McDonald Says Steel Industry Is Actually Offering Pay Cut

NEW YORK (AP) — Steelworkers Union President David J. McDonald says the new record cost-of-living index shows that the steel industry, by asking workers to freeze wages, was actually asking them to take a pay cut.

McDonald, who has been out of negotiations for two weeks, comes back on Wednesday.

He cited the announcement of a record cost-of-living index: "It is significant," he said, "that the peak figure made public today has come after a full year period when regular steelworker wage rates have not increased in the slightest."

November Target Date On New Bank Building Here

Construction of the new Planters National Bank building is tentatively scheduled to begin around the first of November, 1959.

While the dwelling located on the building site now faces West Third St., it is anticipated that the new structure will face Washington St.

In Pittsburgh, a union statement said that the cost of living increase in just the past few months would require an increase of two cents an hour just to restore steel wages to last year's levels, in terms of purchasing power.

German Royalty To Visit Amana Group

By TOM HENSHAW
AP Religion Writer

German royalty, in the persons of the Prince and Princess of Ysenburg-Budingen, makes an appearance in Iowa next week to join in a salute to some old friends of the family—the Amana Church Society.

Amana, which began as a tight little religious commune and survived by separating church from state, observes its 100th anniversary Monday in its seven small villages about 20 miles southwest of Cedar Rapids.

The visiting prince is a descendant of an earlier German nobleman, a prince of Hesse, who gave refuge to the ancestors of the Amanists when they were persecuted as enemies of the established church.

The Amana Church Society, although it wasn't called that then, actually dates back more than 100 years. It began as a pietistic, separatist movement in Germany in the early 18th century.

Persecutions drove members to tied first near Buffalo as the Ebenezer Society and then in Iowa as Amana, which means "believe faithfully."

The 100th anniversary observes the day when the state of Iowa granted a charter to Amanists who founded the towns of Amana; East, Middle, High, South and West Amana—and purchased the nearby village of Homestead.

Early Amana, like many other religious communities that later withered and died, was ruled by a board of elders who were all powerful in both spiritual and temporal affairs.

All property was held in common. Clothing worn by men and women was plain and sober in color. The people ate communally in mess-hall-style buildings, the food prepared by the women.

Religious services, the most important events of the week, were held in meeting houses with white-washed walls, bare floors and unpainted benches. Members were required to attend 11 services a week.

Gradually, as changes in the outside world made themselves felt on Amana, the sober existence began to pall on its members. The communities began to lose people, particularly young people.

Similar religious communities faced with the same problem have either let the young people go and become ghost towns of old men and women or have disbanded completely. Not so Amana.

The elders of the society decided upon a drastic plan of reorganization. Church and state were separated into the Amana Church Society and the new Amana Society, a decidedly secular stock corporation.

Members used their stock to purchase their homes from the corporation. The communal dining halls were closed. Some of them reopened as inns and restaurants. All this happened as late as the 1930s.

On the spiritual side, most Amanists have retained the essentials of the religion and German culture brought to Iowa by their forebears. And that's why German nobility is taking part in next week's ceremony.

Two Amana leaders, George C. Forester of Middle Amana and Dr. Henry G. Moershel of Homestead, are to receive the West German Order of Merit for their contributions to German-American cultural and business relations.

Hold High Hopes In Oral Vaccine

CHICAGO (AP)—Researchers at Tulane University, New Orleans, said today there is a strong possibility that oral polio vaccine given to a portion of the population could effectively vaccinate the whole nation.

The researchers, headed by Dr. Henry M. Gelfand, disclosed that their conclusions were based on the results of a scientific study which indicated that the immunity gained from the vaccine could be passed on from one person to another. Their findings were reported in the Journal of the American Medical Assn.

look at the pencil!

It was his first trip to Washington. He was only six. Everything had to be analyzed by the standards of a first-grader!

Tell him it's the Washington Monument . . . he still thinks of it as "The Pencil." Time for his parents to learn a lesson:

Suppose he had never seen a pencil. What would it have meant to him then? Probably nothing!

A child needs standards by which to measure all he encounters. The standards may be simple—but he uses them. With them he associates the things he wants to remember.

The Church provides your child with simple religious standards. He still needs your help to grasp the truth he must master. But the standards you and he learn at Church are the foundation of his character . . . the inspiration of your own. In his terms: the pencil with which tomorrow is written.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Among The Debs

Career Unsure

MISS LINDA MEWBORN . . . addresses envelopes to deb luncheon.

(Editor's Note: This is the fourth in a series of articles concerning the 1959 Pitt Co. debutantes.)

By PEGGY SMITH
Reflector Woman's Editor

"At this age, I don't know for sure exactly what career I want to go into. If I don't teach, I'll probably go into something in the medical field since my father is a doctor, my mother is a nurse, and my sister has recently finished nursing school."

That's what Miss Linda Mewborn of Farmville said in reply to a question about her plans for the future. She is attending East Carolina College because "it's the best place to go if you want to become a teacher." Continuing, she stated, "East Carolina is a wonderful college and offers a lot of opportunities."

History is her favorite subject which stems from the desire of wanting to know the ways of people in the past.

Her summer has been filled with preparations for the Debutante Ball in September to be held in Raleigh. Had she ever wanted to be a deb? "My sister, Faye, was asked, but refused, and that made me want to be one even more," Linda said.

Richard Gorman of Winterville has been chosen to act as Linda's chief marshal. Jack Lewis and Johnny Mewborn of Farmville are escorts.

This deb has chosen a gown of peau de sole and satin fashioned with a portrait neckline. Roses are featured on the gown with their stems made of crystal beads and seeded pearls. For the tea dance, she will be wearing a bronze shantung bouffant dress with jacket.

Linda is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John M. Mewborn of 303 E. Wilson St., Farmville.

Recent Bride Shower Honoree

Mrs. Oscar Holloman Jr., a recent bride, was entertained Thursday night with a miscellaneous shower. The shower was held at the home of Mrs. J. C. Weeks on Myrtle Avenue with Miss Elaine Weeks, Miss Patsy Corey, Miss Linda Crawford, and Miss Janice Tripp acting as hostesses.

The guests were greeted at the front door by Miss Tripp, and were invited into the living room where Miss Crawford directed the games. Mrs. Holloman was presented with a corsage of white carnations. Approximately 30 guests attended. The house was decorated with white chrysanthemums, and the centerpiece was a miniature bride and groom. Miss Weeks served bridal cakes, and Miss Corey poured the punch. Mints and peanuts were also served.

Mrs. Holloman was presented a lamp by the hostesses. She received many useful gifts. Goodbyes were said by Mrs. J. C. Weeks.

Choosing Toys Is A Serious Science

Once upon a time a child was happy with a homemade rag doll or a soapbox scooter nailed together in the woodshed. Those days have gone forever.

Today the business of choosing toys is a serious science, involving expert analysis by specialists in psychology, sociology, physical development and safety.

"You can't just go out and buy any old toy for a child," says Dr. Emma Sheehy, professor of education at Columbia University and a consultant to the Toy Guidance Council for 13 years. "You have to be sure that it's the right toy for his age and interests, that it will give him full play value and develop his talents."

Pursuing this theory, the council recently celebrated its 21st birthday by setting aside one whole floor of its new building in midtown Manhattan as a toy testing laboratory. Children of various age groups are invited in to play with new toys while Dr. Sheehy and other members of the consultant committee watch through a two-way mirror from an adjoining room.

The experts grade toys as to amusement value, mental development value and safety. In the latter category toys must pass various tests: smooth edges, non-toxic surfaces, appropriate size, appropriate weight and ease of manipulation.

"We pass on about 400 toys a year, submitted by various manufacturers," says Dr. Sheehy. "If a toy doesn't measure up to all the requirements we toss it out."

Dr. Sheehy's advice was enlisted by the founder of the council, Melvin Freud, in 1946. For the first two years she tested toys alone, then was assisted by Dr. Mary Moffet, professor of education at Queens College. Other members of the panel now include: Dr. Philip Lewos of Chicago; Dr. Alma David, of the University of Miami; Dr. Clarence Noyes, public school principal of White Plains, N.Y.; and Dr. Darrell Barnard, professor of science at New York University.

So when you go out to buy a toy for junior, please realize it's no laughing matter. Just think of all the tests this little toy has had to pass to get to market.

New National Craze: Flower Arrangements

DEEP SOUTH . . . Favorite floral arrangements include floral sprays in baskets, 'way down south in land of cotton.

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

FLOWER ARRANGING styles vary greatly around the country, whether you arrange them yourself right out of the garden or wire them to a shut-in a thousand miles away. The style of arrangement is typical of the area.

If the roses are to be sent to a New England bedside, for example, chances are they'll be in a massed arrangement, and that several varieties of flowers will be used. Stock, Fuji mums, daisies, carnations, peonies, garden lilies, delphinium, and ivy are popular in that area.

Big batches of flowers are the rule in the Northeast. The bigger they are the more they appeal to occupants of the old Colonial houses who enjoy placing their long stems in hall vases.

Regional preferences come out of many ancient traditions, some as old as civilization. West Coast styles are rooted in China and Japan, where for thousands of years floral decorations had deep religious significance. East blossom had a special meaning.

Modern West Coast arrangers, creating in the Oriental tradition, still give prominence to each flower, and many still consider arrangements to be poetic statements in which flowers represent Earth, Heaven, Man as they did hundreds of years ago.

In the South it's the bouquet that matters, and flowers are patterned to tantalize the olfactory senses. Camellias, magnolias and gardenias are big favorites. South of Richmond, arrangements use hanging branches with budding flowers interwoven with roses. Gladioli, hydrangea and iris are popular too, because they bend freely, even from a good sized centerpiece. Baskets of flowers are popular in the deep South.

It's a good idea to leave the arrangement of the flowers to a florist when you wire a centerpiece or bouquet because he is familiar with what is preferred in that particular area.

NEW ENGLAND . . . Massed arrangement of flowers in tureen is distinctive design. WEST COAST . . . Combination of dogwood and peonies carries out Oriental theme.

From Airport To Industrial Park

Greenville and Pitt County have very little to lose and a great deal possibly to be gained by requesting that federal authorities release their claims on the Pitt-Greenville airport property in order that the property may be used for industrial purposes.

By all means the governing boards of Greenville and Pitt County should look carefully into the matter and give serious consideration to making such a request to the Federal Aeronautics Administration.

In the Pitt-Greenville airport property, the city and the county jointly own slightly more than 700 acres of land which would make ideal sites for prospective industries looking for new locations. The property is drained, it is located adjacent to the river, it has fire protection, it has many miles of paving in its runways and taxi strips, and it is easily accessible to highway and rail facilities. It would make an ideal area to be converted in to a park for industrial buildings.

By subdividing the property and selling it to industries which wanted to build plants in this area, the city and county could get back the money they have invested in the airport with some profit to boot. Probably of even greater importance is the fact that if such an area were available in this area, new manufacturing concerns could be attracted that would provide many new jobs and boost considerably the annual manufacturing payroll of the county.

A further consideration is the fact that as the property developed with industrial buildings the city and the county would realize considerable additional revenues in terms of taxes on the buildings and equipment located in the industrial park. Quite obviously both Greenville and the county as a whole would benefit by the economic growth which such a facility would bring about.

It should be evident by now to all the citizens of this county that the possibility of securing one-community commercial air service is extremely slim. We have tried for years without success. The only hope for adequate commercial air service is on an area or joint-community basis, and if that is ever realized, the local airport would not be suitable for such use.

About the only use that we can possibly hope to be made of the airport under present circumstances is for private planes. And even if the area is developed as an industrial part it might well be that some landing facilities can be preserved and used by individuals and manufacturing concerns.

All things considered, it appears that for the general welfare of the people of Pitt County, a great deal more benefit can be gained by converting the airport property into a busy, humming industrial park than leaving it as a little-used airport partially grown up in weeds.

Properly handled, the present airport property could be developed into an extremely attractive industrial park providing industrial sites unrivaled in this area of North Carolina.

There was no hesitancy on the part of local or federal officials in releasing a portion of the airport for a highway right-of-way that obviously would bring benefits to this area. Neither was there any hesitancy in releasing a portion of the property for construction of an Army Reserve Center which is an asset to the county.

Why then shouldn't we give serious consideration to converting the remainder of the property into an industrial park which will in time bring far greater benefits to Greenville and Pitt County?

Rankin Is Ready To Call It A Day

By BLYNNE NISBET

RANKIN — Sometime around the turn of the year Ed Rankin will leave the Governor's office to head a Raleigh branch of the public relations firm of John Harden Associates of Greensboro. In leaving the post of private secretary to a Governor before expiration of the full elected term of his chief, Rankin will be following precedent set by secretaries during the past 40 years. He has already established precedent of his own, in that he will have served as private secretary to two Governors of North Carolina and for a longer tenure than any other person in modern times.

One of the first public statements made by the late Governor William Umstead after his election in 1952 was that Ed Rankin would be his secretary. He had served in that capacity when Umstead was in the United States Senate. Two days after the inauguration, Governor Umstead suffered a heart attack. During the months of the Governor's illness, which included the full period of the 1953 General Assembly, Rankin "manned the fort" and rendered services to the State of North Carolina that will require perspective of history to properly evaluate.

Less than two years later and before the next Legislature convened, Umstead died and Lieutenant Governor Luther Hodges succeeded to the office. He requested Rankin to stay on for a little while. The relationship proved mutually satisfactory and advantageous to State. The little while was prolonged to five years or more. There was never a propitious time to quit. Rankin thought he would step out immediately after adjournment of the 1959 General Assembly. Then came the problems incident to the Southern Governors' Conference at Asheville in October and the proposed industry-hunting safari into Europe in November. He agreed to stay on for another little while.

FRONT MAN — Responsibilities were less with an able Governor on the job and an administrative assistant in the background, but Rankin continued as front man. During the legislative sessions of 1955, 1957 and 1959, and between times, he was the first point of contact for news reporters, visiting politicians and crack-pots seeking audience with the Governor. Newsmen who cover the capitol beat know better than most folks about the innumerable times the secretary has smoothed ruffled feathers, eased tempers and paved the way for orderly interviews with people who came for the avowed purpose of "raising hell."

CONTINUING — A significant fact in Rankin's forthcoming separation from the State payroll and joining the Harden firm is that in many respects it will not be venturing into new fields. His relations with John Harden date back to the time when Harden was managing editor of the Salisbury Post and Rankin was a part-time high school reporter. The close association continued through the periods when Harden was secretary to Governor Gregg Cherry, Rankin was secretary to Senator Umstead, and when both later were with Burlington Mills.

Nor does the change mean that Rankin will discontinue service to the State of North Carolina. The Harden firm is closely associated with the industrial development campaign being carried on by the C&D department under leadership of Governor Hodges. From the background and sidelines, without headline mention, Harden and Rankin have contributed much to this program through the administrations of Governors Cherry, Scott, Umstead and Hodges. The increasing importance of public relations activities, as distinguished from straight advertising, suggests that Harden and Rankin may be in position to render more valuable service from behind the scenes.

BURCHETTE—Another more immediate change in the staff of veteran attaches to the Governor's office will occur on September 1. On that date Lloyd M. Burchette, highway patrolman, will take the oath of a sergeant in the patrol and assume the duties of patrol aide to the Governor charged with handling the State No. 1 Cadillac. He succeeds Sgt. Harold Minges, "The General", who has been promoted to the rank of Technical Sergeant and assigned desk duties in the patrol organization.

Minges, who had been serving Governors in that capacity from beginning of the Cherry administration, had to change jobs because of health. Burchette, who has been on regular patrol duty in Wake county, has filled in for Minges during vacation and other periods of absence for several years. He is actually on the job now, and has been for three or four weeks, but will take over officially on September 1.

While the principal duty of this assignment is to drive the No. 1 car where and when the Governor wants to go somewhere, both the Governor and the highway patrol organization regard it as much more than a chauffeur job. The official assignment is "patrol aide to the Governor." That involves almost everything from a sort of glorified valet to the status of confidential secretary or military adjutant. The man assigned to the position does not wear a chauffeur's cap. He wears the regulation uniform of a sergeant in the State highway patrol, with all the authority and power of arrest appertaining thereto.

Hard To Picture N. C. As Marijuana Source

The cracking of a multi-million dollar dope ring by North Carolina and federal officers this week probably came as more of a surprise to most Tar Heel citizens than it did to those who found themselves caught by the long arm of the law.

Most of us who think of dope rings and their sources of supply quickly get a mental picture of minutely planned efforts to bring in the stuff from other countries. There are few North Carolinians who ever considered their own state a major source of supply for narcotics.

From time to time over a long period of years there have been a few instances in which agents found tiny plots of marijuana being cultivated in the Eastern part of the state. Most of these, for the most part, have been discounted by the citizenry. The big haul which agents made in Cumberland and Wake Counties a few days ago, however, puts an entirely new light on the situation.

The result of this investigation should prompt state law enforcement agencies as well as local officers throughout the state to keep a sharp watch for similar operations that may exist or may spring up later. North Carolina can ill afford for its agricultural area to become a source of supply for dope peddling operations in other parts of the nation. If narcotics operators are ever allowed to get a foothold in North Carolina their operations—and allied operations—will be extremely difficult to stamp out.

Law enforcement officers who cracked the narcotics ring which had its supply source here are indeed to be commended. Their discovery should bring about intensified efforts throughout the state to uncover similar operations if they exist.

Concern Grows For The Future

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—American leadership is showing a growing concern about the ability of this country—at the rate and in the way we are going—to keep up with Soviet progress.

That was when Soviet claims to achievement were taken with a grain of salt in the United States. That attitude began to change when the Soviets showed how far advanced they were, industrially and scientifically, first by making the atom bomb, then the hydrogen bomb, and then beating us into outer space with their Sputniks in 1957.

Earlier in the week this writer reported President Eisenhower is concerned about the driving urge to get ahead which the Soviets seven-year plan is giving them.

2. Thinks this country needs an incentive toward harder work—something similar to the seven-year plan—which he believes is providing the Soviet people with the moral equivalent of war.

3. Feels Americans must be induced to work harder, think more of achievement, less of leisure and money.

Now comes the Draper committee—a 10-man group headed by the investment banker, William H. Draper Jr.—which sounds like a direct echo of the President.

Eisenhower created this committee to study the United States program of military assistance to other countries. Its report, made public Thursday, urged even bigger aid and went much beyond talking in terms of weapons alone.

The 10-man group sought to look at the Soviet challenge from many angles—its progress, its productive expansion, its goals, and its tactics—plus the need it creates for American efforts to match Soviet efforts.

Another Summer Endeth

Another summer comes to an end. For the past three summers I've traded my school books for a summer job here at The Reflector. The writing and picture taking have been fun, but the thing that has meant the most has been the people—the ones that I have worked with, those that have wandered in and out of the paper and those I have gone out and met for the first time.

Looking back over this summer, I remember some things that aren't exactly pleasant memories, but have fitted together with the nicer things to make a very interesting summer.

There was the time I was in interview Miss Greenville EARLY in the morning before she left for Durham. I knocked on the door of the address that was listed in the phone book under the name of her hosts. A lady finally struggled out of bed and met me at the door with a "Sorry, never heard of them."

Alice Ann's hosts had moved, but I didn't find this out until I had walked up and down Ninth Street looking for the right house.

Wherever I have been, the people have been considerate and understanding. One woman on Ninth bravely let me into her home that same morning about 8:30 and let me use her phone.

It's been a learning process, too. Chester Walsh, who has been in the business for years, has shared some of his early newspaper memories with me. Everyone has helped. The experience of working with a staff that pulls together like a team has been invaluable — under three red-headed bosses who are really top notch to work with.

I've learned things about human nature too. Some folks just plain don't care to see their names in print. Others are more than glad to take their share of the blame and credit that are passed around.

There have been mistakes. And the bosses were very patient when I listed Henry Carter as head of the music camp instead of Earl Beach—and when the water ran over in the darkroom and flooded the downstairs while Rosalie Moore was on vacation. They didn't fire me.

I've had a chance to interview a wide variety of people—several octogenarians, a debutante, and a former Japanese ambassador.

And the conclusions I've reached?

It isn't so bad to grow old if you remain active.

You meet interesting people in the newspaper business.

And I would like to work here again.

Other Editors Saying Democrats In Trouble

(Washington Daily News)

The National Democratic party is in trouble, and there is no need for any good Democrat to try to cover up the serious predicament the party finds itself faced with today.

Indeed, the only thing to do is to make a serious effort through positive action to recoup the losses which have been so evident within the past few months.

The Democratic party a few months ago looked to 1960 as the year in which it would capture the presidency and at the same time have a strong majority in both the houses of congress. A year ago it seemed merely to be a question of which Democrat would be the presidential contender with the general consensus of opinion being that any one of a half dozen potential candidates could lead his party to victory in November, 1960.

Several things have happened to change the picture. But perhaps the most notable actor revolves around the labor bill controversy now before congress. The Senate has passed a labor control bill, and so has the lower House. But the House bill is far more stringent in its content than the Senate bill. Now members of the two houses through a committee are attempting to come up with a compromise bill which can be acceptable to a majority of both houses.

But if failure to come up with an acceptable compromise fails, then the Democrats are in real trouble. There is no need for Democrats to sit around and try to put the responsibility upon the Republican party for failure of congress to take positive action. Regardless of how much the Republicans are actually to blame for failures, the people of this nation look to the party with a majority in congress to act. And since the Democrats have sizeable majorities in both branches of congress, it is the Democratic party which will be tabbed with the inability to act, if no labor bill is passed.

Actually, it might be a case of the Republicans not wanting to pass any labor bill. Even if that should be true, then the majority Democratic party still must live with the action or lack of action which takes place.

Latest polls show that both Richard Nixon and Nelson Rockefeller, leading potential Republican candidates, have gained ground.

This nation today is calling for labor reform. Some shocking stories of labor leader exploits have been handed the general public. And now that public is demanding positive action.

And it is not too late to give this nation action. If the Democratic congress fails to come up with some labor reform bill, then the party could actually be handing the presidential election to a Republican next year. It is just that serious, as we see it.

If congress adjourns in September as planned, and if no labor reform bill is enacted, then it can only work to the disadvantage of the Democratic party and to the advantage of the Republican party, as we see the matter at this time.

Lady 'Milks' Spiders

By TOM HENSHAW
AP Newsfeatures Writer
HOBOKEN, N. J. (AP)—Catherine Luciano is a milkmaid—for spiders!

Each working day in season—from late May until the cold weather sets in—she spends several hours handling the scary little critters and coaxing them to spin their webs in the interest of engineering.

The fine but tough strands of gossamer eventually end up as the cross wires on the delicate precision instruments, like surveyor's sights, manufactured by her employer, Keuffel & Essel Co.

Catherine got her unusual job 10 years ago through the simple expedient of volunteering. Between milkings she performs a second chore of fitting the cross wires onto reticles.

"I had the normal dislike of handling spiders at first but I got used to it," says Catherine. "It's just part of the job now."

How do you milk a spider? First, you select one that looks plump and well rested. Then you pick him out of his box and drop him on a table, grasping with your fingers the tiny bit of gossamer protruding from his body.

The spider takes off across the table top, spewing a single strand of web behind him. The web is collected on an aluminum spinning frame which can hold up to 75 feet on a good run.

The frames wound with gossamer so thin it can barely be seen are stored in specially constructed dust-free boxes for use during the cold off-season when spiders are unavailable.

Catherine's job may be unusual but there's nothing exotic about the spiders. They are plain old New Jersey field spiders, collected by a farmer in nearby Secaucus. He gets 30 cents apiece for them.

In the course of a milking season, Catherine handles about 1,500 spiders in her studio-like workshop on the fifth floor of a gray factory building not far from the Hoboken waterfront, special trouble or expense. They are housed in boxes with air holes. They provide their own food by eating each other.

But explaining her job and her informal title of "spider lady" occasionally presents a problem for Catherine — "You should hear me try to explain it to a date. They don't believe me at first."

There are other small problems.

Sometimes, when Catherine's vigilance slackens, the wiry little monsters stage mass escapes from their box. Then it's strictly up to Catherine. Few of her co-workers are willing to help in the recapture.

And occasionally there are spider bites, too. Catherine describes them as like being bitten by a mosquito. The bite is treated with alcohol and, moments later, she is back at the spider table.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
SPELLED OUT FOR US

The New Testament speaks a great deal about witnesses, and the Greek word for witness is "martus" from which we get the English word "martyr." Usually we think of a martyr as a person who suffers, and because of the indisposition of human beings to accept the truth, martyrs frequently have had to suffer. But a martyr is really a witness. He tells what he has seen or heard.

Christian believers are expected above all else to be witnesses. The church got its start by the witnessing of simple, courageous men and women. In the beginning there was not the great church organization we know today. A little group of men and women simply went about telling persistently and in excited tones certain experiences they had had through their contacts with this remarkable man Jesus. Most of them had known Him personally. If they had not known Him personally, they had known the disciples who had been close to Him throughout His ministry. The message in the beginning was simple. This Jesus of Nazareth is God's Anointed One, they declare. He is the promised Messiah. He is God Himself come into the walks of human life to redeem man from sin and to train him in the ways of righteousness.

The Christian church did not start out with great fanfare. It was first just a little group of witnesses—men and women telling the things they knew about the Lord Jesus.

The legacy of Christ to us is, "Ye shall be my witnesses." There is a divine directive spelled out with utter plainness.

All Business Categories Picked Up

By ELMER ROESSNER

Not one major category of retail business failed to make gains in sales during the first half of this year, compared with the first half of 1958, according to Commerce Department figures.

All subdivisions, except one participated these gains. The sole exception was meat markets, whose sales were 10 per cent under those of a year earlier. Lower prices for meats was undoubtedly the most important reason.

All retail stores, in the January-July comparison, showed a gain of 9 per cent.

Of these, the durable goods stores showed the largest rise, 16 per cent, compared with 5 per cent for nondurable goods stores. Just as the nondurable ratio was pulled down by lower meat prices, the durable total was pushed up by the automobile group.

Franchised car dealers increased sales 22 lovely percentage points; tire, battery and accessory dealers registered a 15 per cent gain. Service stations did only moderately better—7 per cent up.

BUILDERS' SUPPLIES STRONG
Lumber yards increased sales 19 per cent, largely because sales a year ago were pretty sick. Hardware dealers gained 7 per cent, and the total rise for the lumber, building, hardware and farm equipment group was 14 per cent.

This boom was not attributable entirely to the housing boom, although that doubtlessly had effects, because most builders do not get supplies from retail lumber yards and hardware suppliers. So it may be assumed that do-it-yourselfing is again on the rise.

Despite the modest gains in soft goods, some segments made forward strides. Mail-order sales of department store merchandise were up 15 per cent, and department stores and general merchandise stores were 10 per cent above a year ago. Variety stores were up 8 per cent. The apparel group was 6 per cent above a year ago, buoyed up by women's ready-to-wear stores, up 9 per cent, and family clothing stores, up 7 per cent.

Shoe stores increased sales 5 per cent, and men's and boys' clothing and furnishing stores, up 2 per cent.

MORE DRINKING AT HOME
Eating places showed a rise of 4 per cent and drinking places an increase of 3 per cent.

However, liquor stores sales rose 9 per cent, which would seem to indicate that—after recent price rises—people are doing more drinking at home.

Drug stores were up 9 per cent and furniture and appliance stores up 7 per cent.

Meanwhile, the preliminary report for July has come in. It shows a slight drop from June—a natural occurrence—and a 9 per cent rise over July, 1958.

All major categories showed

Saturday's Short Stuff.

Ed Emory and Bill Cain, co-captain in 1959, are only two of Coach Jack Boone's gridders in summer school.

Emory, the husky All-Conference star, states that he is in better condition this summer than in the past.

Cain, an end, stays in shape the year round. The Pirate co-captain works with weights in off seasons and is probably the best conditioned man on the squad.

The Giants are still receiving top billing in AP releases. The most recent one concerns another Willie—Willie Kirkland. This is the boy who said "baseball beats going to work" and had to ask to be signed.

The hard-hitting outfielder never played high school ball; his only experience being on the sandlots of Detroit.

He has 19 homers, one more than high-salaried Willie Mays and is second to only Orlando Cepeda's 23. He also has 55 runs batted in. Quite a feat...

Richards Given New Contract

Paul Richards, considered one of the best managers in the majors, has signed to manage the Baltimore Orioles in 1961.

The popular field general reportedly has offers from five other clubs. He took over the hapless Orioles in 1955 and finished seventh. This season his club has been in the first division with the exception of a few games...

Duke University has added Bucky Waters to their coaching staff. A North Carolina State graduate, Waters will become the Blue Devil freshman cage coach, succeeding Whit Cobb, who resigned to enter business.

Smith Will Have No Experience

Coach Earl Smith says that his 1959-60 basketball team will probably have less experience than any team in the past ten years. The new Pirate cage coach has carried on a strong recruiting program since assuming his new duties this past spring.

He will have only one starter returning but plenty of new faces will be around. 'Cotton' Clayton heads the list of newcomers but others include Malvern Boyette of Lucama, Marion Carroll of Craddock, Va. and Fred Fowler who was at Darlington Boys School in Rome, Ga. last year.

Sonny Baker, a junior college transfer from Campbell College, should also offer a helping hand. The high-scoring guard was All-Conference for the Camels during the past two seasons.

A big loss was felt when it was learned that Jerry Bosquet would remain in the Air Force. The big Haw River product played here as a freshman and his return was expected to give Smith a big lift. The news of Bosquet's plan came only recently.

Clay Looks Ahead To Possible Moore Bout

By LOU UCHITELLE

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—"We'd fight Archie Moore tomorrow, if we could, and very probably we will soon," said Von Clay's happy manager, Anthony Graziano.

"We're guaranteeing Yvon Durelle $10,000 to fight Clay on Oct. 9 in Philadelphia," announced promoter Herman Taylor and matchmaker Pete Moran.

It seemed like optimistic talk regarding a 29-year-old fighter with only 11 pro fights, but that was the mood Friday night after Clay finished off Sonny Ray, the fourth-ranked lightweight, in 56 seconds of the fifth round of a scheduled 10-rounder.

The decisive victory, in his first nationally televised (NBC) fight, meant that Clay, had reached the top ranks of his division—and Ray's comments reflected the blow dealt to his career.

Three tentatively scheduled fights, the 23-year-old Chicagoan said, without going into detail, probably will have to be cancelled.

"I'm going down to my grandmother's farm in Kentucky," he said, "rest, give the cut over my eye a chance to heal, and then see about a rematch with Clay, maybe in Kentucky."

Ray, with a 19-8-5 record now, figured that the bad cut over his left eye was the reason Referee Zack Clayton stopped the fight.

Clay, has one draw and has won eight of his 10 victories by knockouts or TKOs.

Graziano said that Clay's next two fights probably will be with Jesse Bowdry, whom Ray has beaten three times, and Durelle, the Canadian lightweight champ, whom Moore licked last week.

If he beats them, Graziano said, he'll be ready for Moore.

Records Expected To Fall In Pan-American Games

By MURRAY ROSE

Associated Press Sports Writer CHICAGO (AP)—The head coaches of Uncle Sam's male track and field swimming teams called their squads "tremendous" today and said they expected records to be shattered in every direction in the Pan-American Games.

Both Chick Werner, of Penn State, the athletics chieftain, and Charles McCaffrey Jr., of Michigan State, the swimming top klick, predicted a huge harvest of gold medals for the United States in the third Western Hemisphere sports show, Aug. 27-Sept. 7.

"Our swim team is the greatest ever assembled by the United States," said McCaffrey. "I think every Pan-American record will be broken."

"Probably the greatest team ever put together," was Werner's comment about his mighty squad.

"Most of the Pan-American records will be broken." Both said their boys were all keyed up "to shoot the works," and both were a little fearful that a massacre might be misunderstood and endanger our good neighbor policy.

"We're not going to hold anything back," said McCaffrey. "Our friends in North and South America want us to put our best against them. They don't mind getting beaten by the best and if they win anything they know they will have beaten the best."

Werner put it almost the same way.

The competition among the United States entries will be fierce. Almost to a man they're aiming for gold medals here and a foot-in-the door for the 1960 Olympic Team.

The swimmers are headed by recent world record breakers Mike Troy (butterfly) and Frank McKinney (backstroke) of Indiana, and 18-year-old Alan Somers, the Indianapolis schoolboy who posted the second fastest 1,500 meters ever.

The track and fielders include three 1955 Pan-American champs in 400-meter hurdler Josh Culbreath, shot putter Parry O'Brien and hammer thrower Bob Backus; and seven 1956 Olympic gold medalists in O'Brien, hurdlers Lee Calhoun and Glenn Davis, discus thrower Al Oeter, hammer thrower Harold Connolly, high jumper Charlie Dumas and broad jumper Greg Bell.

Double Wins Push Raleigh Close To Title

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Raleigh's Caps moved a step nearer to clinching the Carolina League pennant by winning a doubleheader from Burlington Friday night.

The Caps posted 5-2 and 5-3 victories at Raleigh to stretch their lead to 6½ games over second place Wilson which battled Greensboro to a 7-7 tie at Greensboro in a game called at the end of 12 innings because of the midnight curfew.

Lefty Bill Spanwick hurled a six-hitter in the opener for Raleigh. Ben Tench had a four-hit night going into the ninth inning of the nightcap, but lost his stuff and was removed after giving up one run. The Indians scored two more runs before the rally was squelched.

Winston-Salem came from behind to defeat Durham 11-9 in 11 innings in a game that had been suspended Aug. 8 with Durham leading 8-5 after seven innings of play.

The two teams then played a regulation game with Durham winning 9-2 behind the seven-hit pitching of Gene Bacque.

Tonight's games: Wilson at Burlington, Greensboro at Durham and Winston-Salem at Raleigh.

Doubles Team Is Uncertain

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP)—The hour is fast approaching when U.S. Davis Cup Captain Perry Jones must pick a doubles partner for Alex Olmedo in the coming challenge round defense.

Earl Buchholz Jr. and Barry MacKay are the candidates. Both were in action today on opposite ends of the semifinal draw at the National Doubles Tennis championships.

Buchholz and Olmedo pulled themselves together to defeat crafty Billy Talbert and John Lesch 3-6, 6-1, 6-4, 6-4 Friday in a men's quarter-final.

Jones, who teamed Earl with the world's No. 1 singles player with an eye toward the cup, nodded approvingly but maintained it's an experiment.

MacKay won his quarter-final test Thursday. Olmedo and Buchholz today were scheduled for a semifinal match against the winner of the Rod Laver-Bob Mark (Australia) vs. Chuck McKinley-Marty Reisen quarter-final. The latter was carried over, tied 1-1 in sets, after rain halted play Friday.

MacKay and Myron Franks were pitted against Wimbledon champions Neale Fraser and Roy Emerson of Australia.

The Other Day

When a fellow asked us whether we ever heard of a "plexus in the dermis," if he hadn't been smiling we would have called for the man in the white coat. But then he explained that is simply technical language for saying how in man's nervous system the sense of touch is derived from a network of nerve ends in the skin, which send their sense-of-touch-messages from the skin through the network of nerves to the brain. Plexus: a network; dermis: skin.

Whenever we think of the make-up of the human body we are simply floored with its thousands of mysteries, too much for mere man, its owner, even to start to imagine how it all works.

We are reminded of something once said by Dr. George Gallup, the famous researcher, who said, "I could prove God statistically. Take the human body alone... the chance that all the functions of the individual would just happen is a statistical monstrosity."

It makes us feel by comparison that our business isn't complicated, but actually, by man's standards, it is, and we've spent years specializing in every facet of it so that we can really serve you for your maximum benefit.

Associated Press Sports Writer It's been an odd season of success for Johnny Antonelli, San Francisco's lefty ace who was upset by "lousy fly balls," and who can't beat Milwaukee, yet is closing in on 20 victories for the first time in three years.

Since losing two straight three weeks ago (beaten by these fly balls that went for homers in the Giants' windy home park), Antonelli has won three of four decisions while San Francisco has jumped into the National League lead.

Antonelli tied Milwaukee's Lew Burdette for the major league lead with his 17th victory Friday night. He did it with an eight-hitter that put the opener away as San Francisco moved 2½ games ahead with a 6-0 and 10-6 twinnight doubleheader sweep at Philadelphia.

Second-place Los Angeles defeated Pittsburgh 6 - 5, but the third-place Braves fell five games behind when their game with the Chicago Cubs was rained out. Cincinnati defeated St. Louis 2-1.

In the American League, the Chicago White Sox ended their slump at two, retaining a 2½-game lead with a 5-4 victory over Washington.

Southpaw Jack Harshman gave second - place Cleveland a three-game streak with a three-hitter that beat Baltimore 5-0. New York rapped Kansas City 9-7 and Detroit beat Boston 4-0.

Giants' Jackie Brandt and Orlando Cepeda dropped Robin Roberts (11-13) in the first inning. The Giants made it a breeze for Anty (17-7) with three in the sixth.

Young Mike McCormick (11-10) beat the Phils in the second game. He allowed only three hits, one Wally Post's 18th homer, but needed Stu Miller's relief after giving up his fifth walk in the seventh.

The Dodgers came from behind with four runs in the seventh against Ronnie Kline (8-12), then scored the clincher in the ninth when the Bucs missed a double-play on a bases-loaded grounder by pinch-hitter Carl Furillo.

Reds' rookie Jay Hook (3 - 3) gave up a first-inning homer by Joe Cunningham, then blanked the Cubs the rest of the way on four hits. He also singled and scored the winning run on Gut Bell's single off Larry Jackson (10-12) in the fifth.

Indians Get New Life From Jack Harshman

By ED WILKS

Associated Press Sports Writer Jack Harshman, unable to hold jobs with two clubs because he couldn't win, now is Cleveland's surprise crutch, giving the Indians the left-handed pitching Herb Score was supposed to deliver in their run for the American League pennant.

Harshman's bad back led to a "damaged goods" squawk by Baltimore after a 1957 winter deal with the Chicago White Sox. But he stuck with the Orioles and won 12 last year, three of them shut-outs.

This season, his back still corseted, Harshman was 0-6 and the Birds traded him to Boston. He won two for the Red Sox, then lost three and they sold him to second place Cleveland.

Now, with Cleveland scrambling to catch the White Sox, Harshman suddenly has won 2½, saved one and lost none—figuring in half of the Indians' six victories in their last 11 games.

The big southpaw, 32, won his second Friday night, blanking Baltimore on three singles for a 5-0 decision that gave the Indians a three-game streak and left 'em within 2½ games of Chicago.

The White Sox cut their slump at two, coming from behind for a 5-4 edge over Washington as reliever Gerry Staley won his sixth straight.

New York belted Kansas City 9-7, and Detroit beat Boston 2-0 on Paul Foytack's four-hit and Al Kaline's two-run homer.

In the National League, San Francisco moved 2½ games ahead by sweeping a twinnight pair at Philadelphia 6-0, and 10-6. Second-place Los Angeles beat Pittsburgh 6-5 while third-place Milwaukee, idled by rain against Chicago fell five games behind. Cincinnati defeated St. Louis 2-1.

With Score winless in seven starts since July 3 and passed over in pitching rotation, Harshman made his second start with Cleveland and came through with his second complete game. Now 4-9, he didn't walk a man and struck out five.

The White Sox scored two unearned runs in the first, then had to come from behind after the Senators chased Dick Donovan with two in the sixth for a 3-1 pinch. Johnny Romano's two-run pinch single got back the lead for Staley (7-3) in the sixth.

Foytack (12-10) walked but one and struck out eight, allowing one hit after the second inning for his first victory over Boston in five decisions. Kaline's 22nd home run came in the third against Bill Monbouquette (4-5). It followed a walk to Harvey Kuenn.

The Yankees blew 2-0 and 5-3 leads and finally needed Ryne Duren's save after the A's scored one in the ninth. With one out and the bases loaded, Duren struck out Joe DeMaestri and got Roger Maris on a foul.

Coffman's Men's Wear will play tonight in a doubleheader softball game. The games will be played at Guy Smith Stadium and the opener will start at 7:30.

Coffman's previous winners over the Marines, will send Bill Brantley to the mound in the first game with Charlie Yates slated to work in the second outing.

Rounding out the local squad will be Brownie Tripp, Tom Boyd, Winfield Tingle, James Hardy, Billy McRoy, James McRoy, Earl Tripp, Bob Dash and Gilbert Hopkins.

The game is being sponsored by College View Cleaners and there will be no admission charge.

Old Greenville Building Has Always Housed A Bank

AFTER 45 YEARS . . . of service Greenville's State Bank Building (right) retains the same general appearance it had soon after its completion in 1914 (left). Renovation both inside and out has changed the appearance of one of Greenville's oldest and largest office buildings only slightly.

One of Greenville's oldest and largest office buildings still serves today as the home of one of the city's banks.

Built back in 1914, the triangle-shaped State Bank Building has always been the home of a bank. After its completion it housed the National Bank of Greenville. During the depression of the 1930's the National Bank went broke and the State Bank was organized, taking over assets and liabilities of the older banking organization, and occupied the same structure.

Construction of the building, located at Five Points on the corner of Dickinson Ave. and 5th St., was financed by two late Greenville men, C. B. West I and D. W. Barry.

Specifications disagreements between the two builders eventually brought bankruptcy to West before the building was completed, but the pair somehow managed to hang on and the structure was ready for occupancy in 1914.

An old vault, installed during construction, and a newer one, put in during the 1920's, are still in use by the State Bank which has done considerable remodeling and modernization to the building recently.

The present bank occupies the first and part of the second floors. The remaining area in the four-

Congressmen To See Quake Scene

WEST YELLOWSTONE, Mont. (AP) — Seven members of Congress flew here today to view the destruction wrought by a series of earthquakes that rocked the northwest last Monday night and Tuesday.

The two-day tour was arranged by Sen. James E. Murray (D-Mont.) and Gov. J. Hugo Aronson.

The governor warned of a potentially serious flood threat from waters building up between a 50-million-ton rockslide and the Hebgen Dam in southwest Montana, where the quake centered and took nine lives.

While tourists continued to flock into Yellowstone National Park at near the normal rate, officials closed off the area north and west of there to visitors. Unauthorized persons found in the disaster area will be treated as looters, Sheriff Donald J. Skerritt said. This warning was regarded as an effort to reduce the number of interlopers.

The touring congressmen were joined by representatives of the Army Corps of Engineers, National Park Service, Fish and Wildlife Service and other federal agencies.

Delinquency Is Discussed For Exchange Club

Dr. Hubert C. Haynes of the East Carolina College Psychology Department spoke at the Exchange Club meeting Friday night on "Juvenile Delinquency." The prevention of crime and juvenile delinquency is one of the major objectives of the nationwide Exchange Club.

Dr. Haynes cited the lack of proper parental guidance and poor neighborhood environment as the leading causes of juvenile delinquency. He related case histories and pointed out that delinquent parents raise delinquent children, and that delinquent children often grow into adult criminals.

President John Hassell presided at the meeting and J. B. Surles introduced the speaker.

Suspends Order

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — President Francois Duvalier has moved to patch up his differences with Roman Catholic Church leaders.

The president suspended an order Friday for the arrest of the Catholic archbishop of Port au Prince, Msgr. Francois Poirier, after the Vatican had warned Haitian officials they faced excommunication from the church if the order were carried out.

The government ordered the arrest Thursday after the archbishop had criticized the government for expelling two French priests, the Rev. Etienne Grimenberger and the Rev. Joseph Arree, for "reasons of internal security."

Police charged the Lofton woman with following too closely.

Sir Thomas Beecham, 80, Weds His Secretary, 27

LONDON (AP) — Sir Thomas Beecham, the petulant patriarch of the podium, wound up a satisfactory recording of Handel's "The Great Elopement." Then the 80-year-old British maestro and his 27-year-old secretary, Shirley Hudson, left the study together—and eloped.

Sir Thomas, conductor of the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra, is as irascible as ever whether performing or expounding his views on things and people. Friends described his bride as a tranquilizing influence who may finally tame him. She is his third wife.

His elopement was kept secret until today when Sir Thomas himself—presumably honeymooning in Switzerland—advertised it in a London newspaper.

A six-line notice in the Daily Telegraph's personal classified section said: "Sir Thomas Beecham and Miss S. Hudson.

"The marriage took place quietly on Aug. 10 at Zurich, Switzerland, between Sir Thomas Beecham and Miss Shirley Hudson."

Not even Beecham's closest associates had been told of the marriage.

Audiences have come to expect quick-tempered Sir Thomas' barbed postconcert fireworks—and enjoy them.

With white beard flashing, eyes twinkling, Sir Thomas has a high regard for himself.

"I will not be called the greatest musician ever," he once said. "On the other hand, I'm a damned sight better than any foreigner."

Beecham's first wife was Utica Welles, daughter of a New York doctor. Their marriage took place in 1903 and ended in divorce in 1943.

That same year he married Betty Humby of London, a well-known concert pianist. She died last September of a heart attack.

The dictatorship controls everything: People's lives; the work they do; where they work and on what and for how long; the luxuries they can have or must do without; their hours; prices; wages; and the means of production and distribution.

We may be entering a period of public-breast beating for our failures to do more and do without more. But self — flagellation is neither an answer nor a substitute for action.

Perhaps Eisenhower's committee on goals may produce suggestions for the old philosophical, but now very real, problem of how a free people, with all that means, can compete with a people controlled and centrally directed.

Prepare Structure For New Farmville Industry

HIGH-VOLTAGE WIRING . . . goes into the temporary home of Farmville's newest industry, the Farmville Manufacturing Company.

FARMVILLE—Operations have begun to make the Duke Pontiac-Buick Building ready for Farmville's newest industry—a teenagers' and infants' garment factory.

Crews have painted the interior and also have given the entire building a thorough cleaning.

The structure was ready Friday for the new company to move in its electric sewing machines. However, they did not arrive and this morning, Farmville Mayor Charles S. Edwards told the Daily Reflector that the machines were shipped last Tuesday from Des Moines, Iowa. He said the units should have arrived yesterday but added that "we hope to begin operation here Monday morning."

The building has been wired by the Town of Farmville for the new electric sewing machines. The units require 600 amperes which will be broken down to operate the machines on 240 volts. Workmen installed the wiring Friday.

J. D. Ray, head machinist for the new factory, and Frank McLaughlin, plant superintendent, have already arrived here and served as supervisors during the conversion job of the building on W. Wilson St.

Plant Manager Thomas Anderson is expected to arrive here Monday, according to Mayor Edwards, to complete arrangements for the new industry.

City Benefits From Inspectors

NEW BUILDINGS GO UP . . . under watchful eye of Building Inspector J. W. Wilson.

PLUMBING INSPECTION . . . city ordinances provide for proper installation.

CONDEMNED . . . some dilapidated houses must be closed.

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector City Editor

One day not long ago, the city's building inspector J.W. Wilson, knocked on the door of a house trailer parked in one of the city's subdivisions.

A woman answered the door. "Lady," said Wilson. "I hate to tell you this but you'll have to move your trailer."

It was one of the distasteful duties which Wilson has to perform.

It seems the restrictive covenants covering the subdivision prohibited the parking of the trailer on the lot with a dwelling.

So it fell Wilson's duty to inform the owners. It was particularly a distasteful duty in this case because the owners of the trailer had already spent approximately $200 running sewer lines to serve it.

On another day not long ago the city's fire prevention officer, Lyman Nethercutt got a call from a resident in a certain neighborhood.

"I'd like to report a fire hazard," she said. The lady went on to explain that a group of young men had rented an apartment in the neighborhood. Instead of placing their garbage outside for the sanitation department to collect, they had been merely stacking it up on the back porch.

Nethercutt inspected the scene and agreed that it was a fire hazard. He asked the boys to clean the trash out and on his follow-up inspection he found that the job was being done.

So two municipal inspectors go about their jobs of making buildings safer throughout the city.

A couple of years ago there was no Fire Inspection Program. And there were no building, plumbing, or heating and air-conditioning inspections. The city had no ordinances covering such things and there was neither a full-time building inspector nor a fire inspector.

The city's fire chief acted as building inspector but he could do little more than issue permits for the construction of new buildings.

Then ordinances were adopted by the City Council at the recommendation of City Manager Leonard Bloxam one-by-one to cover building, plumbing, air conditioning heating and fire hazards.

Wilson was employed as full time building inspector including the duties of inspecting plumbing, air conditioning and heating.

Nethercutt, a fire captain, was appointed fire prevention officer, and assigned the duties of inspecting local buildings for fire hazards.

The two men, who also work closely with the county's electrical inspector, Guy Dunn, attempt to seek the cooperation of the public in carrying out their duties because they feel their work is actually for the benefit of the property owners they deal with.

"You won't have any better building than your inspection program," Wilson says of his work. "The better your inspection program the better home you have."

The city's building code was adopted in July, 1958 and has been in force only a year.

City Manager Bloxam said the action was taken under a state act which authorized any town of 1,000 or more population to designate someone as building inspector.

Such an inspector was to "be responsible for carrying out of minimum standards that the city might adopt in accordance with the Fire Underwriters recommendations and the North Carolina Building code," the city manager said.

He pointed out that the insurance rating the bureau may put on any community "are governed to a large extent by the building code requirements that the community may adopt," and efficiency points are taken into consideration for the lack of such codes.

Wilson noted that "under the general statutes every person who builds or remodels or makes any additions is required to get a building permit before construction is begun."

There is another phase to the city's inspection program. The National Board of Fire Underwriters recommended codes were adopted in April, 1958, and Nethercutt was appointed fire prevention officer to carry out an inspection program.

It is Nethercutt's job to look for "accumulation of trash, inspect the way stock is stored in warehouses, check for faulty wiring or anything else considered a fire hazard," he says.

"We go on the basis of trying to sell fire prevention," City Manager Bloxam said the building owners profit directly by the inspection program.

"Since we have had a fire prevention program there have been instances where a man has complied with certain suggested requests that have allowed him to reduce his insurance rates to the point where he saves as much as $200."

This is in addition to the program being one of the points considered in establishing the city's over all insurance rating.

Nethercutt keeps a card file on all buildings in the city. Each card lists the owner, occupant, location of heating plants, exits, entrances and switches. Such cards which are readily available to firemen, might prove invaluable to the fire fighters in case of a fire in any one of the buildings.

Nethercutt, who inspects industrial and commercial buildings "about every three months" said his inspection sheets and other information are open for inspection.

He says that 95 per cent of the property owners go along with the recommendations made.

When legal action is necessary for either fire or building inspection, it is taken through the city police department and not by the inspectors themselves.

"As far as I'm concerned, I don't see anything the property owner gets anything more out of than these two programs," Bloxam stated. "Because, number one, we are helping him to maintain the lowest possible insurance rate that he can get. Number two, he is getting some minimum standards that assure him of a reasonable long life expectancy out of the structure that he is investing his money in."

"It is helping the city as a whole maintain a reasonable insurance rate and eliminate future blighted areas."

There have been a number of old buildings torn down since the program was begun and Bloxam said of that, "We have been very fortunate in securing the cooperation of a number of citizens in removing facilities which were a hazard and presented dangerous conditions to the public and surrounding properties."

"It also improves the general appearance of the community and increases the valuation of the owners property."

FIRE HAZARD . . . Fire Prevention Officer Lyman Nethercutt watches for such hazards.

WIRING . . . often a problem which Nethercutt finds in older buildings.

PAINT SPRAY BOOTHS . . . brought up to minimum standards through inspections.

She Has Business In Cat Pajama Bags

STUFFING THE HEAD . . . with dacron is part of the process Bobbi Newman goes through getting her zippered pajama bags ready for sale.

By MARTHA PIERCE
Reflector Staff Writer
It all started with a Home Economics Project. Bobbi Newman, 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Newman, entered her "Cat Pajama Bag" originally a home economics project in the fair under the gift division and walked off with the first prize blue ribbon. Several months later she received her first order for a pajama bag and her enterprise was on its way. Since the first order Bobbi has had about as many orders as she has been able to fill in her spare time.

She makes the pajama bags from materials with small prints, checks, figures and even solid colors and stuffs the legs, tails, and head with dacron. The eyes, nose, and tongue are made from felt she clips from old felt hats. In Bobbi's assembly line process, she does all the cutting, sewing and stuffing for several cats at one time. Yarn whiskers, ears, contrasting lining, and a big bow of ribbon are the finishing touches for the cats.

There seems to be no age limit for her customers. She has sold cats to grown women for their and to small children. Most of the cats are sold for children and she already has seven orders that will be Christmas gifts. Bobbi's cats are carried by a local dress shop.

One TV Series Upsets 'Life Expectancy' Data

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—How long can a TV series keep going? Warner Anderson of "The Lineup" says the life expectancy of a hit series is four or five years. "Shows like 'I Love Lucy' and 'My Friend Irma,' start to pall public begins to say, 'I've seen that before.'"

Many filmed series are ground out in two or three days. "Father Knows Best" has a day of rehearsal and four days of filming. "It's hard work," Jane admitted. "We have, of course, what actors seldom achieve—the security of a steady job. But I'm not so sure that I would have signed on if I had known it would last for six years. I don't like knowing that I will be doing the same thing so long."

Yet here is "Father Knows Best" defying all the experts by swinging into its sixth year stronger than ever. I dropped by the set to see how Robert Young's TV wife, Jane Wyatt, is bearing up under the grind. "I can't understand it," she remarked. "At this stage in a series, everything is supposed to start dwindling. But the scripts keep getting better and better. We've had four for the next season that are among the best we've ever had."

The Emmy award winner still has trouble convincing fans she isn't really married to Bob Young (her husband is businessman Edgar Ward). I asked her how much longer this double life could last. "Contractually, just one more year," she said. "I signed a seven-year deal for the series. No, I can't see it going any longer than that."

Like A Woman, Changes Mind

NORWOOD, Mass. (AP)—Little Buff Gray is 6 years old, bright-eyed, smart, and healthy as a Marine. She can chin herself, shimmy on the climbing pole and do six push-ups, too. In other ways, the way she thinks for example, she's all woman, even if she said she wanted to be a Marine.

So she wrote to Maj. Gen. David M. Shoup, who commands the Marine recruit depot at Parris Island, S.C., telling him of her desire to join the corps. "My dad was a Marine, my brother is a Marine, and my other brother plans to join next year. I have been doing the exercises my brother advised me to do to stay in shape." Gen. Shoup wrote back to Miss Gray, politely, in his military way: "It is gratifying to learn that young Americans are still as patriotic as ever. Your mother and father have every reason in the world to be extremely proud of you."

Record-Attempt By Watchmaker

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Peter Gluckman, 33, the flying watchmaker, soars away today on his most ambitious journey — a solo world flight in a single-engine plane to chalk up a world record. A sign on his watch shop reads: "Back on Sept. 8 (I hope)." Gluckman, a 6-foot, 240-pound German-born American, has the assurance of the world's official flying organization — the Federation Aeronautique Internationale — that if he makes it, it will be the only official globe-circling flight ever made under federation rules. That surprised him. FA requirements are the flight must be at least 22,800 miles, the distance via the Tropic of Cancer — or Capricorn. The plane must be clocked in officially at each stop. The celebrated Wiley Post flight of 1933 was 15,596 miles. Bill Odum's in 1947, was 20,020. Gluckman's route will put him well over the distance requirement. He headed for Mexico City. From there he plans to continue via Puerto Rico, the Azores, Lisbon, Cairo, Karachi, New Delhi, Calcutta, Manila, Tokyo and Honolulu.

A Little Paint May Solve It

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP)—A little paint may be all that's needed to give the Air Force a better chance of catching a parachuting satellite nose capsule. Data from the satellites Discoverer V and VI indicates they got too cold for their power batteries to operate, the Ballistic Missile Division said Friday. The batteries are supposed to start a radio homing device which would guide planes to the falling capsule. The planes would try to snag the capsule's parachute with a trapeze device. Missile division officials said the answer to proper temperature control may be in painting geometric designs with light-absorbing paint on the outside of the satellite. The paint would absorb the sun's rays and raise the satellite's temperature to a point at which the batteries would operate.

Labor Day Showdown May Shape Up On Strike Fronts

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—Both management and labor are wondering today if this year's observance of Labor Day may coincide with a major showdown.

Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell's background report on the steel strike points to it. The report confines itself to statistics rather than issues. But the issues show through.

Both management and labor stress that the issues in the steel strike are fundamental, rather than just dollar and cents ones as in the past.

A similar type of strike is spreading through the copper industry. Meat packers and their workers are reported split over the same issues with a strike possible around Labor Day.

Others outside the industries directly involved, but themselves affected by the results as primary customers or ultimate consumers or as union members in other industries, also are taking sides. Labor's position, perhaps over-simplified, is that today's high and often record profits can absorb another increase in wage scales without any need for another price rise; and management's demand for a return to greater say-so in conducting plant operations is an effort to break the unions and restore old objectionable practices.

Management's position is that price inflation has to be stopped some time and the way to do it is to hold the present wage and price line; and more management control over operations would raise productivity and lower operational costs.

Productivity thus becomes a key issue. It means the amount of goods or services turned out per man hour. Mechanization and automation has tended to raise this sharply in late years — although mechanization can be a costly thing in itself.

Working against more productivity, management says, are feather-bedding and other practices that slow production and add to costs.

On this issue management and labor seem to be at opposite poles. The chance of a major showdown this year seems to lie here more than in wage scales themselves. The Mitchell report on the steel industry says that since 1940 the output per man hour has increased by about 74 per cent. The average annual increase in the 1947-57 period was 3 per cent, while for the economy as a whole it was 3.7 per cent, and for manufacturing alone 3.1 per cent.

Steel management stresses that to achieve this increased productivity it has raised its capital investment per production worker from $9,000 in 1947 to $20,000 in 1957.

It argues that this great capital investment makes it impossible to hold price lines if wages and other operational costs go up.

In this showdown building up between opposing management and labor views, there is a third party—the public.

And public interest in this year's issues seems keener than in any other postwar period. It is this interest which Mitchell stresses when he asks both sides to try harder for a settlement before the issues harden into a struggle that could rock the economy.

Iraqi Reds Have Soviet Advice Against Seizure

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst

Iraq's Communist leaders have just warned their party to stop dreaming of a Red takeover in that strategic Middle East Nation.

An illuminating document chiding the party's Arab hotheads has just been published by the official party press in Baghdad, and reprinted with a show of satisfaction by the Soviet Communist newspaper Pravda.

The orders obviously have been inspired by Moscow, which is more intent on chalking up gains throughout the Middle East than on seizure of an isolated Arab nation which the Communists hardly hope to hold.

The orders were published by the Central Committee of the Iraqi Communist party following a recent full meeting, its first since the tumultuous days of last September when the Iraqi revolution was struggling to its feet.

The party told the Communists in the oil-rich nation they must look forward to the "necessity of a long coexistence" with the Iraqi Nationalists under Premier Abdel Karim Kassem, the country's popular revolutionary hero.

The Communist leadership announced there would be a "gradual purge" from the party's ranks of those who are likely only to harm it and those who refuse to relinquish their "opportunist" views. The purge will extend to the leadership itself.

By "opportunist," the party means a Communist ready to take decisive steps without advance assurance of success—in brief, to bite off more than the party could chew.

The question remains whether the Moscow-oriented party leadership is strong enough to carry out these orders to the letter.

Legion Approves Truck Project

Greenville's American Legion Post No. 39 in its regular meeting this week formally approved the undertaking of a project which will replace the Greenville Rescue Squad's panel truck probably by sometime next spring.

According to Post Commander Alfred C. Brinson, a committee was appointed to head the project. Its chairman is George Evans. Members are Ford McGowan, Ed Harris, Conner Eagles and Sam Whitehurst.

Brinson told the Daily Reflector that the estimated cost of replacement is about $24,000 which will "take several months to raise."

A panel truck which, according to Brinson, is "about 11 years old" is currently serving the Rescue Squad.

He indicated that the local Post has discussed the possibility of presenting the East Carolina College Band in a concert at which the American Legion would operate a concession stand as a means to raise part of the required money.

Also mentioned as possible fund-raising measures by the Post were the operation of some sort of "booth" at the county fair and the sponsoring of some type of dance this fall.

WAITER—I WANT ANOTHER TABLE WHERE I DON'T HAVE TO WATCH THEM EAT! THEIR MANNERS!

THE CHILDHOOD OF THE PHANTOM.

I WANT TO GO HOME—THESE PEOPLE DON'T LIKE US. MAYBE MY AUNT AND UNCLE WILL BE THE SAME.

NO, THEY WILL LOVE YOU.

LOOK—IDOL! A GODDESS!

YES—THE GODDESS OF LIBERTY, GURAN.

SOON—THE NEW WORLD.

NOT MOUNTAINS, GURAN. THEY ARE BUILDINGS—SKYSCRAPERS. LIKE BIG HUTS.

HUTS? HUTS FOR GIANTS!

KIT WALKER? YES—WELCOME. I'M FROM THE AIRLINE. I'VE INSTRUCTIONS TO PUT YOU ON A PLANE TO YOUR UNCLE'S TOWN.

NO GIANTS

THEY'VE NEVER SEEN A CAR BEFORE—AS IT ROARS TOWARDS THEM—

A MONSTER—FASTER THAN A RHINO!

AND ME—WITHOUT A SPEAR OR ARROWS!

COME DOWN—IT CAN'T HURT YOU! IT'S A TAXI!

LET'S SEE YOU TOUCH IT FIRST!

BLONDIE
by CHIC YOUNG

DAGWOOD'S AS RESTLESS AS A CAGED LION LATELY.

I JUST CHASED HERBERT OVER TO YOUR HOUSE—HE'S ABOUT TO JUMP OUT OF HIS SKIN.

I GUESS IT'S WHAT THEY CALL THE SUMMER DOLDRUMS—THEY'RE JUST PLAIN BORED.

THEY CAN'T SEEM TO FIND ENOUGH TO KEEP THEMSELVES BUSY.

TOOTSIE SUGGESTED WE GO TO THE BOWLING ALLEY AND BLOW OFF SOME STEAM.

THAT MIGHT BE JUST WHAT THE DOCTOR ORDERED.

RING

SOMEONE'S AT THE FRONT DOOR.

MAY I USE YOUR PHONE? I HAVE A FLAT TIRE.

I'LL DO BETTER THAN THAT, MAAM—MY FRIEND AND I WILL BE HAPPY TO CHANGE YOUR TIRE.

WE'LL HAVE TO REMOVE SOME OF THESE BAGS TO GET AT THE SPARE.

OUR HUSBANDS ARE WAITING IN TOWN—WE'RE GOING ON VACATION.

I WISH THERE WAS A WAY TO REPAY YOU NICE PEOPLE.

YOU CAN DROP US OFF AT THE BOWLING ALLEY ON YOUR WAY TO TOWN.

LET'S GO, GIRLS.

GOOD HEAVENS, BLONDIE, LOOK!

IN BROAD DAYLIGHT!

THANK GOODNESS THE CHILDREN AREN'T HERE.

I CAN'T BRING MYSELF TO BELIEVE THEY'RE GONE—WHERE DID WE FAIL?

THEY CERTAINLY WEREN'T DRESSED VERY NICE TO BE RUNNING OFF.

THIS GUY MISSED HIS CALLING—HE'S THE BEST BOWLER IN THE NEIGHBORHOOD.

DO YOU HAVE THE FEELING OF A LULL BEFORE A STORM?

THE ATMOSPHERE IS HEAVY AND OMINOUS, NOW—THAT YOU MENTION IT.

So Far, 134 Are Charged In Plot

HAVANA (AP)—Fidel Castro's government so far has charged a total of 134 persons with conspiring to overthrow the bearded revolutionary leader.

Forty-seven civilians and former military men were charged Thursday and taken to La Cabana military fortress, where 87 persons previously charged are being held.

The 134 were among thousands arrested last week when the government smashed a counter-revolutionary plot which Castro said originated in the Dominican Republic. Large numbers of those arrested have been released.

Novak Neckties Just Don't Sell

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Neckties made out of Kim Novak's lavender bed sheets are not selling so well.

This complaint, lodged to no one in particular, was registered by a San Francisco manufacturer, Beall Ernst, who obtained the frilly sheets at an auction.

He said he appears to be stuck with about half the 200 ties he fashioned from the sheets, used in the film "Vertigo."

He has cut the price from $10 apiece to $3.50.

Helicopters To Hunt For Bodies

WIESBADEN, Germany (AP)—Two helicopters have been ferried deep into the Libyan desert in the final search for the remains of a bomber crew that disappeared 16 years ago.

The B-24 crashed in April 1943, after a raid on Naples. The crew was listed as missing. Recently mining prospects came upon the wreck, which had landed itself after the crew bailed out.

Apparently the crew perished in the wastelands.

CHAPTER 16

The sun was but a few minutes high when Link Asbell rode up to Running M headquarters to check if Nels Madison had had a good night.

In his shirt sleeves, Doc Jerome stood on the porch, stretching and yawning widely.

"You," said Asbell, dismounting, "look like you'd had a hard night. How's Nels?"

"Better," informed Doc briefly. Then, grumbling, he added, "I've had a hard night, all right—or shall I say more properly, a hard day and night, what with riding with you up into the Saddlebacks to have my look at Packy Lane. Then back to town. Then out here to take care of Nels. Then back to town again last night to fix up Charley Tunison. Then back here once more to make sure about Nels. Call it as rough a day and night as I can remember."

Asbell's glance held a quickening interest.

"What's this about Charley Tunison? What happened to him?"

"He tangled with Frank Dalmar in the Imperial and Dalmar smacked him in the face with a whiskey bottle. Broke his nose and split his cheek twelve stitches worth."

Asbell was frankly surprised.

"What did he and Dalmar tangle over?"

Doc looked around warily, then lowered his voice.

"Seems Tunison made some sort of remark that had Sue Vincent's name in it, and Dalmar let him have it with the bottle."

"Now," said Asbell, who had a quick harshness, "that's a mark in Dalmar's favor. Too bad he didn't hit Tunison again."

"He was going to, so I understand. He had Tunison on the floor and was all set to brain him proper when Ben Dillon hauled him off."

Asbell set to building a smoke.

"Nels is really doing good, Doc? You're not just saying he is?"

"You should know me better than that," retorted Doc bluntly. "Now I'm asking you something. Where are you heading, with a rifle slung to your saddle and a six-shooter to your waist? As I recall, you never used to pack a gun."

"And as I recall," said Asbell drily, "it was a certain Doc Jerome who warned me to keep an eye on both sides of the trail, as well as throwing a look over my shoulder every now and then. Besides, when I didn't pack a gun, that was day before yesterday. Things have happened, since then."

"True enough," Doc nodded.

"But you still haven't said where you're heading."

Asbell considered for a moment before answering Doc slowly.

"That depends on what Sue Vincent has to say. I'll know better after I've had a talk with her. You might tell her I'm out here."

Sue provided the answer to this need by now showing in the ranchhouse doorway after which she came along the porch a little diffidently. Doc, ever taciturn, went back into the house, again yawning and stretching.

Sue dropped slowly down the porch steps and stood in front of of his lean face—a man who was solid and sure and dependable.

Now also, where a wariness, a guarded remoteness had lain far back in his eyes, a renewed warmth began to build, and somehow he was not that distant figure he'd been yesterday afternoon, but instead the familiar, steadfast Link Asbell of old.

A sob tightened Sue's throat.

"Oh, Link—sometimes I can be such a fool!"

"Not so," he reassured gently. "Just a mite headstrong, that's all."

Link Doc, Sue Vincent had marked the rifle under his saddle fender and the gun-weighted belt sagging at his hip.

"The guns," she said. "I—I don't like them, but I know you wouldn't carry them unless you felt you should. Link—you'll be very careful?"

"Of course," he promised. Then he conceded a point. "About Frank Dalmar—I could have been a little wrong, there."

She gave him a strange, quick look. "That doesn't matter at all, Link. Really."

He dropped the butt of his cigarette, ground it to nothingness against the earth with the toe of his boot.

"I've sent Hughie Logan and a couple of the other boys up to the Rosebud creek line-camp to start building another cabin. Whatever we're faced with, Sue—whatever we're heading into, we're not backing up a single step. I hope you approve?"

Here, Sue realized, was decision—the kind of decision she must expect from Link Asbell. Here was flat declaration of battle with the Double Diamond, if battle it must be. This man would neither compromise or hesitate. Whatever had to be done, he would do.

Has Built 7,500 Of Small Cars

DETROIT (AP)—Chevrolet has built almost 7,500 of its new Corvairs since assembly line production began in early July.

Production of the small cars is running at about 35 an hour at the nearby Willow Run plant. Capacity is said to be 60 cars hourly. The new car also will be produced at Kansas City and Oakland, Calif.

So far none of the Corvairs has been distributed to dealers. They are being stockpiled at General Motors installations around Detroit.

The cars are expected to go on sale early in October.

She met his glance squarely. "Anything you feel is necessary, Link, is the way it shall be. I'll abide by your judgment."

His smile was quick and warm, and he stepped into his saddle and headed away along the town trail.

Reaching Garrison, Asbell's first stop was the Imperial. Here the door was propped open and Ben Dillon was swamping out. He nodded soberly.

"Morning, Link. What's the word on Nels Madison?"

"Good. That's straight from Doc Jerome. Ben, how about Frank Dalmar and Charley Tunison. Just exactly what happened?"

Dillon shrugged. "Simple enough. Tunison said something Dalmar didn't like and got himself belted with a whiskey bottle."

"Where's Frank now?" Asbell asked.

"Sleeping it off in the back room."

Asbell considered, lips pursed. "As I recollect, he always handles that liquor well."

Dillon shook his head. "Can't prove it to me. He was carrying a pretty fair edge already when he came in, and seemed to have a lot on his mind."

"He try and tell you any of his troubles?"

The saloon owner shook his head again.

"Not a peep. He just fastened on to the bottle and indicated he wanted to be left alone with it, I obliged."

"What about Tunison?" Asbell asked.

"Holed up in his room in the Prairie House, I reckon," Dillon said. "He ain't going to be frisking around smoking, those big cigars for some time."

Asbell said, "When does he'll have an earful of strong talk saved up for him. He's been a guest out at Big Five a good many times, but he never will be again!"

Asbell's challenge is challenged double when he meets Jonas Dalmar, as the story continues tomorrow.
