Omnibus Labor Bill Yet To Come

Sometimes on reading news reports of the word-battle surrounding labor reform legislation we become immersed in a gloomy foreboding that nothing will come of it. On other days, the dawn of Hope never shown brighter.

A wholesale re-writing of the hodgepodge of laws involving organized labor is obviously out of the question for now . . . in fact, it may be another decade before Congress feels the much-needed step can no longer be avoided.

The pattern of effort thus far laid out is one more piece-meal attack against some of the more obvious wrongs and abuses.

Eventually there is going to have to be a wholly new blueprint drawn on the basis of trial-and-error incorporating all the proven good qualities and deleting or revising those features which didn't pan out.

Primary interest today is in ridding organized labor of the criminal element, banning coercive action against innocent parties and restoring democratic processes to unions which let those processes fall by the wayside.

Yet to be seriously taken up is the unbridled use of power by a government-sponsored monopoly; the delineation of union activities; the protection and rights of a non-union laborer; and last, but not least, a measure of safeguarding the welfare of private business and industry without whose existence the very life of free unionism would end.

It's a broad field . . . reaching out into a number of problems that on the surface are only distantly related. But underneath each there's a strong measure of kinship. Someday all of it must be taken up and harmonized in an omnibus labor bill.

Anybody Can Run, But Few Real Contenders

There must be something about politics that makes a man want to run even when the odds are stacked (mile-high) against him.

Take for instance Robert W. Gregory, for thirty years an employee of Cone Mills. He just resigned last week as a superintendent and this week announced he is going to run for the Senate in the next Democratic primary.

Among his handicaps, Gregory has to face up to the fact that a winning candidate has to have money . . . piles of the stuff.

Add to that the less stern requirement of some political experience;

Add to that the fact that Senator Everett Jordan has acquired a taste for his Washington desk and doesn't intend to let go;

Add to that the probable rising up of other men with strongly political backgrounds; or who have even made a career of politics.

So a newcomer to the game, and an amateur at that, stands about as much chance as a snowball in July.

But isn't it nice that just anyone can run? Not so much to fulfill that old platitude about "democracy in action", but that if he feels like being a candidate there's nothing around to stop him.

That comes at the polls.

Money Problem Is The Big One

By LYNN NISBET

FINANCING — With the time when most people expect to have the candidates for Governor out in the open less than four months away, the practical politicians are giving serious consideration to the matter of campaign money. Fewer questions are being asked about the particular philosophy of prospective candidates. There are a lot of idealists who paramour this item, and who would rather go to defeat with a perfect man than win with one who hedged on vital issues.

The practical politicians—and that includes many business men who pretend resentment at the designation—are more concerned about winning the broad objective than haggling over details of policy. If the candidate has personal integrity, generally acceptable concepts of the relations between human values and property values, and a good chance to win — he will be favored over the opponent who more nearly conforms to ideals, but has less prospects of victory.

Only a few fanatical idealists think the office of Governor of North Carolina is on the auction block. Only those of subnormal intellect think a campaign for Governor can be successfully waged without a large amount of money.

There are more than two million Democratic voters, registered or eligible for registration, in North Carolina. A plain government postal card costs three cents. To print a short message on each card, to compile a mail list and get the cards addressed, will cost another five to seven cents. To send one post card to every Democratic voter will knock a big hole in a $200,000 campaign fund. Letters cost more. There must be some telephone conversations, the candidate must travel around over the state, and there must be some newspaper, radio, television and other publicity.

ESSENTIAL — Every citizen has a right to know what the candidates believe in and what they propose for the advancement of North Carolina. Without such information the citizen cannot vote intelligently. To get such information to all the voters will cost somebody upwards of half a million dollars. Democracy not only is the slowest moving form of government, it is the most expensive.

Of course, all the information does not get to every voter. So, majority of the voters have to take a candidate on faith in hearsay testimony. To get the "hearsay" disseminated also requires money which somebody has to pay. A relatively small percentage of the total cost of any hotly contested statewide campaign can be pinned down for reporting. Only the zealots are willing to spend their own money in behalf of a candidate without some hope of accomplishing victory.

That is why, at this stage, the practical politicians are more concerned about financing than about specific details of personal philosophy of prospective candidates for Governor, United States Senator, and other offices.

The presently recognized leading candidates for Governor are Terry Sanford and John Larkin. In the background of probability are Edwin Gill, Addison Hewlett and half a dozen others. All are Democrats in the North Carolina tradition—but with widely divergent tangents of peculiar ideology. The list is not closed; some others may get in with big feet.

As of now, the question is not so much the peculiar tenets to which any one subscribes as it is who can get the money to carry on a real campaign. In politics and in business enterprise, money attracts money. The candidate who has a lot can get "enough" more easily than the one who doesn't have a nest egg or a war chest to start with.

INDIRECTION — Few appointments made by Governor Hodges have had as general commendation as that of Clarence H. Noah to be a member of the Utilities Commission. It means promotion for a man who has been a member of the staff of the commission for a long time, and in that respect tended to build morale throughout the ranks of State employees, which had suffered some hard licks by recent developments in the highway and ABC departments.

Another factor is that the Governor has partially accomplished by indirection what he failed to get by legislative act—a stronger technical staff for utilities, with less attention to purely judicial phases of the total job—or reward for political service. Chairman Harry T. Westcott went to the commission as a lay business man, without previous experience in matters with which it deals. Commissioners S.O. Worthington and R.G. Long brought to their posts keen legal minds and courtroom experience. So does Tom Eller the fifth member. Noah has legal training and experience, but his chief contribution will be intimate technical knowledge of some of the most serious problems facing the commission, and his ability to speak with authority rather than in advisory or recommendatory capacity.

AT WORK — Report of the State Department of Labor that 1,094,400 people were employed in non-farm jobs during July, means that one out of every four people is at work on some job other than farm. When those under 16, and not permitted to work, are counted out, it means about one third of all the people of working age have paying jobs.

Weak Point In Stories

Here's a word of advice for folks who are about to go into the army, navy, marines or what have you.

Don't color up your war stories when you are finally discharged and return to the homefolks. So help me, though you might be stationed 10,000 miles from home, some old service buddy will sooner or later turn up to prove you loose with the truth.

Your columnist speaks from experience. And it all took place in as roundabout way as you can imagine.

It happened this way. Your columnist served in Korea a few years back. That's a good 10,000 miles from Greenville so naturally, we didn't worry too much about being overly careful with details when we returned and talked with friends. No outright lies, you understand, but we just brightened our stories up a little bit.

Well things went along fine until just recently.

The other day we saw an old Greenville native who has gone on to bigger things. Eugene Aires was in town for a short while. He now lives in Charlotte and is a representative for a soap firm.

"You know," said Eugene, after we had exchanged pleasantries. "I saw Jimmy Ellis in Charlotte recently."

Jimmy Ellis, as most Reflector readers will remember, is a former member of this newspaper's staff who moved to Charlotte a couple of months ago to take another job.

But back to Eugene Aires. "Jimmy said he invited a new business acquaintance over for supper one night. In talking after the meal, Jimmy learned his new acquaintance had served in Korea."

The conversation went something like this according to Eugene's account of what Jimmy told him.

"I knew a fellow in Korea who was from Greenville," said Jimmy's friend.

"He was a tall, red headed fellow. If you'd call his name I'd know him."

"Alvin Taylor?" Jimmy asked.

We don't need to tell you that was correct. So there went all my glorious stories of service to my country.

We don't have any doubt whatsoever that the two compared notes.

Some old time farmers occasionally yearn for the "good old days" of 1919 when tobacco sold so phenomenally well.

That was the year that the Greenville market averaged $52.84 per hundred pounds. This might not sound like an extremely high average now but it was

Other Editors Saying Political Punching Bag

(Washington Daily News) Governor Hodges' seven-man Highway Commission has come in for many licks in the past several months. In fact, some people are already saying that it is a political punching bag, and that it is open season for all punchers.

The idea behind the seven man board is good, whether we agree with the actual performance or not. A statewide approach to our road problems ought to remove local politics from the policies of road building. But the very fact that local politicians have less to say today in regard to road building tends to put the Highway Commission on the defensive all the time.

And a commission with the state-wide importance of this one should not have to fight a defensive battle all the time.

A bill was introduced in the last legislature which would have re-instituted the old 14-member commission. It was defeated, but it came rather close to passing. And had not administration stalwarts made such a determined fight against going back to the 14-member commission, it would have passed handsily.

The main argument against the present seven-man board seems to be that its members are removed from the people. "There is no one to talk with" can be heard time and time again throughout the state. The farmer, the businessman, the local politician all like to have someone they can call by first name and feel friendly with and have that personal touch present when they sit down to talk over road problems.

It is unfortunate that the Highway Commission has become a sort of political punching bag.

Next Spring when the state-wide Democratic primary rolls around, it is our guess that the seven-member Highway Commission is going to be a factor in the primary. The die seems to be cast. People all too often forget the real reasons behind some move, and they think in terms of the political voice speaking out which tell them "something has been taken away from the people."

When we weigh accomplishments against failures, we find that the seven-member commission has not fared too badly. But people just prefer a measure of closeness which seems to be absent today.

It is unfortunate that the Highway Commission has become a sort of political punching bag.

By ELMER ROESSNER
A group of businesses known as air freight consolidators may get international airlines over the "jet hump," just as freight and express companies once pulled the railroads through a difficult period.

Air lines flying jets do not need any paying cargo at the moment. Demand for seats on jets at this peak of vacation travel is so great that, for some people at least, it is easier to get through the Pearly Gates than to an airport gate leading to a jet flight.

But air executives, even with only medium-range vision, know that the day is coming when the hundreds of jets now on order will give air lines more lift capacity than there are passengers. Then only air freight can keep the air lines prosperous.

But air freight is a fearsome operation for smaller shippers, just as sending a small shipment by rail was a couple of generations ago. Sending four hula hoops to Bangkok (as your reporter once did) can involve endless forms, declarations and other paper work and minimum charges cleverly designed to discourage the shipment of hula hoops to Bangkok, or any small parcels anywhere by air freight.

SOLUTION BY CONSOLIDATION
Even medium-size shippers with more than minimum shipments pay dearly for air freight. It is only when the "break point" is reached—100 pounds or more on trans-Atlantic shipments—that rates become reasonable.

For example, the air freight rate to Amsterdam for general cargo is $1.29 a pound but over 100 pounds it drops to $1.02. Rates for specific commodities range between 40 and 89 cents a pound —after the 100 pound break point.

At this point, freight consoli-

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
CROSS THE LINE

Do you drive or do you draw? Do you try to compel people to obey or do you persuade them to follow you?

Personnel directors and public relations officials are constantly dining into our ears the value of drawing as over against driving. The outstanding weakness of Communism is that it relies entirely upon driving. It has an ideology and it is going to beat into people's heads the principle which a small minority espouse. Christianity, on the other hand, is definitely committed to the program of persuasion. It tells us that God loves man, that He is on man's side, that He wants to draw man into a continuing personal relationship with Him.

It warns us to stay away from methods which utilize the big stick, the mailed fist, the loaded bludgeon. It tells us not only to love our fellow men but to love them when they are our enemies.

Have you ever stopped to think that perhaps much of your own frustration may be due to the fact that, contrary to nature and Christian faith, you are trying to make the philosophy of drive win out and you are neglecting the philosophy of persuasion? Try the philosophy of persuasion, of drawing, on some delicate situation in your own home. Lay aside thoughts of bitterness and revenge. Throw away the club. Get over on the side of the softly spoken word.

Try it. You will find it works.

Air Freight Awaiting Its Turn

freight agent for movie film, is adding a new procedure: joint loading in the United States.

There are minimum rates on domestic shipments as well as trans-Atlantic air freight. Under the Barnett plan, a domestic air freight agent can gain the advantages of bulk rates on both domestic and international shipments. Thus by reducing rates for small shippers, domestic consolidators may be able to attract enough additional air freight to keep the jets full when their airborne space exceeds the amount needed for available passengers.

POCKET ABACUS RULED NOT ADDING MACHINE
The Internal Revenue Service has ruled (in Rev. Rul. 59-263) that a pocket-size version of the abacus is not an "adding machine" under section 4191 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, and therefore is not subject to the excise tax.

By inference, pencils and ball-point pens are also exempt.

Tried A New Idea

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Would you have the courage in middle age to quit a $25,000 a year job to try out a new idea in a totally different field?

James J. Harris did. Now he's getting wealthy by charging people to help them give things away.

He has helped the business world give away 75 million free sample products valued at 10 million dollars.

"But you have to believe in an idea awfully hard to take the risks I did," said Harris.

Here's the odd tale behind his unusual success story:

In 1950 Harris, then 45, was one of the country's top photographing salesmen and apparently set for life.

"I was making better than $25,000 a year," he said, "but I wasn't happy. I was getting bored."

One day a chronically unemployed acquaintance dropped in looking for a handout. He was carrying a small packet of perfume.

"It's a sample," he explained to Harris. "I haven't been in a drug store for 10 years. I can get free samples of anything I want by sending a penny postcard."

"This intrigued me," Harris recalled. "So I sat down and sent postcards to 100 leading toiletry and cosmetic firms asking for samples. I got back 82 samples, including 12 cans of tooth powder."

"These companies were interested in sampling the public, but they were wasting their samples on indigents and children, people who rarely went on to become buying customers."

Then Harris got his big idea. Why not package a dozen or so noncompetitive sample products—everything from razor blades to headache pills — and have hotels distribute the kits to their guests as presents?

Harris quit his job, took his $12,000 savings, and set himself up in business, using a $25 a month rented desk as his office.

"At first, when I told manufacturers I expected them to pay me two or three cents for each of their samples I raved away, they thought I was crazy," he said. "But I proved that, in most cases, they already were paying more than this in postage alone."

"Originally, I had intended to give the sample packs to the hotels, but then I figured that if they got them for nothing they would be careless about distribution. I found that they were willing to pay up to 20 cents for the packs, so that's what I charged them."

The first 18 months Harris operated in the red, and had to borrow another $1,200.

"I was down to brushing my teeth with my own toothpaste samples before it started to click," he said. "I almost quit a dozen times."

Now Harris has his own packaging plant, a staff of 50 employees and distributes nearly a million packs a year to 4,000 hotels and 1,200 banks.

In addition to his cosmetic and toiletry packs, he is distributing sample food packs and sample first-aid kits.

The packs at retail would cost from $3 to $5.

"The possibilities are unlimited," said Harris, who feels he's just hitting his stride.

Asked if he weren't afraid rivals would cash in on his idea, Harris merely grinned.

"I've already had some 65 competitors," he said, "and virtually all have come and gone."

Exiles Who Cannot Recall Palestine Feel Closer Ties

By WILTON WYNN
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A Palestine Arab living in Beirut was only 7 when his family left their home in Jaffa in 1948. The boy barely can remember the orange groves and the stone house which the family still calls home but which now is held by Israel.

This boy belongs to a group of young refugees who call themselves the Federation of Palestinian Students. Almost all were young children when the left Palestine. They have grown up in Lebanon. But their attachment to Palestine is deeper even than that of their parents. They are ready to fight to take back their homeland.

A student of the Palestine problem who just toured refugee camps in the area reported: "The refugees who are most attached to Palestine are those who scarcely remember their homes. The young men who have grown up in exile are those most determined to regain Palestine."

The attitude of Palestinian youth shows that the knotty Palestine problem is not going to die with the oldsters among the refugees. United Nations officials here say that 20 per cent of the 900,000 who left their homes in 1948 since have died. But there has been no corresponding decline in the intensity of feeling. New refugees are being born and growing up to carry on.

Young Palestinians have been stirred lately by the so-called Hammarskjold Report. The U.N. secretary general in this report proposed sufficient economic aid to integrate the refugees into the economy of Arab states surrounding Palestine.

The Federation of Palestinian Students was among refugee organizations which met in Beirut to denounce the report. A young refugee explained: "We accept only one solution: our return home." The Hammarskjold Report, instead of promoting resettlement, has just about killed any hope of resettlement on a major scale. Now refugees will be doubly suspicious of any such scheme. Before the Hammarskjold Report, a certain amount of "subtle integration" had been taking place in Jordan, Lebanon and other areas. Refugees were getting jobs and going into businesses, but this was not formally called "resettlement."

The Arab League has summoned a foreign ministers conference in Casablanca Sept. 1 to study the Hammarskjold Report. Without doubt, the league will reject it. The foreign ministers will also have to map out strategy for the U.N. General Assembly meeting, when the report will be discussed.

New Jet Plane Ejection Seat Proves Worth

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Navy unveiled a new jet plane seat ejection system Tuesday. An unscheduled accident added a little extra success to the demonstration.

A plane was catapulted down a runway at the Naval Air Material Center. An arresting barrier was supposed to stop the plane. Instead, the plane tore through the barrier and nosed over into a grassy field—almost as if it had gone over the side of a carrier.

The 135-pound dummy pilot was ejected from his seat and hurled 250 feet into the air, parachuting safely to the ground less than nine seconds after the start of the test.

The new system is powered by a two-stage slow-burning rocket instead of the single cartridge explosive used in the present system, which can only lift a pilot 60 feet into the air.

$15 per hundred weight ahead of the preceding year and $22 higher than the year before that. The one good year was of little benefit to the farmers, however. Next year (1920) the average dropped to $20.92. The yearly averages hung in the $20 bracket for the next eight years. Then in 1930 the average dropped to $18.89 and finally in 1931 a dismal average of $9.31 was recorded.

Nowadays a season average of $50 per hundred weight or above are far from unusual but in 1919 the prices paid for the golden weed were absolutely unheard of.

DEBBIE PENN SAYS:

"THE BEST CAKE MAKER USES QUAKER"

This 'Second Banana' Is Faring Well On His Own

By HUGH MULLIGAN
NEW YORK (AP)—What happens to the "second banana" when they split up the bunch?

Howie Morris, "the little guy" who used to play the mad German scientist, the African explorer, the hapless husband and hundreds of other comedy parts on the old Sid Caesar Show, has been doing all right on his own.

So has Carl Reiner, "the big guy" who used to play the Japanese war lord, the Italian bicycle thief, the opera basso and hundreds of other comic creations on the same show.

The big guy and the little guy, probably the most famous pair of second bananas in the business, will be reunited this fall on NBC's Dinah Shore Chevy Show.

Reiner will write all 12 of the shows and appear in four. Morris, a top banana now who still prefers situation comedy, will appear with him doing a solo and taking part in a variety of zany skits.

"It's not surprising that Carl has turned out to be a top television writer," says the little guy in admiration of his former partner. "The Sid Caesar Show was undoubtedly the most creative comedy program in the history of television.

"We all got together at the script conferences and helped write the material, much of which came from our own experiences. It was a tremendously rewarding show for the actor from almost any viewpoint. So many actors tend to get script-bound and never get the chance to think up original ideas."

Although he has frequently written his own material, Morris has no ambitions to join Reiner in the ranks of TV writers. "I'm an actor, first, last and always," he says. "The best thing that's happened to me since leaving the Caesar show was to become a regular on Pantomime Quiz. People began recognizing me on the street. I won identification as a TV actor outside of the comedy character parts, and that's very important."

As an actor, and a very good one, Morris has appeared with Maurice Evans in "Hamlet" and "Twelfth Night," done straight dramatic parts for the Kraft Theater, Danger and other drama shows, and has had considerable background experience in radio and summer stock.

Patches of snow remain on 13,800-ft. Wheeler Peak in sunny New Mexico throughout the year.

UNWELCOME TAVERN

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Welcome Tavern isn't welcome. Four west Philadelphia churches allege in a court suit that the taproom is so close to the churches as to be "highly detrimental to the moral and spiritual welfare of the community." They seek an order closing the tavern.

Police say the two were speeding together July 2, he in his sedan, she in a foreign sports car. Both were convicted of driving 61 miles an hour in a 40-mile zone.

Today, the State Motor Vehicle Division announced that it had revoked their licenses for 30 days.

U. S. Offers To Sell Soviets Array Of Goods Shown At Moscow Exhibit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States announced today it is willing to sell the Soviets a vast array of products displayed at the American exhibition in Moscow. The items range from a house to a screwdriver.

Secretary of Commerce Frederick H. Mueller described the offer as a good will gesture. Such a sale presumably also would be good business for Uncle Sam. It would save him the cost of shipping the goods back to the United States.

There was no immediate word whether the Soviets were approached in advance about the proposal, or whether they would be interested.

The offer covers about 1,800 American-made items, including the $200,000 closed circuit color TV unit before which Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Premier Nikita Khrushchev last month held their impromptu debate on the cold war. Also on the list is the medium-price prefabricated house which the Soviets have claimed is much better than most Americans can afford.

Mueller announced the proposal in a special statement which said: "This trade offer is both a sincere gesture of good will to the Soviet people and a definite opportunity for the Soviet Union and the United States to do business."

The phrasing of the announcement indicated that some American products displayed at the fair will not be made available to the Soviets. However, Commerce Department aides declined to clarify this point.

About 1,000 items covered by the offer normally would require U.S. export licenses before they could be sold to the Soviets.

Mueller said these goods, in this case, can be sold without license if American manufacturers and the Soviet government can make the necessary arrangements. This seemed to indicate the U.S. government would have no direct role in any sales negotiation.

Items offered include all equipment in a model kitchen display, home furnishings, hand and portable tools, radios, a complete home workshop, hi fi equipment, pleasure boats, sporting goods, office equipment, farm machinery, automobiles of all kinds, photographic equipment, motion pictures, air conditioners and fashionable American clothing.

Togetherness Is Carried Too Far

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — Like other young married couples, Peter and Betty Ann Blauvelt do things together.

Police say the two were speeding together July 2, he in his sedan, she in a foreign sports car. Both were convicted of driving 61 miles an hour in a 40-mile zone.

Today, the State Motor Vehicle Division announced that it had revoked their licenses for 30 days.

Sports Scope

by Johnny Hudson

Reflector Sports Editor

Coach Jack Boone was one of the few members of the East Carolina College Athletic Department still hanging around this morning as most of the faculty group were enjoying a last week of vacation time prior to the opening of another school year next week.

Boone was at his office this morning, making last minute adjustments in his opening week schedules and trying to iron out several items that he could eliminate worry over once the season got underway.

The young East Carolina coach stated this morning that he was expecting about 47 boys to show up this weekend. Letters have been sent out and according to Boone, notice of any new drop-outs had not been received.

Sunday will open the 1959 season for the Pirates as they will show up in full force. The day will consist of getting the boys their designated rooms for the coming year, a physical examination, and a picnic for the squad and their families.

Monday it will be a trip to the practice field at 10:00 and from then on it will be a rough road for the local gridirers as they start preparing for their opener with Presbyterian College.

Only varsity and junior college transfers will be in for the opening practice but the freshmen will open their drills September 7th.

New coaches to arrive Thursday Boone will only have one week to conduct two-a-day drills as school starts the following week but he plans to make the most of it.

New coaches, George Tucker and Gary Mattocks, were expected to arrive on campus Thursday and join the coaching brigade of Boone, Frank Madigan, and Bill McDonald.

Mattocks, prep coach at Hamlet last fall, will work mainly with the freshmen while Tucker, former Wingate Junior College coach and an assistant at Davidson last fall, will work with the varsity line. Both are ECC graduates and were gridiron stars for the Pirates.

On the good side of the picture, Boone stated this morning that he had heard from Mickey Blair, former Pirate halfback, and the New York native was planning to return to school this fall.

An outstanding prep star, Blair could be a valuable returnee to the Bucs backfield corps.

Goodwin Draws Talk In Women's Tourney

By WHITNEY SHOEMAKER

WASHINGTON (AP) — When they say "watch out for Joanne" at the U. S. Women's Amateur Golf Championship, you can no longer tell whether they mean the big one with the "A" or the little one with the "a".

Earlier in the week it would have been a cinch the golfing clan was referring in awe to JoAnne Gunderson, the husky strawberry blonde from Kirkland, Wash. After all, the 20-year-old Miss Gunderson won the National Women's title in 1947 and she came here from victory in the Western Amateur and a noteworthy tie for second against the pros in the Western Open.

But now Joanne Goodwin is the talk around Congressional Country Club. This Joanne, a slight 23-year-old from Haverhill, Mass., has turned as much heat as the broil summer sun on Congressional's 6-457-yard, par 74 tournament course, for 28 holes in winning her first two matches, Miss Goodwin has burned three strokes

Canada Seeks Big Trophy

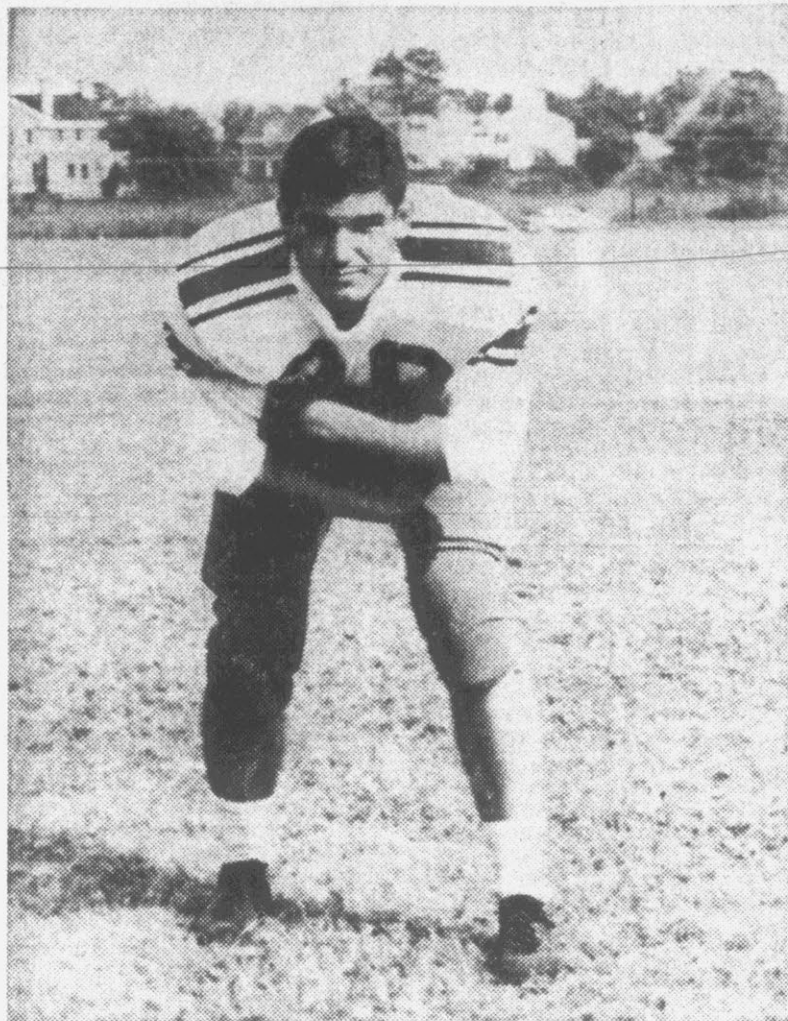

DETROIT (AP)—Canada was as close today to snatching the Harnsworth trophy from the United States as any nation has been since Gar Wood brought it to these shores 39 years ago.

Canada's Miss Supertest III, with more engine stamina than the United States' defending Mavrick, won the first of the best-of-three 45-mile races Tuesday on the Detroit River.

A victory today or Tuesday would give the trophy, symbol of international powerboat racing supremacy, to Canada for the first time.

England has won the trophy five times, France once, the United States 16 times.

QUAKE ON COAST SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — A sharp earthquake was recorded in San Diego at 10:33 Tuesday night. No damage was reported.

HUSKY LINEBUSTER . . . Robin Wilfong, Rose High fullback, could be a valuable man for Coach Bud Phillips this fall. The husky senior shown signs of stardom last fall and should come into his own this year.

Dempsey Arranges For Return Title Fight

NEW YORK (AP) — "My task has been fulfilled. I came into the picture for the sake of boxing. Now they can get on with the details."

This was Jack Dempsey talking. The old Manassa Mauler moved into the feud-ridden Rosensohn Enterprises, flew to Sweden and in just three days had heavy-weight champion Ingemar Johansson's signature on a return-bout contract with Floyd Patterson.

Dempsey and his party were due back here today. "We're very satisfied, all of us," continued Dempsey. "There was a nice atmosphere in Goteborg (Johansson's home town). Ingemar had made a great contribution to boxing. There was a misunderstanding and it's settled now."

Dempsey, who was named promotional director of Rosensohn

Enterprises a week ago, may have a heavy hand in the promotion of the fight.

"We haven't decided on the site or date yet," said Dempsey. "In fact, we haven't ruled out New York. A lot depends on the investigation of the first fight."

The promoter's license of the group has been suspended in New York because of the internal bickering and an article former President Bill Rosensohn wrote in a national magazine.

"There are several other possibilities," continued Dempsey, "such as Los Angeles, Dallas, Houston, Chicago and Philadelphia. They all have good facilities and we'll take it where we can get the best guarantee."

He added that a Philadelphia group had guaranteed $1,000,000 for a September bout and that the offer might stand in 1960.

Phillips' Squad Studies Attack

Coach Bud Phillips sent his varsity squad through a spirited hour of dummy scrimmage last night and then concluded the practice session with a 15 minute full scale scrimmage.

The squad spent most of their night practice sessions going over various offensive patterns. Phillips had his club divided into two units with both alternating at running plays.

The short scrimmage saw both teams pick up short yardage through the center of the line but there were no long gains. Erskine Duff quarterbacked the first unit and Billy Neal James directed the second unit.

Boyer Having Best Season

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Ken Boyer, an old pro at 28, the St. Louis Cardinals' first team captain since Red Schoendienst and the club's only home run threat—is one man you can't blame for his team's seventh place position.

"Ken is one of the top five players in the National League," said Manager Solly Hemus. "He is the quiet type of leader and the other players look to him to take charge."

"That's why I decided to name him captain." In his last 24 games, Boyer was held hitless in only one game. He batted an even .400 over that stretch and his 38 hits went for 57 bases, giving him a .600 slugging percentage.

Ken's batting average is .318, best of his five seasons in the majors. He leads the Cards with 23 homers and 75 rbis.

Raleigh Cops Pennant With 10-2 Victory

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Raleigh's Capitals nailed down the pennant in the Carolina League Tuesday night by defeating Burlington 10-2 in the second game of a doubleheader at Graham.

The Caps dropped a 7-2 decision to Burlington in the abbreviated opener, but came back to grab the second game behind the six-hit pitching of Bill Spanswick. It was his 15th victory against four losses.

First baseman Hal Holland hit two home runs for Raleigh in its victory. In winning the opener, Burlington did all its scoring in the first two innings.

Second place Wilson broke even in a doubleheader with Greensboro at Wilson. The Tobs won the first game 2-0 on the four-hit pitching of Bobby Veale, but lost the nightcap 8-7. Veale struck out 10 in winning his 12th game against five defeats.

The Durham Bulls clinched third place by capturing a free-hitting contest from Winston-Salem 7-5 at Durham. The Bulls spotted Winston-Salem two runs in the first two innings but rallied for four runs in the third to go out front to stay.

Tonight's schedule: Durham at Raleigh, Burlington at Greensboro and Wilson at Winston-Salem.

Doug Moe May Return To UNC

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Doug Moe, promising basketball player dropped by the University of North Carolina last spring because of excessive class cuts, says he plans to apply for readmission.

A university spokesman said Moe qualified for readmission, but it is indefinite whether he will be eligible to play basketball even if admitted. His basketball status depends on whether he is approved by the readmission board and on what terms.

Moe made two B's in the second summer school session. The spokesman said, "On the basis of his record in the summer terms, he is in position to make formal application for readmission to the university."

Indians Blast Yankees To Remain Two Behind

By ED WILKS

The Chicago Press Sports Writer frantically to keep the American League lead, did it again Tuesday night.

They were down 4-2 with one out in the ninth and hitless since the fourth inning while second-place Cleveland's seventh straight victory blazed on the scoreboard.

Then whoops! Four consecutive singles gave 'em two runs and a tie in the ninth, and with two out in the 10th, a walk and Billy Goodman's double beat Boston 5-4, retaining Chicago's two-game edge over the Indians.

It was the White Sox' 30th victory in 38 one-run decisions, their 11th in 13 extra-inning games and the 20th game they've won in the final inning.

The Indians matched their longest winning streak of the season by whipping New York 6-3 as Rocky Colavito drove in four runs with two homers.

Kansas City beat Baltimore 6-0 and Washington defeated Detroit 3-1.

In the National League, San Francisco stayed 3 1/2 games ahead, beating Pittsburgh 12-5 as Johnny Antonelli became the majors' top winner with 18. Second-place Los Angeles beat Philadelphia 1-2. Third-place Milwaukee tied St. Louis in the ninth, then scored twice in the 10th for a 3-1 decision. The Chicago Cubs rapped Cincinnati 6-8.

The White Sox, blowing a 2-1 lead when Frank Malzone tagged starter Dick Donovan for a two-run homer in the fourth, had only four hits off Boston's Frank Sullivan until the ninth. They chased the big right-hander when Al Smith got a bad-hop hit and Norm Cash, whose third homer had tied it all in the second, singled.

Mike Fornieles (3-3) came on for the Red Sox and gave up RBI singles by Jim Rivera and pinch hitter Johnny Romano that tied it. Turk Lown, following reliever Gerry Staley, collected a 9-2 record for the Sox with a hitless 10th.

The Indians, out-hit 12-6, put it away against Whitey Ford (13-7) with four runs in the first on Vic Power's lead-off 10th homer, two walks and Colavito's tie-breaking three-run shot. Rocky unloaded a solo home run in the fifth—tying Washington's Harman Killebrew and Ernie Banks of the Chicago Cubs for the major league lead with 27. That made it a breeze for Cal McLish (16-6).

Two runs in the seventh, with Dick Williams' single scoring the clincher, brought the A's from behind against the Orioles, who blew a 4-0 lead. Billy Loes (4-2) lost it and John Tsouris (3-2) was the winner.

Killebrew's double and Ken Aspromonte's single gave the Senators a 2-0 lead in the fourth against Loser Paul Foytack (12-11). Pete Ramos (12-13) won it.

Football Is Based On Heart And Soul

HEART AND SOUL OF FOOTBALL

By COACH JACK BOONE

Usually, we talk about the teaching of skills, strategy and techniques in football and say very little about heart and soul of football. When we work out a potential high school football player, we can determine everything except how big a heart he has for the game. So many fine gentlemen have developed a life interest in football, some have stayed in the coaching profession while others have become ardent fans through the years. This phase lies in the heart and soul of the game.

This is a game that has within it potential the offering of the richest learning experiences still existing in our educational programs. It is a form of most dynamic education in which the masses see, think and feel.

The least that a player should get from participation in the most that the game has to offer, mainly the habits of life's most valuable lessons in preparation for living in a democracy.

Stout hearts and strong legs are needed but the mind is the most important in the success of modern day football. Here is one of the few places left in American life that demands the very best a boy has within him. Too many boys are seeking a soft way of life. Football does not teach any short cuts. On game night, the boy will have to make a 100 on the high test or he loses. One mistake will cost you a ball game. Thus the saying, "I have paid the price in preparation." This attitude will permit the proper "state of mind."

The mental and emotional attitudes represent the most important factor in football. We conclude that blocking and tackling is 80% of football. If this is true 80% of football is "state of mind." An attitude of "I can and I will" must be dominant.

CHAPTER 19
JONAS DALMAR paused to knock on the door of room Number Seven in the Prairie House in Garrison.

He entered to a mumbled summons. Charley Tunison was in bed, propped against some pillows. A broad white bandage swathed his face from under lip to hair-line. A gap was cut in the lower edge of this for him to breathe through, and from two other slits his eyes glinted between puffed, bruise-blackened lids.

Dalmar paused beside the bed. "Sorry about this, Charley," he said smoothly.

Tunison's answer, from a combination of physical weakness and a burning inner rage, was thick and husky.

"So you say!"
"I mean it," Dalmar insisted. "I gave my son, Frank, hell. I guess he was pretty drunk."

"As a pig" ground out Tunison. "But that's no excuse. Drunk or sober, nobody treats me so without paying for it some way."

"A darned unfortunate thing," Dalmar soothed. "I regret it and came to apologize for Frank, which I've done. Now I'd like to talk a little business. You up to it?"

Silent a moment, Tunison presently nodded. "Keep your voice down. These walls are thin. What is this business?"

Dalmar pulled a chair up beside the bed. He produced a cigar, took the tip off it with characteristic twisting, hard snap of his teeth, then lit up, making little smacking sounds with his lips while he puffed. He took the cigar from his mouth, looked at the glowing tip of it.

"I hear, he said slowly. "There's some kind of affidavit that Doc Jerome swore to concerning the death of Packy Lane, the Big Five rider. That right?"

The glint in Tunison's eyes deepened. "There is such a document."

"What's it say?"
"It says that Packy Lane's death was not accidental. It says he'd been shot through the head and was already dead before any flame ever touched him. In short, it proves he'd been murdered, and the fire set afterwards in an effort to cover up the crime."

"That's a lot to swear to. Who put Jerome up to it?"

"His own idea entirely. Yet the more I think of it, the more I think it was a damn good one."

"How do you figure?"
"Dalmar's tone tightened a little. "Simple enough," Tunison said. "For one thing, it hinks the ante. Doubles it, in fact."

Jonas Dalmar's lips pulled taut about his cigar. "Come again?"

"That's right. The ante is doubled. It was five hundred. Now it's a thousand."

Jonas Dalmar hunched forward in his chair, all semblance of amiability leaving him.

"A thousand! What are you talking about? Our agreement was—"

"I know what it was," Tunison cut in. "I know exactly what it was. Because of political favors I've done Sheriff Chris Hatfield in the past, I told you I could keep his office looking the other way while you moved in on Big Five and Running M range up in the Saddlebacks. This, providing I'll emphasize that—providing you didn't get too rough about it. That is what I told you I could and would do—for a fee. Five hundred dollars."

Tunison paused, stirring under his blankets.

"That was it," he went on. "That was the agreement. So far, I've seen no part of the five hundred. What else has happened? There's Neils Madison, a prominent and popular cattle man, gulched and left for dead. That's rough stuff. Dalmar—that's very rough stuff!"

"It means a much tougher shore ahead of me, keeping Hatfield's office quiet. So the fee goes up another five hundred dollars. And let's not quibble about it too much, or it could go higher!"

For some little time Jonas Dalmar neither spoke nor moved. But his face pulled thinner and whinner until it seemed almost as if the bones would break through the skin. When he finally stirred, his words were as taut and harsh as his features. "You're jumping at a hell of a lot of conclusions. What do I know about Lane and Madison being shot? What makes you figure me responsible?"

"If you're not," Tunison shot back, with his quick, lawyer's perception, "why all the interest in Doc Jerome's affidavit? Would you be worried over what could happen should it reach Sheriff Hatfield's office in Oakdale?"

"I still say it doesn't tie me in on a thing," Dalmar droned. "Perhaps not directly," Tunison agreed. "But here's what it could do. It could bring in a deputy from Hatfield's office to look and listen. And the day that happens, any chance you ever had of taking over in the Saddlebacks, goes up the flume. You better quit bluffing, Dalmar—because I'm not bluffing."

"Bluffing—be damned!" Dalmar rapped. "Don't ever think I am, Tunison. We made a deal. Now you're trying to crawfish. Damn a man whose word is no good!"

"What word?" mocked Tunison. "Yours, maybe? You speak of a deal. Five hundred dollars a man's word!"

"You were to pay me. Where is your word to me? Where is any part of it? And you prate about

"Let me tell you something, friend," Tunison continued. "Never believe me fool enough to tie in with an old razorback like you without making sure of a reserve shot or two on the locker. That affidavit is one of such. Now I'm tired of talk. I yearn to see the color of your money. A thousand dollars before the next week is out, or Doc Jerome's affidavit goes to Chris Hatfield. That's it!"

Jonas Dalmar got to his feet. He fixed Tunison with a hard stare.

"It's just too bad Frank didn't smash in your skull," he said wickedly. "I've a notion to finish the job—now!"

Again Charley Tunison shifted under his blankets. The move brought his right hand into view. Gripped in it was a nickel plated, snub-nosed Bulldog revolver of heavy caliber. The gaping muzzle peered at Jonas Dalmar's a gaunt midriff.

"Now there's a notion best got rid of," the lawyer said evenly. "This—" he waved the gun slightly, "has been a long-time bedfellow of mine. You lay a hand on me and I'll shoot your backbone in half. I've taken my last manhandling from any Dalmar. Let's not play at make-believe.

"Personally," he continued, "I don't care a thin damn for you no more than you do for me. Yet we can be useful to each other, so long as we consider facts and stick to them. Now I got some sleep to catch up. I had little enough of it last night, thanks to your drunken son. A final reminder. A thousand, in cash, before the week's out!"

Jonas Dalmar kicked his chair aside in a skidding clatter, then wheeled to the door. Here he paused and looked back.

"And here's a reminder for you, Tunison. No man ever double-crossed me and made it stick. You better not try. While you're sleeping, chew on that!"

He stepped through into the hall, shutting the door with a great echoing slam.

Jonas Dalmar has to take a verbal lashing: "Shouldn't ever try to use the whip on me, Jonas. You do, old as we both are, I'll knock your teeth in!" continue the story tomorrow.

Herter Suggests UN May Step In

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Christian A. Herter has reportedly told several members of Congress that "the United Nations may take some part in what is going on in Laos before too long."

The report came from Sen. J. William Fulbright (D-Ark) Monday after Herter briefed five members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and five members of the House Foreign Affairs Committee at a private session in the State Department.

In the 75-minute session, Herter told the congressmen that the situation in Laos is a "very dangerous one" and he is "deeply concerned about it," Fulbright said. But, Fulbright continued, Herter reported that the department has no received enough information to see clearly what is going on in the tiny Southeast Asian kingdom. Meanwhile, the growing concern here over Laos was reflected throughout the government. Officials of several agencies attended a briefing on the situation by the Department of Defense.

Army To Release GI Who Refused Take Polio Shots

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — The Army has handed an undesirable discharge to Pvt. James B. Merritt, who refused to take polio shots because of religious beliefs. Merritt, 23, Maynardville, Tenn., accepted the discharge Aug. 4 after waiving an appearance before an Army board named to investigate his conduct, a spokesman at Brooke Medical Center here said.

The Department of the Army ruled that Merritt need not take the shots after he said his church, the Church of God of the Union Assembly Inc., does not believe in medicine.

U.S. Jets Move To German Base

ETAIN, France (AP)—A group of U.S. Super Sabre Jets left the Etain base today for a new home in Germany. The planes were among 200 being moved from French bases to Britain and West Germany because President Charles de Gaulle has refused to permit stockpiling of U.S. atomic weapons on French soil. U.S. bases at Chaumont and Toulo also will be cleared.

Disappointing To Willing Helpers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A truck driver had plenty of help when he stopped his burning rig, loaded with 36,000 whisky bottles on the Hollywood Freeway.

But motorists who jumped from their cars to help put out the flames were disappointed Monday. The bottles, en route to a bottling works, were empty. Firemen arrived and quickly put out the fire.

British View Ike's Trip As Great Peace Effort

By ARTHUR GAVSHON
 LONDON (AP) — The British view President Eisenhower's trip to Europe as the start of one of the greatest peace initiatives undertaken by any American president.

Leaders of Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's government view the President's meetings with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev as a chance for Eisenhower to lay the basis for a cold war truce, a live and let live arrangement with the Soviet Union in the H-bomb age.

"This is a tremendous event (and) may prove the beginning of a new era in the history of mankind," declared one widely read newspaper. "His object is nothing less than to save mankind."

"Ike's mission reminds me of a crusade," one veteran British diplomat said. "It is the sort of thing any British prime minister would give his all to do yet knows he cannot because modern Britain is not strong enough."

But Macmillan is expected to tell Eisenhower how he thinks Khrushchev can best be handled, talking on the basis of his own experience in Moscow six months ago. And Eisenhower will tell what Vice President Richard M. Nixon concluded after his visit to the Soviet capital.

The two then will try to work out a strategy which Eisenhower can use in his own encounters with the quick-witted Russian.

A world-ranging survey of the mounting challenge of Soviet communism is slated by the two Western leaders.

The West's ability to meet the Communist challenge depends largely on the state of Allied unity in the next few years. For that reason — although American and British spokesmen would never admit it publicly — Eisenhower and Macmillan will devote much time to two of their colleagues whose personalities and policies have aroused controversy among the Allies. They are French President Charles de Gaulle and West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

De Gaulle's ambition to make France a powerful nuclear nation will come out in their talk about the state of the North Atlantic Alliance and De Gaulle's demands that the West back France's Algerian campaign.

Both Macmillan and Eisenhower want a strong France. Probably they will agree to meet De Gaulle's demands as far as they can. But they do not want to implicate themselves in Algeria or seem to surrender to the French President's threats.

Relations with Adenauer involve the long-term problem of an overall German settlement.

Eisenhower and Macmillan know relations with the Soviet Union never will be stable until Germany's future as a united or divided country is agreed on. They also know Adenauer will resist such concessions to the Soviet Union as a ban on West Germany's use of American nuclear weapons. And they are determined to preserve Germany's military links with NATO after Adenauer quits public life — without killing all chance of agreement with the Soviet Union.

Here is a run-down on other problems facing Eisenhower and Macmillan:

1. An East-West summit conference. The Prime Minister still considers such a meeting worth the effort. It would be held soon on Berlin and the future of Germany. But he does not intend trying to pin the President down to any date, as he tried to do earlier this year.
2. Berlin and German reunification. The two hope to get the Soviet Union to respect existing Allied rights in the city.
3. Red China's role in the Far East. Special attention will be paid to Peking's relations with Moscow. The dangerous situation in Laos probably will be the starting point for discussion of Peking's bid for power and influence throughout Asia. Border troubles that seem to be developing between Red China and India and the powderkeg potential of the Quemoy and Matsu islands also are expected to be taken up.
4. Disarmament. With new East-West negotiations in the offing, the President and the Prime Minister will consider a new approach toward getting small pilot schemes started — in arms control and inspection on both sides of the Iron Curtain.
5. Nuclear weapon tests. They will consider how best to provide a new impetus for the slow-moving Geneva negotiations on a test ban. Macmillan intends to press Eisenhower not to resume American nuclear tests after the one-year moratorium expires in October.
6. The Soviet economic challenge. The two will study how the spread of Red influence can be blocked in the Middle East and Africa. Plans for expanding aid in underdeveloped areas will be considered, and the prospect of two joint projects may be discussed.

SETS LIQUOR DATE
 OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (AP) — Gov. J. Howard Edmondson signed a proclamation Tuesday setting Sept. 1 as the date for starting legal sales of liquor. The Legislature repealed the state's prohibition law earlier this year.

PLANS TO WED
 SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Alan Ladd Jr., 21-year-old son of the movie actor, plans to marry his University of Southern California campus sweetheart, Patricia Ann Beazley, 23, next Sunday. They obtained a marriage license Tuesday.

Go To Court To Enforce Prices
 CHARLOTTE (AP) — Pure Oil Co. and Gulf Oil Corp. have gone to court to enforce fair trade prices recently established for gasoline sold by their dealers.

Esso Standard Oil Co. earlier resorted to court action.

Pure Oil obtained a temporary injunction Monday against Wayne Long, operator of a Charlotte service station. A hearing is scheduled Sept. 11 on whether the injunction should be made permanent.

Gulf is seeking a similar injunction against W. B. Warner, operator of a Troy service station. The Gulf complaint, filed in Superior Court last week, has not been heard yet.

Both Gulf and Pure complain that fair trade prices they established under the North Carolina Fair Trade Act of 1937 have been violated by the two dealers.

Esso took similar action against a Randleman dealer the company said was selling gasoline at less than prices set by the company.

Supersonic Jet Tied Up Traffic
 TORONTO, Ont. (AP) — The U.S. Air Force's supersonic starfighter created a traffic jam in its Canadian debut — on the ground.

The sleek snub-nosed jet was flown from Dayton, Ohio, for display at the Canadian National Exhibition. Then the trouble began.

To escape traffic, the plane was to be towed long before dawn Tuesday from Malton Airport to the fairgrounds, a 20-mile run.

First the police escort arrived late. Then it was discovered the million-dollar jet was too big to get through the airport gate.

A major ordered the wing tanks removed and sent a sergeant for a tool kit. He returned with a locked kit but without the key. A policeman came to the aid of the military, producing an ax to break open the box.

The delayed start sent the jet into heavy traffic and a real jam developed. Hundreds of motorists tagged behind the supersonic slowpoke. Then an overturned truck blocked the highway, forcing the caravan to detour.

The pride of the Air Force finally made it to the exhibition — late but undamaged.

The Canadian air force also is adopting the Starfighter for use as a swift interceptor of enemy planes and missiles.

Laos Says Communist Rebel Threat Growing

By MAX HARRELSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

The government of Laos says the threat from Communist rebels is growing steadily more serious but it has made no move to ask the aid of either the United Nations or the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

The SEATO pact was signed in 1954 just six weeks after the Geneva armistice ending the Indochina War. And the eight SEATO signers included a special protocol bringing Laos, Cambodia and South Viet Nam under the wing of the anti-Communist alliance.

In the event of any armed attack or threat which might endanger peace, the eight SEATO members are obligated to consult immediately on measures to be taken. But they also are bound not to intervene on the territory of the attacked country without an invitation of the government concerned.

So far there has been no such invitation from Laos. Nor have any SEATO countries suggested such an invitation might be in order. Members of the alliance are France, the former ruler of Indochina; the United States, Britain, Australia, New Zealand, Pakistan, Thailand and the Philippines.

The SEATO pact does not offer the rigid guarantees of action provided by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. It calls only for consultations on any use of force or threat of force. This, however, would not prevent the alliance from acting if its members agree that intervention is necessary.

The United Nations has been mentioned frequently since fighting in Laos resumed. A representative of the Laotian government has consulted with Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold and with some U.S. delegations on the possibility of having observers sent to Laos. But no request has been made for action by the Security Council or the General Assembly.

Secretary of State Christian A. Herter is reported to have expressed the belief in private conversations recently that U.N. observers should be sent to Laos as soon as possible. Many diplomats believe this may happen, at least as a first step.

Will Open Piney Grove Camp Meeting Aug. 27

CHOCOWINITY — The Piney Grove Camp Meeting, for more than 50 years a religious assembly held on camp grounds between this community and Grimesland, just off U.S. Highway 264, will open Thursday evening, August 27, to continue through Sunday, September 6.

The Rev. W. Eddie Morris of Goldsboro, superintendent of the North Carolina Conference of the Pentecostal Holiness Church, will be manager and director of the daily services. Lonnie A. McRoy of Chocowinity is in charge of local arrangements.

The Rev. Walter J. Nash of Franklin Springs, Ga. and the Rev. G. Dewey Yeatts of Dry Fork, Va. are the invited ministers, who will preach in the 10-day annual series of meetings. The Rev. Mr. Nash, superintendent of the Georgia conference of the P. H. Church, has preached at the Piney Grove camp meeting in former years and is widely known throughout his denomination as a successful pastor-evangelist.

For the Rev. Mr. Yeatts, this will be his first visit to the Piney Grove camp meeting.

Director of music in this series will be the Rev. Roy O. Williams of Greenville, and Mrs. W. J. Nash of Franklin Springs, Ga. will be pianist.

The concert class of the Falcon Childrens Home will present a special program on Sunday, August 30.

The Piney Grove camp meeting was founded by the Rev. A. H. Butler, a veteran minister of the denomination who now resides in Falcon, N.C. The Rev. Mr. Butler, now 84 years of age, has been in the ministry for near 65 years. Although retired from an active pastorate, he still preaches on occasion and has a wide acquaintance throughout this area.

The Hodges Chapel church is adjacent to the camp meeting tabernacles. It is one of the active churches in the North Carolina conference and is served by a full-time pastor, the Rev. Wiley D. Vick, who also is assisting in camp meeting plans.

Asheville Votes Extend Limits Arrest Woman On Liquor Count

ASHEVILLE (AP) — Asheville's population will jump to about 70,000 on Jan. 1 when the 15,000 residents of an eight-square-mile perimeter area are taken into the city.

Annexation of the area was approved by voters Tuesday. The tally was 6,233 for annexation and 3,778 against.

The vote in 24 city precincts was 5,969 for annexation and 1,012 against. The vote in six perimeter precincts to be annexed was 264 in favor of annexation and 2,766 against.

The annexation will increase the city's present land area from 14.74 square miles to about 22.74. The city's present population is 55,000.

Asheville remains the state's sixth largest city. Charlotte, of course, is largest, and it too will get larger Jan. 1. The Charlotte population is expected to exceed 200,000 when a 30-square-mile perimeter area joins the city.

Winston-Salem at 114,000 is the second largest city. Raleigh, Durham and Greensboro also remain ahead of Asheville.

Edwina Smith, 30-year-old Negro of 1108 Clark St., was arrested by ABC officer H. B. Lilley on Railroad St. yesterday, and charged with possession of non-tax-paid whiskey for the purpose of sale.

Lilley found a jar of illegal spirits in a paper sack filled with collards which a little girl allegedly was carrying for the woman.

ABC officers, assisted by Greenville Police yesterday, arrested Joe T. May, 41-year-old Negro of 206 Riverside Drive, on multiple charges stemming from a search of his place of business, where officers found six gallons of illegal spirits in the bathroom of the building.

According to ABC Chief J. M. Ward, May was charged with illegal possession of non-tax-paid whiskey for the purpose of sale, resisting arrest and assault on an officer following the discovery of the non-taxed booze.

May allegedly resisted arrest and assaulted ABC officer Lilley when he placed him under arrest.

Taking part in the raid were Ward, Lilley, and Walter Taylor of the ABC office and R. B. Elks and J. H. of Robersonville, four Greenville Police Department.

McDonald Returns To Big Steel Negotiation Table

NEW YORK (AP) — David J. McDonald, president of the Steelworkers Union, returned to steel strike negotiations today. He had walked out almost three weeks ago, calling them a sham.

The strike of a half-million steelworkers now is in its 43rd day. No sign of settlement was in sight.

McDonald declared himself Tuesday as opposed to any use of the Taft-Hartley Act to force the steelworkers back to their jobs.

President Eisenhower at his conference Tuesday repeated his contention that both sides must solve the problem by collective bargaining, and R. Conrad Cooper, chief industry negotiator, maintained that collective bargaining, not government intervention, is the best way to settle the strike.

The Taft-Hartley Act gives the President the power to order strikers back to work for 80 days, while a fact-finding commission investigates the issues.

As the strike entered its seventh week, there was no settlement in sight.

McDonald walked out of the steel negotiations almost three weeks ago, on the ground that they were getting nowhere. He said he is returning at the request of the federal government.

McDonald would not comment on a report that the union would set a deadline for progress in the talks, and that if no progress was made by that time it would break off negotiations altogether.

He did say, however, that he expected to find no more basis for settlement now than when he quit Aug. 7.

The union reportedly has been seeking a 15-cent hourly package increase for each year of a new contract. McDonald said the 15-cent figure was fairly accurate for the last hours before the strike began, but now is "misleading and erroneous."

Now, he said, the union is "starting all over again."

He didn't give any idea what the union demand would be, but he said previous proposals have been taken off the bargaining table and the union will now be guided by the union Wage Policy Committee's goals formulated last spring.
