VOA Bids Open For Site Clearing

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Invitations for site clearance bids for Voice of America installations in Pitt and Beaufort Counties will be sent out Dec. 1.

Erwin van Swol, chief of the Press and Features Section of the Office of Public Information, said it will probably be February or March before the actual preliminary work on the multi-million dollar installations begins.

Involved in the initial work will be the removing of trees and preliminary work on roads and drainage. Also involved in the preloading of building sites, which van Swol said he understood would be the putting in stone at the building sites to obtain a firm foundation.

Van Swol said that within a short time the Austin Co. of Cleveland, architectural and engineering firm for the project, will begin making tests at the Pactolus site in order to determine the type concrete bases that will be needed to hold the steel aerial posts.

The major construction contracts will probably not be let before the middle of next year, van Swol said in a telephone conversation this morning.

He said the design of the facilities is now about 70 to 80 percent complete. Designs and plans will probably be finished by early April of 1960 and invitations for bids will be sent out sometime after that.

There have been no changes in plans as originally announced for the $26 million transmitting facilities, van Swol said. However, he said there is a tremendous amount of engineering and planning being done.

Approximately 6,000 acres of lad are being purchased by the government for the Voice of America project. Plans are to construct two identical transmitters for beaming the VOA broadcasts overseas.

One of the sites is located northeast of Pactolus in Beaufort County. The second is southeast of Shelmerdine in Pitt County.

A receiving station will be built west of Greenville.

It is estimated that approximately 100 persons will be employed in the operation of the three units.

Annual payroll will be around $800,000.

Producers Contend Cranberries Safe

WASHINGTON (AP)—Cranberry producers asserted today that their products now on the market are safe to eat. They called on Secretary of Welfare Arthur S. Flemming to give that reassurance to the American public.

Ambrose E. Stevens, general manager of a cooperative which he said represents 75 per cent of the cranberry crop, said canned cranberry sauce now on store shelves was made from berries harvested in 1958.

Neither the Food and Drug Administration nor producers, Stevens said, have any reason to believe that last year's crop was improperly treated in any manner with the weed killer Aminotriazole.

"The very careful restrictions made by us on fresh berries also indicate that 10 million pounds of fresh cranberries in grocery stores are also entirely pure," Stevens added.

Traces of the weed killer, which has been found to cause cancer in rats, have been detected in some lots of cranberries.

This discovery prompted Flemming to caution the public last week on what he called the possible hazard in eating the favorite Thanksgiving and Christmas season sauce unless it could be identified as coming from a safe area.

Stevens, at a conference called by Flemming, presented a five-point industry program designed to relieve Americans of any worry.

Stevens, representing Ocean Spray Cranberries, Inc., said his growers had been forbidden as long ago as Sept. 18 to use the questioned herbicide on their cranberry properties in any form despite approval by the Department of Agriculture for use after harvest.

Flemming's stated purpose in setting up today's meeting was to hear from the industry a plan to separate the clean berries from those which have been contaminated. So far the only method has been painstaking and slow chemical testing of each batch.

The industry plan which Stevens presented has been undertaken to some extent.

Specifically he proposed:

1. Continuation of the ban on Aminotriazole until facts of its effect are determined. Stevens said this should not imply that use of the chemical is harmful "but only that as yet enough is not known about it, and until more is known, it seems wise to refrain from using it."

2. Segregation of all cranberries about which there is any reason for suspicion, the separation job to be done by marketing agencies which first handle them. Stevens said this plan was put into effect at the beginning of the 1959 harvest this fall.

3. Testing of all 1959 crop berries now possessed by primary handlers of the major distributors. These tests would be carried out by sampling procedures consistent with those used by the Food and Drug Administration.

4. Destruction of all cranberries found by such tests to contain any residue of Aminotriazole, or impounding them until it is decided what to do with them.

5. Continuation of scientific research and cooperation with government agencies "to insure uninterrupted delivery to the public of an adequate supply of pure and wholesome cranberries and cranberry products."

Of the berries tested, the great preponderance has been cleared, but the work is slow and Thanksgiving is only eight days away.

George C.P. Olsson, president of Ocean Spray Cranberries, Inc., a cooperative which handles 75 per cent of the nation's cranberry crop, will present the plan to Secretary of Welfare Arthur S. Flemming.

The government acted again Tuesday to seize a fifth batch of contaminated berries. This one came from Washington State. Previous tainted berries were found from Oregon and Wisconsin.

Only part of the contaminated Washington shipment could be traced by government agents. The rest presumably is still on the way to consumers.

The Washington shipment was said to be one of two lots from the 1959 West Coast crop that originally touched off the nationwide cranberry scare last week. By the time Food and Drug Administration chemists finished checking samples, it was found the lot had already been shipped to jobbers.

The part that wast raced consisted of 10 cases containing 24 pounds of fresh berries each. It was shipped Oct. 15 from Markham, Wash., to Portland, Ore.

Detroit city and county health authorities, acting independently of the federal government, said Tuesday they had found some tainted berries shipped by a New Jersey cannery in October 1958. These cans bore the label "Grosse Point Quality" and were packed by the April Orchards Co. of Bridgeton, N.J., said city-county health officer Joseph G. Molner.

Molner said most of the 44,800 cans int he New Jersey lot had been sold long ago and probably were eaten last Thanksgiving or Christmas. He said he believed no one who ate them is in danger. Nevertheless Detroit grocers were ordered to take remaining cans of this shipment off their shelves.

So far food and drug chemists have tested 440 samples across the nation. Five of these proved contaminated. Several are being rechecked.

Red Boss Reports High Production

MOSCOW (AP)—Premier Nikita Khrushchev says one Soviet factory alone has turned out 250 rockets with hydrogen warheads in one year—enough to "raze all our potential enemies off the face of the earth."

"You can well imagine that if this lethal weapon is exploded over some country there will be nothing left there at all," Khrushchev told a meeting of Soviet journalists. But the Soviet government is "ready to sink all this in the sea in the interests of ensuring peace on earth," he said, "if other countries will follow our example."

Khrushchev's speech was made Friday, but his text was not released until Tuesday night.

The Soviet leader said he was making public the rocket production figure to back up his 1958 announcement that the Soviets were turning out intercontinental ballistic missiles. He did not indicate whether the plant he referred to was producing all of the Soviets' nuclear headed rockets.

"Some in the West claim that the Soviet Union has changed its policy and therefore it has become easier to talk with us," Khrushchev said. "This is wrong, of course. Communists we were born, Communists we live and will not die but continue to march onward as Communists."

Khrushchev said a sincere desire for peace, not any military, economic or political weakness, prompted the proposal for total disarmament he presented to the United Nations during his U.S. visit.

Khrushchev said he was empowered to "sign immediately" a disarmament agreement during his American visit.

"I believe that the President (Eisenhower) also wants this," he continued, "but apparently he cannot do it because there are still strong quarters in the United States opposing disarmament."

He listed New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller among those who would "turn back the pointer of the barometer which is tending towards the lessening of international tension."

In Washington, the Defense Department had no immediate comment on Khrushchev's report on Soviet missile production.

It was not clear whether the Premier was referring to intercontinental missiles with a range of several thousand miles, or whether he was speaking of medium-range weapons with a range of about 700 miles.

Defense Secretary Neil H. McElroy has said that on the basis of intelligence reports, he expects the Soviet Union to have about 10 intercontinental missiles ready by the end of the year. Some sources believe the U.S.S.R. may have hundreds of medium-range missiles.

Need New Way Fix Weed Prices

RALEIGH (AP) — A federal tobacco official declared today "there is a critical necessity" for changes in the method of fixing price supports on flue-cured tobacco.

Joe R. Williams, director of the Tobacco Division of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, said tobacco leadership must take positive action to change the modernized parity which "has forced the price of our tobacco higher and higher."

Williams made his remarks in a talk at the North Carolina Farm Bureau tobacco conference.

Modernized parity is based on a 10-year average for tobacco prices and also on the current prices of what, cotton and other basic commodities. When the prices of wheat and other basic commodities go down, tobacco prices go up.

Williams said that spiraling tobacco prices are not only seriously affecting this country's export trade "but are encouraging the domestic industry to greater utilization of the whole leaf."

Williams told the conference delegates he is more optimistic over the outlook for tobacco than he has been since 1955. He said the 1959 tobacco crop was one of the best in years.

The basic problem, he declared, lies in the necessity of changing the modernized parity. He added, "The seeds of destruction of the long-time tobacco program may lie in the basic law itself."

Williams said the tobacco supply situation has improved. For three consecutive years, he said, supplies have been lower than the previous year and are now estimated at 3,290,000,000 pounds, about 391 million pounds less than at the peak level of 1956.

Delegates planned to discuss and recommend changes in the tobacco program.

Elections Board Certifies Result

RALEIGH (AP) — The State Board of Elections has certified results of last month's bond referendum and dismissed charges of fraud in connection with voting in Madison County.

The board made it official Tuesday that bond issues of about 34 million dollars were approved in the Oct. 27 election and two others totalling $350,000 were rejected.

State Republican Chairman William E. Cobb told the board "ballot boxes were stuffed by election officials of Madison County." He said the action produced the margin which defeated proposals for armory construction and historical site restoration.

The board, however, said an investigation by Executive Secretary Raymond Maxwell and an SBI agent did not disclose "any evidence of fraud or irregularity." Maxwell said some Republican election judges "were infuriated" at Cobb's charges.

The two Republican members of the 5-man state board joined in the ruling which found no fraud in Madison County.

Cobb said returns from 12 of the 23 Madison precincts were falsified. In affidavits he presented, several citizens swore the voting was light in the county.

4 Gas Companies Inact Rate Hike

RALEIGH (AP) — Four North Carolina natural gas companies put rate increases into effect today to keep pace with their wholesaler, Transcontinental Gas Pipeline Corp.

The State Utilities Commission has scheduled public hearings for December and January to determine if the increases are justified.

Winter Weather Hits Tar Heels

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Winter weather came to North Carolina today—bone-chilling but fair.

A low reading of six degrees above zero was registered atop Clingman's Peak, near Mt. Mitchell in the Black Mountains of Yancey County.

Other high-low readings included:: Asheville 48-19, Charlotte 66-25, Greensboro 60-21, Raleigh 61-21, Wilmington 69-32.

Smoke issued from dwelling chimneys, topcoats came out, and filling stations were jammed with motorists wanting antifreeze in their car radiators.

Temperatures in the western mountains fell into the teens, in the Piedmont they dropped into the twenties, and in the Coastal Plain they were down into the thirties.

The arctic air rode in on brisk winds late Tuesday and by this morning had encompassed the entire state.

The Weather Man said the outlook is for continued cold today and tonight and for a little moderation tomorrow.

The sudden break in the weather represented a fall of more than 30 degrees from Tuesday's high readings in some areas.

Looking into the days ahead, the Weather Man says temperatures Friday should moderate somewhat and that they should become even warmer over the coming weekend.

Marines Ask Boost In Ceiling

By C. YATES MCDANIEL

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Marine Corps is hoping again for congressional support to lift the 175,000 manpower ceiling imposed by the administration.

"We need 200,000 men," said Brig. Gen. Lewis C. Hudson, assistant chief of staff, told newsmen in outlining the corps' present ability and future hopes. Its wishful thinking calls for at least 235,000 men to keep its divisions fully manned and equipped.

Congress several times has provided sufficient funds to increase the Marine Corps to 200,000 men, but the administration has impounded the extra money and held the corps to the 175,000-man ceiling it had recommended. Next year's budget is understood to provide once again for 175,000 Marines.

Gen. Hudson and other Marine staff officers at the briefing declined to take issue with budget decisions, but they outlined plans which called for more manpower even as they told of the corps' present strength.

At Camp Lejuene, N.C., the 2nd Division has at all times a battalion force of about 1,800 men on a 15-minute alert for movement anywhere in the Atlantic or European area.

With three aircraft carriers adapted to leatherneck needs, three additional battalions can be launched simultaneously by helicopter over or around enemy defenses and fight with atomic or conventional firepower.

By 1962, when the corps gets the first of its specially designed and equipped assault carriers and landing ships capable of launching both helicopters and surface landing craft, the Marines will be able to put up to 10,000 men ashore.

Mindful of the destructive power of atomic weapons, the Marines are counting on the ability to approach an enemy area by fast carriers and then to fly inland at more than 100 miles per hour in transport helicopters protected by their own supersonic fighters and attack bombers.

The corps has now three divisions and three air wings, but under the current manpower limitations it has eliminated two battalions from each division, is manning the remainder of the combat units at 90 per cent strength and has reduced the numbers of men and planes in its air wings.

Ike Might Take Truman On Trip

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—President Eisenhower is mulling over a proposal that he ask Harry S. Truman to go along on next month's goodwill visit to three continents, a White House spokesman says.

Wayne Hawks, acting White House press secretary, told a news conference questioner Tuesday: "He has it under consideration, yes."

But one obvious obstacle in the way of turning the President and former President into traveling companions is that for seven years there hasn't been much good-will between them.

And a spokesman for Truman said in Kansas City that Truman knew nothing of the idea.

It was Sen. Thomas J. Dodd (D-Conn) who suggested that Eisenhower make his 20,000-mile tour of 11 nations a bi-partisan affair. He wrote a letter to the chief executive Friday proposing that Eisenhower invite one or more Democrats experienced in international affairs.

In addition to Truman, the senator mentioned Dean Acheson, who was Truman's secretary of state; Adlai E. Stevenson, the loser to Eisenhower in the 1952 and 1956 presidential campaigns; and Rep. Chester Bowles (D-Conn), a former ambassador in India.

India, with Red China glowering across her northern border, is a high priority point on the tour. Eisenhower will spend more time there than in any other country.

It is in preparation for the trip that the President is vacationing here at Augusta National Golf Club and storing up as much rest and relaxation as he can. Conferences with Washington officials still take some of his time.

For a session today, he called in the five members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff for what Hawks said is one of their periodic meetings with the commander-in-chief.

"They will discuss military plans and program," Hawks said.

That was to be the only information forthcoming on the meeting, Hawks said. The joint chiefs planned to fly back to Washington without seeing newsmen.

Hawks said there was no indication that the conference was related to Eisenhower's travels to Europe, Asia and Africa or a Western summit conference starting Dec. 19 in Paris.

Hawks said he thinks an answer to Dodd's letter will be coming up very shortly.

"Is this something he is consulting with other people about?" a newsman inquired.

"I just don't know who he is consulting or whether he is or not," Hawks said.

But he was definite on one thing: Eisenhower hasn't communicated with Truman about it.

Eisenhower - Truman relations have been frosty ever since the 1952 political wars, in which Truman fought Eisenhower and the GOP with typical vigor and picturesque speech.

Since then he hasn't set foot in the White House and has had few invitations to do so. He sent regrets last spring when Eisenhower asked him to a dinner for former Prime Minister Winson Churchill of Britain.

Probe Now Reaches Out For TV Idol Dick Clark

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — House investigators have come here to check information about the television practices of Dick Clark, idol of teen-agers.

The House subcommittee on Legislative Oversight announced the investigators' trip Tuesday. A spokesman said the information generally concerned the subcommittee's investigation of practices used to promote music.

The subcommittee announced recently that it would investigate payoffs to disc jockeys to play and promote records.

Clark's network issued a statement Tuesday night in New York.

The American Broadcasting Co. said it had "examined all evidence available to us" on Clark's various shows and had concluded its investigation with "renewed faith and confidence in Dick Clark's integrity."

Clark, ABC went on, "has neither solicited nor accepted any personal considerations—money or otherwise—to have any performer appear—or to play any record—on any of his programs."

Clark declined all comment.

Earlier, it was announced the 29-year-old TV star had been told by ABC to either give up his outside business interests or his television shows.

Clark rose quickly to fame with his nationally televised disc jockey show, "American Bandstand." He also is master of ceremonies on the Saturday night "Dick Clark Show" from New York and he appears on a Sunday panel show.

Clark dropped the business interests: one-third ownership in a Philadelphia record company, and interests in three music publishing companies.

Pitt United Fund Nears Halfway Point

Approximately $40,000 in contributions to the Pitt County United Fund have so far been reported to the local United Fund office, officials told Greenville UF solicitors at a meeting last night.

John Ray Hardy, general chairman for the county-wide campaign, explained to workers the figure probably does not represent nearly all that so far has been contributed to the campaign because only preliminary reports have been received from some townships and no reports have been received from others.

Hardy asked that the solicitors in Greenville township complete their solicitations and turn in their cards by Friday. Team captains were instructed to urge workers under their direction to return their cards by Friday whether or not they had completed their solicitations.

The Pitt County United Fund this year is seeking a goal of $107,000 for the agencies it represents.

"We've got to know exactly where we stand," Hardy told United Fund workers in asking that the cards be returned by Friday. "Unless we have these cards back, we have no way of knowing who has been contacted for contributions and who has not." He said a follow-up campaign will be made within the next few weeks to contact all those people who so far have not been contacted for a contribution to the United Fund. The chairman also asked that people who have not been contacted that would like to contribute to the United Fund call the United Fund office in Greenville.

Bomber Crashes Close To School

WINDSOR, Mo. (AP)—A burning B47 bomber crashed and exploded within 450 yards of a rural school near here Tuesday.

Four men aboard were presumed dead, the Air Force said. The plane was based at McConnell Air Force Base, Wichita, Kan.

Crewmen were Capt. Herbert J. Edwards, 36, Austin, Tex.; Maj. Edgar Jodoin, 35, Oxford, Mass.; Lt. Robert L. Westrup, 24. Albany, Ore., formerly of Lyons, Kan., and Airman James H. Redmond, 21, Bay SHore, N.Y. Only Westrup's body has been found.

Twenty-three pupils and their teacher were in the Hope Dale School eight miles northeast of Windsor when the plane blasted a 20-foot-deep crater beside a county road.

Three persons in a car were almost hit.

Mrs. Charles L. Bond, the driver, stopped the car when a 4-year-old passenger, Randy Wells, cried, "Look at the plane. Fire is falling."

Mrs. Bond hastily put the car in reverse. A huge wheel from the aircraft landed where the car had been.

New Fed. Civil Rights Law May Result From Lynching

By GEOFFREY GOULD

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Mack Charles Parker lynching case—and Mississippi's failure to do anything about it—may bring pressure for a new federal civil rights law.

Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers said Tuesday the case was "as flagrant and calculated a miscarriage of justice as I know of." He added the Justice Department is "studying the need for some new criminal statute in the civil rights field."

Asked if he meant a federal anti-lynch law, Rogers said "not necessarily." Any such proposal in the 1960 election year would be bound to generate a king-sized controversy in Congress.

Parker, a 23-year-old Negro, was accused last spring in Poplarville, Miss., of raping a pregnant white woman in a car with the woman's five-year-old daughter present.

Before he could be brought to trial, he was dragged from the Poplarville jail by a gang of hooded night riders, shot to death and dumped into a river.

Rogers said the FBI investigated the lynching, at a cost of $80,000, and came up with a complete report, including fingerprint evidence on the lynchers.

But the Pearl County grand jury met at Poplarville last week and did nothing about the case. It called no witnesses, although Rogers said FBI men were "ready and willing to testify."

Nor did the grand jury examine the FBI report said to have named the men responsible. The local district attorney called the FBI report hearsay but said the jury could have seen it if it wished.

Rogers said: "The harm in this case is not confined to Poplarville. The harm results to the United States and our standing before the world.

"You hear a lot about states rights. I believe in states rights also, but I also believe in state responsibility.

"It seems clear to me that if the states are going to disregard responsibilities to the extent of not even calling witnesses in a case like the Poplarville case, then the federal government must consider something else."

Utilities Approves Construction Training Plan

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector City Editor

Utilities commissioners last night approved plans for training a new construction crew among its employees to take over work being done by outside contract crews.

In recommending the change, Superintendent Leonard Bloxam said the electrical construction crew could be added for approximately the same cost of contracting the work each year.

The commission would have the advantage of having the crew at work 52 weeks a year, he pointed out. The contract crews are called in only when they are needed.

Bloxam explained that the new crew will be developed from within the Utilities organization. It will be developed gradually and as it takes over more and more of the electrical construction work, hiring of the contract crews will be eliminated.

As linemen are moved up to form the crew it will "eventually make more employment for somebody down the line," Bloxam pointed out.

The commission now has two electrical construction crews. One includes six men and the other three. The third crew to be added would probably include five men. It might include "two or three first class linemen and maybe two second class," depending on what works out most efficiently, the superintendent said.

The motion to go ahead with the new crew was made by Commissioner J. Roy Martin. It was approved unanimously.

Bloxam said that the contract crews cost the Utilities approximately $34,000 each year.

Bloxam told the commissioners that 8,325 feet of pipe line had been laid from the natural gas gate point west of Memorial Drive toward the Utilities plant.

Today the line was being installed under the railroad track at the plant, Bloxam reported.

Steel shortages are bringing up the problem of obtaining certain valves needed for the natural gas hookup, the superintendent stated. However, he noted that if the valves can be obtained "we should start getting people in service within the next two weeks."

He said plans are to begin serving the system with natural gas in sections.

When the entire system is using natural gas, the 14th St. substation will be taken out of service, the superintendent said, although its tanks can be used for storage of natural gas and other uses can be made of the equipment.

Bloxam also discussed the possibility of installing a control board at the Utilities power plant for operating the proposed sewage disposal plant at night.

If such a system can be worked out, he said, it would mean no one would have to be on duty at the disposal plant during the night hours. This would mean a considerable labor savings. The disposal plant is to be located on property behind Greenwood Cemetery.

The superintendent reported that concrete foundations are complete at the power plant for equipment which will increase capacity to receive power from Virginia Electric and Power Co.

The fence and foundations are completed for a new transformer station at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Work has also begun on a 34,000 volt line which will serve Ayden and other customers along the way, Bloxam reported. This line will be built primarily with Utilities crews.

Commissioners approved a resolution calling for the transferral of certain land behind Greenwood Cemetery from the city to the Utilities Commission. The area will be used for the construction of the sewage disposal plant.

Make Now, Bake Later

A big crop of peanut-butter cookies lies ahead if you try this recipe. This refrigerator variety of dough takes to shaping in plain ole-time or fancy new ways.

You can make up the cookie dough and have it on hand to bake when you will. The cookies are great for after-school snacking and to pack into lunch boxes. Their crisp and crunchy character usually delights youngsters.

PEANUT - BUTTER REGRIGERATOR COOKIES

Ingredients: 1 ½ cups sifted flour, ½ teaspoon baking soda, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup butter or margarine, ½ cup smooth-style peanut butter, 1 cup firmly-packed light brown sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 egg.

Method: Sift together the flour, baking soda and salt. Cream butter, peanut butter, sugar and vanilla. Beat in egg. Stir in flour mixture, mixing just enough to blend. Shape into two 9-inch long rolls (each 1 ½ inches in diameter). Wrap tightly in transparent plastic wrapping, waxed paper or foil. Chill, preferably overnight. When ready to bake, using a sharp thin-bladed knife, cut with a sawing motion into ⅛-inch thick slices. Place on ungreased cookie sheet about 1 inch apart. Bake in moderate (375 degrees) oven 8 to 10 minutes. Cool on cookie sheet about 2 minutes before removing with spatula to wire rack to finish cooling. To retain crispness, store in tightly covered container. Makes about 60 rounds. To make square cookies, flatten sides or rolls.

NEW TRICKS

Can Cookies: Wash and dry four 6-ounce frozen-juice cans. Pack cookie dough firmly into cans. Cover open end with foil; chill. To remove, open closed end with foil; chill. To remove, open closed end with can opener. Push cookie dough through can, using can lid as pusher. Slice and bake as recipe directs. Makes about 60.

Pinwheel: On waxed paper, press cookie dough into two rectangles, each 10 by 4 inches. Melt 1-3 cup semi-sweet chocolate pieces over hot water; spread on rectangles and cool slightly. Lifting waxed paper, roll from long side as for jelly roll; chill. Slice and bake as recipe directs. Makes about 80.

Cloverleaf: Shape cookie dough into five rolls, each 12 inches long and ¾-inch in diameter. Wrap and chill. Cut into ⅛-inch thick slices. Place 3 slices together on cookie sheet, overlapping slightly; lightly press centers. Bake as recipe directs. Makes about 72.

Method: Whisk eggs just until yolks and whites are combined. Mix in water, a pinch of salt and a dash of pepper. (Go slow on salt because cheese will add some.) Add Zest To Sweater Wardrobe

AP Newsfeatures

Why not give a fillip to your sweater wardrobe with some individual touches?

The classic pullover or cardigan can become a glamorous garment with some imaginative decoration. You can, of course, embroider a handsome monogram on either, using your automatic sewing machine or zig-zagger attachment. Or you can embroider decorative borders in colors by the same machine method.

Braid trimmings also are effective and easy to do. Metallic braids can turn a plain sweater into a festive evening topper.

One of the simplest ways to dress up a sweater is to trim it with narrow woven-edge velvet ribbon in a contrasting color. Local sewing center experts suggest using nylon velvet baby ribbon to applique a plain pullover, stitching it in a wide V-line front and back. Here's how:

Baste ribbon in place, with a backing of organdy on the inside of the sweater. Set your automatic sewing machine for a pretty little scallop stitch. Work along the edges of the ribbon. When scallop stitching is completed, change to a little diamond stitch and work little diamond designs on the ribbon. Tie a bow at the bottom of the V, and handstitch in place. Trim away excess organdy close to the line of stitching.

This sweater will team with velvet slacks for a glamorous at-home costume, or with a velvet skirt for a festive cocktail outfit.

Must Not Ignore Brush-Fire Wars

Tentative approval given the nation's 1961 military budget suggests that the United States will continue the policy of de-emphasizing ground troops and conventional weapons with greater emphasis being on missiles.

With changing conditions throughout the world, it is apparent that the United States must make alterations in its defense forces to keep pace with the times. We trust, however, that in making these changes those in places of high responsibility do not concentrate too heavily on the preventives for a global war while overlooking what is required to put out brush-fire wars.

Since shortly after the end of World War II, the United States has pointed its defense program toward being in a position to successfully retaliate against any power that might unleash an all-out nuclear war. And since the end of World War II there have been a number of wars fought around the globe without a single nuclear weapon being used. In many instances the United States and her allies who looked to her for aid found themselves wanting for trained manpower and adequate equipment with which to successfully fight the kind of war being fought.

If the United States is to remain the backbone of the defense of the free world—and that she must—we cannot underestimate the necessity of developing new weapons, new power and new methods that would be needed in a nuclear war. At the same time, we cannot ignore the repeated acts of the communists which indicate that their war-like efforts for domination of more people will be in the form of brush-fire wars rather than an all-out nuclear war.

If Communist aggression is to be contained and repulsed, the free world must have rifles, tanks, grenades and bayonets in sufficient numbers to put out brush-fire wars. It cannot rely altogether on nuclear weapons if thay are to be used only in retaliation.

The gradual revamping of the armed forces of the United States has brought about considerably controversy in recent years and we may expect more of the same next year. Out of it we can only hope there will eventually come the needed delicate balance between forces designed to cope with the brush-fire wars we may expect and forces that can cope, if necessary, with a nuclear war we hope will never develop.

Wardens Should Stop New 'Market Hunters'

Reports of widespread trapping of water fowl along the Eastern Shore of Virginia for marketing purposes is enough to make the average duck hunter's blood boil. Added assertions from the area that federal enforcement officers are concentrating on making sure hunters toe the line of regulations instead of going after the market-trappers only adds fuel to the fire.

Most hunters abide by the rules set forth for taking the game they seek. They are interested in conserving the wildlife population so they can enjoy the sport year after year, and so the generations which follow them can also enjoy it. More times than not the average hunter comes home from a day in the field, the woods, or the salt marshes with his game bag far from filled.

Market hunting, as it pertains to migratory waterfowl, was outlawed long ago by the federal government as a step toward conserving the wildlife population. It was no secret that a relative handfull of market hunters took more game in a year than all the so-called sportsmen combined. According to reports from Virginia this new breed of market trappers are taking many more ducks illegally along the Eastern Shore than all the hunters combined. They are lining their pockets from the proceeds of their sales while federal enforcement officers concentrate on nabbing hunters for violations. The trappers go about their disgraceful harvest of waterfowl relatively unmolested except by a small number of Virginia game wardens who do the best they can.

If it is the purpose of the fish and wildlife division of the Department of Interior to conserve the waterfowl population and enforce the laws regarding the taking of waterfowl, certainly it should be much more concerned about apprehending the trapper who may take thousands of ducks illegally in a single winter than harrassing the average hunter, abiding by the law, who probably will not kill a dozen ducks in a year.

They Studied Wrong Lessons

By LYNN NISBET

WRONG LESSON — Many of those who made the recent trade promotion trip into England and Western Europe admit they did their advance home work on the wrong lesson. They had "boned up" on the history and current conditions in the countries to be visited "so they could talk intelligently" with citizens over there. What they had failed to do was bring themselves up to date on information about North Carolina—the product they were supposed to be selling and in which their conferees manifested keen interest.

Result was that they frequently amazed—and often embarrassed—to discover that the business men in England, France, Germany, the Netherlands and Switzerland already knew more about general conditions in the United States and North Carolina than did the Carolina salesmen.

This is illustrated by a story told by one of the Tarheels about an incident at the first major event, a luncheon in London. A North Carolinian, who lives on the "Furniture Highway" but is not engaged in furniture making, was seated beside an Englishman engaged in international lumber trade. The Briton was asking about trees and forestry and lumber and furniture here. His seat mate from Carolina didn't know nearly as much about the situation. He had no idea how many acres of forest land are in the state, or what kinds of lumber are exported and imported. He did know that North Carolina has some right good furniture factories.

Another salesman purportedly was asked about the impact of business taxes over here. His answer was that he left all that kind of stuff to his accountants and attorneys and he just didn't know.

TWELFTH — Reports that doctors have discovered Rep. David M. Hall of the 12th district has cancer suggests interesting developments in the race for Congress in that district—with probable overlapping influence on the governor's race next year. One of the questions being asked is whether Congressman Hall is likely to resign before end of his present term, or will just not seek renomination next spring. That will depend a great deal on his ability to resist the cancerous infection during the next session of the Congress.

His resignation admittedly would create more problems for the 12th district—already harassed by necessity of replacing a nominee on the Democratic ballot last fall, the deflection of Heinz Rollman, millionaire manufacturer who joined the Republican party after twice being bypassed by the Democrats for the congressional seat, and open jealously among the small countries of the prestige exercised by Buncombe in the district.

Efforts have been made, and there was evidence of success, toward getting Buncombe county factions to agree on one candidate for congress against Hall in the primary. Lately it has appeared that reports of effective colation might have been exaggerated, and Buncombe factions are not entirely agreed on one candidate. If Hall should resign before primary time, and the executive committee should be called upon to nominate a candidate in a special election, there could be repetition of the 1958 condition, by the small counties ganging up against Buncombe and Haywood. In the primary every individual voter has a voice. In the committee selection each county, regardless of size or number of resident citizens, has two votes. That means Clay county, which cast 1432 votes for the Democratic nominee in the last general election has as much voice in the committee as Buncombe—which cast 19,535 votes.

TANGLED — While the matter of selecting a congressman is of primary concern only to the district, there are definite indications that events in the 12th district congressional situation may have large influence on the race for Governor. Information obtained from previously reliable sources is to the effect that John Larkins has been the obvious favorite of the most potent faction in Buncombe. How well he would fare in primary voting would depend to some extent upon how effective was the coalition in support of a congressman. Information gathered from comparable reliable sources is that Addison Hewlett is strong in the counties west of Buncombe. But these small counties, like big Buncombe, would rather have a home-county congressman than any Governor from down east.

In a really heated contest for congress votes for Governor might be traded at less than even—and campaign money might be intermingled. That kind of thing happens often in election campaigns, and it will happen other places in North Carolina next year. As of now, it looks like developments in the 12th district may have more apparent influence on the statewide situation than local happenings in any other area.

There is possibility that the sixth district might provide some fireworks, if—and only if—Congressman Carl Durham decides to retire at end of his current term. Congressional district contests are likely in other places, but there presently seems no such influence on statewide affairs as is building up in the 12th and possibly the sixth.

Budget Will Be Sore Spot In '60

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — Not even a national prize for fancy phrasing could make the word budget sound exciting. But it will be one of 1960's major sore spots and talking points.

Last month the Senate Republican Policy Committee predicted budget balancing would be the big issue in Congress next year and then later in the presidential campaign.

And because government economy, or lack of it, will hold such a high place in the national consciousness in 1960 you, who pay for the budget with your taxes, have practically no hope for a tax cut next year.

For Republicans, budget-balancing is both a rallying post and a tender point.

In the 1952 campaign President Eisenhower was pretty optimistic about reducing government spending. He hasn't always succeeded. In the last fiscal year the government went 12½ billion dollars in the red, a peacetime record.

For that fiscal year - which started July 1, 1958 and ended June 30, 1959—Eisenhower proposed spending 74 billion dollars. He was off on his estimate because the 1958 recession sent government income down and expenses up.

This year—for the 1960 fiscal year beginning July 1, 1959—the President asked 77 billion but spending may hit over 79 billion. That does not necessarily mean a deficit, because government income has picked up.

No wonder that Eisenhower — remembering the deficits, his early hopes of cutting down spending, the need for economy in dealing with inflation—went after the Democrats like a man with a mallet.

He did more than just appeal to Congress for economy. He went on TV to get public support and pressure on Congress. He kept banging away on the same theme all through the 1959 congressional session.

One effect of all this was to make the Democratic-run Congress so self-conscious about spending that it pretty much ate out of his hand. He can be expected to do no less next year, his last full White House year.

GAL 2 MARLOW

He has been subjected to criticism, of course, for not pumping more money into defense and other areas to keep abreast of the Soviets or to surpass them.

This year, since relations with the Soviet Union seem a little warmer and Premier Nikita Khrushchev is calling for world disarmament, Eisenhower has some added ammunition to use against those who believe he is not making the maximum effort.

It may be rather comforting to all sides in a dispute over government spending that they can't see 10 years into thee future. It may take that long to prove who is right and who is short-sighted now.

Very possibly, since economy and government spending will be a presidential campaign issue, the Democrats may trot along beside Eisenhower in keeping down the budget.

But that won't prevent about six months of yipping and yapping on both sides during the congressional session.

Monday Eisenhower tentatively okayed part of the budget he will offer Congress in January—just about what he asked this year.

That might indicate he has in mind the same kind of total budget for next year that he requested this year: 77 billion.

Even if the politicians of both parties were stricken speechless in 1960 there would still be an awful budget rumpus if only from the Army, Navy and Air Force, each of which always wants more money than Eisenhower says they need.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

"SEND ME"

There is a fine little sermon in the sixth chapter of Isaiah.

In the year King Uzziah died, the prophet Isaiah saw the Lord sitting upon a throne, "high and lifted up, and his train filled the temple." The seraphim stood above the throne. They sang holiness unto the Lord. The earth was full of God's glory. The posts of the door moved at the voice of Him who cried and God's house was filled with smoke.

Isaiah was terrified. "I am a man of unclean lips," he cried, "and now my eyes have looked upon Perfection, upon the unseen king, the Lord of hosts." And at this one of the seraphim lifted a live coal from off the altar with his hands and touched Isaiah's lips. "Thine iniquity is taken away," said the angel, "and thy sin purged. Also I heard the voice of the Lord saying, Whom shall I send, and who will go for us? Then said I, Here am I; send me."

A sermon! A little sermon! A perfect sermon! When the great Uzziah died, the nation was plunged into terror, but on an eventful night God manifested Himself in His temple. He purified a servant and commissioned him to great ends. And the servant hearkened. "Here am I, Lord," he cried. "Send me."

Lord, send me on a mission great or small. Prepare me with purged lips and a purged life. "Here am I, Lord; send me."

Little Things Crop Up

It's a wonder how little things can crop up so suddenly and really make you wonder.

Like yesterday, we had a little incident to arise here in the "salt mines" that originated, quite innocently too, from this typewriter.

You see, for the past few days, it's been the responsibility of this machine to substitute for our absent news editor. Consequently, there's the daily task of writing headlines to cap the day's articles and stories.

Actually, after jumping into such a task quite cold, it sorta comes natural to get the feeling that you're beginning to get the hang of it after all.

Well, as a result, you have that sub-conscious notion — like people do — that what you're doing is accurate and correct. You even take pride in seeing "your product" after its completion.

Now. After all that rigmarole, perchance it might well to re-mention the afore-mentioned incident.

It was so slight a thing. Hardly noticeable. It was a minute "head" — applied by this typewriter — to an ever so brief announcement of a meeting of the Greenville Utilities Commission.

The little notice was handed to me by our city editor. He'd just left the Utilities office and routinely included the tiny bit of writing with the usual hustle and bustle volume of copy for the day's paper.

As usual, every piece of copy, including the brief announcement, passed through the new editor's hands and hurriedly received its label.

Later, as everything became relatively calm again — the way it does around here second after the press begins to turn every-day — the question was raised.

Everybody wanted to know: "What th' heck is GUCO?" You see, the "head" on the tidbit read: "GUCO Meeting."

Immediately, it was apparent that everybody didn't have as clear an understanding of the term (GUCO) as did the freshman news editor.

After all, he's a relative stranger in town and just didn't know any better. So the only apology in order (it should be made clear here and now) for any inaccuracy should come directly from the offender. So there it is!

One thing still bothers me though. The best I remember, at the end of every month, there's little announcement in our mailbox requesting that all checks be made "payable to GUCO."

The Age Of Rushing

(Goldsboro News-Argus)

This is a day of unseemly rushing. A day of such rushing that our souls so often are left far behind.

There was a time when a man if he missed the day's stagecoach waited happily, pleasuring his mind with fellowship, good talk, and maybe good stout, until the next day's run.

Now he yells in terrible frustration if he misses one section in the revolving door.

The Carolina Charter Tercentenary Commission numbers 25 members. It was set to meet in Raleigh at half past noon. At noon no one had appeared. At 12:15 there was a sprinkling of the members gathering in the hotel lobby.

At 12:30 most of them were there and trooped to the dining room. They came from all quarters in varying stages of hurry. Until the last minute they had been busy with some other device and interest.

Only Ben Dixon MacNeill had made a leisurely trip out of it from his romantic Hatteras. He had come up the night before.

One of our favorite couples is Squire John Fletcher and his gracious author-wife, Inglis Fletcher. They had made the long run from historic Bandon Plenation, Edenton, to Raleigh just in time to arrive for the meeting. Others came from all parts of the state. Almost without exception they had driven in during the morning.

When the meeting was over, the 30 or so people present disappeared as quickly as a flock of birds disturbed at their feeding.

Again, almost without exception, they had to hurry to another appointment, to press toward some commitment, or to begin the long auto drive back home.

The planning for the observance of the 300th anniversary of a charter which established liberty and freedom under law could have gone forward with more depth and appreciation if members had had to come the night before, loaf around and swap ideas and talk during the evening, and following the meeting.

We use this illustration to make the point that all of us so desperately need the balm of creative solitude and leisured human contacts.

An Unusual Young Man

(Kinston Free Press)

Peni Latu, 24, of Castleford, England, is a most unusual and fortunate young man. In the first place, Latu is a grave digger—a profession to which few men aspire.

In the second place, he won the equivalent of $92,400 in a football pool. Such lotteries are legal in England and we believe the winnings are tax free.

Most people spend a lifetime dreaming about what they would do if "their ship came in," so to speak. So it would be only natural to expect a grave digger with $92,400 in the bank to look for a new vocation.

But United Press International quotes Latu as saying:

"I've a nice home, a nice landlady and lots of good friends. I'm even happy in my job. Why should I give it all up just because I've got a lot of cash in the bank?"

For our money, Latu is the top choice for "the man least likely to acquire ulcers in an effort to keep up with the Joneses."

Events Change A Life

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—There are certain milestones in living which, once reached, change your life forever.

Such a milestone is your first real case of puppy love, the first time you break a bone and realize that your body is not immortal but mortal, marriage, and your first child.

After that the milestones become a bit glummer. I am thinking of your 40th birthday, the day the dentist says, "I'm sorry, but I'll have to put in a partial plate," and the day you finally decide to wear glasses.

I am at this last landmark now.

For months I have been getting more and more like that near-sighted comic character who lives in a foggy world where everything looks like something else. The harder I squint the less I see.

"Your eyes are your work," my wife has been saying for a long time now, "and you're straining them so you'll wind up blind as a bat.

"It's just vanity with you anyway. Why don't you give up and go get yourself tested for some glasses? Glasses are attractive on middle-aged men. It makes them look like executives."

"I don't want to look like an executive," I tell her. "I just want to go on looking like Clark Gable—or maybe Marshal Dillon."

I was in a railway terminal the other day and couldn't make out the number on the phone directory. I hailed an elderly stranger and asked his help.

"Certainly," he said, pulling a pair of glasses from his pocket. He gave me the number.

"Sonny, why don't you quit fighting time, and get yourself some glasses. You don't know what you're missing," he told me.

"Such as what?" I asked.

"Well, are you a girl watcher?" he demanded. I looked quickly in both directions and lowered my voice as I answered, "Isn't everybody?"

"Can you see that pretty girl at the other end of the terminal?" he inquired. I looked whre he pointed and had to admit she was pretty much of a blur to me.

Then the old fellow had me don his spectacles. The distant girl leaped into clear vision. She was startlingly beautiful.

I made up my mind that instant. I'm going to make an appointment with an eye doctor right away.

A middle-aged man who fights glasses doesn't know what he's missing.

THE WORLD OF WOOD

New Trends In Diversification

By ELMER ROESSNER

Diversification has been sort of a magic word in American business in the last decade. The idea that diversified lines will protect a business against slump in any one has been preached in the trade press, at management conferences and in this column.

The desire for diversification has led to many mergers, some of them strange; it has been used to get supermarkets to carry soft-goods; it has launched a thousand new products.

Now a new kind of diversification is gaining attention. It's diversification of suppliers.

Management is showing an increased awareness that having more than one supplier of each type of goods and service has several advantages:

COMPETITION, SAFETY

1. In having more than one supplier, management has the advantage of mild competition in both service and price.

2. Since suppliers often give management ideas, news of trends and other information, multiple suppliers multiply the flow of facts.

3. Multiple suppliers give management protection against the effects of strikes, fires and other disasters.

In some cases, diversifying suppliers give a week company freedom from the threat of dominance. When a business becomes entirely dependent on a single supplier, the supplier may be tempted to dictate terms, influence policy and even insist on the employment of a lazy nephew.

COST OF NONDIVERSIFICATION

The experience of one food company illustrates the need for the use of several sources. It was about to launch a promotional campaign when its printer's plant was destroyed by fire. expenditures, less than 2 per cent, but this wrecked all plans. Had its printing been divided among two companies, one of them could have carried on the needed work.

There has been a strong tendency, this year especially, for large corporations to divide more of their advertising work among different agencies.

They tap more talent. And by shifting work to those agencies who get best results, they keep all of them trying their best.

In recent days, the purchasing agent called in the sales manager of a small chemical company and asked him to bid on a list of materials.

SUSPICIOUS REACTION

"Are you kidding?" demanded the sales manager. "I know you get almost all your materials from the X company. Are you trying to use me to force their prices down?"

"No," said the purchasing agent, "I'm going to buy up to a fifth of our purchases from other suppliers, and I'm willing to pay up to 8 per cent more than we are paying today. I want to see more production lines operating in case X company has a strike—or in case they begin to apply pressure on the prices we pay."

This kind of diversification sounds like sound business. It may pay every businessman to list his suppliers and ask himself, "What will I do if each one of these stops supplying?" In that way, he may develop his own plan for supplier diversification.

Mechanical Sea Turtle Will Soon Begin Deep Submarine Exploring

WASHINGTON (AP)—A weird-looking mechanical sea turtle with buglike eyes for cameras will soon begin exploring the mysteries of the Western Hemisphere's continental shelf at the bottom of the Caribbean Sea.

The craft arrived at the Naval Weapons Plant here recently en route to the French West Indies.

The two-man turtle, propelled by water jets, will probe the dark and silent submerged continent off Guadaloupe Island, in the Leeward Islands.

Capt. Jacques-Yves Cousteau, noted marine explorer, brought the newly developed turtle from France aboard the French research ship Calypso.

Cheaper Than Bathyscaph

The turtle, cheaper and smaller than a deep-sea bathyscaph, is the only craft of its kind in the world.

Cousteau, commander of the Calypso and co-inventer of the aqualung, says the turtle "fills the gap between the maximum distance divers can go down, about 200 feet, and the much greater depths on which bathyscaphs are used."

The turtle can carry two persons—a pilot and a scientist—to a depth of about 1,000 feet. Lying on their stomachs on a rubber mattress, they can peer out through two portholes. Eye-like apertures are also provided for taking motion pictures.

The steel-hulled craft is 6½ feet in diameter and 5 feet high. It can move up, down and sideways with its jet power, and has a range of about six miles. It depends on its battery-powered jets to resurface, and can remain on the bottom about 24 hours.

Shelf Is Unexplored

After being dropped overboard from the mother ship by a crane, the turtle's only contact with the upper world is a yellow plastic ball attached to the craft by a nylon line. The ball floats on the surface so that the Calypso can keep track of its movements.

Cousteau says the continental shelf—a submarine plain which stretches out from the mainland toward the ocean depths—is largely unexplored and is the most interesting section of the sea bottom.

"I think we may be able to learn a lot just by turning off the engine and sitting for 24 hours on the ocean floor watching what goes on," he says.

He is particularly interested in exploring the shelf, he says, "because it holds many of the answers to the mystery of how the underwater mountains and valleys were formed.

"Since the shelf is a continuation of the continent itself, there is no reason why it should not have the same natural resources, such as soil and coal."

The expedition, sponsored by the National Geographic Society, plans to return to France around the end of the year.

Murder Charges Filed Against 4

CONWAY, S.C. (AP) — Murder charges have been filed against four men in the death of a North Carolina man who police claim was slain because he was mistaken for a federal liquor agent.

In addition, Mrs. Earline Hewett, 38, wife of one of the accused, was charged with being an accessory to the slaying.

Charged with murder in the death of James Allen Miller, 23, of Wilmington, N.C., are Frank Tyler, 30; his brother, Howard Tyler, 28; Elwood Sinkler Hewett, 38; and his son, Carl E. Hewett, 16. Mrs. Hewett is the wife of Elwood Hewett.

Horry County Police Chief Lee Johnson said Frank Tyler has admitted shooting Miller under the mistaken impression he was a revenue agent prying into bootleg whisky operations.

After the shooting near Loris several days ago, Miller's body was doused with kerosene and placed in an automobile, which was set on fire.

Johnson said Mrs. Hewett helped dispose of evidence after Miller was slain. He said Miller came to the Loris area the day before the shooting, "apparently on a hunting trip."

All are scheduled for trial in the March term of Horry County Court.

Kept Cool While His House Burned

NORMAN, Okla. (AP)—Mrs. Gail Shannon has nominated Dr. J.E. Burkett as the coolest man in town. She called him on business and he answered: "May I phone you later when I can collect my thoughts and think through my schedule?" Mrs. Shannon learned later that Burkett's house was on fire and he was dodging firemen as he talked.

Yale, Harvard Withdraw From Federal Loan Program

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—Yale and Harvard, two of the nation's most influential universities, have withdrawn from the federal student loan program. The program requires borrowers to sign a loyalty affidavit.

Yale President A. Whitney Griswold said the affidavit "is contrary to the classic principles of our colleges and universities."

Harvard President Nathan M. Pusey called it misguided, and an "affidavit of disbelief."

The affidavit, required of students applying for federal education loans, states that the applicant does not believe in, belong to, or support "any organization that believes in or teaches the overthrow of the United States government by force or violence or by any illegal or unconstitutional means."

Griswold and Pusey made their announcements Tuesday independently. But it was learned that the two presidents had talked the matter over by telephone Tuesday and had been discussing the affidavit for several months.

Their decisions mean almost a half million dollars in available funds will not be used. Harvard is turning back $357,873. Yale, which already has received $160,000, said it will return most of another $50,000 to which it is entitled.

The schools are not the first to take exception tot he affidavit. Bryn Mawr, Haverford and Swarthmore, all located near Philadelphia, refused to enter the program at the start.

At least nine others have withdrawn or announced their intention to withdraw. They are Grinnell of Iowa, St. John's and Goucher of Maryland, Antioch, Wilmington and Oberlin of Ohio, Bennington of Vermont, Reed of Oregon, and Sarah Lawrence of New York. Several others have stayed in the program but criticized the affidavit requirement.

The affidavit was required by the National Defense Act of 1958, which put the student loan fund into operation. An effort was made in the Senate last summer to delete the affidavit requirement, but it failed. The affidavit is accompanied by an oath of support of the U.S. Constitution.

Yale's decision was announced in a letter from Griswold to Arthur S. Flemming, secretary of health, education and welfare. Pusey sent his letter from Cambridge to Lawrence G. Derthick, U.S. Commissioner of Education.

Griswold said the affidavit "partakes of the nature of the oppressive religious and political test oaths of history, which were used as a means of exercising control over the educational process by church or state."

Pusey said the affidavit is discriminatory "since it singles out students alone in our population—and, among students, the neediest—as subjects for special distrust."

High School Day Set Friday On ECC Campus

High School Day will bring to the campus Friday, Nov. 20, a group of seniors from secondary schools of the state for an all-day program emphasizing the academic side of college life.

Plans for the day are now being drawn up by a committee headed by Dr. Ralph Brimley, director of public relations and extension, assisted by Dallas Wells of Williamston, president of the Student Government Association, and representatives of departments of instruction at the college.

A general assembly of visiting seniors will open High School Day activities at 10 a.m. in the Wright auditorium. President John D. Messick will extend a welcome to the campus and make a short inspirational address. Vice President Leo W. Jenkins, speaking on "Our College," will emphasize opportunities in higher education. The East Carolina College Band will present selections chosen for their appeal to an audience of young people.

Following the assembly, the sixteen departments of instruction at East Carolina will be open to the high school seniors. Each visitor will have opportunity to visit the department in which he is most interested, to observe its facilities, and to confer with faculty members about the types of work offered.

Luncheon will be served in the college dining halls at 12:30 p.m.

Afternoon events will include an outdoor program featuring the Honorary Drill Team and the Drum and Buble Corps of the campus Air Force ROTC; a tour of the campus, during which the departments of instruction will hold open house; and a square dance given by the health and physical education department in the Memorial gymnasium and a tea dance in the Wright building, with members of the Freshman Class as hosts and hostesses.

The Pioneer Players, a new drama group of talented and proffessional performers from Greenville and East Carolina College, will present the romantic comedy "Janus" by Caroliny Green, Friday night at 8 p.m. in the McGinnis auditorium on the campus. Seniors attending High School Day have been invited to attend the play and have been offered special rates for admission.

Small Plane Crash Takes Three Lives

COVINGTON, Va. (AP)— Three men died Tuesday when their single-engine charter plane smashed on a mountain near here minutes before it was to land.

The victims were Jack Miller, 34, of Vinton, a pilot for Virginia Airmotive Service located at Roanoke; C. C. McVey, 47, of Wilmette, Ill., a metallurgist, and Russell E. Aimes, 39, of Cleveland, Ohio, an industrial engineer.

The plane had left Roanoke's Woodrum Field at 10:45 a.m. Although the pilot had planned to land McVey at Hot Springs for a business meeting of Climax Molybdenum Co., bad weather prevented a landing at the resort airport. Miller then determined to land both men at Covington, which was Aimes' original destination.

The crash scene was on Big Mountain, some 18 miles southeast of Lexington.

Rescuers said the bodies were badly mangled. They had to cut into the plane to reach two of the victims.

Jackpot Gets Nod To Open Gamble

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP)—The little town of Jackpot is finally getting its chance to play with dice, cards and roulette.

Nevada's Gaming Commission relented Tuesday and granted unlimited licenses to Cactus Pete's and the Horseshu Club of Jackpot, a Nevada-Idaho border town that has been permitted to run only slot machines in the past.

The licenses were issued on a probationary basis after the commission got repeated assurances that there would be adequate law enforcement.

Acreage May Rise In '61

RALEIGH (AP)—A top tobacco official has sounded the possibility that a 10 per cent increase in flue-cured acreage may be justified in 1961.

J. B. Hutson of Washington, president of Tobacco Associates, emphasized, however, that quality and price problems must be solved before any acreage increase is discussed.

Hutson spoke here Tuesday to a meeting of tobacco men from the five flue-cured states of North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia, Georgia and Florida.

The meeting agreed generally that the national marketing quota for the 1960 crop should remain at this year's level. Secretary of Agriculture Benson is to announce the 1960 allotment quota by Dec. 1.

"If we had gotten our price problems straightened out," said Hutson, "we could have asked for a 5 per cent increase in acreage for 1960. But with the uncertainty in price, we can't make a case now."

He urged the tobacco men to settle the price problems, continue to improve quality and work toward an acreage increase in 1961.

Hutson said he was more optimistic about the flue-cured outlook than he was last year. He said foreign countries have more money with which to buy American leaf.

The 1959 crop, he continued, "was what the buyers wanted." He said Eastern North Carolina farmers in particular produced what he termed a great crop of tobacco.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Manufacturers are constantly seeking new applications of products they already have on the market. In order to demonstrate these new applications, especially in the building materials line, many of them have built model homes using the materials.

As a result, you probably have read about or seen model homes made almost entirely of aluminum or glass or plywood or some other material which previously played only a minor role in the construction of a house.

The latest model home to fall into this category is on display in Oklahoma City. Its principle ingredient is asbestos-cement, up to now used mainly as siding and roofing shingles.

One of the most surprising features of this home is the vaulted, arch-supported roof built of asbestos-cement sheets with a center core of foamed lightweight cement. The idea is that they give complete insulation as well as being waterproof.

The exterior walls also are insulated panels made of asbestos-cement sheets laminated to each side of a foam plastic core center. One of these sheets has a flat surface, while the other has a three-dimensional texture which creates a decorative effect for either exterior or interior wall surfaces.

Another example of the use of an existing product in a different way is the manner in which colored asbestos-cement sheets have been cut into tiles and used as flooring in the living room area, as kitchen counter surfaces and as bathroom walls. Standard asbestos-cement corrugated sheets are used throughout the house as room dividers, as a canopy to screen to the entrance foyer and in landscaping for screens, treewells and fences.

The jet age is responsible for a new material being used in home oil furnaces.

The material, a ceramic felt, originally was designed to insulate high-speed airplanes from the intense heat developed in jet engines. It is produced by a special process which converts molten refractory substances (mostly alumina and silica) into a mass of ceramic fibers, each many times finer than a human hair.

Somewhere along the line, engineers discovered that this light, flexible product had advantageous properties when installed in the fire box of a domestic oil furnace. Manufactured in blanket form and in various thicknesses, the material is cut to fit, rolled up, pushed through a furnace door and patted against the walls of the fire box until a snug fit is achieved. By serving as a new lining for the old walls, it is said to eliminate the need to replace cracked or worn-out fire bricks.

It is claimed to have several advantages over conventional fire bricks. At least two furnace manufacturers now are using it in new furnaces.

The Exciting New Novel By W. R. BURNETT, The Man Who Wrote LITTLE CAESAR

© W. R. Burnett, 1959. From the novel published by A. A. Knopf, Inc. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

CHAPTER 19

Bud Smith's exploits were the talk of Mesa Encantada.

Of course, running down and killing outlaws was a routine matter on the frontier—for seasoned peace officers, that is; and as a rule caused little comment. But who ever heard of a skinny kid tackling and bringing down single-handed a couple of real brutes like Jocko Roach and Sandy Hoad?

He was so modest about it, too; just sort of laughing it off in an embarrassed way if anybody brought it up.

And the night after he got back he said to a barful of congratulating men: "Just following in the Sergeant's footsteps, that's all. He taught me everything I know."

The Major was so pleased with the way Bud had handled the whole affair that he asked Sergeant Desportes to bring him round to the house for a cup of coffee and some sandwiches.

The Sergeant appeared in uniform, scrubbed and polished, followed by a diffident Bud, who had tried to smarten himself up for this unusual social occasion by wearing a tie and putting on an old jacket he'd borrowed.

The result was that he hardly looked himself at all and seemed even younger and somehow smaller and more inadequate.

The Major was a little awkward with Bud, who in his turn was more than a little awkward with the Major. They sat round the fireplace, sipping their coffee and eating the delicious sandwiches Maria had made for them.

In a moment Mrs. Major came in on the pretext that she had lost her embroidery ring, and she and Maria searched for it all through the big Spanish living-room. The Sergeant noticed that Mrs. Major was looking Bud over with veiled feminine interest.

"You look so young," she said, finally.

"I'm in my twenty-first year, ma'am," said Bud.

Mrs. Major laughed lightly. "As old as all that? But weren't you frightened fighting with those outlaws?"

"Yes, ma'am," said Bud. "I'm always frightened when there's shooting."

And the Sergeant, secretly amused, remembered that Bud had said much the same thing to Mrs. Craven at Pauley. Most women seemed to take a motherly interest in Bud. As for girls, the Sergeant had never seen Bug more than glance at one.

At last Maria found Mrs. Major's embroidery ring on the top of the bookcase where the Major was certain it had been "planted," and Mrs. Major left the room, throwing a smile over her shoulder at the men, followed by an apologetic Maria carrying the ring.

"Smith," said the Major now that peace had been restored, "did you ever think of joining the regular cavalry?"

The Sergeant looked pleased. But Bud gave the Major a quick glance of puzzlement, then said: "No, sir. I never did."

"We can use men like you," the Major went on. "You'd have chevrons in no time and, like Sergeant Desportes, you'd be a man for special assignments in the Southwest."

Bud seemed to think this over for some time. "Major, sir," he said finally; "I'd sure like to follow in the footsteps of Sergeant Desportes, but somehow I don't feel up to it. No sir. I wouldn't want to let the Army down. I lived wild till the Sergeant pulled me out of that gully, had no home, nothing; had to shift for myself practically since I was six. What I mean is, sir, I don't know about that discipline business. Don't know if I could stand it."

"Well, it's a frank answer," said the Major, "and I appreciate it. Stay with us. Do as you have been doing. Maybe you'll change your mind."

"I hope so, sir," said Bud, politely. "You people all have sure been kind to me."

"You've paid us back already," said the Major. "You owe us nothing. And while I'm on the subject, I want to commend you for the way you handled that affair."

Later, they stopped by the kitchen to have a word with Maria. Bud had tried to beg off, surprising the Sergeant, who said that it was only right that they should at least thank Maria for the sandwiches.

"Never thought of that," said Bud, contritely. "It's just that I'm all tired out from so much riding and sleeping on the ground and all. I'm getting spoiled here."

The Sergeant smiled at him and patted him on the back. "Won't take a minute, then you can hit the blankets."

They found Maria singing at her work. She was delighted that they had stopped round, and made them sit down and have another cup of coffee. "I just made it. It's for Mrs. Major, but I'll make her more."

The Sergeant was pleased to see her in such a happy frame of mind, and asked about Lolita.

"Oh, she's changed back," said Maria. "She's my little girl again. I don't know what it was. Nerves, I think now. Summers are trying, with all that dry wind; it's hard on a delicate young girl. She can hardly wait to get back to the convent. She studies all day long, and plays the piano for Mrs. Major, like she used to."

Just as she finished speaking, Lolita came in with a book in her hand and sat down at the kitchen table.

"May I have some coffee, too?" she asked after she'd greeted the Sergeant and thrown a perfunctory smile in Bud's direction.

"Do you think you should, pet?" asked Maria, with exaggerated concern. "You might not sleep. Oh, well—just a little one."

Lolita calmly sipped her coffee and turned the pages of her book as the others talked.

"That must be a right interesting book," said Bud, finally. "Love story?"

"Nothing as foolish as that," said Lolita. "It's about Spain. Mother Teresa sent it to me."

"Oh, about Spain," said Bud.

The Sergeant glanced at him in surprise, not quite understanding his tone.

"Pet, couldn't you put your book down and talk to Bud and the Sergeant?" asked Maria.

"Uncle Juan wants to talk to you, mother, not to me," said Lolita. "And what could I talk to Bud about?"

The Sergeant shifted uncomfortably. Maria looked at Lolita in surprise.

"Why, Lolita!"

"She thinks I'm stupid," said Bud, then added: "I guess."

"Not stupid," said Lolita. "Willfully ignorant."

"Pet!" cried Maria.

"Oh, that's okay, ma'am," said Bud. "Don't bother. Anyway, she's right, you know. I've always resisted learning."

"But it's not polite," said Maria, looking blankly at her daughter, very much puzzled. "Pet, you're only joking, aren't you?"

"Yes, mother; I'm only joking," said Lolita. "Most things are a joke anyway, aren't they?"

The Sergeant broke it up as soon as he could, and he and Bud walked down the company street side by side, in silence for a moment.

"Something's wrong somewhere with Lolita," said the Sergeant, shaking his head. "I don't understand it."

"It's like I said, sir," said Bud. "Girls are kinda funny. And then maybe she's sort of jealous of me."

The Sergeant looked at him quickly. "How do you mean?"

"Well, you were her Uncle Juan till I came along. Now it's almost like I'm a son to you, sir, and maybe she feels out in the cold."

The Sergeant thought this over. It was possible. He had noticed, he was sure, a somewhat similar reaction on the part of old Natty Bugworth, of all people.

"Well," he said, slowly, "everything'll be all right when she gets back to the convent."

Natty Bugworth has stronger reason to speak to the Sergeant about Bud: "He's a no-good varmint and I've got the proof!" Continue the story here tomorrow.

Street Name Is Tough Question

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — In suburban Sappington, all isn't well on Alswel — or Alswell or maybe Allswell — Lane.

The burning question is how to spell it.

Mrs. Segundo Tolentino, who lives there and is outspoken on the matter, says Alswel is right.

But the county directory carries it "Alswell."

The telephone directory says Mrs. Tolentino lives on "Alswel Lane," her neighbor, Albert A. Beck, lives on "Alswell Lane" and another neighbor, Norman Denike, lives on "Allswell Lane."

Mrs. Tolentino said the telephone company told her it's going to standardize the spelling as "Allswell."

She objects. Semms local lore has it that the man who used to own the land spelled it Alswel because those letters composed the first letter of the name of each of his children.

A post office clerk summed it up pretty well: "We spell it Alswell but people spell it all kinds of ways."

Cop Breaks Hip Party-Crashing

TULSA (AP)—Officer Kenneth Clinton broke up a gambling game, but not according to plan.

From a building roof Clinton watched a poker session through a window of an adjacent building. When he started to descend, some bricks crumbled and he fell from the top of the one-story structure.

Lt. Ralph Duncan, in an alley below, broke the officer's fall, but Clinton was hospitalized with a fractured pelvis.

In the commotion the poker game ended and the players vanished.

Gov. Hodges Localized Speeches At European Stops

By W. E. HORNER

(11th in a series of articles written exclusively for members of N. C. Afternoon Dailies)

ZURICH, Nov. 11 (Delayed)—On this Veterans Day anniversary, 35 Tar Heels broke bread with 130 Swiss business and industrial people in a beautiful old Guild Hall, once the headquarters of the grain merchants association (a super-super union a couple centuries ago), and heard Governor Luther Hodges on his Sell-North-Carolina mission.

And, the buy's a salesman. Town by town, his speeches get better. Long since have been thrown away the canned talks he left Raleigh with. He works in local color. In this place he told about Little Switzerland in our state, personally hiring textile trainees who were natives of Zurich, buying dyestuffs from Switzerland while with Marshall Field Co. the Waldensions in Burke county and their good wine and bread; and of de Graffenreid having a big hand in founding the city of New Bern. To top it off he compared the Swiss guard memorialized in the world famous statue, Lion of Lucerne, the Civil War Carolinians who stood their ground and earned the name Tar Heels. And in between this localized selling, he had facts and figures about our state and its possibilities for the Swiss.

Although the vittles at the Zurich lunch were about same as usual (consomme, roast beef, vegetables, lettuce salad, fruit salad for dessert, coffee) two new things appeared. Water on the tables (even though soda water it was good), and a cow bell. Toastmaster Dr. Heinrich, president of SFUSA (Swiss Friends United States America), used a gigantic cowbell, melodious but commanding in tone, to call the gathering to attention. I reckon at that a cowbell was as appropriate a means an any to call these Carolina guys, who incidentally have coagulated into an organization in which everyone apparently likes everyone else, to order and to listen to whatever might be coming up.

Under heading of Small World Department, I note that at my table (13) was M. Steiner, director of the firm of Bebr. Sulzer SG, who told me next week he'll visit Saco-Lowell company in Sanford, and also other textile people in Greensboro and Charlotte, going thence to Greenville and Spartanburg, S. C. In Sanford his mission is to "coordinate our firm, textile machinery manufacturers, with the products of Saco-Lowell."

The Swiss are methodical excellent business men, early risers and going-to-beders, thoroughly know the score. "It's a pity," a favorite European expression was what they use to designate their sorrow at the short stay of the Carolinians. When Dr. Wagner, having meantime been made an honorary Tar Heel, closed the gathering, he said he hoped the expedition to the Swiss Alps and valleys would prove "fruitful, and that it would prove advantageous to you as well as to us."

The SFUSA is unique in Europe; only club of its kind. Meets every Thursday for lunch, membership over 300, average attendance 100, it hears a speech about USA. Only a Swiss who has lived or traveled in USA is eligible for membership; formed 1922, members from the smallest democracy in the world are proud of their ties with the largest democracy.

Switzerland has only 852 unemployed: that's the exact number of folks looking jobs at the last official count. It was pointed out NC has maybe a hundred thousand looking jobs with the number growing annually as the state switches from agrarian to industrial pursuits.

Important Swiss were at the meeting; a program of personal contacts was set up for most of the 35 who'll remain until early Friday, whence they'll go to Paris to join the Munich group who'll already be there.

Walter Koenig, senator in the National Rat, was another speaker in Zurich who hoped for better Swiss-NC relations.

Random items: Interesting to watch: Watts Hill and Lewis Holding, two of our biggest bankers, dividing up a joint check for 18 francs 47 centimes . . . M. Steiner, asking me how long this group'll be in Paris, allowing, ". . . isn't how many days but how many nights)" . . . One NC group'll be there only one night, and there's an 8 o'clock dinner scheduled that evening . . . Rudolph Hock, Columbus Film of Zurich, told me USA films remain exactly as they are, with American soundtrack, but that European language sub-titles are super-imposed here and there. One of the best language teachers in Europe are US films, he said. . . Everyone I talk to over here is interested in who'll be our next President. I ain't making this news, merely reporting; They respect Nixon and hope he'll make it. They want to know who'll be the Democratic nominee . . . There are more Doctors in Europe! Not just medical and PhD's but many, many industrialists and business men have that title, earned from universities through much the same means as in US. . . Edwin Jones Jr. will have the most complete pictorial of this trip; he bought a German camera in Hamburg and has made hundreds of shots since . . .

Some of the group finally found a use for European bidets: to soak their clothes prior to washing . . . Some of the local postage stamps don't stick too well; if your mail doesn't arrive, this may explain . . . More American cars in Zurich than any city yet visited; no dollar restrictions after World War II . . . Switzerland is just beginning construction of its first super highway, information NC Highway Commission.

Star Says More Money Elsewhere

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

Second of two articles

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Why does a star walk out of a TV series and go into another business?

Wayde Preston, the lead in Warner Bros. "Colt .45" and now an executive of an air charter and sales firm, tells why.

"I made 26 films last year, working 16 to 18 hours a day with personal appearances on the weekend. My net for the year was $7,200. I can make more money elsewhere," Preston says.

"It wasn't just the hard work and low pay. The studio did petty things that added insult to injury. I got tired of being treated like an ingenue."

Preston was not the first to revolt against the Warners TV regime. Tight-chinned Clint Walker vanished from the "Cheyenne" range for nine months last year. He resumed the series with a new deal, but is still discontented.

"I signed with the studio under the impression I was going to do feature pictures," he complains. "I wound up as a TV actor. If I continue in a series, it can do nothing but hurt my career."

Edd Byrnes, the Kookie of "77 Sunset Strip," didn't report for work last week when talks for a new contract broke down. He doesn't feel he can support his booming career on $284 take-home pay.

James Garner is growing more restless in the "Maverick" corral. "I'm not taking any action right now, because it's like beating your head against the wall," he said. "I think I have rights as an actor and as a human being that are not being recognized."

His TV brother, Jack Kelly, is not as militant, but he has his complaints. "We have no opportunity to parlay what popularity we have achieved through the series," he said. "The studio wants half the money we would get for rodeos, etc., so why try?"

Ty Hardin, who replaced Walker and later got his own "Bronco" series, comments: "Like everyone else, I don't feel I'm getting what I deserve. But I'm making more money than I did as an electrical engineer."

Efrem Zimbalist and Roger Smith, the crime-hunting sidekicks of "77 Sunset Strip," both declare they are very happy with their present setups.

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., (AP) — Former screen actress Mary Pickford fell in her home Monday and fractured a collarbone. She is being treated at her home.

A member of her household staff said she caught her heel in a thick rug in a dressing room and fell against the corner of a table. Her physician said Miss Pickford's condition is good. She is 66.

EC Prof Attends Meeting Series

Dr. Elmer R. Browning, director of the department of business education at East Carolina College, will attend during this month and in early December a series of professional meetings in Florida, Virginia, and North Carolina which are directed toward the improvement of instruction in business.

Dr. Browning will participate Nov. 19-21 at Jacksonville, Florida, in sessions of the Southern Conference of Deans and Directors of Schools of Business, a regional organization concerned with setting and maintaining standards in business instruction in colleges and universities in the South. Meeting also on the same dates in Jacksonville will be the Southern Economic Association and the Southern Business Law Association.

Speaking on the topic "Maintaining the Right Perspective for Business Education," Dr. Browning will address the Colleges and Universities Division of the Southern Business Education Association at a conference November 26-28 at Virginia Beach, Va. The association includes in its membership teachers in high schools, business schools, and colleges in the southeastern part of the nation.

Seniors in the Whiteville, N.C., High School, will hear Dr. Browning speak on opportunities open to the student trained in business at Career Day at the school December 4.

WSCS Announces Start Of Greeting Card Sale

The sale of United Nations Children's Fund Greeting Cards in Greenville was announced today by Mrs. F. P. Brooks, chairman of this project for WSCS.

"We are proud to support this project of the world's greatest international organization entirely devoted to the welfare of children," she said. "UNICEF Cards do more than convey wishes of happiness — they actually bring happiness, in the form of a better chance for survival, to children in more than 100 countries and territories."

"The proceeds from a single box of ten cards priced at $1.25 can provide 45 needy children with a glass of milk every day for a week," Mrs. Brooks added. "Six children suffering from leprosy can be successfully treated with the proceeds from 100 cards."

Every year world famous artists donate their works to be reproduced as UNICEF Greeting Cards. This year they include Joan Miro, to whom President Eisenhower recently presented the Guggenheim International Art Award for 1958.

"His card, 'Children and Birds,' is typical of his own world of poetry and magic," Mrs. Brooks said. "Brilliant reds, yellows, greens and blues sharpened by bold black heighten the appeal of the fanciful symbols."

Other cards, especially those by Bettina and Doris Lee, convey the peace and universality of Christmas in delicate, hushed winter scenes. This year's UNICEF artists also include Dong Kingman, Joszef Domjan and Kay Christensen.

Last year five and a half million UNICEF cards were sold in the U.S., and about as many in 68 other countries and territories.

UNICEF Greeting Cards can be seen and purchased at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church Harvest Sale Friday, November 20.

Celebrate Homecoming At Belvoir-Falkland

By NADINE GARRIS

Friday night was the occasion of the annual homecoming at Belvoir-Falkland High School. Crowning of the queen was one of the main attractions of the evening. Miss Barbara Parker, a senior, was selected to reign as this year's queen, and was crowned by her immediate predecessor, Miss Annie Mae Everette. She was presented a dozen American Beauty Roses, and reigned over the annual homecoming dance. A capacity crowd filled the gym for the colorful ballroom figures performed by the 16 sponsors and their escorts.

They are as follows: Frances Edwards, sponsored by the Glee Club, was escorted by Clayton Mayo; Marie Harrell, sponsored by the Beta Club, was escorted by Cobby Deans; Linda Clark, sponsored by the Student Council, was escorted by Willie Wallace; Nadine Garris, sponsored by the N. F. L., was escorted by Marion Cobb; Sybil Manning, sponsored by the Future Teachers, was escorted by Butch Baker; Carol Corbitt, sponsored by the F. H. A., was escorted by Bennie Tripp; Barbara Parker, sponsored by the F. F. A., was escorted by Alvin Peaden; Linda Smith, sponsored by the Senior class, was escorted by Jerry Little; Shirley Spain, sponsored by the Junior class, was escorted by Joe Jenkins; Frances Stepps, sponsored by 10A, was escorted by Jake Garris; Anna Sue McLawhorn, sponsored by 10B, was escorted by John Linton; Dorothy McKeel, escorted by Calvin Britt, was sponsored by 9A; Beverly Gaynor, sponsored by 9B, was escorted by Larry Cobb; Brenda Windham, sponsored by the Cheerleaders, was escorted by Roadrick Anderson; Joan Windham, sponsored by the Monogram Club, was escorted by Chuck Mangeapane; Mary Grace Eakes, sponsored by the Paper Staff, was escorted by Roy Jones.

Friday night will be the occasion of our fourth ball game of the season. The game will be with Bethel and will be played here at Belvoir. The Cheerleaders are doing an excellent job of boosting their team forward. Linda Smith and Brenda Windham are this year's chief cheerleaders. Others on the squad are Mary Grace Eakes, Linda Clark, Joan Windham, Harriet Turner, Linda Phillips, and Carol Norville.

We have just obtained a new scoreboard and clock and it has been installed. Proceeds from season tickets to home basketball games helped us to obtain this clock. We have a new gym floor and it has been painted to match our basketball suits.

The first year typing class is progressing at a rapid rate. Some are already typing as many as 40 words a minute and that is considered very well for this period of time. Robert Whiting of E.C.C. is their teacher for this quarter. Mrs. Dorothy Hardy is the regular teacher.

The P. T. A. Supper which was also included in Friday's events was a big success. Proceeds from the supper will go toward the purchase of a new piano for the school. A large number of people enjoyed the charcoaled chicken that Mr. James and some of the Agriculture boys grilled outside during the afternoon.

Overdose Of TNT Showers Homes

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Two men conceded they probably used more dynamite than necessary to blow out a tree stump.

Deputies said William D. Smith and James Horton used 15 sticks. The resulting blast shook a number of homes and showered a two-block area with debris. No one was hurt.

Huskies Can Be Cinch For Rose Bowl Saturday

By HARRY JUIPTER

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — If Washington's Huskies beat their traditional rivals, Washington State, this Saturday, the Huskies are a cinch for the Rose Bowl.

But if the Cougars upset Washington — and Oregon knocks off Oregon State—and UCLA topples unbeaten Southern California — the Rose Bowl selection committee will have one of its biggest headaches ever in picking the 1960 Pacific Coast representative.

The Far West entry will be selected by a committee of nine athletic directors of the schools that made up the old Pacific Coast Conference.

The West Coast representative doesn't have to be the club with the most victories. The by-laws of the old PCC stress that it should be the most representative team.

Greg Englehard, California's athletic director, chairman of this year's selection committee said, "Washington seems to have the inside track right now but frankly anything could happen by Saturday night. We won't know who's going to play at Pasadena until all nine votes are in. The voting deadline is noon Monday."

Other voters are the athletic directors of Stanford, Southern Cal, UCLA, Washington, Washington State, Oregon, Oregon State and Idaho.

Unbeaten USC is ineligible because of an NCAA ban, for recruiting violations that won't be lifted until after New Year's Day. Cal, last year's Rose Bowl host, is ineligible to repeat this year. Besides, the Bears have lost eight in a row. Idaho has lost nine straight.

The 1959 scores that count, Englehard said, are stricly those of each of the former PCC members against other former PCC members.

In the games that count for bowl eligibility Washington has a 6-1 record; Oregon, credited with only one of its two victories over Washington State, is 4-1; UCLA is 2-1.

Since Washington has beaten both Oregon and UCLA, a win Saturday will virtually guarantee the Huskies a trip to Pasadena.

But, if Washington State knocks over the Huskies at Seattle and Oregon or UCLA or both win, why, folks, we've got troubles.

That would riase Oregon's winning percentages in the games that count most to a figure higher than Washington's and would hike UCLA to the same percentage as the Huskies.

If Washington wins, the answer is clear. If the Huskies lose, anything could happen.

Clemson Works On Pass Defense To Stop Snead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

This week mighty Clemson has worked on pass defense. Coach Frank Howard plans to concentrate again today on that phase of the football game.

The cause for concern in the Tiger camp is a lanky quarterback nicknamed the "slinger" — Wake Forest's Norman Snead, who's leading the Atlantic Coast Conference in:

1, Total offense—926 yards.
2, Passing yardage—920.
3, Pass completions—61.
4, Touchdown passes—7.

Bob Jones, Clemson assistant coach who scouted Wake Forest, warned the Tigers to be on the lookout for passes anytime, from anywhere, to anyone when they meet Wake Forest Saturday in Clemson's "Death Valley" with the ACC title at stake.

With a buildup like that from the Clemson coaches whose teams down through the years have been ample evidence that they know their football, you'd think that Wake Forest's Coach Paul Amen would be pretty happy about the situation.

The fact is, however, that Amen, himself, is doing a bit of worrying about passing. Clemson's.

Amen's scout, Asst. Coach Elmer Barbour, reports that Clemson quarterbacks Harvey White and Lowndes Shingler are pretty capable in the football throwing department themselves.

"White is probably more consistently dangerous," says Barbour. "He has a phenomenal passing record of not having but one of his last 81 passes intercepted."

White has a better completion percentage than Snead. The Clemson quarterback has connected on 39 of 70 attempts for a 56 per cent average, while Snead has hit on 61 of 146 for 42 per cent.

Clemson, with a 5-1 ACC record, already has won a share of the conference championship. A victory over Wake Forest, 3-2, would give the Tigers sole ownership of the title. A Wake Forest victory would give the Deacons, South Carolina and North Carolina a chance to share the championship.

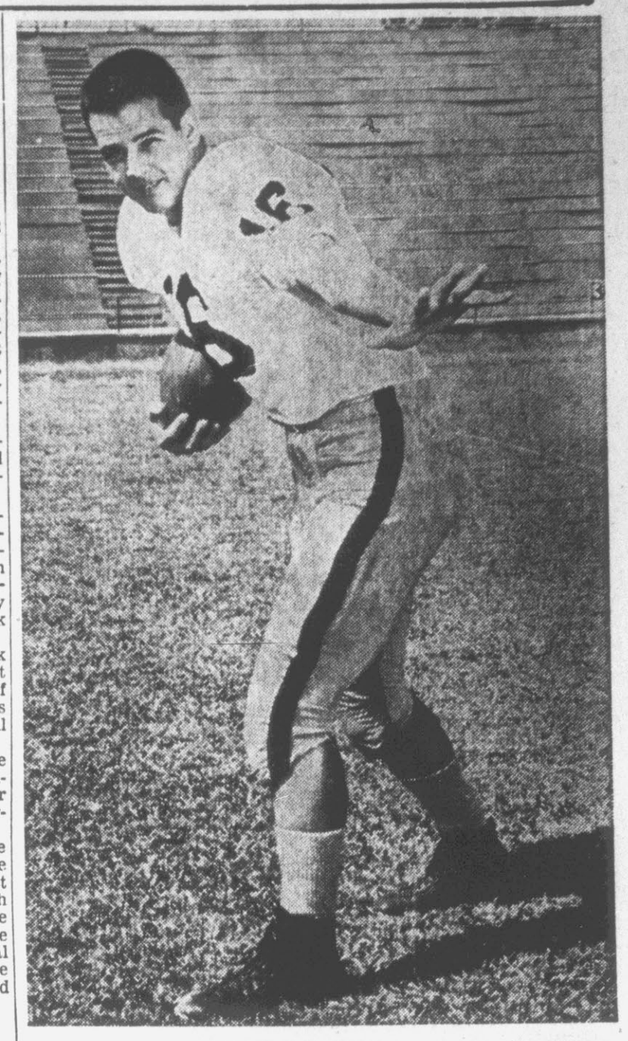
"We feel that Clemson is within our range," says Amen, "and we know that they have a powerful team."

North Carolina State concentrated on defense and South Carolina emphasized offense and defense almost equally Tuesday in preparing for their game Saturday at Columbia. State tackle Tiny Reynolds missed the Wolfpack practice because of a virus.

At South Carolina, tackle Kirk Phares was moved up to the first unit because, in the words of Coach Warren Giese, he "has been playing exceptionally well and deserved a promotion."

North Carolina and Duke have open dates this weekend, but continued preparations for their Thanksgiving Day game at Durham.

Virginia, preparing for its game with Maryland, lost sophomore halfback Ted Denby, a regular at the start of the season. Coach Dick Voris said, "Denby told me he is forced to resign from the university because of financial difficulties." The game will close the season for both Virginia and Maryland.



MUST STOP——Quarterback Gary Whitlock will be the man that ECC linemen will be seeking to stop Saturday night when the Bucs close out their season against Wofford. Whitlock was South Carolina's top rusher last season as a halfback.

Seventh Spot Cats Battle To Escape Cellar

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

If Davidson's Wildcats hope to escape the Southern Conference football basement, they'll have to shore up their ground defenses before Friday night's engagement with Furman's Purple Hurricane.

The two teams are almost even in most respects, but statistics show the Hurricane ranks fourth in the league in rushing offense with a 172-yard average per game —and the Wildcats are eighth on defense with a yield of 192 yards per contest.

Despite the deficit on the ground, Davidson ranks third in the circuit on total defense with a per-game yield of 259.9 yards per game, thanks to the stingiest air defense which has given up just a 67.9-yard average.

Furman ranks tops on total defense with a 234.6-yard yield in spite of the whopping 440 yards Richmond gained last Saturday in a 48-14 victory. The Hurricane is tops in rushing defense (135.4) and third in pass defense (99.3)—and Davidson is apt to test the latter.

With Charlie Benson doing most of the flinging, the Wildcats rank second in the league on pass offense with a 131.5-yard average. Furman, once a feared aerial team, is eighth with a 91.5-yard average. The teams are almost even in total offense, Furman with 263.5 and Davidson with 251.3.

Davidson stands 0-4 in league play and must win or tie to escape a cellar tie with George Washington, through for the season at 0-5. Furman is 2-2 in conference competition and still has a chance for a fifth-place finish if William and Mary were to upset Richmond (3-3-1) on Thanksgiving Day.

The weekend's only other action for conference teams is another family scrap with third-place The Citadel (4-1) at fourth-place West Virginia (2-1).

Coach Eddie Teague of The Citadel said "I get the feeling these boys don't want to end the season" after the Bulldogs went through a hard - hitting practice. The Citadel will go against the Mountaineers without senior end Jack Griffin, who suffered a torn knee cartilage Monday.

CHAPEL HILL — Phil Coleman of Greenville placed seventh in the high school cross-country held yesterday in Chapel Hill. Coleman ran the 2.2 miles in 11:36.

Leo Starling, also of Greenville, finished 33rd out of a field of 137 high school boys throughout North Carolina. Tom Stockston was the winner with a time of 11:26.

Myers Park of Charlotte was the team champion. Greenville did not qualify for team honors. A team had to field five men to qualify and only Coleman and Starling represented Rose High.

A meeting of all teams interested in playing in the Recreational Department Basketball League was held last Thursday evening, November 12th.

It was decided at that time that the gym at the Junior High would be available for all teams on the following dates: November 16, 19, 23, and 24.

Another meeting will be held at the Elm Street Park Building on Thursday night of this week at 7:30. Arrangements as to the number of teams will be decided. All players or teams that desire to play in this league are asked to be present for the meeting.

British Champ Wants Bout With World Champion

By JOHN FARROW
Associated Press Sports Writer

LONDON (AP)—Henry Cooper, British and Empire heavyweight champion, today announced he has one fighter in mind for his next bout — world champion Ingemar Johansson of Sweden.

Cooper's confidence stems from his successful defense of the British title against challenger Joe Erskine Tuesday night.

The fight ended after 2:55 of the 12th round with Erskine sprawled across the ropes.

Erskine had been down for two counts of seven a few minutes earlier. Then Cooper waded in and knocked Erskine unconscious with a fusillade of killer punches.

Referee Eugene Henderson stopped the fight—Though Erskine was out for a good 30 seconds. Cooper's win went into the record books as a technical knock-out.

"Now the fighter I want to meet is Ingemar Johansson," the 25-year-old Cooper said.

"I think I can defeat Johansson and win the title for Britain."

Cooper currently is rated fifth challenger for Johansson's world title. Erskine had been No. 7 on the list.

Erskine, the 25-year-old former British champion who outpointed American Willie Pastrano, said: "Cooper is a good puncher. There's no mistake about that."

The sell-out crowd of 18,000 at London's Earl's Court Stadium saw a fight packed with punching and good boxing.

In the first round Erskine stumbled to the canvas for a count of one. Just as he rose. Cooper threw a long left. Erskine went down for a count of three. The crowd roared for a foul punch.

But Erskine was on his feet when the punch landed and it counted as a fair one. Erskine got half up, then dropped to his knees for another count of one.

In the fifth Cooper threw a punch after the bell.

Referee Henderson allowed the fight to go on.

"That punch was on its way when the bell sounded and I could not hold back," Cooper said. "I told Erskine I was sorry about it."

Walstonburg Ekes Two Point Win

BELVOIR — Jerry Smith hit a field goal in the final 20 seconds to send Walstonburg home with a spine-tingling 55-53 victory over Belvoir-Falkland last night. The B-F girls won their third of the season in the opener, 49-46.

The "luckless' Eagles trailed most of the first half but a scoring spurt in the third period soared them into a short-lived lead, 41-35. The visitors came back with their own scoring spree in the final period, registering 20 points.

Harold Harris and Willie Wallace paced a well-balanced B_F scoring attack with ten points each. Russell Harris dumped in nine points. Smith of Walstonburg drew scoring honors for the night with an 18 point effort.

The Belvoir-Falkland girls trailed for one period but awoke and stalked to their third victory without defeat. The Eagles had constant trouble from their foes and never had much breathing room.

Phyllis Nichols led the winners with 29 points and freshman Mary Polland came up with 14. Barbara Parker and Betty Harrell led the defense which held Walstonburg to only three points in the third period.

Belvoir-Falkland will be back in conference activity Friday night, playing host to Bethel.

East Carolina Freshmen Win Opener, 86-81

LOUISBURG — East Carolina's freshmen displayed outstanding speed and a sharp shooting eye last night in disposing of Louisburg Junior College, 86-81. It was the opener for both clubs.

Coach Wendell Carr's young club fought to a 43-38 lead by intermission and held their five point margin most of the second half to start their season on a winning note.

Big Fred Fowler, 6-8 freshman center, poured in 20 points and dominated the backboards to pace the win. Owen Bradshaw netted 18 points.

Little Sherwood Aycock proved to be one of the big men in the decision. The flashy guard hit 14 points but drew praise from the ECC coaching staff for his steady floor play.

The "Baby Bucs" will meet Chowan Junoir College at Chowan on December 3.

Unitas Is Close To New Record

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Johnny Unitas, Baltimore's star quarterback, is close to breaking a National Football League record for the most touchdown passes in one season.

He's only third among leading passers, league statistics released today show, but he's thrown 22 for touchdowns, the last three in the Colts' 28-24 victory over Green Bay Sunday.

That's only six short of the record set by Chicago's Sid Luckman in 1943. Unitas has four games to go.

Unitas also leads the league in total yards gained passing. He has 2,133 compared with the 1,622 of Norm Van Brocklin of Philadelphia.

Frank Rice of Los Angeles, who hadn't attempted enough passes last week to qualify for passing honors, jumped into first place this week with 68 attempts (one more than needed to qualify), 36 completions, 596 yards gained and the all-important average gain of 8.76.

Ralph Guglielmi of Washington was second with 67 attempts, 30 completions, 562 yards and an 8.39 average. Unitas, with 251 attempts and 135 completions, has an 8.17 average.

Among ground gainers, Cleveland's Jimmy Brown leads with 199 attempts, 902 yards gained and a 4.5 average. J. D. Smith Jr., San Francisco, continued in second place with 154 attempts, 756 yards and a 4.9 average. Los Angeles' Ollie Matson held third place with 741 yards on 136 carries for a 5.4 average.

Ray Berry of Baltimore held first place in pass receiving with 48 catches for 679 yards gained. There was a three-way tie for second place, Lennie Moore and Jim Mutscheller of Baltimore, and Billy Wilson of San Francisco, each with 33.

Rookies Expected For Next Fall

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Lamar Hunt, founder of the American Football League, says the teams will be mostly rookies next fall. But, with appeals of pay, geography and a better chance to play, he hopes his club at least will field the top rookies.

Hunt told a news conference Tuesday the new league has three groups studying available talent and the information will be pooled. He acknowledged that most of the players drafted by the American Football League at its draft Nov. 23 will also be drafted by the National Football League.

But, as far as his Dallas Texans are concerned, anyway, Hunt sees pretty good prospects.

"There are lots of Southwest Conference players in the National Football League now," he said. "We think many of this year's crop would like to stay in this area, where they live and probably will live when their playing days are over.

"We will have to bid against the National Football League on the basis of pay, also. But we've got another strong point. Only a few rookies make the team each year in the National League."

Several Records Set In Southern

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — VMI end Dick Evans set one Southern Conference season offense record during the weekend and George Washington quarterback Ed Hino fell short in his bid for another.

Evans, 6-2, 185 - pound senior, caught five passes for 109 yards Saturday against The Citadel to increase his yardage to a record 622. The old mark of 568 was set last year by Furman's Ray Siminski.

Going into his final game Saturday against Navy, Hino had passed for 897 yards and needed only 117 more to eclipse the record, but all he could get against the Middies was an even 100.

Hino did wind up with one passing record, however, surpassing the old mark of 156 for most passes attempted by throwing 185 times.

Latest individual statistics show VMI quarterback Howard Dyer still setting the pace in total offense with 984 yards. Virginia Tech's Alger Pugh leads in rushing with 554 yards.

Davidson's Danny House caught only two passes Saturday, but continues with a commanding lead in the receiving department with 41 catches.

Among the leaders in total offense is Jerry Nettles of The Citadel with 647 yards in nine games for fifth place. Furman's George Angelica is fifth in rushing, piling up 369 yards in eight games.

Charlie Benson of Davidson is fourth in passing, completing 49 of 108 for 678 yards. Fifth is Nettles, who has hit on 45 of 89 for 645 yards.

The Citadel's Paul Maguire is third in pass receptions, having caught 30 for 467 yards on eight TDs.

Jerry Sheffield of Davidson leads in punting, kicking at an average of 42.5 yards-per-boot. He is followed by Maguire, second with 42.1, and Furman's Hicky Horton with a 39.3, good for fourth place.

Charlotte In Fight For Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Charlotte remained in a neck-and-neck fight with Washington for the lead of the Eastern Hockey League's Southern Division Tuesday night with a 4-2 victory over Johnstown. However, Washington kept its slim lead by edging New Haven 3-2.

The Greensboro Generals, idle Tuesday night, see action tonight against New Haven, while Charlotte takes a rest. Charlotte travels to Greensboro Thursday night.

Terp Star Is Top Sophomore

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sophomore end Gary Collins was a little more than Clemson had reckoned for Saturday as Maryland stunned the Tigers 28-25. Collins caught three passes for 80 yards and two touchdowns as the Terps pulled a major upset before 26,000 homecoming day spectators in Clemson's formidable "Death Valley."

For this performance Collins was named The Associated Press' Atlantic Coast Conference sophomore of the week.

Collins made a brilliant grab for his first score, catching the ball on the 10 with three Clemson defenders surrounding him. The pass covered 49 yards.

Collins tallied the winning touchdown with 3:02 left in the game after Clemson had taken a 25-21 lead. From the 17, Collins cut in front of one Clemson defender, leaped and caught the ball in the end zone. He also caught an 18-yard toss during the scoring drive.

Collins, 6-2, 200-pounder, leads the Terp receivers with 10 catches for 245 yards and three touchdowns.

He doubles for Maryland as a punter. Saturday he booted three times for a 43-3 average. For the season he has kicked 26 times for an average of 40.4 yards.

U.S. Youngster At Vienna School

By PETER HOFFER

VIENNA, Nov. 7 (AP)—The youngest student ever admitted to the famed Vienna Academy of Music is a 9-year-old American girl with blonde curls, a ready smile, and remarkable mastery of the keyboard.

Giorgiana Bender, daughter of a retired United States Air Force officer, has been the "Wunderkin" (child wonder) of the academy since she was accepted for the six-year course of piano studies in the spring of 1958.

Georgy, as she is called by her parents, was born at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base in Ohio when he father, Lt. Col. George F. Benden was stationed there. The family moved to Riederau in upper Bavia when Bender retired from the Air Force.

"Georgy loved to play the piano from the very start," says the child's mother. "She would pick out little tunes on the keyboard and finally I decided to give her lessons, when she was only four." The mother is an amateur pianist.

Says Georgy, showing her talented hands:

"I always liked to play the piano, ever since I can remember. When other girls were outside, I liked to practice. In the beginning, when I could not read notes, I played from memory, but now I can play nearly any classic piece of music if it is within the reach of my hands."

If life is tough for a "Wunderkind," Giorgiana does not show it. She looks happy. After lessons and four to five hours of daily practicing, she has little time for play. But she loves her dolls and teddy bears of which she has a large family, all lovingly cared for.

Among the first to recognize her astonishing musical talent was German composer and professor Richard Trunk. He advised the Benders to let little Giorgiana have regular instruction from a music teacher and at the age of 5 she entered her first public piano competition at Munich, emerging first in her age group.

Georgy, only 4-ft.-2, cannot reach the piano pedals and has a special pedal attachment so that she can play.

Before moving to Vienna Georgy won recognition in West Germany as a "Wunderkind," giving a 1½ hour recital from memory playing Beethoven, Schubert, Mozart and Bach, plus a series of pieces "for small hands" specially written for her by composer Trunk.

Georgy's call to Vienna came when one of the leading piano professors at the Academy heard her play and advised the Benders to bring their child here.

The Benders live near the academy and daily, accompanied by her mother, Georgy walks to the grey-walled building where the next youngest student is aged 14 and students are generally admitted at 16.

Georgy takes piano lessons, studies music theory, harmony and instrumentation in addition to the German language. In all subjects she has excellent grades.

"Georgy," says her mother, "finds it hard to associate with girls of her age and even older girls. She is so very different, even though she does not actually feel it. Her life is dedicated to the piano and she loves every minute of it.

"Each time when we go home after a concert I ask my little girl 'do you still want to become a pianist? You heard how hard it is.' 'Of course I do,' Giorgiana always replies," Mrs. Bender says.

More For Hairdos Than For Cancer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The United States is trying to fight cancer "with less than half of what we spend annually on permanent waves," says Sen. Richard L. Neuberger (D-Ore.).

Neuberger, himself a former cancer patient, was honored Tuesday by the City of Hope, a national organization devoted to medical research.

He was named the 1960 "Man of Hope" for his efforts in the legislative field.

Neuberger pleaded for greater federal spending on cancer research.

About 150 million dollars a year is going into the search for a cancer cure now, he said, compared with nine billion spent by Americans annually on liquor.

Gas Warfare Said 'Most Humane'

EDGEWOOD, Md. (AP) — Lt. Gen. Arthur G. Trudeau, the Army's research and development chief, says he would "rather be gassed than shot" if he had to be a car casualty.

Trudeau defended gas as "the most humane system of warfare now in existence."

"We don't shoot condemned criminals, we use the most humane means—gas. Yet when we discuss gas as a weapon of war, there are those who throw up their hands in horror," he said.

Trudeau made his comments Tuesday in an interview with a Baltimore Sun reporter at the Army Chemical Center.

Not Interested In '60 Nomination

POCATELLO, Idaho (AP)—Sen. Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn) says he isn't interested in the vice presidential spot on the 1960 Democratic ticket.

He spoke at Democratic meetings here and at Idaho Falls Tuesday. In a news conference at Idaho Falls, Humphrey was asked if he would seek the vice presidential nomination next year.

"If I proceed as contemplated, I'll seek the presidential nomination. If not, only the Senate," Humphrey replied.

The Minnesota Democrat said he was encouraged during visits to 25 states in his campaign. He said he hopes to visit 10 more states by Christmas.

Humphrey planned leave here by plane for a speaking engagement tonight at Topeka, Kan.

May Be Blind Before Xmas; Has Tree Early

By GEORGE ESPER

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Jackie Foster is celebrating Christmas today.

There's a big tree shining with multi-colored lights and tinsel in the Foster household.

Under it are many gifts for Jackie, including the toy rifle he always wanted.

Jackie couldn't wait until December 25 because he probably will be blind by then. His parents wanted him to see one more Christmas.

The seven-year-old boy will enter Wills Eye Hospital Wednesday to await a tragic fate that only a miracle could preclude. Jackie is a victim of cancer.

When he was 13 months old his left eye was removed because of a malignant retino blastoma tumor inside it.

Recently the disease struck Jackie in the right eye. Doctors say the same type of tumor appeared, but they want to be sure. They'll conduct tests before operating.

The odds are against Jackie. Surgery to remove the eye appears almost certain. An extension of the tumor could be fatal.

Jackie knows all this.

"But I ain't scared," he said today. "I wanted to be a doctor. But now I don't know what. Maybe I'll play the piano or an electric guitar. His name's Roy."

Despite his plight, Jackie has consoled his mother, Selma, 28.

"If it weren't for Jackie," she said, "I don't think I could take it. If I start crying and he sees me, he starts crying. There's nothing you can do except try to be cheerful."

Minister, Wife Appeal Thurs.

YANCEYVILLE, N.C. (AP)—A Baptist minister and his wife, convicted of complicity in a bizarre bedroom plot to fleece another preacher, will appeal Thursday to Caswell Superior Court.

The Rev. J. T. Swinson, 51, received a 2-year sentence last week in Recorder's Court for blackmail, conspiracy and larceny. He also faces charges of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill.

Mrs. Swinson, 38, was convicted in Recorder's Court of aiding and abetting in blackmail, conspiracy and larceny. Her 18-month sentence was suspended.

The Rev. G. A. Hamby, 59, another Baptist minister, testified during the Recorder's Court trial Mrs. Swinson enticed him into a nude bedroom scene while he was visiting the Swinsons.

He said the Rev. Mr. Swinson rushed into the room, photographed the scene, then beat him severely with a stick.

The Rev. Mr. Hamby further testified he wrote a check for $650 for the Swinsons after Mrs. Swinson kept saying "give him something" during the beating. He said his wallet and watch were taken during the attack.

'Copter Missiles Slated For Test

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — A helicopter armed with six missiles capable of destroying tanks will be tested by the Army Missile Agency in Alabama, the Bell Helicopter Corp. said Tuesday.

The helicopter carries six SS-II missiles made by Nord Aviation of France. The missiles can carry anti-tank, anti-personnel, or smoke warheads, the company said. Maximum practical range of the missiles is 3,500 yards.

The 62-pound missiles were developed under an Army contract.

NURSERY SCHOOL: A Family Project

Mothers of students pitch in to keep school spic and span. Harriet Hoskinson dusts chairs and tables, Joan Travell cleans mural above window, Jessie Flouton cleans outside windows while Mary Lou Stevens, right, sprays inside windows.

Typical of hundreds of its type across the land, the Wilton Co-operative Nursery School in Connecticut is an enterprise that dedicates parents to the operation of the school during the two-year tenure of their offspring.

To continue the goal of the school, to make it an ideal place for their children at a minimum of cost, fathers and mothers do cleaning chores, repair toys, burn leaves, paint, build, and keep the outdoor equipment in safe shape.

Mothers pool their cars for transporting the children to the school, and meet frequently to discuss the operation of the school. They also plan movie matinees and live shows for youngsters as part of the school's fund raising program.

There are three teachers and one mother in daily attendance supervising the 32 children, 3 and 4-year olds. The children play indoors and outdoors, paint, draw, dance, recite, hear stories and music, and perform in several shows for parents during the year. There is a large porch with a sandbox on the rambling dwelling, and there is an annual trip for the children to a zoo or train ride.

FLOOR SHOW. It's rhythm time and the lollipop crowd gets special treat because mother in attendance is a professional dance teacher. Teachers watch performance which preceded the rest period, music and story telling sessions.

Fathers are on the job bright and early. Robin Disston, left, and Morris Golub repair sand box. Other Dads fixed windows, burned leaves, raked gravel.

Playing mama at home, Delly Eustis stops ironing to make phone call in housekeeping corner. Brooke Erickson sits in doll carriage watching.

Play such as this helps develop pulling and climbing muscles in well-equipped playground. Nursery school in back has sandbox on porch, wood blocks for building, push-pull toys for outdoor use.

Down on her knees goes Joan Travell at scrubbing session. Mothers take turns and alternate chores which range from painting school to washing windows.

Critic Tommy Zacharias pauses to study Lee Glaws' painting. Judging by their expressions, they're not yet quite sure what it represents.

Harriot Voorhis, director of school, talks to child and mother who are applying for membership in the school.

Talented Duo Opens This Week For Pioneer Players

When the curtain goes up on the Pioneer Players' production of "Janus" this week, two talented and experienced performers will be making their initial appearances before a Greenville audience. Stepping out of their real-life roles of husband and wife, Jim and Cathy Gillikin will be seen as Denny Rousseau, the quiet New

CATHY GILLIKIN

England French teacher and half of the writing team of Janus, and Miss Addy, the money-loving writers' agent whose philosophy of life is something to behold.

Cathy began her theatrical career in her hometown of San Francisco, where she studied with the San Francisco Ballet School and Theatre Arts, and at the Furrier Modeling School, she worked as one of their top high-fashioned models. When her family moved to Kansas City, she attended Sophie Newcomb's College in New Orleans, but with theatre in her blood she returned to Pasadena and the Pasadena Playhouse. At the Playhouse she appeared in "Blithe Spirit", "Trail of Euripides", "Richard III", "Blood Wedding", and played the title role in 'Medea". While at Pasadena she appeared in several RKO Studios films.

A New York scout picked her up to play the lead in "Sable Brush", a new play which was being tried out at the Hill-Top Playhouse in Baltimore, Maryland. After the run of the play, Cathy made her residence in New York City, where she began her studies at Stella Adlers School of the Theatre. It was while she was at Miss Adler's that she met Jim for the first time.

Jim, from Atlantic, N. C., attended Chowan College and the University of North Carolina. At both schools he was active in all phases of drama and radio, but his main interest was on the dance, and he concentrated his efforts in that direction. At UNC he appeared in "Kiss Me, Kate" and "Dark of the Moon", and had one of his original plays, "The Candy Striped Umbrella," produced by the Carolina Playmakers.

During the Korean War, Jim served on a special assignment with the Air Force in France, where he organized and directed new theatres throughout the command. After his tour of service duty he went to New York and studied with the June Taylor School of Dance, Emile Faustus Dance Studios, and the Pasadena Playhouse Associates of New York. He worked with the Shell Playhouse and appeared as Leandre in the 4th Street Playhouse production of Moliere's "The Doctor in Spite of Himself". At the Rye Music Theatre in Rye, N. Y., he woked in twelve musicals in one sumer, including such favoites as "Show Boat", "The Desert Song," "Damn Yankees", Oklahoma", "Kiss Me, Kate" and "Carousel". Local theatre patrons will remember him as the coreographer and lead dancer in last year's production of "Kiss Me, Kate" on the East Carolina College Campus.

Appearing with the Gillikins in "Janus" are Lois Garren as Jess, Bob Whiting as Mr. Harper, and Claude Garren as Gil. The production will be presented at the Eppes High School on Thursday night, November 19, and at McGinnis Auditorium on the ECC campus on Friday and Saturday nights, November 20 and 21. Curtain time for all productions will be 8 p.m.

Flynn's Spouse Opens New Show

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Patrice Wymore opened in a revue tvpe musical comedy Tuesday for her first public appearance since her husband, actor Errol Flynn, died last month.

She appeared in a cast featuring Dagmar, Marilyn Maxwell and Julie Wilson.

"I'm working because Errol would have wanted me to," she said. "He took great pride in my accomplishments and he would have wanted me to work. My only regret is that he is not here sitting ringside."

A packed house watched the performance at a hotel.

Miss Wymore said she plans to establish a home on the Jamaica plantation she and Flynn bought some years ago.

State Denies Plea, Trial Set Today

NEWTON, N.C. (AP) — Judge Zeb V. Nettles has denied the state's request for a delay and ordered the case of Julius W. Abernethy Sr. to trial today.

Abernethy, a millionaire industrialist, is accused of conspiring to compound a felony. The charge stems from the disappearance and return, of $204,000 worth of negotiable bonds he owned.

Accused with Abernethy were S. W. Moose, a lawyer, and Luther Pitts, an automobile dealer. Pitts was indicted for grand larceny, as well as conspiracy.

Solicitor B. T. Falls argued that since Abernethy was indicted only Monday, the state had not fully prepared its case. But when defense lawyer Tom Wilson said he was prepared for trial, Judge Nettles denied the state motion for a delay.

Abernethy reported the bonds missing from his safety deposit box in the Northwestern Bank here last Jan. 27. He recovered the bonds in May and in August told police he had paid $10,000 for the return of the bonds.

Denmark has six airports served by major airlines.

Injections Cause Dwarfs To Grow

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP) — Pencil marks on a kitchen wall that measure a little boy's growth bring more than the usual smile to Dr. Philip H. Henneman of the Seton Hall University College of Medicine.

Dr. Henneman has made it possible for a few dwarfed youngsters to gain an inch or two in height through administration of shots gleaned from the pituitary gland. He is engaged in research here, hoping to expand the program.

Middle Markets Wind Up Season

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The North Carolina Middle Belt ended its 1959 flue-cured tobacco selling season Tuesday. Season prices, through the day preceding the closing, averaged $56.47 a hundred pounds.

Prices held steady the final day on the two Middle Belt markets that were open—Oxford and Warrenton — but the North Carolina-Virginia Old Belt markets reported declining prices.

The Federal-State Market News Service said the Middle Belt, through Monday, sold 135,935,862 pounds of tobacco for an average hundredweight price of $56.47. The Flue-Cured Stabilization Corp. received 5.3 per cent of the season's sales under the price support program.

The Old Belt markets reported a few leaf grades showed gains Tuesday, but most declined $1 to $3 a 100. Volume was light and quality lower.

The market news service said that Monday's Old Belt sales amounted to 4,749.125 pounds averaging $52.67, up $1.43 from Friday, bringing the season's auctions to 228,808,245 pounds averaging $53.80. The Stabilization Corp. has received 10.3 per cent of the sales.

Students Say Reds Not Afraid Of US

DURHAM (AP) — A group of Russian students say their country is not complacent because of its lead in the space battle, but "we do not fear the potential of the United States in this field."

Vladimir Shundeyev, one of 12 Soviets visiting the Durham area, made the statement Tuesday at a news conference. He added jokingly, "We feel there is room on the moon for both."

Another Russian said the final victory in the economic race between the United States and the USSR would go to communism.

The Russians, who have been at Duke University since Friday, leave Thursday morning. Today they were to visit North Carolina College, a state-supported institution for Negroes, here, and attend a meeting with officials of the Textile Workers Union of America.

REPENTS

All $1,600 was returned by messenger boy to the Kit Carson Casino Tuesday—anonymously.

4 Negroes Face Threat Charges

AHOSKIE, N.C. (AP) — Four Negroes, charged with threatening a young white girl, face trial next Tuesday in Hertford Recorder's Court at Winton.

The girl, Jean Carroll Martin, 14-year - old Ahoskie grammar school student, testified at a hearing Tuesday night that the boys followed her Saturday night and one shouted, "There's a damn white female. Let's get her."

The four, Roosevelt Slaughter, 22; Thomas Cobb, 22; Richard Hardy, 23, and Johnnie Ray Slaughter, 24, all of Ahoskie, were free on $100 bond. They were charged with assault on a female.

Miss Martin, a chunky blonde, identified Roosevelt Slaughter as the one who spoke. She said the others laughed.

The girl testified before Justice of the Peace J St.anley Vinson that she ran to the police station after the incident which occurred on Ahoskie's main street about 8:30 Saturday night.

The four Negroes contended they were not in the area at that time.

Actor Will Rest, Consider Wife

CROCKETT, Calif. (AP) — For the next two months, Aldo Ray says, he's going to take it easy—golfing, hiking and fishing, while he tries to figure out if 20-year-old Johanna Bennett is the girl he wants to marry.

The actor had planned to have Johanna accompany him here from London to see California.

But Johanna's father, Maj. Gen. Roland Bennett, former honorary physician to Queen Elizabeth, said he didn't want his daughter to accompany Ray when he learned he was a twice divorced film actor.

Controversial Paintings Now In New Mexico

By IKE FLORES

TAOS, N. M. (AP)—Paintings by the author of "Lady Chatterley's Lover," which were banned in London, are on exhibition at Taos and they're hardly causing an arched eyebrow.

New Mexicans seem to be indifferent about the whole thing.

Such was not the case when the nine paintings by D. H. Lawrence were exhibited in London in 1929. London bobbies confiscated them and the courts promptly branded them as "gross, coarse, hideous, unlovely and obscene."

This was shortly after Lawrence's controversial "Lady Chatterley's Lover" had been banned in England.

Lawrence, ill in Italy, defended his works long and loud but to no avail.

Paintings Suppressed

A public trial, with many authorities backing Lawrence and testifying for the right of free expression of the arts, failed to keep the paintings from being suppressed.

And, they haven't been shown anywhere since, until now.

The oil canvases, ranging in size from 39 by 58 to 9 by 11 inches, are owned by Saki Karavas, owner of La Fonda Hotel de Taos.

Karavas acquired them from the estate of Mrs. Lawrence, who died in Taos in 1956.

He has put them on exhibition in the hotel in what used to be an art gallery but is now used exclusively for the Lawrence exhibit.

Aga Khan Interested

Karavas won't say how much he paid for them but does say that the Aga Khan once tried to buy them in Europe from the Lawrence estate for a reported $60,000.

A few of the pictures' titles might give a hint of their subject matter:

There's the huge "Flight with an Amazon," the smaller, but powerful "Close-up Kiss," an interpretation of Cezanne's "Rape of the Sabine Women" and another Cezanne-like painting, "Dance Sketch."

They illustrate some of Lawrence's literary themes.

Lawrence, an Englishman who disliked Britons, lived in New Mexico, off and on, from 1922 until his death in 1930.

Productive Period

This was a productive period in his life, and most of his dabbling in painting was done then. He loved New Mexico and eventually he and his wife, Frieda, bought a ranch at Valdez, near this art colony town.

Santa Fe poet and writer Witter Bynner was an intimate friend of the Lawrences.

Bynner has written an excellent biography describing many of Lawrence's peculiarities, manias and fetishes — among them the idea of founding a colony where Lawrence could be the leader of many disciples.

Frieda Lawrence, too, is one of New Mexico's legends. She left her English husband and children and ran away with Lawrence. It is generally believed she was a big settling influence on her husband.

Buried In New Mexico

After Lawrence's death in Europe in 1930, she had his body cremated and the ashes buried at their New Mexico ranch.

There's a shrine there now commemorating the author, and the ranch has been given to the University of New Mexico to be used by aspiring writers.

Frieda Lawrence is buried near her husband's remains.

Find Commercials Educational

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Some people complain, but there are those among us who find television commercials highly education. If it weren't for those frequent interludes in my viewing I wouldn't be half so smart.

Where else, for instance, could I learn that:

Shaving lather softens sand so quickly that you can shave a piece of sandpaper without ruing the paper?

Statues, particularly old Greek and Roman statues, have a perspiration problem?

The best way to find out whether you like a cigarette is to make sure that water can't pass through the filter?

Girls who use hairspray have a better chance of catching fellows who waltz well than girls who use hair dressing?

There are machines that tick like bombs and which can measure smells and stomach acidity?

That a headache is caused by a small hammer hitting an anvil in a small compartment in one's brain?

That some stomachs are round, others are square and still others are made of glass? And livers are shaped like an hourglass?

That you can pack the contents of a small truck into the luggage compartment of virtually any car?

All gasolines but the advertiser's not only leave horrible deposits in one's car but don't give good mileage?

George Burns, without Gracie but with pals, dropped around Tuesday night for a pleasant, definitely nostalgic hour. The NBC Startime show was called "The Big Time," suggesting a salute to vaudeville of another generation. Actually, it was the engaging Burns singing and dancing a little but mostly exchanging reminiscences and heckles with buddies Eddie Cantor, George Jessel and Jack Benny. This is a quartet difficult to improve upon.

The addition of the Kingston Trio and Bobby Darin just gave the veterans a breather.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market staged a sharp rally early this afternoon, led by steels and rails.

Shares of these two industries, which often move together, were up 1 to 2 points as they ran ahead of the rest of the market. Gains elsewhere amounted to fractions to around a point, and these were tempered by losers in the same range. Trading was active.

Steels were bolstered by belief the industry will do well if the dispute with the union is ironed out.

Rails were bolstered by a published report the Pennsylvania Railroad will declare a dividend Thursday. The nation's biggest railroad was ahead around a point.

Motors, oils, building materials and electronics also moved ahead. Chemicals were mixed.

U.S. Steel was up around 1½, Bethlehem a shade less and Republic around the same.

Baltimore & Ohio and Atlantic Coast Line were other rail leaders, rising better than a point.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up $1.40 to $220.30. Industrials rose $1.80, rails $2.30 and utilities 20 cents.

Corporate bonds improved somewhat. U.S. government bonds were unchanged to steady.

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—Hog prices steady. Tops of 13.25 to 14.75 Wilson; 13.75 to 14.25 Nahunta, Rocky Mount; 13.50 to 14.00 Hillsboro; 13.25 to 14.00 Kinston, New Bern, Benson, Mount Olive; 13.00 to 13.50 Tarboro, Enfield, Scotland Neck; 12.75 to 13.00 Bethel, Murfreesboro, Sunbury, Edenton, Grimesland, Harrellsville, Ahoskie; 13.75 Clinton, Fayetteville, Goldsboro, Elizabethtown, Greensboro; 13.50 Smithfield; 13.25 Albertson, Lillington, House's Mill, Rich Square; 13.00 Clayton, Dunn, Four Oaks, Clarkton, Burgaw, Castle Hayne.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA) — North Carolina poultry markets: fryers and broilers, farm price 13½ to 14, mostly 13½.

Eggs — prices paid producers for clean, sized, minimum 80 per cent A quality: Raleigh and Charlotte steady, large 36; Asheville egg market unreported.

Cold But Clear

The Greenville area of North Carolina was experiencing the coldest temperatures of this winter today, but the sky was clear and variable winds from 10 to 35 miles an hour prevailed.

The season's first cold wave sent the mercury at the Greenville Utilities Plant skidding from yesterday's high of 64 to 28 early today—a drop of 36 degrees.

At 8 a.m. today the temperature was 29 degrees.

Warrant Signed Charging Man

The father of a 15-year-old Greenville girl has signed a warrant charging a 26-year-old local man with having carnal knowlege of his daughter, after he allegedly caught the two in a barn together.

According to investigators, Bill Johnson, 26, of 612 Griffin St. is being held on charges of having carnal knowledge of a female between 12 and 16 years of age after the girl, whose name was withheld, admitted having relations with the man on several occasions.

Johnston denied being intimate with the girl but said he had met the girl several times in the barn and talked with her, according to officers.

He is being held in city jail without bond for a preliminary hearing Friday in City Recorder's Court.

Recovers After Heart Massage

UTICA, N. Y. (AP)—An 8-week-old girl, her life saved when surgeons simultaneously massaged her heart and breathed air into her lungs, was gaining weight today in a hospital.

The infant, Catherine Franco, underwent the double crisis two weeks ago. Since then, she has gained 6 ounces and now weighs 9 pounds, 9 ounces.

Officials at St. Elizabeth's Hospital told the story:

Catherine was brought to the hospital Oct. 13 from Griffiss Air Force Base in nearby Rome. She was suffering from a respiratory infection and an obstruction in her breathing.

A surgeon decided to cut open her throat and insert a tube for breathing. But fearing that she might stop breathing during this operation, he inserted a tube into the windpipe through the mouth before making an incision.

She stopped breathing. The surgeon immediately began blowing air through the tube into her lungs.

Then her heart stopped. Another surgeon, attending a patient in a nearby room, was summoned. He cut open Catherine's chest and massaged her heart. In 20 seconds, it resumed normal beating.

Ten minutes later she began to breathe normally.

Catherine is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Franco of Herkimer, N. Y. Franco was flown home from Army duty in Korea when his daughter became ill.

Bonner Speaks To Local Legion Post

Congressman Herbert C. Bonner was guest speaker at the regular meeting of Post 39 of the American Legion here last night.

Congressman Bonner stressed the importance of all people taking part in the functions of government, and pointed out what can happen to a nation when the people do not take part in the government.

He also emphasized the importance of striving for a balanced budget in our national government, pointing out that the budget can be balanced by eliminating waste in the nation's foreign aid program and in the defense establishment.

The congressman concluded his talk by saying no individual or government could continue to exist while going deeper and deeper into debt and that by practicing economy measures, we can reduce our national debt.

Congressman Bonner, an infantry soldier during World War I, has been active in the American Legion from its beginning.

Russians Consider Air Competition

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—America, home of stiff air line competition, may learn the Soviet brand before long.

James T. Pyle, deputy federal aviation administrator, says the Soviet Union's big air line, Aeroflot, is about to move into the field of international transportation with a price-cutting come-on.

"They are challenging us at our own game," Pyle told the Institute of Aeronautical Sciences.

"They will be meeting us head-on in every field of civil aviation. They will be scrambling for passenger, freight and aircraft sales and rentals."

Their main selling point will be high volume and low fares, Pyle predicted.

Autobiography Shows Greenville Connection

(Special for the Reflector)

Greenville's connection with the family of famed movie producer Cecil Blount DeMille was recalled by the publication today of DeMille's Autobiography.

In the first chapter of his book, DeMille relates how his grandfather, William Edward DeMille, moved his family in March, 1861, from Washington, N.C., to Greenville, where he became post commissary in the Confederate army under General D. H. Hill, later being commissioned by Jefferson Davis as commissary of Martin's brigade, Hoke's division.

In February, 1865, William Edward DeMille was captured in a Federal cavalry raid on Greenville and kept a prisoner of war until August, while his young wife supported the family by investing all her money in a small tobacco farm near here.

Basing his narrative on the diaries of his father, Henry Churchill DeMille, and other family records, Cecil B. DeMille in his Autobiography draws a vivid and appealing picture of life in the South in ante-bellum days, the War between the States, and the hardships and courage of the people in the time of so-called Reconstruction.

DeMille had been working on his Autobiography up to the time of his death in Hollywood last January. Since then, his long-time associate and literary collaborator Donald Hayne had edited the book into final form, and it is published today by Prentice-Hall, Inc., Englewood Cliffs, New Jersey.

Best Suture Man Seen As Phony

NEWARK, N.J. (AP)—A hospital aide called "the best suture man in the place" by his coworkers was apparently a phony medical student who had no training for his job.

Dr. Abraham G. Chmelnik, director of Newark's Martland Medical Center, said Tuesday night the man told the hospital he was a medical student, then worked six weeks before his lie was uncovered.

The youth, who gave his name as James Covington, was hired as an extern, a medical student utilized as an unpaid aide. The hospital thought his medical school background was in transit.

Chmelnik said Covington's job called for observing doctors working in the emergency and admitting departments and actually doing some stitching when asked.

One coworker said that Covington "could put stitches in as well as any doctor I have ever seen."

Chmelnik said Covington "kept stalling on the transcript of his record and we finally confronted him."

Covington was challenged by Chmelnik Nov. 3. He left the hospital and hasn't been seen since.

Bonner Attacks Interior Dept.

Congressman Herbert C. Bonner again today called on the head of the fish and wildlife division of the Department of Interior to "shake up your inactive enforcement officers" to crack down on waterfowl depredations in Virginia and Maryland.

Rep. Bonner was informed by telegram today from Ross L. Leffler, assistant secretary for fish and wildlife of the Department of Interior, that the chief of the wildlife division would be in the Norfolk area Thursday. The telegram said Paul T. Quick, the wildlife division chief, would confer in Norfolk with James E. Mays who wrote an article for the Norfolk Virginian Pilot disclosing the trapping of ducks for market purposes along Virginia's Eastern Shore.

The telegram also informed Rep. Bonner that Quick would proceed to Washington, N.C. to discuss the matter with him.

In reply to Leffler's telegram, Rep. Bonner informed him, "There is no need for Mr. Quick to visit me. He should call in inactive federal agme enforcement officers from offices and other areas and visit the Eastern Shore of Virginia assisting state officers to enforce the law, and shake up your inactive enforcement officers in state of Maryland where these identical depredations are going on. Afterwards I would be glad to discuss the matter with him for certainly it will be brought before the committee when Congress convenes in January."

The article in the Virginia Pilot said an estimated 15,000 wild ducks would be illegally trapped along the Eastern Shore this year and sold.
