Govm't Moves Seek Court Order To End Dock Strike

NEW YORK (AP)—Acting on President Eisenhower's orders, government attorneys moved to seek a court order today sending 85,000 striking longshoremen back to work from Maine to Texas.

There was little doubt a Taft-Hartley law injunction — requiring an 80-day return to work — would be issued promptly in U.S. District Court. A judge's ruling was required, but never before has an injunction been refused in the 15 previous times the government has invoked the law's emergency provisions.

But unless the strike is settled before the end of that period, the longshoremen will be free to walk out again and the government can do nothing except by mediation.

Some officials believed it would be a week before actual brass-tacks bargaining would be resumed. Guy Farmer, chairman of the fact-finding body, urged the parties to start at once. The answers he got were not promising.

Hodges Reports Gains In Care Of Mental Patients

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Hodges said today that North Carolina is "nearing victory in the battle of the waiting list that has plagued us in the care and treatment of mentally ill."

"Only recently, aided by new drugs that enable us to accelerate the treatment of mentally ill—we were able to abolish waiting lists for general mental patients at our hospitals," Hodges stated.

Although new facilities have been completed to care for mentally retarded children, he added, "the incidence of mental retardation continues and we still have between 700 and 800 children in need of training and treatment."

He made his remarks in an address at the annual meeting of the Southeastern region of the American Assn. of Mental Deficiency.

Farmville Board OKs Development

FARMVILLE — Farmville's Town Commissioners in a special meeting last night unanimously approved a proposal to install water and sewer lines and paving, curb and gutter in the new Langdale subdivision here.

Farmville engineer Jack McDavid has drawn in the proposed work on a map of the city. The Commissioners inspected the map and approved the advertising of bids on the project.

Rhinoceros Wins In City Election

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — A rhinoceros named Cacareco—a write-in candidate—pulled more votes than anyone else in Wednesday's election of city councilmen. Election officials conceded Cacareco 88,000 votes.

Lunik III Continues Wide Space Course

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Lunik III, its historic trip past the moon completed, presumably continued on out into space today on a wide curving course scheduled to bring it rocketing back past the earth Oct. 18.

An official announcement Wednesday night said the 614-pound flying vehicle will not start its turn back toward the earth until Saturday, after reaching a point 292,043 miles from the earth.

Total Disarmament Plan Up For Prompt UN Debate

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—The U. N. Political Committee agreed unanimously today to begin immediate debate on the total disarmament plan of Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

Priority for the Khrushchev plan was proposed by the chairman of the 32-nation committee, Ambassador Franz Matsch of Austria, after private consultations. His proposal was accepted without debate.

Matsch announced that discussion of the Soviet plan will begin Friday morning. Other disarmament proposals will be taken up in sequence after the examination of the plan offered by the Soviet leader before the General Assembly Sept. 18.

In suggesting priority for the Soviet proposal, Matsch recalled that both Khrushchev and President Eisenhower had agreed that general disarmament was the most important issue facing the world today.

The Soviets tried to ensure special treatment for the Khrushchev plan more than a week ago by urging the steering committee to recommend that it be taken up separately from other arms questions. The steering group decided to let the Political Committee decide.

The committee also has on its docket an Irish appeal to restrict the "nuclear club" to Britain, the United States and the Soviet Union; an Indian call for a permanent ban on all nuclear weapons tests; and Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld's report on the current international efforts at disarmament.

Steel Negotiators Running Into Ike's Implied Deadline

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP)—Steel negotiators today came up against President Eisenhower's implied strike settlement deadline without hope of quickly ending the 86-day-old strike and apparently resigned to government use of the Taft-Hartley law.

Each side said it did not want government legal intervention. United Steelworkers President David J. McDonald said his union would undertake a legal fight to prevent it. But he said workers would obey the law of the land.

The actions of both sides, however, indicated they preferred operating under a court injunction rather than acceptance of the other's demands for a dispute-ending agreement.

The last joint negotiating session was held Tuesday night. It ended in complete deadlock. Since then there is no evidence that either side has attempted to arrange further joint meetings.

Nikita Has Confidence Of Parley

MOSCOW (AP)—Premier Nikita Khrushchev apparently is looking forward to a summit meeting this fall or winter.

Making a leisurely trip home from Peking, the Soviet Premier told a crowd in Vladivostok Tuesday.

"The summit meeting, which may apparently be called this autumn or winter will continue the exchange of views on problems awaiting the peoples."

Khrushchev praised President Eisenhower as "a wise man" and said: "The wisdom shown by President Eisenhower in inviting me to his country and in expressing the desire to come to the Soviet Union attests not only to his foresight but also to the American people's striving for peace."

The Premier also stressed the continuing close relationship of the Soviet Union and Red China. He struck hard on his current line of a rivalry between capitalism and communism without shooting.

"On the question of social systems," Khrushchev declared, "We shall not find a common language with the American businessmen. Let them live under capitalism while we shall live under communism and let us see who will be better off. But the struggle for peace is the main task of the present day, and we must do everything in our power to ensure peace."

Reaching an accord on world problems is not easy, Khrushchev said, because "too much has been piled up by the cold war."

"Time and patient efforts by both sides are needed to relax tensions," he observed.

President's Cold Much Improved

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—President Eisenhower boarded an Air Force jet earlier and left his Southern California desert vacation retreat at 7 a. m. PST today bound for Washington.

A crowd of 200 people cheered the smiling President as he arrived at the airport via helicopter. He looked tanned, relaxed and his hoarseness, which he had when he arrived here eight days ago, was gone.

Caught Robber, Policeman Slain

HARRISONBURG, Va. (AP)—A veteran of 26 years on the police force of this Shenandoah Valley city was shot and killed by a gunman at a diner early today.

The victim, M. W. Trenary, lived long enough to whisper a meager description of his assailant to fellow officers.

The 50-year-old police sergeant was struck twice by bullets fired from close range while investigating a break-in at the closed diner, three blocks from the police station.

S. W. Burton, who lives across the street, was awakened by the sound of shots. He said he saw a man he didn't recognize running along the counter of the still lighted diner. Moments later, Burton said he saw Trenary stagger out of the diner.

While witnesses bent close to hear, Trenary murmured: "I caught a fellow robbing this place and went in on him. He shot me with a small gun and I fired back but didn't hit him."

Trenary said he didn't know the gunman but had seen him before. The gunman, the officer said, had on a light shirt and light pants. Trenary died 20 minutes later in a hospital.

The robbery escaped with some $30 in cash.

A posse equipped with bloodhounds fanned out over the countryside hunting for the gunman.

Cotton Estimate Slightly Raised

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agriculture Department today estimated the 1959 cotton crop at 14,692,000 bales of 500 pounds gross weight.

This estimate is 14,000 bales more than the 14,678,000 bales forecast a month ago. However, it is, well above the comparative small crop last year of 11,512,000.

Review Of All City Paving Petitions Called For At Council Meet Last Night

By ALVIN FAYLOR, Reflector City Editor

A review of all paving petitions now before the city was called for by the City Council last night after they had considered two paving projects.

The action came on a motion by Councilman W. S. Stafford. Councilmen had approved paving of a block each of W. Sixth St. and Hudson St. and they had heard from a group of property owners on Madison Circle in Colonial Heights.

While paving of a block of W. Sixth St. and a block of Hudson St. in the Billmore area was approved by city councilmen, action on other streets in the area was held open.

The action was taken after City Manager Leonard Bloxam reported that property owners in the Billmore area, a Negro section in West Greenville who petitioned the city for paving, had been told of the need of making their contribution available as promptly as possible.

He said the city had met with very little success with the exception of Hudson St. from Fifth to W. Sixth and W. Sixth from Hudson to Bancroft.

Bloxam recommended that Hudson and W. Sixth Sts. be paved and the other streets in the area be held open for further consideration.

R. M. Phillips appeared before the council on behalf of property owners living on some of the streets in the area. He pointed out that a number of the residents of the Billmore area are teachers who, because of pay schedules and vacations, hadn't been able to get their share of the paving money in prior to last night's meeting.

"But we are conscientiously working to get the money in," Phillips told the council. "We are working with you in trying to get the people aware of the importance of getting the money in."

Phillips then asked that the gate to the cemetery be widened and Bloxam indicated that could be done.

The group of Madison Circle property owners which appeared before the council told them their petition had been in since 1956.

Councilmen Charles W. King and Dr. M. W. Aldridge said they had both been approached by the group concerning the project.

Aldridge said he was told eight of 10 property owners had written checks for the work which will be turned over to the city at any time.

Not On Sunday

An ordinance prohibiting the playing of "juke boxes" on Sundays was approved by the City Council last night.

The ordinance prohibits the playing of the coin operated musical record playing machines from midnight Saturdays to midnight Sundays.

City Manager Leonard Bloxam told the council that scrapes and fights are developing "predominantly in some of the colored areas."

The police "have trouble getting the people to go home at night," he declared.

The police department did not feel the ordinance "will resolve all the problems but it might help solve some of the problems," Bloxam declared.

Councilmen set a maximum fine of $50 for each offense.

Explosion Fumes Hung Over City

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—A roaring break in a 10-inch main spewed propane gas over a vast section of Austin early today and threatened thousands with potential explosion.

But four hours after the break, police said the gravest danger of a blast appeared ended. The 300 to 400 persons who fled their homes returned.

The propane gas collected in any low place and a spark or fire could set it off.

An official of Phillips Petroleum Co. said the break apparently was caused by a cleaning device sent through the line.

The line carries butane or propane depending on the season. The gases are processed from natural gas and liquefy under pressure. They are used for heating and cooking by many homeowners who have no natural gas line connection.

Police Capt. Otto Ludwig said 300 to 400 persons had been moved out of the area. There was no panic.

Policemen, firemen, state police and troops from Bergstrom Airfield joined in the door-to-door effort to move persons out of the area.

Safe At Corn Mill Is Stolen

FOUNTAIN—Thieves broke into a corn mill near here last night and carted off a safe.

The mill is located on U. S. 258 south of Fountain.

It was not known late this morning how much money was in the safe or if it had been located.

Sheriff's Deputies and City County Identification Officer Walter Thomas are investigating.

Kassem Wounded, Authorities Try Avert Mob Action In Iraq

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Authorities today sought to head off mob violence in Iraq after the attempted assassination of Premier Abdel Karim Kassem in Baghdad. Kassem was shot three times but the Iraqi government said he suffered only minor wounds.

The 45-year-old revolutionary leader was fired on Wednesday by an unidentified gunman during his regular afternoon drive down Baghdad's main street. Official announcements did not link the assailant — who apparently escaped — with any group.

Kassem assured the populace of his well-being in a radio broadcast from his hospital bed. He blamed the attack on "traitors who wanted to get rid of me so the people would be without leadership."

The Premier's voice sounded weak and depressed. Listeners thought he must have been in pain.

Radio Baghdad, quoting a medical bulletin, said Kassem was hit three times but his wounds were superficial. The worst resulted from a shot in his upper left arm that broke a bone.

A curfew was clamped on Baghdad and its suburbs. Schools were ordered closed today. Presumably army units in and around the Iraqi capital were placed on the alert to counter any violence quickly.

Military Gov. Ahmed Saleh Abd-i banned all demonstrations in Iraq and prohibited the assembling of five or more persons.

The assassination attempt was the first against Kassem since he seized power July 14, 1958, in a revolution that overthrew the pro-Western monarchy and took the lives of young King Faisal II and Premier Nuri Said.

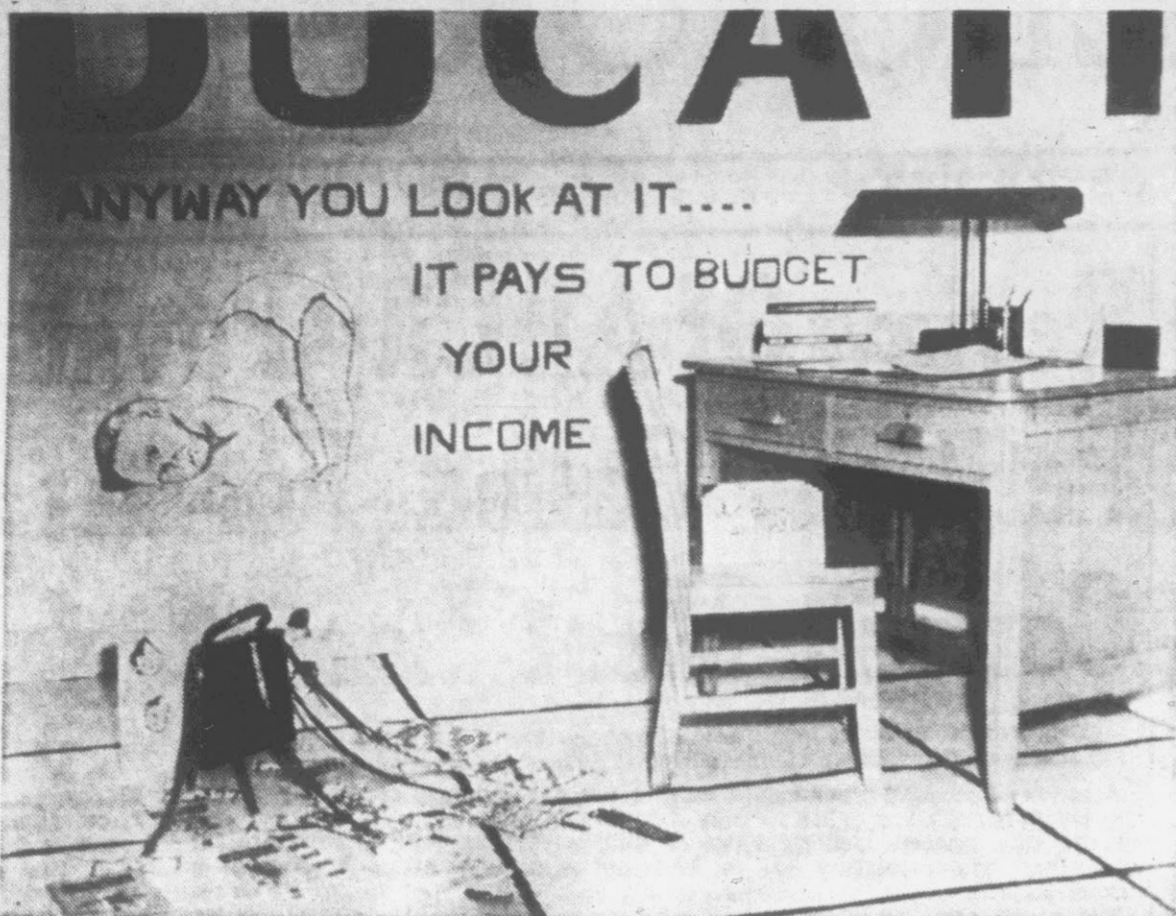

The lean, hard-working bachelor made a daily practice of driving home during the afternoon for a bath.

U.S. Girls Choose Separates

By DOROTHY ROE Associated Press Women's Editor THE GREAT AMERICAN fashion cult of separates goes on and on, with millions of women all over the country basing their wardrobes on an ample supply of shirts, skirts, sweaters, slacks and shorts to be mixed or matched at will and dressed up or down to suit any occasion.

COVERT SKIRT... Fall favorite in the skirt lineup is classic covert cloth in beige or gray, with semi-flared panel and pressed pleats to give ease in walking, shown with striped silk shirt, designed by Evan-Picone.

MUTED PLAID... Newest plaid slacks are in subtle multi-berry tone, with wool-and-cotton shirt to match.

Strong advocates of this prescription for every-day dressing are the Evans brothers, Charles and Robert, of New York, who started a decade ago turning out some of the first man-tailored slacks and skirts cut to fit and flatter the feminine figure.

Sculptors Say It With Soap

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeature
PEOPLE HAVE FOUND the need to express themselves artistically since the beginning of time. One of the oldest occupations, sculpture, has captured the imagination of young and old, because man can use materials at hand to promote this hobby.

A great deal of satisfaction may come from carving soap. If it doesn't work, just use it for washing, and begin again on a fresh bar. Soap needs no special treatment, is firm enough to be carved, and will yield to young hands. Simple tools such as paring or kitchen knives and orangewood sticks may be used.

If the design is kept simple, the smallest child may rise to the challenge and every year youthful entrants in a national soap sculpture contest walk away with honors. Some 60,000 schools and school principals cooperate in one such venture, some incorporating the contest into their curricula.

The usual way to begin carving soap is to do just that, but a rough outline of the form may be scratched on the soap before you begin. Small fry may wish to sketch an idea on paper, transferring it to the soap.

Soap should be dry for at least 24 hours before carving begins, and it should be carved from one high point to the next until all planes and forms have been cut away from the highest to lowest planes. High points are those near the surface of the soap. Low points are those farther in.

When the piece is about finished, smooth rough surfaces with the edge of the knife. Details may be marked in with orangewood stick or a sharp instrument.

Dry the model before polishing it. (A day or two.) Polish it by rubbing it all over with cleansing tissue, then gently with fingertips and the palm of the hand to introduce a soft finish and bring out the highlights. A soap carving should not be painted or coated.

If two cakes of soap are to be joined for a larger piece of sculpture, scrape down the sides of the cakes you wish to join until surfaces are smooth and level. Place the cakes of soap in a shallow pan of water over slow heat for a few minutes, inserting sharpened toothpicks to reinforce the joint. Place them where they will not interfere with the carving later. Press the cakes together and allow them to dry and harden for several hours under a weight. If more than two cakes are needed, repeat the operation, letting each joint harden before adding another cake.

A million dollars was made available by the Legislature if the people of North Carolina could match it, in order to start the Gallery. It took two days to pass the art bill of the million dollars which was the first time in history that such a sum was acquired from the Legislature to be used solely on art.

Dr. Humber Speaks To Delphain Club

Mrs. Cameron Dudley and Mrs. Ed Tipton were hostesses to members and guests of the Delphain Book Club on Tuesday at Mrs. Tipton's home in Forest Hills. A three course luncheon was served. The tables were appointed in a pink color scheme of fall flowers.

Mrs. Herbert Paschal introduced the guest speaker, Dr. Robert Humber. Dr. Humber spoke about North Carolina's Art Gallery and the hardships to overcome in acquiring it.

A million dollars was made available by the Legislature if the people of North Carolina could match it, in order to start the Gallery. It took two days to pass the art bill of the million dollars which was the first time in history that such a sum was acquired from the Legislature to be used solely on art.

The now outstanding Gallery possesses eight schools of art. They are English, Flemish, Dutch, German, Spanish, Italian, French and American.

The requirements for purchase of paintings include: they must be recognized, conditions must be excellent, and prices must be reasonable.

Among the famous paintings, there are seven masterpieces by one famous master, "Rubens," one of which is "Joan of Arc."

In closing, Dr. Humber stated that 82 per cent of the people who visit the Gallery are North Carolinians, 16 percent other states, and two percent abroad. North Carolina has an Art Gallery that commands national existence, even though it isn't quite four years old.

After the program, the president, Mrs. Warren Aldridge, opened the business meeting and introduced the guests, Mrs. Robert Humber and Mrs. P. J. Dayson. Roll call and minutes of the last meeting were read by the recording secretary, Mrs. William Jenkin. Booklets were then presented to each member.

Books were assigned and the meeting adjourned.

Suggests Somebody Missed Boat

When a new series of math textbooks confuse and baffle teachers in the public schools, it is at least suggestive that someone missed the boat either in selecting the books for use in the schools or in instructing teachers on the proper use of the books.

Frankly we were shocked by the announcement that consultants of the State Board of Education and publishers of the books were coming to Greenville this week to conduct instruction sessions on use of the textbooks for teachers of Greenville schools.

We are also confident that the calibre of teacher in the local system is equal to if not superior to that of the average school system throughout the state. If our teachers are having trouble with the new series of math textbooks, we're confident teachers in other school systems throughout the state must be having trouble also.

According to Superintendent J. H. Rose of the Greenville schools, the new series of textbooks approach the instruction in arithmetic in an entirely different way, and teachers are baffled by the approach. That being the case, it is evident that somewhere along the line someone missed the boat by putting into the hands of teachers of the state a new tool they were not prepared to use in the most effective manner.

It is our guess that the fault does not lie with the teachers nor officials of the local school system. It appears that the mistake was made at a higher level in the state's public school system. Perhaps conferences such as the ones being conducted here this week will rectify the situation as it pertains to this particular series of math texts.

Even so, there should be a careful evaluation made at the state level to determine how the situation came about and how a repetition can be avoided in future years with other new books that are put into use in our public school classrooms.

Another Lift For Two Seaports Of Tarheelia

Approval by the Maritime Administration for American Export Lines vessels to use North Carolina port facilities at Morehead City and Wilmington puts another feather in the cap of the two Tar Heel ports as they seek to attract more import-export trade.

It took four months of negotiating by the State Ports Authority to bring about the approval, but over a period of years the new arrangement will be well worth the trouble the state has gone to.

American Export Lines serve the Mediterranean area, Black Sea, Red Sea, India, Ceylon and Burma and has a fleet of ships specially equipped to handle tobacco cargo. It will mean that Turkish and Grecian tobaccos which go into American cigarettes can now be moved through North Carolina ports by a company which handles a considerable portion of this cargo.

It also means that North Carolina ports, rather than those of other states, can be the gateway for foreign tobaccos which go into cigarettes produced in this and other states. With the tobacco, it is likely that other items of cargo will also be handled by North Carolina ports from these additional ships that will be calling.

The Maritime Authority's approval for American Export Lines vessels to call at North Carolina's ports opens new potential for the state's deep water ports and likewise enhances the prestige of our ports.

Butler Source Of Dis-Harmony

By LYNN NISBET

BUTLER—Paul Butler, national Democratic chairman, is no more popular with North Carolina Young Democrats than he is with Southern Democrats in the regular party organization. There were numerous places in the keynote address delivered by Governor Hodges at the YDC State convention last week which could have been applauded with good grace. In fact, the Governor seemed to pause once or twice for applause which did not come. But when he denounced Chairman Butler for advocating legislation certain to be vetoed by the President, just so the Democrats could make political hay out of the veto record, the audience applauded vigorously.

Again, when John Larkins, national committeeman, combined a report of recent experiences at the committee meeting with an appeal for financial support of the party, the only spontaneous applause came at his critical references to Paul Butler's complete dominance of the situation. It is quite evident that Tarheel Democrats do not like Paul Butler.

UNITY—Another angle of the Hodges and Larkins talks, as well as others on the program, raised questions of consistency. They all appealed for unity, for a united front against the Republicans, for cessation of Democratic fighting within the party, and so on—but in every instance these appeals were preceded by attacks on the policies of the national chairman. Southern leaders do not like the chairman's attitude any more than Paul Butler likes the attitude of the South. And neither party has any hesitancy in publicizing the differences. Such emphasis on disagreement would seem to be a poor foundation for harmony.

GOVERNORS—There is some feeling around Asheville that maybe that community, and perhaps the whole State of North Carolina, "bit off more than it could chew" by assuming major responsibility for acting as host to the Southern Governors Conference in relation to numerous other projects. Some of the main people charged with arrangements for the Governors Conference also are busy with plans for the European industry-hunting trip to follow a few weeks later.

The Governors Conference was scheduled to begin on Sunday, October 11. Plans were made to welcoming the visiting executives in a sort of mass ceremony Sunday afternoon. Hotel reservations and other facilities were being readied for that time. Apparently the hosts overdid the portrayal of the beauties and advantages of the section, because most of the Governors have advised they will arrive on Saturday. That called for changing a lot of plans—plus raising more money for an extra day's entertainment.

Nearly all the Governors expect to come by air, and that adds to probable complications. When the place and time for the conference was set it was expected the new Asheville airport would be open. It isn't and the present field does not afford facilities for instrument landing in bad weather or at night. Big shot speakers for the League of Municipalities meeting and the YDC convention last week had trouble with air transportation.

State and local committees are working day and night to keep up with changing plans and make necessary adjustments. It looks now like everything will go along in good shape. There is no doubt about the fact that the conference has cost more in dollars and energy than was contemplated when it was scheduled.

LEGISLATURE—Whatever sentiment might have existed some weeks ago for a special session of the General Assembly seems to have been entirely dissipated. Main purpose for the proposed extra meeting was to be continuing the court reform fight which ended in a debacle during the final days of the regular session. Then there was some talk of a special to try to get more money for the welfare fund.

It is known that some of the legislators feel that they did not get out of the General Assembly the act they thought they were voting for with respect to welfare payments for indigent aged and disabled. They thought they had assurance that present grants would not be reduced. They find now that the already meager allotments have been cut about $2 a month.

There was some offside talk about presenting a resolution to the YDC convention requesting a special session to deal with this problem if no other solution could be found. However, it was not introduced.

Since the Governor and Council of State cannot limit matters to be considered by a special session to those stated in the call, it becomes less likely every day that they will take a chance on calling the lawmakers back unless some real emergency develops.

Why The Difference In Meeting 2 Issues?

President Eisenhower lost no time in invoking the Taft-Hartley procedures to resume work of longshoremen in East Coast and Gulf ports at least for the 80-day cooling off period provided under the federal law.

The longshoremen had been on strike only a few days when the President appointed his fact-finders and set the procedure in motion.

In contrast, the steel strike has now been going on for more than 80 days and the President has not yet felt it was in the best interest to apply the same action to that situation that he has now applied to the longshoremen's strike.

Why difference in the approach of the Administration to these two major labor disputes, both of which are in basic industries that have far-reaching effects upon the nation's economy?

Can Reds Show Berlin Change?

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

Can Moscow demonstrate that anything, basically, has changed in its approach to the issue of West Berlin's future? This may be the key question standing in the way of a summit meeting. A short time ago the world was told Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev had removed the main obstacles to a summit conference. Only Tuesday Khrushchev seemed to contribute to renewed doubts.

The summit question now is a political issue in Britain, a source of annoyance in France and probably a bit of a Washington headache. Conservative Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, in the midst of a British election campaign, has insisted a summit meeting is assured and has indicated credit for this should accrue to him and his leadership.

Apparently Washington felt obliged to tug a bit of the rug from under Macmillan by announcing that he had been in agreement to convene the meeting. Britain's Laborites jumped on this happily, accusing Macmillan of making election stunts of world issues. And in Paris, France tartly reminded everybody that she, at any rate, had not even been consulted.

Possibly Khrushchev derived some satisfaction from all this Western confusion.

But Khrushchev, who has given every indication he devoutly wants a summit meeting, likely will have some problems himself in this respect.

Although President Eisenhower found that the main obstacles had been removed, he still might be waiting for the results of further tests. Does Khrushchev, for example, really want firm agreement on key issues? Or does he want the conference primarily to capture the world's attention while the Communist movement marks time and awaits opportunities?

Khrushchev's congratulations Tuesday to the East German Communist regime, marking its 10th anniversary today, might arouse considerable skepticism over how much things have changed. In his name, the Kremlin hailed the German Communist regime for an "undefatigable struggle for liquidation of the obsolete occupation regime in West Berlin" and for promoting "unification of the national task of unification of Germany on a peaceful and democratic basis."

This seems to indicate continued Communist pressure on West Berlin, which is a brilliant testimony to Western Standards, deep in the heart of a Communist-run state, and a constant thorn in the Communist side.

As for Germany's reunification, that has the distinct look of red herring. Khrushchev himself has shown clearly he sees little prospect for reunification on any basis at all.

This scene provoked a crisis last November by setting a time limit for ending the four-power occupation of Berlin. Recently, during his American visit, he assured President Eisenhower there would be no time limit on West Berlin negotiations. This seemed to remove the impression of ultimatum.

But — was the ultimatum really ever there? Was Khrushchev really prepared to test the West's mettle by holding to a deadline? In short, was he prepared to risk war over Berlin? It seems unlikely.

It that is the case, then it is difficult to see just how the Soviet attitude has changed at all. President Eisenhower may well be waiting, before agreeing to a summit meeting, to hear if, how, and in what respect the Soviets have given any ground.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS FINDING GOD NOW

Life is, for the most part, made up of a multitude of small recurring events. If you are a woman you get up in the morning and prepare meals through the day, and tend the house, visit a bit with the neighbors, attend some club, spend hours making the affairs of life livable for children. Or perhaps you are employed and are off to the office early. Then the evening, usually spent in not too thrilling a fashion, shopping, to bed, vacations.

A man spends most of his day going through a routine in office, store, mill, or around the farm as he has been doing for years. Nothing exciting or exceptional happens very often. The thrilling comes but a few times during one's career.

Yet for both men and women there are continual sources of satisfaction and little joys which keep happening—often quite unexpectedly—all through life.

In other words, life is no thrilling adventure with one exciting and significant event following another through the year and the years. Life is very prosy. And in that prosy life we must find our satisfactions, and, most important, we must find God.

You are a spiritual being. You are going to live forever, whether you want to or not. Don't wait until someone dies or you or a loved one gets into a difficulty to find God. Find Him now amid the prosy events of everyday living.

'Peaceful Coexistence'

RES MANNING

By HENRY HOWARD

Seldom 'HOW' To Do It

In talking to a friend last night, it suddenly hit me full in the face that so often there are those authorities who are more than willing to make improvements in their respective walks of life and have a great volume of valuable suggestions. The appalling thing is many suggestions they have are "what to do," scarcely "how to do it!" Many a layman in a particular field can sit and listen to a top-notch authority reeling off pointer after pointer as to how to improve a particular situation. Straightway, he is overcome by his enthusiasm to set things aright. After receiving the instructions, he is impatient to get back to the grind stone and begin renovations. Then the real problem arises. He thinks to himself: "Now Mr. X said that this must be done as quickly as possible." He sets himself to the task. He is on the threshold of beginning a major operation which will greatly improve the results of his dealings. Suddenly he wonders: "Surely I completely understand what to do; but... but Mr. X didn't say anything about HOW to go about it. And I was so sure of myself."

What a shame. Wasting all that enthusiasm on what will amount to absolutely nothing. Persons qualified to instruct (and there may be fewer of these than most realize) should always bear in mind that they do have a real service to render. And it's not really such a tough job to explain a few "how's" along with the "what's."

If these authorities would only realize what really needs to be done as quickly as possible and then spend more time in deep and experienced thinking about what methods could be used to gain the objective, there would be a much larger percentage of results from the same volume of effort.

Not to convey the thought that all people must be led each step along the way, it must be stressed that a single step in the right direction is often sufficient. Ingenuity among laymen is far from dead. For that reason, a simple misunderstanding can lead all that ingenuity astray.

If instructors can make plain exactly what needs to be accomplished and then set forth only an example or two, then the personnel who actually DO the job may begin to exercise initiative in the proper direction and achieve some real and positive results. Actually Mr. X is just about as indispensable as anything we have. The point is that he may be extremely effective or calmly static.

To be effective he must spend at least as much (if not more) time on "How's" as "What's."

American people, by tradition, are more independent than any of the world's people. They cannot tolerate to be told what to do; still, they are sensible people and will eagerly pick up a tip or hint strategically dropped to them by "one who knows." In this day and time, it seems that all Mr. X's in all occupations should give more and more careful thought to what's going on around them and what should be corrected. . . AND HOW!

Statewide Bond Issue

(Washington Daily News)

On October 27 the voters of Beaufort county will not only be called upon to vote in a local million dollar school bond issue, but they will also be asked to ballot on the matter of issuing state bonds in the amount of $34,000,000 for the purpose of providing certain improvements in the state.

First of all, there is the sum of $18,891,000 for educational institutions for capital improvements. Secondly, there is the sum of $12,053,000 for the purpose of providing capital improvements for our state mental institutions.

Next, there is the sum of $1,500,000 for capital improvement programs at our community colleges in the state.

Then, there is the sum of $500,000 for Hospital Care improvement bonds.

The sixth item is for $466,000 for capital improvement at our State Training schools.

The eighth item totals $140,000 to be used for capital improvements at our State Blind Rehabilitation center.

The ninth item is for the sum of $500,000 to be used by the North Carolina State Ports authority for improvements.

The tenth item is for the amount of $250,000 for historical sites construction and restoration.

As one looks over the amount set out in the bond order and studies the needs over North Carolina, it is hardly conceivable that a great many people will find the statewide bond issue distasteful. Of course, the bond so issued must be paid back, but we are told that state taxes will not be increased for that purpose. However, all of us realize that tax money eventually will have to be used to pay back the bonds regardless of whether or not present taxes are increased.

When we look at a bond issue of this type, if we are to look more upon the size of the bond issue than we are upon the needs which are to be fulfilled, then a lot of people certainly will vote against the proposals. But mentally retarded people, blind people seeking educations, and the like must be provided with facilities. And the people of North Carolina must pay for these facilities. We cannot stand still. All the needs set out for the above named groups must be met.

Sick, mentally retarded, and blind persons are not equipped to fight their own battles, and thinking people of North Carolina must help them. If we don't help them, we are failing humans in need.

There is only one of the 10 items we would question. That is the sum of $500,000 for the State Ports authority. We have long held that the state ought to take more interest in our inland waterways rather than spend every cent on Wilmington and Morehead City. We still feel that way, and when we vote for this issue, we, in our opinion, are only voting for improvements at these two ports. We seem to have forgotten or bypassed our state inland ports, and we regret to see this happen.

As to the issue of $250,000 for historical sites and restoration, we understand that Colonial Bath will get $15,000 from the bond issue, if it is approved. That fact within itself ought to be enough for the voters of our county to give item 10 a strong majority.

Between now and October 27 citizens of Beaufort county ought to study all these proposals carefully. With the possible exception of item nine, we see no reason why our people should not give each of the items strong endorsement.

Furnace Repair Racket Season

By ELMER ROESSNER

There's a nip in the air. That brings out another nipper, one who nips home owners in the furnace repair racket.

Better Business Bureaus, police departments, Elmer Roessner and others will be warning home owners against the furnace-racket nippers. Perhaps combined efforts will save a few thousand persons from being ripped.

But, if past experience is a criterion, even more thousands will be bamboozled and sucked dry of their savings.

Here's how the bamboozlers work: They call a home owner, flash gold-printed cards that look official, and mutter something about "furnace inspectors." Then they depend on the furnace, loosening bolts, taking things apart and hammering firebricks until—unless the owner intervenes—they soon have the furnace dismantled and spread around the basement floor.

THE DOTTED LINE They tell the owner, in their own double-talk, that the furnace is in bad shape and can't "pass inspection." It needs a new clowheel, the rinderpast is shot, and unless the torque is fixed, the fire department will probably condemn the dwelling.

But, they add, they can repair it and get it to pass inspection. Signing a few papers will make it possible. The papers include a contract for repairs or a new furnace and a commitment for payments.

If the owner signs, the con men sell the contract to a repair man or, more likely, pay him a small sum and discount the payment paper at the local bank.

If he refuses to sign, they leave the guts of his furnace strewn about the basement floor. It may cost him as much to have an honest furnace man put the parts back in their working place.

WATCHING TRANSFERS Recently, these furnace slicks have refined their racket. They watch real estate transfers and close in on those who have just bought a house. The buyer has had little experience with furnaces as a rule, he has not yet made a deal with a local fuel oil dealer.

He, in the language of the swindlers, is "naked." And they are among the few people in the world who can pluck a naked pigeon. A new home owner is much more susceptible to the wiles of the phonies than a householder who has established long contacts with suppliers, repairmen and real inspectors.

This time of the year is especially critical. When it gets colder, a home owner will resist having his heat shut off, and you can't tear down a furnace without turning it off.

It is futile, perhaps, for Better Business Bureaus to issue warn-

Secret: Find A Balance

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Once upon a time a poverty-ridden young office boy in a theatrical office picked up his pen and wrote his way to five million dollars. "I have none of the money left, and I have no regrets," said playwright Moss Hart, who at 54 is still one of the theater's top earners.

"Looking back this summer, I was amazed to find I had written 22 plays and directed 11 others. It's a wonder, coming up to the firing line so often, I don't look 84."

"The week before 'Once in a Lifetime' opened I was making $45 a week, the next week $2,000. And when it closed a year and a half later, I only had $750 left."

"But someone once said you only keep what you spend, and I believe it."

"I'm not a fool about money. It's because I know the value of money that I'm not afraid of it, and refuse to worry about it. I feel that if you think poor, you write poor."

Moss, haunted by poverty and great dreams, had to go to work before he was old enough to enter high school. He has told of his early struggles memorably in "Act One," a best-selling autobiography that has met instant acclaim, which he hugely enjoys.

"I'm taking it big," he said pleasantly. "I hate mock modesty. I believe people should enjoy success to the full."

"But everything in life has its price. The wisdom lies in deciding when the price is too high."

"Some people are left in life with nothing but success. But you can't wake up in the morning and wrap your arms around a good press notice."

"To strike a balance—that's the trick. One has to strike a balance, so that one's work doesn't rob one of all the other things."

A heart attack five years ago led Moss to reassess his own life.

"In eight weeks of lying flat in bed you make a lot of hospital resolves, and some of them you keep," he said. "After that nothing that happens seems quite so calamitous, and every sunny day seems a bit sunnier."

Author Somerset Maugham recently described Hart as "the world's best talker." He puffs meditatively on a caramel-colored meerschaum pipe.

"I'm a greater believer in not sitting down in your own mind," Moss said. "You can't let yourself become too comfortable. You have to shake up your life now and then—even if it do is boring, unpleasant or even dangerous."

Asked his advice to young writers, Moss said crisply: "Sit down and write. There is no other way. Writing is learned only by writing."

Opinions In Brief

"A Memphis mother reports that during the last semester her children have left two jackets, a sweater and three gloves at school and have brought home numerous colds, the chicken pox and many disappointing grades." — Memphis Press-Scimitar.

"Beware of grocery store gifts bearing marital hazards. There are now so many offers of free chinaware — with soap, with gasoline, with groceries in general—husbands should look out. Irate wives have so many extras they don't even have to think twice before they let a plate fly." —The Oak Ridger.

"The extent of tax evasion is always a reliable gauge of how oppressive citizens feel their tax burden is. A point can be reached where evasion becomes almost general. Perhaps this point is already at hand in our nation. Widespread cheating on income tax can be a potent force in demoralizing a nation, generally lessening its support for decency, law and order." —Dallas Times Herald.

Seafood Dishes Pose A Mystery

By CECILY BROWNSTONE, Associated Press Food Editor

Two distinguished seafood dishes are American born. One is Oysters Rockefeller, the other Shrimp de Jonghe.

We have yet to visit New Orleans, dine at Antoine's, and taste the famous Oysters Rockefeller. But ever since Jules Alciatore, son of the founder of Antoine's, created that dish the restaurant's offering has been widely copied. We've enjoyed wonderfully good imitations of it in various parts of the country. One we remember with a distinct winking of the appetite, came from the kitchens of a Russian dining place in Chicago. To concoct a version of Oysters Rockefeller at home, you have only to turn to The New Fannie Farmer for guidance.

According to legend, the shrimp dish was originated by a Belgian couple named de Jonghe who once operated a restaurant in Chicago. Like the rule for Oysters Rockefeller, the recipe for Shrimp de Jonghe was kept a well-guarded secret. But tasters who savored or heard of it made facsimiles in their own kitchens, and once in a while we come upon one of these recipes.

All these rules for Shrimp de

Jonghe have a basic similarity—cooked shelled shrimp are seasoned with a mixture of butter, bread crumbs and herbs and baked or broiled. But one point remains a mystery: did the de Jonghes use bread crumbs of the dry or soft variety? Does anyone know the answer? Readers who were fortunate enough to have eaten the dish as originally prepared by the Belgian couple will do us a big favor if they will share their knowledge with us.

The following version of Shrimp de Jonghe follows the soft bread-crumbs school. We use individual inexpensive heat-resistant glass pie plates to hold the seafood and the recipe makes four small but rich main dishes. We served these for lunch accompanied by a salad of tossed greens, cucumber and a tart vinaigrette sauce; for dessert fruit and cheese.

SHRIMP DE JONGHE

Ingredients: 1 pound shrimp (cooked and shelled and drained), 4 slices (about) white bread, 1-4 pound (1/2 cup) butter (softened but not melted), 3-4 to 1 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons minced onion, 2 cloves garlic (minced), 1-4 teaspoon dried crushed thyme, 1-4 teaspoon dried crushed tarragon,

1 teaspoon minced parsley, 1-4 teaspoon tabasco sauce, 2 tablespoons lemon juice.

Method: Slice each shrimp in half lengthwise; reserve. Trim crusts from bread; break apart and blend bread very quickly, a few pieces at a time, in an electric blender. If you haven't a blender, mince the bread (using a sharp knife) to form tiny crumbs. Use enough of the bread to make 1 1/2 cups lightly packed crumbs. Blend together butter, salt, onion, garlic, thyme, tarragon, parsley, tabasco sauce and lemon juice. Stir in bread crumbs. Arrange shrimp over bottoms of four individual heat-resistant pie dishes (about 5 to 6 inches in diameter and about 1 inch deep). Cover shrimp with crumb mixture. Broil slowly so shrimp are heated through and topping is lightly browned—about 10 minutes. Serve at once; makes 4 portions.

Bridge Club

STOKES—Mrs. Jack Edwards was hostess to the Stokes Bridge Club last Thursday evening.

After three progressions were played by the eight members present, Mrs. Blanch Forbes was declared high scorer and Mrs. Evelyn Parker was given the consolation prize.

Pine Cone Wreaths

North Carolina craft ideas are spreading into Virginia. Mrs. Ada Daila Jozza, home economics agent in Anson County, reports that requests have been received from Virginia for information on making pine cone wreaths.

Directions and other guides have been sent regarding the craft which has proven popular in Anson.

STEAK TIP

Like a steak medium-rare? If you are using one two inches thick, place it about four inches from high heat and broil twenty minutes on each side. This suggestion is for a steak taken directly from the refrigerator, not for one at room temperature.

DIFFERENT STUFFING

Ever combined mashed sweet potatoes and bulk sausage meat for a stuffing for roast chicken? Cook the sausage meat slowly before using and drain off the fat.

Fall Suits Lead Multiple Lives

WHAT WITH WORLD-WIDE TRAVEL and the limitations of airplane luggage, a new system of dressing is being developed by globe-trotting women. They wear a complete wardrobe and use the luggage for accessories and extras. Quick to anticipate the new trend is Arthur Jablow, whose family has been making suits and coats for American women for two generations. His new collection for fall and winter features the "double play" in suits, coats and costumes—a device by which one outfit can adjust itself to almost any change of weather or occasion.

A case in point is the double-jacket suit, in feather-weight wool. The extra jacket is completely fur-lined and reversible. A woman could start on a trip wearing the basic suit and the jacket with fur side out. Aboard train or plane she would remove the outer jacket and be trimly attired in a smart, comfortable and light-weight two-piece suit. Arrived at her destination, with no time to change for a cocktail date, she could remove the basic jacket to reveal a dressy, h-w-necked silk or jersey blouse in matching color, change jewelry, toss the fur jacket around her shoulders and be correctly attired for after-five festivities.

Other variations of the double play make possible many changes in outfits of suit and coordinated reversible travel coat, dress-and-jacket costumes, three-and-four-piece ensembles all designed to go together.

There also are suits featuring jackets with built-in-gilets and two-way closings, for variation of effect.

Thus equipped, a woman might travel around the world with minimum luggage and be properly dressed for any hour or any climate.

DOUBLE PLAY... Suit of light-weight wool has extra jacket completely lined in fur and reversible, permitting many variations of the costume.

TWO-WAY JACKET... Quick change in Jablow's suit of dark green wool with leopard collar. Built-in gilet may be worn closed as shown or open for plunging neckline.

How To Deal With Child's Speech Defect

WHAT IS a speech defect? And when is it serious? No baby speaks clearly and we certainly do not consider the early mispronunciations a defect. But by the age of 5 a child should:

- Speak distinctly.
- Make his meaning clear.
- Speak with a voice that is pleasant to hear.

If your child falls short of this standard he may have a speech defect that needs attention.

But the things that might be wrong are many. Some are simple and of no great significance, some are more serious. But even the simple ones are better off treated. It's hard on anyone to go through life not quite able to get his meaning clearly across to others. Even if the defect is not that serious an unpleasant peculiarity in speech can be a handicap. Treatment of speech defects is more successful in childhood. Grown people have to work harder to overcome their speech peculiarities.

Only about 20 percent of all speech defects are due to faulty structure in the child. Such conditions as cleft palate and cerebral palsy and loss of hearing do interfere with normal speech, but the vast number of speech defects grow out of the things that happen in the life of the child, things that influence his personality and the way he looks and thinks about the world in which he lives.

The most common defect among young children is faulty articulation, the child does not use his tongue, lips and jaw to the best advantage.

No child is born with the ability to start right off talking correctly. All children mispronounce many words, but as they get older and hear correct speech they gradually improve their own diction. It is normal for a 2-year-old to "frown" a ball but a 5-year-old should "throw" it. Two-year-olds have "muvvers," but 5-year-olds should have "mothers."

"R" is a troublesome sound. Little folks often eat "wolls" instead of "rolls" and when they ask for "lam" instead of "ham" it causes confusion.

When "s" is the cause of trouble we call it lisping. Most all little children love a "swing." Sometimes "s" is whistled through the lips and the child sounds like a radiator expelling steam or the "s" is formed between the upper and lower teeth and we get "lohn" instead of "loss."

All children do these things. Why do some outgrow them and some hang on to their baby speech?

Maybe the child's speech is poor because he has not had a good example to follow, either because your own speech leaves something to be desired or because you don't talk to him enough. Maybe you have repeated to him his own cute little baby sayings until he gets the idea that's the way it should be. Or maybe you pay too much attention to his speech and are forever nagging him to speak clearly. Finally he becomes balky and just won't try any more. You never do a child a service to harp on his defects. It's better to just ignore his mistakes but always say the words correctly yourself. After a while he picks up the right way.

But if at 5 your child hasn't outgrown his baby talk you will probably need some help in correcting his speech. It would be wise to get in touch with a good speech therapist who can analyze young youngster's difficulty and help him overcome them. Ask your doctor to recommend a speech therapist. If you have trouble locating one, write to the American Speech and Hearing Assn., Wayne University, Detroit, Mich. They will send you a list of qualified therapists in your area.

BREAD CRUMBS may tell the tale here, for this casserole of Shrimp de Jonghe was made with soft-bread crumbs. The original recipe was kept secret and there's some question about whether dry-bread or soft-bread crumbs were used by the Belgian couple, de Jonghe, who invented the dish.

SHADOW OF GUILT

A NEW THRILLER by PATRICK QUENTIN

CHAPTER 20

"Chuck Ryson's lawyer, Macgwire, was present at the time he talked," Lieutenant Trant told Connie and me. "Chuck made his statement quite voluntarily, and I assure you it was all aboveboard."

Trant paused, studying Connie's face with his bland, unwinking attention. "His reasons, by the way, for not having talked earlier were touching. It was all a rather romantic attempt to protect your daughter."

A sudden image came to me of Ala in that mustard-colored little room, standing like a dummy by Don Saxby's body with her gloved hands clutched together over the middle button of her coat. Was it conceivable then that Chuck could have known she'd been there?

"Protect Ala?" I said sharply.

Trant turned to me. "Yes, Mr. Hadley. He was trying to protect her from scandal. Since he knew he could rely on you and your family not to say anything, he felt that if he didn't say anything either, Miss Hadley's relationship with Mrs. Saxby might never come out at all. It was quiet of him, of course, but he seems to love her very much indeed."

"That's why he refused to say a word, even to his father, until I told him about the motel owners and Mrs. Fostwick. Then, of course, he realized there was nothing he could do any more, so he talked. He gave us a pretty full report of the episode between Miss Hadley and Saxby. He also told us exactly how Mr. Ryson's gun happened to get into Saxby's apartment."

"But he didn't kill him," the words came in anguish from Connie. "He didn't, did he? It's all been explained. He had nothing to do with it at all."

Lieutenant Trant's face was very solemn, almost, it seemed to me, commiserative.

"The moment it was ready a typed copy of Chuck's statement was rushed to the D. A., Mrs. Hadley. I'm sorry to tell you this, but the D.A.'s just been on the phone to me. He's read the statement and, on the strength of the statement, he is having us issue a warrant for Chuck's arrest. He will be formally charged with the murder."

"Not!" cried Connie. "No."

She got up.

Trant had got up too.

"I'm glad you're here, Mrs. Hadley," he said. "I think it would be easier for Chuck if it is you and your husband who break the news to him."

He turned away from her and pressed a buzzer on the desk. A policeman came in.

Trant said, "Take Mr. and Mrs. Hadley to Chuck Ryson."

I took Connie's arm. She went meekly with me like a little girl. The policeman led us down the corridor and up in an elevator. There was another bare corridor with the same featureless dinginess. We came to a door. A second policeman was standing in front of it. He let us into a bare room almost identical with Trant's and locked the door behind us.

Chuck was there, sitting on one of the flimsy wooden chairs. I'd been infected by Mal's and Connie's dread of the family insanity and I'd steeled myself to see something quite different from what I saw.

Chuck looked exhausted and he hadn't shaved. The golden stubble on his jaw glistened in the light from the single grimy ceiling bulb, but, so far as I could see, there wasn't the slightest sign of any mental instability. What he looked most of all was scared, very scared and very young.

He jumped up. For one moment he stood looking at us, then Connie took a step toward him and he was running to her, throwing his arms around her.

"Connie. Gee. Connie."

"Chuck—Chuck dear."

"How is she? How's Ala?"

"She's—she's all right."

"I mean, she knows about Saxby now? She knows what sort of a heel—"

"Of course she does."

"Then maybe later, I mean when she's straightened out and all, maybe it'll be okay between us again?"

He drew a little away from Connie, looking down at her with pathetic, dogged hopefulness as if there was nothing in the world to worry anybody but the state of Ala's feelings. Connie was looking back at him blindly, then she turned her head and threw a desperate glance at me.

I said, "We've been talking to Trant you know, Chuck?"

"Yes," he said. "I know."

"He says you've made a full statement."

His eyes, on my face now, were suddenly embarrassed. "I did my best. Honestly, I did. I wasn't going to say a word until I had to. Then . . . then he found out about the motel and everything, so I told him. At least it's over now. We've just got to wait till the D.A. reads the statement. With any luck I'll be out of here in a couple of hours."

As he said that, he smiled a quick, sunny smile. I'd got up the nerve to tell him the truth, but his naive self-confidence undermined me.

I hedged. "But, Chuck, is that what your lawyer told you?"

"Oh, lawyers! You know what lawyers are like. Always looking on the black side, always yacking about technicalities. But what's to stop me getting out of here? I told them the truth."

"The truth!" cried Connie. The wild, afflicted look was still in her eyes but somehow—I suppose because she realized how important it was for Chuck—she'd got control of herself again. "Then, Chuck—you mean, you didn't do it?"

"Do it? Kill Saxby?" He gave a bleak little shrug. "I wanted to. But wanting to and doing it, well, it seems like they're two very different things."

"But—" I began.

Quickly, before I could say what had to be said, Connie threw me another desperate warning glance.

"No, George." She turned back to Chuck. "You didn't do it. Then tell us. Tell us what you told the Lieutenant."

"Okay," said Chuck. "Okay. Sure."

Connie crossed to me then. She put her hand on my arm, firmly, making it even more plain to me that she wanted me to keep my mouth shut. She said, "But you did take Mal's gun?"

Chuck's face was very solemn. He looked down at the carpetless floor, then he dropped back in his chair.

"Sure," he said. "I took it."

"On Saturday night? When Vivien found you in their room?"

"That's right. It was after you'd told me about Saxby, about what sort of a guy he was, about what had been happening with Ala. At first, I couldn't really have taken it in. I mean, everything had seemed so wonderful with Ala finally saying she loved me, with the wedding set and everything. I—I just couldn't believe it. But then, although you'd told me not to tell Dad or Vivien, when I got home I had to mention Saxby's name. And that did it."

"Dad came out with the whole story of the people in Toronto and it was as if up till then the shock had kept me from feeling, because, as I sat there listening to Dad, I suddenly got so mad I couldn't wait for any more. I had to get away, to be by myself. So I went up to my room. I sat on the bed and—I wanted to kill him. It was just as simple as that. I wanted to kill him. Then I thought of Dad's gun. . . ."

"The thought of the gun kind of hypnotized me. I wanted to feel it in my hand. And then . . .", Chuck is going to admit to Connie and George. Continue the story tomorrow.

God & Country Award To Scout

MAC HARRIS

The God and Country Award, one of the highest given in Scouting, was made to Mac Harris, 13, of 1611 Beaumont Drive in services at the Hooker Memorial Christian Church Sunday.

The award, presented by the church rather than by scout headquarters, requires one year of studies by the scout of information from scout headquarters with the help of a minister. It ranks alongside of the Eagle Scout Award.

Harris, a member of Troop 33 of the Eighth Street Christian Church, is quartermaster and patrol leader in his troop.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J.L. Harris Jr.

Junior Leaders Training Course This Weekend

The Pitt District Junior Leaders Training Course will be held from 9 a.m. Saturday until 10 a.m. Sunday at the camp site of Troop 340 near 14th Street Extension in Greenville, according to Scout Officials.

The training course, for all boys leaders in Pitt District, will include such topics as patrol organization, patrol hikes, camping, cooking, meetings, and the patrol and troop.

Certificates will be awarded Sunday morning to those boys completing the course.

A registration of two dollars is required of each boy. No registrations will be accepted at the course site.

Those attending the course should bring uniforms, bed roll, pencil and notebook, toilet articles, towel, raincoat, flashlight, scout handbook and the patrol leader's handbook.

Airplane Crashed Into Sunken Ship

SEASIDE HEIGHTS, N. J. (AP) — A 20th Century plane crashed into a 19th Century ship but the accident went undiscovered for years.

Skin divers came upon the wreckage while searching the ocean floor about five miles off the coast.

Cradled among the corroded wooden timbers of a sunken commercial vessel of the 1890s was the wreckage of a small aircraft of the type used for training at the beginning of World War II.

The plane had apparently crashed almost 20 years ago in exactly the same place where the ocean swallowed the old ship in the late 19th Century.

The veiled Tuaregs of the Sahara Desert never bathe, says the National Geographic Society. Wind-driven sand keeps their bodies clean.

Nearly Trapped By Over-Talking

BALTIMORE (AP)—Things looked pretty bad for Peter Mennin, director of the Peabody Conservatory of Music.

He chatted with a visitor so long they found everyone else in the building gone and the front door locked. The door to Mennin's office slammed, trapping them in the hall — out of reach of the key on Mennin's desk.

And when Mennin reached into his pocket to call the janitor from a hallway phone booth, he RICHMOND, R. I. (AP) — At thought there are five post offices in the township of Richmond, you can't find the dot for Richmond on the map because there is no village of Alton, Wood River Junction, Shannock, Kenyon and Wyoming. But perhaps this town of 1772 inhabitants is more famous for streets, ponds and location.

Among the more colorful names are Smallpox Lane, Quarrelsome Corners, Skunk Hill Road, Moonshine Swamp, Coward's Hole, and Frying Pan Pond.

16 SUPERLATIVE NEW CHEVROLETS FOR 1960!

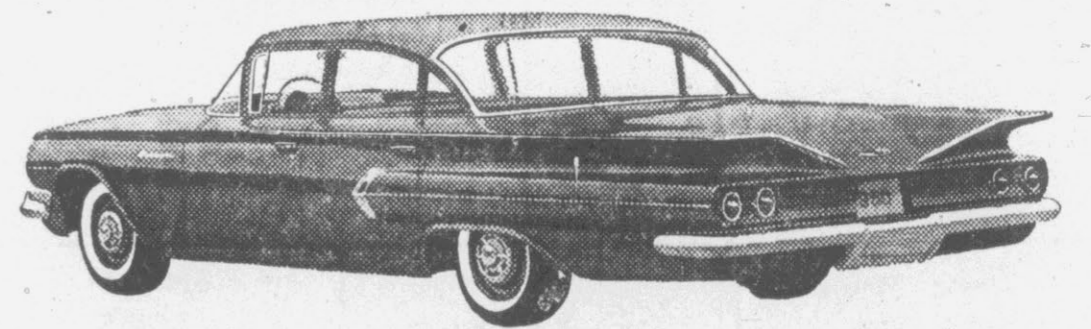

Nearest to perfection a low-priced car ever came!

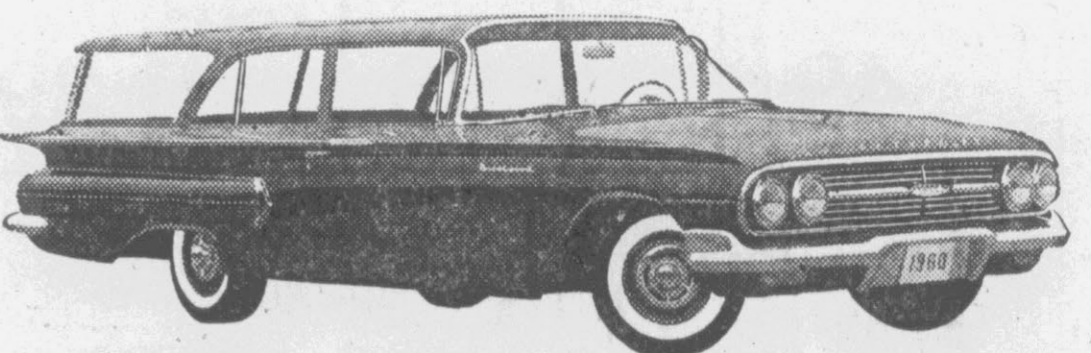

4 IMPALAS—Nowhere else in the low-price field will you find luxury like this. These fresh, fashionable Impalas—most elegant of all the superlative '60 Chevrolets—are all the car you ever yearned for. Each embodies distinctive treatment inside and out, with triple-unit rear lights, fingertip door releases and safety-reflector armrests. Besides the Impala sport sedan above, there are a convertible, sport coupe and 4-door sedan.

4 BEL AIRS—Sumptuous as these Bel Airs are to behold, they're priced just above Chevy's thriftiest models. And, like all Chevis, they give you a choice of two of the thriftiest engines going as standard equipment—the famed Hi-Thrift 6 and a new Economy Turbo-Fire V8 that gets up to 10% more miles out of a gallon of regular while giving you more "gilt" at normal speeds. Besides the 4-door Bel Air sedan above, there are a 2-door sedan, sport sedan and sport coupe.

3 BISCAYNES—These (though you'd never know to look at them) are the lowest priced of the superlative '60 Chevrolets. They bring you the same basic beauty and relaxing roominess as the other models. And, like all Chevis, they ride on cradle-soft Full Coil suspension, isolated from road shock and noise by thicker, newly designed body mounts. Along with the 4-door Biscayne sedan above, you have your choice of a 2-door and a utility sedan.

5 STATION WAGONS—These Chevy wagons are stunningly styled to carry you away. And they've got the kind of cargo space (over 10 ft. from the back of the front seat to the tip of the tailgate) to carry away most anything you want to take with you. Besides that thrifty 2-door Brookwood above, you have your choice of a 4-door Brookwood, 4-door Parkwood, 9-passenger Kingswood and the nifty Nomad.

Freshmen Stage 'Pleasing Plays'

By MARY H. GREENE

Freshman actors and actresses at East Carolina College gave an audience of approximately 300 people a pleasant evening when they appeared last night in a program of one-act plays. The occasion was the first of two performances of the annual Freshman Plays sponsored by the East Carolina Playhouse.

Final performance of Dan Totheroh's "Nightclub" and Conrad Sells' "Why I Am A Bachelor" will take place tonight at 8 p.m. in the McGinnis auditorium. The public is invited to attend. There is no admission charge.

The plays were well chosen to make a varied program. "Nightclub" sophisticated comedy, with its brief glimpses into the joys and sorrows of those who pass through the dressing room of the fashionable Club Francias, and "Why I Am A Bachelor," a rollicking, fast-paced comedy, with its interesting use of the play-within-the-play technique, offered different appeals to the audience.

Directed by Connie Erwin of Roanoke Rapids and Brooke B. Singletary of Greenville and Four Oaks, "Nightclub" was presented with a cast of fourteen women.

Betty Gardner of Pinetops as the Negro maid Ada and Nancy Jane Collins of Franklinton as Mrs. Brady, attendant in the dressing room, both on stage through most of the play, provided a good opening scene and closed the play effectively as they settled down to read "true romance" stories, oblivious of the drama in the many lives which touched theirs during the evening.

The twelve who played visitors to the dressing room were well cast and did very acceptable jobs in "bit" parts, which in spite of their brevity gave excellent opportunity for the young actresses to show their dramatic talents.

Costuming in "Nightclub" was very attractive, and sound effects of dance music and clapping outside the dressing room were effective. Though the play at times moved a little slowly, it held the attention of the audience from beginning to end.

James E. Smith of Newport News, Va., in the title role of "Why I Am A Bachelor" showed considerable talent and a flair for comedy in the role of a lecturer who gave his reasons for being single by illustrating his remarks with the experiences in courtship and marriage of a young couple.

Laura Gurganus of Greenville and Robert Gooden of Clarkton as Henrietta and Algernon turned in good performances, first as starry-eyed lovers and then as harassed married people.

The success of the comedy was indicated last night by the many hearty laughs and the prolonged applause it won from the audience. The big family fight at the end, a highlight of the evening, was particularly well done and was received with marked approval by those present.

The four-act setting was interestingly planned and well executed. On stage at once, but centered for the action one at a time through lighting effects, were the lecture platform, the exterior of the houses of Henrietta's family and of the young married couple, and the breakfast room in Henrietta and Algernon's home.

Directors of the Sells play were Daniel Yanchisin of Kinston and Vickie Brinn of Washington.

Vanceboro Rector Named Curate For Local Church

The Rev. Richard N. Ottaway, Rector of St. Paul's Church Vanceboro and Trinity Church Chocowinity will become Curate of St. Paul's Church Greenville and Chaplain to Episcopal students at East Carolina College November first.

The Rev. Mr. Ottaway was born in Ypsilanti Michigan, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Ottaway, who are now residents of Wilmington, N. C. He has two brothers and one sister, now Mrs. Richard Newell of Greenville. The young priest graduated from New Hanover High School in Wilmington 1950. He graduated in 1954 with a Bachelor of Arts degree in English with minor in Sociology sciences. At the time of his residence in the local college he was student worker for the Episcopal Church. Also he was a member of Phi Sigma Pi, an honorary fraternity on campus.

In 1957 Mr. Ottaway graduated from Virginia Theological Seminary in Alexandria, Va. During this seminary career he worked with Episcopal students at George Washington University. He was ordained to the Sacred Order of Deacons following graduation by the Rt. Rev. Thomas H. Wright in St. Paul's Church Wilmington 27 June 1957. At that time the Bishop assigned him to be the Minister in charge of his present cures.

Ordination to the Priesthood came May 28, 1958 in St. Paul's Church Vanceboro. Again Bishop Wright ordained.

On July 27, 1958 this young clergyman was married to the former Lou Raye Mewborn in her home parish in Grifton, Mrs. Ottaway is currently attending East Carolina College.

While serving the neighboring churches the new Curate was chairman of the 1959 Cancer Crusade for Beaufort County, Unit of the American Cancer Society. He has also been director of the Alice Hoffman Conference Center at Satter Path for several summer sessions. In addition he had been a member of the Committee, on Recruiting and Promotion in the Diocese of East Carolina.

Gasoline Blaze Kills Two People

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP)—Flaming gasoline killed two persons and burned five others when a 20,000-gallon storage tank went up with a roar in the southern section of the city Wednesday.

Firemen prevented the blaze from spreading to nine other tanks at the Gulf Oil Co. bulk storage yard.

G. W. Dubose, 31, was trying to fix a leaky safety valve at the base of the tank containing high octane gasoline at the time of the flareout. He died instantly.

Otis L. Robinson, 39, also trying to stop the leak, stepped back to wipe his face. The flames engulfed him too. He died in a hospital a few hours later.

Burned critically were Mrs. J. B. Harper Jr., 34, who operates a tire and supply firm with her husband in the Gulf storage lot; Fred W. Mitchell, 52, office manager for Gulf; and Ivan Garrett, 38, a Gulf employee.

Treated and released were Melvin Taylor, 37, a Gulf employee, and John Franklin Moore, 22, a

The couple will reside in Dunn Apartments on Fifth Street.

Asks 'Disaster Area' Label

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Gov. George D. Clyde asked President Eisenhower Wednesday to name five southern Utah counties drought disaster areas. The governor said the request may be enlarged later to include six other counties.

The request came amid federal predictions of a possible water shortage next summer even in areas not plagued by drought this year.

Clyde said conditions were much worse now in the counties than in 1956 when they were declared drought disaster areas.

Leo Carillo To Stay In Hospital

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—Actor Leo Carillo, who underwent abdominal surgery Sept. 3, will have to remain in Santa Monica Hospital for an indefinite period.

The 68-year-old screen and television actor became seriously ill while on a personal appearance tour. His physician said his condition remains serious.

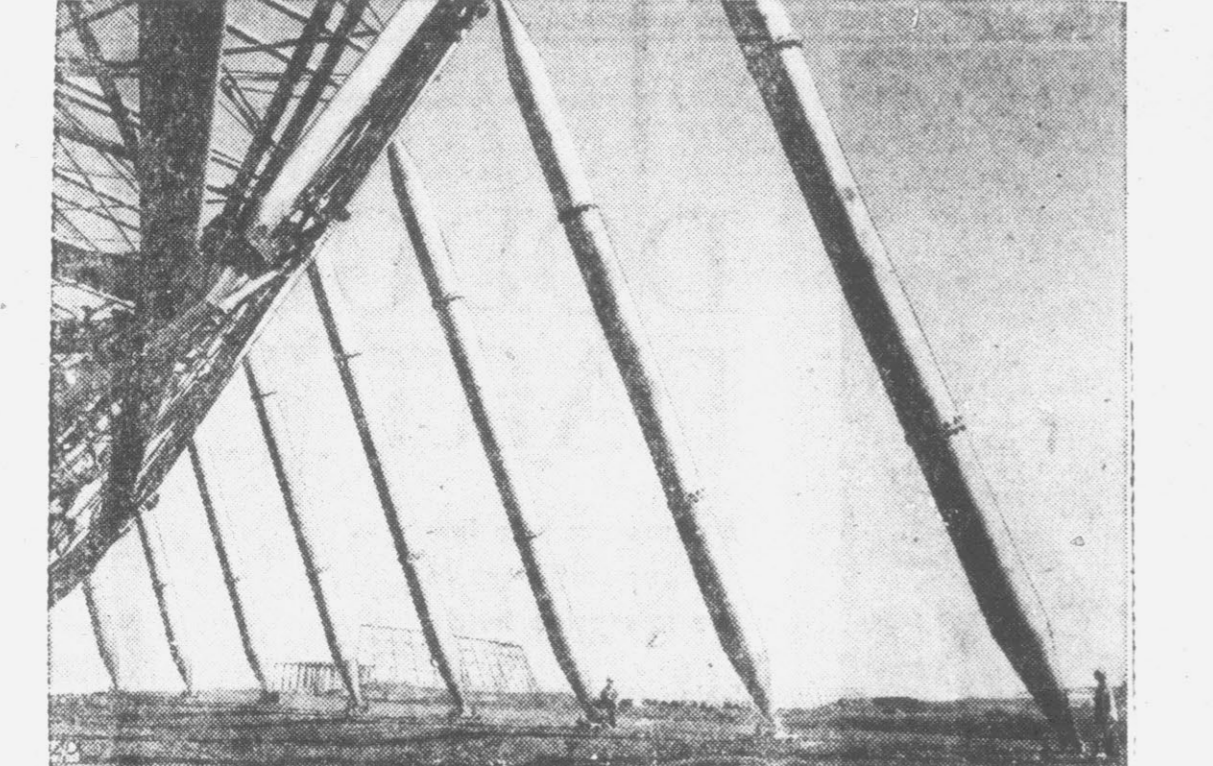

Ten Picked For College Singers

The ten students of music at East Carolina College who have been chosen as members of the College Singers this year have been announced by the department of music. They were selected because of their ability as musicians and their talent as vocalists to sing together during the 1959-1960 term.

The College Singers present a number of programs during each school year. One of the outstanding musical events in which they appear is an annual Christmas recital of carols from many lands.

Dan E. Vornholt of the college department of music is director of the group. Olive G. Herring of Route 1, Dunn, is piano accompanist.

The ten members of the College Singers are: sopranos, Betty Lane Evans of Greenville and Patricia Roberts of Farmville; second sopranos, Dorothy McCleary, of Portsmouth, Virginia, and Janet Wurst of Palmyra, New Jersey; altos, Martha Ann Davis of Clayton and Mrs. Nancy Wilson Harris of Greenville and Asheboro; tenors, Robert J. Holton of Route 1, New Bern and Jerry H. Prescott of Route 1, New Bern; and basses, Kenneth Glim and Rhessa C. Hart of Goldsboro.

GRAY HAIR RETREATS GRACEFULLY

Grecian Formula 16 penetrates hair gradually until natural-looking color appears!

You won't be embarrassed by a sudden, overnight change in your hair color when you use Grecian Formula 16. Grecian Formula 16 is not a coal tar dye or rinse — you won't get that dyed-hair look. It's a colorless liquid that produces excellent results for men and women of all ages and all former hair colors.

Grecian Formula 16 takes only a few minutes to apply in the privacy of your own room. Apply it at the scalp along the part, re-part hair and repeat. In an average of two weeks, your change to natural-looking color will be complete. Thereafter, occasional use is all that is necessary to keep your hair looking radiantly youthful.

Grecian Formula 16 is just right for today's busy, active young grandparents to keep them looking as young as they feel — and for those prematurely gray.

President Of Mexico Visiting Ike On Friday

By JACK RUTLEDGE
 MEXICO CITY (AP) — President Adolfo Lopez Mateos is flying to Washington this week with unusual news — of a Latin-American nation economically sound and friendly to the United States.

The handsome 49-year-old Mexican chief executive is due in Washington Friday to return President Eisenhower's visit to Acapulco.

Although an experienced politician, a gifted speaker, a man with a charming personality and a ready smile, Lopez Mateos is shy. He won't try to match Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's showmanship.

He will be able to talk of Mexico's improving business, its sound peace, and the internal quiet and peace of the nation.

Lopez Mateos took office last December. Since then, he has shaken up the government — and Mexican living — drastically.

Some joke that a recent earthquake in the Isthmus of Tehuantepec was one of his jolts.

The President's father was a dental surgeon who died when Adolfo was less than a year old. His mother struggled to raise five children on a small insurance policy and help from relatives.

He was a scholarship student in a French school in Mexico City and at a high school in Toluca, capital of Mexico state.

He played soccer and boxed and at one time was Mexico's feather-weight champion.

While attending college in Toluca, he sometimes walked 35 miles over 12,000-foot mountains to visit his mother in Mexico City on weekends.

He first got into politics on the campus with a Socialist group. He took his law degree and joined a prominent firm in the capital.

He married a pretty teacher, Eva Samano, in 1940. Her grandfather was British.

He returned to his alma mater briefly in 1943 as director, or president.

His entry into politics came in 1945 when an old friend, Miguel Aleman, was nominated for the presidency and asked Lopez Mateos to be one of his top campaigners. Aleman was elected, and saw to it his friend was elected a senator.

His election was a landslide. He reshaped the Cabinet, creating several new posts. He began his war on corruption in government. He slapped at monopolies. He began to enforce laws long ignored in the business field.

He selected men with qualifications for important offices instead of close friends.

When Guatemala strafed Mexican boats and killed three fishermen, he broke relations. Relations have been restored — on Mexican terms.

Communists incited a nationwide railway strike. When he saw the strike was wrecking the economy, he stepped in and broke it up.

Airline pilots struck, and he seized the airlines temporarily. He fired an unpopular state political leader, a powerful figure in the PRI.

He encourages foreign investments, but insists that Mexican capital participate 51 per cent in all major projects. He has taken steps to halt a once-dangerous inflation. Salaries are climbing. Living standards are improving.

Favor Exploiting Freedom Theme

WASHINGTON (AP) — American foreign policy should give top priority to "peaceful liberation" of captive peoples from Communist domination, a Republican study committee said today.

"We must encourage and exploit any weakening of the bonds that tie the satellites to Moscow," said the 40-member committee, named last March to recommend long-range goals for the GOP.

It thus sounded the "liberation" note that formed a prominent part of the Republican party's 1952 platform, but which administration foreign policy pronouncements have soft-pedaled in recent years.

The committee, however, was careful to qualify its liberation proposal with the words "peaceful" and "nonviolent."

The group, called the Committee on Program and Progress, also endorsed a proposed international agreement for the demilitarization of outer space.

The lengthy report on "national security and peace," made public by the Republican National Committee, is a comprehensive statement on foreign and defense policies, recommended as guide lines for future party planning.

In the foreign affairs field, the report favored (1) progressive shifting of foreign economic aid from government grants to private investments and loans, (2) conditional trade with Communist states that will "help thaw the cold war," and (3) creation of an emergency military force by the United Nations in the event of crisis.

The committee advocated maintenance of a balanced and rounded defense with a variety of weapons for either global or limited wars, but with the United States striving constantly for disarmament agreements.

"We seek to insure that the frontiers of the free world rest not on our own shores, not on the shores of the Atlantic and the Pacific, but on the very borders of the Sino-Soviet bloc itself," the committee said.

Under the Eisenhower administration, it said, Communist expansion has faced a firm and resourceful American policy.

"By maintaining a position of strength, exercising sound judgment and taking every honorable step toward peace, we believe war can be prevented," the committee concluded.

The report was the second of four prepared by task force subcommittees of a larger group headed by Charles H. Percy, Chicago businessman.

The task force on foreign and defense policies was headed by Dr. Albert C. Jacobs, of Hartford, Conn. — president of Trinity College. Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, Senate Republican leader, was a member.

For "protecting freedom" it suggested strengthening NATO by working for economic and cultural ends as energetically as for military purposes; helping less developed nations to achieve economic and political stability, and not allowing the United States to appear as the enemy of independence anywhere.

"Our policy in relation to Communist satellites is emancipation — achieved not by the use of force from without, but primarily by the appeal of freedom to the minds of men everywhere," the committee said.

"For the achievement of emancipation, our weapons are not military but ideological, psychological, political, economic, and diplomatic.

"If these nonmilitary forces are to be fully effective, our military power must be sufficient to neutralize the threat of Communist arms. But our ultimate weapon is the inherent desire in all men for freedom."

Fall Roundup For Cub Pack Slated October 13

The Fall Roundup of the Cub Pack at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church at 7:30 P.M. on October 13th in the Fellowship Hall with Dr. Badger Clark as Cubmaster was announced yesterday by Jake Hadley, Cub Pack Committee Chairman. He said they were looking forward to a fine year with a fine young man like Dr. Clark heading the Pack of Jarvis Memorial. He explained that Dr. Clark is also Superintendent of the Junior Department of the Jarvis Memorial Sunday School.

Dr. Clark said the Pack would welcome any boy between the ages of eight and eleven to come join the pack on next Tuesday night provided he was accompanied by his parent. He said he thought it ought to be the privilege of every little boy to be a Cub Scout but that since it was a family oriented program it was essential that parents be present at each Pack meeting. He explained that it was at the Pack meetings that the boys demonstrated skills they had learned or were recognized for their accomplishments and that parents would want to witness such recognition.

All the Cubs in the Pack who have not become Webelos and graduated into Boy Scouting will also be present for their first meeting since the summer. There will be regular monthly meetings from now until the summer.

Hadley said he was particularly happy to announce Dr. Clark as the new Cubmaster for with a man of his dedication and high calibre everything augured well for the coming year. "We have had some fine years with Cubbing at Jarvis Memorial and it looks to me like we are set for another fine year. Here is an opportunity for boys to have a rich Cubbing experience, to become Webelos, and to become good Boy Scouts when they are eleven years old," Hadley declared.

Lady At Home In Labs Of Science

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (AP)—Mrs. Geri Creasey is an attractive blonde who believes a woman's place is in the laboratory as well as in the home. "Science," she says, "is a challenging career for both men and women. The future in this field depends on ability and hard work." She finds no conflict in her work as a physicist in the weapons delivery branch at Kirtland Air Force Base's special weapons center, and in her role as mother to a 9-year-old boy and wife of an engineer. The blue-eyed Mrs. Creasey works on such things as weapon trajectories and flight paths for supersonic bombers, tossing around equations as deftly as she whips up dinner for her family. Her husband, Lt. Col. Floyd Creasey is an Air Force engineer who works in the same building. Son, Howard, is a fourth grader who already is showing a liking for math. Geri says she has not been handicapped in her work because she is a woman. "Some girls worry about working around men. Me, I don't feel like an oddball." Her boss, Maj. Daniel Schumaker, agrees. "Sex is no handicap in science. Geri is an important, valuable member of this team," he says. Mrs. Creasey is a native of San Bernardino, Calif., and a graduate of the University of California. An example of the problems she has helped solve in her present job: What are the effects of a nuclear explosion on an aircraft at a given distance and angle? Can the plane escape safely under certain conditions? Geri also has studied wind correction, weather prediction and safe escape maneuvers in aircraft bomb flight paths that are necessary for planning and executing a nuclear weapons attack.

been retained by the complaining group. Ryder is a former assistant U.S. attorney for the Eastern District of Virginia. U.S. 1, heavily traveled north-south truck route, runs for about 20 miles through the western portion of Caroline County, starting about 25 miles north of Richmond. The area along the highway through the county is dotted with numerous truck stops. Brooks said he welcomed any grand jury investigation, and noted that he had instructed Commonwealth's Atty. Bernard Mahon to present any complaints to the grand jury. Brooks, being challenged for re-election by James Tyrus Durrett of Ladysmith, contended that politics "is at the bottom of the whole thing." Brooks said the watchman at the truck stop raided Wednesday night was Harry Lee Jones of Kinston, N.C. All those charged were lodged in the Caroline County Jail pending a hearing in County Court Oct. 15.

Try To Complete Lax Law Enforcement Jury For Pair Charge To Bring Probe

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP)—Attorneys will attempt to complete a jury today for the trial of two young white men charged with raping a 15-year-old Negro girl. Eight jurors, including one Negro, were selected Wednesday. Five more jurors, including one alternate, remained to be chosen for the trial in New Hanover Superior Court. District Solicitor John J. Burney has said he will seek the death penalty for the defendants, Viano Wentworth Jamieson and Jimmie Fox Moseley, both 19-year-old laborers. About 80 venemen were examined Wednesday. Several were excused when they said they oppose capital punishment. Judge Rudolph Mintz said both sides had agreed on an all-male jury because courthouse accommodations for a mixed jury would be inadequate. Jamieson and Moseley's attorney is State Sen. Bunn Frink of Southport. Virlyn Elizabeth Howard told police the two men came to her home the night of Aug. 27 and told her they had a baby sitting job for her. Instead, she claimed, they drove her to a woods south of the city and both attacked her. Court records in the United States show no case of a white man being executed for raping a Negro. A white Marine, Pvt. Fred

BOWLING GREEN, Va. (AP)—A special grand jury has been summoned for Monday to investigate charges of lax law enforcement at truck stops along U.S. 1 in Caroline County. The special investigation was announced as Sheriff R. Garnett Brooks reported the arrests of 11 persons Wednesday night at one of the truck stops. Those arrested included six women on morals charges and five men on charges of interfering with an officer in the performance of his duties. Circuit Judge Leon M. Brazile said that although he did not know the merits of the complaints, he summoned the grand jury because of "some right serious charges against" the sheriff. Brazile did not disclose the nature of the complaints made to him last Saturday, but reportedly they concerned the sale of drugs to truckers and the operation of bawdy houses catering mainly to truckers. The judge said the complaints were made before him by a Caroline County man he did not know and by attorney Richard R. Ryder of Richmond, who said he had G. Davis, 24, of Atlanta was convicted last summer at Beaufort, S.C. of raping a 47-year-old Negro woman and, was sentenced to death. The case is under appeal.

Test Pilots Anxious Show Human Element Valuable

By RALPH DIGHTON
BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP)—Two years ago this month some of the world's hottest pilots sat down to a sumptuous dinner—and found they had lost their appetite for the meal, and for the future they faced.

The occasion was the first annual banquet of the Society of Experimental Test Pilots. The date—Oct. 4, 1957. That was the night the Soviet Union launched Sputnik into orbit. And there was no man in it. "We suddenly became aware," recalls society president Al Blackburn, "that the pilot's role was going to be secondary unless we became more active in demonstrating that the rigors of space are no worse than the rigors of experimental flight in the atmosphere."

Today the young society opens a three-day symposium in a plush hotel, summoning specialists from the armed services and industry to support its contention that man has a vital part in space exploration. "In centrifuge tests we have shown that men can withstand the whole pattern of space flight

—from blastoff through re-entry—and exercise judgment and control through it all," Blackburn said in an interview. "We are fighting now to demonstrate that you get a more flexible, reliable vehicle if you put a man in it—and use him, instead of making him a guinea pig."

Was this a left-handed slap at Project Mercury, which proposes to rocket man into space in a capsule over which he will have little control?

"Not at all," said Blackburn. "Two of the Project Mercury candidates—Air Force Capt. Don Slayton and Marine Lt. Col. John

Glenn—are members of the society. And all of the five other Mercury candidates are test pilots, because this is the only group already trained to observe and react under severe conditions of acceleration, noise and vibration. "But I am sure that the fact that they will not be masters of their own fate weighs heavily in the minds of the Mercury astronauts."

Weekly Meet By Singing Group

Twenty-six men attended the second weekly meeting of the newly organized Pitt County Chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America, Inc. Tuesday night. The group met in Music Hall on the College campus. The society, made up entirely of male singers, operates on an international scale and now has 26,000 members in more than 600 chapters scattered throughout the United States, Canada, Alaska, Hawaii and the Canal Zone. Adult males are invited to attend the next meeting which will be held Tuesday night at 8 p.m. in Room 105 of Music Hall at the college.

Sues Murderer For $1 Million

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—A young widow is suing her husband's murderer for a million dollars.

Mrs. Florence Ann Royal, 31, of San Leandro, filed a Superior Court suit Wednesday asking $500,000 actual damages and $500,000 punitive damages for the fatal shooting of her husband Lawrence, 36, last January.

The killer, Clyde Briedlander, 55, was Royal's partner in a car-wash business. He is serving five years to life for second-degree murder.

JOHN BROWN'S RAID: 100th Anniversary of The Attack At Harpers Ferry

In October, 1859, a year and a half before the outbreak of the Civil War, John Brown, a fiery abolitionist, made history with his attack on the government arsenal at Harpers Ferry, Va., now West Virginia. He had hoped it would bring about an insurrection of the negro slaves.

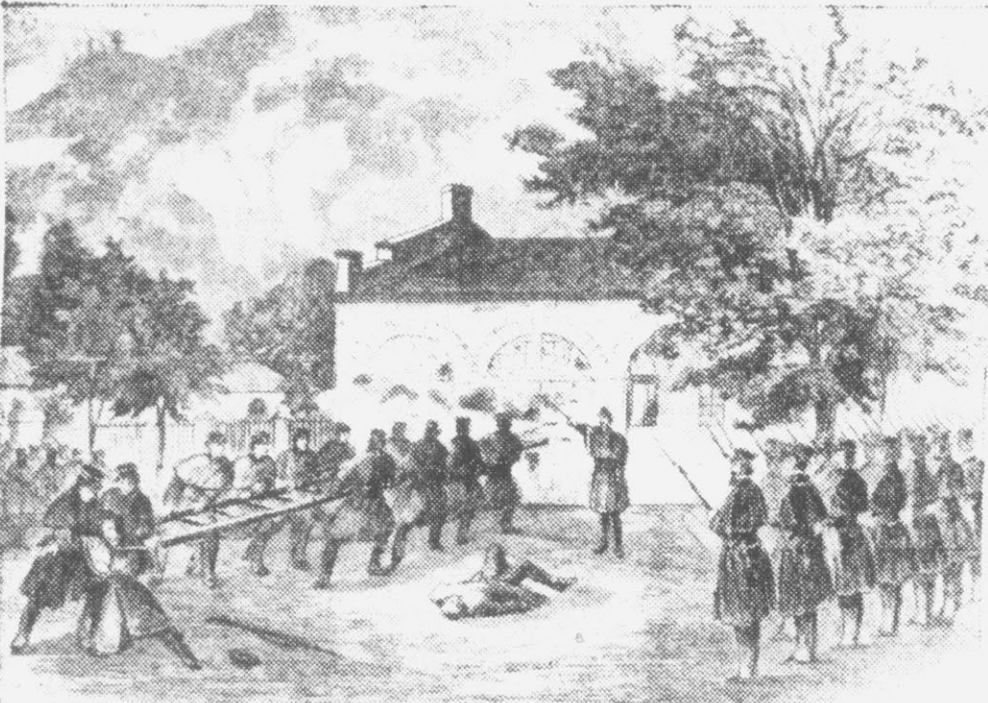

Leading a force of 21 armed men, Brown captured the arsenal easily. On the following morning, militiamen under the command of Col. Robert E. Lee, then in the U. S. Army, stormed the engine house where Brown and his men had barricaded themselves, and overpowered them. Brown was seriously wounded. Of the others, 10 were killed, including two of Brown's own sons, 6 were taken prisoner, and 5 escaped. Brown was tried and convicted of treason. On December 2, he was hanged at Charlestown. His fellow prisoners were hanged soon afterward.

Long before Harpers Ferry, Brown, a former surveyor and farmer, had been a controversial figure in the nation's growing struggle between anti-slavery and pro-slavery factions. In Kansas, he fought pitched battles against pro-slavery settlers. In Virginia he planned to set up a stronghold where slaves could be housed and given a chance to defend themselves against pursuers. The attack on the arsenal followed.

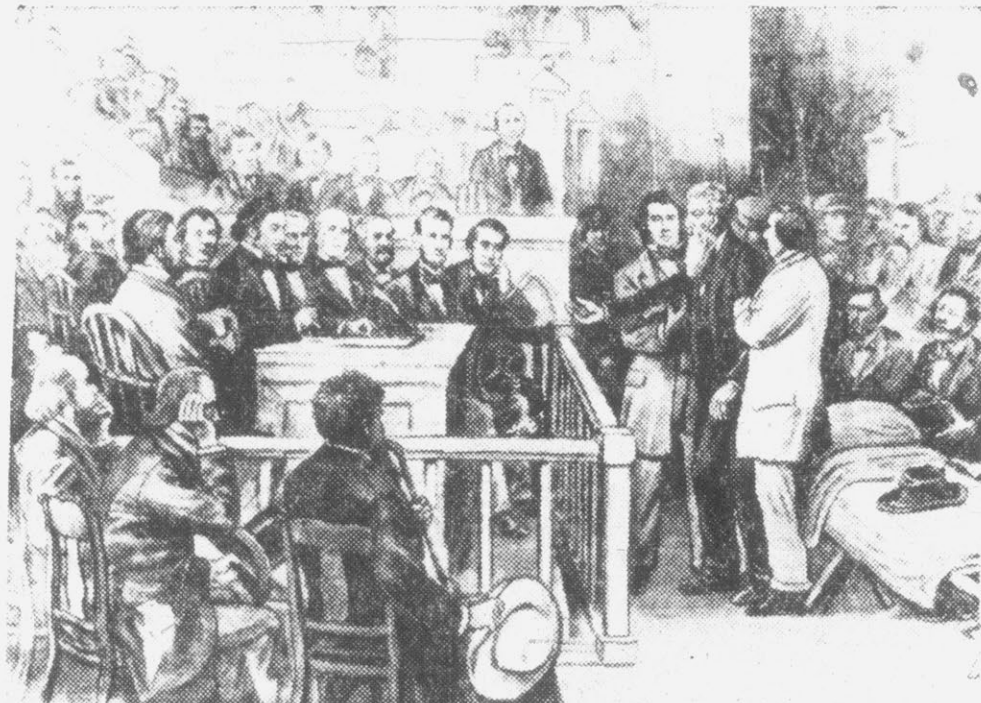

Brown was twice married, and was the father of 20 children. The raid, and his death, caused excitement throughout the country. Abolitionists looked upon him as a martyr. The song that was written about him became a Northern battle song.

Besieged in engine house, John Brown's raiders exchange fire with U.S. troops who surrounded building after raiders had captured arsenal at Harpers Ferry.

Troops storm engine house where Brown's raiders had taken refuge. Ten of the raiders were killed. Brown was taken prisoner.

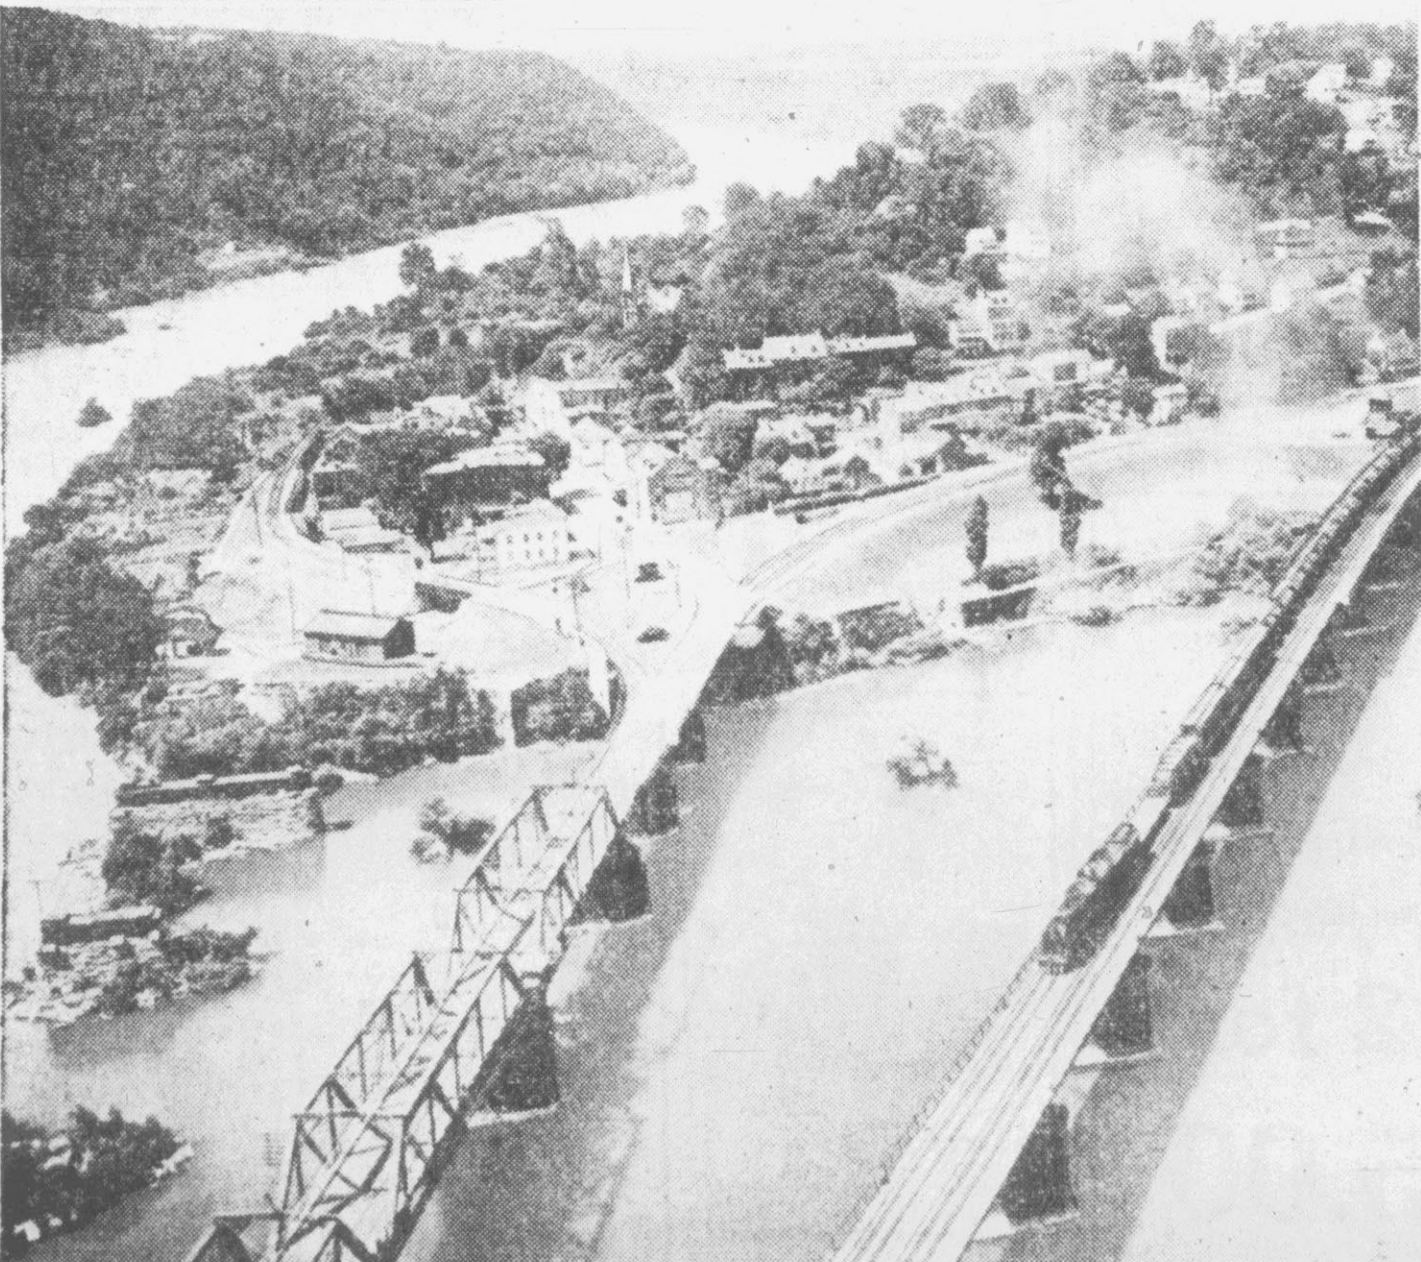

Brown faces judges during his trial for treason at Charlestown. He was convicted, later hanged. Drawing made on spot by James E. Taylor.

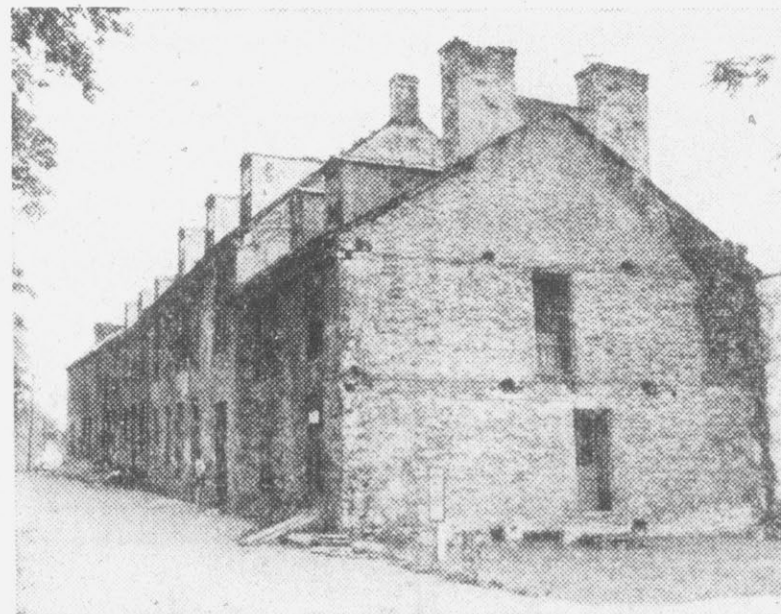

Brown is led from prison to scaffold where he was hanged on December 2, 1859. Negro mother holds child up to him as he walks down steps.

Stage Set For Homecoming Korean Woman Now Beacon Of Dedication

East Carolina College's Homecoming Day Parade will be opening event of a program which will fill the hours from morning to midnight Saturday, October 10, as the college welcomes alumni and other guests to the campus.

Major events of the day's program include a luncheon at noon in the East Dining Hall; a football game between East Carolina and Elon at 2 p.m.; open house at 4:30 p.m. in the College Union, the business, education department and the student centers; a dinner and smoked staged by the Society of Buccaneers, alumni organization, at 6:30 p.m. in the New South Cafeteria; and a Homecoming dance with music by Sam Donahue and his Band at 8 p.m. in the Wright auditorium.

The parade, leaving the campus at 10 a.m., will move through downtown Greenville and back to the college. Floats entered by student organizations will be in competition for prizes. Thirty-nine queens representing various campus groups will ride in decorated automobiles.

Bands from several high schools and the East Carolina College

Marching Band will be in the line of march. Administrative officers of the college and officers of the Student Government Association and the Alumni Association will also appear in the parade.

A Homecoming Queen, elected by students at the college but not yet announced, will be presented at pre-game festivities at 1:15 in the stadium. Also participating will be sponsors of campus organizations.

The East Carolina Marching Band will stage a special halftime entertainment during the football game. Based on the theme "Show Business," it will feature hit tunes and will include a presentation of "Ski King" by E. C. Beatty, the composer.

The Homecoming dance will feature the presentation of the thirty-nine queens of campus organizations.

According to custom, campus dormitories will be gaily decorated for Homecoming Day.

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—A seven-foot bronze statue of a gracious lady serenely surveys the tree-shaded campus of Ewha University, as if gazing back across a half century of trial.

The statue is of Dr. Helen Kim, who in 1905 as a little pig-tailed girl watched tearfully as Japan's imperial armies marched into Korea.

Out of that day a resolve was born in Helen Kim's heart: Her country must become strong and free. She swore before God she would dedicate herself to bettering the life of her countrymen.

The 54 years have been eventful for her, crammed with love, tragedy and humor. Korea is divided, but South Korea at least is independent. And Dr. Kim, now 60, is one of its most illustrious citizens.

In the Orient has been smoothed by a deep faith in the human spirit and Christianity.

Carried Only a Bible

In June, 1950, when North Korea's invading tanks were pounding at the crumbling defenses of Seoul, Dr. Kim picked up her Bible and trudged south. It was all she took, and perhaps all she needed.

Years later she acknowledged: "There are many good religions in the Orient, Buddhism, Confucianism and Taoism. But they all lack the Christian spirit—an expression of the desire to realize in this world part of the ideals of heaven. It is not a passive good that just tries to avoid evil, but a spirit that actively tries to fight and overcome evil to realize good."

Dr. Kim, her dark hair still untouched by grey, has evolved from this a deep-seated faith in the individual.

She has counseled her students from Socrates, "Know thyself." She has told them repeatedly, "Don't be a machine. Be a human being that masters it."

Startled Contemporaries

She startled her contemporaries in 1935 by instituting the first sex education course in the Far East. She was equally daring a few years ago when she invited graduating students to bring their boy friends to a dance party, despite a national ban on dancing.

American GIs and foreign visitors know her as the smiling, round faced hostess who loves to entertain and talk of her nation's aspirations.

Diplomats know her from Geneva and the United Nations. Missionaries recognize her as the founder of Korea's first YWCA. And educators view her as practically a Korean Horace Mann.

"She is the only leader we have in the field of women's education," President Syngman Rhee told the throngs that gathered at Ewha May 9, 1958, to mark her 40th year with the school.

That day the bronze statue was unveiled and a school library was dedicated in her name.

Educated in U.S.

She attended America's Ohio Wesleyan University from 1922 to 1924, obtained a masters degree in education at Boston University in 1925 and a Ph.D. in education from Columbia in 1931.

After returning to Korea she became Ewha's first Korean dean. Dr. Kim squared off in silent resistance to Korea's Japanese masters, successfully thwarting every attempt to substitute Shin-tolism for Ewha's Christian faith.

Then in quick, tragic succession came the heavy days of liberation as World War II ended, deep disillusionment as communism divided her nation, then war, devastation, chaos and the slow climb back.

"Mother" of Thousands

Today Helen Kim is the dedicated mother of thousands—her students—although she has never married. She reads omnivorously, plays the piano, joins frequently with her girls in singing American folk songs and exercise, a recently found talent for calligraphy.

A friend recently asked her how she remained so young in outlook.

"It's easy," she smiled. "I'm surrounded by thousands of pretty young students every day. How could I get old?"

Pioneer IV At Great Distance

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—This is the day America's Pioneer IV reaches its greatest distance from the sun—107,951,000 miles.

The 13.4-pound gold-plated cone went into space last March aboard a sun rocket fired by the Army Ballistic Missile Agency and the Jet Propulsion Laboratory of California Institute of Technology.

Its chemical batteries went dead 82 hours later. When its transmitters ceased sending, Pioneer IV was 407,000 miles from the earth and well beyond the moon.

Since then JPL scientists have had to estimate its position. They calculate that Pioneer IV, making a top speed of 70,000 miles an hour, will orbit the sun once every 406.95 days.

Emancipation Symbol

She has become a lowering symbol of the emancipation of Korean womanhood from near feudal conditions to a position of equality under law.

She is president of Ewha, one of the largest women's universities in the world, vice president of the Korean Red Cross, has served as her government's information director, pleaded its cause at Geneva against repatriation of Koreans from Japan to North Korea, three times has been a member of South Korea's delegation seeking admission to the United Nations, is the first Korean woman to earn a doctors degree and once published the English-language Korea Times.

They take the elementary pupils out-of-doors and work in their physical education program. They assist the elementary grade teachers by teaching games such as basketball, baseball and other games such as basketball, baseball and other games. Each student has a different grade each day, and teaches grades three through seven.

Brevity Record For The Lawyers

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The finance committee of the Milwaukee County Board sought a legal opinion on whether it could provide $500 in expenses for the newly created post of county executive.

The opinion, returned by County Corporation C. Stanley Perry, set a record for brevity. It read: "Yes."

A committee member commented: "I didn't think lawyers could use language like that."

"If I'd been president I would have had these people (opposing sides) in to meet before the strike occurred," the Democratic governor told a news conference Wednesday. "He might have gotten it (a settlement)."

Lawrence also voiced opposition to invocation of the Taft-Hartley law.

5 Accidents Wednesday Report Heavy Damage

Heavy damage was reported in five accidents investigated by Greenville Police yesterday but no injuries were reported.

Cars operated by Leon Stanley Hardee, 83, of Route 3, Greenville and Dr. Ray D. Minges of Route 1, Box 6B, Greenville, collided at the intersection of Pitt and 14th Sts. early yesterday.

Damage to the Hardee car was set at $150 while an estimated $200 damage resulted to the Minges car.

Hardee, traveling south on Pitt St. was charged with failure to yield the right of way.

A car driven by William Otis Sutton, 17, of 1804 Fairview Way struck a stop sign at the intersection of Fifth and Holly Sts. about 8:15 a.m., causing an estimated $25 damage to the car and $15 damage to the sign. He was charged with having improper equipment.

Officers said he was headed south on Holly St. and quoted him as saying his brakes would not hold as he started down the hill toward Fifth St.

Fine Bodyguard Of 'Daddy Grace'

RALEIGH (AP) — A bodyguard for Bishop C. M. (Sweet Daddy) Grace was fined $50 and given an 18-month suspended sentence Wednesday in City Court on three charges of assault with a deadly weapon.

Earl Richmond, 55-year-old school janitor, accused of shooting three youths, claimed they were trying to put his neck in a noose as they sang "Hang down your head, Tom Dooley."

The assault charges were brought following a shooting incident Sept. 8 near Daddy Grace's church here. City Patrolman Neal L. Andrews told the court "I never saw such a crowded church in my life." He said the crowd sought to deal with Richmond for firing the pistol but that he and another officer prevented mob action.

About 1 p.m. two cars collided on North Green St. causing an estimated $600 damage.

Investigators said a car driven by George E. Staples, 69, of 1201 East Rock Springs Rd. was struck in the rear by a car driven by Ralph Lloyd Zehring, 22, of Alexander, Va.

Damage to the Staples car was estimated at $200 while damage to the Zehring car was placed at $400.

Zehring was charged with following too closely.

An accident about 3 p.m. saw cars operated by Harold Spencer Roberts, 17, of 1121 Evans St. and Mrs. Ester P. Stanley of Route 6, Greenville, collide on Dickinson Ave. at the intersection of Wade St.

Three hundred dollars damage was placed on the Roberts car while damage to the Stanley auto was set at $100.

Mrs. Stanley was charged with failure to yield the right of way while Roberts was charged with careless and reckless driving.

No charges were made in a wreck which occurred on North Green St. about 5:15 p.m.

Drivers of the cars were identified by officers as Archie Dean Roebuck of Route 3, Belhel and Robert M. Taylor of Route 2, Williamston.

East Carolina Freshmen To Battle Chowan Tonight

Homecoming At ECC Starts With Freshmen Tilt

Homecoming activities officially gets underway at East Carolina College tonight when the Pirate freshmen team plays host to Chowan Junior College in College Stadium. Game time for tilt is at 8:00.

The game is being sponsored by the Greenville Jaycees and Touchdown Club with all proceeds going toward purchasing a new scoreboard for the stadium.

The "Baby Bucs" will be seeking their second win of the season compared with a single defeat. They hold a 6-0 decision over Frederick Junior College and their lone loss was to The Citadel, 8-0.

Coach Gary Mattocks has indicated that he expects a much stronger offensive showing from his club tonight. A more wide-open attack will be used with quarterback Dan Rouse expected to fill the air with more passes than in earlier games.

Bill Strickland will get the starting nod at fullback and will be slated to end the ground attack. John Tatum and Bill Torrance will handle the halfback slots.

David Barnes and Bobby Bumgardner will get the call at ends and will be the chief passing targets of Rouse. Both excel on defense.

Husky Paul Eilers and Murray MacDiarmid will start at tackles. James Strawbridge and Robert Taylor will go at the guard slots and Vic Garrison will handle the pivot chores.

Charles Roberts, a Greenville native, is expected to be in the starting lineup if East Carolina is on defense.

Chowan usually fields a strong club in the junior college circles and their club this season is expected to stack up with others in past years. They have one of the largest lines that the "Baby Bucs" run up against this season.

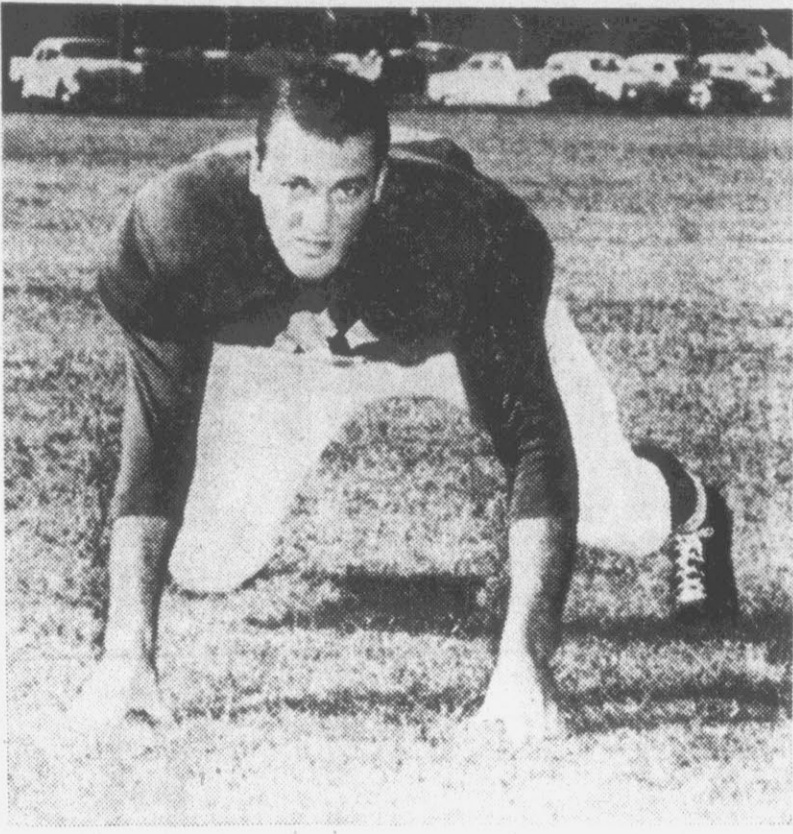

Strong Chisox Future Predicted

By JERRY LISKA

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago White Sox "forgotten man," Vice-President Chuck Comiskey, predicted today the Pale Hose will be pennant contenders for five to eight seasons.

"The strongest clubs in baseball — as far as reaching down for minor league talent is concerned — the White Sox and the Milwaukee Braves," said 33-year-old Chuck, last of his clan in baseball.

ECC Halfback Leads NAIA Rushing Stats

WILSON — Quarterback Bob Cooper of Western Carolina, tailback Lee Farmer of Lenoir Rhyne, Halfback Glenn Bass of East Carolina, and halfback Bobby Pate of Presbyterian — these are the prominent leaders in this week's football statistical report of District 26, National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics.

Farmer, the lad Coach Clarence Stasavich shifted from fullback to tailback in this year's Lenoir Rhyne backfield, is the top man in the district in total offense. In two games he has picked up 227 yards for an average of 113.3 per game.

Meanwhile, Bass of East Carolina, continues as the top man in the rushing department with an average of 101.5 yards per game for four contests. He also is tied with Pate of Presbyterian for the individual scoring lead. Both have scored 42 points thus far this season.

Cooper of Western Carolina has connected on 36 of 61 passes for 432 yards and an average of 108 yards a game to lead in that department. The best receiver in the district is end Dick Lage of Lenoir Rhyne. He has caught eight aeriels for an average of 48.5 yards per game.

The top kicker in the district is Charles Gantt of Appalachian State. On six punts, Gantt has averaged 43.2 yards per try.

In team statistics East Carolina's Pirates hold the lead in scoring with 119 points in four games, the lead in rushing with an average of 243 yards per game, and in total offense, 340 yards per contest. Western Carolina is the top passing team with an average of 125 yards for four games.

On defense Appalachian State had held three opponents to only 20 points to lead in that department. The Apps are also tops on rushing defense having held the opposition to an average of only 46 yards per game. Elon College has the best defense against passes with the enemy only averaging 40.5 yards per game for four games. Western Carolina has the top total defense. The Catamounts have held their opponents to an average of only 128.5 yards per game for four games.

said, "In our game with Ayden last week I don't think our boys played as well as they did against Mt. Olive. We had our hands full in the first quarter, but in the last play of the first half we completed a long pass play for a TD that more or less took some of the life out of the Ayden boys. "That score seemed to break their backs. If we had not been so far ahead at the half, the final score would probably have been a different story. "I thought our boys played very well, but it was not their top notch playing. They have played better. I was especially pleased when our substitutes came through like they did. Three of our regulars, Ralph Cash, Burney Rivenbark and Doug Gurganus were out and these boys filled in very well for them. "Danny Dilda, who was substituting for Cash, was the star of the game. Todd Holmes who was in for Rivenbark did a fine job and Moses Moye who took over for Gurganus did very well. "Before the game was over we played everybody on the squad and some of them did very well. Our substitute players turned out to be a pleasant surprise to me. "I was very pleased with our defense which was as good as it has been and our passing attack showed a lot of improvement." Robersonville, who will play the Red Devils Friday night, has not lost a conference game this season. They recently beat Ayden 23-7.

Moye commented on the Robersonville squad, "We'll have our hands full. They have a big line which I understand averages 200 pounds. They will probably be the strongest defensive team we'll play this year. "A third problem we will face will be their single wing. We're not used to it and will have to use a different type of defense." Out of the game Friday night due to injuries will be Jerry Weisner, Douglas Gurganus and Burney Rivenbark. Gurganus and Rivenbark may see limited action, but Coach Moye stated that he had his doubts.

As a final word he added, "I think we will be ready to give them the best game we know how. If we can get as good performance as we got against Mt. Olive we will beat them. Otherwise we're in for some trouble."

Good To Be Back At Comiskey Park CHICAGO (AP) — Back home in a ball park more suited to their style of play, the Chicago White Sox were confident they would square the World Series at three games today.

"We got 'em right where we want 'em and that's right here," said outfielder Al Smith. "As long as I live I'll always have that Coliseum on my mind. It was a nightmare."

Northeastern Roundup

Undefeated Teams Face Stiff Tests This Week

STANDINGS table with columns for Conf., All Games, W, L, T. Lists teams like Washington, Tarboro, Roanoke Rapids, Kinston, Greenville, Jacksonville, New Bern, Elizabeth City with their respective records.

By JOHNNY HUDSON Reflector Sports Editor

The football season nears the halfway mark this week and the standings find pre-season favorite, Washington, ahead of the pack and defending champion Elizabeth City at the bottom of the heap.

Most of the clubs enter their fifth week of competition and new-comer Tarboro and always-dangerous Roanoke Rapids loom as the best bets to knock off the Pam Pack of Coach Choppy Waggoner.

Big Game The big game of the week will find the Yellow Jackets of Roanoke Rapids getting a chance to show their strength in a game which might well decide the Northeastern title picture. With a couple of consecutive victories, the Jackets move over to Washington and will have plenty at stake.

Holding almost identical significance will be the game at Tarboro where Greenville will be trying to rebound against the conference's only undefeated team.

In other action, Kinston will be given their first trial within the conference when they take on Jacksonville on the latter's soil. New Bern and Elizabeth City will not have to worry about delinquishing the cellar as both take on outside competition and both will rate as underdogs. New Bern goes against a strong Wilson eleven and Elizabeth City steps down to meet Class AA Edenton.

Back Favored The game at Washington will find the Pam Pack heavy favorites to roll to victory number four within the loop. Roanoke Rapids took a 7-6 victory from the Pack last season but their strength this season is still untested and their wins have not been impressive.

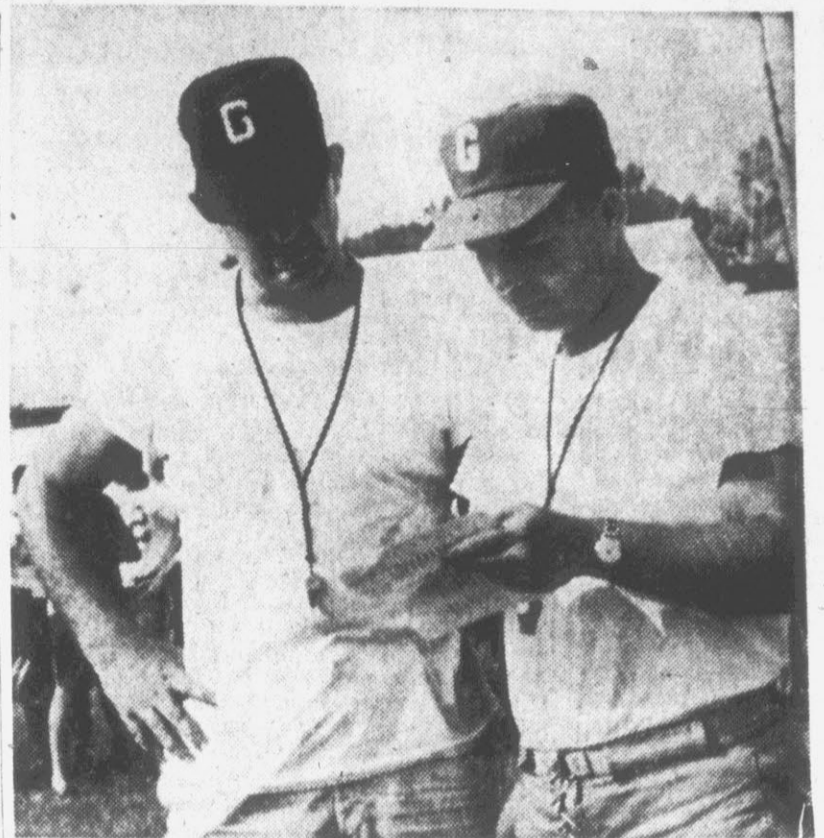

The Jackets knocked off New Bern by a touchdown and then edged cellar-dwelling Elizabeth City by six points last Friday.

Waggoner will have his charges in top gear with Billy Pittman, Adrian Waters, and Kent Denton slated to handle the attack. The three gave Washington one of the fastest backfields in the conference.

Green Line A veteran backfield and a green line will once again take the field for Coach Bud Phillips' Greenville team when they attempt to regain face against Tarboro tomorrow night.

The "Washington Jinx" continued to hold over the flu-stricken Phantom club last week as they bowed to the Pam Pack, 19-6. Hit by a flu virus, Phillips was forced to put an almost entire new line against Washington but, even in defeat, the Greenville coach was satisfied with their performance. Several of the boys are expected to be back tomorrow when the local band attempts to throw a block-buster into the race with a victory over surprising Tarboro. Still smarting from a 36-24 defeat last season in an offensive show, Greenville will get the golden opportunity of knocking off the league's only unbeaten club.

DISCUSS STRATEGY—Greenville coaches Bud Phillips and Odell Welborn will be trying to set up plans to knock off undefeated Tarboro tomorrow night. The Tigers are the only Northeastern club unbeaten.

Clean Record Kinston has never been beaten by a Jacksonville club but may have their hands full this year. Stewart Ellington and crew recorded their first victory on record over New Bern this past week in convincing fashion, 26-6.

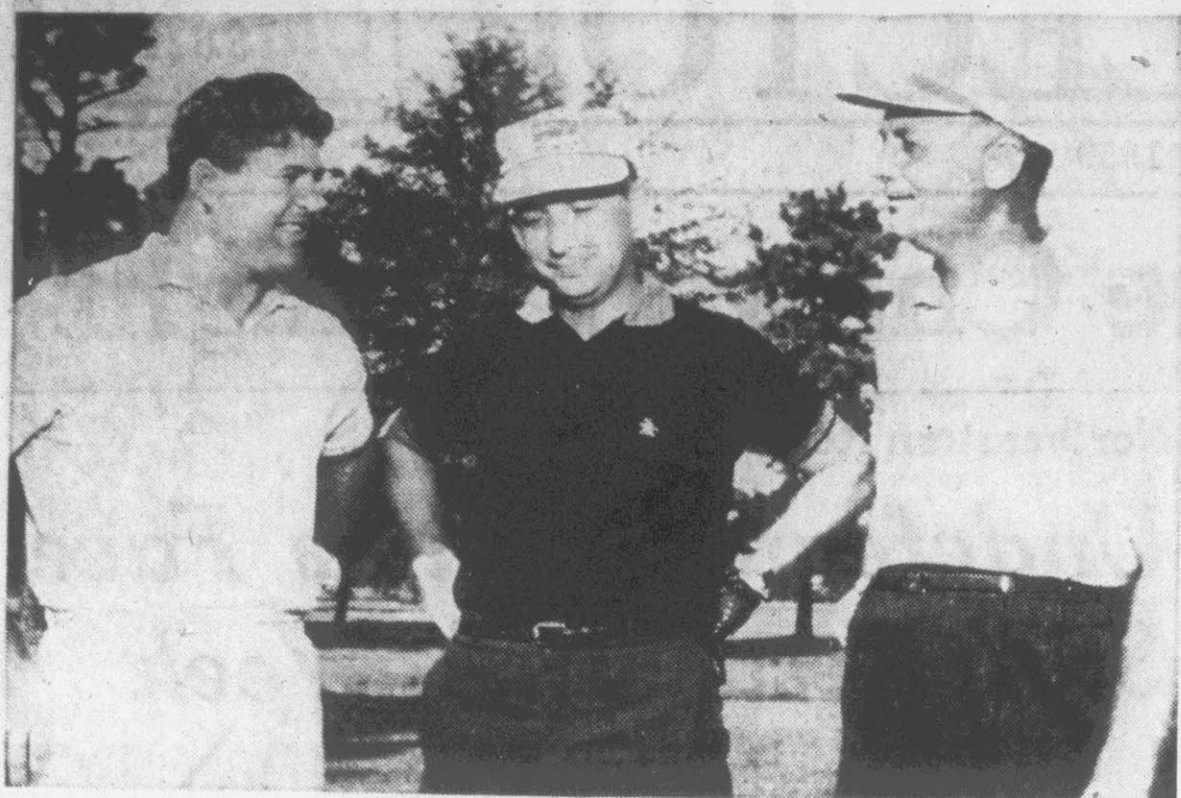

The Cardinals have a strong passing attack and might have what it takes to send Kinston down to defeat in their loop debut. New Bern is given little hope against rampaging Wilson and Elizabeth City will probably fare little better against an Edenton powerhouse. Both Northeastern clubs are still seeking their first win of the season.

Last week's scores: Roanoke Rapids 13, Elizabeth City 7 Jacksonville 26, New Bern 6 Tarboro 20, Hertford 6 Washington 19, Greenville 6 Wilson 21, Kinston 0 Games this week: Kinston at Jacksonville; Elizabeth at Edenton; Roanoke Rapids at Washington; Greenville at Tarboro; and New Bern at Wilson.

Top Ten Clubs Face Hard Week

By JACK CLARY
Associated Press Sports Writer

Can the nation's seventh-ranked offense overcome the eighth-ranked defense? Will the top pick for Big Ten honors beat the No. 2 choice? Wisconsin and Purdue will supply the answers when they meet Saturday and they may spell out R-O-S-E B-O-W-L.

Series and the hero of the Dodgers' 1955 world title back in Brooklyn.

The White Sox, having barely survived the three-game set at Memorial Coliseum in Los Angeles, were favored at 11-10 to win today. But the Dodgers were 5-2 choices to take the series.

Only the 1925 Pittsburgh Pirates and last year's New York Yankees were able to win after dropping three of the first four games in a best-of-seven series.

The White Sox insist that just being back home is all they need. The Coliseum was a place of horror for them, with the uncovered stands and white-shirted crowds hiding pitched, batted and thrown balls and puncturing the Sox defense.

Capacity Crowd Expected To See Duke-Pitt Game

The Duke Blue Devils this season aren't the national power they've been many times in the past. Neither are the Pitt Panthers. But a crowd of 40,000 expected Saturday at Pittsburgh to watch their 12th meeting in a football series that has had more than its share of excitement.

KINSTON, N.C. (AP) — Mike Souchak has won more than $40,000 as a touring tournament golfer this year.

Purdue, which does not meet Northwestern, could keep right on going with a victory. But the Boilermakers realize that their hopes may have ended last Saturday when quarterback Ross Fichtner broke a shoulder. He is through for the year.

In 1937 a game Duke squad held a great Pitt team to a 10-0 victory—all points scored by Frank Souchak, whose younger brother Mike chose to come to Duke and later make a name in professional golf.

The winner gets $250 of the total $1,550 jackpot in a field of 52 professionals.

Clinton lost No. 1 center Paul Snyder with a torn ligament in his leg as he Tigers prepped for North Carolina State. Colorado lost its top end, Chuck McBride, with a neck injury. He will miss Saturday's game with Kansas State.

Duke worked Wednesday on defense and also held an offensive drill featuring the passing of quarterback Don Altman to end Bob Spada.

Virginia, which plays Virginia Military at Lynchburg, worked again behind locked gates. Coach Dick Voris said new plays are being practiced.

Games scheduled to be played this Friday night include Contentnea at Beaufort, Robersonville at Farmville, La Grange at Vanceboro, Ayden at Williamston (non-conference), and Morehead City at Havelock (non-conference).

Clemson has lost its first string center, Paul Snyder, for the N.C. State game because of a torn ligament suffered in Tuesday's scrimmage. Fullback Doug Cline, who broke his hand in the Georgia Tech loss, also is out. But four other players recovering from injuries or sickness reported back Wednesday.

Maryland, looking for a lot of passing from Wake Forest, polished its aerial defense. Quarterback Dick Novak, injured in the Terps' second game, was back in full equipment for the first time since then.

Conference Standings:
Team w l t pct.
Robersonville 3 0 0 1000
Beaufort 2 0 0 1000
Farmville 2 0 0 1000
La Grange 2 0 0 1000
Ayden 2 2 0 500
Vanceboro 0 3 0 0
Contentnea 0 4 0 0
Havelock 1 3 0 250

N.C. State worked on defense against Clemson plays, then held a dummy scrimmage. Third string halfback Bob Wolfer will miss Saturday's game due to a leg injury.

NATURAL GAS—Greenville Utilities crews are constructing a gas line from the gatepoint by which North Carolina Natural Gas will serve Greenville. The local portion of the line begins on Memorial Dr., goes to Farmville Blvd., then to Bancroft St., Fleming, Roosevelt, Fifth, Davis and Fairfax. From Fairfax the line will go to the Greenville Utilities plant. Superintendent Leonard Bloxam said the Utilities would like to complete the line by Nov. 1. That date will be contingent upon the steel strike not tying up materials, he said. The overall cost of bringing natural gas from the overland line into the plant will be approximately $50,000. Classes And Clubs At Training School Free

By FRANCINE PARKER

Most of the classes and clubs at Pitt County Training School have organized, geared their work to summits.

First Grade-A, under the direction of Mrs. E. B. Thompson, has an enrollment of 54. At the present time two-thirds of them can count from 1-10, one-third can write numbers from 1-10, one-third can write their names, one-half can write their alphabets, one-fourth can write alphabets from A-M, and one-half can recognize colors. All of them know the bus numbers and the drivers.

First Grade-B is guided by Mrs. Dangerfield. There are 48 pupils in this class. The children are grouped and 16 of them can read the pre-primer books. The theme for this class is "Work and Play."

Second Grade-C is under the direction of Mrs. G. L. Hill. There are 19 girls and 23 boys in this class. The theme for this group is "Reading for Improvement."

Second Grade-B is under the direction of Mrs. E. O. Rasbury. Forty-six pupils comprise this grade. The theme for this class is "Enrichment of Reading Habits."

Third Grade-A is directed by Mrs. M. D. Wyche. The theme for this class is "Study Hard At All Times."

Third Grade-B has an enrollment of 38, and is under the direction of Mrs. W. P. McDonald. It has elected officers, and they are as follows:

ant secretary, Cynthia Boyd; treasurer, Barbara Moore; and reporter, Virginia Pice.

Fourth Grade-A is under the direction of Mrs. V. R. Smith. Thirty-six pupils comprise this class. At the present time it is studying a unit, "Let's Take A Trip Around the World."

Fourth Grade-B, with 40 pupils, is under the direction of Miss H. B. Russell. Its theme is "Preparing for the Future."

Seventh Grade-A has organized and elected the following officers: President, Esther Johnson; vice-president, Amos Mills III; secretary, Demetrius Langley; assistant secretary, Evonne Smith; treasurer, Donald Brockett; and sergeant-at-arms, Henry battle.

The class has decided to make this year the most outstanding one yet.

The Junior Class has organized and elected the following officers: President, Haywood Wyche; vice-president, Isaac Edwards; secretary, Francine Parker; assistant secretary, Mable G. Little; treasurer, Calonia Little; and reporters, Hattie Johnson, Lillie Thompson, and John Morris.

The N.F.A. was organized on Monday, Sept. 28. The following officers were elected:

President, Henry Mills; vice-president, Stenn; secretary, Isaac Edwards; assistant secretary, Wright House; treasurer, Eugene Harris; reporters, Haywood Wyche, John Payton and James Grimes.

The group is working on a program of work for the year and is looking forward to a successful Leadership Training Workshop on October 8, for the Jamelson Federation in Bayboro.

Know 59 TB Carriers In City

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Fifty-nine known carriers of tuberculosis are probably roaming the city's streets.

cases detected in a series of spot X-rays taken in Philadelphia's skid row area.

Dr. Samuel G. Stein, chief of the Health Department's tuberculosis section, said Tuesday the 59 are dangerous carriers of the disease.

A mobile X-ray unit roamed through the skid row area last month. The pictures were developed each night and the next day Health Department workers rushed into the area to find infected men.

The 112 rounded up were taken to a district health clinic.

Eleventh-Hour Polls Indicate Conservatives To Win

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's Conservative party was favored to win an unprecedented third term in office today as Britons voted to elect a new House of Commons.

Eleventh-hour public opinion polls, the stock market and the bookmakers — legal in Britain — all indicated the Conservatives would win a majority of the 630 House seats and with it five more years in control of the government.

After a final canvass of 100 key voting districts, Conservative leaders predicted their majority would be about 50 seats, three less than when Parliament was dissolved Sept. 18.

The Laborites also predicted victory for their side by a majority of about 15 seats.

Three final public opinion polls showed a jump in Conservative popularity. But they still reported a massive 16 per cent of "don't know"—people who either hadn't decided which way to vote or wouldn't tell their decision.

On the London Stock Exchange steel shares made substantial gains. This indicated Britain's financiers were confident of a Conservative victory, for Labor threatens to put the steel industry under government ownership if elected to office.

The bookies also were still betting on the Conservatives. You had to put up three pounds on the Tories for a chance at winning only one pound. And one pound on Labor gave you a chance at winning three if the Laborites were victorious.

The Conservative party chairman, Lord Hailsham, was jubilant.

"I thought the uncommitted would suddenly make up their minds," he said. "That is happening. The gap is widening."

"There were the usual victory predictions from the two party leaders.

"We are going to win," said Macmillan.

"I am confident we shall win," said Labor chief Hugh Gaitskell, but he added, "To be sure of a good majority, we shall need a really high poll."

How many of Britain's 35,400,000 eligible voters would turn out was in doubt. The weatherman promised another fine sunny day, enhancing the prospect for a heavy poll. But early voters in 23 counties groped their way to the polls through fog. If it continued, the size of the vote might be seriously affected.

Britain's third party, the Liberals, also was optimistic. Party leader Jo Grimond claimed the high percentage of uncommitted voters reported by the opinion polls showed they "do not believe in the divine right of either the Tories or the Socialists to rule forever and that an alternative vote is essential."

But Grimond's Liberals held only six seats in the last House, and the most they could hope for is to double that.

The election was the first nationwide trial of strength for Macmillan and Gaitskell, for both have risen to the top since the last general election, in 1955.

When the Conservatives were elected their second term in office then, they were headed by Sir Anthony Eden. Macmillan took over when Eden resigned in 1957, after the Suez invasion.

Labor's leader in 1955 was quiet, self-effacing Clement Attlee. Ten years before he had masterminded his party to its landslide post-war victory, only to see its popularity gradually decline. Attlee quit after the 1955 defeat to make way for a younger man.

In the campaign, one of the most heated in recent years, Macmillan's Conservatives claimed their free enterprise policies had given Britain booming prosperity. The Prime Minister also claimed major credit for the move toward better relations between the West and the Communist world.

Labor as usual called for more government control of the economy and a bigger slice of the national pie for the underdogs. It promised more welfare benefits including pension increases and a cut in the purchase (sales) tax on household necessities.

Sir Winston Churchill, pushing 85, is the oldest Conservative candidate. He was certain of re-election in Woodford.

Fire Prevention Is Good Housekeeping

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK INSPECTION—Greenville firemen are shown inspecting a fuse box at Third Street School as a part of their tour of Greenville schools and businesses this week. The firemen tour different buildings in town in order to familiarize themselves with the floor plan of the structures so, in the event of a fire in the building, they will know what to look for. (Reflector Staff Photo)

"Prevention of home fires is good housekeeping inside and out," according to Greenville Fire Chief George Gardner.

Keeping trash and old clothes from gathering in the home is one of the greatest means of fire prevention the chief continued.

Other things including smoking cause fires, Gardner added. Keep plenty of large ash trays in all parts of the building so there is no excuse for dropping cigarettes on the floors or laying them on furniture where they might be knocked onto the floor.

If you must smoke in bed, sit up, he continued. You are not as likely to fall asleep in a sitting position with a cigarette in your hand.

Home owners should have all heating units checked before lighting them for the winter to see that they are in good condition and properly adjusted. Never light a hot oil burner. Wait until it cools off so the gases will not explode.

Should your oil burner become too hot, go out of control, cut off the valve at the stove and at the outside tank and let the heater cool off. If you think you might need the fire department, don't hesitate to call.

It may help to have a garden hose connected and coiled for immediate use. The hose should be long enough to reach to the furthest part of your home. It can be used until firemen arrive. Be sure to get the largest size hose as it gives more water and pressure with less friction loss than smaller hoses.

If a fire gets beyond control, close all doors to the room to shut it in until the firemen arrive. Remember to always call the fire department when in doubt. Give the fireman on the phone as much information about the fire as possible, including your correct name and address, what is on fire, and if possible the extent of the fire.

Most electrical and heating appliance fires are caused by overloaded circuits, improper and bridged fuses, frayed and worn extension cords, extension cords tied into position by nails, and cheap cords and appliances not approved by the Underwriters Laboratories.

Always keep a few extra fuses on hand, so if you have one to blow, cut off all lights and units on the circuit and replace the blown fuse with another fuse of not more than 15 amperes, unless a competent electrician has checked your wiring and advised the next safe size to use. Then turn on one light or unit at a time, waiting for a few seconds between units. When you come to the shorted unit your fuse will blow. Disconnect the unit and have it repaired by a good electrician.

Never bridge a fuse as it is your safety valve to blow before the wiring or appliance can get hot enough to cause a fire.

If you have the circuit breaker type of switch box, flip the current breaker on and follow the outlined procedure. If it kicks off again, call an electrician as you can not replace it as you can the old type fuses.

If you have a short in large appliances, such as a stove, washing machine, or drier, learn where and how to pull the main switch as this will prevent further damage to the units and retard the fire until firemen arrive.

"Remember—fires and accidents don't just happen—they are caused. Help prevent them."

Win Tax Claims On Film Negative

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Los Angeles County has won its claim to $100,000 in taxes on the negative of the motion picture "Around the World in 80 Days."

Superior Court Wednesday objected the contention of the producing company, Michael Todd Co. Inc., that the negative and the copyright are intangibles and thus not taxable.

The case was a test of the county's right to levy the film tax which has produced some two million dollars annually. Counsel for Todd is expected to appeal.

Old Plantation Holds Promise Of New Way Of Life

By LEONARD SULLIVAN Rocky Mount Telegram Staff Writer
VENTOSA PLANTATION, N.C.—Here in the corner of historic Halifax County, met on the east by the Roanoke River, are 4,000 acres that hold a promise of new Southern life.

More than 1,000 pure-bred Herefords dot this span of the river basin that once paid tribute only to cotton. Descendants of slaves that helped make cotton king here feel more at home in the saddle than behind a plow.

Transition from row-crop farming to one of the state's biggest and most progressive cattle operations has brought new life to this sprawling, 151-year-old plantation. Only the land shows signs of the old order.

The rich, black soil is protected from the surging Roanoke by a sod levee built by slave labor to capture the land from the river. On a rise by the shore are the markings of a riverboat landing where supplies for the farm were unloaded. On this same rise stood the three-story Clark mansion that burned during the Civil War.

Plan Special Program For Half-Time Show

The East Carolina Band, under the direction of Herbert L. Carter, has planned a special and varied program "Show Business" for their half-time show at the Homecoming Day football contest between East Carolina and Elon this Saturday, October 10. Kickoff will be at 2 p.m.

Dr. C.J. Bradner, Jr. of the faculty will be announcer for all the Ski King numbers. For this he will be joined by an EC alumna and the present Miss Greenville, Alice Ann Horne of Labor City.

As a special attraction E.C. Beatty, accompanied by the band, will sing his composition "Ski King," one of the top hit tunes on the nation's turn tables.

Throughout the evening's program, East Carolina majorettes will share in the celebration by presenting various dance and twirling routines against the background of the musical score.

Beatty, a native North Carolinian, tells in his song a story from recent North Carolina folklore.

'58 Farm Income Near $6 Billion

"We are happy and fortunate in being able to have E.C. Beatty sing his own composition," Carter stated, "and we believe spectators will enjoy it as much as any thing the band has ever sponsored."

RALEIGH, N.C., Oct. 6. — North Carolina farmers realized a net income of $599.5 million from farming in 1958, according to the State-Federal Crop Reporting Service. This amount exceeded 1957 by $123.6 million and placed North Carolina 5th among the states in realized net farm income.

Other songs the band will play and illustrate with maneuvers and figures are: "Surrey With The Fringe On Top"; "Steam Heat," from the smash hit "Pajama Game"; and "With a Little Bit of Luck" from "My Fair Lady."

Realized net is the income farm operators have to spend after paying their production expenses. Average realized net income per farm in North Carolina amounted to $2,188 in 1958, compared with $1,719 in the preceding year. North Carolina farm operators ranked 30th among the states in realized net income per farm.

The half-time festivities will be closed with the band forming the letters EC and leading everyone in the singing of the Alma Mater.

Farm operators in North Carolina built up inventories of crops and livestock in 1958 by $14.2 million. When realized net income is adjusted to allow for the change in inventories, the total net farm income of North Carolina operators was $613.9 million. It was $453.8 million in 1957.

N.C. Harvest Is Slowed By Rain

RALEIGH (AP) — Rains last week slowed harvest operations in North Carolina for most crops, the State Crop Reporting Service said today.

Cash receipts from sales of farm commodities yielded North Carolina farmers $1,010.7 million in 1958, compared with $867.3 million in 1957. Government payments to farmers totaled $37.5 million, $11.1 million more than in the preceding year. The gross farm income of North Carolina farmers amounted to $1,246.6 million in 1958, a gain of $168.9 million from 1957. Gross income includes cash receipts and government payments plus allowances for the value of food and fuel produced and consumed on the farm and the rental value of the farm dwelling. The value of products produced and consumed on North Carolina farms totaled $139.9 million in 1958, which exceeded all other states in the Nation.

However, farmers in the north-eastern counties made excellent progress in digging their peanut crop, with reports indicating that about three-fourths of the crop has been dug and stacked.

Production expenses of North Carolina farm operators rose from $601.8 million in 1957 to $647.0 million in 1958. Production expenses are subtracted from gross income to obtain realized net income.

Reports for the week ending Oct. 3 indicate that soils in the state were wettest in the Piedmont and mountain counties. Soil moisture in the coastal plain was described as mostly adequate.

Farmers in most areas made some progress in preparing land for fall seeded crops. Reports indicated that nearly one-fifth of the state's small grain crop has been seeded.

Norway has a population of about three million.

A dozen families, most related through marriage, provided the bulk of labor. John Henry Anthony, 48, has worked here all his life, as did his grandfather. His brother and son live on the ranch. Joe Taylor, near 70, is retired here, but his son picked up behind him. Sam Evans, who married Anthony's sister, is bringing up nine children here.

McComas directs all operations on this ranch-farm on a $100,000 annual budget. With foreman W. E. White, he manages 1,000 acres in crops and another 1,000 in pasture.

Bladen County. McComas reasoned Westerners were too successful to be wrong. The first thing he did was bring in the horses.

The Clarks began a small cattle project several years ago under longtime farm manager J. R. Franck, now retired. But not until Clemson-trained Jack McComas came four years ago did cattle get serious attention.

Located seven miles east of Scotland Neck, Ventosa was once supplied by rail, and the timbers of a loading platform at a crossing called Norfleet still stand.

Instead of 100 mules that were once kept on the place, McComas has a half-dozen cow ponies. For himself, he has Bootlegger, a cow-handling quarter horse. The powerful animal was trained for the work in Oklahoma, where he got his name because he was hauled in half a trailer and illicit Sooner booze in the other.

Grandmother Swinging A Profitable Hammer

HOME BUILDER—Mrs. Grace Anderson has built more than 100 houses since 1950. Now head of her own construction company, she says she finds the work "pretty lucrative."

By CLAUDE ROSE
EDEN, N.Y. (AP)—When Mrs. Grace Anderson says she is a homemaker she means it literally. She has built more than 100 houses since 1950. Her tremendous energy and her skill in carpentry belie the fact that she has four grown children and is a grandmother. Mrs. Anderson finishes the interior of a house alone after a crew has erected the four walled skeleton. "I need help on the plasterboard," she says. "It comes in 14-foot-long pieces and I can lift it alone." One of her male helpers says,

Still Undecided On Lanza Burial

ROME (AP)—The body of Mario Lanza was being prepared for burial today, but his widow so far was too upset to decide whether he would rest in the Hollywood he shunned or in Italy.

The golden-voiced American tenor died Wednesday of a heart attack in a Rome clinic. He was only 38.

A family friend said that Lanza's body might be taken to the United States for burial in Hollywood, but there is also a possibility he might be buried in Cocco Casuria, in Italy's Abruzzi region, where his parents were born.

A spokesman for Mrs. Lanza said "she is still too upset to make any decision now."

The widow was in seclusion in the villa where the young singer's family, including four children, have made their home for several years since he deserted Hollywood.

Friends and fans waited outside for a chance to pay their last respects to Lanza, who started out as a truck driver in Philadelphia and won international acclaim for his voice.

Over the years Lanza waged a battle against overweight, but his death came as a shock. He entered the clinic last week for treatment of hardening of the walls of the arteries leading to the heart. His family and friends had not regarded his illness as critical.

Ayden Group At District Session

AYDEN — Ayden High School's chapter of the Future Homemakers of America attended the District I Rally at Pamlico County High School in Bayboro last Saturday.

Presiding over the district meeting at the host school was State Parliamentarian Celia Clark.

Pamlico Schools Supt. G. W. Harriet extended greetings to a group of over 600 members, advisors, and chapter mothers. M. B. Weaver, Pamlico High School principal also formally welcomed the group.

The theme of the rally was "Youth Can Do" and guest speaker the Rev. Mr. Earle Rogers of Washington used as the topic of his talk "Youth in the Home — Today and Tomorrow."

During the rally, Sue Wallace of Bath was elected district candidate for the office of state FHA reporter.

Attending from Ayden were: Mrs. Josephine Ross, advisor; Mrs. Lee Nance, chapter mother; Faye Highsmith, Kay Pierce, Patricia Allen, Judy Pierce, Joyce Dennis, Linda Faulkner, Mara R. Gooding, Micky Abene, Mary C. Franks, Laura Worthington, Camilla Nance, Betty Jackson, Patricia Cox, Trilliss House, Carol Manning, Martha Thompson and Pat Braxton.

Nasser Ready To Accept All UN Resolutions

CAIRO (AP)—President Gamal Abdel Nasser says he is ready to accept a United Nations commission that would implement all U. N. resolutions relating to Israel and the Arabs—including the 1951 Security Council resolutions calling for freedom of shipping in the Suez Canal.

Nasser emphasizes, however, that resolutions applying to Israel must be carried out along with those affecting the United Arab Republic.

These include the plan to give Palestine Arab refugees the right to return to their former homes in Israel or accept compensation, the 1957 plan for partition of Palestine and the internationalization of Jerusalem, which Israel has consistently rejected. He wants these implemented as well as the resolution ordering Egypt to allow Israeli shipping through the canal.

"If Israel accepts all U. N. resolutions, we will accept the Security Council resolution of 1951," Nasser said in a joint interview.

Wednesday with The Associated Press and the Christian Science Monitor.

He was asked if he has a concrete proposal for carrying out the resolutions.

"I can say we are ready to accept a United Nations board or commission to put these resolutions into effect for both Israel and us," he replied. "But it would be unfair if only we are asked to implement the resolutions on our side while Israel does not implement those on her side."

Nasser said such a board might be the old Palestine Conciliation Commission, established in 1949 to implement U. N. resolutions, or a new body.

Although the Arabs have demanded implementation of U. N. resolutions in the past, this is the first time Nasser has proposed the use of a commission. There is no indication Israel would agree to the plan. The Israelis have repeatedly turned down the 1947 partition proposal, which would mean a loss of territory they occupied in the Palestine War of 1948. TV Producer Fired In Quiz Show Probing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The producer of one of the few surviving television quiz shows has been fired because he would not swear that there had been no advance coaching of contestants.

House investigators looking behind the scenes of TV quiz show operations heard that testimony Wednesday from Thomas E. Ervin, vice president and general counsel of the National Broadcasting Co.

Finished Beer Before Holdup

LAKEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — A customer finished his beer leisurely, then took $500 at pistol point from bartender Alexander Hendlin.

Hendlin, excruciatingly nervous while waiting for officers to arrive Tuesday, passed the time by washing glasses — including the one on which the gunman had left his fingerprints.

Ervin said Howard Felsher, producer of the daytime television show Tic Tac Dough was fired last week by the network.

Word of the firing came after two press agents for another quiz program, the defunct show Twenty-One, testified that program had been rigged. They said their lawyer had told them not to tell the truth about this to New York authorities. The lawyer denied the accusation.

After a long day of open testimony, the House Legislative Oversight subcommittee went behind closed doors to question Daniel Enright, a co-owner, and Albert Freedman, producer of the Twenty-One show, which once drew top audience ratings.

Both declined comment before and after the four-hour session. The investigators would not say what had taken place but described the witnesses as very cooperative.

Today's questions were to center on Dotto, one of the first big quiz shows to collapse under the taint of scandal.

In Wednesday's open session, Ervin said that during a general check on NBC quiz shows he asked Felsher for a sworn statement that no Tic Tac Dough contestants had been fed advance answers.

Ervin said Felsher would not give such a statement "so we fired him."

NBC had taken over production of Tic Tac Dough and several other quiz shows after answers-in-advance accusations had been made about similar shows.

Felsher could not be reached in New York for comment.

Most of Wednesday's probing centered on Twenty-One. Late in the day, Alfred Davis and Arthur Franklin testified the show had been rigged. The two had been press agents for the program.

They said an attorney for their firm, Edwin Slote of New York, told them not to tell New York authorities the truth about the program.

Slote said he was willing to appear before the House investigators "for the purpose of discrediting Mr. Davis and his flagrant untruths."

Edward Kletler, an executive of the firm which sponsored the show, said at one point in his testimony that he was told by Enright that Charles Van Doren had been advanced $5,000 while still a contestant.

Kletler said Van Doren was then theoretically in a position of losing all his winnings if he lost on the show. Kletler said he was agreeable to the advance because he regarded Van Doren as a good risk even if he were to lose all he had won on the show.

Van Doren, now under contract to NBC as a commentator, won $129,000 on the program. He has telegraphed the subcommittee a denial of knowledge that there was anything wrong with the show.

McKeldin Thinks Nixon Is 'Next'

BALTIMORE (AP) — The man who nominated Eisenhower for president in 1952 thinks the next man in that office will be Richard M. Nixon.

Former Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin said Tuesday in an interview he believes Vice President Nixon will get the nomination without a fight at the 1960 Republican national convention and will defeat Sen. Symington of Missouri, the man McKeldin thinks will get the Democratic nomination.

Three Girls Are Either On 'Lark' Or Are Abducted

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — Are three teen-aged high school girls off on a lark with three California desperadoes who disguised themselves with fancy cowboy clothes and polite manners? Or have they been kidnaped?

FBI agents and local officers, seeking an answer to those questions, directed an ever-widening search today for a rose pink 1959 Pontiac sedan.

The girls have been unreported since they stepped into that car last Friday at the Helena High School. They are Claudia Fuller, 17, Sharron Lee McDowell, 16, and Sharron Irene Balazs, 17, members of families in modest circumstances.

For a few days before, they had been dating three newcomers to Helena.

Sheriff Dave Middlemas said the men, dressed in "fancy cowboy clothes," talked of plans to lease or buy a ranch. The girls, all horse lovers, appeared to be impressed.

Actually, the sheriff said, the three men are "armed, desperate and dangerous—as bad as they come."

The FBI identified them as George R. Jann, 29, Frank H. Spicer, 24, and Frank E. Fisher, age unknown. Jann and Spicer escaped Sept. 11 from a Soledad, Calif., prison where they were serving burglary terms.

Shortly after their escape, they were arrested at Lynwood, Calif., on suspicion of breaking into an auto agency, stealing an auto and $60 from the safe. They broke out of the Lynwood jail Sept. 15.

Fisher was arrested in San Diego Aug. 8 on charges of burglarizing a milling company in suburban Escondido. He was released on bail Aug. 31 and has been unreported since.

Officers said they had established the trio arrived in Helena about four days before the girls disappeared.

Former Greenville Grad Is Back As Dentist, Checking Teeth Of Pupils

A 1945 Greenville High School graduate has returned to Pitt County and the city this fall to serve as the State Board of Health dentist in the county and city schools.

Following graduation at the University of North Carolina School of Dentistry in August, Dr. Oscar H. Brown, son of Mrs. Nannie H. Brown of 805 E. Third St., began a 20-week tour of Greenville and Pitt County elementary schools recently.

The Pitt County Board of Health in conjunction with the State Board have hired Dr. Brown to lecture to the White students in the city and county between the ages of six and 13 on the subject of oral hygiene and to give dental treatment to the medically indigent among that group.

In cooperation with Pitt's Board of Commissioners, the Health Board appropriated $2,000 into this year's budget for the hiring of the special dentist.

Last year, the boards sponsored a similar program in the Negro schools.

According to the dentist, the main purpose of the 20-week tour is to educate the youngsters in the field of oral hygiene and to stimulate interest in teeth. "We feel that if we can get these youngsters to become interested in the care of their teeth, a lot of much-needed attention can be obtained," Brown said.

During one-week visits to Agnes Fulllove and Third St. Schools, Dr. Brown has inspected a total of 537 children. Of this total, 340 have received treatment and 298 have been referred to local dentists.

The dentist has conducted 16 different lectures during the two-week period with 537 pupils attending.

This week, Dr. Brown has been at the Junior High School for treatment of a special education class there and has now moved to Wahl-Coates School for the remainder of the current five-day period.

He is scheduled to be at Elmhurst next week for the fourth of five weeks to be devoted to Greenville's schools. The remaining 15 weeks will be spent in the county schools.

The dentist's services were obtained with funds from both the county and state Health Departments.

During his assignment here Brown is making his home in Winterville with his wife and two daughters. His wife, a native of Winterville, is the former Hazel Weathington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W.A. Weathington of Winterville.

Army Parading Newest Missile

BERDEEN, Md. (AP) — The Army parades its new Sergeant atomic battlefield missile today in a mass demonstration of firepower for all-out or limited wars.

About 50 fighting items were lined up for demonstration at the Aberdeen Proving Ground. Some will be fired, but no launching of the Sergeant was planned.

The Sergeant is a solid-propellant missile that can be carried by air, set up by a trained crew in a very short time and launched in darkness or light in any kind of weather. It can hurl a nuclear warhead at least 75 miles deep into enemy positions.

Predicts Soviet Appeal To God

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Evangelist Billy Graham said Wednesday night, "Mr. Khrushchev, despite all you say about believing in God, someday you and all your kind will call upon Him."

He referred to Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, who toured this country recently. He added to the 8,100 persons gathered for the second night of his 27-night crusade here: "And all those here tonight who have never prayed will know an hour when you will call upon His name."

"But the tragedy is that someday it will be too late to pray. The Bible tells about a man who waited until he got to hell to pray, and then it was too late. Our prayers are to be prayed this side of the grave."

Prayer "is as natural as breathing," Graham said.

"But prayer in the Christian sense is a dialogue. We must not just ask and beg God. We must listen for Him to whisper the answer and guidance for our lives."

"Jesus said to pray in secret. Every home ought to have a little chapel where we commune with God."

Graham's appeal at the end of his sermon for listeners to come forward to bow before God "ask Him to come into your hearts" was answered by 155 persons.

After A Year In Army, Elvis 'Likes It'; He Won't Reveal

BAD NAUHEIM, Germany (AP) — Elvis Presley has completed his first year with the U.S. Army in Germany. He says he likes it, but doesn't plan to reenlist.

"My manager would shoot me," the 24-year-old singer explains.

Looking tanned and trim in well-worn green fatigues, the guitar-strumming rock 'n' roller talked to a reporter about the first 12 months of his 18-month hitch.

"I enjoy it very much," he said. "It was quite a change, of course. But for me, it was a test to prove to other people that you're a man who can take it. I didn't want anybody to think that this is the man who had it easy. I was determined to go to any limits to make this clear. I hope I have."

"I made a lot of friends that I would never have met otherwise. Of course, I was very homesick at times but so are thousands of other guys."

Presley doesn't sleep on base. During off-duty hours, he stays in a house here with his father and grandmother, who prepares his food. The camp is in Friedberg, a 10-minute drive.

forward to bow before God "ask Him to come into your hearts" was answered by 155 persons.

For 10 days his unit had been on a field exercise and he had to get out of bed at 3 every morning. But he looked fresh and vigorous, more so than when he disembarked from a transatlantic troop transport a year ago.

He'll be out of uniform next February or March — like the rest of his fellow draftees.

"We'll be discharged in the States," he observed. "I look forward very much to be back home and to be back on my job. I'm going to be very, very busy."

One of his first jobs will be to star in a picture, "G.I. Blues," a light piece about an American soldier.

Every night, he has some singing practice. "Actually, I sing every chance I have," he says.

But there is not too much time left between duty, 2300 hours and fan mail — he gets 1,000 to 2,000 letters a week.

"Has he fallen in love overseas?" "I had a few different dates but nothing special, not what you call a steady one."

"If he were a career soldier, he would have a bright future," said Sgt. Billy G. Wilson, his platoon leader, of Gardens, Calif.

"He makes out real fine and takes a real interest in his military job."

Capt. Hubert Childress of Coleman, Tex., commented: "He is a fine soldier. Amazingly fine. All the guys like him. Apparently, he came here with the right attitude."

Presley is with the 3rd Armored Division. Most of the time he drives a platoon scout jeep. He is a specialist fourth, a rank equivalent to corporal.

Santiago, Chile, in South America has a sugarloaf-like peak called Cerro Santa Lucia in the heart of the city. In early days it was used as a fortress.

Find Evidence Of Old Fire System

LANCASTER, Ohio (AP) — While tearing up sidewalk around City Hall, workers found evidence of a fire-fighting system used years ago.

It was a 15-foot cistern, full of water. Service director Russell Evans says such cisterns were scattered about the city to provide water for firemen before the day of the hydrant and pipeline systems.

NOTICE OF SALE OF REAL PROPERTY UNDER DEED OF TRUST

Under and by virtue of power and authority contained in that certain deed of trust executed and delivered by W. A. Daniel and his wife Johnnie E. Daniel to V. N. Whitehurst, Trustee, same bearing date of January 4, 1958, and appearing of record in the office of the Register of Deeds of Pitt County in Book No. C-30 at page 167, default having been made in the payment of the indebtedness therein secured, the undersigned trustee will on the 9th day of November, 1959, at 12 o'clock noon (PST) before the Courthouse door in the City of Greenville, Pitt County, North Carolina, sell at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, the following described real property, to wit:

That certain lot or parcel of land lying and being situated in the Town of Grifton, Pitt County, North Carolina, and being more particularly described as follows:

THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW!

By FAGALY and SHORTEN

particularly described as follows: "Being in the Town of Grifton and being the identical tract of land conveyed to William A. Daniel and wife, Johnnie E. Daniel, by C. W. Beaman, Trustee, dated Jan. 4, 1958, and beginning on Main St. at J. A. Willis' Northeast corner and runs the edge of Main Street about 100 feet to a stake, (Mary-Helen's) corner; thence in a Southerly direction with her line about 100 feet, thence West a straight line with Johnnie Stewart's back line to J. A. Willis' lot, thence his line North to Main Street, the point of beginning, and being the identical property conveyed by John A. Willis and wife Nora Willis to Henry Willis, to which record reference is hereby made for a more complete description."

The highest bidder at said sale will be required to deposit 10% of his bid with the trustee to show good faith.

Sale will be subject to such other announcements as may be made by trustee at time of sale.

This the 8th day of October, 1959.

V. N. WHITEHURST Trustee Oct. 8-15-22-29

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—Airlines and selected issues posted gains in a cautious and irregular stock market early this afternoon. Trading was moderately active.

Key stocks produced gains or losses going from fractions to about a point. Most moves were minor.

Steels and rails drifted off fractionally for the most part.

The Big Three motors were narrowly mixed while American Motors touched a new high and the Studebaker-Packard issues gained slightly.

Oils continued to droop. Coppers were about unchanged. Electronics-milled unevenly.

Thiokol, the rocket fuel stock, added about a point in slower dealings then sliced the gain.

Gains of better than a point were made by Pan American World Airways, American Airlines and Eastern Air Lines while United Air Lines advanced about a point.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off 10 cents to $222.10 with the industrials down 20 cents, the rails down 10 cents and the utilities unchanged.

Corporate bonds were slightly higher.

U.S. government bonds continued to rise.

Hold Double Funeral Rites This Afternoon

Double funeral services for Mrs. Etha Bullock Harris, 44, wife of Floyd P. Harris of near Belvoir, and Mrs. Reva Bullock Harris, 51, wife of J. Lyman Harris of near Greenville, were held at Parker's Chapel Free Will Baptist Church Thursday afternoon at 3:30. The Rev. Guy Owens, pastor of Gum Swamp Free Will Baptist Church, and the Rev. Billy Jackson, pastor of Parker's Chapel Free Will Baptist Church, conducted the services. Burial was in Greenwood Cemetery. Mrs. Etha Harris died Tuesday night at 11 o'clock at Pitt Memorial Hospital and Mrs. Reva Harris died Wednesday morning at 1:30 at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Mrs. Etha Harris, daughter of Mrs. Della James Bullock of the Belvoir Community, and the late Jesse B. Bullock, spent all her life in the Bethel and Belvoir Communities. She was a member of Gum Swamp Free Will Baptist Church.

Surviving are her husband; four sons: Jesse Jackson Harris of Penny Hill, Floyd P. Harris Jr. of the home, Bobby Ray Harris of Norfolk, Va., and Tommy Woodard Harris of the home; two grandchildren: her mother; a sister, Mrs. J. T. Clark of Belvoir; and a brother, Jesse J. Bullock of Belvoir.

Mrs. Reva Harris, daughter of Mrs. Della James Bullock of the Belvoir Community, and the late Jesse B. Bullock, was reared in the Bethel and Belvoir Communities and for the past twenty-five years had lived in the Parker's Chapel Community. She was a member of Parker's Chapel Free Will Baptist Church.

Surviving are her husband; a son, John I. Harris of the home; her mother; a sister, Mrs. J. T. Clark of Belvoir; and a brother, Jesse J. Bullock of Belvoir.

Funeral Friday For Mrs. J. D. Gaskins

WINTERTOWN, N.C. — Mrs. Jenny Abbott Gaskins, 78, died at her home here about 1:10 this morning after an illness of sometime. She was the widow of the late J. D. Gaskins of Lenoir and the daughter of the late E. M. and Lucy Abbott, also of Lenoir County. She was a charter member of the Winterville Christian Church.

Funeral services will be held at the Winterville Christian Church Friday at 3 p.m. Burial will follow in Westview Cemetery in Kinston. The body will remain in Garner's Funeral Home in Kinston and will be placed in the church Friday at 1 p.m.

She is survived by four sons, Albert of Enfield, Jack of Boone, Tom of Fayetteville and Pratt of Autryville; three daughters, Mrs. Bell Liverman of Lexington, S.C., Mrs. John M. Burgess of Garner, and Miss Faye Gaskins of the home; 12 grandchildren and seven nieces and nephews. The nephews will act as pallbearers.

Nehru Warns Of Resistance

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Prime Minister Nehru warned today that India will resist any further moves across the Tibetan border by Chinese Communist troops.

But for the time being, he said, India will not try to eject the Chinese from disputed outposts they have seized.

"We do not intend to start military operations against these places at this stage when we are dealing with the situation on a political level," he told his monthly news conference.

Tobacco Tips

By S.J. WEEKS

Pitt County Tobacco Agent

One of the most important decisions a tobacco farmer has to make each year is which variety of tobacco he will grow. There are three factors to consider when making this decision. First, the disease situation on the farm needs to be taken care of by planting a variety that has enough resistance to the disease or diseases that are prevalent on the farm. Second, the variety which you decide to grow should be adapted to the soil type or types on your farm. Third, the variety selected should be capable of producing a good quality and yield.

In order to develop and release varieties with these characteristics a tobacco variety evaluation test is being conducted each year in North Carolina. The program is conducted by the North Carolina Agricultural Experiment Station in cooperation with six tobacco companies and several farmers from different sections of the flue-cured tobacco producing area of the State. R. M. Dilda, of the Fountain Community, is one of the cooperating farmers.

Each of the cooperating farmers grows one-half acre of five different varieties or experimental strains of tobacco on his farm. The tobacco is sorted and prepared for market, keeping each curing of each variety separate. Each of the varieties grown by Mr. Dilda and other cooperating growers in the eastern and border belts, will be displayed at the Star Warehouse, No. 2, in Kinston, on Tuesday, Oct. 13 and 14. The cooperating growers in the middle and old belts will display the tobacco grown for the evaluation test in Durham on a later date.

Representatives of the research and leaf departments of the cooperating tobacco companies inspect and analyze the displayed tobacco to determine the desirability of the different varieties for use by their respective companies.

The varieties included in the 1953 variety evaluation test are Hicks No. 73, and three experimental strains which are resistant to black shank and some other diseases.

Counties other than Pitt participating in this program are Wayne and Lenoir, in the eastern belt, and Columbus and Robeson in the border belt.

Hold Last Rites For Floyd A. Heath

FARMVILLE — Floyd Ammond Heath, 69, of Route 1, Farmville, died at his home Wednesday morning following several months of declining health. Funeral services will be conducted at the Farmville Funeral Home Thursday at 3 p.m. The Rev. L. B. Manning, Fountain F.W.B. minister, assisted by the Rev. E. S. Coates, Farmville Presbyterian minister, will officiate. Interment will follow in the Snow Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Heath had lived for the last 24 years in the Farmville community and was a retired farmer. Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Alice McCoy Heath of the home; three daughters, Mrs. Hubert Spike of Newport News, Va., Mrs. Johnnie Hinson of Route 1, Mechanicsville, and Mrs. Kermit Wilds of Newport News, Va.; four sons, Donald of Route 1, Farmville, Willie Earl of Fayetteville, Marcus of Newport News, Va., and Edward of Route 1, Farmville; one sister, Mrs. Betty Murphy of Route 1, Hookerton; 14 grandchildren and one great grandchild.

Educator Named Coadjutor For Carolina Diocese

RALEIGH (AP)—Central North Carolina Episcopalians selected a Tennessee educator with experience in college work Wednesday to be the second ranking officer of their diocese.

They chose Dr. George Moyer Alexander, 45, dean of the University of the South School of Theology at Sewanee, Tenn., over 12 other candidates during an all-day balloting session.

As bishop coadjutor of the Diocese of North Carolina, Dr. Alexander will serve as assistant bishop, working principally in missionary college affairs. He automatically would succeed Bishop Richard H. Baker in case of death.

Dr. Alexander has been active in church work in Florida and South Carolina as well as Tennessee.

One of six out-of-state nominees, he was elected on the sixth ballot late Wednesday afternoon. He was placed in the running by a special nominating committee.

Two Men Die Of Self-Inflicted Gunshot Wounds

FARMVILLE — Two elderly men, both in poor health, died of self-inflicted gunshot wounds early yesterday morning.

According to Pitt County Coroner E. W. Harvey, Floyd A. Heath, 67, of Route 2, Farmville, shot himself with a 12 gauge shot gun about 7 a.m. while Jalmer E. Bynum, 62, of Grimmersburg St. in Farmville died about 8 a.m. from a 32 caliber pistol shot wound to the head.

Coroner Harvey said the incidents were not connected in any way.

Bynum had been suffering from an illness for several years. Heath, sick for the past several weeks had a leg amputated several months ago and has been an invalid since that time. Both men were dependent according to the coroner.

Tobacco Prices 'High And Firm'

Prices on all grades of tobacco offered for sale held "firm and high" all day yesterday as Greenville sold 432,526 pounds of tobacco for $241,614.65 to average $55.88 according to Sales Supervisor W. L. Wedbee.

The overall quality of the offerings yesterday, however, was not quite as good as Tuesday's sale, Wedbee said.

Today's prices continue at the same high level as yesterday and there have been no appreciable "tail ending" signs in Greenville sales as yet.

Jalmer E. Bynum Funeral Set Today

FARMVILLE — Jalmer Emmett Bynum, 62, died at his home in Farmville Wednesday following declining health for six years. Funeral services will be conducted Thursday at 4:30 p.m. at the Farmville Funeral Home. The Rev. Jack Daniel, Farmville Christian minister, will officiate. Burial will follow in the Forest Hill Cemetery in Farmville.

Mr. Bynum was a lifelong resident of the Farmville community and he was engaged in farming activities in Pitt and Greene Counties. He was a veteran of World War I.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Aileen Kilpatrick Bynum; two daughters, Mrs. Charles E. Satterwhite of Farmville and Mrs. Tom Byrd of Greenville; and two grandchildren.

ECC Registrar Speaks At Pitt NCEA Meeting

STOKES—Registrar Robert L. Holt of East Carolina College praised Pitt County's teachers and advised methods for teachers in preparing students for the transition from high school to college last night in a talk before a meeting of the Pitt County Chapter of the North Carolina Education Association in the Stokes-Pagetous High School auditorium.

Dr. Holt told the gathering that students should be provided with a stimulus to motivation during the entire 12 years of public instruction before college.

"We cannot hope to instill in students the real meaning of a college education during the summer before college entrance," he said.

In praising the work being done by teachers, Dr. Holt said, "Citizens should stand in awe at the job you're doing... and college students should spend less time criticizing the product produced for them by public schools and more time educating them."

He indicated that many colleges prefer the "finished product" entering college, not a student "who needs educating."

In giving the teachers pointers, Dr. Holt referred to four main categories—strong course content with particular emphasis on English, strong emphasis on "how to study," an orientation concerning what will be expected on a student upon college entrance, and the building of a motivation for the student to attend college for its real meaning.

Mrs. Elsie C. Lewis, president of the Pitt chapter, presided at the meeting and heard a motion passed to renew the chapter's national affiliation (with the NEA headquarters in Washington, D. C.).

The Rev. Mr. Austin Anderson, pastor of the Oak Grove Christian Church near Stokes, led a brief devotion.

Miami's School Experiment Dies

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Florida's first experiment in public school integration appeared today to be doomed when the Dade County School Board assigned 379 more Negro pupils to Orchard Villa Elementary.

Parents of the 14 white pupils in the school indicated that they now will take them out.

The school board admitted four Negroes to Orchard Villa at the start of the fall term, along with 14 whites. The district in which the previously all-white school is situated has in recent years become virtually all-Negro.

It had been expected that the school board eventually would open the school up to the Negro children of the neighborhood, a move that would make it an all-Negro school.

A total of 67 white children in the Orchard Villa district are attending all-white schools elsewhere.

The 379 Negroes will enter the school Monday. The present all-white staff will be replaced with a Negro principal and teachers.

In another action, the board rejected applications of 11 Negroes seeking to attend other all-white schools. Three had applied for admission to Coral Gables High, and one each to Edison and Jackson Highs, Miami Beach Junior High, and Fulford Elementary.

Bowaters Plant Expecting Strike

CATAWBA, S.C. (AP) — About 250 organized workers of the new Bowaters Carolina Corp's pulp plant here are expected to walk out at midnight tonight, shutting down the 38-million-dollar plant after less than three months of operation.

The strike—if it comes as expected—will result from an abrupt crisis in negotiations begun late in September. Members of the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers are seeking their first contract at the huge South Carolina plant.

The dispute is not over wages, but over what amounts of workload disagreement and policy on what maintenance workers can and cannot do.

The union maintains the company is sticking to a tougher policy here than at other Bowaters plants.

Because of the strike threat the company called off its formal opening ceremonies scheduled Friday. The firm has made no statement as to its positions on the issues.

Farmville Market Has $54.79 Day

FARMVILLE — A sales average of $54.79 was recorded here yesterday as the tobacco market sold a total 183,722 pounds for a total $100,660.

Season totals are: total poundage—16,084,664; total receipts—$10,382,538; and sales average—$57.41.

Doctors Pleased By Progress Of Siamese Twins

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Doctors were pleased today with the progress of the Stubblefield Siamese twins, including the one who underwent surgery Wednesday.

Joseph Adams, public relations director at the University of Oregon Hospital, where the twins were separated Tuesday, said doctors were extremely satisfied with the condition of both twins.

The condition of three-month-old Jeannett Kim Stubblefield stabilized and her breathing again was normal after a tracheotomy Wednesday, Adams said.

In such an operation the windpipe is opened and a metal tube inserted. The breathing then is through the tube.

Jeannett Kim and her sister, Dennett Linn, each weighed 8 1/2 pounds after surgery.

Despite Rains, A Goodly Crowd

Rain and cloudy weather yesterday and last night cut attendance at the Pitt County Agricultural Fair, according to Fair Manager Norman Y. Chambliss.

Chambliss said, "never the less, I have never seen a larger crowd of Negro children at a fair in the 11 years I have been here."

According to the manager, a total of 2,412 paid admissions were accepted at the gate yesterday as compared with 2,763 paid admissions on Wednesday of last year. Chambliss noted that last year on Wednesday, Negro school children's day, the sky was clear and it did not rain.

"We are still well pleased with the interest being shown by the educational exhibits in the exhibit hall and in the attendance at the livestock building," he said.
