Ike Interrupts Diplomatic Mission To Call On Queen

BALMORAL, Scotland (AP) — President Eisenhower broke into his diplomatic mission to Western Europe today with a social visit to Britain's royal family at Balmoral Castle. Queen Elizabeth II made a completely unexpected appearance to the gates to welcome him.

"Well, well, I'm delighted to see you," said the Queen, slim and elegant though she is expecting her third child early next year. Eisenhower bowed and said: "Thank you ma'am. It's wonderful to be here."

It was a friendly and informal beginning for Eisenhower's overnight visit.

Surprisingly, the Queen not only came out to see Eisenhower but did it on television.

The President had driven 50 miles with Prince Philip in a car from the airport at Dyce to cheer of crowds along the way.

The Queen — who danced until the early hours this morning at a castle ball for her servants — presented the President to Princess Margaret.

The Queen wore a powder blue suit with shirt jacket. Her skirt snugly hugged her hips.

The Queen — whose baby is expected in late January or February — certainly showed no physical signs of it. With Eisenhower, she inspected the royal bodyguard, Royal Highland Fusiliers.

Then together with Prince Philip, they took the palace car from the gateway for the half-mile drive to the gloomy old castle built amid these melancholy firs by Queen Victoria.

The President flew up from London in a Royal Air Force jetliner to Dyce Airport near Aberdeen, then drove 50 miles through the Deeside country with Prince Philip, the Queen's husband.

The Queen and Princess Margaret arrived at the castle gates a few minutes before Philip and the President drew up in their black limousine.

Stepping from the car, Eisenhower shook hands with the Queen and Margaret. Then he and Elizabeth inspected an honor guard of the Royal Highland Fusiliers to the skirl of a pipe band.

Chairs went up from about 100 spectators, most of them members of the castle staff, a few from nearby villages.

The President then entered a royal car with the Queen, her husband and Margaret, and the party was driven into the castle. Eisenhower has known Elizabeth since she was a teen-age princess, and the visit is a private one, with the arrival ceremony the only public event.

Eisenhower got a taste of real Scots weather on his arrival at Dyce Airport. It was cold and windy, and rain started pelting down as the presidential plane taxied up to the arrival strip.

A crowd of 500 Scots, wrapped in topcoats and mufflers, sent up a big cheer as the President walked down the steps from the plane.

Eisenhower gave Philip — his guest twice in Washington — a firm handshake and patted him warmly on the elbow. The prince smiled broadly.

He and Philip got into the waiting limousine for the 50-mile drive to Balmoral Castle, where the Queen and her family are spending their annual vacation in the Scottish highlands.

Defy Veto In Housing Bill Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — A defiant Congress, turning a deaf ear to Republican veto warnings, today handed President Eisenhower a "last chance" billion-dollar housing bill.

Party lines fell apart Thursday as the House, by a topheavy 283-105 vote, completed congressional action on a $1,050,000,000 bill that contained the same features that prompted a housing veto last month.

At stake was the President's perfect record of never having a veto overridden. This time the House virtually dared him to challenge its action.

The overwhelming vote far exceeded the two-thirds necessary to override. The Senate vote, on Aug. 19, likewise was by a overriding majority of 72-14.

With adjournment fever mounting, and House leaders looking forward to quelling by next week-end, the President was confronted with a take-it-or-leave-it proposition.

"If President Eisenhower wants a housing bill, this is his last chance," proclaimed Rep. Albert Rains (D-Ala.), sponsor of the bill and Democratic housing spokesman.

When the President vetoed the first $1,375,000,000 housing bill as excessive, he hit at new public housing authority, loans to extend the government into college class room construction, and other features.

And in a message last Tuesday, Eisenhower told Congress to limit itself to extending the authority of the Federal Housing Administration to insure home mortgages.

This insurance authority, which does not involve additional funds, is already about five billion dollars in excess of congressional limitations.

But the House Thursday, with machine-gun monotony, knocked down successive Republican-backed efforts to revise the bill and kill features already denounced as objectionable by the President.

On final passage, 54 Republicans and 229 Democrats voted for the bill. Only 76 Republicans and 29 Democrats voted against it.

Republicans deserted their party leadership in droves. The coalition of Republicans and Southern Democrats, so effective in past floor maneuverings, was never in evidence.

Nehru Discloses Skirmish On Frontier; Files Protest

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Prime Minister Nehru said today that Chinese Communist troops have crossed from Tibet into Indian territory on two widely separated frontiers and apparently are staying.

In India's northeast frontier area, Nehru told Parliament, several hundred Chinese apparently seized an Indian border post this week after driving off a 12-man picket detachment with gunfire. Nehru said four border guards are missing.

Nehru said the Chinese also had established a camp in a remote, uninhabited border sector of the Ladakh area of Kashmir, more than 1,000 miles west of the crossings on the northeast frontier. The Chinese also are reported building a road across the area, cutting off several hundred square miles of Indian territory.

Nehru said the Chinese moved into the Ladakh region in October 1957. The Indian reconnaissance party was sent into the region at the end of last month.

There was no indication in Nehru's statement why he waited so long before acting.

He said India had protested to Peiping but so far had no satisfaction.

"There is no alternative but to guard our borders and integrity," he declared. "We will have to be vigilant."

Nehru made no announcement, however, of military counteraction.

On the mountainous northeast frontier, Nehru said, the Chinese crossed into India from Tibet on Aug. 25 and fired on a picket post in the Kameng section. He said the Reds returned on Aug. 26, opened fire again, and practically encircled the border post.

THE INDIAN 3rd pgh 114-1a29.

The Indian border patrol withdrew, Nehru continued, and the Chinese are presumed to be still holding the position.

India protested to Peiping, and the Chinese reply, received at Nehru sat in Parliament, claimed the Indians on Aug. 25 fired first and the Chinese shot back in self-defense. Peiping said it knew nothing about the border crossing the next day.

"I give credence to our own reports," Nehru said as the deputies cheered in approval. "All circumstantial evidence supports our view. I believe it is true."

Earlier in the session Nehru said the Chinese were forcibly holding Indian territory in the Ladakh sector of Kashmir, on the northwest border between India and Tibet. He said the Chinese had established a camp at Spangur, well within Indian territory, and had arrested a reconnaissance party which had been sent to investigate.

The Chinese released the reconnaissance group, consisting of one officer and five enlisted men, but refused to return the Chinese, the prime minister said.

India continued, sent a note to Peiping expressing surprise at this claim and outlining the exact frontier. So far no reply has been received.

Several newspapers in recent weeks have reported various crossings by Chinese troops into India along the mountainous border of Kashmir and also in the northeast frontier area, in the Indian state of Assam. There also have been reports of Chinese claims to these northern areas bordering on Tibet, as well as to Nepal and the protectorates of Bhutan and Sikkim, which lie between Kashmir and Assam.

The Times of India reported today that Red forces had pushed back several border patrols along the northeast frontier and said in at least one instance there was believed to have been an exchange of gunfire.

Earlier this week the Times reported the Chinese had built a road in the Ladakh area, cutting off several hundred square miles of Indian territory.

Representatives of all non-Communist parties in Parliament submitted a question to Nehru, asking if part of Ladakh had been occupied by the Chinese.

Nehru referred to only one border crossing, which he said took place between October 1957 and February 1958, at Khurnak Fort within Indian territory.

No Disturbance At Havelock Schools

HAVELOCK, N.C. (AP) — Seven Negro youngsters, children of personnel at Cherry Point Marine Air Base, began classes with incident today with white schoolmates.

W. J. Gurganus, principal at Graham Barden School where three Negroes are enrolled, said: "Everything went just as smooth as silk."

Things were just as quiet at Havelock Elementary School, where 14 Negroes are attending. No trouble had been expected. An observer pointed out that Negroes had been living close to whites in housing developments for some time in Havelock, which is on the southeastern coast of North Carolina.

Previously the children of Negro servicemen here had to travel 40 miles roundtrip each day to attend a Negro school. The decision to integrate was announced last month and the number of Negro children involved was disclosed this week.

Havelock is one of six North Carolina school systems where there will be token integration this school year. High Point became the sixth Thursday when the school board announced that two Negro girls had been admitted to white schools. The others are Winston-Salem, Greensboro and Charlotte, which pioneered integration in the state two years ago — and Wayne County, which admitted Negro children of Seymour Johnson Air Force Base personnel to a white elementary school last year.

The Wayne County school board not yet announced how many Negro pupils will be enrolled this year, but last year there were three. Greensboro will have six Negro children in predominantly white schools, Winston-Salem seven and Charlotte one.

High Point, Greensboro and Wayne County schools begin classes next Tuesday. Charlotte and Winston-Salem start next Wednesday.

New State Agency Is Sworn In This Morning

RALEIGH (AP) — A new state agency went into operation today with swearing-in ceremonies for the State Board of Water Resources. The board will direct operations of the State Department of Water Resources created by the last Legislature.

At the oath-taking in the Capitol, Gov. Hodges designated Gen. J. B. Townsend of Greensboro as chairman of the seven-member board.

The governor told the board members its job is so important that "the future of North Carolina may well rest upon the actions of the board in the months and years ahead."

The water department will bring together into a single agency several state agencies dealing with various aspects of the water problem. Stream pollution abatement still is directed by the State Stream Sanitation Committee, however.

Col. Brown, a retired Army engineer and Georgia native, now is serving as director of hurricane rehabilitation and community planning. He was regional director for the federal Civil Defense Agency at Thomasville, Ga., before coming to the state office.

Hodges told the board he thought Harry E. Brown "ought to be considered along with any others who might be considered" for the post of director of the new department.

Other members of the board sworn in were: Dan K. Moore of Sylva, C. H. Pruden Jr. of Windsor, Glenn Tucker of Carolina Beach, P. D. Davis of Durham, S. Vernon Stevens Jr., of Broadway, and Ben R. Lewis of Goldsboro.

Also sworn in today were Clarence H. Noah of Raleigh as a member of the State Utilities Commission and W. Jack Hooks of Kenly as the governor's representative on the board of the Eastern Carolina Regional Housing Authority.

Rose High Pupils Report Monday

When classes begin next Monday at Junius H. Rose High School the new school term will be officially underway.

Principal O. E. Dowd announced this morning that all students coming to Rose High for the first time are asked to report to the school's cafeteria at 8:30 Monday morning. These students include those coming from the Junior High School to the ninth grade at Rose and all new students who have registered.

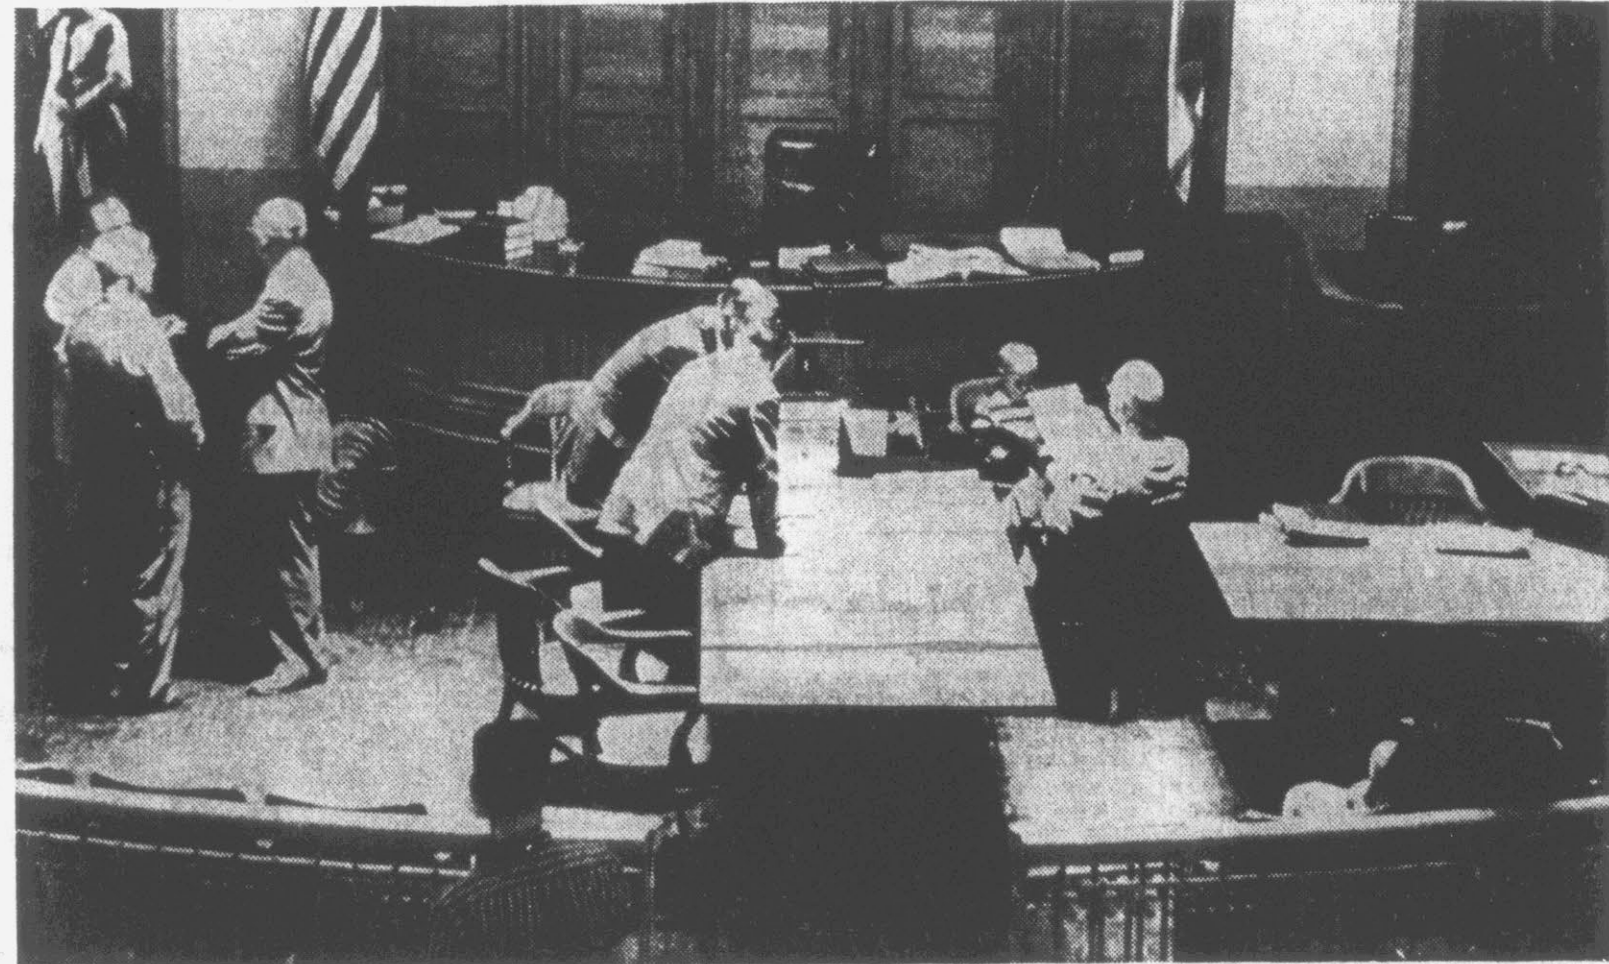

Students who were enrolled at Rose High last year are asked to report to their respective last year's home rooms at the same time.

Both Monday and Tuesday, according to Dowd, will be short days. School will end at 12:00 noon Monday and at 12:30 p.m. Tuesday.

The principal urged students to bring fees Monday. They are: book fee—$3.60; instructional fee—$3.00; locker key—50c; and school insurance—$2. Total is $9.10.

Dowd also urged each student to buy an athletic ticket. He said, "In addition to fees, each student should buy a $4 athletic season ticket."

He also said that there would be fees for home economics and shop work which would be announced and collected at a later date.

COURT ROOM . . . where Thomas A. Stocks is on trial for his life. The defendant and his attorneys occupy seats at the table in the center while the state's prosecuting attorneys are seated at table on the lower right.

Call Wilson County Venire In Effort To Fill Jury Box

By HENRY HOWARD
Reflector Staff Writer

After failing to seat another juror this morning from a special 35-person venire from Martin County, the Superior Court ordered still another special venire of 100 to be drawn from Wilson County and to report to court tomorrow morning at 9:00.

Tomorrow morning's session will attempt to complete a jury panel of 13 to hear the murder trial of Thomas Abner Stocks, indicted for the slaying of his former wife, Helen Edwards.

Stocks' attorneys Albion Dunn and M. E. Cavendish have entered a plea of "not guilty and not guilty by reason of insanity." The State will be asking the capital penalty for Stocks.

Disbelief in capital punishment was by far the prime factor in this morning's dismissals. Thirty-one of the third special venire were notified to appear this morning. Of the 31 there were 27 examined. Twenty-five expressed opposition to the capital penalty as prescribed by North Carolina law and were dismissed.

Of the remaining two jurors, one expressed opposition to intoxication as a legal defense and was dismissed. The other qualified by the court's standards but was excused by means of a pre-emptory challenge from the defense.

The prosecution has already used six of six allowed such challenges as grounds for dismissal in selection of a 12-member panel. The defense has used 11 of its 14. However, with the selection of the 13th member both the prosecution and the defense are allowed two additional pre-emptory.

Pre-emptory challenges are used by both sides to dismiss prospective jurors who qualify by the court's standards.

Judge William J. Bundy, presiding over the current term of Pitt County Superior Court, lectured the Martin venire after "five out of six" professed disbelief in capital punishment required by the laws of North Carolina.

"At the present rate, we'll never get a jury," he declared. He added that he saw "no need in continuing in this manner."

"I just don't know what to do," he stated, "I don't know what has happened, unless a great revival has swept over Martin County," the judge told the Martin veniremen.

Judge Bundy then excused the group from the neighboring county to go home.

Expression of opposition to the death penalty as punishment has been an outstanding factor in the dismissal of prospective jury panelists during the examinations of veniremen during the Stocks trial, which has continued through five days with no evidence, as yet, presented.

For the third straight day, the judge excused the 11 previously selected jurors to return home after strictly admonishing them again to refrain from saying or doing anything that would result in a mistrial.

He cautioned them against discussing the case, listening to discussions about it, reading about it in newspapers, seeing reports on television, or hearing such radio reports.

It is expected that the jury will be completed tomorrow after the additional special venire from Wilson County appears at 9:00.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Choking fumes from two white bombs thrown by two white women broke up a routine meeting of the Little Rock School Board Thursday night.

Two bombs were tossed into the foyer of the downtown school headquarters while the board was meeting upstairs. Fumes and smoke spread quickly through the building and the board, a half dozen newsmen and about 20 spectators scrambled out through a rear exit. No one was hurt.

The school board will open Monday for the start of the new school year, according to D. H. Conley, Pitt County School Superintendent.

Conley said school buses would run Monday morning and all students are urged to be at school on time.

Monday will be taken up with orientation programs and the students will be dismissed for the day at noon. Tuesday will be the first full day of school.

Conley pointed out that all county teachers started work today and the principals have been on the job for the past two weeks.

Greenville Mart Has $57.13 Day

Prices on the Greenville Tobacco Market held firm yesterday as 1,688,716 pounds of tobacco were sold for $964,755.69 to average $57.13 per hundred pounds.

Sales Supervisor W. L. Whedbee said the same high prices are continuing on today's sale. Top tobacco is still selling for $75 in Greenville, he stated, and brown smoking tobacco is still selling at an all-time high.

"There is a very strong demand for good solid bodied leaf tobacco on all of our warehouse floors and some of our most spectacular sales are being made in this type of tobacco," the sale supervisor declared.

"Farmers continued all day yesterday and today to rush their tobacco to Greenville to take advantage of these superior prices," he said. "Almost no tags were turned and Stabilization receipts were practically none."

Whedbee said yesterday was a full sale in Greenville and a full sale was expected for today.

However, he said there appears to be some room on Monday's sale.

"Many farmers from great distances are selling their tobacco in Greenville this year who have never sold here before," he declared.

Start Of Another School Term Raises Potential Strains On Segregation Front

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Another critical period is at hand for the school children of the South where federal integration regulations sometimes clash sharply with traditional patterns and state laws.

The youngsters are about to start the fall term—the sixth since the U.S. Supreme Court's 1954 decision outlawing segregation in the nation's public schools.

Some children already are attending classes in an atmosphere marked by less tension than in the past. Other thousands are preparing to resume their educations.

A half-dozen schools are expected to be desegregated for the first time. Four Negroes have been assigned to the Orchard Villa School in Miami and if they attend classes Sept. 8 it will mark the start of integration at the public school level in Florida.

Other initial desegregation attempts will occur in states which now have at least token integration in some cities. Elsewhere legal battles are continuing and court rulings may take effect at later dates.

There is no indication what will happen in the next few days. But the reopening of the public high schools in Little Rock, Ark., and the end of Virginia's massive resistance have had an appreciable effect.

The voice of the moderate has been heard more often in recent months. Some citizens have formed organizations designed to keep the public schools open even if it means token integration.

Groups of ministers and professional persons have issued statements along similar lines.

Integration advances generally have occurred in the upper and middle South. The five Deep South states of Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi and South Carolina have permitted no public school integration.

The number of Negroes in desegregated situations has gone up from 256,020 in March 1955, to 447,022 in May 1959. Most of the changes have taken place in the border states.

The Southern Regional Council, an organization working for improvement in race relations, reported recently that with the exception of Texas, only 206 Negroes were in attendance with white pupils during the past year in 11 Southern states. In Texas, an estimated 3,250 Negroes were in desegregated classes.

The Orchard Villa School at Miami heads the public schools where initial desegregation may take place shortly.

A second public high school already has been integrated at Little Rock and the Dollarway School District near Pine Bluff, Ark., has been ordered to desegregate. The Dollarway case may be considered Monday by an appellate court at St. Louis.

The school board at Charlottesville in central Virginia has assigned nine Negroes to an elementary school and two to a high school there. Classes begin Sept. 8.

At Front Royal, Va., the opening of all Warren County public schools has been postponed from Aug. 31 to Sept. 8.

Three hundred and seventy-seven white pupils and 18 Negroes have registered for enrollment at integration-troubled Warren County High.

In North Carolina, two Negro girls have been admitted to class, beginning Tuesday at High Point. In addition 17 Negro children of personnel at Cherry Point Marine Air Station have been accepted at white elementary schools in the Havelock School District at New Bern.

A new school is expected to be integrated at Burk Burnett, Tex., when it opens later this fall. The school will be on federal property and will serve a new housing project for Shepard Air Force Base.

The only violence reported in recent weeks occurred at Little Rock on Aug. 12 when segregationists marching to integrated Central High were broken up by police and firemen. Several arrests were made and order restored. The situation has been quiet since then.

Here's the situation briefly by states:

Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi and South Carolina—no public school integration. The Atlanta School Board is under a U.S. District Court order to submit a plan for school integration by Dec. 1, and the New Orleans School Board by March 1, 1960. The Atlanta case has been appealed.

Florida — Integrated classes scheduled to start Sept. 8 at Orchard Villa School in Miami. Negro parents have an appeal pending on dismissal of their suit at Tampa to force admission of Negroes to Hillsborough County schools.

North Carolina — Integrated classes to begin at High Point, N.C., Tuesday. Negro children of servicemen's families to attend classes with white pupils in the Havelock School District at New Bern. Limited integration continues for a third year at Winston-Salem, Greensboro and Charlotte. At Seymour Johnson Air Force Base near Goldsboro, N.C., children of Negro servicemen will attend a county school with white classmates for the second year.

VIRGINIA — Eleven Negroes assigned to attend white schools at the Charlottesville starting Sept. 8. Opening date for Warren County public schools postponed a week until Sept. 8. Token integration at Alexandria, Arlington County in northern Virginia near Washington, and at Norfolk. Schools at Richmond, the state capital, continue segregated although a desegregation suit has been filed.

Arkansas — Two high schools integrated at Little Rock and an appeal pending on a court order to integrate Dollarway near Pine Bluff. Desegregation continues at seven other cities with from 1 to 30 Negroes attending former white schools. They are Fayetteville, Bentonville, Charleston, Hoxie, Van Buren, Fort Smith and Hot Springs.

Gardening Today

By JOHN G. DUNCAN

Ants are energetic, interesting, and obnoxious.

The fact that ants are energetic is well-known. Ant study in your own living room is getting to be quite a hobby. To watch these tiny insects in action is fascinating and quite restful. But the wonder of all this is the fact that anything so small could have the spark of life. How could all organs necessary for such speedwork, agility and ferocity be crowded in to such a small dot?

But when this small dash of hustle gets into your lawn or garden, it is something else. Not only does he make your lawn look unsightly, he is a menace to your plants. Somehow some ancient ant found out that aphids (plant lice) were the source of a liquid that was mighty satisfying. So ant like she passed the word! along. They took to herding the aphids up and down the stalks of flowers etc.

They stand guard near their herds. When meal time or the urge comes along, the ant rubs the aphid's back and a drop of this honeydew comes out on the aphid's back. What the aphid gets out of this deal besides protection is not known, but the result of this procedure is injury to quite a few flowers and plants.

Ants work in trees (carpenter ants). These ants gain access to interior of trees through unpainted wounds, cavities, etc. They excavate the wood at an alarming rate. They are capable of a painful sting as many a gardener can attest.

To get rid of ants in your lawn, use chlordane 5% dust, 5 pounds to each 1,000 sq. ft. of area. Keep children off lawn as long as dust is visible. To get rid of their "cows" (aphids), spray with malathion 50% E.C., 2 teaspoons to 1 gallon of water. Keeping all wounds painted and tree in good condition should keep them out of your trees.

The property was bought two years ago from the railroad by a fertilizer company and spokesmen for the firm said the new building would be leased. The old passenger station was constructed on the site in 1907 on land which was purchased one year before, and passenger service to Greenville was started that year. The station served Greenville until passenger service was discontinued by the line at the close of business January 1, 1948. The railroad later closed its freight office on Dickinson Ave. and constructed a station just off 14th St. last year. (Reflector Staff Photo)

High Schoolers Given Advanced Physics Course

DENVER (AP)—Select students at Wheat Ridge High School will study advanced physics starting this fall under Dr. Frank F. Oppenheimer, noted scientist and brother of Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer.

Dr. Oppenheimer is known as the father of the atomic bomb. Dr. Frank Oppenheimer holds degrees from Johns Hopkins University and California Institute of Technology. He has taught at the University of Minnesota and at Stanford.

He resigned his faculty post at Minnesota in 1949, after he admitted to the House Un-American Activities Committee that he had been a Communist Party member for 3½ years.

He claimed he left the party in 1940 or 1941, before he became engaged in defense work during World War II. He also worked on development of the atomic bomb at Oak Ridge, Tenn., and at Los Alamos, N.M.

Church Scholars Quietly Seek Christian Unity

By EUGENE LEVIN

RHODES, Greece (AP)—Quietly, obscured by the bustle of everyday church activity, scholars of the Roman Catholic, Protestant and Orthodox churches are meeting informally in search of a common path to Christian unity.

They have met in many places and for many years. Their meetings are not secret. Today — with all churches re-emphasizing a desire for Christian unity — these unofficial contacts are taking on a new significance.

None of the theologians who have made a life work of the search for unity pretend that they are anywhere near to a way out of the labyrinth of conflicting dogma and tradition dividing their churches.

But they do feel that, in their small way, they are contributing something toward the goal of unity.

This work is brought into prominence by the current meetings on this Greek island of the Central Committee of the World Council of Churches, an organization representing Protestant and Orthodox faiths with about 180 million followers, and by Pope John's frequent pleas for Christian unity since becoming head of the Roman Catholic Church 10 months ago.

Much of the Roman Catholic work toward Christian unity is carried on by the Roman Catholic Conference on Ecumenical (world-wide) Questions. This group is not an official Vatican agency, but its members are priests who have made a lifelong study of Christian unity.

One of the more prominent is Father Christophe Jean Dumont, a French Dominican, who publishes a magazine called Toward Christian Unity. He described his job, and his relation to the Vatican in this way: "The search for unity is my assignment as a priest, just as other priests are given pastoral duties. In that sense I have Vatican authorization. But I cannot speak for the Vatican."

Both Father Dumont and the secretary of the Conference of Ecumenical Questions, Father J. G. M. Willebrands of Utrecht, Holland, are covering the Rhodes meeting for church publications.

And they have been taking every opportunity to meet informally with Protestant and Orthodox delegates. Both the priests emphasize that these contacts are part of a continuing exchange of views with men of other religions.

Father Dumont has proposed to Orthodox clerics here, particularly the Greeks, that they meet with his Roman Catholic group next year. The Orthodox scholars are considering the proposal.

Contact between the Roman Catholics and Western Protestant delegates is part of a continuing process. The Executive Committee of the World Council of Churches in its latest report says its contacts with the Roman Catholic Conference on Ecumenical Questions "have provided an opportunity during recent months for us to gain a clearer understanding" of Pope John's call for a Roman Catholic ecumenical council.

Vatican officials have made clear that the ecumenical council Pope John has called will deal only with internal Catholic unity. But the Pope's announcement is considered by most churchmen at the Rhodes conference to be part of his campaign for Christian unity.

Eisenhower Sees Initial Success

President Eisenhower apparently has met with success on the first leg of his arduous task of reassuring our Western Allies that the two-way summit conference between himself and Soviet Premier Khrushchev will in no way impair Western unity nor will it exclude other Western nations from top level decisions on Western policy.

Initial talks in Bonn between the President and Chancellor Adenauer apparently were mutually satisfactory and no basic change in Western approaches to international problems will be forthcoming in the Eisenhower-Khrushchev talks.

The President has taken pains to point out that he will hold "conversations and not negotiations" with Premier Khrushchev.

Whether the President will get along as well in explaining his position in London and Paris remains to be seen. Premier de Gaulle seeks a more important role for France in Western affairs and in Western dealings with the Soviet Union. He may well press the President for greater recognition of France among the Western Big Three in an attempt to restore France to its former position of power and influence in international affairs.

a summit conference between leaders of East and West and he may be expected to continue to press for such a meeting toward which President Eisenhower still seems cool.

Whatever might go on in the talks between Khrushchev and the President, Mr. Eisenhower's present task of retaining and strengthening Western unity is of greatest importance. Certainly President Eisenhower made a wise decision in conferring with other Western leaders before his meeting next month with the head of the Soviet Union. By making it plain to other Western leaders what he will discuss with Khrushchev and what he will have to say on the subjects, President Eisenhower is lessening the chances of the Soviets using the two-way talks between the heads of state to drive a wedge between the Western Allies.

Though his journey to Western Europe is just beginning, President Eisenhower at least has been successful in dispelling any fears in his conference with the first Western nation he has visited.

See For Yourself That Growing College

For the citizens of this area who haven't visited the campus of East Carolina College recently to view the growth and expansion of physical facilities, the open house being held by the College Monday afternoon and evening will afford an excellent opportunity.

Four buildings which have been recently completed or renovated will be open for public inspection during the open house. They will include a new men's dormitory, a new classroom building, a new wing on the college cafeteria and the addition to the college administration building.

Most people in this area of North Carolina are well aware of the growth East Carolina College has had in its student body in recent years. Many, however, have not visited the college campus to see the tremendous building program which has been carried on in an effort to supply sufficient physical facilities to cope with the increased enrollment. East Carolina is no longer a little school either in terms of enrollment or in terms of buildings. Visitors from other areas of the state are often surprised at the physical facilities on the campus.

A good many people in Greenville and surrounding area who haven't toured the campus lately probably would also be surprised if they took time to see the college for themselves.

Flight Patterns Seem A Reasonable Answer

The recent collision between a small private plane and a military jet near Morehead City points up the necessity of a greater degree of coordination between flight patterns of military and private planes particularly in areas where military planes are used in large numbers.

Civilian authorities on the Morehead City-Beaufort area have suggested the establishment of routes and patterns for military and civilian aircraft in that area. If they are successful in their efforts to reach such a goal, similar steps may be taken in other areas.

In this day of faster-than-sound military aircraft, the flight patterns and landing paths of such planes cannot be confined to a few miles immediately surrounding the air base. They must spread over many miles and may involve communities considerable distance from the military base. This broader area involved makes the coordinating of air space use between private and military aircraft much more difficult to manage.

Unless some steps are taken along the lines proposed by the Morehead City and Beaufort officials, the tragic collision such as the one which occurred Monday near Beaufort may increase.

Nationalism Is Problem To All

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—As

President Eisenhower began

gliding through the dismal swamp of international relations, mankind

followed in his steps, hoping that somehow he could lead the way to a sunlit beach.

No one knows better than he the task before him: somehow working out with West

Europe's leaders, America's leaders and later with Premier

Nikita Khrushchev some solution to what has divided the world into two armed camps, hissing at each other.

It may be an impossible task for him—or anyone else—at this moment in history. No wonder he has tried hard not to raise false hopes about his efforts.

His reception Wednesday in Germany, where once he entered as a conqueror but now as an ally, was perhaps the greatest in his career. It was testimony to the high and warm regard in which Europe and perhaps even the Soviet Union still holds him.

But there was more than regard in the cheers which Eisenhower himself called "overwhelming and magnificent."

There was hope that he might produce the key to the icebox in which the cold war has kept the world for 14 years.

To himself Eisenhower was probably saying: "I hope they are right."

He can remember another journey made by another president, Woodrow Wilson, years ago, and the thunderous, almost frenzied, greeting given him when he landed in Europe after World War I.

The Europeans looked to Wilson as the man of good will who would fashion a peace which would let all other men sleep quietly at night for generations.

But there are differences among the Allies, which he will try to bridge over. He must pledge them he will make no secret deals with Khrushchev. If he and Khrushchev ever do agree on answers that might melt the cold war, they won't have much meaning unless the allies with whom Eisenhower is talking now can submerge their own nationalism long enough to approve, too.

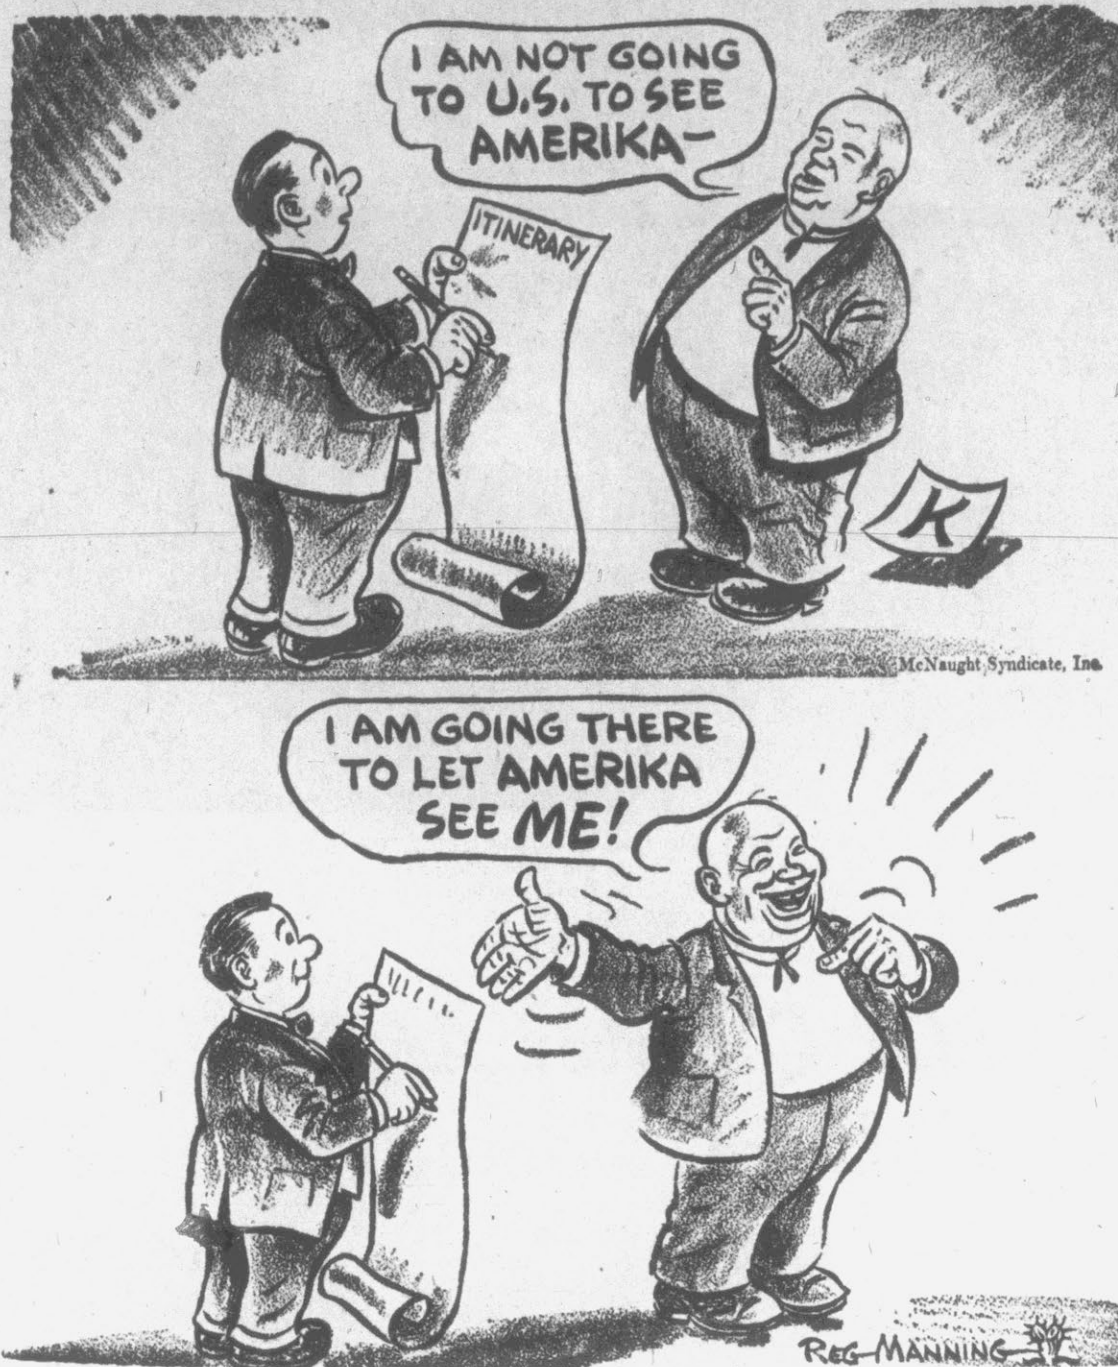

The United States is Nationalistic, too. So is the Soviet Union. So is Red China. So are the satellites. The world hasn't passed out of its era of nationalism yet. Eisenhower knows that, too.

So in talking with West Europe's leaders, America's allies, Eisenhower is talking with men who may have a sincere dedication to peace but each of whom is thinking in terms of his own country first.

Eisenhower has to think that way, too. So does Khrushchev. Europe, and maybe even the U.S.S.R., looks upon Eisenhower as a man of good will.

But there are differences among the Allies, which he will try to bridge over. He must pledge them he will make no secret deals with Khrushchev. If he and Khrushchev ever do agree on answers that might melt the cold war, they won't have much meaning unless the allies with whom Eisenhower is talking now can submerge their own nationalism long enough to approve, too.

What You Want To See In Amerika?

By HENRY HOWARD

The Questions They Ask

In all the deadly seriousness of a murder trial, there still can crop up amusing items.

Such a thing has happened in the current trial of that nature going on over at the local court house.

It would probably take a "Univac" or something to keep tab of all the questions being asked during the selection of a panel of 13 jurors for this particular trial.

As a matter of fact, there has been a constant stream of jury panelist prospects and an equally constant flow of interrogation directed at them since last Monday afternoon.

Yesterday, at the close of the fourth day of examination, this particular "amusing item" came to light.

It seems that at least one person present in the court room had certain misgivings about the nature of questions asked. He would just sit there and scratch his head at some of the queries.

After hearing an extra "king-sized" question, he sat back and exclaimed, "My gosh, how could anybody ever understand that string of words 'in sentences—much less answer it'?"

Actually, the question really might not have been quite that bad. Indeed it was packed full of vital "questioning material"—even if it did seem somewhat disorganized and puzzling.

With a baffled and quizzical look on his face, the critic began to explain just how he felt about such questions—"specially, since those guys asking them really want to know what they're asking about!"

After confiding, he suddenly demanded, "I betcha I turing with hands and head in explanatory effort, he flopped down in his seat in exasperation and said, "I can't tell you how those things confuse me—maybe I'm not very bright!" he suddenly demanded, "I betcha I

Today's picture is the result of his demand. Very frankly indeed, there was absolute failure in attempts to provide any sort of explanatory interpretation; however maybe it's worth passing.

Other Editors Saying Secret Meet Undermines

(Raleigh Times)

If there ever was a time when school business should be conducted in public, this is the time.

For the needs of education are growing by leaps and bounds. Those needs must be met, and they can be met by only one person—the taxpayer. The taxpayer has shown that he is willing to pay for good schooling for his children, and the best way to keep him in that frame of mind is to keep him fully informed on all things regarding schools.

It is unfortunate, therefore, to put it mildly, that a man from the State Board of Education took it upon himself to hold an off-the-record meeting with local school officials in Greensboro. According to news stories, J. E. Hunter of the Board's office told a reporter for The Greensboro Daily News; "You are welcome to stay (at the meeting), but we are going to discuss some things that can't go into the papers."

Well, it just so happens that everything that could be discussed at that meeting had to do with the spending of the taxpayers' money. Hunter's salary comes from tax money. Apparently he was going to talk, in secret, about allotment of tax money for the payment of teacher salaries. The very room in which the meeting was held was a room constructed with taxpayers' money, and the electricity used to light the room was paid for with taxpayers' money.

Why, therefore, should the representative of the public be told that he cannot tell the public what was being said about the spending of public money? Wouldn't such secrecy make the taxpayer wonder if his money were being spent as it should be spent? And, once the taxpayer begins to have such doubts about the spending of school dollars, he might have similar doubts about paying such big taxes for the support of schools.

No school man in any job, high or low, should ever get the idea that the schools belong to him in any way, or that he can handle the schools' business in secrecy. The schools belong to

Books To Help Sleep

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—The late W.C. Fields had the only perfect cure for insomnia.

"Get more sleep," he advised. Nothing promotes good sound sleep better than a good sound—but dull-book.

Dr. W.W. Bauer, director of health education for the American Medical Assn., pointed this out in a recent article on insomnia.

"If everything else fails," he advised, "there is nothing better to induce sleep than an educational book which you feel you ought to read but don't want to."

But what are the best books for sleeping? With some 11,000 new books being published yearly, America's slumber fodder is increasing by leaps and bounds. It may be necessary soon to put out a book on how to stay awake.

With literally hundreds of old and new favorite literary snore-starters to choose from, here is one man's list of a dozen tested books guaranteed to improve your mind—by putting it to sleep.

1. "Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire," by Edward Gibbon. This all-time champion has put more people to sleep than anything except the discovery of ether.

2. "War and Peace," by Tolstoy. Fine for a doze anywhere after the first page.

3. "Paradise Lost," by John Milton. Beward of reading this one backward. It's too exciting that way.

4. Any novel by Henry James or George Eliot.

5. Dr. Spock's book on child care. Recommended for bachelors.

6. "Remembrance of Things Past," by Marcel Proust. As lulling as if you were paddling a canoe with a wet piece of spaghetti in a lily pond in mid-July.

7. "Finnegan's Wake," by James Joyce. Doesn't make sense but will make you insensible.

8. "The Fable," by William Faulkner.

9. "Collected Speeches," by William McKinley.

10. "Alice in Wonderland," by Lewis Carroll. No normal child ever waded through it except under compulsion.

11. "The Life of Peter Rabbit." For people who read with their lips. By the time you say "hip-pety-hip-pety-hop" 812 times, your lips are so tired you nod off.

12. Any how-to-do-it book on how to stop smoking, stop drinking—or start living. Best of field.

At the risk of winning new enemies and alienating old friends, I could add a few alternate personal choices. They would include the memoirs of most World War II generals, much of the poetry of Walt Whitman and Carl Sandburg, "Das Kapital" by Karl Marx, and the header bits from Dr. Norman Vincent Peale.

But when it comes to literary dullness, to each his own.

A New Spirit

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Joel.

Joel, thought to be the first of the writing prophets, inscribes a warning to all his people about the calamities about to be inflicted on them by God. —Joel 1:1-12.

"Sanctify ye a feast, call a solemn assembly, gather the elders and all the inhabitants... into the house of the Lord your God, and cry unto the Lord." —Joel 1:14.

"Blow ye the trumpet in Zion, and sound an alarm in my holy mountain; let all the inhabitants of the land tremble; for the day of the Lord cometh." —Joel 2:1.

"But Judah shall dwell forever... For I will cleanse their blood... for the Lord dwelleth in Zion." —Joel 3:20-21.

MEMORY VERSE—Joel 2:21.

A New Spirit for a Renewed People

THE PROPHET, JOEL, PROPHESES DISASTER FOR ISRAEL, BUT A FINAL BLESSING OF GOD FOR JUDAH

Scripture—Joel.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

THE BOOK of Joel begins with the prophet's warning of disasters to come, but promises future blessings if the children of Israel will return to the Lord and worship only Him. A plague of locusts is the first of these woes to descend upon the nation's crops, devouring every bit of the precious grain on which the people depended for food. "The field is wasted, the land mourneth; for the corn is wasted: the new wine is dried up, the oil languisheth." —Joel 1:10.

Joel called for a time of fasting and humility. "Sanctify ye a feast, call a solemn assembly, gather the elders and all the inhabitants of the land into the house of the Lord your God, and cry unto the Lord." —Joel 1:13-14. The beasts of the field also suffered from this terrible drought. They "cry also unto Thee: for the rivers of waters are dried up, and the fire hath devoured the pastures of the wilderness." —Joel 1:20.

"Therefore also now, saith the Lord, turn ye even unto Me with all your heart, and with fasting, and with weeping, and with mourning: And rend your heart, and not your garments, and turn unto the Lord your God: for He is gracious and merciful, slow to anger, and of great kindness, and repenteth Him of the evil." —Joel 2:12-13.

"Let the priests, the ministers of the Lord, weep between the porch (of the temple) and the altar, and let them say, Spare the people, O Lord, and give not Thine heritage to reproach, that the heathen should rule over them: wherefore should they say among the people, Where is their God?"

"Then will the Lord be jealous for His land, and pity His people. Yea, the Lord will answer and say unto His people, Behold, I will send you corn, and wine, and oil, and ye shall be satisfied therewith: and I will no more make you a reproach among the heathen."

April, respectively. The "former rain" moistens the earth and fits it to receive the seeds which are sown shortly afterwards; the "latter rain" is important for giving fullness and strength to the ripening crops; if either fails, the ensuing harvest is seriously damaged. This quotation is from Peloubet's Select Notes, by Dr. Wilbur M. Smith, editor and commentator.

The younger classes might discuss briefly the subject of personal character in those they know in school or in life generally. A person of sterling character is a good associate or employee in any field. The older children might give their views on the future of our troubled and changing world; the possible futures of many disturbed countries. Have faith in God and keep close to Him and to His Son, Jesus Christ. Take your worries to Him in prayer, and seek His guidance, and you cannot go wrong.

Quarterback Is Eligible Receiver In Prep Rules

Editor's Note: In order to give football fans a more thorough look at some of the rules which apply in high school games, Ott Alford, an official in the North-eastern District, has volunteered to help us in going over some of the basic rules which the average fan might misinterpret.

TODAY—PASSING AND KICKING

1. A total of up to six men may be eligible to receive a pass. This includes the four men in the backfield (if all four line up in the backfield) and the two men who are on the ends of the line. Therefore, the center may be eligible, but he has to snap the ball on the end of the line. Contrary to some thinking, the quarterback is an eligible pass receiver under the high school rules.
2. Any number of passes may be thrown during any given down. The only point to remember is that the passer must be behind the line of scrimmage on each pass.
3. Any pass that is touched or caught by an ineligible pass receiver is a violation. If the penalty is accepted, it will mean the loss of 15 yards from the spot of the snap. The down will be replayed.
4. The rule prohibiting pass interference goes into effect for the offense when the ball is snapped; for the defense, it goes into effect when the pass leaves the passer's hand. The reason for this is that the offense knows the play called, while the defense does not.
5. Pass interference is not to be ruled as long as either the offense or the defense makes an honest effort to get to the ball. The use of hands to push is the point that brings on 90% of the interference calls. Body contact is allowed as long as the movement is natural.
6. The penalty for pass interference is fifteen yards. If it is by the defense, it is 15 yards from the spot of the snap and an automatic first down. When committed by the offense, it is 15 yards and the loss of the down. This of course is one of the few exceptions to the rule, for in most cases, when the penalty is accepted, the down is replayed.

7. A pass simultaneously caught by two opposing players belongs to the passing team. This rule applies to high school and college. This happened in the EOC-Davidson game of a few years ago and fans did not understand why the ball still belonged to Davidson.

8. If a pass is intercepted in the end zone, it may be run out and advanced. The interceptor may wish to down the ball and have it brought out to the 20 and put into play as a touchback. Even if the interceptor attempts to run the ball out and is tackled in the end zone, it is still a touchback and comes out to the 20. In attempting to run it out if the runner goes out of the end zone and then turns again and is downed there, then it is a safety.

KICKING

1. The touching of a scrimmage kick in the neutral zone (on the line of scrimmage) or on the kicking team's side of the line is ignored. In other words, the ball does not belong to the kicking team if they recover the ball down the field when it was touched on or behind the line.
2. Any scrimmage kick may be recovered or caught and advanced (if this occurs behind the scrimmage line) by either the offense or the defense.
3. Any kick may be advanced by the members of the receiving team.
4. When a member of the kicking team touches a ball that has hit the ground, it kills the ball. There can be no return of the ball. Touching or catching a kick before it has touched the ground (by the kicking team) is a violation.
5. If a team kicks on first, second, or third down and the kick is blocked and recovered by the kicking down, the ball still belongs to the team that kicked it on the fourth down. When the necessary yardage needed to make a first down will have to be picked up on the play in order for the kicking team to retain the ball. This usually doesn't happen and the ball goes over to the receiving team even though the kicking team recovered the ball.

Answer to yesterday's play
If the intended place kick holder gains possession of the ball with a knee of the ground and advances with the ball, it is not a legal advance. When the ball is muffed by the intended holder and advanced by a team-mate the advance is legal.

Question:
The offense is called for holding on their own 25 yard line. This is usually penalized by the loss of 15 yards. In this case, where will the ball be put into play after measurement?

Basilio Battles Fullmer For Middleweight Title

By JACK STEVENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Carmen Basilio tries to grove again tonight that a little guy can be the middleweight boxing champion of the world.

The crazy faced onion farmer from Chittenango, N. Y., weighing about 153, tackles Gene Fullmer of West Jordan, Utah, a bull shouldered 160-pounder, in a 15-round battle to decide the National Boxing Assn. title.

Basilio stepped up from the 147-pound class when he outpointed Sugar Ray Robinson for the middleweight title on Sept. 23, 1957. Carmen then weighed only 151 as an over-stuffed welterweight.

On March 25, 1958, Robinson won back the championship over the 15-round route, but the NBA stripped him of his title last May 4 because he hadn't defended it. New York, Basilio's home state, still recognizes Robinson as champion, as does Massachusetts.

A crowd of about 14,000 paying $200,000 was expected in the Cow Palace for the 7 p.m. (PDT) battle which also counts a $175,000 stipend from NBC for the television and radio rights. Basilio stands to collect about $140,000 with $100,000 for Fullmer. After weighing, Fullmer will eat a steak and could enter the ring at 163.

"I expect my weight to give me the advantage in the final five rounds," Fullmer said. He's a strong boy known both for his rough boxing and as a Mormon Sunday school teacher in his home town.

Fullmer also had a taste of the middleweight championship when he outpointed Robinson in 1957, but suffered a knockout the same year in a return bout.

Almost all observers here expect a rugged fight going the full distance. Odds of about 10-7 favor Basilio. A poll of sports writers showed 13 favoring the New Yorker and 4 going for Fullmer.

Both are rough, tough battlers who have proved they can take punishment. The 32-year-old Basilio never has been stopped while Fullmer, 26, suffered just the Robinson fifth round knockout.

Basilio said he aimed for a knockout but was conditioned to go the distance. Should the nationally televised fight go 15 rounds, the decision comes from the referee and two judges on the 10-point-must system. The winner of each round gets 10 points and the loser 9 or less depending upon his showing. An even round gives each 10 points.

Basilio's co-managers will not be in his corner for the first time in his nine championship fights. Both Joe Negro and John De Joh will have ringside seats. They've been under investigation in New York and neither applied for a California license.

Contracts for this fight don't call for a return engagement, but each fighter agreed to 'be' man rated No. 1 by the NBA within 90 days. Neither Basilio nor Fullmer have expressed any desire to fight Robinson who in the past has demanded the major share of the middleweight purses Crucial Four Game Series Set With Clev.

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer
Now comes the moment of truth in that American League pennant race. The Chicago White Sox, their pitching punctured, open a four-game series at Cleveland tonight with only a 1½-game edge over the streaking second-place Indians.

It's right-hander Bob Shaw (13-4), who has won seven of his last eight, for the White Sox against Jack Harshman (5-9), the Indians' surprise southpaw crutch, in the opener, which also gets the two contenders started on a string of seven meetings in 10 days.

The White Sox added a half-game to their slim cushion over the Indians, who have won eight in a row, by whipping Boston 5-1 in the only AL game Thursday.

That left the White Sox, denied a pennant for 40 years, with a 76-49 (.608) record to Cleveland's 75-51 (.595) going into the series opener. Chicago, winning nine of 14 games with the Indians, had 29 games left, Cleveland 28.

Third-place Milwaukee lost 5-4 at St. Louis and Cincinnati beat Chicago's Cubs, 5-0.

The Indians, who lost the lead to the White Sox a month ago tonight by splitting a doubleheader with Boston, have the edge going into what could be a fatal four games for Chicago.

While the Sox have played 11 games in the past 10 days, winning seven, the Indians have played but nine, chopping three games off Chicago's 4½-game bulge in that span with their longest winning streak since 1956.

And while Chicago has lost southpaw Billy Pierce to injury and has found ailing Dick Donovan and over-worked ace Early Wynn ineffective, the Indians have perked up behind Rocky Colavito, again hitting home runs, and Harshman, who has taken up the slack left by Herb Score.

The White Sox made it Thursday behind Barry Latman (7-5), who had a four-hit shutout until the ninth, when Ted Williams swatted his 10th home run of the year and the 493rd of his career. Reliever Gerry Staley, working in nine of Chicago's last 12 games, put it away by striking out Pete Daley and Jim Busby after Latman gave up a one-out single and walk.

Johnny Romano, giving regular catcher Sherm Lollar a rest, drove in the first three Sox runs with a pair of singles off loser Frank Baumann (5-3). Ted Kluszewski, late of the Pirates, singled twice in four trips for his first American League hit.

Pitching — Jim O'Toole, Reds, gained his first major league shutout with a five-hitter, striking out 10 and walking four in 5-0 victory over the Cubs.

Hitting — Joe Cunningham, Cardinals, tripled, doubled and had two singles in five at-bats, scoring three runs in 5-4 victory over the Braves and moving within nine percentage points of bat leader Hank Aaron.

Captains Make Final Bid For Davis Cup Title

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP)—The Davis Cup Challenge Round, beginning today, probably will be the last for the rival captains—Perry Jones of the United States and Harry Hopman of Australia.

The matches thus will carry special importance for both of them. Each would like to bow out on a victorious note.

"This is my valedictory," says Jones, 71-year-old Los Angeles tennis executive who was persuaded to take the job last year. "I'm turning the reins over to a younger man."

Hopman, 53, winner in eight of 11 Davis Cup campaigns, has indicated he will retire from the game to devote time to a lucrative investment broker's position in Melbourne.

Hopman accepted the assignment this year on a virtual mandate. The various Australian tennis associations sent him a unanimous appeal to try to win back the cup.

This is probably the weakest team the strict Australian taskmaster has fielded in all his years as captain dating back to 1938. Neale Fraser, 25, is the only experienced Cup player on the squad and Fraser is faced with the task of beating Peruvian Alex Oimedo in the first singles match at the West Side Tennis Club.

Rod Laver, 21, not long out of junior ranks and never in a challenge round, plays Barry MacKay of Dayton, Ohio, in the second singles. MacKay, although just 23, is competing in his third tennis World Series.

Other members of Hopman's squad are Roy Emerson, 23, who teams with Fraser in doubles; Bob Mark, 22, and juniors Ken Fletcher and Mike Mulligan. None has had more than a sub's status before this year.

A series of raids by professional promoter Jack Kramer has left the Australian cupboard bare. The last to go were Ashley Cooper and Mal Anderson—beaten by Oimedo and his teammates at Brisbane last year.

"This team is not as good as last year's on a name basis," says Hopman. "But it's fitter and in a better frame of mind. I think we'll win, about 3-2."

Jones picks his squad to score a 5-0 sweep. "I don't want to appear fat headed," says the chubby septuagenarian, "but I actually think we can do it. Oimedo is a climax player. MacKay has improved tremendously and I even think we can win in doubles."

Robin Roberts In Diabetes Check

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Veteran right-hander Robin Roberts, one of the Philadelphia Phillies' all-time pitching greats, undergoes tests today to determine if he is afflicted with diabetes or some other ailment.

A routine examination recently showed that the 32-year-old Roberts had an excess of sugar in his system.

Only Nine Boys For Grid Team

WINDTHORST, Tex. (AP)—Coach George Bearman of Windthorst High School is facing a manpower problem.

He has only nine boys out for the football team and must get two more by Sept. 4 when Windthorst opens the season.

There were 14 boys in school and all would have come out for the team but five of the boys left to enter the priesthood at Fort Smith, Ark.

Dumas, Connolly Rank High In Pan-American

By JERRY LISKA
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP)—The third Pan-American Games get underway today with gold medal winners apparently easy to pick in the three men's track and field finals on tap in the 12-sport program.

High jumper Charlie Dumas and hammer thrower Harold Connolly of the United States and Argentina's Osvaldo Suarez, in the 10,000-meter run, are odds-on favorites.

In addition, the evening track program at Soldier Field—where the games officially were opened Thursday before a reported 47,000—will include 400-meter hurdles semifinals and trials in the 100-meter dash and 800-meter run.

The other competition in the kickoff round of 27 sports in this far-flung athletic carnival being held for the first time in the United States includes: women's track, baseball, men's and women's basketball, men's fencing, soccer, men's and women's tennis, men's volleyball, weightlifting, and yachting.

Two other gold medals will go to champions in the opening session. Javelin finals will be held in women's track and the basketball weight finals are scheduled in weightlifting.

The piecemeal schedule calls for 60-meter preliminaries through the semifinals for women; two baseball games at Comiskey Park, home of the White Sox; three basketball games for men and two for women; fift matches in fencing; two soccer matches; two men's volleyball matches; yachting competition for seven different sailing craft types; and men's and women's tennis prelims.

Competition for some 2,000 athletes from 24 nations will continue through Sept. 6. Some 132 athletes from 18 countries are represented in tonight's track events at the mammoth lake front stadium.

Dumas, the springy 23-year-old high jumping product of Southern California, goes after the Pan-Am title backed by an Olympic championship performance in the 1956 games. His final Pan-Am tune-up best of 6-9 is well ahead of the 6-7½ mark with which the USA's Ernie Shelton won in 1955.

Connolly, like Dumas a color-bearer for the Los Angeles Striders, has a Pan-Am test top hammer throw of 216-10, far ahead of the record toss of 180-1¼ by USA's Bob Backus in the last games. Argentina's Suarez defends his title at 10,000 meters. He also holds the Pan-Am 5,000 meter title and, weather conditions permitting, may try for a prized distance grand slam by also tackling the marathon.

Suarez already this year has jogged the 10,000 in 29 minutes 39.6, stamping him the class of tonight's field. Strongest U.S. contenders are Max Truex and Bill Dellinger.

Daniel Meets Mintz Today

GREENSBORO (AP)—Top-seeded Sam Daniel of Leaksville meets Semi Mintz, a Davidson College net star from Raleigh, in the men's singles division of the North Carolina Closed Tennis Championships today.

Theirs is one of five matches scheduled in that division. Competition also continues in the men's veteran singles and the women's singles.

Daniel eliminated Charles Lam-beth of Thomasville 8-6, 6-1 Thursday, while Mintz dumped Johnny Bremer 10-8, 6-4.

The No. 2 seeded player in the men's division, Bobby Green of Durham, saw no action Thursday but will meet Comer Hobbs of Charlotte today. The No. 3 seed, Greensboro's Ed Hudgins, meets Ted Keesler of Charlotte today after stopping Frank Redding of Asheboro 6-3, 6-2 Thursday.

TOUGH SADDLE

By MATT STUART

© By Matt Stuart, 1959; from the Dodd, Mead & Co. novel; distributed by King Features Syndicate.

CHAPTER 21

Leaving the town of Garrison, Link Asbell struck into the climbing lift of the Saddlebacks. He rode with a greater caution than he had known in a long time.

"His glance roved ceaselessly, constantly probing, constantly searching, and when he finally moved out of the short-brush slopes into the shelter of the first belt of timber, he slacked down in his saddle and let go a small sigh of relief.

Holding the buckskin to a short breather he tested the world close about. The massed timber was still and drowsing, with sunlight striking through here and there, spilling pools of pale gold across the forest floor. While the building warmth of the day baked out a piney essence that was both wild and fragrant. It was, he mused, hard to reconcile the savage realities of the moment with a world as serene as this.

In his mind there existed no slightest doubt of the basic responsibility for the shootings of Packy Lane and Nels Madison.

Cold logic pointed only one way. At Double Diamond, which, of course, meant Jonas Dalmar and Bardo Sampson. Neither committing the direct act, but ordering it, and therefore fully as responsible as the skulker who actually aligned the sights and pulled the trigger.

Of this, Asbell was thoroughly convinced. Lacking direct proof, however, it would serve no decisive purpose to get in touch with Chris Hatfield's sheriff's office.

It came to Link Asbell with grim convincingness in this moment of solitary summing up that there could never be any compromise with Double Diamond so long as Jonas Dalmar and Bardo Sampson lived, or until the outfit itself was so thoroughly broken up and weakened it could never be considered again as a factor of any importance.

Advancing from this premise, it was obvious that there was but one way to meet the Double Diamond challenge, and that was by fighting fire with fire, by turning all that was sent, with interest! Not to the extreme of shooting men in the back. But by looking them in the eye and facing them down, and if they wanted to argue it out on such terms, so be it!

He set the buckskin to movement again, heading north and seeking higher elevation. His way skirted ridge points, dipped in and out of gulches, crossed small flats and benches, and traced the edges of hill meadows.

Reaching the elevation he had worked toward, Asbell stayed at it, and in time picked up the first echoes of axes at work in a timber thicket. As he came closer there sounded the tearing, rush and muffled crash of a fallen tree.

When the sound of this had thinned and gone away, he lifted a short call, got his answer, and rode in to see Hughie Logan, Cuff Tilton and Dutch Stauber starting to trim out the newly felled tree. Three other trimmed ones lay nearby.

"Pretty hefty stuff," Asbell observed. "You aiming to build a line cabin or a fort?"

"These are sills," Cuff Tilton explained. "Rest will be smaller stuff. Ain't no sense in building a cabin unless it's done right, and to do it right you got to have a good foundation of big sills.

"Likewise and besides," Hughie Logan suggested cheerfully, "if you're aiming to criticize the efforts of three honest cowhands who are raisin' a crop of blisters whilst doing hard, menial toil, crawl down off that horse, grab yourself an ax, and demonstrate."

Asbell smiled. "I can do that, too."

Throughout the balance of the day he labored with the others, and found the hours good ones. The circle of the hills, high and clean against the sky; the warm pressure of the sun filtering through the timber to start the sweat and loosen a man's muscles; the raw, rich tang of new-cut pine and fir—all cleared a man's mind and made his thoughts run easier.

At midday, Cuff Tilton cooked coffee and laid out thick, cold-steak sandwiches. After eating they loafed and smoked for half an hour, then picked up their tools again.

By the time afternoon was done, the new cabin was taking form, the sills squared and trued and securely set, and the first logs of the walls in place.

They cached their tools and while the others set out direct for Big Five headquarters, Asbell angled south, where the lights of Running M. glittered through the early dark.

Here, Asbell found Rupe Hahn's challenge coming out to meet him, and when, satisfied with Asbell's answer, Rupe showed himself, first starshine glittered on the barrel of the rifle he had over his arm.

"Just aiming to be a little careful," Rupe explained gruffly. "Two different riders I see driftin' 'em was close in. I had to get the glasses to make out who they were. But the way things been going — well —" Rupe shrugged.

"Quite right," Asbell approved. "Keep on being careful, Rupe. Nels—he's still coming along good?"

"Better and better. Doc Jerome, he went back to town a couple of hours ago. He'll be out again tomorrow for a check. He told Mandy there wasn't any need of him staying on tonight, what with Nels doing so good."

"Those two riders you saw—who were they?" Asbell probed. "One was Frank Dalmar," Rupe answered carefully. "He cut across our land lower down and headed into the hills. I watched for him to show again, but he never did. The other one was way out in the plain, heading north, toward your range. Even with the glasses I couldn't be too sure about him. But if I had to make a guess, I'd say it was that funny built Double Diamond hand—Wiley Goss."

Through the small run of time it took to spin up and light a smoke, Asbell brooded over Rupe Hahn's words. Two Double Diamond riders, prowling the range. That such as Wiley Goss should be doing so, was, all things considered, understandable.

But what about Frank Dalmar? What would he be doing in the Saddlebacks? No part of these hills was Double Diamond range, and no Double Diamond stock was in them.

That Frank might have had anything directly to do with the gulching of Packy Lane and Nels Madison, was an angle that had never entered Link Asbell's mind until this moment. However, bluntly considered on the basis of time and opportunity, he easily could have.

One fact lay stark and clear. Double Diamond riders were off their own range and powdering the dust of trails on the lands of other men. And one of these riders was Frank Dalmar.

As he put these facts and thoughts together, dismal chill crawled up inside Link Asbell. Light shone strong in a kitchen window of the Running M. ranch-house. Watching, Asbell saw Sue Vincent's head and shoulders pass back and forth several times as she moved about, readying supper.

At the distance he could not catch her full expression. But he could tell that it was one of soberness. The impact of brutal events had brought this mood to her.

The yellow glow of lamplight built a shining nimbus about her bared head, and as always, she moved with that smooth, unconscious grace which, in his eyes, no other woman ever matched.

Asbell gathered up his reins, hauled the buckskin around. "Keep on being careful, Rupe," he cautioned again. "Anyone on legitimate business will come directly in. If they prowling the edges, throw a shot at them."

An order is issued, "If you see Asbell along a trail, do a better job on him than you did on Nels Madison!" as the story continues here tomorrow.

NOSE AT WORK

CLIFTON, N. J. (AP) — Dr. Oliver L. Marton is always sticking his nose into somebody else's research. He's the chief tester-called the "sniffer"—for a perfume manufacturer.

Little Hamlet Tapped For Site Nuclear Power Plant

PEACH BOTTOM, Pa. (AP) — This tiny farming hamlet in south-central Pennsylvania, filled with serenity, suddenly has been plunged into the hectic race for nuclear development.

Peach Bottom, population 1,362, Thursday was announced as the site for the world's first high temperature, gas-cooled nuclear power plant.

The Atomic Energy Commission said in Washington that it contracted with the Philadelphia Electric Co. and the General Dynamics Corp. for development of the 24½-million-dollar plant.

The commission said that operation of the plant at higher and more efficient temperatures than now used holds promise for accelerating development of economic nuclear power.

AEC Chairman John A. McCone added that "we have confidence that when this reactor is completed the United States can expect to be several years ahead of other countries in this very important nuclear development."

The plant will be built on a 630-acre tract fronting the Susquehanna River's west bank. It will house a graphite-moderated, helium-cooled nuclear reactor designed to produce 40,000 kilowatts. Construction is expected to be completed by Oct. 1, 1963.

One of the members of Peach Bottom's board of township supervisors appeared very unexcited about the reactor. William T. Montgomery said he couldn't see how the plant "can benefit our area terribly much. I guess there's no harm in having it here."

Another board member, Samuel E. Gemmill, said he was for anything that's good for the community. "But if it isn't I'm not for it. I do think there ought to be another meeting with these people (the AEC and the firms involved) so that we can learn more about their plans."

The construction was viewed as a step forward by the Burgess of Delta, a community three miles from Peach Bottom.

"I think the plant may do our community some good financially," said Burgess Kelley Asbury. The new reactor will give Pennsylvania two nuclear power plants. The world's first atomic plant for peacetime uses is located in Shippingport in western Pennsylvania.

Bank Ran Out Of Its New Pennies

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The Federal Reserve Bank here, which serves the Carolinas, has run out of pennies. Citizens got the mistaken idea that a new design contained an error, making the penny a collector's item.

The new design bears the legend "United States of America." The small "o" in the word "of" started the rumor of an error. But the sculptor who designed the penny said the small "o" was just to relieve monotony.

Fifteen tons of pennies — 670 pounds equal $1,000 — are being rushed here, but they are not expected to arrive until Monday.

Nun Bridges Gap Between Convent, Madison Avenue

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — It's a long way—both in miles and mood—from the serenity of Hollywood's Immaculate Heart convent to the din of the slogan factories of New York's Madison Avenue.

But these two worlds apart have at least one link: Sister Mary Corita, a soft-voiced little artist who has had a brush or two with the saucy world of commerce.

Her station in life, of course, prevents her from becoming a full-time commercial artist — something she never intended to be anyway. Her job, as an art instructor since 1947 at Immaculate Heart College, takes up most of her time. But she has no reluctance about taking money now and then for her work.

"It's the same as accepting money from tuition," she said. "Every little bit helps pay the bills."

"And," she added modestly, "it really isn't very often we sell anything."

One of her silk screen prints was used last year in a national magazine series called "Great Ideas of Western Man," sponsored by a container manufacturer. She has had non-commercial spreads in Charm magazine, Newsweek, Collier's and scores of art publications. Some of her work is abstract, not at all the kind of stuff most people would expect from the hand of a nun. But she doesn't think it's so peculiar.

"Any picture is abstract," she said. "If you compare it with the subject it is drawn from. Each person decides what to put into the picture and, when somebody else decides your choice is different from his, the work is abstract."

Sister Mary Corita and Sister Magdalen Mary are trying to expand their department. They are in a basement now.

It's a respectable sort of basement. Sister Mary Corita said, "but it just isn't big enough. We'll have to have new art buildings. The fire department and the building inspector want us to move."

The two sisters have plugged their school on a number of tours. Right now, Sister Mary Corita has three art shows circulating, two in the United States and one in Canada.

Their work isn't attracting money yet. But they hope it will at least continue attracting attention. Then, eventually, it may attract some large grants—and they can get out of that basement.

Hodges Opposes Promotion Movement At Asheville

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Hodges says he has no knowledge of any movement to launch him as a vice presidential candidate during the Southern Governor's Conference at Asheville in October.

"I'd be terribly embarrassed by anything to advance Hodges," the governor told his news conference Thursday.

First Presbyterian Announcements

The Reverend Richard R. Gammon, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, returns to the pulpit Sunday, August 30, after an absence of a few weeks while he was on vacation. "The Man God Called a Fool" is the topic of the sermon to be delivered by him.

Ushers for September are: Carl P. Pierce, Chairman; Jack C. Gates, Dr. W. E. Roseveare and Dan Johnston.

On Wednesday night, September 2, at 8:00 o'clock Mr. Gammon will conduct the pre-Circle Bible Study for moderators and others wishing to attend.

The Youth Groups of this Church will resume their regular Sunday night meetings on Sunday night, September 6.

The Senior High and Pioneer Fellowship groups of this church are invited to the Youth Week programs at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights, August 31-September 2, at 7:30 o'clock.

The public is invited to worship at this church.

He said this when asked to comment on a report by Washington columnist Robert S. Allen that Hodges is being pushed as a candidate for vice president. Allen wrote there are indications an effort will be made to set Hodges' campaign in motion at the conference.

"I have no interest...except to do the best job of hosting I can" at the conference, Hodges declared.

The governor said he agrees with comments by State Democratic Chairman Woodrow W. Jones about National Chairman Paul Butler, Hodges said Butler "talks when he ought to be listening."

Jones criticized Butler for proposing that the Democratic National Committee re-adopt a rule pledging state party organizations to support the party's national candidates.

Tobacco Queen Entries Gather

MOUNT AIRY, N.C. (AP)—Twenty-three girls from the Carolinas and Georgia were arriving here today for the opening of the two-day National Tobacco Queen Contest.

Miss Martha Rae Williams of Myrtle Beach, S.C., the current national tobacco queen, will reign over the events until the new queen is chosen Saturday night.

The new queen will receive $31,000, a $600 scholarship to an Atlanta charm and modeling school, and a trip to Charleston, S.C.

Turkish Ambassador Suat Hayri Ural will be introduced at a Four-State Tobacco Luncheon Saturday at which Secretary of State Thad Eure will preside.

Hodges, in reply to another question, stoutly defended state ABC Chairman William S. Hunt, who was criticized recently by two discharged employees. Hodges said, "I glory in his having the spirit and courage to do what he thinks is right and cleaning out his organization if it needs it."

Speeders Were Close To Home

CRANSTON, R.I. (AP)—Police put their radar equipment to work after receiving complaints of automobiles speeding through residential areas.

They announced the results Thursday: most of the speeding was being done by motorists living in the neighborhood from which the complaints came.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market relapsed into sluggishness and uneven prices early this afternoon. Stocks showed no inclination to follow through on Thursday's advance, the best of the week.

Key stocks showed gains or losses going from fractions to about a point. Profits were taken on many of Thursday's big gainers, emphasizing the trading nature of the Thursday advance.

Turnover slipped under the rate of the preceding session. The steel, motor and aluminum showed a hedge-podge of small gains or losses.

Aircraft and electrical equipments displayed a string of plus signs. Rails, oils, tobacco and nonferrous metals were irregular. Westinghouse Electric picked up a couple points.

Chrysler showed a loss of nearly a point to a small fraction. With the steel labor talks in recess the major steelmakers were mostly lower. U.S. Steel was down about a point.

Southern Pacific, up about a point, stood out in a do-nothing rail section.

Allied Chemical, General Dynamics and Caterpillar were about a point higher. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was unchanged at $231.29 with the industrials off 10 cents, the rails unchanged and the utilities up 10 cents.

Start Practicing A Law Not Yet On The Books

They said it couldn't be done but yesterday in Superior Court a local lawyer and Judge started practicing a law that, as yet, is not in the law books.

Charles Whedbee, local lawyer and Recorder's Court Judge gained permission in open court to dismiss an appeal made in a law suit in which he was the attorney for the plaintiff.

According to Whedbee, the case had been tried and the verdict returned in favor of the plaintiff for the amount sued for, and the defendant in the case gave notice of appeal to the Supreme Court but did not perfect his appeal.

According to the old law, in order to dismiss the appeal, it had to be docketed and dismissed at the next meeting of the Supreme Court in Raleigh. It was noted the Court meets only twice a year.

With the new law, Whedbee commented, if a person does not perfect his appeal, "... it shall be the duty of the presiding Judge, upon motion by the appellee, to enter an order dismissing such appeal; provided the appellant has 'even given' at least five (5) days notice of such motion."

This new law means, Whedbee said, a person may now collect in a suit immediately if the defendant fails to perfect his appeal rather than waiting several months for the Supreme Court to convene.

There is a small expense for practicing laws that are not "in the book" however. A certified copy of the law must be obtained from the Secretary of State, at a small fee—$3.50.

The new law, House bill 599, was passed during the past session of the legislature and, with the other laws enacted by the group, has not been published in book form as yet, but, never-the-less, is still the law.

Both Drivers In Wreck Charged

Both drivers in a collision at the intersection of Fourth and Washington Sts. yesterday were charged by police, one for operating a motor vehicle without a license and the second for failing to stop for a red light.

According to investigators, a car operated by Dorcas Clayton Highsmith of Route 2, Winterville, allegedly failed to stop for a red light at the intersection and struck a car driven by Will Hech, 18-year-old Negro, reportedly from New York State.

Hech, according to officers, had no operators license.

No one was injured in the collision and damage to the cars was set at $125.

Light damage was reported by officers when a pick-up truck, parked on Dickinson Ave just West of the intersection of Boyd, rolled down-grade and struck a car driven by Lindsay Earl Kittrell of Route 2, Box 96B, Greenville.

Investigating officers said the driver of the truck, William E. Hill of 1102 West Third St., an employee of the city, was answering a service call to 1304 Dickinson Ave. and was out of the truck at the time.

No charges were placed by officers and no damage was reported to the truck.
