

Estimate $150,000 Fire Loss In Ahoskie

AHOSKIE FIREMEN . . . take time-out to relax at costly package company fire.

Ahoskie Building Lost To Flames

AHOSKIE - Fire destroyed an Ahoskie packing crate manufacturing plant warehouse here early Sunday morning with losses estimated to be about $150,000.

The Ahoskie Fire Department, aided by fire equipment from at least eight neighboring towns, fought the blaze for several hours before controlling it.

The blaze from the frame and tin roofed structure which housed some 190,000 collapsible poultry crates threatened a nearby oil company bulk storage plant. Fire fighters were able to keep the blaze from spreading to the oil company, however.

An Ahoskie man, Eley Britton, was overcome by smoke while helping firemen fight the fire. He was admitted to the Roanoke-Chowan Hospital and held there overnight. He was not a fireman.

Fire Chief J. B. Linkous said the fire's origin had not been determined and that an investigation was continuing.

The plant, which manufactured poultry crates, employed some 165 persons. Plant Manager Ray Jordan disclosed no immediate plans for rebuilding.

Sen. Johnson's Bandwagon Rolls

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) - The Lyndon Johnson-for-president bandwagon picked up speed today as Texas Democrats moved to put the drive on a national level.

House Speaker Sam Rayburn hitched Johnson's wagon to a presidential bid Saturday, announcing he was starting the campaign for the Senate majority leader's nomination for president.

Johnson, Rayburn's long-time protegee, was noncommittal. He has left himself open to a draft in recent weeks after vowing for months that he would not seek his party's highest honor.

Shortly after the Rayburn announcement, former President Harry S. Truman told a rally of some 6,000 Democrats here that "when Missouri is heard from" he would be for Texas next.

He told the crowd he has many Texas relatives, "and next to Missouri, I like your state best." Johnson sat on the stage back of Truman.

Sunday, Truman and Rayburn flew to the Johnson ranch in the hill country west of Austin, Tex., where the senator is entertaining President Adolfo Lopez Mateos of Mexico.

Johnson, at odds four years ago with the labor element of the party, had as guests Jerry Holleman and Fred Schmidt, top ranking officials in the Texas AFL-CIO and Bob Bryant of the railroad brotherhoods.

Sen. Gale McGee (D-Wyo.), speaking in a transcribed radio interview (Radio Press Conference), asserted he believes the chances "are very strong" Johnson will be drafted as the Democratic nominee.

He said Johnson is held in great admiration "not just in the West, but all over."

Many Senate Democrats, including the party whip, Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.), have boosted Johnson for the presidential nomination.

The possibility grew that Rayburn himself might put Johnson's name in nomination at next year's national Democratic convention in Los Angeles.

The speaker, chairman of the last two national conventions, has indicated he will not take the chair at the next one. "I would like to enjoy another convention," he said weeks ago.

N. C. Weekend Violent Death Toll Rises To Ten

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A Cleveland County high school senior, who died Monday of injuries received in a highway accident, brought North Carolina's weekend violence count to at least 10 dead.

Gene Sepaugh, 17, of Rt. 2, Shelby, died in a Shelby hospital. Highway Patrolman O. R. McKinney said Sepaugh was injured Saturday when his car crashed into a truck driven by James Camp, 64, a Negro farmer also of Rt. 2, Shelby. The officer said no charges have been filed in the accident, which occurred on North Carolina highway 18 south of Shelby. Camp was reported in critical condition at Mercy Hospital, Charlotte.

Two high-speed accidents in the western part of the state killed two people, the Highway Patrol said.

George W. Turbyfill, 26, of Burnsville was killed when his car crashed on N.C. 26 near Marion. Donald Corn, 17, of Balfour died when his auto hit a tree near Hendersonville.

J. C. Craig, 65, of Walnut Cove was killed near his home when he was struck by a train. Dr. Theodore Antonakos, Stokes County coroner, said Craig was walking between the tracks toward the train.

Others killed in one-death automobile accidents were: Ed Wise Parrish, 50, of Durham; Junior Carver, 18, of Robinsville, in a wreck on a rural road 14 miles from that town; Charlie W. Arrowood, 63, of Gastonia, on U.S. 29 near Charlotte; Jesse Willard Arrowood, 44, of Lincolnton, in a crash near there; and James O'Dell Vaughn, 28, of Burlington, in a crash near that city.

Nick Locklear, 19, Indian of near Lumberton, was charged in the fatal beating of his 8-month-old daughter, Debra Jane.

Steel Strike Fact-Finders Hand Report Of Failure To President

Soviet Diplomat May Be Ejected

WASHINGTON (AP)—The State Department is reported to be considering ejecting a Soviet diplomat from the United States in retaliation for the Soviet Union's ouster of the security chief of the U. S. Embassy in Moscow.

The prospect that such a step will actually be taken is at the moment highly uncertain. Sen. John Sherman Cooper (R-Ky) called Sunday for such a move "in the absence of an apology" from the Kremlin.

The uncertainty is due partly to the fact that some officials consider direct retaliation in such cases as an empty gesture. But it is also the result of great puzzlement here about what the Soviet move itself was supposed to accomplish.

One theory advanced in diplomatic quarters is that the Kremlin wanted to warn the Soviet people to be wary of friendly contacts with Americans in spite of the official policy of the "Spirit of Camp David" preached by Premier Nikita Khrushchev following his conference with President Eisenhower three weeks ago.

But this is only a theory and officials here are waiting to see how the Soviets themselves handle the case of 37-year-old Russell A. Langelle before they make up their minds what the maneuver may mean.

Secretary of State Christian A. Herter has declined comment on the incident.

The story broke Saturday when the State Department accused the Soviets of seizing Langelle Friday morning and trying by bribery and threats of violence to make him into a spy for the Soviet government. The acting chief of the U. S. Embassy, Edward L. Freers, protested to the Soviet Foreign Office Friday afternoon. The acting chief of the American section, S. R. Stringanov — former Soviet Embassy counselor in Washington — in reply accused Langelle of spying on the Soviet Union and ordered him out of the country.

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet sources said today Russian authorities caught U.S. Embassy attache Russell Langelle paying a Soviet citizen 20,000 rubles ($5,000 at the official rate) for secret intelligence information.

Langelle left Monday for home with his wife and three children, having been declared unwelcome last week by the Soviet government on spying charges.

Well-informed Soviet journalists said the Soviet version of the Langelle case will be published here shortly in reply to Washington charges that the youthful Missourian had been virtually kidnaped, manhandled and framed.

These sources said the Soviet foreign ministry had informed the United States it would not publish anything about the incident in order to continue the current friendly tone of U.S.-Soviet relations.

They added that publication had been decided upon only because of the publicity emanating from Washington, but a date to print the Soviet version here had not yet been set.

The United States dismissed the accusation as groundless.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The down of collective bargaining." Eisenhower, on receiving his board's gloomy appraisal, is expected to order the Justice Department to apply for a Taft-Hartley Act court order to end the strike for a maximum of 80 days. The industry said it was prepared to fight the injunction, but promised to obey it if issued.

The three-member board of inquiry named 10 days ago as the first move toward invoking the Taft-Hartley Act's national emergency procedures—arrived at the White House 15 minutes early. Each man carried a copy of the bulky report—37 pages, plus appendices.

At 10:17 they went into Eisenhower's office. The board had striven for a week to combine a last-ditch mediation effort with its fact finding. It got the issues defined — something the parties had not accomplished since the dispute flared in April—and got each side to make some concessions.

Lunik III Again Leaving Earth After Photo-Relays

MOSCOW (AP) — Lunik III raced away from the earth again today after reportedly sending the earth the first pictures ever taken of the hidden side of the moon.

The Soviet News Agency Tass said the photographs are being processed and will be published, giving mankind the first view of the far side of the moon never seen from the earth.

Scientists expect the pictures to show the same sort of cratered face as the side of the moon which the earth sees.

The pictures presumably were taken Oct. 6 — two days after the launching of the 614-pound flying observatory—when it swooped within 4,375 miles of the moon as it hurtled out into space.

Moscow Radio said the Soviet space vehicle completed its first circuit around the earth, Sunday and continued on its vast orbit, running 17 minutes behind a previously announced schedule.

The next radio contact with the traveler — officially called an automatic interplanetary station — is fixed for Wednesday afternoon when it is scheduled to be 242,333 miles from the earth.

When the rocket was launched, Tass science writer Eugeny Bogoyavlensky predicted that the Lunik would fly close enough "for the whole hidden side of the moon to be photographed."

The Soviets have been cagey about the equipment packed into the space traveler. There was no official mention of camera apparatus.

Another Soviet scientist, Director A. A. Mikhaylov of Pulkovo Observatory, said telemetered signals from the rocket had provided "valuable and unique" information about the physical properties of the moon.

Among other things, he said, the data will help locate the moon's center of gravity and aid in studies of the inequalities in the earth's rotation.

As the Lunik headed back out into space, speculation again arose about its ultimate fate. Mikhaylov, writing in Pravda, said it might crash into the moon or burn up in the fierce friction of the earth's denser atmosphere on a future circuit.

The Lunik's present orbit is beyond the earth's atmosphere, but Mikhaylov said the orbit could be changed by the gravitational pull of the moon on another approach.

Real Differences Of Summit View

WASHINGTON (AP) — Differences between the United States and Great Britain over summit policy are bubbling to the surface once again.

Although diplomats don't like to talk about it, President Eisenhower and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan still don't see eye to eye on the questions of timing and negotiations.

A week-long exchange of top-secret, top-level messages has made this evident.

Apparently Macmillan is trying to rush Eisenhower and President Charles de Gaulle of France into a conference with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev at the earliest possible moment.

The British leader's insistence has surprised American officials. They had thought his earlier urgency about a summit conference only campaign oratory. With the recent election victory in his pocket, they reasoned, he would not pressure so much. But this has not been the case.

Officials here are concerned about more than the timing. They think they have detected a willingness on Macmillan's part to soften the Western stand on the Berlin issue.

Informants say that Macmillan would like a summit conference next month, at the latest in December. President Eisenhower reportedly has suggested a meeting in early December, but, if De Gaulle requests a delay, would be willing to put it off until next year, probably in February.

These differences have made diplomats feel that there must be a Western summit conference in advance of the East-West meeting. There was no confirmation, however, of a Bonn report that Eisenhower had proposed such an advance session for the end of this month.

Claim Arson In New Brush Fire

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A new brush fire, believed set by an arsonist, added its destruction today to that of a blaze still raging out of control through valuable watershed.

Authorities reported that a man in a dark sedan was spotted speeding away from both the new fire, which spread at a terrific rate, and a third which was quickly contained.

Fresh fire fighters were summoned, bringing to 3,000 the number of fighting the two fires in Angeles National Forest.

The original fire, which started last Tuesday, had destroyed 12,700 acres from the northern outskirts of Los Angeles foothill communities northward for several miles.

The first fire took its second life. Philip Chavez, 27, a Zuni Indian from Zuni, N.M., died after becoming ill Sunday. An earlier death occurred when a man fell and struck his head on a rock.

Bulldozer operators building fire lines plunged beneath aluminum asbestos blankets to save their lives when flames swept over them. They suffered first — and second-degree burns.

Percy Flowers Released Today

DURHAM (AP)—Percy Flowers, former bootleg liquor kingpin, was released from the Durham County prison camp today after serving more than 20 months in state and federal prisons.

J. H. Felton, prison camp superintendent, said the 60-year-old Flowers was released around 6 p. m. after his brother — Jimmy Flowers — came to pick him up.

Flowers entered the federal penitentiary in Atlanta on Feb. 7, 1958 to serve a term for contempt of court. After his release, he was turned over to North Carolina prison authorities to serve sentence — totaling 18 months on charges of assault and liquor law violations.

Still Deadlocked In UN Balloting

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — Turkey edged up slightly today on Communist Poland, but resumed balloting failed to break the stubborn deadlock over a seat in the U.N. Security Council.

On the 26th secret ballot in the 82-nation General Assembly, Poland received 41 votes and Turkey 39. This was the closest Turkey has come, in the contest which began last Monday and continued on Tuesday.

Neither has the required two-thirds majority, however, and neither seemed ready to yield.

On the 27th ballot, Poland received 41 and Turkey 40.

Simple Final Honors To Marshall Set Tuesday

WASHINGTON (AP)—The body of Gen. George C. Marshall lies in state today at Washington National Cathedral. Simple last honors will follow Tuesday at Arlington National Cemetery.

The soldier and statesman died Friday night. The five-star general of the Army was 78.

Canon Luther D. Miller of the Episcopal Cathedral will conduct services Tuesday afternoon at the Ft. Myer Chapel, which adjoins the cemetery. Marshall had requested that services be held at a minimum. His burial will be private.

By order of President Eisenhower, flags on public buildings and military installations will continue at half-staff until the last rites.

Marshall is survived by his widow, Mrs. Katherine Tupper Marshall. They had no children.

During his distinguished career, Marshall served the United States as Army chief of staff during World War II, secretary of state and secretary of defense. He authored the Marshall Plan, which brought war-ravaged Europe to economic strength. It won him the Nobel Peace Prize in 1953.

He died at Walter Reed Army Hospital after a long illness. Strokes and kidney disease had weakened him.

The Marshalls maintained a winter home at Pinehurst, N.C.

No Clemency

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—Gov. Edmund G. Brown today refused to grant clemency to Caryl Chessman.

Chessman, who has been in death row for 11 years, is scheduled to be executed Friday.

The government made his decision Sunday night before leaving on a trip to Chicago.

Brown's statement said the convicted kidnap — robber has not sought executive clemency and, to the contrary, "He has declared that he seeks only vindication."

"This I cannot give him. The evidence of his guilt is overwhelming."

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N. C. Temperatures will probably average normal for next five days. Cool at beginning of period, gradual warming, then probably cooler Saturday. Weather fair with little if any precipitation.

Rockefeller Opening Catch-Nixon Effort

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP) — New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, aiming at the Republican presidential nomination, moved openly on the national political scene today with a call for sweeping improvements in public health programs.

The 51-year-old governor made the first of a series of planned statements on top national issues as he headed for the Midwest in a critical test of his ability to overtake Vice President Richard M. Nixon for the GOP nomination.

Nixon holds a commanding lead. Rockefeller is opening an all-out campaign to see if he can catch up.

The New York governor, in his first major political venture outside his home state, invades Chicago today for a hectic round of activities designed for maximum publicity and political value. Before flying west, he speaks here at the American Public Health Assn. convention.

He declared in his prepared speech that there is "compelling need for fresh approaches and new methods in public health practices."

His own administration, he said, is already at work mapping fresh approaches to major health problems. These, he said, include rising costs of medical care.

Rockefeller reserved the first 15 minutes of his Chicago visit for newspaper, television and newsreel cameramen. A news conference follows.

The schedule also includes a talk to a major organization of newspaper executives, two local television interviews and receptions by two Republican organizations.

Pitt Development Group's New Brochure Is Near Completion

Completion of a Pitt County brochure is less than one month away, according to Economic Consultant Leonard A. Weston of the Pitt Development Commission.

So far, four of eight separate leaflet-type folders have been completed and some of them have already been mailed to prospects. Weston told the Daily Reflector this morning.

The finished product, which will cost the Commission approximately $1,600 for some 5,000 units, will consist of the eight individual leaflets and a two-color folder into which the leaflets will be placed.

The four leaflets already completed, which are also printed in two colors, are entitled: "Markets," "Transportation," "Business Climate" and "Manpower-Industry."

Four other such additions to the brochure will be: "Utilities," "Living Conditions," "Resources," and "Communities of Pitt County."

Each separate leaflet has the same blue-and-white colored cover. Only the titles, which are printed in black in a provided square white space on the front, differ in each category of leaflets.

The cover includes a map of North Carolina with the area designated as Pitt County solidly colored for emphasis. The title appearing on the cover is "Pitt County, North Carolina" and a slogan near the bottom reads: "Industry Prospers in Pitt County."

Weston has fostered the project, with Commission cooperation, and has developed it with the help of his secretary, Mrs. Lib Dudley, to the "printing stage" from voluminous records and data. In its July meeting, the Commission approved the brochure. The printing contract was awarded to the lowest bidder, Jimmy Smith Printers in Greenville.

Advantages of having the brochure printed in eight individual parts, says the economic consultant, are that inserts concerning a particular subject may easily be included before mailing a brochure to a prospect and that, in the event a prospect is not interested in the complete brochure, only the portion of information (which particularly interests the prospect) may easily be isolated from the brochure and mailed along with further information on the subject concerned.

Miss Neel Dupree Weds David Carson

Miss Neel Dupree, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Thomas Dupree of Belvoir, and Samuel David Carson, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Elton Richard Carson of Willamston, were united in marriage Saturday afternoon. The ceremony was solemnized in the Gum Swamp Free Will Baptist Church. The Rev. D. W. Alexander officiated.

Mrs. Samuel David Carson

The church was banked with wedding greenery consisting of emerald jade and plumous fern and wrought iron seven-branch candelabra holding cathedral candles. There were several floor baskets of white mums and pom poms, with a sunburst focal point over the piano.

The fitted bodice was designed with a scalloped portrait neckline of lace re-embroidered with seed pearls, crystals and sequins. The bouffant skirt, appliqued with beaded lace, featured a back panel of scalloped matching lace extending into a Cathedral train. Her fingertip veil of French illusion was attached to a pearl coronet, and she carried a cascade bouquet of white bridal roses centered with a white hybrid orchid.

Clothes Have Three Effects On Children

RALEIGH—Children's clothes have a decided effect upon their health, happiness and personality development. Appropriate clothes can contribute to self confidence and may encourage them to accept responsibility, to cooperate and contribute.

Miss Julia Melver, clothing specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service, says "to look fit is to feel fit."

In buying or making fall clothes for the youngsters, careful planning is necessary. Miss Melver says that ease in cut and comfort in design and fit help children forget themselves and give them time to play. Children should not have tight fitting belts, necklines, or sleeves. A child has no waistline and a sash or belt constantly coming undone is a nuisance to a child.

Clothing that allows for movement and growth have fullness across shoulders and chest, looseness through waistline, ample length in the crotch, enough room to allow easy bending and stooping, loose necklines, and good-sized armholes.

To allow for growth, look for loose armholes, large hems, pleats, and adjustable features such as straps on suspender skirts and straps on coveralls.

Time For Chicken Barbecue

RALEIGH—Now is the time for a chicken barbecue. There is something about fall weather that makes it an ideal time for a chicken supper.

According to Thomas B. Morris, poultry specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service, barbecuing is the second oldest form of cooking. As you know, meat makes the outdoor meal. With the price of broilers low, barbecued chicken will be an inexpensive dish. Outdoor eating is fast gaining in popularity, and barbecued chicken has helped make it so. Everyone likes it and it is sure to bring success to your intimate party or large gathering.

For information on planning the menu, utensils, accessories, and barbecuing the chicken, ask your county or home agent for Extension Folder No. 116.

Mrs. Bullock WCTU Hostess

BETHEL—The Woman's Christian Temperance Union met in the home of Mrs. W. R. Bullock last Monday.

Presiding was Mrs. R. L. Whitely. The meeting was called to order with the group singing "Onward Christian Soldiers," the theme song. This was followed with prayer led by Mrs. James Andrews.

Mrs. J. L. Gurganus led in the devotionals, reading verses from 119th Psalm. Her topic was "Characters Sky Ways." She pointed out the fact that each person wants their child to develop strong character. She also gave ten tips for teenagers' safety, guidance and development of character. Her remarks were closed with prayer.

After outline business was transacted, Mrs. Whitely read "Calling Shut-ins" and "Who Thinks," articles taken from "Union Signal."

In giving the program, Mrs. J. L. Gurganus reviewed the second chapter of Dr. Ivy's book, "Really Living." It dealt with Alcohol Education for moderation or abstinence. She stated medical research points out the harm and damage that follows alcoholic drinking.

During the social hour the hostess served fruit gelatin with whipped cream pound cake and hot coffee to the seven members and two visitors.

Dr. Hadley, member of the Safety Committee, introduced Chief Gardner of the Fire Department and Chief Gibbs of the Police Department, speakers on safety also. Discussed were fire drills, bicycle riding, and children talking to strangers.

Miss Jane Hadley, with Mrs. Jack Gates at the piano, led the group of parents and teachers in the singing of an old English folk song, "O, Dear! What Can The Matter Be?"

For the devotional reading the Rev. Rashie Kennedy of the Grace Free Will Baptist Church read from Psalms 116.

Pitt WC Alumnae Have Luncheon

Alumnae of the Women's College, the University of North Carolina, now living in Winterville, were hostesses to the Pitt County Chapter of the Woman's College Alumnae Association at a luncheon Saturday, at the Winterville Community Building.
 She recalled the zest with which Greensboro vied with other N. C. towns to be awarded the location for the, then-named, Normal and Industrial School for Women, and the pride and enthusiasm which local citizens and press took in the announcement of Greensboro as the chosen site. She spoke of the first year, 87 years ago, when W. C. opened with four buildings, no lights or water, and 176 students, who were referred to then, but only briefly, as "inmates."
 Miss Parrish spoke to the group about the importance of the work of the Alumnae Association and the responsibilities of its members.
 Before adjournment of the meeting, new officers of the local chapter were announced.
 They are: Mrs. Odell Weiborn, president; Mrs. Van Fleming, vice president; and Mrs. Robert E. Lee, secretary; all of Greenville. Mrs. J. D. McGlohon accompanied at the piano as the group adjourned with the singing of the W. C. Alma Mater.
 Among the 38 persons attending, were mothers of Pitt County girls who are currently students at the Woman's College in Greensboro.
 Mrs. Tom Davis of Greenville, president of the local chapter, presided. Mrs. B. B. Sugg, Sr. of Greenville, offered the invocation to open the meeting. Mrs. Glenn Smart of Winterville welcomed the guests and Mrs. Howard Mims of Greenville responded. The luncheon was served by local girl scouts and their sponsors.
 Special guests and speakers at the meeting were Miss Jane Summerell, Professor Emeritus of English at Woman's College, and Miss Barbara Parrish, Secretary of the W. C. Alumnae Association. Both are residents of Greensboro.
 Before Miss Summerell addressed the group, Mrs. Odell Weiborn of Greenville, helped guests reminisce by asking each to identify buildings on maps of the W. C. campus.
 Miss Summerell, who is herself an alumna of W. C., was introduced by Mrs. J. H. Blount of Greenville. Miss Summerell, who has

 Mr. and Mrs. Durwood White have returned from Huntsville, which is Mrs. White's home. He commutes to ECC in Greenville daily. They live in Mrs. Anna Manning's apartment.
 Mrs. Jimmie Staton of Martinsville, Va. visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. R. James, last Wednesday. Her husband joined her for the weekend. While here they also spent some time with his father.
 Willie C. Whitehurst is much improved and is now home from the hospital where he was confined for medical treatment.
 Mrs. E. P. Satterthwaite was hostess to the Sunday School Workers' Council in the church Wednesday night.
 After confinement in the Bethel Clinic for over two weeks, Mrs.

United Nations Day
 United Nations Day will be observed by the Guilford County Home Demonstration Club women on October 24. Tasty, foreign foods will be served at the evening meals in many homes. This will be a simple, effective, and delightful way of making the children aware of other lands and customs of other people.
 Miss Betty Williams, home economics agent, reports the purpose of the project is to increase information to promote better understanding with peoples of other countries.
Housecleaning Today
 Do you have good storage space for cleaning tools and supplies? Home Demonstration Club Women in Caldwell County discussed this problem at recent club meetings.
 According to Miss Ainslee Alexander, home economics agent, a well-planned storage closet was shown to the women. A number of cleaning products were displayed and a long handled dust pan and lightweight broom were discussed.
General Landscaping
 With fall in the air, plans for landscaping the home grounds go into action. Wilson County Home Demonstration Club women are studying various shrubs so they will be able to recognize the plants.
 Mrs. Ona Humphrey, home economics agent, says that a project leader report was given at club meetings on using fruit and nut bearing shrubs and trees in the landscaping plan.

Buying Rugs and Carpets
 Rug samples were shown to the Home Demonstration Club women in Hoke County recently to demonstrate good and poor quality rugs, different fibers, and blends.
 According to Miss Josephine Hall, home economics agent, the women discussed different fibers used for rugs, fiber characteristics, blends, colors, cost, care, and cleaning of rugs and carpets.
Home Food Supply Stressed
 Mrs. J. D. Baynard of the Little River Community in Transylvania County tried another crop this summer to help increase the family income and home food supply.
 Mrs. Ruby Corpening, assistant home economics agent, reports that since Mrs. Baynard's strawberry crop was low, she decided to try cornfield beans. From one pound of seed, she sold beans, canned and gave to her neighbors.
Annual Fashion Show
 Highlighting the September county council meeting in Chowan County was the annual fashion show. This show is a climax to a year's work in the clothing program.
 According to Miss Pauline Calloway, home economics agent, the three top winners were Mrs. McCoy Spivey, Hobbsville; Mrs. Briscoe Perry, Edenton, Rt. 1; and Mrs. Conroy Perry, Tyner.

Great In War, But Heroic In Peace

The ranks of America's World War II military leadership were again thinned with the death of General George C. Marshall. Not a great many of the Old Guard are left.

Fame and honors were won by most of our wartime heroes in actual combat, but this was not the fate of General Marshall. His role was that of building the fighting machine that had to win, and help plan the grand strategy for victory in the greatest struggle mankind had yet known.

His role was not spectacular, but Marshall earned the profound respect of Americans and America's allies. Three Presidents who knew him, saw in the man an element of greatness that overshadowed many who might likewise be called "great".

The military figure of recent history does not fit the traditional picture of a man whose whole being is wrapped up in the fighting and winning of wars. Rather, the men who have had to send other men into battle, to suffer and die, are today among the forefront of those who strive for peace. General Marshall was one of these, and at a critical time in world history conceived a great plan toward insuring free world stability and bolster the cause of peace.

In war and in peace the General won admiration and affection, but it was in his labors for peace that he will be best remembered.

The world can do with more such military men; the kind that are strong in war and heroic in peace.

Surely the God of our Fathers has a very special place for the man who gave so much of himself to build a better world.

Peacetime Also Sees Big Air Power Losses

Disclosure that the U. S. Air Force has lost 3,471 pilots and 7,062 planes in accidents since 1950 is a sobering reminder of air power's cost.

Add to those the losses suffered by the Navy, Marine, and Army air arms, and you have a replacement bill that runs into the billions of dollars.

There are factors other than accidents which necessitate a continuous flow of aircraft from the manufacturing plants. Obsolescence and everyday wear and tear, are two such causes.

The Air Force deputy inspector general for safety, Maj. Gen. J. D. Caldara, who gave the accident-loss figure the other day in Chicago, says the accident rate is declining. In fact, it has been reduced from 44 major accidents per 110,000 hours of flying time in 1947 to 9.3 in 1959.

Such results are encouraging, but there is also the reminder that America has an impressive task in replacing its "used-up" aircraft and the skilled men who have lost their lives in keeping our defense on the alert.

Laudable Police Work In Solving A Robbery

Those who followed the trial of Emory Joseph Roux in Pitt Superior Court last week could hardly help but be impressed by the thorough job of investigating and compiling evidence which was done by the Greenville Police Department with the aid of State Bureau of Investigation and Federal Bureau of Investigation officials.

Starting with a matchbook cover found at the scene of the $28,000 jewelry store robbery in Greenville, local police did an outstanding job of building a solid case against the man whom the FBI has termed one of the most expert safe crackers in the country. It took many weeks of intensive work by law enforcement officers to track down and catalog the evidence presented in court last week which brought the conviction of Roux.

The thin thread of evidence with which local law enforcement officers had to work after the robbery was discovered might have run out entirely had it not been for the perseverance of the investigative team and the thoroughness they exhibited in piecing together the fragments of information and clues available. Had it not been for their attention to minute details and endless hours of effort, the case might well have gone into the records of one of the major unsolved crimes.

Police Chief S. G. Gibbs and the members of the Greenville Police Department are to be commended for their work in connection with the case.

Higher Tariffs Not An Answer

By RALPH ROBEY
Most frequently mentioned solution to increasing foreign competition is an upward revision of our tariffs. That could be of help to some industries, but it is not the correct over-all answer. There are various reasons for taking this position.

First, except in the case of individual commodities, the problem does not arise primarily from too many imports. Granted the number of these competing commodities is growing — and will continue to grow — the answer, nevertheless, must be found in more, not less, imports. In some instances it may be proper, perhaps necessary, to make an upward revision of the tariff, but that argument must be left to the individual industries immediately concerned.

Second, the greater the volume of foreign trade, the better it is for both the United States and the world as a whole. Raising tariffs reduces the volume of foreign trade, and places other nations at an increasing disadvantage.

Finally, as the leading creditor nation of the world, it is not proper for us to be a high tariff country. We must be able to meet our international balance of payments deficit in some other manner.

How can we enlarge our volume of exports? That will require a lowering of our prices, and that means we must reduce the cost of production. Two steps are essential to reduce the cost of production.

First, we must give every possible incentive to American firms to modernize their plants and install the most efficient machinery.

Second, we must bring to an end the habit of raising wages every year. It is not necessary, and certainly it is neither economically possible or desirable, to reduce wages. But if we start to hold wages steady, and eliminate feather-bedding, there will be a margin by which many prices may be reduced. This will not be true in every commodity, but it will be true in enough instances to strengthen our position in international trade, and confer great benefits upon the American public.

This is not merely a matter of holding wage increases to the growth in output per manhour. When wages are raised by that amount there is no leeway for management to reduce prices. And since lower prices are essential if exports are to be enlarged appreciably, we must follow a policy which makes possible and encourages the lowering of prices.

Such a program on wages will be opposed by labor leaders. This will be a serious mistake on their part. Holding wages steady does not mean that labor will not continue to improve its position. Quite the contrary. With the same dollar wage and lower prices, there will be an increase in the real purchasing power of the wages—not just more dollars which buy less and less.

Simultaneously, of course, our government must continue working with other nations to get them to eliminate, or at least reduce, the tariffs, quotas, and other hindrances to the importation of American goods. There is much room for helpful accomplishment in this field.

This covers only the trade part of our international problem. Equally important is the financial aspect. That will be covered next week.

Oddities Found In Mail

NEW YORK (AP)—Things a columnist might never know unless he read his mail:

A report put to the U.S. Senate says that as a people we are growing older faster than we are growing younger. This is not only probably true nationally, but it substantiates regional doubts in our own neighborhood and local veins. The figures say only 3 million Americans were over 65 in 1900; by 1970 it will be 20 million.

The fellow we gave our opinions to yesterday today shows the usual old age signs of nongratitude.

The mattress has no known father in history. The Romans enjoyed it 300 years before they traded republicanism for dictatorship.

At different times mattresses have been stuffed with reeds, hay, wool, feathers, and uneasiness.

Do you have trouble in readings a menu? Singer Polly Bergen is said to own more than six dozen pairs of eyeglasses, but rarely uses them. Have you ever met anyone with weak eyes who had 73 excuses for not saying hello?

Our quotable notables: "As I grow older," said Andrew Carnegie, the steel master, "I pay less attention to what men say. I just watch what they do."

The responsibility of fathering one child at a time grays many a man with duty. Here are the odds of multiple daddynood: quadruplets, 90 million to 1; quintuplets, 90 million to 1; triplets 9,000 to 1, and twins 90 to 1.

Women call for room service more often than men, according to a survey by the Hotel Edison here.

It now costs $47,000 to train a general practitioner in medicine—far less than it does to locate one by phone.

St. David's Episcopal Church at Cheraw, S.C., has been used as a hospital in two wars—the American Revolution and the Civil War—and has the veterans of eight wars buried in its graveyard.

Some doctors predict that if the normal life expectancy reaches 100 years, women will outnumber men five to two.

That would be too many too late. One can only hope that a male of that vintage will reward them with a bright remembrance and a deaf ear.

It is said that science has perfected a new atomic clock that will either gain or lose a second in 1,000 years. The fellow who built it awaits his critics.

Pope John XXIII, a beautiful man, told a friend, "In the days of Plus X the people said of him, 'He may be a pope, but he is a fine figure of a man.' Of me, on the other hand, they say, 'A fine figure of a man he is not, but he has an honest face.'"

The Schick electric razor people say that U.S. men remove 500,000 miles of whiskers daily. Whirrr-r today, where tomorrow? Urgent geographical bulletin: Words has just reached me there is positive proof that the western tip of Virginia is farther west than Detroit. See you local map.

Memorable signs of modern times: This one over a store selling frozen foods said, "Best food you ever had."

It was Thomas Wolfe who observed: "There is no spectacle on earth more appealing than that of a beautiful woman in the act of cooking dinner for someone she loves."

The peace and pleasant living of North Carolina is threatened by the influx of outside industry. So said two speakers at an Asheville convention. We know what they mean, for a few harsh samples already have come our way. But of deterioration sets in, we believe it will be due to failure of industry to learn its lesson." — The State magazine.

Without the least idea as to why this be the vice-presidential nominee, as good a guess as any could be that he won't be more fitting for the spot than North Carolina's chief executive. And this is said with the reiteration that we still do not agree with everything he has said or done in that office.

The Governor impresses us as being a middle of the road public official. One farther to the right would suit us better, but Hodges is not by any means a violent leftwinger. Perhaps he could be regarded as a progressive with the brakes on — a popular expression of some years ago.

Will interest? WILL SLOW DOWN THE BOOM Those, of course, are rhetorical questions. The grim facts are that lenders will insist on much higher rates. And rather than pay them, prospective homeowners and expansion-minded corporations will be postponed.

Those, many experts will say, will actually lengthen the present boom. So it will. But it will immediately cut back the kind of expansion that has to be financed with borrowed money.

Here are more look-aheads in business, based on similar analyses: Little change in commodity prices. Several factors are at work holding prices at present levels. The steel strike, no less than the high cost of borrowed expansion. There are few shor-money, limiting business expansion. There are few shortages, some surpluses. During the steel strike, purchasers have been able to line up good reduced demands for consumer goods slightly, dampening prices of things that go into them. Little change can be expected before late winter or early spring.

LABOR'S BACK IS UP Tougher labor negotiations. Management's firmness against lavish pay rises and continuation of featherbedding practices is having a countervailing action on the part of labor.

In the many contract negotiations running from now until mid-summer, labor leaders will take firm stands not so much in favor of featherbedding—which is an untenable position—but in job protection, which amounts to the same thing. The argument will be that automation must not be used to make workers idle, their families hungry.

OLD PROMOTER OFFERS MANY INVENTION IDEAS The Old Promoter made a personal call today, bubbling over with ideas for new inventions. "What this country needs most of all," he said, "is an attachment that automatically plays background music when you answer the telephone. If you're selling something, sweet and restful music should play. If you are complaining about merchandise, there ought to be martial music to stir fear in the person called. Or there could be a clatter of typewriters as background for a business call, or waltz music if you're calling a girl."

"What else?" "What else?" "This country needs a lawnmower that is powered by combustion of the grass it cuts. And a lipstick that applies Scotch plaid colors. And a standard typewriter with an automatic ribbon changer: all you have to do is to drop a ribbon in a chamber and press a button."

"Now if you have some idle capital lying around..." "It was at that point, I guess, that his voice became faint. I swear I didn't hear another word. Future buys. The strikes have

Europe Builds Boom

By ROGER BABSON
STOCKHOLM, Sweden—Last night I sat in the lounge of the Grand Hotel with representatives of prominent American corporations who were here in the beautiful city of Stockholm to spend the week end. Their chief subject of discussion was what will happen to U. S. labor as a result of increasing imports from Europe.

European Industry Booming Every one of these men is leaving tremendous orders for machine parts which will be sent to the U. S. and assembled into consumer products now being manufactured in the United States. They classify all the way from bicycles to motorboats, with automobiles, of course, leading the way. Surely new autos made in the U. S. will not stop the flow of new cars coming from Europe. Today I saw a new Dauphine car selling in Paris for $835 (with U. S. models priced from about $950-$1100). (These are Renault built).

Not only are the European Common Market and Outer Seven countries competing with the United States, but they are competing with each other to give our U. S. manufacturers both higher quality and lower prices. These European manufacturers pay eighty cents to one dollar per hour for skilled male employees, who apparently can do the work just as well. Executives who would secure annual salaries of $25,000 per year in the U. S. receive only about $5,000 here in Europe. They, moreover, are very able men.

More Modern Machinery Being Used In Europe

It is not only a difference of wages, but also of spirit and ambition of the workers and of the models of the machinery used. Recently, I had dinner in Halmstad, Sweden at the lovely home of the Swedish manufacturer of razor blades for the Schick-Eversharp Injector razor, which I personally use. He is making and wrapping these blades on new high-speed machines not yet introduced in the U. S. Incident-holm," the newest passenger ship now sailing the Atlantic Ocean, was constructed in Italy, furnished in France, all with money raised in Sweden.

Many in the U. S. think that Europe has no labor unions. This is not true. All the countries have labor unions and, I am told, this even applies to Russia. The fact also is that the labor leaders who operate these unions are intelligent and reasonable. They are sometimes government appointed. These unions are subject to the same laws and taxes to which the management associations are subject.

The main difference between the European unions and those in the U. S. is that labor leaders and union members in the U. S. appear to have very little interest in either their employers or the consumers who are to use their products. In Europe these labor leaders and members are anxious for their employers to make fair profits and for the consumers to enjoy their products. This difference is the main reason why U. S. manufacturers are buying so many parts in Europe to put into products to sell in the U. S., and are even making the entire products to sell in Europe.

All these U. S. manufacturers who are visiting Europe — at least those whom I meet — are griping against our State Department in Washington. They claim that our State Department is over-riding them, telling them that if they cannot compete with European manufacturing, costs they had better get out and "retire from business." Of course, what our manufacturers want is higher tariffs. Our State Department tells our U.S. manufacturers that such higher tariffs would eventually result in World War III.

Large merchandisers such as Sears, Roebuck & Co. are making big profits importing finished household products from all European countries, and also from Japan. They want tariffs kept low. They praise our State Department for their present stand. Therefore, my conclusion is that present tariff relations will continue and will result in much more unemployment in the U. S. This, however, should teach us all a good lesson—both wage-workers and employers; it may be a "blessing in disguise."

Opinions In Brief

The peace and pleasant living of North Carolina is threatened by the influx of outside industry. So said two speakers at an Asheville convention. We know what they mean, for a few harsh samples already have come our way. But of deterioration sets in, we believe it will be due to failure of industry to learn its lesson." — The State magazine.

Without the least idea as to why this be the vice-presidential nominee, as good a guess as any could be that he won't be more fitting for the spot than North Carolina's chief executive. And this is said with the reiteration that we still do not agree with everything he has said or done in that office.

The Governor impresses us as being a middle of the road public official. One farther to the right would suit us better, but Hodges is not by any means a violent leftwinger. Perhaps he could be regarded as a progressive with the brakes on — a popular expression of some years ago.

Will interest? WILL SLOW DOWN THE BOOM Those, of course, are rhetorical questions. The grim facts are that lenders will insist on much higher rates. And rather than pay them, prospective homeowners and expansion-minded corporations will be postponed.

Those, many experts will say, will actually lengthen the present boom. So it will. But it will immediately cut back the kind of expansion that has to be financed with borrowed money.

Here are more look-aheads in business, based on similar analyses: Little change in commodity prices. Several factors are at work holding prices at present levels. The steel strike, no less than the high cost of borrowed expansion. There are few shor-money, limiting business expansion. There are few shortages, some surpluses. During the steel strike, purchasers have been able to line up good reduced demands for consumer goods slightly, dampening prices of things that go into them. Little change can be expected before late winter or early spring.

LABOR'S BACK IS UP Tougher labor negotiations. Management's firmness against lavish pay rises and continuation of featherbedding practices is having a countervailing action on the part of labor.

In the many contract negotiations running from now until mid-summer, labor leaders will take firm stands not so much in favor of featherbedding—which is an untenable position—but in job protection, which amounts to the same thing. The argument will be that automation must not be used to make workers idle, their families hungry.

OLD PROMOTER OFFERS MANY INVENTION IDEAS The Old Promoter made a personal call today, bubbling over with ideas for new inventions. "What this country needs most of all," he said, "is an attachment that automatically plays background music when you answer the telephone. If you're selling something, sweet and restful music should play. If you are complaining about merchandise, there ought to be martial music to stir fear in the person called. Or there could be a clatter of typewriters as background for a business call, or waltz music if you're calling a girl."

"What else?" "What else?" "This country needs a lawnmower that is powered by combustion of the grass it cuts. And a lipstick that applies Scotch plaid colors. And a standard typewriter with an automatic ribbon changer: all you have to do is to drop a ribbon in a chamber and press a button."

"Now if you have some idle capital lying around..." "It was at that point, I guess, that his voice became faint. I swear I didn't hear another word. Future buys. The strikes have

Industry Hunt One Year Later

(Guest writer today, Wade Lucas, C & D Public Relations.)

LOCAL EFFORT—Department of Conservation and Development industry developers are citing what they call "The Rockingham area a little more than a year ago following the closing there of the big Safie textile plant. Some 1,100 workers were left jobless. A survey made later by the Employment Security Commission of North Carolina showed there were about 4,000 unemployed in the immediate vicinity of Rockingham.

Leaders in the community literally rolled up their sleeves and began to do something about their area's plight.

They sought the help of Governor Hodges and the Department of Conservation and Development's Division of Commerce and Industry in their efforts to create more jobs in Rockingham. All possible assistance was given at the State level as the Rockingham people began to show by deeds as well as words that they were determined to help themselves.

They realized that industries are not to be had just for the asking. They also realized that, as Governor Hodges has so repeatedly said, at least 90 percent of the efforts made to secure an industry must be made at the local level. They knew that the C&D Division of Commerce and Industry is a service organization whose personnel endeavor to help all North Carolina instead of what might be termed selected areas.

What, then, has happened in the Rockingham area in a little more than a year as a result of the coordinated efforts to do something to bolster the economy of Richmond county in particular and that of the State as well?

James Billings, executive secretary of the Rockingham Chamber of Commerce, sheds light on what has happened there since July, 1958, by reporting that in the past 15 months there have been eight new industrial developments in the Rockingham area.

Significant, too, is the fact that from July, 1958, to July, 1959, the annual industrial payroll in Rockingham increased from $7,852,040 to $9,498,497.

Of perhaps even greater significance is the fact that the Rockingham people realize their area needs more industrial payrolls and they are exerting every effort to bring them to their section.

A good example was brought into sharp focus a few days ago when it became known that a new industry indicated a desire to locate in Rockingham and that $25,000 had to be raised among the people to supplement a loan from the Small Business Administration to provide for the new plant's needs in the old Safie Mill.

Approximately 100 persons subscribed not only the $25,000 needed, but $500 additional in a campaign lasting only eight days. Only six of the subscriptions were for more than $250.

EXAMPLE—Governor Hodges the Department of Conservation and Development, and other State agencies, which continue to give wholehearted cooperation in promoting further industrial development of North Carolina, have stressed—that communities must really work hard if they want industries. Efforts being made to provide more jobs in industry and thus provide a better balance between agriculture and industry.

Last year capital investments in new and expanded manufacturing plants totaled $253,074,000—an all-time high.

It is no accident that North Carolina leads the entire South in the number of workers employed by industry. Its 480,000 workers—Texas had 473,000—last year produced a wide variety of products having a value of $7,499,000,000.

Many of the State's communities have able and alert industrial development associations and others are planning to organize. There are eight area industrial development groups at work. They embrace 66 of the State's 100 counties, Chambers of Commerce, utilities, banks, and other agencies are assisting in carrying on the industrial development campaign which is a major part of Governor Hodges' program.

The work closely with the Department of Conservation and Development and other State agencies in industrial development promotion. Some of these associations have gone into other states in quest of new industries and to tell of the over-all advantages their areas and their State have to offer.

There are growing indications that these industrial development groups are better prepared now than ever before to tell inquiring or listening industrialists what they have to offer industry. More and more towns and cities are keeping up-to-date and attractive brochures handy to give to site-seekers and to those they think might be interested in locating plants in North Carolina.

"The Rockingham Story" is quite indicative of what is being done at the local level. It shows what can be done if people of a community really want to help themselves.

The State, through its Department of Conservation and Development, Employment Security Commission, Department of Labor, Department of Agriculture, and other agencies, will continue to provide every service possible to assist these communities in their industry-seeking efforts.

That these efforts are paying off—and will continue to pay off as time goes on—are shown by some of the figures in this article.

Marshall Stayed Chillingly Aloof In Controversies Swirling About Him

By ELTON C. FAY
WASHINGTON (AP) — The bitterest controversies involving George C. Marshall were waged with him standing aloof on the sidelines.

Charges amounting almost to disloyalty were thrust at Marshall by two senators on different occasions. His defenders included a President and the Pentagon.

But Marshall said nothing, either because he didn't want to recognize the charges with any personal pronouncement or because he merely followed his pattern of remaining apart from things.

There were occasions, which came only rarely to public view when the coolly correct Marshall could be vigorous and even angry in debate.

Some of these incidents occurred while he was Army chief of staff in World War II.

There was competition between the services for materials and men. And there were also conflicting views about fighting the war.

In one 1944 incident an Army division went ashore in the Pacific islands with two Marine divisions to drive the enemy out or kill him. The Marine commander was Lt. Gen. Holland M. (Howling Mad) Smith; the Army commander, Maj. Gen. Ralph Smith. The battle was hard. The two Marine outfits were on the flanks, the Army division in the center.

The Army division moved forward more slowly, following

Army technique of allowing air and ship bombardment to first soften enemy strong points. Marine Gen. Smith removed Army Gen. Smith from command.

There were echoes back in the United States—including an angry scene in the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Marshall locked horns with Adm. Ernest King, chief of Naval operations, his opposite in the Joint Chiefs organization. The debate grew hot. It concluded with Marshall dropping his customary coldly official manner. He leaned across the conference table, shook a finger under King's nose and said furiously:

"Never again will an Army general serve under a Marine command."

The criticism which was flung at Marshall years later, in the heat of political dispute, came mainly from Sens. Joseph McCarthy (R-Wis.) and William Jenner (R-Ind.). They were waging a war against communism, during the course of which accusations were aimed at scores of individuals in and out of government.

President Truman had nominated Marshall in 1950 to be secretary of defense, to take over direction of the war in Korea against the Communists of Asia. The nomination was up for senate confirmation, but first a law had to be amended to permit a military officer to assume the civilian cabinet post.

Jenner opposed the nomination. Marshall, said Jenner, was a "living lie" and a "stooge" for Secretary of State Dean Acheson whose foreign policy had come under barrage from McCarthy and Jenner.

The Indiana senator declared that "Gen. Marshall is not only willing, he is eager to play the role of the front man for traitors."

McCarthy fired off his heaviest shots at the general in a senate speech the following summer.

Marshall, said McCarthy, was a mysterious, powerful figure who "more often than not swayed the historic decisions" made by President Franklin Roosevelt in World War II.

The Wisconsin senator declared that Marshall was inclined to follow Soviet viewpoint as against that of the other ally, Britain.

The Pentagon stepped, somewhat sideways, into the argument by sending to the senate press galleries a file of excerpts from addresses and writings praising Marshall.

Prompt support and reply came from President Truman.

What was said and done then welled up into public affairs later.

The 1952 presidential campaign came along. Nominee Eisenhower made a political speech in Milwaukee. McCarthy's home state. Eisenhower deleted from the speech prepared for Milwaukee delivery complimentary remarks about Marshall. Two newspapers said the deletion was at the request of McCarthy.

Spokesmen for Eisenhower and McCarthy denied it at the time.

Two years later, former Republican Gov. Walter Kohler of Wisconsin, in a news conference, said it was he who urged the deletion because he believed that praise of a man under attack by McCarthy would hurt the party.

The tempest was still going on in 1958. Truman said then that he gave Eisenhower hell in the 1952 campaign because Eisenhower didn't throw Jenner off a speaking platform for calling Marshall a traitor, as Truman put it.

At a White House news conference, Eisenhower replied that he had "too much sense to waste my time getting mad at anybody." And he added he had made known his admiration for Marshall as a great man.

Then on Jan. 14 this year, during a talk to the National Press Club, Eisenhower spoke of "my almost veneration, in many ways, of General Marshall."

Never Let Morality Interfere With Fun

(Editor's note: In his years as a Hollywood columnist, Bob Thomas came to know Errol Flynn well. In two articles, the first of which follows, he recalls some fascinating aspects of the veteran film star and charming rogue.)

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer
(First of two articles on Errol Flynn.)

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The film colony, already shocked by a series of prominent deaths, was stunned by the passing of Errol Flynn after 50 years of high living.

It seemed as though Flynn would always be with us, flying in town from some international playgrounds to toss a party and shake the town to its moral roots. He never let morality interfere with his fun.

In some charmless men, such an attitude would be shocking and repugnant. But Flynn had such a light air that his antics seemed almost natural as a way of life. And so he went on drinking and romancing to his final hours.

He would have seemed incredible in any era, but in these conformist times he stood out indelibly. His own life was so mingled with his screen roles that it was sometimes hard to distinguish which was which. Consider some of his parts:

"Captain Blood"—Flynn himself admitted being a pirate in his South Pacific youth, plundering oyster beds.

"Gentleman Jim"—The actor had more (though shorter) fights than Jim Corbett and they were better publicized.

"Objective Burma"—Flynn claimed to have seen warfare up close during the Spanish and Cuban revolutions.

"Too Much Too Soon"—He could match John Barrymore drink for drink and often did.

"The Adventures of Don Juan"—The legendary lover might well have suffered in comparison to the man who played him on the screen.

He went merrily on, living his life as he liked it, denying himself none of human pleasures.

"I do the things people would like to do if they had nerve and money enough," he once said in a rare self-appraisal. The money sometimes gave out; he spent several millions. Nerve he always had.

His most famous scrape came when he was tried for alleged statutory rape of two teenage girls. He was acquitted.

I recall only one situation in which he denied himself anything. He had been warned to avoid an entanglement with his co-star in a movie of recent years, since she was the amour of a film tycoon.

"That was unnecessary," he told me. "I have had a longstanding rule never to 'make love to my leading ladies.'"

Old Legend Now Is Discredited

LINCOLN, England (AP)—The Church of England is officially discrediting the 7-century-old legend of "Little St. Hugh."

According to the legend Jews crucified an 8-year-old boy in 1255 as an insult to Jesus Christ. Many Jews were arrested and executed.

The boy's body was buried in Lincoln Cathedral and a shrine erected.

"Little St. Hugh" became regarded as a Christian martyr. The legend was the subject of ballads and was mentioned in Chaucer.

A framed notice above the tomb recounted the story.

Now the notice has been taken down.

Church officials now describe "Little St. Hugh" as "merely a child buried in the cathedral" without special significance.

A new notice will bear this inscription:

"Trumped - up stories of 'ritual murders' of Christian boys by Jewish communities were common throughout Europe during the Middle Ages and much later. These fictions cost many Jews their lives. Lincoln has its own legend and the alleged victim was buried in the Cathedral.

"Such stories do not redound to the credit of Christendom and we pray 'Remember not, Lord, our offenses nor the offenses of our

Tobacco Markets Hoping For Late Price Upturn

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Virginia and North Carolina flue-cured tobacco markets began another week of the waning 1959 sales season today, with growers hoping for an upturn in price averages.

Prices edged downward slightly last week. Sales volume dropped on all three belts, but on the Old Belt was in part due to bad weather.

The Federal-State Market News Service gave this rundown:

Old Belt—Price variations were mainly $1-$3 per 100 pounds, a few more losses than gains. Leaf grades made up most of sales and had greatest number of declines. Most smoking leaf grades gained and a large number of grades stayed firm. Little change in quality. Bulk of sales from poor to fair leaf, nondescript, poor and low leaf and fair lugs.

The week's sales totaled 28,132,737 pounds at a $52.95 average, down 21 cents and off 4 1/2 million pounds from the week before about 11 1/2 per cent of sales went to the government under price supports. Virginia markets sold 15,891,022 pounds at $54.28, North Carolina 12,241,715 at $51.22.

Middle Belt—Some poor to fair qualities off $1-$3. Nondescript fairly steady, primings firm in limited volume. Good to better qualities remained in strong demand at generally steady prices. There was more damaged tobacco offered.

The week's sales totaled 11,423,510 pounds at $56.16, down 72 cents. About 6 per cent of sales went under government loan. The Carthage market will close Oct. 23. The Sanford market Oct. 29.

Eastern Belt—Volume very light, price averages steady to slightly lower, losses by grades outnumbered gains by almost 2-1. Declines were $1-$3, gains mostly $1.

Sales for the week were 16,975,581 at $55.71, off $2.56 and lowest of the season. Slightly more than 2 per cent of sales went under government loan.

Swiss Designed A Compact Tank

BERN, Switzerland (AP)—Now that you've seen the compact car, meet the compact tank.

This weapon combines a maximum of mobility and armed power with a minimum of weight. Its planners and makers say it is better suited than any other known type of tank to wage war in the mountainous territory of this Alpine republic.

The project of the compact tank, officially the PZ50, dates back eight years, when the Swiss military worked on the first blueprints. It was built by Switzerland's 10 biggest engineering concerns.

It is designed to defend this Alpine republic against an aggressor in a nonnuclear war. Any potential attacker would be bigger and more powerful than this country but the Alps make a formidable barrier. The Swiss are confident they could hold out against an enemy superior in numbers.

Without its guns, the compact tank is 21 feet long, 10 feet wide, 8 1/2 feet high and weighs 35 tons. It is built for a crew of four, is driven by a water-cooled V8 diesel engine developing 600 horse power, and can go 30 miles an hour or climb a maximum gradient of 70 per cent.

It can easily go over obstacles 2 1/2 feet high, cross ravines 9 feet wide and drive through water 3 1/2 feet deep.

Teamsters Vote For Self-Rule

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Winston-Salem Teamsters seeking what they call "self government" have voted their independence from the veteran secretary-treasurer of their local.

The vote was against Lloyd Huggins of High Point, for 15 years secretary-treasurer of Local 391. Last week, five drivers obtained a temporary restraining order against Huggins from moving the local's headquarters from Winston-Salem to Greensboro.

The drivers said they have no quarrel with the International Teamsters Union but seek self government. Among those who will receive copies of the resolution are James Hoffa, president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters.

French Riviera's Season Is Slow

NICE, France (AP) — The French Riviera had one of the slowest summers since the war. One trouble was that sunshine was a general commodity over most of Europe this summer.

With currency restrictions relaxed, many Frenchmen headed for more distant horizons. Foreigners frequently sped through France to Spain and Portugal, where their money stretches farther.

For the man with a fat bank account this didn't matter. The best hotels did not suffer. But the average hotels hardly had use for their "full up" signs, even during the peak of the season.

Robert Viers, secretary general of the Regional Tourism Committee, said: "Those who did come kept a tighter than ordinary hold on their purses."

A bottled water firm sold only 42,000 bottles in July as compared with 80,000 last year. Last August 61 special trains arrived at Nice. A year ago there were 68.

Monaco's Exotic Garden counted 5,957 less visitors this August than last and the Oceanographic Museum reported a 10 per cent drop.

More cars sped along the Riviera highways this year, but fewer stopped.

Charles Coburn, 82, Takes A New Wife

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actor Charles Coburn, 82, has brought home a bride — a widow just half his age.

He caught the film colony by surprise Sunday when he flew to Las Vegas, Nev., and married Winifred Jean Clements Natzka, 41. They returned home Sunday night.

A TWA hostess aboard the plane to Hollywood said the couple held hands all the way. Occasionally, she said, Coburn bent over and kissed his bride's hand. Coburn and his new wife have known each other seven years. She was married to New York opera basso Oscar Natzka, but he died eight years ago. She has two sons, aged 8 and 13.

The blonde 41-year-old accountant is from New Zealand. To indicate just how quiet Coburn kept his plans, his agent and longtime friend, Jay Faggen, said the actor didn't even tell his servants.

"That's the way he does things," said Faggen. He disputed reports that Coburn was unable to climb the stairs to the marriage license bureau. "He's still quick on his feet and sometimes he will dance all night at a party," said Faggen. "He loves good times, good food and action."

Coburn filled out a marriage application while he was seated in a car, outside the county clerk's office.

The ceremony was performed a few hours later in the chambers of Justice of the Peace J. L. Bowler.

It marked the end of 27 years as a widower for the veteran actor. He was married for 31 years to actress Ivah Wills, who died in 1937.

Coburn recently told an interviewer: "Don't ever believe that beauty and charm are the exclusive property of youth. Like smooth brandy, sex appeal improves with age."

Vice Admiral Collapses, Dies

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Vice Adm. Edward W. Hanson, 70, who commanded the cruiser Indianapolis in the Pacific in the early days of World War II and later headed a cruiser division, died suddenly Sunday.

He collapsed on a sidewalk. Cause of death has not been determined.

He commanded the 14th Naval District in Hawaii from 1946 to 1949 and later commanded the 15th Naval District, in the Panama Canal Zone, before retiring in 1951. He won the Navy Cross and the Legion of Merit for his services in World War II.

Surviving is his wife, Nina.

Says Blackmail Resulted In Death

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A blackmail plot prompted the beating of a North Carolina man found dead in a hotel here Sept. 5, Dist. Atty. Edward C. Boyle revealed Sunday.

Boyle quoted John L. Hart as saying he beat William C. Querey, 49, of Rockingham, N.C., because he refused to be blackmailed. The district attorney said Querey had been in his room for several hours with Miss Patricia Kister, 19, before the beating.

Sports Scope

by Johnny Hudson

Just like their trip to Western Carolina, Coach Jack Boone and his gridders found the road to a North State championship a long and winding one with plenty of places along the way to drift astray. East Carolina left the Greenville campus Friday morning and after becoming lost in the mountain area of our state arrived at almost 8:00 that night—too late for supper and a warm-up workout.

Saturday night, the Pirates drifted astray again when they lost the winning combination in the second half of play and were crushed by Western Carolina 34-14.

Backs Are Stopped

Western Carolina fixed their plans to stop ECC's ground attack and with the aid of the muddy turf did a good job of holding Glenn Bass and James Speight, the Pirate touchdown twins, intact. The two ECC runners didn't get much of a chance to show their running ability with the Pirates only getting off 14 running plays in the final three quarters and only nine in the entire second half.

Coach Jack Boone had recently noted that the success of this club could largely be pin-pointed with their ability to keep the ball. Saturday night, it was a different story and usually when they did get possession it was deep in their territory and were forced to punt on third downs.

Zehring Has Good Night

Ralph Zehring carried the Bucs to a 14-14 deadlock at halftime and the little signal-caller fought desperately to keep his club in the running during the second half of play with his dead-eye passing.

He finished the night with 11 completions in 17 attempts and several of his tosses were dropped by receivers. His 139 yards gave him a total of 559 for the season and should rank him near the top among conference passers.

All-Conference Bob Cooper lived up his press clippings but it was evident even to WCC fans that the All-Conference star didn't have the passing sharpness of Zehring.

The ECC quarterback outpassed his rival and his accuracy was much better than that of Cooper. The WCC quarterback had the advantage over Zehring in a couple of other departments. He is more of a running threat when he goes back to pass and his kicking makes him one of the few old-fashioned triple-threat backs now in action.

Muddy Turf Aids Catamounts

If the rain-drenched field added an advantage to either team, it was probably Western Carolina. The Cats running attack was based on straight-ahead stuff with pile-driving fullbacks Lowell Jennings and Jamie Wike carrying the pigskin.

On the other hand, East Carolina's ground game is built upon speed and the fancy stopping of their backs. Sonny Basinger and Speight broke into the secondary several times but were unable to master the slippery turf in side-stepping would-be tacklers.

The rain failed to hamper the passing attack of either club with a new ball being brought in almost every play. Both teams took to the air frequently and there was only one interception during the night.

Puts Race In Scramble

Western Carolina was fired-up for the game while ECC was showing a lapse from their past impressive performance against Catawba and Elon. Coupled with wins by Lenoir Rhyne and Appalachian, the conference continued to be a four team affair.

Three of the clubs—WCC, ECC, and Appalachian—have one loss each with Lenoir Rhyne still riding along undefeated. The big game this week will find the Bears playing at Western Carolina in a game which could ruin one of the fore-runners.

Top Contenders Fight Tonight

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Garrett (Sugar) Hart and Charley Scott, top contenders for the welterweight title, meet here tonight in what each hopes will mean a championship fight for the victor. Promoter Herman Taylor has offered champion Don Jordan a $75,000 guarantee to meet the winner of this scheduled 12 rounder between Hart, No. 1 contender, and Scott, No. 2 challenger. Tonight's bout, billed as a state championship, will not be televised or broadcast.

Taylor is hopeful of a crowd of some 14,000 will jam air conditioned Convention Hall for this meeting of bitter neighborhood rivals. The two rugged Negro punchers, who live five blocks apart in North Philadelphia, dislike each other intensely.

Hart, the boxer-puncher, has the more impressive record and overall has fought more formidable opponents. He numbers 21 knockouts in his 28-3-2 record. Scott in 32 fights has won 23, dropped 9, kayoing 12.

Pros Wins With Chips Down

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—When the chips are down, the pros seem to win every time. At least it's that way in the Carolinas cup golf competition.

With pro Mike Souchak of Durham defeating amateur Billy Joe Patton in the feature singles match Sunday, the pros came from behind to beat the amateurs 62½-57½ for their second victory in as many years.

Most of the 2,000 spectators followed the Souchak-Patton match. Souchak, one of the hottest pros on the national tour, shot a one-over-par 71 and Patton had a 73.

CULLOWHEE, N.C.—Western Carolina's fired-up Catamounts stormed from a 14-14 halftime deadlock to completely dominate the second half of play and crush East Carolina 34-14 Saturday night on a rain-drenched field.

The defeat knocked ECC out of first place in the North State Conference and into a second place tie with Appalachian—both have 3-1 conference records. The victory elevated the strong Cat eleven to third place with a 2-1 mark.

Like a little boy let loose in a candy store for the first time, the Catamounts tore into the East Carolina defense with little trouble. Unaware of the defensive statistics previously piled up by the Pirates, Western Carolina picked up 234 yards rushing and added 141 more yards through the air to completely bury Coach Jack Boone's contingent in the second half of play.

All-Conference Bob Cooper proved to be all that he had been built up to be as he passed for third in leading the Catamounts to their mild upset over one of the conference's stronger teams.

Triple Threat
A triple-threat star, Cooper turned the tide of the game with his kicking. The WCC senior punted four times for a 41.0 average but two of his boots—aimed at the sidelines—rolled dead on the ECC three yard line.

East Carolina won the toss and chose to receive. Ralph Zehring took the opening kickoff and returned it to the EC 33. Sparked by a 25 yard pass from Zehring to James Speight, the Pirates drove to within the WCC 30 but were stopped and the Catamounts took over.

On the first play from scrimmage, Cooper's pass was intercepted by Ralph Zehring who returned it 13 yards to the WCC 45. From there, the Pirates drove for their first touchdown.

Zehring hit David Thomas with a 13 yard toss for one first down and Glenn Bass scored 22 yards for another first within the Cats ten. On third down, James Speight hit off his left tackle and found daylight, going six yards for the touchdown. Jerry Carpenter came in and booted the extra point.

After this, the Cats took over the offensive show and with the exception of the dying minutes of the first half, it was all Bob Cooper and crew.

Muddy Turf
Finding the muddy turf to their benefit, Western rolled to the ECC even in the final minutes of the first quarter but were stopped with a 15 yard penalty and some outstanding defensive work on the part of David Thomas and Ed Emory.

Cooper used his educated toe to put the locals in hot water with his kick rolling out of bounds on the EC three. The Pirates were forced to kick and Western Carolina took over on the EC 47.

The Cats quickly drove for their touchdown with Tom Broadwater going over from the three. Cooper found Broadwater loose and hit him with a pass accounting for two points and WCC moved out front 8-7.

Coach Dan Robinson's fired up outfit were back to ECC territory mid-way the second period and it was again the 165 yards of Tom Broadwater that scored for the touchdown—this time on a 19 yard gallop. The extra point was no good and the score stood 14-7.

East Carolina got in the final words of the half with a 66 yard drive but it was the Bucs last moments of glory on Memorial Stadium's muddy sod.

Bass Scores
The passing of quarterback Zehring carried the Bucs to their final score of the game. Sonny Basinger took a Zehring pass and raced 31 yards before finding the turf too slippery for his cut back antics. Racing against time, Zehring fired a perfect 15 yard strike to Glenn Bass in the end zone for the touchdown. Carpenter booted the point and the two teams left the field with a 14-14 deadlock.

Halftime statistics showed the two clubs on even terms and no one would have guessed of the slaughter which was to take place in the second half before a homecoming crowd of 3,500.

Led by Cooper, the Catamounts struck for two quick TD's in the third quarter before ECC knew what was happening. With a fourth and one situation on the EC 20, the elusive Cooper baffled the Pirate linemen with a fake handoff, kept the ball and raced off his tackle and up the middle for a touchdown. The extra point attempt was no good.

The booting of Cooper proved to set up the second score of the quarter for WCC. After setting the Pirates back to their three with his kick, the Cats rugged line held and it was only a matter of four plays before WC would get their fourth and back-breaking tally of the evening.

Tobe Childers tossed a 23 yard pass to Jimmy Bryant to account for the score. Childers passed to Jim Tanzile for the two-pointer.

Bucs Gamble
Trying desperately to get back in the game, East Carolina was forced to gamble in the final performance. Childers passed to Broadwater, the conference's leading pass receiver, got open and Cooper found him with a

Yale Writing Comeback Story In Ivy League

By ED CORRIGAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Just a year ago, Yale was a poor relation in the Ivy League, a ne'er do well sad sack that couldn't win a football game with its cousins.

The Eli wound up the season's work at the bottom of the league with a horrendous total of 203 points scored against them. They lost all seven of their Ivy League games and beat only two outsiders, Connecticut and Colgate.

Just about the same crowd reported to Coach Jordan Olivar this fall, and nothing except further degradation was predicted for them. If they couldn't win in '58, they wouldn't win in '59.

But couldn't they? Something happened along the way, and today Yale, of all teams, stands as the only unscathed on major outfit in the country. Until last Saturday, the Eli had to share the distinction with Mississippi and Penn.

But Yale polished off Cornell, 22-0, while Ole Miss was whipping Tulane, 53-7, and Penn was crushing Brown, 36-9.

This is the first time since 1921 that Yale has put together a string of four shutouts.

"We like it," gloated Olivar. "It feels fine. But we're not going to worry about it. We've told the squad it doesn't mean a thing. No big-money payoffs in bowl games await the Ivy League winner, but they'll all be sitting tight when Yale and Penn meet on Nov. 7. It probably will decide the champion. Meanwhile, Yale meets Colgate this Saturday and Dartmouth the following week.

This has been a tough season for the favorites and even those who have developed into favorites after the opening whistle. In fact, the first three teams in the weekly Associated Press poll won by a total of 23 points last Saturday, and could have trouble the rest of the way.

Top-rated Louisiana State barely got past Kentucky, a weak sister of the Southeastern Conference, 9-0. Northwestern, No. 2, sneaked by Michigan, 20-7. Texas, No. 3, edged Arkansas, 13-12.

Louisiana State is the favorite to win the SEC crown, but must still contend with Mississippi. Both now show 5-0 records and meet on Oct. 31.

Northwestern, which shot to the fore in the Big Ten in almost a surprising way as Yale's climbing to the top of the Ivy League, can breathe a little easier now. Purdue and Iowa, two of the main pretenders to the title, were beaten Saturday. The injury-riddled Boilermakers were toppled from the unbeaten ranks by Ohio State, 15-0, while Wisconsin slugged Iowa, 25-16.

Texas got past one of its main threats in Arkansas, but Texas Christian has not given up hopes of getting the host berth in the Cotton Bowl. TCU slaughtered Texas Tech last Saturday, 39-6, and appears to be waking up after being beaten by Arkansas.

On the West Coast, Southern California turned back Washington, 22-15, and Oregon shocked the Air Force Academy 20-3, 20-3, snapping the fly boys' unbeaten string at 14. The two winners stayed on the unbeaten list, but they don't meet.

Elsewhere, Syracuse and Penn State remained at the top of the East. The Orange and Tumbler Holy Cross, 42-6, and Penn State downed Boston College, 21-12. Oklahoma, deflated nationally, still rules the Big Eight, and went through its 73rd game without defeat by shutting out Missouri, 23-0. On Saturday, the Sooners meet Kansas, the last league team to beat them.

Deacons Win Fourth Of Season; Bid For Crown

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
"All I can say is, we did it again. They never cease to amaze me."

Wake Forest Coach Paul Amen was speaking of his team's 17-14 Atlantic Coast Conference football victory Saturday over North Carolina State.

The victory was the fourth in five games this season for the Deacons, and that's more games than they've won the last two seasons combined. In 1957, they lost all 10 games, and last year won only three.

Amen said before the present season opened that his team would give a better account of itself.

"It's done that so far, but the come-from-behind finishes are about to finish Amen.

Wake Forest rallied to beat Florida State in the opener, then did the same thing against Virginia Tech. There were no late heroics against Tulane, and the Deacons lost 6-0. Then they slipped past Maryland 10-7, and a recovered fumble set up the winning touchdown Saturday against State. The Wolfpack was leading 14-10 at the time.

N.C. State Coach Earle Edwards remarked, "Sure it's tough, but it's our own damn fault." State lost four fumbles, and all were costly.

Someone commented it was a good game. "It's monotonous," Edwards replied. "I'm tired of good games. I just want to win one." State now is 0-3 in the ACC and 1-3 in all games.

Wake Forest now is 2-0 in the conference. Clemson leads with a 3-0 record. The Tigers, idle last Saturday, play South Carolina Thursday in their annual state fair game. South Carolina is 1-1 in the ACC and 3-1 overall.

In other games Saturday, Maryland shocked North Carolina 14-7; Duke dropped a 21-6 decision to Army, and Virginia lost its fifth straight, 40-14 to Virginia Tech.

This Saturday, Duke is at N.C. State, Wake Forest entertains North Carolina, and Virginia is host to Vanderbilt. Maryland is idle.

North Carolina Coach Jim Hickey had this to say:

"We have no excuses. We have no complaints. We had no offense. We had no defense. We had nothing." There was no lack of effort, he said. The team was just flat.

Maryland Coach Tom Nugent commented, "We blocked and we tackled. That's the story of the ball game."

Maryland now is 1-1 in the ACC and 2-3 overall. North Carolina is 2-2 in the conference and 2-3 in all games.

Duke Coach Bill Murray was dejected about losing the game, and about the knee injury suffered by end Bob Spada. He's the fourth man to be sidelined with a knee injury. Duke now is 0-1 in the conference and 1-4 overall.

Murray pointed to his team's difficulty in covering Army's pass receivers. But he added, "That isn't our main trouble. Not only do we have injured players, but we can't seem to call the right play to keep our drive moving. I don't know whether there is any solution to our offensive problem. The only thing which will cure it, I think, is experience."

Bears Move Out Front In North State Loop

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Lenoir Rhyne, hot on the trail of its fifth straight North State Conference football title, faces a major test of strength Saturday when the Bears invade Western Carolina.

The Bears picked up their fourth straight victory of the season and their second conference victory Saturday night with a 46-19 drubbing of Guilford.

Western Carolina, meanwhile, handed strong East Carolina a 34-14 defeat. The Catamounts now are 4-1-1 overall and 2-1 in the conference.

In Saturday's other league game Appalachian shut out Catawba 28-0 while Presbyterian of South Carolina's Little Three remained undefeated at the expense of Elon, 27-6.

East Carolina, which took its first league defeat from Western Carolina, is tied for second with Appalachian followed by Western Carolina, 2-1, Guilford, 1-2, and Elon and Catawba, both with 0-3 records.

The two tailenders meet in this week's other league game. ECC is at Newberry and Guilford has an open date.

Hebert Uses Hogan Putter

COSTA MESA, Calif. (AP)—Jay Hebert used a putter given him by Ben Hogan to win the $15,000 Orange County Open Golf Tournament Sunday with an 11 under par 273.

It was Hebert's first major victory since 1958. Hogan gave him the center-staffed mallet at Dallas in September when he saw Hebert having difficulty with his approach shots. Hebert has finished in the money three times since then. This time he won $2,000.

He had a two-stroke margin over Jerry Magee of Toronto and Jack Fleck of Los Angeles, who tied for second at 275. They won $1,350 each.

Fight Results

Los Angeles — JIMMY Hornsby, 136, Los Angeles, outpointed Joey Padilla, 136, San Jose, Calif., 10.
Monterrey, Mexico — Mauro Vazquez, 136, Mexico, stopped Guillermo Medina, 134, Venezuela, 4.
Havana — Ramon Cervantes, 129½, Mexico, knocked out Hilton Smith, 128, Miami, 8.

In the Atlantic Coast Conference, Clemson remained at the head of the class with a 3-0 league record, although beaten by Georgia Tech in a non-league game. The Tigers play South Carolina on Thursday.

Golf Tourney Starts Today

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP)—Qualifying play was scheduled here today for the eighth annual North and South golf tournament. A field of 323 men, 55 or older, was to compete for 32 places in the championship flight.

Championship play will be held Tuesday through Saturday over the No. 2 course at the Pinehurst Country Club. The others will be parceled among 19 lower flights.

J. Wolcott Brown of Sea Girt, N.J., was not expected to defend his title, due to a back injury. Among those expected were J. Wood Platt of Philadelphia, 1957 winner; Tom Robbins of Pinehurst, 1956 champion; Jack Brittain of Woodhaven, N.Y., 1958 runnerup; and Chick Evans of Chicago, former U.S. Open and National champion.

Also entered were Martin McCarthy of Chevy Chase, Md.; William Norvell, Chattanooga, Tenn.; and Col. C. D. McAllister of Orlando, Fla., quarterfinalist in the recent U.S. Golf Assn. National Senior tournament at Memphis, Tenn.

Hunter Absolved In Man's Death

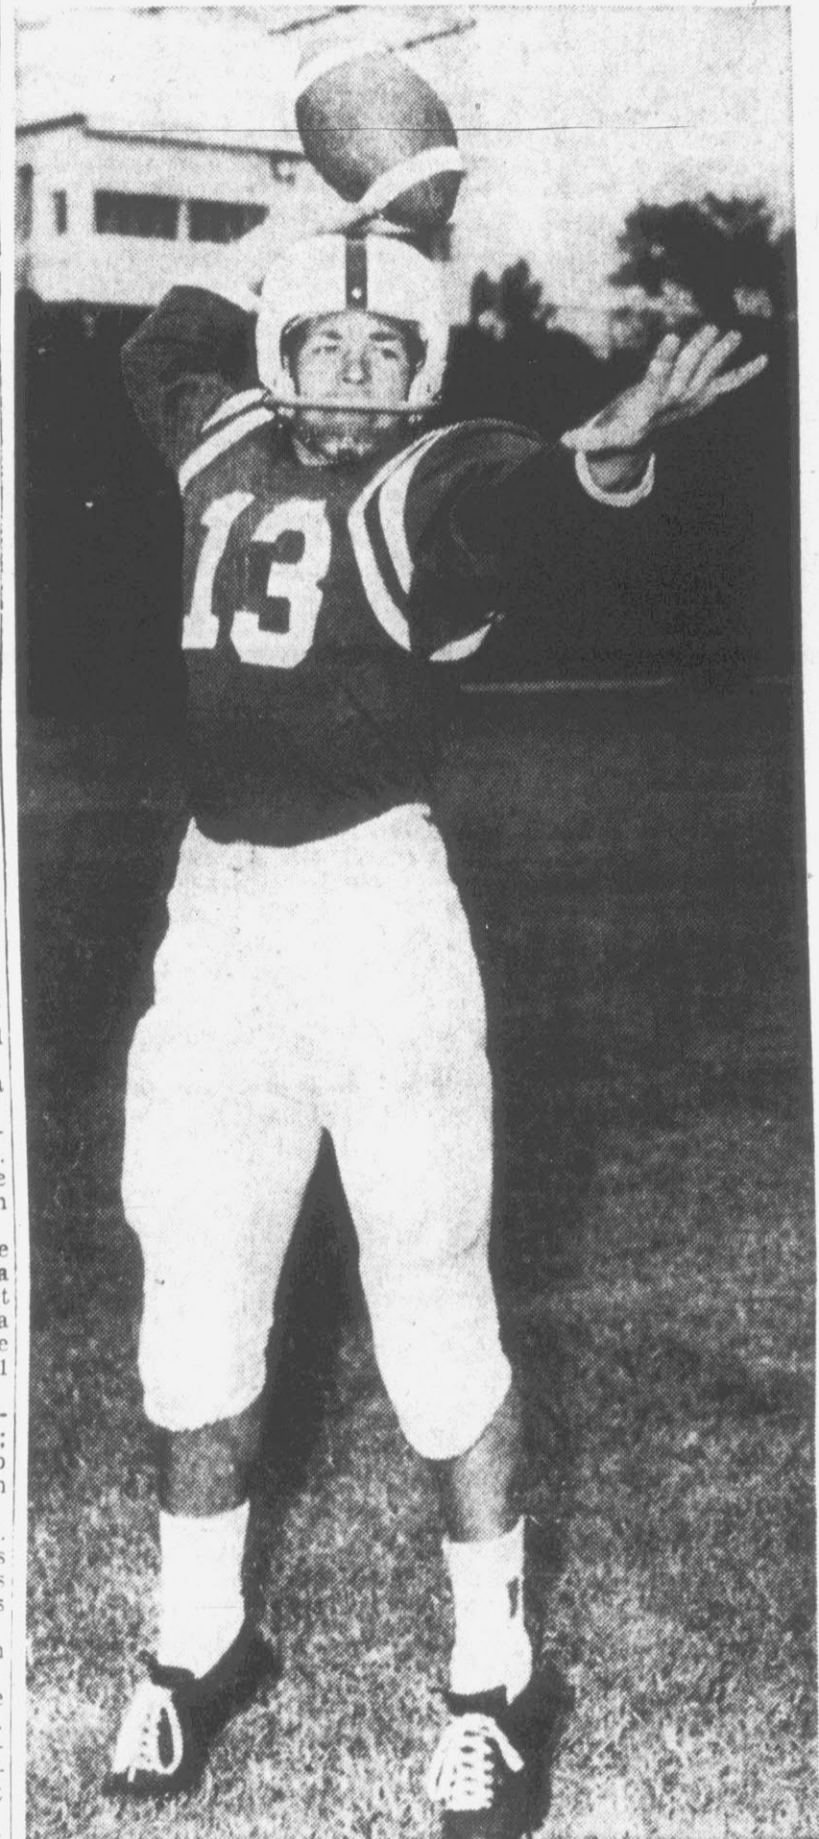

DOWNEY, Idaho. (AP)—A coroner says the victim of a deer hunter's bullet might have been spared if he'd worn red clothing instead of yellow.

But State Fish and Game Director Ross Leonard, whose agency had recommended yellow apparel for hunters, said test in Idaho, California and Washington had shown it to be more visible than red in wooded areas.

Coroner Burton John said the yellow vest worn by the weekend victim, Nephi A. Hewlett, 26, of Pocatello, Idaho, failed to show up in autumn-yellowed foliage. Hewlett was killed, but the coroner absolved the man who fired the shot.

"At this time of year, and in this type of country," John said, "don't wear yellow when hunting. It blends in perfectly with the background."

Fumbles Lead Pittsburgh To Victory Over Redskins

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Johnny Unitas, the artful flipper who's taken his place alongside the likes of Baugh, Graham and Luckman as one of pro football's greatest quarterbacks, stands alone when it comes to heroics of the cliff-hanging variety.

Unitas' last-minute aerial sorties have been responsible for the 3-1 record compiled by Baltimore's Colts in defense of their National Football League championship.

The 26-year-old signal-caller has fired 10 touchdown passes in the four games—extending to 29 the number of consecutive games in which he has tossed at least one TD strike—and has accounted for 60 of the Colts 94 points.

Seven of Unitas' 10 scoring flings have come in the final quarter as the Colts struggled from behind.

The script was the same Sunday as Baltimore knocked off one of its top rivals for the Western Conference crown. The Colts defeated the Chicago Bears 21-7 with Unitas connecting for two touchdown passes in the last period.

The victory moved the Colts into a tie for first place in the West with San Francisco and Green Bay. The 49ers clobbered winless Detroit 34-13, and the Packers, undefeated in their first three outings, were pounded 45-6 by Los Angeles.

In the Eastern conference, the defending champion New York Giants took sole possession of the top spot with a 3-1 mark. They knocked off Philadelphia 24-7 while Pittsburgh was dumping Washington 27-6. Cleveland moved into a four-way tie for second by whipping Chicago's Cardinals 17-7.

Averting their sole defeat, the Colts pulled ahead of the Bears, now 1-3 for the season, when Unitas shot a 25-yarder to Lennie Moore. His one-yard flip to L. G. Dupre closed out the scoring. The Bears had tied it just after the second half opened on Willie Gal-more's 30-yard scamper. Alan Ameche accounted for the other Colt TD.

The surprising 49ers, riding the air arm of veteran Y. A. Tittle and balking the Lion (0-4) offense with a defensive line that flattened quarterback Tobin Rote, built a 20-0 lead and never were headed. Tittle passed for one touchdown, hitting Clyde Conner with a 37-yard toss. J. D. Smith scored twice for San Francisco.

Bill Wade's three touchdown passes and the running of Ollie Matson—who picked up 121 yards in 20 carries—overwhelmed the Packer defense which had allowed only three TD's previously. Matson scored once on a 49-yard ramble and paced the Rams' triple-pronged running attack that also included Jon Arnett (72 yards in 11 attempts) and Tom Wilson (52 in 6).

Alex Webster broke a 7-7 tie in the second period with a 16-yard touchdown sprint that put the Giants ahead of the Eagles (2-2) to stay. Webster, making his first start and playing despite a still-painful torn cartilage in his left side, led the ground-gainers with 62 yards although used sparingly.

Harland Svare opened the New York scoring by chugging 70 yards with an interception.

Making the most of seven Redskin (2-2) fumbles, the Steelers (2-2) turned three into touchdowns. Two of them built a 14-0 lead before the game was five minutes old. Larry Krutko cracked the Washington line for two scores on short plunges as Pittsburgh avenged an earlier loss. Sam Baker was the Redskins' entire offense, kicking two field goals.

The Browns (2-2), scoring in the opening period on an 82-yard drive and a 37-yard interception by Bernie Parrish, built a commanding lead before the Cardinals (1-3) could get untracked. Cleveland's Jimmy Brown accounted for 123 yards on the ground in 23 rushes and caught three passes for 22 yards.

The Cards played most of the game without both regular quarterbacks—King Hill and M. C. Reynolds. Hill injured his throwing arm in the second period and was relieved by Reynolds. Reynolds threw once, was hurt and also went to the sidelines. Defensive halfback Jim Roach took over, arching a spectacular 62-yard TD pass to Woodley Lewis for their only score.

Smith Named Baseball Prexy

ATLANTA (AP) — Directors of the South Atlantic League have re-elected Sam C. Smith Jr. of Dothan, Ala., president, and lengthened the 1960 schedule for the Class A baseball circuit to 154 games.

Smith was given a two year contract Sunday. The directors said the league office would remain in Dothan.

The league operated as an eight team circuit last year, played a 140-game schedule and outdrew the double-A Southern Assn. 685,682 to 613,212.

No definite decisions were made on franchise shifts or additions.

"As of right now we plan to operate as an eight member league," Smith said. "We probably won't be able to expand to a 10-team league."

Knoxville, Asheville, Charleston, Charlotte, Macon and Jacksonville definitely will field teams in 1960, he said. The status of the other two clubs, Gastonia and Savannah, was reported as a bit uncertain.

Savannah has been operated by Cincinnati the past three years but Cincinnati indicated recently it might transfer its affiliation to another city.

Gastonia operated in 1959 on a franchise that belonged to Columbus, Ga. Smith said the Gastonia situation was discussed but declined to reveal any details.

Smith said the other two teams would come from Savannah, Gastonia, Columbia, Greenville, Spartanburg or Augusta.

Other officers elected at the meeting included William Ackerman of Charleston, vice president; John Duncan of Knoxville, honorary vice president; and Bob Bonifay of Knoxville, acting secretary.

Pugh Scores Three TDs To Pace VPI Over Va.

Halfback Alger Pugh played less than 25 minutes in Virginia Tech's 40-14 romp past Virginia last Saturday, but used his brief period to move in front in the Southern Conference football scoring race.

Pugh, one of the league's shiftiest runners, tallied three of the six Tech touchdowns and thus lifted his 1959 point bag to 36 in five games. The 18-point performance Saturday in Richmond tied a Tech record.

Pugh's touchdowns came on a 36-yard run in the opening quarter, a one-yard pass from Frank Eastman in the second quarter, and a three-yard trip over tackle in the third period.

Last week's individual scoring leader, Earl Stout of Richmond, could pick up only one point in The Citadel's 8-7 triumph over the Spiders and fell to second place with 34 points.

Trailing the top two are George Hart of Davidson, with 30 points; Paul Maguire of The Citadel and John Traynham of VMI, each with 24; and three players with 18 points apiece—Bill Hughes of The Citadel, Stinson Jones of VMI, and George Angelica of Furman.

It was Hughes who collected The Citadel's touchdown against Richmond Saturday night in a triumph that elevated the Bulldogs into a tie with West Virginia and Furman for the conference lead.

Angelica scored Furman's first touchdown as the Purple Hurricane took the measure of George Washington, 24-0, in another night game.

Traynham romped eight yards for the score that set VMI off to a 26-7 victory over William and Mary at Norfolk.

West Virginia got a brilliant quarterbacking job from Danny Williams and upended arch-rival Pitt, 23-15, in a non-conference game.

Furman is at The Citadel Saturday. Other conference action has Davidson, 0-2 in the league, at VMI and George Washington (0-2) at William and Mary (0-3).

In non-conference games Saturday, West Virginia goes to Syracuse and Virginia Tech visits Villanova. Saturday night, Richmond

Griffin May Give Answer Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Calvin Griffith may provide today the answer to what has become Washington's annual riddle: Will he move his American League baseball team?

One source on the fringe of the club's affairs predicted that Griffith would spurn once more an invitation to transfer to Minneapolis.

Yet Griffith, while declining to say just what he is thinking, was by his own statement canvassing other club owners for their attitude toward the shift.

If it comes to a showdown, he will need the approval of at least five of the seven other American League owners.

The question could arise for a final decision at the annual meeting scheduled for New York on Wednesday.

Just a little over a year ago, Larry Sherry was on a fishing trip in Colorado after winding up a 6-14 season with Spokane. He was planning to play winter ball in Maracaibo to gain the control he lacked. The Los Angeles Dodgers had finished in seventh place and were sorely in need of help in their mound staff so he figured he had a chance to catch on if he sharpened his control and gained some additional experience.

The chances are that he never even dreamed that he would turn up as one of the big sensations of the 1959 World Series.

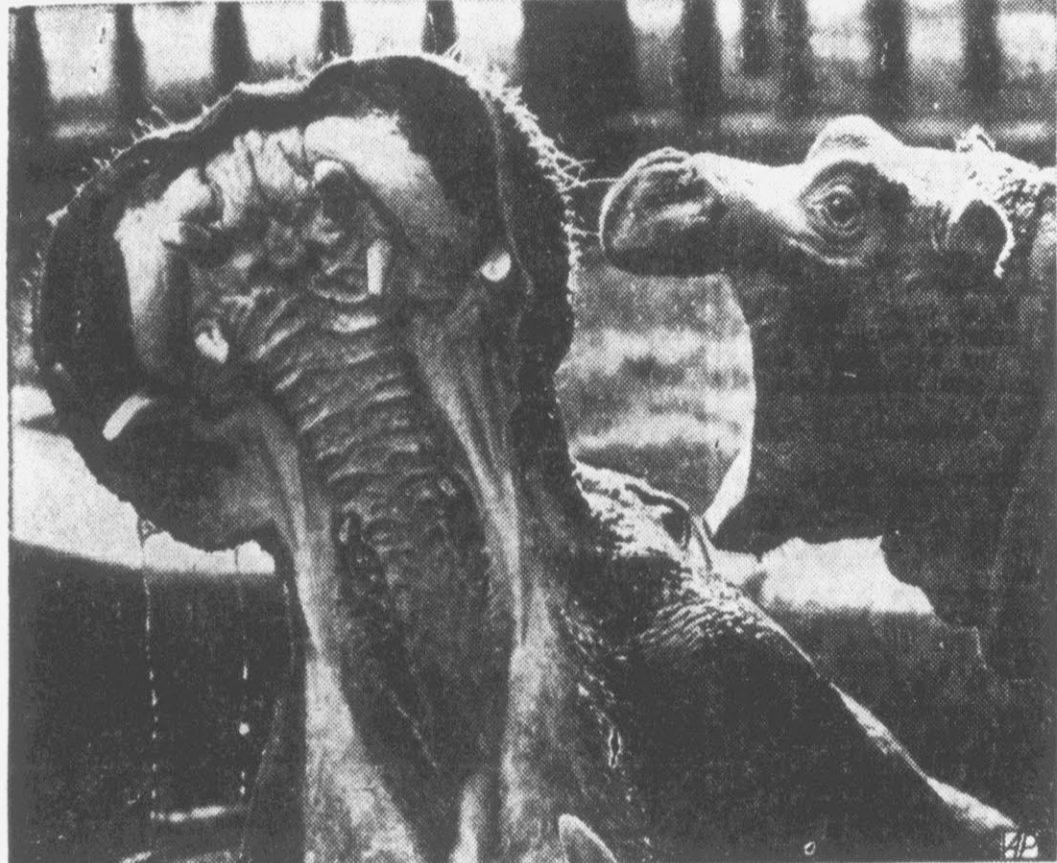

Sherry started the current campaign with St. Paul of the American Assn. and was not brought up by the Dodgers until mid-season. This time he was ready. He had not only sharpened his control but he had perfected a slider that was destined to help the Dodgers tremendously in the stretch run and in the World Series. At 24, Sherry has established himself as a great relief pitcher. Just watching him hustle in from the mound is confident of getting the job done in a hurry. He has the equipment and temperament to be around the big show for a long, long time.

Sherry didn't start life with any great prospects of becoming an athlete, much less a big league pitcher. He was born with two club feet and was forced to undergo surgery for six weeks. After that he wore special orthopedic shoes. Even when he went out for baseball at Fairfax High School in Los Angeles, Larry had to wear special baseball shoes with built-up arches. He started his career as an infielder but grew so fast that he soon became too big for the infield. It was then that his coach suggested that he try his hand at pitching.

RAILROAD FEATHERBEDDING:

$500,000,000 LOSS

TO THE NATION—INCLUDING YOU—EVERY YEAR

Featherbedding on the railroads — pay for work not done or not needed — is costing the American people the shocking total of more than $500,000,000 a year.

You pay for it every time you shop, because featherbedding costs are hidden in the price of everything you buy.

Obsolete union work rules, involving the railroad operating employees, are responsible for this gigantic burden. Right now, for instance, these rules require every diesel locomotive to carry a fireman—even though diesels have no fires to stoke, no boilers to tend.

The forthcoming negotiations between the railroads and the unions are urgently important to the whole nation.

In asking the unions to drop these featherbedding rules, all the railroads ask for is a fair day's work for a fair day's pay.

SHADOW OF GUILT

A NEW THRILLER by PATRICK QUENTIN

CHAPTER 29

My wife looked at me squarely and said, "If all this comes out about you and Eve Lord, Lew Parker isn't going to like it, is he? You know how stuffy he is about scandal. He's going to hit the ceiling. You don't suppose he'd fire you, do you?"

"Who knows?" I said. "Who cares?"

"Perhaps," she said, massaging cream on her face, "if I go to him and explain that'll help."

"Help!" I said. "The devil, Connie, do you think under the circumstances I expect help from you?"

"Why not?"

"Why not?" I was filled with rage, rage that came not just from that moment, but from the years in which I'd refused to admit there was any cause for rage. "Do you want to supervise the divorce, too? Do you want to turn it into another of your projects like this house, like Ala's marriage?"

She put down the jar of face cream and got up. The iciness of her control had melted. She was watching me with a sort of tormented bewilderment.

"What is it? I don't understand. You say you want a divorce—All right. I say you can have a divorce—and I hope you'll be happy and if I can help with Lew I'll help. What's wrong with that? All I ever try to do is the right thing. . . My projects, you say? My project of Ala's marriage? Did you want me to leave her rotting in that Richmond jail? Or to tell Chuck that my own daughter was a floozie when there was a good chance she'd simply got herself into a mess because she was young and silly?"

"And what do you mean about this house? Didn't you want to live in it? If you didn't, why didn't you tell me? If everything I do annoys you, why didn't you let me know? I could have changed . . ."

Suddenly there was rage in her too. "I could change! What am I saying? I've changed already. I've changed all right and see how you like it — you and Ala. You've both of you always done everything you wanted to. That's always been your philosophy. Go off, fall in love with your secretary, go off with any young man who gives you the opportunity. All right, let's go, it'll be a load of fun and if anything goes wrong, there's always Connie to pick up the pieces. Well, you can take care of yourselves from now on."

There was a knock at the door, a timid, tentative knock. Then the door opened and Ala came in. She was still in her pajamas. She closed the door behind her and took a step into the room, pausing on the edge of the carpet. The traces of tears were still on her face. She looked very small and taut.

"I'm sorry," she said. "That's why I've come to say I'm sorry. — I don't see how either of you can forgive me ever."

Her eyes moved to me. "And George, please tell Mrs. Lord how sorry I am too. I didn't have any right to say that."

She paused a moment, then impulsively she turned to Connie. "And that's not all. There's something else. You called me rotten and you're right. I can see now. I can see what a monster I've been to Chuck. When he thought he could help me by not talking, he risked his own neck just for me. And now . . . now when I could help him. . ."

She made a little gesture with her hand. "It's because I was scared. That's all. It was because I was so terribly scared and I'm scared now. But that doesn't matter. That's what I want to say. When the Lieutenant comes, I'm going to tell him everything."

"But I won't say anything about George and Mrs. Lord. I'll say I went to Don Saxby's apartment alone. I can explain about the drink on the shirt just as well as George. It won't make it any worse for me—and it'll be easier for you."

She wasn't looking at me. I wasn't in this, I knew. This was something far more basic, something between Connie and her.

"I wanted to tell you," she said, "because I know myself. I was afraid if I didn't commit myself, I might get cold feet. But it's all right now. I'm certain it is. I'm going to tell and maybe, once I've told, I—I may feel a bit more worthy of Chuck. And maybe, once I've told, you—you won't feel so bad about me either."

When anyone looks back on his life, he can almost always find a moment about which he can say, "There it was. That was when I grew up." And as I watched Ala, the pride blooming in me, I thought, it's happened. In the last few minutes, Ala's come of age.

Then suddenly Connie ran to Ala and took her in her arms.

"No," she said. "Ala, Ala dear, I can't let you. I can't think how I ever suggested it. I was mad. I was half out of my mind with worry about Chuck. We'll do something. We'll find some other way."

"There isn't any other way," said Ala. "Not for me. This is the only way I could ever have any respect for myself."

"But, Ala baby . . ."

"Don't worry, Connie. Please. I'll be all right. Honest, I will." Ala's arm was around Connie's shoulder. She was looking at her with a serene, almost maternal watchfulness. Reversing everything I'd ever thought was possible between them, it was Ala who was comforting Connie.

We were all three of us waiting in the library when Lieutenant Trant arrived.

In the first instant he came across the threshold, I saw a glimpse of someone being him, but all my attention was for Trant. His familiar smile was almost a beam.

"Good morning," he said. "For a change, I think you're going to be quite pleased to see me today."

He glanced over his shoulder. "Come on in," he called. He stepped aside, and, as he did so, Chuck hurried into the room.

For a moment we all stared. "Chuck!" gasped Ala. Connie took a quick step toward him.

"It's okay, Connie," he said. "Everything's fine. They've let me go."

He grinned at Trant, then he turned to Ala, the grin fading into a shy, tentative smile. "Hi, Ala." Trant took out a cigarette case. He opened it, selected a cigarette and tapped it on the case.

"As I told you last night, Mr. Hadley, it was all a question of the time of death. Right after I spoke to you. I went to see the woman who lives on Saxby's floor. She'd been away when I'd tried her before, but she'd come back. She was, in fact, just about to get in touch with me."

He lit the cigarette, watching us all with quiet benignity. "On Sunday she'd been right here in New York having lunch with friends. She got back to Fifty-fourth Street at exactly three-twenty-five. The taxi driver asked her the time when she paid the fare so she's quite positive of that. She passed his door on the way to her apartment."

"She knew Saxby well enough to recognize his voice and she heard him. She's perfectly sure of that, too. He was in the apartment talking very loudly as if he were quarreling with someone."

"She didn't hear any other voice because she was there only a second before she went down the hall to her own apartment. A few moments after she'd got there, she heard what she thought was backfiring in the street."

"As it turned out, the evidence is an exact as any evidence can be. Don Saxby was alive at three-twenty-five and he was shot at three-thirty. By three-thirty, Chuck had been at The Red Bear for almost an hour."

Thanks to this staggering piece of good fortune, there was no need for Ala's great gesture after all. We were all right. Miraculously, we had been saved. But again the question loomed in my mind: Who killed Don Saxby?

"Connie's face had gone waxy. I stood waiting for the blow. I knew Trant well enough by then to be sure there would be one . . ."

George's narrative continues here tomorrow.

The ancient Etruscans of Italy gave equal status to their women, a philosophy the ancient Romans considered barbaric.

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Once upon a time, says State Prison Warden Harold V. Langlois, he gave inmates ballpoint pens for Christmas presents.

But no more, Langlois said at a hearing Friday. He became disillusioned after some prisoners pulled the pens apart, inserted match heads and used them as small incendiary bombs.

Auto Fleet Leasing Is Rising Business Factor

By SAM DAWSON
 NEW YORK (AP) — Auto fleet leasing—one of the more controversial subjects tackled in many directors' boardrooms—is steadily creeping up on the other methods of providing transportation for company personnel.

About a fourth of the cars now used in industry are leased, an equal percentage are company owned, and roughly half are owned by salesmen themselves.

The rapid climb in leasing since World War II is credited largely to corporate desire to free working capital for other purposes. And inflation has played a major role, since it takes more working capital now to carry an equal amount of higher priced goods and materials and steadily increasing production costs.

A study of car leasing (nothing to do with truck leasing) by the Foundation for Management Research of Chicago stresses that each concern must decide whether leasing autos is better than owning its own fleet or giving salesmen mileage allowances.

The Foundation predicts that in time leased fleets will displace most company owned fleets and about half of salesman-owned cars.

The American Automotive Leasing Assn. puts the value of leased fleets at 575 million dollars. It says this frees that amount of working capital for other uses. Fleets range from five cars to 2,000.

The Foundation's study indicates that a company whose working capital earns at least 12 percent before taxes or about 3 1/2 percent net profit on working capital after corporate income taxes could find it profitable to lease rather than own its auto fleet. If it earns less than 12 percent on working capital, leasing is rarely worthwhile.

Other situations in which leasing lacks appeal, the Foundation reports, are companies who have all the working capital and short and long term credit they need; companies with low mileage fleets—say 12,000 miles a year—if mileage payments to salesmen are under 10 cents a mile; companies whose door-to-door salesmen are paid for use of their cars.

On the basis of inspection of individual company records covering 29,254 cars and interviews with 2,076 salesmen using their own cars on a mileage payment, the Foundation says that almost no company pays less than seven cents a mile.

"As soon as the annual mileage goes above 17,000 miles at 9 cents a mile, or 18,000 miles at 8 cents a mile, or 23,000 miles at 7 cents a mile, the cost to the company for a salesman owned car is greater than a leased car," says the report.

One big auto fleet leasing company, Wheels Inc. of Chicago, reports keeping records on mileage payments to salesmen for all industry which show for last year an average of 8.91 cents per mile on an average 25,600 miles a year—or $2,230.96 per car per year.

Frats Pledged Five From Pitt

CHAPEL HILL—Five Pitt County students at the University of North Carolina are included in a total of 335 men who have pledged campus fraternities, according to announcements coming at the close of the UNC's annual "Rush Week."

Four Greenville natives pledged during the week of activities in which all 26 of the campus' social fraternities took part. They are: Clyde T. Mallison (Chi Psi), Donald Morris Wilkerson (Phi Gamma Delta), Louis C. Arthur and Joseph Sidney Moye, Jr. (Sigma Nu).

Among Officers In UNC Class

A Greenville student was included in a recent announcement listing new class officers and representatives to the Medical School Honor Council at the University of North Carolina School of Medicine for the second, third and fourth year classes.

Harry W. Scott was named secretary of the second year class. Other officers in that class are Karl L. Barkley, Raleigh, president; John D. Marriott, Battleboro, vice president; and Charles M. Hicks, Wilmington, treasurer.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market slumped sharply today as hopes crumbled for a prompt settlement of the steel strike. Trading was fairly active early this afternoon.

Pivotal stocks showed losses of fractions to about 2 points. Leading issues pared their worst losses, which went to 3 points or more early in the session.

The over-all loss, while severe, erased only about half the gains made in Friday's rally which was based on surging hopes that steelworkers would be on their way back to the mills this morning.

Steels, rails and motors were the worst sufferers. Coppers, rubbers, electronics, aircrafts, airlines and most chemicals also were lower.

Losses of more than a point were shown by Republic Steel, Baltimore & Ohio, Southern Pacific, Kennecott, Reynolds Metals and Douglas Aircraft.

Goodrich was down more than 2. American Cyanamid, New York Central and Pennsylvania Railroad showed losses of about a point.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was down $1 to $223.90 with the industrials down $1, therapeutics down $1.60 and the utilities down 20 cents.

Corporate bonds were mostly higher.

U.S. government bonds advanced in quiet dealings over the counter.

Car Tipped Over On Hitting Guy Wire

RARE MISHAP . . . Only very minor scratches resulted to this car when it struck a utilities pole guy wire and flipped over on its side at 11th and Evans St. yesterday afternoon.

An unusual wreck, according to investigating officers, occurred at the intersection of 11th and Evans Sts. yesterday afternoon.

Police said a car operated by Harold Spencer Roberts, 17, of 1121 Evans St. was headed East on 11th and made a right turn onto Evans St. Roberts told officers that he could not straighten the car out after rounding the corner.

Investigators said the vehicle struck a guy wire from a utilities pole on the park-strip and, after going partway up the cable, overturned, causing only very minor damage to the vehicle. No damage was evident, officers stated, to the left side of the car which was against the pavement and only slight damage resulted to the bumper which hit the guy wire. No charges were placed by officers.

Books & Stuff

By DR. ED HIRSHBERG

Many of you probably have read some items about the underpublicized attempt of four men to stop nuclear bomb testing by sailing into the remote Pacific in a 30-foot ketch. Their story has now come out in a book by one of the sailors, Albert Bigelow, called "The Voyage of the Golden Rule." Worried because mankind didn't seem to have any voice to protest against the barbarism of the testing, Captain Bigelow describes the idea behind the attempt to stop it as "A white sail, a tiny speck in the vast blue Pacific, moving westward . . . persistently, slowly, day after day, week after week, on and into the bomb explosion area . . . would blow the horrid deed in every eye. The act would speak louder than words." We hope it did . . .

Billie's Nose

Some time back actress Billie Burke came out with her autobiography, WITH A FEATHER ON MY NOSE, which sold very well. She's just — at 73 — written another book, containing her advice on how she has kept beautiful and fascinating all these years, called WITH POWDER ON MY NOSE. As an example of the kind of counsel she has to offer, here's what she has to say about how to avoid divorce: "Always look accessible, morning, noon, and night . . . one of the main reasons for divorce is . . . sloppy women. Men will stick to fat ones, skinny ones, old ones and forked-tongued ones. We all know that. But they won't cling to gals who are messy." And on growing old: "A woman past forty should make up her mind to be young, not her face."

Believes War Is To Be Avoided

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — A third world war will be averted because leaders of both the United States and the Soviet Union realize the destruction it would cause, Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther says.

"I include Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev among those who realize this," the retired Army general, who now heads the American Red Cross, said in an interview Sunday.

The lessened danger of a hot war, Gruenther said, does not mean the U.S. and the Soviet Union have solved — or can solve — their cold war differences. But he said he thought the exchange of visits between President Eisenhower and Khrushchev would ease the situation.
