Nobel Peace Prize Is Awarded To Briton

OSLO, Norway (AP)—The Nobel Peace Prize was awarded today to Philip Noel-Baker, a scholarly British statesman who has worked for years toward peace and disarmament.

The cash award of $42,650 comes as a belated birthday present to Noel-Baker, 70 last Sunday. A Labor party member of Britain's House of Commons for three decades, he received the news calmly in London.

Oschoer of New York University and Dr. Arthur Kornberg of Stanford University; and for literature to Italian poet Salvatore Quasimodo.

Noel-Baker's career has kept him in the international limelight much of the time since the Paris peace conference of 1919.

Shots Fired Into Two Homes Of Wilson Strikers

WILSON, N.C. (AP)—Shots were fired into the homes of two strikers Wednesday night in another flare-up of violence apparently resulting from a strike at Swift & Co.'s plant here.

Officers reported that one striker chased down and wrecked a car from which, he said, a shot was fired into his home.

Percy Flowers' Plea On Docket

GREENSBORO (AP)—J. Percy Flowers' petition for relief from more than $200,000 of government assessments is first on the docket for the session of U.S. Tax Court convening here Monday.

The incidents also came after officials of the plant and the meat packers union had reported a breakdown in contract negotiations.

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa. (AP)—J. R. McGuiness chuckled last May when he won the Democratic nomination for alderman in this southwestern Pennsylvania community by one vote.

Dr. Aldridge Named Chairman For Pitt Christmas Seal Sale

An announcement today, coming from Pitt County Tuberculosis President Dr. G. Earl Trevelyan, Jr., named Dr. M. W. Aldridge, local dentist, as chairman of this year's Christmas Seal Sale scheduled to begin Nov. 16.

The annual Seal Sale is the sole support of tuberculosis association activity which includes research, patient rehabilitation, case-finding programs, and health education.

Company negotiators have contended that only by gaining more efficiency through changing the work rules can the companies afford to grant any wage increases and other benefits asked by the union without adding to inflation.

Dr. Aldridge, a Craven County native, has been a Greenville resident and practicing dentist for 19 years. He came here following graduation from the Medical College of Virginia. Prior to receiving his dental diploma, he attended East Carolina College and later was graduated from the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill.

Company negotiators have contended that only by gaining more efficiency through changing the work rules can the companies afford to grant any wage increases and other benefits asked by the union without adding to inflation.

Boat Manufacturing Firm Plans Locating Its Plant In Greenville

ANNOUNCE NEW INDUSTRY FOR GREENVILLE—Present this morning for announcement of a new manufacturing firm to be located here were (seated) W. W. Speight, Mayor S. E. West, Glen R. Grady, Don F. White; (standing) A. B. Stallworth, S. Reynolds May, and Judson H. Blount, Jr.

A boat manufacturing firm which will employ initially 100 people and have an annual payroll of $500,000 today announced plans to locate its plant in Greenville.

The announcement was made jointly by W. W. Speight, president of the Greenville Committee of 100, and Glen R. Grady and Don F. White who will represent and manage the local manufacturing firm.

Draft Boards Are Ordered Bring Listings Up To Date

After receiving a letter from the State Director of Selective Service, the local draft board, along with local boards throughout the state, have been assigned the task of contacting every registrant born on or after Aug. 3, 1922, to discern information concerning each one's occupation, marital status, address, and number of children.

They indicated that this is the first time the local board has been required to review the files of the three classifications, but noted that such a review is worthwhile, strictly for emergency purposes.

"We just want to know where we can contact the men," she said, and emphasized, "If an emergency arises, it would be extremely difficult to contact these men quickly unless we have correct addresses and other current information on our files."

Mediators Claim Issue Deadlocked

WASHINGTON (AP)—Federal mediators said today management and union officials are in an absolute deadlock on a key issue in the steel strike.

This is the industry's insistence on the right to change working conditions it considers wasteful or inefficient. David J. McDonald, United Steelworkers general president and top negotiator for his side, has served notice that it would be accepted only "over my dead body."

The government obtained the injunction in federal court in Pittsburgh two weeks ago on grounds the strike is menacing the nation's health and safety.

The company, G and W, Incorporated, will begin its operations Monday morning, Grady said, with training personnel and the building of forms for the boats to be manufactured. The company will also start immediately installing equipment needed in the assembly-line manufacturing process to be used by the company.

Models of the fir plywood, lap-straked boats to be manufactured by the new company during its first year of operations will range from 16-foot family runabouts to 20-foot offshore fishing boats, Grady said.

The company expects to begin delivering units to its distributors by January.

Grady, who is moving to Greenville from Oconto, Wisconsin, for the past six years has been sales and advertising manager of Cruisers, Inc., a major boat manufacturing company. Prior to joining the Cruiser organization he worked for five years with the Thompson Boat Company. He is married and has one son two years old. Mr. and Mrs. Grady will make their home in Greenville at 2613 Jefferson Drive.

White, a native of Vanceboro, will continue to make his home there. For the past 18 months he has been a distributor for Cruisers, Inc. and for Cutler Boat Company for the three-state area of North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia.

Ronald Peterson, formerly with Cruisers, Inc., will be designer and engineer with the new firm. Mr. and Mrs. Peterson have moved to Greenville from Wisconsin and with their three children will make their home at 1610 Longwood Dr.

Other personnel of the company will be employed locally, Grady said this morning.

Manufacturing operations of the company will be located in the Star No. Two Warehouse on Albemarle Avenue in Greenville. The plant will produce 1,000 units for its first year under present production plans, the announcement said, and will operate its own transportation system. The company will sell and ship boats

Hodges Reports Trip Encouraging

STUTTGART, Germany (AP)—Gov. Luther H. Hodges said today the results of the North Carolina trade and industry mission's tour of Europe are "very encouraging up to now."

Hodges told a German audience on the present Western European tour of a North Carolina trade and industry mission. He arrived here shortly after midnight, heading a 12-member party of the mission. The rest of the mission is expected in Germany Friday and all will be together in Munich for three days starting Saturday.

Hodges had a major role in rebuilding West Germany's war-wrecked economy with Marshall Plan money was back on familiar soil. For after World War II, he served as chief of the industrial section of the Economic Cooperation Administration in West Germany. He helped direct spending of American dollars to rebuild Germany industry.

Hodges told a large gathering of German industrial and civic leaders that the purpose of the trip was three-fold: (1) To attract trade for North Carolina ports, (2) To seek European-financed industry for North Carolina, and (3) To create better understanding and good will between our nations.

Quiz-Rigging Described As Act Of Desperation

WASHINGTON (AP)—George Abrams, a former executive of Revlon, Inc., testified today that rigging of the Revlon-sponsored "$64,000" television quiz shows was an act of desperation to rescue the programs from plummeting viewer ratings.

Company negotiators have contended that only by gaining more efficiency through changing the work rules can the companies afford to grant any wage increases and other benefits asked by the union without adding to inflation.

Abrams indicated that Martin Revson, former executive vice president of Revlon, may not have been aware that the destiny of contestants was decided in meetings between producers and the sponsor.

Abrams was called as a witness before the House Legislative Oversight subcommittee in an effort to reconcile earlier conflicting statements made by him, Revson and the shows' producers.

Approve Plans For Christmas Parade In Ayden

AYDEN—Final plans for the annual Christmas parade here were approved by the Board of Directors of the Ayden Chamber of Commerce at a meeting Tuesday.

The parade, to be held December 5 at 3 p.m., will follow closely the theme of last year, and will be composed of entries from local civic, religious, fraternal and non-commercial organizations.

Prizes totaling $175 will be offered to local participants. Qualifying organizations who wish to enter the parade are requested to contact Mr. Floyd Rowe through the Ayden Chamber of Commerce office before November 14.

The parade committee is composed of A. F. Rowe Jr., J. P. Sumrell, James Langston, J. R. Taylor, J. R. Abernathy, and Boyd Elliott.

RALEIGH — Turkey will hold the spotlight at poultry counters during November and will be featured for Thanksgiving entertaining.

Fryers continue to be a budget buy this weekend, according to Mrs. Ruby P. Uzzle, consumer marketing specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service. Eggs advanced slightly in price but remain an economical protein food buy. Medium sizes are increasing in supply as spring laying flocks reached peak production.

Sweet corn, radishes and cucumbers are best vegetable buys from Florida now. Heavy rains have delayed the vegetable supply. Winter standbys are cabbage, spinach, turnips and greens from North Carolina and nearby states.

Include sweet potatoes in your buying. Good quality and lower prices are found on celery, carrots, and lettuce.

Markets are now well supplied with good quality fruit. Grapefruit prices are the same while oranges are showing a slight decrease. Tangerine volume will increase during November.

Top quality apples are available in abundant supply. Look for Bosc and Anjou pears coming to fruit counters. Bright red cranberries are priced right for eating enjoyment.

Pork prices decreased on loins, chops and bacon. Beef prices fluctuated slightly resulting in several cents reduction per pound on roasts, steaks, and ground beef. Watch for "specials" at the beef section of the meat counter.

Mrs. Bodkin Is Hostess

The Greenville Music Club held its second meeting of the year Tuesday evening at the home of its president, Mrs. Lib Bodkin.

The first part of the musical program was presented by Mrs. James Rodgers, N. E. District Junior Counselor, who spoke briefly about the activities of the Greenville Junior Music Club.

The second portion of the program was given by George Perry, of the ECC Dept. of Music, who gave an oral and musical demonstration of the likenesses between the music of Bach and Gershwin.

He presented Jerry Powell, senior piano major at the College, who played the Gershwin Second Rhapsody for Piano and orchestra, one of the selections Powell will perform his Senior Honor's Recital, Sunday, Nov. 22.

A business session was conducted, during which it was voted that the club would buy for and donate to the Junior club a stereo record player and 10 L-P records.

Mrs. Gates Speaks To Aries Book Club

The Aries Book Club met Tuesday evening with Mrs. Kenneth Hite on Circle Drive. The president, Mrs. R. S. Moye, presided over the business meeting.

Mrs. Virginia Pierce Basnight had the short subject for this program. She read an article by Dr. James Bryant Conant entitled, "Has the European System of Education Anything for Us?"

Mrs. Basnight then introduced Mrs. Jack Gates as the speaker for the evening. Mrs. Gates has recently returned from a tour of seven of the European countries.

Mrs. Gates began with their point of departure, Washington, North Carolina, and carried the members through, England, Holland, Belgium, Germany, Switzerland, Italy and France. Mrs. Gates described the highlights of her trip.

Some of the highlights were visits to the houses of industries, art galleries, cathedrals and castles, the steamer ride on the Rhine, the boat ride on the Amsterdam canal, and a trip through the Alps.

The hostess served a dessert course and coffee at the close of the meeting.

Winter's Casserole Wonder

Judge it by eating. Corn au Gratin in Hash Nest is a casserole wonder, brimful of goodness with pluses for attractiveness and on-the-shelf handiness. With a nourishing meat-vegetable combination casserole such as this one, add only a crisp tossed salad and buttered rye toast. The dessert choice is compotes of canned purple plums and pineapple chunks sprinkled with toasted coconut served with a generous wedge of pound cake.

Corn au Gratin in Hash Nest

1 can (1 lb.) corned beef hash	1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1 can (12 or 16 oz.) whole kernel corn	1 can condensed cream of chicken soup
1 tablespoon chopped onion	1/2 cup grated cheese

Press corned beef hash into a buttered shallow casserole to form a nest. Combine corn, onion, parsley and soup; pour into hash nest. Top with cheese. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) about 30 minutes. Six servings.

Informal Dinner Fetes Miss Buck And Mr. Cox

GRIFTON—Mr. and Mrs. John Coward and Mr. and Mrs. Sam Nelson were hosts Monday night at an informal dinner complimenting Miss Hilda Buck and Billie Cox, whose marriage will take place on Sunday in the Grifton Methodist Church.

Covers were laid at an appointed table centered with white chrysanthemums and tall white candles.

The couple were presented a corsage and boutonniere of white carnations and a gift of silver as mementoes of the occasion.

Guests included Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Buck, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Cox, parents of the guests of honor.

Humber Speaks To Book Club

Dr. Robert Lee Humber was guest speaker Tuesday afternoon when the Inter Se Book Club met at the home of Mrs. Plato Evans.

During the business session, Mrs. M. P. Hoot, president, welcomed the following guests: Mrs. W. J. Hadden, Mrs. W. W. Brown, Mrs. B. B. Sugg Jr., and Mrs. Charles Gaskins.

Dr. Humber discussed varied features of the North Carolina Art Museum. He mentioned obstacles that had to be overcome before the museum came into existence and explained methods used to obtain valuable old paintings.

Following the program, refreshments were served by the hostess.

Bridge Parties

GRIFTON—Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Jackson were hosts last Thursday night at supper and bridge at their home on Highland Drive. Throughout the homese bouquets of early fall flowers and fruit were used.

Tomato juice cocktails were served as guests arrived and later a seafood plate and ambrosia as dessert.

Mrs. H. C. Oglesby and Cecil Cobb were highest scorers for the evening. Other players were Mr. Oglesby, Mrs. Cobb, Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Mewborn, Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Hodges, Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Bissette, Mrs. Thurman Williams and the hosts.

Club Members Tour Museum

Members of the Lector Book Club this week took a guided tour of the North Carolina Museum of Art in Raleigh.

Charles W. Stanford, curator of education and lecturer, served as host and guide.

Among the works viewed were art related to early American history, eighteenth century artists such as Boucher, seventeenth century artists such as Peter Paul Rubens and Van Dyke and paintings by Rembrandt.

Before taking the tour through the art museum, members had luncheon at a restaurant in Raleigh.

Washboard Uses

A far cry from the old-fashioned, rough washboard is a small plastic one—in such unwashboard-like shades as pink, mauve, and white.

It's designed primarily for use while sudsing lingerie, gloves, and other hand-washables. This small plastic helper can be stowed easily for travel, as well as for home use.

Keep brown sugar in refrigerator to prevent hardening.

No Room For Apathy In Blood Bank

It is vital to Pitt County and its citizens that a workable plan be effected to bolster Pitt's participation in the Red Cross blood bank program in order that the county may continue to receive the important benefits of the program.

During the past few years, Pitt County has consistently fallen short of its annual quota for contributions of blood to the area program. In most cases, the county has called on the blood bank for more blood than its citizens have contributed from year to year.

Obviously, we cannot expect the blood bank to continue indefinitely Pitt County as a participant under such circumstances. If we expect to receive our share of the benefits from the program, certainly we must expect to contribute our fair share to the program.

The current proposal whereby each organization will be asked to be responsible for a specific number of blood donations during each visit of the bloodmobile appears a reasonable solution to the problem. It should be more effective than the current method—in use for several years—under which various organizations have taken responsibility for soliciting donors for a specific visit of the bloodmobile.

Under any plan for getting contributions for the bloodmobile, the success will hinge upon the willingness of local citizens to donate blood to the program when called on to do so. It is no more reasonable for the citizens of the county as a whole to expect the area to assume our rightful share of the contributions that must be made to the program. In short, the program must have public support—more than has been evidenced recently—if Pitt is to continue as a member in good standing in the blood bank.

Because Pitt County is a member of the area blood bank program, any citizen of Pitt County is entitled to receive blood without charge when he needs it. Members of his family don't have to hunt donors—and perhaps pay them $25 or so a pint for the life-giving fluid—in times of emergency. A constant and plentiful supply of blood from the area blood bank is available to the local hospital for use of our citizens, and even the rarest types of blood can be had.

That Pitt County's participation in the blood program is of immense value to the well being of the citizens of this county cannot be denied. That the benefits of the program that accrue to the people of the county far outweigh the value of what they are required to give in return is also generally recognized.

The key to the situation which Pitt faces is that of apathy on the part of its citizens toward the program. Certainly Pitt citizens cannot afford to lose the benefits they receive from the blood program.

Leaders who are seeking to reorganize the method by which Pitt will meet its quota of blood donations—and thereby retain its participating in the blood bank—should receive the support of local organizations and individual citizens.

Exemplified Ideal Of Willingness To Serve

The death of J. B. James, Sr. takes from Greenville one of its most prominent citizens and one who was among the most devoted to affording his community whatever services, whatever leadership he could.

In the case of Mr. James, that period of leadership and service to the community covered a span of more than half century from the time he began his law practice here in 1908 until his death this week.

As a young man in his mid-twenties, Mr. James served as mayor of Greenville for a two-year term. Later he served as county attorney for 12 years and more recently from 1941 until early this year he served for 18 years as chairman of the Greenville School Board.

During the period in which he was chairman of the Greenville School Board, the public schools of the city experienced their largest growth in history. The physical plant of the system, though stymied in growth during the years of World War II, was enhanced by the construction of three new schools and major expansion programs at four other schools during the period in which Mr. James served as chairman of the School Board. To public education in Greenville, he afforded leadership that played a large part in building the city schools to their present level.

Over the span of years his leadership was recognized in practically every phase of community life in Greenville, and his willingness to contribute of himself for the betterment of the community as a whole was a distinguishing mark of his personal character.

Through a lifetime of activity he exemplified the ideal of service to one's community and one's fellow men.

Should He Pay Back That Loot?

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—You can start a fast argument with this one: Should Charles Van Doren give back the $129,000 he won through fake on the TV quiz show, "Twenty-One"?

Van Doren admitted three things this week before a congressional committee:

1. The program was phony. He won the money by pretending to think up answers to the questions asked him. He was given the answers beforehand.

2. He lied repeatedly in denying the show was rigged.

3. He is full of remorse for the fake and the lies and "I would give almost anything to reverse the course of my life in the last three years."

But when reporters asked him if he would give back the money, he said he didn't know. He said he owes more than he has left. Taxes took more than half his winnings. The rest, apparently, has been spent.

So it might take more than a lifetime to return the money, particularly since Columbia University has just dropped him from a $5,500-a-year teaching job and NBC has just canceled his $50,000-a-year contract with the network.

This is where the question comes in. If he is truly repentant for what he did and wants to make amends, shouldn't he return the money as dishonestly earned? But was it earned dishonestly?

In the first place, to whom should he return it? Van Doren says Albert Freedman, producer of the show, not only was the one who slipped him the answers but actually talked him into accepting them to help himself and build up audience-appeal for the program. You can argue that since the two men agreed on how Van Doren should earn the money, and since Van Doren and Freedman each carried out his part of the bargain, then Van Doren earned his money honestly although being dishonest with everyone else.

You could argue that the money was not Freedman's but belonged to the drug company which sponsored the show and, since the winnings were earned through deception, if only on the public, they should be returned.

But does Van Doren have an obligation to the company? It sponsored the program to get the widest possible audience for the advertisement and sale of its product.

And it cannot be denied that Van Doren, although through a fraudulent performance, worked up national interest and a tremendous audience.

When Everything Stops

The other night the lights went out down our street.

It happened while part of supper was on the stove, and being electric, progress in the kitchen came to a halt.

A clock stopped. The refrigerator stopped. The youngsters who were simultaneously watching television, looking at a picture book and building a house with plastic blocks came alive with a surprised "Hey!"

There was some confused scrambling and fumbling around to locate candles, but when they were lit the atmosphere was still one of waiting for the lights to go back on.

It was just a little bit aggravating to see electric current on the street running parallel to ours was uninterrupted. THEY had lights, we didn't.

The power interruption lasted about thirty minutes, during which time the small fry became great admirers of that new marvel of modern ingenuity called "candles".

When the lights came on again, the normal flow of activity resumed.

It was just a little thing, a temporary power failure along the line, but it was a strong reminder of how much we are dependent upon electricity in our everyday lives. When the power goes off, it seems as though just about everything comes to a standstill.

Other Editors Saying Advertising Censorship

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

Business expenses incurred in the normal conduct of any enterprise have traditionally been construed in America as including all outlays necessary to the continued existence and prosperity of the undertaking. If certain proposals now before the Internal Revenue Service are permitted to stand, this will no longer be true.

Under the new regulations, it will not be possible for an American business or industry, threatened with extinction by cheap imports, to deduct as business expenses the cost of informing the public—or even its own employees—that it is faced with ruin as a result of government policies.

Private enterprise can protect itself against government-imposed advertising only out of profits, says the IRS in a series of continuing rulings which will seriously hamper businesses, trade organizations and anti-bureaucratic activities generally.

As is usual in the case of administrative interpretations of unclear legislation the IRS has liberally interpreted a 1919 statute barring for business deductions "sums of money expended for lobbying purposes, the promotion or defeat of legislation, the exploitation of propaganda, including advertising other than trade advertising, and contributions for campaign expenses."

Under the regulations which are slated to go into effect shortly, the income tax bureau has ruled that it will not allow outlays for advertisements explaining a business group's position on any public matter directly affecting the organization, nor will it permit deductions for dues to trade organizations which act as agents in promoting the aims of their clients.

If these regulations are permitted to stand, the Internal Revenue Service will become an overseer of all business advertising, possessing within its devious channels the sole authority to decide what is "lobbying" and what is "trade advertising."

Complex as they have become, certainly Congress never intended to include in its income tax laws the creation of an advertising censorship board. But that is what the IRS must become if it is to enforce its interpretations of the law.

Every citizen has a stake in the outcome of debate on this matter, because the drain on industrial profits—should industry be required to pay for public service and promotional advertising out of income after taxes—would produce a severe jolt to the economy. Most of the concerns which would be affected pay the maximum 52 per cent corporate tax rate.

Thus for every dollar now spent on a wide range of industrial advertising, two dollars will be required under the Internal Revenue plan. And of course, the consumer pays for follies of the government which result in higher industrial costs.

On either count—heavier taxation of industry and all profit making organizations, or government control of an important segment of private enterprise—there is nothing to be gained but further progress toward national socialism. Only Congress has the power to change the wording of its legislation, but many agencies have the assumed power to interpret as they see fit.

When it becomes necessary for Congress to restate laws already on the books to keep intact legislative intent, that is part of the legislative responsibility. Such a need has arisen as a result of a new interpretation of a 40-year-old law.

Sometimes one is tempted to think the calendar is all mixed up. Yesterday was a good example.

Instead of the bright brisk air of fall, the atmosphere was loaded with the languor of spring. Steps with a snap in them were tempted to loiter along the way. Ambitious undertakings were prone to be deferred to another time.

Any deep-breathing exercises had the effect of putting great weights on the eyelids and the temptation to just sag had to be resisted with unknown reserves of willpower.

Wednesday was a day fit for lotus-eaters. The zip of fall had best return in a hurry or we'll get nothing done.

Once in awhile you hear stories about an honest fisherman . . . which is a nice switch. And to bolster their position in society we'll pass along a story told by another fisherman.

It happened somewhere in the briny deep on the other side of Atlantic Beach. All those hopeful people in boats were hoping for King Mackerel, with a growing amount of dismay in the air.

As is frequently the case, the boat's radio was on and discouraged fishermen were keeping their spirits up by listening to others report lack of progress.

Over the snapping and crackling sounds accompanying communications they heard one conversation about "not much of anything doing where we are. How many do you have in your box, Captain?" And the reply sort of jolted everybody. . . "About a dozen".

"A dozen Kings?", queried the first (with surprise in his voice).

"A dozen mullet for bait", replied the other. "We can't find anything to take them."

Feline Family Friend

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—One lifetime isn't long enough to get used to the ways of a cat.

It probably takes 18 lives—nine of yours and nine of the cat's.

My leading hobby right now is trying to get accustomed to the strange antics of a cat. As one who spent most of his years believing a dog was man's best buddy beyond himself, it was something of an ordeal of adjustment when a cat first came into my world to stay.

Where I live the landlord doesn't mix dogs and kids, and if your kid wants a pet you have to choose between cats and parakeets. So our daughter said a cat it had to be, and this bundle of fur called Lady Dottie entered our lives more than a year ago.

Since then I have had to change every idea I ever had about cats.

For example, I thought cats were ungrateful and selfish. I thought cats were silent and sure-footed and moved about with the disembodied grace of a ghost.

Well, maybe some cats are all of these things, but not our cat, not our dear Lady Dottie, who is becoming better known in our household as "Ole Clobberfoot" or "Miss Hoofbeats."

Lady Dottie's ancestry stretches in an unbroken line from Ancient Egypt to a nearby alley.

This cat is the pampered darling of six children on our apartment floor, and half a dozen more in the building.

She will put up with absolute nonsense from a child.

But the biggest surprise I've had to get used to is in the manner of her moving. Sure-footed Silent Graceful. She has the grace of a disabled buffalo. She is as noiseless as an indoor hurricane. If she ever caught a mouse, it would have to be a mouse that was deaf and tired and lame.

Whether she prowls by night or by day, Ole Clobberfoot manages to knock more things over than if we turned loose a whole kennel of playful great danes.

A cat is wonderful, not for what you think it will be, but for what it becomes to you, and I guess the word for Ole Clobberfoot is indispensable.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

WARNING

With the minds of men and the columns of newspapers full of wars and rumors of war between capital and labor, those of us who have lived quite a few years think often of the laboring man's plight fifty or more years ago. At the turn of the century the American industrial workers were slaves. They were at the mercy of their employer, and, worst of all, directly at the mercy of the foreman of the department or the superintendent of the mill. Men worked unreasonably long hours six days a week and frequently seven. Then came a change, and this change was due to one thing, namely, the rise and maturity of labor unions. The best thing that has ever happened to the American workman is the fact that he can now demand collective bargaining.

But as the philosopher William James said, "We never get enough of anything without getting too much of it." These very unions which have blessed the laboring man are now becoming such a power in national life that they can actually defy the government. Worst of all are the labor leaders. These often sinister figures who largely are without regulation dominate the life of the individual worker, defy the supervisory power of the employer, pour contempt on the government.

Nation ruin may be nearer than we realize unless we can bring these willful men under the power of law and decency.

"A dozen Kings?", queried the first (with surprise in his voice).

"A dozen mullet for bait", replied the other. "We can't find anything to take them."

Featherbedding The Big Issue

By ELMER ROESSNER

The biggest single issue in labor relations at the moment is not wages, not inflation, not the 30-hour week but featherbedding.

Featherbedding — or something close to it—has been the kernel of the steel dispute. Wage rates have always been subject to mediation or arbitration but the point on which the employers stood firmest was control of working conditions.

The steel industry expects that automation is about to make radical changes in its processes. It is probable that within a few years a single man at an electronic control panel can direct the conversion of ore into steel and waste, and the steel companies have to pay for such equipment they do not want to be forced to pay wages to union members who stand by, lolling in economic featherbeds.

TIGHTENING RAILROAD DISPUTE

This consideration has made steel companies firm in resisting union demands about working conditions.

The issue is erupting on another front.

Railroads, which have been paying $500,000,000 a year for work not needed or performed, are toughening up in negotiations with the operating unions.

For years the railroads, reveling in lush profits, have acquiesced to make-work rules. The roads, making fat profits, were willing to pay tribute to unions rather than risk their rains. Now that railroad earnings are lessening, there is less boodle to share with union members. The railroads have the choice of fighting tribute or of losing still more traffic to truckers and airlines.

There are many examples of the uneconomic effects of featherbed rules: one's enough for today; An engineer making the 452-mile round trip between Washington and New York in a single day collects four-and-a-half days' pay, or about $100.

question: "Do the employees involved in 'featherbedding' belong to a union?" The answers: Yes . . . 94 per cent . . . No . . . 6 per cent.

The "featherbedding" by the way, is supposed to have originated at the turn of the century when Rock Island railroad men complained about corn-cob-filled mattresses in their cabooses. A train master is said to have asked, "What do you want, featherbeds?"

Guess they did.

A leading industrial designer, Walter P. Margulies, characterized the Big Three as a "compromise from almost every viewpoint. With the exception of the Corvair," he said, "the new models are just shrunken facsimiles of what we've been seeing on the road for years. The new cars aren't really competition for either the foreign makers or American Motors."

Drama Group Is Staging Comedy

"My Three Angels," a comedy about convicts in a penal colony, will open tonight at 8 p.m. in the McGinnis auditorium. The play, one of a series of 1959-1960 major productions by the East Carolina College Playhouse, will be presented also Friday and Saturday nights of this week at the same time and place.

James A. Brewer, faculty member who joined the college staff last September and is serving as assistant director of the Playhouse, is directing the play and will appear in one of the three leading roles. Last year, while at the University of Southern California, he was cast in the same part.

Because of the audience appeal of the play as a comedy and its popularity in former productions, Mr. Brewer predicts that it will be received with enthusiasm here. The three angels of the title are convicts who have been assigned to manual labor on the roof of the home of the Ducotel family in Cayenne, French Guinea. They become involved in the problems of the Ducotels and help to bring a series of complicated events to a satisfactory close.

Returns From A 'Living Death'

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP)—Pretty, hazel-eyed Nancy Messick has returned from a living death. One hundred and 62 days ago—May 27—the 17-year-old high school senior suffered a deep brain injury in an automobile accident. She lay in a coma for weeks.

Then, Aug. 28, "That's the day—the first time since she was hurt—that she called me Momma," said Mrs. David F. Messick of Winston-Salem. But Nancy's rebirth has been tedious and her doctor says her thinking still has to "come around." She doesn't remember the accident.

She is learning to speak again, now recognizes all the members of her family and many of her former classmates at Southwest High School, and she can count up to 10. Physical therapy is restoring her muscles from the long period of inactivity as she lay in bed in room 507 at Baptist Hospital. She can take a few faltering steps now and raise her arms, but someone still must feed her. This, her physician calls "tremendous progress," for doctors believe the injury permanently damaged the brain. The physicians say Nancy can go home soon, maybe this weekend. There's still a long pull ahead for her, but she can battle as well at home now as she can in the hospital.

Appearing with Mr. Brewer in the title roles are James B. Roper of Belhaven and W. Eddy Barcliff of Charlotte.

Others who have leading parts include Dan Yanchisin of Winston as Ducotel; Lynne Glassford of New River as his wife, and Leigh Dobson of Edenton as their daughter.

Also appearing in "My Three Angels" are William Faulkner of Rocky Mount as a dictatorial cousin of Ducotel; William Bowen of Greenville as the daughter's suitor; Kenneth Harris of Ayden as a confused lieutenant; and Jane Berryman of Greenville as an absent-minded old woman.

A number of the student actors and actresses are experienced members of the Playhouse, have appeared in leading roles in campus productions, and are well known to local audiences. Last year in Arthur Miller's "Death of a Salesman" Miss Dobson as the wife and Roper as the eldest son of the salesman did outstanding work.

Yanchisin, who has been director of several plays and designer of scenery for "Teahouse of the August Moon" and other Playhouse offerings, will leave his backstage role for the footlights in "My Three Angels." Barcliff was cast in a minor role in last year's production of "Romeo and Juliet" at the college. Faulkner is president of the East Carolina Playhouse.

The technical staff for "My Three Angels" and their assignments include Faulkner, lights; Elizabeth Smith of Fountain, house; Miss Dobson, make-up; Rose Marie Gornto of Wilmington, scenery; Miss Berryman, publicity; Patricia Roberts of Farmville and Shelby Jean Grady of High Point, costumes; and Patricia Harvey of Thomasville, secretary.

Going Ahead On Alligator Bridge

COLUMBIA, N.C. (AP)—Steel strike or no, the State Highway Commission still aims to advertise, for bids in January for construction of a multimillion dollar bridge over the Alligator River.

"While it is quite possible that a continuing shortage of steel might cause an unavoidable delay of a few weeks," said Highway Commission Chairman J. M. Broughton Jr. "The January Target is still what we are hoping to make."

Broughton, speaking Wednesday to the Southern Albemarle Assn., said the Alligator bridge and another one over Oregon Inlet "will answer an almost unanimous cry of your people for more than 30 years."

The Alligator River bridge would connect U.S. 64 from the mainland with the Outer Banks. A ferry service currently makes the connection. The Oregon Inlet facility would connect Hatteras Island with the Nags Head area.

Has To Dig Up New Questions

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Jack Boyd, Oklahoma City personnel director, hopes to find enough new questions to give promotion examinations for city firemen next week.

About 90 firemen were half way through the written quiz Tuesday when a three alarm fire broke out at an oil and grease plant and they had to man their posts.

Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, Vice President of East Carolina College, appealed to high schools to "help get the colleges out of the remedial education business" in an address in New Bern Wednesday night.

As principal speaker at the Statewide Principals' Conference there, Dr. Jenkins urged a tightening up of standards in the high schools so that graduates will be adequately prepared for work on the college level.

"Remedial work in English and mathematics does not belong in the colleges," he told North Carolina principals attending the conference. College entrance examinations, he said, should be administered at the end of the junior year with the understanding that all students with deficiencies in English, mathematics, or science, be given remedial work in the senior year of the high school.

For the high school he advocated a "crash program" in reading instead of in science, to end "the vicious cycle of blaming preceding levels of education for all deficiencies in reading."

Quoting Galileo's statement that you cannot teach a man anything but can only help him find it for himself, Dr. Jenkins said, "The student is not going to find much if he cannot read effectively. The teacher can teach until she is blue in the face without the child's getting many of the world's treasures, for most of them are stored in books and must be dug from books . . . ."

"If we want our children to build defenses against Communism, as they most certainly should," he continued, "we must send them to 'Das Kapital' and 'Communist Manifesto' to learn something of the meaning of this ugly ideology."

Urging principals to insist on a strong reading program in their schools, he said, "The child who cannot read well is cut off from much of the world's beauty and most of its knowledge . . . . Because of this deficiency he becomes a mental cripple dependent upon others for bits of knowledge that they may care to distribute to him." Methodology becomes insignificant, Dr. Jenkins said, if the product is shoddy. "We should," he maintained, "try to avoid being in the position where we look at our beautiful schools and our physically healthy children and then have to say that the operation was successful, but the patient died."

In conclusion, he appealed to principals to "get the students in their schools to leave with a burning desire to amount to something. The love for success can be taught if principals will recognize that the education of the heart is just as important as the education of the mind."

Unworried Over Many Candidates

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)—Maryland Gov. J. Millard Tawes says Democrats should not worry about the large number of presidential candidates. It shows "the vigor that is part of our democratic tradition."

Tawes, calming what he said were fears in some quarters that the party will not be able to agree upon a candidate, told a political meeting Wednesday:

"It is my belief, furthermore, that long before the convention the choice will be narrowed down to two, or possibly three, contenders. With no more than that to choose from, I feel that the party will be in a position to come out of the convention strong and united behind a strong presidential candidate."

Feathers Going To Musical Glory

MISSOULA, Mont. (AP)—The usual destiny of most Montana pheasants is the frying pan, but their tail feathers this season are going to musical glory.

Of all the devices of men, there is nothing like a pheasant tail feather to clean an oboe, says James Eversole, band director at Montana State University.

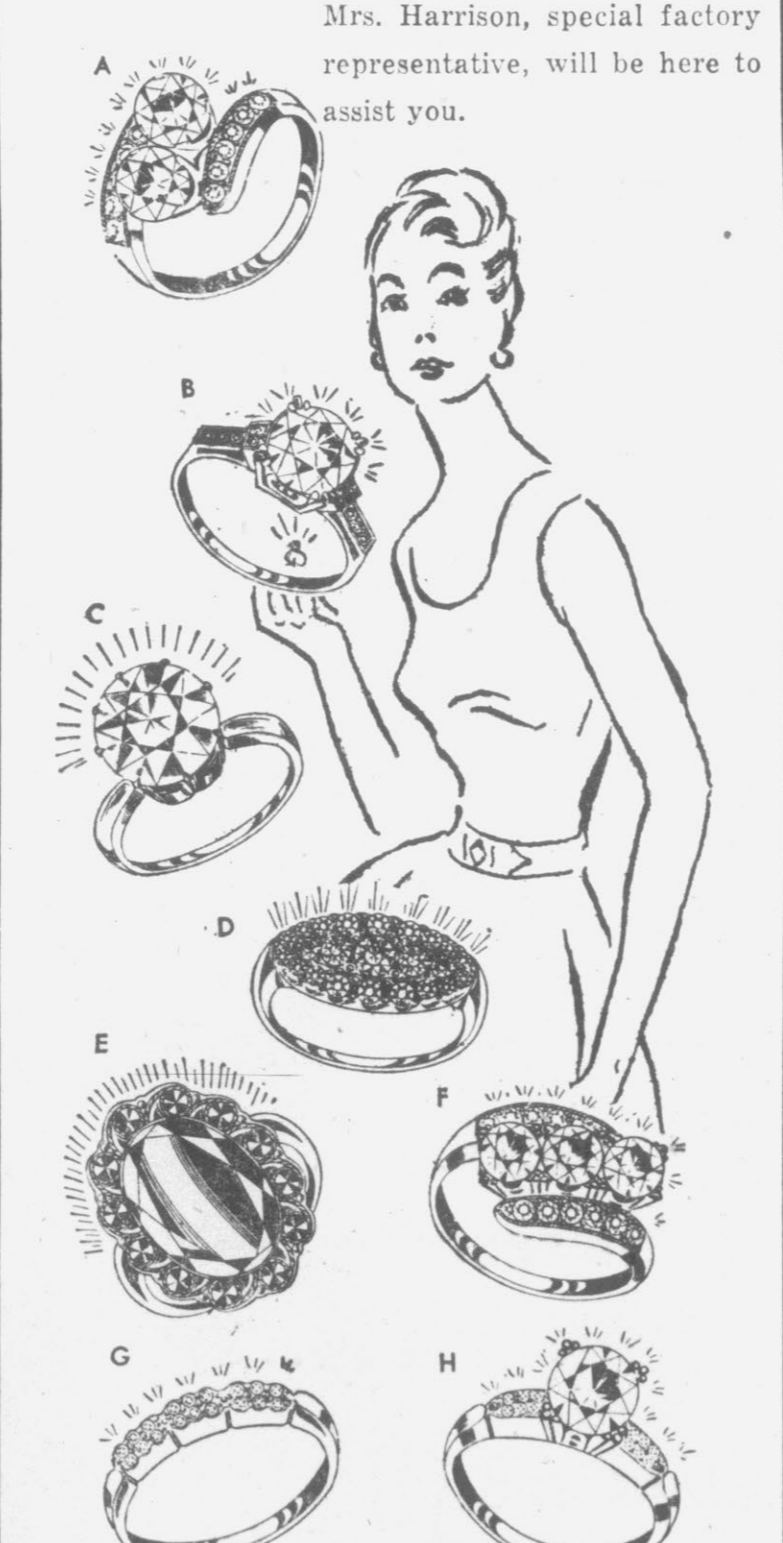

Eversole reports the school is doing a whopping nonprofit business of complying with feather requests from oboists, particularly in the East. The tail feathers are gathered by Lions Club gunners.

"MI AMIGO"

The Exciting New Novel By W. R. BURNETT The Best Little CAESAR

WHAT HAS HAPPENED
This is a story of the South-west in the days when the Indian wars were coming to an end and the times of the outlaw—of cruel, trigger-fingered Billy the Kid, John Wesley Hardin, and their ilk—were just beginning.

Sergeant John Desportes might as well have got a rattlesnake out of a trap as to have committed the good Samaritan act he did while returning from a fur-hunt to his Army post at Mesa Encantada. He rescued a youth trapped in a ravine with an injured leg and took the youth to the post hospital. Then, deceived by "Bud Smith's" boyish appearance and adopted demeanor, Desportes befriends the youth and expects to get him into the Army.

The post commander, Major Eberhard, has become more and more dependent on the Sergeant and, trusting Desportes' judgment implicitly, is an unsuspecting as the Sergeant that "Bud Smith" is a killer who is going to upset the whole post.

An inkling of "Bud's" past is given by Blackpony, an Apache who saw "Bud" kill a man...

CHAPTER 8

Reveille had gone, then several obscure formations — Bud wondered at all the bugles — and then finally mess call, and in a moment an orderly appeared with Bud's breakfast, propped him up, tied a big napkin around his neck, and said: "Well, okay. Pitch in. I wangled you some sausage. Mostly the sergeants eat it all up."

Bud "pitched in" and the orderly lit a cigarette, leaned against the bed and watched him eat.

"How's the leg?" he asked indifferently.

"Stiff, but it don't hurt," Bud replied with a mouthful.

"I hope you appreciate that sausage I got you. It ain't easy."

Bud gave him a shrewd look. "Sure. I'll tell Sergeant Desportes."

The orderly stared, then grinned sheepishly. "I'll say this: for a kid you ain't slow."

"No," said Bud. "I ain't slow — and I'm no kid. I just look young. Be twenty my next birthday."

The orderly grinned again; he was thirty-five. "I don't know," he said. "If it rained soup I'd have a sieve, and you fall off a mountain and along comes Sergeant Desportes."

"Old desert rat we met on the way in said about the same thing. All right, so I'm lucky. Always have been." He paused to chew.

"This Sergeant — he's a pretty big man around this Camp, I hear."

"The C.O. won't let him out of his sight," explained the orderly. "He just about damn near runs this place. You make an enemy of the Sergeant and your name is mud — with two d's."

Bud studied the orderly, with amusement showing, faintly in his light-blue eyes. Well, said Bud, "don't worry, I'll tell him about the sausage."

The orderly showed a slight embarrassment and quickly changed the subject. "What was that brute Apache doing looking in the window at you, grinning? Gardner told me. He was on last night."

"That was Blackpony," said Bud, noncommittally.

"I know who it was — that no-good thieving Injun. Does he know you?"

"Not exactly," said Bud, indifferently. "He was in and out of Sundown when I was there last."

"Stealing every horse that wasn't hitched to a wagon," said the orderly contemptuously.

"Oh, I think he run off with a wagon or two, horses and all," said Bud, chewing, his eyes lowered.

The orderly stared. Bud looked up, grinning; and suddenly the orderly realized that his leg was being pulled, and laughed.

Bud went back to his eating and the orderly studied him narrowly and surreptitiously. All the orderlies were talking about him. In fact the kid was being discussed from one end of the Camp to the other.

The fall down the cliff and the rescue by the formidable Sergeant Desportes made an intriguing story which passed from mouth to mouth, losing nothing in the telling, making the Camp soldiers eager to get a look at the lucky fellow.

Among the orderlies, court was still out on Bud. Used to fuzzle-headed, awkward, raw recruits, some of them older than Bud, they were a little alienated by his casual manner and his complete self-possession. He was obviously not the kind of boy you went for the left-handed monkey wrench. But what kind of boy was he?

Now the orderly turned to look out the open window, leaning down to get a better view.

"Well, dust my buttons and call me corporal," he said. "Will you look at Lolita?" He turned and called to another orderly. "Harry! Come look."

Harry hurried over and they stood gazing out. Pat Maria was passing down the street on the other side, accompanied by Lolita, at all slender girl, with a pale olive complexion, a refined but softly contoured face, and hair, brows, eyes, and eyelashes of a midnight black.

She was wearing a full, black, Mexican skirt, a white frilled blouse, and her hair was up with a big decorative comb at the back.

"How could she be?" asked Harry, ambiguously, as if dumfounded.

"Who be what?" asked the other orderly, George.

"The mother of that delicious Senorita!" gasped Harry.

Behind them a bed creaked. "Man, what a chill!" came a slightly awed voice.

Both orderlies turned to look at Bud at once. There was something about their attitude that put him on his guard.

"What's the matter, fellows?" he asked, mildly. "Don't you agree?"

Harry looked at George. He eyes said? "Shall we tell him?"

This was the first real break in their undercover skirmishing with the boy; the only time he had laid himself open in any way.

Both were of two minds about whether to warn him or let him learn by experience. It was a hard choice to make.

On the one hand it would be a pleasure to the orderlies to see this somewhat presumptuous boy brought down; but on the other hand some way he might muddle through, weather the storm, and continue in the good graces of Sergeant Desportes.

There said George. "Tell him," said George.

"That young lady is Lolita Miro," said Harry, slowly and rather reluctantly. "She calls Sergeant Desportes 'Uncle Juan.' She is being sent to school by the C. O.'s wife; and she and her mother are very religious."

There was a brief pause, then Bud spoke. "Thanks, fellows," he said. "I won't forget this."

"And don't call any of the Mexican girls in this town 'chills.' The Sergeant don't like it."

Bud thought this over. "Between ourselves, fellows," he said, at last, "answer me this. Has the Sergeant got maybe a touch himself...?"

Harry and George looked at each other with amusement, then laughed. "Not a touch, boy," said Harry. Then, "Not that we know of, that is. Tell you what. Why don't you ask him?"

Harry and George let loose now. It wasn't much of a triumph, but it was better than nothing. They both roared with laughter and Harry slapped George on the back.

Bud lowered his eyes, said nothing, began to roll a cigarette. A chill seemed to settle down over their end of the infirmary. Bud scratched a match and lit his cigarette, still in silence. A little nettled, George and Harry exchanged a glance, then George finally asked: "You through with the eats, boy?"

Bud nodded slowly, eyes still hidden.

Harry walked away, rubbing his chin thoughtfully. George picked up the tray and started out. After he'd taken a few steps Bud called: "Thanks for the sausage."

George turned to smile. Bud, however, did not look up, but sat regarding the tip of his cigarette with rather exaggerated interest. Later, out in front, George and Harry discussed the matter.

"He was so mad he was boiling," said Harry.

"Maybe just embarrassed," suggested George, who still had an odd, unsettled feeling at the

If Anything, Astaire Topped His Big Emmy-Winning Show

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
NEW YORK (AP) — "Another Evening with Fred Astaire" on NBC Wednesday night turned out to be another evening of great entertainment.

It was his second TV appearance, but he must have had some qualms: His debut last season was the TV event of the year and his show was voted a total of nine Emmys at awards-giving time.

Wednesday night's show not only equaled the first, but in some ways excelled it. The program had a light-hearted, relaxed air about it. Astaire himself is an urbane, witty performer whether dancing with perfection and skill or singing with his unassuming, curiously attractive voice. He was doing one or the other with ease and assurance during most of the hour.

He danced with the chorus; he danced alone (here, perhaps, he was at his comic best) and he did several delightful numbers with Barrie Chase.

He sang a new song to open the show, and closed it with a medley of old ones associated with his long theater and film career.

Miss Chase, a blonde youngster with a lovely face and great dancing ability, is probably the best partner Astaire has had since his sister Adele retired from the stage. Barrie was a hit in the first Astaire show, and in the second has much more to do, including an amusing dance satire on the beat generation.

However, it was Astaire's show all the way. It was handsome, colorful, painstakingly planned, and there wasn't a dull or shoddy moment in it.

NBC seems to have flipped over it of his stomach. "But I'm wrong, too. He wasn't boiling. That's just an expression. He was ice-cold mad."

They stood in the blazing sunshine of the desert spring morning, wondering rather uncomfortably about the odd, blue-eyed kid in the infirmary bed.

the hit song "Mack the Knife." On Tuesday night somebody sang it on the "Arthur Murray Party," and then Dean Martin followed with his version on the very next program. And it's not that good a song. And speaking of surfeit, why does every realistic police-action series have to have one program about a mad bomber?

It was, if memory serves, the subject of Jack Webb's very first TV "Dragnet." Lee Marvin recently exploded his bomb, with the usual seconds to spare, in a lake, and last week Detective Robert Taylor came through in much the same fashion. The tension built up by a ticking bomb is diminished considerably when you know the hero has to be in good shape for next week's episode.

CBS-Radio will resume its "Hidden Revolution" series Nov. 10 with a show describing the American image abroad — a popular subject on TV this year. ABC did the same on TV with "The Splendid American." The U.S. Attorney General's office has requested TV program-makers to defer all shows dealing with the Mafia pending the conclusion of the trial of the men who attended the convocation at Apalachin. Dinah Shore has signed France's Yves Montand, whose Broadway debut in a one-man show got rave notices, for a TV debut Nov. 15. Tennessee Ernie Ford plans to do "HMS Pinafore" this season. His version last season of Gilbert and Sullivan's "Mikado" was so successful he's encouraged to try more of their operettas.

Disney Unconcerned Over Clamor For Censorship

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A fellow named Walt Disney offers a calming note amid the furor over sex and censorship in movies.

The clamor is growing, both inside the film industry and outside, officially to tag certain outspoken movies with an "adults only" label. Disney's reaction is "Fine! That'll just mean a bigger audience for Disney pictures."

But, on a more serious note, he deplored the trend of film producers to delve into subjects that are shocking and sordid.

"I think they're making a mistake," he commented. "I don't believe the wide audience wants to see such things on the screen. By making those pictures, they're just catering to the jerks."

"To a lot of people in this country, sex is a private thing. They don't want to see it portrayed on the screen. They're offended by it."

On the other hand, Disney doesn't think outside censorship is the answer. "I'm against censorship," he said flatly. "I think we've progressed beyond that, in books and movies and all forms of expression. I don't think some small group of individuals should have the power to say what the citizens of a town can read and see.

"I believe the movie business can still function well by censoring its own product. I'm in favor of pressure groups, like the religious organizations, keeping an eye on what we do. They're a healthy influence. But outside censorship would be bad."

The producer has had only one serious tangle with the censors. That was in 1954, when the New York State Censor Board ordered a cut in "The Vanishing Prairie." The scene showed a buffalo calf being born.

MUSKOGEE, Okla. (AP) — Passers-by made a double take when they passed Ollie Rodden's service station. He put several decoy ducks in a puddle of water in the street to draw attention of the city that the drainage was not good.

TV Networks Report Mail For Quiz Shows

NEW YORK (AP)—NBC and CBS report mail and telegram sentiment in favor of continuance of television quiz shows.

The correspondence also has brought expressions of affection for Charles Van Doren, the admittedly coached TV star. The bulk of it was received by Dave Garroway's "Today" show, where Van Doren was a commentator until ousted by NBC.

CBS and NBC, the networks which nurtured and nipped the TV quiz boom, said today that communications about TV quiz programs generally was streaming in, too fast for complete tabulation.

NBC reporting on a tally of its latest 625 letters, said 468 favored continuation of the quiz shows. 129 were critical of such entertainment, and 28 were undetermined.

A CBS spokesman said: "A large majority of the mail favors continuation of this type of show. They enjoy them, and would like to see them kept on the air, if there is some way of doing it."

CBS said that while the big majority favored continued quiz shows, most writers also lauded the policy laid down recently by CBS President Frank Stanton of network responsibility for the authenticity of its presentations.

Some writers suggested quiz shows without the huge prizes, or lavish gifts. NBC said its correspondence, in addition to showing continued devotion to quiz shows, also showed public backing for Van Doren.

"He's still a hero," a spokesman said.

Garroway said he himself has received about 2,000 letters and more than 300 telegrams, all the latter in the wake of Van Doren's admissions to House investigators, and all but one favoring Van Doren.

The bulk voiced warm compassion, and unstemmed fondness, most of them urging Van Doren's reinstatement, Garroway said.

Garroway himself, on his show Wednesday, had delivered an emotion-choked salute of loyalty to Van Doren, as still a beloved friend, despite his mistakes.

Maneuverability Due Helicopters

FT. RILEY, Kan. (AP)—Troops field artillery and command posts can be moved from one spot to another in a jiffy by a fleet of helicopters.

The Army's First Division demonstrated such maneuvers Wednesday for more than 50 delegates of the Institute of Aeronautical Sciences.

Skimming over treetops from beyond the Kansas River, waves of helicopters delivered troops, guns, ammunition, combat huts, jeeps and other gear needed by a mobile fighting team.

It is estimated that about 60 million buffalo roamed the North American continent in the 18th Century.

Robbed A Bank, Showed No Gun

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP)—Irene Lavern Collier, 42, a former mental patient, robbed a bank of $464 Wednesday without showing a weapon, police said.

Arrested half an hour later while walking down a street, Mrs. Collier told officers, "I never would have done it if I had been allowed to work for a living."

Police said she apparently meant that her record as a former patient at the Osawatimie State Hospital prevented her from getting a job.

The woman's daughter, Lorraine Slavens, had reported Mrs. Collier missing Oct. 25.

Police found the $464 in Mrs. Collier's handbag.

A Home State Bank teller obeyed the woman's command to hand over some money, but pressed an alarm button at the same time.

Mrs. Collier was held under $5,000 bond after arraignment on a federal charge of bank robbery.

Double Duty For Fishing Boats

POINT PLEASANT, N. J. (AP)—Many party fishing boats are getting double use these days as skippers take advantage of the popularity of the romantic moonlight cruise.

After the daylight sportsman has departed, the boats are washed down and the scaling knives put away. All is made ready for a boatload of handholding couples, with the skipper serving as chaperone.

One skipper remarked, "There's some similarity in our day and night experiences. The only strike some unlucky Lotharios get is a slap from the unmelting girl friend."

"They look almost as sad," he said, "as the fisherman who hasn't had a nibble all day."

Physicist New Boss Of Research Agency

WASHINGTON (AP)—Charles Louis Critchfield, a physicist who directs the research program of a big aircraft research program, is the new head of the Pentagon's Advanced Research Projects Agency.

Critchfield, 49, will take over the ARPA job Nov. 16 from Roy W. Johnson, a former General Electric Co. executive who announced his resignation a month ago.

Since 1955, Critchfield has been director of scientific research for the Convair Division of General Dynamics Corp.

At one time he was on the faculty of the University of Minnesota. From 1943 to 1946 he was a mathematical physicist at the important atomic bomb laboratories at Los Alamos, N.M. For part of 1946 he was principal physicist for the Clinton Engineering Works at Oak Ridge, Tenn.

He returned then as a professor of physics to George Washington University here, where he had been a student. He also had been an instructor at Harvard.

The announcement Wednesday by Secretary of Defense Neil McElroy said Critchfield's "main work has been in theories and investigations nuclear reactions and forces, nuclear theory and stellar energy."

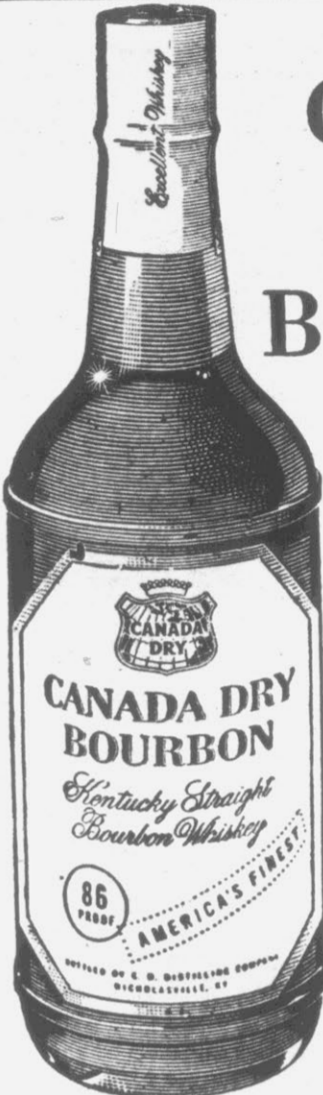

Critchfield will serve without compensation as ARPE chief, but will remain on the Convair payroll under an arrangement that he will have nothing to do with Convair contracts.

A Pentagon spokesman said the secretary of defense is authorized by law to pick up to 10 men who are leaders in their fields to serve under similar arrangements. Convair did not say what Critchfield's salary is. Johnson was paid $19,000 a year by the government.

TO THE MORE THAN 16 MILLION PEOPLE WHO OWN CHEVROLETS

The first and the latest—the 1912 and the 1960 Chevrolet. The progress represented here is the result of continuing efforts to make your new Chevrolet always more beautiful, more useful and more valuable in every respect.

You belong to the largest family of owners in the automotive world.

We hope you're proud of that. It must give you great satisfaction to know that your judgment in choosing Chevrolet has been confirmed by so many other people.

We know that we can hold your preference and your loyalty only by meeting our responsibilities to you fully and completely from the day you buy your Chevrolet to the day you trade it in. And so we'd like to talk with you about our responsibilities as we see them, and what we are doing to meet them.

Our first responsibility, we think, is clear: To design and build products that satisfy your needs and your wants to the highest possible degree. To that end, we have done these things for 1960:

Made the 1960 Chevrolet more economical, roomier, more quiet and comfortable, easier to handle and maneuver. Introduced the compact and revolutionary Corvair. Produced a new line of Chevrolet trucks with unprecedented advances in efficiency, cargo handling, driver comfort and ability to get a job done.

But it isn't enough to design and build the kinds of products you want. They must be built right. Solidly. Carefully.

Let us assure you of this: Chevrolet's fine reputation as a solid, well-built, dependable product is being safeguarded by more checks and inspections and tests, than ever before.

Along with your Chevrolet dealer, we want you to have available the finest and most complete service facilities. That is why we: Conduct training schools for Chevrolet dealer mechanics. Study and recommend im-

City-Limit Fight Can Affect All Our Growing Towns

By GENE WHITMAN
Written for The Associated Press

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — A city limit fight at Winston-Salem may affect the future of every growing town in North Carolina. The double-barreled question at issue:

1. Can cities systematically annex highly developed suburbs under procedure enacted for the purpose by the 1959 Legislature?
2. Or can groups of outlying property owners block annexation, temporarily or forever, by creating their own little towns in the suburbs under broad power granted in 1953?

The city of Winston-Salem — officially North Carolina's second largest city for several decades — is planning another major expansion, its third in 11 years.

It wants to annex small, thickly settled, suburbs on almost every side of town.

The annexation would add 13 square miles of territory and give the city about 20,000 more residents, increasing its estimated population to 135,000 or 140,000.

Winston-Salem is proceeding under a new statewide law passed by the 1959 General Assembly to provide an orderly means of expansion for all North Carolina towns.

Under this law, any city over 5,000 can annex highly developed suburbs by order of its governing body provided it can show in detail that it can furnish them with the necessary city services. (A companion act provides for expansion of towns under 5,000.)

But, briefly speaking, suburbs are regarded as "urban" enough for annexation if they have a population of two persons per acre. If they have fewer persons, they must meet other standards of subdivision and development. A city also may annex undeveloped areas which it must cross in order to reach "urban" neighborhoods with city facilities.

Winston-Salem, anticipating a court battle, is trying to confine its annexation to areas which meet those standards without a shadow of a doubt. City officials say all areas to be annexed have well over two persons per acre and some average nearly 2.5 persons per acre.

A bond election would be necessary inside Winston-Salem to guarantee to the areas that the city can get the money for $8,400,000 worth of water and sewer lines, paved streets, fire stations and other facilities. But there would be no necessity for an election on annexation as such.

Face Prison For Strike Violence

RALEIGH (AP) — Three Henderson cotton mill strikers face prison sentences for their part in violence connected with a long and bitter labor dispute.

The State Supreme Court Wednesday upheld lower court rulings which found the three guilty for firing at National Guardsmen and a non-striker.

Defense Atty. William M. Nicholson said he probably would not know until the weekend whether the defendants would attempt to get their case reviewed by the U.S. Supreme Court.

Johnnie E. Newton was given 24 months for firing a rifle at two Guardsmen patrolling in front of his house in the vicinity of Harriet-Henderson Cotton Mills.

Woodrow Gooding and Leroy Williamson each drew 30-day sentences for shooting at Walter Frank Norwood.

The three cases were the first of many before the High Court involving strike-connected violence. Still undecided is a case in which three union officials and five rank and file members were convicted of conspiring to destroy cotton mill property.

Violin Maker Is Hard To Please

LONG BRANCH, N. J. (AP) — A retired bus driver ran his fingers over the highly varnished contours of his 70th violin and commented, "I think at last I'm ready."

For 50 years, George Washington Hall has devoted his spare time to the art of fine violin making. Now, at 68, he feels that his work has finally come up to his own exacting standards.

Of the 70 violins he has made, 60 are stashed in dismembered heaps in an old trunk. Of those remaining, Hall considers six "good" and four "my best."

public hearing on the annexation program Dec. 18. It has started machinery for the bond election.

Meanwhile, suburbanites who don't want to be annexed and receive the privilege of paying city taxes haven't been idle.

The 1959 act doesn't permit automatic annexation of any other incorporated municipality. So they have decided to incorporate.

A group of residents in a 712-acre area lying between one and two miles north of Winston-Salem have petitioned for a town charter as Hunter Hills, N.C. The area, mostly residential, has an estimated population of 1,000.

Another group of residents in an even smaller 135.6-acre residential development on Reynolds Road (U.S. 421) a mile west of Winston-Salem has petitioned for a town charter as Town and Country, N.C.

The N.C. Municipal Board of Control has called a public hearing on their petitions for town charters at the Forsyth County courthouse in Winston-Salem Dec. 4.

Both of these would be municipalities are proceeding under the state's long-established procedure for formation of towns, an act which was put on the books in 1917 and amended as late as 1953.

This act permits creation of towns with as few as 50 persons and as little as $25,000 worth of

Fiberglass Plant For Aiken, S.C.

AIKEN, S.C. (AP) — Construction of a multi-million dollar fiberglass plant near here by the Owens-Corning Fiberglass Corp. will be hurried along to get production rolling by next June.

The firm said Wednesday that it will build its new facility on a 350-acre site, adjacent to the Southern Railway, about three miles east of Aiken.

Company officials didn't specify the amount of the investment but a reliable Aiken source said he understood it would be between 20 and 30 million dollars.

Plant employment is expected to be 900 at first and to reach 1,200 at full operation. Officials said the annual payroll would be about four million dollars.

Owens-Corning was the second concern to announce plans Wednesday for the location of a new plant in the Savannah River Valley Region of South Carolina.

The Shuron Optical Co., a division of Tectron, Inc., said it had picked Barnwell as the site of a plant which will manufacture multifocal and single-vision lens products.

GUNMEN IN BATTLE WITH POLICE—A policeman (top) takes cover behind an automobile outside "Hoss Creek Inn" near Augusta, Ga., during a gun battle with two prison fugitives holed up in the house. One of the fugitives, Forrest Phillips, 32, of Augusta, was wounded critically in the gun fight. The other, Elmon Middleton, 23, of Harlan, Ky., surrendered. Deputy sheriff William Elliott also was wounded. At bottom, Middleton stands between policemen after he surrendered. (AP Wirephoto) taxable property. Petitioners must be a majority of the voters and property owners.

When the act was passed years ago, it provided for a hearing before the N.C. Municipal Board of Control—a three member board composed of the secretary of state, attorney-general and chairman of the State Utilities Commission. If the board found all requirements of the act had been met and that the formation of the town was for the best interest of all its people and the general public, it was to grant the town charter. But a 1953 amendment knocked out the requirement that the formation of the town should be for the best interests of its residents and the general public.

Does this mean that property owners file the necessary papers.

Does this mean the N.C. Municipal Board of Control no longer has any discretionary power over the formation of towns? That any group of 50 or more suburban residents may form their own town, thus forestalling annexation to an established city?

It may be that only the North Carolina Supreme Court or future general assemblies will provide the answer.

'Medicinal' Plants Folklore Abounds

By JOHN G. DUNCAN

In the ancient days, man's interest in plants was almost entirely in their curative and palatable values. With this interest was also much superstition and awe. As the individual races advanced intellectually this began to wane. In the late 17th and 18th centuries smatterings of this clung to some plants and even until this day traces remain.

Polish Doctors Say It's Tough

WARSAW (AP)—Polish doctors say life is pretty tough. In a survey published by the newspaper Zycie Warszawy, nearly three-quarters of the doctors questioned said they would have chosen some other profession had they known the conditions under which they would have to work.

And 10 per cent stressed that they would have their children choose any profession but that of medicine.

The chief complaint, especially among hospital doctors, was overwork. Other complaints: poor assisting personnel, lack of adequate equipment, too much paper work, inadequate premises and improper organization of work.

Most Polish doctors are assigned to hospitals, clinics and medical treatment centers in the state-run socialized medical system.

One purpose in publishing the survey was to increase public understanding for the problems of doctors, who number only about 8 for every 10,000 persons in Poland. The newspaper commented: "Readers are surprised to hear about all these difficulties. They had believed the legend of the high earnings of physicians."

Like most workers in Communist Poland, the doctors have government-fixed norms of work. They must see six patients an hour.

"When we add to this the necessity of earning some money privately, it is no wonder that the quality of medical service is deteriorating," the newspaper commented.

Hospital jobs are sought, despite the work load, to escape outpatient medical centers which doctors say do nothing to improve one's medical knowledge of professional qualifications. In those treatment centers, Zycie Warszawy quoted one complaint, "Penicillin is lavishly applied and that is all."

Mass Haircut At The Workhouse

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Ducktails, sideburns and pompadours are no more at the Davidson County Workhouse.

Officials ordered a mass clipping Wednesday after saying they noticed several inmates who participated in a riot last week wore their hair in fancy arrangements. Deputy Warden Charles Pankhurst said he hoped that with the disappearance of the lengthy locks went some of the high spirits of the inmates. At any rate, he said, short hair is cleaner.

In early North Carolina, we find that the prime interest in plants were those that cured, eased and fed; leaving until later days the appreciation of plants that teased the eye and tickled the nose.

If the doctor gave you a prescription for "such and such an ailment," you might be able to get it at an apothecary shop; or you could get an axe or a spade and dig up the roots, gather the leaves or rub off the bark from some specified tree or shrub and mix your own prescription.

John Brickell, writing in his "Cultural History of North Carolina," not only seems to have found everything from an aphrodisiac to a laxative and those that lie in between in plants; but also medical values in bird, insect and animals. John Lawson, one time Surveyer General of North Carolina in his book "Lawson's History Of North Carolina" tells of many plants having medicinal properties.

Newbill Niles Puckett, in his "Folk Beliefs Of The Southern Negro," tells of the "Conjure-Doctor" and "Granny Women" and their use of plants for many purposes. Some of the following material is gleaned from the pages of these books. Some is from heresay, and talking with the colorful folks who have brought with them the rich mysteries of Africa.

One of the best ways to get rid of a wart is by using corn. Rub a grain of corn on the wart, and give it to the oldest fowl in the chicken yard. If you lived where neither chicken or corn was handy, just steal a dish cloth and hide it. The result would be the same — vanishing wart.

A sure cure for an ailing liver was found in the roots of the maple tree. To that stubborn boil or sore, the touch of a ripe persimmon was enough — though the pain was "exquisite", healing soon followed.

If you were troubled with chills, the remedy is fairly simple. Bore a hole in the south side of an oak tree — blow your breath in same and seal tightly. This would be the end of your chills and also the tree.

In those days before Aspirin and Anacin, it must have been comforting to know that parched collard leaves tied around the head cured headaches. Brickell says the bark of the dogwood is an "infallible cure for worms in children". But Lawson says the cure is in the roots. As Brickell was a doctor, it would be better to be on his side. Perhaps the modern use of dogwoods as ornaments, is the safer choice.

If your pigs have been eating the nuts falling from your beech tree, the meat is apt to be "oily". You should harden them off on "Indian corn". It isn't a negative fact that the pig can see the wind, but some say he can and that he isn't color blind — the wind is red. The places for such a statement seems to be best fit in the realm of "Swineology".

In the 1730's the lark-heeled flower of the Red Bud made a pleasing "Sallad". You could enjoy the greens of the Poke berry to the "fullest extent", but "don't meddle with the roots". Eating them caused you to be "Frantick for a while, but this is the extent of their mischief".

Top U.S. Rockets Pass New Tests

By HOWARD BENEDICT

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The big three of U.S. missilery — Atlas, Thor and Jupiter — effectively demonstrated this nation's rocket retaliatory power in the past two days.

All three were launched on long-range test flights during a 20-hour period. Officials reported all successfully dropped simulated warheads on designated ocean targets.

The intermediate range Thor blasted off Tuesday night on a 1,500-mile journey. The Atlas took off on an intercontinental range flight of 4,800 miles Wednesday; and the Jupiter IRBM sped 1,500 miles down the Atlantic missile range Wednesday night.

Successful flights are nothing new to this fiery trio of military blockbusters. They have covered the course many times during lengthy research and development programs here.

The United States has declared all three operational and their current test programs are designed to improve their accuracy and reliability. Combat-ready Atlases and Thors are poised on launching pads abroad. Jupiters soon will join them to provide America with one of its greatest war deterrents.

A few Atlases are stationed at Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif. Several more Atlas bases are being constructed through the western United States. The missile has a range of 6,300 miles.

Four squadrons of Thors are assigned to NATO troops in England. Three Army Jupiter squadrons are scheduled for early delivery to NATO forces. Two will go to Italy, one to Turkey. Each squadron has 15 of the deadly weapons.

Although many U.S. officials concede this nation trails the Soviet Union in developing powerful space rockets, they believe the two countries are even in the ballistic missile field.

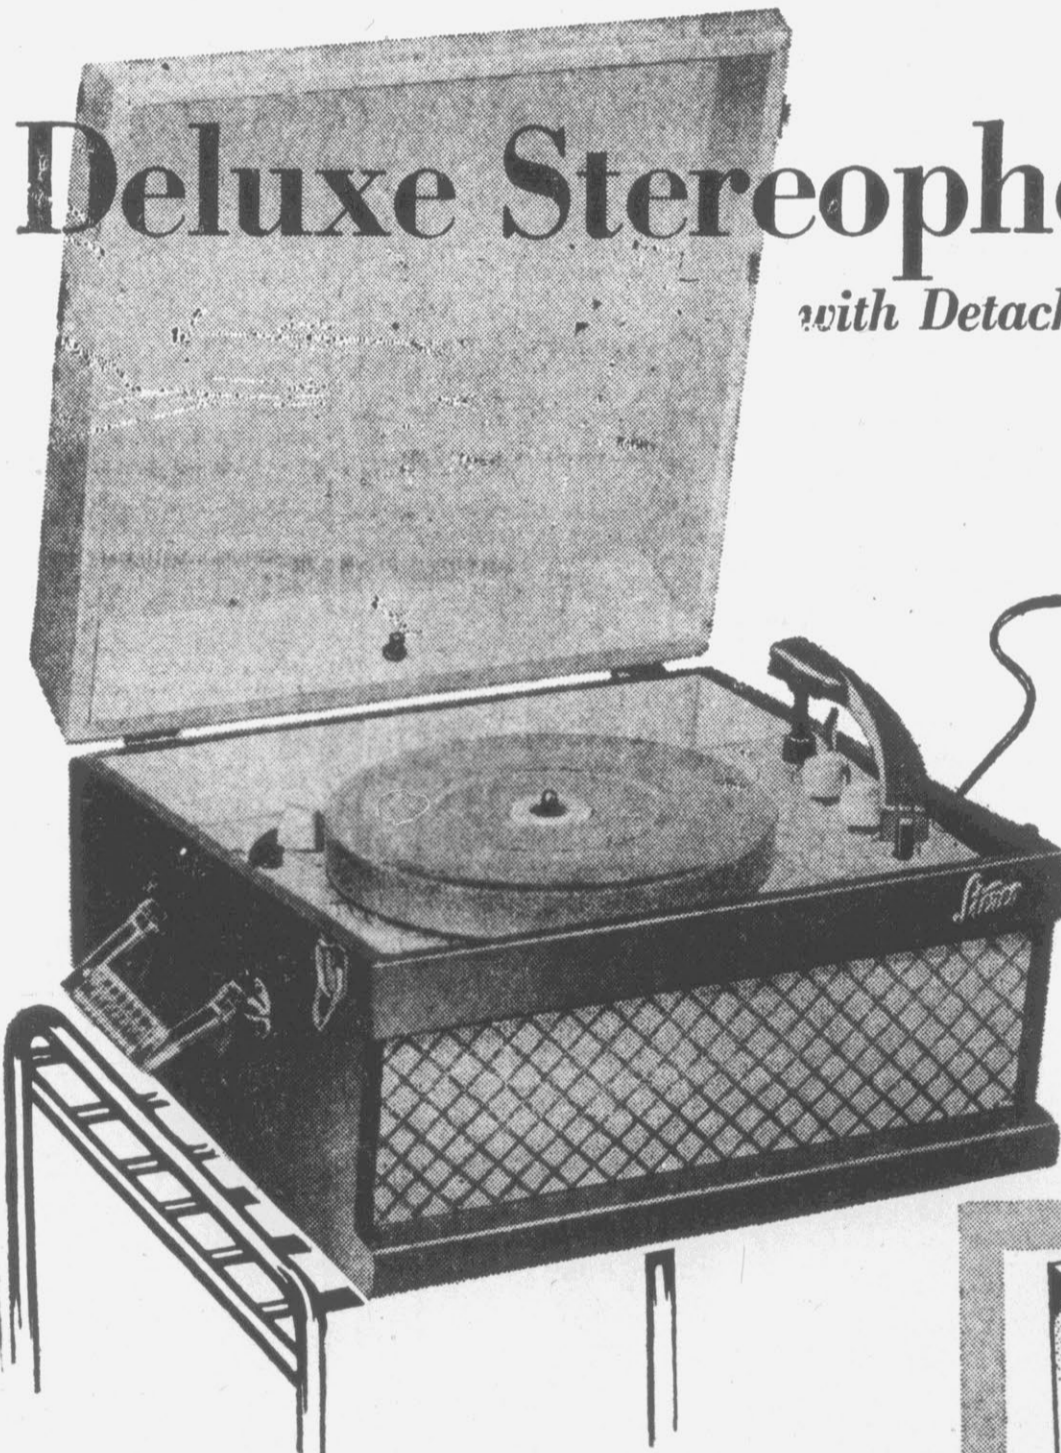

Two other American ballistic missiles — the Titan ICBM and Polaris submarine weapon — are experiencing test difficulties. Both however, are expected to be added to the operational defense arsenal next year.

Testing will begin in 1960 on two solid-fuel ballistic rockets, the 700-mile Pershing and the 5,000-mile Minuteman.

Battle Of Prep Powers Set For Tomorrow Night

Honor Comes As Big Surprise To Ernie Banks

CHICAGO (AP)—Being named the National League's most valuable player for an unprecedented second year came as a real surprise to Ernie Banks.

"Any of a half-dozen or so other fellows I thought would beat me out," said the wiry, 28-year-old Chicago Cub shortstop.

"There were a lot of good players in the league this season—fellows like Hank Aaron, Eddie Mathews and Lew Burdette of the Braves, Sam Jones and Willie Mays of the Giants and Charley Neal and Wally Moon of the Dodgers.

"And they were all on pennant contenders, too. That usually weighs in their favor. "All I can say is that it's wonderful and unexpected news—a thrill and an honor, but hard to believe.

"Every player looks forward to two things—winning the most valuable award and playing on a championship team. I'm looking ahead to a world championship at Wrigley Field next year and I definitely think we can do it. If our young pitching jells and we get the breaks, we could be in."

A year ago when Banks won the award, he implied that it was a good talking point for a raise. He got it. This time he was signed before the award was announced. He still got a reported $10,000 increase, boosting him to an estimated $60,000 for 1960.

The springy-wristed Banks, becoming the first National League player to win the honor in successive years, batted .304 and had these other accomplishments for 1959 when he finished fifth place in the fielding percentage of .985 committing only 12 errors, fewest of any shortstop who ever played a full season in the majors.

Led both leagues in runs batted in with 143, highest in the National League since Joe Medwick totaled 154 in 1937.

Two clubs still in the scramble for a top spot in their respective conferences take a week off from family feuding and butt head on tomorrow night in a game which will be one of feature headlines in the eastern section of our state.

It will be Rose High of Greenville, member of Class 3-A, stepping up a notch to play host to 4-A Wilson. The game is slated for College Stadium on the East Carolina College campus and a capacity crowd is anticipated for the Phantom's final home game of the season.

The two clubs come into the non-conference game with almost identical records and their past competition consists of several common rivals. The Greens enter the contest with a 5-2 mark while Pikes High of Wilson has a 6-2 accomplishment.

Included in the Wilson victories are wins over New Bern (58-0) and Washington (7-6). Rose High dropped a 19-0 decision to the Pam Pack for their first loss of the season but bounced back with a 13-0 verdict over New Bern.

On the basis of past scores, the visiting Cyclones will rate as the better fullbacks in the loop and will be playing his final game before the home folks. Wayne Sumrell and defense specialist Randy Bass, will also see action in the Phantom backfield. Erskine Duff will supply the aerial attack and quarterback the club.

Running from the power-laden single-wing, Wilson is the defending co-champion of 4-A ball in North Carolina and are currently in third place in their conference.

The Cys have posted other victories over Goldsboro (35-6), Raleigh (21-13), Kinston (21-0), and Wilmington (7-6). Their defeats came to Fayetteville (6-0), and Durham (7-0). Only Raleigh has scored over one touchdown against Wilson while the invaders have conquered two clubs with whitewashes.

Greenville, banking on the opportunity to avenge several one-sided defeats in the past, is in good shape for the game with the exception of tackle Norfleet Felton, who will see only limited action.

The Greens have only two games remaining after Wilson and both are on the road. They meet Roanoke Rapids and then Kinston.

possibility of a weak spot due to injuries. Coach Moye stated, "The boys are looking forward to going down there. We have eight seniors on the squad and they want to end up their playing with a good game and a win."

The coach added, "we are really going to miss these eight men next year. Their loss will hurt us tremendously. We are going to have trouble replacing the backs, especially the quarterbacks. After all you don't train a good quarterback overnight."

The Bears, rolling up 373 yards of offense in their 68-0 romp over Maryville, pushed their average for six games to a sparkling 33.6 yards per tilt to displace Western Carolina which had held sway since the season opened.

The Cats, held to 192 yards by Elon although winning 14-7, dropped into second place with a 311.8 average.

Western Carolina, though maintaining its position as the conference's best defensive club.

The Cats have given up an average of only 19.4 yards per game in eight contests. Pushing them, though, in that department is Appalachian which has allowed only 200.2 yards per tilt.

Lenoir Rhyne, with a one-two passing punch in Lee Farmer and Tony McClamrock, is the No. 1 team in passing. The Bears have averaged 111.6 yards per game via aerials.

Appalachian is the only other double leader. The Mountaineers are No. 1 in rushing offense at an average of 227.4 yards per game, and at the same time they are tops on rushing offense. They have held the opposition to a miserable 74.9 yards per game on the ground.

East Carolina takes over this week as the best team on pass defense. The Pirates have checked the opposition with an average of 61 yards per game in that department.

Lenoir Rhyne, unbeaten and untied after six games, has shown a week-by-week improvement in the statistical department. The Bears, who dominated in five of six departments a year ago, started slowly, but have shown steady progress, especially offensively. In OSAKA, Japan (AP)—Pasqual Perez of Argentina retained his world flyweight boxing championship tonight with a 13th round knockout of challenger Sadao Yaoyita of Japan.

The victory avenged the only defeat on Perez's record of 36 professional fights. Yaoyita, outpointed Perez in a non-title 10-rounder at Tokyo last January.

The end came at 55 seconds of the 13th with Yaoyita staggering helplessly from a savage beating to the head and body.

Thomas Edison, who invented the electric light and the phonograph, also made the first mimeographed balanced score with 15 points.

What happens when he learns the league? The 7-foot-1 former Kansas All-America had another big game Wednesday night, scoring 41 points and grabbing a record of 40 rebounds for Convention Hall in Philadelphia as the unbeaten Warriors drubbed the Syracuse Nationals 124-113. And it was 14 points by Chamberlain in the third period that rallied the Warriors after they trailed 58-57 at halftime.

Johnny Kerr's 20 points were tops for the Nats. The New York Knicks evened their record at 2-2 in the other NBA game with a 107-101 decision over the Detroit Pistons. Richie Guerin had 27 points. Rookie Bailey Howell topped Detroit's balanced scorers with 15 points.

Perhaps his best game this season was against Georgia Tech. He led the inspired Tiger defenses which stopped Tech cold six times within the Auburn 30.

Burkett was a regular outfielder on Auburn's SEC championship baseball team last year and had a hefty .375 batting average. He also plays basketball and is considered a top track prospect.

After the hard-fought game, with Florida last Saturday, Burkett was credited with five individual tackles and was in on numerous others. His performance brought these words of praise from Coach Ralph Jordan:

"Time and again he fought off several blockers to make key tackles. He refused to be taken out of the play and his work on pass defense contributed heavily to Florida's inability to score."

Southern sports editors who have seen him play rank Burkett with the all-time greats in Auburn's grid history.

After the official apology, Clark had this to say: "I personally don't feel that I must apologize for the actions of the USC team at Berkeley."

He declined further comment. Some alumni groups suggested that CAL sever athletic relations with USC unless disciplinary action is taken against McKeever. The executive committee of the Associated Students at California urged the university not to play football against USC again if McKeever is a team member.

California Chancellor Glenn T. Seaborg said "We are not contemplating a break in athletic relations with the University of Southern California."

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The Los Angeles Dodgers have a new set of plans for their proposed ballpark in Chavez Ravine—this time with restaurants inside instead of outside the stadium.

The City Council criticized previous drawings, showing the stadium surrounded by such commercial developments as restaurants and car washes.

East Carolina Foe Leads North State In Offense

Lenoir Rhyne, unbeaten and untied after six games, has shown a week-by-week improvement in the statistical department. The Bears, who dominated in five of six departments a year ago, started slowly, but have shown steady progress, especially offensively. In addition to their two offensive leaderships, the Bears are second behind Appalachian on rushing, trailing by an average of 5.4 yards per game.

Defensively, the Bears still haven't come up to last year's par. They are third in total defense, third in rushing defense and fourth on pass defense.

Passing seems to be receiving more emphasis from North State teams this season than in previous years. Four teams are averaging over 100 yards a game through the air. They are Lenoir Rhyne, Western Carolina, East Carolina and Elon.

Lenoir Rhyne Named Number One In Poll

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Lenoir Rhyne of North Carolina, with a 6-0 record, took over first place in the National Assn. of Intercollegiate Athletics football rankings this week.

The previous leader, Lamar Tech of Beaumont, Tex., dropped to seventh place after its first loss of the season, 14-12 to Howard Payne College. Lamar has won seven.

Hillsdale of Michigan (7-0) thumped previous unbeaten Hope College 35-7 and jumped into the No. 2 spot, three points ahead of Presbyterian of South Carolina (7-0). In fourth place is West Chester, Pa., (6-0).

East Texas State (6-1) kept fifth place and Western Illinois (7-0) remained in sixth. Southern Connecticut (6-0) rose from 10th to eighth, Southern University of Louisiana (6-0) is ninth and Louisiana Tech (5-1) is 10th.

Lenoir Rhyne has won 14 straight games over a two year span. Adams State of Colorado (7-0) heads the second 10. William Jewell of Missouri (7-0) jumped from 17th to 12th, Lincoln University of Missouri (7-0-1) is 13th.

Then came Peru (Neb.) State (6-0) Fairmont of West Virginia (7-0), Huron (S.D.) College (6-0), McMurray of Texas (5-2), Prairie View of Texas (5-0), and College of Emporia (Kan.) (7-0) and Gustavus Adolphus of Minnesota (7-1), tied for 20th.

An Irishman, of all people, is raising British hopes for retaining the Ryder Cup. Christy O'Connor of Dublin fired a 2-under-par 68 on the El Dorado Country Club course Wednesday.

The occasion was a pro-celebrity event, staged as a prelude to the international golf matches which start Friday.

And while the Irishman came in first, a Welsh teammate, Dave Thomas, shared a three-way tie for second with two Americans—Jay Hebert of Sanford, Fla., and Art Wall Jr. of Pocono Manor, Pa. All had 68s.

Jonus Boros of Midpines, N.C., and Cary Middlecoff of Hollywood, Fla., were next with 70s. The British have never won the Ryder Cup on American soil. But there has been a considerable stiffening of upper lips since 1957, when the Britons broke a 24-year interval between victories by defeating the Yanks 7 1/2 - 4 1/2 at Sheffield, England.

British Capt. Dai Rees said the husky Irishman was at the top of his game and playing better than anyone else on the team.

Then Giardello displayed a bruise near his groin as evidence of a low punch.

Carolina - Miami Game To Feature Passing Attacks

LSU Leads In Defense Stats

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Undeclared Louisiana State, the nation's No. 1 college football team, has replaced Yale as the least scored against major eleven this season.

The Bayou Tigers, along with unbeaten fourth-ranked Syracuse, have a monopoly on most of the major college defense honors, according to NCAA Service Bureau statistics released today.

LSU, with the longest winning streak (19) in major football, is the only team that has denied its opponents a touchdown. Only nine points—three field goals—have been scored against the Tigers in seven games.

Overall defense honors, however, went to Syracuse, which has permitted less than a yard per play by rushing (134 in 166 tries) and twice in six games has held its opponents to minus yardage on the ground.

Opponents have been able to gain only 573 yards both in the air and on the ground against Syracuse. That's an average of only 95.8 yards per game. LSU is second with a 143.6 average.

Alabama leads in forward pass defense, permitting only 26 completions in 56 attempts for 301 yards against it. Mississippi is second with 374 yards. Alabama is one of five teams that still has not given up a touchdown by passing. The others are LSU, Florida, Purdue and North Texas State.

Arizona State holds the punting leadership for the fifth straight week with an average of 46.5. Grigham Young is second with 43.0.

The Air Force leads in recovered fumbles by the opposition. In six games, the Falcons have pounced on 17 rival miscues, giving up only four themselves. No team in major circles has lost fewer fumbles and only Arkansas with 22, and Texas with 19, have recovered more opponents' fumbles. Arkansas and Texas have played seven games each.

Girls Moving In On Campuses

By EDDY GILMORE
LONDON (AP)—The cities of Oxford and Cambridge have undergone a subtle but unmistakable change. They are packed with girls, most of them foreign.

The young men of the towns' two universities may graduate weak in Latin, but they're going to be sound in German, French, Norwegian, Swedish, Danish and Icelandic languages.

Speaking fascinating continental accents and dressed in everything from alluring green eye shadow to repellent black cotton stockings, the babes are everywhere.

Oxford has an estimated 1,200, Cambridge about 700. They're engaged in learning English.

Some are scholars at various girls' schools in the Oxford and Cambridge neighborhoods. Others are waitresses at tea shops, coffee bars, pubs and cafes.

Still others are "paid mothers' helpers" to the numerous wives of university teachers.

Under special circumstances undergraduates can entertain female friends in their rooms up to 9 p.m. curfew.

One college allows them in as late as 10 p.m.

Those who invite girls to their rooms for teas and snacks suffer the constant and studied interruption of college porters—all males.

For the more adventurous there are, of course, the wide open spaces. So it's down to the coffee bars, the cafes, the snack bars, the pubs and the boarding houses where, as one German girl was heard to comment:

"We wait to see what parties eat tonight."

Picketing Wife To Coerce Her Into His Union

ST. LOUIS, Mo (AP)—Good union man Kenneth Ayres thinks his wife ought to belong to the union too. So, he's picketing her.

Ayres, 24, is a member of the Carpenter's Union. His wife, Shirley, 24, works at a venetian blind plant and her job includes assembling the blinds. This, says Ayres, makes her eligible for Carpenter's Union membership.

"I don't want any part of it," Shirley said. "I like my job. I like my boss. What use have I got for a union?"

Ayres said he'll keep picketing the plant until Shirley gives in. He's between jobs right now anyhow.

Wayne Sachtleban, owner of the firm which employs Shirley, says he's not amused. He thinks it's just a stunt to get attention.

Another venetian blind firm he owns has been picketed for seven months by the Carpenter's Union in a real strike.

Official figures show 1958 production as 1,721,000 tons.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A passing duel appears to be the prospect Friday night when North Carolina of the Atlantic Coast Conference meets Miami in the Orange Bowl Stadium.

North Carolina's Jack Cummings and Miami's Fran Curci own passing records which are strikingly similar.

Cummings, the ACC's second leading passer, has completed 45 of 104 passes for 562 yards and two touchdowns. He has had five passes intercepted.

Curci has completed 51 of 117 passes for 548 yards and three touchdowns. He has had six interceptions.

Both will be trying to guide their teams back into the win column, North Carolina having lost last weekend to Tennessee 20-7 and Miami to Kentucky 22-3. North Carolina's record is 2-4 for the season and Miami's 2-3. North Carolina has whipped Miami in three previous meetings.

"You can't win games on passing alone," said Miami Coach Andy Gustafson as he put the emphasis this week on improving the Hurricanes' running game.

One of the spearheads of North Carolina's running attack will be fullback Bob Elliott, who transferred to the Tar Heels from Miami. Elliott has been announced as a starter for the game.

North Carolina Coach Jim Hickory refrained from rough work Wednesday night as the Tar Heels practiced under the lights. The tapering off included rehearsal of offense and defense patterns and pass defense. The squad will leave today for Miami and one brief workout before the game.

Both Clemson and Duke staged heavy workouts Wednesday in preparation for their conference game Saturday at Clemson. Duke Coach Bill Murray sent the Blue Devils through their roughest session of the week and a bright spot of the practice was George Harris' passing to Dwight Bumgarner.

The Tigers' practice was the final rough session before the game. Clemson Coach Frank Howard said, as he divided the emphasis on both offense and defense.

The only other intra-ACC game this weekend pits winless Virginia against South Carolina. The Gamecocks sharpened their ground attack for the Virginia game and appear to be near peak strength in the backfield, including All-ACC fullback John Saunders who was injured in the first game of the season.

On the Virginia practice field, NATURE TO RESCUE RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—George Michael Pace, aged 3, was really loaded. X-rays confirmed the suspicions of his father, Policeman John G. Pace. A missing 45-caliber cartridge had been swallowed by the boy.

Coach Dick Voris gave the Cavaliers special instructions on how to cope with South Carolina's strong rushing offense.

Wake Forest continued light workouts, taking advantage of its open date this weekend.

North Carolina State, which had hoped to have sophomore quarterback Roman Gabriel back in action after an injury three games ago, may be able to count on him only for limited action against Mississippi Southern at Mobile, Ala., Saturday. Gabriel returned to practice Monday but his injured leg has failed to respond as expected.

Presbyterian - Citadel Game Headlines Southern

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Southern Conference football teams get their last best chance this week to do something about a record against, non-conference opposition that's become downright embarrassing.

The sad fact is that the present 10-19 won-lost ledger already is virtually beyond repair. Only nine games are left in which it can be improved — five of them Saturday—and over-all prospects aren't bright.

Thus far in the season the only conference teams out he "plus" side against outside opponents are The Citadel (2-1) and VMI (2-1). William and Mary stands 1-1. The other six teams are below the break-even level.

What's hurting, of course, is the failure of the conference's "big" teams — West Virginia and Virginia Tech — to contribute their customary quota of victories.

West Virginia is 1-4 against outsiders, Tech 2-3.

The Techmen meet a West Texas team that's won only one game all autumn, while West Virginia meets undefeated, sixth-ranked Southern California at Los Angeles.

Other conference teams tangling with outsiders are VMI, which plays at Lehigh; The Citadel, which is host to undefeated Presbyterian; and Furman, which visits Wofford Saturday night. Furman is winless in three non-conference starts.

Florida State already has mowed down three Southern Conference foes — The Citadel, Richmond and Virginia Tech. Presbyterian has whipped Davidson and Furman. Penn State licked VMI and West Virginia. For what consolation it's worth, this year's non-conference showing probably won't be any worse than the dismal 13-25-3 worksheet of 1958.

The Citadel polished its offense in a two-hour scrimmage Wednesday featuring the passing of Jerry Nettles and Bill Whaley and the running of Billy Hughes, Earley Eastburn, Barry Thomas and Belton Dykes.

Furman gave nearly all its attention to defense in a rough workout. The No. 2 unit consistently stopped Wofford-type plays inside their 20.

Pakistan's Jute Production Up

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP)—Production of Pakistan's jute mills has increased 40 per cent this year, according to the nation's jute king.

G. M. Adamjee of Dacca in East Pakistan added that production would go up further by the end of 1959. He said new markets have been found in Australia and New Zealand.

Official figures show 1958 production as 1,721,000 tons.

ON THE HOUSE

HOME-GROWN—John Madison, Washington tree farmer who is building a house with timber he harvested, at work on a chair for the new home.

By ANDY LANG
A tree farmer, John Madison, is building a modern frame house for his family near Trout Lake, Washington, in such an unusual manner that he must be regarded as probably the nation's foremost do-it-yourselfer.

Madison grew all the timber for the house on his 24-acre tree farm, harvested the trees himself and sawed them into lumber in his one-man sawmill. The house, surrounded by towering firs and pines, blends into the timber-tiered landscape from which it came. Through the modern picture window of the living room is a view of the snowcapped peak of Mt. Adams rising above Washington's Cascade Mountains.

Besides the lumber, shingles for the new house also are home-grown. Madison's father in law, Charles Williams, who lives with the family, is hand-splitting cedar bolts to create attractive rough-hewn roofing. Even the furniture going into the house is fresh off the farm via Madison's carpentry workbench.

Madison, an Army veteran of 26 months in the Pacific, was doing all right as an auto mechanic after World War II ended. But constant exposure to exhaust fumes began to give him trouble. In 1947, he and his wife used all their savings to buy a timber tract in the shadow of Mt. Adams which, although it had been logged before they acquired it, was amply stocked with timber. About half the trees are ponderosa pine, the rest fir and larch. Madison found he could harvest 50,000 board feet annually without exceeding the volume of timber grown each year, thus enabling his woodland management to achieve a sustained yield status.

In 1949, a forester for the Western Pine Assn. at Bend, Ore., inspected the land and certified it as a Western Pine tree farm. The Association sponsors the tree farm program to recognize outstanding forestry practices on privately-owned, taxpaying timberlands in pine areas of the Western states. Maximum use is made of each tree that is harvested by Madison. Wood shavings from the planer go into the cow barn for use as bedding material. Other leftovers are used for firewood.

Madison, his wife, Veronica, and their 12-year-old daughter, Sheila, together with the wife's father, say the current project has brought the family closer together than ever.

Applications for employment as census takers are needed from townships in northern and southern Pitt County, according to Mrs. Marguerite K. Fleming, crew leader of the 1959 Census of Agriculture.

Response from the city of Greenville has been good, Mrs. Fleming said, and no further applications from Greenville are needed. Mrs. Fleming will be in Ayden at the Agricultural Building, located behind the high school, at 1 p.m. Friday to take applications and tests.

Applicants from the townships of Ayden, Farmville, Beaver Dam, Winterville, Chicod and Swift Creek have been urged to contact Mrs. Fleming Friday in Ayden or at 301 Orton Dr., Greenville, or telephone FL 2-2887.

Applicants from the townships of Grimesland, Pactolus, Carolina, Belvoir, Fountain and Falkland have been urged to contact Mrs. Irma S. Carson at Bethel, or telephone VA 5-3191.

Applicants must be able to work at least 40 hours a week. Pay is according to piece rate, or according to the number of applications filled out, Mrs. Fleming said.

Tobacco Tips

By S. J. WEEKS,
Pitt County Tobacco Agent

Tobacco fertilization makes a definite contribution to the yield, money value and the quality of tobacco produced. The best flue cured crops are produced under a controlled plant nutrient level. Rather definite amounts of nitrogen, phosphorus, and potassium must be available to the plants for the highest yield and quality. Too little nitrogen stunts growth—too much results in high nicotine content and poor quality in general. Too little phosphorus prevents full maturity of the plant, and too little potassium results in poor smoking quality of the cured leaf. In addition to these three major nutrients, some soils need extra supplies of calcium, magnesium and sulphur.

Soils vary widely in their productive capacity and in available nutrients. This variation is so wide that individual growers cannot safely copy the field fertilization practices of other growers. The amount and analysis of fertilizer to be used on a particular field should be determined by such factors as cropping history, fertilization history, soil texture, depth of top soil, the variety, quality of tobacco grown in the past, and the general fertility level. The general fertilizer recommendation for tobacco grown on average good productive tobacco soil is 800 to 1000 pounds of 4-8-10, or equivalent, per acre. However, it may be advisable to use more or less than this amount on a particular field, depending upon the type of soil and past use of the field.

Farmers should avoid over fertilization of the tobacco crop. According to Dr. W. G. Woltz, Agronomy Research Professor at N. C. State College, in practically every experiment where excessive fertilization has increased the yield the increase has been more than offset by the decrease in quality.

Information available to date indicates that there should be no change of rates of fertilization when irrigation is planned. Therefore, the rate used should be that for a normal growing season. Excessive rates, where used with irrigation, result in lower quality just as they do in the absence of supplemental water. These conclusions are based on that irrigation rates are not excessive.

To be more accurate in determining how much and which analysis that can be used as a guide for the grower.

These will be a county wide soil testing program in Pitt County from November 27 through December 15. Plan now to participate in this important program. The information obtained from your soil tests will help you to do a better job of fertilizing your tobacco and other crops in 1960.

Stokes-Pactolus FHA Holds Meet

By ROSALIE TRIPP

The Stokes-Pactolus chapter of the Future Homemakers of America held its second meeting last Thursday, with Pres. Carrie Lee Whitehurst conducting the business session and Jo Ann Bullock, vice president, taking charge of the program.

Plans were discussed for having a joint Mother-Daughter, Father-Son Banquet and a committee was appointed to decide the date, place, and time of the proposed dinner meeting.

Following the business session, movies illustrating the correct methods of parliamentary procedure and emphasizing the importance of everyday courtesy were viewed by the group.

The Chapter's officers for the 1959-60 school term were announced as follows:

Pres. Whitehurst, Vice Pres. Bullock, Sec. Dale Coward, Treas. Margaret Lee, Parliamentarian Rita Bullock, Historian Linda Warren, Reporter Rosalie Tripp, Asst. Hist. Anglene Haddock, Pianist Helen Briley, Asst. Pianist Rosalyn Fleming, Song Leader Angela James, Asst. Song Leader Janice Carndall, Photographer Delores Roebuck, and Assistant Photographer Ella Grace Stokes.

tle-knocker. And, when he pipes up, he knows what he's talking about.

He's spent years tamping, puffing, reaming and dottle-knocking. (Dottle, in case you didn't know, is tobacco ash that cakes in a pipe bowl.)

Cole, a hotel manager, collects pipes. He has more than 150 of them, half of which he smokes regularly. They're insured for more than $1,000.

For Cole, pipe smoking is more than just a habit. It's almost an art—one he's practiced since his high school days in 1926, when he bought his first pipe.

Since then he's stuck to pipes, with never a switch to cigarets or cigars, as most pipe fanciers do at one time or another. And with the exception of that first pipe, he has every pipe he's ever purchased for his own use.

If properly cared for, a pipe lasts a lifetime, Cole contends. "So, as I purchased new ones, my collection grew."

Aside from the pipes he smokes regularly, Cole has an array of other pipes, among them a "head" collection which includes bowls shaped like dogs, Indians, horses, tigers and bears.

A pipe said to have belonged to Adolph Hitler was added to his collection by a former Nazi captain who once worked for Cole as a chef.

There's a calabash pipe like the one Sherlock Holmes smoked. "That's a pretty one, but a good one to leave home because it's too bulky to carry in your pocket," Cole said.

Then there's an elaborately carved opium pipe set of ivory, presented by a friend on the vice squad of the Philadelphia police department. This is one of the few pipes in the collection which Cole admits he's never lit.

Another prized item is a meerschaum said to have belonged to Woodrow Wilson. There's another linked to the Prince of Wales.

"Strangely enough, most of my collection was donated by friends who know I fancy unique pipes," Cole said. "I seldom buy them. As a matter of fact, I haven't purchased one for my own use in more than 15 years."

Real pipe lovers take pride in their pipes, Cole said, and treat them like treasures. The true connoisseur seldom has to send his pipe to a pipe hospital, although there are such places which repair accidental breaks and cracks.

Cole has these tips which he says will lengthen the life of your pipe and add to smoking enjoyment:

"When you light up, smoke slowly. Smoke each bowlful to the bottom without relighting, if you can. This provides the all-important cake of carbon in the bowl which takes the bite out of pipe smoking."

"After you've finished, empty the ashes gently and then give your pipe a rest. I believe you should have a different pipe for each day of the week. If you smoke one pipe continuously, it loses its flavor."

"Don't lay your pipe down, when you've finished smoking it. Put it in a rack with the stem up and the bowl down."

"Pipes should be cleaned after each use but it's important to use only cleaning equipment made for that purpose.

"Never knock the ashes from your pipe on a solid object, like an ash tray or your shoe sole. This might crack or damage the cake and once you've done this, you might as well start breaking it in all over again."

Hurricane Ended Their Argument

SAVANNAH, Ga. (AP) — Hurricane Gracie settled an argument for county officials about whether to take down an ancient oak.

Some folks differed with county commissioners about it, saying the tree did not stand in the way of a paving program and they wanted to save the beautiful oak.

Gracie decided the question, snapping the huge tree near its roots. The oak was chopped up for stove wood.

Child Actress Took Off To White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — Evelyn or was it Eloise — took off from Hollywood Wednesday and headed for the White House to get Mamie Eisenhower to promote a new television series for her.

Nobody told her to do it. 9-year-old child actress Evelyn Rudie insisted after making a jet airplane trip across country on her own. It wasn't a publicity stunt, she claimed, just a way she thought she might get back to working again on TV. Two years ago she portrayed an impish brat named Eloise.

Of course, she didn't make it to the White House, where she had once posed with Mrs. Eisenhower to promote U. S. Savings Bonds.

"When I saw Mrs. Eisenhower in Washington last year, she told me that she and her grandchildren and the President enjoyed my acting so much," Evelyn explained. "So I decided to talk with her and see if she couldn't help me get a part in a film or TV series."

The idea had become a sort of game at home, said her mother, Mrs. Emery Bernauer. Finally, she said, she told Evelyn jestingly if she wanted to see Mrs. Eisenhower to go ahead. "Pack your bag, buy your ticket, and go."

"I never dreamed she would take me seriously," Mrs. Bernauer said in Hollywood. But Evelyn disappeared at dawn and she called police.

Evelyn apparently bought her ticket with $125 from four piggy banks, called her own cab, and took off.

"Thank God," Mrs. Bernauer said when told her daughter had arrived safely at Baltimore's Friendship Airport.

She phoned a Washington friend, Jacob Mogelev, who promotes savings bonds for the Treasury Department.

Mogelev had promoted Evelyn's visit to Mrs. Eisenhower to sell savings bonds. But he said he was having no part of the present project—except to take care of Evelyn at his home here—until she can go back to Hollywood.

Reporters confronted Mogelev with the suggestion that it was all a planned publicity stunt. He said the whole thing took him by surprise.

Anaconda Tried Hitching A Ride

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Mrs. Margaret Woods was surprised to find out what was hanging underneath her car—an eight-foot Anaconda, a non-poisonous snake of the boa constrictor family.

Two deputies and Dr. Jay Shannon, director of the Arizona-Sonora Desert Museum, captured the snake after a hard tussle. Only casualty was Dr. Shannon, who was nipped on the hand.

Officers guessed the snake, not native to Arizona, was someone's runaway pet.

Londoners And Tar Heels Hit It Off At Big Luncheon

By W. E. HORNER
(Third in a series of articles written exclusively for members of the N. C. Association Afternoon Dailies.)

LONDON, Nov. 2 — The first Tar Heel luncheon on foreign soil looking for Governor Luther Hodges gave in Methodist church parlance, the "message" and it was adequately responded to by Lord Rootes (formerly plain William, then Sir William Rootes), chairman of Humber-Hillman Motors and chairman of the British Dollar Export Council.

The Carolinians got a big boost from the 32 tables, 8 per table

(240 which less 68 Tar Heels means 172 Britishers) who attended the luncheon paid for by the First National City Bank of New York, whose travelers checks, incidentally, most of the Carolinians are carrying.

The boost was of varying degrees. First, the toastmaster was one of a dozen London professional clannish toastmasters who preside over most formal London functions. Clad in a red dinner coat, with white westcoat and tie, he presided and alternately called on Hodges and Rootes, intoning such invitations as, to call the group in from pre-meeting refreshments, "Governor Hodges, Your Excellency, M'Lords, Gentlemen; Lunch is Served," to the 90 minutes later, when he knocked off the meeting, featured with both white and red wine, with greetings to His Excellency, the Lords and the Gentlemen present and hoping for a happy resumption of the festivities.

Arrangements of the meeting called for a head table with the big functionaries there, with United Kingdom and North Carolina flags as back drops. Tables for eight were set up, with two Tar Heels per table, who were supposed to be able to carry the con-

Still And All, It Is Squaw Valley

OLYMPIC VALLEY, Calif. (AP)—Or Squaw Village, Calif. Or even Tahoe City, Calif. But no Squaw Valley, Calif. At least not on United States mail postmarks. That's the story from this Sierra site of the 1960 Winter Olympic games.

The post office can't approve the use of a Squaw Valley postmark because another California community has used that name for years, although it no longer has a post office.

So Squaw Valley will be known on the postmarks as Squaw Village. And to help keep things clear, mail from the Olympic Village in the valley will be post-marked Olympic Valley.

The news stories, of course, will be flowing from Squaw Valley.

versational load with their English guests. Inasmuch as these English are replete with pokes and stories, the Tar Heels were hard pressed, but in the relaxation of the moment, carried themselves off quite creditably, the Britishers allowed.

Such joke telling about the Scotch, the English and the Irish was seldom heard before. At my table was George B. Young (M.I. Ex) of the Scottish Development and Industry Council, who liked me lots when I told him I'd just got back from buying some Scotch cashmere sweaters and black and white, and Major Henry Marley, merchant banker of Close Brothers, Ltd., who was busting out with English-Canadian stories and good fellowship.

This was typical of the 32 tables: Friendship and good fellowship abounded, close attention was paid to the Governor's speech, and when he said he'd been told by North Carolina friends to "bring home the bacon," in industrial growth from English sources, he got one of those typically British rounds of applause consisting of "Hear! Hear!" accompanied by pounds on the tables with left hands.

And when the Governor's finished, Lord Rootes responded to the effect that a state which afforded a welcome to Sir Walter Raleigh's folks in 1585 still afforded in 1959 a welcome harbor, in that Carolina ports were still anxious to receive us, a fact, he said, he was sure British exporters would bear in mind in future. In short, Lord Rootes opined, "Your pleadings have not fallen on deaf ears."

Always bearing in mind the state isn't paying for the frivolities, it may be of interest to folks back home to know the menu (over here they're always printed in French, sort of "Keep up with the Jones' philosophy; Le Supreme de Turotin Polignac; Le Contrefilet Roti Yorkaise; les petits pois au beurre, les pommes dorees; les cerises jubiles, le parfalt glace vanille; le cafe. What this means in our language is ocean fresh fish, poached; roast beef from Yorkshire with English peas and french fries; vanilla ice cream with cherries; and black coffee (cream if desired, but the waiters raised eyebrows when a guy asked for it, as I did).

Governor Hodges, probably clad in undies from Winston, a shirt from Lexington, and smoking cigarettes from Durham, knew his way around this affair, linguistically speaking. He'd worked in Europe with the Economic Administration, and when he told the audience his daughter was married to a Britisher in Surrey and would visit in Raleigh Christmas, he apparently won the hearts of the crowd. He knew when to throw in those "My Lords" and to lay accent on the fact a great tradition of common tongue, common faith and common decency binds England and America. He said he'd had two important contacts already with reference to future English expansion in North Carolina.

Hodges, who earlier today had laid a wreath at the local monument to Sir Walter Raleigh and paid a courtesy call at the office of John Hay Whitney, U. S. Ambassador, felt like he had accomplished something for his state. That he may have, was borne out by a statement by R. Mayne, of the Midland Bank, who allowed the English had heard lots of chamber of commerce speeches which were much worse than that he believed the North Carolina caravan would achieve a lot.

Hodges got a big hand when he said Prime Minister McMillan was leading the world in the policy of "Let's talk rather than fight," but he got a bigger one when he promised to tell (after 5 o'clock, milking time back home) what the Governor of North Carolina said to the Governor of South Carolina. "And remember," he said, "It's North, not South, Carolina."

Hodges and his entourage of a dozen leaves early Tuesday for Hamburg to talk to tobacco purchasers and German steamship owners, thence on to Amsterdam. (Group I will stay here a day to make contacts following today's luncheon; Group II will leave for Amsterdam Tuesday.)

With Oil Came An End To Quiet

WINDOW ROCK, Ariz. (AP)—A few years ago Window Rock, in the middle of the vast Navajo Reservation, was Arizona's quietest town. The nearest theater was in Gallup, N.M., about 50 miles away.

Then oil was discovered on Indian land.

Now the Navajo Civic Center at Window Rock has booked, for the fall-winter season, the U. S. Air Force Band, Guy Lombardo, Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians, Phoenix Orpheus Club Boys Choir, Ximenez-Vargas Ballet Espanol, and the Vienna Boys Choir.

MRS. FILBERT'S MARGARINE AND FAMILY HEALTH

Today some claim that saturated animal fats build up cholesterol in the blood, while unsaturated vegetable oils may help reduce cholesterol. Since evidence is still inconclusive, your doctor is the one to advise you on this.

But you should know that Mrs. Filbert's Margarine is made from only the finest vegetable oils, which contain no cholesterol and are 80% unsaturated. Mrs. Filbert's is enriched with vitamins A and D, is highly digestible, low in salt.

Result: a nutritious, healthful source of quick food energy... a product you can enjoy with confidence. Compare Mrs. Filbert's to any spread, at any price.

Victim's Friend Will Hang Killer

LONDON (AP)—Guenther Fritz Podola will be hanged Thursday by a friend of the British policeman he murdered.

Podola, a German, was convicted of shooting Sgt. Raymond Purdy to death while attempting to escape arrest July 13.

"I knew Ray Purdy well," the hangman, Ray Allen, told newsmen. "We had been friends for about eight years. He was a very nice person. I liked him very much. He was too nice to die the way he did."

Greenville Moose Add To Building

MOOSE LODGE ADDITION UNDER WAY. Sec. Baldree and Building Committee member Stauffer go over plans.

A $10,000 building addition to the Greenville Moose Lodge, now underway, is expected to be completed sometime around the first of the year, says Secretary E. M. Baldree.

The project will add another 1300 square feet of space to the present $92,000 structure. "We've just outgrown our present facilities," explains Baldree. "Plans for adding a larger social room have been talked about for a long time. Last February a Building Committee was named to do something about it."

That committee, chaired by Lacy Harrell, studied and worked on the lodge's needs for long months before presenting a plan for remodeling and construction that was finally adopted. Committee members included Jake Stauffer, Ollie Harrington and Jack Wallace.

The Greenville Moose Lodge is celebrating its ninth anniversary Monday night. Those nine years have been marked by considerable growth, with a membership now totalling over 1200 men. The Moose Temple, located on the Farmville Highway, is now five years old. Since its construction, the lodge has added a large parking lot and a swimming pool with bathhouse.

Monday night's anniversary observance will be marked with a dinner for the membership.

Husband Finally Accepts Change

WEST LIBERTY, Ky. (AP)—"At first he didn't even smile—didn't say a thing."

That is how Mrs. Boyd Blair described her husband's reaction after Mrs. Blair and three other members of the fair sex had gained a 4-2 majority over the men on the town board.

The four women won on a spur of the moment write-in campaign that squeaked all but two male board members.

The campaign by "a bunch of women" who wanted their sex represented was harder for Mrs. Blair's husband to take than most. He's a member of the election commission.

But now his wife says, "They've teased him so much I think he's pretty well adjusted to it. I think the rest of them are too."

Prison Board To 'Insure' Freed Convicts Get Home

RALEIGH (AP)—Prison officials may act later this month on proposals to insure that the 20,000 inmates released annually have a means of getting home.

The State Prison Commission, prompted by an incident in Raleigh involving a Texas vagrant, adopted tentatively a plan whereby out-of-state inmates would be given non-redeemable transportation tickets home. The group was mainly concerned with the large number of short-term and out-of-state prisoners in Tar Heel units.

One short-temer, Lloyd Burton Walker, sentenced to 60 days for vagrancy, was arrested shortly after his release from Raleigh's Polk Prison camp last summer and charged with the rifle slaying of W. Trent Ragland, a wealthy businessman.

Immediately, residents of the area around the Polk camp began campaigning for its removal. A citizens committee appeared before the commission last month.

The prison group declined Wednesday to move the Polk prison, but looked into the possibility of insuring that all prisoners be given some means of transportation to their homes.

"Our basic premise is that we should endeavor to get the released prisoner safely home where responsibility for his welfare should be assumed by the local community," the commission said.

It proposed:

1. To transport all North Carolina residents to their home community either by prison vehicle or by common carrier.
2. To offer an out-of-state inmate who desires to return to his home and who lacks adequate means a non-redeemable ticket by the most economical commercial transportation and sufficient funds for meals while on the way.

The commission scheduled another meeting Nov. 20 to act on the proposals.

Designed, Built A Brass Cannon

WAUKESHA, Wis. (AP)—Arthur Williams and William Schuster, whose hobby is building and reconditioning historical firearms, have constructed a Civil War type cannon from scratch.

With no blueprints available, Williams, with caliper in hand, measured the cannon in a park here. The casting, shaping and drilling of the brass weapon were done at a foundry.

The cannon shoots accurately at 100 yards.

Operatic Tenor Will Sing Here On Nov. 9

Giuseppe Campora, leading tenor with the Metropolitan Opera Company and La Scala in Milan, will open the 1959-1960 Entertainment Series at East Carolina College Monday, November 9, when he appears in concert at 8:15 p.m. in the Wright auditorium.

Eight other attractions, featuring vocal and instrumental music and the dance have been booked for the current season at the college, according to chairman Earl E. Beach of the Entertainment Committee.

Campora, handsome young Italian tenor whose voice was described by the New York Times as "a lyric voice with both velvet and luster in it," made his operatic debut as Rodolfo in "La Boheme" at the Teatro Lirico in Bari, Italy, when he was only 22 years old. Since then his fame and popularity have become international. Again in the role of Rodolfo, he made his Metropolitan Opera debut in 1955 and has been a leading member of the company ever since. He has also appeared in this country with opera companies at New Orleans, Miami, San Francisco, Montreal, and Toronto; in Italy, at Rome, Naples, Bologna and Florence; and in various South American cities.

Roles which Campora has sung with great success include Alfredo in "Traviata," Edgardo in "Lucia," Rodolfo in "Boheme," Cavaradossi in "Tosa," and the title role of "Faust." His favorite operatic characters are those of the Puccini operas.

The praise of music critics in this country is indicated by such phrases from reviews as: "a voice full of freshness," New York Times; "stunning in his part of Cavaradossi," New York Herald Tribune; and "the rich, glowing voice that Italian tenors are supposed to have," Memphis Press-Scimitar.

Officer Resigns Over Quiz Furor

FT. SILL, Okla. (AP)—An Army officer who won big money on the television quiz show "Tic-Tac-Dough"—and has steadfastly denied receiving any help—resigned his commission Wednesday.

Officers at Ft. Sill said Capt. Michael O'Rourke, who won more than $106,000 resigned with this official statement:

"My reason for resigning is that if I were called before the congressional committee investigating the television shows, I would prefer to appear as a civilian or as an officer of the Army whose resignation has been submitted." The resignation was quickly accepted here and approved by the Department of the Army. It came scant hours after O'Rourke, 30, had again denied he ever received any help or knew of any help being given contestants on "Tic Tac Dough."

His denial was prompted by release of testimony by Howard Felsher, producer of the program. Felsher told the House committee investigating quiz shows Oct. 9 that both Martin Dowd, a salesman, who defeated the captain on the show, and O'Rourke received help. Wednesday night O'Rourke said her husband was "out."

Film Industry To Sponsor Show

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—For the third straight year, the movie industry will sponsor the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences Oscar awards show. The program will be on nationwide radio and television next April. The Motion Picture Assn. of America announced Wednesday it would pick up the tab.

Cut Short His Years In Prison

WALPOLE, Mass. (AP)—Charles D. (Bull) Martin, 37, who had more years in prison ahead of him than he could live, cut them short Wednesday — he hanged himself with a T-shirt noose on a clothing hook in his state prison cell.

Martin was serving 15-20 years for robbery when he led an abortive attempt to escape from Concord State Prison last April, holding 13 guards, two civilian employees and a score of non-rioting prisoners as hostages.

For his part in the riots, Martin received 15 additional sentences of 19-20 years, three of 9-10 years and two of 4-5 years.

He also was sentenced to life after the other terms.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — Some recent favorites were clipped by profit taking as the stock market moved unevenly in active trading early this afternoon.

American Motors and Studebaker-Packard, which have staged a runaway advance from day to day, fell back a bit as profits were taken.

The steels continued mildly backward. Efforts to settle the strike dragged. The Supreme Court's decision on a Taft-Hartley injunction was awaited.

An irregular decline at the start was halted as aircrafts and selected issues in other groups began to gain. The list overall still showed a slight downside drag.

Rails, airlines and rubbers were lower. Chemicals perked up. Oils, drugs and electronics were mixed.

Revol, spotlighted by the television quiz investigation, was under heavy selling pressure at the start, showed a loss of about 3 points for a while, then cut back the loss to a fraction.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was down 30 cents to $22.70 with the industrials down 30 cents, the rails down 50 cents and the utilities down 10 cents.

Corporate bonds and U.S. government bonds were slightly higher.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA) — Hog prices steady to 50 lower, mostly 25 to 50 lower. Tops of 13.50 to 15.00 at Wilson; 13.50 to 14.50 at Smithfield; 14.00 to 14.50 at Rocky Mount; 13.75 to 14.25 at Nahant; 13.00 to 13.50 at Tarboro, Enfield and Scotland Neck; 14.25 at Goldsboro; 14.00 at Clinton; Fayetteville, Elizabethtown and Greensboro; 13.75 at Albertson, Lillington and House's Mill; 13.50 at Clarkton, Dunn, Four Oaks, Clayton, Burgaw and Castle Hayne; 13.25 at Rich Square; 13.00 at Siler City. Other markets unreported.

Wilson cash cattle prices steady; steers and heifers, choice 24.50 to 26.50, good 21.00 to 24.50, standard 17.00 to 20.00; cows, beef type 15.00 to 16.5, heavy cutters 13.00 to 15.00; bulls, light weights 13.00 to 17.00, heavy weights 18.00 to 20.00.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA) — North Carolina poultry markets: Fryers and broilers: Farm prices 14 to 15, mostly 14.

Eggs — Prices paid for clean, sized, graded, 80 per cent A quality: Raleigh and Charlotte, irregular, large 40; prices paid on gradeout basis: Asheville, unsettled, A large 40.

Not Much Cheer In Winterville FFA Chapter Has Building Project

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republicans' analysis of Tuesday's local elections gives them little encouragement for hopes of regaining control of the House in 1960.

Although the scattered elections offered little advance light on next year's contest for the presidency, with some exceptions they seemed to reconfirm today a situation disappointing to the GOP.

The Republicans still are hurting politically in the cities. Their own strategists had said an urban revolt fed the Democratic congressional landslide in 1958.

Officially, leaders of both parties claimed the results augured well for their side.

Democratic Chairman Paul M. Butler said the elections reaffirmed what he called a mandate given his party in 1958 and demonstrated the "vigorous good health of the Democratic party as it prepares the momentous campaign of 1960."

Sen. Thurston B. Morton (R-Ky.), the Republican National Chairman, sized it up this way: "Modest Republican net gains in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and Ohio. Roughly a stand-off in Connecticut. In Indiana, Republicans had a statewide gain of six mayoralities, but despite this net figure, showed net losses in cities of 25,000 and over."

"In my own state of Kentucky an expected Democratic split did not materialize and the Democrats won the election according to form."

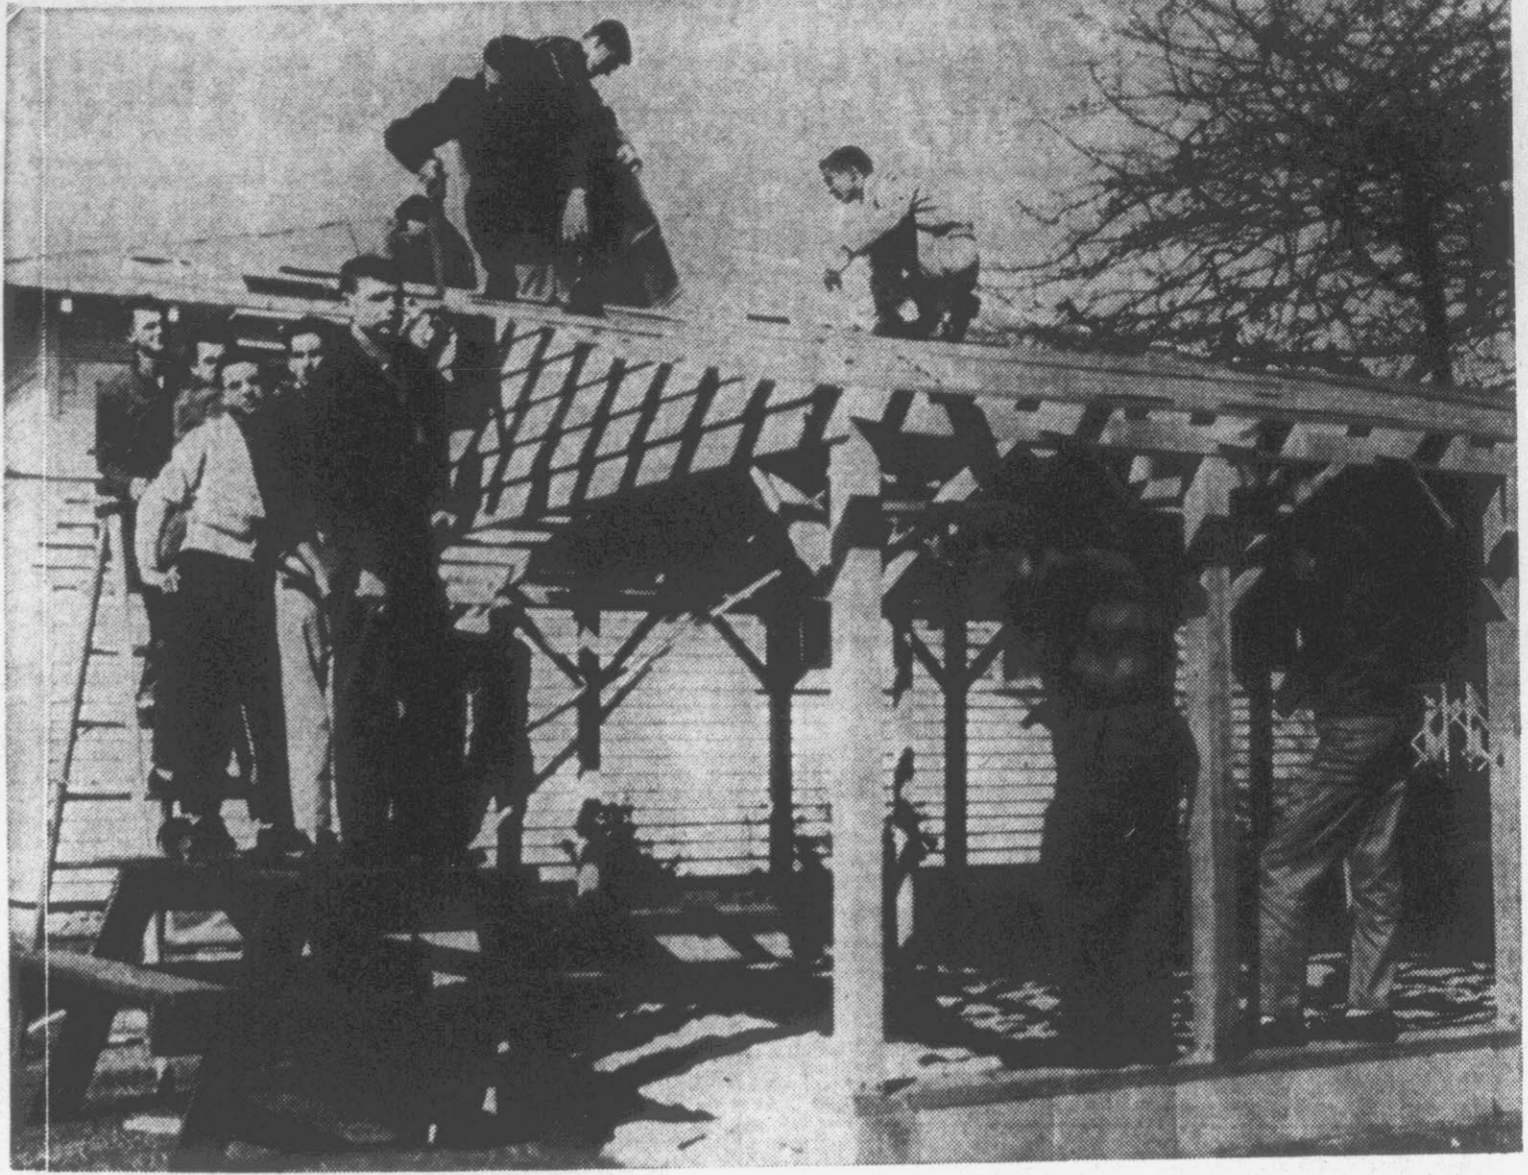

"All in all I think the Republicans have every reason to look confidently toward 1960."

Republicans long ago gave up any practical hope of regaining control of the Senate next year. They believe, however, if they could increase their urban strength a win by their presidential nominee could bring the House back under their management.

But Tuesday's returns indicated the Republicans were staging a noteworthy comeback only in upstate New York cities. There Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller took a personal hand in successful campaign to return Auburn to GOP control.

Republicans replaced nine Democratic mayors in the state while losing control of four city halls. This was interpreted generally as an indication that Rockefeller's state income tax increase was not as unpopular as the Democrats supposed.

Outside of New York, however, the Republican picture bore mostly a gloomy tint.

Would Denounce 'Faith Healers'

HICKORY, N.C. (AP) — "The church should denounce these faith healers as doctors denounce quacks," says a prominent North Carolina Lutheran layman and surgeon.

Dr. Glenn R. Frye of Hickory, a member of a special committee named by the United Lutheran Church in America to study "Anointing and Faith Healing," asserts:

"In 35 years of experience I have never seen one (patient) who had an organic disease cured by these faith healers."

But Dr. Frye does not see the possibility of cures by faith, saying it is "quite probable and quite possible." He does, however, attack the faith healer's premise that medicine is not needed and "all things can be healed by prayer alone if the patient has sufficient faith."

Episcopal Bishop Of Mexico Here At Local Church

The Rt. Rev. Jose Guadalupe Saucedo, Episcopal Bishop of Mexico, will speak in St. Paul's Episcopal Church tonight at 7:30.

The public is invited to attend. Bishop Saucedo comes here under the auspices of the Canterbury Club (Episcopal work among college students).

Bishop Saucedo after the normal preparatory education in Mexico, came to this country to receive his theological education at Virginia Theological Seminary in Alexandria, Va. He was graduated from this seminary in 1949 to return to begin his ministry.

In September, 1957 the House of Bishops elected him to be fourth Bishop of the Missionary District of Mexico.

An offering will be taken to help defray the construction costs for a new church in Alejandro in his district.

Burial Here Friday For N. H. Gray

Mr. H. N. Gray, 55, of Norfolk, Va., died at 6:15 Wednesday morning at ten o'clock. Burial will be in Greenville Friday afternoon at 3:30 p.m. The Rev. Carlton F. Hirschi, pastor of St. James Methodist Church, will officiate.

Mr. Gray, son of the late Tom and Lucy Rogerson Gray, was a native of Pitt County and had lived in Norfolk for twenty years. He was a member of the Ocean View Masonic Lodge at Norfolk, Va., and Miles Memorial Methodist Church at Norfolk, Va.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Ellen Baile Gray; three sons, Jack E. and Fred T. Gray of Norfolk, Va., and Billy M. Gray of Nashville, Tenn.; three sisters, Mrs. Reba Bullock of Wilmington, Mrs. Gladys Etheridge of Pitt County, and Mrs. Susie Briley of Stokes; three brothers, Leland T. of Edwards, Wallace T. of Aoshokie, and Hugh M. of Robersonville; and two grandchildren.

Dr. Nossen To Present Paper

Dr. Robert Nossen, associate professor of English at East Carolina College, will present a paper, "Francis Bacon and the Problem of Evil," before the Comparative Literature section of the Southern Central Modern Language Association, on Friday, November 6. The meeting is being held in Houston, Texas, and will run through Saturday, November 7.

At the S-CMLA meeting two years ago, Dr. Nossen presented a paper on "Death in the Philosophy of Francis Bacon." Both papers are part of a continuing study involving Christian doctrine in Bacon's writings.

Stokes Ruritan Holds Banquet

STOKES—The Stokes Ruritan Club held its annual lady's night banquet at the Stokes School luncheon last night and heard a talk by Rep. Walter Jones of Farmville.

Jones talked to the group on having community pride. He praised the Stokes Ruritan Club for spearheading a drive to organize a rural volunteer fire department in Carolina Township.

The fire department, still in its organization stage will be known as the Carolina Township Rural Volunteer Fire Department.

The club also heard a report by the Fire Department President Frank Roebuck.

The next meeting of the Ruritan club will be held December 2.
