Newsman Urged 'Sell' Education

ECC dean and vice president Leo W. Jenkins last night called upon Eastern Carolina newsmen to form a partnership with education.

Dr. Jenkins was speaking at the fall meeting of the Eastern North Carolina Press Association held here yesterday and this morning.

The college dean called for a "fifth estate" — a partnership between education and the press.

As members of the partnership the newspapers should do three things, Dr. Jenkins said.

They should "inspire, sell and explain."

"You ought to instill in us, if you can, a divine discontentment. I think you can do it because I think you have sold the people on Russian education."

"How about selling the people on American education?" he asked.

Dr. Jenkins defended the American system of teaching its youth.

"We educate everybody. They do not," he said in referring to the Soviet system.

"Show me one town in Russia where 67 percent of the young people go to college and pursue the careers of their choice. It's not there."

Earlier, Dr. Jenkins had pointed out that 67 percent of the graduates from Greenville schools attended college.

"The majority of the people don't know this," he declared. "It's your job and our job to tell them of this."

"Let us as partners play up the

More Leaflets Shower Havana; U.S. Is Blamed

HAVANA (AP) — Mysterious planes slipped past Cuban air force patrols and showered Havana with more antigovernment leaflets Friday.

The raids were the latest in a series that began Wednesday—a day that brought the most violent show of opposition to Fidel Castro since he took over the Cuban government New Year's Day.

Castro charged that revolutionary planes based in the United States "carried out the raids. He denounced U. S. authorities for failing to halt them."

He is expected to take quick advantage of a U. S. Federal Bureau of Investigation report Friday that former Cuban revolutionary air force chief Pedro Diaz Lanz admitted flying a leaflet plane over Havana Wednesday.

The disclosure is expected to bring new and stronger demands from Castro that Washington take action against Cuban refugees in the United States wanted by his government for trial as war criminals.

Diaz Lanz, now living in Miami, Fla., fled Cuba last July. He charged that Castro is a Communist and his regime is riddled with Reds.

Maj. Hubert Matos, the military commander in Camaguey province, again raised the issue of Communist infiltration in resigning this week.

The scholarly, 40-year-old Matos, who fought with Castro in the mountains, was arrested and denounced as a traitor by his old friend.

Matos and 30 junior officers who resigned with him reportedly are being held at an army prison near here. There was no report on whether he had been formally arraigned on the treason charge.

Matos' wife publicly denounced Castro Friday for "the bluish you have tried to place on my husband's name."

In a letter to Castro, published by three Havana independent newspapers, the mother of four declared:

"We (the Cuban people) believe you are capable of ordering him (Matos) killed and then claiming he committed suicide. After this, Dr. Castro, arrest me, kill me or ignore me or do what you consider most intelligent, because about you I don't doubt anything."

Diaz Lanz also maintained that Matos' life is in danger. "I have information from Cuba that they want to kill him," he told reporters in Miami Friday. "No one has been able to hear what Matos has to say."

In denouncing Matos, Castro linked him with Diaz Lanz and Manuel Urrutia, whom the revolutionary leader ousted as president.

Shock, Dismay On Campus Over Messick Action

By KATHRYN JOHNSON
Editor, East Carolinian

As news of Dr. John D. Messick's resignation spread over campus, students expressed shock and sadness.

"The announcement was quite a shock. The accomplishments which have been made at this college under Dr. Messick are obvious and will remain with us as permanent reminders of a job well done," Mike Katsias, former student government president.

"It's the worst thing that could happen to this school. He's the smartest man that's ever been here," Junior, Jerry Van Dyke.

"I'm shocked. He has done a lot for the school," Hugh Agee, graduate student.

"An era of great progress for the school as an institution has passed. We can never, as students, acknowledge or appreciate fully what Dr. Messick has meant to us," Charles Dyson, student government treasurer.

"I was just disappointed. I never thought he'd do it," Harold Briley, graduate student.

"I just hate to see him leave," Ida Sue Jackson, freshman.

"His friendly smile and willingness to stop and listen will certainly be missed," Evelyn Crutchfield, member Woman's Judiciary.

"We'll miss Dr. Messick and he'll be hard to replace. I hope that a liberal person will take his place," Bobby Smith.

"When I heard it, I really felt as if something had knocked me off my feet, it was such a shock. Right away I thought of all the things he has done for us just in the three years that I have been on campus," Betty Maynor, Library Club president.

"I'd like to see everybody at the college send him a letter or go to see him to attempt to show him our appreciation and even try to get him to change his mind. His resignation will cause a great loss to the college and the students," John Savage, senior.

"I was shocked when I heard that he was going to resign. I believe that Dr. Messick will be missed much more than the students believe at the present time," Pat Harvey, associate editor of the campus newspaper, the East Carolinian.

"I'm very sorry to see him go. I think he has done a lot for East Carolina College," Jim Trice, member student government.

Warns Aroused Citizens Can Act

RALEIGH (AP) — If the legal profession doesn't take the lead in improving the courts, aroused citizens may take over the job on their own.

This was the warning given Friday by Superior Court Judge Rudolph I. Mintz to the 26th annual meeting of the State Bar.

Judge Mintz, the freshman on the Superior Court bench, said lawyers themselves might be the ones to suffer if reforms are brought about by outside pressures.

Solicitor John J. Burney Jr., like Mintz a Wilmington resident, called for steps to clean up the justice of the peace system. He suggested legislation for appointment of all justices of the peace by Superior Court judges, after screening by special lawyer committees. Magistrates also should be placed on a salary, he asserted, and taken off a fee basis.

Armistead Maupin of Raleigh took over presidency of the bar from John C. Chesborough of Asheville. R. P. Reade of Durham was elevated to first vice president, and Bryan Grimes of Washington was named second vice president.

SEOUL, Korea (AP) — Fire roared through a refugee center in congested Pusan Friday, destroying 320 wooden shelters and making 1,500 persons homeless. No casualties were reported.

Stories 'Revised' By Quiz Winners

NEW YORK (AP)—Charles Van Doren and Hank Bloomgarden, two top money winners, have revised their original statements about the television quiz show "Twenty-One."

Both men showed up voluntarily but separately at Dist. Atty. Frank S. Hogan's office Friday. Hogan said the changes they made were "substantial" but declined to specify just what they were.

Hogan said the possibility of perjury action is being considered but that nothing would be done until after Van Doren appears Nov. 2 in Washington before a House subcommittee investigating TV quiz shows.

Van Doren, 33-year-old English instructor at Columbia University who won $129,000 on "Twenty-One," appeared first at Hogan's office with his attorney, Carl J. Rubino. He spent about an hour with Asst. Dist. Atty. Joseph Stone, who had investigated the rigging of quiz shows. Then he talked several minutes with Hogan.

As he left Hogan's office, Van Doren appeared upset.

"I'm in a hurry," he told newsmen. "I have classes. I can't say anything at this time."

Hogan then met with newsmen. "I'm not free to tell you whether he admitted receiving questions and answers because the matter is now before a congressional committee," Hogan said.

About three hours later, Bloomgarden, a 30-year-old public relations consultant who won $98,500 on the show, appeared at Hogan's office. He said he was there to sign and read a statement he had given Oct. 5 to amplify an earlier statement about the program. Hogan said Bloomgarden's case was "quite similar" to Van Doren's.

Messick Resignation Accepted By Trustees; Board Regretful

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector City Editor

When the State Legislature met earlier this year, East Carolina College president Dr. John D. Messick went up with requests for $6,000,000 in capital investments. He came away with less than $300,000 actually approved—plus the promise of $1,490,000 in the upcoming bond issue.

"I was sick at heart," Dr. Messick told the college board of trustees yesterday in presenting his resignation. "I've been sick at heart ever since."

The president appeared almost dejected as a man of his calibre will allow himself to be—as he frankly discussed problems of obtaining sufficient funds for his bursting-at-the-seams institution.

The trustees accepted his resignation regretfully. It is effective Jan. 6.

"Every year when the Legislature is in session the pressures are terrific," Dr. Messick continued. "In February I concluded that I should make a change."

He expressed the same sentiments in the prepared letter of resignation which he read to the trustees.

"I doubt that any other college president could have been more fortunate than I have been for the past 12 years in having the loyal cooperation of almost everyone involved in the on-going program of East Carolina."

"Not everything, however, has always been satisfying. There have been times when it was impossible to obtain sufficient appropriations with which to meet our needs, and pressures caused by this have at times lessened the effectiveness of the program of the college. It has also motivated a desire on my part for a position with less frustration but with a wider area of interest."

Dr. Messick made it plain he was not completely severing his ties with the college and Greenville.

"We are not divorcing ourselves from you. We are just removing ourselves for a little while."

The resigning president paid tribute to faculty members, students, alumni and trustees for their cooperation over his 12-year tenure of office.

There was an outpouring of regrets from trustees as Dr. Messick completed his statement.

"This comes as a shock to me," said Carl Goerch. "I don't know of anybody in the education field who has done more, as the figures bear out."

He referred to the record of the college's growth which Dr. Messick had summarized prior to submitting his resignation.

"This is a terrific loss to the college and North Carolina as a whole. I know our board will pass some kind of resolution to let our president know just how we feel."

James Whitfield told the president, "I had the pleasure of coming to your inauguration.

"I've never seen one degree of devaluation in your duty. God willing, I wish you all success."

Henry Belk of Goldsboro said, "I know everybody here has the same sadness of heart that I do."

C. J. Larkins of Kinston told the president, "The college will certainly miss you. The state of North Carolina will miss you. I wish you lots of luck."

Robert Morgan told his fellow trustees, "If there were any possibility of persuading Dr. Messick to change his mind I'm sure this board would not accept his resignation."

However, he said he had discussed it with him earlier and "I'm sure nothing we could do would change his mind."

Henry Oglesby said, "I was surprised, shocked and very disappointed with this news. I never had the opportunity to work with any president who has done so much in such a short time."

Belk made the motion to accept the resignation. "It is with deep regret that I move we accept this resignation."

"With the same deep regret I second it," Larkins said.

The motion passed without

'Grave Anxiety' Over Borders

MEERUT, India (AP) — Prime Minister Nehru said today the situation with Communist China over India's northern borders is causing grave anxiety.

He called on the people to remain calm and not be swept away by emotion.

"The situation has caused and is continuing to cause grave anxiety," Nehru said. "But I do not say there will be war with China on this issue."

He was answering questions put by reporters while touring this city.

Tobacco Sales Just About Over

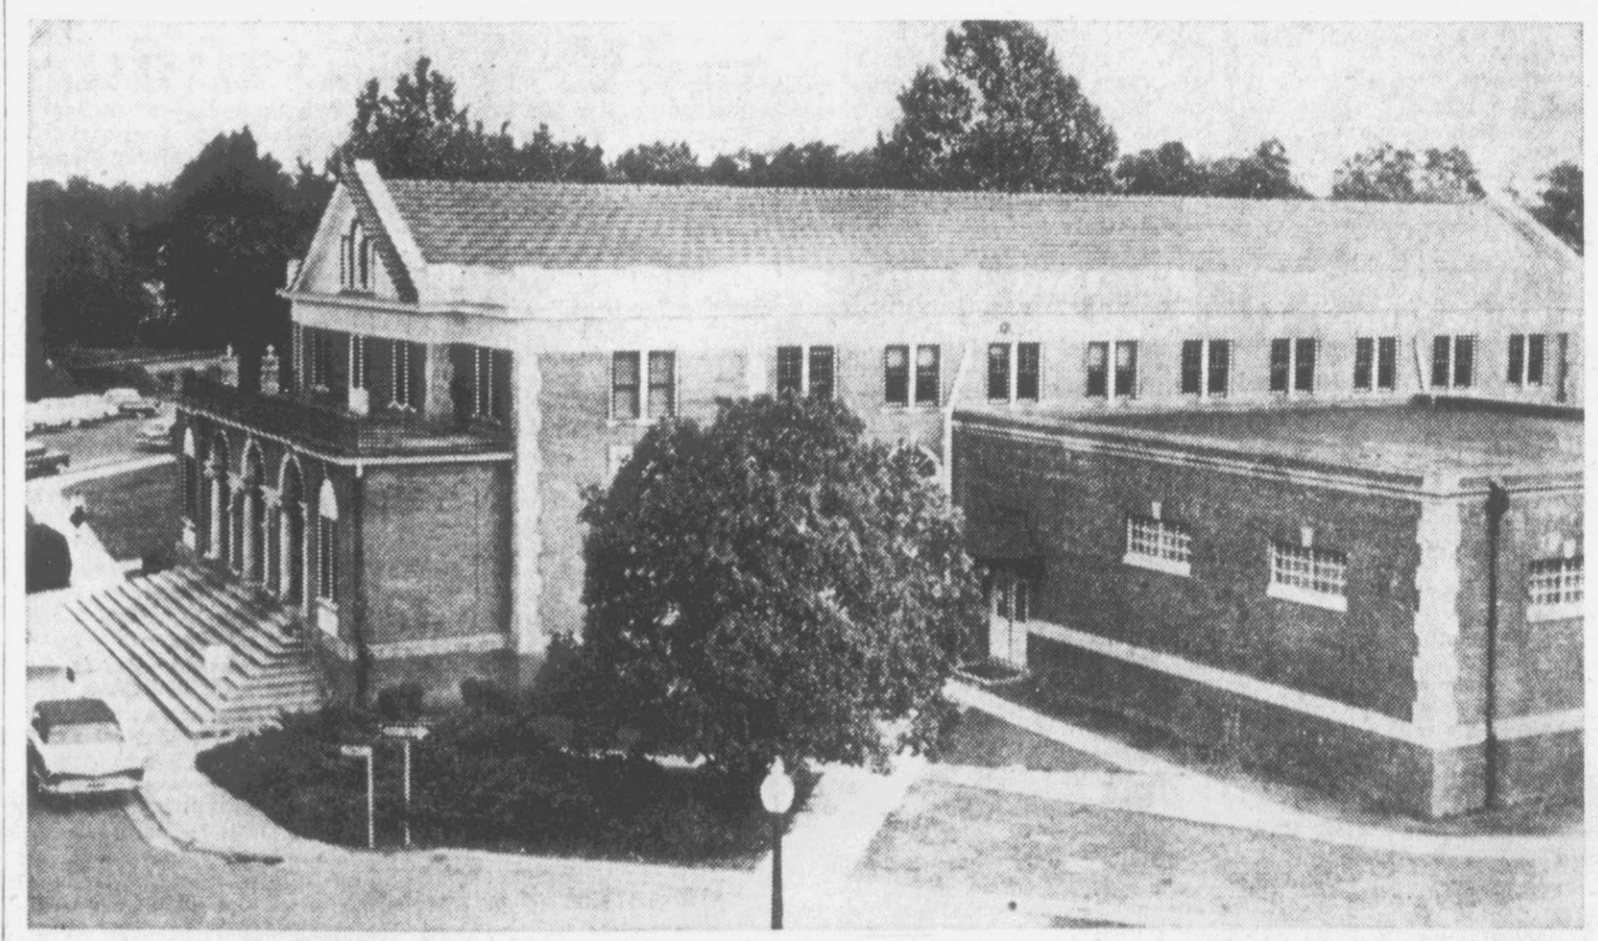

Yesterday the Greenville Tobacco Market completed its 48th sale day of the 1959 season. Sales for the day were 213,454 pounds for $94,936.87, average $44.48. The majority of the offerings were low and medium quality tobacco together with a substantial amount of scrapings and "tail endings" as farmers in this area completed the sales of their entire crops.

The Greenville Tobacco Market will remain open through October 27, which is Tuesday of next week, when it will hold its final sale.

Sales for this week (5 days) are 816,594 pounds for $389,811.03, average $47.74.

Sales for the season to date are 46,796,168 pounds for $26,639,993.39, average $56.93.

ECC Building Named To Honor Publisher

DAVID J. WHICHARD, JR. MUSIC BUILDING . . . named for Daily Reflector publisher yesterday by college board of trustees.

East Carolina College's Music Building was named the David J. Whichard Jr. building yesterday by the college's board of trustees.

The building was named in honor of the Daily Reflector's publisher.

Herbert Waldrop of Greenville was elected permanent chairman of the board of trustees at yesterday's meeting. Waldrop has been serving as temporary chairman since Arthur Tyler of Rocky Mount went off the board earlier this year.

Board members also approved a resolution calling for the purchase of 37 acres of land adjacent to the new section of the college campus south of 14th St.

Business Manager F. D. Duncan told the trustees the land could be purchased for $3,400 per acre from its owners, Marvin Blount, Hoover Taft and Tom Rivers.

The tract is bounded on the south by the Norfolk and Southern railroad tracks, on the east by the college spur tracks and on the north by 14th St.

Purchase of the land will give an entrance to the new section of property from 14th St.

The David J. Whichard Jr. Music Building was the college library until the new Joyner Library was opened. Then it was converted to use by the Music Department.

A wing was completed for the building in 1955 containing a band, orchestra and choral auditorium. A second annex was completed this summer.

Because of the rapidly growing number of students in the department and the expansion of its work another addition will be requested at the next General Assembly.

The Music Department had 25 graduates last spring and there are 136 students majoring in the department plus a large number minorng in music.

The college band, orchestra, chorus and a number of other choral organizations along with several small vocal and instrumental groups make use of the building.

A number of workshops and conference for Eastern North Carolina and the state as a whole are conducted by the Music Department each year.

The department is recognized as one of the best music departments in the state. Earl Beach is its chairman.

ECC's resigning president Dr.

John D. Messick, proposed that the building be named after Whichard at yesterday's meeting.

He asked that it be done "in recognition of what Mr. Whichard and his paper have done and are doing and will continue to do."

Dr. Messick described the paper as "a marvelous medium of communication."

Chairman Waldrop told the trustees that he had known Whichard for a long time.

"I think he is worthy of being honored in this manner."

The trustees were told the Whichard keeps four day students in school constantly through scholarships.

Waldrop, the new chairman, is president of the Guaranty Bank and Trust Co. in Greenville. He is an alumnus of ECC and has been

Candy Sale In Progress A Day Apart

Four Jay-C-Ettes will appear on the television program "Hospitality House" Monday afternoon to inform the public of the many purposes of the club's annual project, the selling of caramel and fudge candy.

They are Mrs. Bagger Clark, Mrs. Phil Moore, Mrs. Walter Hasty, and Mrs. Franklin Brown.

The project is divided into various phases. Candy is sold in the local warehouses, in the fringe area, downtown, and in the house-to-house canvass. Tuesday and Wednesday evenings have been chosen as the house-to-house campaign.

Annually, the Jay-C-Ettes stage the sale of caramel and fudge candy for the purpose of building the "Jay-C-Ette Aid To The Crippled Fund" for the use of Pitt County.

the crippled, with the exception of the club's expenses of the sale, through the above fund.

Transportation expenses to Duke Hospital and Chapel Hill Hospital for treatment of the underprivileged crippled, the purchase of crutches, braces, wheel chairs, and diet supplement for needy cases as recommended by Clinic doctors are only a few of the purposes for which the money is raised.

One or more crippled children are sent to summer camp each summer out of the fund and a party held for all of the crippled attending the camp each year.

The Greenville Jay-C-Ettes also furnish milk and cookies, which two volunteer members serve at the Clinic for the Crippled held at the Pitt County Health Clinic once each month.

Any crippled person desiring and needing assistance through this fund should contact Dr. Thomas B. Dameron, through the Pitt County Health Clinic.

To Be Observed

Mrs. Robert Jerome, a Spiritual Life leader in the North Carolina Conference of the Woman's Society of Christian Service, will be the guest speaker at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church Monday, October 26, from 10:30 to 2:30 p.m. as the W.S.C.S. observes "A Day Apart."

All women of the city and surrounding area are invited to attend this very special day, planned by Mrs. J. H. Waldrop, chairman of the Spiritual Life Committee of the W.S.C.S.

The services will begin at 10:30 in the Chapel with Miss Mamie Chandler, leader, and Mrs. Georgia P. Hearne, organist. Each woman is asked to bring a sandwich. Coffee will be served in the Ladies Parlor when the meal is observed.

Mrs. Jerome will lead the afternoon discussion in the Ladies Parlor, closing the meeting at 2:30.

Fall, Winter Vegetables In Abundance On Market

RALEIGH—Homemakers will find an increase in fall and winter vegetables on the market this weekend.

According to Mrs. Ruby P. Uzzie, consumer marketing specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service, sweet potato harvest is in full swing and they should be used often in menu planning. Lettuce, cauliflower, cucumbers, and carrots are being shipped in from other states. Local greens available are turnips, spinach and kale.

Budget-wise food shoppers want to include plenty of poultry products in their weekend meal plans. Medium eggs continue to be the most economical egg buy. Fryers and hens continue to be "bargains" at the poultry counter.

Pork continues to lead in red meat choices. There are many specials due to seasonal peak of hog marketings. Bacon, ham, and chop prices are still on the down-trend. Some markets will feature specials on roasts and steaks. Consider fish for variety and top food value.

Apples are plentiful now and price varies according to grade, quality and variety. Fresh, bright red cranberries are available at reasonable prices. A bumper crop of avocados is expected from California and Florida. Emperor and Concord are best grape buys. Grapefruit quality is improving

Miss Chandler Talks To Dept.

Mamie Chandler, director of the Methodist Student Center, was the speaker at the American Home Dept. covered dish luncheon at the Woman's Club.

Miss Chandler told the group to rest and pray. In this world of rush, hurry and confusion, "we must stop, take time for God; He must not be lost in this age of space." Where is God? she asked.

Mrs. H. R. Rogers conducted a short business meeting after the luncheon. She recognized and greeted the guests.

Mrs. Ed Ricks thanked the co-hostesses, Mrs. N. L. Garrison, Mrs. J. B. Smith, Mrs. J. Piver, Mrs. S. R. Brooks and Mrs. Ed Barnhill.

Buffet Menu

Sunday afternoon between the hours of 5:30 and 7:00 o'clock the Moose will serve their buffet supper.

The menu will include Southern fried chicken, barbecued spareribs, cold cuts, steamed cabbage, potato salad, ham salad, green peas and other dinner accompaniments.

Practice Easier Ironing Methods

RALEIGH—Are you tired, feeling low, or run down from the drudgery of ironing? Why not try easier ironing methods.

According to Miss Mamie Whisnant, home management specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service, ironing methods and habits vary with individuals and will have a great deal to do with problems of making the total job of ironing easier. It takes practice to learn a new skill. You should be willing to study and practice easier ways of ironing.

Yancey County recently featured an exhibit at N. C. State Fair on "Take The Drudgery Out Of Ironing." The exhibit showed advances that have been made in Teen Query: To Kiss Or Not To Kiss?

SHOULD A GIRL KISS on a first date? That's always a big problem when it becomes an issue, as this letter indicates:

"I dated a boy that I had known casually for a long time. He seemed disappointed that I did not kiss him when he brought me home. Was this a mistake? Do you think he will call me for another date?" a 17-year-old asks.

It was not a mistake to refuse to kiss him, if that is the way you felt. If the kiss were meant in an affectionate fashion only, there would have been nothing wrong with it, since you have known the boy for some time.

Many boys are likely to have pent-up emotions about a date such as this, however, particularly if they have been waiting a long time for it, and they may reflect this desire in a fashion that fairly devours the girl. In that case, it is wise to stave off a kiss. There are boys who have been catered to by their families for so long that they are likely to be miffed at any refusal of their whims, so it is hard to tell, without knowing the boy, whether he will call you again.

When to Marry

"Is there any special age when a girl is right for marriage?" asks another girl. "I am 18, and my parents say I am much too young to become engaged. I am dating a lovely boy, but I am afraid he will not wait if my parents do not say that we can be married within the year."

People are ready for marriage when they are emotionally mature and can support themselves. Your parents may be taking either of those factors into consideration. They should give you a fair reason for asking you to wait. The boy should certainly wait for you, if he loves you, and if he is anxious to settle down with good intentions about supporting you. He should be able to convince your parents that he can do that.

Sister's Lament

"Do you think sisters should be made to dress alike?" writes a clothes-conscious miss. "My mother likes to pretend that we are twins, and she has been doing this since we were babies. I am 15 and my sister is 16. It is very embarrassing when we go out on a date as it makes us look old-fashioned. We seem hopelessly out of step."

It does seem odd that your mother has this peculiar yen to dress you alike, and especially now when it would seem that you are old enough to break away from this act. Maybe you can do it gradually by planning different recreations that require different

Salad Bowl
Fruit
Hard Rolls
Beverage

BEAN-STUFFED TOMATOES AND BACON

Ingredients: 6 large tomatoes (about 2 ounces), salt, pepper, 1 can (1 pound) pork and beans with tomato sauce, 2 slices bacon.

Method: Cut a thin slice from the top of each washed tomato. Cut out centers in plug shape; scoop out seeds with teaspoon or fingers. Turn upside down to drain. Sprinkle insides of tomatoes lightly with salt and pepper. Fill tomatoes with beans. Cut each bacon slice crosswise into 3 pieces; place a piece on top of each stuffed tomato. Bake in shallow pan in hot (400 degrees) oven about 20 minutes or until hot through; bacon should be lightly browned. Watch like a hawk to make sure no tomato caves in. Makes 6 servings.

SUNDAY SUPPER

Students Take Aptitude Test

By CRAIG WORTHINGTON

Students from 12,000 different high schools of the United States took "The Preliminary Scholastic Test" Tuesday along with 139 Rose High students. Under the direction of English adviser George S. McRorie, 137 juniors and two seniors wrote this test.

This test replaces the "Scholarship Qualifying Test" which past students have taken. Many organizations require that students take this test. The National Honor Society will not induct a person unless he has taken this preliminary aptitude test.

The juniors will hear from this test within five weeks. Teachers use these results for guidance purposes. The test also serves as a "warm-up test" for the college entrance examinations.

Faculty Grants Privileges

Rose high faculty this week granted the seniors four privileges. The seniors may have special tables in the cafeteria. They may also sit in front of the building at lunchtime. Seniors may leave the auditorium first. This year, seniors may attend high school day of one of North Carolina's "Big 4" colleges.

Game Postponed

Because of the rain, the game scheduled here last night between the Phantoms of Rose high and the Bears of New Bern was postponed. The game will be played tonight at 8:00 in the East Carolina College Stadium.

Group Attends Institute

Seven delegates from Rose high school last Saturday attended the eighteenth annual North Carolina Scholastic Press Institute.

Vicky Avery and Jeanette Taylor represented "Tau" while Craig Worthington, Barbara Brooks, Gigi Guice, Jimmy Eatmon, and Mrs. Lucy Worsley represented "The Green Lights".

After registering at 8:30 a.m., the group viewed displays of newspapers, annuals, and many interesting and helpful pamphlets. After the opening session in Gerrard Hall, students heard discussions on topics including "The Role of Photography in School Publications," "Producing the Modern High School Annual," and "How to Make a High School Paper Readable."

After lunch, representatives from the 43 schools attending elected officers. By defeating two other candidates, Craig Worthington, editor-in-chief of "The Green Lights", was elected the new state treasurer.

At the banquet that evening, Walter Spearman, director of the Institute, introduced the new officers. "The Carolina Gentlemen", a quartet, entertained, after which W. C. Burton, actor, columnist, reporter, gave a talk on newspaper careers.

Church Host To Association

BETHEL—Tuesday the Bethel Baptist Church was host to an all-day meeting of the South Roanoke Association. Approximately 200 people attended the session.

The following day the second session of the association was held in the Williamston Baptist Church. Those from Bethel who attended this meeting were Rev. and Mrs. T. N. Cooper, Mrs. J. P. Harris, Mrs. P. E. Price, Mrs. E. L. Mayo, Mrs. J. E. Hammond, Mr. and Mrs. Willie Barnhill and Mrs. C. E. Brown.

Rev. and Mrs. L. D. Holt of Raleigh attended the Association in Bethel; Mr. Holt, as representative of The Biblical Recorder, was pastor of the Bethel church 15 years ago and is now pastor of the Emmanuel Baptist Church in Raleigh.

How Much Do You Know About UN Countries?

RALEIGH—How much do you know about the countries which are members of the United Nations Haywood County Home Demonstration members are studying different countries each year.

Recently at the Fall Achievement Day Program, each club set up an exhibit depicting customs of the country studied. Many pen-pals have resulted from this study which is strengthening the international relations program in the county.

According to Miss Mary Cornwell, home economics agent, each club selects a country to study at the spring council meeting. Throughout the year each club searches for something different about their country.

Each club also has an exhibit on subjects studied at their home Demonstration meetings during the year or on special interest meetings.

The 25 clubs keep a permanent record of their activities in a Historical Book. The books, international exhibits, and subject matter exhibits are judged at the Achievement Day Program. This year Radcliff Club won the tri-color award based on achieving the highest score on all three exhibits.

Approximately 2,000 persons visited the exhibits during the two days which they were shown recently. This year Mrs. Harry McCracken of the Waynesville Homemakers Club served as chairman of the Achievement Day Program which was a delightful, educational event.

Floor Lamps Go To New Heights

By VIVIAN BROWN

AP Newsfeatures Writer

FLOOR LAMPS have come high hat to keep pace with modern trends in decorating. There are room divider lamps that take their design cue from the popular pole lamps, overhead domes that resemble chandeliers, and tall cylinders of plastic in wood frames that permit complete lighting from ceiling to floor.

The room divider lamps are supported by two or more poles that clamp to the floor and ceiling. A variety of gimmicks accompany this basic idea. There are open shelves, desk tops, drawers and filigreed or lattice style connections between poles. Two or three lights are likely to decorate the support poles.

Portable overhead lighting offered by the chandelier type fixtures requires no electrical installation, even though the lights hang from the upper part of the shaft close to the ceiling. The pole plugs into an outlet like any other portable lamp, and may be moved anywhere in the house.

The column of light is one of the newest ideas in standing lamps with popular units about 72 inches tall. A tapered walnut frame is likely to hold a tall plastic cylinder equipped for two 150-watt bulbs. The units may glow all over or upper and lower sections may be turned on separately.

A First-Class Citizen Is Leaving

So what can one say when a man like John D. Messick decides to leave town?

In essence, that's part of the scheme of things involved when he announced his resignation at East Carolina College. He's bound to be taking up residence elsewhere; and he'll be missed on many local fronts. True, the college president is widely known at home and across considerable mileage North, East, South and West as an educator; but we at home know him to be a first-class Pitt County citizen. Active and prominent in any number of roles outside his chosen sphere.

Inevitably, for many years to come, the Messick name will be linked to the period of greatest growth for East Carolina College. Part of this was due to the tremendous wave of desire for higher education that swept America in the years following World War II. In later years we knew "our college" was fortunate beyond measure that a leadership was found to help a small teacher's college ride the crest of that wave.

The Messick efforts to cope with needs of higher education demands in the eastern counties of North Carolina began almost with his installation as college president. In the months and years that followed there was a notable air of continuous building on the campus. An expanding not only of the physical plant, but a building of a staff and faculty that might serve, and serve well, the needs of a growing student body.

In his statement of resignation to the Board of Trustees yesterday, Dr. Messick noted that difficulties in obtaining needed appropriations posed one of the frustrations encountered during the past 12 years. That we can understand.

At the same time, however, a look at the record should prove ECC's record in dealing with the Legislature has been marked by the same sure touch of success as in any other field. The annual operating budget has increased from $1,028,960 to $3,666,850. And should next week's bond issue be approved, the college will have spent or had approved something close to $12 millions for capital improvements during the past twelve years.

Aside from a continuing role in area, state and national education activities, the good man has found time to serve a wide field of more local services; as a bank director, as a Boy Scout official, as a Red Cross official, as United Fund chairman, as a member of the board of stewards of his church . . . and when the community turned to him for help, Dr. Messick did what he could.

The Daily Reflector (and in this we believe we echo sentiments of many people) deeply regrets the loss our community and surrounding area faces in the resignation of ECC's president.

At the same time, knowing full well what he has given of himself to Eastern Carolina, we are deeply conscious that his departure must be met with as good a face as we are able to muster. The new field of work he has awaiting him is something he wants to do . . . what he calls a "new challenge with a new emphasis."

"The right man for the right job" here at East Carolina College will, we know, find equal success in his work of the future.

Something Terribly Wrong In The System

There's something terribly wrong with our system of justice when a man is kept on death row for 11 1/2 years—and seven times in that period told his day of execution was set, then to be suddenly told another reprieve was at hand.

The cause of justice is certainly not being served by the pattern of events dogging the trial of Caryl Chessman since his conviction on counts of kidnapping, robbery and rape.

His case has been up for a small multitude of hearings and appeals (granted on one pretext or another) which inevitably failed to convince his listeners that Chessman deserved anything but the maximum punishment the law allowed.

Last week another of those futile hearings was granted by Governor Edmund G. Brown of California. Technicalities aside, the Governor concluded as others had done before him, "evidence of his guilt is overwhelming."

So again the prisoner was told he had to die, and Friday was set for his execution. Once more Chessman made his final arrangements . . . asking his ashes be scattered to the four winds and giving his attorneys rights to dispose of his "life story" for whatever it might bring.

Meanwhile, his lawyers asked Justice Douglas to grant a stay of execution. Douglas turned it over to the Supreme Court, and the request for a stay was granted. Chessman is to file a new appeal by November 3.

The why of it we do not understand.

We grant there can be no casual approach to the awesome power of our laws to demand a criminal's life as the price for a great crime. But the discernment of error in judicial proceedings should not justly require eleven years, ten years or even five years on death row.

A multitude of men have died within months after conviction of lesser crimes.

Kennan Dropped His Old Policy

WASHINGTON (AP)—George F. Kennan was just another ex-diplomat, lost in reverie, except that more than anyone he symbolizes in an ironic and dramatic way the changes occurring in dealing with the Soviet Union.

Two years ago he fathered an idea which has been American policy ever since. Prevent Soviet expansion by ringing her with military bases and alliances. This was the so-called containment policy.

It was followed rigidly by both the Truman and Eisenhower administrations, without basic change. And now this rigidity irks Kennan who seems to be shying away from his brainchild and is calling for fresh thinking.

Where once Kennan was for stiff-arming the Soviets absolutely, now he is for making concessions to them in order to get concessions. The American dilemma simply comes down to this: Is this the time for a change?

The world was different when Kennan had his idea in 1947, or, rather, the relative positions of the United States and the Soviet Union were different.

Then the United States had a monopoly on the atom bomb and was soon to have the hydrogen bomb. The Soviet Union had neither. The Soviet then were even said at the time that the Soviet Union, in relation to the West, was weak.

The story is far different now. The Soviets have both the atomic and hydrogen bombs. It may be ahead of this country in missiles to deliver them. It is definitely years ahead of the United States in space development.

It has made astonishing progress in science, education, industry. It can no longer be considered weak. What did Kennan hope to accomplish with his plan?

By holding the Soviets tight, he thought, weaknesses might show up internally or chances for the better might occur. In one sense, changes for the better have occurred.

Stalin died within those 12 years. His successor, Premier Nikita Khrushchev, has relaxed controls a bit in the Soviet Union, has called for peaceful co-existence, but at the same time made it plain the Soviet Union is conscious of its power.

So—while the United States 12 years ago was able to put pressure on the Soviet Union with impunity and without fear of disaster, this is no longer true. Moscow now has the power to apply pressure and make the Allies back up, as it showed by deliberately creating the Berlin crisis.

Even Communism Has Two Sides

By HENRY HOWARD

Odd Tastes For A Dog

In our neighborhood lives a little creature with the most energy (whether nervous energy or not one couldn't say), the most curiosity, and the darned best eyesight ever.

Her name is Scotty and she's a dainty, little terrier. It seems like they call her a "wire-hair" or maybe it's "fox" terrier. Anyway, she's a cute little booger and almost bursting with what is apparently, the boundless life of youth.

She's an excellent mouthpiece to have around the house, since her extraordinary alertness can, and does, detect the slightest of movements within the radius of something like a mile or so. She's an excellent watchdog.

Her personality is astounding. Also, some of her physical attributes amaze observers. Occasionally, she has the general appearance of a regular canine in fact, when she's in the yard, she even digs holes in the lawn. Then, again, she'll take to the air as surefootedly as a mountain goat. She climbs furniture as nimbly as any mountain creature ever created or born. She prances easily and light-footedly upon the smallest or highest piece of her interior environment.

In her climbs, Scotty usually is in quest of some small object she's spotted from the carpet. Most generally, the object is a paper napkin or some other piece of scrap paper (boy, how she loves to EAT paper).

That's right, she eats paper by the ream. It seems to be nutritious, too, since Scotty is never droopy. Paper must really pack the energy.

Yes sir, Scotty is quite a dog. Maybe she could be called unorthodox — as canines go. It's a point of wonderment how in the world a dog can progress in Scotty's manner. Most canines turn out to be "dorgy," this little ball of energy often seems nearly human.

Last night, we were sitting around watching TV, and it suddenly struck me why little Scotty can spot a fly on the screen door across the street.

Perfectly aware that the little terrier had an appetite for paper, cabbage, watermelon, black pepper, feathers, peanuts, tinfoil, and even dog food (from the can), she suddenly came tripping in from the kitchen, holding her midnight snack daintily in her teeth.

I later learned this was a daily regularity with Scotty. For her eyesight, the dog eats raw carrots!

Opinions In Brief

"Parents pay for every day their child spends in school, and if not parents, then other adults. Is it honest to hide these facts? Is it good for children? If their world should collapse, they would be forced to begin all over again, earning for themselves the privileges we now so glibly describe as 'rights'—and the job would be slow and tough."—Tulsa Tribune.

"The Lord certainly must love people. In spite of all the reckless drivers, the population continues to increase."—Pike County (Ga.) Journal.

"Government is like cars or houses—nobody would be satisfied with the kind they could afford."—Columbia (S.C.) State.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

DREADFUL OBLIVION An innocent man was released from prison recently. He had served six months of a long sentence for manslaughter when someone else confessed to the crime of which he had been convicted.

Why was he imprisoned for a crime he did not commit? Accused by the police of strangling a woman, he had offered no defense, stating that on the night of her death he had been too drunk to remember anything and that, for all he knew, he might have killed her.

It is a fine thing that justice had at least been done to this man. But what a frightful demonstration of the destructive power

Big Air Supply System

By SHELBY SCATES

OKLAHOMA CITY, (AP)—For want of a nail the battle was lost, cracked an 18th Century logician who knew his business.

Two centuries later, Ben Franklin's hardy maxim remains sound.

During 15 years of Cold War the Strategic Air Command has pushed toward the ultimate in a worldwide supply system.

Before the Cold War nuts, bolts, nails and ammunition could be stashed in a warehouse and dismissed until the outbreak of hostilities.

Changed Nowadays "But nowadays, as far as the SAC supply situation is concerned, we might as well be at war," explains a ranking SAC officer.

"SAC bombers are constantly on training and alert flights. Aircraft parts must be replaced, planes modified, changes made. It calls for a centralized, flexible system of supply."

The SAC keeps most of its supplies at nearby Tinker Air Force base. The task of buying and issuing those supplies is carried out by the Oklahoma City Air Material Area (OCAMA).

Sixteen per cent of the total United States defense budget is disbursed through OCAMA — most of it on SAC supplies.

The organization charged with procuring and dispensing these items is based on mechanical and human brains and air transportation.

Stored at Tinker are 400,000 different items needed by SAC B-52s, B-47s and KC135 jet tankers, ranging from 15 cent bolts to hundred thousand dollar jet engines.

Thousands of orders pour in by radio teletype each day, some from the other side of the world, some from just across the Tinker runways at the SAC modification center.

If the plane is needed to keep a SAC plane operational, it is located, packaged and sent on its way within 36 hours.

Data processing machines working four times as fast as human brains define the location of the item in an OCAMA warehouse. Human hands and conveyor belts do the rest.

If the priority item is to be shipped outside the country, the Logair division takes over. The goods are conveyed onto cargo planes and sent winging toward their destination. Logair hauls nine million pounds of supplies from here each month.

To keep Air Force records in order, each of these supply transactions and inventory changes must be recorded.

For this last, OCAMA has a mechanical memory. Banks of electronic data recorders are housed inside a square brick building, air conditioned and lint free.

In a matter of minutes these machines can furnish specific information on supply transactions. In addition, they can reveal every detail concerning the Air Force's 6 1/2 billion-dollar engine inventory.

Andy Bloom, a civilian, heads the data recording section. He sums up the radical change in this modern supply system.

"Ten years ago the Air Force was lost trying to keep up with these inventories. Now, with the electronic machines and organization we're ready for anything."

Different people have different ideas about why they are in the world and what the purpose of their lives should be. But no intelligent person, whatever his religious faith, believes that he should drug himself into a state of unconscious irresponsibility where he may injure or destroy his fellow men without knowing it.

Even the lowest estimate of human dignity makes up responsible for knowing what we are doing.

Other Editors Saying Who Pays For TV?

(Henderson (Ky.) Greener and Journal)

Footing with rigged television quiz shows is a "fraudulent and deceptive practice" but not an "illegal" one, according to John C. Doerfer, Federal Communications chairman. We'll go along that far with Doerfer and the FCC. It would be difficult to pass laws governing the content of tv programs without endangering our right to freedom of speech.

We do, however, take exception to his statement that the homeowner does not pay his way into a tv show. (To follow this line of thinking, he has therefore no right to expect the show to be honest?)

There are ways that the home owner does pay his way into a tv show. He pays from $100 to $400 for his set, and he pays up-keep on it, including the costs of electricity to run it. If he has a set worth $150, he pays nearly 50 cents a day for a year to amortize his investment. If his set is worth $300, he pays that amount for two years. He also contributes to the cost of producing a tv show when he buys the advertised product, for the advertiser pays for the time the show is on the air in proportion to the number of viewers the show has.

Compare this to the cost of a newspaper. The so-called "homeowner" pays less than five cents a day for his newspaper, yet he feels that his five cents entitles him to deal with the newspaper as a public service or public utility. If five cents buys you a newspaper office, then fifty cents should buy you some protection against fraud on a television program.

We don't know where we should search to find out the cause for the shameful practices of the tv show producers and the tv contestants in the manner of hoodwinking the public and the advertisers, but we do know that something should and shall be done to eliminate this type of thing from the air waves. Crookedness in a few programs has cast doubt upon all programs of the type.

Barnum said there's a fool born every minute and the side shows of the circus prospered. We do not believe, however, that the advertisers are fools enough to go for any more rigged programs. Maybe the public would still "buy" them—but surely the advertisers who foot the tv bill directly won't tread the same path twice.

Sorry! There will be no new spectacular high mark in Christmas sales this year. The total may come close to the record last year, when December retail sales totaled $21.1 billion. It might even inch a bit higher. But the chances are the aggregate will be somewhat lower.

This prediction is made in the face of the fact that Christmas totals have regularly set new highs as long as this column has been written, and despite the fact that the total of retail sales for the first eight months of the year have been running 6 per cent above corresponding months of 1958.

It is also made in face of the fact that longshoremen are back at work and that there is an interlude in the steel strike. REASONS FOR NO-GAIN FORECAST

The basis for this forecast is that total income has been falling for the last two months—albeit slightly—and that the spending public is a bit uneasy.

This uneasiness is caused by the labor situation. The 80-day freezes on the steel and longshore strikes simply raise the specter of renewed unemployment just around the Christmas season.

Would you contract to pay for new car for your family or buy new scooters for kids if you expected to be back on the picket lines in January?

Or if you are in an upper bracket—and SURE you are!—would you be buying Trinidad or Palm Springs as a gift for your girl friend Not with today's ugly strike situation transferred to January?

With longshoremen, steelworkers, auto workers and others back at work for the next two months, total personal income, should rise, and industrial wages are certain to be fat. But with the possibility of troubles ahead, optional purchases will be deferred, as the professors say. And optional purchases take in a lot of Christmas spending.

Sorry, but I've said it. Some-

Special Session Chances Fading

By LYNN NISBET

NO SPECIAL — If there had been any remaining faint hope that an extra session of the 1959 General Assembly might be called, for any purpose, it was dissipated by an observation of Rep. Thomas Turner of Guilford the other day.

Soon after his return from the trip with eight other Governors through the Soviet Union, Governor Hodges indicated considerable interest in a special session to re-consider constitutional revision and court reform. The idea failed to get support of most of the legislative leaders, who felt that a special session to rehash regular session debates would accomplish nothing.

Many legislators have confessed that the idea first suggested in this column that the whole constitution-court reform issue should have been left to a special session, was sound. They concede now that the issue should have been separated from involvement in taxation matters and other issues confronting the regular session. Agreement could have been had then to limit special session business to the constitutional changes.

Governor Hodges and other advocates of court reform could not muster enough support to justify serious consideration of an extra Legislature. Then, when the welfare payments to aged and disabled had to be reduced, some of the legislators who had vigorously opposed a special session for constitutional matters, began clamoring for a session to increase allocations to the welfare department. Advocates of an extra session for the purpose suggested a gentlemen's agreement to limit consideration to that issue might be obtained.

WIDE OPEN — That any special session, if called, will have a wide open agenda was indicated by Rep. Turner. He was quoted as saying he thought it would be a fine thing to rectify the welfare mistake at a special session "and while the legislators were at it, they would rectify some other mistakes, including the withholding plan and the small raise for teacher pay."

REPEATERS — Another reason why sentiment is not strong for a special session is the prospect that an unusually large number of legislators will be coming back for the next regular session. It may well be that when full impact of 1959 legislation hits after January 1—such things as income tax withholding, point system for auto drivers, etc., vigorous opposition may develop to incumbent legislators. As of now, however, there is less indication of turnover than usual at this stage. This appraisal is supported by testimony of the candidates for Speaker who are trying to contact all present members for support "in case you come back." It also is borne out by reports of other scouts who are checking on prospects for new members who might be, or not be, in sympathy with particular programs.

Furthermore, and despite the fact that Rep. Clifton Blue of Moore, chairman of the finance committee and one of Addison Hewlett's staunchest supporters for Governor, has advocated an extra session, majority of the Hewlett folks fear that such an event could not help their man and might prove a serious handicap in his race.

BOND ELECTION — Governor Hodges is shooting for 400,000 to 500,000 votes in the bond election next Tuesday. He admitted to newsmen that he would be very happy if that many people turn out. However, he has no fear about the net result of the balloting—he feels sure all nine bond proposals will be approved by substantial majorities.

The Governor voiced appreciation, in the same of the State, for the fine job newspapers, radio and television media have done in publicizing the need for the bonds. He was slightly concerned about use of one word and asked the newsmen to emphasize its real meaning. He said a man up west the other day protested that so much money was being spent for improvement of the "capitol." That was because in every instance the bond ballot read for or against "Capital improvement" bonds at colleges, hospitals, and other institutions. Of course, that has nothing to do with the State capitol buildings and facilities which constitute the investment of capital (money) at the institutions.

The Governor stressed, too, that the bonds if issued will not call for any additional taxes, advalorem or indirect. Money to pay interest and retire the bonds as they come due has been included in budget—which is balanced. That of course doesn't mean the people will get the facilities for nothing. It just means bond retirement has been provided within the regular budget.

BREAKING AWAY . . . Eppes quarterback Freddy Watson (24) gathers steam as he scoots around left end on a jaunt that carried to the Dillard five yard line last night as the Bulldogs downed the Tigers. Woodrow Wilson (10) and Larry Hardy (13) supply blocking.

A spirited Bulldog eleven returned for the second half last night to break a scoreless deadlock wide open and bring C. M. Eppes High a smashing 22-0 victory over Goldsboro's Dillard High Tigers on a soggy, rain-soaked field here.

Minutes after Dillard kicked off to the Bulldogs to open the second half, a 20-yard pass play from Eppes quarterback Freddy Watson to halfback Larry Hardy brought the game's first score and gave the local eleven what proved to be the victory margin. On the previous play, Eppes fullback Woodrow Wilson cracked ed over from five yards out, but a holding penalty set the Bulldogs back to the Tiger 20, nullifying the touchdown. Watson had carried to the five on an end sweep that started on the Dillard 35 yard line. Watson's pass for the extra point was deflected by a Tiger lineman and bounded high into the air over the end zone. Alert halfback Hardy was waiting, however, and gathered it in for the two points. Eppes added two more touchdowns in the fourth period to put the game on ice. It was the Bulldogs' third conference victory against a pair of defeats. In the opening half, neither team could move on the slippery turf. Dillard held the edge in first downs and rushing yardage as the first half ended. Nine fumbles punctuated the contest, during which a steady rainfall

Miami Loses To Auburn By 21-6

By ED CORRIGAN
Associated Press Sports Writer
Shed a tear for Auburn. Here is a team that has lost just one of its first five games (the first), yet has been virtually written as a national threat. Going into the current season Coach Shug Jordan's lads had run up a streak of 24 games without a defeat. There was no reason to believe they weren't loaded again. But Tennessee nipped them at their own game in the opener, 3-0. Since then, Auburn has beaten Hardin - Simmons, Kentucky, Georgia Tech and Friday night, the Miami Hurricanes 21-6. But when the Tennessee game score was posted, Auburn's stock took a nosedive. Their victory over Georgia Tech, which tied them last year, pulled the Tigers back into the top 10 in the weekly Associated Press poll and at the moment they're in the No. 7 spot. In the other two big games Friday night the Air Force Academy upset UCLA 20-7 and Boston University nipped Connecticut 8-7. The Air Force, who lost their first game in 15 starts last week to Oregon, stuck mostly to a ground attack in whipping UCLA. This was a "new" Auburn team that beat Miami. At least the Tigers had a new look about them. In the past, they have stuck to the ground in their attack. This time, they took to the air right at the start. Connecticut appeared headed for an upset, scoring in the third period on a one-yard buck by Tom Kopp. But the Uconnans ran out of gas and BU scored in the last stanza on Jack Farland's pass to Gene Prohala. Dick Desmarais gambled by running for the extra two points. He made it and that was the margin of victory. Top-ranked Louisiana State, nursing a 17-game Southeastern Conference winning streak, goes against Florida today in a league game. The Bengals rate heavy favorites. Northwestern, No. 2, tangles with Notre Dame, a club that's itching for an upset after being beaten twice. Texas, No. 3, and the bigwig of the Southwest Conference, has an easy assignment against winless Rice in a night game. Mississippi, No. 4 and LSU's big threat for the SEC title, plays Arkansas. This should be close. Southern California, No. 5, is favored over Stanford. The big games in the East pit Syracuse, No. 6 against West Virginia, and Penn State, No. 8, against Illinois. Ninth-ranked Georgia Tech, will try to get back on the track against Tulane after going down to its first defeat at the hands of Auburn. The TV game of the week matches Iowa, the defending Big 10 champion, and Purdue, in a league game. The color telecast will be on NBC-TV starting at 2:15 p.m. EST. Three of the other four major unbeatens have stern tasks. Oregon (4-0) meets Washington, which lost its first game of the season last week; Penn (4-0) tangles with Navy, and North Texas State (4-0) has a date with Houston for the Missouri Valley leadership. Yale (4-0), the only unscored-on major team, has a breather against Colgate, which hasn't won yet.

Rained Out

A conference tilt between the Greenville Phantoms and New Bern High School was called off last night due to rain. The game will be played tonight in East Carolina College Stadium at 8:00. Phantom Coach Bud Phillips commented this morning that he didn't think the delay would have any effect on the outcome of the game.

Dressen Hired As Manager Of Milwaukee Club

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Charley (Chuck) Dressen, a veteran field boss with two National League championships, is the new Milwaukee Braves manager.

The 61-year-old Dressen was signed to a two-year contract Friday night at a meeting with Milwaukee owner Lou Perini, Executive Vice President Birdie Tebbetts, and General Manager John McHale in Chicago.

The signing of Dressen, the coach with the Los Angeles Dodgers for the past two seasons, was announced several hours after The Associated Press reported exclusively that he was the choice to succeed Fred Haney, who resigned three weeks ago.

Terms of the contract were not divulged, but the Braves scheduled a news conference to expand on their announcement.

The Braves' announcement was forced after the AP reported that Dressen would be named. Dressen's wife, at the time, reported he was out fishing and "I can truthfully say the Milwaukee club has not called Charley."

Dressen, who piloted the Brooklyn Dodgers to championships in 1952 and 1953, was the choice of Perini after Tebbetts reportedly stood fast in his desire to remain in the front office.

Tebbetts, who gave up the manager's job of the Cincinnati Reds to join the brass in the Milwaukee front office, was considered the No. 1 selection by Perini.

However, with the refusal of Tebbetts to don a uniform, the Braves turned to Dressen, a member of the same baseball breed. Dressen, like Tebbetts, is known for his spirited and daring play in far contrast to Haney, who managed his teams cautiously and conservatively.

When phoned by Perini, General Manager Buzzy Bavasi of the Dodgers said in a statement that the club "reluctantly consented" to release Dressen as a coach. "I wish we had been given a little more notice by Milwaukee," Bavasi said.

"Nevertheless, we wish Charley the best."

Duke Freshmen Wallop Wolflets

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — The Duke freshmen opened their season here Friday with a stunning 45-6 victory over the North Carolina State Wolflets.

State scored first in the opening period on a pass from quarterback Bill Kriger to end Don Montgomery. A minute and a half later Duke's Jerry Stoltz tossed a 51-yard pass to Bobby Hawn and Sonny Villani booted the extra point to put the Blue Imps ahead for keeps.

Six Blue Imps scored Duke's five touchdowns with passes. By Stoltz accounting for two. A safety completed the scoring.

New Jerseyites Meet In Finals

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — A couple of Yankees from New Jersey met here today in the finals of the North and South Seniors Golf Tournament.

Paired in the final 18-hole round over the 6,600-yard No. 2 course of the Pinehurst Country Club were Walter Pease, a Plainfield, N.J. attorney, and Paul Dunkel of Hackensack, N.J.

The two golfing friends of 20 years have never faced each other in a tournament before. Pease is 58 and Dunkel 66.

Pease defeated tournament favorite Tom Robbins of Pinehurst, 1-up in Friday's semifinals while Dunkel eliminated W. E. Norvell Jr. of Signal Mountain, Tenn., 3 and 2.

Chavez Ravine Headaches Continue For O'Malley

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Another gust of confusion has blown over Chavez Ravine, and Dodger President Walter O'Malley admits his ball club is responsible for the whole thing.

The source of the confusion is a map showing the proposed Dodger stadium surrounded by restaurants, a car wash, a gas station and other commercial developments.

O'Malley admitted Friday one of his aides was in error when he denied knowledge of the controversial map. But the club president says there's no cause for alarm — the Dodgers aren't going to turn the place into a one-stop shopping center. The trouble started when the map was shown this week to members of the City Council. The consensus seemed to be that the Dodgers were going beyond their agreement with the city if they planned to encircle the stadium with business enterprises.

Then Dick Walsh, assistant general manager of the Dodgers, and Henry Walsh, a club attorney, were quoted by a paper as saying that they hadn't seen the map before and that the Dodgers didn't plan such facilities outside the ballpark.

But City Public Works Commissioner Arthur Field said the Dodgers provided the map for a hearing on rezoning Chavez Ravine last July 30. And he said the Walshes were at the hearing.

"We know now," O'Malley said, "that the confusion about the map is very definitely our responsibility. We do not repudiate it. Our Dick Walsh was familiar with the map and submitted it.

"On Monday . . . we will . . . elaborate on our intentions for the use of the land, which I know will be dignified and in keeping with our previous public statements and brochures. . . ."

Ayden Trips Contentnea By Safe Score Of 27-12

The Ayden Tornados defeated the Contentnea Wildcats in a 27-14 conference tilt on the Contentnea field last night.

The game opened with Contentnea kicking off to Ayden. Dennis Mills took the kick for Ayden on the 26 yard line and returned it to the 40. Despite two 15 yard penalties, Ayden scored with Mills going over from the two yard line for the TD. Mills also ran the extra point.

Following the TD, Ayden kicked to the Contentnea 15 yard line where the ball was picked up and returned to the Wildcat 31. From there they drove to the Ayden 45 where they fumbled and Ayden recovered. Ayden started another drive but the two 15 yard penalties held them back until the quarter ended with Ayden leading 7-0. As the second quarter opened, Contentnea intercepted an Ayden pass on their own 15 yard line and returned it to the 38. On their second play Dennis Mills, Ayden fullback, intercepted a pass on the Contentnea 45 and returned it to the 38.

From there Ayden went on to score with Mills going over from the 23 yard line. The extra point attempt failed. The Ayden kickoff to the Contentnea 29 yard line was returned to the 35 by the Wildcats. From there they scored in 10 plays with Billy Smith going over on a two yard plunge. B. C. Langston ran the extra point.

Following this Contentnea kicked to Ayden. Dennis Mills took it on the Ayden 24 yard line and ran all the way for a spectacular TD run. A pass from Quarterback William Edwards to left and Sheridan Rutledge was good for the extra point.

Ayden kicked to the Contentnea 25 and it was returned to the 38. The quarter ended with Contentnea in possession of the ball on their own 39 yard line and Ayden leading 13-7.

The second half opened with Ayden kicking to Contentnea who returned the kick to their own 36. From there they drove to the Ayden 35 before giving up the ball on downs.

Taking over on the 35 Ayden started another drive which was stopped by a 15 yard penalty. On the fourth down Edwards punted for the Ayden to the Contentnea 37. Contentnea took the ball and went on to score with a pass from Langston to Phillips for 33 yards. Langston ran the extra point.

Contentnea tried an onside kick which failed and Carmen picked up the ball for Ayden on the 45 yard line as the quarter ended with Ayden leading 20-14. As the final time period opened Ayden drove from the 45 to the Contentnea 13 where Contentnea intercepted an Ayden pass in the end zone and returned it to the eight yard line. Ayden held, however, and Contentnea punted to the Ayden 45. Sparked by a 42 yard run by Mills, Ayden scored in six plays with Mills going over from the two yard line. Edwards ran the extra point.

Ayden kicked off to the Contentnea 35 yard line and on their first play Mills intercepted a pass on the Ayden 40 as the game ended with Ayden leading 27-14.

Fullback Dennis Mills, a 165 pound junior, thrilled fans last night with his outstanding play. Mills was the leading ground gainer with 184 yards gained in 18 carries. He intercepted two passes, threw several good blocks and was outstanding on defense. Mills scored all the touchdowns in last night's game.

Tony Anthony Suffers TKO By Billy Hunter

NEW YORK (AP)—Nobody will accuse Billy Hunter of being a 'new Joe Louis' but he shows promise. The best you can say for Tony Anthony is that he showed up.

Even showing up was a mistake for Anthony who became Hunter's TKO victim in 1:04 of the seventh round Friday night at Madison Square Garden.

For about 10 seconds in the very first round Anthony sparkled. He dashed out with a left hook that shook Hunter from choppers to toes. That was all.

Hunter quickly recovered, walized Anthony to the ropes and worked him over. It went on like that until Referee Arthur Mercante stopped it.

Tony sagged on the ropes, half sitting on the middle strand and ducked as many punches as he could. Occasionally he would rouse himself for a brief flurry.

Then he started absorbing the punches that almost closed his left eye and left him bleeding from nose and mouth.

As a reward for this victory, the 193-pound Hunter will be asked to retrace his steps. He has been offered a Nov. 27 rematch in the Garden with Alex Mitoff of Argentina, a man he stopped on cuts in seven rounds at Syracuse, Sept. 25. The seventh seems to be his round.

"I'll try to do even better next time," said Hunter, bubbling over in victory. "I hope to win all the way to the title. All I need is lots of fights. Three great champions—Henry Armstrong, Joe Louis and Ray Robinson—said I can go all the way and I believe them."

Hunter led 5-1 on all cards going into the seventh. As for Tony who was labeled the "new" Anthony for the umpteenth time, the future is cloudy. Ernie Braca, his manager, and Dr. Vincent Nardiello, his physician, will decide soon whether he should continue.

At 181½ pounds, Anthony showed little fire. He showed little fire. He tired quickly and had no sustained punching power.

WCC Meeting Lenoir Rhyne

Undefeated Lenoir Rhyne and ambitious Western Carolina clash tonight in a North State Conference football game that could point to the new champion.

Western Carolina dropped East Carolina 34-14 last week and the Pirates weren't considered a runner-over. The Catamounts are led by quarterback Bobby Cooper, the conference offensive leader.

But Lenoir Rhyne, after its fifth straight conference crown, has a tough forward wall and a stable of efficient backs.

The other conference game sends Elon to Catawba. Both are 0-3 in the league and in last place, where the loser will stay.

ECC is at Newberry. Carson Newman invaded Appalachian in a day game and Guilford has an open date, to account for the others.

Top Field For Kirby Memorial

CONCORD, N.C. (AP)—A red-hot field of the nation's top drivers contend here today for the 33 places in Sunday's annual Lee Kirby Memorial stock car race.

Time trials for the race, worth $9,000, were scheduled at 1 p.m. The race will start Sunday at 2:30 p.m.

The field includes Lee Petty and his son, Richard, Curtis Turner, Buck Baker, Glen Wood, Junior Johnson, Cotton Owens and Jack Smith.

Florida State Shoots For 8th

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Florida State is host tonight to Richmond's Spiders and the Seminoles will be shooting for their eighth straight triumph over a Southern Conference foe since they last lost to a league team in 1955.

Only West Virginia, which has run up a 30-game winning streak in winning four of the last five conference championships, has had better success in the last several years against circuit teams than Florida State.

Florida State, which has a 7-0 victory over Virginia Tech this year, is a 13-point favorite over the Spiders, who have an unimpressive 1-3-1 record but have suffered those three defeats by a total of 7 points.

Ironically, West Virginia stood to lose its league lead—probably only temporarily—in conference action this afternoon.

The Other Day
A navy man was telling us some more interesting things about submarines. He says there are records of efforts to use submarine warfare as far back as the earliest writings in history. Herodotus (460 B. C.), Aristotle (332 B. C.), and Pliny, the elder, (77 A. D.) mentioned attempts to build underwater war craft. Leonardo da Vinci, the amazing genius of the 15th century, worked out drawings for a submarine, but he didn't reveal them while he was alive for fear that such a war craft would make war even more frightful than it already was. (His own statement to intimates). It wasn't until 1800 that Robert Fulton, inventor of the steamboat, designed the first practical submarine. But a submarine of earlier design was used by the American Revolutionary Army (1775-1783) to attack the British. It failed because it was not yet developed into a practical naval craft. It was 1900 before the first submarine was purchased by the U. S. Navy, the USS Holland, built by a company that is now a division of General Dynamics Corp. As in all other things, the submarine developed very slowly over the years, and now seems rushing on to perfection in our day. It is this near perfection (as close as we humans can ever get) for which we strive in serving you.

Synod President To Speak Sunday

The Reverend F. L. Conrad, D. D., President of the Evangelical Lutheran Synod of North Carolina, will be the preacher at the Greenville Lutheran Mission's celebration of the 442nd anniversary of the Reformation Sunday.

The Rev. Dr. Conrad, executive head of the 180-congregation Lutheran Synod of N. C., will deliver the sermon at the 11:00 o'clock regular service of the Mission in the chapel of Clark's Funeral Home. Afterward he will meet with the congregation in a business meeting to discuss the anticipated organization of the mission into a constituent congregation in Pitt County.

Tonight Dr. Conrad will meet with the Steering Committee of the mission at a dinner meeting in a dining room at East Carolina College. On Monday he will represent the North Carolina Synod at a meeting of the East Conference of the Synod to be held at Prince of Peace Lutheran Church, Kingston; a meeting which Greenville pastor Terry Agner and lay delegates of the local group will attend.

The Rev. Agner invites all persons of Lutheran background and all other interested persons to the service and general meeting on Sunday.

RALEIGH (AP) — A $34,400,000 bond issue, recommended by Gov. Hodges and approved by the General Assembly, is expected to meet little opposition Tuesday when it receives its final test: a statewide election.

The money would be used to finance capital improvements at Tar Heel Institutions—higher education, mental health, correction and training, and others.

More than half would be earmarked for colleges and universities to relieve crowded conditions and classrooms and make possible future expansion.

To help boom the bond issue to passage, Hodges has appointed a special 60-member committee whose members represent a cross section of North Carolina localities and occupations.

The group so far has found little opposition to the bond proposal. As the campaign neared its end, only one critical message had been received.

D. Lacy McBryde, former legislator from Fayetteville, questioned the placing of a 4 1/2 million dollar appropriation for a legislative building in a bond measure which does not require approval of the voters.

He wired the special committee, "The people deserve to be told why the Legislature didn't apply the 4 1/2 million on the election issue." He called the building a "marble palace for the Legislature," and added:

"The membership of the General Assembly is exactly the same as when the present building was erected and is big enough for everybody, except perhaps the lobbyists, may be a bit crowded."

McBryde, picked by Hodges to serve on the special committee, declined membership.

He was not critical of bond issue provisions for expanded edu-national and other institutions.

In addition to higher education institutions, which get $20,391,000 of the bond money, and hospital and training-type agencies, which get $13,159,000, another $850,000 would be divided among armories, port facilities at Southport and historic sites.

The North Carolina Army Commission would get $100,000 to continue its construction program of armories and other National Guard installations with matching federal funds.

A half million would go for construction of port facilities at Southport. This part of the issue is permissive, in that if the voters approve it, the State Ports Authority must recommend the expenditure to the governor and Council of State. The money would be spent as the need for it arose.

A quarter of a million would make it possible to preserve 11 historic buildings and sites.

The attractions which would be aided include: The Alamance Battleground, Town Creek Indian Burial, Aycock Birthplace, Zeb Vance Birthplace, Brunswick Town restoration of Marsh House, restoration of Fort Fisher, restoration of Old Stone House, Scotland County Historical Society, restoration of Daniel Boone place.

The debt service on the bond issues was budgeted by the 1959 Legislature for the next biennium. Thereafter, the debt becomes the obligation of future administrations and general assemblies.

The funds to take care of the bond issue come from the state's general revenues.

Gov. Hodges said Thursday the issues will not bring about increased taxes. He said the state's budget carries funds for debt service on the bonds and the budget is balanced.

Ayden School Yearbook Wins Rating In Event

AYDEN—Ayden High School's yearbook has won a second place rating in competition sponsored by the Columbia Scholastic Press Association, according to an announcement yesterday from the CSPA.

In the 25th annual competition, more than 1,300 yearbooks were received from the United States, Europe, Japan, and the Netherlands West Indies. A board of 20 judges examined the publications during the summer.

The announcement of winners came as a highlight of a two-day annual conference and short course in yearbook production at Columbia University.

Heavy Damage In Two Wrecks

Heavy damage was reported by Pitt County Patrolmen in two one-car wrecks last night.

Patrolman W. E. Williams of Greenville charged Michael J. Mara, 23, of Camp Lejeune with reckless driving and operating on the wrong side of the highway when his car went out of control on U. S. 258 about one mile South of Farmville about 7:30 last night.

According to the officer, the Mara car skidded out of control for 105 feet, hit a ditch and traveled 50 more feet in the ditch before coming to a halt. Damage to the vehicle was set at $250.

In the second wreck, investigated by Cpl. T. M. Martin of Greenville, a 22-year-old Route 1, Greenville Negro was charged with speeding and reckless driving after his car went out of control on a curve on the Stantonboro Highway two miles from Greenville and overturned twice.

Martin said the vehicle skidded 219 feet before coming to a halt. He identified the driver as Willie Nathaniel Phillips.

Phillips was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital by the Greenville Rescue Squad and treated for minor lacerations and released. The 1951 model car was listed as a total loss.

New Charter Given To Local CAP Squadron

Greenville's newly-reorganized squadron of the Civil Air Patrol received its charter last night from Group III commander, Col. Daniel T. Lilley of Kinston.

The local squadron received the charter after reorganizing under new personnel several months ago. The old squadron was inactivated sometime last year.

Capt. Richard Balzer, commander of the Greenville squadron, received the new charter from Col. Lilley.

The Group III commander spoke to the newly-organized unit of the Air Force sponsored service organization and commended members for accomplishments.

Under the direction of Capt. Balzer and public information officer, Lt. Arnold Nash, the local squadron is renovating an old quonset hut at the Greenville Municipal Airport which it is using as headquarters.

According to Capt. Balzer, the local squadron, like other units around the nation, are designed to work closely with local police and rescue organizations. He pointed out, however, that the CAP definitely has no jurisdiction as a law enforcement agency. It operates only as an assisting agency in rescue work or other emergencies.

Membership in the local squadron, which has a cadet program for members between the ages of 14 and 21, is currently 15. Membership in the former unit here was about 40. Members over 21 are classified as "Senior Members," of which the local group has nine.

Capt. Balzer pointed out that Farmville began a CAP unit about a month ago and now has a current cadet program which embraces about 50 youngsters.

CAP squadrons receive a small appropriation from the Air Force monthly—about $150—but rely chiefly on voluntary contributions.

Group III, which includes squadrons from Greenville, New Bern, Kingston, Whiteville, Rocky Mount, Wilson, Goldsboro, Henderson, and the Cape Fear Valley, has scheduled a search and rescue mission for Elizabeth City tomorrow if weather permits.

The squadrons will tackle field problems of navigation, ground crew operations, rescue work, and the like.

Funeral Set Sunday For Mrs. O. G. Spell

FARMVILLE — Lillie Copeland Spell, 65, wife of former Farmville mayor O. G. Spell, died in Watts Hospital in Durham early Saturday morning following one week of illness. Funeral services will be conducted Sunday at 3 p.m. at the Farmville Methodist Church by the pastor, the Rev. Allen C. Lee, assisted by the Rev. LaFon C. Verren. Burial will follow in the Hollywood Cemetery in Farmville.

Mrs. Spell, a native of Eagle Springs, had resided in Farmville for 30 years. She was a member of the Methodist Church, Woman's Society of Christian Service, past Worthy Matron of the Eastern Star, president of the American Legion Auxiliary and was a Norfolk and Southern agent at Walstonburg for 10 years, prior to retirement recently.

Surviving in addition to her husband are two daughters, Mrs. Addison M. Sprague of Durham and Mrs. Larry R. Jenks of Raleigh; two sons, O. G. Jr. of Wendell and Homer C. of Farmville; four sisters, Mrs. James B. Huggins of Spartanburg, S. C., Mrs. John McLean of Goldsboro, Mrs. Ed. Lashley of Greensboro and Mrs. D. C. Hamer of Raleigh; two brothers, Wade Copeland of Durham and Grady Copeland of Raleigh; seven grandchildren.

Present Skit In UN Day Salute

The sixth grade at Agnes Fulllove School presented a brief dramatization, which the students wrote themselves, yesterday in observance of United Nations Day.

Directed by sixth grade teacher, Mrs. Jack Gates, the skit included all pupils in Mrs. Gates' class and repeated a classroom situation.

Through dramatization, the youngsters showed the history, organization, and purpose of the UN. After the play, girls in the class exhibited dolls from many member nations of the UN and the program was concluded with a choral reading of "Hands Around the World" by the group.

Rev. Kennedy Be Evangelist

The Rev. S. R. Kennedy of Greenville will be the evangelist for revival services at Pleasant Hill Free Will Baptist Church to begin Wednesday night, October 28, at 7:30.

These services will continue through Saturday night, November 7. The song service will be conducted by the pastor, the Rev. N. D. Beaman, with special music being rendered each evening.

The Pleasant Hill Church will celebrate its homecoming on Sunday, November 8, with the Rev. D. W. Alexander delivering the morning message.

An old-fashioned picnic lunch will be held on the church grounds. A cordial invitation is extended to former pastors, members and friends to attend.

Funeral Sunday For Mrs. Charlie Parker

Mrs. Bertha Tyson Parker, widow of Charlie L. Parker, died at Pitt Memorial Hospital Friday afternoon. She had been critically ill for the past few weeks.

Funeral services will be held at the Wilkerson Chapel Sunday afternoon at 3:30 by her pastor, the Rev. Irby Jackson, assisted by the Rev. E. S. Coats. Presbyterian minister of Farmville, Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery.

Mrs. Parker had lived in the Belvoir Community until she came to Greenville fifteen years ago. She was a member of the Immanuel Baptist Church, The King's Daughters, the Greenville Woman's Club, and the Pitt County Historical Society.

Surviving are four daughters: Mrs. C. D. Smith and Mrs. C. L. Lupton of Greenville, Mrs. Guy Bagley of Norfolk, Va., and Mrs. H. D. Jefferson of Farmville; seven grandchildren; and three brothers: Guy Tyson of Wendell, Walter Tyson of Oak City and W. R. Tyson of the Belvoir Community.

Doctors Junking Part Of Blood Pressure 'Pitch'

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Doctors are junking the old "don't worry, take it easy" pitch in treating patients with high blood pressure.

The new slant: go ahead and worry, but don't worry about your worrying.

That was the word today from Dr. Robert W. Wilkins of Boston, an authority on an ailment that afflicts some 15 million Americans.

A former president of the American Heart Association, Dr. Wilkins told interviewers:

"We used to say to a patient with high blood pressure: 'take it easy and don't worry.'"

"Well, if there are two things a hypertensive congenitally can not do, it's those two things.

"By and large, there are some lazy hypertensives. But in families of hypertensives, if traced, they are go-getters. They are enthusiastic and they worry to beat hell.

"They may not look it. They look placid, but this isn't deep seated in the psyche somewhere where you have to dig it up with a pitch fork with a psychiatrist.

"They are tense people. I never tell my patients not to worry. Instead, I say: 'You are going to worry, just don't worry about the fact that you worry.'"

"I don't ever tell them to take it easy. The hypertensive needs to work off a lot of emotional energy in activity. And it's a common experience, particularly in the use of drugs, that patients' blood pressures will come down on exercise, and not go up."

Ready To Prove Soviet Violation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States says it can prove—anytime—that Soviet fighter planes violated Japanese air space five years ago to shoot down an American bomber.

The State Department Friday again blamed the Soviets for the incident. The statement was in comment on the Soviet government's refusal to let the International Court at The Hague to adjudicate the issue.

The court dropped the American suit against the Soviet Union Oct. 10. It had to because the Soviets insisted the court had no business looking into such a matter. Agreement by both parties is necessary for court consideration of an issue.

The American bomber was shot down over Hokkaido Island Nov. 7, 1954. It fell in flames as the crew bailed out. One American airman was killed.

The State Department has repeatedly sought damages of $750,000 from the Soviets. The Soviets have stuck to their story that the B29 violated Soviet air space and fired first.

The State Department said "the United States B29 never shot at the Soviet plane. It did not cross the Soviet border but was shot down over Japanese territory by Soviet planes which intruded into Japanese airspace to do this."

Light Damage In Wreck Friday

Cars driven by Edward Coleman Stov, 21, address not listed and Bobby C. Gaylor, 35, 104 North Warren St. collided on Evans St. yesterday causing an estimated $50 to both cars.

A car operated by Jessie Mitchell Williams, 38-year-old Negro of 302 Nash St. allegedly struck a parked car in the Winn-Dixie parking lot causing an estimated $25 damage to the Williams vehicle.

Mrs. Hilda Kennedy Mills was listed by officers as the driver who parked the second car. Damage to the Mills car was set at $20.

No charges were placed in either accident officers said and no injuries were reported.

A Growing Interest In Industrial Arts

By ROSALIE MOORE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Industrial Arts Department at East Carolina College has been in existence for 10 years. When first started, there were less than 20 majors and only two instructors. Now there are over 125 under-graduates, 28 doing graduate work and six instructors.

The chief purpose of the department is to train industrial arts teachers to go into the public schools to teach classes in woods, metals, electricity, crafts and drawing. Students who specialize in this field usually expect to find employment as teachers. Teaching is only one of a number of careers in which a student may enter. Other graduates may go into industry as draftsmen, insurance investigators, architects, construction estimators, machine operators, communications supervisors, etc. The department provides familiarity with materials, processes and products of industry. In turn the graduates can go out and teach this on the high school level.

"Approximately 75 per cent of the industrial arts teachers in North Carolina are located in the Piedmont section of the state," stated R. W. Leith, one of the instructors in the department. Efforts are being made to get more departments in the high schools in this section, he further commented.

Only eight high schools in a

50-mile radius have such departments. "There is a great demand for industrial arts majors to teach in the public school," said Dr. T. J. Haigwood.

Some of the areas of shop and laboratory instruction offered by the department are: mechanical and architectural drawing, basic and applied electricity, radio, hand and machine woodworking, leather working, welding and sheet metal working.

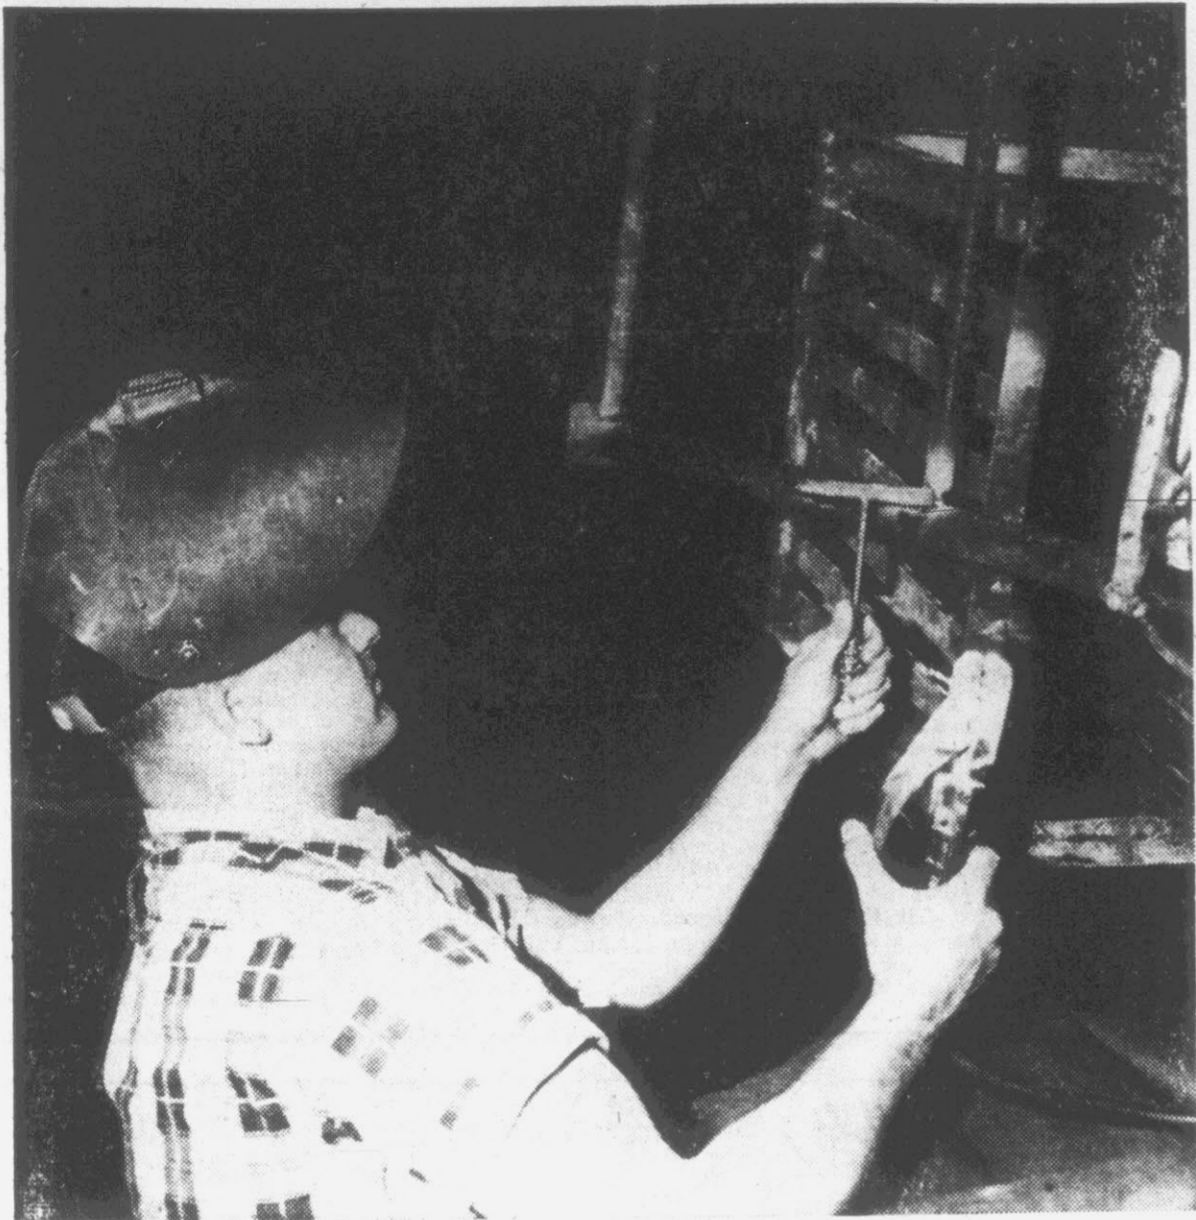

In the near future, courses in graphic arts will be added, including, silk screening, letter press and offset printing, linoleum block printing and some photography work.

Two student organizations function within the department: the Industrial Arts Club—open to all students in the department and Alpha Delta Tau—open to active members of the Industrial Arts Club, who meet certain scholastic requirements.

Some night classes are offered by the department for people outside the college who are interested in industrial arts.

Dr. Kenneth L. Bing is head of the Industrial Arts Department at the college. Other teachers include, R. C. Paysinger, E. C. Finch and Carroll W. Smith.

A state projects fair will be held at the college May 6-7, 1960, sponsored by the department. Projects made by high school students all over the state will be on exhibit. The exhibit will be opened to the public.

Bethel Team Wins Pitt Tool Identification Test

TOOL IDENTIFICATION WINNERS . . . Bethel Vocational Agriculture Teacher S. D. Dewar points out a tricky tool to members of the winning team (seated) Sammy Dewar, Joe Hunnicutt, (standing) Gene Carson and Jimmy Lewis.

BETHEL — The host team won out over eight other Vocational Agriculture Departments in Pitt County Thursday in the annual tool identification contest sponsored by the departments. The contest consisted of identifying fifty different tools from a list of over 200. In order to be counted correctly the full proper name of the tool had to be given.

Each participating department had four boys entered and the three highest grades were totaled in order to find the winning team. Only ninth grade boys were allowed to participate. Boys on the winning team were Sammy Dewar, Joe Hunnicutt, Gene Carson and Jimmy Lewis. Agriculture Departments participating in the event included Bethel, Stokes-Pactolus, Belvoir, Grifton, Ayden, Winterville, Farmville and Fountain. The winning Bethel team will go to Raleigh in June to compete in the state contest. Winner of the state title will travel to Kansas City, Missouri to compete in the national contest next fall.

ASPIRIN BLAMED
HORNELL, N.Y. (AP) — John Malick, 3, died in a hospital Thursday from an apparent overdose of aspirin, doctors said. His sister, Mary, 2, is in good condition. Their mother, Mrs. Herbert Malick of nearby Alfred, said a neighbor told her he emptied a bottle of aspirin in the hallway of their apartment building after cleaning out his car's glove compartment.

Books & Stuff

Last Sunday the first of a new series of TV programs got started on important episodes in the lives of six famous Americans. Called "Our American Heritage," the series concentrates on history as it was affected by these men. Thomas Jefferson was the subject of the show on Sunday, and we enjoyed it as a historical documentary if not as a dramatic masterpiece. Competition was Ed Sullivan, so we had a bit of trouble getting on the right channel in the first place. We doubt if Jefferson did much harm to Sullivan's rating, but we certainly approve of this sort of program and congratulate the editors of AMERICAN HERITAGE Magazine for the work they did in getting together the historical facts and checking for accuracy. Other historical personages who will have important episodes dramatized over TV within the next few months are Eli Whitney of cotton gin fame; John Fremont, explorer extraordinary; General U. S. Grant; former Supreme Court Chief Justice Olive Wendell Holmes, Jr., and the nation's first great steel man, Andrew Carnegie . . . The new October issue of AMERICAN HERITAGE has just come out, incidentally, and is full, as usual, of lavishly illustrated and well written articles. Featured in publication for the first time of excerpts from the diary of Fanny Seward, the daughter of Abraham Lincoln's Secretary of State, whom assassins also tried to kill when they shot the President. Details of her story will give you quite a turn, as they did us. There are other stories about everything from women's suffrage to New York ferryboats, and we can recommend the whole issue without hesitation . . .

German Hero
Some of you may remember the name of Pastor Niemoller, who led German Protestant resistance to Hitler's regime during the 1930's. Hitler once shouted at him, "You confine yourself to the church. I'll take care of the German people!" He didn't, and spent eight years—1937 to 1945—in concentration camps. Now a new biography has come out on him, by Deitmar Schmidt, to give you some idea about how this great Christian leader got that way . . .

Political Commentary
This past week's Danforth lecturer at the College was Oregon Congressman Charles Porter. At one of his talks someone in the audience asked him what he thought of ADVISE AND CONSENT, Allen Drury's best seller—now topping the list—about life among the legislators in the nation's Capital. Mr. Porter replied that he felt it was a good novel but harmful in its general effect because it gives the wrong idea concerning the inner workings of party politics. Right or wrong, ADVISE AND CONSENT is making a tremendous impact on the reading public—circulation has gone up faster than that of any other novel that has come out in the past few years . . . With the possible exception of PEYTON PLACE we must add—and where, now that we think of it, is Grace Metalious' next book, announced for publication last spring but not yet in the bookstores? We'll tell you when we find out . . .

Local Scene
Speaking of best sellers, the newly reprinted and unexpurgated version of LADY CHATTERLEY'S LOVER, despite numerous paperback editions, is in Number 6 position and has just completed its 23rd week on the best seller lists. The movie of this novel will be playing at your local cinema on November 3 and 4, and we hear it is a good show . . . Starting the following day and staying over the weekend of November 7 is MY THREE ANGELS, East Carolina Playhouse production Number 1 this year . . . We hope some of you are planning to go to the one-night stand of the Ballet Russe, coming to Rocky Mount this Thursday, the 29th, as a presentation of the Rocky Mount Art Centre—for details, call This Column . . .

Today's Review
A long-suffering Mother and Columnist's Wife writes about a book on family life that should have sold better than it did . . . QUIET, YELLED MRS. RABBIT By Hilda Cole Espy, Philadelphia: J. B. Lippincott Co., 1958.

During the past few years books about families have been among the best-sellers. It was unfortunate that Mrs. Espy's addition to this group was published during the newspaper strikes last fall, and so missed favorable reviews which it undoubtedly would have had.

In many ways "Quiet, Yelled Mrs. Rabbit" is more appealing than Jean Kerr's "Please Don't Eat the Daisies." Mrs. Espy's children "come alive" or achieve reality as personalities more than the daisy-eaters. Mrs. Espy was associated with show people as publicity agent for Kate Smith and Fred Waring among others—until the advent of her family (four children) and retirement to a housewife's career. She had expected to continue her advertising career and leave the children to domestic help, but she discovered "it isn't possible for a nurse to do the drudgery while I have all the fun with Mona and Reddy, as I once thought. Because the fun seems to be all mixed up with the drudgery. I mean, a baby may

Two Youths Shot In 2 Accidents

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Two youths were shot to death in separate accidents Friday. One was shot by his brother, the other by a close friend.

Larry Ryan Farris, 14, was shot at the home of a friend in Oklahoma City. He and Al O'Neal Evans, 13, were examining two war trophy rifles at Evans' home. Then Evans took down a .410 gauge shotgun and it discharged, the blasting hitting Farris in the forehead.

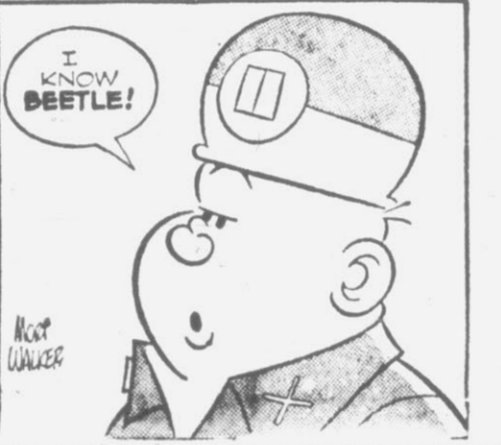

Evans ran from the house screaming, "I didn't mean to do it. Oh God, I didn't mean to do it."

Albert Lee Crow, 13, of Del City was shot while hunting with his brother near Norman, Okla., just south of here.

Officers said the youngster knelt to examine the ejection mechanism of his rifle. As he rose his brother, David, 15, fired at a wasp nest. The shot hit the youngster in the head.

Officers said both shootings were accidental.

A new experiment in road paving is being tried near Vancouver, Canada. A machine crushes ordinary road gravel, mixes it with salt and water. It is expected to leave a smooth, dust-free surface.

"My Daddy bought a share in Greenville's future!"

A Jaycee Will Call On You Soon!

"Daddy says it's necessary to provide industrial building property if you want to get industries to come to your town. That's why he bought some shares in Greenville Industries, Inc. They are going to buy 269 acres of land and resell it to individual prospects, "Tell your Dad to be ready to make his purchase when a member of the Jaycees calls on him. He'll not only be helping himself but he'll be buying a share in Greenville's future."

PLAY IT SAFE IN TRANSIT.

WHEN TRANSPORTING A DESPERATE CRIMINAL WHO IS IN CUFFS, BE SURE TO HIDE CUFF KEYS SOMEWHERE ON YOUR PERSON—NEVER ON YOUR REGULAR KEY RING.

YOU MEAN TO SAY YOU RODE THIS MOVING TABLE TO THE BASEMENT AND STILL DIDN'T SEE ANY SIGN OF MATTY MUNKIE.

RIGHT, CHIEF.

BUT THERE'S PLENTY DOWN THERE THAT DOESN'T MEET THE EYE—FOR INSTANCE, THERE ARE THREE FAKE DOORS.

I SKETCHED IT. LOOK, NO MARKS OF TRAFFIC GOING INTO ANY OF THOSE DOORS.

HOWEVER, THE NEWLY WAXED FLOOR SHOWED NUMEROUS FOOTPRINTS LEADING TO A BLANK WALL WITH A MURAL ON IT.

IN THE ABSENCE OF A SEARCH WARRANT, I WAS STYMIED. I COULD GO NO FURTHER.

POLICE RECORDS SHOW THAT PLACE IS OWNED BY ONE OLIVE TOMATE.

OLIVE TOMATE? WHO IS SHE?

SHE FIGURED IN A COUPLE OF WASHINGTON HEARINGS. SHE'S SUPPOSED TO BE A CLOSE ASSOCIATE OF "WILLIE-THE-FIFTH" MILLYUN.

WILLIE-THE-FIFTH?

MEANWHILE

ALL WE WANT YOU TO DO, MATTY, IS JUST HELP US GET THE POLICEWOMAN. THAT'S ALL. JUST HELP US.

I DRAW THE LINE AT HELPING HOODS!

SIT DOWN, MATTY.

I MAY HAVE DONE SOME LOUSY THINGS IN MY DAY, BUT I'LL NEVER WORK WITH HOODS.

HEY, OPEN A DOOR! IT MUST BE 100 DEGREES IN HERE! WHERE ARE WE?

TAKE OFF HIS BLINDFOLD.

YOU'RE OUT IN THE OPEN AIR UNDER THE BEAUTIFUL SUNSHINE, MATTY. ENJOY YOURSELF.

I'M BURNING UP.

HUH???

AS I WAS SAYING, ALL WE WANT IS YOUR CO-OPERATION, MATTY, TO HELP US CORNER THE POLICEWOMAN. WHAT DO YOU SAY?

BETTER GET SOMEONE TO WAKE YOU FOR THE EARLY BRIEFING, SARGE.

YES, SIR.

BEETLE, I HAVE TO BE UP AT 5:30 SHARP! I'M GIVING YOU THE JOB TO WAKE ME!

OKAY, SARGE. DON'T WORRY. YOU'LL BE UP IN TIME.

I'D BETTER BE UP ON TIME OR I'LL MURDER HIM.

THE MORE I THINK ABOUT IT, THE MORE I WISH I'D TOLD SOMEONE ELSE TO WAKE ME! I DON'T TRUST HIM!

NOW I CAN'T SLEEP FROM WORRYING THAT HE WON'T DO HIS JOB!

I CAN'T TAKE THE CHANCE. IT'S NEARLY TIME, ANYWAY.

I KNEW IT! IT'S 5:30, AND LOOK AT HIM SNORING AWAY!

Pity The Plight Of Socialite With Gold Gown

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Pity the plight of socialite Bernice Pons. She has a 24-karat gold dress she says is worth $10,000—and expects to wear it only three times. The first time will be tonight at the Los Angeles opening of the San Francisco Opera Co. Then two more times—and poof!

"I don't know what we will do with it then," Mrs. Pons said. "It's much too valuable to discard, but everyone will recognize it after they've seen it once."

The floor length evening gown has 17 yards of gold backed by jersey.

You ask—how can Mrs. Pons walk around under 17 yards of gold and not feel like a ton of mother lode.

"It is a solid sheet, not threads or strips," she explained. "The dress is light weight because the jersey is so thin and because the gold is so light. A special lining gives strength to the jersey."

SHADOW OF GUILT

A NEW THRILLER by PATRICK QUENTIN

CHAPTER 34
I finished my drink and put the empty glass down on Connie's desk.

What I'd put it down on was the Sunday newspaper magazine section, still open at the crossword puzzle which Connie and Miss Taylor had done together and which Trant had studied so carefully.

I glanced down at Connie's familiar messy writing and Miss Taylor's neat letters, legible as neon signs.

The puzzle was completely finished. That was the first thing noticed. Then, as if drawn by magnetism, my eyes fell on the clue for number eight down. A goddess of war in seven letters.

As I looked at the word, I felt myself spinning dizzily back in time. I was coming here into the library around five on Sunday afternoon. Connie was sitting in the red leather chair, her reading glasses on, glancing up at me with her bright, unperturbed smile.

"Hello, dear. Who was a goddess of war in seven letters beginning with B?"

"Five o'clock! Half an hour after Miss Taylor was supposed to have left! And Connie hadn't known who the goddess of war was then; the puzzle hadn't been finished then. So!"

This shock was so enormous that for a moment I couldn't force my swirling thoughts into any sense. But gradually the pattern emerged.

Connie's alibi for herself had been as fake as our alibi for Alia and our alibi for me.

On Sunday Miss Taylor had never been at the house at all. Connie had merely gone to the library and made her fill in the puzzle to provide Trant at just the right moment with the magnificent casual and convincing piece of evidence of the two female buddies sitting cozily together on a family Sunday afternoon, taking turns writing in the words.

Miss Taylor hadn't got around to lying for me, but she'd certainly lied brilliantly for Connie.

Ever since I'd left for idleness on Sunday morning, my wife had been alone. Alia had been physically there, of course, but she'd been locked in her bedroom at the back of the house. Connie could have gone out and come back a dozen times—and nobody would ever have known!

"Eve Lord and I were sitting together in her pink living room. I'd gone directly to her house and told her about Connie. For a while she just couldn't believe it. That was another of the ironies. Eve was like everyone else, including me."

"She was so convinced of Connie's integrity that it was beyond her powers of comprehension to grasp the fact that Connie, of all people, could have been saying one thing and doing another."

"But all that about Miss Taylor and the puzzle wasn't just for Trant. She told you Miss Taylor had been there long before there was any question of alibis. She'd decided on it from the beginning, hadn't she?"

"She must have." "And the bracelet?" "I know."

"She was looking at me, her eyes very solemn. 'Do you think she could have been lying about that too? I mean, do you think she was really crazy about Saxby?'"

"No," I said. "I can't believe that. The thing with the bracelet was faked by Saxby."

"George," Eve said very gently, "what if they try to arrest you?"

"How can they when they have no proof?"

"Do you really believe that still? They know you have a motive. They know you have no alibi. And you did go there. Maybe they'll find that out, too. Oh, George, I know how you feel. She's your wife. You feel guilty because of us. Of course you do. But—"

"For months we've been trying to put her first, trying to do the right thing. There's got to come a time when we think about us. And if they arrested you now, now when we're so nearly there..."

Suddenly her face was out of control. She threw herself against me. "Oh, George, George darling, if they do try to arrest you, tell, please, promise me if you have to, you'll tell."

I knew, of course, that she was right. Whatever Connie had or hadn't done was no longer my responsibility.

I put my arms around Eve, drawing her closer, kissing her. "I love you," I said.

"Oh, George, I know. I do know." "Then there's something else you know too. You know I'll never let anything stop me taking you to Tobago. Not Trant, not Connie—not even Alia."

"Then—then you promise?" "If need be. But first I'm going to call her at Vivien's. It's the least I can do."

I kissed her again and, getting up from the couch, went to the phone. Just as I was about to lift the receiver, the front door buzzer rang. Eve jumped up.

"Don't answer," I said. It buzzed again. We both turned, looking uneasily into the little hall as if the hall itself constituted a threat. Then for the third time the buzzer sounded. This time the finger pressing it didn't release its pressure, sending a continuous screech echoing through the apartment.

"You'd better go," I said. "Just get rid of them—whatever it is." Eve hurried out into the hall. I heard the door open. I heard Eve give a little exclamation. Then coming ahead of her, walking in as nonchalantly as though he were a cocktail guest, Lieutenant Trant moved into the room.

"Hello, Mr. Hadley," he said, "rather expected to find you here."

He was smiling his same old aren't-we-buddies smile. I knew he was actually standing there, but for a moment he had no reality as if he were merely a figment of my own anxieties. The smile lingered on me for a moment, then he moved it to Eve.

"I'm sorry about making all that racket, Mrs. Lord, but I was told you were in, and this is quite important, my name, by the way, is Trant, Lieutenant Trant. Do you mind if we all sit down?"

He waited as he always waited. Then after he was the only one left standing, he lingered a moment, dominating. Then he perched himself on the arm of a chair.

"This evening, Mr. Hadley," he said, "when I got back to the office after talking to you, there was a message that a Mrs. Ross had called. I've just come from talking to her. As it happens, she lives upstairs in this building. She'd called me because she'd seen your picture in the papers. She wanted me to know that for the last four months if not longer, you'd been coming here every Thursday evening to see Mrs. Lord."

He took out his cigarette case and held it without opening it in his hand.

"And not only that. As it turned out, Mrs. Ross also saw you here on the actual afternoon of the murder."

"You may remember her, Mr. Hadley, a large blonde with a white pooodle. Apparently you tangled together right outside the building. On Sunday afternoons, it seems that Mrs. Ross makes a habit of walking the white pooodle at exactly five minutes to four because there's a television program she watches at four—which establishes the fact that it is five minutes to four when you came here. As you may remember, Don Saxby was shot at three-thirty. Anyone, even a white-haired little old lady, can walk from Saxby's apartment here in under twenty minutes."

What can George Hadley answer truthfully when Lieutenant Trant asks him: "What would you say now if I accused you of killing Donald Saxby?" Don't miss the climax of "Shadow of Guilt" tomorrow.

Caught Mess Of Fish In Accident
CYNTHIANA, Ky. (AP)—Shelton West and two fishing companions caught a mess of fish in the South Licking River but they aren't likely to use the same method again. They were standing in the water when a high-voltage line snapped and dangled into the water. Their rubber boots protected them, but hundreds of fish were electrocuted. The men waded ashore and later scooped up the fish.

Survived A Fall Of 1,250 Feet

FT. CAMPBELL, Ky. (AP)—The 19-year-old freckle-faced paratrooper looked up from his wheelchair and said "I'm pretty lucky."

Francis J. Dolaher thinks his luck arrived the day he made his ninth jump with the 101st Airborne Division.

His parachute opened only five feet instead of the usual 32, and Dolaher plunged 1,250 feet to earth, landing a mass of broken bones and internal injuries. He received last rites—twice. But he lived.

That was 80 days ago. Now Dolaher is 70 pounds below his normal 183, but expecting to walk with only a stiff ankle after another year of treatment.

Dolaher says "God was with me, I guess. Up till then, I'd just been average lucky — You know, I'd never win things at the amusement park or anything."

After his fall "it took me a while to get used to the idea" of being alive. "But as long as I was alive, I decided to stay alive."

What caused the near-tragedy in Dolaher's words:

"I don't know if I blacked out or what. First thing I remember is I looked up and saw my parachute lines were twisted. I tried to shake them out but before I could do anything I hit the ground."

First Presbyterian Announcements
"A Life Used By God" is the topic of the sermon to be delivered by Reverend Richard R. Gammon at the First Presbyterian Church, Sunday morning.

The Senior High and Pioneer Fellowships will meet at 6:00 o'clock at the First Presbyterian Church. Adult Advisors to the Senior High group, Mrs. Sally Broaderrick and Mrs. Mary Stoneham, will conduct a discussion on "Marriage—Why or Why Not?" Mrs. H. H. Bryant will talk to the Pioneers for their program on Stewardship on the topic, "Money in My Pocket."

The Christian Education Committee will meet Sunday night at 7:45.

Ushers for November are as follows: Dr. Ray D. Minges, Chairman, F. Harding Sugg, James C. Lamer, Jr. and W. F. Weston.

The Leadership Training School will open Monday evening at 7:00 o'clock with a worship service. Classes will begin at 7:30.

Police Erased Happy Chuckles

SAGINAW, Mich. (AP)—Victor N. Miller felt happy to be alive. He was chuckling when he emerged unharmed from his car which had been tossed 20 feet into the air after it ran into the side of a locomotive at a railroad crossing. The vehicle landed upside-down in a ditch.

Miller, 25, was still chuckling when police drove up. Officers looked unsmilingly at the wreck and erased Miller's chuckle with a ticket charging failure to yield the right-of-way.
