The Fidels Class of Memorial Baptist Church met Monday night at the home of Mrs. C. W. Dunn with 23 members and guests present. The highlight of the meeting was the election and installation of officers for the year 1959-1960. They are Mrs. J. B. Spelman, teacher; Mrs. R. B. Lee and Mrs. W. E. Cain, assistant teachers; Mrs. E. E. Rawl, president; Mrs. J. L. Winstead, Mrs. J. Loyd Allen, vice presidents; Mrs. Virginia Spencer and Mrs. W. E. Moore, secretaries; Mrs. Cleve Hardee, treasurer; and Mrs. J. C. Youngblood, reporter.

Mrs. Virginia Tripp was the installing officer and used a candle-light ceremony with the theme "The Light of the World." As each officer was called she was given an appropriate verse of scripture to read and then lighted her small candle from a large candle placed in front of the picture of Christ, who is "The Light of the World."

Mrs. Tripp demonstrated how the lights would go out if placed under a glass and urged the officers to keep their lights shining bright by active service.

A short business session was held, after which refreshments were served by the hostesses.

Dr. Utterback Speaks

Members, prospective members and guests of the Greenville Branch of the American Association of University Women were entertained at an Open House at Erwin Hall on Monday evening. The officers of the Branch greeted the guests at the door and ushered them into the living room.

Dr. Kathleen Stokes, president of this Branch, welcomed the guests and then introduced the speaker, Dr. Elizabeth Utterback of the college English Department. Dr. Utterback, a former president of the Branch, gave an address on the highlights of the Congress of the International Federation of University Women, which she had attended at Helsinki, Finland.

Dr. Utterback spoke first about meeting on the plane a woman from Israel who had had a Christmas card from a member of the Greenville Branch.

She then gave a brief sketch of the history of Finland and of its struggles with Russia. She told also about Helsinki, a very modern city with a population of 400,000, and the second most northerly capital in the world.

She spoke in glowing terms about the culture of the Finns. Not only is there no illiteracy, but there is a widespread knowledge of other languages. All Finns speak at least one other language, Swedish, and many speak English. In Finland also there is much interest in music and the theater. Finland has more folk songs than any other country in the world. It is also the native land of the great composer Sibelius, whose home and conservatory Dr. Utterback had the privilege of visiting.

Two Finnish women Mrs. Helvi Vaalo of Lahti and Miss Inkeri Suhonen of Tampere, who had visited Miss Bessie McNeil in Greenville, invited Dr. Utterback to their homes for short visits; thus she was able to learn something about the customs and daily life of the people. One custom that she described was that of the sauna (bath).

Various Reports Marries At Home Given At Meet

The meetings of the Congress were held at "Kauppakorkeakoulu." Many addresses were given on the status of women and the relation of university women to world problems in education and the betterment of mankind. Many discussion, or interest groups were held, in which topics pertaining to education and culture were considered. Following her own interests, Dr. Utterback attended the conferences dealing with literature and the theater.

Mrs. M. E. Cameron, the new president of the International Federation of University Women, is an American. The United States had more delegates than any other country except Finland.

At the close of Dr. Utterback's address, punch and cake were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Estella Striplan, Dr. Mary Lois Stanton, Dr. Rachel Kilpatrick, Mrs. W. I. Wooten, Dr. Pattie Simmons Dowell, Miss Mabel Dougherty, and Mrs. N. G. Deiter.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenwood Jordan Waters

Miss Johnson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Richard Johnson of this city and Mr. Waters is the son of Mr. Clarence C. Waters of Greenville and Mrs. Hazel C. Waters of Vienna, Va.

The ceremony was performed in the home of the bride's parents by the Rev. John W. Drake, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, in the presence of members of the immediate families.

Following the ceremony, an informal reception was given by the bride's parents.

After a wedding trip, the couple will make their home in Limestone, Maine.

Setback Lines Again To The Fore

The matter of setback lines along streets in and near the business district is a problem Greenville and many other cities have pondered for a good many years.

In the case of Greenville, the matter was last considered seriously several years ago by the city government and after much discussion and a good many complications, it was dropped.

Now Mayor West has again called attention to the problem of narrow streets by asking the city's Planning and Zoning Commission to study the possibility of setback lines as they pertain to specific streets.

Greenville, like many other cities and towns, has seen automobile traffic in and near its business district outgrow the narrow streets which were laid off in the horse-and-buggy days. Traffic and parking problems have become increasingly complicated with the constantly increasing number of vehicles. And there appears no end to the growth of automobile traffic if the community continues to grow and prosper.

Unless some workable, long-range method can be devised to cope with the situation, traffic in the present business district and the adjacent areas into which the business district expands will become more congested as the years pass.

Unfortunately, the problem cannot be solved simply by a community deciding that it needs wider streets in areas already developed. If that were the case, certainly there would be few if any communities with narrow streets and congested traffic. The real problem lies in finding a workable, practical and satisfactory method of establishing setback lines that will enable the city eventually to have room to widen its streets.

It will take considerable time and effort on the part of the Planning and Zoning Commission to study the problem and submit recommendations for consideration of the City Council. If a workable solution can be found, however, it will be worth many times more than the time and effort which goes into it.

A long range solution to the problem of narrow streets and congested traffic is one which should receive high priority in the overall long range planning for orderly development of Greenville. Without a sound program to follow, the city's traffic situation can only worsen in future years.

It is in the interest of the city, we believe, that the local government undertake another careful study of the possibility of setback lines in and near the business district with the view to eventually providing wider streets in the congested area of the city.

Seasonal Boom For Recreation

By LYNN NISBET
PARKS — Attendance records at State and National Parks and recreation in North Carolina for the first five months of this year ran substantially ahead of the comparable period for 1958. When the first eight months were tabulated, the record was considerably below last year. Tom Morse, superintendent of State parks, has a ready explanation—rainy weekends. If it didn't rain at the park, it rained at the homes of prospective weekend visitors. Good weekends through October will help to reduce the shortage, but Morse doubts the parks will be able to equal 1958 attendance this year.

However, he is not so much concerned as the visitation figures might seem to justify. "It is not so much the number of people who pass in and out through park entrances," he said, "as the use they make of facilities while they are there." On that score the State parks are doing very well. More people have used camping and picnic facilities this year than ever before. More groups have spent time studying the geologic formations and plant life.

The same series of rainy weekends is offered in explanation of the fact that beach and coastal resorts have suffered more than mountain areas. An operator who is interested in both beach and mountain places says the percentage drop is much heavier at the beaches. He cites another reason for the different. While there are many modern motels along the coast, the total development of such accommodations is newer in the mountains. Further, the total lack of adequate convention sites in the east has caused some associations to move their meetings to Blowing Rock and Asheville where convention hotels afford facilities.

POTPOURRI — Kemp Doughton, former Speaker and present member of the House of Representatives, has enjoyed the Khrushchev tour of the United States more than most people. Asked what he thought about it, he said: "I haven't read about it." Governor Ernest F. Hollings of South Carolina showed up at the NCU-Clemson game at Chapel Hill a few minutes late. He had flown on a private plane after the Kenan Stadium affair to attend the Duke-SCU game at Columbia that night. The North Carolina teams lost both games. Some quipped that there is similarity between the visits of Khrushchev and Governor Hollings. They are both guests, and we ought to be nice to them, but there's no point in overdoing it.

Most times William B. Aycock, chancellor of the University at Chapel Hill, is a very dignified and scholarly college executive. Those who were near him at Saturday's game saw a sort of Jekyll-Hyde transformation. Long about the middle of the third quarter he quit being a college president and assumed the role of a rabid football fan and grandstand coach. He must have exercised some powers of mental telepathy, because a number of times when he said in a low voice that this ought to be a long pass, or a short run, or a line plunge—the Tar Heels out on the field did just what he suggested. If Bill had started coaching sooner, Carolina might have made those badly needed extra three points.

J. Y. Jordan, Buncombe legislator, was in Raleigh the other day on legal business—but took him out to discuss mountain politics with some news reporters. Gist of his observation was that because he is better known, John Larkins has more present strength in Buncombe than any other candidate for Governor. And, if Buncombe can get together on a candidate, the county can recapture the 12th district seat in Congress. If the local factions can't get together, the small counties will again name the congressman.

CALIFORNIA BOUND — By way of the Rockingham Post-Dispatch which despite changing ownership is still operated as the personal journal of Ike London, it is learned that Bryant Thompson of Hamlet plans to go to California next year in a horse-drawn covered wagon.

Bryant operates a blacksmith and wood-working shop in Hamlet, and has resisted encroachment of new fangled modern concepts in his trade about as successfully as Ike has resisted them in newspaper make-up.

He is building a wagon in his Hamlet shop which he is sure will hold up for the 6,000 mile trip to California and back. Also he is looking around for four horses to pull the wagon on its transcontinental journey. In many respects the 1960 wagon will duplicate features of his 1849 predecessors. It will carry a supply of 364 horse shoes, 3,072 horse shoe nails; some band iron to replace tires, and such gadgets as forges and wood-working tools to make repairs enroute. So far as the vehicle is concerned it will be much like those of a century ago.

The statement that the covered wagon will have "all modern conveniences" and be a "sort of place on wheels" indicates that bottled gas, electric storage batteries and refrigerating equipment may include necessity for the travelers to shoot game for their food, build campfires to cook it, and probably go thirsty between streams.

The main difference between the proposed covered-wagon and a cross-country trip in a modern automobile is time. Thompson is allowing two years instead of two weeks for the venture. Chances are he will see more and enjoy the trip better, because as Ike London quips from his vantage point of three score years and ten and five—"what are two years in a life's span—especially when the wife doesn't object."

Regional Effort Still Can Prove Of Value

Gov. Hodges' call for a greater regional effort on the part of the South to develop its economic potential offers a challenge to leaders of the Southern states that should not be ignored.

Regionally, the South until recent years, has played second fiddle economically to other geographic areas of the nation. In the past few decades, it has begun to change. Though its per capita income remains low compared to other areas of the nation and its productive wealth in terms of manufactured goods does not match up, it has made great strides toward narrowing the gap.

Several of its larger cities are becoming financial and industrial centers to rival those of other sections of the nation. Scattered through the states of the region are new industrial plants, large and small, that are adding literally millions of dollars annually to individual incomes in terms of wages and salaries. They are adding to the productive wealth of the region, the financial standing of state and local governments through the taxes they pay.

Even with this progress, however, the South is just beginning to scratch the surface in developing its productive potential. It has natural resources and manpower to become one of the most productive areas of the nation in terms of both agricultural and manufactured products.

Most of the promotion done by the South to bring about this progress has been done on a community or a state basis. By and large this progress has been done on a community or a state basis. By and large it must continue to be done that way. At the same time a regional effort, carefully planned and designed to present the region as a whole in a corrective perspective to the rest of the nation could provide an important supplement to the development efforts already being made.

Difficult Role Of Playing Host

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP)—Nikita Khrushchev's expedition around the United States is almost a study in organized chaos — on both sides.

The Soviet Premier has admitted he is thin-skinned: "I can never stand it when somebody steps on my pet corn without giving a worthy reply." Yet, by bragging and boasting, he stuck out his neck, or rather his foot with the corn.

He apparently even came over here expecting to be heckled. At the Economic Club dinner in New York he said: "Naturally, when a live Communist appears in such distinguished company, there is a great interest in him; to look at him; to hear him; and, if he has a tail, to pull at his tail."

But, when he got his tail pulled, he hollered out. Although it was clear from what he said in New York that he expected just that. This foreknowledge of what to expect makes his temper tantrums harder to understand.

The State Department's enormous plans for him were long on police protection against an assassin's bullet but woefully short on saving him from embarrassing jibes and needling.

But even in this problem of a greater extent the Soviet Embassy here, must take some of the responsibility for the unpleasantness which occurred since they agree to the plans. For example: Khrushchev agreed to meet with Walter Reuther and other American labor leaders. From the very inception of this idea the meeting was going to be a bull-baiting tournament. Anyone could have predicted it.

But when it turned out that way, Khrushchev got sore. He certainly didn't think he was going to play spin-the-bottle with Reuther and his friends. They wanted to show him how anti-Communist American workers were. They probably did nothing of the kind. A Communist like Khrushchev probably makes a sharp distinction between labor leaders and the masses of workers.

Reuther said Khrushchev called him a capitalist stooge. Why the surprise at that? Khrushchev and his friends no doubt consider all union leaders to be secret management men whose job is to keep down workers' wages. Khrushchev himself started the general irritation a moment after he landed here with his boasting and bragging, a line he has pursued throughout his trip.

With President Eisenhower standing beside him — and the whole world aware that only two days before the U.S.S.R. had hit the moon — Khrushchev read a prepared statement at the airport boasting about the moon-ship.

This hit a sour note from the start. You might call it poor taste. But it certainly was a clumsy entrance. Then at one gathering after another — here, in New York, in California — Khrushchev bragged of Soviet progress, of the moonshot, the new Soviet atomic breakthrough. He predicted repeatedly the U.S.S.R. would surpass the United States.

When a man keeps hitting his hosts over the head with this kind of crowing — even though he is a guest — he can expect some sharp reactions. There's a limit to it, and Khrushchev overdid it.

At the same time he is a guest. Some of the questions flung at him at Washington's National Press Club and elsewhere — and particularly the curt and needling treatment he got from Mayor Norris Poulson of Los Angeles — seemed rude, unnecessary and, as Khrushchev said, using one of his favorite words, provocative.

The State Department—in- stead of meticulous efforts with state and city officials to handle him carefully and avoid heckling and snide digs — seemed to concentrate on police protection. At the same time Khrushchev sounded phony when he complained of his police protection, particularly when he whimpered about not getting to Disneyland. His own security officers had a hand in the police arrangements. And he knew that it wasn't safe for him, in a country with many violent anti-Communists, to walk the streets unguarded.

Ruckus Every Afternoon

Out our way there's a sort of battle ground on a steep hill side where the sun casts a deep shadow long before dusk every afternoon.

On this particular acre (on half-acre) takes place fierce battle at least once a day. What all the fuss is about is certainly hard to figure out, but sometimes it's really a ruckus.

Generally, there are only a limited number of participants. Whether that's because the battle is so fierce or simply that personnel is limited is hard to say.

Apparently, the objective of the whole miniature war is the disputed ownership of some little something-or-other about one foot square. What this object is can't readily be determined since it's been the object of so many battles. It's practically in tatters.

Occasionally, these battles are very interesting to watch from the front porch of a nearby house.

Yesterday afternoon there was a real good one. It involved five different warriors who chased up and down the steeply-sloping battle field for nearly an hour. Valiantly, the fighters subdued one another time after time only to see each one who went down rise again much more strongly.

Actually, yesterday's battle is very likely to be the last in this series. It's almost a shame to see such a classic era come to a close, but there will be no incentive or prize for the victor.

You see, in yesterday's fierce battle, the little one foot square object was torn completely asunder and only fragments of it remained.

What actually happened was that all five battlers had extra energy and vigor from the cool afternoon air. All five viciously grappled the object, which is really quite delicate to begin with and began to pull violently. The result was to be expected.

Some of the boys were wondering last night what could take the place of the daily battles "out there on the hill" for afternoon entertainment.

The whole bunch had grown very fond of each and every one of the little warriors and had really enjoyed watching the daily afternoon antics.

"What'll we do now," one of the boys said. "We won't have any more fights to watch."

Everybody was deploring the situation. How could we persuade the neighborhood dogs to wrangle over a square piece of burdock bag every afternoon on the hill side?

Finally it became apparent that we did have brilliant war strategist in our midst. He said, "Let's get 'em another bag."

Other Editors Saying... Ahead Of Politicians

(Hertford County Herald)

The search for "what a good teacher is" that will be undertaken by North Carolina colleges under the prodding of the State Board of Higher Education will pay off in better education for all Tar Heels, teachers and pupils alike.

The idea is to find out if Tar Heel teachers don't need to juice up their intellectual resources by taking more hours of basic subjects in college and perhaps leaving off some of the "how to teach" courses.

What is significant, too, about this study, is that it will be undertaken by the teachers themselves. We have heard from politicians lately that the school-teaching profession, both on college and public education levels, is hidebound and that teachers don't deserve any more money until they take a good hard look at themselves and improve themselves.

We do not think this has been an all criticism. As a matter of fact, the school people have been ahead of the politicians in this regard. Most people connected with a school—parents, teachers and students—can tell you these days that there is ferment of change and a positive wildness for improvement.

Colleges and public education have shown a frenzy for self-evaluation and self-improvement. It might be argued that this has come about because of the pressures of the modern era. Perhaps. But it is also true that much modernity came about because these very institutions broke from earlier molds many years ago and positively led us into new age to the tune of new directions and constantly-changing methods.

Thus we think that the North Carolina politician who makes this excuse because he didn't vote more money for teachers is really doing nothing more than clouding the issue (which, God bless 'em, is a favorite and very effective weapon of the politician).

As long as the teaching profession, from top to bottom, continues to display its present-day initiative and willingness to change, it need not believe that it will actually bring down the criticism which politicians are always warning is in the minds of "the people." It just isn't there.

The search for a better collegiate curriculum for teachers which is being undertaken by colleges now, even before the problem is recognized by few people other than educators and politicians (who can always see the crack in the armor before it even appears), is another example of that constant seeking for the best.

(Would that some politicians would sit down and carry out the program of self-analysis which they are always urging on other institutional people. We have seen, in recent years, a constant stream of "study commissions"—mostly composed of politicians—which have studied almost every facet of Tar Heel life. But the politicians have yet to turn that inward light onto their own actions. There is as much room for improvement in their own directions and methods as there is any of the other fields. And such a change would have implications in nearly every other field.)

'Great White Father' Tells You

By ELMER ROESSNER

Give a man a horse he can ride and he goes galloping off in all directions. Give him a government job and he promptly imagines himself to be the Great White Father.

I know; I had a government job once. It requires all the strength I possessed to shove every day. I wanted to grow Uncle Sam-type chin whiskers.

We have a new example today. Congress created the Small Business Administration to finance and offer certain kinds of advice to small businesses.

We have a new example today. Congress created the Small Business Administration to finance and offer certain kinds of advice to small businesses.

And the SBA, succumbing to the natural impulse to become Daddy-O in the Sky, is now telling owners of small business how to behave. It has published a "management aid" instructing them on the attitudes to avoid. HOW TO BE PUT WISE This isn't something I dreamed up. It's fantastic, I know. But if you doubt me, write to the SBA, Washington 25, D.C. and ask for a free copy of "Management Aid No. 103" and see for yourself. As a taxpayer, you are entitled to a copy. You paid for it.

An owner-manager, it says, may become, and I quote: "The Detail Huger: Hardly a day passes without his presence distracting the mail-room clerk. 'Have we got enough stamps?', the secretaries. 'How do you put a new ribbon on that new machine?', the cafeteria food supervisor. 'How long does it take to fix a car?' He is also terribly interested in the amount of string used for packages, and the amount of gas used by the company truck."

This slobbering from the government of the United States! You might expect it in some business magazines. You might even expect it in this column. I have offered some silly suggestions here, although I have never made fun of owners who worried about the waste of string and gas. But I was speaking as a citizen; I did not put on a striped hat with a starred band and pretend I was George M. Cohan's uncle.

MORE SAMPLES But this, pals, is your government talking to you; talking about keeping your nose out of the typewriters and the coal slaw.

Some other characterizations of small-business managers: "The Kibitzer: Killing his day is no problem. He just does it by looking over everybody's shoulder, and dropping in on departments. 'Just to see how things are going.' (They're going fine — when he's not around.)"

"The Open Door Man: My door (This executive announces proudly) is open to everybody at all times. The idea is fine, but the result is disastrous: His employees take up most of his day with trivial questions that they could figure out for themselves if the boss hadn't given them a green light to kill his day. "The Conference Caller: This type won't let anyone order a dozen paper cups, without the trappings of a time-killing executive summit meeting. He likes to hear his own voice, even if no one else does." The announcement of this tax-

Secret Of Any Dieting

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Can you lose up to 40 pounds in 90 days without using drugs?

Can you do it without feeling starved, without losing your strength or sense of humor, without feeling sorry for yourself?

You can indeed. You're listening to an ex-fatty who just did it.

All you need is the right incentive. A fat man with the right incentive can do anything. I had a real good incentive.

The truth was I weighed a record 217 pounds.

One of my bosses remarked scornfully:

"Fat men have no will power. Fifty bucks says you can't take off 30 pounds in 90 days."

That did it! I had my incentive, an incentive greater than personal vanity.

"You've got a bet," I told the boss.

There is no secret about losing weight. I went to a good old-fashioned doctor.

Handing me a standard diet, he said: "Follow this. Exercise sensibly. Take a couple of vitamin pills a day. Cut your liquor intake to two highballs a day, but don't take any medicines. You don't need them."

"Well, Doc," I said, "two drinks a day is taking medicine—for it sure ain't drinking."

So I went on the wagon altogether, and within three days was enjoying the taste of water—straight.

The diet was simplicity itself. I cut out all sweet desserts.

I all but cut out butter, corn, beans—except string beans—and had potatoes just once a week. I limited myself to a piece of rye or whole wheat bread a day. If I ate a sandwich for lunch, the next day I did without bread.

I cut my usual portions in half, and concentrated on lean meat, eggs, cottage cheese and filled up on plenty of raw and cooked green and yellow vegetables.

Mild exercise is the best way to cure your restlessness when you're on a diet—or any other time. I bowled and swam some, but walking is the ideal exercise in the city.

The first week I walked a mile a day, then gradually stepped it up. On weekends I got up to seven or eight miles. Solitary walking can be a great joy. You learn the trees, the store window sights and the people in your town as you can in no other way. One tip: In the city be sure to wear rubber-heeled shoes.

Strangely, I felt exhilarated rather than depressed most of the time. Only once did I break my diet to eat a chocolate sundae. I felt as giddy as if I'd robbed the church poor box, and never was tempted again.

The pounds came off in fits and starts. Concluded On Page 5

Strength For Today

THAT AVERAGE LAYMAN

Did you ever hear of a Biblical character named Gaius? Even devout Bible readers have some difficulty in recalling him. He does not appear to have held a place of outstanding importance in the early Christian church, yet we have a very vivid profile of him.

Gaius was an average Christian layman. The apostle John addresses his third epistle to this Gaius. He speaks of him as being sound in the faith, of being sincere and putting into practice the faith he professes. He was hospitable. Christian believers found it necessary in those days to open their homes to any Christian who might be passing through their town or city because the public inns were places of immorality and riotous behavior. Gaius was particularly cordial in his welcome to itinerant believers.

There cannot be much doubt as to why the revelation of this man's character is set forth in the New Testament. Gaius was the common garden variety of man upon whose consecrated efforts the church had to rely in getting started. And that consecrated layman is still the very body and soul of the modern Christian church. He is usually not an intellectual. Nor is he a person of high station in life. He is neither rich nor poor. But he knows what he believes, he practices what he professes, he treats his fellow men with an abundant kindness.

Gaius, the average layman—2000 years ago and now.

Need More Professors For Future College Students

(Editor's Note: Rising enrollment in North Carolina colleges and universities means a growing need for professors to teach. The following article deals with the shortage of qualified faculty members, in the light of the enrollment boom in the decade ahead.)

By BRYAN HAILIP
Associated Press Staff Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Education is a human equation—teacher plus students equals knowledge. It is as true in college as in kindergarten. Without the magic of personal contact, little real learning takes place. That's why higher education administrators worry when they look to the years ahead, with the prospect of swiftly rising enrollments. By 1970, there may be twice as many students on campus. Can the professors be found to keep the equation in balance without making poor quality education the final sum? This is the critical question for the next decade, said Dr. James H. Purks, state director of higher education. An academic manpower shortage already is developing, he noted, and the supply from graduate schools is running far below needs. The state official's diagnosis was confirmed by the head of a church-related college. "The greatest problem facing higher education in the state is the acquisition of competent teaching faculty," said President Arthur D. Wenger of Atlantic Christian College in Wilson. A quirk in the population curve is part of the shortage. The surge of students in the 10 years ahead will come from a birthrate wave that originated in the World War II era. Generally, the professors must be drawn from the preceding generation—when the depression kept the birthrate at a low ebb. The supply for college classrooms is reduced further by the bidding of industry, which in recent years has entered the market for men with advanced training. This has cut deeply in certain fields, especially areas such as chemistry and physics. Although money will be part of the answer, there are no prospects that even unlimited funds could recruit sufficient, high quality professors. Then more of a job must be done by fewer men. New techniques, such as television, must be explored in an effort to reach more students. Financial rewards for teaching, traditionally low, already have gone up under the impact of short supply and rising demand. Further increases are inevitable in the future. Some of these will come to meet competition among institutions for top men. The General Assembly had this in mind last spring when it provided more than 4 million dollars for academic salary increases during the current biennium. Significantly, it left the money on a flexible basis, so that a college administrator can offer a raise to a faculty member tempted by overtures from elsewhere. "North Carolina is in far, far better competitive position in respect to the shortage of professors because of the action of the last Legislature on salaries," said Dr. Purks.

In 1957, the Legislature made available an amount equal to 11 per cent of total academic salaries. Some raises were more, some less, than the 11 per cent figure. With the boosts, the University of North Carolina now offers a $11,000 salary for a full professor. Of course, supplements for higher ranked men come from the Kenan Professorships and other funds. While state-supported institutions are in relatively good position, the picture is less bright for the small private and church-related colleges of limited resources. Faculty salaries last year averaged slightly less than $4,000 at the 27 members of the North Carolina Foundation of Church-Related Colleges. This is a primary point for improvement emphasize by the foundation in its campaign to gather contributions from industry to aid its members. Some hard pressed small college officials see the rising pay scales at state-supported institutions as a severe handicap. "Increasing salaries at the larger institutions," said one, "are placing smaller colleges at a fatal disadvantage in recruiting and retaining competent faculty. No signs of reversing this trend." Others are more optimistic. Guilford College, a Quaker institution, admits the drawing power of higher pay. "However, if the attitude of the faculty at Guilford is in any way typical," a college spokesman went on, "there is a strong devotion to teaching in a church-related college which overcomes the tendency to move to colleges of a different nature offering higher salaries."

Dr. James Logan Godfrey, dean of the faculty at the university in Chapel Hill, said the shortage is really twofold. The need is not only for a sufficient number of teachers, he pointed out, but for sufficient quality. "Not much happens in a classroom unless the fellow up front is smarter than the boys facing him," Godfrey observed. He gave the problem a mathematical cast. "Let's say we need 'X' number of people of 'Y' ability. The higher 'X' becomes, the harder it is to attain 'Y.' Yet, if we fail to maintain 'Y' it won't help a great deal to reach 'X.'" The competition which draws too much top talent away from the classroom begins when the bright college student chooses his profession, Dr. Godfrey said. "In the type of society we live in, most choose on the basis of rewards. The inevitable result is that medicine, and other fields offering high income, are hogging the talent. Too many of lesser ability go into teaching," he remarked. There are always the exceptions—the brilliant men and women dedicated to teaching. "But there are never enough," said Dean Godfrey. "Oh, we have enough dedicated teachers for our dedicated students, but that won't completely staff our institutions." The short supply and the mounting costs of increasing faculties leaves the choice of raising the ratio of students to teachers. This runs into considerable academic debate. The state board of higher education has reminded institutions they must face up to the possibil-

ty of jacking up the ratio. "The colleges are aware of the problem, and they are studying ways to make adjustments," said Director Purks. Some of the experiments under trial at the University were described by Chancellor William B. Aycock. In the political science department, he said, expanded classes meet for lectures and break up into small discussion groups once a week. This spreads the faculty member's time to more students. Graduate student assistants meet with the discussion groups. "What works for one department or faculty member won't necessarily fit another situation," Aycock reminded. "Not everyone can hold the attention of 100 or 200 students." Faculty members can't be overburdened with teaching duties to the farm of basic research, Aycock added. "The University's responsibility in research is as great as its teaching responsibility," he maintained. Experiments in closed circuit television are being conducted at East Carolina College in Greenville. Results are not yet conclusive. The University has started a series of broadcasts over its educational TV channel which will allow the home viewer to complete one year of college work over a two-year span. Such a program would be expected to have little or no effect on enrollment, however. How effective TV will be in the classroom is a matter for debate. Some educators feel teaching would suffer from the missing personal contact. There are TV partisans who contend that all the arguments voiced against the medium were heard when books first appeared. Cases have developed when students as well as faculty rebelled against intensive television use. These may have resulted from a lack of preliminary experimentation. What help comes from mechanical aids and raising the student-teacher ratio, the need will continue for a constant flow of academic manpower. One approach is a "grow your own" program, to encourage men to remain at the institution after they come out of graduate school. The University at Chapel Hill, for example, sometimes finds a source of supply in graduate students who come on fellowships or foundation aid. There is an encouraging rise in

Bohlen Among The Earlier Americans To 'Talk Back'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Charles E. (Chip) Bohlen, soon to become a top Washington adviser on the Soviet Union, was talking back to the Soviets long before the era of Khrushchev diplomacy. Once back in 1946, Alexander Egomolov, then Soviet ambassador to Paris, stopped Bohlen in the hall during a foreign ministers meeting in the French capital. "I thought you Americans were traders," said Egomolov, referring to discussions about the Italian-Yugoslav frontier. "We are traders," replied Bohlen in his usual calm tone. "We will trade dollars and we will trade goods. But we will not trade human beings." For Bohlen, this was just one more incident in a lifelong career of dealing with the Soviets. His diplomatic record as a Soviet specialist cannot be matched among U.S. Foreign Service officers except perhaps by George F. Kennan, now retired. Now 55 and eligible for retirement after 30 years in the Foreign Service, Bohlen is returning from a 2½-year assignment as ambassador to Manila to become a special assistant to Secretary of State Christian A. Herter on Soviet affairs. President Eisenhower, one of Bohlen's boosters, may take the personable diplomat along on the President's trip to the U.S.S.R. this fall. Coincidentally, the 6-foot-1 Bohlen shares Eisenhower's passion for golf. Bohlen shoots a low handicap in Manila and practices on a chipping green at the American Embassy overlooking Manila Bay. Bohlen has spent nearly one-third of his long diplomatic career in the U.S.S.R. He first joined the Moscow Embassy staff in 1934, shortly after this country recognized the Communist regime. By the time of the World War II summit meetings Bohlen's knowledge of the Russian language and insight into the Soviet mind had so advanced that he was used as top interpreter for the U.S.S. delegations. His attendance at Yalta in 1945 with President Franklin D. Roosevelt, in particular, sparked criticism later from some Republicans opposed to the Democratic-negotiated wartime agreements. But Eisenhower picked Bohlen in 1953 as his first ambassador to Moscow and backed him again this year over complaints from some Senate GOP leaders. At Manila since 1957, the handsome diplomat's toughest task has been carrying on negotiations over the status of U.S. bases in the Philippines. He has made some progress, but touchy issues remain unresolved. He has been keeping up his lifetime studies on communism. Current books about the Reds adorn his embassy office. Nearby Communist China has come more closely under his analysis. He sees party chief Mao Tse-tung as the most creative thinker in the Communist world movement since Lenin. Soviet diplomatic policymakers, he has said, do not use expert to dig up facts on which to base their decisions but rather make their decisions first and then tell the experts to find the facts to support them. Bohlen had no outside wealth of his own to help out in his expensive diplomatic assignments. As ambassador at Manila he gets $27,500 a year. In Washington his pay is expected to be about $20,000. His Foreign Service retirement income would be about $15,000. Born in Clayton, N.Y., Aug. 30, 1904, Bohlen married the former Avis Howard Thayer. They have three school-age children.

Filmland Curiosity Brought Out A Mob

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Nikita Khrushchev's visit to Hollywood has come and gone, but the memory will linger a long, long time. Never have so many stars appeared for a single event. "Curiosity," was Glenn Ford's explanation for the turnout. The film fans were curious to see the No. 1 Communist in action, and they saw plenty of action. This was due to the needling of host Spyros Skouras, whose extolling of capitalism prompted Khrushchev to heated reply. Said David Niven of K's speech: "He had some of the greatest free lines in history." Khrushchev's speech with pointed comments, and this seemed a delightful custom. Political speeches can be enlivened by such give and take. Skouras also interrupted the Soviet leader but it wasn't the same. The filmsters finally shouted "sit down" to Skouras. They wanted the star to have the full stage. Khrushchev held it for 45 minutes. Thus he committed the unpardonable sin to show business: staying on too long. "He should have quit when he was ahead," observed Frank Sinatra. I doubt if any of his Hollywood listeners were swayed by Khrushchev's arguments. But he definitely touched a nerve. This came when he was praising Soviet achievements in the arts. "Which country has the best ballet?" he demand. Fred Astaire, Gene Kelly and others have pointed out that we have just as good dancers as the Soviets, but no place for them to train to perfection. Khrushchev pointed out that America has no permanent ballet or opera theater—"your theaters must thrive on what rich people give them." The Soviet chief went on to say that intellectuals are esteemed in his country. He commented one producer-director: "How can we compete for the minds of men when 'intellectual' is considered a dirty word among large segments of this country?" In praising Soviet intellectual achievements, Khrushchev cited Mikhail Sholokov, author of "Quiet Flows the Don" and other novels, who is traveling with him. Weis prompted Federal Court inquires: "So is President Eisenhower taking along Carl Sandburg or Robert Frost or Ernest Hemingway when he goes to Russia?"

Hemby Is Named To ACC Staff

WILSON — Dr. Arthur D. Wenger, President of Atlantic Christian College, today announced the name of Ayden to the Administrative staff of the college. Dr. Wenger said Hemby would begin his duties immediately as Director of Admissions and Religious Activities at the college. In the post of admissions director, Hemby succeeds John E. Weems who resigned to take a similar position at Kentucky Wesleyan College in Owensboro, Ky. Dr. Wenger said the religious activities phase of his work is a newly created position. In that post Hemby will co-ordinate all phases of religious activities of the college other than the Department of Religion and Philosophy which is an academic department. A native of Ayden, Hemby was graduated from the high school there in 1951 and then enrolled at Atlantic Christian College. He was graduated from ACC with an A.B. degree in 1955. While a senior he served as president of the ACC student body. He then enrolled in the graduate school at Vanderbilt University and was awarded a B.D. degree in 1958. Since that time he has been working on a doctorate at Duke University. Hemby also will serve as an instructor in the Department of Religion and Philosophy at the college teaching two courses. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J.B. Hemby of Ayden, and is married to the former Miss Joan Edwards of Wilson. They have one son, James B. Hemby, III, born August 26.

To Defend Self In Armory Theft

STATESVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A 42-year-old Maiden resident who plans to act as his own lawyer was to go on trial here today in Western District Federal Court charged with stealing a truckload of firearms from the Newton National Guard armory. The defendant, Charles Haskel Wilson, had tried earlier to get the court to appoint as his counsel the commander of the unit from which the weapons were stolen. But Col. H. J. Hatcher of Morganton said he was disqualified because of his connection with the armory. Wilson waived counsel Tuesday before Judge Wilson Warlick, saying he would try to "do the best I can for myself." Wilson was arrested last May in Gastonia on a local charge. Later that month he was arraigned in Asheville before a U.S. commissioner, probable cause was found on the charge of theft of government property, and he was returned to jail to await trial. Carbines, pistols and automatic rifles were among weapons taken from the Newton armory Dec. 2. Some of the weapons later were recovered in Florida. They supposedly were intended for sale in Cuba or Central America. If convicted, Wilson could be sentenced to a 10-year prison term and a $10,000 fine.

Church Bombing Called Revenge

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Revenge, not racial tension, prompted five white youths into bombing an empty Negro church here, police say. The five all 15 years old, were charged Tuesday with causing an explosion with intent to injure a person or property of another. The True Way Church of God in Jesus Christ was bombed Monday night when a homemade gunpowder device was thrown through a window. Police said the five got angry when a landlord refused to permit them to rent the basement of the church for use as a clubhouse. Those in custody are Jeffrey Cordova and Joseph M. Dalakina, both Hillside; Daniel Casey, and Howard McAllister, both Newark, and Steve Parr, Bernardsville. Said Elder Arthur Wilson, pastor: "This is just kids' doings." Of the 18 U.S. Navy ships which have disappeared without a trace since 1781, four were lost during the month of September, accounting for 612 men.

Rapid Transit Said Only Way

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP)—Rapid transit is the only solution to steadily mounting traffic congestion in major cities, says the new president of the American Public Works Assn. "People must adapt themselves to mass transportation," Jean L. Vincenz, director of public works for San Diego County, Calif., said Tuesday night. "There is no other way out. We can't keep spending tremendous sums to provide greater capacity on freeways and for parking." Vincenz suggested in an interview during the association's annual convention that "bus trains" of at least a bus and trailer may encourage commuters to leave their cars at home. # Sickness, Accident and Hospital Insurance

- to help protect you against today's rising cost of medical care
- to help replace income you lose because you're sick or hurt
- to help provide for your family if you're killed in an accident

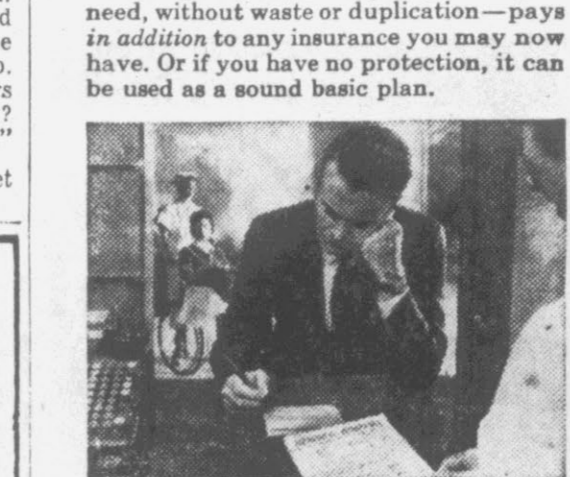

New Selector Plan lets you choose the exact type and amount of protection that's right for your needs... and your budget!

If you're like most people, you already have some form of sickness, accident or hospital insurance. But inflation may have watered it down to where it would pay only a small fraction of hospital and doctor bills.

You may have risked going along with the protection you have because you've assumed that rising costs have also priced adequate coverage beyond your reach.

But now Allstate's Accident and Sickness Insurance provides you with a sensible new plan designed to help you solve these problems—at a cost you can afford.

WHAT THIS NEW POLICY BRINGS YOU Here, in one flexible policy, you will find a broad selection of top-value coverages. You can select exactly the protection you need to close the gaps in your present insurance—at surprisingly little cost. This sensible plan lets you buy only what you need, without waste or duplication—pays in addition to any insurance you may now have. Or if you have no protection, it can be used as a sound basic plan.

HOW WOULD YOU MAKE OUT? Hospital rates have gone up 97.6% in the past ten years. Have you increased your protection to match today's high cost of being sick or hurt?

SPECIAL NOTICE TO CAROLINIANS: every Allstate Accident and Sickness policy sold in North and South Carolina is guaranteed renewable to age 65. And your rates (up to age 65) cannot be increased unless there is a similar increase for all persons in your class. Why not get all the facts—clip and mail coupon today! (Policy not available at age 60 or over.)

You're in good hands with ALLSTATE INSURANCE COMPANIES AUTO • FIRE • HOMEOWNERS • ACCIDENT & SICKNESS • LIFE

HERE ARE A FEW OF THE WAYS ALLSTATE'S NEW PLAN COULD FIT YOUR NEEDS:

YOU MAY NOW HAVE an employer or group plan that would pay you only for a few months after accident or sickness disables you.

YOU SHOULD HAVE an Allstate coverage that will pay you a monthly, tax-free income so you can provide for your family's living expenses while you are disabled. (Maximum: to age 65 if totally disabled from sickness or accident, 6 months if partially disabled, due to accident.) You can select the amount of income protection you want up to $400 a month for total disability—up to $200 a month for partial disability. (This benefit together with any other "income protection" insurance may not exceed your average monthly income.)

YOU MAY NOW HAVE a basic hospitalization plan which may pay you for only a few weeks.

YOU SHOULD HAVE an Allstate coverage that will begin paying after your present policy stops, to give you protection against in-hospital expenses of serious, drawn-out illness or disability... that pays 75% of hospital expenses for each one or 2 years for each accident or illness for each member of your family. (Maximum payment: $5,000 per person.) Or you can strengthen your basic hospitalization plan with an Allstate coverage that will pay daily hospital expenses in addition to the protection you now have.

YOU MAY NOW HAVE insurance with relatively few benefits—that pays only a small part of the actual costs of a long, lingering disability.

YOU SHOULD HAVE an Allstate coverage that will help you with the major expenses of doctor, surgeon (including specialist) care, nursing costs and many other medical services, whether incurred in or out of a hospital.

YOU MAY NOW HAVE savings that could keep your family going for 6 months or a year if you were killed in an accident.

YOU SHOULD HAVE an Allstate coverage that pays $15,000 cash if you are killed in practically any type of accident. Pays in addition to any other payments made by this policy.

White Sox Cinch Pennant With Win Over Cleveland; Braves Take Over First Place In National League Race

Dodgers, Giants Lose To Give Braves The Lead

By ED WILKS Associated Press Sports Writer Remember the last time the National League had a three-team fight for the flag? It was 1956 and in the final week fourth-place St. Louis crashed Milwaukee out of it while the Dodgers stepped over seventh-place Pittsburgh to the pennant.

Cincinnati was the third club in on that down-to-the-wire race, finally given the gate by the Chicago Cubs to finish third, two games shy.

The Braves have breezed to two flags since then, and now, driving for a rare third in a row, they've surged into a one-game lead, beating fourth-place Pittsburgh 5-3 Tuesday night while seventh-place St. Louis jarred the Dodgers out of a first-place tie by battering Los Angeles 11-10.

In keeping with that pennant pattern of three years ago, third-place San Francisco plunged two games behind with a 5-4 loss to the Cubs.

Each of the contenders has four games left. All finish the current series today. Then the Braves go home for a three-game weekend series with last-place Philadelphia while the Dodgers shift to Chicago and the Giants switch to St. Louis in the final run to decide who plays the Chicago White Sox in the World Series a week from today.

The White Sox put away their first American League pennant in 40 years Tuesday night, beating Cleveland, the only club that could snatch it from them, 4-2.

Milwaukee's late surge to become the first three-in-a-row NL winner since the Cardinals of 1942-43-44 now has given the Braves a four-game streak and 13 victories in their last 15 games.

To do it, they had to stand off a ninth-inning Pirate rally for the second night in a row. Lefty Juan Pizarro (6-2) beat the Bucs a third time after building a 4-1 cushion with a two-out, two-run double as the Braves scored three in the seventh off Harvey Haddix (12-12).

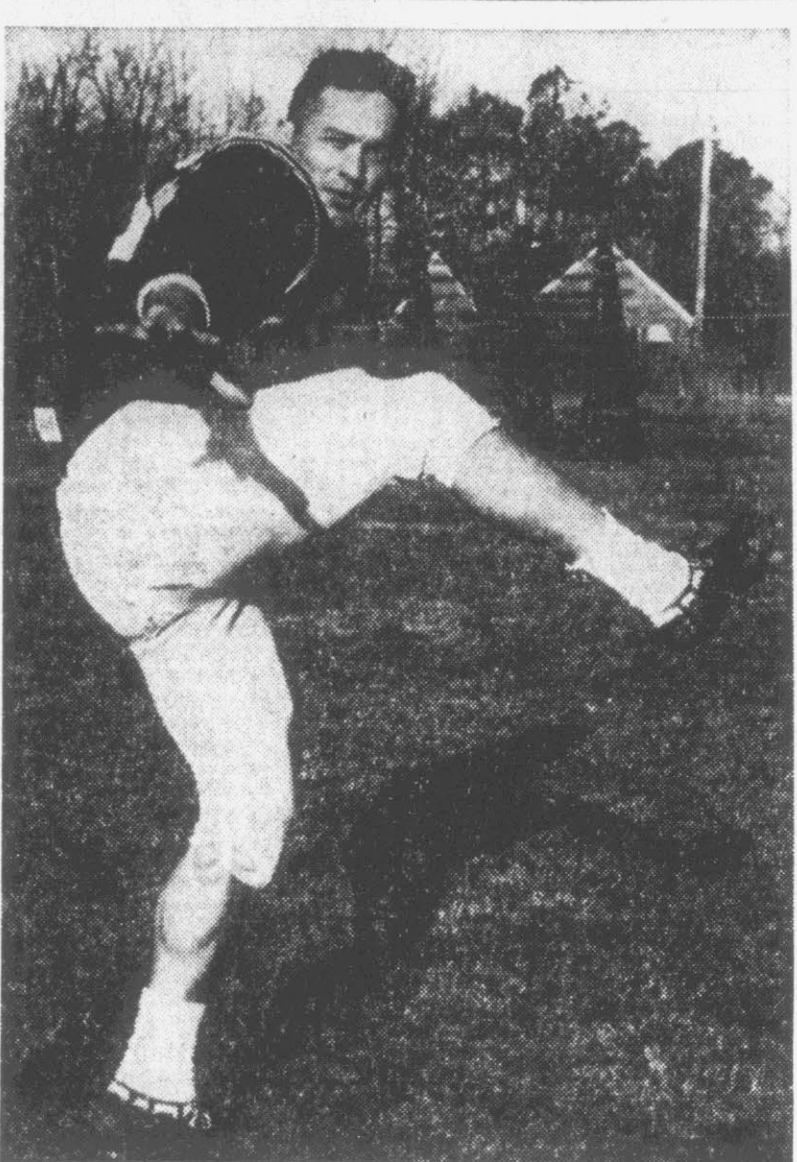

Reliever Don McMahon finally nailed it, giving up a pair of scoring singles by Smokey Burgess and Don Hoak before striking out pinch-hitter Rocky Nelson for the final out.

Andy Pafko doubled and John Demerit, replacing injured Bill Bruton in center field, beat out a bunt single for the Braves in the clinching seventh. Then, after Del Crandall, who had hit his 21st homer in the fifth, hit into a doubleplay and Felix Mantilla got an intentional pass, Pizarro sliced the double just inside the left field line. Bobby Avila, who tripled in the first and scored on Hank Aaron's fly, then singled in the final run off Haddix.

Milwaukee took more than a percentage-point lead for the first time since June 30 as the Cardinals went to work on the Dodgers. Los Angeles, making it close on rookie Frank Howard's pinch-hit, three-run homer in the ninth, chased nemesis Larry Jackson in the first inning, but blew 3-0 and 6-4 leads.

Hal Smith bombed starting Dodger southpaw Sandy Koufax with his first grand-slam homer in the first inning. After Gil Hodges' two-run, 24th homer gave the Dodgers the 6-4 edge in the third, the Cards came back with five runs in their half of the third. Curt Flood's three-run homer set it off against losing reliever Chuck Churn (3-2). Joe Cunningham singled in the tying run in the frame and a double by ex-Dodger Gino Cimoli scored the lead run.

The Cardinals won it with two runs in the fifth, getting the clincher on an error by Carl Fu-

ALL-CONFERENCE—Four All-Conference selections will be on the field this weekend when ECC runs up against Guilford College. Both teams have a tackle and halfback that has reaped laurels James Speight, the local Greenville flash, will be one of the Bucs' representatives. The 170 pounder made the select group in 1957.

Maryland Draws Attention In ACC

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Have the Maryland Terrapins turned turtle at last? There's more than a pun in that question. The Terps were a football power in the years from 1947 through 1955, under the late Jim Tatum. After he left Maryland for North Carolina, dark days descended. The Terrapins haven't had a winning season since.

However, there's been added sparkle in football chatter at Maryland since they trounced West Virginia 27-7 last week. True, the Mountaineers aren't what they have been in past seasons. But fans were titillated by the colorful use of the "I" formation, and intoxicated with the thought of football foes trembling again just a bit over the name of Maryland.

This week Maryland travels southwest to meet the University of Texas. The Longhorns, winners 20-0 over Nebraska, have a veteran team back. They had a 7-3 record last season, including an upset victory over powerful Oklahoma. They operate from the T-rillo on Cimoli's RBI single.

The Dodgers used 24 players, six of ten pitchers, and set a major league record with nine pinch-hitters — four of whom reached base. Southpaw Marshall Bridges (6-3) was the winner.

The Giants dropped their fourth in a row on a two-run, two-out homer by rookie George Altman in the ninth. It came off Sad Sam Jones, working in relief and tagged with his 15th defeat, third in a row since winning his 20th. Don Elston (9-8) was the winner in relief, coming on in a two-run eighth when the Giants, who left nine men on base, scored twice for their only lead, 4-3.

The Cubs took fifth place with the victory as Cincinnati fell to sixth with a twin-night doubleheader loss at Philadelphia, 3-1 and 3-2.

In the other AL games, New York beat Washington 8-4, Detroit defeated Kansas City 6-4 and Boston beat Baltimore 4-3.

JV Game

East Carolina College's junior varsity will make their debut tomorrow night when they battle Frederick Junior College of Portsmouth, Virginia in the local stadium.

Head freshmen coach, Gary Mattocks, stated this week that he was pleased with the progress of his club and felt that they would make a good showing against the Virginia club.

Mattocks is serving his first year as freshman coach at East Carolina and is being assisted by Lee Atkinson, a 1959 graduate. Both coaches are graduates at ECC and played football under Coach Boone during their tenure here.

Composed of mostly freshmen, the junior varsity has been practicing for the past two weeks and promise to feature a wide open attack against their visitors tonight.

George Rouse, a Newport News former prep star, will probably get the starting call for the "Baby Bucs" at quarterback.

Starting guard Nick Patella didn't see much rough work because of a leg injury, but is likely to play. Quarterback Gerry Mancini was promoted to North Carolina State's second team to replace injured Ron Wojcik. The Wolfpack worked on fundamentals. The team has an open date this week and faces North Carolina Oct. 3. Clemson's first three teams ran the reserves ragged, several plays going all the way from midfield. Coach Frank Howard said several players, including tackle Lou Cordileone and halfback Bill Mathis, got no contact work because of injuries. But most of them are expected to be ready for Virginia.

South Carolina seemed in good physical shape in its workout for Furman. Phil Lavoie and Bob Farmer are contending for the starting fullback spot vacated by John Saunders, expected to be out at least for several weeks with a shoulder injury.

Duke, which will face an Ohio State line averaging 240 pounds from tackle to tackle, worked on offensive blocking. Starting halfback Danny Lee, cut in the face in the Blue Devils' loss to South Carolina, had a light practice and is expected to play Saturday.

Wake Forest Coach Paul Amen added a few new plays to vary the Deacons' "double linesome end" offense for Virginia Tech.

Flu Epidemic

Greenville's football game with Kinston this Friday night at Kinston has been postponed due to an epidemic of flu on the local team. Coach Bud Phillips stated this morning that the game would be played November 20.

Three players, including several key men, missed practice Monday afternoon and others were absent from yesterday's practice session. The game at Kinston was slated to be the Red Devils Homecoming.

West Virginia Makes Changes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS At the rate things are going, it will take a scorecard to recognize West Virginia's starting lineup Saturday when the Mountaineers take on Richmond's Spiders in the first Southern Conference football game of the campaign.

Dissatisfied with the Mountaineers in a 27-7 opening game defeat by Maryland last weekend, Coach Art (Pappy) Lewis demoted three first- stringers in this week's first workout Monday.

After another session Tuesday, Lewis made four other changes—mainly because of injuries. Should all the switches stand up, the West Virginia starting lineup this week might include just four holdovers from last week.

Other conference teams apparently expect trouble via the aerial route this week, for no less than four others — Virginia Military, George Washington, Davidson and William and Mary—stressed pass defense Tuesday.

Davidson also put some emphasis on its rushing defense as the Wildcats prepped for their Saturday clash with Presbyterian.

Three injured players — ends Tom Hemmingsway and Jack Griffin and tackle Joe Davis—returned to action at The Citadel, which was in its best physical shape in two weeks. Quarterback Jerry Nettles continued to look good as a passer as the Bulldogs worked for Saturday night's Florida State game.

Calhoun To Fight In Bout Tonight

CHICAGO (AP)—Veteran Rory Calhoun of White Plains, N.Y., and young Rudy Ellis of South Haven, Mich., meet in a 10-round middleweight bout in Chicago Stadium tonight.

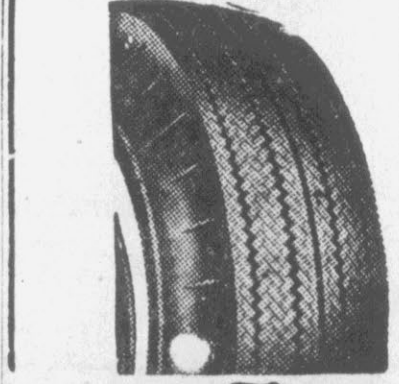

Ellis, a 23-year-old who punched Bobby Boyd into retirement last month, hopes to use Calhoun as a stepping stone. The fight will be televised nationally (ABC-9 p.m. EST).

Ellis, a native Chicagoan, has a 17-2 record, 10 of his victories have been by K.O.'s.

Calhoun, who will be 25 later this month, turned pro five years ago and has compiled a 29-7-2 record.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Five men seized in a nation-wide FBI roundup are accused of trying to grab control of world welterweight champion Don Jordan.

A federal grand jury investigating underworld influence in boxing indicted them Tuesday in Los Angeles. They were arrested within a few hours in Los Angeles, Chicago, Philadelphia and Baltimore.

The indictments charged conspiracy to extort money from Jordan's manager, Don Nesseth of Covina, Calif., and Jackie Leonard, former Hollywood Legion Stadium boxing promoter.

Under arrest are: Paul John Carbo, known as Frankie Carbo, 55, of New York City. He is under indictment in New York for undercover management of fighters.

Frank (Blinky) Palermo, 54, Philadelphia boxing manager. Truman Gibson Jr., 47, Chicago attorney, president of National Boxing Enterprises Inc., and former president of the International Boxing Club.

Joseph Sica, 48, Los Angeles, who has a record of arrests going back to 1928.

Louis Tom Dragna, 39, West Covina, Calif., manager of a clothing store and described as having been involved in bookmaking.

The indictment alleged that Palermo extorted $1,725 from Leonard through threats of harming him and Nesseth.

Leonard had no interest in Jordan's management but said Palermo and Carbo made him an unwilling go-between in their purported effort to muscle in on Nesseth's contract with Jordan.

Leonard and Nesseth testified before a California Athletic Commission hearing last May and before the grand jury.

Leonard told the commission that Carbo threatened him and Nesseth.

Leonard said Palermo tried to declare himself in for half of Jordan's receipts from a title fight with Virgil Akins, then champion, when negotiations for the bout began last November.

Nesseth said he resisted efforts to muscle in.

Leonard was placed under police guard. On the night of last June 3 he left his home to get a newspaper. After he drove his car into his garage, his wife found him lying dazed in the backyard.

Leonard told police two men came up behind him in the dark and beat him on the head.

After long investigation, Police Chief William Parker said he had concluded that Leonard blacked out and hurt his head in a fall.

Several weeks ago a window screen on Leonard's home was ripped away and the curtains of a bedroom set afire.

The indictment contains 19 counts under the anti-racketeering act and the federal extortion statutes. The laws carry penalties up to 20 years imprisonment and $10,000 fine for each offense.

One of the counts alleges Palermo and Sica tried to force Nesseth to agree to a match between Jordan and Garnett "Sugar" Hart.

William Daly, a sports promoter and fight manager of Englewood, N.J., was named in the indictment as a co-conspirator but not as a defendant.

Stress Defense

East Carolina College worked on defense yesterday as they made preparations for their North State Conference opener against Guilford this Saturday afternoon.

The Pirates reviewed movies of their victory over Albright College earlier this week and received a scouting report on the Quakers, who shocked Elon 27-9 in their opener.

Coach Bill McDonald scouted the Guilford team in their opener and praised their improved club. "They looked real good," he reported, "and they have good team speed and average size."

The Pirates worked on defense yesterday with pass defense getting special emphasis. The locals had their bad moments on pass defense Saturday night after a good game at Presbyterian the previous Saturday, but Coach Jack Boone was hoping to correct this prior to the Guilford tilt.

Several players were on the sidelines yesterday with colds but were expected to be ready by Saturday. Boone stated that he felt his club would be at near top shape.

Glenn Bass, Mac Thacker, Lynn Barnett, James Speight, and Jerry Carpenter set up a skeleton pass defense against the passing of Ralph Zehring, Bert Stafford, and George Turner.

Gordon Is Out As Tribe Boss

CLEVELAND (AP) — Joe Gordon was out today as Cleveland manager with four games still left on the Indians' schedule. General Manager Frank Lane said he hoped to name the 1960 Cleveland pilot soon, perhaps before the week is over.

The leading candidate appears to be Leo Durocher, who quit a $65,000 job with the National Broadcasting Co. earlier this month to return to baseball where he piloted three National League pennant winners.

So leading, in fact, is Durocher's candidacy that other names — among them Fred Hutchinson of Cincinnati and Charley Dresen of Los Angeles — have come in for scarcely more than a mention.

For the rest of the season Mel Harder, veteran pitching coach, will manage the Indians. The four remaining games with Kansas City here starting Friday will be used to test the club's rookies.

Tuesday night's 4-2 loss to Chicago mathematically eliminated the Indians, and the team has had second place sewed up for some time, so this weekend's games mean nothing to the standings.

Golf Chmapions Play Tomorrow

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Golf's touring professionals, including the present U. S. Open, Masters and PGA champions, open fire Thursday in the inaugural of the $40,000 Golden Gate Championship.

The scene is a San Francisco public course—Harding Park, and from there one of the pros can look across Lake Merced to the site of his greatest triumph four years ago.

For in 1955, a virtual unknown, Jack Fleck from Des Moines, beat the great Ben Hogan in a playoff for the U.S. Open title over the Olympic Club course. He hadn't won before and he hasn't won since.

When the 72-hole tournament starts, probably no one will consider him among the favorites in the 155-man field.

The entries include such stars as the present U.S. champion Billy Casper and the 1959 leading money winner Art Wall Jr., the Masters' champ.

County Home Felt Not Practical Answer To Problem

PITT COUNTY HOME . . . improvements being made while county commissioners ponder its future.

By Henry Howard
Reflector Staff Writer

During the past month or so, Pitt County's Board of Commissioners, Board of Public Welfare, Board of Health, grand jury, and taxpayers have been intensely interested in the county's accommodations for its aged or indigent citizens.

Following a low sanitation rating by the Health Department, the grand jury made an inspection of the Pitt County Home in August. The resulting report was an undesirable taste in many mouths throughout the county.

The Commissioners were confronted with the problem of "What to do?" at the regular September meeting of the Board. It was realized that already a heavy financial burden was upon the county in the form of the latest bond issue to secure for Pitt a much-needed addition to Pitt Memorial Hospital.

During the Board meeting, a resolution was adopted saying that an improvement program had been instituted at the County Home and that inspections would be held at intervals to determine the effectiveness of the clean-up project.

In addition, the Commissioners resolved to discuss the possibilities (and there are several) of obtaining a new rest home for the county.

From a practical viewpoint, the traditional county home is not the answer to accommodations for the aged.

Many of North Carolina's counties have discovered this. In the past, virtually every county in the state maintained a county home. Currently, only 28 Tar Heel counties provide such accommodations.

North Carolina now has a total of 252 boarding homes, licensed by the N. C. State Board of Public Welfare, with a total capacity of nearly 5,000. These homes are located in 83 different counties and 19 of them have been converted from the respective county's county home facility.

Pitt County's problem is a great one and one that cannot be solved overnight. To begin with, it must be decided which is the best way to furnish accommodations for the county's aged and indigent.

That is the first step.

Naturally, the financial picture is important for careful consideration in a project of this type. In order to secure federal and state aid for a rest home, the facility must be licensed by the State Board of Public Welfare.

Pitt's existing County Home is entirely supported with county funds. A special outlay is planned each year when the county's budget is designed.

In a licensed rest home, residents receive the benefits of a facility built to specifications established by the State Board of Welfare. If the structure is built in compliance with these standards and the operation is conducted in accordance to Welfare Board standards, residents who qualify for federal-state-county welfare grants are eligible to live in the home with the tri-government participation.

Pitt County has several alternatives of which three seem to be the most outstanding.

First, the county can renovate the existing County Home and continue to operate it as has been done in the past.

Second, a rest home, built to qualifications set up by the State Board of Welfare, can be built at county expense and then leased to private enterprise for operation—eliminating appropriations for operation of a County Home each year.

Third, private individuals can build such a facility. In this proposition, private enterprise takes full responsibility for adequate construction, licensing by the Board, and proper operation.

Either of the three mentioned solutions to the problem is possible. Cost to the county promises to be less in the third; however, it will be difficult to uncover a private individual who will finance the initial structure.

Belvoir Falkland PTA Holds Meet

The first meeting of the Belvoir-Falkland School's Parent-Teacher Association was held Monday night in the high school auditorium with an attendance of approximately 200.

President Earl Lewis presided and a devotion was presented by Mrs. Linwood Harris.

School Principal Ed Warren introduced Bob Ellwanger of East Carolina College who demonstrated a number of musical instruments and led group discussion on formation of a school band for students in grades one through eight.

Principal Warren made a number of remarks and announcements pertinent to the school program for this year. He encouraged parents to keep their children in school regularly, since the number of teachers employed for the school is based on average daily attendance.

He further remarked that present attendance is the highest it has been in three years. He asked that parents refrain from giving their children notes permitting them to leave school. This, he pointed out, reflects an undesirable impression on the school, as well as prevents the child from gaining full educational benefits.

The school lunch program was discussed and it was reported that participation has been good so far this year.

The County Board of Education was thanked for having made possible a number of improvements in the school during the summer.

Plans were made for the second PTA meeting, to be held in October, at which time a PTA supper will be discussed. Proceeds from the proposed supper will be deposited in a special fund for the purchase of a new piano for the school.

At the conclusion of the business meeting, open house was held with parents visiting the classrooms and being served refreshments in the school's library.

Attendance prizes went to the third and fifth grades.

Falkland's PTA Discussing Band

FALKLAND—At its first meeting of the new school year, the Falkland School's Parent-Teacher Association discussed the cost of organizing a band at the school.

Don Hayer and Bobby Elwanger of East Carolina College were on hand to discuss the organization costs of the proposed musical group with the local PTA.

The group decided that Ellwanger will return to the school within the next two weeks to determine the number of students interested in participating in the proposal.

Principal Charlie Bill Moyer presented to the Falkland library several children's books. The volumes were donated to Falkland's school by Mrs. Lucille Briley in memory of the late Mrs. Inabel W. Little.

It was decided that the PTA will hold its school benefit supper Oct. 10 in the school cafeteria. The public will be invited. The meeting's attendance flag was won by Mrs. Mary Mayo's second grade.

'College Day' Friday At Farmville High School

FARMVILLE — With some 26 different colleges scheduled to be represented, Farmville High School stages its annual College Day Friday.

The affair gets underway at 9:00 and lasts until 11:30 Friday morning at the school.

Principal Sam D. Bundy has recommended that college representatives talk to student groups for about 20 minutes on such items as entrance requirements, expenses, scholarships and self-help possibilities, types of curricula offered, and so forth, with the last five to 10 minutes thrown open for questions. Each discussion period is scheduled to last about 20 minutes.

All students (from grades nine through 12) are being permitted to participate. Bundy says that

Benson Taking Off On Tour

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson takes off today for a trade and good will trip that will take him into the Soviet Union, Yugoslavia and Poland.

He was to be accompanied by three members of his family, Mrs. Benson and daughters Beverly and Bonnie; four Agriculture Department officials and 10 members of the agricultural press.

Benson will be the first U.S. official to go to the U.S.S.R. since Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev came to this country.

The first scheduled stop on the air flight was to be Belgrade, Yugoslavia.

Other countries on the schedule included Western Germany, Finland, Sweden and Norway.

The principal purpose of the 16-day trip was to weigh possibilities of selling more U.S. farm products in Europe, although no sales were envisioned within the Soviet Union. The visit there was set mainly to give Benson a view of Soviet agriculture and any progress it is making toward the Soviet goal of matching — and eventually surpassing — U.S. farm production on a per capita basis.

College Students Assist In Closed Circuit TV

Twenty-three East Carolina students are assisting with the closed-circuit television program of instruction at East Carolina in the fall and from their experiences in the campus studios are learning TV techniques. Dr. Corinne Rickett acts as director of all phases of closed-circuit TV activities at East Carolina.

Five departments of instruction participating in the program during the fall quarter are English, business, music, social studies, and science. Each is offering one course of study. Almost 1400 students are enrolled in the five courses.

Offerings of the departments, the number of class sections in each course, and the number of students registered are as follows: American Literature, ten sections, 214 students; Introduction to Business, nine sections, 350 students; Music Appreciation, three sections, 200 students; American History, seven sections, 300 students; and Physical Science for Elementary Education Majors, three sections, 314 students.

Students engaged in work in the studios act as producers, floor managers, cameramen, video engineers, audio engineers, technical directors, and audio operators.

Girls By-Passed Nikita's Guards

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—Four Des Moines teen-age school girls slipped through security officers at Hotel Fort Des Moines Tuesday and made their way up 10 flights to the penthouse suite reserved for Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

Stunned security men whisked the girls back down on an elevator and in the lobby they met Khrushchev who had just arrived at the hotel. The Premier greeted each girl with a smile and said he was happy to see them.

Annual Inspection Given Local Naval Reservists

The annual inspection of the local naval reserve unit was held last evening by Lt. CMDR. O. D. Mendenhall, USN, composite program officer for Sixth Naval District, Charleston.

Mendenhall appeared impressed with the spirit of the unit, but results of the inspection will not be announced until a later date.

The meeting's program was under direction of Lt. CMDR. John O. Reynolds, and was another in a series on the weather. Lt. Sherman Husted gave a discussion of hurricanes, using the current "Gracie" as an example of the behavior. A film of "The Helene Story" was also presented, through courtesy of WNGT.

Commander Everett is commanding officer of NR Composite Company 6-26, which meets every Tuesday night at the Austin Building on East Carolina College campus.

Price Rises And Falls On Tide

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A book about "The San Francisco Giants" came out last season at $2.50 per copy.

By the end of the team's first year here, when they finished third in the National League, the book was selling for $1.

When the 1959 Giants were riding the crest of the National League some stores marked the book back up to $2.50.

Tuesday the Chicago Cubs clipped the Giants 5-4—third place again.

Today the book is marked down to 69 cents.

Warns Against 'Second Best'

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP) — The United States cannot solve its problems "with a Pitt gun in front of us and refrigerators and bathtubs behind us," Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.) says.

Johnson, in a speech to the Texas County Judges and Commissioners Assn., said Tuesday this country cannot afford a smug and self-assured foreign policy and cannot afford to be second best.

Second best, he said, could become last in the world conflict.

The Senate majority leader said Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev "is committed to the proposition that only in a dictatorship can the world find prosperity and economic abundance."

SHADOW OF GULL

A NEW THRILLER by PATRICK QUENTIN

CHAPTER 7

THE WAY Chuck Ryon looked reminded me of something. Then I remembered. His mother had looked at me like that, wide-eyed and remote, when Connie and I had visited her at the sanitarium just before one of her more violent attacks.

"Where is Ala?" he demanded. "She's just gone upstairs," said Connie.

"Can I go to her?"

"She's in quite a state, Chuck. I don't know..."

"Whether she'll see me? Why wouldn't she see me? She's engaged to me, isn't she?"

"But..."

"Okay, Chuck," I said. "Why don't you try?"

Connie turned sharply to me, but that was all Chuck needed. He dashed up the stairs.

I said, "Look, Connie, Ala could be right about that girl, you know. Vivien did say Mrs. Postwick was a gossip. She could have got it all wrong or invented the bit about the money—anything. At least we've got to make sure."

"And just how do you propose to do that?"

"Call the Postwicks, get the name of these people and talk to them. There can't be more than one Reginald Postwick in Toronto."

I went to the telephone. I got Mrs. Postwick almost at once and, after she'd squawked a while like a panicked hen, she told me the name of the people. It was telling Mr. Duvreux our problem. He was clearly a wealthy and responsible citizen. It was quite impossible to doubt his word. With a feeling of dull depression, I put down the phone.

"Well?" asked Connie crisply.

"It's true," I said. "Saxby did take the ten thousand dollars. And that's not all. Duvreux checked up on him through private detectives. There was another earlier episode in Quebec."

"So," said Connie. "There it is. A very pretty situation, isn't it? I congratulate you."

As we stood assessing each other like enemies, Chuck came down the stairs. He was walking unsteadily, almost as if he were drunk.

He didn't look at either of us. He was gazing straight in front of him.

"Ala's locked herself in her room. She wouldn't let me in. She just talked through the door."

"But what did she say?" Connie asked gently.

"She says it's no good. She says she's never going to marry me. She's sorry, she says. She'll explain it all later, but now..."

Suddenly he sat down on the stairs and put his hands over his face. The light from the hall chandelier played on his blond hair and the smooth youthful skin at the back of his neck. He seemed to be in a state bordering on shock.

To me Chuck had always been the very symbol of all that was stolid and unimaginative in good young boys. Seeing him like this, I felt disgusted at myself for my careless meddling, and the disgust brought with it a deep rage against Don Saxby.

Connie dropped down at Chuck's side. She put her hand on his shoulder. She was all maternal warmth and tenderness, as if he were a very little child who'd fallen and scraped his knee.

"Chuckie dear, you mustn't worry. Please. She's in a silly, confused state, but she's only nineteen. She..."

The phone rang shrilly. My wife glanced up at me, blushing, as if it were my fault it had rung.

"Don't take it here. Take it upstairs."

I squeezed past them and hur-

Uncertainty Best Describes Cuba

By HAROLD K. MILKS

HAVANA (AP)—Uncertainty is the word which best describes Cuba today.

It covers all phases of life in this island nation, especially the political, economic and military.

"What happens next?" is a phrase frequently heard from both Cuban and foreign residents.

Critics of the revolutionary program of Prime Minister Fidel Castro say uncertainty, created by his government, is wrecking the Cuban economy and will bring down the rebel regime within six months.

His supporters describe the uncertainty as a counter-revolutionary weapon of Castro's opponents, exploited in an effort to create trouble for the various phases of his admittedly ambitious program.

Investors, both foreign and Cuban, are hesitant to involve funds in building projects. Industrialists are postponing planned expansions or improvements in many cases.

Operators of the nation's 161 sugar mills, heart of Cuba's major industry, are dragging their feet in renovating their machinery. Some labor groups have urged government intervention to force what they call normal repair programs.

Directors of American-owned mills here say frankly they are cutting back.

"Who knows what the agrarian reform program will do to us?" said one such executive. "We would be foolish to spend more than an absolute minimum on renovations when by this time next year we may be out of business."

Despite the uncertainty, economists report some good signs.

Bank clearings are up and still rising.

Retail trade is good in all except luxury items of great expense. Collections on current accounts are generally good.

Gasoline and oil sales are rising.

Oil companies are having trouble, however, collecting old bills carried over from the Batista regime.

Economists claim the unemployment problem is not as severe as was feared, that government public works programs may be less expensive than was expected. Castro himself once said there are 750,000 Cubans without work.

The 1959 carryover of sugar, Cuba's greatest revenue crop, has been estimated at about a million tons, well below the 1½ million tons feared earlier this year.

Financially, supporters of the Castro regime report it is more than holding its own. They say new tax programs are bringing in more money than Batista's government ever had.

Among the greatest sufferers from Cuba's national uncertainty are the luxury hotels which in normal times cater to thousands upon thousands of free-spending tourists, most of them from the United States. Each of Havana's largest tourist hotels is still losing from $85,000 to $150,000 a month.

Responsibility Is Left To Citizens

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Local citizens bear the primary responsibility for solving complex problems of civil rights, the vice chairman of the federal Civil Rights Commission says.

"The commission shares with the members of its advisory committees the firm conviction that the resolution of civil rights problems cannot be accomplished except by holding up a mirror to the community," Robert G. Storey of Dallas told a civic club audience Tuesday.

He said "grass-roots understanding" is necessary to deal with issues such as the right to vote.

Storey, retired dean of the Southern Methodist University school of law, defended a commission recommendation that federal registrars be appointed to administer tests of voting qualifications.

Stressing that the registrars would be local people Storey commented "We have not urged a return of 'carpetbaggers'."

Carpetbaggers were Northerners who came to the South after the Civil War, reportedly carrying all their belongings in carpetbags, and gained a reputation as swindlers and plunderers.

Want Kennedy Enter Primary

CONCORD, N.H. (AP)—The New Hampshire Democratic State Committee has unanimously asked Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) to enter the state's first-of-the-nation presidential primary March 8.

A resolution adopted Tuesday night termed Kennedy "the only prospective candidate" who can bring the support and confidence of all the people and lead our national, state and local tickets to victory.

The resolution was sponsored by Democratic national committeeman Bernard L. Boutin, a candidate for governor.

It referred to Kennedy as "not only the favorite son of New England, but the man best qualified to lead our nation and the free world safely through difficult years ahead."

Before unanimous adoption of the resolution, the committee was presented a petition signed by 98 of the 138 democrats in the state Legislature, urging a grass roots "draft Kennedy" movement.

Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, only announced Democratic hopeful, has said he had no plan to enter the New Hampshire contest.

Cliff Gave Way, Nobody Injured

MCCAMMON, Idaho (AP)—Farmer Floyd Crump drove his herd of cattle across the road. His father, Howard, was behind on a tractor.

Just then a cliff cracked, crumbled and crashed down onto the road. The slide, about 1,000 feet long and 50 feet deep, missed both father and son. The father was about a quarter of a mile behind his son.

Geologists said the cliff may have been ruptured by the Aug. 17 earthquake in western Montana, some 160 miles northeast of here.

Recent heavy rains further weakened the fracture and the forces holding up the cliff gave way to gravity Tuesday.

Tight Money Becoming Everyday Fact Of Life

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Tight money is moving off the debating platform. It's getting to be an everyday fact of life.

If you want to buy a new home, you know about it. If you're looking for a new car on time payments, you're likely to find carrying charges a bit higher. If you want an installment loan from your bank to buy a new appliance or redecorate your house, it costs more—and your credit standing is examined more closely.

If you're a businessman needing a bank loan to carry inventories for the Christmas trade, you'll run into higher interest charges—and maybe find the banker more choosy about to whom he lends, as he has only so much money to parcel out. Banks and other lenders say too many persons—including Uncle Sam—are wanting to borrow more money just now. Americans aren't saving as much of their incomes as before. So the lenders don't have enough funds to meet the increased demand. This money is tight and interest rates rising.

About the only things now going for less than 5 per cent interest are the shortest-term Treasury securities. They are commanding about 4 per cent, higher than any time since the bank holiday in 1933.

Tightening of money comes at this time of the year because banks are called upon to finance movement of funds from farms and through processing plants, and because manufacturers borrow to produce fall and winter goods, and merchants borrow to buy and carry these goods until the Christmas trade—they hope—empties their shelves again.

The Federal Reserve Board has eased up on credit just enough to give banks lendable funds for what it considers necessary for these legitimate seasonal needs, but no more, holding that more than that would only set off a speculative boom, breeding place for higher prices.

The board's fear of another round of inflation is based on several things. The general belief at the end of the steel strike will see a quick spurt in business activity; continuing wage hikes in other industries than steel; steadily rising installment debt; slow but steady increases in consumer prices; and the increased demand for bank loans.

After Christmas, the demand for funds usually drops, both from business and from individuals busy paying off incurred debts. This could ease the credit squeeze.

Punished Boy Is Found Dead At End Of A Rope

ST. CHARLES, Mo. (AP)—A 12-year-old boy who had been punished by school officials for tardiness and poor school work was found hanged in his back yard Tuesday.

Tomy Lewis was found with a length of clothesline wrapped around his neck, a wooden crate at his feet.

Tomy had been spanked by Principal Paul Maxon for being tardy—Maxon said he often was late for school—and for not having his lesson prepared.

The boy sneaked away from school and went home where his mother said she told him not to worry and to go out and clean up the yard.

The boy's father, Oliver, said he believed Tomy's death was an accident. He said Tomy often played hangman with the clothesline, imitating Westerns he saw on television.

automatically—unless a big boom is under way in the stock market seem to feel that the board is going to win its fight—that tight money will head off another inflationary spurt. At least, that's one reason given for the break in stock prices after they were built up as a hedge against the inflation formerly widely expected.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — Motors paced a vigorous stock market rally early this afternoon.

Key stocks advanced from fractions to more than a point while some electronics and other wide movers picked up 3 to 4 points.

Brokers regarded the rise as chiefly a technical bounce based on the fact that the market has fallen on each of the past four sessions and had a monotonous series of declines before then.

Investment fund buying, noticeable in late Tuesday's rallying tendency, was more apparent today, analysts reported. The market had, apparently, reached a "buy point" for some of its customers.

American Motors rose more than a point and touched another new high. Ford added about 2. Chrysler more than a point and General Motors a point.

Steels, chemicals, rails, oils, aircrafts, nonferrous metals and drugs also advanced. Tobaccos were mixed.

Youngstown Sheet gained more than 2. Advances exceeding a point were made by U.S. Steel, Republic Steel and Jones & Laughlin. Bethlehem was fractionally higher.

Gains of about 2 were scored by Allied Chemical and Union Carbide while Du Pont added 3.

Rails came up from their lows of the year as Southern Railway and Baltimore & Ohio rose more than a point apiece. Illinois Central was about a point higher.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up $1.40 to $215.40 with the industrials up $2.60, the rails up 90 cents and the utilities up 20 cents.

Government bonds were steady.

Planning Body Named For 'Flip-Top Stadium'

RALEIGH (AP) — Planning for a big stadium for the Raleigh area reached an official basis today with organization of the North Carolina Stadium Authority.

Gov. Hodges, who named the seven authority members under an act passed by the 1959 Legislature, told them there is great popular interest in their work.

"If you don't have a flip-top stadium, you're going to disappoint a lot of people," he said.

The governor also visualized the stadium as a site for a big football game. "It's an absolute natural," he said enthusiastically.

J. W. (Willie) York, Raleigh real estate developer and an early booster of the stadium idea, said he was a little sorry the flip-top label got pinned on the proposal.

"It probably would cost more to put on the flip-top than it would to build the stadium," he said.

However, York said, it is possible the stadium would have some type of covering for use in bad weather.

After his election as chairman, York told the commission planning already is well advanced. A natural bowl site on the State Fairgrounds has been selected, he said. Adjacent to the site is a space suitable for parking up to 10,000 cars, York added.

York indicated no immediate steps will be taken to sell bonds to finance the stadium. Because of the condition of the money market, he explained, it will be advisable to wait on selling the bonds. This will give time for the planning needed on the project.

Cases Heard In Civil Court Here

Pitt County Superior Court continued its current fall two-week civil court term yesterday by handing down two judgments and one court order.

Asa Jones was ordered to pay C. G. Clark and C. W. Murray $773.31 plus interest since Sept. 21 in a case which listed Clark and Murray, trading as Clark and Company, as plaintiffs and Jones, trading as Pitt Tile Company, as the defendant.

A jury found that Jones "did not procure merchandise from the plaintiffs by fraud as alleged in the complaint."

In addition to the payment to Clark and Murray, Jones was taxed with court costs.

In a case listing Graves Hughes as plaintiff and Francis Dorey, Vance Harrington, and Annie Mae Wilson as defendants, presiding Judge William J. Bunty dismissed the issue upon grounds that both Hughes and Dorey entered a voluntary non-suit to the claim and counterclaim respectively.

Harrington and Wilson were not represented by counsel in the case and it was dismissed. The plaintiff, Hughes, was taxed with court costs.

The order handed down by Judge Bunty denied a motion by proponent Bertie Mae Matthews to strike portions of a previously filed caveat in the matter of the last will and testament of J. A. Matthews.

In denying the motion, Bunty said that the portions asked to be removed from the caveat were proper.

VOA Broadcast Impact Unknown

WASHINGTON (AP) — Large-scale U.S. shortwave broadcasts about the Khrushchev visit have produced inconclusive results so far. The benefit to the United States if any may not show clearly for a long time.

The broadcasts by Voice of America transmitters aimed at the Soviet Union have been accompanied by at least one dramatic occurrence: The silence of Soviet jammers for the first time in a decade.

A more important question is: Will the Communist radio noise makers start up again full blast after Premier Nikita Khrushchev leaves America? Or will Soviet listeners have acquired a yen for hearing the U.S. viewpoint which will help melt Moscow's cold war stance?

U.S. propagandists have only spotty indications to date.

Even if the ether were as serene as a mill pond, Washington broadcasters have no way of telling how many Soviets tune in the Voice on their radio sets. The Soviet radio carried Khrushchev's talks in full too.

The comparative calm of the jammers now doesn't prove they will stay that way. The Red radio interference has kept up against Radio Free Europe and British Broadcasting Corp. programs. BBC went jam-free for several months after Khrushchev's 1956 visit to England, then ran into the interference again.

No Capitalistic Govmt', Says He

NEW YORK (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller says he wants to straighten out Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev on one important point.

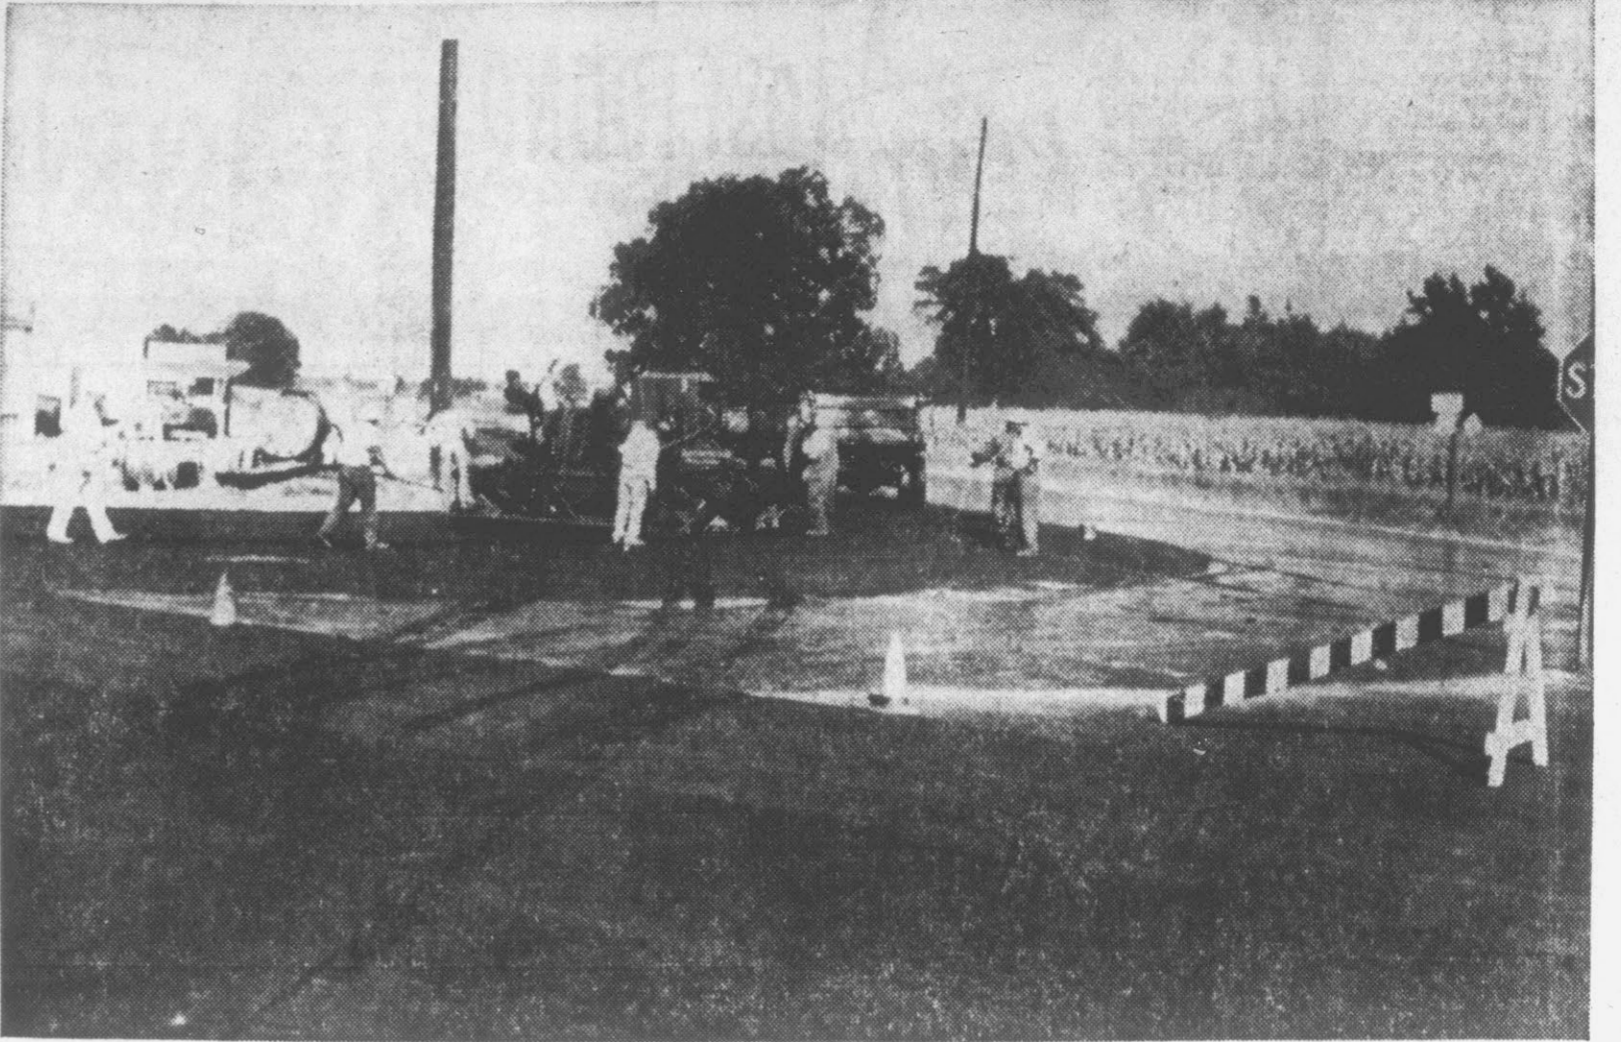

Khrushchev has been speaking of capitalism versus communism. "This country does not have a capitalistic system of government," the millionaire New York governor said in a speech Tuesday night. "We have a democratic system of government. Capitalism is the economic and financial process which functions within our democratic system."

Bicyclist's Leg Is Broken In Traffic Mishap

An 11-year-old Greenville boy received a broken leg yesterday on the campus of East Carolina College about 3:40 p.m. when he allegedly ran his bicycle into the side of an oncoming car.

According to investigating Patrolman Howard Winslow, David Earl Turnage, of 1603 Oaklawn Ave., received a broken left leg when he was thrown partially under a slow moving auto after he drove his bicycle into the side of the car.

Driver of the car was listed by Winslow as being Howard Conrad Sumrell, 19, of 1621 Longwood Dr. The officer quoted Sumrell as saying he was headed west on North State Ave. at about 15 miles per hour when the youngster came from behind Cotten Hall and struck his car.

Turnage, taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital by Sumrell, was reported doing fine this morning.

No charges were placed by officers in connection with the mishap.
