

Re-Zoning Move Fails To Gain Council Approval

By ALVIN TAYLOR Reflectors City Editor

Re-zoning of an area in North Greenville from residential to industrial failed to win the approval of the City Council last night.

The council split two-two on a motion to re-zone the property with one member abstaining.

Councilmen E. W. Harvey Jr. and Dr. M. W. Aldridge were in favor of the proposed re-zoning and Mayor S. Eugene West and W. S. Stafford voted against the motion. Charles King abstained on the vote.

The property is located on both sides of U.S. 13-N.C. 11 bypass running from Gum Road to the north city limits.

The two-two vote automatically tabled the motion. The matter could be brought up for further consideration at the next council meeting or at a special meeting.

Harvey originally made a motion to table the matter until the next council meeting. However, a long debate followed among the councilmen and Harvey subsequently withdrew his motion. A new one was made calling for the re-zoning of the property.

Councilman Aldridge entered his protest to the original motion to table the matter until the next meeting after it was made.

"Why put it off?" he asked. "I'm open to a reason. If it's a good reason I'm happy to go along with it."

Mayor West said it had been reported to him by the building inspector that a man is erecting a building on the property—a commercial building on residential property.

"He (the builder) sat down in my office and wanted me to tell him to go ahead. I told him there was no way I could do it before it passed this board."

The mayor said the man, who went unidentified throughout the meeting, ignored this and went ahead with construction of the building.

"The building inspector asked him to stop and he didn't. They (the city) took out a warrant, which is the procedure. He still hasn't stopped that I know of."

The mayor pointed out that no building permit has been issued by the city for construction of the building.

The structure, which it was indicated would be used for a commercial building, could have been built in an industrially zoned area. Industrial zones can include residential, commercial or industrial structures. However, only residences can be built in an area which is zoned for residential construction.

Mayor West pointed out that when the matter came up last month he called a special meeting of the Planning-Zoning Commission so that the zoning change could go to the council at last month's meeting.

The Planning-Zoning Commission recommended approval of the change and sent it to the council for its August meeting.

The council set a public hearing, as required by law, for last night's meeting. There were no objections to the proposed change when the public hearing was held.

"I don't approve of the city being treated that way," the mayor declared last night. "I feel the motion (to table) is in order and I feel we ought to check into it further."

City Attorney R. B. Lee told the council that he had drawn the deed transferring the property in question to the new owner.

"He said he was having to meet a deadline for a franchise for six or seven counties."

"I don't feel that whether this man started his building or not should have any bearing on what we do tonight," Aldridge declared.

"It's not up to us to use our power to punish the man. Our decision should be based on whether it is good for our city and, whether it is good or not, if he's broken the law he should be prosecuted for it."

"I see no reason why we should not go ahead and rezone it," Stafford asked, "Why is this board punishing somebody because we don't take action tonight?"

And the mayor said to Aldridge, "I believe you missed one of the points. Mr. Harvey said postpone it until we look into it a little further."

After more discussion, Harvey told his fellow councilmen, "Personally I feel that it would be to re-zone industrial. I understand this person has violated the law. At the same time I agree with Warren (Dr. Aldridge). If we think it ought to be industrial we ought to vote on it tonight."

Harvey asked, if the re-zoning were approved, would the violation of the law still be enforceable? Both City Attorney Lee and City Manager Leonard Bloxam replied that it would.

"Each and every day worked on the job is a separate offense," Bloxam declared.

Harvey then withdrew his tabling motion.

"It looks like we are cutting the ground from under our building inspector," the mayor declared.

"I wouldn't go along with using the powers of this board to punish any individual," Stafford stated.

Aldridge said, "It's up to the courts to take care of this man and not the City Council. Personally I feel that it would be to our advantage to re-zone this."

Aldridge then made a new motion calling for re-zoning of the area and Harvey seconded it.

Although the owner of the building in question wasn't identified at last night's meeting, police records show that Richard Lee Manning was served with a warrant by police on Sept. 8 charging him with failing to obtain a building permit. The building address was given as 200 NW Pollard St., which is in the area in question.

The warrant charging Manning with violation of the city's building laws was signed by J. W. Wilson, Greenville building inspector.

But Nehru told Parliament Thursday that the latest letter from Premier Chou, En-lai of Communist China added to the gravity of the border crisis because Red China's policy has step by step "become more rigid."

India and Red China have accused each other of aggression. Each has demanded that the other withdraw its military forces from border areas whose ownership is being questioned.

Nehru earlier declared that a few miles of jungle territory were not worth a war, but that a treaty was a different thing. He said the MacMahon line defining the border between Tibet and India should be accepted by China.

Chou, in his latest communication, however, attacked the line as a fruit of British imperialism. Chinese claims, according to their maps, would push the line from the crest of the Himalayas down to the foothills near the Brahmaputra river, taking in thousands of square miles.

Councilmen received a petition concerning street draining in the 1700 block of S. Pitt St. The matter was deferred and Mayor West said there would be a "thorough investigation" prior to the next meeting.

The Times story said the Icelandic ambassador protested today that American guards at Keflavik Airport forced two Icelandic officials to lie in puddles of water for 10 minutes and threatened to shoot them if they opened their mouths.

Presented Safety Award

PEDESTRIAN SAFETY AWARD FOR GREENVILLE . . . Chief Gibbs, Division Manager Harris, Mayor West.

Safety Award Presented For No Pedestrian Deaths

A safety award was presented to Chief of Police S. G. Gibbs at the City Council meeting last night.

This city was cited by the American Automobile Association and the Carolina Motor Club for having eliminated pedestrian traffic deaths from its streets during 1958.

G. E. Harris, division manager from Rocky Mount, presented the award.

He said Greenville was selected for the award on the basis of its report submitted to the 1958 AAA

Pedestrian Program Appraisal, in which cities and state vie for awards in their activities to protect the man afoot.

"The residents of the city—both pedestrians and drivers—deserve considerable credit for making this award possible," Harris said. "This record was achieved despite the fact that traffic exposure for pedestrians has increased tremendously—population, motor vehicle registration and miles of travel."

"The marked reduction that has taken place in the pedestrian fatalities over the years is the brightest spot in the entire traffic accident picture. Pedestrian fatalities in 1958 totaled 7,800, a reduction of 59 percent from the high point reached in 1937. During this same period of time, all other traffic fatalities increased 21 percent.

Chief Gibbs expressed appreciation to the organizations for the recognition given the city. He also expressed appreciation to the people of Greenville for making the record possible.

Mayor S. Eugene West expressed his appreciation for the award.

Mayor West said it had been reported to him by the building inspector that a man is erecting a building on the property—a commercial building on residential property.

Ike Suggests Summit Talks Could Result

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower held open today the possibility that his man-to-man talks with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, beginning Tuesday, may lead to a summit conference.

That could mean negotiations on disarmament, the future of Germany and other world issues.

In a radio-TV report to the nation Thursday night Eisenhower called on Khrushchev to come to Washington with "constructive ideas and suggestions that could provide the basis for responsible negotiation on the issues that divide us." And he expressed carefully guarded optimism about the possibility of moving toward better understanding between the Soviet Union and the West.

"It is my profound hope," he declared, "that some real progress will be forthcoming, even though no one would be so bold as to predict such an outcome."

Throughout his speech Eisenhower emphasized that he does not intend to abandon any principle of basic American policy in his search for new approaches to solution of East-West problems.

Any agreement for a later summit meeting, he said, "must be based upon the certainty" of Soviet respect for the position of the Western powers in Berlin. In addition, he said, "there must be some clear Soviet indication, no matter how given, that serious negotiation will bring about real promise of reducing the causes of world tensions."

"Firmness in support of fundamentals," Eisenhower said, "with flexibility in tactics and methods, is the key to any hope of progress in negotiation."

The President's report covered both his recent European trip and his forthcoming talks with Khrushchev, who will arrive here next Tuesday on a 12-day visit to the United States. At the outset of the visit, Khrushchev will spend two days in Washington. He will wind up his coast-to-coast tour with three more days of discussions here.

The President's speech created the impression that it had been written, at least in part, for Khrushchev himself to read. It blended the themes of politeness to the visitor and toughness in support of basic principles.

Reading it, Khrushchev would be able to find no support for any hope he might have that the President was ready to make major concessions to him on such issues as Berlin, German unification and the need for enforcement machinery to safeguard any disarmament agreement.

In addition, Eisenhower expressed concern over "the aggressive actions of the Communists in Asia, referring specifically to the fighting in Laos. He spoke of the false teachings of Communism." He emphasized American dedication to the "defense of freedom."

In Europe Eisenhower conferred with the leaders of Britain, France, West Germany, Italy and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and said he outlined to them his reasons for inviting Khrushchev here as follows:

"First, to give him the opportunity to see what America and Americans are like. To let him see and feel a great and thriving nation living in real freedom."

"Second, to give him, face to face, the basic conviction of our people on the major issues of the day, including West Berlin, and to hear from him directly his own views on those issues."

This second reason put the President on record as favoring forthright, glove-off talk with the Soviet Premier and indicated that is the kind of discussion Eisenhower himself is preparing to engage in.

He renewed assurances that he will not negotiate with Khrushchev on subjects directly involving the interests of other nations. He declared that "no principle or fundamental interest will be placed upon an auction block."

Eisenhower expressed confidence that the people in this country will greet Mr. Khrushchev and his wife and family with traditional American courtesy and dignity."

Congress Girds For Final Spurt Toward Adjourning

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress turned its attention today to relatively minor matters after its first victory over President Eisenhower in his 6 1/2 years in office.

It goes back into high gear Saturday in a final spurt for hoped-for adjournment next Monday just before the Washington arrival of Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

Two major matters and many lesser ones were disposed of Thursday.

Both houses overrode Eisenhower's objections and passed finally a $1,165,309,093 money bill to finance flood control, harbor and other public works projects. In doing so, Congress upset the first Eisenhower veto of the 146 he has issued since 1953.

The House completed congressional action on a third-trillion dollar housing bill which the White House has indicated Eisenhower will sign. He had vetoed two earlier measures.

The Senate passed a bill which would make it easier for this country to extend aid to Poland and other Iron Curtain countries seeking a measure of independence.

ence from Moscow. But Sen. Styles Bridges (R-NH), whose opposition helped defeat a similar bill by a single vote last year, called for reconsideration before sending it to the House.

The House may act today on a compromise version of a farm surplus disposal bill. Worked out last night by a conference committee, the measure would extend for two years the present program of selling surplus crops overseas in return for foreign currencies.

The conferees agreed on a two-year extension, with authority to sell 1 1/2 billion dollars worth of products a year and to give away up to 300 million more a year for emergency relief. The bill also would permit, but not compel, the Agriculture Department to set up a food stamp plan to supply commodities to needy persons in this country.

Another conference group, though apparently deadlocked, tries again today to reach agreement on a bill to permit raising the interest rates on series E and H savings bonds.

The development watched with most interest Thursday was Congress' quick action in passing the public works bill over Eisenhower's veto.

It took the House just 30 minutes and the Senate less than 40 minutes to shatter the President's record of making all of his vetoes stick.

The House vote was 280-121, a margin of 12 votes more than the two-thirds required. Twenty Republicans joined 260 Democrats to upset the President, while 5 Democrats teamed up with 116 Republicans to support him. Just a week ago the House fell one vote short of overriding an almost identical measure.

The Senate bowed over the President by a vote of 72-23, an edge of 8 votes over the needed two thirds. Twelve Republicans and 60 Democrats were on the winning side, with 21 Republicans and 2 Democrats on the short end.

Eisenhower vetoed the bill, as he did the earlier one, because it included financing for 67 projects not provided for in his budget.

Thursday's action left one major hurdle between Congress and adjournment. The Senate Saturday takes up a House-passed foreign aid appropriation bill providing about $3,200,000,000 in new aid funds and about 400 million more for miscellaneous other purposes.

Women Of The Moose Enroll Three New Members

WELCOMES ENROLLEES—Senior Regent Jo Dees (left) meets new members of the local Women of the Moose: Mrs. Fleming, Mrs. McGowan and Mrs. Hart.

Three new members, Mrs. Mary Fleming, Mrs. Irene Hart and Mrs. Ludie McGowan, were enrolled last night by Chapter 1308, Women of the Moose.

Chapter Night program was under direction of the publicity committee. Their speaker for the evening was David J. Whichard, managing editor of The Daily Reflector.

Topic of Whichard's talk was "Public Relations." "Good public relations," he told the women, "is not simply a matter of seeking to obtain good publicity through newspapers or other mass media. It is much broader than that. It involves the entire relationship of an organization or group with the community in which it is situated."

As such, he went on, "good public relations of an organization cannot be left entirely to the officers or special committees. It must be the responsibility of individual members of the organization."

Whichard reminded that an organization, he commended the Women what people read and hear about it, but by their personal contact with individual members of the group. He commended the Women of the Moose for their work in the community and "the good job of public relations they have carried out" for their organization.

In defining the meaning and role of public relations, the speaker called it an overall program by which an organization seeks to interpret for the community its goals, its purposes and its works; and thereby creates a favorable and sympathetic understanding of that organization.

Caesar Salad Has Gone American Style

FROM A TOWN in northern Mexico comes a salad that has probably caused more talk than any other in the United States' history of salad eating.

The Caesar Salad, named for the restaurant that first served it some 60 to 70 years ago, is still going strong. California restaurateurs have claimed it, but our research convinces us that it really did originate in Tijuana at Caesar's Restaurant.

The salad didn't catch on with home cooks all over the country until about a dozen years ago when New York's Waldorf-Astoria hotel served it with much fanfare to a group of food editors who saw its merits and passed along the good word.

For a while after that table conversation buzzed over it, then talk died down—and so did the salad. Now we think it's time to revive it.

Through the years Caesar Salad has taken on ingredients because American cooks, including us, can never leave well enough alone. But thank heaven the essentials are still the same—crisp greens (originally only romaine), grated Parmesan cheese, an egg, garlic and croutons. In the following version we add two popular additions—anchovies and blue cheese.

According to an eyewitness, when the salad was served at Caesar's a rite was made of it. The waiter brought a small table with the ingredients, and when the egg (originally coddled) was cracked and dropped over the greens, eyes popped. If you're a culinary exhibitionist, you can do likewise at your own table. One of the interesting things about this salad is that after it is tossed, you would never know a raw egg makes part of its dressing.

AFTER-CAESAR SALAD
Ingredients: 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 to 2 tablespoons cider vinegar, 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard, 1-3 cup corn oil, 1 clove garlic, 1 can (2 ounces) flat anchovy fillets, 3 quarts mixed torn salad greens; packed down fairly well, 1-4 cup grated Parmesan cheese, 1-4 cup crumbled blue cheese, 1 egg, 2 cups croutons, caper-stuffed rolled anchovies for garnish.

Method: Beat together the lemon juice, 1 tablespoon of the vinegar, Worcestershire sauce, mustard, salt, pepper and corn oil. Smash garlic a few times with the handle of a heavy knife and add; allow mixture to stand several hours or overnight. Just before serving remove garlic, cut anchovy fillets into small bits and add to dressing. Place greens in salad bowl; pour dressing over; add Parmesan and blue cheese; toss lightly. Break uncooked egg over salad and toss until well mixed. Taste, and add more of the vinegar if desired. Mix in croutons lightly; garnish with rolled anchovies if you like; serve at once. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Note: To make croutons, trim crust from four slices of white bread. Brush both sides of bread with 2 tablespoons corn oil. Cut into cubes, place on a cookie sheet or a very shallow pan and toast in a moderate (350) degrees oven 10 to 15 minutes or until golden brown.

WHERE DID IT START? In Mexico or California? Many a chef and restaurateur have claimed the famous Caesar Salad. But wherever its origin, one thing is sure, it's utterly delicious.

Start Day Right With Good Breakfast

"Eat a Good Breakfast to Start a Good Day" was the topic of the demonstration given by Home Agent Mrs. Sue May at the September meeting of the Red Oak Home Demonstration Club.

Mrs. May pointed out that studies have shown workers who tuck away a good meal before work get more done than those who skip breakfast, or eat a poor one. Children are more likely to do well in studies and games if they have a good breakfast.

She explained that a well-balanced breakfast should consist of milk, fruit or fruit juice, cereal or bread; however, other foods may be added to meet the requirements of the person eating. She prepared a coffee cake, cheese cake and orange juice which served as the refreshments for the afternoon. She stated that he coffee cake could be an added treat for breakfast but should not be substituted for the basic foods. The cheese cake could be substituted for he bread or cereal since one of its ingredients is wheat germ.

Mrs. J. T. Manning, Jr. presided and gave the devotional using the theme, "In The Center of God's Love."

Mrs. Carl Crawford called the roll and read the minutes and Mrs. Thurston Wynne gave the treasurer's report. Perfect attendance for the year included Mrs. Jarvis Tripp, Sr., Mrs. J. T. Manning, Jr., Mrs. Carl Crawford and Mrs. Thurston Wynne.

Among The Leaders In Recovery

North Carolina's gain in personal income during the past year gives an indication of the economic progress the state has made compared with previous record and also compared with that of other states.

Business Week magazine in a recent issue devoted an article to the increase in personal income by states for June 1959 compared with a year ago when the nation began its uphill climb out of the recession.

North Carolina, while its personal income is still far below that of many other states, ranked 12th among the 50 states in the percentage gain of personal income this year compared with last year. North Carolina's gain in personal income increased 12.1 per cent over the same month last year to $70.9 million dollars. Only 11 of the 50 states showed a greater percentage gain in personal income over the period than did North Carolina and the national average gain in personal income by states was 9.5 per cent compared with the 12.1 per cent gain for Tar Heelia.

This gain in total personal income reflects a business upturn throughout the nation as recovery from the low point of the recession has opened jobs that were dropped during the business set-back. So far as North Carolina is concerned, however, the gain in personal income is also attributable in part to the number of new jobs that have been created in the state during the past 12 months.

The state has experienced its greatest year in history so far as expansion of industrial jobs is concerned. And these industrial jobs in turn have created other new jobs throughout the business operations in North Carolina. These, in large measure, have accounted for the significant gain in total personal income in North Carolina during the past year. The fact that North Carolina—which was not hit as hard as some other states by the recession—is more than holding its own in total personal income gains, is significant for the economy of the state as a whole.

Overriding Veto Has Other Likely Aspects

For the first time since President Eisenhower took office six and a half years ago Congress has succeeded in overriding a presidential veto.

The successful effort by Congress to write into over law the President's protest a $1,185,000,000 flood control and public works appropriation is bound to have repercussions not only on the political scene in this nation, but abroad as well. During the past six and a half years the President has vetoed 146 measures passed by Congress and each time was able to make the veto stick. The last one came only last week when the House upheld by one vote the President's veto of a bill similar to the one which was overridden yesterday.

President Eisenhower's ability to make his veto stick since coming to office has been interpreted by many as indicative of the political strength he has not only among members of Congress, but with the public as well. Now that his long string of successful vetoes has been broken, there is bound to arise the question is the President losing his touch?

Coming on the eve of the official visit to this country by Soviet Premier Khrushchev, the overriding of a Presidential veto by Congress may to some degree enter into Khrushchev's evaluation of the actual support President Eisenhower has in this country. According to advanced information, one of the purposes of the invitation to Khrushchev to visit this country was to show him first hand the support the government and the President have from the people.

For whatever other interpretation may be attached to the overriding of the public works appropriation bill veto by President Eisenhower, it must be recognized as a victory for the Democrats coupled with a rift on the part of the Republicans, some of whom joined in the effort to override the President's veto.

Little Chance For Red Trade

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the things Premier Nikita Khrushchev wants most — more trade with this country — is just exactly what he probably won't get.

The reason this government hasn't been eager for more trade with the Soviets can be stated bluntly although the State Department puts it in nicer language.

1. There isn't much to be gained by this country in such trade.

2. The machinery and know-how which the Soviets want from the United States would help them build up industrially, economically and militarily.

The Soviet Union isn't thinking in terms of buying consumer goods but in terms of buying machines and hiring American specialists.

Khrushchev wrote President Eisenhower a year ago about more trade. He got a fast brush. Then his deputy premier, Anastas Mikoyan, made the same pitch when he was here last January. The State Department cold-shouldered him.

Just a couple of weeks ago Khrushchev, preparing for his trip here next week, wrote a piece for the magazine, Foreign Affairs, in which he cited more trade as one of his prime goals.

So far as can be learned, he'll still get a cool turn-down. The story might be different if Soviet-American relations improved to the point the two countries didn't have to worry about each other.

Individual American businessmen could make money selling things to the Soviets. But here they run into government policy which for years has not encouraged trade with the Soviet bloc countries. For example:

Trade with the Iron Curtain nations took a nose-dive in the past 12 years. In 1947 the United States exchanged $693,461,000 in exports and $224,947,000 in imports with Communist countries.

In 1958 U.S. exports to the Soviet bloc totaled only 113 million and imports from the Communist countries were 64 million. Most of the trade last year was with Poland.

About a decade ago, when the cold war was under way in earnest, this government slapped controls on the export of strategic goods to Communist nations, materials or supplies which could help build up war-making power.

On his visit here Mikoyan, unlike Khrushchev who has been talking of buying machines to make consumer goods, asked that the strategic controls be lifted.

He got a fast answer from Douglas Dillon, under secretary of state.

Dillon minimized the idea that the ban on shipping strategic goods was much of a factor in keeping down Soviet-American trade. He said such goods amount to only about 10 per cent of the total possible list of things this country could sell abroad.

And Dillon, without using these exact words, told the Soviets they were a poor money risk. Khrushchev has suggested that in a few years real Soviet-American trade could amount to billions of dollars.

But the Soviet Union wants long term credits from the United States. Dillon and the State Department have already answered the Khrushchev-Mikoyan suggestion of buying from America on long-term credit this way:

"Why don't you pay what you owe? You owe this country $2,600,000,000 for civilian goods leased to the Soviet Union during World War II. Dillon put it this way:

"How can we be expected to extend credits to the Soviet Union while that country is in default to us on its past debts?"

And Congress passed a law in 1951 forbidding even private long-term credits to countries, like the Soviet Union, which haven't paid the United States money they owe.

The State Department has given various explanations for its lack of enthusiasm for big trade with the Soviets:

She's a potential enemy; there's small profit in it for this country; if we started buying from the Soviets things we now buy from other nations we would hurt our present trading partners; and American machines and know-how would help the Soviets just that much more in trying to get ahead of us.

Strength For Today

CHARACTER AN ACHIEVEMENT

A sense of guilt is a necessary experience for every real Christian to have, provided, of course, that the sense is not so profound as to plunge the person entertaining it into hopeless melancholy.

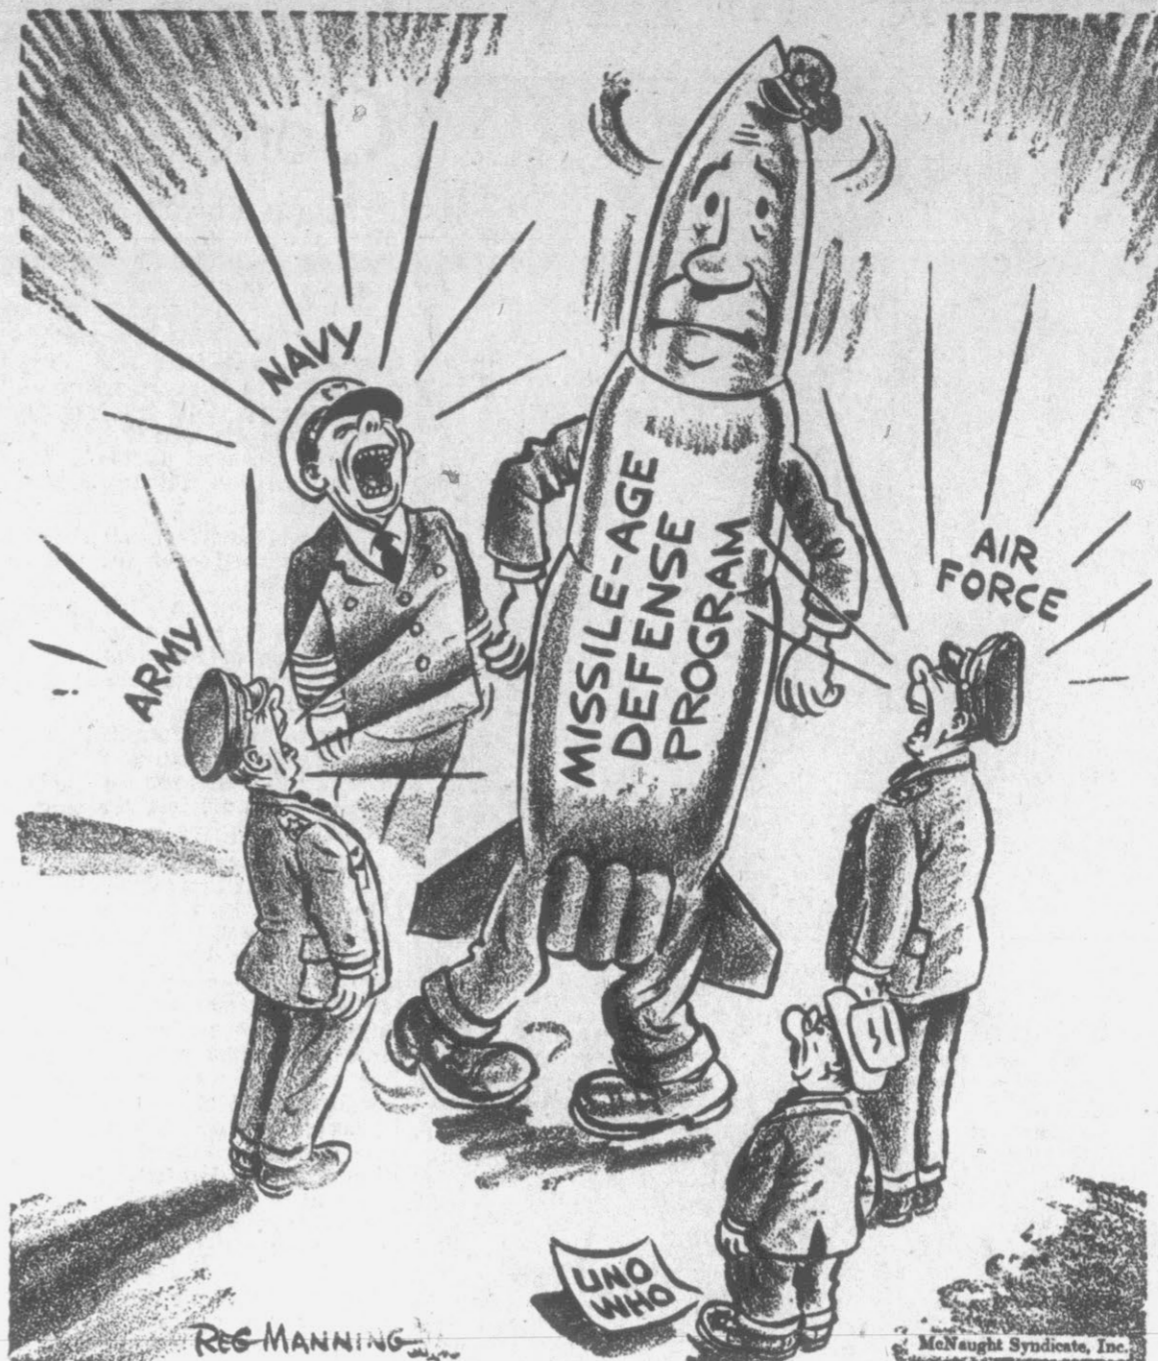

We are all sinners. Excepting for certain physical characteristics, this is the only feature all humans may be said to have in common. Yet because they are sinners all people do not have a sense of guilt. Millions, probably, go along day by day without feeling in the least that there is anything the matter with them or with the way they live. "Point out something that I do that everybody else does not do," they say. "Show me where I am in the least inferior to my neighbors in the way I live my life. I'm as good as the next fellow, and perhaps better."

Now a morbid fixation of moral guilt is very bad for one's body, mind, and soul. But this gay indifference to one's failings is equally as bad, if not worse. We are no better than the animals if we do not have and exercise the capacity for self-criticism. The tendency of every life is downward, unless by conscious, continual, and often heroic effort we keep trying to pull our lives up.

Character has to be achieved, and it is never achieved except by those persons who realize that they do not have it naturally. We repeat that character is not a gift but an achievement.

Circus Sponsors Happy

So the circus has come and gone and much to the relief of the Jaycees the show was a financial success locally.

The club figures it made somewhere around $1,000 in sponsoring the big show's appearance here.

The club received 50 percent of the advance tickets sales, which was done for the most part by club members themselves, and 10 percent of the gate receipts on circus day.

In addition, the club received all the proceeds from parking of cars at the fairgrounds.

There was also the satisfaction of sponsoring a good show for the entertainment of local people. The circus was well-received and it played to a near-capacity audience Wednesday night.

There's always plenty to see during a circus performance and it's well nigh impossible to follow all the action at once.

There was the clown, for instance, who made several kids happy in the stands during a lull in the entertainment.

He blew up the long spiral type balloons and then shot them into the audience. When he asked at each section for a show of hands among those wanting the balloons, hundreds little hands reached skyward. We even believe we saw a few adult-sized hands.

The long balloons were often taller than the kids who caught them.

Miss America put in an appearance during the performance in the form of a clown who was well padded in the right places.

The clown brought gales of laughter as he . . . er she . . . trotted around the big tent.

Circus folks appeared to us to be more polite than they were in the old so-called heyday of the circus.

The man who sold us a program for instance, had a "thank you" when he handed us the booklet.

"Hope you enjoy the circus," he added with a smile.

Ushers and ticket sellers were more helpful than in some circuses we have seen. The whole thing seems to be more honest.

There wasn't even the wild west show of the old circus days. This show used to be tackled on at the end and circus patrons could see it if they cared to pay the price of an additional ticket.

"How to CONVERT EARNINGS INTO CAPITAL GAINS" Speaking of income taxes—aren't we all always—the headline in a tax advisory service is: "How to Convert Corporate Earnings into Capital Gains."

No need to spell out details here. This scheme involves the issuance of preferred stock with a low issue price and a high redemption price, which is simply peachy if profits rise.

But there is need to point out once again that the gimmicks in the tax laws are resented by the straight-income taxpayers, and give them cause and self-justification to cheat on their own tax returns. Some day we may wrap up the facts to show that one billion-dollar loophole causes the government to lose another billion dollars because it seems to justify other taxpayers' cheating.

Street Full Of Dreams

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Every street you live or work on becomes in time a street of dreams.

An old way of life dies out, a new one is born. In most places the change may take a generation. Here in Manhattan progress gobbles up the past at a swifter pace.

This is the obituary of one side of one city block in Manhattan—the north side of W. 51st street between 5th and 6th avenues.

It now is a big business block, studded with banks and office buildings. A huge power shovel's hungry maw is eating through the ruins of older buildings to make way for the foundations of the new 48-story Zeckendorf Hotel.

It symbolizes the great changes now under way in mid-Manhattan.

Twenty years ago this block was a charming oasis in the city's uproar with a colorful atmosphere all its own.

The vast mausoleum-like home of Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, last of the big league society dowagers, anchored the block elegantly to 5th avenue. From there it ran raffishly downhill socially to the scream of the strident 6th avenue elevated trains.

The block was inhabited by a colorful crew of newsmen, actors, admen, songwriters, griders, drifters and hipsters. On an average evening you could run into everyone from a jockey to a harpoon salesman or a lady wrestler down on her luck.

There were expensive restaurants and cheap restaurants and a few sidewalk cafes where you could sit and watch the soot from brownstone chimneys drift mellowly down on and pepper your salad.

These eateries in this melting pot of the appetite saw the handwriting on the wall and moved away.

It was also a block of small craftsmen. There were the old book dealer, the shoe repair man, the violin maker, the seamstress who specialized in costumes for strip tease artists, and a hair dresser who did the best blonde bleaches in town.

They are gone now. So are the characters who made the block memorable.

There was little Scotty who carried a rope in his hand but you 50 cents you couldn't tie him up so he couldn't get away. He was known as "the poor man's Houdini."

There was a famous death in this block. Collier's magazine died here — and had a magnificent wake.

Commerce has taken over the block. But as the big shovel digs the reluctant earth, one who remembers thinks less on the glory this block will know than on the lonesome glory of the good times it has already known, when the world was younger, now gone by forever.

Compulsory Firearms Insurance

By ELMER ROESSNER

One insurance company is toying with the idea of advocating compulsory liability insurance for owners of firearms.

It would work just like auto insurance. In many states, drivers of autos must now carry liability insurance. No insurance, no license. Thus, when they run down a chick or a child, the state is assured the victims can be identified.

The firearm insurance would operate the same way. Anyone owning a firearm would be required to carry firearm insurance. If somebody didn't know the gun was loaded he (or his widow) would be sure of collecting damages even if the gun owner was a pauper.

It's a neat idea. The argument runs that a gun is designed to wound or kill. Cars are designed not to wound or kill, but to take live bodies from one place to another. Thus, if it is reasonable for autos to carry insurance against wounding or killing, it is even more reasonable to expect owners of lethal guns to carry insurance.

There is a quaint dividend in this proposal: If cops couldn't get conviction of a man who held up a bank at gun-point, at least they could get him sent to jail for a few days for carrying a gun without firearm insurance. That's the way things are in the motor field in some states: an auto owner may escape punishment for grinding down a pedestrian, but be fined for driving a car without adequate insurance.

This concept of liability insurance may spread. Because of big awards given to patients for alleged malpractice, many doctors carry heavy insurance against judgments. Some surgeons carry as much as $1,000,000 worth. Patients, of course, pay for this because the cost of premiums will be tucked away in the bills.

OTHER FIELDS AWAIT Many stores, hotels, restaurants and taverns already carry liability insurance. They never know when a customer will have a snort of schnapps and then shoot his wife; the orphan may, and frequently do, sue the proprietor on the ground that the schnapps were to blame for everything.

Why, then, shouldn't all purveyors of alcoholic beverages be required to carry liability insurance? A man going into a barroom ought to have the assurance that if he is set upon by a lush he can collect damages from somebody.

And why stop there? If tavern proprietors should be required to carry insurance, why shouldn't drinkers? If a bartender bashes a patron, the patron can sue the establishment. But if bashed by some stranger, chances of collecting damages are slim. Unless, of course, the law required every man to show proof of ability to pay all judgments before he is sold a drink.

In fact, the idea of liability could spread through all fields until we reached the point where

God's Concern for All

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Again the Lord told Jonah to go to Nineveh to warn the people of the city's doom. Jonah, obeying, preached there to warn the inhabitants.—Jonah 3:1-3.

The people of Nineveh believed Jonah. The king "arose from his throne," clad himself in sackcloth, and proclaimed a fast for men and beasts.—Jonah 3:5-7.

God saw that the people of Nineveh "turned from their evil ways" and He repented of the doom He had planned. Jonah, however, was angry and prayed to die.—Jonah 4:1-3.

Sitting outside the city under a gourd the Lord had prepared to shield him from the heat, Jonah faints when the gourd withered.—Jonah 4:5-8. MEMORY VERSE—Psalm 145:9.

God's Concern for All

JONAH WAS GIVEN A SECOND CHANCE TO OBEY THE LORD

Scripture—Jonah 3:1-8, 5; 4:5-11.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

IN LAST week's lesson we learned how Jonah disobeyed the Lord's command to go to Nineveh, and tried to flee from Him on a ship going to Tarshish. "But the Lord sent out a great wind into the sea, and there was a mighty tempest in the sea, so that the ship was like to be broken."—Jonah 1:4.

Notes: "Fasting and the wearing of sackcloth, their heads covered with ashes, were the outward signs of mourning common in ancient times amongst the peoples of the East." "Who can tell if God will turn and repent, and turn away from His fierce anger, that we perish not?" they said. And seeing that the people had turned again to Him, God "repented of the evil, that He said that He would do unto them; and He did it not."—Jonah 3:9-10.

In this lesson we learn of Jonah's repentance and of what happened to him thereafter. The Lord gave Jonah a second chance to obey Him and he went to Nineveh. Dr. Wilbur M. Smith tells us that Strabo, an ancient geographer, wrote of the magnificence of Nineveh. "The ruins of Nineveh are of greater extent than Babylon" we learn, and "the ruins of Nineveh are of impressive significance. Palace excavations show halls, rooms, passages, some still faced with alabaster and sculptured with extraordinary vivid portrayals of wars, hunting and mythology." The journey took three days and three nights. "And Jonah began to enter into the city . . . and he cried, and said, Yet 40 days, and Nineveh shall be overthrown."—Jonah 3:4.

MEMORY VERSE "The Lord is gracious, and full of compassion; slow to anger, and of great mercy."—Psalm 145:8.

God also prepared a worm, when morning came the next day, "and it smote the gourd that it withered." And the Lord also sent a high wind, so that "the sun beat upon the head of Jonah, that he fainted."—Jonah 4:7-8.

Then Jonah was angry with the worm, but God said: "Thou hast had pity on the gourd, for the which thou hast not labored, neither madest it grow; which came up in a night, and perished in a night; And should not I spare Nineveh, that great city, wherein are more than sixscore thousand persons that cannot discern between their right hand and their left hand; and also much cattle?"—Jonah 4:9-11.

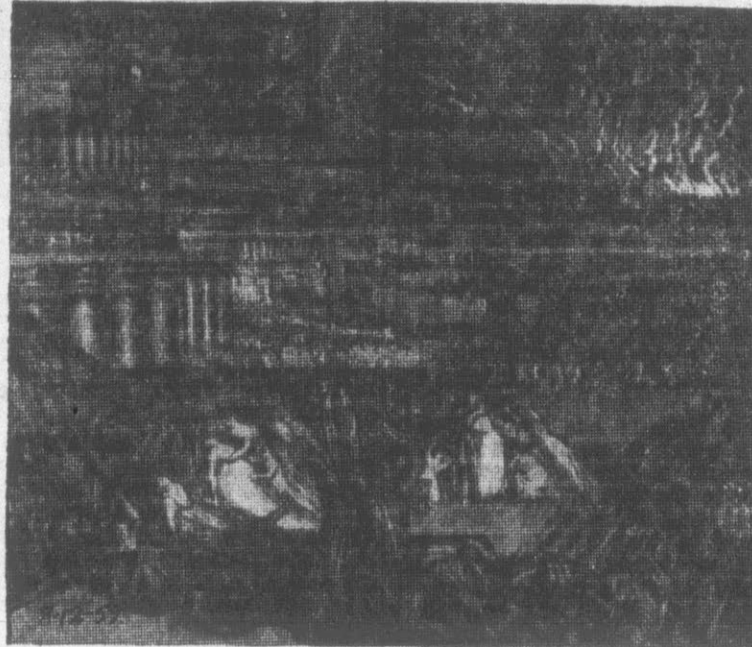

Jonah was given his second chance to obey God. We, too, are often given a second chance to change from evil to good. Let us, if we have sinned, take to heart the lesson of Jonah and pray for forgiveness and a second chance. Dr. Wilbur M. Smith suggests that all the classes would understand the fact that while life is the gift of God, who created the beautiful world in which we live, and which supplies us with all the foods for our sustenance, man must do his part in growing, plowing and harvesting them. So we can be co-workers with God.

CHAPTER 33 ... FOUR MEN rode the plain this night, and with their heads bowed, their faces grimly set, they rode their horses in the darkness. The only light visible being in the cookshack, signifying that Joe Orr, the cook, was on hand.

Asbell and Tom Grant had paid grim visit to Double Diamond with the body of Wiley Goss, it was Sage Wingo's feeling that both were considering business of some sort that would take them away from headquarters during the night. If this be so now, then what he was intent on would be simple enough.

With this fact established, Wingo returned to headquarters. Coming in on the place through the darkness, he held his horse to a walk, for he hoped, if possible, to accomplish by stealth what he was about to do.

He would handle matters so silently and quickly, no one would even know he'd returned here, and loss of the money could go unnoticed for days. And when the loss was found out, who actually would have proof of what?

Wingo left his horse at the far edge of the corrals and came in on foot, carefully prowling, keeping the night with every straining sense. All was still, all empty, except for that light in the cookshack.

Then that gaunt, bitter figure that had loomed against the stars, toppled into the black shadows which lay close to the earth. And Jonas Dalmar's horse, under empty saddle, spun away, spooked and wild.

As the echoes of Wingo's shot frizzled out, a muffled yell of alarm sounded in the cookshack and the figure of Joe Orr showed in the lighted doorway. Sage thudded into the cookshack wall, a year from the door.

Joe Orr ducked from sight as abruptly as he had appeared, letting go another muffled yell, this one falling off into scared profanity.

Sage Wingo came off the porch and past the still figure huddled down there in the earth's blackness.

He paid no attention to the riderless horse snorting and milling in the nearby dark, but circled the corrals to where his own horse waited.

He stuffed the sack of money into his saddlebags, then went into the saddle and wheeled away, putting his horse to a run.

He held to this for only a little distance, however, as realization came that things were still all right, still all in his favor.

What if he had killed Jonas Dalmar? The damned old pirate had long needed killing! And who could say that it was Sage Wingo who had pulled the fatal trigger?

No living man saw him, or heard his voice. And who could say but what Jonas Dalmar had died in retaliation for the killing of Packy Lane and the wounding of Neils Madison? Yes, who indeed could say that someone on the other side of the fence had not evened matters?

The more he thought of it, the more securely convinced Sage Wingo became that he had nothing to worry about. There was no need of riding back trails, of dodging anyone, or riding fast and far.

He could take his time, go and come as he pleased. Because no one could point a finger at him with proof!

Despite Strike In Steel, Good Economic Data

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—The sturdy health of the economy is shown today in official figures on employment and unemployment.

Despite the inroads of the steel strike, the total of workers stays high. And despite those laid off in allied industries because of the strike the total of the jobless stays under four million.

With the return of auto workers to the plants as model change slowdowns end, the economy should get even sturdier. And when the steel strike is settled, the economy should take a big step forward.

But the stock market has been having qualms about the record duration of the strike. And the London Financial Times tells us that Europeans are worried about it, too.

Its effects are expected to spread fast if the strike goes over into next month. And beyond that there will be a time lag after settlements until the mills can make normal deliveries again.

But the reason the strike in a basic industry, which in former years would have been crippling long before this, hasn't toppled the general business boom yet is this: The industry has built capacity to a point where it was able to turn out a nine-month supply of steel in the first six months of the year. And since steel users expected a long strike, most had built up stocks with their nine-month needs in mind.

Not that Wall Street has had other things on its mind beside the steel strike. One is the tight money policy of officials who fear easy credit might encourage the kind of speculative boom that historically leads but to a future bust.

Not that Wall Street wants a bust. But it fears that many growth industries — whose stocks have been dear to traders — may not get the funds for the expansion of plant and production that make their stocks so attractive. And tight money might pinch off the top of the boom in home building and in installment buying.

Another worry in the stock market is over the chance — however faint — that the cold war might simmer down to a point that United States spending on defense would slacken.

Too, President Eisenhower's success in the main in holding down new government spending is a factor. If he succeeds in balancing his budget and ending the deficit spending that has sent the federal debt to a record high, that will halt a chief factor in monetary inflation.

And if the steel strike should end without a wage-price hike, that might signal the end of the spiral affecting the cost of living.

Both would remove one of the chief talikits of the bulls — that buying stocks is a good hedge against further inflation.

The unlimited availability of divine supply will be brought out at Christian Science services Sunday.

Seriptional readings in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Substance" include the account in II Kings (4) of Elisha's feeding of a hundred men with twenty loaves.

Correlative selections to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy include (494:10): "Divine Love always has met and always will meet every human need. It is not well to imagine that Jesus demonstrated the divine power to heal only for a select number or for a limited period of time, since to all mankind and in every hour, divine Love supplies all good."

The Golden Text is from James (1:17): "Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father of lights, with whom is no variable-ness, neither shadow of turning."

Sports Scope

Coach Jack Young returns to his Alma Mater today when he brings his Ahsokie Indians into College Stadium at East Carolina College to do battle with Greenville in a nocturnal engagement.

The East Carolina College graduate has been hesitant to return to his stomping grounds and play teams out of his class but this year the Indian coach jumped at the chance to return here and play Greenville.

It is no secret that Young has the ingredients of a fine football team, probably the cream of the crop in his division. Evidence of his strength is easy to identify when observing that Young, always cautious in drawing up a schedule, has Southern Durham, Elizabeth City and Roanoke Rapids on his 1959 slate, besides Greenville.

'Well-Balanced Club'

Provisions were made for the Indians to take a week of training in the mountains and reportedly, the interest has been riding high in the AA club.

The Ahsokie stock took a rise last Friday night when they bowled over Scotland Neck, 40-0.

Despite the supply of material, Young is being conservative. "We realize this will be our toughest season but we think we have a well-balanced ball club; and if the reserve strength holds against larger schools, we hope to hold our own."

Local Coach Is Impressed

Coach Bud Phillips was on hand for the Scotland Neck slaughter last Friday night and was impressed with his opening opponent.

"They looked real good", stated Phillips. "I thought halfbacks were their strong point. They had at least a half-dozen good runners. They will be ahead of us in depth and also outweigh us some. We had expected them to have a strong team and we will be up against a real good team."

Invited to be on the Greenville schedule in past years, this is the first time that Ahsokie has accepted and on paper they will be tabled as at least a touchdown favorite.

Phantoms Have Good Opportunity

Greenville has a good opportunity to "make good" in their opener. Victims of a lot of hard work and sweat in hot and humid weather, the locals will not want to let this go for nothing.

They don't have the depth of their visitors but their material is sound and they play as a unit. Coach Phillips has been pleased with his club's attitude and feels that "they want to play football". Being the underdog always gives added incentive. Greenville could have just that tonight and walk away with their opening victory.

Tonight's game could prove to be a battle of fullbacks. Greenville's Robin Wilfong has plenty of power as does Butch Williams of the visitors. The two command respect from the rival coaches and their line-busting could be a decisive factor tonight.

Sooners Haven't Any Sure Berths

By JACK CLARY

Associated Press Sports Writer: "no man is an island" means that no man is an island means that no football player is a permanent first stringer on Oklahoma's football team.

That is the way Sooners Coach Bud Wilkinson operates and the ensuing diversity of talent is one of the big reasons for his unmatched (114-10-3) record among current football coaches.

Thursday was pretty typical. During a pair of scrimmage sessions Wilkinson made these changes:

No. 1 quarterback Bobby Boyd to third team signal-caller and No. 2 quarterback Bob Cornell to the first team.

No. 1 fullback Prentice Gault and No. 2 fullback Ron Hartline changed places.

The chess-like moves were given sufficient reason when Wilkinson, looking ahead to the season, said, "our team, particularly in the line, lacks the experience of our opponents."

He is giving everyone ample experience, many at different positions.

Notre Dame Coach Joe Kuharich ran into trouble Thursday when first string quarterback George Izo and No. 1 halfback Red Mack were lost for 10 days to two weeks with knee injuries.

Baylor lost No. 1 quarterback Bill McMillen for the rest of the year with torn knee ligaments.

By JOHNNY HUDSON Four weeks have passed since August 15 and the opening of football practice at Rose High in Greenville. Tonight the local forces go on display, opening their 1959 football season against Ahsokie.

The opener for the Greensies will be no softie and although a class ahead of the visiting Indians, Coach Phillips team will be listed as a touchdown underdog in their 1959 debut.

It is no secret that Ahsokie has their best team in some time and the Greensies will be given a true test. Fresh from a 40-0 victory over Scotland Neck, Coach Jack Young brings his outfit to town boasting two All-Conference stars and a flock of veterans from last year's team.

Butch Williams, a 200-pounder, paces the Ahsokie attack from his fullback slot. Groomed as an outstanding college prospect, Williams plays a tackle slot on defense.

CHARLES JACQUIN et Cie, Inc., Phila., Pa.

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — A medical journal says most states, along with the federal government, are almost powerless to take steps against their chief executives if his sanity is questioned.

The North Carolina Medical Journal cites this situation as one of four lessons to be learned from the tragicomic case of Louisiana Gov. Earl Long.

An editorial in the current issue of the journal, the North Carolina Medical Society's official publication, said a survey of 24 states shows that only two—Alabama and Oregon—require sanity tests for governors if there is a question of mental incompetence.

Most are like North Carolina, said the journal, which would have to resort to impeachment.

Only the Legislature can impeach the governor, and only the governor can call the Legislature into special session. Since the Legislature meets only about five months every two years, the editorial continued, "the state might be subject to the whims of a mentally deceased governor for 19 months."

The other "lessons" cited by the journal editorial, which said it was not attempting to "diagnose at long range the exact nature of Governor Long's psychosis."

1. "The danger of a patient's trying to diagnose his own disease. Certainly few would agree with Governor Long's diagnoses of himself as the 'best damn governor Louisiana ever had.'"

2. "No layman—not even a governor—should have the right to discharge the head of the hospital. It is unfortunate, as evidenced by Georgia's recent investigation of the state hospital at Milledgeville—that in too many states politics play a great part in the care of the mentally sick. A good case against lay control of medical practice might be based on Louisiana's experience."

3. "The very threat to medical prestige arising from the conflicting testimony given by psychiatrists in Gov. Long's case. It is hard to understand how doctors appointed by Long to replace the ousted head of the state hospital could have justified their action in declaring him sane. Surely they must have realized that they were selling their medical birthright for a very sorry mess of political pottage."

The Tulsa cement finisher was 65 Wednesday. Just before the end of his last day of work at a sewer plant project here, he toppled from a scaffold into a five-foot-deep pit half filled with water.

Install Bishop Of N.C. Diocese

VADE MECUM, N.C. (AP) — The Rt. Rev. Richard Henry Baker was installed here Thursday night as the seventh bishop of the North Carolina Episcopal Diocese.

The new bishop had served as rector of the Church of Redeemer in Baltimore, Md., for 20 years before being elected as bishop coadjutor of the North Carolina diocese in 1951.

The Rt. Rev. Thomas Henry Wright of Wilmington, bishop of the Diocese of Eastern North Carolina, presented the traditional staff during colorful ceremonies at the annual retreat for denominational ministers at the assembly grounds here.

The Rt. Rev. Noble C. Powell, bishop of the Diocese of Maryland, who gave the installation sermon, described Bishop Baker as a man of courage who will help break down the vicious circle of hatred in order that the Kingdom of God may come into the human situation.

The installation was a two-part ceremony in which the bishop received a silver staff, the symbol of his office, and was led to the cathedra of bishop's chair.

Bishop Baker succeeds Bishop Edwin A. Penick, who died last April.

A diocese committee is receiving nominations for bishop coadjutor to succeed Bishop Baker. A diocesan meeting will be held in Raleigh Oct. 7 to name the successor.

Plans Modernize Weapons Laws

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor Robert F. Wagner says city officials will meet early next week to recommend changes in outmoded weapons laws in the battle against youth violence.

At a meeting Thursday on delinquency problems, Wagner said current laws do not cover such juvenile gang weapons as razor-tipped poles.

We need a complete revamping of laws on all levels to curb the sale of weapons of all types," said the mayor.

June Allyson's TV Show Is Designed For Women

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
NEW YORK (AP) — One new television series, at least, promises to be daringly different. June Allyson, hostess and sometimes star of her own forthcoming Dupont Show, announces that it is aimed especially at women.

"Just about all there has been for the women has been the Loretta Young show and the old, old movies," comments the tiny, blonde actress. "We're going to give women some good half-hour dramas, the kind that will sometimes give them a chance to have a good cry or a good laugh."

In pursuance of this goal, Miss Allyson's show starting Sept. 21 will star such seasoned and popular women stars as Irene Dunne, Bette Davis, Ann Harding and Ginger Rogers.

"Now there are stars who look like themselves—not like every other actress in Hollywood," continues Miss Allyson, who also looks undisputedly like June Allyson. "And they will dress in good taste — wonderful beautiful, feminine, simple clothes."

It's too bad nobody can find a fall spot for Andy Williams and company who have been doing such an imaginative and delightful job all summer in the Garry Moore Show spot. Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's U. S. visit, starting next Tuesday, will be covered by TV and radio more thoroughly than anything since the last world series and may possibly raise hob with regular programming schedules. Ingrid Bergman arrives in New York Saturday to start rehearsals for Henry James' "Turn of the Screw" which will be taped and presented on NBC's "Startime," Oct. 20. Arthur Godfrey, recuperating from lung cancer surgery, will host a salute to the Eleanor Roosevelt Cancer Research Institute on NBC Sunday Oct. 25. It is one of the Sunday Showcase series timed to honor Mrs. R's 75th birthday.

A Cliff Arquette fan recently wrote to a magazine requesting reprints of a series about the comedian which the magazine ran. The magazine sent the reprints, along with a letter explaining to the correspondent that Arquette's "real name" is Charles Weaver. Friends of the funnyman, a regular on NBC's Jack Paar show who will soon have his own ABC program, routinely call him "Cliff" when he is in civilian clothes, and automatically switch to "Charlie" when he dons his Mount Ivy hat, pants and specs.

Gamblers Face Fine And Prison

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Six big-money gamblers convicted of evading $326,315 in excise taxes face prison sentences of five years and fines of $25,000 each.

They have 10 days in which to decide whether to go to prison or appeal their conviction.

Two others, shown leniency because of their age, will not go to prison but must pay $25,000 fines.

Judge Cale J. Holder sentenced and fined the eight men in U. S. Dist. Court Thursday, suspending the five-year terms for Charles L. (Buck) Sumner, 71, and Joey Jacobs, 64, both of Indianapolis.

The judge gave the others until Sept. 21 to decide whether to appeal or to report for imprisonment. They are Leo (Bookie) Shaffer, 58, Chicago; Jules Horvick, 54, Chicago; Phillip (Flippy) Share, 54, Minneapolis and Las Vegas; Irwin Gordon, 41, Las Vegas; James Tamer, 46, Detroit and Miami, and Eddie M. Wyatt, 60, Terre Haute.

Besides the fines, the eight must pay the costs of their six-week trial at Terre Haute, which may amount to $20,000. They also face an undetermined civil liability that could run to a million dollars.

The eight gamblers were convicted July 30 of evading the 10 per cent excise tax on $3,263,150 worth of bets in 10 weeks of operation at Terre Haute in the fall of 1957. The government estimates that the syndicate handled 10 million dollars in bets during that period.

None of the defendants spoke before or after the sentencing, but Sumner, a former Marion County (Indianapolis) sheriff, and Jacobs took a tongue lashing from Judge Holder along with their probation.

Scandals Only Aided Film Stars' Salaries

By THOMAS BACON HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The movies' two highest paid feminine stars, of the moment, are the central figures of the two biggest movie scandals of the decade. And in both cases, the big jump in income followed the front page headlines. The stars, of course, are Lana Turner and Elizabeth Taylor. Miss Turner's first picture after her teen-age daughter fatally stabbed the actress' underworld sweetheart, Johnny Stompanato, was "Imitation of Life." For it, she was offered the best deal of her career—50 per cent of the profits. Producer Ross Hunter estimates that the actress' cut of the box-office click, Universal-International's biggest of the year, already is two million dollars. "And that's minimum," says Hunter. "Heaven knows how much higher it may go." Miss Taylor, since the triangle headlines with Eddie Fisher and Debbie Reynolds, has become the only million dollar salary actress in the business. Marlon Brando is the only other star with a million dollar price tag on his services. It was not long after the headlines that Miss Taylor's agent asked and received $750,000 plus 10 per cent of the gross for her appearing in "Suddenly, Last Summer" and "Two for the See Saw."

Student Center Plans Program

Methodist students attending East Carolina College, beginning activities for the school year at the Methodist Student Center on East Fifth Street, have extended a welcome to several hundred students since East Carolina opened for the fall quarter last week. Methodist student leaders are now organizing a program of religious, educational, and recreational events to be carried out at the center during the 1959-1960 term. W. Earl Duncan, junior from Clarendon, heads the Wesley Foundation, Methodist Student organization and, as president, is working with other officers of the denominational group on plans for the year. Dixon Hall of Fayetteville is vice president of the Wesley Foundation and Sue Carol Evans of Wilson is secretary-treasurer. George Smith Haislip of Hamilton is president of the Wesley Players, dramatic club. The Rev. James H. Warren, East Carolina alumnus who is now professor of religious drama at Scarritt College, Nashville, Tenn., was principal speaker at the Center Sunday, September 6, at an all-day orientation program in honor of freshmen. Other events of the day included a breakfast and an afternoon tea. As a "home-away-from-home" for college students, the Methodist Student Center is open each day from 9 a. m. to 10:30 p. m. Mamej Chandler is director of the Student Center.

Tobacco Prices On Belt 'Steady'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Average prices for flue-cured tobacco generally held steady Thursday along the Carolinas Border Belt and the North Carolina Middle Belt. On the big Eastern North Carolina Belt, about half the grade averages dropped from $1 to $3 per 100 pounds. Six Border Belt markets held final sales—Conway, Darlington, Dillon, Hemingway, Loris and Pamplico, S.C. Both the Fayetteville and Fair Bluff, N.C., markets end operations for the season today. Border Belt sales Wednesday totaled 6,119,606 pounds at a $61.52 average—a decrease of $2.24 compared with Tuesday. The Federal-State Market News Service said the government loan program amounted to 1.9 per cent of the sales. A total of 4,109,163 pounds were auctioned Wednesday on the Middle Belt. The $55.07 average represented a $2.13 decrease from Tuesday. Growers placed 7 per cent of the tobacco under the loan program. Wednesday's sales on the Eastern Belt grossed 11,060,852 pounds and averaged $57.55, down 71 cents from the preceding day. Stabilization Corp. receipts totaled 2.3 per cent. Volume of sales was heavy Thursday along all three belts with quality about the same as Wednesday. However, grades picked up slightly on the Middle Belt following Wednesday's declines.

Find Widespread Worm Infestation In The Fields

There is widespread worm infestation in Pitt County's peanut and soy bean fields and County Agent S. C. Winchester urged farmers to take action to destroy the worms. "We are finding corn ear worm, fall army worm, green clover worm and the velvet green caterpillar in both peanut and soy bean fields," Winchester said. Also in the soy bean fields, the farm agent's office is finding bean leaf beetle and spotted cucumber beetles. In the soy bean field the insects are eating off the pods and in some instances eating the blossoms before the pod forms, Winchester said. After the pod forms they eat the bean out of the pod. The farm agent stated the infestation is "pretty widespread" throughout the county. There are approximately 8,000 soy bean acres and 7,000 peanut acres in Pitt County. Winchester suggested that farmers put on a good insecticide immediately where the insects are present. He recommended DDT at two pounds per acre or Toxaphene at two pounds per acre either in dust or spray for soy beans where the crop is going to be used for beans. However, he said Toxaphene shouldn't be used on soy beans

Bans Race Views On State Jobs

DAVIS, Calif. (AP)—Gov. Edmund G. Brown of California has ordered an end to racial discrimination in state jobs. The governor, a Democrat, said Thursday in a statement to department directors meeting here to discuss government reorganization. It would be tragic if we failed to carry out the same spirit of equality in the treatment of our state employees that we have established for private enterprise. He referred to California's first fair employment practices act, which goes into effect Sept. 18. It prohibits job discrimination because of race, religion or ancestry. Brown said it often appears that members of minority groups hold only poorly-paid state jobs. Beer from crushed barley was made in Babylon 5,000 years ago. Steel Strike Is Building Up To Crisis

By JOHN MOODY
PITTSBURGH (AP)—Effects of the nationwide steel strike—slowly building up over the last 59 days—appear headed for a crisis within the next two to four weeks. Heavy inventories accumulated during a record six months' production prior to the strike are becoming unbalanced. Many small firms unnoticed because of size have quietly halted production.

An Associated Press survey shows layoffs in industries allied to steel have reached 175,000. Late reports may push the unemployment figures even higher.

Even as the picture grows dark many of the big manufacturers who depend on steel for raw material report they have not yet felt the sting of the strike. They add quickly that time is running out.

While the economic squeeze grows tighter, negotiators for the basic steel industry and nearly a half-million striking United Steelworkers show no sign of coming close to an agreement.

Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell said earlier this week he would recommend that the President halt the strike by Taft-Hartley injunction if steel shortages develop and further unemployment results.

Just how much the 80-day cooling off period provided for under Taft-Hartley would help is questionable. It would take weeks to fill delivery lines that were drawn dry prior to the strike.

Steel firms report heavy ordering for the fourth quarter already. An 80-day production resumption would start a wild scramble to build up sagging inventories and result in long waits for many customers.

A poll by the National Assn. of Purchasing Agents of big firms in the manufacturing field was summed up by saying: "The steel strike hasn't hurt business yet, but if it isn't settled in 30 days manufacturing companies may have to cut back sharply."

The Associated Press state-by-state survey shows that most of the unemployment resulting from the steel strike so far has occurred in or near the big steel producing centers.

Pennsylvania, heart of the steel empire, reports nearly 65,000 idled because of the steel strike. West Virginia, where much of settled coal is mined, has 27,000 laid off.

Kentucky, another coal producing state, has 15,006 idle. Ohio, a big steel producer, has upward of 20,000 idled.

Many of the other states, where steel manufacturing firms dot the map, quote employment commission officials as saying effects of the steel strike are almost negligible and the effects so far light.

In the New England states reports as late as the first week of this month were that isolated effects of the strike are beginning to be felt.

New England warehouses report large companies, ordinarily purchasers of steel in mill quantities, are shopping for small amounts of steel.

Edward Randall, purchasing agent for Hawkrigg Bros. steel warehouses in Boston, said the consensus of the company's New England customers were that another two weeks would begin to slow production.

In Texas an employment commission spokesman said many very small firms appear to be cutting down but most are not included in commission reports.

Reports from the state of Washington are that no serious effects of the steel strike have been felt so far but may take a toll in another four weeks.

Construction work, especially bridges and highways, are just starting to show effects of the strike. In many cases the steel for bridge and highway construction must be made to order and cannot be stockpiled too far ahead.

Wyoming reports unemployment resulting from the strike is barely noticeable but a spokesman added that construction of the natural gas pipeline is being delayed.

tion's first Atlas missile operational base near Cheyenne may be halted by a lack of steel if the strike goes a few more weeks.

Pittsburgh's 20-million-dollar civic auditorium now under construction will be delayed because stainless steel for its massive revolving roof will not be ready.

Midwest Steel & Iron Co. in Colting has cut its work force by 25 per cent. Vice President W. E. Geer said the firm's overall supply of steel is still good but shortages are cropping up in some specific product items.

On the other side of the picture, the half-million steelworkers appear to be suffering through the strike with a minimum of hardship. Many are receiving government surplus food and package distributions from the union.

In most steel areas, utility firms and merchants are extending credit to many of the strikers. In some areas stores are advertising that striking workers can buy now and make the first payment 30 days after the strike ends.

Predicts FHA To Increase Rate

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A building industry spokesman predicts the Federal Housing Administration will increase the mortgage rate on FHA-insured loans by one-half per cent, from 5 1/2 to 6 per cent.

Carl Mitnick of Merchantville, N.J., president of the National Home Builders Assn., told more than 400 builders here Thursday that he expects the increase to come within 30 days. He didn't elaborate.

Wounded In His Fourth Holdup

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Wounded in his fourth encounter with holdupmen, Ray Collins, 57, assistant manager of the Bank of Nevada, was in critical condition today.

He was shot in the stomach Thursday as he chased a robber who then killed himself as police closed in.

The gunman robbed a teller of $1,677 and ran out of the bank. As Collins made a tackle, the robber shot him. Then he fired four shots into his own chest and fell dead.

Police identified the holdupman as John P. Karn of the Morning Glory Mine, Troy, Mont.

Collins, then an employe of the Bank of America in Los Angeles, wounded a holdupman in 1932, prevented a robbery by firing a shot in 1933 and killed a robber in 1936.

Grass eats daily. Take your lawn off that summer diet. Don't be fooled by claims of "a year's feeding" either. Right now there's little left in the soil to feed your lawn.

Heavy Damage In Two Accidents

CAR STRIKES HOUSE . . . following auto collision yesterday.

Greenville Police reported over $1,800 damage in two accidents in the city yesterday just after noon.

The first of the two collisions occurred at the intersection of First St. and Woodlawn Ave. about 12:23 and involved cars operated by Joseph Burtis Upchurch of 311 Greene St. and Dr. Stephen R. Bartlett of 208 Longmeadow Road.

According to investigating officer R. E. Joyner, the Bartlett car was headed north on Woodlawn Ave. and was struck in the right side by the Upchurch auto which was headed west on First St.

Joyner said after the two cars collided, the Bartlett car then traveled 103 feet out of control and struck a house owned by Mrs. Thelma Joyner, causing an estimated $150 damage to the dwelling.

Damage to the Bartlett car was set at $700 while damage to the Upchurch vehicle was estimated to be $300.

No injuries were reported in the mishap.

Bartlett was charged with failure to yield the right of way as a result of the investigation of the accident.

A second wreck, which occurred about 1:12 p.m. on East 10th St. caused an estimated $450 damage to a car operated by James Rufus Norville of Falkland.

Investigators said the Norville car struck the rear of a pickup truck operated by Lemuel Lawrence Wallace of Route 1, Washington, when the truck allegedly stopped on the street to avoid hitting a small dog which ran in front of the vehicle.

Officers estimated damage to the truck at $5.

No injuries were reported and no charges were placed by the investigating officers.

Council Bows To PTA Meeting

A PTA meeting has moved the City Council from its traditional Thursday night spot.

City Manager Leonard Bloxam last night proposed moving the October council meeting to the second Thursday night rather than the normal first Thursday.

He pointed out that the first Thursday is on the first day of the month and department heads wouldn't have time to prepare the monthly bills for council approval.

Councilman M. W. Aldridge objected.

He said he was missing a Parent Teachers Association meeting last night and he didn't want to miss two in a row.

The other councilmen went along. So the meeting next month was set for Oct. 7 which falls on a Wednesday.

It will be the first time in years that the regular monthly council meeting was not held on a Thursday night.

AWOL Arrested For Break-Ins

A Marine private, reported AWOL from Camp Lejeune, has been arrested on a charge of breaking and entering two homes in the Cox's Mill area.

Deputy Ralph Tyson said Pvt. T. Danboise, 17, of First Bn. Sixth Marines, is in Pitt County Jail under $500 bond on the charges.

Danboise is accused of entering the homes of Jessie C. Smith and Newton Tyndall at Cox's Mill.

A billfold was missing from the Smith home and an electric razor from the Tyndall home. There was no money in the billfold, according to Tyson.

Deputies Tyson and Gerald Davis were called to the scene shortly after 1 o'clock yesterday. They were given a description of the intruder by Tyndall who said he had seen the man around his home and talked to him.

Later the two deputies saw Danboise as they passed him on the U.S. 264 bypass near Greenville. They radioed for assistance in apprehending the car. Greenville Detective Henry Lawson who was also on the bypass heard the call and stopped Danboise's car.

Tyson said the billfold and razor were found in Danboise's possession and he admitted the break-ins. The officer said Danboise was enroute to Syracuse, N.Y.

Morganton Publisher, Beatrice Cobb, Dies

DURHAM, N.C. (AP)—Miss Beatrice Cobb, publisher of the Morganton News - Herald since 1916 and secretary of the North Carolina Press Assn. since 1922, died at Duke University Hospital at 2:20 a.m. today.

Miss Cobb was 70 years old. Death was attributed to acute leukemia. She first entered the hospital July 9 for treatment of the blood ailment.

She served as national Democratic committeewoman for 18 years, giving up the post in 1952. The hospital, picking up 3rd grf improvement in her condition over the weekend but she remained on the critical list.

The funeral will be conducted at 4 p.m. Saturday in the First Methodist Church at Morganton by the Rev. Walter Lee Lanier, pastor, and the Rev. John W. Carter, rector of Grace Episcopal Church. A section of the church will be reserved for members of the press.

Survivors include two sisters, Mrs. Donnie C. Algeen of Morganton and Mrs. Edward R. Joyce of St. Augustine, Fla.

Miss Cobb, the oldest of six daughters, was in her early 20s when her father died in 1916. The question arose as to who would succeed him as editor and publisher of the then-weekly Morganton News-Herald.

Miss Cobb, a school teacher, had worked part time at the newspaper, but the thought of taking on the full time job of publishing the News-Herald dismayed her, despite a petition signed by Morganton's leading citizens promising full cooperation.

A news story was the deciding factor. Morganton was shut off from the outside world by the area's worst flood. Miss Cobb assembled a bobtail staff and got to work on the story. The reporters were everyone in town, anyone who had been to the scene and could tell what he saw. Her "backroom" staff included a tramp printer whom she had allowed to sleep in the printing shop the night before and a salesman for Linotype machines.

After that flood story she was in newspapering to stay. Under her guidance, the News - Herald grew into a semi-weekly, then a daily. In 1938, she also established the weekly Valdeze News.

In 1922, Miss Cobb, one of the few female publishers in the nation, was elected secretary of the North Carolina Press Assn. She held the post continuously since.

Miss Cobb's interests, however, were far from being limited to the world of journalism. Beginning in 1936, she served for many years as North Carolina's Democratic national committeewoman and was a member of the special committee which conferred with the late President Roosevelt in selecting a successor to James Farley as the party's national chairman.

She was active in many civic and charitable projects, especially projects dealing with the Southern mountaineers.
