Deft Touch In Moving A Story

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—When David Susskind bought up the television rights to a bunch of old, successful movies, a number of people—including this viewer—wondered why he planned to remake them, why he didn't just rerun the originals.

His taped production of "The Bells of St. Mary's" based on a 1945 film hit, answered that question Tuesday night. In moving the story from one medium to another it becomes more intimate, uses more closeups and is altogether more satisfactory on the small screen than would have been film made for the big screen in the theater.

The story revolves around the way Father O'Malley and Sister Benedict manage to set a needed new building to house their beloved school. Charles Ruggles is delightful as the old crank who learns about the joy of giving.

It was a nice show, full of deft comedy touches and pleasant sentiment. Edward R. Murrow's "Biography of a Missile," which followed, traced the construction of a ballistic missile from the drawing board until it misfired upon launching. It was both dramatic and informative.

The hour-long CBS show told us a lot about missiles, but the most fascinating part was the faces of the makers of Project 16 when after a year of work the huge metal mechanism was destroyed in five seconds.

When Steve Lawrence and his wife, Eydie Gorme, turn up on the living room screens Thanksgiving Eve in an ABC musical special called "The Golden Circle," Steve will be busy with his U. S. Army chores and Eydie will be awaiting imminent motherhood. Their parts in the show were taped months ago.

Lawrence has been breaking his Army leave into small pieces in order to take occasional guest spots and record songs, but he has about another year to go in the service, Eydie, until recently, has also done TV shows and some night club stints.

"It's been kind of rough," says Steve. "But I felt it was necessary to work during leave so that people wouldn't forget all about me."

When he gets out, the couple—who only occasionally work as a team—would like to do a musical series. "Sort of an 'I Love Lucy' with songs," explains Lawrence. "Who wouldn't?"

What started out as a George Burns NBC special has gradually assumed proportions as an evening of palship. Now Burns will be joined by good friends Jack Benny, Eddie Cantor and George Jessel in a salute to vaudeville on Nov. 21. It takes a lot of big stars names to make up for determinedly retired Gracie Allen.

Five Millions Of Dollars In Phony Money Kept In Room

WASHINGTON (AP)—Locked behind stout steel doors in a small room at the U.S. Treasury is five million dollars in paper money—all worthless.

This is the "funny money room" of the counterfeit section of the Secret Service.

able in vending machines or pay telephones. Whenever a coin is altered, it ceases to be money. It is then worth only the value of the metal it contains.

It probably is the only place in the country where you can say something is as phony as a $3 bill and be literally correct.

In a locked file in this room are samples of every counterfeit currency ever uncovered by Secret Service, which safeguards the integrity of the nation's money.

The samples include a number of $3 bills — counterfeiters of currency issued by state banks before the Civil War.

In vaults lining one wall are millions of dollars of bogus bills seized by the Secret Service in recent years.

If the service knows it never will need the bills as evidence, it keeps them for two years.

Once a year there is a big cleanup.

All counterfeit bills no longer needed are bundled up and turned over to the Treasury's official destruction committee. This group takes them to the naval gun factory where they are burned.

The counterfeit section vaults also hold bogus or altered coins. Few people bother to counterfeit small change but many try to convert pennies into dimes. The object is to make the pennies use-

Judge Missing, Police Alerted

CHICAGO (AP)—Police in Chicago and nearby cities were alerted today to watch for Judge William Lynn Parkinson of the U. S. Court of Appeals, who has been missing since late Monday afternoon.

John Neurauter, acting deputy chief of detectives, said Parkinson's disappearance was reported Tuesday by the judge's son, William Lynn Jr., of Lafayette, Ind.

Judge Parkinson, 57, last was seen about 5 p. m. Monday by Deputy Marshal Joseph Tennes on the near North Side near the appellate court building.

Police said young Parkinson told them his father, who lives near the court building, suffers from low blood pressure and may be a victim of amnesia.

Judge Parkinson was appointed to the Court of Appeals in 1957 by President Eisenhower.

Parkinson had served since Aug. 4, 1954, as a federal judge for the northern Indiana district. He had served as a judge of the Tippecanoe Circuit Court from 1937 to 1954 and earlier had practiced law in Lafayette.

Refuse Rerear Roadblock Case

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)—The State Supreme Court has refused to rerear the case in which it upheld legality of police roadblocks to check safety equipment and drivers' licenses.

Former Mayor Abe Aronovitz of Miami had challenged the right of Miami police to set up the roadblocks for inspection purposes.

The American Automobile Assn. Inc. also had sought a rehearing. Aronovitz sued after he was stopped at a roadblock. He claimed it amounted to illegal arrest and violated rights of free movement.

Students fought the blaze with fire extinguishers and water-filled trash cans before firemen took over.

Two students—Lester Sargeant and David Christensen, both of Memphis, Tenn.—were overcome by smoke but were quickly revived.

Prison Escapees Had Some Luck

RALEIGH (AP)—Two convicts who skipped Central Prison this weekend had plenty of luck.

One of three guards fired for "gross custodial negligence" by Prisons Director William F. Bailey blamed a fogged window on his guard shack and improper alerting procedure by a fellow guard as contributing to the bold break.

W. H. Emory, 31, asked Tuesday for a hearing on his dismissal. He said he wasn't as concerned about getting his job back as he was with relating his side of the story.

Meanwhile, Charles W. (Yank) Stewart, 52, of Wilmington, and James Edward Christy, 26, of Concord, prisoners normally confined at the state's rocky quarry prison for incorrigibles at Ivey Bluff, still were being sought.

They climbed from a third story hospital window using homemade rope, bolted across the prison yard and scaled an eight-foot wall topped by four feet of barbed wire, using bed ladders.

Emory admitted he should not have permitted fog caused by a heater, to obstruct his vision through his guard house window. However, he placed most of the blame on T. V. Wilkins, another guard fired by Bailey, for alleged slowness in alerting him.

Board Carries The Responsibility

Action of the East Carolina College chapter of the American Association of University Professors asking that a nine-man committee be named to recommend a candidate for the next president of East Carolina College gives rise to a number of questions, the foremost of which is where the policy-making authority of the institution should rest.

In the hands of faculty and alumni?
Or in the hands of the Board of Trustees?
The resolution adopted by the organization calls on the Board of Trustees to name a committee composed of three trustees, three faculty members elected by the faculty and three alumni elected by the Alumni Council to recommend the next president of the college to the trustees.

While the faculty of ECC and the alumni of the institution properly should have a genuine interest in who is named as the chief administrative officer of the college, it is not their function to set policy for the college. It is not their responsibility to hire or fire the president of the institution. That authority and that responsibility rests solely with the Trustees, the properly constituted policy-making agency of the state institution.

The Board of Trustees cannot delegate or otherwise avoid its ultimate responsibility for policy-making and operations of the institution. Would it, therefore, be wise for it to delegate its policy-making authority to a committee composed one-third of trustees, one-third of faculty and one-third of alumni?

Certainly the alumni of ECC will have a major voice in the election of a new president by virtue of the fact that half of the 12 members of the ECC Board of Trustees are alumni of the college. Even though the faculty does not have a member of the college's Board of Trustees, we can't recall off-hand of any other educational institution in which an individual carries the dual role of trustee and faculty member.

The three-man committee of the Board of Trustees named to recommend a new president has previously announced it would be happy to hear any recommendations or suggestions from faculty, alumni or any other citizens regarding their search for a new president to replace Dr. John D. Messick. We are confident the three-member committee will give an attentive ear to any group or any individuals who care to consult with it concerning the naming of a new president at East Carolina College.

The trustees, the faculty and the alumni of the institution all are interested first and foremost in that which will be in the best interest of the college. In achieving that goal, will it not be advantageous to leave the policy-making authority and responsibility where it rightly belongs, in the hands of the Board of Trustees?

Political Wishing Is Obviously Not Enough

Though political talk about 1960 has quieted down in North Carolina in recent weeks, there remains on the part of many Tar Heels the wishful hope that Gov. Hodges may become the number two man on the Democratic ticket next year.

While the Governor remains a popular figure in national circles, and while Tar Heels would like to see him so honored, there is an increasing awareness throughout the state that Gov. Hodges' chances of a spot on the national ticket are slim.

In the first place, a man doesn't run for the second spot on the national ticket. To be sure his popularity as a vote-getter as well as his popularity with the party big-wigs are important assets. Even so, the second man for the ticket is picked by the party's top political strategists—together with the presidential nominee—rather than by popular support of the delegates at the convention.

A veteran observer of Democratic party activities, both state and national, recently ventured the opinion that the only hope for Gov. Hodges' receiving the vice presidential nomination would be for Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota to receive the presidential nomination. Sen. Humphrey, in all probability, would not be a popular nominee so far as North Carolina or other southern states are concerned. His chances of receiving the nomination appear at the moment rather remote. It is unlikely the Tar Heel delegation would support him for the nomination. But of the other possible nominees in the field, with whom might Gov. Hodges be a politically expedient running mate?

Sen. John Kennedy is from the East, and if he receives the nomination his running mate probably would come from the mid-west or far west. Senate Majority Leader Johnson is a Southerner, as is Gov. Hodges, and certainly the strategists would not pick a pair of Southerners for a national ticket. Sen. Symington is from a border state and therefore would require a running mate from one of the more populous states. And if the Democrats turn again to Adlai Stevenson to carry the standard they would probably look to a state other than North Carolina for the second man on the ticket. Stevenson ran with Sen. Sparkman of Alabama in 1952 and with Sen. Kefauver of Tennessee in 1956, and neither time was the combination sufficient to win the White House.

The political winds will blow from many directions between now and convention time next year, but for the moment, they do not seem to be blowing our Gov. Hodges toward a vice presidential nomination.

Idea Is Slowly Being Scalped

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — The idea of an early summit meeting is slowly being scalped.

President Eisenhower, Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, and the British are all for an early meeting. France and West Germany want it shoved aside for months.

Time may show France's President Charles de Gaulle and Germany's Chancellor Konrad Adenauer were wise in wanting a delay. But it carries the seeds of danger.

Khrushchev may get fed up, regard it as stalling, feel his big try at let's-get-togetherness is being quietly repudiated, and turn nasty again. He is in a position to get nasty.

In his talks here with Eisenhower he agreed there should be no time limit on settling his demands that the Allies get their troops out of West Berlin. But he wanted it understood negotiations should not be prolonged indefinitely.

What will he think now when Adenauer not only wants a delay in a summit meeting but suggests that when the United States, Britain, France and the U. S. S. R. get together Berlin should not even be discussed? If he begins to feel the West is stalling, Khrushchev might decide to crack down on Berlin even if it caused a shooting show-down. The more division he sees among the Allies, the more he may believe he can get by without a showdown.

What can Eisenhower do about it, since the goodwill created by Khrushchev's visit may slowly melt away under delays and disagreements among the Allies?

He seems to think he can't do much. He has made it plain he won't try to dictate to the Allies, no matter what his own wishes about an early summit meeting.

He probably couldn't push De Gaulle into his way of thinking if he tried. The strong-willed, temperamental Frenchman is determined to recapture international respect for his country.

Further De Gaulle has the support of the French people. By the same token, West Germans stand behind Adenauer. Getting France and West Germany to follow meekly in the American train was easier when Germany was weaker and France was weakly led.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
CHRISTIAN DOCTRINE OF CREATION

Modern religious thinking has not given sufficient consideration to the matter of creation. Its religious significance is indicated by the fact that it is the first thing with which the Word of God deals. Men have fallen into squabbling groups over the question, how God created the world.

The important thing is that He did create it, regardless of the method used. "In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth."

Men pass by lightly today the matter of divine creation. They look to science to explain creation, when the very best science can be expected to do is to describe it. After science has said its last word—if that day ever arrives—religion will have something to say about creation infinitely more glorious than science can ever affirm. "By faith we understand that the worlds were formed by the word of God, so that things which are seen were not made of things that do appear" (Heb. 11:3). "By the word of God were the heavens made; and all the host of them by the breath of his mouth." (Ps. 33:6). "All things were made by him; and without him was not anything made that was made" (John 1:3).

Thus does the word of God maintain that creation is primarily a religious rather than a scientific matter.

Sauce For The Gander

By DON SCHLIENZ

Just Came To Watch It

In the last dozen years-plus I must have missed as many as three election-night tabulation parties. They've become almost as much of a habit as smoking a pipe.

Last evening's vote-counting was one of those that started soon after the polls closed. The poll-holders didn't have a whole lot of counting to do before relaying their tally to the office. It was a light turn-out over the county; very light, considering the fact that spending of over $34 million was involved.

Of course, most people took it for granted the bonds vote would be overwhelmingly favorable. That took much of the urgency out of their sense of duty.

Because of the "no-contest" aspects, and because there was plenty of young help available, it was made pretty plain to me earlier Tuesday afternoon that my presence wasn't a "must" deal. But bright lights and a smoke-filled room with a cluster of talking visitors and staffers posed an irresistible lure. Besides, I wanted to see how the voting actually went.

Well, we had the bright lights, but not so many visitors.

As mentioned earlier, figures were going on the tabulation sheets comparatively early in the evening. By 7:30 p.m. nearly half of the precincts had called in.

Long ago, when The Reflector was a fledgling, its news room became a central point for gathering election results from all over the county. Primarily it was a news-gathering function; but as the actual need for providing Pitt citizens with early results of their voting was self-evident, election officials gave continuing cooperation to the process. Poll-holders have, since I've been around, been notably conscientious in contacting the office when their work was wound up.

Sure, once in a great while somebody might forget, and we'd close up shop with one or two precinct reports missing; but that has been the exception rather than the rule. I'm told it hasn't always been so smooth.

In all the excitement and rush of really tight elections, the only instances when nerves began to fray among the staffers here came when four telephones would be tied up at one time with people asking for information on the voting trends, and we were dying a slow death waiting for more precincts to call in. With those phones tied up, there was simply no telling if the people who wanted to give us the needed figures might just give up and go home with the winning (or losing) results in their pocket.

Sure, we wanted to tell the telephoners what the trend was, but ohhh my golly... that tension!

Last night's election-count was a quickie. The working members had all the dope from the precincts by 8:00 o'clock and went to work tabulating all the "fors" and "agains". The whole process just clicked like it never did when I was mixed up in it. There must be a connection.

Other Editors Saying ... First Or Second?

(Wall Street Journal)

When the doctors debate, the patient is in a poor case, to judge. But it is not unreasonable for him to draw some uneasiness from the very disagreement, and not unnatural for him to have some doubts about the assurances that everything is all right.

This is somewhat the situation in which Americans find themselves, at this juncture, in the debate over our space program. The layman can hardly join in the technical arguments over this type of missile or that one, of the relative merits of this propellant or that, or even over what type of agency is best suited to direct a missile and space program. For that matter the public has difficulty forming a clear opinion as to whether the Russians are, as some say, dangerously ahead in the missile race or whether, as others assure us, the appearance is deceiving.

Nonetheless, it seems to us, the public's uneasiness about our missile program is not unreasonable.

There is, for one thing, the incontrovertible evidence that in at least one phase of this program, the exploration of space, the Russians have done things which we are as yet unable to do. They were the first to put any kind of satellite in orbit. They have been able to orbit heavier hardware than we. And they have been able to put them farther into space than we.

To some extent these things can be dismissed as "stunts." From the viewpoint of immediate national defense needs, an accurate 6,000-mile missile carrying an atomic warhead is more essential than a radio projectile wandering around the moon. And in this kind of weaponry there is trustworthy testimony that we are on a par with, perhaps even ahead of, the Soviet Union.

But the uneasiness doesn't arise entirely from what the Russians are doing. There is about our own space program an air of confusion that would be disturbing all by itself. Authority has been divided, redivided and shifted, agencies have been created and dissolved, and projects have been scheduled, unscheduled and rescheduled to the point where it is a steady job to keep track of it all. There is little constancy about it that might inspire confidence.

And, finally, there is another source of uneasiness for many thoughtful people. History is witness that scientific knowledge is all of one piece and that when a new frontier is crossed, as the Russians are now crossing the frontier of space, the area of new knowledge acquired has unimagined dimensions. To the question "What good is it?" there can only be the philosopher's retort, "What good is a new baby?"

So after the "stunting" quality of moon-shots is fully recognized, there remains the fact that from their space missiles the Russians are acquiring some knowledge, however small it may be, about missilery in general and about space itself in areas we have not yet reached. And being Russians, they are not likely to share that knowledge. In that regard, anyway, we are in second place.

The standard American cure for all ailments, of course, is more money. Perhaps that is part of the cure here, and if it is then we need to take a look at some other things we are doing, as does any patient confronted with bigger doctor's bills, and then allocate a larger share of the present budget to this end. But the American public, looking at all the confusion and bickering in the present program, ought not to be reassured just by promises of more spending.

It took money to break through the frontier of nuclear power. But the essential ingredient was the one thing that so far seems to be lacking in our space program, a determination to be the first—not the second—across a frontier of knowledge.

Why Interest Rates Are Higher

By ELMER ROESSNER
"Why is the interest rate so high?" many readers ask. They are finding it costs more to borrow money or to carry instalments. Even the government is paying 5 per cent for borrowed money, although it seems to be able to get more than it needs at that rate.

There are two reasons, one following the other: First, the government is no longer "managing" money as it did during the New Deal days. In those days it bought up government bonds as fast as they fell below par. Since they were originally issued at low rates, this tended to keep government bond rates low, and that was reflected in other interest rates.

In addition, the Federal Reserve loaned money to banks at low rates, enabling banks to lend it again at low rates, now the "rediscount rate," as it is called, is higher. Banks must pay more, hence they must charge more and people who borrow money from banks to lend—such as factors, small loan companies, instalment sellers and others—must charge even more.

SHORTAGE OF SAVINGS
Second, the old law of supply and demand is affecting the price of borrowed money. The demand is up, the supply is down, and the price goes up.

The Treasury is increasing its debt by some $8 billion this year. Congress increased the debt limit to $295 billion. Having done so, Congress and the bureaucrats will come up with ways to spend more money simply because there is more available through borrowing.

Consumer indebtedness—largely charge accounts and instalment commitments—are increasing at around $5 billion a year. Home mortgage indebtedness is rising by about $19 billion a year.

States and city governments are increasing their indebtedness by almost $6 billion a year, and the rate of increase is rising.

Corporations are increasing their borrowing, but at a much slower rate. They are thinking twice before bringing out bonds at a time they may have to agree to pay 5 1/2 to 6 1/2 per cent interest for the next 20 years. Postponing a new plant or mill may be more prudent.

WHENCE THE MONEY?
The basic source of money for hire is savings. Savings are running around a rate of 20 billion a year. That's only half enough.

Payment of maturing bonds, etc., will produce more. But there's still a gap between savings and demand for borrowing, and as is always the case when the supply is less than the demand, the price rises. That's why interest rates are high today. Should the government do something about it? Should it re-

Newer Plato Say--

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—Sidewalk scrawls by a Pavement Plato: Man, who cannot justify himself, must accept the weather. As most mortals ache, they find God.

The prettiest sight in the world is a girl with 10,000 freckles seriously plagued by a pimple. The ordinary man always extends a helping hand except to himself.

To reach an ear—first gossip. To reach a mind—start with one. Loves, like landscapes, reflect a point of view.

The other fellow's pickle flavored our own menu of living. Time is the slave of the rich in patience. One who doesn't have time has no servant.

The greatest human reservoir is watered by the milk of human kindness. A devil in earnest wins more applause than an angel in doubt. Love differs from money. Love is a medium of exchange and a measure of valor.

Words are the open sesame to deeds. In weighing, much is wanted, much wasted. Some say the world's a swamp, some say it's a plain; under the remorseless sky, few are more vulnerable than you and I.

Time is the surest blessing or the most certain blasphemy. The unrealized dreams of all men turn them into children of themselves.

As we buy more certainty we are sold more by doubt. The four words in the English language that most often are raised to rebuke God are: how, why, where, when?

As man gets more of what he feels he wants, he becomes more aware of what he feels he needs. Copebook maxim: What lies ahead, lies behind.

In terms of lifelong health, one of man's greatest physiological errors is that he replaces the habit of sucking his thumb with more harmful ways of expressing his inescapable and inborn nervousness. This handy childhood solution he replaces at his own adult peril and pays at his own adult price—lung, stomach and heart ailments, possibly even wars and divorces.

What fundamentally differentiates man from other animals is his nervous ability, and the power of concentration to sustain and achieve a purpose, remote from the physical urgencies of the moment. Worry about now marks the mouse and microbe; worry about tomorrow stains and identifies the man.

Opinions In Brief

"A strong editorial policy is the best indication of a good newspaper. It matters not whether an individual agrees with what a newspaper says editorially—it does matter a great deal as to whether the reader, through the medium of the editorial, gives consideration and thought to the subject at hand. If he strongly opposes a newspaper's opinion, it is all for the best since it indicates that he has read and considered the subject and has found it to be contrary to his own beliefs. New 'Miracle Drug' Coming Up To Remedy The Skin Fungus Diseases

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Many persons once spent thousands of dollars over long periods of years trying to get rid of such uncomfortable and embarrassing diseases as scap ringworm and athlete's foot.

Today, says Dr. J. L. Pipkin, a dermatologist of San Antonio, Tex., such skin disorders can be cured in a few days at a cost of about $20 for pills.

The medicine is griseofulvin, a new drug for fungus diseases. Pipkin and others among more than 200 physicians from the United States and 11 foreign countries described it today as the greatest medical discovery since penicillin.

The physicians were here to attend a symposium sponsored by the University of Miami. A year ago, Dr. Harvey Blank of the university first gave griseofulvin to a human patient and got a cure after all else had failed.

His announcement that he had cured 30 patients without a failure and without any unfavorable reaction caused a sensation.

Given in pill form, griseofulvin has shown such dramatic results Johnson & Johnson McNeil Laboratories has gone into mass production to satisfy the demand.

The drug is available only by prescription.

The first patient Blank cured was dying of a fungus infection over his entire body. Such cases are rare, but skin disorders are a cause of much human misery.

They disfigure, sometimes disable, and can have a strong psychological effect on their victims. It is estimated that they prompt 15 per cent of all visits to doctors' offices.

Dr. Norman Wong, professor of dermatology at the University of Toronto, told a patient—a physician specializing in internal medicine—whose career was almost wrecked by a fungus infection of the fingernails and the palms of his hands.

"He had been under my care for a long time," Wong said. "His hands became so dry and scaly it was difficult to care for his patients. Eventually, he became so sensitive that he kept his hands clenched so no one would see his nails and his palms. He would not shake hands with anyone."

"Now, after a few griseofulvin pills, he is completely cured."

Dr. William Kaplan of the U.S. Public Health Service at Atlanta said the new drug is clearing up skin infections of dogs and cats. Such pets frequently pass their diseases to humans.

Declares Steel Strike Delaying Space Program

MIAMI BEAC, Fla. (AP)—Space Chief T. Keith Glennan said today the steel strike is delaying a crucial space program—the Vega rocket capable of putting up a Sputnik-size satellite.

He told the American Bankers Assn., in a prepared speech, that "this program, unfortunately, is now being set back by the shortages resulting from the steel strike."

Glennan, administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, gave no indication as to the extent of the delay.

The three-stage Vega was designed to place 4,800 pounds in an orbit 300 miles above the earth, or 1,000 pounds into a deep space trajectory to the moon and beyond.

It was scheduled to be ready for initial flight early in 1961.

"As the situation stands now, it is reasonably certain that in early 1961 the Vega will be the first of our space vehicle systems capable of matching the performance demonstrated by the Russians more than a year ago," Glennan said.

"I have no doubt that the Russians will be improving their systems during this same period," he added.

Glennan attributed the Soviet lead in space exploration to the early Soviet decision to concentrate on ICBMs as the delivery system for the nuclear weapons they were developing shortly after World War II.

"At that time, our reliance for delivery of nuclear weapons was placed almost wholly on the big bombers of our Strategic Air Command," he said.

New Missiles Chief Appointed

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Maj. Gen. August Schomburg has been named to succeed Maj. Gen. John B. Medaris as head of the Army's Missile Command.

Medaris is retiring Jan. 31 as chief of the Army rocket team at Huntsville, Ala. With Dr. Wernher von Braun heading its scientific group, this team was responsible for launching the United States' first earth satellite, its first solar satellite, and developing the 1,500-mile range Jupiter ballistic missile.

Schomburg, 51, was named to the post Tuesday. He is now deputy chief of ordnance for the Army. Previously he was assistant chief for research and development.

Medaris has denied his resignation was prompted by dissatisfaction over the way the Army has handled rocket development at Huntsville, particularly the huge Saturn program.

But Medaris' action forced an administration review of the problem. As a result Saturn, a space rocket that will develop 1½ million pounds of thrust, has been taken from the Army and placed under the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Paving Fought By Housewives

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (AP)—Seven angry housewives battled Tuesday to stall a paving project here. They are protesting property assessments for the job.

Three sat down in the street at one point and the workmen took their heavy machinery elsewhere.

Later the women manned a picket line on the disputed street. Husband brought food and drink. The women kept a bonfire for warmth.

"We will stay as long as necessary," said Frances Perkins.

The women all live on the east side of the street.

A. G. Meyers, a real estate developer who owns property along the west side, filed the petition for the paving.

"We just don't think it's fair for little property owners to be assessed for a street paving that will benefit only some big real estate developer," said Mrs. Perkins.

CHAPTER I
Natty Bugworth, his brown beard and the long fringe on his buckskin coat flying, burst into the patio like a charging bull, scattering goats, chickens, and breeds, yelling: "Where is he—the Soldier? Where at is he?"

It was evening, with a misty dark-blue sky arching over the big desert town of Agua Prieta; and at Salzedo's the supper fires were roaring, smoke was rising from the well-known three chimneys, men were singing in the long bar, and lights were springing on all over this bewildering warren, this haphazard collection of one-story adobe buildings, which was part hostelry, part dancehall, and part saloon.

Salzedo's! — the oasis, the Paradise, of Army scouts on leave, visiting ranchers and officials, prospectors who'd hit it rich, and even a sprinkling of trepid tourists who arrived by train and stagecoach from the big resort town to the north, San Geronimo.

Natty, still roaring, grabbed a breed boy and shook him. "Tend my horse and mules, son. I left 'em out in front. I just heered the Soldier was here. Where at is he?"

The breed boy could understand English only when it was pidgin, spoken slowly. He shrugged, rolled his eyes in fear at this huge Anglo, who was six foot three or maybe more, and who, with his long hair, thick beard, fringed buckskin coat, and wolf-pelt cap, resembled a mountain bear more closely in the falling twilight than he did a man.

Natty shook the breed boy gently, he thought—and roared out another string of questions. Fat little Luis Salzedo, proprietor, appeared suddenly from the dark passageway at the side of the kitchens, carrying a shotgun across his stomach.

"Hey! Hey!" he cried. "You let loose the boy. What is the matter?"

Natty let the boy go at once, and cried: "Luis! It's me—Natty Bugworth. Where at is the Soldier?"

The boy ran to the shelter of a shed like a frightened chicken and Luis lowered the shotgun and laughed. "You make so much noise, Natty. Some day you'll be shot. Sergeant Desportes is having his supper. In the long bar. Right through here."

"I know, I know," said Natty, chuckling to himself. "I been away a long time, but I don't forget Salzedo's." He put his arm familiarly around Luis's shoulder. "You got room for me?"

"You friend of the Sergeant, so I make room," said Luis. "But I think he's leaving."

"He's what?" roared Natty. "Tonight, I think."

"No, he can't do that with me having a thousand dollars in my pocket and a-willing to spend it all, except maybe for a grub-stake. Let me by."

Natty rushed into the passageway, stirring up a wind that gently ruffled Luis's hair.

Men lined the long bar from end to end, most of them Anglos, while Mexican bartenders hustled the drinks and Mexican and breed girls waited on the tables against the walls.

Natty could not see very well when he first entered and cursed the candlelight, but at last his eyes became accustomed to the semi-darkness and he passed along through the elongated, narrow room, staring at the men at the tables. Finally he yelled across at one of the bartenders: "You know where the Soldier is?"

"Here I am," said a low, rather muffled-sounding voice, and Natty whirled.

Knowing Natty and his habits well, the Sergeant rose, grabbed Natty quickly round the waist, hugged him, then pushed him away, hit him in the stomach with his fist, then slammed him on the back, knocking him forward.

Natty roared with laughter and contented himself with hitting the Sergeant a hard jolting blow in the chest. The Sergeant sighed and sat down. Natty quickly sat down opposite him, almost upsetting the table, and spilling the Sergeant's coffee.

"How are you, you ole polecat?" yelled Natty. "Heered you was here. Come a-rushing right over."

"How about supper?" asked the Sergeant.

"Why hell, it's early yet," said Natty. "And I ain't hardly wet my whistle. Hey!"

A breed girl who was passing, "bring me a bottle."

He took a big roll of bills from his pocket and peeled one off. The girl's eyes were following all of his movements now.

"Here, honey," he said. "It's a yellow-back. You comree yellow-back?"

"Si, Senor," said the girl, smiling with delight.

"Okay. Bring me a bottle of whiskey and keep the yellow-back. Comree?"

"Oh, si, Senor," said the breed girl, showing perfect white teeth before she left, hurrying.

The Sergeant regarded Natty with mild interest as Natty put the roll of money away.

The Sergeant, in his early forties, had thick dark hair, just touched here and there with gray, narrow, dark eyes, and a jutting chin. There was an air about him of competence, calmness, and repose. Men almost always recognized his quality at once. He was seldom trifled with.

"What's this I hear about you a-leaving?" Natty demanded.

The Sergeant nodded. "Right after supper. Got to get back to the Camp."

"You on leave?"

"Furlough."

"Is it up?"

"No, I got three days more."

Natty roared and pounded on the table. "Well then . . . Soldier, I got a thousand dollars burning hole in my pocket. I'm a-going to spend it all. You can't go back!"

The breed girl returned with the bottle and Natty patted her. The girl giggled, showed her teeth, and left.

Natty put his head on one side and studied the Sergeant in silence for a moment. "You're a-going to stay, ain't you?" he asked anxiously, at last.

"No," said the Sergeant. "I've had enough. I've been looking forward to this furlough for a long time. But I got fed up in pretty short order. Most be getting old."

"Old!" cried Natty, outraged. "Why, you're five years younger than me if I recollect right. Soldier, remember them days at Apache Rock? How long ago was that? Fifteen years or better! Was it really that long ago? Remember that wonderful drunk we had when them ex-Reb soldiers got to shooting at us just for the hell of it? And that redhead that lost her petticoat right in the middle of the street in broad daylight—with the parson passing along? Hell, Soldier, you just can't go and leave me here with a thousand dollars, all alone."

"I'm going back. You want to come along?"

"To that Godforsaken town on the mesa, and get woke up every morning by a bugle! I had a bellyful of bugles during the Big Fuss, a bellyful."

Natty poured himself a drink, then sat looking at the Sergeant as if he had never seen him before. "Trouble with you is, you're a soldier at heart. Always was. Best damned sergeant in the regi-

Vanceboro Team May Drop From Coastal League

Beaufort High School leads the Coastal Conference thus far with five wins, no losses and no ties.

In conference play last week Ayden defeated Contentnea 27-14.

This will probably be Vanceboro's last game of the season according to Coach Pat Jones.

He added, "I think the boys seem to have more fire and determination since I called the game with Farmville of last week."

Concerning next year's program Jones said, "We've been thinking of dropping varsity football and going back to the elementary grades and start a midjet program."

Lane Battles Akins Tonight

WASHINGTON (AP) — Now, let's see, there was a reason for Jack Kearns to come to Washington.

Kearns did mention the nationally televised 10-rounder in the course of a dissertation on boxing, past and present, and his own life and times from the Klondike to Broadway.

Declared the ancient manager and manipulator: 1. Rocky Marciano will return to the ring.

But almost like a football player's reflexes, Boone's thoughts returned to the Appalachian game.

Neatly dressed in a short-sleeved shirt and tie, Coach Jack Boone, East Carolina's head football coach, was hard at work last night studying film of Appalachian's football team.

"Gosh, we should have won last year's game, "Boone visualized as he reviewed the 1958 game, in the quiet of his office, won 14-0 by Appalachian.

"They have a real good club as their record indicates and we expect a tough ball game Saturday. Playing at home again should be a real lift to our club and we expect to be ready," noted Boone.

Hard Opponent For Pirates

Loaded with the job of getting the club "up" after four consecutive defeats, Boone and his staff were optimistic over the upcoming game with Appalachian.

The Saturday visitors operate from an offense consisting of a bigger bag of tricks than a magician. The varied offense of Maryland has little over the North State eleven from Boone, N. C.

The Appalachian line has all the characteristics of a traditional Mountaineer line—big and rugged. Paced by Jim Conger, a 230 pounder, Appalachian will boast a forward wall averaging over 200 pounds per man.

Their backfield will be bigger than the Pirates but can't boast the speed of the ECC halfback duo of James Speight and Glenn Bass.

Fewer Injuries Than In Past

Although deeply involved in the coming game, Coach Boone drifted back over the season as a whole. While running back a play to study an Appalachian pass pattern, Boone cited injuries as a big factor during a season.

"The loss of Bob Gregson, Howard Beale, Clayton Piland, definitely hurt us defensively during the past two games. In a nutshell, the large number of points scored against us in the past two games could be attributed to the loss of these boys.

However, we have fewer injuries this season than in the past. They have just come at crucial times. We feel that our training program has helped eliminate these injuries," he remarked.

Although pleased over the small number of casualties, Boone keynoted the loss of Chuck Gordon. "Chuck was a regular last year but has never been able to recover from an injury in early practice. His absence has definitely hurt us."

But almost like a football player's reflexes, Boone's thoughts returned to the Appalachian game. "We hope to hold on to the ball more this week than the past two Saturdays. We have some second-line offense backs in Walkie Hanford, Tommy Matthews, Stuart Holland, and Bert Stafford but just haven't had the chance to use them. It seems like we've been on defense most of the last two games."

Home Soil Expected To Have Effect

Boone indicated that practice this week has been devoted to gaining perfection on the execution of plays for his pro-type offense. "We have added very little stuff this week but have concentrated on the execution of plays. We hope to eliminate a lot of mistakes that were visible against Newberry."

Most North State clubs are stronger in their own domain and the return to College Stadium following two long road trips is expected to see East Carolina at top strength.

Second place and a bid for the North State crown will be in grasp of the Bucs Saturday when they meet the strong Apps. Both teams have lost one conference game and have three wins. On the basis of past performances, Appalachian will probably be rated over the Pirate eleven.

Expansion Out For Next Year

NEW YORK (AP) — No new teams will appear in the American Baseball League lineup next year, President Joe Cronin said today.

But, he added, that does not mean that the league will not expand in the future.

Cronin said that Saturday is the deadline for submitting requests for franchise shifts involving minor league teams. That meant that if a move to place an American League team in Minneapolis—as has been rumored—all details would have to be ready by the end of the week.

"It is simply out of the question that anything as big as this can be settled in a few days," said Cronin. "When I recently appointed a fact-finding committee, it was with the idea of getting all the information we could on the subject of expansion."

"Then we had the committee appear before Commissioner Ford Frick and National League President Warren Giles for a general

Phants Test Non-Loop Foe Friday

After a muddy battle Saturday night with New Bern, the Phantoms of Greenville are ready to ride again Friday night against Scotland Neck.

Coach Bud Phillips has been giving his boys a rough workout this week, putting special emphasis on pass defense.

Kicking Game Is Stressed At UNC

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS "I think the outcome is going to lie in the kicking game."

Those are the words of North Carolina football Coach Jim Hickey, whose team faces 20th ranked Tennessee this Saturday at Chapel Hill.

"If we can beat them in kicking, we'll be in good shape," says Hickey. And he adds, "This will be our toughest ball game this season."

The Tar Heels also scrimmaged against the Vols' single wing attack, with reserves running the plays.

Clemson, another Atlantic Coast Conference team facing a tough non-conference foe this weekend, worked hard in a two-hour drill.

The drill was one of the roughest of the season for the Tigers. They worked chiefly on defense, but also reviewed offensive plays.

At College Park, Md., Coach Tom Nugent apparently is figuring something new for the Terp's game at South Carolina Saturday.

Nugent said he was working on "a new way to move the ball against the Gamecocks, because

Probation Set For Two Colleges

BOSTON (AP) — The NCAA has placed the University of Mississippi and Arizona State University at Tempe on probation and hinted that further disciplinary actions against other schools may be forthcoming.

"We may have further announcements today," said Walter Byers, executive secretary of the 550-member organization. He declined to name the schools involved.

The NCAA Council, policy-directing body of the group, Tuesday placed Arizona State on a two-year probation and — for the first year of that period — made it ineligible for NCAA national titles and participation in invitational events, including post-season football bowl games, held in cooperation with the NCAA.

Mississippi drew a one-year probation, but was not made ineligible for bowl games or national titles.

Richmond Has Tested Three Of Top Contenders

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Pretty soon now, Richmond Coach Ed Merrick is going to become the ultimate authority on who's who in Southern Conference football—not that he's especially happy about it.

Merrick's utterly fearless, utterly luckless Spiders have made a career this season of meeting the colts of the league, but so far all their efforts of emulating little David have failed—just barely.

The Citadel, No. 1 in the conference standings, squeezed past Richmond 8-7, West Virginia, No. 2, nipped the Spiders 10-7. VMI, No. 4, came back in the final period to claim a 14-14 tie.

This week, Merrick takes his team to Blacksburg for a tussle with the No. 3 club in the conference, Virginia Tech. After that, he'll be in a position to compare all the championship contenders.

The Richmond coach says he's withholding judgment until he has seen Tech because "I have the feeling they probably will be the best of all."

Merrick, like other conference coaches, feels that Tech—a sleeping giant in September and early October—now is fully awake and ready to make its anticipated push for the title.

The Techmen, 1-0 inside the conference, have won their last two starts and evened their overall record at 3-3. If they get past stubborn Richmond Saturday afternoon, they'll have won three games in a row for the first time since the middle of the 1956 season.

The Citadel had a rugged defensive practice in the rain Tuesday and put the emphasis on blocking and tackling. William and Mary, which meets the league leaders this week, also stressed defense and fundamentals, finishing up with drills on goal line stands.

Apps Lead Loop In Two Phases

GREENSBORO (AP)— Western Carolina still is the North State Conference's top team on total offense and defense. But the Cata-mounts saw some of their other leaderships disappear after last Saturday's loss to Lenoir Rhyne.

Appalachian, despite a loss to Carson-Newman, leads in both rushing and rushing defense. Lenoir Rhyne picked up 197 yards passing against Western Carolina and took over the lead in that department, while Catawba still leads in pass defense.

Coach Dan Robinson's Cata-mounts largely retain their position as top offensive team, averaging 326.3 yards total offense per game. Lenoir Rhyne is a notch behind on a 325.2 average.

Appalachian, at 213.3 yards per game rushing, moved ahead of Western Carolina at 210.4 in that department. Lenoir Rhyne has an average of 131.1 yards passing per contest with Western Carolina second at 115.8.

On defense, the Cata-mounts posted a 186.4 mark, compared to Appalachian's 204.

The Apps also have a good lead in rushing defense, 75 yards as compared to Western Carolina's

Can Tell One About 'Triskaidekaphobia'

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP)—Ever heard of triskaidekaphobia? Are you familiar with the home-spun philosophy of Abner Americanus, the legendary sage from Lancaster County? Want advice on when to cut your fingernails? Wondering what kind of winter we're going to have? Triskaidekaphobia is a morbid fear of the number 13. This, of course, includes Friday, the 13th. Persons afflicted with triskaidekaphobia, says Baer's Agricultural Almanac for 1960, will find the second Friday of next May one of their worst days. It will be Friday the 13th. Fortunately for triskaidekaphobiacs, the Almanac points out, this will be the only Friday that falls on the 13th during 1960. Baer's Almanac, just off the press is the handbook of Pennsylvania Dutch agriculture. It is published here in the ballwick of the Pennsylvania Dutch and therefore must devote a page or so to home-town favorite Abner Americanus. Here's a sampling of Abner's sayings: "Take no joy from another's sorrow; his may be your lot tomorrow." "Some folks put religion with their Sunday suits, hoping to find salvation hidden in one of the pockets." The Almanac uses a bit of poetry in advising when to cut your fingernails. "Cut them on Monday, cut them for wealth; "Cut them on Tuesday, cut them for health; "Cut them on Wednesday, cut them for news; "Cut them on Thursday, a new pair of shoes; "Cut them on Friday, cut them for woe; "Cut them on Saturday, a journey to go; "Cut them on Sunday, cut them for evil. "All the next week to be ruled by the devil." As for the weather, the Almanac says we're going to have plenty of cold waves and snow this winter. It describes the winter as one that will be "ferhuddled." The Pennsylvania Dutch word for crazy, mixed up.

Purchased Nearly $1 Million Worth Of Fresh Farm Produce In N.C.

Nearly $1 million worth of North Carolina fresh produce was purchased through the Hendersonville field buying office of Winn-Dixie Stores, Inc., during the period June 19-Oct. 8, it was announced by J. W. Nease, vice president and division manager of the Raleigh division. Winn-Dixie operates nearly 500 supermarkets throughout the South, and the purchases through this single field office during this time amounted to $956,651.65. The company reported significant progress in its promotion of vine ripe North Carolina tomatoes, with an increasing quantity of this produce finding its way into supermarket shopping baskets. Other locally-produced items purchased during the period included apples, pole and snap beans, cabbage, corn, cucumbers, peppers, red bliss and sebaso potatoes, egg plant, butter beans, squash, okra and peas.

Says Criticisms Are On Record

CHARLOTTE (AP)—North Carolina's Atty. Gen. Malcolm B. Seawell says recent criticisms he leveled at gasoline firms are "a matter of public record with the Revenue Department." For that reason, he said Tuesday night, he will not apologize to F. V. Daniel, Charlotte district sales manager of Amoco. Daniel took issue with statements by Seawell that gas firms have been trading among themselves. "I cannot help but believe that your recent attack on the North Carolina oil industry was unfair, unwarranted and unnecessary," Daniel wrote. But, Seawell said, American acquired bulk quantities of gasoline from Gulf Oil Co. and Crown Central Petroleum Co. and sold more than 2 1/2 million gallons to Socony Oil Co. during July and August. Daniel wrote Seawell that Amoco "is marketed exclusively by the American Oil Co."

Singer's Wife Claims Threats

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Charging that she was threatened and choked, the wife of singer Billy Daniels is suing for divorce. Pierette H. Daniels, 27, said in a complaint filed Tuesday that the 44-year-old singer warned her she would not get any of his property if she sued. She said he told her he had friends who would see to that. In addition, she charged, he threatened her with physical abuse. Mrs. Daniels, who married the singer in 1953, said her husband earned $275,000 last year. She asked for an allowance of $1,250 a month for herself and two daughters.

By NADINE GARRIS
Well, that six weeks period has rolled around and report cards have gone out. The only student making Honor Roll in High School was Melba Everette of the ninth grade. Card Of Thanks

The Wahl-Coates School third grade, with Mrs. Lindsay Savage as teacher, received a card of thanks from President Dwight D. Eisenhower in response to birthday congratulations. Each of the 35 students wrote a letter to the President, wishing him a Happy Birthday and including some personal information. Freddie Graf, who has been in the United States only one month and who is just learning English, wrote the President also. The card of thanks came in a white envelope with "The White House" as the only return address. The card read as follows: "Your kind message of birthday greetings means a great deal to me. Thank you very much for your thoughtfulness." The card was signed, Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Pres. Of Guinea Will Visit N.C.

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP)—President Sekou Toure of the African nation of Guinea was due here tonight on the only Southern stop of his current tour of the United States. Gov. and Mrs. Luther Hodges were to meet Toure and his wife this afternoon on their arrival at Raleigh-Durham Airport. Hodges will be host at a bi-racial dinner in the Morehead Planetarium tonight. Toure's two-day visit to the area includes tours of the University of North Carolina, North Carolina College at Durham — a Negro institution — and talks with Negro business leaders at Durham. He has scheduled a news conference for 7:20 p.m. at Graham Memorial Building. Guinea, one of the world's youngest nations, is uncommitted in world politics. Toure's U. S. trip is regarded as a step to win him to the West. His official party includes John H. Morrow, U.S. ambassador to Guinea and a former faculty member at North Carolina College.

Display Ability To Move Faster

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Soviets show a remarkable ability to get an atomic energy project moving in a hurry, says Chairman John A. McCone of the Atomic Energy Commission. But McCone, just back from a Soviet tour with other U.S. experts, said he felt the U.S. program of peaceful uses of atomic energy is "considerably more advanced." McCone told a news conference Tuesday he was shown a thermonuclear machine at Leningrad which the Soviets said they built and got into operation in four months. It would have taken this country a lot longer, he said, and British scientists estimated it would take them two years. McCone said the United States must "find a way to cut down our lead time to a minimum" on critical projects. He pointed out, however, the inherent lack of speed in the democratic processes that required getting things approved on various levels of government. McCone led a party of six American atomic specialists in a six-day tour of Soviet civilian atomic installations. McCone said U.S. developments in nuclear power, controlled thermonuclear fusion, and high energy physics are examples of fields in which he said the United States is ahead.

Pupil Stepped In For His Teacher

MONTPELIER, Vt. (AP)—Donald L. Lindsley II, a teacher in the town of Fairlee, has been deferred from the draft since one of his students wrote to President Eisenhower. The Vermont Selective Service Appeal Board said Tuesday it granted Lindsley an occupational deferment. It said a 12-year-old pupil wrote the President a letter praising the teacher for "his proficiency in duties as principal, teacher and athletic coach."

Flynn's Young Protege Aiming For Share In Estate Of Actor

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Even for a town so rich in exhibitions and so short on inhibitions, it was a decidedly unusual news conference. The star, teen-ager Beverly Aadland, announced in troubled tones that she will not have a child by Errol Flynn, the late actor, to whom she was not married. But her attorney announced he will try to get her some of Flynn's estate. He said part of it is rightfully hers. Miss Aadland, a slim 17-year-old blonde who was with Flynn much of his last two years, met newsmen Tuesday at a white mansion overlooking the Sunset Strip. "Miss Aadland is not pregnant," said her attorney, Melvin Belli, adding: "She learned that only today." "I'm very sorry that I'm not," said Miss Aadland, "because we wanted a baby very much." Flynn, who died this month, was separated from his third wife, dancer Patrice Wymore. Miss Aadland, an aspiring actress who has done some dancing herself, said she and Errol planned to marry as soon as he got a divorce. Miss Aadland was dressed in black, had no make-up on, and appeared pale as she confided to a flock of reporters that she was not pregnant. "My reaction is one of sadness," she said. Then her voice cracked and tears swelled in her large eyes. Miss Aadland, who met the life-loving Flynn on a movie lot, said the actor dictated a document to her in Cuba last December. She said it provided for her and any male child she might have. She said she made three copies, explaining that she can't spell very well and had to make corrections before completing a final draft. This draft, she said, was signed by Flynn. Miss Aadland said two copies, including the signed one, went to the actor's New York attorney, Justin Golenbock. The third copy, she said, is stored with her clothes in New York and is not available to her because the clothes are under Flynn's name. Unsigned documents — purportedly drawn up in Cuba last December and providing that the girl would get one-third of Flynn's Jamaica property — were filed by Golenbock with a New York court Monday. Golenbock has refused to give Belli copies of the documents, saying Miss Aadland has "no interest" in the matter of Flynn's estate. Belli said Golenbock failed to carry out what Flynn felt was "A sacred trust." Belli said he believes the papers were intended by Flynn as a contract in life, not necessarily a new will. Eventually, Belli said, the matter may have to be decided in Jamaica under common law.

Boy Plays Football With A Wooden Leg: No Handicap

The 19-year-old Negro youth, a keystone in Coach Robert Jenkins' defensive line, plays football with a wooden leg.

"He's definitely college material as he's a fine player, good student, and behaves himself," Jenkins says.

Rucker has been clocked running the 100-yard dash in full football regalia in 13 seconds. He says he could do better if he had two good legs.

But Rucker prefers wood in his leg to the newer, lighter plastics.

"The Crippled Children Society gave me a new plastic leg one time that was supposed to be much better than my wooden one," said the cheerful youngster.

"Turned out it wouldn't hold up, though."

Because of the wear and tear on the wooden leg, Coach Jenkins vows he's getting to be "one of the best wooden leg repairmen around."

On several occasions, play has been halted while Jenkins made adjustments or minor repairs in his guard's leg. Once in a game with C. A. Johnson High School, Jenkins' skill failed. He tried to patch up a break with tape, but it wouldn't hold. Johnson went on to win with the Lincoln defense weakened by Rucker's absence.

In the hard contact of football, Rucker says his leg is occasionally an advantage. One bruised opponent once demanded that the referee search Rucker to see if he had "a piece of steel or something under his stocking."

Frequently, says the coach, curious players come to the bench after the game to ask "which one has the wooden leg."

Rucker is a four-time class president, associate editor of the school newspaper, co-captain of the team and leader of a five-man vocal troupe known as the Five Letters.

The rock 'n' roll group made two records under the Ivy label in New York last summer and plan another recording session next year.

Jenkins says he'd like to see Rucker go to college, but doubts that he could without "some kind of help."

Rucker lost his leg at the age of 7 in Spartanburg, where he lived at that time.

He was out searching for coal and failed to hear a train on the tracks behind him.

"The ambulance driver said I was the best patient he ever had," Rucker recalls. "I didn't even cry."

Rose High Has 42 On Its Honor Roll

"A very good percentage" of the 650 student Junius H. Rose High School enrollment made the honor roll for the first grading period, according to Principal O. E. Dowd.

Forty-two students, or seven percent of the student body were named to the select group on a list released this morning by the principal. Three of this number received grades of "1" with the remainder having all "1's" and "2's."

The three with all top grades included one freshman and two seniors. Brenda Thippen of the ninth grade and seniors Vickie Avery and Barbara McRoy were listed as having received "1's" on all courses.

Others on the honor roll were: ninth grade — Barbara Minges, Ann Daniel, Susan Laughter, Donna Little, and Allen Van Dyke; 10th grade — Ann Hunt, Peggy Stubbs, John Lansche, Janice Laughter, and Gigi Guice.

Eleventh grade — Barbara Allen, Jean Trahey, Melinda Coleman, Pat Gurganus, Craig Worthington, Bill Wade, Kathryn Winchester, Edward Hooks, Mary Lou Berry, Marie Gibbs, Ricky Harrington, Ruth Clark, Ben White, and Linda Gaskins.

Twelfth grade — Bill Clapp, Charles Puryear, Lois Tunnell, Kay Kennedy, John Kelley, Clark Brewer, Carole Wilkerson, Charles Reynolds, Ann Greene, Charles Taft, Ann Briley, Judy Prestille, Goldis Starling, Jeanette Taylor, and Brenda Harris.

Dowd stated that at this time last year there were 44 Rose High students listed, but added that the number "will improve with the second marking period."

Reginald Harris Dies In Roxboro

ROXBORO, N.C. (AP) — Reginald Lee Harris, political, business and educational leader who served as lieutenant governor and House speaker, is dead.

The 69-year-old Roxboro cotton mill executive, suffering the effects of a long period of declining health, was felled Tuesday by an attack of bronchial pneumonia and complications of a heart disorder.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete, pending arrival of out-of-state members of his immediate family.

Harris, chairman of the board of Roxboro Cotton Mills and Peoples Bank in Roxboro, was elected lieutenant governor in 1940 by the largest vote ever received until that time. He served under Gov. Melville Broughton.

A member of the State House of Representatives in 1927, 1929, 1931, 1933, 1935, 1947 and 1949, Harris served as speaker in 1933.

He held state educational posts, including a term as chairman of the State Board of Education from 1943 to 1945. He represented the state as a delegate to Democratic party national conventions in 1936, 1940 and 1944.

Survivors include his widow, the former Katherine Long of Roxboro, and six children.

Highest elevation in Oregon is snow-capped Mount Hood which rises 11,245 feet above sea level.

Defeats Another Pneumonia Case

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Walter Williams, 116, only living veteran of the Civil War, survived another pneumonia attack and his physician says he expects the old man to reach his 117th birthday next month.

Dr. Russell S. Wolfe said Williams suffered the attack last Tuesday and was under an oxygen tent for four days and fed by eyedropper.

But he said the Confederate is no longer under the oxygen tent and is in "pretty good" condition.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The independent auto producers dominated a mixed stock market early this afternoon. Trading was heavy. Studebaker-Packard, under a tremendous build-up of demand, was delayed nearly two hours in opening.

The initial trade was a monster block of 75,000 shares with the price up 2 1/2 to a new high of 29. American Motors also roared ahead, adding more than 3 points as it reached another new high.

Additional excitement was caused by Westinghouse Electric's 2 for 1 stock split. Buy orders piled up so quickly that trading in this stock had to be halted temporarily. It soared 4 points after re-opening on a block of 4,000 shares, up 2 3/4 at 96.

Meanwhile, steels continued to back away as a decision by the U.S. Supreme Court was pending on use of a Taft-Hartley injunction in the strike.

The Big Three motors were mixed. Rails declined. Oils were unchanged to irregularly higher.

Most of the space age issues continued to back away from their latest surge to the upside.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 20 cents to $223.80 with the industrials up 60 cents, the rails down 50 cents and the utilities up 20 cents.

Both corporate and U.S. government bonds were unchanged to a shade easier.

Steel Strike Dampened General 'Good Times'

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — The steel strike has muted the general good times—if figures don't lie. But many think it may have just put off the date when the happy days hit their peak.

Those who think of the stock market as a barometer of what is to be expected six months ahead hold that now the smart-money boys are betting that the business boom—once supposed to be ready to level off early in 1960—will get its second wind and keep going until the middle of 1960.

Labor says the strike, when it crossed the 100-day-old mark, hadn't reached the national emergency stage. The government holds otherwise.

But the figures — government

Stassen Willing Support Either

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Harold E. Stassen, Republican candidate for mayor of Philadelphia in the Nov. 3 election, says he is ready to support either Vice President Richard M. Nixon or New York Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller for president.

At a Union League political luncheon he Tuesday, Stassen reiterated he would take no part in the Republican national convention if a fight develops between the Nixon and Rockefeller forces.

"I am perfectly ready to accept the record of both men and wage an all-out effort for either Vice President Nixon or the other nominee in carrying Philadelphia and Pennsylvania in 1960," Stassen said.

Stassen, former governor of Minnesota and one-time disarmament advisor to President Eisenhower, touched off a drive to dump Nixon in 1956. The campaign never got going.

B58 Wrecked In Test Flight

HATTIESBURG, Miss. (AP) — A B58 jet bomber crashed and exploded near here Tuesday night about an hour after taking off on a test flight. Two of the three civilian crew members were safe and the third was killed.

All three worked out of the Fort Worth, Tex., office of the Convair Aircraft Corp.

Everett Wheeler, the pilot, and Michale Keller, flight engineer, escaped. Rescue teams early today found the third crew member dead. He was identified as Harry Blosser.

The new B58 had not been delivered to the Air Force. Wheeler, 37, a test pilot for nine years, said the B58 is the costliest and fastest manned bomber in the United States arsenal. Estimated cost for the first models is nearly 20 million dollars each. They have been flown at about 1,200 miles an hour.

The first squadron to which the B58s have been assigned is the Strategic Air Command's squadron that will operate from Bunker Hill Air Force Base, Ind. Some members of this unit are already at the base and others are training in use of this first American supersonic bomber at Carswell Air Force Base in Texas.

The Air Force said the wrecked plane did not carry nuclear weapons.

Invalid Stickers Are Sponsored By Rotary

The Greenville Rotary Club is sponsoring the issuance of reflectorized invalid stickers to aid Greenville firemen in identifying homes and bedrooms of invalids who, in the event of fire, rescue efforts may be carried out without delay.

According to Fire Chief George Gardner, by identifying the homes and bedrooms of invalids, it will reduce the danger of loss of life by fire.

Any person who is permanently disabled and who cannot escape from a burning building without assistance will be furnished the stickers for his front door and bedroom window. In the event of fire, the house will then be immediately recognized as one in which there is a person unable to attempt escape alone.

The additional marking of the bedroom will result in rescue operations starting without loss of time.

This project includes all crippled, paralyzed, blind and any other type of bedridden or wheelchair patients, but not those whose disability is temporary, as in the case of a fracture or an infant child.

It is hoped the survey of the disabled persons in Greenville will be complete by November 15. All interested persons are requested to call the Fire Department headquarters if they have a family member who is permanently disabled and in need of this special protection.

There will be no charge made for the emblems.

Fulbright Raps Castro Tactics

POCAHONTAS, Ark. (AP) — Sen. J. William Fulbright (D-Ark.), chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, says Premier Fidel Castro of Cuba is "utterly inadequate as far as his government is concerned."

Fulbright told a civic benefit audience that Castro "can lead a revolution but he doesn't know what to do after he gets in power."

He said Castro's charges that Cuba was being bombed by Florida-based planes were whipping tactics.

"Castro is floundering around," he said, "using us as a kind of whipping boy. All dictators need somebody to blame. Hitler used the Jews, China used us. Now Castro is using us."
