Charleston's Big Gasoline Blaze Is Under Control

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP)—A two-million-gallon gasoline tank fire burned down to a flicker today. Firemen appeared optimistic that their long battle would be won.

Much of the danger of a sympathetic explosion and fire in nearby storage tanks was averted.

"It looks like we have it whipped," said a spokesman at Charleston County police headquarters.

Flames, once shooting 200 feet into the sky, now are 4 or 5 feet high.

The tank exploded before dawn Thursday, destroying three houses and injuring nine persons. Only one man was hospitalized, however.

The cause of the blast, which occurred not quite two days after hurricane Gracie hurled itself upon Charleston, has not been determined.

The tank was one of a cluster of four in the 32-tank Esso Standard Oil Co. refinery on the northern outskirts of the city. Two of the nearby tanks each contain two million gallons of diesel fuel. The third, considered the greatest danger, contained a million gallons of gasoline.

Firemen, helped by military personnel from Air Force and Navy bases here, concentrated on preventing explosions in the nearby tanks. They continuously played streams of water over them, using foamite on the burning tank.

The company plans to try to pump the remaining gasoline from the burning tank into another storage tank. The time for attempting this is uncertain.

During the pumping, water will be sprayed on the tank, possibly causing a rupture. Consequently, water now standing in the dikes surrounding each of the tanks in the cluster must be pumped out to make room for the burning gasoline if the tank breaks. This burning fuel would be fought with foamite.

"I don't think it (the burning tank) will break," said C. W. Matthews, plant superintendent.

RALEIGH (AP)—Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, Philippine ambassador to the United States, left early today after a brief visit to North Carolina in which he said "Russia is undermining and subverting the American way of life."

Romulo addressed a crowd of nearly 600 Thursday night at Bules Creek, then came to Raleigh where he spent the night as the guest of Gov. Hodges at the Executive Mansion.

Romulo said at Bules Creek, "These are critical days when a dictator comes to your country and tells you that your days of capitalism are counted and to be replaced by the goddess system of communism and world domination and slavery."

Romulo, former U.N. president, addressed the 35th anniversary of the Dunn Rotary Club. The meeting was transferred to Campbell College at Bules Creek to handle the crowd. The throng gave him a standing ovation after he warned that America must not be hoodwinked by Russian overtures.

Romulo said regardless of the methods the communists use, "the basic philosophy is world domination."

Two Survivors Of Collision In Better Condition

TARBORO — Doctors at the Edgecombe General Hospital today termed the condition of two survivors of a wreck near Pine-tops, Wednesday, which took the lives of seven Negroes as "apparently satisfactory."

The two, Mrs. Eardlene Webb of Macesfield, driver of one of the two vehicles and Ernest Thigpen, of Route 3, Tarboro, the sole surviving passenger of the second car, both suffered multiple fractures in the collision and underwent lengthy surgery following the wreck.

The wreck occurred about three miles east of Pinetops near Wiggins Cross Roads on the old Tarboro-Pinetops highway.

Farmville Market Has $57.27 Day

FARMVILLE — A sales average of $57.27 per hundred pounds was recorded yesterday on the tobacco market here as a total 550,208 pounds brought gross $315,083.20.

Sales Supervisor Charles S. Edwards indicated that weed sales are "just as good as they have been all season" in spite of a slight tapering-off of quality during the past few days.

With a single sales day remaining in the seventh week of market activity here, a season's sales average of $57.44 has been recorded from a total sale of 16,752,073 pounds of tobacco and a total receipts figure of $9,622,611.27.

Find Some Basis To Khrushchev Boasts

WASHINGTON (AP)—Nikita Khrushchev's boast that the Soviet economy is expanding more rapidly than that of the United States finds some support among specialists reporting to Congress.

But the 16 technical papers made public Thursday by the Joint Economic Committee do not reach the sweeping conclusions the Soviet Premier voiced during his visit: that communism will bury capitalism economically, or that its pattern of society will take over, just as capitalism supplanted feudalism.

The committee had asked for the analyses as part of a comparative study it is making of the Soviet and U.S. economies.

In terms merely of growth in industrial output, taking into account the levels from which they start nor the uses they find for their products—the Soviets show up well in the economic analyses. But by the same yardsticks their industrial growth rate exceeded that of the United States for a time even under the czars.

In one paper prepared for the committee, G. Warren Nutter of the University of Virginia concluded that in the next five years "it seems reasonably certain that industrial growth will proceed more rapidly in the Soviet Union than in the United States." But he found "no definitive evidence that the Soviet economic system has been able to generate more rapid industrial growth over the long run."

Hans Heymann Jr., of the Rand Corp., expressed doubt Khrushchev seriously expects to match the United States in per capita production by 1970. But Heymann said the danger is not the timing of such a triumph, but a trend in the Soviet favor—"The steady and progressive diminution of the U.S. lead," he said, "would give an immense boost to Soviet prestige."

Steel Union's President Not Hopeful Over Strike

PITTSBURGH (AP)—David J. McDonald, president of the striking United Steelworkers Union, expressed pessimism today about a quick end to the nationwide 80-day old steel strike.

As he arrived at a midtown hotel to resume negotiations with the steel industry representatives, McDonald was asked if he was still as hopeful as he had been Thursday.

"Well, I'm afraid I'm not hopeful," he replied.

R. Conrad Cooper, chief industry negotiator, arrived moments after McDonald but declined to comment on McDonald's statement.

Cooper also declined to comment on possibilities of an early end to the costly strike.

Today's session was the third in two days since President Eisenhower told both sides he wanted to see quick progress.

The negotiators moved from New York to Pittsburgh one day after President Eisenhower called both sides to Washington and—in separate meetings—scolded them for letting the costly dispute drag on.

The President returns from a vacation Oct. 8 and his remarks were widely interpreted as meaning the United Steelworkers and the industry have only until then to break the long impasse without direct government intervention.

Except for a brief exchange of quips with newsmen before the opening session Thursday, the negotiators acted like busy men with much on their minds.

If Oct. 8 actually is a deadline, it means only seven days remain for the union and industry to show some indication that the half million striking steelworkers soon will return to the mills.

What the President would do if the deadline passes without a progress report is problematical.

Eisenhower could invoke the Taft-Hartley law and send the strikers back to the mills for an 80-day cooling off period.

President David J. McDonald of the United Steelworkers headed the four-man union negotiating team. The industry team of four was headed by R. Conrad Cooper, a U.S. Steel Corp. executive.

The union is seeking a wage package improvement that McDonald estimated would cost the industry about 15 cents an hour for each man. The industry wants workers to forego any improvements that would increase labor costs.

The U.S. Labor Department estimated the steelworkers' average hourly wage at $3.11 an hour in June.

In addition to the half million striking steelworkers, unemployment in allied industries has soared toward the 200,000 mark.

Price For Seat

GREENSBORO, N. C. (AP) An official candidate for governor says a campaign for the seat will cost $360,000.

Terry Sanford, Fayetteville lawyer, told a civic club here Thursday that sources for campaign funds are from the candidates themselves, from friends, from special interests and from the voting public.

He said the ideal situation would be one in which the voters at large who believe in a candidate or party contribute campaign funds.

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N. C.

Temperatures will average 2 to 4 degrees above normal. Near normal over weekend, a little warmer Monday through Wednesday. Little or no precipitation.

Atlantic And Gulf Coast Ports Tied Up

NEW YORK (AP)—Port activity from Maine to Texas was paralyzed today by a strike of union dock workers. A threatened back-to-work movement by a big Brooklyn local failed to materialize.

The rebellion apparently was squelched by top union leaders as the vast shipping tieup entered its second day on the Atlantic and Gulf coasts.

An industry official put its cost at 20 million dollars a day.

The Brooklyn 12,000-man local of the International Longshoremen's Assn. is headed by Anthony (Tough Guy) Anastasia and often has been a thorn to top union chiefs.

It voted Thursday to call off the strike in its territory—possibly as a result of heavy damage suits threatened by employers.

It wasn't clear who ordered them back, but a few minutes later the union president, William V. Bradley, reported from his Manhattan headquarters that the strike was 100 per cent effective from Maine to Brownsville, Tex.

He pointedly noted that this included Brooklyn.

Bradley already had issued a stiff notice to lower union leaders that he expected full cooperation in the strike. He notified Anastasia by telegram that all interests would be threshed out at a meeting of officials later today.

Ships were marooned in harbor, unable to take on or discharge cargoes. Railheads at harbor points were nearly silent, the result of an order by the Assn. of American Railroads halting movement of most freight to the two coasts to prevent huge pileups on unmanned piers.

Normally bustling docks echoed only to the occasional tread of a watchman or picket, and passengers from luxury liners carried their own bags and pushed luggage carts to and from ships.

Along the coasts about 200 freighters were tied up. In the port of New York, largest and busiest in the nation, only a handful of men were seen, in contrast to the nearly 20,000 stevedores employed daily.

The unexpected strike, which stunned union leaders, waterfront employers and mediation officials, erupted early Thursday in ports along the Gulf coast. It began only a few hours after an agreement reached here for a 15-day contract extension appeared to have averted the threat of a general walkout.

When the Southern workers struck, union officials called for a complete walkout and dashed hopes for an early settlement.

Southern longshoremen refused to extend their contracts when they failed to get from shippers in the South an agreement to make any new contract gains won by the union.

Such a provision was the key in the extension agreement reached between the New York Shipping Assn. and ILA representatives for the north Atlantic ports.

In quick succession Thursday, 1 New York shippers assailed the ILA for "flagrant violation of agreements," threatened "one of the largest and costliest damage suits ever filed against a union," balked at attending a hastily called negotiation session set up by a federal mediator.

2. These shippers refused to do any more bargaining until the ILA leadership demonstrated it could control its men.

3. Bradley declared, "The men will not go back to work until we get a full agreement (on a new contract)."

4. The New York Board of Trade sent a telegram to President Eisenhower, terming the strike a national emergency and asking him to take steps to end it.

Scientists Watched Eclipse

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Space-minded men stared at the firmament today as it unfolded one of its most majestic spectacles—a total eclipse of the sun.

On both sides of the Atlantic, observers watched as the moon slowly blacked out the earth's source of light, leaving a radiant corona shimmering in the darkened heavens.

Clouds obscured it for many ground watchers in the Boston area, and interfered somewhat at Canary Island stations off the coast of Africa—both sites at which the eclipse was total.

Astronomers and students, however, took to planes to soar above the clouds for a clear view of the celestial display.

The sun appeared to rise at 6:41 a.m. at the eastern edge of a vast corona of clouds," wrote AP staffer Don Guy, who watched it from a plane over Massachusetts.

"It rose partially eclipsed and looked like a brilliant crescent with the horns pointing upward."

"For nine minutes, as the sun rose, the moon progressively darkened more and more of the solar surface. Suddenly at 6:59 the last brilliant streak of sunlight vanished and the glowing solar corona rimmed the moon."

"Several astronomers noted the so-called Bailey's Beads effect when an instant before totality the sun shone in long streaks through deep valleys on the edge of the moon."

On the earth below, the dawn-bright landscape turned to night again as the sun disappeared.

It was so dark at noon on the streets of Las Palmas, Canary Islands, that vehicles had to use their headlights.

In many other parts of the world, partial eclipses were seen. In the Western Hemisphere, the eclipse was visible in varying degrees from Greenland to Florida and as far west as Michigan.

In the Canary Islands, where scientists from five nations gathered to study the eclipse, it could be seen through breaks in scattered clouds.

Young Prisoner Escapes From Pitt Road Gang

A 19-year-old prisoner, Larry T. Smith, of Ayden, ran from a Pitt County road gang about two miles north of Ayden yesterday on N. C. 11.

The youth, sentenced from Cumberland County for two years for trespassing, has escaped—two times before from other prisons, netting his 13 additional months in jail. This, his third escape, was made yesterday about 9:30 when he ran into a wooded area.

Dogs from the Greene County Prison Camp tracked the youth, most of the morning and up to 2 p.m. when they lost the track. According to L. F. Dail, Superintendent of the Pitt Camp, Smith had been here for about eight months.

The hunt continued during the night for the escape. It is believed he is still in the area.

Millions Celebrate Ten Years Of Rule

TOKYO (AP)—To the strains of "How Good the People's Communes Are," 1 1/2 million Chinese danced and sang all night in Peking's Square of Heavenly Peace to celebrate China's first 10 years of Red rule.

The noisy spectacle, which the Communist New China News Agency said was repeated throughout the China mainland, was witnessed by Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, Red Chinese Chairman Mao Tze-tung and other top Communists from around the world.

Today Khrushchev and Mao got down to business again in their third conference since the Russian leader arrived Wednesday. A Peking broadcast announcing this parley gave no indication of the topics.

The fun-making came after a huge military demonstration of artillery pieces, tanks, jet bombers and fighters and a parade of 700,000 civilian marchers in the Chinese capital.

After the big parade, the Red news agency reported, "Workers, students and commune workers from the vicinity of the city began to flock into the square, bringing with them Chinese and Western musical instruments."

Khrushchev and the other Communist leaders watched from atop the high gate in the square.

There was no word of when Khrushchev will return to Moscow. The Soviet leader came to Peking officially to attend Thursday's celebration of the 10th anniversary of the Communist capture of mainland China.

But he also is telling Mao and his chief aides about his talks with President Eisenhower and his American visit, and presumably he is trying to bring Peking's policy in line with his new peace line resulting from his American trip.

Nikita's Watch Said Poor Grade

Home To Become Art Center

Last night at a call meeting the East Carolina Art Society decided to purchase the E. G. Flanagan house on the corner of Eighth and Evans Streets to be used as an art center.

Mrs. J. H. B. Moore, first vice-president of the society, briefed the group on the interior of the home and its possibilities concerning galleries, work and social areas.

State Senator Robert Lee Humber was among those present for the purchase discussion. His support for the "big step" in getting an art home for Pitt County and Greenville was emphasized when he spoke briefly. "Art makes one conscious of your fore-bearers and obligations to your children," he said. Continuing, he explained that a museum was a "university of people."

Humber felt that the purchasing of the Flanagan house was a historic challenge to develop the cultural arts in Pitt County.

Previous to the discussion of the purchase, the society heard Dr. Wellington Gray, head of the East Carolina College Art Department. He spoke on the art program now being carried on at the college in the new studios and the Tri-State Arts Conference he attended in Winston-Salem recently.

The purpose of the conference was to form a Tri-State Art Council, composed of Virginia, North Carolina, and South Carolina. The group hopes to form this council in order that they may form smaller councils in each art community. This council would oversee art activities which would take place during the year.

Dr. Gray issued an invitation to the public to visit the art

Rural Women Are Best Dressed

RALEIGH — It has been said our "rural women are the best dressed group of women in the state."

When we take a look at the clothing program, we can see reasons why this is true. Miss Julia McIver, clothing specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service, says the main objective of the clothing program is to develop standards of dress that will improve the appearance of the family members.

The following is stressed in the clothing program: dress appropriately for all occasions; learn the art of being well dressed at small cost; how to combine colors in an outfit; select and wear styles that flatter; judge quality of materials; judge ready-mades including suits for men and women; and learn how to care for clothes.

Miss McIver says, "Sewing has been one of our greatest accomplishments. Aside from the economic angle, we have the exciting satisfaction of having created smart and becoming outfits for ourselves and members of our families."

It is almost unbelievable how much material was used in North Carolina alone last year. Do you know that material used for all clothing would drape half-way around the earth? Thread used in our sewing would stretch to the moon and back over a hundred times. If we placed all patterns used to end, they would make a path around North Carolina.

The rewards of sewing are many. Money saved over a period of one year can make a real contribution to the family budget. "In doing our own sewing around 57,720 club members saved over 2 1/2 million dollars last year," says Miss McIver.

Is Something Wrong With Your Winter Coat?

RALEIGH—Is your wool coat sagging or is it holding its shape? Unless you follow directions, you may have trouble with the coat or suit you have made.

According to Miss Julia McIver, clothing specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service, methods for tailoring coats and jackets are, precisely the same.

Whether you are making a coat, suit, or just a wool skirt, it is necessary to shrink the materials first. To shrink wools use the easy, most desirable "London Shrink" method:

- (1) Straighten out ends by tearing or pulling thread and cutting on the grain;
- (2) Wash sheet completely and fold lengthwise;
- (3) Fold wool fabric lengthwise.

Gardening Today

By JOHN G. DUNCAN

If you have room for it, plant a flowering tree this fall.

The magnolia has three varieties to choose from. Familiar to all is the old fashioned Evergreen with its large white flowers and shiny leaves. The Star Magnolia (Magnolia Stellata) is a fine small tree. When things work in its favor it is an unforgettable sight—a mass of white stars. It suffers from frost injury. However, the risk is worthy if—try one.

Magnolia Soulangeana with flowers of purple and white or rose red is a pleasing tree. Plant them in a soil containing plenty of organic matter. They need adequate moisture. Don't let them dry out.

Flowering crab—as a specimen or in groups—as a hedge is a colorful splash on any home ground. Malus Eleyi has reddish leaves when young and purple reddish flowers followed by fruit of same color. There are many others of this family to choose from.

Dogwood comes near to being the perfect tree-flower in spring—a green mound in summer, red hill of fire in fall—and its berry-laden branches are ideal tracery against a winter sky. A mass of the white dogwood—with a touch of the pink (Cornus Rubra)—makes a picture not soon forgotten. Kwanzan Cherry, with its double pink flowers, lends an Oriental touch to the garden. Mass the weeping cherry (Prunus Subhirtella pendula)—its pink skirts trailing the ground look like sun on beaten foam. Or let it stand alone and admire drooping branches laden with pink flowers.

The heart-shaped red bud leaves follow its deep pink flowers that grow in confusion along gray branches.

There are many others to choose from: Crepe Myrtle, pink, red and white; flowering peach double flower of red, white and pink.

The Smoke tree (Rhus Cotinus) looks like a puff of purple smoke. Your nurseryman could get you the Fringe Tree or Grandfather's beard (Chionanthus Virginia). This small neat tree with fringes of greenish white flower lends a touch of the unusual to your garden. Silverbell (Halesia Carolina) looks good in a border, its bell-like white flowers coming just when the tiny leaves are breaking bud.

If yellow is your favorite color try Goldenrain tree (Koeleruteria paniculata); the yellow clusters of flowers grow up right on the branches. The lantern-like seed pods are its autumn surprise.

Your choice is great. Your pleasure should be also. A colorful tree is often the difference between the so and so effect and the extraordinary.

Stretching Dollars

RALEIGH — An autumn bounty of pork to please consumers who love to eat "high on the hog" economically, will be available this weekend.

According to Mrs. Ruby P. Uzzle, consumer marketing specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service, featured pork items include hams, picnic, and bacon. There is little change in beef prices. For variety and economy, check fish and other seafood products in good supply.

Now is a good time to include steaming hens in your menu plans while poultry supplies are above average. Egg prices are rising each week with medium size the best buy.

Vegetables are dwindling on the market. Florida fall crops have been delayed due to heavy rains. Green beans from N. C. and Virginia are in good supply along with cabbage, squash and field peas. Local sweet potato supplies are increasing at lower prices. Celery and lettuce continue at high prices.

Apples and grapes highlight the fruit counter this week. Look for both cooking and eating varieties at attractive prices. Red Delicious, Jonathan, McIntosh and Staymen varieties are available now. Concord and scuppernon grapes are excellent for juice and jelly.

Bartlett pears and avocados are of good quality and reasonable in price. Bananas continue a budget fruit buy. Lemons are available with some oranges and grapefruit appearing on the fruit counters.

MERINGUE COOKIES

Ingredients: 3 egg whites, salt 1 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 2 teaspoons grated orange rind, 1 package (5 1/4 ounces) pitted dates (finely cut), 1 cup coarsely chopped walnuts, 1 cup sifted flour.

Method: Beat egg whites and a dash of salt until very foamy; gradually beat in sugar thoroughly; continue beating until very thick and glossy and peaks stand straight up when beater is slowly withdrawn. Fold in vanilla and grated orange rind. Mix dates and walnuts with flour; make sure dates are in separate pieces. Drop into beaten egg whites. Fold heaping teaspoonfuls of the mixture, a couple of inches apart, onto a greased baking sheet. Bake in a moderate (350 degrees) oven until lightly browned — 10 to 12 minutes. Remove with spatula to wire rack; cool. Store in tightly covered container. Makes about 54 (6 1/2 dozen) cookies.

Thursday Night Shapes Up As Best For TV Viewers

NEW YORK (AP) — Thursday evening may prove one of the best television nights of the week.

A large part is due to Playhouse 90 on CBS. It came back Thursday night, live, with an exciting and meaningful play: "Target for Three," by David Davidson.

It involves a group of revolutionists in an unnamed Latin American country, plotting to kill the dictator who has been in power for 31 years. As the mob drags him off to a firing squad, a perhaps significantly bearded firebrand starts snapping military orders to his fellow rebels. The ironic moral was clear: yesterday's liberators often become tomorrow's tyrants.

It was extremely well-acted by a cast which included Ricardo Montalban, George C. Scott, Marissa Pavan and Pedro Armendariz.

Earlier in the evening, one had a choice between "To Tell the Truth," in its new early evening CBS spot, and a new NBC western, "Law of the Plainsman." The latter is a stock Western with a gimmick: the marshal is an Indian — with a Harvard degree.

Sleeper of the season may prove to be Betty Hutton's new CBS series. It's a thoroughly enjoyable comedy about a diamond-in-the-rough manufacturer who becomes guardian for three problem children and executrix for an enormously rich industrialist. Miss Hutton is just the girl to extract the most from it.

"Johnny Ringo," was CBS's new Western entry. It's one of those fastest-draw-in-the-West programs — with a twist. The twist is a

Fire Prevention Week Is Proclaimed

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK PROCLAMATION Mayor West signs as Fire Chief George Gardner looks on.

Mayor S. E. West issued a proclamation calling upon all citizens to take an active part in the nation's observance of Fire Prevention Week starting Oct. 4.

The Mayor called attention to the fact that his proclamation and that of Pres. Eisenhower, in setting aside the week of Oct. 4 to 10 for the annual observance of a week devoted to fire safety, is a part of a national effort in which Greenville will cooperate with all cities throughout the country.

Property losses in the nation resulting from fires reach an annual total of over $1,000,000,000, and in 1958 fires took the lives of 11,500 persons, Mayor West said.

The Fire Department and the schools can perform particularly valuable service in observing Fire Prevention Week, the mayor said.

"The reward is a safer community for all our citizens. I earnestly request every citizen of the community to take part in relieving hazardous conditions and making our city a safe community in which to live and work," the mayor concluded.

House Painter Confesses Robbing Grave Of Its Body

SIoux FALLS, S.D. (AP) — A house painter's confession to his father led diggers to an old basement excavation and the body of young Jean Pencyl, dragged from her grave three weeks ago.

Searchers Thursday night found the body of the 11-year-old Holland, Minn., leukemia victim a foot underground. She was clad in the clothing in which she was buried save for white stockings that were missing.

Willard L. Beckstrom, 36, the Sioux Falls bachelor who stole the girl's body from the Holland cemetery 50 miles away, offered no explanation to police.

"People will think the whole affair is made up of monsters," said his mother, Mrs. Willard S. Beckstrom, nearly in tears. "Willard's customers always liked him. He always remembered everything he heard or read."

"Maybe," she said, "he knew too much about things."

Beckstrom's father, an X-ray technician, refused to say how much his son told him.

He said this was a matter for Willard's attorney, who indicated a move would be made to have him committed to an institution.

Minnesota authorities who had lodged a fugitive warrant against him, said they would not object to this. Beckstrom was a patient at Yankton, S.D., State Hospital for a while after suffering a breakdown when he was 18.

Police speculated that Beckstrom may have been attracted to the girl through local newspaper stories when she was a patient in a Sioux Falls hospital, where she died.

Beckstrom drove to Holland Sept. 8 and viewed her body. While he was in the church he wrote a memorial: "To her funeral from a friend." He enclosed $5.

When the funeral procession left the church he followed in his red convertible and looked on at the graveside rites.

Later—attendants believe it was only a few hours—he dug into her flower-decked grave, smashed a 400-pound concrete slab covering the casket, and carried away the body.

He was arrested Monday after the convertible, noticed by several townspeople, was traced to him. Beckstrom appeared in municipal court Thursday on the fugitive warrant and a hearing was set for Oct. 9.

Late Thursday Beckstrom's father notified the sheriff's office that his son had disclosed that the body was in a shallow clay

Several Traffic Mishaps In City

Officers set damage to the Collins auto at $200 while damage to the Dixon car was placed at $50.

At 5:15 p.m. cars operated by Melvin Thomas Ray, 21, of Tabor City, and Mrs. Katie Lou Williams Corey of 307 Montague St., Ayden, collided on Dickinson Ave. near Five Points.

Officers listed damage to both cars at $70. No charges were placed against the drivers of the cars.

A wreck at the intersection of Third and Pitt Sts. caused an estimated $40 damage to a car driven by William Robert Riggs, 31, of 113 North Warren St.

The second car, operated by Jessie Jones Bell of 800 Tyson St. was not damaged.

The accident occurred at 6:31. No charges were made by investigating officers.

Gets Prison For Poisoned Fish

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Daniel Di Orto, president of Universal Seafood Co., was sentenced Wednesday to a month in prison and fined $2,500 in connection with the distribution of poisoned seafood which caused the death of a 3-year-old boy. He also was placed on probation for three years.

Di Orto pleaded no defense on Sept. 22 to charges of using sodium nitrite on fish with intent to mislead and defraud.

The poisoned fish set off a widespread scare during which more than 200 persons went to hospitals for treatment.

Seven May Form Free Trade Zone

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP)—Seven South American countries have joined tentatively in plan to eventually eliminate all tariffs and other trade barriers among them.

The common market agreement was signed Wednesday night by Argentina, Brazil, Bolivia, Chile, Paraguay, Peru and Uruguay, but will not be effective until the foreign ministers approve it next February.

The agreement calls for full operation of a common market within 12 years. Supporters hope the free trade zone will cover all of Latin America.

seven-shooter, one extra bullet which knocked off two bad men last night with a single shot.

Also there was Pat Boone returning to NBC. He came back with some musical help from Nat King Cole, the fabulous Fabian and Gogi Grant. This season it is planned to make a comedian out of Pat. If last night's efforts were a sample of things to come that's a bad mistake.

I wish I'd been watching Ralph Edwards' "This is Your Life" (NBC) Wednesday night. Lowell Thomas was the guest or victim or whatever, and received the news at a public dinner with icy, outraged calm. Edwards kept pushing his sentimental words toward steely Thomas, who resisted violently. The whole show was a shambles, was incomplete when time ran out and almost missed the commercials. Probably it is the last time Edwards will venture out without a tape machine, but those who can take "This is Your Life" or leave it alone say delightedly it was the best entertainment so far this season.

May At Last See Her Own Family

SEATTLE (AP)—Mrs. Duane Vincent, 45, is a Seattle housewife who has yet to see clearly the faces of her husband or of her two young sons.

Thursday night, because a young boy thought of others, Mrs. Vincent underwent a delicate cornea transplant that may sweep away the clouds that have obscured her vision since she was a tiny girl.

Mrs. Vincent was stricken with influenza at three. Since then she has been barely able to distinguish light from shadows without the aid of powerful eyeglasses, which gave her 28 per cent vision.

The corneas were from the eyes of Robert Lee Jenness, 12, who was killed Wednesday night when the motor scooter he was riding was struck by a car.

Only three months ago, Bob, his father, mother and sister, willed their eyes to the Providence Hospital eye bank.

The bandages are to be removed from Mrs. Vincent's eyes this weekend, probably Saturday. Doctors say they won't know for several months whether the operation has been successful.

"Mrs. Vincent's thoughts before the operation were of Robert's parents.

"I have two boys, too," she said. "One is almost the same age as their boy. Our son, Guy, is 10.

"I know what they must be going through."

New Tax Form Is Finally Revealed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Uncle Sam has taken the wraps off a new income tax form.

It has fewer questions, fewer instructions and fewer blanks to fill than the standard form it will replace for many taxpayers.

But it will be just as painful as ever when it comes to that final blank on the total tax due. The tax rate is unchanged.

The short-cut form, called 1040W, will be mailed to about 17 million Americans between Christmas and New Year's. You can use it if your income consists of wages and salary—regardless of the amount—plus not more than $200 of dividends and interest.

The 1040W is the first all-new tax form in five years. Plans for it were announced several weeks ago, but its format was kept secret until Thursday. No significant changes were made in other tax forms.

There are just two pages to 1040W, compared with four in the standard 1040 form. Eight pages of instructions will come with 1040W, compared with 16 for 1040.

If you have income other than wages and salary and have received more than $200 in dividends and interest this year, you must file the regular 1040 form.

The 1040W probably won't speed up the processing of returns, but it will cut the annual paper order for tax forms by one million pounds. However, this saving has been more than offset by a 34 per cent increase in paper costs.

Sickened While On His Inspection

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. Michael V. DiSalle, who has been highly critical of Ohio's mental institutions, literally became sick while on a surprise inspection of one today.

Touring the Columbus State Hospital here, the governor commented, "It makes me sick."

Minutes later, in a cottage housing male patients, DiSalle became physically sick. Sight of dirty beds and odors from the kitchen apparently were to blame.

On his trip through the institution, in which 2,600 mental patients live, DiSalle found what he said were deplorable conditions.

S. Ayden Pupils Presented Play

"No Taxation Without Representation" was the title of a short dramatization staged by 11th grade students of South Ayden High School recently following the completion of a brief period of study of early American literature.

One in a series of scheduled chapel programs, the play featured the days of Patrick Henry and the Virginia House of Burgesses in 1775.

Concluding the program was a choral version of the Declaration of Independence.

More Than Lip Service Required

The move by Greenville Industries, Inc. to poll sufficient stock to purchase a 269 acre tract north of Greenville to develop as industrial sites is a step of utmost importance to Greenville and its future industrial growth.

It is an undertaking worthy of support by citizens of the city and one which must be successful if Greenville is to move forward in its effort to attract new industries that will create new jobs and new payrolls.

Lack of adequate industrial sites at reasonable prices has been a major handicap to Greenville in its effort to secure industries in the past. If the proposed site is purchased by Greenville Industries, it will afford locations which can be offered good industrial prospects at a reasonable price and will greatly enhance the city's chances of attracting industries.

Unlike many other efforts in behalf of industrial promotion efforts, local citizens in this case are not being asked to make a contribution. On the contrary, there are merely being asked to invest in a corporation which has as its main purpose providing sites for industries interested in locating in this community. The corporation will not return handsome profits to its stockholders in terms of cash dividends, but it may be expected to return huge dividends to the community in terms of industrial plants, jobs and payrolls that will boost the economy of the community as a whole.

Although Greenville has made significant strides in the past few years in creating its development program, Greenville residents, compared with many other communities, have put relatively little money into the development effort.

Residents have given much lip service to the desire for industry and economic development. But little cash has been invested so far by local citizens to further support their desire for development.

If Greenville is to attract industry, it must have sites which can be offered worthwhile prospects on a firm basis without prices jumping 50 per cent or 100 per cent the moment the prospect shows a spark of interest. If Greenville is to be successful in its efforts to attract industry, its people must show by deed as well as by words that they are genuinely interested in industry coming here and that they have confidence in the potential of their own community.

The sale of stock in Greenville Industries is an undertaking which local citizens cannot allow to fail if they expect the community to realize in the future its potential for economic growth.

Just How 'Temporary' Is This Gasoline Tax?

It will be of interest to see just how temporary the newest "temporary" federal tax proves to be as government officials project Uncle Sam's spending program.

Yesterday motorists began paying an extra tax of one cent on each gallon of gasoline to keep working on the vast interstate highway system. Estimated to put into government coffers about a billion dollars for highway construction, the temporary tax was designated for only 21 months when it was approved by Congress.

According to the law, the extra penny tax on every gallon of gasoline will expire July 1, 1961 . . . unless, of course, Congress decides before that date to extend the tax.

In most cases the "temporary" or "emergency" taxes which Congress has approved for specific periods have lived much longer than the people were initially told they would. We are still paying many of the emergency taxes which were enacted to pull the nation over the hump of World War II. Once a levy gets written into law, it is almost impossible to get it removed, regardless of the original intent for the legislation which provided for it.

We wonder how White House officials and members of Congress in 1961 will feel about the extra penny per gallon gasoline tax. Will they let it expire as officials this year promised, or will this become another "temporary" tax that will be upon us from now on?

Politically, A Real Bonanza

By JAMES MARLOW WASHINGTON (AP) — For the Republican party, President Eisenhower's trip to Moscow next spring, probably in June, will be like pennies from heaven and bunnies in a basket.

What luck for the Republicans! What timing too! Eisenhower will be making his trip just a short time before the Democrats open their convention in Los Angeles July 11.

Usually, in a presidential election year like 1960, the schematics of the political parties and would-be candidates dominate the news for many weeks before the Democratic and Republican conventions begin.

But it seems pretty certain Republican Eisenhower will be the one in the headlines just ahead of the Democratic get-together, both during his preparations for the trip, the trip itself and his return.

Between now and June a summit conference seems likely. And it may produce results since Eisenhower and Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev seem in a "let's-get-along" mood.

If that's successful in thawing the cold war a bit, Eisenhower's Moscow journey should be a triumph. Both he and Khrushchev will be international heroes.

And in such an event even Khrushchev himself, although he says he can't see any difference between Democrats and Republicans, should have an effect on the 1960 campaign.

The mood then will be one of not wanting to damage the newly established good will with the Soviets. It will deprive the candidates of a hackneyed, overworked posture that has been a political standby for years now: "We gotta be tough with them Russians."

After a successful summit meeting and then a triumphal

Lobbying Isn't One-Way Street

By LYNN NISBET

LOBBYING — Most people think of lobbying as the activities of private enterprise seeking favors or concessions from government, generally through the Legislature. Lobbying is being practiced in reverse. Lately a number of business firms have "had the bee" put on them to provide dinners, entertainment and souvenirs for the Southern Governors Conference and the European industry-hunting trip.

Response has been gratifying. The donors feeling that they are thus put in better position to ask consideration from the State.

WELFARE? While the League of Municipalities was meeting in downtown Asheville, with headquarters at the Battery Park Hotel, the bottlers association was meeting in the deluxe Grove Park Inn. State Treasurer Edwin Gill divided his time between the two.

The group seated at the table Sunday night with Mayor W.G. Enloe, other Raleigh city folks and Gill, got to talking about how tough it must be for their friend Bowman in the luxury of Grove Park while they had the whole city auditorium for a dining room. At Enloe's suggestion they took up a collection for Fred and commissioned Gill to deliver the purse. How much? Oh, said Enloe, we were in executive session and can't tell that.

BUSINESS MEETING — The atmosphere around the League of Municipalities convention at Asheville—this week was much more that of a business meeting than a political gathering. Cities and towns are political subdivisions in contemplation of North Carolina law. Members of the governing boards are elected by popular vote after going through political campaigns.

But in great majority of cases the municipal government is non-partisan with respect to recognized political parties. In many instances the actual administration of affairs is turned over to a manager—who was chosen without regard to party affiliation or religious denomination, but solely on basis of his capacity to do the job.

Of course there was a lot of politics, direct and by implication, in discussion of relations between the cities and towns, the county commissioners and State government. But it was more like the featured programs at manufacturers' meetings than agenda at political conventions. Sen. Everett Jordan was on the program, not as a candidate for re-election but to explain the impact of some recent Federal legislation on the business of municipal government. Senatorial politics, however, did not go without notice. Several members of Senator Jordan's staff—Bill Whitley, press secretary; Richard Queen, in charge of the Senator's western office at Waynesville, and Joe Crawford, roaming field man—saw to that.

Active candidates for Governor and other high State offices were conspicuous by their absence. Edwin Gill made an appearance, but was careful to say he was present in his capacity as chairman of the Local Government Commission, rather than as a potential candidate for Governor.

INTERESTED — Lack of emphasis on politics in the official program and formal public discussions does not mean that attendants at the League of Municipalities meeting were indifferent to the political situation. But your reporter was disappointed at results of every effort to get an appraisal of sentiment as to relative standing of presently active candidates for Governor. Other newsmen seeking the same thing report similar frustration.

Everybody was asking questions, nobody answering them. Terry Sanford, John Larkins and Addison Hewlett all had staunch supporters. It was significant that the most ardent members of these camps spoke softly, rather than with blatant confidence. Questions about the chances of other potential candidates elicited no enthusiastic response.

Edwin Gill was on hand part of the time; Malcolm Seawell was in evidence most of the time. There was no traffic jam around them at any time. Trial balloons for Arthur Kirkman and Hubert Olive attracted very little attention.

Truth is that attendants at the Municipal League meeting, like most others whom your reporter has contacted throughout the state, are wishfully hoping for a miracle—for some candidate with flaming torch and flying ribbons to come out for Governor.

There also is hope, supported by some effort to find the man, that real opposition will develop for Senator Jordan.

Majority opinion among the Municipal League folks seemed to be that Senator Jordan will take a real trouble getting re-nominated, and that it will be no lot of doing and a presently unknown candidate to bump Terry Sanford off top place in the gubernatorial contest.

Grab Bag For Thursday

A signboard with a misspelled word catches the eye of motorists driving into town on Fench Street. It's so obvious that it draws attention to the rest of the advertisement.

The location of the sign, close to the college, might be taken as illustrating that education is not contagious.

But on the other hand, that misspelled word probably draws more attention to the product being advertised than ten signs with all the words correctly spelled.

If advertising agencies follow the example (after all, they can't be blind to a good thing) we can foresee a time when most signs will have misspelled words. . . .

and There goes Webster!

From time to time The Reflector acquires pictures the management does not choose to run. For instance, yesterday's front page carried an illustration of two shattered automobiles; the story of how seven people met their deaths was in the accompanying story.

As a matter of fact we did have some extremely gruesome photos of the mangled dead. They would have contributed something to the horror of the scene . . . might have made for more conscientious driving among the viewers, too.

Yesterday wasn't the first time

Other Editors Saying.. Obligations To Railroad

(Henderson Dispatch)

Practically all that has been said by cities and towns along the way against discontinuance of passenger train service between Goldsboro and Greensboro has emphasized the obligation of the Southern Railway to those communities to continue the only two trains still operating. Very little has been said about the obligation of the towns to support these runs.

Let it be said that we hold no brief for the railroad. It is capable of holding up its own end of the argument. More or, we think it would be tragic for all passenger service to be stopped. At the same time, it is strange that the railroad should be compelled to run trains which are not patronized to the point of paying the costs.

The Southern, of course, has lost the fight it started some months ago before the State Utilities Commission. It has been backed into a corner by reason of the fact that its biggest patrons in shipping have gone on record as opposing in shipping have gone on record as opposing discontinuance of the passenger trains. Yet, how many officials and employees of the line concerns ever ride these trains?

Potential threat of loss of the freight business of the protesting corporations, if the protests are more than merely joining with those who want the service continued, at all risks to the carrier, is a piece of master strategy by public agencies. Such a loss would far more than offset the deficit incurred by the passenger trains.

Time was a few decades ago

we've debated pros and cons of unweaving Death-on-the-Highway as it really is. There's more to it than crumpled and torn metal and broken glass. But the paper's longstanding policy won out again. Deference to bereaved families of the dead prevails.

The Civil War Centennial Commission has recently published a pamphlet outlining some of the facts and highlights a reader of history might uncover after going through a score of volumes.

The number of "firsts" marked by that historic struggle were surprising, for instance:

It was the first war in which railroads were extensively used for movement of military supplies and large bodies of troops from one theatre to another;

The first in which the electric telegraph was used in strategic control of operations in widely separated theatres;

The first in which rifled artillery came into general use; The first in which medical care of the wounded was systematically organized.

One could go on and on. Among the oddities; 80 per cent of all wounds were produced by a single-shot muzzle-loading rifle in the hands of foot soldiers. About 15 per cent of the wounded died in that war; about 8 per cent in World War I; about 4 per cent in World War II; about 2 per cent in the Korean War.

If war has a bright side, that must be it.

A RIVER VOYAGE

Dr. John Clark Finney tells of traveling in a steamer on the Rhine from Cologne to Mainz. On both sides of the river, the shoreline unfolded with varied beauty—ruins of old castles, sunlit mountain peaks, lush vineyards, rolling hills. It was an enchanting voyage. Yet some of the passengers sat reading newspapers or doing crossword puzzles without a glance at the loveliness sweeping by them.

I have seen a great many voyagers through life doing the same thing. Life is offering rich beauty on all sides, but they plod along the road like an old horse with blinders. Music, painting, sculpture, the theatre, literature—they sneer at such things as too high-brow. The pleasures of sitting in the coolness of a great pine forest, of walking on a wind-swept ocean beach, of tramping along a winding country road, far from the noise of traffic—they scorn such activities as effissid.

Satch Enjoys Acting

By HAL BOYLE NEW YORK (AP) — Leroy (Satchel) Paige is Hamlet with a baseball.

"To be, or not to be, an actor"—that is the problem of baseball's famous Negro pitcher.

The greatest barnstorming hurler the game ever knew has fallen in love with the movie industry after playing his first role. He is featured as a post-Civil War U.S. Cavalry sergeant. "It was all new to me," confessed Satch. "I had nothing but a baseball in my hand for the last 35 years.

"The hardest part was learning to cry. In one part, after burying three of my buddies, I had to cry. It wasn't easy. It's been many a year since anyone ever saw me cry.

"But pitcher — makin' is fascinatin', particularly when you see how they make the wind blow and the rain fall, and then put the whole thing together. I'd like to do more of it if they want me."

But Paige also still loves baseball, and clings to a thread of hope that the big leagues will summon him again.

Satch, one of 14 children, quit school in the eighth grade to play ball. He had a tremendous career, but it wasn't until 1948, in the twilight of his prime, that he had a few brief seasons in the big time with the Cleveland Indians and the St. Louis Browns.

His furrowed face and wire-thin frame—he stands 6 feet 3 1/2—give him the look of an aging gnome on stilts. But he retains a great individual dignity, based on an unshakable confidence in his ability.

His midnight-colored hair has no streaks of gray. Although the record books list his birthdate as July 7, 1906, he still likes to make a mystery of his age.

"I'm somewhere between 40 and 60," he said. "If I told anybody my real age, they wouldn't believe it. Nobody in the world would."

There is no doubt, however, that whether he's 53 or older, the legendary hurler is one of the most durable players who ever knuckled-horseshoe.

"They pamper players today," he said mildly. "When I started, there wasn't much money around, and we had to play for the real love of it.

"This year I pitched in 75 games. The scouts tell me I still can throw a faster ball than any man in either league. I'm good for two or three innings any day. But they tell me it wouldn't look right for a young pitcher to be pulled out of a game and replaced by a man old enough to be his daddy. It would shame their spirit."

Satch is noted for his colorful phrases, such as his advice, "Never look behind you. Something may be gaining on you.

Asked his secret of durability, Satch said: "Get your rest, eat light, keep busy, and don't agitate yourself if you want to stay activated. I could tell you I did it by eating radishes, but it's the Man upstairs who keeps me moving around.

"Never let your head hang down. Never give up and sit down and grieve. Find another way. And don't pray when it rains if you don't pray when the sun shines."

Opinions In Brief

Some people are equally blind to the beauty and depth of human relationships around them, they cannot be bothered to notice or respond to the warm love of their families or the shyly offered affection of acquaintances who would like to become friends.

The steamer of life is taking you down a river, up which you will never return. Don't miss all the beautiful scenery on this trip. There is no other trip.

Offer Credit, Tighten Policies

By ELMER ROESSNER

Several thousand shoppers this week will exclaim: "I don't understand it! Stores are advertising easy credit terms more than ever, but when I go in they want big down payments or don't want to give me credit at all."

They will be talking not only about schlicht and borax stores, but also about the big downtown emporiums. And what they say will be true.

This is the explanation: The price of money—that is, the interest rates—has been rising and may still go higher.

Most stores borrow money so they can sell on credit. For example when a store sells a refrigerator on credit, it has to replace it in stock immediately. It can't wait until installment payments come in.

So it borrows money from a bank, a factor or other lender. Now they have to pay more interest. A sturdy corporation that could borrow at 5 per cent a few years ago may now have to pay 6 per cent and leave a third of the loan or deposit with the lender, making the effective rate 8 per cent.

A company unable to get a bank loan may go to a factor who charged 18 per cent a few years ago and gets more now.

Furthermore, lenders are getting more particular about their security. They are insisting that the merchant get larger down payments, and to be more careful to whom they give credit.

So merchants, as you may have noticed, are charging more for credit. Many have added interest charges to charge accounts after thirty days. Many are swinging ordinary charge customers to revolving credit plans.

Some stores charge as much as 18 per cent on these plans. Because their lenders insist, and to protect themselves, most sellers on credit have taken these two steps:

1. They are asking higher down payments. Then they don't have to borrow so much to replace a buyer who paid an article, the more likely he is to continue making payments; he doesn't want to lose what he has put in.

2. They are checking borrower's ability to pay more closely. If a shopper says that a large part of the family income is already committed to installment payments, the merchant is wary. He may insist on a very large down payment, or simply say, "Sorry." Stores almost always lose money when they repossess goods for nonpayment. And, with higher interest rates, even delayed payments cost them more.

STEPPING UP PROMOTION

These two steps are usually followed by a third:

3. Stores are advertising their credit plans more heavily. The reason for this is simple: Since a merchant turns down more credit applicants, his credit sales will fall off unless he increases the total number of applicants.

the stock. Furthermore, the more chant has to be more careful about granting credit. He advertises his willingness—not his reluctance—to grant more.

SCHLACHT STORES, BORAX HOUSES.

Today's readers are entitled to two definitions:

Schlacht store: Schlacht is the German word for "battle" and a schlacht store, in retailing, is one in which every customer is regarded as a victim, to be conquered by wit and wile. The battle is for the customer's money.

Borax store: A borax store or a borax house is an establishment offering overstyled, shoddy furniture and appliances on credit, usually with many extra charges added for the credit. There are several theories about the origin of the term. One is that since borax is a cleanser, the term implied customers were "cleaned." A more credible theory is that it derives from the German word "Borg," meaning credit.

Ye Shall Be My Witnesses

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Acts 1.

After His Resurrection, Christ gathered His disciples together and told them they should not depart from Jerusalem until they had received the Holy Ghost.—Acts 1:4.

As Jesus talked to His disciples, they beheld Him taken up to Heaven. As they all gazed upward, a cloud enfolded Him and took Him out of their sight.—Acts 1:9.

Two men, clad in white apparel, stood with the disciples, asking them why they looked so steadfastly to Heaven. Jesus would return to them as He went.—Acts 1:10-11.

The disciples returned to Jerusalem, where "all continued with one accord in prayer and supplication" with others.—Acts 1:12-14. MEMORY VERSE—Acts 1:8.

"You Shall Be My Witness"

A SUMMARY OF CHRIST'S 40-DAY MINISTRY AFTER HIS RESURRECTION

Scripture—Acts 1.
NEWMAN CAMPBELL
IN TODAY'S LESSON we begin the study of the New Testament and The Acts of the Apostles, written by St. Luke. They followed his Gospel of Luke, to which he refers in his introduction to the Acts: "The former treatise have I made, O Theophilus, of all that Jesus began to do and to teach, until the day in which He was taken up, after that He through the Holy Ghost had given commandments unto the apostles whom He had chosen: To whom also He shewed Himself alive after His passion by many infallible proofs, being seen of them for 40 days, and speaking of the things pertaining to the kingdom of God."—Acts 1:1-3.
Dr. Wilbur M. Smith says in "Pictobet's Select Notes" that nothing is known of Theophilus "except he is spoken of as 'most excellent.'"
Christ's first command to the apostles was that they should not depart from Jerusalem, "but wait for the promise of the Father, which, saith He, ye have heard of. For John truly baptized with water; but ye shall be baptized with the Holy Ghost not many days hence."—Acts 1:4-5.
They asked Him: "Lord, wilt Thou at this time restore again the Kingdom of Israel?" His answer was: "It is not for you to know the times or the seasons, which the Father hath put in His own power. But ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you; and ye shall be witnesses unto Me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judaea, and in Samaria, and in unto the uttermost part of the earth."—Acts 1:6-8.
"Although Matthias had been in the company of Christ and His apostles for three years, he had never been one of the Twelve," writes Dr. Wilbur M. Smith, "but he had a reputation for fidelity and unswerving loyalty to Christ."
"When Jesus left this earth, He told His disciples that the whole world should be evangelized, and He gave them the power for doing this," writes Dr. Wilbur M. Smith.
Even today, although Christ's message has spread over almost the entire world, "there are millions of people living on the earth who have not heard of Christ," Dr. Wilbur M. Smith writes.
Can we, as individuals, members of churches and Sunday School classes, gain the power, through prayer to Christ, to help spread His Gospel to others? Let us read His Gospel to others? Let us read His Gospel to others? Let us read His Gospel to others?
The Apostles then returned to Jerusalem "from the mount called Olivet, according to the custom of the Division of Christian Education, National Council of Churches of Christ in the U.S.A., and used by permission. Distributed by King Features Syndicate

Books & Stuff

By DR. ED HIRSHBERG
We're privileged to tell you that next week's Danforth Foundation speaker at E.C.C. will be none other than Robert Lee Humber, who speaks well on world peace, art critic and connoisseur, State senator, and—first and foremost—Citizen of Pitt County. As you probably know, the Danforth Foundation has given the college some money to bring outstanding figures to the campus to associate with the students and faculty and make a few public speeches. This year's theme for the Danforth program concerns problems and opportunities in international affairs, and Mr. Humber was called on as a man who is internationally known for his work in behalf of peace and international relations. His public speeches next week will be in Joyner Library Auditorium—that's in the new college library—on Monday and Tuesday evenings, October 5 and 6, at 8 p.m. The public is—er?—cordially invited, as long as the seats hold out. Mr. Humber, who speaks well on anything, will be talking about world peace—perhaps the most timely subject anybody can talk about these days, and something he knows and understands to a great deal. Go and hear him if you can.

Local Scene
As you all read recently, John Gordon of the E.C.C. Art Department has just won a prize in the Southern Regional Contest for artists in the Southeast, and we extend to him our congratulations and orchids. He and his colleagues at E.C.C. will be staging their Annual Departmental Exhibit this month in the brand new college art gallery in the Rawl Building on the campus, and all you art lovers are invited to attend. Also—to be officially announced later—a sales gallery, to be called "The Littlest Studio," will soon open in Greenville to serve as an outlet for local artists, where you can go and buy their paintings—something we've been needing around here for a long time. Don't forget that Robert Lee Humber speaks on the E.C.C. campus Monday and Tuesday nights—8 p.m. in Joyner Library Auditorium. Filmed best-seller ANATOMY OF A MURDERER plays the local cinema this weekend.

Local Review
An outstanding student and young citizen of G'ville, holder of a national scholarship at Duke University, reviews a recent book about King Arthur.
By Edson Marshall
New York: Doubleday & Co., 1959
Set in fifth century England, "The Pagan King" tells the story of Arthur and his conquest of Britain. Edson Marshall tries to present a certain amount of historical accuracy behind the King Arthur legends and makes a big issue out of the lusty adventures in the court life. The result is mostly sex, clothed in a thin shroud of history. The narrative is rather stilted and at times difficult; this probably results from the use of the first person, as Marshall himself tells the story.

Set in fifth century England, "The Pagan King" tells the story of Arthur and his conquest of Britain. Edson Marshall tries to present a certain amount of historical accuracy behind the King Arthur legends and makes a big issue out of the lusty adventures in the court life. The result is mostly sex, clothed in a thin shroud of history. The narrative is rather stilted and at times difficult; this probably results from the use of the first person, as Marshall himself tells the story.

There is little food left in the soil this time of year. To make your lawn healthier and greener this fall and next spring, feed it now.

SHADOW OF GUILT

A NEW THRILLER by PATRICK QUENTIN

CHAPTER 15

"What time did Don Saxby bring your daughter home?" Lieutenant Trant asked my wife.

"Oh, I don't know. I suppose around ten," Connie replied.

"Did you meet him? I mean, did he come in with your daughter?"

"No—as a matter of fact, he didn't."

"Since he wasn't discovered by his cleaning woman, Mrs. Cassidy, until next morning, the medical examiner can't be too exact about the time of death. But he knows it was Sunday afternoon. He's put a deadline either way—two p.m. and five p.m. Unfortunately, although the people in the next apartment were at home at the time, they noticed no sound of shots, and the woman at the back of the floor seems to be away—between two and five on Sunday. That would be the very next day after he brought your daughter home from Massachusetts, wouldn't it?"

There again he had managed to make a perfectly self-evident remark quiver with ominous overtones. He waited for Connie to say something in reply. When she didn't, he said, "So that's all you're able to tell me, Mrs. Hadley?" "I really think it is, Lieutenant."

"I see," said Lieutenant Trant. I was looking at him, thinking of the dozens of flimsy deceptions which might collapse at any minute and give us away, trying to gauge something of what was going on behind his enigmatic priest's face. I didn't get to first base.

He merely sat upright in the red leather chair, looking at nothing in particular and saying nothing.

When his silence was becoming embarrassing, Connie said, "I'm afraid I don't know the Greens' address in Massachusetts, Lieutenant. But if you want to get in touch with them, I'm sure that Ala—"

"Oh, no," said Trant. "I don't need to get in touch with them. They've already got in touch with me. Mr. Green called me just a couple of hours ago to tell me about Mr. Saxby and your daughter being there Friday night. That's why I felt a little hopeful about your being able to give us some pointers. You see, since your daughter was there with him, and Mr. Green seemed to feel they were on quite friendly terms, I got the impression that Mr. Saxby must have been—well, almost one of the family."

"Oh, no," said Connie quickly, too quickly. "Ala hardly knew him. In fact, I think she'd only met him twice; once here. He stopped by one evening for a drink. And then at a party. It was more or less an accident that they drove up to the Greens' together. I suppose it was just because the Greens' happened to invite them both at the same time."

That sounded the most improbable of statements, and it seemed incredible to me that Lieutenant Trant could be satisfied to leave it at that. I was waiting for another glimpse of claw from behind the very velvet paws. But then, quite unexpectedly, he rose, as if I'm having much success with you, does it, Mrs. Hadley?" He turned to me. "There's nothing you want to tell me, I suppose, Mr. Hadley?"

"Oh, nothing," said Connie at once. "George only met him once, didn't you, George?"

"I believe so," I said.

"So he was more a friend of the womenfolk," commented Trant. "Will I think the most sensible thing for me to do next is to talk to your daughter. So far she's the last person we know to have seen him alive."

He stood looking blandly at Connie. Connie looked back just as blandly.

"I'm terribly sorry, Lieutenant," she said, "but I'm afraid she's not here at the moment."

"Then I'll stop by again when I have the time. I imagine it will be a mere formality because we don't expect to have much trouble in catching the murderer."

He had said that with an almost theatrical casualness, as if it were a statement which wouldn't particularly surprise us.

"Yes, Mrs. Hadley. You see, Saxby had two suitcases packed and he'd burnt some papers in the fireplace. They're analyzing the ash but I doubt whether they'll be able to reconstruct anything. However, all that implies he was getting out of town in a hurry, presumably because he was scared of someone. And then the gun that killed him was left at the scene. There are, of course, no fingerprints, but the gun doesn't seem to have belonged to him. I know it sounds unlikely for a murderer to leave his gun behind, but it happens much more frequently than you might suspect. They're tracing the ownership right now. In a couple of hours, they should at least know who its original purchaser was, and with any luck the owner may be someone with a known grudge against him and . . . well, that will be that."

His smile bathed us in its blandness. Then, without the faintest change of expression, he said, "One thing more, Mrs. Hadley. You mentioned that Don Saxby met a friend of yours in Toronto. Who was that friend?"

I wanted to shout at Connie: For Pete's sake, don't tell him it's Mal. Don't let him get on to the Rysons and through the Rysons to Chuck.

For a moment Connie stood looking most convincingly at a loss. "Nos," she said, "isn't that silly? I'm sure there was someone. I'm—"

"It wasn't by any chance Mr. Malcolm Ryson, was it?" Trant interrupted.

That was the second time he'd set a trap. He had slipped it to us that way to see how much he could depend on our truthfulness. Once again Connie recovered admirably. She gave a little rueful shrug.

"How foolish of me to forget," she said, "of course it was Mal."

"That's what Mr. Ellerman thought," said Trant. "He told me he was almost sure you'd mentioned it."

"They'd only met," began Connie. "I don't think that Mal—"

But before she could finish, Trant cut in, "I understand, Mrs. Hadley, that your daughter's engaged to the Ryson boy."

"That's right," said Connie. "The marriage is going to be in about a month?"

"Yes—on the tenth of December."

I suppose he didn't go with your daughter and Mr. Saxby to the Greens? I thought he might have. I mean, well, with their being married so soon. . . ."

"No," said Connie. "I don't think the Greens knew him, but in any case Chuck was in Chicago on business."

Once again Trant pulled one of his pauses, and I steeled myself for him to ask whether Chuck had actually been in Chicago yesterday. But he didn't. He merely glanced down at his nails and up again.

"Well," he said, "the thing for me to do now seems to be to have a talk with Mrs. Ryson. Let's hope I'll have a little more success with him." He held out his hand to Connie. "Good-bye, Mrs. Hadley. Thank you for being so co-operative."

He started for the door. As he did so, a foreboding came to me that this inevitably would be the moment when Ala would dash in and destroy everything. I went with him into the hall and found myself scurrying ahead of him like a butler to open the front door.

Bargain Price In Sale To Russia

HAVANA, (AP) — Cuba today announced the sale of 330,000 tons of raw sugar to the Soviet Union at the bargain price of 2.95 cents a pound — .175 cents under the world price.

The Institute for Sugar Stabilization said 100,000 tons are for delivery this year, the balance in 1960.

Cuba sold the Soviets about 170,000 tons of sugar in August, which they quickly resold on the world market.

The institute said although a sacrifice was made in the price, the size of the latest transaction was "highly constructive for the market" because it nearly completes Cuba's quota under the world sugar agreement and substantially reduces reserve stocks.

Denmark has an old wedding custom for the bride to carry a purse of small coins, to be tossed to children watching at the church.

I glanced up and down Sixty-four Street. But there was no sign of Ala.

Lieutenant Trant has figuratively lit the fuse on a bomb. George finds the situation most explosive, as the story continues here tomorrow.

Chisox Coast To 11-0 Win

By TED SMITS
Associated Press Sports Editor
CHICAGO (AP) — Can an 11-0 World Series game have a turning point?

Could be. What if Charlie Neal's long drive down the left field line in the third inning of Thursday's game between the Los Angeles Dodgers and the Chicago White Sox had gone fair by a few feet instead of foul by a few feet?

That would have made the score 2-1 in favor of the Sox instead of 2-0. Possibly it would have braced up the Dodgers. But it went foul and the next thing the roof fell in on the hapless National League champions. The punchless Sox scored seven runs in the bottom of the third and went out in front 9-0 with the game only one-third over.

But looking at it realistically nothing could have stopped the Sox. In the first inning two hit-and-run plays and two runs showed why this was a "go-go" team.

After Luis Aparicio popped out, Nelson Fox drew a walk and was running when Jim Landis hit a single to right. Fox reached third and scored on the first of Ted Kluszewski's three hits, a single to right that also sent Landis to third. Landis scored on Sherman Lollar's long fly to right.

Then came the third, dubbed by Manager Walt Alton of the Dodgers as being as bad an inning as his team had suffered all season. Again it started with Aparicio flying out. Fox doubled and Landis singled, scoring him. Kluszewski then hit the first of his two home runs of the day, into the right field stands, scoring Landis.

Chuck Churn came in to relieve Roger Craig on the mound for the Dodgers. At this point Sherman Lollar sent a high fly to center and the usually dependable Duke Snider collided with Wally Moon and dropped it for a two-base error. Bill Goodman singled into right scoring Lollar.

Al Smith doubled to left center and was saved from embarrassment when he went charging in to third where Goodman was standing only to have Snider make his second error of the inning by throwing wild to second. Goodman scored and Smith was safe at third.

Jim Rivera bounced to Neal who threw wild to the plate for an error as Smith scored and Rivera took second. Early Wynn, the durable Sox pitcher, promptly doubled to left center scoring Rivera to make it 9-0. Churn got Aparicio and Fox to ground out, ending the inning.

What followed was anticlimax. In the fourth, Landis hit his third consecutive single and Kluszewski hit his second consecutive home run to make the score 11-0 and there it stayed. Kluszewski's 5 runs batted in tied a series record.

Wynn held the Dodgers in complete check until the eighth when his arm tired and he asked to be relieved. Gerry Staley took over the pitching duties and preserved the shutout.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — One record gone and more to follow. So it was today as the Dodgers sold out huge Memorial Coliseum for the three World Series games scheduled here.

Crowds of 92,000-plus are insured for Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, if the Tuesday game is necessary, and already broken is the paid attendance mark for one Series game.

That was 86,288 for the Boston Braves-at-Cleveland game Oct. 10, 1948.

Pam Pack Rated Over Greenville

By JOHNNY HUDSON

Two weeks ago this very day, Greenville stopped a strong Jacksonville team 20-14 and looked on their way to a successful season. Tonight they take on a Washington High eleven and will rate as heavy underdogs.

The Phantoms have two victories to their credit without a defeat but since a flu virus hit here several weeks back, Coach Bud Phillips has gone through a period of shuffling his lineup several different ways, hoping to come up with a fortifiable lineup for the Pam Pack.

The flu epidemic struck the Greenville camp hard, putting as many as twelve on the sidelines at one time, and Phillips will take the field tonight with eight still counted out of action.

Green Line

Catching the brunt of the unexpected attack has been the line where Phillips has lost his whole right side and two boys off the left side. The starting backfield will be at full strength but a couple of top reserves, Billy James and Randy Bass may miss action.

Phillips has elevated members of his second unit to starting slots in the line and it will be a "green" one that goes up against the veteran and beefy line of Washington.

Layne Jorgensen and Edward Hook have been moved up to take over the flanks in place of Bert Aycock and Skip Wright. Richard Taft is also ready to step in and help out here.

Larry Roberts is Norfleet Felton's understudy at tackle and will get the starting nod tonight along with Louis Dale, Billy Wade, nursing a hand injury, has been moved to a guard slot and will team with Lawrence Davenport here. Jeff Fountain is still available and will start at center.

Erskine Duff will quarterback the club and his backfield will consist of Alan MacArthur and Wayne Sumerill at the halves and Robin Wilton at fullback.

Pack Strong

After a one point defeat by Wilson, Washington has come back strong to take victories over New Furn and Elizabeth City in conference eligibility and have been tabbed as the team to fill the vacated conference crown.

The visitors have a large line and field a backfield full of quick-stepping halfbacks. Adrian Waters and Billy Pittman have reaped most of the glory in recent wins and will have to be stopped if Greenville hopes to claim a victory.

Tonight's game will be the feature event of the Northeastern Conference slate this week. Both teams are undefeated in loop play and the game will have strong bearing on the championship.

The two clubs are big rivals and one of the largest crowds of the season is expected to file into East Carolina's College Stadium for the 8:00 kickoff.

ECC Leads In NAIA Statistics

WILSON. — On the basis of team statistics, East Carolina College is cutting quite a swath in District 26, National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics.

Coach Jack Boone's Pirates are the top scoring crew in the district with 85 points in three games, lead the district in rushing with an average of 230 yards per contest, top the district in total offense with an average of 341 yards a game, and have held the opponents to the best mark on total defense with an average of 198 yards per contest.

Halfback Glenn Bass adds to the East Carolina leadership. He is tied with Halfback Bobby Pate of Presbyterian College for the individual scoring leadership this week with 30 points. Bass also leads in rushing with an average of 91.3 yards per game.

Lenoir Rhyne College, idle last Saturday, still holds the team passing leadership with an average of 131 yards per game, has held the opposition to only 52 yards per game through the air, and has allowed its opponents to score only eight points in one game.

Tailback Lee Farmer of Lenoir Rhyne is the district's top man in total offense. He averaged 116 yards in his team's first and only contest thus far. End Dick Lage of Lenoir Rhyne is the top pass receiver with an average of 63 yards per contest.

Appalachian State has the best defense against rushing. In two games the Apps have allowed an average of only 38.5 yards. Halfback Charles Cant of Appalachian is the top punter in the district. On four attempts he has averaged 45 yards.

Quarterback Bob Cooper of Western Carolina has taken the lead in passing. In three games Cooper has passed 53 times and has completed 32 for 351 yards. He is averaging 117 yards per contest.

Flu Is Crippling Blow

Since practice started way back in August, the Washington game has been on the minds of the Phants. This was the game they wanted most of all and this was the year they could do it.

And the way things started out, fans got the feeling that this might just be that year. They opened with two straight wins before running up with a team just a little too strong—a host of flu germs.

This virus caused one cancellation and has wrecked the Greenville club in many respects. Eight front-line players are out and Coach Bud Phillips has had to bring his club along fast this week.

Sick But Not Dead

Washington will enter the game as a heavy favorite. They are at full strength and are one of the better teams in the conference. But football is a funny game and the ball can bounce many ways before 48 minutes tick away on the clock.

Many teams, short on talent, depth and other ingredients, have won on sheer determination. A team that is really "fired up", so to speak, is hard to beat any time.

Greenville should be that way tonight. Coach Bud Phillips has by no means given up the ship. "They have a good team—one of the strongest on our schedule—but we are going out to win it and definitely make it interesting," he declares.

The line felt the biggest impact of the flu virus and will be filled with many newcomers tonight. They are "green" but there will be no pressure on them. They have everything to gain and very little to lose.

Predictions Of The Week

Last week, the prediction chart showed nine out of twelve picks correct with the Carolina-Notre Dame tilt being the biggest blunder. The Catawba Newberry scrap was hit on the head. Here's hoping, that the Indians follow our pick this week.

East Carolina over Catawba by 14; An explosive backfield mixed with a hard charging line is making Jack Boone smile again.

Greenville over Washington by 3; Going against everything that we ever learned. Few breaks could give Pam Pack easy win but a "fired up" Phant team could bring a "hot time in the old town tonight".

Carolina over N. C. State by 6; Experience says no but our judgement says stick with the "Scrape-goats" one more time.

Rice over Duke by 3; It's hard to pick Blue Devil games but two defeats are hard to take and doesn't build up spirits.

Wake Forest over Tulane by 7; Deacs have proved us to be wrong twice so we must change sides.

Appalachian over Elon by 18; Too much size and experience for Christians.

Lenoir Rhyne over Newberry by 8; Bears roll along over non-conference clubs.

Tampa over Western Carolina by 7; Florida club is always loaded and game will be played at Tampa.

ECC STARTER—Johnny Wike, senior guard, has moved into a starting slot in the East Carolina line as they meet Catawba tomorrow. Wike, a Wingate Junior College transfer, was on the second unit last season.

Pirates Make Final Plans For Catawba

East Carolina worked out in light gear yesterday afternoon, brushing up on final assignments for their encounter with Catawba tomorrow night at Salisbury.

Several changes will be evident in the ECC lineup when they take the field tomorrow night in their second conference game of the season.

Mac Thacker, regular fullback, is still nursing an arm injury and will be on the sidelines. George Turner has been running from the slot this week along with James Speight.

If Speight gets the starting assignment at fullback, Sonny Basinger will move into the left halfback slot. The change would give the Pirates more speed but without Thacker, they will be weaker in blocking and power.

Jerry Carpenter is still on the injury list. Bert Stafford has stepped into the number two quarterback slot and will probably be used on defense.

Coach Bill McDonald will also have a change in his starting line. Johnny Wike, a senior guard, has been moved up to the first unit ahead of James Gordon. Dempsey Williams has also been working on the first unit in the guard slot and may start on defense against Catawba.

Chuck Gordon returned to full scale work this week and will play tomorrow for the first time this season. A center, Gordon will be working behind Lynn Barnett and Henry Vensant.

East Carolina will be favored over their North State foes but Coach Jack Boone has warned his club about expecting a "breather". The Pirates upset Catawba last year, 6-0.

Eppes To Battle Georgetown Club

The Eppes Bulldogs, staggering along with a 1-2-0 record, play host to AA Georgetown tonight in a non-conference affair.

Last season, the Panthers defeated Eppes 13-6 but will be slight underdogs in tonight's tussle.

In the Eppes camp this week, Coaches Daniels and Sanders have been trying to erase mistakes made in the last two games and are confident of a better showing by their club tonight.

The Eppes coaches are still basing a lot of their strength on unproven freshmen. About ten first year men have figured in Daniels' plans and the coach feels that once some experience is gained, his club will be tough.

David Newton, Dalton and Alton Davis have returned to the lineup after being out with injuries and will strengthen the Eppes line.

Willie Brewington and Luke Williams are a couple other linemen slated to pace the Bulldogs defensive attack. Both have been outstanding in all three of Eppes' games.

Toledo's Pedestrian Mall Studied By Many Cities

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—In its experiment with pedestrian malls as a tonic for downtown business, Toledo has found itself under the microscope of city planners all over the nation. The test originally was intended as a 45-day experiment. Last Aug. 3 the city closed off four blocks of two busy, parallel streets and converted them into grassy malls embellished with trees, shrubs, ponds, statuary, a playground and other attractions. The planners soon discovered they had unleashed a volcano of interest in scores of other cities seeking a way to rejuvenate their downtown sections. Stories and editorials about the malls appeared in more than a thousand newspapers. Hundreds of inquiries poured into city and Chamber of Commerce offices. Giving Needle To Tattoo Parlors

NEW YORK (AP)—Health authorities are giving the needle to the city's six tattoo parlors. They must clean up or close up. Effective today, a new health code requires that tattoo artists must sterilize both the dyes and equipment they use and must operate in a clean and sanitary manner. The old code lacked provisions covering tattooing. Health officials were spurred into action by the recent death from hepatitis of a teen-ager tattooed on Coney Island. This Is Good Time Of Year For Car Check Up

By BEN PHEGAR Associated Press Automotive Writer
DETROIT (AP)—The people who service automobiles would like to borrow the dentists' slogan and suggest you see them at least twice a year. And, they say, this is one of the best times to stop in for a checkup, whether it's a car dealer or your favorite neighborhood filling station. Christmas is only 72 shopping days away and in many parts of the United States winter weather is a lot closer than that. The service people think you ought to be ready for it. Anti-freeze is as necessary as gasoline if you run a car during the winter anywhere north of the Mason-Dixon Line. One manufacturer predicts about 118 million gallons of anti-freeze will be sold in the United States this winter, 86 per cent of it the long-lasting type—technically, ethylene glycol. The makers label this type permanent. But quickly point out that what they really mean is permanent for one winter. The ethylene glycol you put in last fall is still in the car radiator and just as good as ever unless you drained it in the spring. But, by now, all brands are loaded with rust and corrosion inhibitors and these wear out in less than 12 months. The cooling system should be drained and flushed. If this is done professionally, most brands of anti-freeze will guarantee their product for the entire winter. Anti-freeze, of course, is not the only item involved in a winter car checkup. Here are some other service suggestions: 1. Check all hose and heater connections along with the thermostat. A special winter thermostat is desirable in some areas to get the most out of your heater. 2. Check the exhaust system. Much winter driving is done with car windows closed and the slightest carbon monoxide leak is dangerous. 3. Check the battery and entire electrical system. You're apt to do more driving with lights during the long winter nights. 4. If you live where you need it, don't forget special anti-freeze for your windshield washer system. And while at it check your windshield wipers and defrosters. 5. A child's beach ball full of sand in the trunk can prove mighty handy if you get stuck on ice or in snowy places. And are valuable many tires. And if you favor snow tires, check them now while the grass is still green.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—A pall of uncertainty hung over the stock market early this afternoon as prices moved irregularly lower. Trading was moderate.

Losses running to more than a point were mingled with small gains.

The market was mixed at the start but began to drift off after United Steelworkers President David J. McDonald said he was not hopeful about the steel negotiations.

Another big factor was suspense concerning the court ruling due late today on the question of Du Pont's spin-off of its huge holdings of General Motors stock.

Du Pont, up at the start, traded about 2 points lower as the session wore on.

Steels and rails were lower. Motors were mixed. Changes were narrow in most sections.

GM held steady while Ford dropped more than a point. American Motors was up about a point.

Losses of around a point were shown by Jones & Laughlin and Bethlehem.

Rails drifted lower.

Montgomery Ward and International Nickel picked up about a point each.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off 30 cents to $220.00 with the industrials down 40 cents, the rails down 30 cents and the utilities unchanged.

Government bonds backed away.

Storm-Battered Area Asks Help

DENVER (AP)—Storm-battered Colorado cities called today on military men, state prisoners and volunteers for help in a mammoth cleanup job.

Intermittent snow and rain spit out of leaded skies for the fourth straight day.

At least five deaths were blamed on the savage storm that struck with midwinter fury Monday night.

Mayor Dick Batterson, who said Denver's damage runs into millions, said nearby Lowry Air Force Base has assigned 50 men to help the city clean up.

The U. S. Forest Service is bringing in mechanized equipment to dispose of broken limbs lining almost every street in the city.

A half-dozen other cities were in the same plight as Denver. Streets were plugged with broken branches ripped loose as the snow, ranging from 15 inches at Denver to more than 31 inches at Colorado Springs, piled crushing weight on full-leaved trees.

At Canon City, volunteers from the state prison joined city officials in clearing away the battered foliage. City officials said the job will take a month.

Schools in many places were still suspended.

New Polio Pill To Be Tested At Medical Center

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — A new polio pill is ready for testing at the University of Kansas medical center.

Scientists hope one pill taken orally will give lifetime immunity from the disease.

Developers of the new vaccine, known as "cold live virus," are Dr. Herbert A. Weller, in charge of virus studies at the center, Dr. George A. Dubes, a generalist, and Dr. Chien Liu, an immunologist.

The scientists developed the vaccine by putting viruses from three polio types in a refrigerator set at 86 degrees and later at 73 degrees. They found that viruses which had come originally from monkeys with a normal 103-degree temperature adapted to live and reproduce in a colder environment.

The cold-adapted strains stayed alive at temperatures lower than the human normal of 98.6 degrees. This, the doctors theorized, would make the virus harmless but able to arouse antibodies sufficient to immunize humans.

Let Down, After Appearing Early

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP)—Many motorists took the advice of the Registry of Motor Vehicles Thursday and lined up early at inspection stations to get their cars inspected.

It was the first day in the month-long period in which motorists could get stickers testifying the car was in good condition.

But some forehanded motorists couldn't get their windshield stickers because the registry did not mail out the inspection stickers until the day before and many stations did not receive them in time.

Waive Law On Waiting Period

OLATHE, Kan. (AP)—Winfield Caudill and Stella Johnson, both of Merriam, Kan., applied Thursday for a marriage license. They wanted to get married right away.

It was then that they learned of the Kansas law requiring a three-day waiting period.

The couple took their case to District Court which promptly waived the waiting period and allowed the ceremony to proceed. Winfield and Stella told the judge they wanted a fast start on their life together.

He is 84 and she is 74.

Pitt Mental Health Ass'n Hears Psychologist Speak

Colored News

"Fear is the anticipation of an assault on self" was the definition given by Dr. Elsie Dotson, Clinical Psychologist at East Carolina College as she spoke to the Pitt County Mental Health Association last night.

Dr. Dotson explained there is a physiological and a psychological reaction to fear, and people can be frightened by an attack on either. She explained the difference between fear and anxiety. Fear comes from a real object; anxiety is internal rather than external.

The different stages of fear followed. Mild fear not having too much effect, a more frightened or anxious fear experiences agitation, and the more advanced stage causes a person to become panicky. Dr. Dotson pointed out that often mild fear will stimulate a person towards improvement.

The speaker then discussed the means of preventing fear. First, she stated that knowledge can combat fear; knowledge of the world in general, and knowledge about ourselves, our limitations, our assets, and our reactions. She then talked about a sense of self-adequacy in preventing fear.

To help cope with and control fear Dr. Dotson advised the group to acknowledge the fact we are afraid, to know the situation and decide if anything can be done about it. "If possible, do something about the situation, or if nothing can be done, accept the fact," she said.

She urged that "whenever necessary, seek assistance, talk with someone, and, if needed, actually ask for help—even professional help—when the case requires it."

After a reaction, she suggested that the experience be repeated. She illustrated her point by suggesting that in the event of an automobile accident the driver drive the damaged car to a garage if possible.

Prior to the membership meeting, the Board of Directors met. Dr. Georgia V. Mills announced that Sunday afternoon, November 1, 1959 at 2:30 p.m. had been set for the dedication of the Mental Health Clinic building in honor of the late Dr. Walter Humbert. At the board meeting Mrs. Richard Johnson of Grifton was appointed to the membership committee, and an announcement of the selection of Lawrence J. Linck as the Executive Director of the National Association for Mental Health, Inc., effective September 1st, was made.

The next meeting of the Board of Directors will be Dec. 3, and the annual meeting of the Association will be held Jan. 26, 1960.

Members of the Pitt County Safety Council saw a film yesterday at their monthly meeting, dealing with the cause of accidents.

The picture, presented by Lem Kilpatrick of the Pitt County Health Department, gave causes, such as social, emotional and physical problems as the underlying cause of accidents.

It also told how physiological factors or a combination of the factors could cause a person to be less conscious of safety to the extent that a normal simple action such as walking or sitting could result in an accident.

The Council also heard Sam Brooks of the Chamber of Commerce Civic Affairs Committee, discuss Fire Prevention.

Brooks told the group that next week is Fire Prevention Week and added that Fire Prevention Week always included October 9, the anniversary of the great Chicago Fire.

He urged the members present to get behind their associates and friends and conduct home fire safety inspections, correcting anything that might lead to a fire.

Brooks concluded by saying that 20 per cent of the fires are caused by smoking... being careless with lighted cigarettes and the like.

The next meeting of the Pitt County Safety Council will be November 5, at 12:30 at Respass Brothers.

Officials Believe Tour Made Impact On Nikita

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. officials have concluded that Nikita Khrushchev's tour of America did make an impact on his Communist-inoculated mind — and in a way favorable to the United States.

But they were adopting a wait-and-see attitude before deciding whether any gains were permanent or merely a temporary thawing of the cold war ice.

Authorities who traveled with the Soviet Premier across this country, and who were in on last week's Camp David talks between Khrushchev and President Eisenhower, believe that Khrushchev:

1. Saw the strength of the American economy, the high living standards, the freedom of expression and the diversity among U.S. citizens.
2. Found that people in the United States actually live very well under capitalism despite the Marxist theory that capitalism is a system of exploiters and exploited which soon will give way to socialism.
3. Recognized that the American people and their government are united on foreign policy.
4. Saw that Americans generally want peace.
5. Recognized that a smaller portion of America's total production than the Soviet Union's is devoted to arms. This flies in the face of Communist party line contentions that Americans fear disarmament because it might bring economic collapse, and that capitalists are beating the war drums in order to boost profits.
