Episcopal Vows Unite Couple

St. Paul's Episcopal Church was the scene of the wedding of Miss Rebecca Anne Garbutt and Randall Leon Harrington on Saturday afternoon. The Rev. Peter Fleming officiated at the double-ring ceremony and nuptial mass.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Randall Garbutt and Mr. Harrington is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Wayland Harrington of Ayden.

Arrangements of white chrysanthemums filled the altar vases and only the altar candles were used. The family pews were marked with white satin ribbon.

Don Surrency, organist, and a choir composed of Misses Jan and Carol Murphy, Cattie, Cynthia Harper, Elizabeth Thomas, Linda Nealey, Joan Apperson and Patricia McCann presented the nuptial music.

Compositions were played from the works of Bach, Handel, Brahms, and Samuel Wesley. For the processional the choir sang

"Praise My Soul, the King of Heaven." During Communion, the Merbecke service was sung; as a recessional the choir sang "Ye Watchers and Ye Holy Ones."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was gowned in a full-length wedding dress of white Venetian lace over Peau de Sole. The scoop neckline and the long sleeves were bordered in iridescent sequins, seed pearls, and crystal beads. The skirt formed a chapel train and the fingertip veil of illusion fell from a crown of pearls. Her bouquet was of yellow-throated white orchids with light yellow tea roses. White satin leaves with rhinestones topped the flowers and it was interspersed with maline and white satin ribbon.

Mrs. Robert Brown of Fairlawn, N. J., cousin of the bride, was matron of honor. Her dress was of emerald green organza over taffeta. The full pleated skirt was street length. The dress featured a scoop neckline, low in back, and was sleeveless. She wore white gloves and a bandeau of emerald green organza with matching slippers. Mrs. Brown's flowers were roses tied with bronze satin ribbon, in a stylized bouquet using green satin leaves with gold beads.

Miss Ingrid Allerman of Durham was bridesmaid and Miss Lenwood Surrency was junior bridesmaid. Their dresses and accessories were similar to those of the honor attendant.

Leon Wayland Harrington was his son's best man. Usher-grooms-men were James Prescott, Douglas Prescott of Elizabethtown, cousins of the bridegroom, Semon Constantine and Letham Flannagan of Durham. Frank Garbutt Jr., brother of the bride, was server acolyte and Jack Jascal was crucifer.

Mrs. Garbutt chose for her daughter's wedding a navy blue lace over taffeta. She wore a small hat of matching color with matching accessories. Her corsage was a white orchid.

The bridegroom's mother wore light blue lace over taffeta with matching accessories. Her corsage was a purple orchid.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Garbutt entertained at a reception at their home on the Brunswick Highway.

An arrangement of pink and white gladioli in a silver bowl was used on one end of the mantel in the living room. Southern magnolia leaves covered the mantel and large white lilies nestled in the magnolia. Another arrangement of pink and white gladioli was in a silver bowl on the piano.

The bride's table was covered with pink satin overlaid with a white linen and lace cloth. It was centered with a three-tiered all-white wedding cake. The cake was surrounded by ruffles of white illusion in which were nestled wedding bells and lilies-of-the-valley.

Flanking the wedding cake were three-branched silver candelabra holding burning white tapers which were covered with tiny pink and blue forget-me-nots and valley lilies. The punch table was covered with a white linen cutwork cloth over white satin.

Greeting the guests was Mrs. Leonard Madray, Mrs. T. E. Dekle and Mrs. Robert Harris presided in the gift room. Pouring punch were Mrs. Paul Harper and Mrs. Charles Myers, and Mrs. Ward Riggins Sr. cut the cake. Mrs. Frank Schmidt assisted at the bride's book.

During the evening the bridal couple left for a wedding trip. Mrs. Harrington chose for traveling an imported wool suit in Grecian blue with matching accessories. She wore a white orchid taken from her bouquet.

The couple will reside in Durham, where Mr. Harrington is a member of the Junior Class of the Medical College of Duke University.

Look In Closet Before You Shop For Hat

RALEIGH—Before you shop for a new hat, why not look in your closet. You may be surprised and rewarded.

Whether felt, straw, or fabric, there are things which you can do to make an old hat fresh and new again.

First, carefully examine it, try it on, and decide if it is still becoming, in good style, and worth renovating.

Miss Julia McIver, clothing specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service, says that care of hats is important if you plan to wear them several years.

Hats should be stored so they will not be crushed. Place crumpled tissue paper in the hat and spread tissue paper over it in a hat box or plastic hat bag. Good care makes a hat give good wear.

The hat may need blocking to give it the new look. Anything may be used to block a hat in a desired shape as long as it is smooth and firm—even a salad bowl, sauce pan, pitcher, head-block or ironing board. To block, use a hot iron on wet cloth to make steam. (There is not enough steam from a steam iron.) Then when smooth, pin down tight and let thoroughly dry.

"Make your old hat's look like new by taking care of them," says Miss McIver.

Mrs. Gardner CWF Hostess

AYDEN—The Timothy C. W. F. met at "Sunny Lawn," home of Mrs. Alton Gardner, on Monday evening. Mrs. Wilbert Stancill gave a program, assisted by Mesdames LeRoy Dixon and Alton Gardner. Mrs. Barbara Roberts, worship chairman, presented a devotional pertaining to the theme for the quarter.

Plans were made for the revival which will be held the last week in September with Homecoming in October.

After the business session, the guests were invited to the dining room where they served themselves party refreshments. Mrs. Gardner, assisted by Miss Jeanette Gardner, served orange float from a crystal punch bowl flanked by summer flowers and burning pink tapers. Fourteen members were present.

Officers Named

BETHEL—Officers were elected at the Sally Tucker Book Club meeting recently at the home of Mrs. William Gaget Whitehurst.

Those selected were Mrs. Wadie Ward, president; Mrs. R. P. Michaels, vice-president; Mrs. W. A. Moody, secretary and treasurer; and Mrs. Whitehurst, custodian.

After plans were formulated for the coming year, the hostess served the group a salad plate and iced drinks.

Club To Give Awards Annually

At the annual dinner meeting of the Woman's Club of Greenville Tuesday, members voted to present four annual awards, two of which are in honor of deceased members.

One, the Susie Moore Ragsdale Memorial Award, is to be presented each year to the outstanding clubwoman, determined by all-round service to the club.

The other three awards are for creative writing and will be presented annually by The Fine Arts Department at the Fine Arts Luncheon. The Mamie Ives Woolard Memorial Award will be for creative writing in sonnet form. The Eva Berry Harris Award will be given for the best lyric poem other than sonnet form. The Virginia Collier Tripp Award will be for the best short story, limited to 3,000 words.

Any amateur writer in Pitt County is eligible. Rules may be obtained from Mrs. J. H. B. Moore, chairman of the Awards Committee.

The president of the club, Mrs. Harvey H. Tripp, extended a welcome to all members and their guests. She expressed the regrets of the club because the speaker for the meeting was not able to be present, and hoped the members would enjoy meeting "in fellowship with one another."

Four new members were introduced at the meeting. They were Mesdames Earl Windley, J. N. Le Conte, Thomas M. Davis, and Scott Forbis.

Mrs. Tripp introduced the new hostess of the Woman's Club, Mrs. J. L. Bishop. The president expressed the thanks of the club to all who helped make the Club more attractive, to Mrs. Vance Perkins who is Chairman of the House Committee for "a job well done" and for taking the responsibility of hostess during the time there was no official hostess at the club, and to the Junior Woman's Club for the gift of the new draperies in the Rachel Maxwell Moore room.

She recognized the new officers and new Chairmen of committees of the Woman's Club, several of whom gave reports. The Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Clara M. Shackell stated that the Yearbook will be distributed at the October meeting.

Chairman of the Garden Club, Mrs. P. E. Wells, reminded members their dinner meeting to be held September 30. Chairman of the Fine Arts Department, Mrs. J. C. Galloway, Jr., extended an invitation to all members to join the department. Chairman of "Help a Home" committee, Mrs. Ed Ricks, asked members not to discard clothing or household articles still useful, but to bring them to her home, or to Mrs. S. L. Daughtridge, to be held until a request came in for them.

Head of the Fair Committee, Mrs. C. M. Lupton, explained the Fair booth project and said she needed volunteers to work at the booth at the Fair, October 5-11, and to prepare food at home for sale at the booth.

Mrs. Tripp asked members to save October 15 on their calendars for the District meeting to be held in Ayden.

The door prize was won by Mrs. Gilbert Peel.

Hostesses for the dinner meeting were Mrs. Ralph Brimley, chairman, and Mesdames Fenner Allen, R. V. Keel, Alfred Kennedy, Howard Mims, H. P. Phillips, C. D. Ward, and L. S. Worthington.

The president of the club, Mrs. Harvey H. Tripp, extended a welcome to all members and their guests. She expressed the regrets of the club because the speaker for the meeting was not able to be present, and hoped the members would enjoy meeting "in fellowship with one another."

Dr. Douglas Jones of the Education Department of East Carolina College was guest speaker Wednesday evening when the Junior Woman's Club met at the club house.

In his address, Dr. Jones stressed the fact that teachers are proud to be teachers, they are moulding the lives of our future citizens of tomorrow, and also to beware of the critics of modern education. He told the group that as parents they should visit the schools more often and support them, their PTA and any bond issue or drives conducted by the school.

The need for more teachers was stressed and he encouraged continued education for young mothers.

Following the Jones address a short meeting was held and it was announced by acting president Mrs. James Gruke that the club would continue the barbecue sales at Keel's Warehouse through September on Fridays.

The club voted to mail a check to Veterans of Foreign Wars to help in buying Christmas gifts for the veterans.

Mrs. Gordon Goodman asked that anyone having articles for Caswell Training School in Kingston to notify her.

The meeting was adjourned and the club hostess served refreshments. Guests who were welcomed to the meeting were Mrs. W. F. Haynes, Mrs. James Gravelly and Mrs. R. N. Moore.

Reservations Continue

Reservations are still being accepted for the Fall tour to New York City. A larger bus has been scheduled to take care of the increased reservations.

The tour will leave Greenville Sunday, October 18, and return in the early evening of Thursday, October 22, after three full days and four nights of accommodations at the Hotel Taft.

Those who have already made reservations will see THE MUSIC MAN Monday night and MY FAIR LADY Wednesday matinee. Tickets for these popular Broadway shows have already been received.

The tour will arrive in New York during United Nations Week when many events are planned to underline the importance of United Nations 14th anniversary. Those with the tour will have the opportunity of visiting the General Assembly in session. Tourists seated in the Visitors' Gallery have the opportunity of listening to all of the discussions under way and obtaining immediate translation through the use of ear phones installed at every seat.

Arrangements will be made for a day's outing to Hyde Park, to visit the Roosevelt Library and the estate of the late President. Reservations will also be made for city sight-seeing and a night club tour including dinner and show at the famous Copacabana, plus floor shows at the luxurious Latin Quarter and exotic Hawaiian Room.

Many free amusements are available to the tour members including a two hour visit on board the colossal S. S. United States steamship and viewing silent movies of 1910 and 1920 at the Museum of Modern Art. Tickets for popular TV shows will be available including "NAME THAT TUNE."

Cost of the tour covering round trip bus fare and hotel accommodations and details can be obtained by phoning Ada Jones at PLAZA 2-5794.

Wahl-Coates PTA Has Record Attendance At First Meeting

A record number of parents and teachers attended the first meeting of the Wahl-Coates Laboratory School Parent-Teachers Association, which was held last night in McGinnis Auditorium. Dr. O. R. Pearce, president, presided over the business session.

For the devotional, Mrs. Elsie Eagan led the group in prayer. Minutes of the May 21, 1959 meeting were read and approved.

There was a short discussion concerning buying recreation equipment for the school. The association voted that the equipment be purchased.

Dr. Pearce stated that plans are being made for the Halloween Carnival. The date will be announced later.

Miss Frances Wahl, principal, welcomed the parents, and invited them to visit the classrooms at any time.

The faculty members were introduced by Miss Wahl, and presented corsages of yellow chrysanthemums tied with purple ribbons, symbolizing the school colors.

The meeting was adjourned and an invitation was extended to those present to an informal reception in the school cafeteria.

The table was centered with a large arrangement of fruit and vegetables. Punch was poured by Mrs. W. E. Hudson and Mrs. O. R. Pearce, and iced cakes, salted nuts and mints were served buffet style.

Mrs. J. B. Kittrell, Jr., Hospitality Chairman, and her committee were in charge of arrangements for the reception.

The attendance award was won by Mrs. Clark's sixth grade.

A 21-Gun Salute Doesn't Suffice

Uncle Sam has made it plain now that he had few tricks stored up in his space bag for the visit of Premier Khrushchev to the United States even though the Russian Bear stole the show with spectacular success in shooting the moon on the eve of Khrushchev's arrival here.

In view of the big fireworks that have gone on in the space arena during the period of Khrushchev's visit here, it would seem a reasonable guess that both the United States and the Soviet Union probably are planning some more space spectaculars on the occasion of President Eisenhower's visit to Russia later this month.

The Soviet Union successfully impressed the world with its accurate moon shot just as Khrushchev was preparing to come to the United States. Yesterday Uncle Sam sent aloft three shots—a successful ballistic missile, a successful rocket plane, and one unsuccessful attempt to put a navigation satellite into orbit.

To assume that these launchings by both the U. S. and the USSR at this particular time had nothing to do with the exchange of visits by the heads of state would be naive indeed. And with all these big fireworks here and in Russia in connection with Khrushchev's visit here, it would be an affront indeed if something of the same nature were not held back to coincide with the visit of President Eisenhower to the Soviet Union.

All of this leads us to the conclusion that space traffic may become a little congested in the next few weeks as both the U. S. and the USSR seek to duly impress their visitors and the rest of 'the world.

The Soviets obviously have the edge at the moment with their successful moon shot. Whether the United States can come up with something as spectacular before the exchange of visits comes to a close remains to be seen.

It might well be that in the space age we have reached the point that the old 21-gun salute for visiting dignitaries is as outmoded as the weapons which fire the salute. From now on perhaps only the firing of space vehicles will be considered an acceptable salute.

Statistically Speaking, N.C. Record Sees Sag

If the actual number of highway deaths which have occurred in North Carolina is not sufficiently appalling to impress Tar Heels, perhaps the fact that the state leads all others in the increased highway fatality rate will prompt drivers to be more careful on the highways.

In recent years North Carolina has become keenly conscious of its relative standing with other states in all kinds of statistics. Much has been made of the fact the Tar Heel state is far down the list in per capita income. Much also has been made of the fact that only four other states spend a higher per centage of their total tax revenues on schools. The list could go on and on.

The point is that Tar Heels take pride in their relative position compared with other states.

They want to be among the best regardless of what category is considered.

Since early this year North Carolina has watched its highway toll move upward in comparison with its own record last year. In spite of this knowledge, there has been no appreciable danger in the apparent attitude of drivers. Now it has been pointed out that North Carolina's highway death toll has increased more rapidly percentage-wise than that of any other state.

In other words, North Carolina has become high on the totem pole of highway fatalities; low on the totem pole of improved highway safety records.

Perhaps Tar Heels' pride in their state will prompt them to overcome these dubious distinctions in spite of the fact that they do not appear sufficiently alarmed over the growing death toll on their highways this year.

No Hits, Runs, Errors, So Far

WASHINGTON (AP)—The box score on Premier Nikita Khrushchev after his two-day whirlwind in the capital—comes down to this: no hits, no runs, no errors. But he's a big leaguer, just the same.

He was no hit with the thousands who stood mute as he whizzed by. There have been no apparent gains from his visit so far, since he has promised nothing and conceded nothing. But he didn't commit any blunders either.

He had plenty of chance to make a fool of himself or anger Americans in his public appearances and statements. He did neither. He just sounded like a carbon copy of letters he had written President Eisenhower in the past. He repeated himself.

Khrushchev has a bit of a ham in him—mugging in front of the camera, stealing scenes from Eisenhower, pumping hands, slapping backs, being a jolly good fellow—but anyone watching could well have wondered: Was this round little man with the bald head and the peasant's face, bouncing around town tirelessly, the last chance this country might have for a long, long time to melt the cold war?

He's 65. He may not last much longer. He's a Communist, and a tough one, but, compared with Stalin, he's been a breath of fresh air in the Soviet Union, a liberalizing force.

If this country cannot work out some settlements with him, then with whom? His successor may be more of a Stalinist and try not only to turn the clock back in the Soviet Union but to make the cold war more frigid than it is now.

In his public statements—those repetitions of what he had long said before coming here—Khrushchev didn't bend an inch on the Berlin dilemma he himself created or on anything else.

The most he has done so far—toward trying to reach some agreements—is to indicate that he may make some new proposals on disarmament before the U.N. Friday. Maybe there will be some changes when he talks with Eisenhower next week.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
WHOLE SAU? Years ago I saw him lift his clenched fist and declare that nothing in the world could ever get him down. Physically he was convinced he could walk the biggest man that thrashed the streets. He always averred that people were out to get him, to keep him from his rightful promotions, to smear him among his friends. And he wouldn't take it—no, he wouldn't take it.

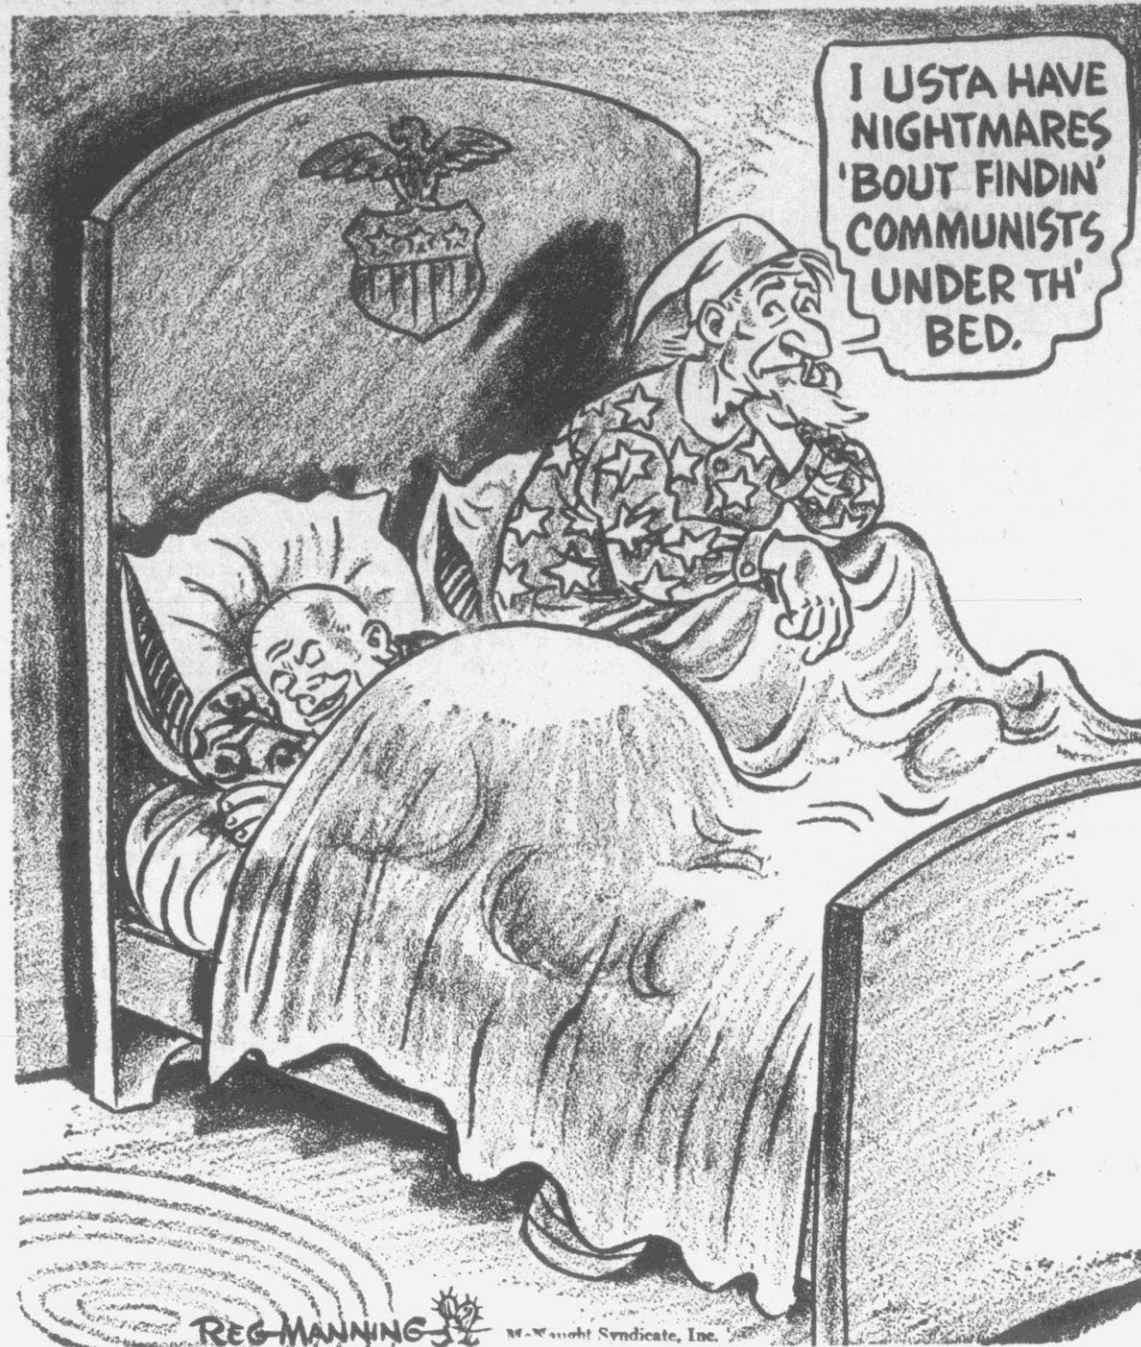

He is broken now. He no longer raises a clenched fist. He shuffles about and is glad merely to live. But his defeats and reverses in life have changed him but little. It was still the fault of someone else that he never made a success. If he had just had a chance, he could have beaten all opposition down and come to triumph—but somehow, he never had the chance. The meek all about him inherited the earth. His hard working contemporaries went on to get the big positions. His neighbors were neighbors only because they lived next door—they never dropped in to see him and comfort him.

Let us face the fact that most of the disaster which blights our lives is self-induced. No individual nor any collection of individuals ever won triumph over life in the way this fellow planned to win it.

Life throws up road blocks against people who think that way and talk that way. They can't succeed.

Dream Come True

By HENRY HOWARD

Ready For The Unveiling

Tomorrow afternoon will mark the unveiling of many fresh and carefully prepared football teams and many questions in many minds will be at least partially answered.

After nearly a month of intense drilling, head-knocking, and conditioning, the gridiron giants again take the field to display their respective talents.

Here in North Carolina thousands will flock to Kenan Stadium in Chapel Hill to get a first-hand look at the legacy left near Head Coach Jim Hickey so suddenly by the late Jim Tatum.

The Tar Heels have been given a high national rank in pre-season polls. It'll take a powerful eleven to retain that prestige tomorrow afternoon against Frank Howard's Clemson Tigers. The same Tigers, last year, edged Carolina 26-21 early in the season and went on to represent the Atlantic Coast Conference in the New Year's Day Orange Bowl Game as ACC champs.

Hickey's Tar Heels will be trying to break an opening-day jinx that has plagued Chapel Hill since 1954. In 1955, a powerful Oklahoma eleven took the Heels' measure 13-6. Then followed what Carolina fans consider the worst catastrophe. N.C. State's Wolfpack for the next three years had no less interest focussed, on them the 1959 editions of Duke's Blue Devils, the Wolfpack, and Wake Forest's Demon Deacons also swing into action tomorrow.

Duke travels to South Carolina to take a crack the Gamecocks in Columbia under the lights. Coach Bill Murray's charges will enter the contest a six-point favorite.

In Norfolk, many interested eyes will watch the unveiling of N.C. State's highly-touted quarterback, Roman Gabriel, as the Wolfpack tangles with powerful Virginia Tech. The Gobblers again rank as the number one contender for West Virginia's Southern Conference crown. Tech has been a thorn in the side for Coach Earl Edwards' squad since he came to State and is picked to win again tomorrow. A single win, in 1957, has been managed by the Wolfpack.

Gabriel, a sophomore, has been widely acclaimed for his passing and running ability. It will be interesting to see how his first taste of varsity action will effect him.

Other Editors Saying... Cloudy Picture Today

(Washington Daily News)

The next race for governor of North Carolina seems to become more confused all the time.

In recent months it has seemed that we would have three candidates, all from the Eastern part of the state. They are Terry Sanford, John Larkins, and Addison Hewitt. Now along comes serious speculation that Arthur Kirkman, veteran legislator from Guilford county, will enter the Democratic primary as a candidate for governor.

If Mr. Kirkman enters the race, the political waters could be muddied considerably. The fact that he hails from Piedmont North Carolina where the population center of the state is, could be a great import.

However, here in Eastern North Carolina, very few voters know Mr. Kirkman, and very few have heard much about him. He is familiar with legislators all over the state. But the fact remains that members of the last legislature will have very little opportunity to do too much politicking because a majority of them will face political races of their own next Spring.

Mr. Sanford and Mr. Larkins have all but officially announced. Rumors are still current that Mr. Hewitt will announce any time. Now if Mr. Hewitt makes the same unofficial entry into the race as Mr. Sanford and Mr. Larkins have already done, he could move into leading contention shortly. But the fact remains that Mr. Hewitt is hardly known to the rank and file voters of North Carolina. He has had a fine opportunity to have his name spread throughout the state by virtue of holding the speakership in the last legislature. But from the personal standpoint, he is not known to rank and file voters.

All too often today's politician makes one critical mistake. He assumes that he can depend on one or two men to carry a city or a county for him. Somehow he doesn't realize that today's voter thinks for himself, and the day is gone when a political "boss" holds sway in a given county. At the outset it might be said that Mr. Hewitt, if he announces, probably will cut into the voting strength of Mr. Larkins far more than he will into the voting strength of Mr. Sanford. Even with Mr. Hewitt in the race, it is our guess that Mr. Sanford is still the man to beat. His strength and his support will likely remain very loyal. Kerr Stott was able to hold his support, and Mr. Sanford probably will find himself in a similar spot. In fact, many observers are saying that the more candidates we have for governor, the more it might help Mr. Sanford.

Mr. Hewitt will be a formidable candidate, and in the event the race shapes up between the four mentioned men above, we'd guess offhand that the real race will be between Mr. Sanford and Mr. Hewitt. But again, we can't estimate the strength of Mr. Kirkman in Piedmont and Western North Carolina. He may or may not be a formidable candidate.

As political trial balloons go up and come down, and as candidates come and go, the race for governor at this state seems to offer a rather cloudy picture today.

Quote...

By ELMER ROESSNER

A good executive must have a stable personality and must be emotionally adjusted.

You hear that all the time. Only yesterday Lawrence A. Appley, president of the American Management Association was quoted here as saying that a certified manager ought to have "emotional stability, psychological adjustment to the work to be done" as well as other attributes. Management magazines all but drip with articles about the need for balanced personalities in candidates for top jobs, and test after test is loaded with trick question designed to find out how applicants feel about mothers, May poles and mayhem and whether they are neurotic.

The current issue of Personnel has an article on evaluating job candidates including this gem: If the applicant spells out his name in full when it is not called for on the form, and especially if he adds Jr. or IV, it is an indicator of narcissism.

It's all bunk. It's part of the great American myth. Management likes to pretend that it relies on stable, non-neurotic personalities. It helps staff morale, because few people admit they like to work for screwballs—although, in truth, many love to. And the myth helps form a protective coloration for management itself. "I don't know about you," a vice president can say, "but I'm nervous. How else could I have been appointed to this job?"

There are hundreds of thousands of well-adjusted executives. But observations running over several decades indicate that top management, on the average, is much more neurotic than underlings. In many cases it is a man's neurosis that drives him to success.

Here are some instances I've run across: A man of average ability has a psychiatric hate of his father. He is determined to prove himself more of a success than the parent; he drives himself; he is

Chisox Family Happy

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Winning of their first American League pennant in 40 years by the Chicago White Sox will climax a long family dream for baseball's youngest executive.

"It's been a long time coming true," admitted Charles A. Comiskey, 33, the club's executive vice president.

"Chuck" also sometimes known as "the Young Roman," is the grandson of "the Old Roman"—the tough and canny original Charles A. Comiskey, cofounder of the American League back in 1900.

Under "the Old Roman" the White Sox won six league titles, the last in 1919, six years before Chuck was born.

"I was 6 when my grandfather died, and don't remember too much about him," said young Comiskey. "But even then I was interested in the game. I've had baseball for breakfast, lunch and dinner all my life."

At 13 he sat on the White Sox bench dressed in a uniform that had "13"—his favorite number—on the back. In high school and college he was an outstanding first baseman.

After a two-year hitch in the Navy during World War II, he took over the reins as president of the Waterloo, Iowa, club for the 1948 season. He also functioned as "ticket seller, turnstile attendant, sweeper-outer and scout."

Late that year he moved up to his present post with the White Sox. He had just turned 23.

Astute Frank Lane was hired as general manager and the two set to work rebuilding the White Sox farm system and swapping players.

"It takes time and patience to build a real team," said Chuck. "Our present team is the result of more than 10 years of hard work and planning."

"I predicted three years ago the New York Yankees were dying at the grass roots—and they were. They used to have good prospects on all their farm clubs, but a few years ago that crop began to die out."

"The reason was simple. The other clubs just became more aggressive at signing up green talent. But they had to overcome a 20-year head start by the Yankees."

"Last year there were 11 young players we wanted, ranging all the way from Canada to Venezuela. We ended up with six of them. A good team is always rebuilding."

Comiskey is proud of the 1959 White Sox club, feels sturdily sure it will go on to win its first World Series since 1917.

How big a role Chuck will play in the future destiny of the White Sox remains to be seen. The Comiskey clan is noted for its internal fussing and fighting.

Last March a syndicate headed by Bill Veck, one of the greatest showmen in baseball, bought the majority interest in the White Sox from Chuck's sister, Dorothy Rigney.

Chuck retains a 46 per cent interest and his job as executive vice president. The big fellow—his 6 feet 2, weighs 205—also has a lot of his grandfather's fighting spirit.

He isn't likely to be satisfied with a figurehead title, particularly since he believes he has proved he had the baseball know-how to help the White Sox at the top. He intends to go right on wearing grandpa's toga.

Public Forum

To the Editor:

Now that the President has signed the Bill giving broadcasters relief from the LAR Daily decision, I want to thank you for the editorial help you gave to the cause of remedial legislation in The Greenville Reflector.

The amendment to Section 315 of the Communications Act goes a long way in making it possible for radio and television to give adequate coverage of political affairs in newscasts, news interviews, news documentaries and on-the-spot coverage of news events. To a very considerable extent, this modification of Section 315 is the result of vigorous, clear-sighted editorials and forceful news coverage by the newspapers of this country and another dramatic demonstration of the classical role of the press in a democracy.

It is now up to broadcasters to put these new freedoms to good use in the public interest and justify your effective support. With the new rights we must accept new responsibilities.

With all good wishes,
Sincerely,
Frank Stanton....

checked this point with a representative of a top-executive recruiting agency. He agreed that he did not seek "normal" candidates. He didn't want obvious neurotics, either. He wanted men with just enough aberration to give him that super drive that makes for success.

"I can't be quoted," he said. "If it came out, neither corporations nor candidates would have anything to do with me." MORE THAN MILLION DRAWING ANNUITIES

One of the principal arguments against inflation is that it robs annuitants of part of their buying power.

"But who gets annuities?" is a frequent rejoinder, implying that only a few would suffer from the advance of the money.

Here's the answer: More than 1,187,000 annuities are paid now, according to the Institute of Life Insurance. Annuitants are getting a total of $597,000,000 a year. Since this would have twice the buying power at pre-inflation prices, inflation is taxing them $597,000,000 a year.

God's Promise of Peace

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Zechariah 7-14.

The Prophet Zechariah told the people that God had said that they should "Execute true judgment, and shew mercy and compassions every man to his brother."—Zechariah 7:9.

"And oppress not the widow, nor the fatherless, the stranger, nor the poor; and let none of you imagine evil against his brother in your heart."—Zechariah 7:10.

The Lord said: "I am returned unto Zion." Old men and women should dwell in the city, and there should be boys and girls playing in the streets.—Zechariah 8:3-5.

The Lord promised to dwell in Jerusalem, saying that they should be His people and He would be their God.—Zechariah 8:8. MEMORY VERSE—Zechariah 7:9.

God's Promise of Peace

WHAT BASIC VIRTUES DOES GOD DEMAND IN THE INDIVIDUAL LIVES OF HIS PEOPLE?

Scripture—Zechariah 7-14.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL, DR. WILBUR M. SMITH, editor of Peloubet's Select Notes, suggests that the younger classes will find this lesson quite difficult. "The opening remarks of the teacher will, therefore, be of unusual importance in gaining the attention of the pupils." The class might be asked, he suggests, to give the characteristics of an ideal city or town. "In our lesson we learn what virtues God Himself desires to see in a city, and how He will ultimately fulfill His desire in the city of Jerusalem." Zechariah, author of the book, which is the longest of the writings of the 12 Minor Prophets, was the son of Berechiah, the grandson of Ido, who was priest and prophet. Zechariah was first told by God to speak to the priests and the prophets, saying, "Should I weep in the fifth month, separating myself, as I have done these many years?" God's answer to the people was: "When ye fasted and mourned in the fifth and seventh month, even those 70 years, did ye at all fast unto Me, even to Me? And when ye did eat, and when ye did eat, did not ye eat for yourselves, and drink for yourselves?" How about us today? Do we, when we eat at home or with friends, after the blessing has been said, think of God and His mercies and blessings? Even when we partake of the sacrament in church, are we thinking of Jesus Christ, who died for us, or do our thoughts wander to everyday happenings in our lives? It is good to ponder on these things. These are the rules of individual conduct which the Lord gave to Zechariah: "Execute true judgment, and shew mercy and compassions every man to his brother."—Zechariah 7:9.

Did Zechariah's listeners take his teachings to heart and make resolutions to obey God's commands? No. "They refused to hearken, and pulled away the shoulder, and stopped their ears, that they should not hear. Yes, they made their hearts as an ad-midst of Jerusalem: and they shall be My people, and I will be their God, in truth, and in righteousness."—Zechariah 8:7-8. In our country, and in many others, many men and women sit in the parks to rest and refresh themselves, and children play happily in our streets. Zechariah prophesied that "the seed shall be prosperous; the vine shall give her fruit, and the ground shall give her increase, and the heavens shall give their dew; and I will cause the remnant of this people to possess all these things."—Zechariah 8:12. "And it shall come to pass, that as ye were a curse among the heathen, O house of Judah, and house of Israel; so will I save you, and ye shall be a blessing; fear not, but let your hands be strong."—Zechariah 8:13. If we as individuals and as a nation are strong to resist temptation and live as the Lord God and Jesus Christ commanded, we too shall have peace and prosperity. That is the lesson I would impress upon the young people of the Sunday school classes.

Many Students Use TV Classes

More than 500 Pitt County School students are benefiting this year from four different television stations according to statistics released this morning.

Eight schools are participating in a general science course being offered by the Greenville station. Ayden, Farmville, Belvoir-Falkland, Grimesland, Stokes-Pactolus, Winterville, and H. B. Suag (Farmville) high schools are using the science course. Stokes Elementary School is also a subscriber.

A U. S. history course, being offered by the Washington station, is being used by five schools: Farmville, Grimesland, Grifton, South Ayden, and Winterville.

In addition, Farmville High School has installed special equipment to become the sole Pitt County recipient of an eighth grade math course and a 10th grade world history course transmitted from the studios of WUNC in Chapel Hill.

have been rated as six-point underdogs for their opening tilt against Florida State in Tallahassee. Wake Forest, though, may be a surprise this year. The Deacons have a fine passer in Norman Sneed.

The Big Four elevens, and all gridiron units, will be seeking rank and prestige in the new "pigskin parade" from the opening game.

So, with that tremendous collective opening kickoff tomorrow, another rough and tumble battle for the football laurels will be underway.

Heavy Tremor On Instruments

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP)—A strong earthquake struck Thursday afternoon somewhere in desolate northwestern Mexico or possibly under the Gulf of Lower California.

The quake registered on seismographs at the University of California here.

Today, however, no reports on the earthquake had been received from Mexican communities in the quake area, 675 miles from here.

Integrate Three At Central High

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Token integration at Central High School expands today. Three more Negroes are scheduled to begin classes here.

Two Negroes have attended since Aug. 12, the day school opened, and the only time any incidents have occurred. Segregationists marched on Central then but were turned back by police and firemen.

The new Negro students — two girls and a boy — were originally assigned to the all-Negro Horace Mann High School but appealed for transfer to Central. The school board voted 4-2 to let them attend the big high school which was the scene of mob violence when integration first was held in 1957.

STUDY DIALOGUE FOR GAME HALFTIME . . . Bradner, Betty Lane, Carter with ECC marching band in background

Novelty Program For Half-Time

"Hi Fi," a sexy voice will float out across the football stadium at half time during the ECC-Albright game Saturday night.

"Oh, Sam . . ." a male speaker will reply.

"Hello Mr. D." responds the sultry female voice.

"Say, I'm sorry but I'm looking for Peter Gunn," the male says. "However I'm a good friend of Richard Diamond's. What are you doing tonight?"

"No, thank you," the female will say. "If you're like Mr. D., I know your pitch. Sorry, wrong number."

A short time later the East Carolina College 140-piece marching band will go into the Peter Gunn theme.

The female voice will belong to Betty Lane Evans, former Miss North Carolina and now an East Carolina College coed.

She will do the dialogue for the Peter Gunn-Richard Diamond theme which has been worked out for the band. With her at the microphone will be J. C. Bradner, director of religious education for the college.

Betty Lane will play the part of "Sam," Richard Diamond's phone answering gal and Bradner will be calling for Peter Gunn. He gets "Sam" by error. Appropriately enough, the show is entitled "Wrong Number."

Band Director Herbert Carter and his student committee have whipped up the show since school opened.

After Betty Lane had completed a run through the script, there was a complaint from the field that she was not loud enough.

"How can you holler in a sultry voice?" shot back a male speaker over the public address system.

SHADOW OF GUILT

A NEW THRILLER by PATRICK QUENTIN

WHAT HAS HAPPENED

George Hadley at 37 finds his life revolving around three women. First, his wife, Connie, to whom marriage has meant wealth and authority in the business empire she inherited from her father. Second, his secretary, Eve Lord, with whom George has fallen in love and wants to marry. Third, Ala's approaching marriage to Chuck Ryson—a match Connie set her heart upon.

George, the narrator of the story, feels annoyance when Connie asks him to accompany her to the opera on a night he has planned to be at Eve's apartment, but he dutifully goes with his wife. Upon their meeting Don Saxby, an acquaintance of Connie, then she invites Saxby to the Hadley home after the opera.

Saxby's attentions to Ala charm the young girl and she agrees to go with him to a party while her fiancé is away on a business trip. Connie, seemingly jealous, objects indignantly when she hears of the "date," but Ala enlists George's aid and he consents. Connie's enraged reaction gets George wondering if his wife's interest in Saxby is more than casual.

CHAPTER 3

ALA WENT to the party. Connie was all graciousness about it but then spoiled everything by waiting up for her and letting me know next morning that she hadn't got back until after three. I paid little attention. Besides, everything about my life at Sixty-fourth Street had become blurred into unreality. All I lived for was the thought of Thursday, and finally it arrived.

Around six, after Eve Lord had already left the office, I walked up Madison and across town in the Forties to her little apartment between Lexington and Third.

Eve lived in the shabbiest of brownstones. It seemed she didn't care about luxury. From hearing her story of a poverty-stricken California childhood, shackled by ailing parents and a delinquent kid brother, followed by an even drearier marriage to a peevish invalid in Bakersfield who had lingered on for four grueling years, I guessed it was an enormous thrill for her to be independent. She told me Oliver Lord, her husband, had left her twenty-five thousand dollars insurance money, and with that safely in the bank and her salary from Consolidated she had reason to feel secure.

Usually, for reasons of discretion, we'd eat a makeshift supper in her little apartment, but that night both of us were seized with a feeling of recklessness and Eve suggested we should go around the corner to a French restaurant. I was feeling an almost drunken exhilaration, and by the time we'd got to coffee a huge contentment had spread through me. As soon as Ala was married, I could ask for the divorce. Nothing could stop it now. Improbably, at thirty-seven I had found my love—simple love for a simple woman who had nothing to offer but the astounding fact of her self.

Her hand, very small and pretty, was lying on the table. I put my own hand on it.

"Where shall we go for the honeymoon?" I said.

I knew I was breaking every rule we were both superstitious about tempting providence. But I didn't care, and as Eve turned quickly to me, her face warming with her wonderful, unexpected smile, I knew she didn't care either.

"What's your mood?" I said. "Europe? Mexico? What about the Caribbean? Jamaica? Tobago?"

"Tobago!" As she repeated the word Eve's eyes were sparkling as if Tobago were the Elysian Fields. She looked about two years old. Our faces were almost touching. I leaned toward her and kissed her.

That was when I heard a voice saying, "Good evening, Mr. Hadley."

For a split second I froze. Then I sprang away from Eve. Don Saxby was standing in front of the table.

Of all the people in the world! I thought. But then I saw that his smile didn't have a trace of an I've-caught-you-out smirk. It was a friendly, even diffident smile.

"Excuse me," he said. "I was sitting across the room. I wouldn't have come over, but—well, there's something I think you ought to know. Ala'll be here any minute. We've got a dinner date."

I glanced at Eve. I could tell she was wishing the floor would yawn and engulf her.

"Mr. Saxby—er—Don," I said, "this is Mrs. Lord. She works at my office. I mean, this is most embarrassing. It isn't—well, I think I ought to explain..."

"Please don't explain," Don Saxby shifted his smile from Eve to me. "I'm extremely uninterested in other people's business. Live and let live. That's an old Saksatchewan proverb."

As he spoke, Ala came in and at once saw all three of us. She hesitated, obviously surprised, then she hurried toward us.

"Does she know?" asked Don Saxby.

"No," I said. "For God's sake, no."

"Okay."

Ala reached the table then.

"Hi," I said. "Mrs. Lord and I have been getting a bite to eat after our labors at the office."

Ala turned to Don Saxby. "Oh dear, what a catastrophe. We've been caught out." She looked at me dubiously. "George, you're not going to tell Connie, are you?"

"I don't get it," Saxby said. "What's a catastrophe and what's Connie got to do with it?"

Ala gave an exaggerated shrug. "There was a ghastly scene after the party on Tuesday. I'm not supposed to see you again. If you knew the complications! I had to tell Connie I was going out with Rosemary Clark. Oh, dear..."

She was still watching me, her young face half apprehensive, half coaxing. Don Saxby was watching me, too. The smile in his eyes was as friendly as ever.

He said, "I don't think Mr. Hadley's going to rat on you, are you, Mr. Hadley?"

His eyes moved from mine after a second, but the second was long enough for me to realize that he was indicating not a threat, which he might well have done, but merely a neutrality pact. It was a plea I could hardly reject.

"Of course I'm not going to rat," I said. "In fact, let's have a drink and a little togetherness."

We ordered drinks, relaxed and talked. Gradually I began to realize something which made the intricate situation more intricate. Ala was crazy about Don Saxby, and I was almost sure he was fascinated with her. He was mature enough, of course, to be able to play it cool, but Ala was far too young to hide anything. It was in her eyes, her voice, even in the line of her neck as she turned to talk to him. She had never looked even remotely like this with Chuck Ryson.

My God, I thought, where do we go from here?"

As though on cue Don Saxby said, "It's too bad Connie's suddenly turned against me. I can't really see why she should, but it's loused up my plan." He turned to Ala. "Remember that couple you met at the party—Tom and Marian Green? They were very taken with you. They're giving a big party up at their place in Stockbridge this week end. They called this morning and wanted to know if I wouldn't bring you up tomorrow. Now I guess I'll have to put them off."

Ala looked at him, stricken. Then she turned to me. "Oh George, couldn't I go?"

"Hardly, if Connie objects to me," Saxby said.

"But George, the Greens, they're frightfully rich and respectable, with a daughter at Miss Porter's all the Connie things. I could tell her I was going out to Westport with Rosemary. Her parents are still in California. Rosemary Rosemary wouldn't tell. Connie would never know. Oh, George..."

As I looked at her, I realized that in the tangle of my own problems I'd never really come to grips with the great Ryson wedding, never really faced the fact that Ala was only nineteen, that she'd been pushed relentlessly for years toward an engagement which was resolving everything for Connie but perhaps was resolving nothing for her. What was Chuck to her, anyway, when she could look at Don Saxby like this? Just Connie's choice? The good solid kid who'd worshiped her for years—the obvious future?"

Saxby said, "I'd hate to do anything Connie wouldn't like. She's been wonderful to me."

I looked at him, realizing that if he were a smooth operator he could so easily be forcing our hands, but he wasn't trying it at all. What's more, Don Saxby wasn't the point. He could have been Joe Doakes or Ted Jones or Sam Smith. I knew the idea of Ala going off to a week end house party with a man, any man, would horrify Connie, but what the hell was wrong with it? What harm could it possibly do to give her a chance to find herself a little before Connie inexorably slammed the door of the wedding shut on her?"

"Okay, Ala," I said. "If you really want to go..."

Patient Drove The Ambulance

FILIPSTAD, Sweden (AP)—The sirens wailed, the ambulance driver slumped over the wheel. The patient inside the ambulance waited.

Finally, after 15 minutes the patient got off his stretcher and staggered to the front of the ambulance. The driver was dead, apparently of a heart attack.

Mobilizing all his strength, the patient moved the body and drove the ambulance two miles to the hospital.

Doctors said he is recovering.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market dropped sharply today but early this afternoon had steadied above its lowest prices. Trading was fairly active.

As selling reached its climax the ticker tape ran late for an 11-minute period. Stocks began to rally while the tape was running late.

Steels, motors, rails and oils were briskly traded on the down-side.

Leading stocks were down from fractions to about 2 points. More speculative issues showed losses going to around 5. They showed early declines which stretched to about 7 points for Litton Industries.

An immediate uncertainty was the nature of Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's address on disarmament before the United Nations today. The steel strike's effects were widening. Tight money was a depressing factor.

At the worst, U. S. Steel was off about 2 and Bethlehem around a point. Both cut their losses to fractions.

General Time, off about 5 at one phase, reduced its loss to 3 or 4. Chrysler virtually erased a loss of about a point while General Motors was easy at worst.

Down about a point were a variety of stocks including American Motors, Goodyear, Air Reduction, Allied Chemical, Eastman Kodak, Du Pont, Westinghouse Electric, Chesapeake & Ohio, American Tobacco and Merck.

The Dow Jones industrial average was off 3.82 to 625.18 at noon.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was down $1.10 to $27.30 with the industrials down $1.30, the rails down $1.10 and the utilities down 40 cents.

Government bonds were firm for the third straight session.

Annual Carnival Opens Tonight

FARMVILLE—The annual Kiwanis Scholarship Carnival gets underway here tonight with a supper scheduled to be served in the Farmville High School Cafeteria from 6:00 to 8:00.

According to Farmville Mayor Charles S. Edwards, some 600 tickets have already been sold for tonight's barbecue and fried chicken dinner. Tickets are priced at $1.25.

Accompanying the supper will be series of Kiwanis-sponsored and operated entertainment booths set up in the high school gymnasium. Included in the entertainment for the carnival are bowling, dart games, and even a team ride for the kids.

Funds from the annual carnival are used to supply a Kiwanis college scholarship given each year. There are four of these scholarships in operation each year. The no-interest loans in the revolving fund maintain one each of college freshmen, sophomores, juniors, and seniors. Using this method, the scholarship fund produces a college graduate each year.

Lecturer

Dr. Karl L. Laysmeyer, a lecturer in eleven European countries and throughout the United States, is the first-hand authority on Communism, the Soviet Russian system and international affairs. The European educator, author, and editor was educated in Russia, Latvia, England, and Germany.

Laysmeyer has taught philosophy, psychology, and political science in several institutions of higher learning.

During the war and since, the European lecturer survived Nazi ordeals and escaped a Russian Communist firing squad.

...the ruins of the Atomic Age" will be the subject discussed by Dr. Karl Laysmeyer Sunday night at 8:00 in the auditorium of the Black Jack Free Will Baptist Church.

According to an announcement from Pastor F. B. Cherry, Dr. Laysmeyer, of Philadelphia, Penn., has lectured in eleven European countries and throughout the United States.

He is acclaimed a first-hand authority on Communism, the Soviet Russian system and international affairs. The European educator, author, and editor was educated in Russia, Latvia, England, and Germany.

Laysmeyer has taught philosophy, psychology, and political science in several institutions of higher learning.

During the war and since, the European lecturer survived Nazi ordeals and escaped a Russian Communist firing squad.

Belvoir-Falkland PTA Meet Set

FALKLAND — Belvoir-Falkland High School's Parent-Teacher Association will hold its first meeting Monday night at 7:30.

Donald Hayes and a group of students from East Carolina College will be on hand to demonstrate different types of band instruments. Following the demonstration, the PTA will discuss the possibility of instituting a school band to be composed of pupils from grades five through eight.

Following the business meeting, open house will be held throughout the school. Parents will be invited to visit the classrooms and refreshments will be served in the school's library.

Driver Charged In Wreck Early This Morning

A collision just South of the Winterville Town limits about 7:50 a. m. this morning resulted in an estimated $250 damage.

According to Highway Patrolman Howard Winslow, a car operated by Ethel McIntosh Whaley of Route 1, Winterville was allegedly struck by a car driven by Robert Stuart Brantley, 19, of Route 1, Grifton, as she attempted to make a turn off N. C. 11.

Brantley was charged with failure to see his intended move could be made in safety. Winslow explained that Brantley was attempting to pass a truck which was behind the Whaley car when it started to make the turn off the road, striking the Whaley auto in the side.

Damage to the Whaley vehicle was estimated at $100 while damage to the Brantley car was set at $150. No injuries were reported in the mishap.

Felt Justified In His Stealing

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Alton Joe Bryant, charged with lifting $34,000 to $36,000 from his boss' bank account, told the judge he was perfectly justified.

"Because I was not receiving my full salary as agreed upon," Bryant explained, "I felt I should make an allowance for my income."

But the judge ordered him to prison anyway.

Why Fertilize In The Fall?

There is little food left in the soil this time of year. To make your lawn healthier and greener this fall and next spring, feed it now.

This is also an opportune time to eliminate pests. Moles and other objectionable pests will go elsewhere digging for grubs and insects, rather than waste time where NUTRO Plus Dieldrin has been applied.

NUTRO Plus Dieldrin feeds grass while it controls bugs and insects. Apply two pounds per 100 square feet in September and October.

Ask for NUTRO PLUS DIELDRIN at your garden supply store.

Prison Terms Given 2 Young Servicemen

Judge Dink James Tuesday sentenced two 17-year-old Marine privates to two years in prison at the weekly session of Pitt County Recorder's Court.

The two servicemen, stationed at Camp Lejeune, were convicted on charges of breaking, entering, and larceny and sent to prison for two years to be assigned to work under the supervision of the State Prison Department.

Other cases disposed of were: John Mobley, Negro, Route 3, Bethel, assault with deadly weapon and carrying concealed weapon, guilty of carrying concealed weapon, $50 and cost; George Newton (no race given), Fountain, assault with deadly weapon, not guilty; Turner (Buck) Cobb, Rt. 1, Macclesfield, disorderly conduct and assault with deadly weapon, 60 days' sentence suspended upon payment of cost and medical bill; Joe Thomas Washington (no race given), breaking, entering, and larceny (two counts), not guilty; Ernestine Alston, Negro, Rt. 2, Greenville, public drunkenness, court costs.

Andrew Jackson Flannagan, Rt. 1, Tarboro, driving under the influence, and no operator's license, four months' sentence suspended upon payment of $25 and cost; Nell Marie Jones, Rt. 2, Bethel, driving under influence and hit and run, six months' sentence suspended upon payment of $150 and cost, $100 to William Lee, $13 to Jesse J. Bullock, $13 to Pitt County for jail damage and not to operate a motor vehicle on public highways for two years and not to be drunk at any public place for two years.

Nell Marie Jones, Rt. 2, Bethel, no operator's license, improper registration, failure to maintain financial responsibility, continued to be present; James Henry Mabrey, Negro, Rt. 1, Ayden, no operator's license, continued to; Paul Meadows, Rt. 1, Ayden, careless and reckless driving and driving on wrong side of road, not guilty; Tobe Junius Taft, Negro, Rt. 1, Snow Hill, affray and public drunkenness, $10 and cost; James Eddie Lee Younger, Negro, Rt. 1, Snow Hill, affray, driving under the influence (second offense), and driving after license revoked, four months' prison sentence; and W. F. Carter (no address given): Carter is currently a prisoner, assault with deadly weapon, 90 days' sentence to run concurrently with present sentence.

No Injuries In Three-Car Crash

An estimated $675 damage resulted yesterday about 1:12 p. m. when three cars collided at the intersection of Boyd Ave. and Broad St., police reported.

According to investigating officers, a vehicle driven by Joseph Robert Everett, 31, of Route 2, Greenville was headed south on Boyd and was allegedly struck by a car driven by Herbert Mathew Bowen, 56, of Route 1, Ayden. Bowen was headed west on Broad St.

The Bowen car then struck a vehicle driven by Early Telfair, 42-year-old Negro of 1609 Lincoln Drive, which was headed east on Broad and stopped for the stop sign at the intersection.

After making an investigation, Bowen was charged with failure to yield the right of way.

Damage to the Everett car was set at $450 while damage to the Bowen vehicle was placed at $200. The Telfair car escaped with an estimated $25 damage.

No injuries were reported in the three-car mishap.

A second accident, at 4 p. m. yesterday, involved a car operated by Joseph Henry Payton, 19-year-old Negro of 612-B Tyson St.

According to investigators, the Payton car was headed east on 14th St. and collided with a parked car owned by Raymond Brewington, Negro, 1710 S. Pitt St.

Officers quoted Payton as saying a cigarette was burning him and he could not avoid the collision.

Total damage to the two cars was listed at $225.

No arrests were made by officers and no injuries were reported.
