She brought out the fact that "we do not wait until the life after death to begin our service for God but that now and right here we begin to fulfill our obligations to God 'the Heavenly Father.'"

Mrs. Lewis Ayers, health leader, advised all to handle plastic bags as deadly poison, saying they should be kept out of the reach of children. She told of the many deaths that have been caused by plastic bags.

The educational leader, Mrs. Z. T. Harris, reported on the Home Demonstration Book Club and said there would not be a meeting during August.

The president, Mrs. R. R. Whitehurst, presided at a short business session during which time items of interest were discussed.

Mrs. Lois Freeman, assistant home agent, gave a demonstration on "Gadgets Galore," showing useful and attractive gadgets for the home. She emphasized three points to consider when buying gadgets: First, if you are giving them for gifts, let it be a labor saver; second, is the price of equipment too expensive for the usefulness of it; and, third, is the gadget used or is it stored and never used.

The meeting was turned over to the recreation leader, Mrs. R. R. James, who led the group in games. The meeting adjourned with the club collect.

The hostess served iced drinks, sandwiches, cheese straws and cookies to the 12 members and one visitor. Mrs. D. M. Hollowell of Greenville.

Slim Jim Pants To Rate On Campus

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

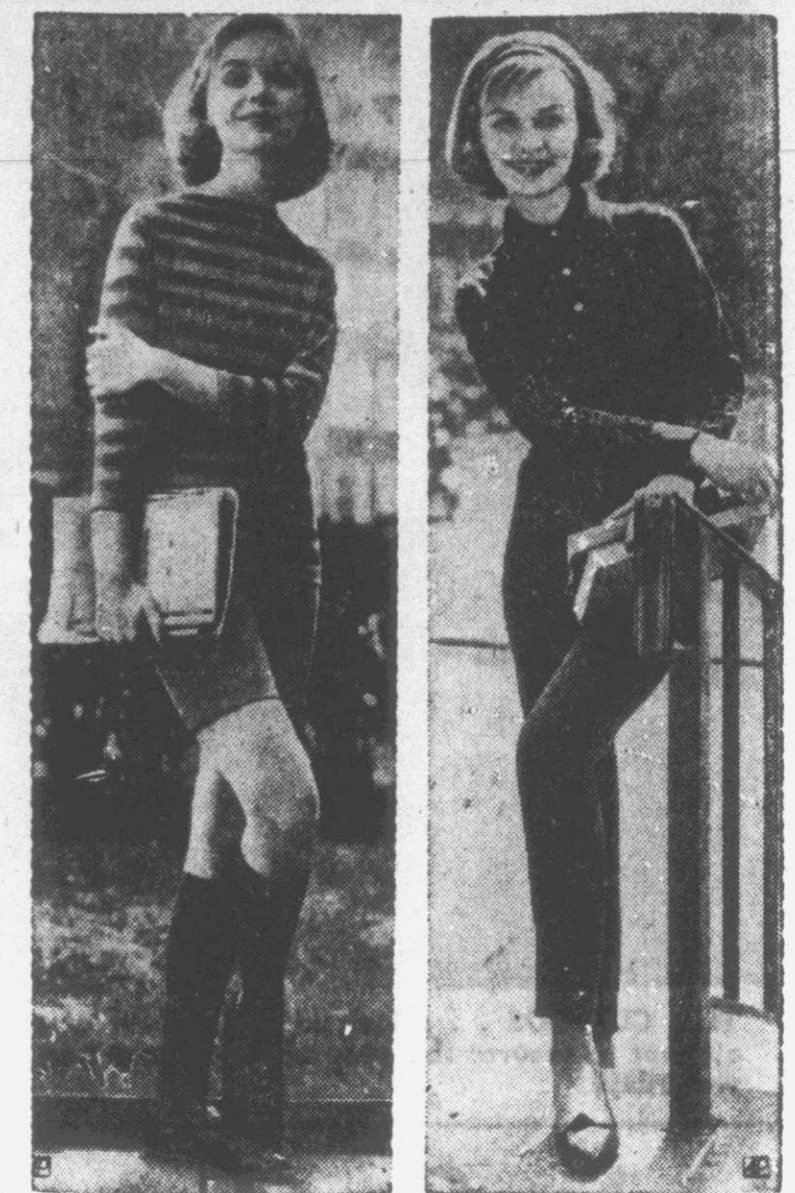

PANTS are the campus uniform at most women's colleges. In all varieties, from skinny pants to Bermuda shorts, they are the college girl's standby. Even at coed universities, where shorts and slacks usually are banned on campus and in classrooms, they are a must for off-campus sports and dormitory lounging.

This year cotton knits assume new importance, both in sweater tops and pants, in skirts and shorts. Tapered Slim Jim pants are a current favorite, in dark or neutral colors, teamed with boat-necked pullovers or classic shirts.

Top colors of the year are neutrals such as camel or oatmeal, and muted greens.

REQUIRED EQUIPMENT . . . Striped middy top and Slim Jim pants, designed by Aileen in color-mated cotton knits.

CAMPUS CLASSIC . . . Boat-necked striped pullover and university shorts to match. SLIM JIMS . . . Olive green cotton knit pants, striped shirt, designed by Aileen.

Creative Craftsmen Finds Outlet In Tin-Can Crafts

With a bit of creative thinking, tin-can craft may bring sparkling beauty and a real learning experience into the lives of all who try it.

The Home Demonstration Club women in Eastern North Carolina will have a chance to learn the craft at the Eastern District craft workshop. The workshop will be held at Roanoke Island 4-H Club camp, Aug. 18-20. It is for Home Demonstration leaders who live in the Eastern counties.

The value of tin as a medium for artistic and creative expression often has been overlooked. Yet, it is a material with unique possibilities. It is light in weight, easily bent, coiled or curled, easy to cut, smooth, thin, shiny, lasting—and free for the saving.

The fact that tin is free for the salvaging, however, should not be the only factor in choosing it. There is a vast field for creative imagination and exploration. This waste product can be converted into sparkling ornaments of surprising beauty or into useful items which also are decorative—all without fear of straining the budget.

Tin-can articles are especially useful as Christmas decorations. Angels, deer, stars, candleholders, bells, and even small Christmas trees are derived from the cans.

He Moves In And Starlings Leave

MOUNT VERNON, N.Y. (AP)—Otto Standke moved in, and the starlings moved out. All of which makes a bird of a story.

For 10 years, residents of this area have been trying to get rid of the starlings, who appear by the thousands in August and mess up the neighborhood. All efforts failed — including fire hoses, battleship searchlights, skyrockets and dishpan pounding.

There was a big, hushed crowd of humans at twilight Thursday night when Standke, the starling- starter, appeared. Out of a bat- tered gray box about the size of a plumber's tool kit the 71-year- old Standke fished out two metal flappers and a metal chime. He hung the chime around his neck and put the flappers on his hands.

Alternately banging the flappers and sounding the chime, Standke marched around the area for 45 minutes. At first the starlings, like the spectators, just stood around and listened. Then the winged villains took off, covey after covey.

Standke said he can't say why the noise he makes causes starlings to take it on the lam.

He invented his contraption, he said, after his home town of Great Bend, Kan., spent $1,500 for alumi- num owls, putting them in the trees to scare the birds. The starlings just roosted on them.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Labor leaders and Roman Catholic gov- ernors—who some might assume would be his best routers — are proving troublesome to the presi- dential aspirations of Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.).

The three governors are threat- ening to prevent Kennedy, also a Roman Catholic, from contesting for about 200 presidential nomi- nating ballots he may need badly at next year's Los Angeles con- vention. These votes add up to nearly one-third of the 680-odd likely to be required to win the nomination.

The labor leaders, who loved him in April when he was fight- ing their battles against what they regarded as punitive labor control legislation, are cooling on him in August as the prospects increase for congressional approval of a strong labor bill.

The political blockade presented to Kennedy by the three Catholic governors, Edmund G. (Pat) Brown of California, Michael V. DiSalle of Ohio and David L. Lawrence of Pennsylvania, may not be entirely insurmountable, in the view of Kennedy's friends.

Much as he would like to test his popularity in California, Ken- nedy obviously isn't going to cross Brown in the latter's determina- tion to become at least a favorite son — and possibly a national- candidate for the party's No. 1 nomination.

But the story may be different in the case of DiSalle and Law- rence. Unless his present intentions change, Kennedy is likely to chal- lenge in the May 3 Ohio primary DiSalle's plan to control an un- committed delegation as a favor- ite son.

Kennedy's confidence of his strength in such primary tests has been bolstered by recent peace overtures made to him in behalf of Gov. J. Millard Tawes of Mary- land.

Tawes has wanted to keep Maryland's delegation uncommit- ted. Kennedy has made it plain that in such an event he would move into that state's May 17 pri- mary. The senator and the gov- ernor will get together in a couple of weeks to see what they can work out.

It is no secret that Kennedy is miffed at what he regards as Lawrence's desire to hold a pub- licly uncommitted Pennsylvania delegation in reserve to support Adlai E. Stevenson if the latter's name comes up for the third time in the presidential nomination contest.

Kennedy is toying with the idea of entering the state's April 26 primary, despite the obvious drawbacks of such a move.

The labor leaders are barking at Kennedy in the hope that he can influence the Senate-House Conference Committee over which he is presiding to produce a com- promise labor bill softer than the version passed by the House.

Kennedy thinks a compromise will be reached. But its curbs on blackmail picketing and second- ary boycotts are not likely to be accepted by the labor leaders without loud and lengthy complaints.

Authorities on higher education are in almost universal agree- ment that the college man — and woman — of today is considerably more mature than was the camp- us inhabitant of a quarter-centu- ry ago.

For one thing, today's college student, on the average, is older. He is frequently married. Thus, not only is his attitude toward college likely to be more serious, but he also has serious interests off campus.

Demanding Realities
College no longer represents his whole life, but is rather a vital phase in his preparation for the demanding realities of life beyond the campus.

The separation of the boys from the men actually begins before the young man sets foot on camp- us. Statistics indicate that out of every 100 ninth-graders today only 66 will be graduated from high school, 33 will enter college. And of these, only 20 will end up with college degrees.

There are a number of reasons for this and one of the major ones—according to some educa- tors—is the fact that "spoon-feed- ing" in the secondary schools fails to prepare the students ade- quately for the more rigorous academic climate of college.

While the influence of this fac- tor, it is agreed, can be over- estimated, much thought is being given today by college adminis- trators to developing better meth- ods of "weeding out" those who lack the ability or the conscien- tiousness, to make the grade.

Grimly Selective
Accelerating this trend is the anticipation of a demand in the 1960's that will far exceed the sup- ply of higher education facilities. In the next few years, says one observer, colleges will become "grimly selective."

Demanding Realities
College no longer represents his whole life, but is rather a vital phase in his preparation for the demanding realities of life beyond the campus.

The separation of the boys from the men actually begins before the young man sets foot on camp- us. Statistics indicate that out of every 100 ninth-graders today only 66 will be graduated from high school, 33 will enter college. And of these, only 20 will end up with college degrees.

There are a number of reasons for this and one of the major ones—according to some educa- tors—is the fact that "spoon-feed- ing" in the secondary schools fails to prepare the students ade- quately for the more rigorous academic climate of college.

While the influence of this fac- tor, it is agreed, can be over- estimated, much thought is being given today by college adminis- trators to developing better meth- ods of "weeding out" those who lack the ability or the conscien- tiousness, to make the grade.

Grimly Selective
Accelerating this trend is the anticipation of a demand in the 1960's that will far exceed the sup- ply of higher education facilities. In the next few years, says one observer, colleges will become "grimly selective."

It is an axiom of history that "the times make the man." And these are times that have made men of the college students who once were generally regarded as boys.

Authorities on higher education are in almost universal agree- ment that the college man — and woman — of today is considerably more mature than was the camp- us inhabitant of a quarter-centu- ry ago.

For one thing, today's college student, on the average, is older. He is frequently married. Thus, not only is his attitude toward college likely to be more serious, but he also has serious interests off campus.

Radiation Alarm For Radios Seen
LOS ANGELES (AP) — A scientist says a gadget that howls like a siren can be built into portable radios for $15 to warn of dangerous radiation.

The penny-size device could save thousands of lives in an atomic attack, Dr. Willard F. Libby told the City Council Thurs- day. He is a UCLA chemistry pro- fessor and former member of the Atomic Energy Commission.

The device, called the Banshee, contains a cadmium sulfide crystal. To demonstrate its effective- ness, Dr. Libby moved a piece of radioactive cobalt near his Ban- shee-equipped portable radio. The device emitted a loud wail.

Can Only Benefit By Use Of Ports

Gratifying progress apparently is being made by the state in its efforts to bring into North Carolina ports foreign raw materials used in manufacturing in this state.

It may take many years to divert the bulk of such shipments from other ports to the two deepwater ports of North Carolina, but efforts in that direction cannot help but build the importance of Tar Heel ports.

After a meeting in Washington this week state officials and members of the North Carolina congressional delegation have reported some progress in their efforts to have Turkish and Greek tobacco shipments designated for North Carolina to come through Morehead City or Wilmington rather than Norfolk. American Export Line officials have agreed to ask the U. S. Maritime Administration for authority to operate between Mediterranean ports and the two North Carolina ports. If such permission is granted, items other than tobacco in all probability will also come into Tar Heel ports from the Mediterranean.

With its industrial growth, North Carolina is consuming in its manufacturing plants an increasing quantity of raw materials shipped by water from foreign countries as well as from other areas of our own country. The more of this flow of goods which can be handled through our own ports, the greater the benefit to the state. Not only will the facilities at Morehead City and Wilmington become points of entry for goods designated for manufacturing plants in this state, they will become more important ports in the economy of other nearby states as well.

Certainly North Carolina should exert every effort to see that its deepwater ports are utilized to the greatest possible extent for importing materials used in Tar Heel industry, and for exporting goods and products produced and manufactured in this state.

For too many years North Carolina's two major ports have taken a back seat to the large seaports of our sister states immediately to the North and South. Every step taken to rectify this situation is important to our ports and the economy of our state as a whole.

Some Ground Gained In Hemispheric Unity

Considerable ground appears to have been gained at the Santiago conference of Inter-American foreign ministers toward resolving the tension and trouble that has been mounting in the Caribbean area for months.

Most of the American nations represented at the conference made clear that they continue to stand by the two major principles that have guided hemispheric affairs for years:

1. the traditional policy of non-intervention in the internal affairs of another member nation should be maintained; and
2. a government should hold power only through the free expression of the people it governs.

While words often are insufficient to dissuade would-be aggressors in international affairs, the overwhelming expression of the American nations that the above-cited basic principles should be followed may be sufficient to lessen tension in the Caribbean area. The fact that they are, for the moment, banking on public opinion in the American nations to keep troublemakers from making trouble is—for the time being at least—sound. If further, more direct measures are needed to prevent trouble, at least this first effort will provide an atmosphere in which public opinion will support subsequent measures.

There can be no doubt that the Santiago conference has strengthened the ties between most of the nations of the Western Hemisphere. In times of greater or less tension, these stronger ties will stand the nations of the hemisphere in good stead.

From the standpoint of the United States, it may be a springboard from which this nation will give greater attention to its relationship with its neighbors to the south. It provides an atmosphere for a better mutual understanding between the nations of the Americas and it provides another situation which can bind the vast majority of these independent nations closer together in a common cause.

Congress Should Not Run From Khrushchev

It has been suggested that Congress is pushing its agenda in an effort to adjourn before September 15 in order to avoid the embarrassment of resolving the question of whether to invite Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev to address it.

Certainly there is nothing to be gained by having Khrushchev address Congress. It would merely afford him another forum in which to expound the Soviet propaganda line which we will do anyway during his visit to the United States. Congress certainly should not allow itself to be used for that purpose.

Neither, it seems to us, should Congress rush through its important business merely to avoid the embarrassment of not having Khrushchev to address it. After all, the business before Congress is of utmost importance to the people of the United States. Handling it hurriedly merely to adjourn the session before Khrushchev arrives certainly would not be putting the best interest of the American people first.

Congress, in our opinion, should go about its business deliberately, conducting its business in a usual manner without regard to the designated day of Khrushchev arrival. If it gets through before his arrival, fine. If it is still in session when the Soviet Premier arrives, what of it? It can still go about its business of looking after the affairs of the American people without taking time out to hear an address by the big boss of the Communist world.

We have no objections to Khrushchev's visit to the United States and his conference with President Eisenhower. But the suggestion that the Soviet Premier will run the United States Congress out of Washington is unthinkable.

A Good Chance For Long Strike

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — The steel strike had been going on since July 15 and President Eisenhower and Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell decided to do something about it, but in a very restrained way.

They hadn't taken sides. And they weren't taking sides now, although if the strike continues into late September the shortage of steel may create a national emergency.

The two men thought it might be worthwhile to give the public some facts and figures which various government agencies have gathered on steel workers' earnings and productivity and on the steel industry's prices and profits.

The steel dispute really began early last May when negotiations started. But from the beginning both sides have dawdled in one of the most lackadaisical negotiations in American history.

And even now, with the strike costing 300 million dollars a week in production and 70 million dollars in wages, neither side shows a pressing anxiety to reach a settlement.

So just how laying down some facts and figures on wages and profits might hasten an agreement isn't at all clear. But Eisenhower and Mitchell decided to go ahead and make the figures public.

Mitchell announced Tuesday the government's figures would be unveiled at a news conference Wednesday afternoon.

As each reporter walked in he got a 42 — page, brown — paper covered booklet with masses of statistics and charts. The information it contained had been gathered from government agencies and some of it even from the steel industry itself.

The booklet had an explanatory foreword by Mitchell. In it he said: "There are no conclusions drawn in this booklet. The responsibility for a settlement of the strike rests upon management and labor in the industry."

If the President or Mitchell had drawn conclusions from the figures they produced, they would have been putting the heat on one side or the other in the dispute to get off the high horse.

But without such official conclusions, the result had to be every man for himself in deciding what the figures meant. The reporters realized this, of course, but they were glad to see the government figures anyway.

But then they read elsewhere in Mitchell's foreword this statement: "Management and labor already know these facts."

One gray-haired reporter, who has been around Washington a long time and has never been easily impressed by the pronouncements of government officials, read that sentence from Mitchell's foreword to some of the reporters around him.

He said it reminded him of a couple of vaudeville comedians he saw once. One of them was lying on the stage, supposedly wounded in battle. The other said: "Tell your mother."

But the one lying on the stage said: "You don't have to tell my (continued on page 10)

At Foot Of The Rainbow

So you've been told about that pot of gold at the foot of a rainbow?

And you finally dismissed the story as being ill-founded?

Glad you did! Because it just so happens that today we spend a few well-chosen words debunking that bit of lore. If you were a believer, I'd be the last person in the world to tell you that pot-of-gold story is pure hokum. (At times the writer can be very tolerant.)

As is the case with every red-blooded American I too was told there was a pot of gold at the foot of a rainbow. Some measure of faith that this was so must have existed, because for a time there was speculation as to what could be done with a pot of gold, as well as wondering how one could ever get to the foot of any rainbow I ever saw. . . they were always at a distance.

And as things worked out, I never did get to the foot of a rainbow to dig until a little over a week ago. By that time my confidence in the tale had waned to a big fat zero.

How I got to the foot of a rainbow is a long story. . . so to make it brief, our fishing party was in a boat off Beaufort Inlet and the weather included an infrequent sprinkle of rain.

There came a time when in one of those mistlike showers someone called out to the effect we had a rainbow right over the stern of the boat.

Sure enough, it was true. One dinky little old rainbow had a foot resting in the stern of the boat. . . right atop the fishbox.

What followed might lead one to wonder if the Schlienz family tree included such names as Galileo, Edison, Archimedes or Copernicus in its makeup. With a studiously casual air, this researcher into the trivia of fables and fables flipped back the top (a flip-top, I might add) of the fish box, and peered within.

For the record, . . . no pot. Also for the record, the bottom of the box was not even covered with fish; the couple dozen or so inside were all remarkably small.

So. When next anyone hears casual talk about a pot of gold at the foot of a rainbow. . . any rainbow. . . just remember research has proven otherwise.

Just as we all know today the world is round, the inquisitive mind has shown rainbows hold no promise of easy money. They don't even point to a good catch of big fish. . . Just promises, promises, promises.

Other Editors Saying As Simple As That

(Swanwick, Minn. News)

The subject of pensions for our war veterans is an extremely delicate one. If anyone suggests that we have gone too far in providing these benefits, even in the case of illnesses and disabilities which did not arise from military service, he is in danger of being accused of heartlessness, and of putting the dollar above the flag.

Editor Francis Horrigan of the Park Rapids, Minnesota Enterprise — a veteran of 46 months service with the Army Signal Corps, part of it on bloody Guadalcanal — has taken that risk. And what he writes is well worth reading and remembering:

"For the widows and orphans of the servicemen who didn't make it back home, let's do for them. And let's do it too, for the men who made it back, but not as whole men. Spend money for veterans' hospital services; pay compensation to those who were hurt, and pay, too, for needed rehabilitation programs. . . As for the remainder of the boys who donned a uniform when the Nation was attacked, one can only ask those seeking pensions: 'How do you figure you got a pension coming from Uncle Sam?'"

"Because I went to the defense of our Nation in time of War!" they might reply. "To that there is but one answer: 'What you did, Mister, was go to the defense of your own neck, first of all—and those of our loved ones—and those of the rest of the Nation, in that order.

"The choice was made easy for you by Japan and Germany.

"You—and every other G.I.—could have sat it out. But you'd soon have been on a diet of rice — with no pensions, most likely, from either Hirohito or Hitler.

"Or you could—as you did—join with those selected to serve with you in defense of our Nation —and thus, with the help of God, save your own neck—and those of your loved ones.

"And that's the way it was, Mister—just as simple as that."

TOO OLD FOR TAXES (The Florida Times-Union)

Here's a case of logic that residents of Panama City applied for a job with that city through the Civil Service Board. He was turned down because the board has a rule that no person over 45 may begin work with the city. The board chairman explained:

"One of the hardest jobs I have is to tell a man he's too old to work. It's been my experience that older men often are more industrious and do better work than their younger counterparts, but we have our rules."

The city has its rules and the applicant has no job. But he did have the last word: "If I'm too old to work for the city, I'm too old to pay taxes to the city." There must be something wrong with this logic, but can you find it?

Bigness Is For Movies

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—Is the film colossal getting too colossal for Hollywood?

Producer King Vidor, one of the last active survivors of the film colony's epic past, says yes. He feels the epic movie is now too big and costly for the Hollywood wallet.

"I doubt if ever again you can make spectacle movies in Hollywood which require the building of vast sets and 4,000 or 5,000-man casts," he said.

"It's impractical. Too expensive. Too many crippling rules and regulations," Vidor said.

"To shoot a crowd scene with 1,000 players would cost $20,000 a day in Hollywood. In Spain you could do it for around $1,000 a day."

Vidor recently returned from Spain where he spent two years and six million dollars making the biggest color spectacle of his career, "Solomon and Sheba." The death of Tyrone Power forced him to shoot a third of the film over, added a million dollars to the firm's budget.

Unlike such early giants of the industry as D.W. Griffith and Cecil B. De Mille, Vidor has never been an exponent of personal showmanship. But he has been one of the screen's most consistent experimenters.

Starting more than four decades ago as a ticket seller and newsreel operator, he learned the director's trade by turning out two-reelers. His first, which dealt with auto racing—Vidor was an early hot rodder himself—cost $500.

"What I probably about what it took in at the boxoffice," he remarked wryly.

"The Big Parade," made in 1925 with John Gilbert as star, was one of the greatest sleepers in filmdom's history. "It cost only $245,000 to make, and the last I heard it had brought 16 to 18 million," Vidor said.

But the graying, mild-mannered producer isn't a man who believes in looking back.

"Everything is new," he said. "When we start a new project, I begin a whole new life. I don't believe in dwelling on what's behind you."

Vidor believes the answer to the epic costs of making film epics isn't to turn out fewer of them, but to turn out more of them abroad.

"We've got a big-screen now, and we have to fill it up," he said. "Let people who like small themes and small screens watch television."

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

HOW MUCH IS MONEY WORTH?

"Money isn't everything. We often hear this statement. Yet, when we observe people's behavior, we are led to the conclusion that there are millions of people who actually believe that money is everything.

But that person is equally wrong who says money is nothing. Money is a measurement. It does not measure true success, but it does measure the kind of achievement which is capable of being measured—the amount of goods sold, the success of a play or book written, the appeal of a recorded song hit, the real scoop of public interest made by a movie star. These things are measurable. If we do not put them first in life, they still have real value. But they become a delusion and a snare, they become a curse, when we put them before things that are really valuable.

What are the most valuable things in life? An honorable name would come first. Happy family relations next. The capacity to meet evil and resist its encroachments. Success in one's work. The capacity and willingness to love—first, those near and dear; then one's neighbors; then all mankind; then the God who made us.

If we put these things first and are willing to follow them—everything we know how to do—providing success, then everything is fine. We can throw up our hats for money, but we can't take satisfaction in financial success treat money.

But don't let it get to the place where it can order you about—or kick you around.

Near Agreement On Tax Ruling

By ELMER ROESSNER

Both the Senate and the House are near agreement on a bill to take some of the sting out of the Supreme Court's ruling that states could impose taxes on out-of-state corporations doing business within the taxing state.

For years most inferior court decisions have held that, since the Constitution gives Congress power to regulate interstate commerce, states could not tax out-of-state corporations. But the high court, ruling in the Northwest Portland Cement and Stockham Valves cases, decided that a state could tax these outside corporations on the business done within its borders.

A bill, S. 2524, introduced by Senator Harry F. Byrd (D. Va.), provides that interstate firms would not be liable for state income taxes solely because of sales or solicitation of orders by one or more independent contractors, or by their own representative.

NOT SCOT FREE

This would not change the right of a state to levy taxes on interstate firms that maintain warehouses, inventories, salesrooms or offices within the state. Since firms with such facilities get protection, services and other benefits, both the Court and Congress think they should pay something.

A secondary purpose of the Byrd measure, and of the somewhat similar House Joint Resolution 450, is to block any extension of state powers under the Court decision.

Conceivably, a state might try to tax an interstate company that did nothing more than make sales through national magazines circulated in that state.

That's not as ridiculous as it sounds. Some states already levy sales or cigarette taxes on such transactions.

REASONS TO FEAR TAXES Business opposition to taxes on interstate corporations is based on two—well, three—points. First, the cost of additional bookkeeping is burdensome. An interstate company doing business in all 50 states might have to keep 50 sets of books and retain enough lawyers to keep posted on laws and interpretations in 50 states.

Second, because each state would decide all borderline cases in its own favor, and issue its own definitions of sales, income and profits, a company might find itself paying taxes on 150 per cent of its sales, income or profits.

Third, nobody likes to pay taxes anyhow. The situation, even with Congressional action, may offer some rare opportunities to entrepreneurs.

Companies of all sizes, but particularly those of small or medium size, may be eager to sell branches and parts of businesses in other states. This will be especially true of companies doing 80 to 90 per cent of their business within their own state, and the rest in one other state. Many of these fragments, purchased by local residents, might be built into profitable intrastate operations. Watch the ads.

Prayers of the Captives

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Daniel 1-6: 9.

When Darius was king he made Daniel, the Jew, president over the kingdom, "because an excellent spirit was in him; and the king thought to set him over the whole realm."

Daniel's enemies could find no fault in him, so they said: "We shall not find any occasion against this Daniel, except we find it against him concerning the law of his God."

They persuaded the king to sign a decree "that whosoever shall ask a petition of any god or man for 30 days, save of thee, O King, he shall be cast into the den of lions."

When the men saw Daniel praying they told the king, so Daniel was cast into the den. Darius went to the den next morning and found Daniel unharmed.

Prayers of the Captives

DANIEL PRAYED FOR HELP FROM GOD FOR HIMSELF AND HIS PEOPLE

Scripture—Daniel 1-6: 9.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

NEBUCHADNEZZAR conquered Jerusalem and he took the "master of the eunuchs" (or servants) to bring before him some of the Israelite children who were healthy and wise in knowledge and understanding "to stand in the king's palace" to teach the "learning and the tongue of the Chaldeans."

Among the children brought before him were four boys whose names were Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah. Daniel was the one whose name we remember best, for he was the one whose prayers we are studying in today's lesson.

The children were to feast on the king's food so that at the time the king should summon them to stand before him, they would be in good health. Daniel, however, refused to eat the food, for he felt that it would contaminate him, as he was a Jew.

So Daniel refused to eat this rich and dainty food and suggested that they be fed on "pulse," which was a vegetable diet of peas, beans, etc. This diet agreed with them so that when they were brought before the king at the end of a certain period, he found them "ten times better than all the magicians and astrologers in all his realm."

refused to worship it when the musical instruments played "shall the same hour be cast into the midst of a burning fiery furnace."

He was soon told that there were certain Jews in places of honor who did not bow down and worship the golden image. Their names were Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego. In his rage he had the men brought before him and questioned them, and when he saw that they still refused to bow before the image, he had them thrown into the furnace.

The three men were cast into the fiery furnace, but the Lord protected them and they were unharmed.

The king said to his counselors, "Did we not cast these three men bound in the midst of fire?" They said yes, and he said, "Lo, I see four men loose, walking in the midst of the fire, and they have no hurt; and the form of the fourth is like the Son of God."

The story of Daniel being cast into the den of lions is so well known, even by the children, that we will not dwell upon it, except to say that the king, Darius, had Daniel cast into the lion's den because he insisted on praying to his God. That night the king was restless. He rose very early, went

MEMORY VERSE

"Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father."—James 1:17.

Now Nebuchadnezzar was troubled with dreams which he could not understand. His wise men could not interpret them for him, so he decreed that they should be slain.

David was grieved about this verdict and asked the king to give him time and he would interpret the dream. David went to his house and to his companions and prayed to God that he be given the secret of the dream.

He received it in a vision. Then Daniel said: "Blessed be the name of God for ever and ever; for wisdom and might are His; And He changeth the times and the seasons; he removeth kings, and setteth up kings; He giveth wisdom unto the wise, and knowledge to them that know understanding; He revealeth the deep and secret things; He knoweth what is in the darkness, and the light dwelleth with Him."

Daniel interpreted the dream to the king, who was so pleased that he "made Daniel a great man, and gave him many great gifts, and made him ruler over the whole province of Babylon."

Then Nebuchadnezzar sinned greatly. He had a huge golden image made and commanded that all should worship it. Those who to the den of lions and found Daniel unharmed in it. Daniel said to the king: "My God hath sent his angel, and hath shut the lions' mouths, that they have not hurt me; and the king was glad."

"Then I (Daniel) prayed unto the Lord my God, and made my confession. We have sinned, and have done wickedly and have rebelled, even by departing from Thy precepts and from Thy judgments."

At the close of each day we should ask ourselves if we have disobeyed God in our words and actions. Have we been hasty in our speech? Have we shown love to our fellow men and women? We are all prone to sin in one way or another in spite of our endeavors. Jesus Christ told us to love even our enemies. That may be hard for us to do, but we can at least try.

There are men and women all over the world who are devoting their lives to helping others, like Dr. Albert Schweitzer. In our circumstances in life we may not be able to give our lives to the service of others, but we can at least do what we can to relieve the burdens of our friends, neighbors and strangers.

Clinics for high school officials got underway this week and will continue through the rest of this month in various parts of the Tar Heel State.

The clinic for the Northeastern officials—was once again held in Greenville this year and it could be a valuable asset to Coach Bud Phillips and his 1959 squad.

The clinic was conducted by Walter Jones of nearby Farmville. L. J. Perry, executive secretary of the his newly appointed assistant, Simon Terrell, were North Carolina High School Athletic Association, and on hand to aid in interpreting of the rules. Close to 50 officials turned out for the clinic and will be working the prep games in this area during the fall.

The Phantoms had a chance to get well-acquainted with the rules and the results could prevent many unnecessary penalties during the coming season. There are no outstanding new rules going into effect this fall but most prep players are not overly familiar with the existing ones.

Miss Fundamental Drill

Although the clinic enabled the Greenies to get a first-hand look at the rules, they had to take time out from their regular practice session and preparations for their opener.

The first week of prep practice is usually devoted to fundamentals and offensive patterns. That first game creeps up mighty quick and there is never enough time to get completely prepared. Every practice session is a valuable one.

Today will conclude the first week of drills and there probably are many sore muscles in the Greenville camp. Phillips has altered his practice schedule with the afternoon workout being moved to night. The squad opens their night workouts tonight at Guy Smith Stadium and then will have a morning drill early in the morning before calling it a week.

Smaller Schools Show Interest

The recent bulletin from the North Carolina High School Athletic Association shows that the baseball interest is still in the class A schools. The smaller school state playoffs did not quite stack up in the total gate receipts of their two larger conferences but their net profits exceeded both. The net of the AAA series was a little less than $20. The report also cited basketball tournaments as being the main source of income. . . . The North Carolina high schools will begin the 1959 season with a new classification. Most of the schools have moved up a notch and Greenville is now a member of the AAA bracket. . . . The AAA state football championship will be held December 5th and will be held in the east this fall.

Presents Plenty of Trouble

When the Phants open their season against Ashokie, they can set their sights at stopping Butch Williams, a hard running fullback. A husky 200 pounder, Williams is the backbone of the club and has been hailed as one of the top prep backs this season. . . . Considering the size of Greenville, the turn out for football has been exceptionally low.

No Scouting Report On Albright Squad

Editors Note: This is the tenth in a series of articles written by Coach Jack Boone of East Carolina College.

SCOUTING REPORT ON ALBRIGHT

By JACK BOONE

This will make the second team we did not get the chance to scout. We did have a mutual agreement between schools for the exchange of film. So most of our information will come from the film. We caution our squad during the movie showing that they might expect some changes as most schools will improve or add to their offense during spring practice drills. Last year when we opened against Presbyterian; they really caught us by surprise. They come out with the Winged "T" a deceptive power formation. We had set our defense to stop the Belly plays which they had used the year before, and they really worked our ends and wingmen over the 1st half and scored 24 points. At the halftime we adjusted our defense and stopped them the next half, but the damage had been done and we lost 24 to 18. I mentioned this because we might run into the same situation with Albright. It is really tough when you do not know what to expect. Our plans will be laid to expect the worst!

The plans for the rest of the week will be similar to the ones described last week on our road trip. Actually we have an extra day when we play at home so we can get more time for our offense and defense. The main difference this week is that we will know what mistakes we made last week against Presbyterian and can correct them before our game with Albright.

The opening game at home keeps the whole athletic staff busy on the many details that have to be done before the gates are opened on Saturday night.

Next Article—Opening Game At Home.

Coffman's Meet Marines Sat.

Coffman's Mens Wear will return to action tomorrow night when they meet Camp Lejeune in a softball doubleheader at Guy Smith Stadium. The first tilt is slated to get underway at 7:30.

The local club, composed of players from several different teams of the Greenville Softball League, defeated the Marines in an earlier twinbill and will be favored to do so again.

North State Tourny Opens

RALEIGH (AP)—The North State Junior golf tournament moved into its closing rounds today with Defending Champion George Smith of New Bern regarded as the favorite.

Smith was matched against long hitting Ken Folkes of Concord in one of the semifinals matches. The other pitted Wade Briggs of Roxboro against Bobby Edgerton of Raleigh.

HAS PROBLEMS—Coach Bud Phillips, young Greenville coach, is embarking upon his third year as head of Rose High football. Faced with lack of depth, the head mentor will carry his squad out to Guy Smith Stadium tonight for their first official workout under the lights.

Local Golf Tournament Slated For Labor Day

The seventh annual medal play golf championship is set for Labor Day weekend at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

This year, for the first time, it will be 54 holes. Eighteen will be played Saturday and then 18 more on Sunday and Monday.

As usual, there will be no qualifying. Players will be placed in flights by the tournament committee. Any player will have the privilege of requesting to play in a flight nearer the top if he desires. There will be a championship flight and a first, second and third flight.

Trophies for the winner and runner-up in each flight will be awarded.

The low eight players in the championship flight after Sunday's round will be paired together in two foursomes for the final round Monday.

There will be a presentation of trophies on the Club house terrace at 5 p.m. on Monday, following the final round.

This tournament has gained in popularity greatly since it was originated in 1953. The winner retains for one year the large cup donated to the club for this tournament by the late W. S. Moye, Sr.

Past winners were W. L. Allen (1953, 1954), Molt Massey Jr. (1955), Reynolds May (1956), Don Conley, Jr. (1957) and Ercell Webb (1958).

Simon Moye Jr. tournament chairman, stated that all golfers who intend to play must register on the bulletin board at the Pro Shop by 5 p.m. Wednesday September 2nd. No entries after this date will be accepted under any conditions. This is necessary in order to make up flights. Moye suggests that golfers register now or as soon as possible.

The back nine holes, closed since late spring, will be opened by tournament time according to greens chairman, Ray Masten, and the new grass and construction of three new greens should make this the largest local golf tournament ever held in Greenville.

White Sox Miss Pierce; Lead Cut

By ED WILKS

Associated Press Sports Writer

Somebody ask how much the Chicago White Sox would miss Billy Pierce? So far, the injured left-hander has missed one starting assignment and their American League lead is down to 2 1/2 games, almost cut in half.

The White Sox led by 4 1/2 games, the biggest bulge of the year in the AL, when Pierce was shelved Monday for from five to eight days to nurse his ailing hip. Uninjured, Pierce would have pitched either Wednesday or Thursday against Baltimore. Without him, the Sox dropped both games while second place Cleveland took two from Washington.

The Orioles counted 10 runs in the two games, beating Barry Latman 7-6 Thursday for the White Sox' fourth defeat in the last five games.

Cleveland continued its rebound from a four-game slump by beating Washington 6-1 behind Jim (Mudcat) Grant.

Detroit walloped the Yankees 14-2, and Boston overcame three home runs by Kansas City's Bob Cerv for an 11-10 decision over the A's.

In the National League, San Francisco retained a two-game edge and dropped third place Milwaukee four games behind with a 5-3 victory over the Braves. Second place Los Angeles beat Cincinnati 8-5. Pittsburgh defeated St. Louis 3-1, and the Chicago Cubs split a two-night doubleheader at Philadelphia, winning 6-4 after an 8-5 defeat.

The Orioles tagged Latman (5-5) and six relievers for 13 hits. Rookie Jim McAnany drove in three runs for the White Sox, who had 10 hits and made it close with two runs in the seventh off Billy Loes after winner Hoyt Wilhelm (12-8) was lifted for a pinch hitter.

Two home runs did it for the Indians. Ed FitzGerald smacked his first of the year and Woody Held then cracked a 1-1 tie with a two-run shot, his 23rd, in the seventh against loser Pet Ramos (11-15). Grant (8-5) lost his shut-out in the sixth on a walk, sacrifice and Bob Allison's double.

Rookie Earl Wilson, driving in three runs with a single a double, won his first major league decision as the third of five Red Sox pitchers. Tom Sturdivant (1-1) was the loser for the As.

Race Track Is Bought

CHARLOTTE (AP)—The backers of Charlotte Motor Speedway have purchased the site for the new auto race track after a pre-incorporation stock sale surpassed its goal.

The 530-acre site, nine miles north of here off U.S. 29, was purchased for $185,000. Grading has begun for construction of a 1 1/2-mile banked, asphalt race track on the tract.

The initial stock sale goal was $300,000, but subscriptions now total $400,000, officers said.

Big Inning Gives Victory To Missionary

The Missionary Baptist erupted for eight runs in the first inning last night and then coasted the rest of the way to post a 10-2 win over the Free Will Baptist and capture the Winterville Softball championship.

The Missionary, second place finishers during the regular season, banged out nine hits in the initial inning and had little trouble taking the rubber game of the two out of three game series for the championship.

Dixie Hobgood was the big man at the plate for the winners with a perfect 4-4, including a homer. Hobgood, Don Weatherington and Paul Castelow has two hits each in the first frame as the Missionary batted around twice.

The Free Will, stopped for the second straight time after taking the opening game, was able to bunch their hits only in the fifth when they collected both their runs.

The losers had only seven hits and no player had over one hit. Free Will 000 020 0—2 days, finally was nailed by Sad Sam Jones and San Francisco's Wonderful Willies Thursday night as the Giants beat the Braves 5-3.

It was Spahn's third defeat in his last four decisions and once again kept him from pairing with Lew Burdette (who beat the Giants 5-2 Wednesday) for the one-two pitching punch that had the Braves in command through the first half of the season.

The Giants retained their two-game National League lead over Los Angeles while skidding the third place Braves four games behind again.

It was Jones, beating Milwaukee for the fifth time against two losses (both to Spahn), and the Willies—Mays, McCovey—who did it.

McCovey had three hits and drove in three runs, putting it away with his seventh homer after Mays had lined his third single with two out in the ninth.

Los Angeles kept the pace, beating Cincinnati 8-5.
Pittsburgh defeated St. Louis 3-1. The Chicago Cubs split a twin-night at Philadelphia, beating the Phils 6-4 after losing 8-5 in the replay of Wednesday's 12-inning tie.

In the American League, the Chicago White Sox' lead was cut to 2 1/2 games when they dropped their second straight to Baltimore 7-6, and second place Cleveland beat Washington 6-1. Detroit walloped New York 14-2, and Boston out-staggered Kansas City 1-10.

The Giants pounded 15 hits off Spahn (16-13), who had beaten them six times in a row since July of last year.

The Giants came from behind with two in the fifth on Ed Bressoud's double and consecutive singles by Jackie Brandt, Mays and McCovey. They made it 3-1 in the sixth on Bob Schmidt's single and Bressoud's triple that was misjudged by rookie Lee Maye in left field.

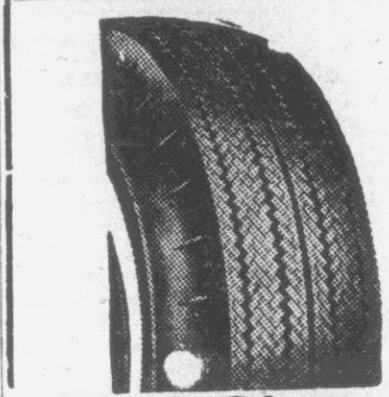

The Braves scored an unearned run in the first off Jones (16-11) on a double by Frank Torre, whose unannounced substitution for Joe Adcock triggered a Giant protest.

Los Angeles, beaten by a seven-run eighth at Cincinnati the night before, squared things when a third strike got past catcher Ed Bailey with two out and nobody on base in the fifth. Blanked on (two hits by Bob Purkey (10-13) 'til then, the Dodgers poured across with Charlie Neal's double scoring as the Giants beat the Braves 5-3. Danny McDevitt (9-8) won it with Larry Sherry's relief after a pinch homer by Frank Thomas in the ninth.

Art Schult drove in two night-cap runs for the Cubs, getting the winner home with a fifth inning home run. The Phils took the opener on homers by Carl Sawatski, who drove in four runs, and Wally Post as Ruben Gomez (2-8) won his first since beating the Cubs May 21.

Bob Friend (6-15) won two in a row for only the second time this year for the Bucs, giving up nine hits but fanning 11. Dick Groat's triple beat the Cards and Ernie Broglio (6-10) in the fifth.

TOUGH SADDLE

By MATT STUART

CHAPTER 15
The kitchen of the Running M ranchhouse was large and airy. And as Mandy Madison always kept it, spotless. Sue Vincent stood before the stove now, turning sizzling ham in one pan and frying potatoes in another. A pot of coffee gave off its good fragrance while in the oven a pan of biscuits fluffed and browned for the evening meal.

Doc Jerome came into the kitchen, washed up and took a chair at the table. He caught Sue's questioning glance and shook his head. "No change in Nels," he said. "Can't really expect any just yet. Maybe around midnight when the first effects of shock should begin to wear off, I'll have a better idea. Fine of you to come over, Sue. It's done Mandy a lot of good."

Earlier, Mandy Madison had declined all suggestion of food, taking only a cup of coffee. So Vincent put ham and potatoes in front of Doc, brought hot baking-powder biscuits from the oven and poured two cups of coffee. She fixed a plate for herself and sat down across from Doc. Gravelly she questioned him. "What do you think, Doctor?" "Think—about what?"

Doc considered soberly while he stirred sugar into his coffee. "You've heard what my findings were in Packer Lane's death?" "Yes, Link Asbell told me. If—what Link hints at is true, what could be the purpose behind it?"

Doc shrugged. "Greed, hate, a twisted idea of revenge for some past injury, real or fancied—any one of the many meaner passions mankind seems heir to. Thinking back, Sue, do you recall any of the causes for conflict and antagonism between your father and Jonas Dalmar?"

She considered soberly. "No doubt there were a number I never did hear about or fully understand. I certainly remember one favorite remark of my father's."

"That 'they do not like us and they never will,'" suggested Doc quickly.

Sue nodded. "Yes, that one. And when I remember one time hearing Dad say that Jonas Dalmar would trade his hope of heaven for the summer range in the Saddlebacks."

"Well," pointed out Doc, "the Saddlebacks are still there, aren't they?"

Sue toyed with her food for a little time before asking another hesitant question. "Should it be what Link Asbell thinks, Doctor, how can it be headed off—stopped?"

"I wish I had an easier answer to that than I have, my dear," Doc said gravely. "But when something like this starts, a thing basically violent and predatory, it can only be stopped by a convincing display of superior violence."

"Meaning more shooting, more—more killing—?"

"I'm afraid so. And, that being so, in one thing you're very lucky, Sue."

"Lucky!" she cried. "Facts, my dear—facts," said Doc steadily. "This is an adult world you're in now, remember. And as long as Big Five may be faced with what could be a fight for its very life, then I say you're mighty lucky to have a man like Link Asbell to shoulder the load!"

Softly moving, Mandy Madison appeared at the kitchen door. "Doctor, he's stirring!" Doc pushed back his chair, got to his feet and followed Mandy into the further depths of the house.

Left alone, Sue Vincent set her half emptied plate aside, concerned only with hot coffee and the dark oppression of her thoughts.

She was still uneasy, still frightened because of certain things she had, in her flaring anger, said to Link Asbell last night. Such as his being through on Big Five, that she was going to write out his time!

Whatever had possessed her to say such things? They were unthinkable! What would Big Five be without Link Asbell to handle the crew and run ranch affairs in his sure, dependable way?

Had he, she wondered somewhat feverishly, taken her at her word? Of course she had not done at all what she threatened. The news Link had brought about Nels Madison had completely knocked all that foolish, hot-headed nonsense out of her.

Yet he might have packed his gear and ridden away, disdaining to wait for any wages due him, for well she knew what a deep, enduring pride and solid self-respect lay behind the soberly even demeanor that was Link Asbell's usual way.

Doc Jerome came back into the kitchen, rubbing his hands and exclaiming with satisfaction. "That Nels! The man's strong as an ox, for he's coming out of shock already. Sue, girl—I'm going to really enjoy the rest of my supper!"

Sue did not press Doc for further conversation. She had plenty now to occupy her thoughts.

After finishing his supper, Doc went out under the stars to smoke a quiet pipe. It had been a long day and an arduous one for Doc and he seized on this opportunity to relax for a little time.

Alone again in the kitchen, Sue Vincent got the dishes together and set about washing them and tidying things.

Outside, in the dark, a small glow flared as Doc passed a freshening match across the bowl of his pipe. Right after came the mutter of approaching hoofs and the skirl of buckboard wheels against the earth. The rig pulled up at the ranchhouse porch and Rupe Hahn's voice sounded.

"That you, Doc? Good! Here's the stuff you sent me after. And here's word from your wife. You are needed in town if you can make it."

"The devil!" Doc exclaimed. "Why?" "Charley Tunison. His face is all busted up. Him and Frank Dalmar got in a ruckus in the Imperial and Dalmar hit him with a whiskey bottle."

Doc shrugged. "Greed, hate, a twisted idea of revenge for some past injury, real or fancied—any one of the many meaner passions mankind seems heir to. Thinking back, Sue, do you recall any of the causes for conflict and antagonism between your father and Jonas Dalmar?"

AFL-CIO Claims Inflation 'Scare' Set Back Economy

FOREST PARK, Pa., (AP) — The AFL-CIO charged today that incessant scare talk about inflation has frightened the nation out of several years normal economic growth and curbed job opportunities.

A statement by the federation executive council said President Eisenhower's administration and big business have been trying to "brainwash the country" into falsely believing it was about to be engulfed with calamitous inflation.

George Meany, AFL-CIO president, said inflation is a problem but by far not the only or most important problem. The chief one, he said, is what he called the economy's failure to grow and provide jobs at a rate keyed to the rapidly growing population and labor force.

"This inflation thing is just being overemphasized," Meany said.

The AFL-CIO leaders wound up week-long meetings here Thursday and released their statement on inflation today.

It stated that industrial leaders are seeking to impose a freeze on wages and salaries, "piously protesting" this must be done to protect workers against inflation.

Actually, it said, there has been very little inflation for some time.

son across the face with it. "I was at your office when they brought Tunison in. He was a mess. Your missis, she did what she could for him, but she said to tell you his nose is plenty busted and there's some stitching to do where his cheek is split open."

"What blasted idiots men can be!" Doc snorted. "Well, half an hour ago I'd have said Tunison would just have to wait and suffer. But the way Nels is picking up I think I can safely spare time to run into town."

Through the window that had let in the whiff of Doc's pipe, Sue had heard every word that passed between Rupe Hahn and Doc Jerome.

She shivered, drew her arms about herself. If it would have done any good, she might have wept a little.

For, of a sudden, she was very lonely and depressed and afraid.

"When I didn't pack a gun, that was day before yesterday. Things have happened since then," Link Asbell realizes as the story continues tomorrow.

In the past decade, the statement said, it has amounted to less than 2 per cent a year, or well under the historical annual increase.

The purpose of "the billion word brainwashing barrage" on inflationary dangers, the AFL-CIO contended, is to curb needed public expenditures and prevent American workers from obtaining their fair share of productive profits in increased earnings.

The statement added: "We must protest against the politically motivated hysteria which this administration and its big business allies have instigated."

"These whipped up anti-inflation campaigns have not only scared America out of years of normal economic growth, but brought on repeated recessions including the most recent one from which we have not fully recovered."

The formation was marched to a post theater, where an hour-long lecture on the code of military discipline was delivered by the Edgewood legal officer. He asked participants in the Aug. 13 party to stay when the lecture was over. One did and four others turned themselves in about two hours later, an Army spokesman said.

Army investigators questioned five college-trained G.I.'s who admitted Thursday they attended an Aug. 13 beer party featuring such songs as "Down with the Army."

Still being sought were about 55 more celebrants at the party held at a nearby off-post inn. An Edgewood spokesman said officials had received complaints about the singing of vulgar anti-Army verses at the beer bust, during which some women were within hearing distance.

"Somewhere along the line," said Brig. Gen. Harold Walmaley, Edgewood commander, "American parents and educational systems have failed to instill in these men an appreciation for their heritage and the desire to perform duties for their country."

A plan to spot the party-goers through a rare device never came off. Because the 60 or so attended the party in civilian clothes, all members of the soldier-scientist detachment were ordered to a special formation in mufti so they could be identified more easily by witnesses.

Walmaley cancelled the scheduled viewing of the line-up by witnesses, but the G.I.'s took no chances. Most of them turned out for the formation wearing white

The G.I.'s also complained that their talents were being wasted on routine chores like K.P. and that they were not given personal credit for accomplishments in scientific research.

SEARCHED PREMISES
FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Federal agents, in a followup to this week's raids on an alleged marijuana ring, searched the premises of one of the defendants, Robert H. Buxton, and said they found three quarts of marijuana seed and two beds of plants.

Soldier-Scientists Are Again Posing Problem

EDGWOOD, Md. (AP) — Where does a soldier's gripping end and disrespect for his uniform and his country begin?

The question formed a backdrop today to the latest psychological cold skirmish between the Army and some of its soldier-scientists stationed at the super-secret chemical center here.

Army investigators questioned five college-trained G.I.'s who admitted Thursday they attended an Aug. 13 beer party featuring such songs as "Down with the Army."

BIG SMILE, BIG CATCH—Eight-year-old Jerry Gibson is indeed happy when Grandmother, Mrs. E. F. Dennis, says let's go fishing. This was not just a boat ride, as you can see from this nice string of white perch. The nine and three-quarter pounds of fish gratifies the big smile. These were caught, says Jerry, with an ordinary fishing pole and shrimp bait. Jerry is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Gibson of Ayden. (Photo by James W. Everett)

New Ships Spell Economy Travel Rates To Europe

NEW YORK (AP) — In a couple of years you may be able to sail to Europe for $50. Hyman B. Cantor, New York hotel and steamship operator, Thursday announced signing of preliminary contracts for two 90,000 gross ton liners, each capable of carrying 6,000 passengers, and said about 20 per cent of the passenger cabins — with private bath and toilet facilities — will sell for the $50 rate, east or west bound. The balance of choicer accommodations will be scaled to a maximum $125.

The fares do not include food. Passengers will pay for what they eat. Cantor, head of Sea Coach Transatlantic Lines, Inc., said the vessels will have a 34-knot speed, enabling them to make the trip in four days.

The most inexpensive ship fare to Europe now is about $200, including food.

The contracts involve more than 160 million dollars. The first of the giant liners is scheduled for service sometime in 1962.

The vessels will be built at Deutsche Werft Shipyards, A.G., Hamburg, Germany. They will operate between New York and Zeebrugge, Belgium, the first port of call on the eastward passage, and then on to either Cuxhaven or Bremerhaven in West Germany.

Cantor said he obtained financing abroad when he failed to get action in this country.

He said each ship will have two swimming pools, a skating rink, two movie theaters and facilities for convention meetings. Each will contain 2,750 cabins and quarters for a crew of 1,350.

The largest passenger liner now afloat is the Queen Elizabeth, with a gross tonnage of 83,673. The Queen Mary is second with 81,237 gross tons. The liner United States has a gross tonnage of 53,329.

Rocket-Boosted Jet Plane Take-Off From Bomb Shelter Proves Success

Reports Russian Officer In Cuba

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A U.S. intelligence spokesman reported today that Moscow sent a Soviet intelligence officer to Cuba last May to guide local Communists on how to penetrate the government of Fidel Castro. He also said the Soviets are secretly training more and more Latin American Communists on how to set up Communist dictatorships.

This word was given out by Gen. C. P. Cabell, deputy director of the Central Intelligence Agency, in a speech prepared for a meeting of the American Legion's National Security Commission.

Cabell declared that Kremlin tactics have run full circle from missile rattling to smiling faces, but their goal remains Communist rule of the world.

Cabell named the Soviet intelligence officer as Vadim Kotcherin. He said Kotcherin was sent to Cuba under a false name, ostensibly as a member of a trade union delegation, and has since returned to Moscow.

While in Cuba, Cabell said, Kotcherin's assignment was to give guidance to Cuban Communists.

"Primary targets for Communist penetration in Cuba are the agrarian reforms, trade unions and the army," he said.

He said Red Chinese propagandists also are setting up a newspaper in Cuba.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Test Pilot Al Blackburn, first man to blast out of a bomb shelter in a rocket-boosted jet plane, says: "It was a snap for me, but you should have seen the mouse."

Blackburn was referring to a desert mouse accidentally caught in the cave-like shelter at Holloman Air Force Base, N.M., at the time of blastoff Wednesday.

"The mouse staggered out stunned and shaken but he was definitely alive," Blackburn said. "I think he must have heard the laboratory people saying, 'let's grab him and check him over,' because he got right up and scampered off."

Blackburn used the mouse incident to minimize the dangers of his feat in an interview after returning to his home here Thursday.

"That mouse was exposed to the full blast and noise of the booster," Blackburn said. "I was protected inside the plane and the plane was out of the shelter in less than a second."

Blackburn, 36-year-old test pilot for North American Aviation,

"When I first started preparing for the test, my first reaction was that the shelter would be a mighty tight hole to get out of. Knowing that the blast would be confined and that the noise would be reflected back on the pilot, we had a number of apprehensions as to how rough it was going to be."

"But as the program went along it became obvious that we were not going to have any problems."

Blackburn had undergone 14 such blast-offs earlier at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., identical except that they were out in the open. The shelter take-off was made to prove that planes can be protected from sneak nuclear attack and still be ready for a quick counter-blow.

Blackburn's supersonic F100 was airborne after a takeoff of less than one inch — the distance the plane moved before breaking the shear-bolts that held it in the shelter.

The booster rocket, attached below the tail of the plane, built up a pressure of 130,000 pounds of thrust — almost equal to that developed by a Thor intermediate range missile. Four seconds after blast-off the jet was doing 275 miles an hour and the booster dropped away. In another few seconds the jet's own engine was propelling it faster than sound—more than 750 miles an hour.

Blackburn said the tremendous acceleration — creating pressures four times that of normal gravity — and extremely high noise level had no effect on his ability to manage the plane.

Blackburn, president of the Society of Experimental Test Pilots, said the test proved his contention that tomorrow's missiles can and must be manned. He added: "If we were to put men in missiles to make the necessary corrections there would be a lot fewer failures."

RED CHINA WARNS

TOKYO (AP) — Communist China warned today that "serious consequences" will follow if United Nations observers are sent to Laos, where Red insurgents have been battling government troops. The government charged that the rebels were being armed, trained and directed by Communist North Viet Nam, which borders Laos on the northeast.

Grace F. W. B. Announcements

The pastor began a series of messages on missions last Sunday. The subject last Sunday was "The Movement of Missions." The subject for the 11 o'clock worship will be "The Messenger of Missions." The Sunday school begins at 9:45 a.m. with Elton Reel, the assistant superintendent, in charge. There are a lot of boys and girls not in Sunday school these days. If you are not now attending some Sunday school we welcome you to our school.

The League meet at 7:00 p.m. Stanley Peaden is the director. Rev. Rashie Kennedy Jr. will bring the message at 7:30 p.m.

On Monday night at 7:30 visiting teams will go out and visit in the homes of friends and neighbors.

The Youth Choir meets Tuesday night at 8:00 with Miss Patsy Jones directing.

The Adult Choir meets for rehearsal Wednesday night at 8:00. Other members of the church will meet with the pastor to pray for missions, for the sick, for the lost and other special requests. Bring your request.

Man-Made Balls Of Lightning Seen As Weapon

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Detroit scientist wrote today the Soviet Union is studying the possible use of man-made balls of lightning as weapons.

Donald J. Ritchie of Bendix Aviation Corp., research laboratories, said the proposal has come from physicist George I. Babat, head of the Soviet Institute of Energetics.

Ritchie, writing in Missiles and Rockets magazine, said Babat proposes to generate balls of lightning in the sky high above cities.

He would do this by focusing two huge parabolic antennas to create an intense electromagnetic field.

The field would develop the ball of lightning fed from the ground by electromagnetic energy. Nuclear fusion processes would occur within the ball.

"The ball could be easily moved through the sky by directing the ground antennas," Ritchie wrote.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

From "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy will be read the following (339:25-28): "The basis of all health, sinlessness, and immortality is the great fact that God is the only Mind; and this Mind must be not merely believed, but it must be understood."

The Golden Text is from Psalms (147:5): "Great is our Lord, and of great power: his understanding is infinite."

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market stood pat early this afternoon following Thursday's sharp upsurge. Trading moved at a moderate tempo.

Gains and losses stacked up about evenly as leading shares seasawed within a narrow range. The market failed to follow through on Thursday's dazzling advance, the biggest since Nov. 27, 1957.

Steels and rails, pacesetters of Thursday's rally, generally gave ground. Oils also eased.

Some motors, electronics and chemicals, though, managed to eke out gains. Rubbers, metals, aircrafts, airlines and drugs were mixed.

Lukens hardest hit among the steels, sagged around 2.

Southern Pacific, which led Thursday's rail rally, tumbled more than 1. Southern Railway sank about 2.

Electronics ticked out some smart gains. Texas Instruments ran ahead about 2 1/2 and Zenith about 1 1/2.

Goodyear fell about 2.

At noon The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was 10 cents lower at $230.20 with the industrials down 20 cents, the rails down 30 cents and the utilities up 10 cents.

Government bonds slumped slightly.

Renovated, Then Along Came A Car

AYDEN—A recently renovated office, located on the corner of Lee and Third Sts. was damaged about 12:30 p.m. yesterday when a car operated by Ella Hardy, Negro, of Ayden, crashed into the glass front of the building.

Investigating Police Chief L. V. Chandler said the woman stated she was parking on the street when her foot slipped off the brake onto the accelerator, sending the car shooting across the sidewalk into the front of the building. Damage to the building was estimated at $500. No estimate of damage to the car could be given.

Chief Chandler charged Mrs. Hardy with operating with no operator's license and failing to comply with the financial responsibility law by not having liability insurance.

Luck Is All Bad, Still Thankful

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Hope diamond, given to the Smithsonian Institution last year by a New York gem dealer, has a sinister history. It is supposed to have brought death or misfortune to a long string of owners.

When jewel merchant Harry Winston gave it to the government museum last November he sent it by mail. James G. Todd, 35, was the mailman who delivered the 4 1/2 carat diamond.

Since then, these things have happened to Todd:

His leg was crushed by a truck. While he was recuperating, his wife, mother of their four children, died of a heart attack. In a later accident, Todd was thrown from his car and suffered a head injury.

Wednesday night fire swept four rooms of Todd's suburban home. "I don't believe any of that stuff," Todd said, referring to the diamond's legend of trouble.

"Perhaps I'm actually having good luck — thank God all four children were outside instead of in those rooms.

"If the hex is supposed to affect the owners, then the public should be having the bad luck."

Charles Lewis reported on preparations for Romes Rides, also a Jaycee project. The carnival rides are to be in Greenville Sept. 5-12.

No SOS; Just Freakish Signal

BERLIN, N.H. (AP)—An SOS signal appeared to flash from atop 1,000-foot high Mt. Forist Thursday night.

A Boy Scout reported to police he saw a light spelling out the distress signal.

Two policemen climbed the mountain and found two U.S. Coast and Geodetic Survey men. The surveyors had set down their lantern beside a bush.

Windblown shrubs in front of the lantern caused what appeared to be the flashing signal.

Review Nurse Shortage

KINSTON—The trustees of Lenoir Memorial Hospital Wednesday night delayed a final report on a probe of emergency patient care, revealed new problems in the proposed expansion of the School of Nursing, cited an acute shortage of nurses and discussed the need for a better public relations program for the county-owned institution. Chairman Speight H. Stroud reported for the executive committee and stated its reports on the emergency room was incomplete. mother. She knows my name." This may have been a sardonic view of the situation after Eisenhower and Mitchell went to the trouble of gathering into one booklet a mass of information on steel profits and wages.

But it did point up the central question:

If the steel union and the steel industry know all these facts and after almost four months haven't made any progress toward a settlement, why should anyone think making the facts public will have any effect on either side?

Since the government isn't willing to go beyond saying "come on, boys, and get together," there is a pretty good chance there will be a steel strike for quite a while yet.
