the country when I came into it was what the Lord God promised the Israelites — flowing with milk and honey. This was the most heavenly place He knew how to create."
"Balsam and tamarack were 100 feet high and carpets of violets and other wild flowers spread all over it. Here was the most beautiful virgin forest in America before the saw mills deforested it."
"The woods was full of wild game. You could go to one pool and catch 25 fish. Deer was plentiful. Bear were very thick then. There are some here yet. As a rule 99 percent of 'em will run. One got after me once — it was a large one — and he meant to eat me, but I outran him," he laughed in reminiscence.
"Our hogs ran out and ate chestnuts. We didn't feed 'em — had the finest pork in the world too. They didn't get lost — sometimes they'd go a little wild — but you'd keep track of 'em. When you wanted to kill one, you'd find a flock and pitch out a little corn, get your old hog rifle and shoot it."
"Since they cut the brush in about 1895 to build the Yonahlossee Road and brought in the saw mills, it's never been the same."
"There were no roads here 'til that time, except old sled roads and Indian trails. I've walked every mile of the Indian trail in this section of the state and into Tennessee. I can show it to you today and walk it too," added the spry octogenarian.
"The trail started in Mecklenburg, came through Lincolnton, by Hickory a little to the south of Lenoir, up Mulberry crossing Globe mountain, coming up Upper Creek by Cary's Flat, crossing Wilson's creek to Grandmother Mountain, by Collet field and the old William Townsend place, crossing Moore's mountain, by Miller's gap on the Limeback, down by Squirrel creek into 'Kaintucky.' That's as far as I've followed it. I can show you where the Indians built a rock wall not far from here more than 1,000 years ago."

"It was the first settlers coming in here way back in the 16th and 17th centuries exploring for gold and minerals that named Grandfather Mountain. When they got to a grassy point very near the mountain, way down on the side they saw the profile of an old man — that's why they named it Grandfather. You can see the profile best coming from Boone and Fostice."
"There's a beautiful spring, called the Shanty Springs, on the northwest side of Calloway Peak of Grandfather, that flows into the Watauga river, which empties in the Gulf of Mexico and also into the Linville river, which empties into the Atlantic Ocean."
"There's a cave on Grandfather Mountain that was formed when the world was created. The roof would weigh 10,000 tons. When the pioneers came they found the Indians were working for gold. They had dug a well there and later, for some reason or other, decided to fill it up with rocks. They cracked the rock off, probably by heating it, and dropped it in the well. The top of the well must be 50 feet square. You can see it today."
"Kelsey, the engineer of Linville, found the cave about 70 years ago. I saw the soapstone pots — some would hold a bushel — and the tomahawks, arrowheads, and other relics he brought out. They kept them at the old Alexander MacRae house until it burned. Alexander MacRae was a well known man here, but he wasn't kin to Donald MacRae, who brought him here to build the road. His wife ran a boarding house.

"William Lenoir first owned Grandfather Mountain. He laid out a claim and owned all the land between Linville and Blowing Rock. Later Walter Lenoir owned it and sold the mountain to William White and he sold it to Joe Estes, who sold it to the Linville Company, headed by Donald MacRae, grandfather of Hugh Morton.
"The Mortons are bringing back a lot of the beauty that was destroyed. They're setting our red laurel and balsam all along the road up the mountain and it's going to be the most beautiful drive anywhere."
"This country is developing fine. Land that cost $1 an acre 70 years ago now brings $1,000."

Mountain called 'Morning on the Mountain'. One day when I was just a settlin' on an old grassy log that poem just come to me."
Almost every day finds Hartley on the mountain. When he isn't there he's usually at his home where he can see the blue twin peaks and swinging bridge across the broad valleys. Not only has he become synonymous with Grandfather but also with the annual "Singing on the Mountain" which he helped start in June of 1925 and which annually draws thousands of people to the great crests.

'Baghdad Pact' Given New Name

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — The headquarters of the Baghdad Pact confirmed today that the Middle East anti-Communist alliance has changed its name to the Central Treaty Organization.

There was no indication how the alliance will now be known colloquially, but it probably won't be the obvious CETO. That would sound just like the working name of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.
The Baghdad alliance originally made up of Britain, Iran, Iraq, Pakistan and Turkey. It took its name from the Iraqi capital, in which it was organized in 1955 and where it had its headquarters originally.
The "Baghdad" tag became a misnomer after the Iraqi revolution last year when the headquarters moved to Ankara and Iraq withdrew from the alliance.
The change of name was reported Tuesday in Tehran. Wednesday a British Foreign Office spokesman said the report was premature. Today and Ankara headquarters made the change of name official.

Red Skelton Is Cheering Patient

MOSCOW, Idaho (AP) — Red Skelton, the television comic, has been telephoning a hospital here this week to chat with a 10-year-old girl suffering from leukemia, the blood disease which claimed the life of Skelton's 9-year-old son, Richard.

Skelton, who is recovering from a recent operation, has been telephoning a hospital here this week to chat with a 10-year-old girl suffering from leukemia, the blood disease which claimed the life of Skelton's 9-year-old son, Richard.
Somebody notified Skelton that Mardella Kieer, of nearby Deary, enjoyed his television programs. The comic ordered a special set for Mardella's room because none was available at the hospital.
The girl celebrated her tenth birthday Sunday and Skelton, who is off for the summer, promised a "special" show for her in the future.
Doctors said Mardella, who entered the hospital two weeks ago when her condition worsened, has never been happier.

Tenacious Over 3-Cent Tax Bill

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Chief Deputy Sheriff George Huntress concedes that the city tax collectors are tenacious, but he wonders how efficient they are.
Huntress received a bill for 3 cents due on his 1959 tax bill. The city said he owed $173.53 but paid only $173.50.
Sending him a bill for three cents, Huntress noted, cost the city four cents in postage in addition to the costs of stationery and labor.
He didn't say whether he plans to pay the three cents.

Removed Wasps; Also The Barn

SHELBY, N.C. (AP) — Two youngsters were given torches Wednesday and told to burn out wasps nests under the eaves of a barn on the D. D. Lattimore farm near here.
They did. The barn also burned down. The loss was figured at $500.

Visitor From Japan Looks For 42 Treasured Swords

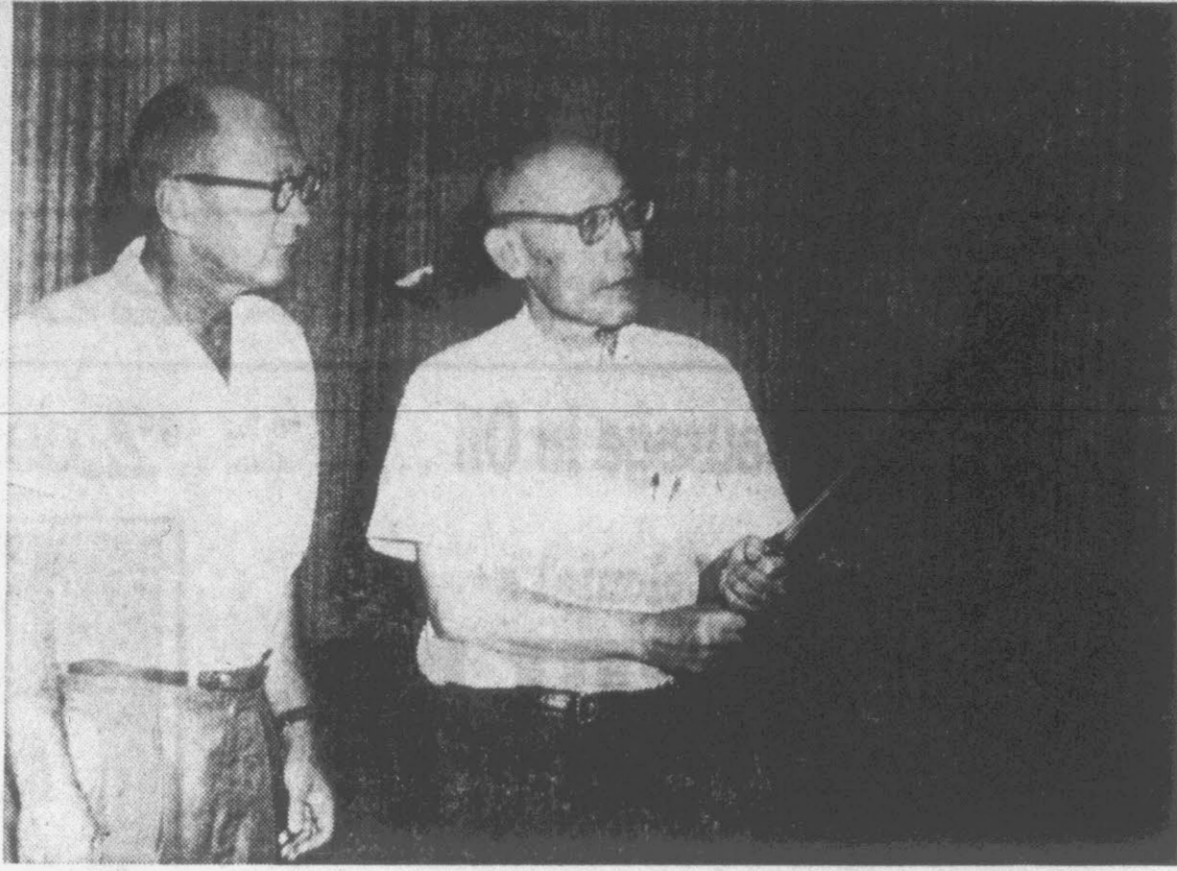

As Junzo Sato, with his briefcase, entered the office of the Greenville Tobacco Company and warmly greeted his acquaintances of the night before, his eyes immediately fell on the sword that was lying on the desk of Malcolm T. Simpson. The identity of that sword and 350,000 other Samurai swords that were taken out of Japan after World War II is very important to Sato, who is acclaimed as an expert and authority on Japanese swords.

No bitterness or regret, only hope, could be sensed in Sato's voice as he answered the questions "Why 350,000 Samurai swords left Japan and why 42 of these swords mean so much to Sato and his country."

After the Japanese surrender, they were requested to present all swords in their possession, except very few of exceptional quality to the Americans. Somehow, among the 350,000 swords that were taken out of the country, 42 of these swords were national treasures and important cultural property.

Sato's part in bringing these treasures back to their original owners has no connection with his mission to the United States. He is working with the Japanese Monopoly Corporation which controls tobacco, salt and camphor. His over-night stay in Greenville was to see how tobacco is grown and manufactured in this area.

The Society for the Preservation of Japanese Swords wrote Sato and asked if he would use his knowledge of swords and his access to travel over the United States in helping them "return to the original proprietors, the Japanese swords brought back to the U. S. A., especially those which were designated or recognized as national treasures or important cultural property."

Sato, a former international civil servant with the League of Nations and a member of the Japanese Diplomatic Service until his retirement, commented that the tobacco he had seen growing on the roadsides, "looks just like the tobacco we grow in Japan."

He sees little difference between his people and the people of the United States.

"I feel at home in the States," he says. Sato did graduate work at the University of Wisconsin in his younger days.

He has had no success thus far in locating any of the lost treasures, but he has seen many fine swords, especially in Washington, D. C.

"I appreciate the favorable reaction of the American public," Sato said.

After a three minute examination of the sword belonging to Simpson, Sato announced that it was "a very fine sword." He dated the sword at about 300 years old and said it had been made by Tadayoshi in the province of Hizen. Sato added that most of the best swords were produced during the 11th and 12 centuries.

"I wish anyone who has a Japanese sword would send in a description and a rubbing to the Public Relations Office, Japanese Embassy, Washington, D. C. in care of my name."

To make a rubbing of Simpson's sword, which was a gift from a friend, Sato first removed a peg in the sword handle and slipped the sword tongue out of the handle. The name of the maker and province is usually etched into the metal tongue of the sword. The rubbing was then made by holding a soft, flexible piece of paper on the tongue of the sword, and rubbing over the paper with a piece of firm dark chalk. The Japanese figures were then transferred to the paper.

Sato became a sword expert through years of study and collecting. He began his collection when he was in high school, but his collection of 100 swords were lost due to the war. Sato's family in Japan includes his wife, a daughter and a son.

Insists Marlon Tell In Advance

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—From now on, if Marlon Brando wants to see his baby son he'll have to notify his ex-wife in advance, says actress Anna Kashfi.

Miss Kashfi said Brando has been showing up unannounced at her home and "causing trouble generally." She will seek a court order to prevent the actor from visiting at unscheduled hours. The divorce settlement requires the actor to make advance arrangements before coming to Miss Kashfi's home to visit the baby.

Brando, 35, has agreed to pay his 24-year-old ex-wife more than half a million dollars in future earnings under terms of the settlement. He also is paying $1,000 monthly support for their son, Christian, who was a year old in May.

Educational System Shifts Into Step With The Times

By SAMUEL MARKMAN
So dynamic and swift-changing is the field of secondary education that in 10 years that much-discussed Conant report, "The American High School Today," will be "as old-fashioned as the Model T Ford."

This is the opinion of Robert L. Springer, supervising principal of Central High School District No. 2, Floral Park, N.Y., known also as the Sewanhaka Central High School District, one of 55 schools visited personally by Dr. James Bryant Conant during the course of his investigation.

Not Criticism, Says Springer
His statement, Mr. Springer stressed, is not to be construed as criticism of Dr. Conant's exhaustive analysis, but merely as an indication that the report is a highly conservative one and that few of its conclusions or recommendations can be considered "revolutionary."

While fewer than a third of the nation's high schools approach the standards set up by Dr. Conant, says Mr. Springer, the vast majority of educators would accept them, on the whole, as a logical present-day "norm."

During his field work in the project, Dr. Conant and his staff made an intensive study of the Sewanhaka program and found that it came as close as any school's to the model he had established in consultation with experts before the actual survey was undertaken.

Using Recommendations
The six high schools in the Sewanhaka District, Mr. Springer points out, now have or are accomplishing all but five of the 21 Conant recommendations — and these five are being followed partly or with variations. In the district:

Every student is required to take at least four years of English, three or four years of Social Studies, one year of Mathematics, one year of science, plus "a significant sequence" of electives.

Students are grouped according to ability subject by subject in grades 9-12, and according to general ability in grades 7 and 8.

All students are tested in English composition — not only each year, but periodically during the year.

Diversified programs are offered for the development of "marketable" skills.

Special considerations — tests and special programs — are made for slow readers.

Highly gifted students are identified from 7th to 12th grade via a continuous program of I.Q. and achievement tests.

Four years in each of four different languages are offered, and two additional languages will be offered in the coming year.

Every student is required to take at least one year of biology or general science. A wide variety of science courses are offered.

These and others are among the Conant recommendations met by the Sewanhaka system.

At least two of the Conant recommendations, however, do not find favor with Mr. Springer. He feels, for example, that the Conant approach to guidance is inconsistent in that the report recommends a total of 200-300 pupils per counsellor, coupled with a certain amount of guidance work in the home room.

Called Duplication
This, Mr. Springer says, represents a measure of duplication. If a period a week is given over to home room guidance by the home room teacher, he adds, then the guidance counsellor can handle 400 students. This, at any rate is the Sewanhaka approach and the Sewanhaka program.

Mr. Springer is also not ready to accept the recommendation that graduates' diplomas should carry a complete list of courses taken and grades achieved. The schools in his district furnish such information, on request, to colleges and employers. This practice, he holds, meets all needs for such data quite adequately.

A widely recognized authority on secondary education, Mr. Springer before taking over supervision of the Sewanhaka District, was assistant superintendent of the Indianapolis public schools and supervisor of high schools in El Paso, Texas.

Currently he is a member of the Commission on Secondary Education for both the Metropolitan School Study Council and the New York State Council of Superintendents and chairman of the Evaluation Sub-Committee on Educational Television, appointed by the New York State Commissioner of Education.

Healthy Awakening
While he deplores the near-panic in regard to education which the start of Sputnik era brought on, Mr. Springer regards the re-awakening as a generally healthy development.

"Russia did us a favor," he said. "After the successful launching of Sputnik I, America's citizens were aroused and every one began to fire questions and criticisms, advice and suggestions about our educational system.

"Now that the dust has settled, we might well ask ourselves: 'What Was All the Fuss About?' For we have learned, through the

Conant report, that while as a nation we have failed to meet some of the educational requirements of the complex atomic age, we are certainly not impossibly far from the goal.

"Our educators have the wisdom and training to achieve it."

Boy's Computer Being Exhibited

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A computer designed and built by a 16-year-old boy which automatically translates typewriter strokes into braille is on exhibit at the electronics convention here.

David E. Milne, San Diego, Calif., said he built the device from surplus parts and hardware store items in 2½ years. He conceived it for his younger brother, Steve, "who can't see too well."

The young scientist is one of 37 future engineers showing projects at the Western Electronics Show and Convention (WESCON) at the Cow Palace.

His "brain" consists of an ancient portable typewriter, a home-made computer and a translator he made by adapting a punch system to an electric feeder. Engineers said it was the only automatic braille known.

Decided Alert A Rescue Squad

DETROIT (AP) — The operator heard heavy breathing, as if someone were in pain. She traced the call and alerted a fire department rescue squad.

"What in the world do you want?" asked an amazed Mrs. Arnell Thomas as a dozen firemen pounded on her door.

A check showed Mrs. Thomas' 4-year-old son, Noah Jr., taking his nap in an upstairs bedroom had knocked the phone off the hook and was snoring into it.

Quality Is Rated Over Quantity In Jobs Field

It has been made abundantly clear to the American public that a severe shortage exists of trained personnel to fill the many new occupations ushered in by the atomic-electronic-space age.

It is less clearly understood, however, according to the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, that the need for qualified personnel is as pressing, and perhaps more so than the need for large numbers of them.

L. F. Hickernell, president of AIEE, commenting on the reported 11 per cent drop in enrollment at engineering colleges in 1958, said:

Dormant Talents
"This figure is not so alarming. Quality is a greater concern. Many students recruited in a drive are not qualified to study engineering. On the other hand, many talents lie dormant because of inadequate secondary school training in mathematics and in physical sciences."

Of special significance in this regard is the greatly broadened career opportunity today in fields that were formerly only of academic importance.

In the modern age, the student of pure mathematics, for instance, has many careers available to him in addition to the time-honored one of teaching. His work is basic in the design, construction and operation of "mechanical brains"—the electronic calculators now finding hundreds of uses in everything from business machines to guided missiles.

New Opportunities
In many other fields, opportuni-

Local CPA On State Board

Richard K. Worsley, Greenville CPA, has been appointed to the N. C. State Board of Certified Public Accountant Examiners, Gov. Hodges announced today.

Also appointed to the board was Martin L. Black Jr., professor of accounting, Department of Economics and Business Administration of Duke University. Both were appointed for three-year terms expiring June 30, 1962.

Worsley and Black will replace Sydney H. Shaw of Rocky Mount and R. Glenn Snipes of Asheville. Black has been serving as the governor's appointee on the Eastern Carolina Regional Housing Authority, which position he has resigned in order to accept the appointment to the Board of Certified Public Accountants Examiners. Black's successor on the Housing Authority will be announced in the near future.

smoothest ride!

One of the 7 big bests Chevrolet gives you over any other car in its field

Anyone who's ever taken a Chevy over a choppy country road can tell you how lightly Chevrolet's Full Coil suspension handles rough going — and coil springs never squeak, never need grease! Try this velvet way of going for yourself. Once you do, you'll find your own way of saying what MOTOR TREND magazine puts this way: "the smoothest, most quiet, softest riding car in its price class." But the happiest part of it all is that this Full Coil ride is just one of seven big bests—all documented by published opinions of experts and on-the-record facts and figures.

BEST ROOM—Official dimensions reported to A.M.A.* show that Chevrolet sedans offer more front seat head room than all but one of the high-priced cars—more front seat hip room (by up to 5.9 inches) than the "other two" of the leading low-priced three.

BEST ENGINE—Chevrolet engines have long won expert praise from virtually every automobile magazine, and, just recently, Chevrolet received the NASCAR† Outstanding Achievement award for "the creation and continuing development of America's most efficient V-type engines."

BEST ECONOMY—A pair of Chevrolet sixes with Powerglide won their class in this year's Mobilgas Economy Run, topping every other full-sized car. And the winning mileage was a whopping 22.38 m.p.g.

BEST BRAKES—Chevy's bonded-lining brakes are the biggest in their field, built for up to 66% longer life. In a direct competition conducted by NASCAR, Chevy out-stopped both of the other leading low-priced cars in a test of repeated stops from highway speeds.

BEST STYLE—It's the only car of the leading low-priced 3 that's unmistakably modern in every line. "In its price class," says POPULAR SCIENCE magazine, "a new high in daring styling."

BEST TRADE-IN—Any N.A.D.A.‡ Guide Book can give you the figures on Chevy's extra value. You'll find that Chevrolet used car prices last year averaged up to $128 higher than comparable models of the "other two." Your Chevrolet dealer will be happy to tell you about a whole host of other advantages besides these seven. Why not drop by his showroom?

By MATT STUART

© By Matt Stuart, 1959; from the Dodd, Mead & Co. novel; distributed by King Features Syndicate.

Though Charley Tunison was a steady customer, Ben Dillon held no particular liking for him. A plain and fundamental man himself, the saloon owner did not care for the suggestion of ostentation always present in the lawyer's manner. Those special cigars he smoked, and the fact that he must have his own private bottle, tended toward this impression.

CHAPTER 14
Frank Dalmar stared at the door through which his father had stormed. Here at last, the thing he had always sensed in his father, was in the open. A relentless purpose and cruelty that was the dark foundation of all the derisive sneers, the sarcasm, the cutting word and look. Yes, here was the cruelest of purposes, utterly without scruple of any sort.

It not from fear? If so—fear of what? Frank Dalmar moved out into a short hall that was filled with the thickening gloom of dusk and the musty staleness of warm, trapped air. At the far end of this he turned into a room that was his own, and lowered himself on the edge of an iron bunk on which a couple of blankets lay in an untidy tangle.

He took a second drag. And presently the flask was empty. Dusk deepened to darkness. Faintly came all the little sounds of the ranch marking off another day and meeting another night. Loudest of these was the jangling of the iron triangle at the cook-shack door as the cook beat out the call to supper.

Now, as Charley Tunison slowly lowered the level of his drink, he kept eying Frank Dalmar, and the bright hardness in his glance became a glitter.

Long had he disliked Frank Dalmar, mainly because Frank had been able to win a degree of favor in the eyes of Susan Vincent which he himself had aspired to but never attained.

What made a man that way? Greed, perhaps? Lust for power, or perverted ambition? Any one or all of these. But mainly because a human being, it seemed, could be born with all the rapacious instincts of a wolf.

For some little time he was motionless, his eyes fixed straight ahead, as though seeking a cleared way through the debris of ominous fact which had fallen about him. When he finally did move it was to drag a war-bag from under the bunk. From this he unearthed a partially emptied pint flask of whiskey. He wagged the cork free and took a long drag.

He got to his feet and made his way out of the house into night's full dark. Light shone in the cook-shack and the yellow rectangle of the open doorway was momentarily filled with the moving bulk of two late arrivals. Jonas Dalmar and Barton Sampson and the Double Diamond crew were now gathered at supper.

Toward him, Sue Vincent was friendly enough, and she always included him in the frequent gatherings she'd held at Big Five, but never had she shown him any part of the companionable warmth she displayed toward Frank Dalmar.

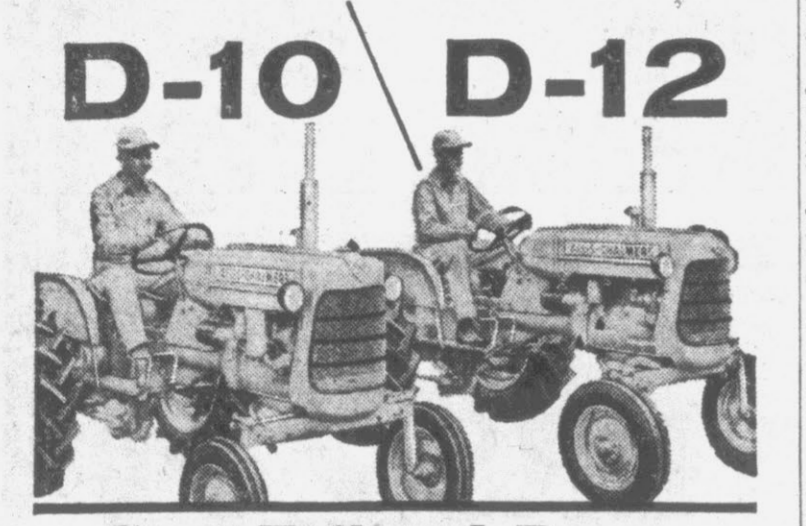

What of himself words his father had thrown at him still rang in his ears. "If your guts are turning over, it's because you're scared." Well, they were turning over, all right, and it was or was Hitting his empty stomach, the whiskey was swift in its effect.

A vain man, the lawyer resented this, just as he resented Frank the fact of his more youthful years. Had Charley Tunison lived in one of the world's big cities, he would have had his own special barber to keep the grizzle in his hair carefully stained and darkened.

At one time, Charley Tunison had held to the hope of talking Sue Vincent into marriage, but had long since recognized the virtual impossibility of this ever happening, so now had made other plans in certain matters.

Cotton Stalk Is Ten Feet Tall

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—It'll be more like gathering fruit when Bill Hancock picks his cotton crop in the edge of downtown Dallas. Hancock, owner of a chemical firm, planted a single stalk indoors and applied a hormone growth stimulant as an experiment. The stalk shot up and he had to transplant it into a tiny strip of soil back of his business place. His one-stalk crop now is 10 feet tall and Hancock expects it to grow another couple of feet. He has counted 100 bolls on the single plant.

War Hero Sues For A Divorce

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Gregory (Pappy) Boyington, former flying ace, has sued his second wife for divorce, alleging cruelty. Boyington, 56, who left the U.S. Marine Corps as a lieutenant colonel after World War II, won the Medal of Honor for shooting down 28 Japanese planes in the South Pacific. He and Mrs. Boyington, former actress Frances Reiman, 45, were married in 1956. The divorce complaint did not give details. The couple separated July 2. Boyington now devotes most of his time to writing books.

That 48-Star Flag Still Good

With the admission of Alaska and Hawaii to the Union you may be wondering what to do with your 48-star flag.

If your flag is still serviceable, local Marine recruiting sergeant Leo Smith says not to throw it away. According to the sergeant, the only time a flag is destroyed is to prevent capture by the enemy, or when it is no longer a fitting emblem for display.

Sgt. Smith said that with limited exceptions, agencies of the Federal Government will continue to display 48-star flags so long as they are still in good condition and until existing stocks are exhausted.

To destroy the National Colors merely because they only have 48 stars would not only be improper, but in the strictest interpretation, would be a violation of the United States Code.

The Leatherneck recruiter says that when the National Colors are worn out, or unserviceable, they should be destroyed with due reverence, in private, preferably by burning.

Civic and patriotic groups, merchants and other interested in the proper respect and display of the American flag are advised to get in touch with Sgt. Smith.

Sgt. Smith carries with him on his weekly visits to the Greenville Court House a supply of "Our Flag" booklets.

Published by the Marine Corps for free distribution, the booklets give a short, authentic history of Old Glory plus all the rules for respect and display.

Sgt. Smith is in the Greenville Court House every Tuesday from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. or you can write to him anytime in care of the Post Office Building in Wilson, North Carolina and he will send you, your copy free.

Wants Computer That Can Learn

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Computers could do a wonderful job as military planners if only they could learn, the director of an Army study project said today.

Machines capable of learning are on the way, he added.

"The goal, of course, is to make the computer behave more like the human planner," Julius Brick told the Western Electronics Show and Convention.

"This is the direction in which computer designers will be heading for some time," he declared in a paper before a military electronics section.

Brick, computer specialist with W. L. Maxson Corp. of New York, reported on a study of computer planning of artillery fire for the Army's Field Artillery School at Ft. Sill, Okla.

He said the St. Sill study, carried out with a commercially available computer, showed that "in one aspect our computer is vastly superior to the human planner, and that is in its ability to consider all the details a thorough planning job requires."

"However, the machine is totally incompetent when it comes to making even the minutest variation in its procedures for deriving a fire plan."

"It is in this area that the next major advances in computer art must come," Brick declared.

Waynick Sees Contradictions In Guard Reduction

Certificates of appreciation were presented to the Daily Reflector, Radio Station WGTC and Television Station WNCT by North Carolina's adjutant general, Maj. Gen. Capus Waynick, on behalf of the National Guard last night. David J. Whichard III, received the certificate for the Reflector, Joel Lawhon for WGTC and A. Hartwell Campbell for WNCT. The special awards were presented at a supper meeting attended by high ranking officers of the National Guard and officials from the three local public information media.

Waynick told the group that the nation has "firm treaty agreements to protect 45 other nations than our own." He said the U. S. Army now stands at 900,000 men and some political and military leaders advocate cutting its strength to 870,000. At the same time this school advocates cutting the Army National Guard from its present strength of 400,000 to 360,000.

"Is this wise?" he asked. "These international commitments to which I referred have forced us to send the major portion of our army to foreign stations. About 635,000 of our army are scattered over the face of the earth outside the U.S.A."

"If war comes, it will be an atomic blitz, in all probability, members are asked to be present. J. F. McLaurin is the pastor.

Ass'n Gives Pitt Hospital An Isolette

NEW ISOLETTE—Staff Nurse Mattie Bryan demonstrates the use of the new life-saving unit to Frank Brown, Sr., President of the Pitt County Association for the Blind and Harry Allen, Vice president of the Greenville Lions Club.

The Pitt County Association for the Blind yesterday gave the Pitt Memorial Hospital a new Isolette, a unit for use with premature babies.

According to Phyllis Martin, Superintendent of Nurses for the hospital, the new Isolette is the third such unit at the hospital and an invaluable aid in the care of premature babies. The unit takes the place of the mother, controlling the temperature, humidity, amount of oxygen, and the like for the child. It was noted that once an infant is placed in the unit it is never removed until a doctor orders it removed.

The unit was given to the hospital by the Pitt County Association for the Blind in hopes it may be helpful in saving the sight of new-born children. According to doctors, premature babies, if given too much oxygen, will go blind. With the new unit, the oxygen content can never go beyond the safe point. The use of the unit will also prevent injury to the youngsters.

The unit costs $872.50 and, once set, is fully automatic.

Frank Brown Sr., president of the Pitt County Association for the Blind, made the announcement the Association was giving the unit to the hospital July 7.

The Pitt County Association for the Blind was formed by the Greenville Lions Club in September 1943 and until this year, when the Association joined the United Fund, it received funds from the Lions Club.
