Jones Still Believes Highway Bill Was 'Useful'

State Rep. Walter Jones has said he doesn't want to engage in a controversy with Sen. Lindsay Warren of Beaufort County but he still feels his highway commission reorganization bill served "a useful purpose." Rep. Jones spoke out in the wake of a statement by Warren concerning the construction of Alligator River, Oregon Inlet and Cape Fear River bridges. Warren has been quoted as saying there was no politics in the announcement of the bridge construction. Jones had indicated earlier that he felt introduction of his defeated Highway Commission reorganization bill speeded up the bridge building decision.

Give Kiddies A Luncheon Treat

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

LET'S FACE IT. Many a mother is glad to see her small fry back at school again. After a summer of trying to think up answers to the perennial question, "What can I do now, Mommy?" having youngsters busy away from home is the answer to a mother's dream.

And mothers needn't feel one bit guilty. The kids are usually just as glad to get back into the school swing as older folk are eager to have them there.

But mothers are notably of two minds. Even if they can live without having their children around every minute of every day, they'll knock themselves out preparing something special for small fry to enjoy at meals.

If your youngsters come home to lunch, they'll get a big bang out of some occasional fanciful food. One idea has always intrigued us. We once had an avocado salad with a ticktacktoe decoration served to us at a New York restaurant. Since then we've used this "game" idea in amusing garnishes. Here's our latest: Ticktacktoe Sandwiches. Serve them for lunch one day soon after school begins along with a nutritious vegetable creamed soup. Double the recipe and use it sometime for your own group of friends for an evening snack.

TICKTACKTOE SANDWICHES

Ingredients: 1-4 cup mayonnaise-type salad dressing, 1-4 teaspoon prepared mustard, 1-4 cup finely diced celery, 1 can (6½ ounces) tuna (chunk style), sliced bread, pimiento or cooked beets (plain or pickled), stuffed green olives or tiny mushrooms (plain or pickled from can or jar).

Method: Mix the salad dressing and mustard; add celery. Drain tuna lightly; mix in. Toast bread if you like; spread tuna over surface of slices—we use 6 slices of thinly-sliced bread. Cut pimiento or beets in strips. Make a ticktacktoe design over each piece of bread and tuna, making lines and crosses with pimiento or beets and using olives or mushrooms for circles. Makes six open sandwiches.

FANCY AND WHOLESOME . . . Youngsters will get a kick out of tuna sandwiches with ticktacktoe decoration, served with milk and carrot sticks.

Wool Blanket Days Are Gone

RALEIGH—Do you remember when there was a wool blanket on every bed?

Those days were not too far back, but nevertheless those days are past, according to Miss Julia McIver, clothing specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service.

Now, we rely on electric bed coverings, or blankets made of manmade fibers to keep the chill off at night. Over the past 10 years, our blanket habits have undergone considerable change. We see those changes reflected in blanket production.

Ten years ago, there were 14 million yards of all-wool blankets produced. By 1957, the amount dwindled to six million.

Cotton blanket production surpassed wool blankets each year during the 10-year period.

But neither "traditional fiber" is holding its own against the rapid growth of manmade fibers. By 1956, rayon blankets were as numerous as wool and cotton blankets combined.

Other manmade fibers—Acrlan, Orlon, Dynel—are now of considerable importance in the blanket world. Electric bed coverings which are popular now don't depend on fiber for warmth so many are made of the manmade fibers.

In 1958, we were buying 3½ times as many bed coverings as we bought in 1949, reported Miss McIver.

The Rapidly Changing Role Of U.S. Women

NEW YORK (AP)—Larger families, younger brides and more working wives.

These are the big changes noted in a study of American womanhood by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. The study, covering the last 20 years, showed:

—In 1940, one in five women at ages 18 and 19 were married; today the ratio is one in three. In the 20-24 age group more than two-thirds are married today, compared with only one half in 1940.

—The birth rate for third and fourth children in a family has more than doubled since 1940, and that for fifth children almost doubled, indicating larger families.

—Nearly one third of the wives about 13 million—are in the labor force today. In the 45-54 age group, nearly two out of every five married women work outside

That makes six recent additions to State Bank services and facilities, counting the remodeling of the Five Points bank as the first. Others are the Circle Office, the Down Town Drive In, the employment of a Farm Representative and the creation of the Trust Department, also located on the second floor.

For this growth, and for the bank's growth in deposits and loans, we thank you.

New York Tour Invites Couples

HOSTESSES . . . Miss Betsy Karsnak, Miss Susie Pope, and Miss Betty LeConte, left to right, make finishing touches to the refreshment table prior to their party yesterday.

To acquaint the incoming freshmen from Greenville with the ways and traditions of Woman's College, Misses Betty LeConte, Susie Pope, and Betsy Karsnak, rising seniors at the college, entertained informally at the home of Miss Karsnak Thursday afternoon.

Honored guests included Misses Jane Blue, Mildred Coleman, Dorothy Davis, Catherine Moore, Kathryn Oakes, and Katherine Raynor. Also present was Miss Bunny Overton, a rising sophomore.

Guests were served from a table featuring a gold and white motif, the traditional colors of WC. Refreshments included a golden parilly punch, pecan puffs, assorted sandwiches, watermelon pickles, and salted nuts.

Upon leaving, each girl received a decorated coat hanger, a gift from the Pitt County Alumni Association of Woman's College.

Don't Try To Rival Last Rose Of Summer

IF SUMMER is still in your heart, leave it there. But, heavens-to-Betsy if the tan has faded on your legs and arms, do something about it.

When one goes back to work after a vacation tanned to a toast color, it is an exhilarating experience that somehow postpones the cooler weather. But it is inevitable that cooler breezes will blow, and we will be shades lighter in just a few days.

Pale Legs

Many girls continue to go bare legged long after that time has elapsed, and their white legs are in sharp contrast to darker clothes. Ditto the girls who continue to wear sleeveless, scoop-necked dresses after their arms have whitened.

The decision must be made: Either darken your skin with make-up or give up to the ghost. It's time to think about lighter makeup and darker clothes.

Here are some ways to taper off the summer look: Wear stockings. Seamless styles will still give you a sleek legged look unmarred by seams.

Streaked Hair
If hair is sunbleached, streaked and uneven and you don't like the growing-in effect use one of the new color shampoos or rub oil into the hair to darken it or pomade brighten it. The choice must be based on the condition of the hair.

Use tan powder and bright lipstick over your face and neck until the tan disappears evenly. The first days of a tan fade are likely to be harrowing because of the mottled look of the skin. A deep foundation and powder should be used until the skin pales completely. Put more emphasis on eyebrows. Use an eye liner to emphasize the eyes, and with the bright lipstick this should call attention from the skin.

This is a good time too, for recollections about the summer, so that you do not make the same mistakes next year. Jot down in your diary or write a note to yourself and put it in a favorite spot listing all your little summer grievances. Such notations as: "next year, do not get red for the beach. Too hot." Or "do not need to spend so much on beach togs" or "sun lotion didn't work. Try another." These reminders may save you time and money next year when you plan that two weeks away from the daily grind.

Pickles, Relishes Add Zest, Sparkle To Meal

RALEIGH—Add zest to your meals with plenty of pickles and relishes. They are wholesome food if properly made and there are some vitamins hidden away in the cucumbers and vegetables.

Their bright colors and crisp texture lend interest and sparkle to a meal which might otherwise be bland and uninteresting. The pickle's sweet-sour and spicy flavors are excellent appetite stimulators. They add that certain finishing touch to the good food you serve.

According to Miss Iola Pritchard, food conservation specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service, cucumbers are still available on the market for pickling.

Use fresh clean cucumbers. Be sure that you remove any trace of the dried blossom which may have adhered to the blossom end. Sort the cucumbers according to size. Don't bruise them in handling. Use cider vinegar for flavor or white vinegar for color. Dairy salt is best for brining. Use fresh spices and soft water. A ten per cent brine solution is best. Properly cured cucumbers make pickles of best quality but this does require time and work. It's possible to make quick process pickles but they are less crisp and the flavor is different.

Miss Pritchard advises tying whole spices in a bag and removing them before pickles are packed. Powdered spices tend to darken pickles and relishes. Whole spices, if left in the jar, will not only darken the pickles but may cause some off-flavor.

WAX IT

The same wax recommended for use on refrigerators and other appliances is fine for cleaning steel cabinets. It cleans and protects their finish.

Newspapers are good insulating material for keeping picnic foods hot or cold for short periods of time. Use several layers wrapped tightly about tray of ice cubes or a hot dish.

Miss Ada Jones announced that the five day bus tour leaving Greenville October 18 is now available to married couples as well as women of Greenville and vicinity.

Theatre tickets are being ordered this weekend for theatre parties to "My Fair Lady" and "The Music Man." All who wish to attend these Broadway productions should contact Miss Jones at once. Plans are underway for a day tour to Hyde Park and the famous Roosevelt Library. Free television show tickets will also be available for distribution to members of the tour.

A Change, Despite Those Protests

Members of the State Highway Commission and influential political friends of Gov. Hodges and the Commission are going to a great deal of trouble, it seems to us, to reassure the people of North Carolina that no events in recent months have had one thing to do with actions and activities of that commission.

Particularly have they taken pains to assert indignantly that there is absolutely no politics connected with or associated with the Highway Commission.

While all this may be true, it appears they are going to a great deal of trouble to impress that fact upon the people of North Carolina. After all Tar Heels have watched the workings of Highway Commissions for several decades now. They have seen a number of organizational changes, and have watched particularly the most recent change from the 14-man commission to the 7-man commission which Gov. Hodges said was made to take politics out of the Highway Commission and vice versa.

All of this high-sounding praise for the "non-political" Highway Commission notwithstanding, it is obvious that the Commission has adopted new tactics toward public opinion since it was suggested in the 1959 legislature that a return to the 14-man commission would bring highway affairs back closer to the people.

Prior to that time the Commission was an aloof body that few people around the state ever saw as a group. As soon as the bill of Rep. Walter Jones of Pitt hit the legislative hopper, however, Highway Commissioners were out of their home communities moving through the state to see people and feel out the sentiment toward the new commission. Of course it could have been just coincidence that the Commissioners began sampling public opinion at the same time the Jones reorganization bill was introduced, in spite of the fact that the 7-man commission had been in operation for almost 18 months prior to that time.

Regardless of whether the bill introduced by Rep. Jones of Farmville had anything to do with the Commission's decision on bridges in this part of the state, on roads or on any other construction work, a change in the Commission's tactics in dealing with the public was apparent in short order.

Some of the contact work that previously had been left largely to division and district engineers and other highway employees has been taken over by the commissioners themselves. They have, in our opinion, done much more "getting back to the people" than was the case in the months before the last legislative session.

Maybe Rep. Jones' bill didn't have anything to do with anything the Highway Commission has done in recent months . . . but some changes have been taking place, and there is no other tangible occurrence to attribute those changes.

We Have Problems In A Growing Crime Rate

The annual crime report by the Federal Bureau of Investigation suggests that practically every state in the Union should be concerned about the increase in its own rate of crime as well as that in other states.

In North Carolina, for example, the number of major crimes increased by 2,653 in 1958 over the previous year. While the average rate of increase was not the same throughout the state, the figures point out vividly that Tar Heels are faced with the problem of an increasing number of major crimes. And while the rate of increase in North Carolina was not nearly as great as that in some other states, it does suggest that this state has its own problems with a growing criminal rate.

Once predominantly a rural state, North Carolina is rapidly becoming a state with many small cities and a few relatively large ones. Its population is going through transition from a rural to an urban people. While this does not mean that North Carolina is rearing more criminals, we cannot overlook that there is a higher rate of crime in urban areas than there are in rural areas.

Every county and community in North Carolina could well profit by comparing its current rate of crimes with those of 1958, 1957 and even with five years ago. There is no community which could not profit by seeking out the causes of its increased crime rate, and effecting measures designed to attack the crimes at their source.

The Strays Hurt Sam Rayburn

WASHINGTON (AP) — Speaker Sam Rayburn is the shepherd of the House Democrats. But every once in a while President Eisenhower gets his goat.

Seven times this year—144 times since taking office in 1953—Eisenhower has used his veto to kill a measure passed by Congress. Never yet has Rayburn been able to round up enough votes to override him.

He tried twice this year and failed. This must be going to the 77-year-old Texan who has the greatest Democratic flock since early New Deal days. It's the strays who ruin him.

Most of the strays on vetoes have been Southern Democrats. Passing a bill needs only a simple majority vote of House and Senate. But passing a bill into law over a presidential veto requires approval of two-thirds of those present at voting time in both houses.

In the Senate there are 100 members—65 Democrats, 35 Republicans—and a full two-thirds would be 67; in the House there are now 436 members—284 Democrats, 153 Republicans—and a full two-thirds would be 291.

Thus, despite their huge numbers, the Democrats would lack a two-thirds vote on any veto—by a handful—even if the full membership of both parties was voting.

And they couldn't get the two-thirds unless the Democrats voted solidly together and a few Republicans joined them. But the full membership of the two parties almost never votes at any one time.

And Democrats almost never vote solidly. So, when less than the full membership is voting on overriding a veto, the outcome is tight and ticklish, particularly if some Democrats wander over to the Republican side.

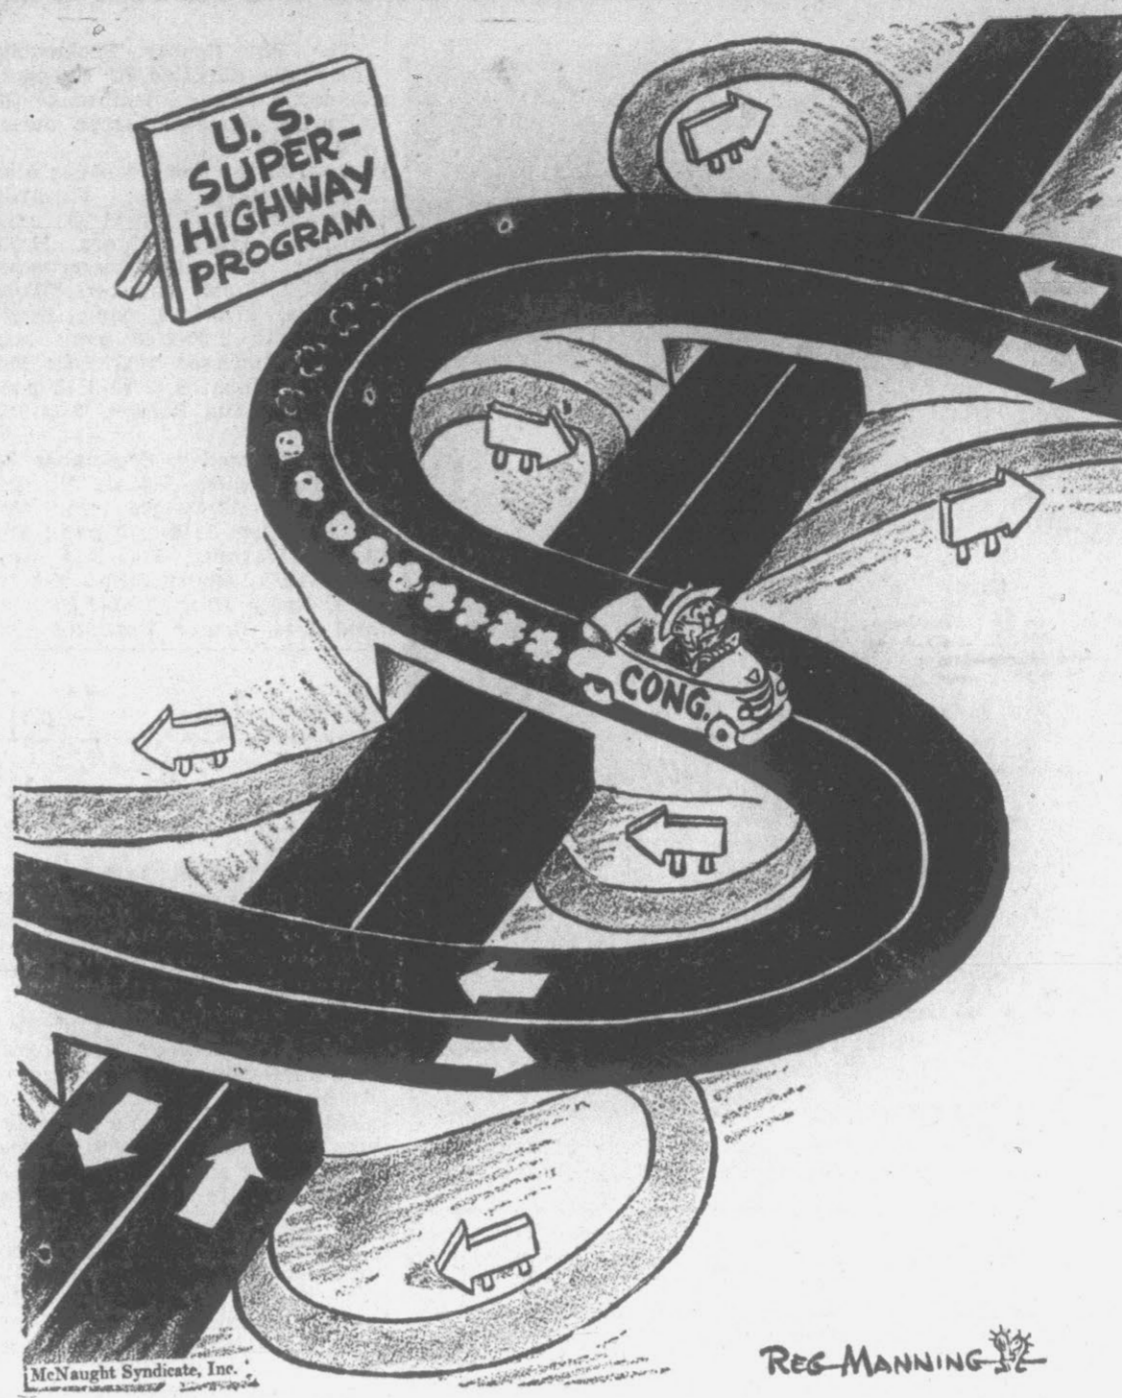

For example, this year Congress passed a $1,216,000,000 flood control bill to pay for reclamation and other water projects all over the United States.

Without Barden and the courage, power and determination of his football days at the University of North Carolina, the labor bill might still be buried in committee. Barden and a small band of legislators who agreed with him that a bill must be reported—they did the trick. —Asheville Citizen-Times.

"In the House at Washington, after the hard-fought battle brought victory to the Landrum-Griffin bill, Chairman Graham A. Barden of the House Labor Committee was hailed as the man who somehow said the right word at the right time, and did the right thing at the right time.

"A janitor was overheard to make this remark recently when discussing the subject of an uninformed person trying to teach another: 'You can't no more teach what you ain't learned than you can come back from where you ain't been.' —Greenville (S.C.) Piedmont.

A Cloverleaf Can Be Confusing

By DON SCHLIENZ

The Hunt For N. C. Oil

Off and on they've been hunting for oil in North Carolina since 1911. I don't know a whole lot of the story, but the August 21 issue of Petroleum Week (a McGraw-Hill publication) carries an article about the revival of hunting for oil in the Tar Heel state.

So far, of course, no oil. But then, the seekers are now largely drilling test holes to learn more about the underground layout of the Coastal Plains section.

According to this Petroleum Week piece, there hasn't been any drilling hereabouts since 1953, when two dry holes were the result. So far this year a total of ten holes have been drilled for two operators. These were all shallow (2,000 feet or less). But they say the companies who are exploring are studying the information thus far collected.

Seven of these holes were drilled in the Lake Mattamuskeet area, Hyde County; and three were drilled north of Jacksonville, in the Hoffman Forest, Onslow County.

Two more holes may be drilled shortly in Onslow, once some preliminary problems are resolved.

And while they haven't come up with anything yet, the magazine article says "Geophysical studies and drilling to date point to the possibility of petroleum accumulation in the coastal plain area."

So that old dream isn't dead yet. The deepest probe for oil in North Carolina was made near the tip of Cape Hatteras in the summer of 1946. That one went 10,054 feet. No trace of oil or gas.

Other drillings have been in Pamlico Sound, about eleven miles south of Roanoke Island (1947) and in Camden County drillers had a "gas show" at 6,421 feet (1953).

The article goes on to say that "from the standpoint of known structures and thick marine sections, the northeast quarter of the state seems to hold the greatest potential. But much drilling and further geological and geophysical work will be necessary to provide better understanding of the geology in the area."

Incidentally, exploration does not come cheap. On another page (this was a real "reading day" for me) one learns a company spent over $4 millions on one dry hole in Alaska this year; the same firm drilled a $490,000 dry hole in New Mexico last year. And the company's dry hole expenditures in 1958 totalled over $35.5 millions when 147 tests were drilled.

So it strikes me that when anybody is willing to gamble what must be a very sizeable amount of money on such an unknown quantity as Tar Heel oil prospects, they must have a reason.

Much can happen between now and convention time. And the name of Luther Hodges might be lost in the shuffle or it might gain more prominence as time passes.

Featherbedding, A Rising Issue

By ELMER ROESSNER You'll read a lot about featherbedding in the next two months.

Years ago, when most beds were made of straw, he who slept in a featherbed had it soft.

Today one who has a job with no work, or who gets more than a day's pay for a day's work, or who is paid to perform unnecessary work, has a "featherbed."

There are many such jobs. Shipping firms must hire stevedores for whom there is no work. Government workers compile statistics no one ever looks at. Railroad pay firemen with no fires to tend.

One estimate puts the cost of featherbedding at $2 billion a year. This is passed on to consumers in higher prices, or taken out of stockholders' profits.

RAILROADS BALKING You will hear more about featherbedding because American railroads have agreed to resist it in negotiating contracts with operating unions to replace those expiring November 1. Three years ago the railroads agreed to drop the featherbedding issue until the present time.

A dramatic example of featherbedding was described by Albert R. Beatty, vice president of the Association of American Railroads, who said the engineer on a four-hour trip between Washington and New York gets two-and-one-quarter days' basic pay each way, collecting four and a half days pay for a little more than eight hours running time.

Railroad spokesmen cite another instance: The Burlington Zephyr makes the 1,000-mile run between Chicago and Denver in a little over 16 hours. But under union contracts, there must be eight train crews with each member getting more than ten days pay.

THREE COSTLY OVERRIDERS Still another: The Burlington sent out a self-propelled shovel to repair the tracks at Riverside, Ill. Even though the shovel was operated by a maintenance man, the railroad had to send along an engineer, brakeman and conductor at a cost of $58.54. The three extra men had to ride outside the one-seat shovel cab and, "we'd rather have them stay at home where they wouldn't get hurt." J.E. Wolfe, vice president, told the Wall Street Journal.

The Interstate Commerce Commission, in a study of featherbedding after the three-year moratorium, found that a passenger conductor on a train between Minneapolis and Milwaukee, a distance of 346 miles, had been paid $16.69 a day until the "truce" was signed, when his pay jumped to $38.50 a day.

States often incorporate featherbedding rules into laws.

MANDATORY FEATHERBEDS Fourteen states require railroads to carry a third brakeman on freight trains, a requirement necessary in the days of hand brakes. Other states require railroads to maintain full-time employees at depots even though there is little or no business except at harvest time.

Your reporter was once a beneficiary of a featherbedding law. A California law required every train to carry a baggage-man to prevent railroads from making brakemen do that job as well). Your boy, a peanut butcher selling chocolate bars and soda to rarely interested passengers, got 50 cents a trip from Oakland to Sacramento signing his name as baggage-man. There was no baggage to handle; your boy always told passengers to carry their own suitcases.

Now the railroads are rebelling against featherbedding. Will they end it? Will young Doctor Hausenpeffer believe Margaret's story? Will Legs O'Brien get the safe open in time? Read tomorrow's column for more on featherbedding. Or better yet, stay in bed.

EUROPE LOVES THOSE AMERICAN BROILERS America broke its own export record of fresh and frozen chickens during the first half of this year, new figures show. A total of 39,500,000 pounds was exported. That was three and a half times as much as was exported in the first half of 1958.

West Germany was the best customer, taking 10,500,000 pounds, followed by Switzerland with 8,300,000.

Lighter Side Of A Story

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — The Federal Bureau of Investigation is noted more for its sense of justice than its sense of humor.

That fact, of course, is inherent in the nature of its job. The task of catching thousands of criminals yearly is deadly serious work. It can be deadly dangerous, too. A number of J. Edgar Hoover's men have given up their lives in the line of duty.

But even the grimmest police work sometimes has its wryly humorous side—times when comedy for a moment obscures the tragedy.

When Warner Bros. decided to do a film dramatizing Don Whitehead's best seller, "The FBI Story," it undertook meticulous research into the bureau's operation to insure authenticity.

Here are a few of the lighter episodes in the FBI's crowded history: Agents once arrested a 19-year-old girl accused of being an accessory in a bank robbery. Under questioning she strenuously denied any knowledge of the crime.

She was told her bail would be $5,000, and agents asked where she could raise such a sum.

"Well," she said, "I guess I could rob another bank."

There was a sudden silence, which the girl broke by observing ruefully: "Oops, I shouldn't have said 'another,' should I?"

In Houston FBI agents trailed two members of a car theft ring to a hotel. Finding the door ajar, they stepped quickly into the room, told one of the surprised thieves: "We're FBI agents. You are under arrest!"

From an adjoining room came a terrified shout from the second thief: "Don't shoot! I'm clean!"

He was. He was sitting in the bathtub covered with lather.

During one recent investigation an agent served as assistant funeral director, rode in the funeral coach—and even helped in the burial of a man who was a close acquaintance of a fugitive the bureau was seeking.

Now and then a fugitive can be extraordinarily helpful to the FBI. One such was a man wanted for interstate transportation of stolen property. When arrested, he had in his pocket a

PROFILE OF DECLINE

"I saw him go step by step down into hell. I saw him lose his soul."

The man who said this was talking about a business associate who had just died. The man who had suffered this profound decline had been a man of considerable stature in the field in which he moved. Until he was fifty, he was going straight up. His success was phenomenal. And not only was he personally successful—his influence on everyone about him was marked and beneficial.

Then, as he neared fifty, he began, somehow, to slip. His drinking increased until it became a problem. He seemed to lose all sense of the influence he wielded in the circle in which he moved. He became cynical. He paid little attention to his work. He might well have given up and spent his life in a real "reading day" for me) one learns a company spent over $4 millions on one dry hole in Alaska this year; the same firm drilled a $490,000 dry hole in New Mexico last year. And the company's dry hole expenditures in 1958 totalled over $35.5 millions when 147 tests were drilled.

So said his friend when it was all over and the undertaker had been called in. He had been like the meteor which flashes across the sky and then falls a burned out and dead thing.

Step by step—down, down. And this after he had brought himself up to dazzling heights.

Most Of Them Are 'Old Hands'

By LYNN NISBET

OLD HANDS — A significant thing about the mass swearing-in of State officials the other day by Justice Clifton Moore was that most of them were old hands in public service. It is true that several had been transferred from other posts, or recaptured from temporary inactivity.

All of the administrative and advisory boards and commissions, which constitute the largest part of State government, are important. The three commonly regarded as most important, so far as impact upon the living conditions of the people and the total economy, are the State Board of Conservation and Development, the State Board of Education, and the Highway Commission. They are listed alphabetically, but many people think that also is the order of importance.

The Board of Education did not figure in the recent swearing-in, but it is remembered that all members whose terms had expired were reappointed, and the only new appointee was George D. Aitken of Charlotte, replacing Oscar Richardson of Monroe, who had resigned.

There were seven vacancies on the 18-man C&D, two occasioned by death, one by resignation, the others by expiration of term. Dan Bell of Morehead City had previously been sworn in, replacing Cecil Morris of Atlantic, resigned. Orton Boren of Greensboro and Edwin Pate of Laurinburg were named to fill the unexpired terms of Robert M. Hanes and Leo Harvey, deceased. Four other members were reappointed—W.B. Austin of Jefferson, H.C. Buchan Jr., of North Wilkesboro, H.C. Kenney of Durham, and Max Watson of Forest City.

There were four vacancies on the 7-member Highway Commission, plus a vacancy in the chairmanship. J.M. Broughton Jr. was reappointed as chairman, and Commissioner Robert Bunnelle, J.W. Mason and J. Lee White were reappointed for four-year terms. Ralph T. Morris of New Bern was named to succeed E.L. White, deceased.

NEW BLOOD — Morris is the only really new man in the list. He is no stranger to non-governmental public service, having been active in civic affairs at both local and statewide levels. Bell, Boren and Pate will find their duties on the C&D board not much different from those encountered in previous legislative and administrative activities. The field of operations has been broadened. C&D is a sort of catch-all for matters affecting everybody in the state.

Other departments — Agriculture, Education, Health, Highways, Insurance, Labor, Revenue, Water Resources, Welfare, etc.—have extensive, but well limited, spheres of responsibility. The very term "conservation and development" of all resources, economic, human and physical, includes everything in which primary responsibility is vested in another agency and all the things which have no specific agency to handle.

MANAGERS — The spectators who came to see their friends sworn in Tuesday, had opportunity to see about as many of the men who really "run North Carolina" as at any time when the General Assembly is not in session.

While the newly appointed officers were saying "I do" upstairs in the capitol, the Legislative Building Commission was in session downstairs in the conference room. That also brought some prominent folks. The dual occasion, plus the opening day of the fall term of the Supreme Court, brought to Capitol Square a large number of politicians.

There were at least four whose names have been batted around in speculation about the governorship, and an equal number of prospective seekers after the No. 2 place in State government.

CANDIDATES? — Participating in meetings upstairs and down were J.M. Broughton Jr., Edwin Gill, Edwin Pate and Malcolm Seawell, all of whom have been mentioned often as potential governors. Also Thomas J. White, Robert F. Morgan, Volt Gilmore and Ralph Howland, all frequently talked about as candidates for the second place on the State ballot.

Of course, there was no "politicizing" in the open. The prospective candidates recognized that it was not the time or the place for outright campaigning. It was noticeable, however, that all of them sought opportunity to speak to the "right" people at some time during the afternoon.

POTPOURRI — Edwin Pate asked for a copy of the oath he signed as a member of C&D board. Said he has found it in the place for a copy in his files of everything he signs. . . When Tom White was named chairman of the Legislative Building Commission, Edwin Gill suggested that maybe there ought to be a vice-chairman, and he nominated for that post Robert F. Morgan, who was unanimously elected. White and Morgan are both presumptive candidates for Lieutenant Governor. . . Attorney General Malcolm Seawell, explaining the act setting up the Legislative Building Commission, noted that it was given more power than any commission he had ever known about. For one thing, it can exercise the right of eminent domain and take private property for public use without a certificate of convenience and necessity from the Utilities Commission.

TOUGH SADDLE

By MATT STUART

© By Matt Stuart, 1959; from the Dodd, Mead & Co. novel; distributed by King Features Syndicate.

CHAPTER 27

WILEY Goss, rodent teeth bared in a killing snarl, stared for a moment at Frank Dalmar's tumbled figure, then dodged to one side and caught his horse as it would have charged past him. He fought the animal to a stop and went into the saddle once more.

The germ of panic was in Wiley Goss. This was not what he'd been sent into the saddle-backs for. His orders had been to bring Frank home, not kill him.

What to do? Steadying down a little, the basic sly, brute cunning in Goss supplied answer. Just ride away and forget it. As simple as that. Report back at Double Diamond tonight with word that he'd been unable to pick up sign of Frank anywhere. And who was to prove different? With this comforting conclusion, Wiley Goss nailed his horse around and spurred it crashing down hill. Link Asbell, following the trail of Wiley Goss, was almost directly beneath the high point when Frank Dalmar's rifle had laid its hard snarl across the slope. At the sound he set the buckskin up short and swung in the saddle, listening and peering through the shadowed timber.

Came a second report, and a third, but these were revolver shots, blunt and thudding, lacking the high, hard rattle of the rifle. On the heels of these there was a short silence, then the plunge of hoofs and the crash of hurried approach from above.

Asbell lifted the Winchester from the scabbard under his stirrup leather, flipped the lever back and forth. He saw the front legs and chest of the horse first, sight of its head and neck and its rider blocked off by low sweeping branches. Then horse and rider broke into the clear.

Asbell laid his challenge harshly. "Stay so, Goss! Just as you are!"

For a second time within the space of short minutes, Wiley Goss found himself looking into the eye of a rifle. The cold whisper of panic, almost stifled, returned as a gale wind, laden now with the knowledge of extreme guilt. It set Goss off. Again he went for his gun, while he hauled his horse up, rearing.

Link Asbell did not hesitate. All the dismal certainties were here. Kill or be killed.

Just as he turned the shot loose the upflung head and neck of Goss's horse crossed his sights, and his fear was that the horse might have taken the bullet. But the animal did not go down, though a wisp of tossing mane, clean cut, fluttered away. Beyond, gun poised for a shot, Wiley Goss was unable to finish the move. Smashed backward by a bullet ripping through the center of his chest, he went out of his saddle in a loose, sliding fall.

His horse, doubly spooked now, whirled wildly off to one side, loose reins flying. These caught and tangled in a sapling pine and the tug of them brought the animal about, snorting and blowing and wild of eye.

Mechanically, Asbell swung the lever of his rifle, his attention narrowly on the sprawled bulk of Wiley Goss. As there was no move, he stepped from his saddle and tramped over for a closer look, then soon turned away. This man was thoroughly dead.

For a little time Asbell stood in bleak thought. Then his head tipped and he looked upward through the masking timber where the first shooting had sounded. What would he find up there? Certainly something ominous. Because, by his every look and move, Wiley Goss had displayed a desperate guilt.

Asbell calmed Goss's horse, tied it more securely. Then he went back into his own saddle and set the buckskin to the steep slope, back-tracking Wiley Goss's rushing descent. And at the end of this he found Frank Dalmar.

Sight of Frank's crumpled figure jolted Asbell heavily, for he had expected anything but this. Some other man, perhaps. But not Frank Dalmar. Why? The question hit him right between the eyes. Why should Frank Dalmar and Wiley Goss have shot it out? Both were Double Diamond. It didn't make sense.

There was the faintest of moans and the slight movement of one arm.

Asbell was quickly beside Frank, turning him over, marking the extent of his hurts. A bullet hole high in the right side of the chest, another in the right leg. A swelling and a deep cut just at the hairline in the middle of the forehead, where, in falling, Frank had ploughed into a tree.

The chest wound was plainly the serious one. Between it and the leg wound Frank had already lost a lot of blood and was steadily losing more of it. And that had to be stopped.

As easily as he could manage, Asbell got Frank's shirt off, tore some of it in strips, made pads of the rest, and bandaged both wounds as best he knew how. And it was as he was finishing this that Frank's eyelids fluttered and lifted.

The vell of shock began to clear a little and Frank's lips moved. "Asbell!" he mumbled. "You—how—what—?"

"It was Goss, Frank," Asbell said. "Remember—Wiley Goss."

Frank rolled his head slightly. "That's right. Sure—Wiley Goss. Damned—dirty dog, who needs killing. And I miss—clean—at fifty feet. Don't know—how—I did. Water—I could use—some water. Thirsty—"

"I'll try and locate some as soon as I get youtled up, Frank."

"My camp—just around the point. Plenty water—there."

Frank sighed and his eyes closed again.

A camp, Frank had said, just around the point. Asbell located the well-marked trail that led to the little basin.

He judged the distance and the steepness of the slope. From where Frank lay it was not too far to his camp. It would, Asbell decided, be much easier on Frank if he carried him in, rather than try to get him across a saddle.

Frank only semiconscious and asbell carefully hoisted him over a shoulder and made the carry to camp. Here he put him carefully down, smoothed out the pile of blankets and rolled him on to the top. After which he rinsed the coffee pot at the spring and brought it back dripping.

He sloshed a little water across Frank's face, trickled more of it between his lips.

Frank gulped, stirred and came back to the world again. He murmured his relief.

"That was good—good! Now—don't you lie. How bad is it—with me?"

"That," Asbell told him soberly, "could depend on how you're handled and how soon you get proper care. The way you are now, I'd hate to take on the responsibility of trying to hold you on a horse as far as Running M, let alone town or Double Diamond. Best thing, I think, is for you to stay right here while I go for help. But it's your gamble. Which way do you want it?"

"I'll wait—here. Just leave that pot of water where—I can reach it. Decent of you, Asbell—doing this for me. Should you meet up with Goss—shoot him. Just like you would a rattlesnake. For he is one. He killed Packy Lane—and tried to kill—Nels Madison. You met him—don't trust him. Just—shoot him!"

"I've already met him," Asbell said grimly.

Frank's eyes widened. "You—met him! What happened?"

"He's dead."

Frank considered this and found it pleasing, for a twisted smile pulled at his pallid lips.

"That's good, too," he said, his voice a little stronger. "That's damned good!"

Link Asbell makes a decision. "I'm taking the corpse of Wiley Goss out and laying it

Working Against God

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Obadiah; Jonah 1-2.

The Lord told Jonah to go to Nineveh, "that great city," and rebuke it for its wickedness, which had come to His notice.—Jonah 1:1-2.

Jonah did not obey the Lord, but journeyed to the city of Joppa, and boarded a ship that was bound for Tarshish.—Jonah 1:3.

A mighty storm arose and the sailors prayed to their gods. When that failed, they put the blame on their passenger, Jonah.—Jonah 1:4-7.

They cast Jonah into the sea. A great fish swallowed him and after three days cast him up.—Jonah 1:17, 2:1-10. MEMORY VERSE—Amos 5:14.

Working Against God

JONAH DISOBEYED THE LORD'S COMMAND AND WAS PUNISHED

Scripture—Obadiah; Jonah 1-2.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

THE STORY of Jonah and the whale is probably known by the older classes of the Sunday school, but to the younger ones it may be new. From it they may learn that obedience, whether to God's guidance or to their parents, is the happiest and best way to live.

Now we must turn to the vision of Obadiah concerning Edom. The Standard Encyclopedia says Edom was the surname of Esau, who, after leaving his father's house, went to Mount Seir, which he took from the earlier inhabitants, the Horites.

The Golden Text

Jonah cast into the sea.

Pirates Plan Scrimmage Game Under Lights Tomorrow Night

By JOHNNY HUDSON
Reflector Sports Editor

Coach Jack Boone will still be trying to find his starting eleven tomorrow night when he sends his talent-laden squad through a game scrimmage under the lights at College Stadium.

The scrimmage will climax the opening week of practice and will give local folks their first and only glimpse of the Pirates until their opening home date which is slated for September 19 against Albright College. The Bucs open next Saturday at Presbyterian.

Members of the Pirates Club will be admitted to the scrimmage game free of charge and children under twelve will also be admitted free if accompanied by parents.

Rain brought a halt to yesterday's practice which had an hour scrimmage on the agenda. James Speight, Glenn Bass, and Mac Thacker picked up sizable yardage in the scrimmage which was cut short by the heavy rain. Speight and Bass, a couple of speedsters, had long scoring runs.

The Bucs were slated to work out tomorrow morning to climax their twice-daily drills and tomorrow afternoon was set aside for pictures for the visiting press and TV stations.

Boone stated that he was still undecided on his starting unit as the first week was devoted to conditioning drills and learning situations. After the scrimmage game, the Bucs will put full concentration on Presbyterian College.

Fans at tomorrow night's scrimmage will be able to see five quarterbacks in action battling for a starting berth. Ralph Zehring, the passing whiz for the past three seasons, will direct one unit and Jerry Carpenter, a letterman from last season, will probably call the signals for the other unit. Slated to make their bid for the slot will be a couple of veterans, Stuart Holland and George Turner, plus newcomer Bert Stafford.

Stafford hails from Hamlet and is a transfer from Wingate Junior College. He is expected to add a big boost to the Pirates passing attack this fall.

First Grid Tilt In Pitt County Slated Tonight

AYDEN—An inexperienced Ayden eleven will launch its 1959 football season tonight and in doing so will play the first tilt in Pitt County this fall. The game, slated for 8:00 will be played at the Ayden stadium with conference rival Havelock supplying the opposition.

Ayden, having one of their worse seasons last year, will be trying to open the new season on contention for the Coastal Class 1-A crown. Havelock is tabbed as one of the pre-season favorites in the Coastal loop.

Coach Stewart Tripp will field a young team but one with more experience than the 1958 outfit which was able to post only a single victory and a tie in nine games. The big problem confronting the Ayden coach is the lack of depth and size.

"We should do all right on offense but we may have trouble defensively," stated Tripp on the eve of his 1959 opener. "They have a big club and will outweigh us considerably. Havelock tries to run over you and with their size they have a big advantage."

Ayden will open their new season at full-strength. Several boys have been in light gear this week with pulled muscles but were slated to be ready tonight. Jesse McLawhorn, second string fullback, is the only man definitely counted out of the opener. He has a broken hand.

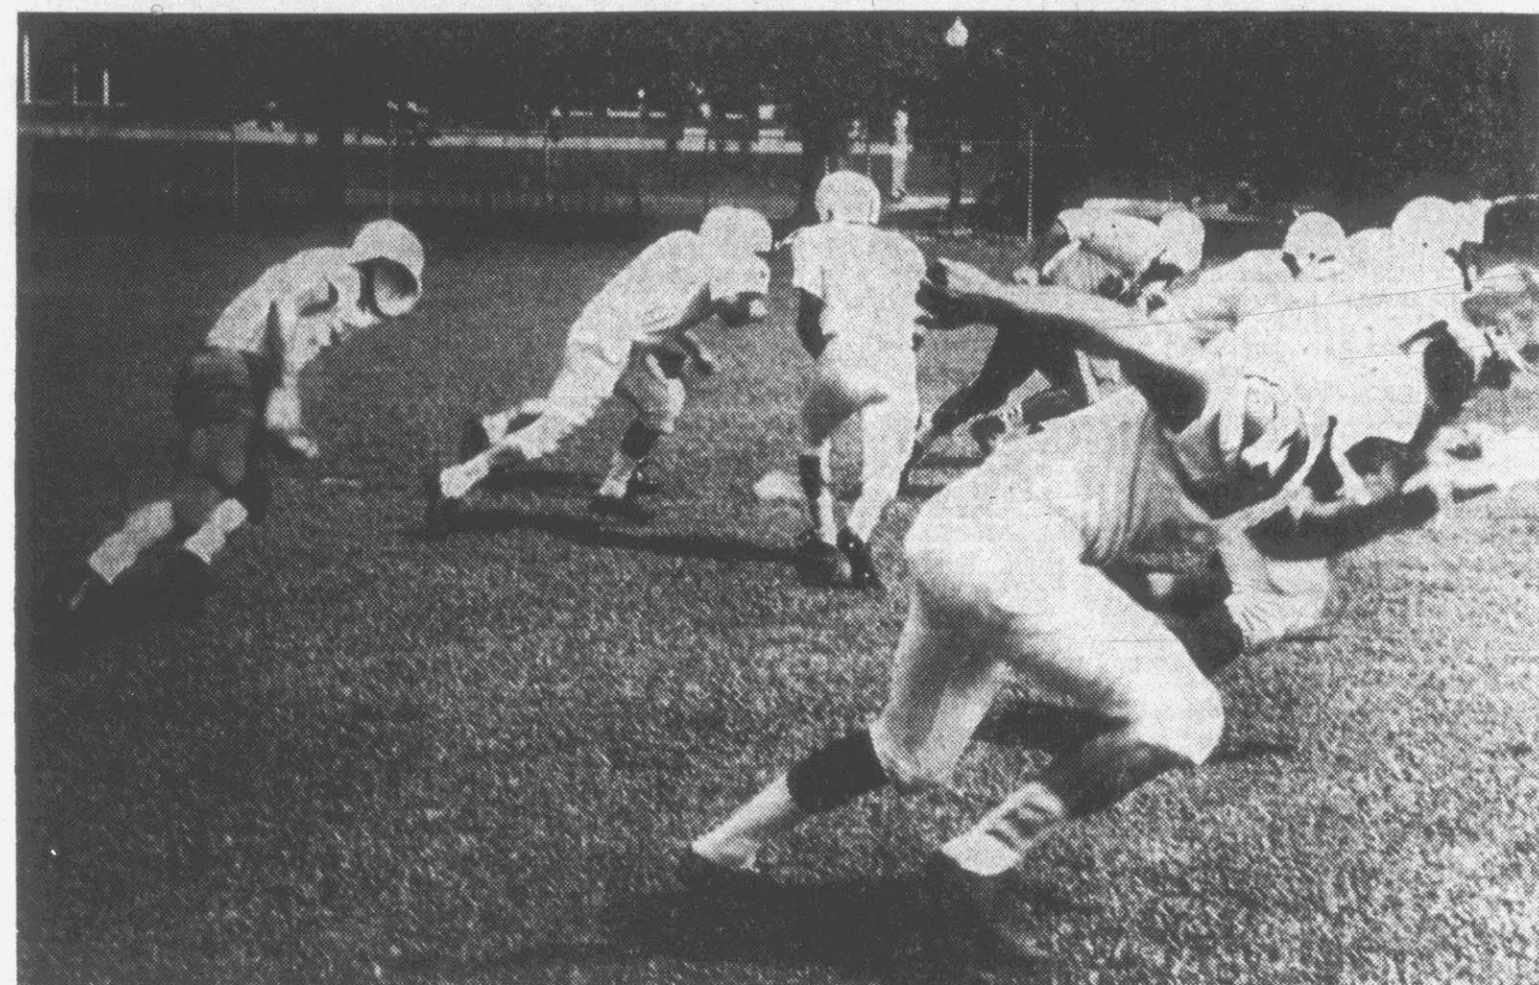

Tommy Dunn, a pint-sized sophomore, is slated to quarterback slot for the Ayden club. William Edwards will probably alternate with Dunn at this position.

Dennis Mills, 160 pounds, of packed-dynamite, will be the big man in Tripp's backfield. A veteran, Mills will be the man that Havelock will have to stop if they hope to take the young Ayden club.

The game opens the 1959 curtain for Pitt County clubs with Farmville to wait until next Friday for their season opener. Rose High of Greenville will also be idle until next Friday night when they kick-off their season against Ahoskie.

SEEKS TITLE—Don Conley, East Carolina College golfer and Greenville native, has entered the Labor Day Tournament which starts tomorrow and will be one of the favorites.

SCRIMMAGE TOMORROW . . . Ralph Zehring, veteran quarterback, is shown above with his unit. The Pirates will have a regular game scrimmage tomorrow night at the College stadium.

Games Tonight

A softball doubleheader will be played tonight at Guy Smith Stadium between the Church Softball League and the Industrial League.

The first game will be played under rules governing the slow pitch Church loop and the fast-pitch rules will be played in the second game.

The first game is slated to start at 7:30 and there will be no charge.

Len Matthews Fighting Chico Morales Tonight

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—Young Len Matthews of Philadelphia, a flashy seventh-ranked lightweight, battles Cuban champion Chico Morales tonight in a 10-rounder in Convention Hall here.

The nationally televised bout will be seen over NBC beginning at 9 p.m. EST. Matthews, 20, will be seeking his third straight victory. In his last two starts he defeated fourth-ranked Johnny Gonsalves and Candy McFarland.

But Len, who had a 19-2-1 record, failed badly last April 3 in his first competition with a top lightweight. The No. 1 ranking Carlos Ortiz stopped Matthews via a technical knockout.

Matthews' manager, Anthony Graziano, says Philadelphia promoter Herman Taylor is prepared to offer world champion Joe E. Brown the biggest purse ever to defend his crown against Matthews if Len gets past 19-year-old Morales.

If somebody's second-guessing Don Drysdale these days, it isn't the hitters. They've nailed him, and no doubt about it.

It was Drysdale who paced Los Angeles' climb into the National League pennant fight, winning 10 of 11 over two months and pitching the Dodgers within half a game of first place when he won his seventh in a row Aug. 8.

But the big right hander hasn't won since—and he's been tagged for nine home runs in 29 innings through that losing span. He had given up just 13 homers through his first 208 innings while breezing to a 15-6 record.

Lopez Can Write His Own Ticket, Asserts Veeck

CHICAGO (AP)—Bill Veeck was quoted today as saying Al Lopez can virtually write his own ticket if and when he decides to sign a contract as the White Sox field manager for 1960.

Lopez could sign a two- or three-year contract and at a raise in pay, the Chicago Sun-Times quoted the Sox president as saying.

The paper said Veeck has had preliminary talks with Lopez about next year but said Lopez indicated he would prefer to delay any contract signing until after the 1959 season.

Lopez currently is working under a one-year contract which expires this year.

Would Veeck offer Lopez a one- or three-year contract?

"That's up to Al," Veeck told the paper. "All I can say is that we'd be delighted to have him back. Of course he'd get a raise. He certainly is entitled to it."

Lopez' Sox currently are 5 1/2 games ahead of second-place Cleveland in the American League.

Playing 'Jolly' Game, But Bolt Isn't Winning

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Tommy Bolt, once the temperamental terror of professional golf, says he is playing a "jolly game" with poor results.

So far this year, Bolt said Thursday, he hasn't thrown a club, snarled at a tournament official or insulted a fan. And, he hasn't won a tournament, either.

"I just can't get started," Bolt told newsmen gathered to watch the pros limber up for the annual $20,000 Kansas City Open, which begins today.

Bolt, 1958 U.S. Open champion, said he wants one of the 10 places on the U.S. Ryder Cup team. He trails 10th-place Jackie Burke by 57 points and could pass him by winning here.

The greens at Hillcrest Country Club's 6,542-yard par 72 layout are rough, and most observers think it will take a superb putter to score on them.

The 72-hole tournament ends Labor Day.

Wilson Takes First Game From Caps

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Wilson holds a one-game lead over pennant-winning Raleigh as the teams move to Wilson for tonight's second game of the Carolina League finals playoff series. A triple by Larry Elliott with two away in the 10th inning drove in George Watts with the winning run as Wilson edged the Capitals 4-3 Thursday night at Raleigh. The third game will be played at Raleigh Saturday night. League President Bill Jessup ruled it should be a best-of-seven series, which Wilson wanted. Raleigh wanted a best-of-five. Trailing 3-1, Wilson scored a run in the sixth on Corky Glamp's homer and tied it up in the seventh. Dick Radatz and Merlin Nipper combined to hold Wilson to six hits. Raleigh got 10 off Tom Butters.

U. S. Continues To Rack Up Gold Medals

By MURRAY ROSE

CHICAGO (AP) — The Yankee giant flexed his bulging muscles for another load of gold medals today in the Pan American Games. It's almost reached the embarrassing stage for the host United States. They've invited everyone to dine but they haven't left them much to eat. The heavily manned Yank team hauled in 12 more gold medals Thursday for a total of 58. The bag is going to be heavy again when swimming, boxing, gymnastics, yachting and other events are through for the day. The other nations combined have won 17. "What can we do but go out to win," said Charlie McCaffree of Michigan State, head coach of the men's swimming team. "Our kids are so eager that they can't wait to get into the water. They feel this is putting the foot in the door for the Rome Olympics and they're determined to win." McCaffree voice the sentiments of almost every Yank coach here. There are five gold medals on tap today in each of the key sports of swimming and boxing. In the water, the United States seems a cinch to sweep all five gold medals and probably all the silver and bronze prizes too. The boxers have only two entries, 165-pounder Bobby Foster, York, Pa., and heavyweight Allen Hudson, Glen Cove, N. Y. They're favored to win. In Thursday night's first five championship fights, the United States won with light welterweight Vince Shomo of New York, middleweight Willie McClure of Toledo, Ohio, and light heavyweight Amos Johnson, a southpaw from Stockton, Calif. Even the one U. S. loser, featherweight Charlie Brown, a Marine from Cincinnati, had a beef coming. He dropped a controversial, split decision to Argentina's Carlos Aro although he forced the fight and did most of the scoring. With the 15-year-old Chris von Salza leading the way, the United States won all four water events with 1-2-3 finishes. This made it eight-for-eight. In seven of these events, the Yanks have copped all three medals. In the other, they finished 1-2-4. Miss von Salza, a tall, blonde from Saratoga, Calif., who is aiming for an unprecedented five Pan American gold medals, got her first one in the 200-meter freestyle. She won in 2:18.3, busting her own mark made in the trials. The same held true for Olympian George Breen, Indianapolis, in his winning time of 4:31.4 for the 400-meter freestyle. Olympian Frank McKinney, Indianapolis, retained his 100-meter backstroke crown with a fast clocking of 1:03.6. Paula Myers Pope, Los Angeles, took the 3-meter springboard dive with 139.1 points. Althea Gibson, former U. S. and Wimbledon queen, gave the United States its first women's tennis winner in Pan Am history by beating Mexico's Yolanda Ramirez, 6-4, 7-5 in the singles final. Luis Ayala of Chile beat Canada's Robert Bedard, 6-4, 6-2, 6-3, for the men's title.

Hickey Blessed With Personnel

By JACK CLARY

Associated Press Sports Writer Jim Hickey, who succeeded the late Jim Tatum as head coach of the North Carolina Tar Heels, inherited a gold mine of good football prospects. He's putting his stock for a successful season in fullback Don Klochak and quarterback Jack Cummings. These two hold the key to the Tar Heels' Atlantic Coast Conference title hopes, a possible Sugar Bowl bid and a shot at the national championship in which they are given better than an even chance. Hickey inherited 25 lettermen from a 1958 squad that had a 6-4 record. He has 77 aspirants in camp but makes no bones about the necessity of Klochak. "He is in much better shape than he was this time last year," Hickey said Thursday after watching the 230-pound senior from Fairhope, Pa. sparkle during a scrimmage. After missing the first four games, he had a 5.4 rushing average last year, picking up 324 yards. Cummings, a 6-foot 2, 192-pounder from Lower Merion, Pa., is North Carolina's aerial threat. His passing in 1958 gained 1,139 yards, 11 touchdowns on 68 completions in 134 attempts. North Carolina gets its first severe test right off when it meets 1958 conference champ Clemson, Sept. 19. That date was the subject of active preparations elsewhere. Wake Forest combined line and backfield drills in looking toward its opener against Florida State while North Carolina State ran a defensive scrimmage against Virginia Tech plays. Marquette used its offensive formations against Pittsburgh defensive alignments and Maryland began setting itself for West Virginia. Kansas Coach considered possible quarterback successors to Bill Cran, whose injured knee has sidelined him for the season.

Injuries May Ruin Va. Tech

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Just three days of practice already have dampened somewhat Virginia Tech's hopes of ruining West Virginia's domination of Southern Conference football. A practice session Thursday resulted in knee injuries to two of Coach Frank Moseley's lettermen guards — 200-pound Duncan O'Hara and 222-pound Tommy O'Hara. Hot, humid weather failed to slow down Davidson's Wildcats. In fact, Coach Bill Dole said the weather is bringing some of his players into shape faster. Dole said, "with this kind of weather, they'll trim down to playing weight quickly." Standouts as Furman wound up a week of drills were sophomore guard Claude Davis, end Hickey Horton and tackle Jim Boroff. With the first two backfields fairly well settled, Coach Bob King concentrated on streamlining the first and second team lines. Heat claimed another victim at The Citadel, center Harry Rakowski. Tackle Pete Davidson and quarterback Bucky Sharpe were hospitalized Wednesday but returned to light action Thursday. Coach Eddie Teague praised the Bulldogs after their first rough workout. ed senior halfback Danny Lee to the No. 2 unit. He will alternate with Jack Wilson while Bunny Bell and Dean Wright occupy the left halfback slots on the first two units.

Big Klochak Stands Out In UNC Drills

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

If practice sessions mean anything, South Carolina fullback Don Klochak can expect at least one big competitor this year for Atlantic Coast Conference rushing honors. North Carolina coaches are all smiles over the way 230-pound Don Klochak is moving the football. The senior fullback ran over just about every prospective tackler in Tar Heel drills Thursday. "He is in much better shape than he was at this time last year," commented head Coach Jim Hickey. "We are really pleased with this fellow and look for him to have a tremendous year." Klochak missed four games last season when Saunders piled up 653 yards and a 5.1 average for the Gamecocks to lead the ACC in rushing. Contact work featured most practice sessions at ACC drill fields Thursday. North Carolina State worked on strategy for stopping Virginia Tech's running and passing attack. The Wolfpack opens against Tech Sept. 19 at Norfolk, Va. Coach Earl Edwards singled out several sophomores who looked sharp in contact work. The group included guards Graham Singleton and Joe Bushofky and end John Gill. Juniors Arnold Dempsey and Wayne Ballard divided quarterback duties in a brief offensive

Trader Frank Lane smiles indulgently when it is suggested that the trade which sent Larry Doby to the Detroit Tigers in exchange for Tito Francona could turn out to be one of the best of his many, many player swaps. The general manager of the Cleveland Indians bristles slightly at the hint that the law of averages figured to give him a break. He likes to consider getting Francona was a smart, well planned operation. Tito was the player he wanted but he felt that the chances of getting him away from the Tigers were slight; if he asked for him in exchange for Doby. So he played it safe and insisted on Charlie Maxwell but, just before the deal was called off, reluctantly accepted Francona. "We needed a lefthanded pinch-hitter," explained Lane, "because Doby was prone to strike out too often. I figured that Francona would be a better bet. I recalled that Tito looked very good for a spell in his rookie year when the Baltimore Orioles played him regularly. Besides, Tito is only 25 while Doby is in his mid-30's, and fading. It shaped up as a deal that would give the Indians all the breaks." Manager Joe Gordon seconded Lane's motion, remembering Francona from the Pacific Coast League. Gordon liked Tito's swing and his power. He figured he could smooth out a few wrinkles and make Francona into solid hitter. Neither Lane nor Gordon had dreamed that Francona would come through in such sensational style. Tito's booming bat forced Gordon to find a regular spot in the line-up. To do this he had to bench Jim Piersall, an established star, and send Tito to centerfield. The prospect of playing regularly inspired Francona to go off on a real batting spree. Time after time, the hit-happy Tito rallied the Indians to keep them in the thick

Olmedo Seeks U.S. National

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP)— "I want to win this one very much—I try awfully hard." This was Alex Olmedo's promise to a disillusioned tennis public today as he opened his bid to add the U.S. National to his Australian and Wimbledon championships for a rare "little slam."

The Peruvian's first opponent is Don Russell, 19, an Australian now attending Pan American College in Texas. The match is the second on the Stadium Court at the West Side Tennis Club—one of 47 men's (32) and women's (15) singles contests for opening day. "I don't know Russell but I don't worry," Olmedo said. "I plan to play very hard to reach the finals and then I try very hard to win."

Since the Davis Cup Challenge Round last weekend, in which his surprise flop cost Uncle Sam the trophy, Olmedo has been working like a mule—often two hard practice sessions a day—to regain top form. "I don't apologize for the way I played in the Davis Cup," he said. "I did my best. But it is much different playing in a tournament like this and playing in the Davis Cup for a country. "In the Davis Cup, there are too many people around. Do this. Do that. The pressure is too great. But in a tournament I play for myself—for nobody else, just myself. I can be more relaxed."

Olmedo is top-seeded. In the bottom half of the draw his toughest rivals appear to be Earl Buchholz, Rod Laver and Roy Emerson. Neale Fraser, Australia's cup star, and Barry MacKay of Dayton, Ohio, head the upper bracket. They play Saturday.

Giants Get Lift With Big Bats

By HAROLD V. STREETER

Associated Press Sports Writer SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The old two-gun West has crept into the blood of the pennant-hungry San Francisco Giants. And right in front of the wild-eyed home folks. The transplants from New York's Polo Grounds hitherto had used pitching as their main weapon. Thursday they gunned down the Chicago Cubs 8-5 with a blazing 14-hit attack. For the second time since early in the season, that put the National League leaders on a better home ratio—35 won, 26 lost—than on tour, 40-32. The Giants now have won 10 of their last 12 home games in Seals Stadium where sea breezes at times blow high flies into the left field pavilion. Leah and Rachel, two sisters, were the successive wives of Abraham in the Old Testament.

Meat Packers Strike In Swift And Wilson Plants

CHICAGO (AP)—Union meat-packing house workers struck Swift and Co. and Wilson and Co., two giants of the meat industry, early today.

Then the unions quietly called off the Wilson strike with a joint agreement to continue wage-hour talks for 24 hours.

The United Packinghouse Workers of America and the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen called the strikes at Swift's plants in 34 cities and at Wilson's plants in seven cities to enforce demands — rebuffed by

Gains Are Recorded Over Eastern Belt

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Gains ranging from $1 to $5 per 100 pounds were recorded during brisk activity at Eastern North Carolina flue-cured tobacco markets Thursday.

At the same time, the Carolinas Border Belt registered more gains and losses while there was little general change in North Carolina Middle Belt prices.

The Federal-State Market News Service said major increases on the Eastern Belt were centered on lower quality offerings. Poor and low leaf and nondescript made up the bulk of sales.

The Eastern Belt disposed of 9,852,136 pounds of leaf Wednesday for an average of $57.30 per 100 pounds. Stabilization Corp. deliveries totaled 2 1/2 per cent of gross sales.

On the Middle Belt Thursday, $1 and $2 gains were obtained for some leaf, lugs and cutters. But most primings and nondescript dropped from $1 to $3. A total of 2,299,462 pounds were sold on the belt Wednesday, averaging $57.60.

Increases were mostly $1 and $2 on the Border Belt. The declines generally ranged from $1 to $3. The belt had its lowest daily average since Aug. 14 Wednesday when 7,376,393 pounds sold for a $61.74 average. This was down 99 cents from Tuesday. North Carolina markets sold 4,369,083 pounds for a $62.32 average and South Carolina markets auctioned 3,007,280 pounds for a $60.91 average.

The following are auction bid averages Thursday on a limited number of representative grades on the Middle Belt:

- Leaf: Fair orange $68, up $1; low orange $63, down $1.
- Smoking leaf: Low orange $69, up $1.
- Lugs: Fair lemon $69, unchanged; good lemon $70, unchanged; fair orange $69, up $1.
- Primings: Good lemon $68, unchanged; fair lemon $66, down $1; good orange $67, down $1; fair orange $63, down $1; low orange $46, down $3.
- Nondescript: Best thin body $4, down $1.

Interception By Bomarc Missile

ELGIN AIR FORCE BASE, Fla. (AP)—A supersonic Regulus II missile, simulating an enemy bomber, fell victim to a successful interception by a Bomarc guided missile.

The Bomarc made a scheduled near miss on the target over the Gulf of Mexico Thursday in the first of a series of launchings of the IM99A Bomarc against faster than sound simulated enemy bombers.

The interception was made at supersonic speed well above 35,000 feet.

The Regulus is capable of speeds of more than 1,500 miles per hour.

The radio-controlled Regulus was launched from the beach at Venice, on the Florida Gulf coast about 300 nautical miles from the Bomarc launching site on nearby Santa Rosa Island.

Legion Chief Is For Brotherhood

NEW YORK (AP)—The American Legion's new national commander, Martin B. McKneally, says the legion "should be in the forefront in promoting brotherhood and should be the leader in allaying prejudice."

He made the statement in promising action to have racial restrictions lifted by the legion's fund-making organization, the 40 & 8. The 40 & 8 limits its membership to whites and American Indians.

Mercy Team Is Still Missing On Mount Rainier

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP)—A two-man mercy team which vanished on a night flight to the summit of 14,410-foot Mt. Rainier was still being sought on the flanks of the snow-clad peak today.

Harold L. Horn, 40, operations officer of the Washington Civil Air Patrol, and Charles E. Carman, 29, left here late Thursday night to drop medical supplies to a critically ill scientist atop the mountain.

They were last heard from at 10 p.m. when they radioed Seattle for weather information.

The scientist, Dr. C. T. Bressler, 45, professor of geology at Western Washington College, Bellingham, died during the night, apparently of a heart attack. He had been visiting a five-man glacier research team working on Mt. Rainier.

Negotiations In Steel Strike At 'Critical Stage'

NEW YORK (AP)—Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell says negotiations in the 52-day-old steel strike have reached a critical stage, and he accuses both industry and union of being derelict in their responsibility.

Mitchell's new blast came about the time governors of eight of the states hardest hit by the strike appealed for a conference with President Eisenhower to discuss ways to end the walkout.

Mitchell, who is serving as Eisenhower's fact-finder in the strike, expressed his views in an interview at Cleveland, Ohio.

He said he believed the outcome of Thursday's negotiations and the developments at today's talks here "will produce either some movement or forward progress toward a settlement."

"I think the next few days will determine whether we will get reasonable settlement or whether the strike will be further drawn out," he added.

Mitchell said both sides "could have applied themselves to bargaining more diligently than they have thus far."

A telegram to Eisenhower from the eight governors was made public by Pennsylvania Gov. David L. Lawrence at Harrisburg.

The governors—all Democrats—included Edmund Brown of California, Robert B. Meyner of New Jersey, G. Mennen Williams of Michigan, Foster Furcolo of Massachusetts, Orville L. Freeman of Wisconsin and J. Millard Tawes of Maryland.

They did not say what action by the President would be sought.

Argentine Army Chief Defying Ouster Orders

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP)—Gen. Carlos Toranzo Montero today challenged the government's order ousting him as army chief, declaring that 95 per cent of the army was behind him.

Toranzo Montero made the statement after a tense night during which President Arturo Frondizi announced that troops were marching on military barracks where the general set up rebel headquarters. Only two tanks appeared near the barracks but they held their fire.

Shortly before dawn, Toranzo Montero conferred with Frondizi. He told newsmen afterwards the rebel officers are not seeking to overthrow the Frondizi government. Their dispute, the general said, is with Secretary of War Elbio Anaya.

Toranzo Montero said he reached a truce with Frondizi and declared there now would be a "waiting spell" in the military crisis.

Government sources said the resignation of Anaya and Toranzo Montero in a dispute over reshuffling of key posts in the army.

Anaya declined comment after the meeting and said only the President would make an announcement.

Anaya had ordered the arrest of 17 army generals who refused to accept Toranzo Montero's ouster.

Toranzo Montero quit the army during the regime of ex-dictator Juan D. Peron. The general returned to service after the 1955 revolution.

Complains Bees Stealing Nectar

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—Farmer L.J. Allen complained in court Thursday that bees are stealing nectar from his clover patch.

For months, he alleges, the bees have been flying from Henry Forester's adjoining ranch, taking the nectar and covering it into honey.

Allen contends the bees damaged his land and livestock and reduced the value of his property. He asked $500 damages in the county court.

Banned Book Is Given Attention

WASHINGTON (AP)—A banned book is getting considerable attention on Capitol Hill. It is called "Design for Survival," and was written by Gen. Thomas S. Power, head of the Strategic Air Command.

"Contrary to reports," said Rep. John E. Moss (D-Calif.) today, "the book does not advocate preventive war."

Moss, as chairman of the House Government Information subcommittee, demanded an explanation from Defense Secretary Neil H. McElroy of why the Pentagon prevented the book's publication.

Gov. Rockefeller & Mayor Wagner Meet Today On Juvenile Crime

NEW YORK (AP)—Mayor Robert F. Wagner and Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller meet today to consider measures aimed at counter-rising juvenile crime.

After separate sessions Thursday, the mayor and governor each said they favored a program of special youth camps akin to the Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC) of depression days. The state now has two work camps for young offenders.

The roundup of teen-age hoodlums continued with the arrest of four boys accused of stabbing 18-year-old Dominick Scudiere Wednesday. Held on assault charges were Israel Sannago, 18, his brother Ephrian, 16, and Victor de la Paz, 17. The fourth boy, 13, was held for Children's Court as a juvenile delinquent.

Scudiere and three chums were attacked by about 15 members of the Majestic gang on a Brooklyn street. Scudiere and his friends did not belong to any gang, police said.

The public and state and city officials have been thoroughly aroused by the surge in youth violence which has taken four lives since Aug. 23 and caused many injuries through stabbings, gunplay and beatings.

Within five hours after assertingly attacking a nurse in a subway train Thursday, a 14-year-old Negro boy was seized and committed to the state training school at Warwick, N. Y. Police said the boy, Grant Young, tried to assault the nurse, Calara Reese, 23, by threatening her with an eight-inch carving knife. A conductor pulled the emergency cord and a subway patrolman captured Grant.

Wagner ordered City Budget Director Abraham D. Beame to divert 2 1/2 million dollars from other programs to add 1,089 policemen to the force and bring it up to its full quota of 24,508 men. It was hoped that the additional patrolmen would be on the streets by Jan. 1.

Rockefeller, noting that Puerto Ricans had been involved in recent youth crimes, said, "There is very little juvenile delinquency in Puerto Rico itself. There are a lot of Puerto Rican children here who are adjusting, and we can't place the blame on any one group."

Pointing up the problems faced by law enforcement agencies was the wise-cracking demeanor of Salvador Agron, 16, chief suspect in the knife slaying of two youths early Sunday in a public playground.

Agron, who calls himself Dracula and wears a cape in the manner of the vampire character of that name, alternately snarled and wisecracked at newspaper and radio men in homicide lineup after he and Antonio Luis Hernandez, also 16, were held without bail in the slayings.

"How do you feel about killing those boys?" Agron was asked.

"Like I always feel; like this," Agron shrugged his shoulders indifferently.

"Are you sorry?"

"That's for me to know and you to find out."

"Was it worth killing a kid to be here today talking on a mike?" another reporter asked.

"I feel like killing you," snarled Agron, "that's what I feel like."

Asked if he was sorry about causing grief to his mother and stepfather, Agron replied: "That, yeah. But nothing else."

Hernandez, known as the Umbrella man—he allegedly used an umbrella as a weapon—was sullen and uncommunicative. Asked how he felt, he answered, "none of your business, don't talk to me."

Exception To The Rule In Mr. and Mrs. Curtis

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A husband making love to his own wife on the screen usually compares with such thrills as striking out the pitcher in a baseball game or mowing the grass on Saturday afternoon.

The box office record of Hollywood husband-wife teams is mostly dismal. Douglas Fairbanks Sr. and Mary Pickford, two of the movies' all-time box office giants, once teamed in "The Taming of the Shrew." Even Shakespeare and the fact that it was their talking picture debut couldn't add up to the success of their individual pictures.

The late Humphrey Bogart whistled at Lauren Bacall in a movie that was a box office smash. Then they got married and the resultant teamings never hit the peak of that first—and unmarried—one.

Even Eddie Fisher and Debbie Reynolds, at the height of their pre-Liz Taylor fame, laid a box office bomb in a picture called "Bundle of Joy."

But there is one profitable exception—Tony Curtis and Janet Leigh. They currently are making "Who Was That Lady?" their sixth teaming on the screen.

All have been money makers, with "Houdini" to "The Vikings," which Curtis' percentage take to date amounts to $900,000.

How do Tony and Janet account for their successful bucking of Hollywood tradition?

It's True, Global Ridge Follows Line Of Equator

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE Associated Press Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The equator is not just an imaginary man-made line drawn around our earth.

It actually exists as a ridge or line on the Pacific Ocean bottom. It is made out of fossils and skeletons of things which once lived in the sea, then sank when they died.

This rain of material makes a narrow, detectable line right where man drew the equator for convenience to divide his globe into northern and southern hemispheres.

With it, he could also draw lines of latitude from the equator to the poles to help tell him where he lives or where he is sailing.

Now the equator line on the sea bottom is being put to use to tell whether the north pole has gone wandering around in the past. It also promises clues to causes and kinds of ice ages.

This fascinating story was described to the first International Oceanographic Congress by Prof. Gustaf Arrhenius of the Scripps Institution of Oceanography, La Jolla, Calif.

Here is how the ridge is formed: The rotation of the earth pulls apart the warm surface layers of wide Pacific Ocean water at the equator, he explained.

Some of it flows north, some south. From down below, deep cold water rises up to fill the void, and this cold water is very rich in tiny animal life and minerals.

Ultimately this material sinks down along the equator. Take samples, studying the fossils layer by layer, and you can tell how long ago these marine organisms lived, Arrhenius said.

Or you could tell whether the geographical equator always has been where it is now.

If it has moved, then the north and south poles had to be some-

Another, an ex-convict, had in his possession when caught an official copy of his FBI identification record.

TRAILER TOWN

Trailers, by the dozen, line both sides of one of the main streets. Many of them have been set up for permanent residence.

A new type of community has sprung up in Florida in which all the homes are on wheels. It's called a "trailer estate."

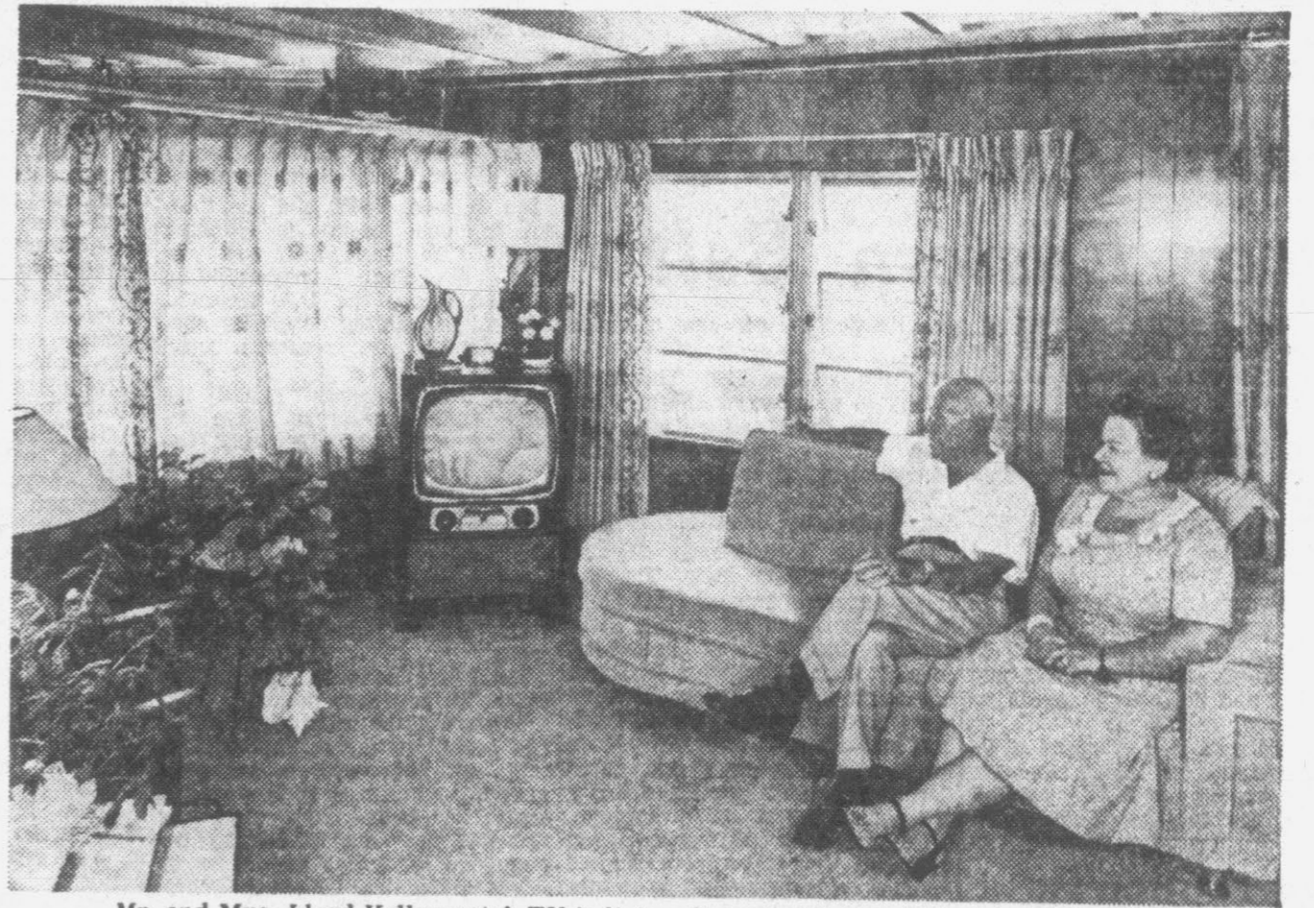

The first of these developments has been set up on the shores of Sarasota Bay, midway between Sarasota and Bradentown. It already has a population of more than 2,000 and is growing daily. Four out of five persons living in the community are retired.

The mobile homes at the "estate" are large, roomy affairs, meant more for permanent stay than for traveling. Many of the residents have smaller trailers to go on trips.

The community has all the conveniences and services of a regular town. It has its own water and sewer system, a beach, boat basin and marina, picnic area, postoffice, general store and laundry. It has a large clubhouse where there are dances, movies, card tournaments and shuffleboard contests. On the waterfront anglers get their chance to fish or dock their boat in their own backyard. An elected citizens council deals with community problems.

Many residents enjoy year-round waterfront living, with gulf and bay fishing a few minutes away.

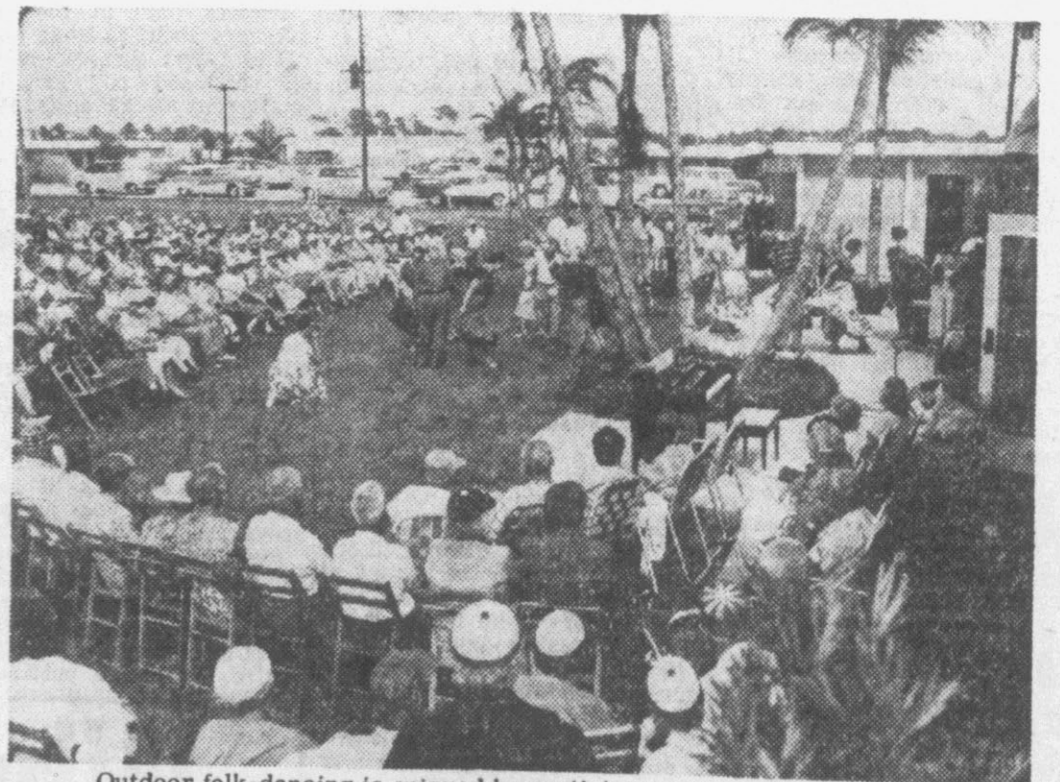

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Keller watch TV in living-dining room area of their mobile home.

Outdoor choral singing is one of features of community's way of life.

Former Indiana residents, Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Gantz, work with the landscaping beside their trailer cabana.

Outdoor folk-dancing is enjoyed by participants and audience alike.

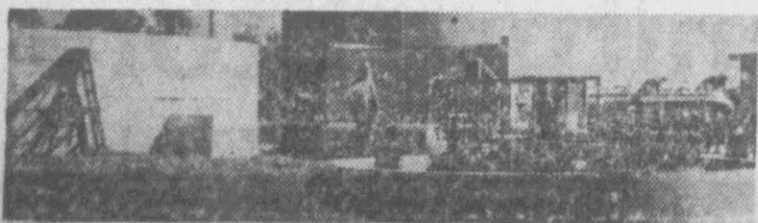

"Passing the biscuits" is not an unusual outdoor event as retired residents fill their days with long-awaited leisure and fun.

Investing For Income Remains A Good Choice

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP) — Investing for income is still in style today despite all the talk about investing for capital gains.

And it's still possible to get a fair return on common stocks — if you pick the right ones — despite all the talk about the yields of many blue chips at current prices falling below those for bonds.

Also it's possible to choose a stock portfolio that will bring in a dividend from one or another company each month in the year. Just ask your broker.

Dividend payments have been climbing this year and seem sure to set a record. Standard & Poor's investment advisory service reports that in the first eight months increases came to 703, extra dividends to 443, and resumed payments to 131. In the same period there were only 66 decreased payments and 67 omissions.

Thus favorable actions outstripped the unfavorable by a ratio of more than 6 to 1. In the first eight months of 1958 it was just the opposite. The unfavorable ran 1 1/2 to 1 ahead of the favorable.

The reason for the change is that the 1958 period was seeing the depths of the recession and the start of the recovery, while this year corporate profits have been rising to new highs.

Picking the right stocks isn't easy and portfolios take constant watching. How one institutional investor does this for a group of clients — in this case 83 New York State mutual banks — is set forth today by the New York Stock Ex-

Suggests Berlin As International City For Interim

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont) today called on President Eisenhower to explore with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev the internationalization of all Berlin, both East and West.

"If West Germans can't replace other Western forces in Berlin and if Soviet troops are withdrawn from the city, at least the rudiments of an all German administration of Berlin will exist," he said.

Mansfield is assistant Democratic leader of the Senate and an influential member of its Foreign Relations Committee.

He said the Soviets have been permitted for too long to keep negotiations centered on the status of West Berlin alone.

That, he said in a prepared Senate speech, "seems to reveal a temptation to buy the continuance of our presence in Berlin at the price of unilateral concessions."

Mansfield also called for a "blunt" conference among European nations "to delineate the extent of the erosion" within the NATO alliance and taken steps to revitalize NATO in the interest of Western unity.

He said recent revisions of American policy on Germany have deflected, for the present, "the headlong plunge towards open conflict in Berlin."

But he argued that nothing can be settled unless the United States seeks a new status for all Berlin.

"If we are clear on that point then I believe we may, with profit to all, assume the advocacy of internationalization of the entire city, on an interim basis, until it is once again the capital of a unified Germany," he said.

U. S. Exhibition In Moscow Closes Saturday; Believed Worth Efforts

By A. I. GOLDBERG
MOSCOW (AP) — The U. S. exhibition in Moscow closes Saturday night after a 42-day run and almost everyone professes to be happy with the way it turned out.

Even the Soviets in the latter days got around to a gentler tone in the press. The official news agency Tass expressed hope the exhibition would not be the last one.

Harold C. McClellan, San Marino, Calif., paint company executive who directed the exhibition, said he is happy at what has been accomplished since Vice President Richard M. Nixon opened the show July 24.

"No one at this point can realize the exhibit's impact but the fact that 2,700,000 Russians crowded the area and got their first look at the American people and their accomplishments must have an important result," he said.

McClellan, a former president of the National Assn. of Manufacturers, credited the Russian-speaking student guides with the big role of giving credibility to the picture of the United States. He ranked them with color television, the circarama and seven screens movies in the dome and the products on display.

McClellan dealt constantly with Soviet officials and said he got fine cooperation from them.

"I can't say we settled all Soviet-American differences with this show but it proved that if we can communicate we are on the way to cooperating on problems as we can define them. Without communication there can be no cooperation."

Charles Vetter, training officer for the U. S. Information Agency, asserted that the exhibition had an impact on Americans as well as the Russians.

"Thousands of Russians saw living, breathing Americans that were different from the stereo-type they were taught to expect," Vetter said. "Americans found that ordinarily the Russian people are very human and probably closer to us in their likes and humor than we are to the French or the Germans."

Up to the last there were long lines of Russians waiting patiently to see the model home, the photographs depicting the family of man, the book and art sections, the appliances section and the automobile display. On the whole, they were asking friendly questions about American life.

An example of the exhibition's pulling power was a telephone call from a Russian woman in Samarkand, Central Asia, asking if American beauticians can remove freckles.

On Saturday, work crews will move into the golden aluminum dome, which forms the exhibition's center, and the glass display pavilion to repair damages. They will be turned over to Soviet officials Sept. 15 under an agreement that brought the exhibit here in exchange with the recent Soviet exhibition in New York.

Two days before the exhibition closed, American and Soviet officials began negotiating whether to hand over a model home and other structures instead of going through the expense of shipping them back to the United States. The fittings in buildings are worth an estimated $50,000. Not having to ship them would balance the cost of tearing them down.

Some goods such as color television, automobiles, generators, will also be sold to the Russians under Soviet-United States trade regulations if the negotiations succeed. The United States Embassy and American personnel will be getting some goods and cars.

Around 40 New TV Shows Begin In Next Seven Weeks

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — There will be some radical changes this fall in the well-established habits of television watching as the networks start fighting for viewers' attention.

During the next seven weeks around 40 new shows will start their careers in prime evening network time — including the first trickle of what promises to be an exciting flood of big, expensive special productions. During the same period, the sturdy tried-and-true programs will be having so-called "season premieres," which in most cases just means they've stopped summer repeats and are putting on fresh material again.

But this gradual unfolding of the fall season doesn't mean that we can all resume the comfortable viewing customs of last year. For instance, Jack Benny moves to a later hour on CBS Sunday nights. There, with George Gobel to help on alternate weeks, he'll fight a ratings battle with popular Loretta Young on NBC and a new ABC entry, The Alaskans, a Western with snowshoes.

Ed Sullivan's old friend Steve Allen has moved over to a late evening Monday spot where the competition will be different, even if formidable — the new June Allyson show, a comedy-drama series starring Jackie Cooper and James Michener's Adventures in Paradise. Sullivan on CBS will be worrying this year about NBC's highly touted, dramatic Sunday Showcase, and the end of ABC's very popular Maverick plus another ABC Western, The Lawman.

Perry Como will be missing from the Saturday night line up, slipping into a new Wednesday night spot which Dave King has warmed up for him during the summer. This means that I've Got a Secret fans — the program comes during the second half of the Como show — will have a big decision to make. And then there's also ABC's Hawaiian Eye — a new hour-long show involving (what else?) a shamus who is not, however, Charlie Chan.

There is also a raft of new Westerns. The horse-loving audience is going to be hard pressed choosing between, for instance, Cheyenne (ABC) and its opposition, the Texan (CBS) on Monday, or Bronco (ABC) and Laramie (NBC) Tuesday.

Anyway, the new TV year is just about upon us. Change may be traumatic, but it looks like there's a lot of good entertainment in store.

Hawaiians Told, Please Tourists

HONOLULU (AP) — If Hawaii doesn't start treating tourists better, it may start losing them.

This is the opinion of Charles G. Braden, head of the Hawaii Visitors Bureau.

Braden's comments came after mounting number of complaints from visitors appeared in the newspapers here. He called them "potential danger signs for the future."

"Numerically," Braden says, "the complaints are few compared with the volume of tourists. And any time a house is full to capacity like ours, there are going to be gripes."

But, Braden adds, "all the same, I think the situation calls for attention now — before these storm signals develop into real trouble."

Most of the complaints seem to be the result of inefficient reservations for hotels and transportation, he says.

But there are other complaints as well.

A La Jolla, Calif. hotelman claimed he was billed outrageously by a Honolulu physician.

A Michigan couple reported that a tour firm on the island of Hawaii overcharged and misrepresented its services.

A teachers' convention contends that a Waikiki night spot turned its party away because "teachers do not spend enough money."

The warning bell from Braden was sounded in the midst of Hawaii's record tourist boom. A similar word of caution came from radio-TV star Arthur Godfrey when he visited the islands recently. He complained about the inefficiency and lack of discipline among beach hands at Waikiki.

No Water Ran In Niagara Falls
NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (AP) — Niagara Falls went dry Thursday. Tons of water roared over the cataract but not a drop issued from taps in 12,000 Canadian homes in the area.

The temporary drought occurred when a crane toppled wires supplying power to pumps at the city's filtration plant, officials said. Pressure was restored within two hours.

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—North Carolina poultry markets: Fryers and broilers slightly weaker, farm price 14 to 14 1/2, mostly 14.

Eggs — Prices paid for graded, sized, minimum 80 per cent A quality: Raleigh and Charlotte, irregular, large 45; prices cut on graded out basis: Asheville, steady, A large 40.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market rallied mildly in moderately active trading early this afternoon.

Wall Street showed relief that the Federal Reserve Board had not upped the discount rate, as was generally expected for late Thursday.

Prices moved ahead briskly at the start then the best gains were sliced and the market's pattern became irregularly higher at best.

Key stocks kept gains running from fractions to a point or more but an assortment of small losers appeared here and there.

After three straight sessions of selling pressure it was apparent that prices were low enough to arouse speculative interest in spite of the long Labor Day weekend ahead. The market will be closed on Monday.

The trend was mostly higher among steels, motors, rubbers, aircraft, oils, drugs and electronics. Coppers were lower. Chemicals and tobaccos were mixed.

American Motors was up about a point to stand out in the automotive section.

Other motors slid off from their best early prices as did steels. Youngstown Sheet & Tube resumed its rebound with a gain of more than a point. Lukens was up around a point.

Texas Instruments cut back an early 4-point jump to about a point.

Boeing added a point as it continued to ride forward on prospects of big orders for new bombers. Other aircrafts were narrowly higher.

Radio Corp. was a casualty among electronics, falling more than a point.

Anacosta's drop of about a point depressed the metals section.

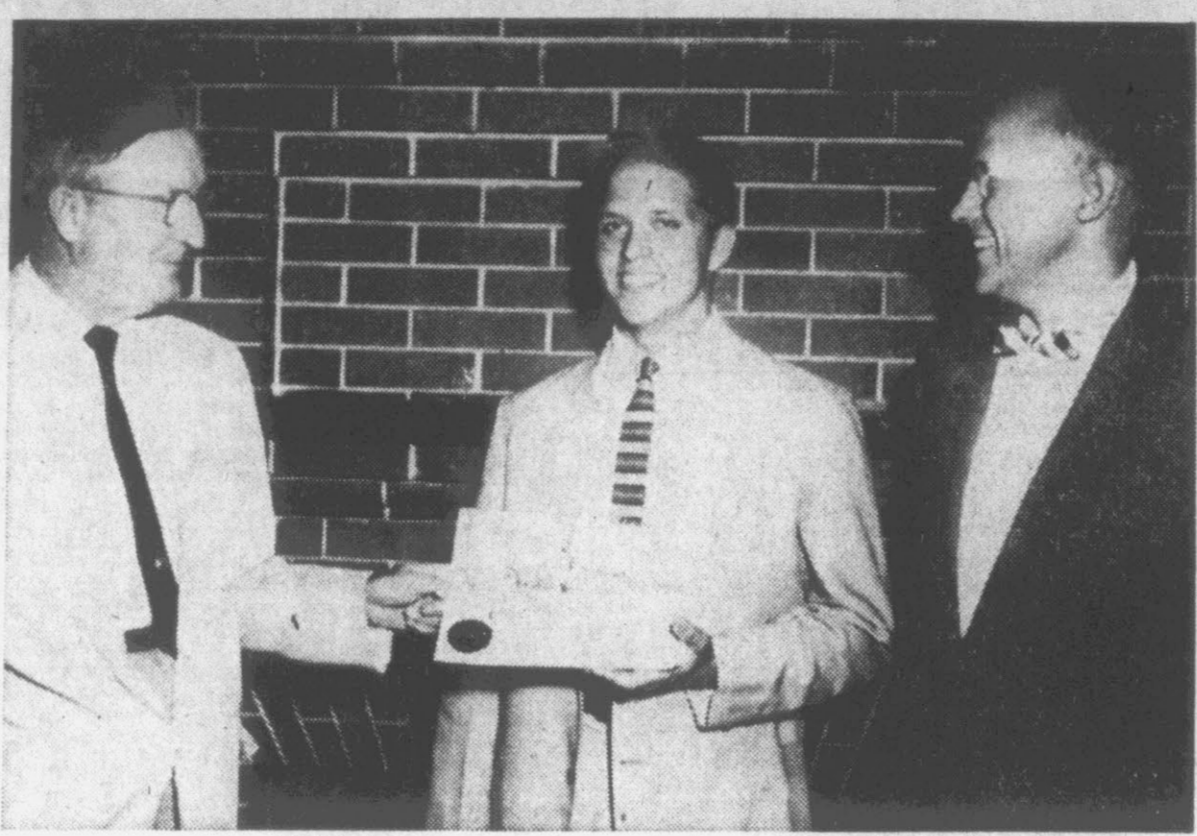

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 40 cents to $226.30 with the industrials up $1.20, the rails up 10 cents and the utilities down 20 cents.

Government bonds showed a little early strength but it faded partially.

Presented Scholarship By Foundation

The son of a professor at East Carolina College has been awarded a four-year scholarship to study medicine at the Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine in Baltimore, Md.

John E. Douglas, son of Dr. and Mrs. George A. Douglas of 1731 Beaumont Rd., was presented the National Health Foundation scholarship of $2,000 by Chairman J. H. Rose of the Pitt County Chapter of the Foundation.

Young Douglas has completed four years of study at Oberlin College, Oberlin, Ohio, and plans to leave for Baltimore this fall. He has one of 515 students chosen from across the nation to receive the scholarship, which is worth $500 a year for four years.

"It is with great pleasure that I present this Health Scholarship to Mr. Douglas," Rose said. "We have high hopes for the winners of these scholarships. They have been picked because they show promise of becoming citizens valuable to any nation — men and women concerned about the welfare of others."

Rose pointed out that though this is the first year the scholarships have been offered, more than 4,900 students applied for the 515 available scholarships. Winners were selected in each state by State Health Scholarship Committees composed of five state health leaders representing the five professions included in the program — medicine, nursing, physical therapy, occupational therapy and medical social work.

The Health Scholarship Program is part of the new program of the National Health Foundation (formerly "for Infantile Paralysis"), which now embraces birth defects and arthritis in addition to polio.

The Pitt County Safety Council resumed its monthly meeting yesterday as it heard Russell Rogerson, Driver Improvement Representative of the North Carolina Department of Motor Vehicles explain the new point system for motor vehicle violations.

According to Rogerson, the point system is designed to help find and improve those drivers which habitually violate the motor vehicle laws.

Each time a driver breaks the law and is convicted, a certain number of points are charged to his record and, if the operator gains a total of 12 points within a two-year period his license may be suspended. When a driver's total reaches seven points, he may be called in for an interview. Rogerson continued, and may be allowed to attend a Driver Improvement Clinic operated by the Department of Motor Vehicles and upon successful completion of the course, three points will be removed from his record.

The heaviest point value with a total of five is placed on passing a stopped school bus, Rogerson said. Four point violations include reckless driving and hit and run driving where only property damage results. Speeding in excess of 5 miles per hour, illegal passing, failing to yield the right of way, running through a red light, and failure to stop for a red light or siren are three point violations.

Also included in the three point group are driving through a safety zone, driving on the wrong side of the road, no liability insurance, failure to report an accident where such report is required and having no operator's license or license expired more than one year. Two points are added to the record for running through a stop sign, failure to give proper signal, speeding in city limits, speeding in restricted zone, improper turning and all other violations.

The committee in charge of the traffic safety-check check James operated in Pitt County several months ago and Luther Moore, chairman of the committee, was again congratulated by President Charles Whebeder, on behalf of the Council, for the fine work done by the group.

It was announced at the meeting that the Greenville Junior Chamber of Commerce in cooperation with the State Highway Patrol would sponsor a traffic check lane Sunday in connection with the Labor Day weekend holiday. Safety literature will be given out and free soft drinks will be available.

The next meeting of the group will be held October 1, at Respass Brothers in Greenville.
