Uncovered Supply Of 'White Lightning'

ABC OFFICERS... Taylor, Lilley and Ward with part of the 30 gallons of illegal spirits captured early this morning.

Caught Again On Bootleg Charges

A 37-year-old Greenville Negro has his probation revoked this morning and received an additional six months sentence from Greenville Recorder Judge Charles Whedbee after being arrested by Pitt County ABC officers early this morning on charges of possession of 30 gallons of non-tax-paid whiskey for the purpose of sale.

J. M. Ward, Pitt County ABC Chief, identified the Negro as being Louis Harper of 408 15th Street. According to the officer, the booze was found in a hole under the kitchen floor of the dwelling.

Ward commented the Negro was burning the cases in which the 60 half-gallon jars came when the officers arrived at the house about 1 a. m.

Harper, on probation from a conviction on similar charges several months ago, had his probation revoked and was sentenced to serve six months on the roads for the previous conviction. In addition, he was convicted of the charge brought against him last night and sentenced to an additional six months on the roads, to start at the expiration of the first sentence.

Officers said the liquor captured last night would bring $4.00 per jar, totaling $240 for the entire cache. Federal tax on the whiskey would amount to $10.50 per gallon or $315.

No Southern Unity Move Shaping Up

ASHEVILLE (AP)—A Southern unity move in the 1960 Democratic national convention appeared less likely today as the Southern Governors' Conference went into the second day of its 25th annual meeting here.

One or two of the predominantly Democratic chief executives had mentioned the possibility of a concerted effort by the South in behalf of some candidates for the Democratic nomination.

But others contacted today expressed doubt that any attempt of that sort is in the works.

Gov. Leroy Collins of Florida said that in his opinion a Southern unity move would be unwise for a number of reasons, principally the varying segregation situation in the several states.

The governors met today with their affiliated Southern Regional Education Board, the regional cooperative effort to provide higher education.

They also heard Gov. Orval Faubus of Arkansas, chairman of the Industrial Development Committee, report that despite race and political developments, the South is continuing to make rapid progress in attracting new industry.

National party politics continued to be a major item of interest, but the governors began to give some attention to their internal politics—selection of a new chairman to succeed Gov. James P. Coleman of Mississippi.

There was speculation that the new chairman likely will be either Faubus or Gov. J. Lindsey Almond Jr. of Virginia, if tradition is followed.

The conference usually does not elect freshman members, former chairmen, Republicans or lame-ducks whose term expire in the ensuing year. That appears to narrow the field to Faubus, Almond, and Gov. Price Daniel of Texas.

But Daniel is not present, and in the past an absent member has never been named.

As to national politics, there appeared to be a quite favorable trend toward Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas. However, none of the Democrats expressed any firm choice. Sens. John Kennedy (Mass.) and Stuart Symington (Miss.) have their admirers.

The governors tonight will hear an address by Frederick R. Kappel, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. at the annual state dinner.

Eighteen Persons Accused Of Big Lottery Ring Operations

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Eighteen persons accused of lottery ring operations were held in bail ranging up to $15,000 following raids Monday by an army of 84 federal and city law enforcement officers here.

Described as the "banker" of operations netting thousands of dollars daily was 30-year-old Carl T. Lippard, held in $15,000 bail. A 46-year-old Negro held in $10,000 bail, Willie Sondley, was called a "lieutenant" in the lottery. Others were held in $1,000 bail.

All were charged in federal warrants with failing to buy gambling stamps and to pay income tax on money allegedly made from a "butter and egg" lottery, a game of chance based on market quotations. Lippard is the only white man among yesterday's defendants.

Authorities seized $1,285 in bills and change, and a large load of gambling materials in raids on 12 houses and a cafe in Monday's early hours. Three vehicles were confiscated.

Lippard and Sondley were arrested first as six carloads of officers trapped the men in the parking lot of a firm where Sondley is a janitor.

An officer said the other 16 allegedly ran or worked at "pickup points" where writers brought tickets they had sold. They were taken into custody after a prearranged radio signal was flashed

Seasonal Drop For Employed

WASHINGTON (AP)—National employment fell off seasonally by 884,000 to 66,347,000 in September. This drop was expected because of the return of temporarily employed students to school.

Unemployment fell by 196,000 to 3,230,000—also primarily due to the job seeking youngsters leaving the labor market to resume classes.

The decline in employment was three million—raised the prospect that Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell may have to eat his hat on the Labor Department building steps.

Mitchell has pledged to do just that if the October figure was above three million.

Seymour Wolfbein, deputy assistant secretary of labor said that with the steel strike still continuing the unemployment total for October probably will exceed three million.

Wolfbein said that layoffs due to the steel strike had topped 225,000 in early October, in addition to the 500,000 striking steel workers.

He said that the rate of layoffs due to the steel strike, formerly 10,000 a week, now has stepped up to 21,000 a week and may jump to 30,000 soon.

Wolfbein told a news conference that the wage loss to steel strikers and others laid off because of the steel strike has mounted to 863 million dollars through the first week of October.

The decline in both employment and unemployment in September although seasonally expected because of the return of students to school from the labor market, was accentuated by the steel strike effects.

September employment, at 66,347,000 was 1,718,000 higher than a year ago. Unemployment at 3,230,000 was 681,000 less than a year ago.

'Easterly Wave' In Caribbean

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A Navy hurricane hunter patrol plane flew into an easterly wave in the eastern Caribbean today.

The easterly wave, which can be the first step in forming a tropical storm, stretched from north-northeast of Puerto Rico through the center of the island and south-southwest to the island of Curacao off Venezuela.

His voice rising to a shout at times, McDonald told the fact-finders the steel companies were demanding "unconditional surrender." What they wanted, he indicating Lippard and Sondley had been picked up. Authorities said a search of Sondley's home found box after box containing lottery ticket books plus other gambling paraphernalia. A search of Lippard's home failed to reveal any gambling devices, officers added.

A city policeman quoted Lippard as saying after his arrest: "You don't have the top man." He did not elaborate.

The raids were carried out by the Intelligence Division of the Internal Revenue Service and Charlotte police. The FBI may step into the case because officers said they believed the tickets allegedly used were shipped to Charlotte from another state.

Joint Regional Education Plans Seen A Future Need

ASHEVILLE, N. C. (AP)—Increasing demand for higher education may soon make it necessary for some states to jointly establish and operate institutions through an unused provision of the Southern Regional Education Board, the Southern Governors' Conference was told today.

Since its creation in 1949, Director Robert C. Anderson of Atlanta said, SREB has been able to fill the demand for places in existing graduate professional schools in most fields through its contract programs.

But, he added, unless means can be found to greatly strengthen existing programs in certain fields, it may be necessary to rely on the joint ownership idea incorporated in the original SREB charter.

The SREB held its annual meeting here today in connection with the 25th annual meeting of the Southern Governors' Conference, of which it is an affiliate.

Since states cannot contract with each other, SREB was created by the Southern Governors' Conference after World War II as an agency through which states with good programs in certain fields of higher education could make them available through SREB contract agreements to students in other states.

Originally, because of the South's deficiencies in certain fields, particularly medicine, it was thought that it might be well for various states to join in establishment and operation of needed new institutions. One or two tentative steps in that direction were taken, but no joint project ever materialized. Now, Anderson reported, once again it appears that such joint ventures may become desirable or necessary.

He said estimates indicate that the South will have to spend nearly two and one-half billion dollars in the next 10 years in capital outlay alone to take care of enrollment increases in higher educational institutions. And, he said, if the South is to continue its industrial and economic growth, it must have a ready supply of skilled professionals.

To fill that need, he reported, existing schools in those areas will have to be expanded and facilities created in new areas.

In his report, Gov. Cecil H. Underwood of West Virginia, SREB chairman, said that last year alone, more than 1,000 students attended schools outside their home states under the SREB contract program in medicine, dentistry, veterinary medicine and social work.

Studies also showed, he reported, a shortage of some 10,000 teachers of exceptional children in the region, and joint SREB-foundation funds have established training programs in that field at Peabody College, the University of Tennessee and the University of Texas.

United Fund Solicitations Here Begun By Volunteers

Approximately 100 volunteer workers began United Fund solicitations in Greenville today following a kick-off breakfast for the campaign this morning.

At the breakfast this morning, attended by some 60 workers, solicitors received their campaign kits and instructions on conducting the campaign. Dr. Ray Minges, president of the Pitt County United Fund, reviewed for the campaign workers the $107,000 budget that has been set for the county-wide fund this year.

A total of $69,419.05 has been budgeted for the 15 major agencies of county-wide nature that are included in Pitt United. Dr. Minges told the solicitors, these include the American Red Cross, Pitt County Boy Scouts, Pitt County Girl Scouts, Pitt County Mental Health Association, Pitt County Association for the Blind, Pitt County Association of Retarded Children, Salvation Army and Carolina's United.

In addition a total of $23,903 has been designated for community service organizations in the 15 townships of the county. Dr. Minges pointed out that these community service budgets cover a broad field of charity and service activities in the individual townships of the county. A committee in each of the townships administers the township budget, distributing the funds to various agencies of purely local nature.

Dr. M. W. Aldridge and W. M. Scales Jr. are co-chairmen for the fund-raising campaign in Greenville. Dr. Aldridge briefed the local solicitors this morning on methods of approaching people for gifts to the United Fund. He urged solicitors to stress to contributors the fact that they may make pledges to be paid over a period of 12 months rather than making a lump-sum contribution to the United Fund if they so desire.

Dr. Howard McGinnis, executive secretary of Pitt United explained to solicitors methods to be used in reporting and turning in contributions to United Fund headquarters.

"We are hoping the fund-raising campaign in Greenville will be completed in the next two weeks," Hardy told the solicitors this morning. "We again this year are hoping company executives will give one per cent of their annual salary and that employees of various firms will give one day's pay to the United Fund. We hope we will have more firms reach 100 per cent of employees contributing to the United Fund than we had last year."

The county-wide fund-raising campaign began in several townships of the county last week, and Hardy said the kick-off of the fund-raising effort in Greenville today meant the campaign is in progress throughout the county.

At least one township, he said, already has reported contributions in excess of what the township contributed to the United Fund last year and solicitors are still at work contacting the people.

Dr. Minges termed the budget for this year's county-wide campaign "realistic" and expressed the hope the goal of $107,000 would quickly be reached. The budget for this year, the second year of the county-wide United Fund program, is some $13,000 less than the $120,000 budget adopted for the 1958 campaign last fall.

McDonald Says Union Defeat Is At Stake

WASHINGTON (AP)—The head of the Steelworkers Union said today that the 91-day steel strike "is whether the companies will break the union—but the union will not be beaten."

Union chief David J. McDonald made the statement Monday to the fact-finding board named by President Eisenhower under the Taft-Hartley law strike procedure.

The board is to report to the President Friday. Then Eisenhower will decide whether to ask for a court injunction that would halt the strike for an 80-day cooling off period.

The fact-finders are trying to work out a settlement and avoid the need for an injunction.

McDonald said his half-million member union would respect the injunction if issued, but he added, "The basic issue will remain. There may be a truce enforced by law but there will be no permanent peace." He made it clear the strike probably would be resumed about New Year's.

His voice rising to a shout at times, McDonald told the fact-finders the steel companies were demanding "unconditional surrender." What they wanted, he said, "was for the United Steelworkers to act like a company union. This union will not be converted into a tool of management."

The board is expected to hear a half dozen union experts today, then turn its attention to the management side of the case Wednesday. That would leave Thursday and Friday for preparing the report to the President.

Board chairman George W. Taylor disclosed Monday night he has met with both sides and is exploring the possibility of mediating a settlement, making the Taft-Hartley injunction unnecessary.

He said he would like to be able to say to Eisenhower when the report is presented "that there seems to be hope (for settlement) through negotiation."

Both McDonald and the union's chief counsel, Arthur J. Goldberg, argued that the injunction was not needed.

Minneapolis Has 2-Inch Snowfall

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—A two-inch snowfall beating the normal winter season by several weeks, blanketed Minneapolis and the surrounding area Monday for the first measurable snow of the season.

The wet snow weighted tree limbs causing them to sag over power lines and form short circuits.

Harvesting of soybeans and conditioning of corn still in the fields was delayed by the fall. Mild temperatures prevented freezing.

F. E. Grier Dies After Illness

GREENWOOD, S. C. (AP)—F. E. Grier, 59, president and treasurer of the vast Abney Mills, textile producers, died today in Self Memorial Hospital here.

In 1956 he served simultaneously as president of the American Cotton Manufacturers' Institute and the South Carolina Textile Manufacturers Assn.

He had been confined to the hospital about one week.

Mr. Grier, son of a former mathematics instructor at Erskine College at Due West, was chairman also of the board of Erwin Mills, a North Carolina chain of textile plants.

His management duties stretched over 27 industrial plants employing 15,000 persons. He was born at Due West and would have been 60 years old Nov. 17.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—A powerful Juno II rocket thrust a potential "kyroscope" satellite into orbit today carrying a satellite that could answer many questions about space and weather.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The United States put into orbit today a new "kyroscope" satellite expected to answer many questions about space and weather.

The rocket was fired at 11:31 a. m. EDT. Word on whether the satellite achieved orbit around the earth was expected in about two hours from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration in Washington.

If successful, the 9 1/2-pound satellite will be called Explorer VII. Its main goal was to study cosmic radiation, knowledge of which is a key to space travel by man.

The 76-foot rocket rose ponderously from its launching pad. It accelerated rapidly and, after about 40 seconds, arched high in the sky and headed toward the northeast, spurring a brilliant tail of fire. A minute later it vanished in a cloud bank.

Twenty-five minutes after launch it was announced that all four stages of the rocket fired successfully and performed according to plan.

It was the second space shot of the day from the cape. Earlier, a B47 bomber launched a 37-foot bold Orion missile, aiming it at a point 10 miles in front of the Explorer VI "paddle wheel" satellite. At the time the satellite was at 160 miles altitude in the low point of its orbit and traveling at 26,000 miles an hour.

There was no immediate detail on the outcome beyond a description of the launching as "successful."

Further reports awaited study of telemetry signals from the missile and a comparison of those data with radar readings on its flight.

The launching was carried out over the Atlantic missile range by a B47 bomber from Patrick Air Force Base at 5 a. m.

No attempt was made to intercept or knock down the satellite, but only to pass near it in order to check the accuracy of the guidance system.

The missile was built by the Martin Co. as part of an Air Force contract to demonstrate the feasibility of firing ballistic missiles from aircraft.

The B47 fired the two-stage, 37-foot missile from beneath its wing while flying a few miles southeast of the Cape at an altitude of 35,000 feet.

At the moment of launch, the Paddle Wheel satellite was traveling north of here at its maximum speed of 26,000 miles an hour, at a height of about 160 miles, the low point on its highly elliptical orbit.

The missile was supposed to pass about 10 miles in front of Explorer VI. Since the exact orbital position of the satellite was known, an accurate measurement of the miss distance is possible.

State Begins Case In Jewel Robbery

By HENRY HOWARD Reflector Staff Writer

The state began its case against alleged jewel thief Emory Joseph Roux this morning after an ill-judged juror had caused the court to order a mistrial and impanel a jury replacement and one alternate.

No alternate was selected yesterday, leaving only 11 jurors this morning as one member, John H. Erwin of near Farmville, was reported physically unable to report for duty this morning.

At 11:30 this morning, the state had called a single witness, John Lautares, to the stand and the defense has asked its cross-examination questions.

Lautares is one of three partners in the jewelry firm which was robbed of diamonds, watches, other precious stones, scrap gold, and cash on the night of Oct. 25, 1958.

The state's first witness testified that the goods missing from the store the morning following the robbery were valued at "about $28,000."

He told the court that he had gone to the store the Sunday morning following the robbery and discovered the goods missing. "Everything was in complete disorder," he testified.

He further stated that a canvas-like material covered the only window in the room containing the safe.

Lautares testified that he noticed markings on the screws holding a metal grill in place over a rear window. He also told about markings of the sill of that window. The markings on the grill screws, he said, looked as if they had been made by a screwdriver and "were not there Saturday night (Sat., Oct. 25). One screw was missing from the protective grill, he said.

Lautares identified a diamond-studded watch, given him by a Federal Bureau of Investigation agent, as being one the Lautares firm had previously purchased from a wholesale watch distributing firm. He identified it by corresponding numbers appearing both on the watch and on a sales invoice. Where the agent obtained the watch was not disclosed.

The partner in the firm told the court that items of lesser value and those of a more bulky nature were not bothered during the robbery. Items mentioned were cigarette lighters, inexpensive watches, cuff links, silverware, and chinaware.

He also testified that no checks were missing from the "ripped open" safe.

In cross-examination by defense attorney Frazier Woolard of Washington, Lautares denied ever making a statement suggested by Woolard—that: "If I could get my hands on him, I'd kill him."

Woolard asked the witness if he had made the statement during a talk with the attorney during a visit to the store by the latter last summer.

Near the end of cross-examination, Lautares told the court the amount recovered in insurance payments after the robbery was $5,000.

After approximately one and one-half hours on the stand, Lautares finished his testimony and his brother, George, was called to the stand by the state.

Roux, alias David L. Willard, sat calmly through the proceedings this morning, watching intently as the state's first witness underwent direct and cross-examination.

Neatly dressed and clean-shaven, the defendant conferred frequently with his attorney. The 40-year-old Nevada is facing two different charges—one, a charge of safe robbery by explosives; the other, larceny and receiving. The two charges have been consolidated for trial.

By 11:30 this morning the state had introduced an even dozen exhibits—a diagram of the Lautares firm, nine photographs of the safe and the store's premises taken on Oct. 26, a diamond-studded watch, a sales invoice, and the inventory taken by the Lautares brothers Oct. 26.

Supreme Court Re-Emphasizes Desire To Avoid Detail Work

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court in a series of brief orders has in effect re-emphasized that it wants to avoid becoming involved in the details of working out racial integration in public schools.

The Supreme Court unanimously refused to look into the all-out stand against integration taken by Prince Edward County, Va. That county abandoned its entire public school system when ordered to make a start this fall toward admitting Negro pupils.

Another unanimous order rejected an appeal attacking validity of North Carolina's pupil placement law. The appeal was filed by a Negro who was told he had to use all administrative procedures under the state law before filing any complaint in federal court.

By an 8-1 vote the high tribunal refused to act on another appeal which contended North Carolina school produce broad programs for integration, instead of handling Negro applications one by one under the pupil placement law.

In another order, Alabama was denied reconsideration of a Supreme Court action that set aside an Alabama State Court contempt fine of $100,000 against the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People.

The court refused to review an order requiring a new trial for Robert Lee Goldsby, convicted of killing a white woman near Valdosta, Miss. The order was issued by the U. S. Circuit Court in New Orleans last Jan. 16 on the grounds that Negroes had been systematically excluded from the trial jury that convicted Goldsby.

He had been sentenced to death. Atty. Gen. Joe T. Patterson of Mississippi said in Washington the decision might make it difficult to convict Negroes of any crime some parts of Mississippi.

Miss Hooper Speaks To Chapter

Miss Emma L. Hooper spoke on "What It Means To Be A Member of Delta Kappa Gamma" at a meeting of the Delta Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma, honor society for women teachers, which was held recently at the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church.

Miss Hooper said, "To be a member of Delta Kappa Gamma means the surprise and thrill, and yet, most of all, a deep sense of humility to be notified that you have been selected by a group of thoughtful women in the high purpose of advancing the teaching profession."

"To be a member of Delta Kappa Gamma means the solemnity of being received into the chapter in a ceremony of initiation which is really a rededication of yourself to your chosen work," she continued.

"This membership means sharing a part of your hard-earned substance for scholarship funds to promote genuine scholarship among capable, purposeful women."

"To be a member of DKG means the opportunity—even the duty—of encouraging fine young people to enter the profession of teaching."

"Being a member of Delta Kappa Gamma means, in brief, responsibility and challenge for wide and sincere service in school and community and church, and it means friends who sympathize with you in your sorrow and rejoice with you in your happiness," Miss Hooper concluded.

Prior to the dinner meeting the president, Mrs. Sally Klingenschmitt, led the initiation service for the following new members: Mrs. J. H. Rose (Honorary), Miss Frances Daniels, Miss Jane Hadley, Mrs. Elizabeth Norman Dowd, Miss Lela Brown Stancill, Mrs. Rachel Futrell Swindell, Dr. Elizabeth Utterback, Mrs. Betsy Parkinson West, and Mrs. Joyce Zeh. The following were welcomed as transfer members: Mrs. Sue Bowden, Dr. Hermine Caraway, Mrs. Alfred Williams, Mrs. Pauline Wiggins, Miss Ona Shindler, a former retired member of the group, has returned to Greenville and has taken up her active membership again.

During the business session, Mrs. Klingenschmitt, who presided, reported on a State planning meeting which she and six others from the chapter attended in Greensboro. She called attention to the 55 scholarships of $2500 each which will be awarded by the International Society in 1960. She urged members of the local group to apply if anyone was interested in further study.

The yearbooks which were prepared by Dr. Audrey Dempsey and Miss Lena Ellis were found at each place.

Miss Mary Thomas Smith, chairman of the district, invited the members to the Birthday meeting to be held in Rocky Mount at the Ricks Hotel on Saturday, October 31. Registration is to begin at 9:30 a.m. A coffee hour will precede the district meeting which is scheduled to start at 10:30. A luncheon will conclude the program. Reservations must be made in advance.

Annie Mae Murray, chairman of the program committee, presented Miss Hooper.

Mrs. Nettie B. Herring, immediate past state president of Delta Kappa Gamma, thanked the local ladies for the loyalty and support which they gave during the past two years.

Mrs. Edith Worthington was chairman of the committee on arrangements. A red and gold color scheme was used. At the head table, red roses, the society's flower, were used. At the conclusion of the meeting, each initiate received a rose from the bowl.

Fall Is Here--Time To Get Down To Business

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

FALL IS THE TIME to face realities about your home, if boredom has set in. The man of the house should have given up the idea of buying a barn and turning it into a ranch house, and the cooperative lady of the house about turning a ranch house into a barn.

Summer in its bucolic loveliness does strange things to the sanest homemakers.

Instead of seeking the rainbow in rural pastoral scenes, it's a good time to improve that place where you hang your Home Sweet Home sign, a place that was probably chosen for practical reasons, with or without woods, fields, lawns or groves.

A house may be refurbished in many ways to add zest to a dwelling.

A new entrance can live up to a dreary or badly planned spot. An unusual window can change a facade from a leering pumpkin face of windows to an enchanted cottage approach.

Ornamental iron, one of the traditional marks of luxurious homes in the South, is now available in standardized sizes with all the beauty of the costly made-to-order ironwork from old plantations. These may be installed easily by the home handyman because designs come in complete ensembles with column, bracket, valance and railing ornament. The ensemble gives a custom finish look to the house.

Small entranceways can be enhanced by corner columns. A carport is an ideal place to put iron. Patios and terraces also may be improved by it.

Cast iron and wrought iron columns are available in curved patterns, curly oak design, the popular grape or fleur de lis patterns. There are other patterns—pimose, scroll and leaf, medallion, double heart, half moon.

The columns are adjustable in height ranging from 6 feet 9 inches to 8 feet. Railings are easily assembled from 6 and 10 foot lengths.

This is a good time, too, for plantings of grass seed and bulbs, for transplanting trees and for general landscaping. Indoors there perhaps is weatherstripping and putting to be done, and other tasks to improve the old homestead—painting, papering and rejuvenation of furnishings.

PERK UP THAT HOUSE . . . Ornamental iron ware is now available in standardized sizes.

Vows Unite Worthington-Wilson

Rev. and Mrs. Melvin Leroy Worthington

LAKE ZURICH, Ill.—Miss Anne Katherine Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis S. Wilson of Lake Zurich, Ill., and the Rev. Melvin Leroy Worthington, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur L. Worthington of Peaceful Acres, Ayden, N. C., were united in marriage in mid-September in the Northwest Suburbs Bible Church, Palatine, Ill. The double ring ceremony was performed amid a setting of greenery, baskets of white gladioli and mums, and lighted candles.

The Rev. Emil Wittig, pastor of the bride, officiated.

Prior to the ceremony, a program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Arthur Lindahl, organist, and Warner Buchett, soloist. As vocal selections, Mr. Buchett rendered "Entreat Me Not To Leave Thee," "Savior Like A Shepherd Lead Us," and as the benediction "The Lord Bless Thee and Keep Thee."

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a full length gown of embroidered net over satin with a scalloped neckline, short sleeves, fitted bodice and full skirt. She wore matching mits and pearl earrings, a gift from the bridegroom.

Her elbow length veil of illusion was attached to a crown of lace. The bride's flowers were a crescent of white mums centered with a white orchid and showered with ivy and bridal ribbons.

Miss Betty Jo Wilson of Lake Zurich was her sister's maid of honor. She was attired in an Avocado green silk organza over taffeta street length dress, styled with a scooped neckline, which featured a velvet sash, bracelet length sleeves and a full skirt with a deep hem. She wore a matching headpiece of veiling and velvet ribbon. Her flowers were a crescent of yellow and bronze mums tied with green ribbon. Matching green satin shoes completed her costume.

Bridesmaids were Miss Jeanette Worthington of Meredith College, Raleigh, N. C., sister of the groom; and Miss Arlene Tonne of Lake Zurich. They were attired in dresses identical to that of the maid of honor, and their accessories and flowers were similar in design and color.

Little Miss Becky Pick, flower girl, was dressed in a white silk organza over green taffeta dress. She wore a matching green headpiece, and carried a colonial bouquet of white mums. Her twin brother, David Pick, attired in a tuxedo exactly like the ushers, carried the rings on a white satin pillow.

The Rev. Milton W. Worthington of Lake Butler, Fla. served as his twain brother's best man. Ushers were Douglass Wilson, brother of the bride, and David Cochrane of Moody Bible College, Chicago, Ill. The bride's mother wore a beige lace dress, matching hat and brown accessories. She wore a pink rose corsage.

The mother of the bridegroom wore a brown lace dress, with matching accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

For traveling, the bride changed to a one-piece dress of brown cotton barkcloth and brown accessories. She wore a white orchid corsage.

Mrs. Worthington is a graduate of Lake Zurich High School. She was a member of the 1959 Senior Class at Columbia Bible College, Columbia, S. C.

Rev. Worthington, a graduate of Ayden High School, attended Asbury College, Wilmore, Ky., and is a graduate of Columbia Bible College, Columbia, S. C. He was ordained as a minister of the Free Will Baptist Church in 1957. At the present time he is serving as pastor of the Palmeto and Union Chapel Free Will Baptist Churches.

The Rev. and Mrs. Worthington are residing at the Union Chapel parsonage, Chocowinity, N. C., R. 1.

Immediately following the ceremony the bride's parents entertained at a reception in the Fellowship Halls of the church.

School Lunch Needs Variety

THAT SCHOOL lunchbox can hold daily surprises, or it can be a deadly bore.

Smart mothers have learned that small fry like variety in the lunchbox menu, and plan daily treats. If the same kind of sandwich and dessert is repeated day after day, any child soon loses interest and the lunch often comes back uneaten.

The imaginative mother lays in a variety of sandwich fillings in small amounts. She also varies the breads. Sometimes she makes up a supply of sandwiches and freezes them, for future use. She also varies the drink in the vacuum bottle daily — chocolate milk one day, hot soup another, fruit juice the next day, a milk shake, lemonade or hot chocolate as alternate choices.

One week's lunchbox menu could be as follows:

Monday: Peanut butter and bacon sandwich on whole wheat bread, carrot sticks, apple, chocolate milk.

Tuesday: Egg salad sandwich on soft roll, whole fresh tomato, pickle chips, Oatmeal cookies, milk shake.

Wednesday: Cream cheese and jelly sandwich on raisin wheat bread, fresh pear, hot beef broth.

Thursday: Ham and Swiss cheese sandwich on rye bread, dill pickle, tangerine, hot chocolate.

Friday: Tuna salad sandwich on white bread, celery stuffed with cream cheese, candied apple, lemonade.

For extra surprises, it's fun sometimes to tuck in a few pieces of chocolate, a peppermint stick or a frosted cupcake. A plastic container of appeasauce mixed with colored jelly beans can be a dessert treat once in a while.

It's wise to package the lunchbox foods attractively, using waxed paper sandwich bags, cellophane or foil wrap, adding gaily decorated paper napkins. It's also important to keep the lunchbox and vacuum bottle clean and fresh. Just rinsing isn't enough. After washing, rinse out both with a solution of baking soda, then follow with a fresh water rinse.

The 1-2-3's To Easy Carefree Hostess-ing

A girl hasn't really earned her hostess wings until she's been through her first dinner party.

The bride's initial effort at entertaining is likely to be in the interest of in-laws to prove she's a "natural born hostess" and that she's making good use of her wedding presents.

Human nature being what it is the bride will be lucky to appear at the appointed hour in complete command of the situation. On the contrary, she'll probably be on the verge of tears by the time the company arrives.

The bachelor girl who wants to display her culinary acumen to the office crowd or a favorite beau may find herself in the same boat.

It is important for new hostesses to learn that entertaining can be made simple and it doesn't need to be a big production to be successful. There are several important pointers that should be observed, and if these are observed everything should go smoothly.

1. The table cloth should be clean, the glasses should gleam, the silver should shine. If possible set it in advance. Put a screen around it if it is in the living room.
2. Never cook anything that can't be timed to the exact second you want to serve it. This will keep you more on edge than anything else. A dish that may be cooked in advance and heated up and kept warm is the ideal one to choose. Beef Bourguigne (beef in red wine), Beef Stragoun (in sour cream), chicken pot pie, meat loaf, pot roast, shrimp, chicken or lamb curry, are all good choices as these may be kept ready-to-serve.
3. Make up a list in advance of the dinner party. Write down everything you must do in connection with the party. List everything that will go on the table from candle sticks to salt casks. These last minute gaps in service can prove embarrassing.
4. The strain of a dinner may be eased by serving dessert and coffee in the living room. This will give you the opportunity to set the dessert tray in advance with the plates, cups and saucers, spoons, cream pitcher, sugar, and cigarettes.
5. Empty the ash trays occasionally. Keep the conversation going by prodding each guest's interests if time lags. Avoid controversy.
6. Make sure the bathroom is neat, that guest towels and soap is available.
7. Be prepared for soiled dishes in the kitchen by making sure there is no clutter before you remove articles from the table. Have a place to put salt, pepper shakers, etc. Scrape dishes and put them in the sink or dishwasher.
8. Be completely dressed at anything else. A dish that may be cooked in advance and heated up and kept warm is the ideal one to choose.

Unsatisfied With Running Second

With Russia's recent spectacular achievements in the space race, there can be no question about the United States taking another long and careful look at its space program in the very near future.

Almost certainly some new and more streamlined program will have to be considered when Congress convenes early next year. Between now and then it is a good guess that administration officials will be busy evaluating possibilities and framing a new program designed to bring American space achievements closer to those of the Soviet Union.

It was only two years ago that Russia sent aloft its first Sputnik and the United States was not far behind in putting its own satellite in orbit. At that time it was anybody's guess as to who had the edge and each nation claimed its achievements were more meaningful from the standpoint of future development.

Russia's recent successes, however, have led top American space scientists to concede that Soviet achievements to date have surpassed those of the United States. Some leaders have estimated the United States may be as much as one to two years behind the Soviet Union in space progress.

Such a situation is not satisfactory to U. S. leaders or to the American people. It should be expected, therefore, that changes will be made in the near future in an effort to close the gap between the U. S. and the Soviet Union in space achievement.

It may well be that the basic organization followed by the United States for its space and missile programs will be one of the first things to be revamped as a new program is framed.

There are at present in the United States 101 separate federal groups involved either in the missile or the space program. The space program—devoted to non-military applications of missiles and space vehicles—is under the jurisdiction of a civilian agency, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. The branches of military service have been given jurisdiction over specific phases of the "weapons" or military uses of missiles and space vehicles.

In such a complicated organization, there is a great deal of overlapping of effort, and at the same time there is a great deal of unrest because of the limits in which each of the agencies is supposed to work. None of the branches of military, it seems, is really happy with the role it has been assigned. Each would prefer greater latitude in carrying on space-age projects.

It boils down to the fact that in spite of the large sum the United States is spending on its space-age programs—some $3.5 billion in this fiscal year—the desired results are not being achieved. It is doubtful under present organizational structure a great deal more in terms of actual achievements could be obtained if more funds were designated for space-age projects.

The fact that the Soviet Union had a head start in the space race is little consolation to the American people or government leaders who have seen our own achievements dwarfed by those of the Soviet Union. Unaccustomed to the role of second fiddle, the United States will be content with nothing less than a superior position in space pioneering as well as in other things.

Now that we have finally come to the point where we can realistically view our position and recognize that we are running a rather poor second, we must set about to accelerate our space-age pace in order to achieve supremacy.

The logical place to begin the revamping which obviously is necessary to achieve that goal, is to streamline the complicated structure that now guides—and perhaps handicaps—our space-age program.

Driver Makes His Own Record

(Guest writer today, Bill Crowell, Motor Vehicles Public Relations)

If there's any magic in North Carolina's point system, it's probably that it allows the individual driver (and there are some two-and-a-half million of us) to calculate and assess his position in relation to his driving privileges.

In fewer words, he makes his own record.

The point system, in effect since June, is a plan to secure the cooperation of all drivers in the safe and courteous use of our streets and highways. It tends to correct the driving habits of persistently unsafe drivers and to do this before it's necessary to suspend driving privileges. The point system further seeks to improve rather than punish drivers and to protect the safe, sensible driver from those who can or will not heed the traffic laws.

The North Carolina system weighs traffic offenses according to their seriousness. When a driver is convicted of a violation, the Department of Motor Vehicles receives word of it and assesses a certain number of points against the driving record of the convicted person.

Should a driver allow his point total to accumulate up to 12 within a two year period, then his driving privileges are suspended for 60 days.

Before that time, however, every encouragement is given bad drivers to mend their ways. This involves sending a letter of warning to drivers with four points and calling in for an interview those drivers with seven points.

Not all violations are charged the same number of points. Experience has shown that accidents and violations are correlated; that is, drivers with more than the average number of violations against them will also have a higher accident frequency. Studies of accident causes show that certain violations are better predictors of accidents than others. Thus points are awarded according to the seriousness of the offense.

Officials of the Motor Vehicles Department know there are ways of improving a driver without taking away his driving privileges. Under the state's point system, two common sense steps are taken which may make subsequent suspension unnecessary. The advisory letter, for example, is used to inform a driver he has become officially conspicuous and that his record is approaching a critical stage. Some 900 Tar Heel drivers have been so notified. And it is reasonable to believe that corrective measures will be self-imposed by the majority of them. Most drivers need only such a letter to make them mend their ways, according to point system authorities.

A further step comes when personal interviews are called in an attempt to persuade borderline drivers that they can and should drive safely. A suggestion to attend one of the vehicle agency's driver improvement clinics is made at this time. Drivers who elect to take this rehabilitation course may have three points removed from their record. The interview is one of the most important phases of the point plan. It is conducted by experienced personnel, specially trained in driver education and improvement, who listened with a friendly ear and encourage delinquent drivers to "get it off their chest." The hearing official endeavors to pin point the cause of the bad driving record and attempts to convince the driver that he is capable of better driving.

The measure of last resort comes when persistent bad driving results in 12 points against the driver. Then his driving privileges are automatically suspended for a period of 60 days. This provision is absolutely mandatory and no driver can be permitted to drive under any circumstances during the 60-day period.

Once his license is restored he starts with a clean slate. However, should he accumulate as few as eight points in the next two years instead of 12 his license may again be taken away. This time for six months.

In North Carolina we are constantly being reminded of the safety responsibilities of our communities, local government, organizations everywhere. The aims of such programs are to reach the individual road user. The merit of the point system lies in the fact that it represents a direct line approach to the individual driver. If poor driving and improper attitudes are chiefly responsible for traffic accidents, these are the elements to be attacked. The difficulty is that not too much is known about the emotions, good or bad, that affect a driver's behavior at any particular moment. The average person keeps his thoughts pretty well locked up and if they are to be influenced at all they have to be influenced from within. The point system tends to create such self-examination in drivers.

Because of its relative newness, no one can predict the public reaction to North Carolina's system. In Indiana, where they have a similar system in operation, a survey of 3000 motorists revealed that 94 per cent agreed the system was just, fair and impartial. All agreed the system influenced them to drive with greater care and caution.

The point system affects hardest only those who will not drive safely. This would seem, in itself, to provide an incentive among the far greater number of safe drivers to exercise individual self-restraint and self-control. Failure to do so, of course, leads to growing pressure in terms of warnings, interviews, and probationary action, with suspension of driving privileges as the end penalty for continued driver violations.

Self-Policing Is Best Bet For TV Industry

It seems apparent that the case of fixed big money television shows is out of the hands of the federal government so far as finding a law under which to prosecute those responsible for rigging the shows and furnishing answers to winners is concerned.

The matter determining policies and ethics which should apply to television shows can best be handled by the television industry which stands to gain most by strict adherence to playing square with the public and lose most by such practices as have been followed in some of the big-money quiz shows.

There can be no doubt that the industry has lost prestige because of the scandal that has developed over some of its top quiz shows. Neither should there be any doubt that the major networks are now seeking to prevent such practices in the future in spite of the fact that their efforts in this direction appear to be slightly tardy. In the long run, the industry, rather than the federal government, can probably do a more effective job of policing its own practices.

For the federal government to seek to frame and enforce laws to govern the "rigging" of entertainment through the broadcast media would be an extremely complicated undertaking that would cost the government considerable money and probably would not accomplish the goals being sought.

Whether the government acts or not, its a good bet that the television industry will go to great lengths in the future to see it doesn't get caught in a situation similar to that brought on by the fixed quiz shows.

Peiping Loudly Proclaims Boss

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Moscow, say the Red Chinese loudly and clearly, is the big boss.

Peiping's Communist party has gone out of its way to emphasize that the Soviet Union is the undisputed leader of the world Communist movement.

The remarkable performance more than justifies the expressed conviction of Secretary of State Christian A. Herter that the Kremlin is responsible for the actions of China and the whole Red bloc. It underscores Undersecretary Douglas Dillon's contention that the U.S.S.R. should be held responsible for any Peiping aggression.

If there are differences on the ideological or the strategy level between Moscow and Peiping, the Chinese party seems to have buried them in an extravagant bow to Moscow's unquestioned leadership.

As if to dispel any notions among the world's Communists of a Kremlin-Peiping rift, the most important Red Chinese newspaper, the Peiping People's Daily, has just published an editorial important enough to be chanted by the whole country's provincial press. Its theme also was broadcast in foreign languages.

It was not a long editorial. But no less than eight times it stated unequivocally that in matters of the world revolution and the strategy of the revolution, the Soviet leaders were the bosses.

Here are pertinent excerpts: "China has become a component of the Socialist camp headed by the Soviet Union."

"The entire Socialist camp, headed by the Soviet Union, has grown in strength and closer unity with each passing day." "In the past 10 years, the great unity of the Socialist camp, headed by the Soviet Union, has made tremendous contributions to safeguarding world peace and in socialist (by which the Reds mean Communist) undertakings."

Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's recent disarmament proposal "clearly illustrates that the Socialist camp, headed by the Soviet Union, is the strong pillar of peace."

"The Chinese people have always regarded it as their sacred international duty continuously to consolidate and develop the solidarity of the Socialist camp headed by the Soviet Union." "Today the Socialist camp, headed by the Soviet Union, is more united and stronger than ever."

Red China will "promote the unity of the Socialist camp headed by the Soviet Union."

And the last line of the editorial: Long live the great solidarity of Socialist countries headed by the Soviet Union!"

The Chinese Communists hardly could make their meaning clearer.

When The News Reached Spain

A Big One Is Coming Up

East Carolina's Buccaneers, sporting what is apparently the best gridiron outfit of several seasons, meet a real tough conference test this weekend when an encounter with Western Carolina is on tap.

The Pirates have posted a pretty impressive record thus far through five games. Although EC lost its first tussle to a powerful Presbyterian eleven, it came roaring back to hopelessly subdue a badly outclassed Yankee squad—Albright College—and then run roughshod over its next three opponents.

A real test for the Pirates is forthcoming. Probably its toughest of the season.

With a victory this weekend over WC's Catamounts, the Bucs will have a good opportunity to bring the North State Conference crown to Greenville.

After the WC game, the remaining conference squabbles for any title contender. And it's been good while since they've been beaten on the mountain side.

EC Coach Jack Boone, naturally realizes that this weekend brings sort of an anti-climax to the young season. He knows his Pirates are capable but realizes that they're in for a rough 60 minutes come Saturday.

There have been tales in years past about pirates hinting that the real sea robbers of old always shied away from mountainous regions whenever possible. According to these tales, the main reasons were that many members of the pirate bands had either peg legs, hooks for hands, or the like, and found the going rough when climbing around the highlands.

Still, there was a certain pirate with a red beard who made his richest hauls while invading rugged mountainous areas bordering the sea. Seems like his name was Barbarossa.

Ole Barbarossa was one of the fiercest of all the "sea dogs" during the height of piracy and pulled some of the most dazzling raids and victories imaginable.

He was quite a pirate. This weekend, as EC makes its way through the twists and turns of our state's mountain roads, let's hope there are scarlet shades in OUR Pirate's beard!

Some Christians would like to see this speed-up transformed to their spiritual life, too. Believing in God's powers, they ask Him for a favor or gift and expect that it will be forthcoming at once. They pray that someone's indifference toward them will be turned to love, and they expect to have it happen tomorrow. Or they pray for a higher and more responsible position and are disappointed that the notice of promotion does not come in the next mail.

God hears our prayers, but He does not always answer them when and as we expect Him to. We are His children, and His answers must often be like our own answers to our children's requests for things that we know they are not ready to have. God will not suddenly transform someone's indifference to love at our whim, but He will help us to live shiningly so as to deserve that love. The better position will come when we are able to fill it.

Be patient, God hears and answers prayers, but we must obey His will in fulfilling the answers.

There are three answers to prayer—yes, no, and wait.

"I happen to be one of those people who has very little faith in the ability of statutory law to change the human heart or to eliminate prejudice."—President Eisenhower.

planned, there would be no pool of unemployed from which to draw. Either production would have to be cut back to exorbitant wages paid.

After a bit of this, the public would demand remedial action. We could import more foreign workers. Or, to prevent them from bidding wages up above dangerous heights, we could freeze people in their jobs, just as we did during World War II.

But regardless of what we did, complete employment would produce problems far worse than moderate and temporary unemployment.

CHANCES FOR AWARDS IN VERSATILITY CONTEST

The annual Hess Brothers Versatility in Design and Use Contest for 1960 is a wide open affair, judging from reports from the Hess Brothers Awards Committee, 527, Madison Ave., New York 22. While early entries are numerous, there is little competition in some of the eight classifications. Manufacturers with products designed for more than one use can get full information from the commen, to say nothing of plant and machine builders, lawyers and advertising men.

WHENCE? Where would they come from? They would have to be hired away from other companies, and that would turn on one of the tightest and fastest upward wage spirals ever seen. People losing men would have to hire back others at any price, or cut back production.

Or suppose a man wanted to start a small four-man business for himself. To get the four, he would have to bid against giant corporations—or wait until more youngsters came in to the labor market.

Even without new enterprise, any time the number of deaths and retirements exceeded the new accessions to the labor market, there would be a new bid-up for manpower.

And between times, every worker would be shopping around for a new job, constantly genuflecting, bringing back some temporary employment.

When flu epidemics cut working forces, or new products were devised, or new sales pushes

Never Applied Force

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (P)—"I think I speak for all my colleagues when I say we don't want to be armed," said Constable Norman Niblo of the City of London.

Constable Niblo also feels, despite a postwar growth of violence, the British public doesn't want its police to carry guns as a daily duty.

"If we do, every petty little crook will start carrying a gun. People will be hurt," he said.

Constable Niblo, a 6-foot-2 heavy-bodied man - weight 138 stone or 252 pounds - has never used a gun in nearly a quarter century as a British policeman.

The big, good-natured, 46-year-old officer is here on a good will visit to the United States. His face and form are familiar to thousands of tourists who have visited his beat, the ancient, mile-square financial heart of the British Commonwealth.

"The traffic here is fantastic," said Niblo, after a sight of Times Square. The mid-London area he and some 700 other fellow officers patrol has fantastic traffic problems of its own. Its residential population at night is about 5,000. Its workday population rises to 750,000.

A student of the historical lore of his city and his craft, Niblo brought with him a number of souvenirs of police work in London a century ago. It was in this period that the police, nicknamed "Charles" during the reign of Charles II, came to be known as "Peelers" or "Bobbies," after Sir Robert Peel, pioneer of modern police systems.

The policeman of that time wore a high top hat and looked more like a society figure. He had no whistle. He carried a large wooden ratchet, which he whirred to summon aid. It made an infernal din. He also carried his own gas light, anchored to his belt.

Oddly, the truncheon of that day is longer and more slender, but less formidable, than the compact club Niblo carries in his daily duty, but says he has never had to use on a man in 24 years.

A mild-speaking man, he has a quiet pride in his ability to handle ordinary police problems with the authority of his voice and hands. By this means the usual thing-trouble at a bar, a minor disturbance of the peace.

Among the constable's rewards for keeping the peace is a boot allowance of three or four shillings - 42 to 56 cents - a week. He also has available without cost to him the services of a chiropodist, although he has never had any major foot trouble himself.

"Violence is growing a bit in the metropolitan area, including attacks on police," he said regretfully when questioned. "Most of the increase is among young people."

Exploring That Fackler Theory

By ELMER ROESSNER
From now on through Election Day, 1960, you are going to hear about Walder D. Fackler.

"Facklerism" may become a smear word as the campaign and candidates who aren't even sure what it means may go down to defeat because they were "it" in the game of political tag.

The smear may be even blacker because Mr. Fackler is an assistant director of Research of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, often regarded as reactionary.

Mr. Fackler told a special Senate Committee that under certain conditions, some unemployment may be a positive economic good.

This brought down a ton of Democratic brickbats on his head. He tried to explain that he was talking about temporary and voluntary unemployment. He tried to justify his position further, and he did so in $4 words, the kind that were called $2 words before inflation.

He made little impression because most of the politicians present were figuring how to use his initial statement to insure their election next year. If there were such a thing as a reverse echo, you could hear them now declaiming, "The present wicked administration—or at least its big business allies—WANT unemployment. The more people out of work, the more they can crush labor." and so on far into the night.

Let's suppose that we reached a situation in which there was no unemployment, not even temporary and voluntary unemployment. There would be a job for everybody in the working force. Jobs and men came until, perhaps, some articles would be too expensive to produce an upward force in wages out even, no matter how you looked at it.

Then suppose somebody came along with a great new enterprise, say three dimensional television, with color, smells and humidity on damp days. His company and its imitators would need 10,000 engineers, 100,000 skilled workers and 50,000 sales-

John Brown's Story Ended By A Hangman

By JOHN LUNDQUIST

HARPERS FERRY, W. Va. (AP)—The bizarre Harpers Ferry raid was nearly 34 hours old. John Brown and his exhausted band awaited fate inside their fort. Of the 19 men who had marched on the federal arsenal in Harpers Ferry the night of Sunday, Oct. 16, 1859, only Brown and four others remained unharmed at dawn Tuesday. The dramatic blow against slavery had brought no slave insurrection, no support only entrapment or death for Brown and his men. At the first light, Col. Robert E. Lee, commanding the forces out to capture the raiders, sent Lt. J.E.B. Stuart to the heavy wooden doors of the besieged fire engine house to demand surrender. Brown declined, unless he and his band were permitted to retreat with their hostages. Stuart, who remembered the bearded, fierce-eyed Brown as the man "who had given us so much trouble" in the antislavery fights in Kansas, wouldn't hear of it. A dozen Marines using sledge hammers and a heavy ladder as a battering ram stormed the stronghold. Two Marines were wounded, one fatally. Their comrades bayoneted two of Brown's men to death. The storming party's leader, Lt. Israel Green, aimed a sword thrust at Brown, but the weapon bent on Brown's belt buckle. Green then beat him to the ground with the sword hilt.

22 followers, 10 were killed, 7 escaped, and 5 were taken prisoner. Two fugitives, captured in southern Pennsylvania within a week, were returned, tried and hanged like the other prisoners. Now, in defeat, Brown began to fashion another type of attack—something which some contemporary Southerners had foreseen when they warned against making a martyr of the old abolitionist. In the crowded courtroom at Charles Town, Brown bore himself with dignity and skill as the state's prosecutors presented a case of murder and treason against Virginia. Was Brown deranged, as many claimed? He rebuffed efforts to enter a plea of insanity. Through much of the trial he lay, grim and silent, on his stretcher, for his wounds still bothered him. Sometimes he protested a point. On Nov. 2 Judge Richard Parker sentenced him to be hanged one month later. By this death, DAMROSCH PARK NEW YORK (AP)—A 2.34-acre park, complete with a half-million-dollar bandshell, is slated for Manhattan's West Side. The park, to be named Damrosch Park in honor of the noted family of musicians, will be included in the Lincoln Square area set aside for the city's Performing Arts center. Arctic foxes, with their heavy winter fur, can live comfortably in temperatures as low as 40 below zero. The raid was over. Of Brown's he could be of greater service to the anti-slavery cause than by his life. Fed by Brown's heroic and touching letters of peaceful resignation and unshaken conviction, sympathy in the north swelled. Proportionately, the South's disgust intensified. The last days passed quickly for the condemned man. He was ready, he declared. His life had been varied, full and frequently violent. He had uprooted his family time and again as he went from trade to trade, place to place—tanner, shepherd, farmer, surveyor, cattle dealer, real estate speculator and wool merchant. His hatred of slavery, grown to consuming passion, dated from early youth. But not until 1856 had he actively fought against the institution. A Bible-reading, Bible-quoting patriarch, Brown took up what he considered the sword of righteousness after following his sons to Kansas. There he led a company of raiders in wild skirmishing against proslavery forces moving in from Missouri. There, too, he acquired the blackest mark against his name in the killing of five innocent men at Osawatimie in May 1856 during one of his forays. Their chief offense was living in proslavery territory. Brown denied killing any of the victims, but as leader of the party, which included four of his sons, he certainly shared the guilt. All this was far behind him on

Dec. 2 when they drove old John Brown to his execution, seated on his coffin in a horse-drawn cart. Thousands of troops were deployed around Harpers Ferry to prevent any last-minute attempt to free him. At an open field near Charles Town Brown mounted the scaffold. He shook the hands of authorities near him, said a calm goodby and, after a white hood was slipped over his head, stepped onto the trapdoor. The sheriff asked Brown if he wanted to give a signal with a dropped handkerchief. No, said Brown. "Just don't keep me waiting too long." The trap door was sprung. After a few moments of silence, Col. J.T.L. Preston intoned: "So perish all such enemies of Virginia! All enemies of the union! All such foes of the human race!" John Brown had perished, but it was not the end. Next weekend there will be an elaborately planned centennial observance of John Brown's raid at Harpers Ferry. Sponsors are careful not to call it a "celebration." While Brown struck a blow to free the slaves, he also helped kindle fires of animosity that time has not completely dimmed. In the Civil War that came 18 months later, Harpers Ferry changed hands several times and its armory was burned to the ground. It was taken from Virginia when West Virginia was formed. Long ago the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad filled in the stretch of land near where the old armory buildings stood to raise the modern station above flood level. The Department of Interior is restoring 28 buildings and digging up some of the arsenal remains as part of Harpers Ferry National Monument program. Many of the old shops and houses still stand on Shenandoah street, reminders of a haunting, grim past. The engine house fort of John Brown has been moved to higher ground and now is a museum and souvenir shop. A white obelisk eight feet high marks the original location. In the souvenir shops you'll find Harpers Ferry banners, little cannon made in Japan and flimsy swords for junior, Confederate flags, Confederate caps and pictures of Gen. Robert E. Lee. But no memorials to the famed abolitionist. Brown is buried at North Elba, N.Y.

Gun-Toting Gang Brought Police

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Police cruisers converged on an all-night bowling alley early today after a telephoned report two men were there with guns. When police arrived they found about 50 men, all with guns in hip holsters. The men were off-duty policemen participating in the police department bowling league.

Can't Believe His Son Could Murder

L'ANSE, Mich. (AP) — "I just can't believe it," murmured Ferdinand Paquet. "We gave him all kinds of love and tenderness. He never did a wrong thing." Paquet spoke sorrowfully of his son Eugene, 16, held in the slaying of his girl friend's father and 10-year-old sister. Prosecutor William G. Konstenius said the boy orally admitted the slaying of Edward Frosland, 44, a L'Anse laborer, and his daughter Lila Lynn, Sunday night. "I did it," the boy told the prosecutor Monday. "But I don't know why. That family has been awful good to me." Konstenius said he would ask juvenile court to waive custody of the boy so he could be tried on a first-degree murder charge. The prosecutor said Eugene had written in a notebook while sitting in bed Saturday night: "Lure Ed downstairs. Get ready for the girl. Get stuff (paper bag containing rope, gas and a p.s. to) in house. Put club on sofa. Put rest of bag in corner. Knock out girl. Tie and gag them. Put them in bedroom. Do anything then." Frosland died of a bullet wound in the head. Lila Lynn was strangled. Coroner H. J. Winkler said she had been struck on the head. Eugene, described by neighbors as "a good boy and a very strict Baptist," took Shirley Frosland, 16, and her sister, Sally, 14, to L'Anse Baptist church Sunday night. He and Shirley had dated for about two years. Paquet left during the service, complaining of illness, Konstenius said. The prosecutor said Paquet stated that he went home, got a rope, an iron bolt and his father's .22 caliber pistol, then went to the Frosland home. There, Konstenius quoted him as saying, he lured Lila Lynn outside to his car, struck her with the bolt and strangled her with a rope. The youth said he went to the sleeping father's bedroom. Eugene told Konstenius he covered the pistol with a pillow, but the hammer caught in the pillow case and the click awoke Frosland. The boy said he hid the gun. The man and boy spoke for a few moments. Frosland turned to reach for a cigarette. Eugene said he fired a bullet into the back of Frosland's head.

Budget Is Before Baptist Board

RALEIGH (AP)—The General Board of the Baptist State Convention was scheduled today to begin consideration of a record $4,100,000 budget for 1960. The budget represented an increase of one-half million dollars over last year's. At a session Monday night, the 85-member board agreed to hold the convention's annual meeting Nov. 10-12 in Greensboro's new Memorial Auditorium rather than Greensboro's First Baptist Church. The church seats only 1,800 persons while the auditorium can accommodate 2,500. The board also appointed a three-member committee to look into complaints by the Sandy Creek Baptist Assn. that National Guard units have been drilling during church hours in the Pittsboro, Siler City and Sanford areas. In other business, the board: 1. Agreed to borrow $24,712 to complete financing of a new $72,000 Baptist Student Center at Woman's College in Greensboro. 2. Named a committee to recommend a successor to Dr. J. C. Canipe of Hendersonville who resigns next year as director of Fruitland Bible Institute. 3. Approved a workshop for associational missionaries to be held Dec. 16-18 in Salisbury.

UNHAPPY REUNION DENVER, Colo. (AP) — The family reunion that Frank Sandoval had been wanting so long was held Monday. The 11 children of the 61-year-old city worker were here for his funeral. He died last week in an auto accident.

Agitator Kasper Free In December

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Racial agitator John Kasper is tentatively scheduled to be released from the Federal Correctional Institution here Dec. 16. Kasper is serving a six-month term for violating a court order forbidding interference with integration at the Clinton, Tenn., High School. The six months would be up Jan. 15, but federal law allows a prisoner five days a month off his sentence for good behavior.

SHADOW OF GUILT

A NEW THRILLER by PATRICK QUENTIN

CHAPTER 24

"Lieutenant Trant is coming tomorrow morning to question us. I told Eve Lord as I sat with her in her apartment. 'Whatever happens, at least I'll have to talk to Ala before that.'"

"And let her know she can get Chuck released?"

"Isn't it really her problem? She's got to realize that if it wasn't for her, this would never have happened to Chuck. Maybe, if she's innocent and if she has enough guts, she'll want to tell the Lieutenant anyway."

"And if she hasn't enough guts?" said Eve. "Or if she's really guilty of killing Don Saxby?"

"Then it'll be right back to being my problem again. I guess that's the only way to handle it. But if we do have to tell, there's us, you and me."

"Us?" she echoed. "Do you think that matters any more? We can't think about us now. We can't."

We sat there thinking about that until Ted Bradley telephoned. A wild hope surged through me as I heard his dry, laconic voice.

"Well, what about this for service?" he said.

"You've got something?"

"Trust old Bradley. It was a cinch. I called my contact in Toronto. He didn't answer, but Bradley's not one of the daunted. My contact has a brother in San Francisco. He an ex-newspaperman too. I called him and he had it all—just like that."

"All—what?"

"About Saxby. He'd just seen his picture in the local paper and he'd recognized him right away. His name wasn't Saxby and he wasn't even a Canadian. He was a guy from Oregon called Don Merchant."

"About five years ago he and another guy, called Kramer, and a girl, Kramer's sister, ran a blackmail racket in San Francisco. In his characterization as a painter, Saxby got in with the high-society set and dug up dirt about them. If there wasn't any dirt, either he or the girl saw that some was provided. Then Kramer was shot resisting arrest. Saxby got five years, they couldn't pin anything on the girl."

"Incidentally, after his release, when Saxby - Merchant snuck across the border to start operating in Canada, he was breaking parole. How about that? Will that hold you for a while?"

"Terrific," I said. "Thanks, Ted. Thanks a lot."

"Don't thank me," he said. "Just worship me. I'll go on digging and keep in touch."

I called Lieutenant Trant at Centre Street. He wasn't there, but I raised a stink, and a long-suffering sergeant gave me his home number. Trant answered right away. His voice sounded as polite and friendly as ever.

"Oh, Mr. Hadley—yes."

"Look," I said. "I've just found out something about Saxby in San Francisco. His name wasn't Saxby, he wasn't even Canadian. He came from Oregon." Trant broke in, "and his name was Donald Merchant. He was convicted of running a blackmail racket with a girl and a man called Kramer. Is that what you mean? I've known that since yesterday. There's a lot more, too. A later set-up in Quebec with another partner, another girl. Girls and dirt, Mr. Hadley. Saxby was never without them."

I should, of course, have suspected that if an ex-newspaperman in San Francisco knew something, the police were bound to have known it earlier, but in my great need for hope I'd clung to hope.

"But with a man like that—"

"A lot of people could have wanted to kill him. That's hardly the point, is it. Mr. Hadley? The point in this case is that Chuck's the one who went there to kill him with a gun, Chuck's the one who admits he was on the scene at a time when the shots could have been fired, Chuck—"

"But, darn it, he's innocent. He told us what he'd told you and my wife and I—"

"Are you sure he's telling the truth? I'm sorry, Mr. Hadley. I know how you feel. Relatives always feel that way. Listen, could I make a suggestion? I'm sure his lawyer, Maguire, would say the same thing. If you really want to help your nephew, concentrate on the alibi. When there's as much

Harry Truman Joins Jack Benny Sunday

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Ex-President Harry S. Truman turns up in an unlikely place next Sunday: guest star on a comedy show.

Jack Benny, his host, says he has a demand for equal time from Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

"I wrote him back that he's not eligible for my show until he makes president," Benny quipped. Benny and Nixon have been friends for years.

"I'm neither a Republican nor a Democrat," said Jack in explaining why he is so friendly with leaders of both parties. He said Nixon had written him congratulating him on the show business coup of snagging the former President of the United States as a guest star.

"Some of my friends have advised me that I should demand equal time," Nixon wrote Benny. "I think he was kidding," said Jack.

A reporter asked Benny how he managed to get Truman to appear with him.

"Actually," replied Benny, "I didn't ask him. He asked me."

Some months ago a columnist asked Benny if he intended to use the same old guest stars seen on most of the big TV shows.

Truman agreed to be on the show, Jack suggested that the Truman portion be taped in the Truman Library at Independence, Mo.

Benny said he and the former President had only one disagreement during the taping.

"I wanted to keep it dignified and Mr. Truman is worried about my getting laughs," Benny laughed.

Works Overtime For Fresher Lies

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Harry Oliver, 71½ years old, is working overtime these days thinking up lies for the next issue of his newspaper, the Desert Rat Scrap Book.

This publication, issued four times a year, has two slogans: "Price 10 cents—only one lousy thin dime," and "Only newspaper in America you can open in the wind."

The latter refers to the fact that the scrap book is printed on one big piece of paper, folded four times. Its content consists of philosophy, wit and facts.

Oliver says his memory produces the jokes, his imagination produces the facts. The philosophy comes from everywhere — and nowhere.

This is a fact: A mosquito has 22 teeth.

This is a joke: His "100-year-old" adobe home was built 20 years ago, by himself.

This is philosophy: The future is getting here quicker than it used to.

Oliver's house, called Fort Oliver, is far out on the desert. He says the buzzards come back every year like the swallows come back to Capistrano.

Its front yard is full of rusty relics, including Oliver's 17-year-old dog, Whiskers. Whiskers is getting deaf. Oliver bought him a hearing aid, but Whiskers ate it. He thought it was a peanut.

"Now he keeps hearing his stomach rumble and thinks it's thunder," Oliver explains. "He goes in the house to get out of the rain."

Rain on the desert? Well, a six-inch rain means the drops are six inches apart, Oliver explains.

Oliver too has whiskers. They're white, like his hair. He is 71½ years old because "after you pass 70 you count your age like children. You put in the quarters and the halves."

Besides Whiskers, Oliver has two bob-tail cats, Dot and Comma.

"They're supposed to help me punctuate," he says. Right now he's trying to teach Whiskers to bark in italics.

Oliver invented the mule-cussing contest and the lazy dog contest. The best cussed-out mule and the laziest dog get the prizes.

Whether you like Oliver's paper or not, it only costs one lousy thin dime.

Local Girl Has Display At Fair

A Greenville high school student, Anne Briley, will have a display in the "Science Education in Action" show at the North Carolina State Fair October 13-17. Anne's exhibit deals with fruit and vegetables that have been treated with ethylene for periods of five and fifteen minutes. Some of the fruit and vegetables have not been treated. The exhibit will show the effects that ethylene has on ripening fruit and vegetables.

The student is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David C. Briley of 201 Arlington Drive.

Anne, who is a member of the high school science club, is also a member of her school's newspaper and annual staff.

The high school science group displaying exhibits at the Fair includes more than 20 outstanding exhibits of the State and Districts Science Fairs of 1959.

The "Science Education in Action" show will be on display in the rotundas of the State Fair Arena. The exhibits will be displayed under the auspices of the North Carolina Academy of Science which annually sponsors the State Science Fair.

Republicans Envision GNP Of $900 Billions By 1967

Secret Service Has A Young Fan

WASHINGTON (AP) — If President Eisenhower ever visits a certain small city in Kentucky, Secret Service Chief U. E. Baughman will scan the faces of all bystanders with special care.

Baughman has few clues with which to spot the person he'll be seeking. He knows only that he should look for a small boy wearing a big smile.

The Secret Service chief's interest in the boy was aroused by this letter to Baughman:

"You may not be reading this letter but who every is I want to tell them that I am sixth grade boy who is very impressed with there job and duties.

"I have just finest reading a book about some of your duties. I won't to tell you how much I appreciated your never ending job of protecting the President, guarding against counterfeiting, and forging checks and other such end less jobs.

"If you every come to my town escorting the President you might see a boy with a big smile on his face cheering with the crowd. That boy will be me. I will be cheering for you the men who protect the President as well as th president."

Baughman wrote the youngster a note of thanks.

The Secret Service asked that the letter-writer not be identified, partly because his teacher might take him to task for his spelling.

By D. HAROLD OLIVER
WASHINGTON (AP) — A Republican study committee today presented a sweeping plan envisioning a gross national product of 900 billion dollars a year by 1967.

It recommended a manufacturer's sales tax and reduction of individual and corporate income taxes.

The tax cuts would come only after a start is made toward reducing the huge federal debt, and would be modest at first. They would be applied "as rapidly over the next few years as the prospective surplus will permit."

For the long run, the committee proposed substantially reduced taxes and more equitable distribution of the tax burden.

The 10,000-word report on "Economic Opportunity and Progress" was the fifth and final document approved by a 40-member committee headed by Charles H. Percy, Chicago businessman. The group was named to outline long-range GOP goals.

The final report was drawn up by a 14-member group headed by Gabriel Hauge, former economic assistant to President Eisenhower and now a New York financier. Other reports dealt with science, national security and peace, and human rights and needs.

The economic report said sensible management of the public debt, combined with tax reform, an effective monetary policy and strict control over federal expenditures "will do much to help maintain a dependable currency and a steady rate of economic progress."

"Our Republican program," said the Hauge group, "seeks a strong rate of economic growth by fostering private initiative, not by resorting to vast new public spending and loose money policies which spawn inflation and the unemployment it brings in its wake."

More partisan than any of the previous reports, the document attacked the Democratic party for what it called "loose money" and big spending ideas.

"We deplore the steady attack by leading members of the opposition in Congress," the report said, "on the efforts of the (Federal Reserve) system to defend the currency. It is vitally important that we protect the system against all attempts to subvert it and to make it a political tool of professional inflationists."

Hitting at Democratic attacks on tight money policies, the report said loose money would undermine the stability of the consumer price level and "eventually destroy the acceptability of all fixed income securities, including Treasury bonds."

The committee favored more freedom for farmers to manage their own operations, labor measures to improve the position of workers, and opportunities for small and large business, subject to "fair-minded regulation."

New Windows In Blasted Temple

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Three stained-glass windows featuring a red, white and blue motif now fill the gaping hole blasted in a wall of an Atlanta Jewish temple a year ago.

Rabbi Jacob M. Rothschild, head of the Hebrew Benevolent Congregation, said he considered the new windows "symbolize the basic faith of the people."

Rothschild made the statement Monday on the first anniversary of the bombing of the house of worship. About 50 sticks of dynamite caused $100,000 damage to the structure but no one was injured.

A building program was under way at the time of the blast and "we simply carried on with it," Rothschild said. The damage has been repaired and additional classrooms and an auditorium are being added.

The explosion Oct. 12, 1958, touched off an intensive manhunt and led to the posting of rewards totaling more than $25,000.

George Bright was tried twice on a charge of conspiring to dynamite the temple. The first jury was unable to reach a verdict, the second acquitted him.

Three other Atlanta men remain to be tried in the case.

House Probers Subpoena Charles Van Doren

By ARTHUR EVERETT

NEW YORK (AP) — Charles Van Doren, at the height of his popularity as a television quiz show winner, was described as a self-confident young man. Now a House investigating committee wants to know whether that confidence stemmed from answers provided him in advance. A subpoena has been issued for his appearances in Washington. Committee Chairman Oren Harris (D-Ark) said: "Mr. Van Doren has purposely avoided service. Van Doren publicly has denied he was involved in the admitted trickery that took place on NBC's defunct "Twenty-One" show. But thus far he has not appeared before the committee—either by invitation or command. Van Doren, 33, gained fame in TV giveaway circles during a 14-week isolation booth stint in 1956-57 on "Twenty-One." He won $129,000 before he was defeated in the quiz game March 11, 1957, by a lawyer, Vivienne Neering. Van Doren was unable to name Baudouin as King of Belgium. It was estimated that after taxes Van Doren would be able to keep about $30,000 of his winnings. But six weeks after he went off the air, he married and thus, through a joint tax return, was able to keep from $50,000 to $55,000. He denied that the tax savings motivated his marriage. Fifteen months later he and his wife Geroldine had a baby girl. Van Doren is the son of Mark Van Doren, the writer and teacher. His mother is a former newspaperwoman. The younger Van Doren attributed his wide range of knowledge to the fact that "in my family we were always in the habit of looking things up, when we didn't know the answer." He took his bachelor's degree at St. John's and a masters in mathematics at Columbia University.

Van Doren turned to literature for his Ph. D., intending to write fiction. In pursuit of his goal, he became a $4,200-a-year English instructor at Columbia. A month after his TV appearances ended, Van Doren signed a $50,000 contract with NBC as a consultant on public affairs and educational programming. For the next 2½ years he worked on various NBC shows, including "Today." In the summer of 1958, authorities began to receive complaints that various TV shows — among them "Twenty-One" — had been rigged, that performers not only were supplied questions or answers in advance, but actually were rehearsed on how to answer them. The subsequent investigation sounded the death knell of big money TV giveaways. At the outset of the scandal,

Van Doren denied he ever had received any help. "I have heard rumors of irregularities on quiz shows," he said, "but I never heard any proof. Most of the shows are absolutely on the up and up." But as the probe shifted from the district attorney's office in New York to the House investigating group in Washington, Chairman Harris said it was an undisputed fact that more than half of the "Twenty-One" shows were fixed. Harris suggested that under the circumstances Van Doren tell his story before the committee. Instead, Van Doren dropped out of sight, dodging reporters. Columbia gave him a leave of absence from his English classroom. His reticence led NBC to suspend him last week from his network job pending the outcome of the Washington probe. The Washington hearings now are in recess until Nov. 2. At that time, Harris said, he expects testimony from Van Doren, who once complained: "It's silly and distressing to think that people don't have more faith in quiz shows."

Quiz Handyman In Knife-Slayings Of Two People

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP)—A 48-year-old handyman has been arrested for questioning about the savage knife slayings of a suburban Webster Groves woman and her brother Monday. Fester Bridges of St. Louis, was picked up here Monday night on a request from suburban Webster Groves police. He was booked as a fugitive from Webster Groves under suspicion of homicide. Police said Bridges, a Negro who had been using the alias of Peter Eel, had worked for the Haas family as an odd jobs man. The bodies of Alice Haas, 52, and her brother, Cecil W. Giles, 56, were found by Mrs. Haas' stepson, David Haas, 9, when he returned from selling tickets to a Cub Scout event. Police Chief Ovid Yardon of Webster Groves said a neighbor of the Haas family related seeing Bridges talking to the victims just before their bodies were found. Bridges denied being anywhere in the neighborhood.

Four Jaypees Under Indictment

WHITEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—Solicitor John J. Burney's drive against irregular practices by magistrates has resulted in four indictments. The Columbus County grand jury Monday indicted three justices of the peace—Italy Marlowe and Jack Moore, Whiteville, and Bill Andrews, Chadbourne — for malfeasance in office and failing to file certain reports. A recently resigned magistrate, R. C. Dove of Chadbourne, was indicted on the same counts. The charges against the indicted jaycees are misdemeanors carrying a maximum penalty of two years imprisonment. Shipping fever losses among cattle in the United States amount to about 25 million dollars annually, reports North Carolina State College.

'King' Also Says He Is Candidate

ASHEVILLE (AP) — Bishop Homer A. Tomlinson of one branch of the Church of God, who already calls himself "King of the World," plans today to crown himself "King of the Smoky Mountains and all of North Carolina for good." The bishop, who also is marking his 16th anniversary as general overseer of his branch of the church, has advertised that he will crown himself in the courthouse this afternoon. He says he is a candidate for the presidency. The bishop plans other Southern stops, including Greenville, S.C. The only active volcano in the United States is Lassen Peak in northeastern California.

ASC Announces Peanut Allotments For 1960

Tarheel peanut farmers will be allotted a total of 168,966 acres for their 1960 peanut crop, according to J. Lyman Edwards, Chairman of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County Committee. This is the apportionment to the state from the national allotment of 1,610,000 acres. The national allotment, according to Edwards, is expected to produce a marketing quota of 934,000 tons. If it were not for a "minimum" provision in the law the national marketing quota would be 214,000 tons less, or 720,000 tons. Legislation provides that the marketing quota must be equal to the average quantity of peanuts harvested for nuts during the five years immediately preceding the year in which the quota is proclaimed, adjusted for current trends and prospective demands; but the quota must be not less than a quantity sufficient to provide a national acreage allotment of 1,610,000 acres. In a referendum on December 11, 1956, Tarheel peanut farmers approved marketing quotas on the crops to be produced in 1957, '58, and '59 by a margin of 84.9%. A referendum for 1960, '61 and '62 will be held in December of this year. If this referendum carries, price support will be available to complying producers at a level between 75 and 90 percent of parity in 1960, depending upon the supply at the beginning of the marketing year. If the referendum does not carry, support will drop to 50% of parity. Marketing quotas have been in effect continuously for peanuts since 1949. "The 1960 peanut allotment to this state of 168,966 compares with an allotment this year of 169,118 acres," Edwards said. Overseas Duty 'Til Threat Gone NEW YORK (AP) — American soldiers must serve overseas as long as communism threatens free nations, says the Army chief of staff. In a speech before the New York Order of the Eastern Star, Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer said Monday night that American forces must be stationed abroad to help train Allied armies and help defend weak nations. Several women have visited the Antarctic, but none has ever set foot on the South Pole.

Louisiana State Increases Lead In AP Weekly Poll

Northwestern, Texas, Ga. Tech Bid For AP Lead

By WILL GRIMSLEY Associated Press Sports Writer Louisiana State pulled farther away from Northwestern today in the race for the season's college football honors but, looking back, saw not just one but three teams dogging its tail.

Close behind LSU and Northwestern, still 1-2 in the weekly Associated Press poll, came Texas and Georgia Tech, both making threatening gestures at the top position.

Also, while LSU drew 83 of the 139 votes cast by sports writers and broadcasters, the voting showed there was no clear-cut opinion on the No. 1 team. Eleven teams, the largest number in recent memory, shared first place nominations.

The poll pace-setters, who had only a 23-point bulge over Northwestern a week ago, went 217 ahead this week on the strength of their 27-3 rout of Miami (Fla.). Northwestern squeaked past Minnesota 6-0.

On the basis of 10 points for a first place vote, nine for second, etc., Louisiana State had 1,223 points compared with 1,006 for the runnerup team from the Big Ten. But both Texas and Georgia Tech showed growing strength.

Texas, which handed Oklahoma its second setback 19-12, took over third place from Georgia Tech, which dropped to fourth despite a 14-7 decision over tough Tennessee.

Syracuse and Penn State climbed into the upper bracket with impressive triumphs over the two Eastern service elevens. Syracuse walloped Navy 32-6 and Penn State upset Army 17-11.

The top ten, with first place votes in parentheses:

Table with 2 columns: Rank, Team Name, Points. Includes Louisiana State (83) with 1,223 points, Northwestern (10) with 1,006 points, Texas (10) with 968 points, Georgia Tech (6) with 918 points, Mississippi (6) with 713 points, Purdue (5) with 575 points, Southern California (7) with 559 points, Syracuse (2) with 386 points, Iowa (5) with 357 points, Penn State (4) with 207 points.

Fullmer To Defend Crown

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—The manager of Gene Fullmer, the National Boxing Assn's middle-weight champion, said Monday night Fullmer will make his first title defense in Utah, probably in December.

Manager Marv Jensen said promoter Norman Rothschild of Syracuse, N. Y., was expected to arrive here today to inspect probably sites.

Jensen said Spider Webb, the man picked by the NBA to face Fullmer, may fly to Salt Lake City from Chicago later this week. Webb and his manager, Hector Knowles, will fly here to sign for the fight officially, Jensen said.

Final Respects Paid To Bell

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Sports leaders from all over America began arriving here today to pay their final respects to Bert Bell, the late commissioner of the National Football League.

A Requiem mass will be celebrated at 11 a. m. Wednesday for Bell—a man whom NFL owners, coaches and players say, cannot be fully replaced.

Bell will be buried in Calvary Cemetery near his Narberth, Pa., home. Honorary pallbearers will be NFL club owners.

Outstanding Players Of Elon Game Chosen By TD Club

Ralph Zehring, the pint-sized quarterback, and halfback James Speight were named "Players of the Week" yesterday by the Greenville Touchdown Club. Tackle Henry Kwiatkowski was selected as the outstanding lineman.

Zehring was the big factor in East Carolina's 31-8 victory over Elon in the local's homecoming. The veteran signal-caller flipped a couple of touchdown passes to Glenn Bass and Speight. By the end of the game, he had completed nine of twelve attempts for 161 yards.

A senior, Zehring is from Alexandria, Virginia and has been an ECC regular for the past four seasons. He has carried the Pirates to over 2,000 yards by air during his span of time here and knows Boone's pro-type system almost as well as the old professor himself. Coach Jack Boone describes Ralph as "not exceptionally fast but quick. He has real quick wrists and is tough as they come." He noted the ECC head coach, known as "Squirrel" by his teammates, Ralph weighs only 160 pounds but has never missed a game due to an injury.

James Speight is the second half of East Carolina's popular "touchdown twins" combination. The Greenville native was slow getting into the scoring column this season with rivals setting their defenses against him, but with the emergence of Bass as a dangerous runner, Speight has started getting his yardage for the Bucs.

An All-Conference selection in 1957, Speight set out four or five games last season with a foot injury, but still finished just a few yards back of the Bucs rushing leader, Bobby Perry. The shifty halfback has been an all-time performer at ECC and should easily hold the schools individual rushing mark when he hangs up his cleats this fall. Boone lauds his halfbacks for the progress that he has made. "He couldn't play defense or block the first two years we had him but he is one of the best blockers that we have and he ranks among our top defensive backs. His blocking has been responsible for shaking Bass (Glenn) loose more than once or twice."

Henry Kwiatkowski came to East Carolina last fall fresh out of the Marines. He immediately won a tackle slot and has been one of the Pirate mainstays in the forward wall. "Ski" played freshman ball at Villanova and is a junior this season. Out of spring practice due to a shoulder operation, "Ski" was slow getting started this fall but came into his own against Catawba two weeks ago and had an other good game against Elon Saturday. Valuable to the club for his line play, Kwiatkowski adds an extra touch with his kicking ability. His booming kickoff resembles those of the pros and he has bunted a couple of field goals in two attempts this season. Boone ranks his tackle as "a valuable asset. We can now feel confident that once in a tight game, we have someone who can boot the field goal if necessary," stated Boone.

The Touchdown Club held its weekly dinner meeting yesterday at the Cinderella Restaurant and the awards were given. Lou Collier presented the "Player of the Week" plaques and Larry Averette gave the trophy for the "Linemen of the Week".

Furman Gets Set For GW Game

Practice sessions were exactly the opposite of each other at Furman and George Washington, who meet Saturday in one of three Southern Conference games on tap.

The Colonials went through a long tackling drill, and Coach Bo Sherman also stressed pass defense. Furman ran through a brief signal drill and then looked at GW defenses.

Meanwhile, West Virginia worked on strategy for the Pitt game. Virginia Military and William and Mary, counted up the injured players who might or might not see action in their Norfolk encounter Saturday.

Virginia Tech, prepping for Virginia in Richmond's Tobacco Festival game, got back halfback Pat Henry and center Rickey Tolley Monday. Two Richmond ends, Ed Wood and Jerry Klich, were listed as doubtful for Saturday night's conference clash at The Citadel. The Spiders worked on some new plays for the game. Out of The Citadel's practice were end Jack Griffin and guard Aubrey Reeves. Coach Eddie Trague said Richmond "is the biggest team we'll face this year, and probably the roughest."

Army To Have Patched Up Club Against Duke

Associated Press Sports Writer Army coach Dale Hall has turned into quite a prophet—much to his dismay.

Hall, in his first year as head coach at West Point following Earl (Red) Blaik's resignation, heard his team touted as the best in the East and one of the top 10 in the country before the season began. He didn't shrug off the build-up but tempered it with a warning that injuries, more than any single factor, could ruin Army's season.

The Cadets now have a 1-2 record and the injury bug is gnawing away. Hall's backfield, with the exception of quarterback Joe Caldwell, is decimated, his starting ends only halfway effective and the stark inexperience of his reserves reflected in successive losses to Illinois and Penn State.

For his opening game, the 44-3 victory over Boston College, Hall had Caldwell at quarterback, Bob Anderson and Steve Waldrop at halfbacks and Don Bonko, for injured John Bilson, at fullback. His ends were Bill Carpenter and Don Usry, two vital cogs in his lone-some end attack.

Here's what remains: Caldwell is still there, though hampered by a knee injury in the 17-11 loss to Penn State last Saturday. Anderson was hurt in the 20-14 loss to Illinois and didn't play after the early minutes. He missed the Penn State game and Duke, Army's opponent this Saturday. His replacements, George Kirschenbauer and Roger Zalkas, are both on the injury list.

Waldrop is finished for the season after an injured left knee was operated on Monday. He was hurt against Penn State. Eilson still favors a charley horse. Bonko an injured eye and third-string fullback Jim Connors was banged up against Penn State. Hall also had Kirschenbauer at fullback against Illinois till he was hurt.

Carpenter has a swollen hand that he cannot move but is expected to be ready for Duke. Usry, who saw little service against Penn State, also is expected to play. Hall recognized his problem before the opening game and did away with all scrimmage sessions during the season. "If we're going to lose anyone," he said, "we're going to lose them on Saturday afternoons."

He didn't realize what a prophet he was being.

Injuries Beset Many Atlantic Coast Clubs

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS hand. The Atlantic Coast Conference is headed for one of its less certain weekends with enough grid men tucked in sick beds to field a first-rate team.

The advantage of a fully abled squad lies only with Wake Forest and Maryland in loop games and with Virginia, which plays outside the ACC.

North Carolina State's Wolfpack, which meets Wake Forest's Deacons Saturday, reported two starters absent as the week's drills opened yesterday. They are fullback Arnold Nelson (sprained ligament) and halfback Claude Gibson (pulled muscle). Thus Wolfpack Coach Earle Edwards was experimenting in his backfield again at both posts.

North Carolina's Tar Heels, who worked on Maryland's flash "I" formation in a light drill, apparently have lost halfback Gib Carson for Saturday's game and most of the remaining season. Carson emerged from last Saturday's win over South Carolina with a broken

Wake Forest had a light workout, with Coach Paul Amen praising a half dozen sophomores for their play in the 16-7 win over Maryland last week. The squad heard a scout describe North Carolina State as having a well-balanced attack and a tough line. Quarterbacks Roman Gabriel and Norman Snead were said to be the men to watch.

South Carolina, which next plays against arch-rival Clemson Oct. 22, got a little good news to mix along with word that halfbacks Steve Koplan and Jim Bowman and tackle Sammy Fewell may be lost with injuries for the season. The Gamecocks learned that star fullback John Saunders, who suffered a shoulder separation in the season opener against Duke, probably will see action against Clemson. Saunders, an all-ACC back last year, is to start working out with the team today.

The Clemson Tigers list tackles Lou Cordleone and Jimmy King on the ailing list. Both will not need knee operations. Coach Frank Howard says, and may be available against South Carolina. Center Paul Snyder and fullback Doug Cline also may be ready. Duke's Blue Devils, who take on Army Saturday, have lost end Claude Moorman and center Butch Allie for the rest of the season. They have been operated on for knee injuries. Coach Bill Murray says senior halfback Danny Lee (law injury) probably won't be ready to play Army.

Maryland had its usual light sweat suit workout in starting preparations for North Carolina. Coach Tom Nugent said the squad was in pretty fair shape. Virginia's Cavaliers are hoping to be at full strength in the Tobacco Bowl game with Virginia Tech in Richmond Saturday. No serious injuries were reported as the Cavaliers drilled yesterday on special offensive measures.

Colt Manager Considered For Commissioner

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Carroll Rosenbloom, majority owner of the Baltimore Colts, said today that his general manager, Don Kellest, "would be the best man for the job of National Football League commissioner if none of the older statesmen is available."

Rosenbloom said that by older statesmen he meant veterans of the league such as George Halas, owner of the Chicago Bears, and George Preston Marshall, owner of the Washington Redskins.

Both Halas and Marshall have said they don't want the job. It was pointed out to Rosenbloom that by process of elimination this possibly would make Kellest, 50, a frontrunner among several others for the post vacated Sunday by the sudden death of Bert Bell.

Rosenbloom said only: "He (Kellest) is a good man and would do a fine job. He's well-equipped and I wouldn't want to lose him but I'll do what's best for the league. Personally I would like to see the post go to a young man like Kellest."

"Actually, we haven't given any thought to a successor. It will take a lot of thinking. But first we've got to put a great man to rest."

Investigation Of Fight Continues

KC Purchases Former Brave

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The Kansas City Athletics have purchased righthander Bob Trowbridge from the Milwaukee Braves in an attempt to improve their weak pitching staff.

Trowbridge has a 12-10 record for part of two seasons and all of the past two campaigns with the National League Braves. Last season, he pitched 30 innings, won one and lost none. His earned run average, however, was a fat 6.

West Hopes Parliamentary Tactics Have Kept Poland Off UN Council

By TOM HOGUE
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—A U.N. Assembly deadlock over the rival candidacies of Poland and Turkey for the Security Council went into its second round today. But Turkey's Western backers hoped they had blocked the Communist candidate by a parliamentary maneuver.

As a result of the maneuver, voting for the Security Council seat was suspended until today after 13 inconclusive ballots. The Assembly then filled six seats on the Economic and Social Council, for one of which Poland was an unopposed candidate.

Western diplomats hoped election of Poland to ECOSOC would knock her out of the Security Council race because of considerable feeling in the Assembly that a small country should not hold a seat on more than one major council at a time.

Polish delegates, claiming 42 votes committed to them, expressed confidence they would win if they could boost their total to 50.

Both the Americans and British insisted the race was far from over. They noted that Poland sewed up many commitments before Turkey entered the race late. They predicted a swing to Turkey as soon as many committed delegates felt they had fulfilled their pledges to Poland.

charges since the U.N. has refused it membership.

Twenty-five nations, most of them Asian neutrals and Arabs abstained. India, which privately opposed the Assembly's taking up Tibet, was among the abstainers. Chief U.S. delegate Henry Cabot Lodge, speaking in favor of airing the charges, told the Assembly: "If we turn our faces away from evil in the U.N., the world will be in serious danger."

Russians Again Deny Knowledge Of 11 Airmen

WASHINGTON (AP)—Once again the Soviet Union has said it has no information on the fate of 11 American airmen aboard an American transport that crashed in Soviet Armenia in September 1958.

Mikhail N. Smirnovsky, counselor of the Soviet Embassy, gave that word to Undersecretary of State Robert Murphy Monday. The airplane incident has been a sore point in Soviet-American relations.

The United States says the unarmed Air Force transport was shot down by Soviet fighter planes and crashed near the Turkish frontier after it had strayed off course over Soviet territory.

The Soviets turned over the bodies of six crew members, but repeated U. S. inquiries have failed to get any satisfaction on what became of the other 11 men aboard. The U. S. S. R. charges that the U. S. plane violated its frontier deliberately.

It was the second time a U.S.-backed candidate for the council found the going rough. In 1955 the Philippines, backed by the Americans, and Yugoslavia were deadlocked for 35 ballots and finally agreed to split the two-year term.

Both Turkey and Poland have insisted that they are in the race to a finish and will not agree to a split term.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily K. Kuznetsov reiterated Communist charges that the debate proposal was organized by the U.S. State Department in a move to stop the thaw in Soviet-American relations that began with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's trip to the United States.

Need $10,000 To Be Homesteader

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A young man wanting to homestead in Alaska needs more than muscles, sinew, an axe and the pioneer spirit, says the Rt. Rev. William T. Gordon Jr., Episcopal bishop of Alaska.

He also needs about $10,000.

The bishop said the much publicized Michigan '59er caravan is regarded in Alaska as a prime example of inadequate planning. He added that the original objective of the caravan failed, some returned, and some found jobs elsewhere but "those who stayed have been undergoing hardships that none ever contemplated."

Before the marathon balloting between Turkey and Poland began, the Assembly elected Ecuador and Ceylon to two-year terms on the 11-nation council. They were unopposed.

The Assembly voted 43-11 Monday night to debate charges of Chinese Communist repression in Tibet but set no date to start.

Sponsors of the proposal, Ireland and Malaya, hope to focus world attention on the situation in Tibet and push through a mildly worded resolution which, without mentioning Red China, would appeal for respect for human rights in the Communist-occupied territory.

The Communist bloc and Indonesia voted against debate, arguing the Peiping government would not be present to answer the

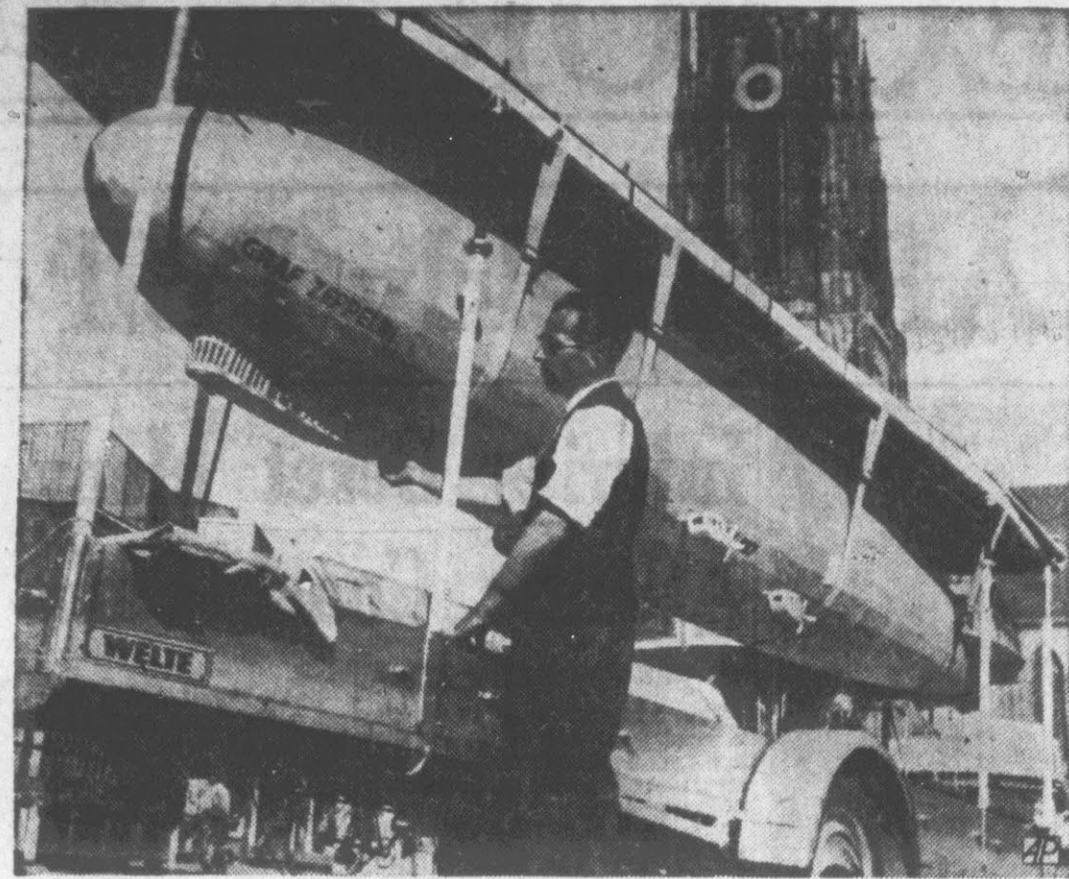

Take-Home Loot For Governors

ASHEVILLE — Governors attending the Asheville conference fared very well in the way of take-home loot, although Governor Hodges set the policy when he was chairman two years ago of cutting down on the amount of expensive gifts.

Each Governor was given the chair in which he sat at the conference table with compliments of Boling Chair Company of Siler City. There was a box of assorted tobacco products from all the tobacco companies in the state, Aluminum hostess trays and souvenir coins came from Alcoa, Hadley Corporation at Weaverville gave ladies cashmere sweaters. Hosiery for both men and women was provided by Burlington Industries. Swatches of Biltmore homespun came from Harry Bloomberg of Biltmore Industries. Capitol Records of Hollywood gave Andy Griffith LP albums. Fieldcrest Mills and Governor and Mrs. Hodges gave Karastan Happiness rugs. Mrs. Hodges with Carolina Telephone Company gave each of the ladies a musical cigarette lighter. Governor and Mrs. Hodges distributed men's silver cufflinks and ladies' silver earrings and sterling silver pins.

In addition to these tangible items, Governor Hodges presented each visiting executive an annual hunting and fishing license in North Carolina.

New World Opens To Cerebral Palsy Victim

HAYS, Kan. (AP)—New worlds are opening up for Charles 'Skeeter' Rayburn. At 22, he has found a medium of expression for the first time.

It took many hours of work by the staff at Hadley Memorial Hospital and an electronics expert to give Skeeter something resembling the power of speech.

His benefactors produced a unique typewriter which can be operated with a nod of the head.

Skeeter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Rayburn Sr., Great Bend, Kan., has been afflicted with cerebral palsy since birth. He cannot speak or use his arms or legs. He has only some control over movements of his head.

His keen mind, good health, and a happy disposition encouraged the hospital staff to seek a way for Skeeter to express his thoughts.

Mrs. Rayburn had developed her own system of handling the alphabet in teaching Skeeter through the eight grades of elementary education. But it was slow and laborious.

At the hospital, attendants rigged a headband with a stylus so Skeeter could use an electric typewriter. But he couldn't touch the keys accurately.

A special keyboard was made with keys the size of a silver dollar.

Then a Hays electronics expert, L. A. Strapp, spent many hours fitting the over-sized keyboard with electrical wiring.

Skeeter tried it with his headband. Slow he typed the alphabet. Then he triumphantly wrote, "Now is the time for all good men and true to come to the aid of their party."

Skeeter is practicing eagerly. He has enrolled in a correspondence course in English grammar, and he feels he is on his way.

He has named the machine "M-G." for "miracle gadget."

Contest Sale Of Greensboro Pool

GREENSBORO (AP)—An appeal notice has been filed with the U.S. 4th Circuit Court of Appeals by Negroes contesting this city's sale of the Lindley Park Pool.

The Negroes contend the city disposed of the swimming pool in a mock sale to avoid an integration request. This point was rejected when U.S. Middle District Court Judge Edwin Stanley ruled the $85,000 sale was valid and there had been no collusion between the city and the Greensboro Pool Corp., the buyers. The appeal notice of the ruling was filed Monday.

Friday Deadline For Soil Bankers

Farmers who expect to participate in the 1960 Conservation Reserve of the Soil Bank have another deadline coming up this week. Friday, October 16, is the last date to apply for contracts to begin next year, according to Walter A. Hasty, Manager, Pitt Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation.

Under the Conservation Reserve for 1960, Hasty explained, the farmer's first step was to ask the county ASC committee to establish a basic annual payment rate for his farm. The deadline for that request was October 9.

All farmers who made that request have received or will soon receive notification of the basic rates established for the land they propose to place in the reserve. This may be either part or all of the cropland on the farm.

The next step is for the farmer, if he still wants to participate, to apply for a contract at any amount below the per-acre rate established for his land. After entering this information on the application form, he returns the form to the county ASC office for final approval. This is the step that must be taken by October 16.

Press Case Against 8 For Bootlegging

GREENSBORO (AP)—The government continues building its case today against eight men accused of operating a wholesale of a whiskey still near Myrtle Beach, S.C., last year.

Trial of the eight, who are pleading innocent, opened Monday in U.S. Middle District Court before Judge Edwin M. Stanley and a 12-man jury.

The still has been called the largest ever seized in the United States. Testimony for the prosecution indicated that nearly 2,500 gallons of non-taxpaid whiskey was seized in a tractor-trailer seen several times in the vicinity of the still, said capable of producing over 50,000 gallons a month.

The truck seizure was made Sept. 5 at Elizabethtown, N.C., and two defendants — Grady Lee Estep and Eugene Edward Kennedy, both of Winston-Salem — were arrested at the time.

The other defendants are Nollie Garnett Cole, James Coleman Minter, Robert Lee Dowell and Robert Lewis Ellis, all of Winston-Salem; Frank Stokes Davis of Myrtle Beach, S.C.; and William Howard McDowell of High Point.

At 2:12 p.m. Box 56 at the intersection of East Fifth and Lewis Sts. was turned in. Firemen said no one was at the box when trucks arrived and no fire was found. The second alarm, turned in at Box 156 at the intersection of Fifth and Tyson Sts. at 11:45 p.m., summoned firefighters to 1113 West Fifth St. where a vacant two-story house was ablaze.

Fire officials said the upstairs portion of the house was heavily damaged by the fire. The cause of the fire was undetermined.

GET INTO ORBIT

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — A sign outside the Good Shepherd Lutheran Church said: "You can fly higher than the moon. Free lessons every Sunday."

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Despite racial problems, Gov. Orval E. Faubus of Arkansas said today, industrial development of the South is nearly a year ahead of a schedule outlined to the Southern governors conference in 1955.

As chairman of the conference committee on industrial development, Faubus presented the annual report of the Southern Assn. of Science and Industry, an organization to promote technical and economic progress of the South.

The first SASI report was requested by the conference in 1953 and has been a regular part of the annual meeting since.

The Arkansas governor cited the Point Clear, Ala., conference of 1955 at which SASI predicted Southern states would add an average of 1,000 important new plants each year in the 1956-1965 period — a total which he said should have considered fantastic at that time.

Would Identify 'Outside' Leaf

QUITMAN, Ga. (AP)—Tightly-enforced identification of out-of-state tobacco marketed in Georgia is necessary to protect prices on home grown leaves, says the president of the Georgia Farm Bureau Federation.

John C. Duncan Jr. of Quitman said his group is not opposed to sales in Georgia of imported tobacco, "but we feel that such tobacco should stand on its own merits."

He recommended Monday that voting delegates consider corrective action at their annual convention in Columbus Nov. 16-18.

Domestic buyers and dealers are willing to pay a premium price for Georgia tobacco, Duncan said, "but if we continue to co-mingle our tobacco with tobacco from other states they will not continue to pay a premium price."

In 1959 about 15 per cent of the tobacco auctioned in Georgia was grown in the Carolinas, he said. "This percentage can double in the immediate years ahead to the detriment of Georgia growers," Duncan added.

But, he said, records show 1,059 plants in the first year, 1,314 the next, 1,424 the third, and that at least 1,000 apparently are assured this year, with 651 reported to date.

Faubus called the figures convincing proof that the South's industrial development program is succeeding to a remarkable degree.

"Despite economic cycles, fluctuations within industry, social problems and political adjustments, we are steadily advancing on a broad scale," he said.

"This is one of the biggest news events in the South today and it is largely an untold story," he added.

Grandmothers In Town For Their Dignified Fling

NEW YORK (AP) — Visiting grandmothers by the score are in town today, ready for a dignified little fling in the big city.

They arrived on the eve of the 18th annual convention of the National Federation of Grandmother Clubs.

Many set out immediately for the big department stores, and to hunt up theater and television tickets.

Edith B. Waddell of Corpus Christi, Tex., a bright-eyed, chipper lady with short-cropped hair, is their leader. The 21-year-old organization has 20,000 enrolled grandmothers from all over the country.

The grandmothers, besides busying themselves with community activities, also take stands on national and social issues.

The grandmothers' colors are gold and brown, their flower the chrysanthemum. "All symbolic of autumn," said Mrs. Waddell, "the time we find ourselves blessed with grandmotherhood."

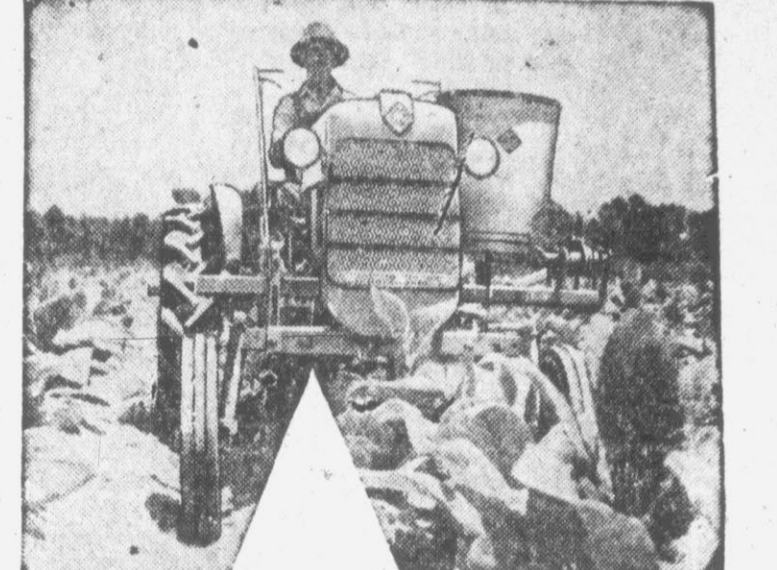

SERVES AGAIN — This old pump, refurbished by a paint job, no longer brings up water but serves as mailbox for J. E. Nicholas on Knox County, Ind., farm.

Reporting a steady march of new plants since 1957 during a period in which the region experienced economic recession and during which there has been widespread publicity concerning the South's problems, Faubus said "the most striking thing is that new industrial growth has been consistent and extensive."

He added that the true story of Southern progress cannot be found in sensational accounts of political battles and racial adjustments. Those who have studied the situation, he said, know that regional development in the South is the result of intelligent leadership, coordinated effort, and applied technical knowledge.

Of the 10 major factors which research has identified as influencing the development of any area, Faubus said, the South rates "excellent" or "good" on nine. "Historically, one of the South's weak points in promoting industrial growth has been the lack of capital," Faubus said. "Even today the region lags in its capacity to provide funds for new growth."

But he said that is the only category in which the South rates low and that it is making steady progress on that score as disclosed by figures on bank deposits and organization of local development and organization of local development corporations to finance new industry.

TOUGHEST SOLDIERS

THE TUSSLE. Enemy bayonets hold little fear for unarmed instructor SP-4 William McCarthy, left, who struggles to take rifle and bayonet (Russian for realism) away from opponent, Cpl. Max Luna...

...then, with a sudden body twist, McCarthy hurtles Luna seven feet through the air onto his back. He will then impale the enemy with his own weapon.

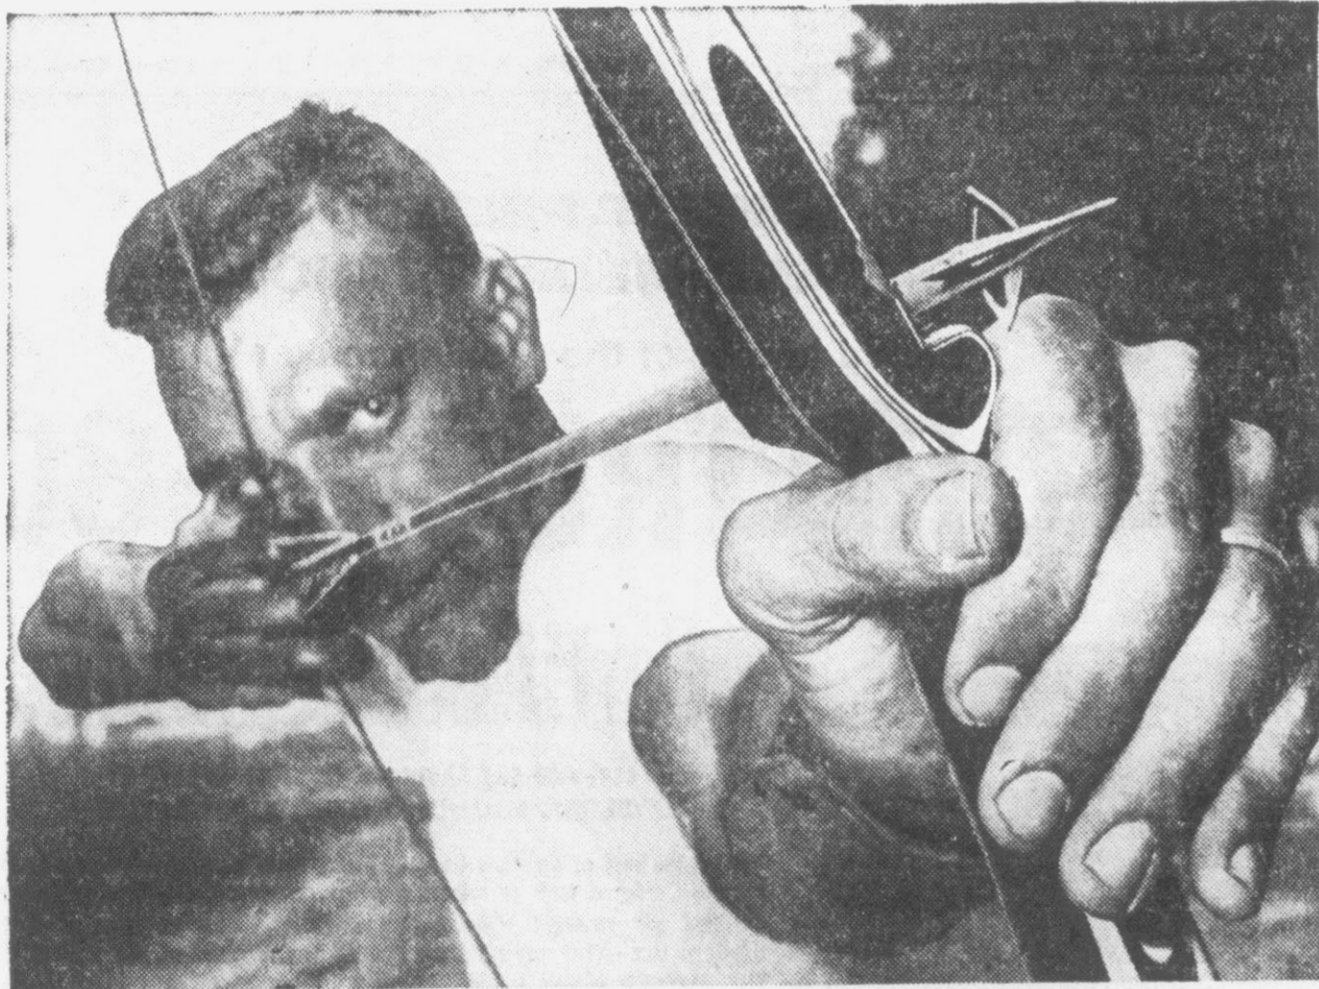

The Army is quietly training guerrilla forces. In the event of war, they would be sent by submarine, parachute or on foot deep behind the lines to arm, organize and—if necessary—lead native partisans in a campaign of sabotage. There now are three guerrilla outfits, known as Special Forces Groups—the 1st on Okinawa, the 10th in Germany, and the 77th at Fort Bragg, N. C., where these pictures were taken. They probably number fewer than 2,500 officers and men.

The men are trained to operate exclusively by night. They are qualified parachutists, frogmen and rangers. Any one of them can live off the land whether it be jungle, mountain, desert or arctic waste.

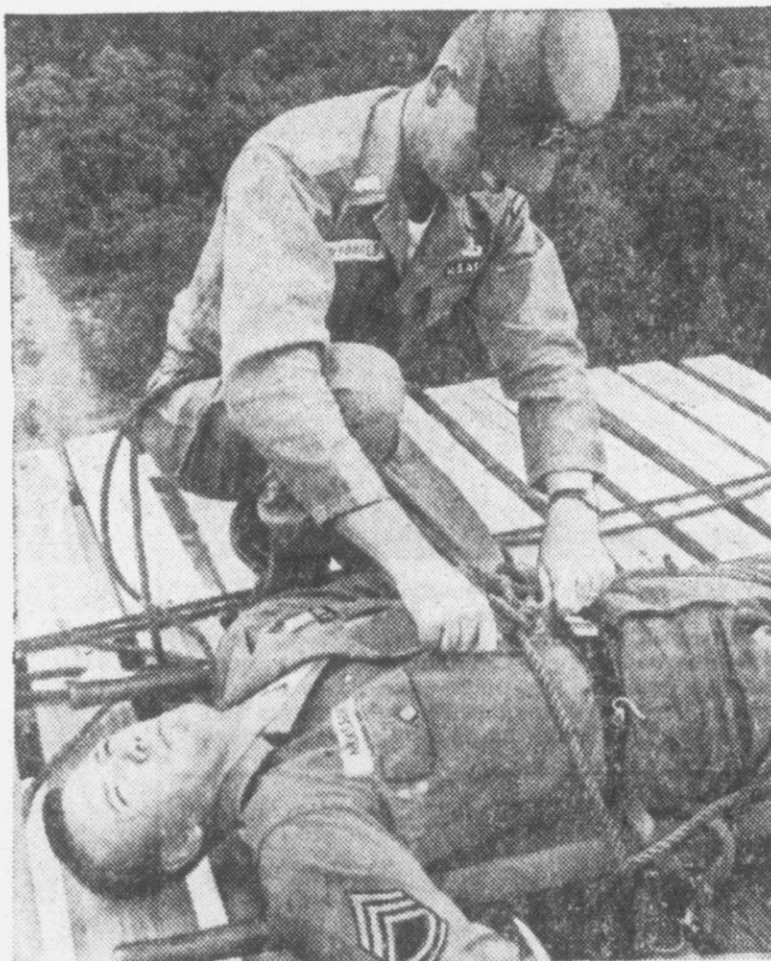

They are experts with bows and arrows and authorities on every type of small arm used in quantity anywhere in the world at any time since World War I.

Most of the guerrillas receive their initial living-off-the-land training in the Pisgah National Forest near Asheville, N. C. They learn to eat snakes, trap and skin small game, and to butcher animals from goats to bears. Before a man is considered qualified as the least trained of the guerrilla team, he must have undergone 33 months of rigorous training.

The end product is a smart, tough and ruthless fighter.

SFC Joseph Lisi practices with bow and arrow, an old but useful weapon. There are times when guerrillas must operate silently, either to gather food or knock over sentries.

Trussing up a patient for vertical descent is part of training at Fort Bragg. Proper lashing method is demonstrated by Lt. John McDonald atop the "repel tower."

Descending the "repel tower," Lt. John McDonald and SFC Thomas Conway help their stretcher-borne comrade Cecil Nickeson to the ground.

Stretcher and patient go over side for vertical descent as comrades on ground observe exercise. In mountain country, this maneuver could lower wounded man 150 feet straight down in an emergency.

In the field, snakes are often source of food. SFC Roy Lytton pries open the jaws of deadly cottonmouth moccasin. Says Roy: "Moccasin tastes just like chicken."

Can serves as cooking pot as Glen McNeil and Dan Scotten get meal ready while training to live off the land.

Manned Satellite's Flight Plan Announced By NASA

LANGLEY, Va. (AP) — The flight plan for the first Mercury manned satellite was made public at this space capital today.

It calls for the Mercury capsule to zoom three times around the earth at an altitude of 100 miles and land in the Atlantic off the Bahama Islands, not far from the Cape Canaveral, Fla., launching site. The whole trip would take 4½ hours.

Hurting along at 18,000 miles an hour most of the way, the satellite would cross South Africa, Australia and a narrow southern strip of the United States.

As outlined here at the research center of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, and confirmed by one of the seven Mercury astronauts, the detailed flight plan is this:

1. A launching slightly north of east from Cape Canaveral.
2. An initial orbit — First encirclement of the earth — that would cross the North Atlantic, the Canary Islands, Spanish West Africa and Algeria, the main part of Africa just north of Lake Chad and Lake Victoria, Kenya, Australia south of Perth in the west and south of Brisbane in the east, Fiji Islands, Samoa, southern tip of Baja California, Northern Mexico, Texas south of Austin and north of Houston, north of New Orleans and leaving the U. S. East Coast south of Charleston, S. C.
3. Second orbit—crossing Bermuda and swinging southward across Nigeria, Mozambique and Madagascar, over Perth across Mackay on the Australian east coast, south of the Solomons directly over Howland and Baker islands in the central Pacific, over the northern end of Baja California, just south of Tucson, Ariz., north of Carlsbad, N. M., north of Fort Worth and Dallas, Tex., and leaving the U. S. East Coast at Savannah, Ga.

4. Final orbit—across the South Atlantic south of Cape Verde Islands, over Angola, crossing just north of Johannesburg, just north of Geraldton on the Australian west coast, across the Gulf of Carpentaria and Cape York, across eastern New Guinea and the Marshall Islands, and north of Honolulu.

The descent will begin over the Pacific, and will take the space capsule across San Diego, San Angelo, Tex., New Orleans, and down to a landing in the Bahamas.

Battle Resigns Civil Rights Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Gov. John S. Battle of Virginia has resigned from the Civil Rights Commission, which recently issued a controversial report on Negro voting rights, education and housing.

Battle was the only dissenter on the six-man commission in its recommendation for federal voting registrars where necessary to assure Negroes and other minority groups the right to vote.

He was joined by two other Southern members in objecting to another commission proposal. The three Northern members proposed a constitutional amendment to prevent voting discrimination, assuring the right to vote to any citizen who meets his state's age and residence requirements and who is not legally confined at the time of registration or election.

Battle said he felt present laws were adequate in both cases.

Potential Alcoholic Clues Are Offered

By RALPH DIGHTON
LOS ANGELES (AP)—If you're skinny, bushy-haired and thirstier than other people seem to be—Watch out. You could be a potential alcoholic.

This advice comes from Dr. Earle M. Marsh, a San Francisco gynecologist who has a medical hobby: chronic alcoholism.

"I don't mean that all people who fit this description should automatically quit drinking," says Dr. Marsh. "But surveys have turned up several physical factors in the search for the true cause of alcoholism."

Dr. Marsh, here to speak at the annual assembly of the California Academy of General Practice, said in an interview that there is less baldness and less obesity among alcoholics than among healthy persons.

"Also, their body fluids are out of balance and they seem to need great quantities of liquid," he added.

"We know that alcoholism is not an emotional disease, although it does lead to many emotional problems. There is a mysterious physical X-factor which some people have and others haven't."

"The alcoholic may be something like the diabetic. In that instance, the X-factor was found in the pancreas. The day may come when we can give an alcoholic an injection of some sort and he will be able to drink all he wants."

The danger in alcoholism, Dr. Marsh said, lies in the fact that the heavy drinker builds up a tolerance to alcohol. It takes more and more to satisfy him. Eventually, immense quantities of liquor lead to illness and death.

"So far we have found no cure except to quit drinking," he said.

In his talk today, Dr. Marsh will warn his fellow physicians against advising alcoholics to "try to taper off."

"The worst thing they can do is to tell their patients to stick with a little wine or beer," the doctor said. "For such patients that's dynamite. Alcoholics can take tremendous quantities of booze, but the tiniest amount destroys their inhibitions and their will to resist the next drink."

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—Space age stocks enjoyed another spurt in the stock market today but lost some of their steam in moderate trading late this afternoon. The list was irregular overall.

Gains and losses of key stocks ranged from fractions to about a point.

Some of the electronics-rocket-missile stocks rose 3 or 4 points as they continued their advance on hopes of increased government spending for space projects and defense.

These gains were chopped back considerably as profits were taken on the upsurge of the "space" stocks which began last week.

The pivotal industrials and rails showed a mixed pattern. Steels were lower.

Aircrafts were up moderately. Oils continued to recover from what brokers called an oversold condition. Assorted rubbers, copers and chemicals gained a bit.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 20 cents to $223.30 with the industrials up 40 cents, the rails up 20 cents and the utilities down 10 cents.

Corporate bonds were up slightly in slow trading.

U. S. government bonds eased in quiet transactions over the counter.

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—Hop prices steady to 25 lower. Tops of 13.75 to 15.00 at Wilson; 14.25 to 14.75 at Hillsboro; 13.50 to 14.00 at Nahant and Rocky Mount; 13.25 to 14.00 at Kinston, New Bern, Benson and Mount Olive; 12.75 to 13.75 at Smithfield; 13.00 to 13.50 at Greensboro; 12.75 to 13.25 at Albemarle, Lillington and House's Mill; 12.75 to 13.00 at Bethel, Murfreesboro, Sunbury, Grimesland, Edenton and Harrellsville; 13.50 at Clinton, Goldsboro, Fayetteville and Elizabethtown; 13.00 at Rich Square, Siler City, Castle Hayne and Burgaw; 12.75 at Dunn, Clarkton, Clayton and Four Oaks; other markets unreported.

President Visits Old Home Town

ABILENE, Kan. (AP)—President Eisenhower returned to his old home town today with a nostalgic look at the past and a warning for the potentially explosive world of the future.

"The world must learn to work together," Eisenhower said, "or finally it will not work at all."

This was a sort of pre-birthday party for the President. He will be 69 Wednesday.

And today he came back to Abilene, the town in which he grew up, to take part in ground breaking ceremonies for the Eisenhower Presidential library.

This will be the final resting place for Eisenhower's military and presidential papers.

Eisenhower hopped by helicopter from the White House to the air base, about 15 miles away.

First, he got a birthday present and a bit of early morning exercise.

The present required the exercise—tossing a couple of shovelfuls of dirt around the roots of a 100-foot red oak tree at a planting ceremony on the White House grounds.

The tree was the gift of the Republican National Committee. Two other red oaks went with it, but they were sent up to the President's farm at Gettysburg, Pa.

Some 5,000 people, representing committee members and staff and local Republican leaders clustered around Eisenhower in a circle and sang an off-key "Happy Birthday."

He will be 69 Wednesday.

The Republican national chairman, Sen. Thruston B. Morton of Kentucky, presented the tree to Eisenhower as "symbolic of the great strength of your administration."

Open 92nd State Fair At Raleigh

RALEIGH (AP)—From yeast breads to horse races, the 92nd annual State Fair which opens here today has something of everything.

Commissioner of Agriculture L. Y. Ballentine and State Fair Manager J. S. Dorton spoke briefly to open the show.

More than half a million persons are expected to attend the five-day exposition, if the weather holds up.

However, the forecast called for increasing cloudiness today with possible showers tonight and Wednesday. Clear, windy weather dried up the soggy fairgrounds Monday after heavy weekend rains.

A record number of exhibitors began competing in 29 divisions for nearly $60,000 in prize money.

A group of television and radio performers, headed by Red Foley, Betty Johnson and the Everly brothers will be a feature of the fair.

Emphasis This Week On Center Line

IT'S ILLEGAL . . . to take your half out of the middle as this driver is doing. A conviction of operating to the left of the highway will give a driver three demerit points under the new point system.

This week has been designated as Operating Left of the Center Line Week by the State Highway Patrol in Pitt County according to Cpl. T. M. Martin.

Patrolmen, this week, will be especially observant of drivers operating to the left of the center line, in an effort to make motorists more aware of the danger in such action.

According to Martin, many accidents and fatalities are caused by drivers driving over the center line and meeting a second car head-on.

British Begin Probe Of Secret Bomber's Crash

LONDON (AP)—The government today opened an inquiry into the crash of a secret British atom bomber with an American civilian at the controls.

The pilot, William Lewis Alford, was an employee of Langley research center, Langley Field, Va. He was killed Monday along with John Joyce, a British employee of the firm that makes the plane.

Alford arrived in Britain only 10 days ago. He lived in Hampton, Va. He was married and the father of four children, a U. S. Navy spokesman said.

The U. S. Navy is helping to finance production of the super-sonic Blackburn NA39. The planes have been ordered by the British navy. Officials in London said the U. S. Navy also plans to buy the plane.

Police and security officers cordoned off the area where the plane crashed. The plane went down in a wooded area not far north of Portsmouth and the English Channel.

Richard K. Worsley will serve as chairman of the committee, Joel Lawhon and H. T. Chapin will serve as members.
