Payoff Charge Said Just Demagoguery

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House today described as demagoguery the charge by labor leader Emil Mazey that President Eisenhower's actions in the steel strike were a political payoff to the steel companies.

Press secretary James C. Hagerty told newsmen: "Such demagoguery, leveled against President Eisenhower, is, of course, not really worthy of comment. I am sure that the American people realize that the President acted only when it was clear that the welfare of the United States dictated positive action under the law. Such action was upheld by the court of our land."

"Sure," Hagerty replied when asked whether his remarks applied to several other labor leaders who had been critical of Eisenhower's handling of the steel strike.

Mazey, secretary-treasurer of the United Auto Workers, made his accusations against Eisenhower in a speech Monday to the convention of the AFL-CIO Industrial Union Department.

Mazey asserted that Eisenhower used the Taft-Hartley law to end the steel strike as a payoff to corporations which backed Eisenhower in the 1956 presidential campaign.

Both George Meany, AFL-CIO president, and Walter Reuther, Auto Union president, charged in other speeches that the injunction procedure used to end the steel strike is a one-sided solution against unions.

They said it bore out labor's charges that the Taft-Hartley Act is a slave labor statute that can be used to make men work against their will.

The union group itself, claiming to represent seven million labor union members, adopted a resolution criticizing the government's action as an attempt at strike-breaking.

"This injunction was imposed deliberately after the strike began to pinch the industry in its most sensitive nerve center—its pocket-book," the union resolution said.

The Supreme Court upheld Saturday the Taft-Hartley law injunction which the administration had obtained more than two weeks earlier on its contention that the nation's health and safety were threatened.

Arthur J. Goldberg, Steelworkers Union general counsel, told the delegates organized labor must be ready with positive recommendations for changing the national emergency strike provisions when Congress reconvenes in January.

"I don't think that in this day and age we can quarrel with proposition that the public interest must be protected," Goldberg said.

He said what is needed is machinery to "make the chief executive act like a chief executive."

Goldberg suggested a wide range of alternative steps open to the President so that neither labor nor management involved in a big strike would know what governmental action to expect. That would put both sides under pressure to reach a voluntary settlement before an emergency develops, he said.

Goldberg said, management knows the government ultimately will be compelled to seek an 80-day injunction.

If it is government policy to protect public interest by maintaining essential production in such situations, he said, the sacrifice should be borne equally by both sides, not by labor alone.

Goldberg said there is no guarantee how Congress may revise the law "because Congress doesn't always decide a grave policy question wisely."

Mazey told the labor delegates that Eisenhower invoked the Taft-Hartley law in steel as a political payoff to steel companies that had contributed a total of $214,500 to Eisenhower's 1956 campaign for reelection.

He said that the half-dozen contributing companies included Republic Steel, of which George Allen, a frequent golfer and bridge companion of Eisenhower's, is a board member.

Steel Production Began In Time

DETROIT (AP)—Steel production probably resumed in time to prevent any serious disruption of car output by Ford, American Motors and Studebaker-Packard, say auto industry spokesmen.

But the pinch of steel shortages is expected to continue to affect General Motors and Chrysler.

GM, largest of the automakers, has stopped production on all but two of its assembly lines because of inadequate supplies of steel, and one of its remaining assembly lines, at the Flint, Mich., Buick plant, is to suspend operations tonight.

Chrysler, working a four day week, will be able to turn out cars for two more weeks, company officials said.

Steel shortages have idled more than 210,000 in the auto industry, most of them at GM.

Ford announced it will work five full days at Lorain, Ohio; Kansas City, Mo.; Los Angeles, and Wichita, Mich., this week. It plans to operate five days at all manufacturing plants next week.

American Motors indicated continued production was possible without a serious halt unless there are unforeseen delays in shipments of steel.

Studebaker-Packard said it will be able to build through Dec. 18 with steel on hand.

Superior Courts Set Record For Cases Handled

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina's superior courts disposed of a record number of cases during the 1958-59 fiscal year, but civil dockets in some counties remain loaded.

In an annual report, Bert M. Montague, Supreme Court official, said it was the most productive year in the history of the courts.

Montague, administrative assistant to Chief Justice J. Wallace Winborne, reported that 46,732 cases were added to the court dockets and 48,983 were cleared.

He said the number of pending cases was reduced 10 per cent. This, he continued, "left the smallest caseload we have had in the last eight years."

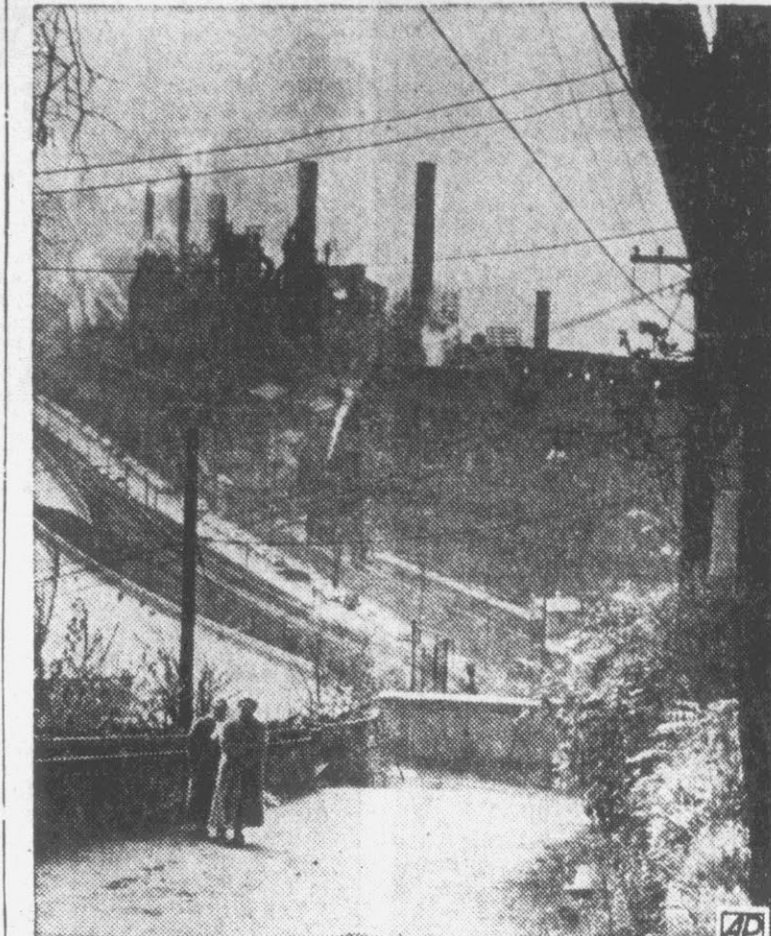

Montague said while civil dockets showed improvement, "they continue to present a challenge to the judges and lawyers." He explained that in some counties small court periods are scheduled and the dockets either remain loaded or get bigger.

Welcome Haze Returning

STEEL MILLS OPERATING AGAIN—Smoke and haze fill the Monongahela Valley at Pittsburgh as Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation's Second Avenue plant gets back into operation at end of the record-breaking 116-day strike of workers. Trickle Of Steel Beginning Flow

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A small quantity of newly made steel trickled from the furnaces of some mills today as the nation's giant steel industry continued shaking off the effects of a crippling 116-day strike.

The amount of new steel was relatively small, but it was a start toward the bigger production which the government sought in obtaining a Taft-Hartley injunction to end the strike and open the mills.

Steel works across the country began reopening Saturday, a few hours after the U. S. Supreme Court upheld the injunction that will keep the mills running for 80 days.

Only a handful of men — mostly maintenance workers — started work Saturday for the tedious job of reopening mills. But by Monday, long-idled steelmen were being recalled by the thousands as iron-making blast furnaces and steel-making open hearth furnaces were started.

As more men were recalled today, an estimated 35 per cent of the nation's 500,000 basic steelworkers were back on the job. But industry spokesmen say it will be weeks before production amounts to much.

Among plants turning out new steel Monday were Republic Steel's Buffalo plants, Bethlehem Steel's San Francisco works, Jones & Laughlin's Cleveland works and Bethlehem's Steelton, Pa., plant.

With the reopening of mills, some of the 335,000 workers who had been furloughed in allied industries began returning to their jobs, but in small numbers.

In southwestern Pennsylvania, six coal mines owned by steel companies reopened Monday. More were slated to open today.

No Insincerity Found In Smile

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A smile by a television announcer does not necessarily mean insincerity, an Oklahoma County Commission Pleas Court jury held Monday.

The jury ruled for Oklahoma City station KWTW in a suit against Nech-Elna Sewing Machine Center to collect $741 for television commercials.

The sewing machine center had refused to pay the bill because an announcer had laughed during the commercial. Vernon Huey of the center said the announcer's attitude hurt his sales.

Announcer Ken Cariker denied any insincerity. He said he usually smiled while doing commercials.

Many Injured In African Rioting

CAPETOWN, South Africa (AP) — Anti-white riots that left at least two whites and eight Africans and Asians hospitalized 35 miles north of here at Pearl were reported under control today with a detachment of police standing by.

Mobs of angry Africans attacked whites Sunday night with knives, clubs and stones in retaliation for government banishment of an African woman trade union leader, mother of three children.

The woman, Elizabeth Mafeking, left her husband and children Sunday under government orders to live 750 miles away in the remote Vryburg district.

Three Air Force Jets Are Wrecked In Blinding Snow Over Montana Early Today

GREAT FALLS, Mont. (AP)—A sudden, blinding snowstorm sent three Air Force jet planes crashing out of today's early darkness. Two of the craft carried four airmen to their deaths.

Seconds before their planes crashed, two other airmen bailed out and parachuted safely onto a central Montana ranch.

Rancher Olind Jenni saw one plane crash, its fiery flash illuminating the darkness like daylight at the base of a large hill. Minutes later a second plane crashed against the same hill. A number of other F89 Scorpion jet fighter interceptor craft caught in the snow-jammed night skies, barely got onto off-base civilian runways 250 air miles away at Billings. Some apparently ran fuel tanks dry and others near exhaustion.

Their exact number and specific mission were withheld as classified military information at the home Malmstrom Air Force Base here.

Early reports included what happened to eight aircraft. Others than those on the training mission were involved.

A T33 jet trainer aircraft, on a separate administrative mission, skidded to an emergency landing on its belly and its two men walked out unharmed.

The 29th Air Defense Headquarters at Malmstrom said the dead were:

Lt. James E. Copher, 25, of Broad Camp, Ark., a pilot, and Lt. Ronald D. Henry, 23, of Frederick, Md., the radar observer, both in the plane which crashed near Ulm, south of Great Falls.

Lt. Charles G. Daniels, 27, of Hayward, Wis., the pilot, and Lt. Eugene A. Murtha, 23, of New York City, both in a crash near Lewistown.

Parachuting safely in the Lewistown area were Capt. John Buttner, 31, of Bluefield, W. Va., the pilot, and Lt. James Johnson, 27, of Groesbeck, Tex., radarman.

Walking away unharmed from a T33 craft's belly landing at Malmstrom in the first of the series of crashes at 1:30 a. m. were these two from Ellsworth AFB: Lt. Arlan Larm, 24, of Rapid City, S. D., and Royal, Iowa, the pilot, and Lt. David Collins, 25, of Rapid City, and Rome, Ga.

Their landing gear apparently would not go down properly. The crashes near Lewistown were about 100 miles east of here while the other fatal crash was 12 miles south of the Great Falls base.

Landing safely at the Billings airport were Lt. Gerald Hanse, Lt. Bruce Williams, Lt. Richard Rouse, all of Malmstrom AFB, and Lt. John Cameron of Hamilton AFB, Calif.

One airman who made it safely to a civilian base said: "We were in the process of running out of fuel. We landed at Billings out of self preservation."

The airman speculated that the planes which crashed did not have enough fuel to fly as far south as Billings.

Among the planes which also sought shelter in Billings were two Air National Guard craft and a T33 from Hamilton AFB.

Daniels is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald M. Daniels of Hayward, Wis., and his widow, Darlyen, and four children, at Great Falls. Murtha is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Murtha of New York City, and his widow, Helen Ann, of Great Falls.

Rancher Saw Two Of Wrecks

Editor's Note—A Central Montana rancher-pilot, Olind Jenni, roused from bed by the sound of two separate plane crashes in a sudden blinding snowstorm 10 miles west of Lewistown.

By OLIND JENNI As Told To The Associated Press

LEWISTOWN, Mont. (AP)—We heard jets going over, just enough to waken us a little. We thought they might be the bombers which had been flying over here and going on east to South Dakota or somewhere.

Just a minute later, we heard a noise again. It was just a whoosh — no engine. Then you could hear it hit the ground at the base of a large hill.

It sounded like a solid thump. Then there was only silence for a little bit. By that time we had gotten to the window and could see the fire through the snow.

It was lit up like daylight about a half-mile away. It must have been awful close to our house. The way the hole in the ground looks, he must have flown just between my house and my neighbor's house, that of my uncle, Bill Webster.

If it had come down a few seconds earlier, it would have gotten one of our houses surely.

After we saw the one wreck burning, this other plane was just going over. From the roar, it sounded like its engine was on.

It must have been three or four minutes after the first wreck. That plane went over a large hill, about a mile away, and we saw the flash of fire from that crash.

At first I thought it might have been part of the first plane.

We went out and looked at the first plane. The wreckage was scattered all over parts scattered over an eighth of a mile.

There was one body. Later the sheriff and fire department men found part of another body.

There were two men who parachuted out safely and they went to a farmhouse of a Hutterite colony about a mile away. Then they were taken into Lewistown.

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) stepped into what he half expected would be a rough session with labor here Monday night, and came out unscathed — and pleased.

What opposition may have been built up by bitter attacks leveled against him by Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon did not show up as Kennedy spoke before the Multnomah County AFL-CIO Central Labor Council.

"The reaction was very favorable," said George Brown, director of political education in Oregon for the AFL-CIO. "It will put at rest much of the speculation over differences of the points of view" of Kennedy and Morse on the labor act passed by the last Congress.

The audience of 260 gave him applause that ranged from polite to warm.

"It was very courteous and friendly," said the senator as he prepared to head into California for a two-day rest before resuming his campaigning Thursday in Wisconsin.

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP)—Two Truman administration officials, Matthew J. Connelly and T. Lamar Caudle, lost their second bid for a new trial in a ruling Monday by the 8th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Connelly was appointments secretary to former President Harry S. Truman. Caudle was head of the Justice Department's tax division. They were convicted by a federal jury in 1956 of trying to block prosecution of Irvin Sachs, St. Louis shoe wholesaler, in a tax evasion case.

The pair, sentenced to two years in prison and fined $2,500 each, sought a new trial on the basis of an affidavit by Harry I. Schwimmer, an attorney for Sachs. Schwimmer swore a memorandum from his files that was used as evidence against them was made without their knowledge.

Connelly and Caudle have 20 days in which to petition for a new hearing. If they do not act, an Appeals Court mandate will be filed and the pair then will have 30 days in which to surrender and start serving their prison terms.

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Indian officials indicated today Prime Minister Nehru is willing to meet with Red Chinese Premier Chou En-lai to discuss their border dispute but not at the price of leaving a large area of India-claimed territory in Chinese control.

The officials also emphasized that unless the ground is carefully prepared for a Nehru-Chou conference and there is some indication of an acceptable settlement, it would be better not to open talks.

Officers From Salvation Army Address Woman's Club Members

Explaining that work in the Salvation Army is a "joint responsibility" of man and wife, Lt. W. J. Norris and Mrs. Norris, commanding officers of the Salvation Army in Greenville, spoke to the Woman's Club at their meeting Friday at the clubhouse.

Lt. Norris said "everyone knows" the Salvation Army in and yet it is "the least known of any organization." The Salvation Army is commonly thought of as help for the needy, but it is "primarily a religious organization," built on a military basis.

All officers are ordained or commissioned. Men and women are equal in rank.

Religious work of the Salvation Army includes both street services (with band on corner) and indoor church services and pastoral visitations. Work services include a home and hospital for unwed mothers, youth centers and care for underprivileged children, care for transients, relief for families in need, an extensive clothing program, prison work (including families of prisoners), a missing persons bureau, disaster work, clubs for servicemen, and a Christmas program (the entire collection from their Santa Claus' will finance this).

Family relief is a problem in Greenville, and Lt. Norris saw no answer for next year. Relief here is directly related to the tobacco crop, he said. They work closely with the welfare program. A bag of groceries is a basic diet for four days and is their response to emergency food needs.

The Salvation Army, said Lt. Norris, works "between the man who has something and the man who has none," "mediating between fullness and emptiness."

Presiding over the business meeting following the program, the president, Mrs. Harvey Tripp, welcomed guests and the following new members: Mesdames Paul Ricks, Herbert Harris, Pete Lauteres, R. E. Laughter.

A rising vote of thanks was given to Mrs. Clara Moye Shackell and Mrs. M. W. Maxwell and their committee for the success of the Fair Booth project.

Members were asked to save coupons for the new state project of the Woman's Club, the Boy's Home of Lake Waccamaw, N. C. Mrs. J. B. Smith will serve as Coupon Chairman.

The club voted to contribute to the CARE program for "self-help" kits sponsored by the General Federation of Women's Clubs, and to the Pitt County Tuberculosis Association.

Individual members interested in membership in the North Carolina Art Society were asked to contact Mrs. J. H. B. Moore.

It was voted to go on record as desiring to have improved pictures put on the screens at movie houses.

Mrs. P. E. Wells, Garden Club chairman, announced the next meeting of the Garden Club on Nov. 20 will be on "Garden Therapy" and said the Garden Club will hold a Harvest Sale at the Appliance Mart on Nov. 14.

The Fine Arts Department meeting will be Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Harvey Tripp, with Mrs. Crenshaw of the E. C. C. library staff, giving a book review.

The American Home Department Chairman, Mrs. H. R. Rogers, announced their meeting for Friday, Nov. 13 at Mrs. Frank Brown's.

Hostesses for the November meeting were: Mesdames Kenneth Whichard, chairman, and J. B. White, C. L. Russ, J. S. Rouse, R. P. Rogers, J. G. Riddick, Wardell Worthington and Frank Taylor.

New Shoes Need Special Care

RALEIGH—Bright and fashionable, light and comfortable, boots of brushed, smooth and grained leathers are newest shoe favorites of the younger set this year, according to Miss Mary Em Lee, clothing specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service.

Widely varied shoe styles in new lightweight leathers and brilliant autumn colors are available. The junior miss will find her all-leather oxford, basic shoe of every young wardrobe, re-styled this season—from the lightweight, flexible leather sole with new weatherproof finish to colored eyelets and fancy ties.

With new types of shoes, it is necessary to take good care of them. Miss Lee says to wear shoes suited to what you are going to do. Guard against scuffs and scratches by polishing shoes before wearing as protection.

Use of shoe horn prevents broken counters and metal heel and toe plates help prevent wear. If shoes get wet, stuff with paper and dry away from direct heat. Shoe gags or boxes protect against dust between wearings. In hot weather wear pads to protect shoe linings which means longer wear.

Gloomy Prospect Is Still With Us

Resumption of operations in the huge steel industry is good news for the nation as a whole although the gloomy prospect of a continuation of the strike after the 80-day cooling off period still hangs on the horizon.

For the immediate future it means that some half million steel workers will be returning to their jobs and along with them some 350,000 workers in other allied industries who have seen their jobs dry up because the steel mills were closed. The return of these men to their jobs will add a boost to the nation's economy at least for the 80-day period in which steel companies are producing.

There is also the prospect that in the 80-day period the steel mills are back in operation some break will come in negotiations between the United Steel Workers Union and the major steel producers so the strike may not be resumed. While neither the steel companies nor the union appears now inclined to change its position, the 80-day period could produce a strike-ending agreement.

Lacking an agreement between the major parties in the dispute, it has been hinted that President Eisenhower may have specific recommendations for Congress which will be in session at the end of the 80-day period on January 26. Whether Congress would take steps to prevent a continuation of the strike after the 80-day period is a matter of conjecture. But at least it is a possibility.

For the present it is important that the country's economic situation may begin its return to an even keel with steel again in production. It is important also, that in the public interest, the principals in the steel dispute continue their efforts to reach an agreement by which the strike may be ended.

The estimated six billion dollar losses in wages and production that have been sustained during the 116-day strike cannot be recovered, but at least some means may be found to prevent further staggering losses because of the strike.

Primary Attention Is On The Kind Of Bridge

Since the State Highway Commission has announced plans to construct a new bridge across the Cape Fear at Wilmington, primary attention in New Hanover County seems to be focused on what kind of bridge will be constructed and where it will be located.

Folks around Wilmington, it seems, favor a high level bridge (with four traffic lanes) on the south side of the city as opposed to a low level draw bridge adjacent to the present bridge on the north side of Wilmington.

At least that's what's favored by a group called "The Citizens Committee For Adequate Bridging of the Cape Fear River" which has produced a brochure giving information on the problem and pointing out the advantages of the high level bridge.

The State Highway Commission, which has the final say in the kind of bridge to be built and its location, should not overlook the long range aspects of this particular project. While a low-level draw bridge would provide some relief for the motorists crossing the Cape Fear, at Wilmington, it is entirely possible that such a solution would provide only temporary relief.

A four-lane, high level bridge, while more costly initially, might well prove less costly to Tar Heel taxpayers in the long run, particularly if a new low-level bridge would have to be supplemented a few years from now by another new bridge.

In planning for a new bridge across the Cape Fear, the Highway Commission can ill afford to be shortsighted even though it is dollar conscious.

Perhaps — unless Congress acts in the meantime — that point will have to wait months or years for a decision in a big strike which doesn't actually affect defense. For instance, a big auto strike would hurt the economy but hardly defense.

Under the Taft-Hartley provisions, unless the union and industry meantime reach a settlement, the workers will be free to strike again when the 80-day back-to-work order has ended.

So early in 1960 — which is after Congress returns—the nation faces the possibility of another steel strike. At that time there may also be strikes on the railroads and in shipping.

Then, election year or not, Congress may act to tighten Taft-Hartley or go further, in preventing big strikes, that it ever was willing to go before.

One method, of course, is a flat ban on industry-wide strikes or any others that would hurt the general welfare. That would require setting up a government agency of some kind to give a decision on wages which both sides would have to accept. That is called compulsory arbitration.

That is a dirty word with management and unions. Once the government began dictating wages, it almost certainly would have to fix prices, too. President Eisenhower and Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell both oppose compulsory arbitration. Yet, in time, some remedy must be found.

Mitchell suggests setting up a board to hear both sides and make its findings public. But he is against letting such a board even make recommendations. That is a long way from actually preventing a strike.

Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.), who protests his friendship for labor, says we "can no longer afford the luxury of prolonged disputes."

He suggests a bill which would: (1) let the President seize and operate struck plants or (2) let him name an emergency board that would hold hearings and, unlike Mitchell's board, issue an order binding on both sides.

Sen. George A. Smathers (D-Fla.) would set up a five-man federal labor court to do the same thing. Neither Morse nor Smathers said they were talking of compulsory arbitration. But that's what their proposals amount to.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS BRUTALITY One of the most convincing evidences of progress in human life and thinking has been the decrease in brutality during the past century.

Of course it is scarcely up to us to be speaking in terms of pride over the fact that we have given up brutality in the everyday conduct of life, inasmuch as we blew up two cities with atomic bombs and stand ready to blast a nation or two off the globe if they declare war on us. But 100 or 150 years ago, brutality was the order of the day. George Washington was very much annoyed that the Continental Congress allowed him to administer only 100 lashes, which the Congress refused. Prison conditions 100 years ago were so dreadful that we blush to read about them today. It was not along ago that pirates sailed the sea, sacked cities, and compelled passengers and crew members to walk the plank. I would say that between 1900 and 1910 I witnessed a street fight almost every week—usually among young boys, but sometimes between men of adult age and occasionally between men of social prominence and position. I have seen only one street fight in the past forty years.

Brutality is a sign of immaturity. We as a nation are growing up. We are heading that word of the Master, "Blessed are the merciful for they shall obtain mercy."

When The Fight's Over—

Early Whiskery Ruling

By DON SCHLIENZ Neighboring... (well, almost)... New Bern is planning its 250th Birthday Anniversary next year on a big scale.

The party begins June 11 and lasts two weeks. Something like that takes a lot of advance preparation, and in reading some of the early announcements you can see that much has been done and is being done. Privately, however, I think there has been one oversight.

Probably the biggest single attraction will lie in the historical pageant being prepared by Kermit Hunter — a man who found a career for himself in writing historical pageants, such as "Unto These Hills", "Horn In The West" and "Forever This Land", to name a few.

This new Kermit Hunter showpiece is entitled "The Third Frontier", and is based on three phases of New Bern's history: the past (founding by the Swiss), the present, and the future (from which the pageant takes its name). New Bernians who have seen the early drafts are said to be enthusiastic.

The cast of between 100 and 125 will be largely made up of local citizens. Other events include a big historical parade, sanctioned boat races, antique show, ski show, and various other projects.

It promises to be a busy, busy two weeks.

I'm still not satisfied, though. One thing noticeable in reading up on the New Bern Birthday Party is that if beards are to be the order of the day, nothing official has been said about it yet. And it's something that should be decided soon, one way or the other, and proclaimed to the North, South, East and West of Craven County.

The reason is plain: you need time to grow a fittingly impressive face brush for a 250th Anniversary.

I don't know why it's so, but other such celebrations in recent years have placed a great deal of to-do on wearing whiskers, sideburns or luxuriant hirsute growth on the upper lip... it has become a near prerequisite.

Citizens of any locale who can sport a one or two inch growth of facial hair in observance of a one hundredth anniversary should be left in the shade by a community marking its 250th birthday.

But that kind of display doesn't happen overnight. New Bern may or may not decide whiskers are de rigueur for the occasion; whatever the verdict, it should be rendered soon.

It would be a shame if the males had only time to sport a disreputable-looking fuff.

"One of the most shocking developments in our present American society is the volcanic upheaval of youthful lawlessness. Long indifferent to the problem of juvenile crime, the public now stands appalled at the spectacle of rampaging teenage criminals. This tragic consequence of public apathy is now at a crisis and calls for an all-out counterattack against vicious young thugs." — J. Edgar Hoover.

"Almost everyone used to regard employing the handicapped as a kind of charity. The man who gave jobs to workers suffering from some sort of physical disadvantage was generally looked upon as a good-hearted fellow willing to assist others at some cost to himself. The heart has its reasons. So has the brain. And the brain, judging on the basis of experience, now informs us that employing the handicapped is a lot closer to good business than it is to charity." — Fredonia, (N.Y.) Censor.

"Perhaps we don't understand the whole story, but from what we do understand, labor is exercising mighty poor statesmanship in selfishly demanding more of everything, when they must know that obtaining their demands will set off another inflationary spiral." — Burley (Idaho) Herald-Bulletin.

If Business 'Took The Pledge'

By ELMER ROESSNER Television has taken the pledge. No more fixed quizzes, no more canned applause, no more trick commercials. The spores of honesty are in the air. Perhaps they will start propagating in retailing.

Let's dream: A shopper hesitates between two coats. The clerk says, "Won't you please take this off-green one? It does something for you. It will also do something for you because it is a spiff. That means that I get two bucks extra if I manage to sell it. Sort of a bonus, you know, to get us to clear out old stock."

Or: The youthful insurance salesman has been calling on the young husband for months; the husband agrees he ought to carry more insurance but he can't quite make up his mind. One evening the salesman shows up with a stranger. He says, "Mr. Prospect, I used to introduce Joe Gripps here as my supervisor, but now that honesty is abroad in the land, I want you to know he is a closer, as we call them. His job is to get you to sign tonight and he gets half my commission. Mr. Joe Gripps, Joe grabs the prospect by the lapels and slams him into the wall. "Suicidal salesman can't sell a prospect in 25 minutes, he has to turn him over to one of the turnover boys, such as Mr. Lanier. He'll shame you into making up your mind in a hurry."

monster," he screams, "you'd let your wife and children starve if you ever walked in front of a moving auto, and you're just the kind that would do it. Do you sign or do I beat you to within an inch of your worthless life" BARGAINS, YET

Or: A salesgirl says to a shopper: "Yeah, there are the nylons advertised as special at 97 cents this week. They were 89 cents last week, but the buyer thought if we talked them up as rare bargains, we could get rid of them."

Or the customer's man calls up the investor and says, "Mr. Rosner, I can get you a block of one thousand shares of Red Sea Mines at 98 cents. They aren't worth 80 cents and will probably drop to 65 cents before the end of the year, but I need the commission to do my Christmas shopping with. Besides, the fellow who is trying to unload them is courting my boss's maiden aunt, and after all, you can probably use a capital loss, can't you?"

Yes, if this New Honesty spreads from television to other areas of business it may certainly put us all on our guard. But just as honesty would have taken all the fun out of quiz shows, so will honesty take all the fun out of doing business. MORE RETAILERS EXPECT RISE IN CHRISTMAS SALES

Contrary to predictions here, Christmas sales will set a new high, according to retailers surveyed by the Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

It shows 82 per cent expect a rise in sales and 72 per cent expect a rise in profits. The survey also showed that 40 per cent plan to step up advertising and 57 per cent plan to maintain promotion at last year's level.

Ben Is Among 'Great'

By HAL BOYLE NEW YORK (AP)—Who was the greatest American?

Poet Robert Frost has named as the four greatest Americans: George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Abraham Lincoln and Ralph Waldo Emerson.

J. Donald Adams of the New York Times Book Review has nominated a fifth figure — president Theodore Roosevelt, who he feels personified in life the virtues America most needs to face the problems of now.

It's a great indoor pleasure to try to place in some order of precedence the mighty names of the American past. It is a fine intellectual game, and a good way to find out yourself what you believe in most, and how you rank people.

What makes the game even better is that few would agree on who have been the five greatest Americans. There are many titans to choose from.

But it is hard to figure how anyone could omit from a catalogue of greatness that first do-it-yourself American — Benjamin Franklin.

In his own lifetime he was the best-known American both in his own country and in Europe, and he remains one of the most many-faceted geniuses in the annals of the human race, a true all-around man.

The range of his accomplishments is so wide — as businessman, writer, diplomat, scientist, inventor and humanitarian, — that one would be hard put to name another individual in all history who benefited his country in more ways.

Self-taught from the age of 10, he became a vegetarian so he could spend his meat money on books. He taught himself logic, navigation, algebra and geometry. Later in life he taught himself to read German, French, Spanish, Italian and Latin.

Most everyone knows Franklin discovered that lightning is electricity. They are also probably aware he founded the nation's first circulating library and fire insurance company, and invented a new kind of harmonica, the lightning rod, bifocal glasses, the Franklin stove, and the platform rocking chair.

But few remember that he was also America's most popular writer — his "Poor Richard's Almanack" was outsold only by the Bible. Even fewer know he was the first to make the American postal system pay its own way, or that he introduced into this country silkworms, broom corn, and the use of lime to fertilize soil.

He also pioneered in studying the Gulf Stream, scientific weather prediction, and planned an expedition to the arctic.

A lifelong practical idealist, wise, witty, and humane, he died of gallstones and gout at 84, and the entire civilized world mourned the passing of a human Himalaya.

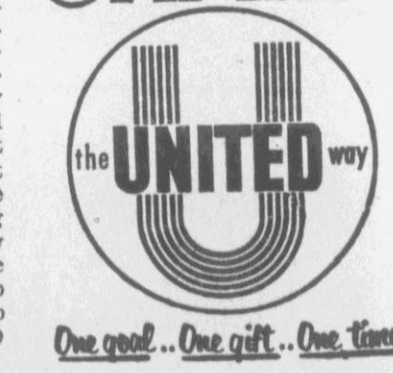

If breadth of both mind and deed measure greatness, who can tower as an American above this man who in his will humbly described himself as "I, Benjamin Franklin, printer?"

Opinions In Brief

"One of the most shocking developments in our present American society is the volcanic upheaval of youthful lawlessness. Long indifferent to the problem of juvenile crime, the public now stands appalled at the spectacle of rampaging teenage criminals. This tragic consequence of public apathy is now at a crisis and calls for an all-out counterattack against vicious young thugs." — J. Edgar Hoover.

"Almost everyone used to regard employing the handicapped as a kind of charity. The man who gave jobs to workers suffering from some sort of physical disadvantage was generally looked upon as a good-hearted fellow willing to assist others at some cost to himself. The heart has its reasons. So has the brain. And the brain, judging on the basis of experience, now informs us that employing the handicapped is a lot closer to good business than it is to charity." — Fredonia, (N.Y.) Censor.

Despite Elaborate Adapting, A Bore

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—An author worked long and hard, the play was given an elaborate and obviously expensive production. The talented cast, headed by Lee J. Cobb, acted its collective head off. But the sad fact remains, that "I, Don Quixote," emerged on CBS Monday night an earnest, windy bore. Cervantes' ridiculous knight tilted at the windmill, rescued a damsel in distress, and found a barber's basin to be a golden helmet.

But the Don Quixote envisioned by a adaptor Dale Wasserman was a mad and sad old man. Dialogue was hard to follow, full of such high-flown phrases as "poets and madmen try to improve on reality" and "too much sanity is madness." It's hard to say just what Wasserman, let alone Cervantes, was trying to prove.

Nevertheless, it was brave and daring to try to adapt a 300-year-old literary classic, complete with dress and Florida language, to television, particularly one which has resisted dramatization for so long. Earlier Bob Hope, on NBC, took over for an hour. It was a Bob Hope show much like all other Bob Hope shows. His preliminary wisecracks were entirely concerned with the quiz show investigation. Also there was actress May Britt in a sketch, TV guest star Zsa Zsa with some wisecracks and a parade of pretty starlets.

Two widely separated events occurred last week which illustrate some of the problems to be solved in connection with pre-recorded shows.

First was the dramatic incident on the Today show when Dave Garroway became so upset talking about his former colleague, Charles Van Doren, that he broke down — and later in the show reported to have gone home. Then on Sunday night Edward R. Murrow on "Small World" played host to Brendan Behan, obviously in no condition for conversation.

Then Today show was taped the afternoon before it was broadcast — and while Garroway's emotion undoubtedly was genuine, the fact that it was used as if it were live some 16 hours later gave the whole thing a phony aspect. Furthermore, it annoyed some viewers when they found it was a taped episode.

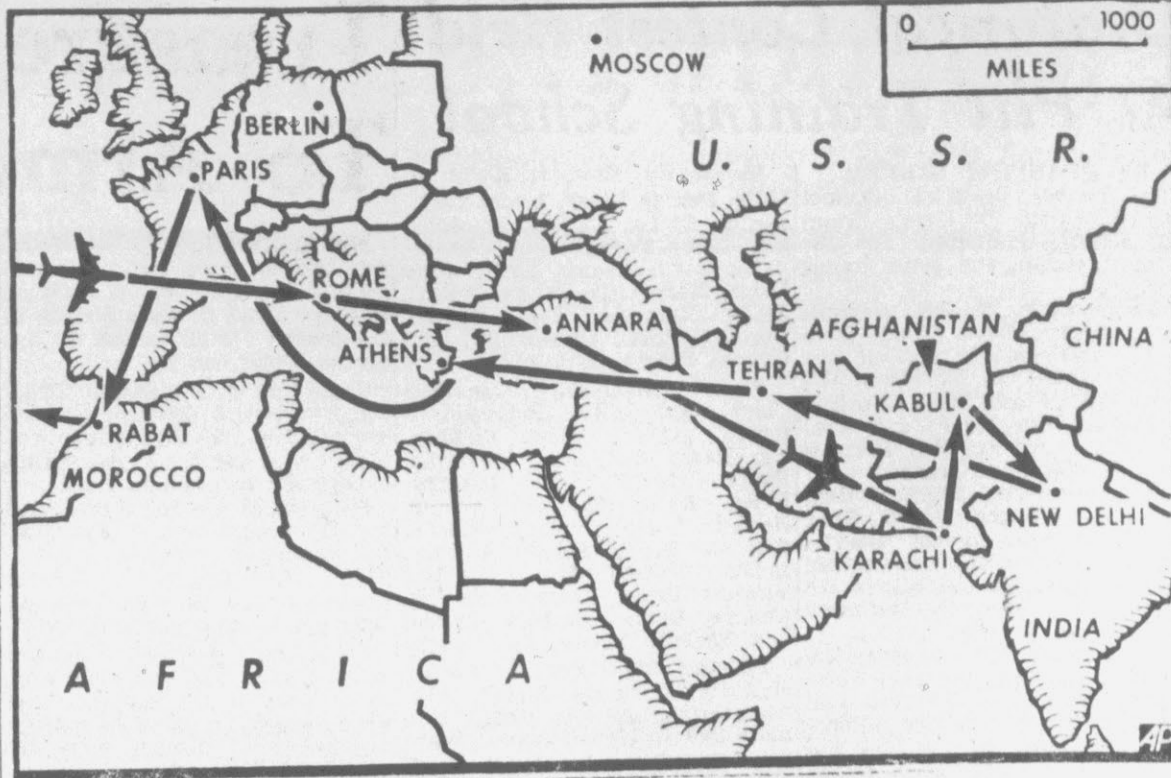

The Behan appearance is difficult to understand. Certainly his raffish conduct must have been distasteful — even shocking — to many members of the television audience. Even fellow guest John Mason Brown looked more pained than amused. CBS must have had some doubts about the show — the brass took another look at it a couple of days before its broadcast, but decided to go ahead anyway.

Tenor Campora Had Enthused Audience

By GEORGE E. PERRY
Vocally speaking, there is nothing more exciting to hear than a top-ranking tenor, and Giuseppe Campora proved himself to be just that, and then some, in his concert last evening in Wright Auditorium. Judging by the clamorous applause, the audience more than in agreement, for they kept demanding one encore after another. (Whoever said Greenville had lost its taste for good music is obviously mistaken.) Campora's voice is a thrilling one—his high tones are clear, his middle voice pleasantly smooth, and his bottom tones appropriately darker (though occasionally last night they tended to be husky.) One of the more memorable aspects of his voice was his ability to sing top notes in the greatest pianissimo possible. Then, of course, when he chose to use his full voice in this range, the effect upon the audience was almost electrifying.

The program started out rather calmly, with three early Italian numbers, all beautifully sung, and giving the tenor a chance to work gradually into the more demanding selections. Three songs by Faure, followed, the "En Priere" ending in an unforgettable way, and the "Fleur Jete" being exciting from beginning to end.

The first half of the program concluded with the aria, "La Reve" from Massenet's "Manon." This left no doubt in the minds of the listeners that Mr. Campora was the most at home in operatic selections. One could sense his momentary immersion in the role of des Grieux, as he told Manon of his dream. The top "A," sung sotto voce, was sheer delight.

A group of Spanish numbers began the second part of the concert, with the bravura style of "To Quiero" giving Mr. Campora an excellent opportunity to display this aspect of his singing. The three songs by Tosti, which followed, were as beautifully sung as anything on the program, particularly "Ideale," and "L'Alba se para dalla luce l'ombra," which, in their beauty, reminded one of Caruso as well as the incomparable Bjorling.

From the English Group, Gianini's "Tell Me, oh Blue Blue Sky" was perhaps the best sung, and it seemed that the spirit of the song was completely captured. This was something not sensed in Rachmaninoff's "Lilacs," however, where the inherent intimacy seemed to be missing.

Puccini's music is unquestionably this tenor's stock-in-trade.

and it is unfortunate that he treated us to only one of these choice morsels: "E lucevan le stelle" from "Tosca." But if he had sung nothing else all evening, he would have left a lasting impression on his audience with this stirring rendition. And it further carried out the point that he is the most at home in opera.

They came encore after encore, each one Italian, with special note made of the haunting "Don't Forget Me." Here reminiscences were in order, and it sounded as if we were hearing the exact recording which Gigli had made a few years before his death. But in all of these was the excitement, the passion, the fervor, which is so much a part of the Italian love song.

I found only one distressing aspect all evening long: the way Mr. Campora lost the mood of the song during piano interludes. I will never forget hearing Lotte Lehmann say that this was ESSENTIAL to great singing, and it was disturbing to see this happen. When he sang, he was always within the music itself, but while the piano was carrying on alone, he seemed to leave the music temporarily.

Speaking of the piano, the accompaniments of Eileen Michna added considerably to the effectiveness of the concert. The way she supported the singer was indicative of her sensitivity.

Opposed To Any A-Bomb Testing

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (AP)—The Soviet Union's atomic energy administrator, Prof. Vasily S. Emelyanov, says he is opposed to atomic bomb testing of all types, including underground tests.

He also told a news conference Monday, that it is impossible to say at this stage of atomic development whether the Soviet Union or the United States is ahead.

Emelyanov heads a group of nine Soviet scientists touring U.S. atomic facilities under an exchange program he said he hoped would be expanded.

The scientists toured the Atomic Energy Commission's testing station in east Idaho Monday.

Between the end of 1952 and the end of 1958, automobile repair charges rose 21.4 per cent in the United States.

Part Of Cranberry Crop Is Reported 'Contaminated'

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government warns that part of the West Coast cranberry crop is contaminated by a weed-killer that can produce cancer in rats.

The warning brought a chorus of protests and denials from cranberry growers and crop experts. With Thanksgiving coming up in a couple of weeks and Christmas not far off they are entering their biggest sales season.

Arthur S. Flemming, secretary of health, education and welfare, told a news conference Monday that parts of the 1958 and 1959 cranberry crop from Washington and Oregon were found to be contaminated.

He did not say how much might be affected, or where it may be on sale. No reason has been found to suspect current crops from Wisconsin, New Jersey and Massachusetts, he said.

If the housewife can't determine where the berries come from and the year of the crop, Flemming said, "it's on the safe side she doesn't buy."

This brought an anguished cry from the National Cranberry Assn., which markets the crops of many growers under the Ocean Spray label.

"First," said Assn. Vice President Ambrose E. Stevens, "we can state that to the best of our knowledge, all cranberries in groceries and supermarkets today are pure and wholesome and unadulterated by any dangerous substance."

"Second, we are shocked that the U.S. government has made public what we consider an inflammatory statement concerning possible contamination of cranberries by a weed-killer approved by the Department of Agriculture."

Stevens said Ocean Spray growers were instructed on Sept. 18 to stop using the weed-killer, aminotriazole. "Any crop suspected of contamination has already been isolated from the market," he added.

Flemming said the weed-killer had been used improperly and some of it got into the cranberries. He stressed that proper use of the chemical is not dangerous.

Two of seven 1959 shipments from the Northwest were found definitely to be contaminated, Flemming said. One is to be seized by the government, but the other has been distributed.

Other lots, not yet shipped, are being tested. The contamination can affect canned, whole or frozen berries.

Flemming, backed up by Food and Drug Administrator George P. Larrick, declared that it was risky for humans to eat the tainted berries. They said rats fed doses of the weed-killer over a two-year period developed cancer of the thyroid.

At South Bend, Wash., a county extension agent, Nolan Servoss, said there were no evidence that the stuff would produce cancer in humans. Furthermore, he said, the concentration of the chemical in Washington cranberries was so minute that "I would not hesitate to eat all the Washington cranberries I could hold."

Servoss added that only a small percentage of Washington berries were sprayed with the weed-killer last year. Most of the 1958 crop that might have been contaminated was destroyed, but some was marketed, he said.

Servoss said all the 1959 crop that had been sprayed was left unharvested. Growers estimated that 5 to 10 per cent of the state's big crop was affected.

The National Agricultural Chemicals Assn. also took issue with Flemming and Larrick.

It said the rats developed cancer after a lifetime of eating a diet containing about 100 times as much of the chemical as had been found on the contaminated cranberries.

"Humans would have to subsist almost entirely on a diet of which cranberries for years in order to approximate the conditions which caused tumors in test animals," the association said.

CHAPTER 12

It was late. Maria had finally gone to bed, after looking in to see that Lolita was all right. Little by little the Majors big rambling house quieted down until the desert silence took over completely and seemed to throb all around. It was a warm night, and Lolita sat reading, with the big bedroom window wide open. Diamond-bright desert stars looked in at her, but she read on, not noticing them.

She was just turning a page when a faint sound from outside caught her attention. She glanced over her shoulder. Bud was at the window, his elbows on the sill, smiling at her. Lolita started slightly, almost dropping her book.

"Bud! What are you doing here?"

"Well," said Bud, "I just said goodnight to the Sergeant. We had quite a little confab. And I figured I'd just drop by and say goodnight to you. I seen your window was all lighted up. Nice night, ain't it?"

Lolita knew that she should protest, tell Bud to go away. But what harm was there in it? She rose, put down her book, and walked over to the window.

"Yes," she said, "it's a wonderful night." She looked out at the stars, then at Bud, who lounged comfortably, his elbows on the sill and his chin in his hands, his big hat pushed back.

"Kind of night I like to take a ride out in the desert," said Bud. "Just loaf along, you know. Sure looks pretty out there, with the stars shining down and nobody around to spoil it."

"Yes," said Lolita. "Mrs. Etheredge often talks about how she'd like to do it. But the Major thinks it's foolish."

"Oh, well," said Bud, "he's getting kinda old and he's got this whole Camp here to look after. Now me, I'm young and footloose."

Lolita glanced at him, then lowered her eyes.

"And you're pretty young, too," said Bud; "younger than me. But . . . not so footloose." He laughed lightly. "But then, of course, you're a girl, and girls got to be careful."

"That's right," said Lolita. "You keep you in pretty close, don't they?"

"Yes," said Lolita. "And at the convent even more so."

"Well," drawled Bud, "maybe it's all right. Guess it is. You got lots of time." He paused and studied her face. "Course maybe it gets kind of irksome now and then. For instance, no harm in a little ride in the desert at night. But you couldn't do that."

"No," said Lolita, "I couldn't do that."

"It's a shame," said Bud. "With the night the way it is. Look at them stars. Ever see 'em so clear?"

"No," said Lolita.

"When you get out a ways, they kinda light things up. You can see the bushes and the grass. They look kinda bluish, real pretty. But I guess you know all about that."

"No. I don't. I've never been out in the desert at night."

"Too bad. I got two horses now, one real quiet; fine for a young girl to ride. And I was just thinking the other night, but . . . oh, well."

"You were just thinking what?"

"About you," said Bud. "How nice it would be, just the two of us, out taking a little short ride in the desert at night."

"I couldn't."

"Oh, I understand that. I didn't really figure we'd make it. But it was nice to think about."

"Yes," said Lolita. "It's nice to think about."

Bud nodded slowly and there was a long silence. "I even figured I might ask the Sergeant about it," said Bud, finally. "Maybe take him along—and then it'd be okay, wouldn't it?"

Lolita hesitated. "Yes. Then it might be all right."

"The only thing is," bud went on, "the Sergeant's so busy. Works all the time. Don't get enough rest. I kinda hate to ask him."

"Yes," said Lolita, "that's

Oratorical Contest Held At Pitt Training School

By FRANCINE PARKER

The annual Oratorical Contest was held in the Pitt County Training School Gymnasium for the seventh, eighth, and ninth grades Nov. 3-4.

Participating in the program were Francis Boyd, Donald Redmond, and Maggie Cox of the eighth grade; A. T. Mills, III, Miles Wilson and Sarah Gardner of the seventh grade; and Ernestine Rountree and Kay Frances Wilson of the ninth grade.

Winners were: Miles Wilson and Kay Frances Wilson. They will participate in the District Elimination Contest at the school here on Nov. 10. Coaches of the winners are Mrs. G. McDowell and William Crandall.

The regular Parent-Teacher Association meeting was held Tuesday night. It was observed that the 11th grade won the attendance prize and each student will be served a repast as a result.

Last Wednesday, the faculty members teamed up to play the high school basketball teams. The teams split the doubleheader with the school girls winning, 22-13, and the faculty men taking the school boys' measure by 62-42.

Making the honor roll for the first grading period were: Vernell Little, Charlie Howard, and James Taft—12th grade; Leon Boyd—11th grade; Jessie G. Mills, Katie Crandall, and Laura Leary—10th grade; Missouri Robinson, Kay Frances Wilson, Ernestine Rountree, Vivian Hawkins, and Melba Grace Woolard—ninth grade.

Donald Ray Redmond, Moses Thomas Green, and James Earl Foye—eighth grade; Janice Mills, Amos Mills, Evonne Smith, and Dulla Little—seventh grade; Vauline Cooney, Elliot Parmelee, Cledean Hoxby, Henry L. Graham, Lucy Battle, Melvin Smith, Barbara Davis, James Ward, Robert Gorham, John Ward, Jr., Shirley Green, James C. Williams, Doris Hardy, Jenny Little, Lena McNeil, Ella Redmond, Patricia Thompson, Wilsonia Cherry, Sandra Holliday, and Iva Hawkins—sixth grade.

She felt both restless and tired. Putting out the light, she undressed quickly and got into bed. As soon as her eyes became accustomed to the darkness, she noticed the bluish shine of the stars in the room.

What must it be like out in the desert on such a night as this! Beautiful, really beautiful!

Treasure Hunting Opened To Armchair Adventures

WASHINGTON (AP) — Would you like to share the risks, and possible profits, of a Spanish treasure hunt? Or have a stake in the search for oil in the jungles of the Philippines?

These and other armchair thrills and potential disappointments are available to anyone who has the cash to indulge in new issues of speculative common stocks.

Such issues are being processed by the Securities and Exchange Commission at a record rate this year. The agency is forever amazed by the variety of propositions put to American investors.

Take the proposed treasure hunt. In this case, you could even be whisked to the far-away spot where a fleet of Spanish galleons was sunk by British guns 257 years ago.

Treasure Hunters, Inc., a new Washington firm, is going to select one of its stockholders by lot to go on this planned expedition. All expenses will be paid and, if treasure is found, the lucky stockholder will share in the 25 percent cut that goes to the salvage crew and company officials.

Many people believe extremely speculative stocks no longer are sold because of the policing of the SEC. The fact is, the SEC can't block a speculative offering so long as the promoters make a full disclosure of the facts about their enterprise.

Treasure Hunters, Inc., which is trying to sell 1,900,000 shares at $1 each, tells prospective investors: "No person should invest in this enterprise more than he can afford to lose."

The prospectus adds that even if all shares are sold, "The amount received by the company may very well prove to be insufficient to locate any vessel or cargo sought."

Treasure Hunters plans to spend its first expedition to Vigo Bay, in Spain, to search for gold, silver and jewels that sank with a treasure fleet in 1702. It will work there with a British salvage firm.

Actually, the company isn't sure this treasure still exists. Other salvagers operated in the same

WESTBROOK, Maine (AP) — A man pushed his way through swinging doors and demanded of the man on duty, "A glass of ale with a shot of whisky."

He was booked for intoxication in a public place.

FRANKFURT au MAIN, Nov. 6.—Five Tar Heels and five top flight German industrialists had an intimate lunch here today which may indicate the pace and prospects of accomplishing what the 68 Carolinians are after.

Dr. H. C. Boden, chairman of AEC, the General Electric of Germany; Fritz Alehner, manager of a big communications machinery company; Rolph Audouard, managing director of the West German machinery manufacturers association; Dr. Alfred Doderer, manager of the foreign trade department of the German-American chamber of commerce; and Dr. H. Baurle, and associate of Dr. Boden, were the German quintet. Tar Heel counterpart was Governor Luther Hodges. Orton Boren, John M. Reeves, J. N. Pease and Watts Hill Jr.

Out of this meeting, arranged by the German American chamber of commerce, which Hodges helped form when he was in Europe in 1950-51 with the Marshall plan administration, came information the Germans were aware of the fact US labor scales are higher than theirs but that this is balanced off by the fact US production otherwise is cheaper than over here.

The Germans indicated they'd like to trade technical know-how with us; that it would take three or four years for total results beneficial to NC to emerge; that NC should publish a booklet in German giving information on the state's labor and tax situations and its general economic factors; which the GA CC would distribute in the proper places.

Hodges said the German industrialists were "shocked and astonished" to learn the size of NC's textile, tobacco and furniture manufacturing. They also said the economic climate of the south suited them better than any other part of the US. They held out little hope for immediate location of German plants in NC, but were extremely interested in licensing agreements whereby German goods might be made in NC and vice versa.

Governor Hodges, who earlier had told me it was apparent some European person, firm or association would have to be used to follow up whatever contacts were turned up in the cities and countries visited, was well pleased with the cooperation offered by the GA CC.

The Frankfurt visitors leave here shortly for Munich, where they will settle down for nearly four days. This will be the first opportunity Hodges and those traveling with him have had really to unpack their bags. Schedule heretofore has been to live out of one's suitcase, each night washing a shirt and underwear and letting it drip dry during a few hours' sleep.

One of the highlights of the trip was a reception and dinner tendered the entire NC delegation in Stuttgart by Minister President Kurt Georg Kelsinger at his official residence. Menu: Smoked eel which was tastier than Holland's tomato soup, veal roast and vegetables, vanilla ice cream and petit fours, all intermixed with two kinds of wine and champagne with the ice cream. Toasts and short speeches were exchanged by the Minister President and the Governor; the Governor gave Mr.

Kelsinger one of the Tar Heel lapel pins and the former reciprocated by presenting a schiller medalion, Stuttgart being Schiller's birthplace.

The dinner was held in two immense rooms, one circular of about 40 feet diameter, the other oblong, 30x40 feet. Those present then went to other rooms for coffee and brandies; the latter featured German cherry "water," really brandy, which was a kick comparable to NC's white lightning, and with the same white color.

Just how much actual good was accomplished for NC won't be known immediately, but with 35 important Tar Heels and a like number of German industrialists having a happy stag party, it was obvious to everyone that good relationship was cemented, not only for NC but the entire US.

This was well summed up by Dr. Ing. Otto Fahr, at my table, manufacturer of industrial machinery, who said "It's a very useful thing you do, because it's so very necessary that we get to know and understand each other. Go back and tell your folks you met friends in Germany and especially in Baden-Wuerttemberg. The name of your North Carolina has been mentioned in our trading marts; I'll mention it again very gratefully."

Howard Holderness of Greensboro was snapping pix with his flashlight camera; Cloyd Philpott was swapping stories around the room; N. E. Aydielt and Lorimer Midget were resplendent in black bow ties and newly self laundered shirts. All of the Tar Heels have talked with Germans who were in Stuttgart during a 3-day and night bombing of the horrors of war; a taxi driver, soldier then, told me he got three hours sleep during the time and spent the 72 hours in a cellar, only he called it keller.

I've been looking at the prints on the walls in hotel rooms as assembly places; many have American scenes. A tapestry in the room in Frankfurt where today's conference was held showed unmistakably Confederate soldiers looking at a scene which we'll just say is in North Carolina.

The Germans talking with us about trade, commerce and industry say these as handel, commerz and industrie.

Will Represent Frat Chapters At Nat'l Meet

A Greenville student, a junior at East Carolina College, has been chosen to represent 102 chapters of the Delta Sigma Pi professional commerce and business administration fraternity from across the nation at the five-day Congress of American Industry in New York City.

William King Willis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernul K. Willis of Beaumont Rd., is scheduled to leave Greenville the first of December for the meeting lasting from Dec. 1 through the fourth.

Included in the program, sponsored by the National Association of Manufacturers, are panel discussions involving student delegates, a "grand tour" of the city, numerous speeches by some of the nation's top business and political leaders, and a series of banquets and dinner meetings.

Young Willis was chosen from members of Delta Sig chapters across America by virtue of his grade average and all-round activity on the ECC campus. He represents the national organization of his fraternity.

The annual Congress, to be held in New York's famous Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, is an effort to create a better understanding on the part of America's youth of the nation's complex business and industrial world.

Collects Warts For Virus Study

By BILL SINNOTT

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Professor Walter Mack collects warts if you've got any—particularly fresh ones—he wants them.

There's a serious purpose behind this. Mack, a professor at Michigan State University, specializes in the study of viruses.

Warts, though generally non-malignant, are similar to other tumors. Mack is trying to find out if they are caused by a virus. This might lead to a major breakthrough in the fight against cancer. For if a virus causes warts, support would be lent to a theory that a virus causes other tumors, including ones that are cancerous.

Two Detroit skin specialists are helping Mack add to his wart collection. They periodically remove them from patients in his MSU laboratory. The procedure takes only a few minutes, and it is relatively painless.

However, although countless persons are afflicted with warts, Mack doesn't have enough for his research.

One reason, he says, is that many people think they can treat themselves. For example, one folk remedy consists of eating an apple, rubbing the core on the wart and then burying the core in the light of a full moon.

The tumor may vanish later, Mack says, but only by coincidence. He explains that warts sometimes disappear of their own accord.

He is looking particularly for new warts on young persons. "We'd like some real fresh ones which are more likely to have a live virus," he says.

Boy Started His Own Campfire

PASSAIC, N.J. (AP)—Cowboys were gathered around a campfire in a Western movie that Ted Seftick Jr., 5, was watching on television Monday.

The boy went into his bedroom and started his own campfire under the bed with newspapers. Ted's father, a fireman off duty, doused the blaze.

Seftick Jr. is looking particularly for new warts on young persons. "We'd like some real fresh ones which are more likely to have a live virus," he says.

Rockefeller Suggests End Work Week Cuts

NEW YORK (AP)—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller suggests American labor could benefit the national economy by foregoing further reductions in the work week. He says taxes might be cut by 1970 as much as 15 per cent as a result.

But the New York governor says his statement is only an analysis, not a recommendation.

The Republican governor, widely regarded as an undeclared candidate for next year's presidential nomination, addressed the Economic Club of New York Monday night.

"There is no compelling reason why American growth should be fixed at the historic 3 per cent rate, or even the postwar 4 per cent rate," Rockefeller said.

"Since 1930, our average work week has declined from over 48 hours to under 38 hours, or by 3 1/2 hours every decade. The increase in leisure has been an important social gain, but it has also diluted our production record."

In the face of growing union pressure for a 30-hour week, Rockefeller said: "Few would urge that we should keep cutting the work week at this rate for an indefinite period into the future. If we should decide at any point to forego further work week reductions in favor of increased output of goods and services, this of itself could allow us to realize the full benefit of our almost 3 per cent annual increase in output per man hours."

"This normal increase in productivity, plus a reasonably ex-

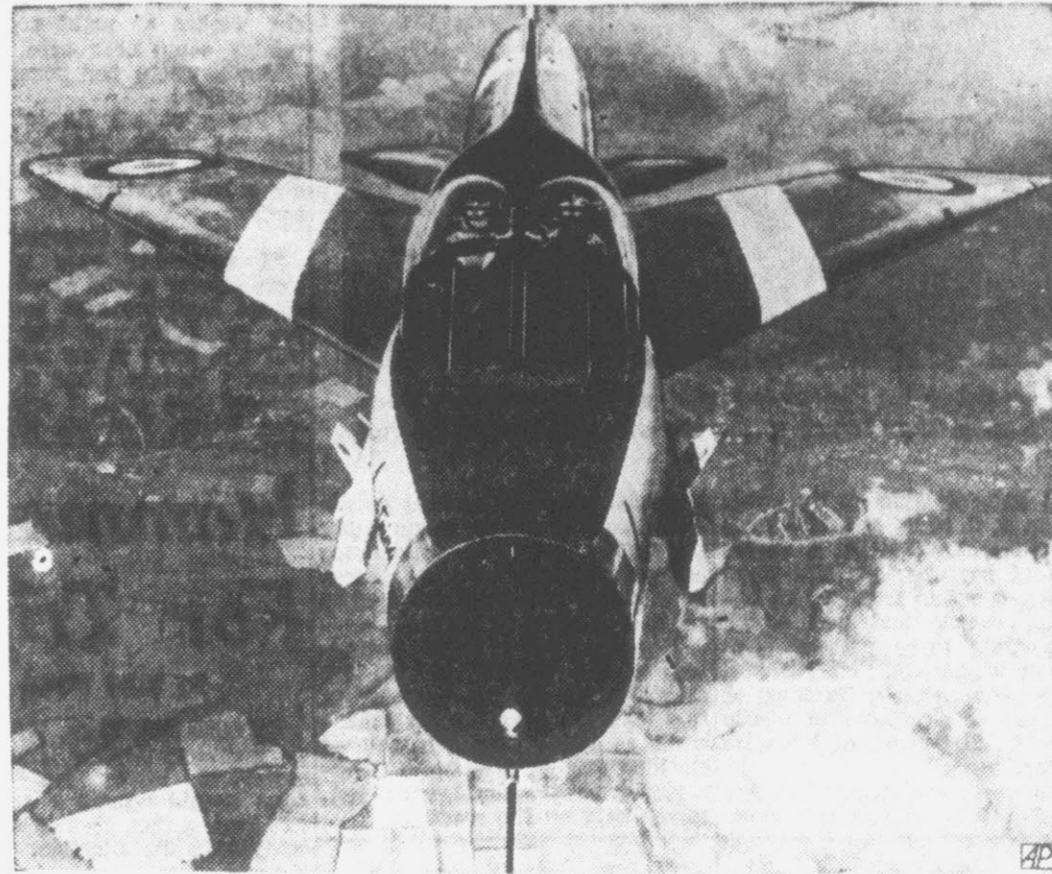

Failed To Make A Sonic Boom

HAMILTON AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—The Air Force labored Monday to make a sonic boom and produced a bust.

Trying to show newsmen how faster-than-sound speeds will cause a shock wave, two F104 jet fighters crossed over this base at 36,000 feet. Navy Lt. Tom Brown of Fort Washington, N.Y., and Air Force Capt. Orland W. Jensen of Los Angeles, insisted they had exceeded the speed of sound.

This should have produced a boom. The silence was deafening. Must have been a layer of heavy, cold air below them that muffled the sound, said Brown and Jensen.

Growing like Sixty

In 1960 Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company will celebrate 60 years of service to eastern North Carolina. On the eve of our anniversary, we are growing faster than ever in our history, keeping pace with North Carolina's vigorous expansion. Carolina Telephone added 12,371 telephones in just the first 9 months of '59—more phones added than for any entire year in the past—for a total of 175,880 phones in use.

The progress of our state and growth in telephone communications go hand in hand. That's why we will strive for continued growth by constantly improving telephone service and expanding our facilities. We look forward to 1960 as a year of even greater achievement—a year in which you may communicate faster and easier—for profit or for pleasure.

Week Will Stress Pedestrian Safety

IT COULD BE YOU . . . walking on the wrong side of the road with your back to oncoming traffic. This man was lucky . . . he was not struck by the truck.

"Pedestrians pay for violating traffic laws, as much so as drivers of cars and trucks," according to Cpl. T. M. Martin of the State Highway Patrol.

In Pitt County alone this year four persons have died as a result of being struck by cars as they walked on or beside the roads, in violation of the state laws. One lost his life on N. C. 43 east of Greenville while walking with his back to traffic, two more were killed while walking on the roadway on N. C. 30 about a mile from Greenville, the fourth, a three-year-old boy, lost his life when he darted out in front of an oncoming vehicle and was struck down. Only three persons have died in vehicle-collision mishaps. Last year in North Carolina, of the 1,083 people killed in traffic accidents, 21 percent or 229 were pedestrians.

Cites Vital Role Of School Boards

(Editor's Note: This is one of a pair of brief articles from the two school superintendents in the county to appear during American Education Week. This one is by Pitt County Supt. D. H. Conley.)

While many of the best thinkers of the nation are doing their utmost to impress the public with the awesome and expanded responsibilities now facing the schools, the future of most school units, large or small, depends on the attitudes of the men and women who make up the school boards.

(6) to formulate and implement a sound business pattern for the operation of the schools; and (7) to sift and analyze the "pressures" that are currently descending on the schools.

Obviously, a great amount of time and effort is required to do the planning, analyzing and implementing of responsibilities listed herewith. Many of the problems that arise in education in today's fast moving pattern of life are difficult and complicated.

KING ON VACATION
AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — King Hussein left in his private plane today for a vacation in Europe. After a stop in Beirut, he planned to fly to Rome.

No Bluff When Ruby Is Playing

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (AP) — Ruby Young, a tall, slim and attractive cocktail waitress, is just "one of the boys" to the hardcore poker players in these parts.

Ruby plays a mean hand of poker, notwithstanding the fact that she once lost $3,500 in three games.

Ruby's reputation as a poker player of note extends far past the borders of this town 660 air miles north of Edmonton, Alberta.

Started 14 Years Ago
Miners and trappers coming in from the bush are always anxious to see if she is as good as her reputation. They usually leave town knowing she is—and carrying a light wallet.

Ruby and her husband, who owns a taxi company here, do not like other card games—just poker.

"We went down to Reno on holidays this year. Dropped $1,500 shooting crap and playing blackjack. I won the only money on that trip—$12 playing straight low-ball with some old ladies and men. The stakes weren't very high."

That was when I found out you don't get six of anything in that game."

Since that time Ruby has learned more about poker playing than most men will ever know.

"My husband says I'm just starting to be a good poker player. It hasn't been easy. I had one stretch there where I lost $3,500 in three games. I was always second-best hand."

Over the distance she is winning. "I kept track for a while and in 2½ months I came out $1,500 to the good. But there have been times when I've made—or lost—more than that in one game. Last November I picked up $1,650 in one game."

Meet Once a Week
Ruby and several men—including her husband—meet every Saturday night for their poker sessions.

"Boy, you should sit in on some of those games," she says. "They're wicked. My husband is the worst of the lot. Ray bullies me as if I was an enemy of his. I don't like it too much when we're both going for the bundle. Fortunately we both have our own money."

Hammarskjold Set For Trip To Laos

By TOM HOGE

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold leaves for troubled Laos tonight despite a sharp Soviet protest that his trip can only complicate the situation.

Outwardly ignoring Moscow's growing annoyance over his taking an active role in the Laotian issue, Hammarskjold plans to spend a week in the Indochinese kingdom to learn first hand about its troubles with Communist rebels.

The Soviet Union complained publicly after the secretary-general informed the 11-nation Security Council by letter that he might leave a personal representative in the embattled country.

Soviet delegate Arkady Sobolev in a reply to Hammarskjold rejected his reasons for making the trip and possibly leave a "U.N. presence" in Laos.

"All such steps," said Sobolev, "cannot be considered otherwise than attempts to use the United Nations for covering the actions of certain powers, aimed at complete liquidation of the Geneva agreement (of 1954) which cannot but entail dangerous consequences for peace in Southeast Asia and in the whole world."

The U.S.S.R. has demanded revival of the International Control Commission, composed of Canada, India and Poland, set up under the 1954 Armistice which ended the Indochina war.

Hammarskjold declined to comment on the Soviet letter.

Hammarskjold decided to go to Laos last week after a subcommittee of the Security Council reported that it had found no evidence that North Vietnamese had invaded Laos to help the Laotian rebels.

Truck Drivers Retain Lawyer

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Carolinas truck drivers, wary of a new North Carolina traffic law that provides for suspension or revocation of a driver's license, have organized and retained an attorney to look after their rights.

The organization, called the Drivers Safety and Protective Assn., has 300 members.

W. M. Nicholson of Charlotte, retained to represent the organization, said the group will have a membership of 1,000 by the first of next year.

"We're not out to fight the law," Nicholson said. He added, "We're out to cooperate with it, but at the same time, we are out to protect the driver's rights under the law."

He said Monday that deprivation of a trucker's right to drive under North Carolina's new point system "is depriving a man of his livelihood."

Nicholson said the association's purpose is to preserve the truckers' license to drive by promoting safety on the highways, creating better relations with law enforcement officers, and protecting truckers' driving rights.

The new North Carolina law, enacted by the last Legislature, provides a schedule of points for various violations. A driver convicted of violations totaling 12 points over a two-year period may have his license revoked for 60 days or possibly longer.

Strangled Three Of Her Children
ROCKY HILL, Conn. (AP) — A 36-year-old woman, pictured by neighbors as a "wonderful mother, wife and good neighbor," strangled three of her five children Monday, police said.

They said she failed in an attempt to strangle her two other children.

Thomas Grimes returned to his white-shingled home Monday night and found the bodies of his son, Daniel, 9, daughter, Patricia, 2, and youngest son, Stephen, 1, sprawled in different parts of the house.

Mother And Six Children Perish
GLENS FALLS, N. Y. (AP) — A mother and her six children perished today in an explosion and fire that destroyed their home near here. The father was burned critically.

The Sheriff's Department said one of the family apparently had thrown kerosene or gasoline into a wood stove in the living room of the one-story farm dwelling.

Killed were Janet Harris, 24, and children ranging from 6 months to 6 years. Charles Harris Sr., about 26, a building contractor, was taken to Glens Falls Hospital.

Castro Regime Accused Of Creating Hostility

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States again has accused Fidel Castro's Cuban regime of circulating false reports it said apparently were designed to create hostility between the two countries.

Target of the newest Washington protest was what the State Department called "an offensive brochure" seeking to link this country with violence in Havana Oct. 21 in which two persons were killed and 45 injured.

It was the second time in two weeks this country has protested Cuban charges that the damage was caused by U.S.-based planes which Cuba said dropped not only leaflets but live bombs.

Cuban Ambassador Ernesto Digho, called into the State Department to receive the statement, said the brochure "contains nothing against the U.S. government."

An earlier protest was handed to Cuban officials in Havana Oct. 27, after Castro charged in a speech that the United States did nothing to stop bombing of a defenseless nation.

The 12-page brochure shows a photograph of two planes in the air and is captioned "as in Pearl Harbor." It shows also photos of wounded men, women and children, and quotes the FBI in Miami as reporting the aggressors took off from Florida bases and returned there.

The FBI has quoted Maj. Pedro Luis Diaz Lanz, former chief of Castro's air force, as saying he had piloted a plane over Cuba but had dropped only leaflets.

Enos Slaughter To Run Houston Club

HOUSTON (AP)—Baseball's restless country boy—Enos Slaughter—steps down from the majors for the first time in 22 years next season. He'll pilot the Houston Buffs in the American Association. But he says he'll still be in there taking his cuts as a playing manager—the swing that blasted out a .300 career batting average with four big league clubs.

1959 season. He spent the greater part of his career with the Cards before joining the Yankees in 1955. He also played for the Kansas City Athletics. "I don't think any man in baseball has been more successful in hustle, determination and the will to win," said Buff president Marty Marion, Slaughter's old teammate with the Cards. Slaughter played in two World Series with the Cards—a rookie in twilight days of the old Gas House gang—and three with the Yankees, batting .291. He was a member of the National League All-Star team 10 times.

Beaufort Boating Fatality Is Declared 'Unavoidable'

BEAUFORT, N.C. (AP) — A coroner's jury found Monday night that a boat collision here which killed a pleasure fisherman was an "unavoidable accident."

The victim, Ellis Smith, 47, of Kings, drowned when his skiff was rammed by the trawler Phillips. His brother, Quannah Smith, and Fred White, both of Kings, were rescued from the waters of Beaufort Channel after the accident Oct. 13.

A Coast Guard officer testified that he had made a "report of violation"—the maritime equivalent of reckless driving—against the Phillips following his preliminary investigation of the collision. But he said he had not learned whether this report was sustained by a special investigator from the Coast Guard's Inspection and Investigating Service at Wilmington.

The three men in the boat leaped into the water moments before the collision. The survivors said they didn't have time to get life preservers.

The Phillips' pilot, Norman Guthrie of Morehead City, testified there were several small boats anchored in the channel as the trawler stood in. He said he cut in toward the rock breaker to avoid some and then turned hard to miss the breakwater. As he did so, Guthrie related, the boat sheared and the steering wheel spun loosely in his hands, an indication that the controls were not working.

Guthrie said he shouted to crewman Sam Howland on the bow that the controls had jammed and that Howland yelled to the skiff, 50 feet ahead, for the fishermen to jump.

Guthrie testified that he threw out two life preservers, but the men didn't get them.

Elsey Guthrie, captain of the trawler, said he dived overboard to help the drowning man, but that Ellis Smith went down before he reached him.

The pilot said the boat was moving slowly at the time. Vincent Lawrence of Morehead City said he was fishing from shore and saw the Phillips "coming in pretty slow."

But several fishermen and other occupants of small boats in the area said the trawler was moving at a fast speed and that its wake threw water into their boats.

W. T. and B. B. Mock, brothers from Winston-Salem said the Phillips passed them some distance from the Smith skiff and that W.T. yelled to the trawler crew to "slow that damn thing down."

Deputy Sheriff George Smith, no relation of the victim, testified that he examined the Phillips' steering equipment about three hours after the collision and found a broken pulley and a splintered piece of timber from the pulley foundation.

Claims Probing Cost Him Post

COLUMBIA (AP) — A former Army officer said today he has been fired from his job at the State Penitentiary because of his state - ordered investigation into dope sales and influence peddling.

Thomas W. Wilson, 46, a retired Army lieutenant colonel, says he worked on the undercover investigation of prison practices for three weeks and on Oct. 29 was ordered by prison Supt. Wyndham Manning to stop the probe.

He claimed he was fired Monday from his job as prison guard after his findings made newspaper headlines in what prison officials and Gov. Hollings say was an unauthorized disclosure.

Wilson said he had spent a number of years working in Army prisons and is familiar with occasional sales of liquor and pep pills to prisoners. But he said the situation at the State Penitentiary here in that regard is the worst he has encountered.

Wilson, a veteran of 22 years in the Army, said his 14-page report details payoffs to prison personnel by prisoners seeking special privileges. He said he himself had purchased liquor in the prison.

Youth Appreciation Week Observed

YOUTH APPRECIATION WEEK . . . Jack Turnage, Jim Gill, M. E. Cavendish place bumper sticker.

The Optimist Club is sponsoring Youth Appreciation Week locally this week.

The observance began Monday and will continue through Sunday.

Optimist Club Boys Work Committee chairman Jim Gill said the special week is being sponsored nationally by Optimist International.

Locally, Youth Appreciation posters are being placed in store windows by members of the club. Also being distributed are reflectorized bumper stickers for use on automobiles.

Ministers have been asked to mention the week from the pulpit during Sunday sermons. The police department is cooperating and judges plan to mention it in court.

Various civic clubs will recognize this as Youth Appreciation Week during their meetings, Gill said.

The Optimist Club is also working through the schools and there will be radio and television announcements during the week.

Youth Appreciation Week began in Charlotte five years ago, Gill said.

The Charlotte Optimist Club enlisted the aid of Gov. Luther Hodges and the week was a success in North Carolina.

Charlotte then approached Optimist International for assistance in promoting the program on an international basis.

A pilot program proved successful in 1956 and the first international Youth Appreciation Week was inaugurated in 1957.

M. E. Cavendish is president of the local Optimist Club.

Nassau Told Of Hatteras Fishing

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP) — The growth of the Cape Hatteras, N.C., area as a sports fisherman's paradise was described today by a North Carolina newspaperman.

Aycock Brown of Manteo, N.C., in an address prepared for delivery at the fourth annual Game Fish Conference of the International Oceanographic Foundation, said:

"Unless the Gulf Stream changes its course, there is, in my mind, little likelihood that Hatteras waters will ever fail to produce big game fish. Any area where almost 400 billfish can be boated in one season is not likely to see any of its nearby game fishing communities become ghost towns."

in eight marlin being caught off Hatteras and three off San Juan in the return match.

Other speakers on the program include C. Richard Robins, Richard B. Wade, John Randall and C. P. Idyl of the Marine Laboratory, University of Miami; Sjafero Sands of Nassau; James E. Morrow of the Bingham Oceanographic Laboratory, Yale University; Fritz Mangold of Temple City, Calif.; Melvin L. Shreve of the Salt Water Sportsfishing Assn. of Virginia; Donald P. deSylva of Bayside Laboratory, University of Delaware; and Daniel H. Janzen of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Washington.

Veneral Disease Rate Said Rising

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Public Health Service officer says venereal disease is rising again in the nation, with a particularly shocking increase in the 15 to 19 year age group.

Dr. William J. Brown, of the communicable disease center in Atlanta, said "private physicians, clinics and hospitals have reported increases in both early syphilis and gonorrhea in colored and white, male and female, poor and rich, young and old, urban and rural, and every category in between, all across the country."

Brown attributed partially the false belief that penicillin could wipe out these diseases, with a resulting let down in efforts to stamp out VD.

Between May 9 and Nov. 7, Brown said, billfish catches off the Hatteras area included 160 blue marlin, 138 white marlin, 67 sailfish, 2 broadbills and 1 spearfish.

The location of the Gulf Stream, just 10 miles off the coast, permits 10 hours of daylight fishing at the hundred fathom curve, he said.

Yet, Brown pointed out, there are only five cruisers based at Hatteras which regularly engage in big game fishing. This presents an opportunity for considerable expansion of the sports fishing industry there and steps have been taken in that direction.

Brown described a meeting between Gov. Luther Hodges and Charles F. Johnson, out of which came plans for organizing the Hatteras Marlin Club. The club sponsored a challenge match against the San Juan Club Nautico of Puerto Rico which resulted

Answers Parole Board Critic

COLUMBIA (AP) — Gov. Hollings calls "unfounded and irresponsible" charges by a parole board member that an unofficial parole system is at work in the State Penitentiary.

He also said Chief J. P. Strom of the State Law Enforcement Division has assured him no SLED agents have been assigned to shadow the parole board member, M. S. Stackhouse.

Hollings criticized Stackhouse for using a report of an investigation of prison conditions, ordered by Prison Supt. Wyndham M. Manning, against Manning.

Various statements by Stackhouse "make me question his qualifications as a member of the Parole Board. He should quit running around saying how honest and courageous he is," the governor added.

The 61-year-old Dillon businessman-farmer has been using newspaper stories to carp at what he calls an unofficial system of paroles for prisoners the board has declined to parole.

He has charged political and special influences are at work, and says an effort is being made to seek easier paroles by getting rid of the board and substituting another, smaller board.

Stackhouse says Manning is peeved at the board for its tough parole policies and wants the situation changed to relieve overcrowded prison conditions.

Died In Trying To Rescue Dog

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP) — Charles B. Johnson, 50, and his stepson, David Davis, 15, leaped from their car, stalled on the railroad tracks, as a train rumbled toward the crossing.

Then Johnson raced back in an effort to save his dog. Before he could escape again, the train hit the car, fatally injuring Johnson.

The train carried the car 1,447 feet down the tracks. The dog was unharmed.

The accident occurred Monday about two miles from here on the Gastonia-Bessemer City highway.

CAMERA Angles

LONG RANGE SHOOTING for close-up results is done with this cannon-like accessory for a single-lens reflex—the 1,000mm telephoto lens for the new Heiland-Pentax H2 35mm camera. Weighing 16 pounds, it comes with its own 30 pound tripod. The camera weighs only 27 ounces.

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Necessitates THE SINGLE-LENS reflex camera, which has undergone revolutionary changes and improvements in recent years, is probably the fair-haired favorite in today's camera world and the one that can be tagged "Most Likely To Go Far" in the near future.

Basically, a single-lens reflex is one in which you see on a ground-glass screen the exact picture image coming through your lens. It's done by intercepting the image on a mirror which is tilted at a 45-degree angle. When the picture is shot, the mirror springs up out of the way before the camera shutter opens to record the image on the negative.

In early models of single-lens reflex cameras the ground-glass image was seen upside down and reversed from left to right. Focusing could be done only with a wide-open lens, otherwise the image was seen too dimly. After focusing, the lens had to be reset to whatever opening the exposure called for. And after shooting, the mirror had to be returned to position in order to see the next picture to be shot and the lens had to be opened wide again for refocusing.

All of these disadvantages have been overcome in recent new models of the single-lens reflex.

A current dual announcement emphasizes the trend toward the single-lens reflex camera and brings us the latest 35mm model with a full line of accessories. The Heiland division of Minneapolis-Honeywell, after two years of study proved to them that the future lies with the single-lens reflex field, has taken over distribution of the Pentax single-lens reflex camera line of the Asahi Optical Co. of Japan.

The Asahi Company introduced the first 35mm single-lens reflex camera in Japan in 1951 and invented the instant return mirror system in 1954—a feature that has been copied all over the world.

Heiland's first baby is the 27-ounce Heiland Pentax H2 with a 55mm f-2 eye, a pentaprism head and an automatic disposition. The pentaprism gives a same size, right side up, unreversed view of the image coming through the

Bee Business In The Post Office

MAYHEW, Miss. (AP)—Business is always buzzing for Mrs. Maude Morris, postmaster of this 225-person hamlet. She handles the mailing of more than 60 million bees a year.

"I lick thousands of dollars worth of stamps annually and stick them on literally millions of bees," Mrs. Morris says with pride. Not exactly on the bees—but on the containers carrying them.

Because the huge Stover Apiaries and its bees account for most of the third class post office's business, the Post Office Department gave Mrs. Morris permission to designate the office "The Bee Post Office, Mayhew, Miss."

The bees are mated in special hives that have two wire ends for free air circulation. A hive will weigh about five pounds and contain about 4,000 bees.

Two Pieces Of Pottery Provide New Discovery

By EDWARD KITCH
CHICAGO (AP)—Two tiny pieces of ancient pottery, the weird looking dolls made by present-day Indians for sale to tourists in the Southwest:

These are the main ingredients in a new and important discovery by Dr. Paul S. Martin, anthropologist with the Chicago Natural History Museum.

Martin found the pieces of pottery in old Indian caves on the Little Colorado River near Springerville, Ariz. They bear likenesses of the kachina dolls sold to tourists today.

Scientists had thought the ka-chinas cult had originated with the Spanish explorers who entered the Southwest in 1540. The pottery, however, dates back to 1250 A.D., proving the cult was developed by the Indians.

The kachinas, considered supernatural beings, could be impersonated by a man wearing a mask. This person assumed the attributes of the kachina, Martin says, and was revered by the Indians who felt the gods would be kind to them if they did so.

Finding of the pottery is evidence that the cultural history of the Zuni and Hopi Indians remains unbroken today despite modern civilization, Martin says.

The ruins in which the pottery pieces were found date back to 8,000 years B.C., and Martin believes the original tribes of the Zuni and Hopi may go back to that period. The find, Martin says, indicated the Indians' culture, "was on the road to advancement and might have developed into as important a culture as the Egyptians or that in Peru in South America or the Chinese if it had not been for the Spanish explorers who forced them to give it up."

The culture had its specialized crafts: farmer, priest, artisan, and gold and silver workers, Martin says.

"But with the introduction of disease such as scarlet fever and warlike attitudes to an otherwise peaceful people, the culture just broke down."

Two Small Fish Really Multiply

EAST CAMDEN, N. J. (AP)—The care and feeding of two small zebra fish is simple. But problems can develop when the number grows to between 500 and 1,000.

Jeffrey McLaughlin, 14, won the two small fish on a bet, and began his hobby as an amateur ichthyologist with an ordinary fish bowl.

Now he has eight aquariums, with five additional tanks in reserve in the basement.

He has added representatives of 20 varieties of fish and so far has run into only one real problem.

He can pick out and identify each breed—but he has trouble spelling the names.

THE FISHERMEN OF FORMOSA

TRAPPED. High point of day's activities is when the fish come to the surface as the net is raised. This catch is bonito that put on a tail-slapping show in futile bid for freedom.

Harbor at Nan Fan Ao is filled to overflowing as some 500 boats congregate at height of fishing season. They leave together in pre-dawn darkness.

Stripped and ready to plunge into sea to help close up net should situation demand, a fisherman holds off sister ship with bamboo pole as other crew members begin arduous task of hauling in the huge net.

Down to the sea in ships go the fishermen of Formosa — some 300,000 of them.

Fishing is one of the island's big industries. With more than 10 million mouths to feed on a land area about the combined size of Massachusetts, Connecticut and part of Rhode Island, it is easy to see the importance of this harvest from the sea. Fish and fishery products last year were valued at over 37 million dollars.

At Nan Fan Ao, a fishing village, where some 20,000 people derive their livelihood from the sea, more than 500 diesel-powered craft gather at one time to harvest the finny crop — mackerel, tuna, sardine and bonito.

Hunting in pairs, bound together by a thick manila hawser, the sturdy craft cruise the waters in search of schools of fish. When the school is sighted, the hawser is released and the boats separate to encircle the fish with the net.

As the crews rush to close the net, rocks are hurled into the water to scare the fish and keep them confined within the rapidly closing opening. Long bamboo poles are flailed through the water, and sometimes a crew member will jump in thrashing his legs and arms about to accomplish the same purpose.

When the net is closed power winches take over the task of drawing it on board. Bamboo poles are used to keep the boats apart in the rolling sea as the fish are dipped from the net. With the day's catch aboard, the boats race for home, to the unloading docks and the prospective buyers waiting there.

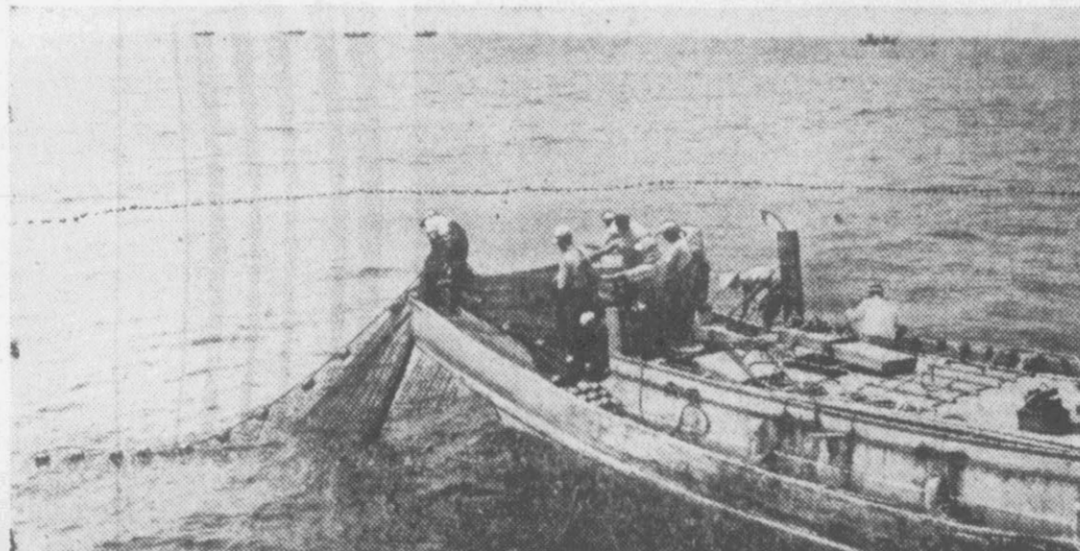

A trip to sea with the fishermen is pictured here.

Crew members, wearing caps and shawls to shield them from strong sun and wind, cluster in bow of boat while keeping watch for school of fish. Note heavy hawser that connects the boats.

Hunting in pairs, the craft are securely connected with a hawser. When fish are sighted, hawser is released and boats quickly surround fish with net.

Crewmen begin hauling net on board after fish are caught.

Western Diplomats Seem Reconciled To U.S. Stand

By JOHN SCALI
WASHINGTON (AP) — Western diplomats appear reconciled to a United States decision to cut foreign military and economic spending as part of a drive to close the overseas dollar gap.

They are unhappy about the prospect. But they fear there is little or nothing they can do except to hope the cuts will not be drastic. Some foreign finance experts believe the Eisenhower administration is overly alarmed about the problem.

At present, the United States is spending four billion dollars more in other countries each year than it earns from trade and investments.

This record deficit rate has sent administration authorities on an intensive back-stage hunt for ways to cut spending and to boost American exports without sacrificing America's free world leadership.

No final decision has been made but Secretary of the Treasury Robert B. Anderson is reported pushing a drive to cut foreign aid spending as well as some of the 3 1/2 billion dollars which goes to maintain American troops and bases overseas.

Allied diplomats have been watching this trend apprehensively. They fear this budget pruning mood may tempt Congress to hack even further at scaled down requests. Another fear is that Congress may demand some trade protectionist measures to bar certain foreign goods.

President Eisenhower and other administration leaders, although they may cut such spending, show no signs of reversing their stand that trade restrictions must be kept at a minimum to expand world trade.

Many Western countries are reported about ready to ease restrictions on imports of the U.S. goods. Such action, if widespread, could ease this country's trade deficit.

Foreign diplomats who examine the deficit problem repeatedly say they consider the four-billion-dollar deficit a temporary situation.

Callas Expects Return To 'Met'

NEW YORK (AP) — Temperamental soprano Maria Callas says she probably will sing at the Metropolitan Opera next season. She says she and the Met's general manager, Rudolf Bing, are great friends—always have been.

Miss Callas was en route by plane from Dallas to Milan, after cutting short her appearances with the Dallas Opera Co. to appear at a court hearing in Milan. Her husband and former manager, Giovanni Meneghini, is suing her for a separation. Miss Callas has been seen frequently with Greek shipowner Aristotle Onassis.

At the airport here Monday the soprano at first refused to talk to reporters. Then she changed her mind.

Concerning her dispute with Bing a year ago which led to her being fired by the Met, Miss Callas said it was really her husband who quarreled with Bing.

She said she and Bing "were always friends," and that their differences had been settled through other friends and correspondence. It hasn't actually been arranged for her to sing at the Met next season, she admitted, but it is an "enormous possibility."

Heavy Damage In One City Fire

Heavy damage resulted in one of two fire-calls Greenville firemen responded to yesterday.

An alarm at 12:06 p.m. yesterday from Box 322 at the intersection of West 14th St. and the ACL Railroad summoned firemen to a blaze at 321 Boyd Ave.

At 5:32 p.m. fire equipment was sent to 210 East 12th St. when Box 223 was turned in at the intersection of 12th and Cotanche Sts.

Officers said light fire and smoke damage resulted from the blaze which was thought to have been caused by a short circuit in wiring behind the kitchen stove.

Assistant Fire Chief J. L. Jones said the blaze was almost out when trucks arrived due to quick action by people at the scene using a garden hose to hold down the fire until firemen arrived.

Annual Baptist State Convention Is Opened In Greensboro Today

GREENSBORO — (AP) — The 129th annual Baptist State Convention opened here today with the yearly president's message by the Rev. A. Leroy Parker Jr.

The Rev. Mr. Parker, who is stepping down as president, challenged the Baptists to a great spiritual crusade to give "every living person an opportunity to hear the gospel."

Citing gains made by communism, the Rev. Mr. Parker said that "in 40 years, communism has embraced 900 million people—more than are affiliated with all Christian groups."

The president's message came shortly after the vanguard of an expected 2,500 messengers (delegates) assembled in Greensboro's War Memorial Auditorium.

Speaking directly to the ministers, the Rev. Mr. Parker called on them to put more zeal and enthusiasm in their preaching instead of using a "conversational approach" to deliver their sermons.

Also on the morning schedule was a sermon by the Rev. Nolan Benfield of Morganton, a worship service and preliminary business meetings.

Sukarno Repeats Neutrality Goal

JOGJAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — President Sukarno reaffirmed Indonesia's neutralist foreign policy today in a speech heard by delegates to the annual conference of the Western-sponsored Colombo Plan.

"We don't want to take part in either of the two power blocs facing each other and wanting to get at each other's throats," Sukarno told more than 500,000 cheering Indonesians celebrating their national Heroes' Day.

On the platform behind the president were senior delegates from the 21 Colombo Plan nations, whose annual ministerial conference Sukarno will open Wednesday. Also on hand were the ambassadors of the United States, the Soviet Union, Communist China and other nations.

Foreign Minister Subandrio said Indonesia wants friendship with all nations and cited its participation in the Colombo Plan as an example.

"We even want good relations with the Netherlands," Subandrio declared, "but as long as West Irian (Dutch New Guinea) is occupied by the Dutch, there is no chance that our relations with the Dutch will be good."

noon and evening sessions. The 2 1/2-day meeting, the first in Greensboro since 1953, was preceded by a round of pre-convention gatherings Monday.

The convention was expected to reach its main points of interest Wednesday when the messengers elect a new president and consider a proposal to trim the membership of the general board.

The general board matter must be approved by two-thirds of the convention membership to become effective.

The Rev. Eugene Dees of the Parkway Baptist Church, Greensboro, was elected president of the convention's Pastor's Conference

Monday. He succeeds the Rev. L. D. Holt of Emanuel Baptist Church, Raleigh.

Superior Court Judge Walter E. Crissman of High Point was named president of the North Carolina Baptist Brotherhood succeeding Donald Adcox of Hendersonville.

The Religious Education and Music Assn. elected Virginia Beal of Rocky Mount president. Mrs. Dennis Hockaday of Durham was elected president of the pastor's wives group.

In its report to the convention, the Committee on Social Service and Civil Righteousness discussed the race issue, "Beyond making pronouncements, the churches by and large have done little," it said.

The group recommended that each church strive to make more meaningful "The New Testament concept of Christian brotherhood."

The Committee on Civil Affairs strongly recommended that the churches adopt "released time programs" under which school children would be released from classes once a week for religious instruction.

The committee said the U.S. Supreme Court has ruled such programs legal.

Dr. Clarence W. Hall, senior editor of Reader's Digest magazine, told the Alumna Assn. of the State Baptist Hospitals' School of Pastoral Cre its program is a "combination of dedication, science and audacity."

The hospital is located at Winston-Salem. Dr. Hall told the group the program offers a patient what he called spiritual therapy. He said this is the third ingredient of the entire therapy program offered patients, the other two being medical and psychiatric therapy.

Doctor Quit Over Hospital Rebuke

NEW YORK (AP) — Dr. P. Shamsuddin, an interne from India, was a hero last weekend when he amputated an actor's leg with makeshift equipment. Today he was an angry young man preparing to quit New York and finish his medical training in England.

The slight, mustachioed doctor said he is leaving because of "extremely rude and impolite" treatment from Dr. Phillip D. Allen, supervising director of Knickerbocker Hospital over the issue of talking to the press.

The 25-year-old physician answered an emergency call in an ambulance Saturday to find English actor Martyn Green with his left leg pinned in an automobile elevator shaft.

Shamsuddin borrowed a pen-knife from a patrolman and used the thongs of a policeman's nightstick for a tourniquet during the amputation. Green is reported recovering well.

Monday, saying Dr. Allen had rudely rebuked him for news accounts of the emergency operation, Shamsuddin resigned from the hospital's staff.

The hospital praised Shamsuddin's emergency work, and scheduled an appointment for him today with Alvin J. Conway, assistant executive director, in an effort to persuade him to withdraw the resignation. Shamsuddin said he would see Conway, but has booked passage Wednesday for England where he said he expects to continue his training.

Arthur S. Flemming, secretary of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, will honor the pioneers and their achievements as the principal banquet speaker November 20. Psychiatrist Dr. George S. Stevenson, probably the best known of the mental health leaders here and abroad, will also receive the tribute of this assembly on his retirement, at 66, as NAMH national and international consultant.

The workshop sessions and general meetings, attended by delegates from the 800 local and state mental health associations in the United States, including Hawaii, will also serve to demonstrate the dramatic advances that have been made during 50 years of progress in the fight against mental illness.

Delegates from North Carolina are Harold A. Smoak, of Charlotte, President of the State Association, H.J. Hickey, of Charlotte, vice-president, R.L. Vitelli, vice-president, Price H. Gwynn, vice-president, Mrs. M.P. Bailey, of Greenville, N.C., Mrs. Ruth Peters, of Fayetteville, N.C., Phillip H. Dougherty, Burlington, N.C., who represents North Carolina on the General Board and Mrs. J.B. Spilman, Executive Director.

Soothing Tone Relaxes Dentist

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — That calm, soothing tone of voice used by dentists in relaxing dental patients through hypnosis has an added advantage — it relaxes the dentist, too.

The monotonous monologue tends to reduce tensions in the dentist and make him much more acceptable to the patient, said Dr. E. E. Aston of West New York, N.J. He spoke Friday at a seminar of dentists, physicians and psychologists interested in using hypnotherapy.

Aston is a past president of the American Hypnotic (hypnosis in dentistry) Society.

Surprised Self By Her Reaction

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — "I must have been crazy to do a thing like that," said Esther Lanort, a 5-foot-3 real estate broker. Mrs. Lanort Monday went to look over a house she owns which had been burglarized. As she went in she heard voices. "Who's there?" she called. "It's us and we are locked in the bedroom," a male voice answered. "You just get right out the way you got in," Mrs. Lanort snapped. She hurried to a side window in time to see two men climb out. Mrs. Lanort ordered them to get in her car and drove them to the police station. Police booked Olier Davis, 36, and John L. Walden, 40, on charges of breaking and entering.

Debbie Reynolds Works In Role Of Big Tycoon

By BOB THOMAS AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Now it's Debbie Reynolds, girl tycoon. Recently she proved that she can make million-dollar talent deals. That was the price announced for her to do three TV specials in three years for ABC. They will be produced by her own company, Harman Productions, tagged after her mother's maiden name. She also announced the purchase of a film property to be produced by her company. Debbie is girl president of the firm, as well as heading the Carrie Music Co., named for her daughter. She also is conducting the busiest acting career of any Hollywood actress and being president of the Thailans, charity group of the young film colony. Significantly, I met her on the set of her new film, "The Rat Race." I inquired if the race she was running wouldn't result in ulcers. "Who me?" she laughed. "Not on your life! I don't get ulcers and I don't give them. I don't brood over anything." Debbie admitted she was starting her own enterprises for the same reasons other stars have done so: to insure some artistic freedom and to lay away some loot for that day when her services are not so much in demand. "I don't intend to be the girl producer," she said. "I will help work on properties and assist in planning, but I'll hire producers who know what they're doing. My company will produce pictures, not necessarily with me in them, and I'll also work out partnership deals with other companies. I also have a deal with Perleberg-Seaton for pictures at a straight 10 per cent of the gross." She said she intended to do her TV specials a la Fred Astaire, devoting a full two months to preparation and rehearsal.

Engineers' Society To Meet Wednesday

The American Society of Mechanical Engineers, Eastern North Carolina Section, will hold its monthly supper meeting at the College Inn Restaurant on Highway 64, at 6:30 p.m., November 11. The talk will outline the possibilities of using high frequency vibration in the design of modern machine systems.

Parkway Trying Drive-Up Phone

HUNTINGTON, N.Y. (AP) — A drive-up telephone is being tried out on the Northern State Parkway. A motorist can make a call without getting out of his car. The New York Telephone Co. says it plans to install the phones on other Long Island highways if motorists take to the idea.

Life Restored By Warm Water

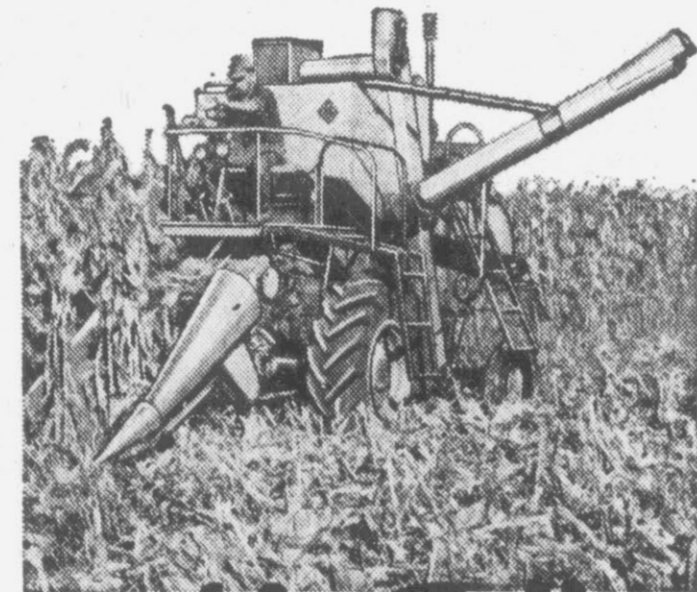

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The man lay semiconscious on a city street.

Two policemen came across him. They rushed him to Hahnemann Hospital. The man's heartbeat and his breathing had stopped. His body was blue and cold. A priest was summoned to administer the last rites of the Catholic Church. The man's condition was diagnosed quickly as cardiac arrest. A team of eight heart surgeons cut open his chest and applied massage and artificial respiration. Within minutes the heart beat was restored but the body remained cold and blue. The surgeons began using electric shock, adrenalin, calcium and other drugs to restore a normal heart beat. Their efforts were in vain. Never losing hope, the surgeons poured six quarts of hot, sterile saline solution into the open chest cavity to warm the heart. There was a quick flurry of beating in the lower chambers of the heart. The surgeons then poured 20 gallons of warm tap water over the heart.

William Flanagan, 43, a Negro laborer, gradually came to life. This was last Saturday. The hospital did not disclose until Monday what it called the most remarkable operation of its type in many years. As for Flanagan, he sat up Monday and enjoyed a steak.

Bob Crosby Says No Wife-Beater

By JAMES BACON HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "I'm no wife-beater. I didn't lay a finger on my wife. So says Bob Crosby, Bing's 46-year-old kid brother, in flatly denying his wife's assertion that he beat her Saturday night and that she stabbed him with a letter opener in self-defense. Crosby suffered a gashed shoulder. His wife June, 39, said one of her ribs was broken in the quarrel. The incident occurred only a few hours after the bandleader-TV personality had played golf with Vice President Richard M. Nixon. Crosby said Monday his wife flew into a rage when he asked her where their three boys were and she didn't know. Mrs. Crosby told newsmen her husband was in a "violent mood and wanted to fight with someone." Both agreed that the incident marked the end of their 21-year marriage. Neither announced any plans for divorce, however. Crosby said a series of family crises led up to the ruckus. Cathy, 20, eldest of the couple's five children, is in a hospital suffering from what her mother calls a mental breakdown. "We'd been to the hospital earlier in the day, talking to Cathy's doctor about her illness," Crosby said. "We have had problems, like many parents have, with all our children. I'm afraid this latest news will give Cathy a setback." Mrs. Crosby said her husband had been drinking and had come home in a belligerent mood. Crosby denied he had been drinking. His injuries took five stitches to close. Mrs. Crosby said she grabbed the letter opener for self-protection after he knocked her down without provocation. Crosby said the argument got violent when he asked her where the boys were. "She didn't know," he said. "I told her that we should always know where the kids are and who they are with at all times. "This enraged her, and she

Deadly Job For Daring Divers

KIEL, Germany (AP)—A handful of daring men are donning diver's suits, adjusting helmets and descending to the bottom of the Baltic Sea these days for a deadly job — retrieving 80,000 German nerve gas shells. The lethal projectiles were dumped at the entrance of Kiel harbor by British occupation authorities after World War II. They contain tabun gas, which Hitler's chemists discovered while developing an insecticide. Minute amounts can paralyze the central nerve system and kill a human within minutes. Recently it was found the salt water had eaten into aluminum fuses, creating the danger of a giant underwater blast. Such an explosion could kill fish and endanger humans near contaminated waters. Divers carefully pack the projectiles into steel baskets. These are hauled into a ship and masked workers in heavy rubber suits pack the shells into concrete-filled steel barrels. These barrels are to be taken into the North Sea and dumped into great depths.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—A drop of 4 1/2 by Ford highlighted an uneven stock market today. Trading was moderately active.

Most key stocks showed gains or losses running from fractions to a point.

The market was mixed from the start in an active opening accompanied by a briefly late ticker tape. Then dealings slackened.

Ford retreated on a report that the Ford Foundation is planning to sell another 2,000,000 shares of Ford Common.

Most of the major steels and rails were down as the back-to-work order which interrupted the steel walkout seemed inconclusive to Wall Street.

Drugs and most aircrafts were steady to higher and oils were firm but most other major groups were mixed.

The Associated Press average of 60 stock at noon was off 3 cents to $224.30 with the industrials down 50 cents, the rails down 40 cents and the utilities unchanged.

Corporate bonds were mixed. U.S. government bonds were slightly uneven.

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—North Carolina poultry markets: Fryers and broilers steady, farm price 14 to 15, mostly 14.

Eggs — prices paid producers for clean, sized, minimum 80 per cent A quality: Raleigh and Charlotte steady, large 40; prices paid on graded out basis: Asheville steady, A large 38.

Escapée Wounded Three Policemen In His Flight

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—An escaped convict shot and wounded three policemen in a running gun battle early today and then was chased down and wounded himself.

With the aid of firetruck searchlights, officers rushed a rooming house in which the convict, Charles Randolph Davenport, 24, had barricaded himself and brought him out.

Three charges of felonious shooting were placed against Davenport, a Negro. He also was charged with larceny of a policeman's pistol. When he escaped from a Caroline County, Va., prison camp Oct. 5, officers said he was serving a five-year sentence for auto theft.

Authorities gave this account of the shootings:

Patrolmen Philip G. Shander and R. M. Ketter spotted Davenport on the street and were taking him in the elevator to the detective bureau on the fourth floor of police headquarters. Davenport broke away, grabbed Shander's pistol in a scuffle on the stairs, and fired. Shander was struck in the right shoulder. Det. J. J. Pupo was wounded in the abdomen.

Davenport ran out the front door with firing officers in pursuit. Later, Patrolman C. J. Bettiker and Ketter spotted a light in a nearby two-story dwelling. When they knocked on the door, Davenport dove out through a window. Patrolmen Donald B. Aveyard and Vernon Pugh spotted Davenport hiding in a field.

Davenport fired, wounding Aveyard in the hip. Davenport went to the rooming house. Detectives blocked off the street and called in the firetrucks.

Police rushed in and took him in custody. The condition of the wounded, all hospitalized, was reported as fair.

Airing Charges Of Blackmail

YANCEYVILLE, N.C. (AP)—Charges of blackmail, conspiracy and assault against a Baptist minister and his wife were aired at a Recorder's Court hearing here today.

Accused are the Rev. and Mrs. J. T. Swinson of Caswell County. Another Baptist minister, the Rev. G. A. Hamby of Tuxedo, filed the charges. He claimed that while visiting in the Swinson's home, Mrs. Swinson revealed herself to him nude, pulled him onto a bed, and her husband photographed them.

The Rev. Mr. Hamby alleged that he was then beaten with a stick and forced under threat of blackmail to write a $610 check as a down payment on a new car for the Swinsons.

Why Are Bostic - Sugg's PRICES LOWER?

THIS IS A QUESTION THAT IS ASKED US EVERY DAY

FIRST, WE BUY IN VOLUME. WE SHOP THE MARKET FOR MANUFACTURERS WHO DISCOUNT ON LARGE VOLUME PURCHASES.

SECOND, WE SHOP ALL FOUR MARKETS IN HIGH POINT AND MAKE AN ANNUAL TRIP TO CHICAGO, PLUS, WE HAVE A BUYER IN THE HIGH POINT AREA EVERY TWO WEEKS.

THIRD, WE ARE NOW HAULING, ON OUR 20,000 LB. CAPACITY TRUCK, NEARLY 75% OF OUR PURCHASE MADE IN THE HIGH POINT AREA, WHICH AMOUNTS TO A SAVING OF NEARLY 10% ON MOST ITEMS.

FOURTH, WE ARE ABLE, DUE TO OUR VOLUME, TO MAKE MORE PURCHASES OF CLOSE-OUTS, FLOOR SAMPLES AND OTHER PURCHASES, WHICH HAVE TO BE BOUGHT IN LARGE QUANTITIES

FIFTH, WE SELL IN VOLUME, WE SELL AT THE LOWEST POSSIBLE PRICES—PASSING ON TO YOU THE CONSUMER, THE SAVINGS WE MAKE ON VOLUME PURCHASES. ALSO, OUR LOW OVERHEAD MAKES SAVINGS POSSIBLE.

SIXTH, WE SERVE A LARGE AREA OF EASTERN CAROLINA, WHICH MAKES IT POSSIBLE FOR US TO PASS ON TO YOU SAVINGS.

SEVENTH, WE ARE A LOCALLY OWNED COMPANY. THERE ARE ONLY THREE STOCKHOLDERS — ALL RESIDENTS OF GREENVILLE. ALL OF THE STOCKHOLDERS ARE EMPLOYED BY BOSTIC-SUGG. WE HAVE NO OTHER INTEREST BUT THE FURNITURE BUSINESS. SHOP US AND COMPARE OUR QUALITY AND PRICES AND YOU TOO WILL FIND THAT YOU CAN SAVE
