Thanksgiving Day 1959

Hodges Cites 'Intangibles' In Thanksgiving Message

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS For their confidence in the future, for their pride in their state, "for all these intangibles," Gov. Luther Hodges reminds North Carolinians, "we can be truly thankful." With that message from their governor, Tar Heels join their fellow citizens across the land today for the observance of a uniquely American holiday, Thanksgiving Day. The weatherman's promise of generally fair skies in the morning, was to yield to showers beginning in the mountains in late afternoon and spreading eastward across the state. Some mountain areas reported snow Wednesday night and the State Highway Department cautioned motorists in Buncombe, Yancey and Madison counties to be alert for ice on highways. For most of the citizens, it is a day of rest, of relaxation, of recreation. But in thousands of kitchens, it is a day of preparation for the feast. Turkey, the traditional king of dishes this day, holds center stage. Cranberries have yielded their spots on many tables to substitutes, spiced pears, for instance, or branded peaches—anything sweet, yet tart to blend with the richness of the bird and its dressing. For the sports fan, there is football scheduled in almost any category he could desire: Midnet — The 110-pound limit Red Shield program features the Punkin Bowl game tonight at Gastonia with Gastonia playing Johnstown, Tenn. High school—Washington plays Rockingham at Clinton tonight with the Eastern AAA title at stake. Small college—Undeclared Lehigh Rhyme battles Catawba in a game at Hickory. Large college—North Carolina is at Duke in the 45th game of their grid rivalry. The UNC - Duke game will be televised nationally. So will a professional game between the Detroit Lions and Green Bay Packers. For the hunter, the season opens today on quail, rabbit and wild

Accepts Presidency Of Consolidated Presbyterian College

LAURINBURG, N.C. (AP)—A Pittsburgh, Pa., minister, Dr. Ansley Cunningham Moore, has accepted the presidency of the Consolidated Presbyterian College here, which is expected to begin classes next fall. In announcing the selection of the Rev. Dr. Moore Wednesday, Hector McLean, college board chairman, described it as "the most significant and promising step" so far in the creation of the four-year institution. And Dr. Harry Moffett, Gastonia pastor and chairman of the trustees' Administrative Personnel Committee, declared: "Behind the long, hard pull of bringing the college to reality is a vision and a new concept of liberal arts education. It is the challenge of this vision that led to the calling of the caliber of Dr. Moore to accept the path and the adventure of the presidency of this college." The Rev. Dr. Moore, 56, is pastor of the Sixth United Presbyterian Church in Pittsburgh. He is a native of Atlanta, Ga., a member of the board of Muskingum College, a member of the Council of the Synod of Pennsylvania, and an associate of the National Presbyterian Church in Washington which President Eisenhower attends. He also served as a delegate to the World Alliance of Reformed Churches at Geneva and an alternate delegate to the organizational meeting of the World Council of Churches at Amsterdam. The new college—a consolidation of Flora MacDonald College at Red Springs, Peace Junior College at Raleigh and Presbyterian Junior College at Maxton—is being constructed on a 200-acre tract near here. The buildings are being constructed around a lake which occupies the center of the campus. The Rev. Dr. Moore, a graduate of Emory University and Columbia Theological Seminary, has held pastorates at Thomasville, Ga., Mobile, Ala., and Clearwater, Fla. He is married to the former Miss Margaret Haynie of Stone Mountain, Ga., and has two married daughters.

Roux Abandons His Appeal and Begins Prison Terms

Henry Joseph Roux, branded by the FBI as one of the nation's most safe crackers, began serving a pair of long prison sentences this morning after he had abandoned his appeal yesterday by a verdict of the Oct. 25, 1958 safe robbery of Laureate Bros. Jewelers here. Sheriff's deputies Duke Andrews, Gerald Davis, and Ralph Tyson left Greenville for Central Prison, the North Carolina State Penitentiary, at 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Roux, minutes before, had appeared before Judge William J. Bundy during the closing moments of this week's term of Pitt County Superior Court and stated his desire to vacate his appeal proceedings and begin his concurrent prison terms of 20-25 years and 10 years. The longer sentence was imposed upon conviction of a charge of burglary by explosives. The 10-year term was meted out by the court for a larceny conviction. Roux, who was a Nevada resident when the robbery was committed, was convicted by a Pitt jury last Oct. 15. He has remained in Pitt County's jail for 112 days, including days after his arrest prior to the trial. At the time of his conviction for the $28,000 robbery, Roux was described by District Solicitor Robert D. Rouse Jr. of Farmville as a "real professional" and a "ruthless thief." Roux said the whole case involved circumstantial evidence but that it "fit together like the fingers in a glove." The key clue leading investigating officers to Roux was a matchbook cover found at the scene of the robbery.

Browder Sentenced Life Term

After one hour of deliberation, the jury returned a verdict of guilty with recommendation for mercy yesterday, and presiding Judge William J. Bundy pronounced the life sentence for James Henry Franklin Browder for the rape of his wife's 11-year-old daughter last May 6. The verdict came at 6 o'clock in the afternoon following the closing arguments from the defense and the prosecution and the jury's instruction from Judge Bundy. The case went to jury at 5. Browder was allowed until Jan. 1 to ready an appeal to the decision. The state built its case around the testimony of the young girl. Her hour-and-a-half on the witness stand began the prosecution and related to the court the details of how her step-father had acted toward her. She said these acts began "when I was in the first grade." Browder, taking the stand in his own defense, denied all the charges. Other prosecuting witnesses, including doctors who had examined the girl and peace officers, corroborated her testimony at several points. Browder, who had his left leg amputated after a shotgun wound allegedly inflicted by his wife, Myrtle Miller Browder, left the court room unemotionally under the custody of the Sheriff's Department. He will remain in the Pitt jail until his appeal proceedings materialize or are vacated. Mrs. Browder is slated for trial on assault charges during the next term of Pitt County Superior Court in January. She is charged with the May 29 shooting of her husband.

District Ruritan Convenes Friday

PACTOLUS—The Pactolus Ruritan Club is here tomorrow to the annual convention of the Greenville-Goldsboro District of Ruritan National with National Pres. Fred K. Betts, III, of Harrisonburg, Va., scheduled to be on hand as featured guest and speaker. An afternoon business session, slated to kick off the convention program with registration at 1 o'clock, will include Ruritan officers' training and instruction classes. The classes, to be held in the Pactolus School lunch room, will include special sessions for club presidents, vice presidents, secretaries, and treasurers. Conducting the sessions will be the local district's lieutenant governors: J. L. Patrick (Zone 1) of Chocowinity; Edward N. Warren (Zone 2) of Falkland; Richard Price (Zone 3) of LaGrange; and Arthur Rouse (Zone 4) of Kinston. Also during the afternoon session National Director for Ruritan Ernest Slack of Pinetown will preside over an "Open Forum" to provide an opportunity for club members to informally discuss Ruritan Club problems and accomplishments. District officers will be elected for next year as a climax to the afternoon program. Outgoing officers include the four lieutenant governors; Dist. Gov. Noel Lee Jr. of Pactolus; Dist. Sec. James H. Whichard of Pactolus; and Treas. John Langley, also of Pactolus. The evening session is scheduled to begin at 6:30 with a banquet in the Pactolus School auditorium. The guest speaker for the evening will be the Rev. R. Murphy Williams Jr., pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Wilson.

Declares Duplin Is Setting Pace

RALEIGH (AP)—Duplin County is setting a pace other Tar Heel sections would do well to match, Gov. Hodges said Wednesday. Hodges cited progress made by Duplin in telling his weekly news conference that North Carolina is exhibiting a fine spirit of working together for the future. "There aren't any poor counties in North Carolina, only poor in that they do not use all their resources, or poor in leadership," Hodges said. The governor related that Duplin, which got 75 per cent of its farm income from tobacco six years ago, now relies on tobacco for only 35 per cent.

Uphold Sentences Of Mill Strikers

RALEIGH (AP)—The State Supreme Court has upheld sentences given 44 textile mill strikers for violating a court order governing conduct around the Harriet-Henderson Cotton Mills in Henderson. In opinions Wednesday, the high court also found no error in Vance Superior Court trials of 11 persons convicted in four criminal cases resulting from Henderson strike disorders. The opinions did not include the appeals of Boyd E. Payton, Carolina director of the Textile Workers Union of America, and seven other union men from their conviction on charges of conspiring to destroy mill property. Associate Justice William B. Rodman writing the decision on the contempt of court cases, said objections to affidavits used against the strikers were presented too late. Lawyers for the strikers had contended that the affidavits prevented the accused persons from having an opportunity to confront and cross-examine their accusers. If the evidence was to be questioned, Rodman wrote, "they should have objected when the evidence was offered." Instead, objections were not raised until long after the trials, he added. Fines ranging from $100 to $250, jail sentences of up to 30 days, or

Two Fugitives Being Held Here

Two escapees from a Georgia prison camp were in Greenville's city jail today charged with larceny of an automobile belonging to a Greenville woman. Police identified the convicts as William G. Prevatte, 23, of Lumberton, N.C., and Leo Joseph Paineau, 39, of Bristol, Mass. The two were arrested in Wilson yesterday morning minutes after local police put out a bulletin on the stolen vehicle. Officers said the arrest was made by members of the Wilson police department and the Wilson sheriff's department. Officers found a sawed-off shotgun and a single shot 22 calibre rifle in the car of the convicts, but they surrendered without incident. The stolen automobile belonged to Mrs. Thelma Smith, 308 Manhattan Ave., Greenville. Officers said Prevatte was serving a 20-year sentence in Georgia for armed robbery and attempted rape, and that Paineau was serving four to 10 years for armed robbery. Officers quoted the fugitives as saying they escaped from a Georgia prison camp about a week ago, hired a stolen automobile and were to Wilson. They are slated for trial here Friday on the automobile larceny charge.

Slid To Safety In Airliner Fire

LONDON (AP)—Two nuns and five off-duty stewardesses slid out of a Pan American airliner and down a canvas chute today after one of its engines burst into flames just before takeoff. The fast escape was purely precautionary, an airline official said.

Second Stage Fails; U. S. Moon Rocket Bid Ruined

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The most powerful rocket ever developed by this nation failed on its maiden flight today and ruined a U.S. bid to put the first satellite around the moon. The giant Atlas Able rocket thundered aloft exactly on schedule at 2:26 a.m. Perched atop it was a 372-pound payload designed for the lunar orbit. An hour after launch, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration reported that second-stage signals were lost 70 seconds after launching. "There is no record of the second stage having fired and we must presume that the second stage did not fire," the NASA said. "Visual observations were that a piece fell off the Rocket. Apparently this was above the liquid oxygen tank on the Atlas." Observers saw a fiery chunk break loose from the rocket about 20 seconds after launch and spiral into the Atlantic Ocean. The failure was a bitter blow to U.S. hopes of jumping back into the space race with the Soviet Union, which in recent weeks has scored spectacularly with its Lunik II and III rockets. One straggled into the moon; the other whirled into a wide orbit around the moon and earth and took the first pictures of the moon's dark side. There is no backup vehicle for today's shot, so it probably will be several months before another can be attempted. This was the second failure for an Atlas-Able ticketed for a shot at the moon. On Sept. 24, another one of the 10-story high rockets blew up on its pad during a static test. That rocket was set for an early October launching. If it had been successful, the United States would have beaten the Soviet Union to the first pictures of the moon's far side. Today's ill-fated satellite carried a scanning device to take crude pictures of the lunar surface. It also contained instruments to study the moon's environment. A successful orbit would have given the U.S. a space first. Scientists here believe this would have been a greater accomplishment than either of the last two Lunik shots because of the difficulty of placing the payload in a precise position in relation to the moon. A flash in the sky about four minutes after liftoff indicated burnout of the Atlas booster. The second stage was to ignite almost immediately and many persons mistook the Atlas burnout for ignition. The fiery launching was witnessed by hundreds of persons who jammed nearby beaches with their cars. They watched with awe as the 98-foot, three-stage vehicle climbed into the sky, driven by flames created by the 367,000 pounds of thrust generated at blastoff. Cheers were heard as the rocket rose. When it vanished among the stars, the onlookers thinned into their cars and went home, unaware that anything was wrong. A perfect flight would have taken the payload—called Pioneer V—to the moon in 62 hours. At launch, the moon was 231,000 miles away. If all had gone right, Pioneer V would have sped to within 5,000 miles of the moon. Then a "start-and-stop" rocket would have been fired in reverse to slow the speed down to 3,000 miles an hour so the package would be drawn into the moon's gravitational field.

Going To Court In Effort Move Prison Camp

RALEIGH (AP)—Folks who live in the area near Camp Polk Prison Farm have gone to court in an effort to have the convicts moved. Arthur L. Pharr, a Raleigh man who lives near the prison camp, filed suit Wednesday in Wake County Superior Court naming Prison Director W. F. Bailey and the State Prison Commission defendants. Judge William Y. Bickett directed Bailey and the commission to come before him Dec. 15 to show cause why they should not halt construction to expand the prison camp until the issue is settled. Pharr's complaint contended that the prison camp is operated in a manner which creates a nuisance against Davis' holstered gun. It violates city zoning ordinances regulating land use.

Ranger Reports Dog Shot A Man

LANCASTER, Calif. (AP)—A dog shot a man, says forest ranger Jim Davis, who tells this story: He was working at a Boy Scout camp when a stray dog jumped on him. His own dog Scout jumped to Davis' protection but lurching against Davis' holstered gun. It discharged and a bullet creased Davis' leg.

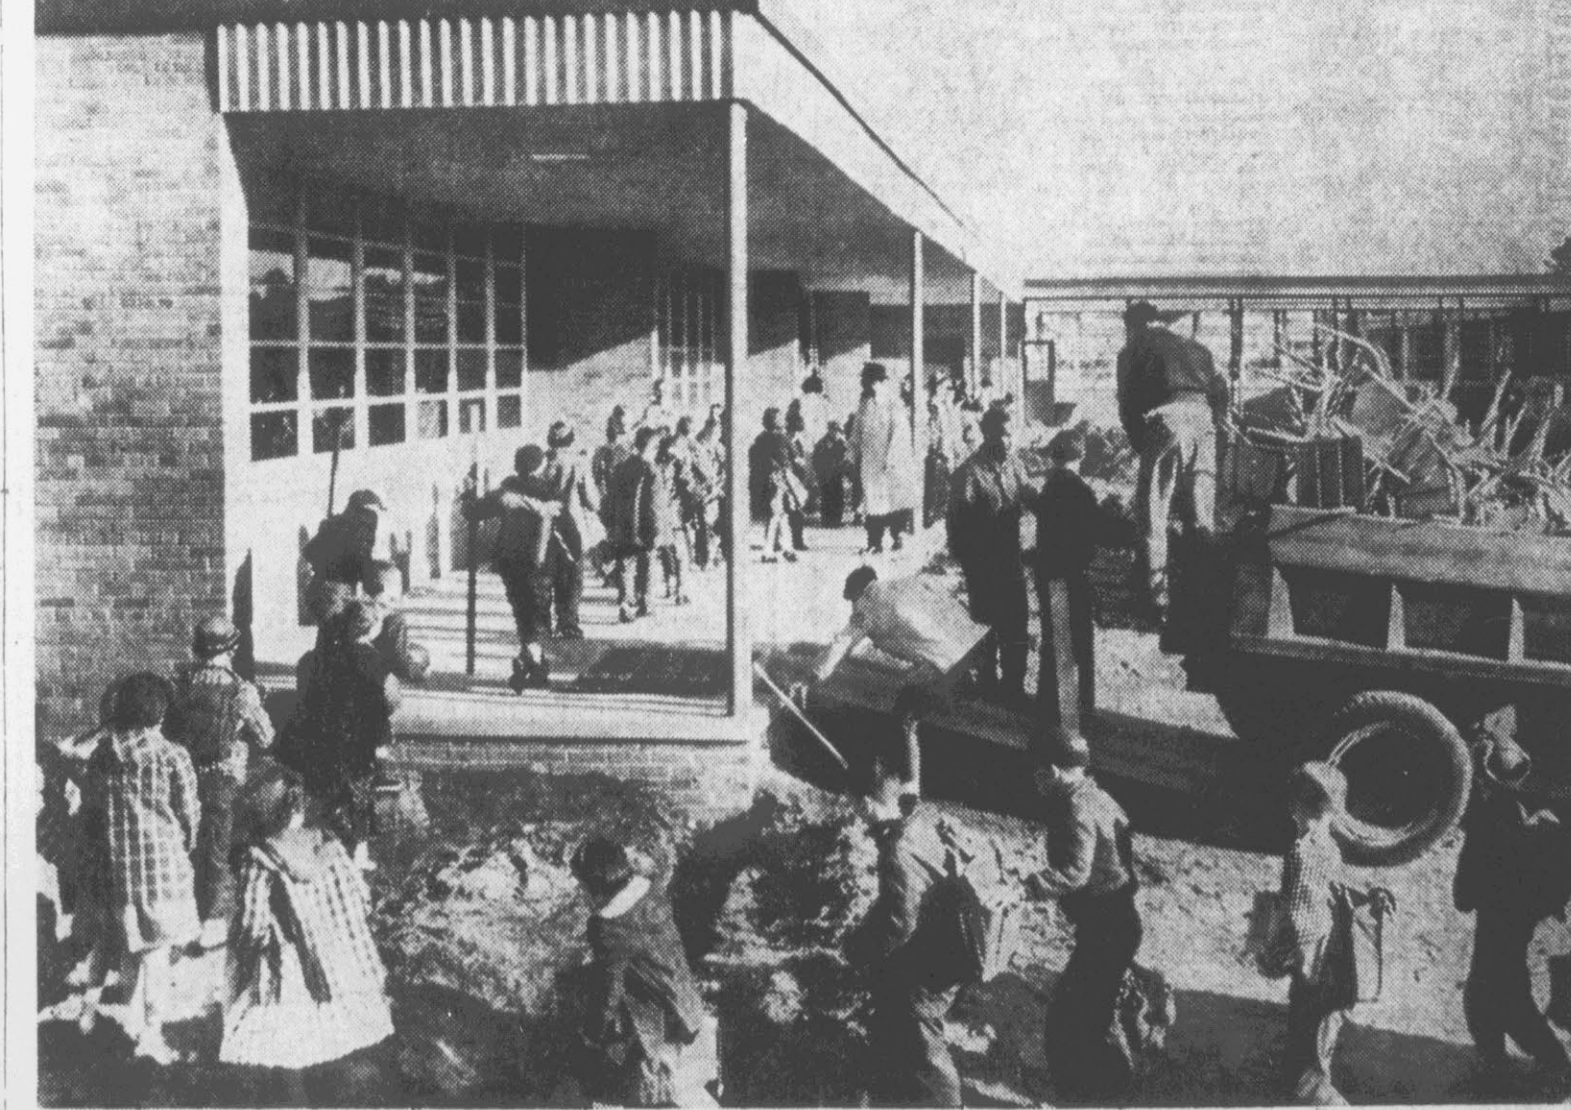

Cold Handicaps 2 N.C. Escapees

PRINCETON, W.Va. (AP)—Authorities had two things in their favor today—bitter cold weather and identification from a photograph—as they hunted in this area for the last two of five convicts wanted for the slaying of a road gang foreman in a North Carolina prison escape. Snow which blanketed the mountainsides and hollows in the Princeton area was tougher on the convicts, James T. Waller, 35, and Johnny W. Burgess Jr., 33, than on police, assuming the convicts still were holed up hereabouts. An elderly Negro couple forced to harbor the pair for some 12 hours Tuesday, the day after the break near the Ashe County, North Carolina, prison camp, identified Waller and Burgess from photos which The Associated Press helped supply. Waller is from Gibsonville, N.C., and Burgess from Hickory, N.C. "We know they were here yesterday and we can't find any signs that they've left," a dispatcher at Princeton's state police headquarters reported Wednesday. Their three confederates in the escape gave up without a fight Tuesday night when Highway Patrol officers surprised them stranded in a ditch along a highway near Jackson, Ohio, with a stolen car. Authorities found a red and white Ford sedan Wednesday morning in which they think Waller and Burgess drove into West Virginia. The car was abandoned in a hollow near the town of Rock, W.Va., and bore North Carolina licenses. That, coupled with the statements of a Negro man and wife who told the convicts' descriptions to their home, convinced authorities here they were on the right track. Newspapers and radio stations have carried descriptions of both men, and officers have been showing their pictures to rail, bus and airline employees. The photos were made available by the Charlotte (N.C.) Observer, and transmitted to Charleston, W.Va., over the Wirephoto network of The Associated Press. A waiting courier from the West Vir-

Elect Abbot For Belmont Abbey

BELMONT, N.C. (AP)—Benedictine monks of Belmont Abbey elected Father W. A. Coggin as their new abbot Wednesday night. Father Coggin, major superior of the abbey for the last three years, succeeds the late Rt. Rev. Abbot Vincent G. Taylor. The abbot of Belmont Abbey also is Catholic Bishop of Gaston County, in which the abbey is located. The announcement of Father Coggin's election was made by Father Cuthbert Allen, president of Belmont Abbey College. Father Coggin is a former president of the college.

Moving Day For Local Students

FINALLY MOVING—Following a rainy summer, construction deadlines for the new addition to Elmhurst School were delayed until yesterday. Pictured above are Greenville school children and new furniture being moved simultaneously into the new five-room wing. There are four self-contained classrooms and a large library. The library will be completed "by about the first of the year," according to City Supt. J. H. Rose, but the four classrooms will be in use when school re-opens Monday morning. Addition of the new wing brings Elmhurst a total of 18 classrooms and a total enrollment of 595 children in the elementary grades.

Gardening Today

By JOHN G. DUNCAN

At this time of the year, the gardener's interest is gastronomic instead of horticultural. The table becomes the focal point. The season of the indoors has begun. Most of the outdoor chores are finished. This is a quiescent time of the year. All urgency has passed on with the exodus of the leaves and flowers. The trials and tribulations of vines and flower have ceased, and so have they until next year. All that seems left to the gardener is dreaming. But this, however, is not completely the case. Now is the time to begin collecting ideas for next year's program. Here garden records and notes prove their worth. Go back through the past seasons.

What methods have worked? What ones should be discarded? Was your spray program a success—if not—why? Did you fertilize correctly or just hit and miss? What plants should you get rid of? Was the past season's venture too exacting? What threw your program out of focus? Was it a case of too much pre spring enthusiasm and not enough summer muscle? Remember, one petunia well tended is better than a hundred shuffed over. There is a formula for successful gardening. The ingredients, however, must be mixed right. Mull over them as your turkey and pumpkin pie are being digested. If you mix the proper amount of interest, good garden procedure, good tools, know how, time, your capacity for work, some curiosity and an appreciation for beauty, you should have it. However, you must be vaccinated against the summer doldrums, and tricks nature will try to pull on you. Proper planning by pooling of ideas that come to you through study, talking with other gardeners, and winter time dreaming, should enable you to put your best foot forward next spring—horticulturally, at least.

PLANNING KRAUT? Skillet - cooking some sauerkraut (with butter, onion and brown sugar) to go with pork? When you're serving the kraut, top it with some whole cranberry sauce for a pretty garnish. The flavors go together, too!

And what, asked the unthoughtful man, have we Americans to be thankful for on this day?

Prices are higher than ever and a dollar will buy only a fraction of what it once did. You used to be able to eat for a week on what Thanksgiving dinner costs now.

Taxes are so high that a man can't accumulate a little for his old age out of what the government leaves him. On top of that the Russians have the H-Bomb and the atomic bomb, missiles, a vast army and they might hurl them at us at any minute.

What's more they say it is going to be a long hard winter and that means misery before another Spring.

These and other things—many others—might be said by people not meaning to be ungrateful. . . just realistic people who say they take a realistic viewpoint in order to make out in a realistic world.

Perhaps they do, but does their realistic view encompass the world in which half the men, women and children will go to bed hungry tonight as they do every night? Does their view encompass the area of the world where people don't worry about their old age because they know a large percentage of the children born will have a life expectancy of only 10 years or so?

Certainly their view cannot encompass the areas of the world where every individual is a pawn of tyrannical government to be used and discarded as suits the purpose of dictators; where individual rights and liberties, by our standards, are unknown.

There is no man so hardened by the years that he cannot be thankful that the world, equipped with weapons for nuclear war, so far has been spared from another great conflagration. Neither is there a man so coarse that he can face the prospect of another winter without being inwardly thankful for the privilege of viewing a fading autumn in all its glory.

What have we Americans to be thankful for on this Thanksgiving Day?

Each for his own blessings, and for every person, more blessings than he could possibly count in a day.

The Answer Lies In The Hands Of Drivers

How high will North Carolina's traffic death toll go before 1959 ends and record books are closed?

Already this year more than 1,000 people have met their deaths on the highways of the state. The total is alarmingly above that of the same period last year and there appears little to indicate a changing trend during the final month of the year.

Pitt County, fortunately, has a considerable better traffic safety record this year than last so far as fatalities are concerned. This year seven traffic fatalities have been recorded in the county as compared with 15 last year. Even so, carelessness on the part of drivers in this county in the next 30 days could run Pitt County's 1959 highway death toll up to or even more than in 1958.

As winter takes its grip on this and other areas of North Carolina, driving conditions will be worse than normal. Shorter days will mean more driving in twilight and darkness, thus creating greater highway hazards. More rain, perhaps even sleet and snow will increase the hazard. Add to that the increased pace of activity as the Christmas season approaches, and the traffic situation is further compounded.

Only by exercising particular caution during the remainder of the year can motorists hope to avoid a sharp increase in the number of traffic injuries and fatalities. How many more times will death strike on the highways of Pitt County and North Carolina before the end of 1959?

The answer to that question is in the hands of the drivers . . . in the same hands that hold the steering wheels.

Attorney General Has Won Running Battle

Attorney General Malcolm Seawell appears to have won his battle to bring gasoline prices of major companies under the state's fair trade law and to eliminate at least a portion of the price fixing which has been going on in gasoline sales in North Carolina.

The attorney general's running battle with the major oil companies goes back to last summer when the companies began fixing the minimum prices for gasoline handled by their dealers under the state's fair trade law. Since that time gasoline prices have fluctuated wildly several times across the state, and each swing in prices brought a new swing at the price-fixing policies by the attorney general.

Now that some of the major oil companies have discontinued their price fixing under the fair trade law, there is little doubt that others will follow suit. Neither can there be any doubt that the effort of Attorney General Seawell to end the practice has been a major factor in this latest decision by the major oil companies.

World Picture Seeing Changes

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — The world which President Eisenhower's successor faces in 1961 — unless there are bitter changes before then — will be different from the one Eisenhower had to deal with when he took office in 1953.

And it will require different American measures, to some degree and perhaps to a great degree, in coping the world ahead if only because nations, like animals, are in an evolutionary process.

American foreign policy now is what it has been pretty much back into the 1940s when the cold war began: To maintain alliances and heavy armament to prevent Communist expansion; give American military help and economic aid to allied and friendly nations, and particularly economic aid to the backward ones.

Eisenhower, like President Truman before him, has followed this policy. As Eisenhower begins his farewell tour next month to 11 countries, it is doubtful he will propose any changes.

It is too soon in the presidential campaign to tell whether any of the would-be candidates who want his job have any ideas different from Eisenhower's. So far they have offered nothing basically different.

Still, the world is not the same as in 1953 and it will be even more different 10 years from now.

When Eisenhower moved into the White House almost seven years ago there was a war in Korea, Red China was just beginning to be a world power and feel its oats; Western Europe was just getting on its economic feet, with American help. There was no revolt in the Soviet satellites.

The United States was still far ahead of the Soviet Union in armaments, since it wasn't until the summer of 1953 that the Soviets produced their hydrogen

But, Not All Mornings

You just can't win for losing some times.

City Manager Leonard Boxam says he got a call last week from a lady. She had a complaint about a hole in the street in front of her home.

So the city manager arranged for street department crews to take a load of crushed rock out to fill the hole.

That taken care of, he put the matter out of his mind.

But one morning this week he received another call from the lady.

"Mr. Bloxam, I wish you would have the rock taken out of this hole here and fill it with dirt instead," she said in so many words.

The puzzled city manager asked why.

"Well, the boys in this neighborhood are throwing the rocks at my house," she replied.

"Some mornings it just doesn't pay to get up."

Jimmy Rayford has an office on Washington St.

In his office is a gas heater which Jimmy lights each morning when he comes to work bright and early.

Across the street stands Quinerly Manor which is to be torn down to make way for the Planters Bank building.

That sets the scene for what took place the other morning.

Jimmy came into his office all sleepy-eyed. He didn't know that workmen had begun the job of tearing down the old Quinerly Manor.

So as Jimmy bent down to light his heater, the first load of debris came down a recently-built chute from the top of the high old house.

There you have it. A lighted match at the gas heater and an ear-splitting crash from across the street. "I thought that heater had blown me sky high," Jimmy recalled afterward.

What well-known young insurance man is rushing home these nights to paint, of all things?

And what is he painting?

This could be none other than M. Bud Lynch and what he is painting happens to be a nursery.

Needless to say, this will be the first child for Bud and Dill.

Ran into a problem in the news room yesterday.

Seems we had a picture of a turkey and, in writing the information to go beneath the picture, we referred to the fowl as

Mr. Turkey.

Then we got to looking at the picture and wondering if it were a boy turkey. We consulted farm experts Jimmy Whitchard, Jack Tetterton and John Trotman, all of whom also work in the Reflector composing room when they are not busy as farm experts.

Their decision was that this particular bird was a female.

That solved that, but another problem arose. Was she a Miss or a Mrs.

The farm experts couldn't solve that one so we gave her the benefit of the doubt and called the fowl Mrs. Turkey.

Words Often Heard

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks you can hear—or overhear—at any big family Thanksgiving Day celebration:

"My, your house looks nice. It's always so spotless."

"Are you sure, really sure, there's nothing I can do to help?"

"Look at Grandpa Brown. Hasn't he aged?"

"Hi, Grandpa Brown, never saw you looking so young. What kind of pep pills are you taking?"

"I think Joan is making a mistake showing her boy friend our family album. When he sees the kind of tribe he's marrying into, he'll run screaming for the hills."

"Oh, I don't know. Our family's always stuck together pretty well, except for a few scattered fist fights and hair pullings."

"Hasn't it been a wonderful year? No deaths or sicknesses in the family. That is, if you leave out cousin Amy's gall bladder attacks, and after all she's been having them for 30 years."

"Mama, Jimmy hit me."

"I did not, Mama. Besides, she hit me first."

"Oh, shut up the both of you. Can't we have just one day of peace and quiet in the whole entire year?"

"Yoo-hoo, Ella! That must be a wonder turkey. We can smell it clear in here!"

"I do hope she cooks it long enough. The one she put on the table last year was still flapping its wings."

"Why does she always insist on putting oysters in the dressing? They give me indigestion."

"Not me. I love them."

"Well, we don't have to worry about the cranberries. Young Joey says they're all right. And he led his high school class in chemistry last year."

"Did you see the big new car cousin Roscoe drove up in? The big showoff must have borrowed it from someone for the day. He couldn't afford one like that self."

"Well, cousin Elmo seems to be doing all right, ever since he got that job with the city."

"Yeah, that's probably why my taxes went up."

"Mama, can I have the wishbone this year? Jimmy had it last year."

"No, not either, mama. Mama's laying again. Mama. Make her go wash her mouth out with soap."

"Sh-h-h, here comes the turkey. Isn't it beautiful?"

"Well, folks, come and get it. It's all on the table. Everybody bring his own chair."

"Dear Lord, we thank thee."

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
DUTY DAY BY DAY

Some months ago on the western coast, a woman was informed by her doctor that she had a rare and incurable disease and would soon die. She forthwith interested herself in the case of a pair of fourteen-year old boys condemned to be executed for murder. She took a long journey to see the governor of the state in which the boys lived and to plead for clemency. "I want to do something good," she said, "before I die."

This is certainly commendable. No one could think of such an act in any other mood but that of praise. But with all the nobility which the lady manifested, we hope it will not be regarded as carping to point out that one should not wait until his or her death date is set before planning to do something good. No doubt this woman has done many good things in her lifetime, and probably in the great asizes they will count for just as much as her journey to see the governor and to plead for the boys.

In the great parable in the 25th chapter of Matthew, the people who heard the words, "Well done, good and faithful servant," were astonished that their Lord should have noted their daily helpful ministry to people who were in need.

The place to be noble is where we are, and the time, right now. Great noble acts, spectacular service—these things are all very good. But greater than any such are the daily, unremembered acts of thoughtfulness and love.

GIVE

THE UNITED WAY

Other Editors Saying Who Benefits?

(Chattanooga News-Free Press)

A great deal of attention has been given in Chattanooga recently to the things that will encourage new industry to come to this community and the things that might keep it away—as well as the things that might be fair to existing industry and encourage it not only to remain but to expand.

There has been community-wide concern about these matters because it is generally recognized that industry provides jobs and pumps large sums of money into the local economy for everybody's benefit. But to most of us, just how much good industry does is generally considered a rather indefinite thing.

U.S. News & World report passes along a set of estimates by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce that gives a specific idea of just what industry means to a community. This is what the national Chamber says:

Addition of 200 new industrial jobs will bring about 393 homes, 320 automobile purchases, 32 new retail stores, 24 more professional men, 18 more school teachers and 22 additional classrooms, 1.5 million dollars of new life insurance and one million dollars in new bank deposits.

That estimate indicates the far-reaching effects of "good citizen" industry in a community, effects far greater than expectations. It may be surprising, for example, that 200 jobs may bring about 393 new homes. How come? The reason is that industry benefits not only its employees, but also those called upon to build and service the plant and the increased population attracted by it.

Almost any community these days will go to great lengths to attract a new industry because it is good economic sense to do so. But sometimes we pay more attention to the "bird in the bush" than we do the "bird in hand". Sometimes we seek a new industry with an eagerness that is not matched by friendly attention to the interests of the industry we have, taking for granted the plants that are already here.

It might be noted, however, that companies looking over possible new plant sites usually are interested in the way existing industry has been treated, because that is a fair sample of the kind of treatment the new industry will receive after the honeymoon is over.

Chattanooga should consider these things in the current annexation discussions, for the decisions made by the city of Chattanooga will have a long-range effect on our economic climate, for better or for worse.

By ELMER ROESSNER

First thing tomorrow, I'm going to rush down to the nearest caustic soda store and buy a big of Stauffer's caustic soda. Don't need any caustic soda, I don't know what it's used for except disposing of mothers-in-law, and mine's a dear. But the Stauffers are my kind of people, although I don't know them. But they are doing in the caustic soda business what I have been trying to do in the business news business: chuckling while we work.

The Stauffer people were baited into it. The Salesmen's Association of the American Chemical Industry publishes an annual book, "Chemical Peddler," and the ads run to humor. In this year's edition, Stauffer took the bait and ran for the dam.

Its full-page ad was topped with a picture of mountains of caustic soda all but hiding a tiny factory. The caption: "Stauffer's Niagara Falls plant seen from caustic soda storage area."

Even if you aren't in the trade and know that there's a mild caustic soda glut, you get the idea.

"WE NEED THE MONEY!" The text, excerpted: "There is no particular reason you should buy Stauffer's caustic soda rather than Dow or Westvaco or Pennsalt or other respected victims of caustic soda surpluses, except we need the money and we have a reputation for being exceptionally nice people to do business with. Besides that, the name sounds good. 'Stauffer caustic soda' rolls off the tongue like the beginning of a great symphony or a lyric

Chuckling While We're Working

poem. Might be like this:

"Stauffer caustic soda is a noble aromatic.

"You can use it when combining hydrocarbons aliphatic.

"If you have the room to spare you can store it in your attic.

"But be sure you're storing Stauffer's. . .

"On that point we're most emphatic.

"The caustic soda surplus has been a cause of concern to us for years. We lose money on every carload we sell. However, we must sell it, even at a loss, because of the room it takes up. . .

"For this purpose we have 32 pilots distributed between Niagara Falls, Henderson and Los Angeles to dispose of the stuff. They pile it here and pile it there until they run out of room and then they come back for instructions, we give them a new suit of clothes and convert them to salesmen.

"There's the story, boys. . . you take it from here, and take it from us!"

There ought to be more ads like that. They may not sell anything, not even caustic soda but they do make printed matter more fun.

KANGAROO LEAPS AHEAD

INDUSTRY LEAPS AHEAD
The world shortage of leather is booming the kangaroo hide industry in Australia.

Queensland, where kangaroos bound and abound, is now gaining about $450,000 a year on the dollar market for hides. The leather brings premium prices for luxury leather goods. A good "roo" shooter can bring down from 300 to 400 of the marsupials a week, earning up to $225.

New Swimsuits Show Maximum Exposure In Fashion Openings

By DOROTHY ROE
There's maximum exposure in the 1960 California swimwear line-up—and also maximum cover-up. The controversial Bikini is present and accounted for, but it usually is adjustable and almost always is accompanied by a cover-up beach coat, jacket or stole. Drawstrings on legs and bra of the Bikinis permit the wearer to adjust it for as much or as little exposure as she desires, depending upon her mood and the audience.

MAXIMUM EXPOSURE . . . This is California's adjustable Bikini in gay cotton print.

COVER-UP . . . The playboy shirt in printed cotton goes over almost anything—Bikini, short shorts or even serves as a top for skinny long pants. Machine-washable, press-free.

Swim suits may have matching skirts as well as jackets and tops, so that a girl may arrive at the beach correctly dressed for the street, and by a mere process of subtraction be ready for the surf.

When she's ready to go home she simply slips the skirt and jacket over her suit (after adequate drying-off, of course) and is ready for cocktails or what-have-you.

Black and white are important in the 1960 beach scene, as well as in the general fashion picture. Black-and-white prints rate high in all categories, and solid black or white swimsuits are among the most popular in the lineup.

There also are many high colors, however, in the California tradition of hot pastels, so effective beneath the western sun.

For girls whose figures or modesty can't take the exposure of the Bikini there are many other more covered-up styles, ranging from one-piece knits to dressmaker suits with brief pleated skirts. And of course there's the big news in "surfers"—the beach outfits with tight pants reaching to the calf of the leg, worn with separate tops.

Maid Supply Short Of Demand

By NORMA GAUHN
Do you have a maid? Ever had one? Want one?
This needn't bring up a vision of a 25-room home on a 40-acre estate staffed with butler, cook, downstairs maid, housemaid, nursemaid, chauffeur and gardener.
There aren't many of those left now. But more homes than you might think have live-in servants whose jobs range from housekeeper to cook to babysitter. has a constant backlog of job offers.

A 'Dirty' Word
"One problem is that 'servant' is almost a dirty word in this country," Miss Ahneman says. "Where both sides respect the other, it can mean dignity and a decent living for the maid."
"But too many women have no conception of how much they ask their maids to do. And then they're surprised if a girl quits." Granted there are slow maids, stupid maids and lazy maids, Miss Ahneman concedes that housewives have a legitimate gripe about girls who don't do the job they're paid for. But she's ready to bet that when trouble comes, 90 per cent of the time it's the employer's fault. She has this advice on how to keep a maid happy:
Allow at least a month for her to get used to you—and vice versa. There will inevitably be

Mr. Martin was introduced by Mrs. Andrews. His topic was, "Today's Home Builds Tomorrow's World." He said "Too often the wrong foundation is laid in the home thereby the foundation for tomorrow's world is weak. Too much stress is put on the material things and too little on the spiritual."
At the social hour, fruit cake and Russian tea were served.

All circles of the Baptist church of Bethel came together for the mission study Tuesday.
Mrs. Julian Smith, mission study chairman, introduced teachers who had charge of the Study book, "By All Means," written by Baker J. Cauthen and others.

Old Fashioned Remedies

BEATTYVILLE, Ky. (AP)—People don't know much about herb doctoring anymore and it's a shame, Mrs. Melvin Kincaid—Aunt Cinda—says.

"If women raising babies these days would dose the precious little things with warm catnip tea," she says, "they wouldn't have to be running to a doctor every other night."

Aunt Cinda has been using herbs most of her 75 years. She dosed all her own children with catnip tea. It's good for croup and colds, she says, "And it makes a baby sleep so good."

No one who drank tea made from gravel plant ever suffered from gallstones, Aunt Cinda says. "It's a good kidney medicine, too." Skullcap and boneset yield a bitter tea which will "settle the nerves" and break up colds and fevers, Aunt Cinda says.

Dollar vine tea will stop diarrhea. Wild cherry bark steeped in water is a good cough syrup and helps bolster the appetite.

A salve made from Balm of Gilead buds, elder and buttersweet bark, mixed with tallow, reputedly heal sores, cuts and bruises. And prickly ash tea is recommended for asthma sufferers.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture seems to agree. It lists over 250 different species of roots, herbs and bark which are of great value in the manufacture of drugs.

Candy Has New Hubby, But Prison Waits

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Candy Barr, who sheds her clothes for money, plans to shed her career as a stripper, says her new husband.

But things aren't exactly dandy for Candy—she may be exchanging bumps and grinds for prison bars in Texas.

Authorities in Dallas said the 27-year-old peeler has exhausted her last appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court of a 15-year sentence for marijuana possession. They said an arrest warrant is expected this weekend.

The baby-faced blonde lost a husband and gained another within a few hours Wednesday. Troy Bertie Phillips was granted a divorce from Candy in Dallas. He had charged cruelty and desertion. Candy once shot him in the stomach when, she said, he tried to break into her apartment.

After Phillips got the divorce, Candy married Jack Sahakian, 28, in this Nevada gambling resort. A justice of the peace performed the ceremony—after two ministers refused, fearing adverse publicity.

Candy was recently fired by a Las Vegas casino hotel—under pressure from a reform-bent county commission. She was replaced by singer Marie (The Body) McDonald.

"Actually," said Sahakian, a Beverly Hills beautician, "she (Candy) gave up the idea of stripping some weeks ago. But she took one more engagement in Las Vegas to help her family—her daughter, younger brother, sick father and stepmother.

"I tried to help her spiritually. I've dedicated myself to her. Believe me, this girl has been misled and misguided, morally and mentally, ever since she was 14 years old.

"I only hope someone—perhaps the authorities in Texas—will step forward and do something to help her. Anyone deserves a chance to take a new path."

The 180-pound six-footer said they met through a mutual friend in Los Angeles four months ago. "Candy lived near me. We saw each other at the supermarket, started dating, fell in love and started thinking of marriage four or five weeks ago."

Last spring Candy dated gambler Mickey Cohen in Los Angeles. He said he would help her with her appeal even though they have parted company.

Such a clear victory or defeat for one side or the other is not likely in the next 10 years, but the man who succeeds Eisenhower must, as the drama unfolds, find ways of preventing a Communist victory.

It is possible, too, as the West and East struggle, even though peacefully, that the Soviet Union may move more to the right, the United States more to the left.

It is almost as if the Truman-Eisenhower administrations were a period of stalemated preparation for a new world, new problems, new policies, which no one right now can confidently predict.

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—A high school student who says he "wasn't feeling good" the day he used his fists to mangle his teacher's face has been jailed by juvenile authorities.

Judge Alfred Whitehurst refused to set bond Wednesday for James W. Wiseman, 16.

"This conduct will not go unchecked," the judge said.

The youth's teacher, Lewis B. Stevens Jr., 41, told the court he suffered facial cuts requiring 16 stitches and the probably loss of six teeth in last Thursday's classroom attack.

He had reprimanded Wiseman, he said, for not having a textbook with him and was about to take him to the school office when "he jabbed at me."

The youth said he took Stevens' reprimand as "a threat because I wasn't feeling good that day."

Judge Whitehurst deferred disposition of the aggravated assault charge until Dec. 10 pending a probation report.

The Greeks call their country Vasileion tis Ellados, or Kingdom of Hellas.

Suicide Note Gave Clue To Huge Bank Shortage

LOS ANGELES (AP)—"My exposure because of audits following the merger, he left his wife and daughter during intermission at a play, walked to a nearby vacant lot and shot himself in the heart."

Those words, scribbled on the back of a piece of yellow accounting paper, give a clue to the beginning of what officials call one of the nation's biggest bank shortages—$3,714,610.96.

The man who wrote them—respected banker George A. Hewlett—is dead by his own hand.

His friend, ex-plumber John R. Hendrickson, 40, was indicted by a federal grand jury Wednesday on charges of conspiracy and defrauding a national bank.

Hewlett, 40, was vice president and cashier of the Long Beach National Bank, since merged with the U.S. National Bank of San Diego.

Last May 1, threatened with ex-

Underwood pleaded guilty to armed robbery. He and two other men held up supermarket operator Chester Cook Sept. 17.

One of the robbers shouted "hand us the sack."

Cook did so, possibly relieved. It didn't have a cent in it. Just the sandwiches, hair oil and underwear.

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Jimmy Durante says he and former actress Marcia Little will get married "sometime next year."

"I'm gonna announce the wedding pretty soon," he said Wednesday night. "I dunno the date exactly. I don't want anybody to think it's for publicity reasons."

Durante, 66, has been engaged to Miss Little, 38, since 1956. He announced the engagement at the opening of a club near Phoenix, Ariz.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The biggest question still remains Hewlett's reason for continuing with a theft which netted him no return.

Bevan says this is perhaps the most logical explanation: "When a banker once gets himself out on a limb, he's stuck there."

Hendrickson, father of seven who was declared bankrupt in 1950, plunked the money into fruitless oil ventures and furnace manufacturing plants, said Asst. U.S. Atty. Bruce A. Bevan.

Hendrickson, of San Rafael, Calif., lived well, drove flashy cars, had a nice home and his own airplane, Bevan said.

From all officials have learned, Hendrickson issued one unbacked cashier's check after another to Hendrickson from Dec. 29, 1953 on.

Hendrickson, 30, was sentenced Wednesday to 15 years in prison for a stickup which brought him four sandwiches, a bottle of hair oil and some underwear.

For 73 Years, Never Got Around To Telling Her

By ROLLO BAYLOR

The Spartanburg Journal Written For The Associated Press PACOLET, S.C. (AP) — "Just careless, I guess." That was Jim Vanderford of Union speaking. He is 85. The object of his oversight was his sister, Mrs. Ella White, 80, of Pacolet. For 73 years Jim knew Ella was his sister but never got around to telling her. To cap off the surprise, Mrs. White learned brother Jim had lived within 12 miles of her over that long span of years. She also learned another brother, Louis, had lived and died without her ever knowing he ever existed. The first evidence of brother Jim came to Mrs. White on Oct. 3. The Spartanburg Journal carried an obituary notice of her sister, Mrs. Minnie Vanderford, who died at age 76 in Columbia. Listed among the survivors was Jim Vanderford, his sister Emma Vanderford and Mrs. White. Mrs. White knew about Emma and Minnie, but Jim was a surprise. She sent her son, Walt White to unravel the story. He found "Uncle Jim" in Union, spry and in cracking good health. Yes, he knew about sister Minnie and sisters Ella and Emma too. Then he admitted he was "just careless" by not saying anything about it.

Not satisfied with the "just careless" story from Uncle Jim, Walt White feels the story of the family tragedy in that Union saloon kept his uncle silent over the years. Brother Jim claims his long didn't dull her sharp good humor. She recently decided it was her time for the hereafter and calmly announced that to her family. Two days later, she changed her mind and said she'll "wait 'til hog-killing time." Not wishing to review the shooting and let other family members know about the way their father died, Uncle Jim preferred silence, Walt thinks. Whatever his reasons, Uncle Jim is now a regular weekend visitor to his bedridden sister in Pacolet. The revelation has also uncovered scores of other relatives and the Whites, who feel the close blood ties of their kin, are having a whole of a good time getting acquainted. It takes a lot of getting acquainted after Uncle Jim's 73 years of "carelessness."

Asks $1 Million In Counter-Suit

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — David M'Divani, last of the so-called Georgian princes, has filed a one-million-dollar suit against Virginia Kent Catherwood of Tucson, daughter of the late radio manufacturer Atwater Kent. M'Divani seeks $500,000 in compensation and a like amount in punitive damages for the loss of affection of his wife, Virginia Sinclair M'Divani. The couple was married in Las Vegas, Nev., five years ago. She filed a divorce action in Los Angeles last Oct. 13.

Piecing the story together, Walt, who is 55 and owns a small chicken farm, came up with this story: It was back in 1885 thereabouts, for no one is sure of the dates, when Mrs. White's father was killed in a saloon in Union. Shrugging off this skeleton which popped out of the family closet, Walt reasoned, "Heck, lots of folks died like that back in those days." The widow Vanderford then found herself with seven mouths to feed and as was the custom of the times, she put the children in foster homes. Mrs. White took the name of Ella Haney. Other children somehow kept the name of Vanderford. Even now it's difficult to decide just how many children there were. There was Jim, and Mrs. White and sister Emma who still lives in Union. There was also Minnie, whose death brought about the reunion and Mamie, Madge and the lost Louis, who have also died. Jim remembers visiting the Haney family years ago and playing with Ella and other farm children in the cool Sunday afternoon shade. Even then, he didn't tell her he was her brother. He remembers Mrs. White once gave him a shaving mug. Mrs. White, trying to recall this, merely reflected on the hard life of the farm family and said, "Now where would I get a shaving mug?" Mrs. White suffered a stroke in 1935 and has been bedridden almost constantly since that time. She admits the shock of having

Story Of The Hanging Tree Fast Becoming A Legend

By DICK BARKLEY
Durham Sun Staff Writer
Written for The Associated Press
DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — In a period when fewer and fewer persons are being sentenced to die upon convictions of murder, many courts are finding it difficult to draw a single jury from any locality which believes in capital punishment.

But to turn back the pages of time, to when the Biblical phrase "an eye-for-an-eye and a tooth-for-a-tooth meant a life-for-a-life, a classical example of immediate vengeance can be found elsewhere than in the lawless West of the last century.

Near Durham is a "hanging tree," a tree from which a man was hanged by a mob that knew no law except its own. It was a mob never questioned—for it remained unknown to the law through a masked silence which was smothered for many years.

Today, the invisible casket in which the story was buried in 1898 has become worn by time.

"The Hanging Tree" now is a 75 foot white oak, towering over its forest neighbors in a pine woodland at a site in Chatham County which could well be pinpointed as the center of North Carolina.

Below its branches, the remnant of a roadbed—much traveled at the turn of the century—now kept from being completely covered by foliage only by the treks of hunters as they stalk a bevy of squirrels.

About two hundred yards to the north is a dirt road which was cut years after the old pathway ceased to bear traffic. Four miles to the north is a small community known as Harper's Crossroads. And to the west at a distance of another two miles, there is the miniature settlement of Bennett.

The people — Caucasian farmers, small-grain growers, friendly and avid conversationalists. But despite the warm welcome directed to all, an air of suspicion is felt by strangers.

The age-old tale of the "hanging tree" is known by most residents.

The story soon will become a legend.

As a place and time where death seldom struck due to a small population, two persons were killed in a few hours.

The first to die was Nancy Martindale Welch, a 56-year-old widow and mother of four. Her only son and a daughter had married and left her log cabin home. Two younger daughters remained.

Her former husband, James, had died 10 years before, a victim of TB which he contacted decades earlier in the Civil War.

The second person to die in that area that day was "Men" Jones, a six-foot Negro whose age was estimated only as "in his forties." Little is remembered of his life except that he did not live with his wife and was continually looking for a meal or money.

January 10, 1898—a dark, cold and cloudy day, but little different from many similar days except for the tragic events which were to make it remembered.

Nancy Welch spent the afternoon at the farm of her married daughter where she aided in a "hog killing." She left shortly before dark, carrying a large cut of pork.

"I remember us kids watching her as she left," said Addie Lambert, a granddaughter now 69 years of age. "It had just started sleeting...we watched her until she went out of sight. We had never done that before."

Mrs. Welch soon passed near the home of Ira Phillips.

"Ira told me the next morning," stated 78-year-old John Lewis Hill, "that he saw Hen Jones follow her down the road scant seconds later."

What occurred then is mere speculation, for there were no witnesses to the actual events which followed.

About 8 o'clock, the widow's 16-year-old daughter, Nancy Jane, became concerned over her mother's absence. When no trace of her was found in the next hour, a searching party was formed by a number of men.

The sleet had long since turned to snow when—about midnight—the elder Nancy was found... a few yards off the road she had traveled so often.

She was dead. Her mouth was stuffed with a red handkerchief, and her throat was slashed from ear to ear.

The search was far from ended. The men left the scene and marched northward.

"Hen" Jones had taken his evening meal about 8 p.m. with "Boss" Smith, a store owner at Harper's Crossroads. He then had gone to the nearby home of a Negro family—from where he was pulled in the early morning hours of January 11.

The "hanging tree" was four miles to the south, and a few yards from the ruffled broomsage where Mrs. Welch had fought vainly for her life.

"When Jones arrived at the tree, there was not much use in hanging him," John Hill said. "He was tied to old Doc Street's two-horse buggy and drug clear from the crossroads," the deceased woman's nephew recalled.

The Negro's body hung from the limb throughout the following day, with icicles reaching from his feet to the soil below. He was shot several times as he was suspended in space, before being cut down.

The limb which supported Hen's weight was severed from the tree, and paraded around the adjoining communities, as was a knife found near the scene of the slaying.

Cherry Andrews, a cousin of Mrs. Welch and now 78, said, "I talked to Jones' wife, Martha Tyson, the day after he was killed and she told me he had beat her the previous morning and told her he would finish the job when he came back by that night." She clapped her hands when she heard he was dead.

"Nancy's hands were chopped all to pieces where she had grabbed the knife and he pulled it loose," Mrs. Andrews added.

From all reports, no one ever expressed any regrets over his actions.

So hushed was the hanging that the county sheriff presumably was never told, and if he was advised, he failed to mention it.

A hundred yards from Mrs. Lambert's home can now be found the grave of Mrs. Welch, alongside her husband's in the middle of a cornfield, all but covered by grapevines. The inscription on the ancient tombstone reads: "Nancy Martindale, wife of James Welch, Born Jan. 23, 1841, died Jan. 10, 1898, A light from our household is gone."

A murder, an accused man, a rope, a tree, and a group of men bent on vengeance—a western trademark as old as the first push across the Mississippi. But it happened in the east.

There's No Red In His New Rainbow

FARMER'S FRIENDS... Ki Cheol Ji, who fled communism and is now a farmer in India, pets his two dogs.

By R. SATAKOPAN
NEW DELHI (AP)—Ki Cheol Ji decided nine years ago to leave communism behind.

The 25-year-old artillery battalion commander in North Korea waded through knee-deep snow and ice to surrender to United Nations forces. He was one of 88 Korean prisoners of war brought to India for permanent settlement by the U. N. Repatriation Commission.

Today Ki Cheol Ji is well on his way to becoming a prosperous farmer on what had been 18 acres of wasteland.

The property was leased to him by a Roman Catholic mission. He has named it "Peter's Dairy Farm, Poultry & Piggery" after his patron saint.

He originally wanted to go to Mexico with four other POWs. "The Mexican government originally promised to accept us but we have not had a word so far," he says.

Ki Cheol Ji still carries a Spanish-English dictionary. He hopes "some South American country will open the gates for us, if not Mexico."

But rather than enter the fruitless life of a refugee waiting for the dream to come true, he set to work. The Indian government plot of barren, rocky land, he moved in last February.

He converted five acres into a flower garden. He bought some of the best varieties of chickens available in Delhi and now has an 800-bird poultry farm. He has a piggery of 21 animals and three buffaloes for selling milk.

His present net income is $210 a month. He expects to double this before the end of the year.

At the beginning, the Korean met with opposition from neighbors.

"Some people even threatened to beat me; they thought I was an unwanted intruder. I challenged them to come one by one and defeated them in open combat. I know the Japanese methods of boxing and wrestling, and the stoutest among them could not stand before me," he says.

"Now they are reconciled to me, and take me for granted; I am ready and willing to teach them how to use the limbs to their best advantage, and I hope one day they will come to me."

"India is a vast country, and there are 400 million people," he says. "If only the people could use their limbs in productive enterprises, there would be milk and honey flowing in the streets."

Unlikely Source Of Fresh Water

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP)—Utah's Great Salt Lake cannot be considered a possible fresh water resource at present because of the high cost of desalting, says Gov. George D. Clyde.

Clyde told the U.S. Senate subcommittee on Water Resources Tuesday that the cost of desalting ocean water with only 8 per cent salt content had been figured at $1.20 per thousand gallons.

He said Utah's 2,000 square mile lake has a salt density of about 23 per cent, second only to the Dead Sea.

The salt is so thick in the Utah lake swimmers cannot sink.

Clyde said, however, the federal government and the states should make greater efforts to utilize the waters which now waste into Great Salt Lake.

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—When Policeman J. Waverley Applewhite wounded himself with a pistol while target practicing, his greatest worry was about six acres of corn ready for harvest.

A Boy Scout troop offered to pick it on a Saturday. A man offered a tractor and farm wagon and a member of Chesterfield County's board of supervisors brought over a mechanical corn picker.

Tobacco Tips

S. J. WEEKS,
Pitt County Tobacco Agent
On this Thanksgiving Day, we might pause and ask what we are thankful for in 1959. It is well to remember that the Pilgrims had barely enough food and shelter to keep alive, yet they set a day for thanksgiving.

It is true, the yield of our tobacco crop was not as good as it was in 1958. But when we think about the prospects of the tobacco crop as it appeared in July when the rainfall was so heavy, we can be truly thankful that our crop was not drowned beyond salvage on a large acreage in the county. We can be thankful for the advances in technology that have enabled us to increase the tobacco yield in Pitt County from 650 pounds per acre in 1924 to 1921 pounds per acre in 1958. Similar increases have been made possible for other crops and farming enterprises in the county. We can be especially thankful for the development of disease resistant varieties of tobacco, for without them Pitt County could not have continued to be the largest flue-cured tobacco producing county in the world.

We can be thankful for the abundance of fertile soil, and the knowledge of how to keep it fertile, thus enabling us to continue to produce beautiful yields of crops. Without this asset we could easily be a hungry nation today.

We can be thankful for the educational opportunities provided for our children. Without knowledge we cannot progress as a nation. Our Pilgrim fathers saw this need when they voted the first tax levied in the new world — a tax to obtain the services of a schoolmaster, so as they said, "That our children growing up in

Tobacco Proving Again, That Fear Of Rabies Can Be Ended

By JAMES A. BROWN
The Anderson Daily Mail
(Written for The Associated Press)
ANDERSON, S. C. (AP) — The word rabies strikes terror in the hearts of thousands of people throughout the country every year. But the fear of a disease that causes death in 100 per cent of animal and human victims can be largely eliminated.

That much has been clearly demonstrated by the rabies control program started jointly by the city of Anderson and Anderson County on March 1, 1956. It is administered by the County Health Department.

Figures show the success of the program. In 1954-55, there were 37 animal heads sent to the State Health Department laboratory for examination. Nineteen were found to be infected with rabies. As a result, 109 exposed persons took anti-rabies shots.

During the fiscal year ended last June 30, 18 animal heads were sent to the state laboratory for examination and none was infected.

Ten persons in the county took anti-rabies shots during the year as a precaution because they did not know the identity of the dog which bit them, or the head of the offending dog could not be examined.

There has been no known case of rabies in the city or county since Aug. 13, 1956.

The program is simple and does not require a great deal of expense. The city and county each employ a rabies control officer, and they maintain a jointly-financed animal shelter.

Inoculation of all dogs is pushed by the health department, of which Dr. Grady Callison is director. Clinics are held once a year in communities throughout the county, with veterinarians giving the inoculations for a minimum fee. Last year, 5,054 dogs received shots in the clinics.

The two rabies control officers investigate all complaints concerning animals. They constantly are on patrol to break up packs of dogs running loose. They bring in animals they find roaming the streets and roads without a current rabies inoculation tag on their collar.

During the year the county impounded 1,595 strays or unwanted dogs. The city picked up 529.

The dogs are held for three days. If they are not claimed by that time, they are up for adoption. A person may obtain a dog from the shelter by paying a $1 pick-up fee and 25 cents a day board. The dog must be inoculated against rabies.

Darby Drake, chief sanitarian of the health department, says that now that rabies has been brought under control in the county, the department intends to continue to push the inoculation program. It also will push the picking up of strays, along with the quarantine of suspected rabid animals.

If a case of rabies is found in the area now, all dogs in the zone in which it is found will immediately be quarantined for 10 days.

Seawell Will Try Overtake Ruling

RALEIGH (AP) — Atty. Gen. Malcolm Seawell plans a trip to Washington early next month in an attempt to overturn a federal ruling which tossed out a new state welfare law.

Seawell said if he is unable to get William L. Mitchell, head of the Social Security Division of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, to change his mind, he may take the case to the federal courts.

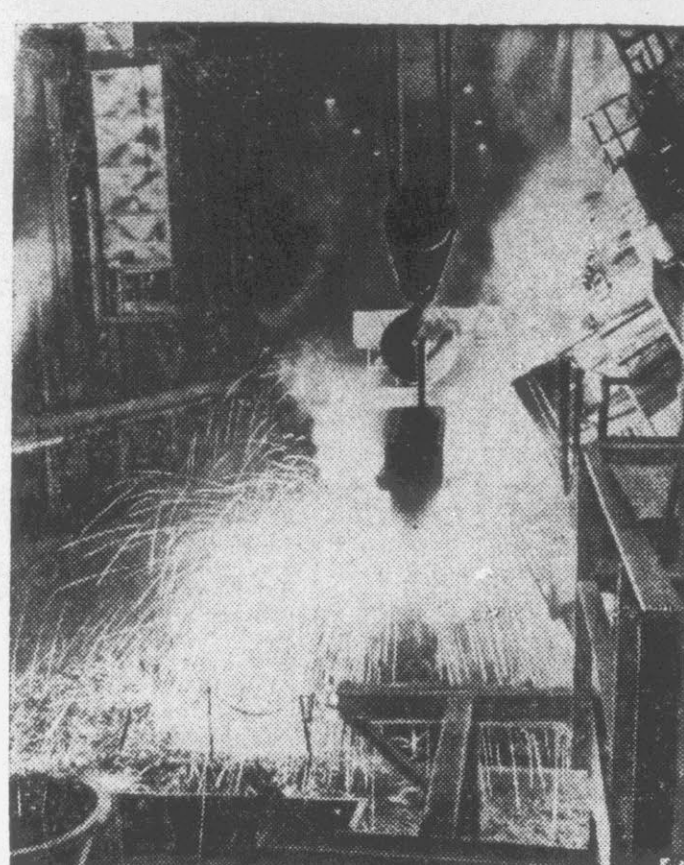

Mitchell, in effect, ruled invalid a 1959 state law calling for tighter supervision of the State Welfare Department's aid to dependent children program.

Mitchell said the federal government would withhold aid to dependent children funds if the state enforces the new law.

Seawell called his ruling "ill-advised and erroneous." The attorney general, in a letter to Guilford County Rep. Hubert Humphrey, a sponsor of the state law, said, "It is not the intention of this office to take this ruling lying down."

"Things have indeed come to a pretty pass," the attorney general wrote, "when a federal agency seeks, through the promulgation of rules, to make invalid a state law designed for the protection of public funds being spent on the needy children of this state."

The law included a rider which said it would not be enforced if the U. S. government threatened to cut off funds. The federal share under the aid to dependent children program is far higher than the state's.

Trouble Was, He Stole Machine

MILWAUKEE (AP) — When Llewellyn Culbert discovered the record player he gave his wife for her birthday was not in working condition, he hastily demanded that a department store service department repair the machine.

Repairs were made, but the only trouble, according to police, was that Culbert had stolen the machine from the store. He was found guilty of theft.

Sports Scope

by Johnny Hudson

Three members of the 1959 Rose High football squad were named on the Northeastern AAA All-Conference selection yesterday morning.

Being selected to the 22 man squad were half-back Alan McArthur, end Bert Aycock, and tackle Louis Dail. Aycock and Dail are seniors while McArthur is only a sophomore.

McArthur, the only sophomore named to the select list, played a halfback for Coach Bud Phillips and proved to be a triple-threat. His running accounted for numerous yardage and his punting would rank with the top prep booters in the state. Alan is expected to become one of the top backs in Rose High history during the next two years.

Although hindered early in the season with the flu virus, co-captain Bert Aycock recovered and finished the season as one of the top flankers—offensively and defensively—in the conference. Aycock was the top pass receiver on the club and reaped praise all year long for his defensive work.

Greenville coaches noted that Louis Dail could be just about as good as he wanted to be in their early season doped and the 195 pound tackle came through in flying colors. He proved to be the workhorse in the line and was a big factor in the strong late-season finish of the Phants.

Conference champion Washington paced the All-Conference club with six selections. Jacksonville followed with five and Greenville and Kinston had three each.

Sixteen seniors were included on the club and four juniors. McArthur of Greenville was the only sophomore.

Tradition Reigns This Saturday On Grid Field

By JACK CLARY

About the best use you could make of our turkey wishbone today is to use it as a guide in predicting the weekend's football games. This is the Saturday where tradition reigns supreme and where past performances and statistics are thrown out.

None of Saturday's games will decide any conference titles, but four could have some bearing on closing out bowl pairings.

The biggest battle, from tradition and national interest, is the Army-Navy game in Philadelphia's 100,000 seat Municipal Stadium. The game will be broadcast and telecast over NBC beginning at 1:30 p.m. Eastern Standard Time.

Both teams have mediocre records—Army 4-3-1, Navy 4-4-1. But both are at physical peaks for game powered by Bob Anderson, the season and the expected passing battle between Navy's Joe Tranchini and Army's Joe Bellino.

Notre Dame (4-5) tries to wind up its season even when it entertains Southern California, ranked seventh in the latest Associated Press poll. USC, which lost its first game in nine starts last week to UCLA, hasn't won at South Bend since 1939.

Mississippi, second-ranked behind idle Syracuse, can't announce its bowl intentions until after it plays Mississippi State. Presumably Ole Miss is headed for a replay of a 7-3 loss to Louisiana State in the Sugar Bowl.

Georgia, the Southeastern Conference champ at 6-0, winds up against Georgia Tech, and the Bulldogs likewise must wait until after the game to say in which bowl they will play. The bet is the Gator Bowl, Jan. 2 in Jacksonville, Fla.

Texas Christian (No. 8) already is signed for the Dec. 19 inaugural Bluebonnet game in Houston, but could spoil Southern Methodist's chances of landing the second spot in Philadelphia's Liberty Bowl.

The Liberty Bowl is reportedly interested in the Mustangs to meet Penn State, which accepted a bid earlier this week.

Miami (Fla.) on the wings of a three-game winning string, meets intra-state rival Florida (4-4-1) and a victory could put the Hurricanes (6-3) as the host team in the Orange Bowl against Big Eight representative Missouri.

Other top rivalries which defy the picking of a favorite are Boston College-Holy Cross, Vanderbilt-Tennessee and Oklahoma State-Oklahoma, none of which will decide anything other than who will say "wait till next year."

There are a few of the same to day, with four games deciding conference titles. Texas-Texas A&M meet, with a Texas victory giving it a share of the Southwest crown and insuring a berth in the Cotton Bowl against Syracuse.

Virginia Tech-Virginia Military meet to decide the Southern Conference crown, while Penn State beat Cornell to take the Ivy Title. A loss gives it to Dartmouth and a tie gives it to the two a share.

A victory by Tulsa over Wichita gives it part of the Missouri Valley title with North Texas State and Houston.

Duke and North Carolina meet in the day's TV game beginning at 2 p.m., Eastern Standard Time.

Other top games pit Colgate at Brown, Washington State at Houston, Miami (Ohio) at Cincinnati, Wyoming at Denver and William & Mary at Richmond.

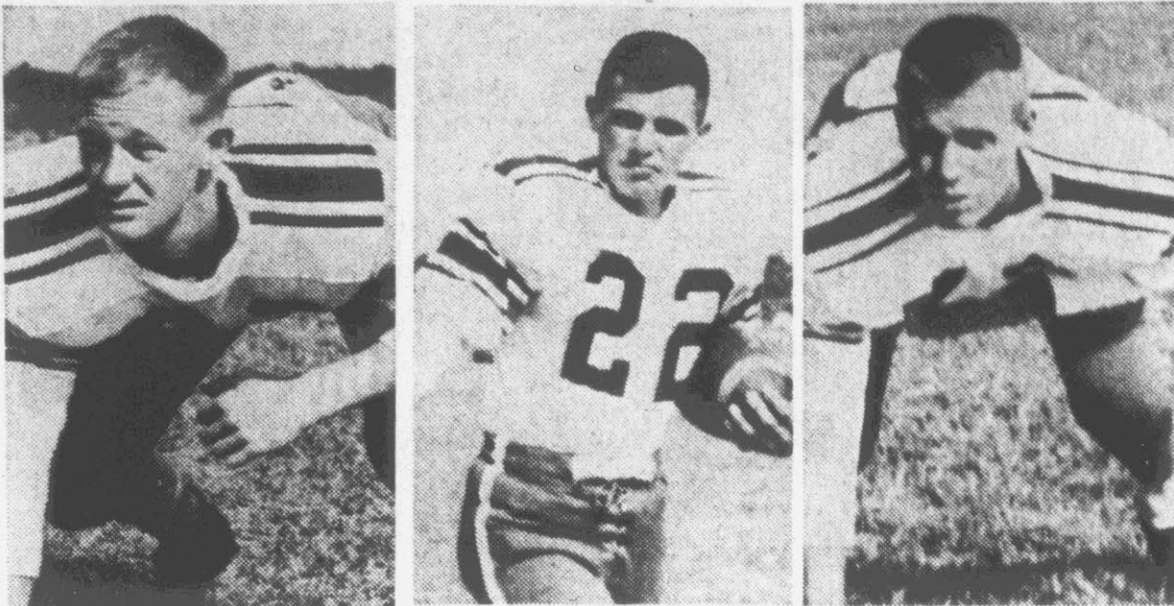

Palmer 'Hot' At W. Palm Beach

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The $15,000 West Palm Beach Open golf tournament gets under way today with all eyes on Arnold Palmer.

The Ligonier, Pa., pro went over the West Palm Beach Country Club course Wednesday in a 7-under-par 65 in individual competition in a pro-am.

He collected nine birdies—five of them on the front nine on which he set a course record of 29 strokes.

Honors Go To Three Rose High Footballers

GREENVILLE STARS . . . Rose High of Greenville placed three men on the Northeastern AAA All Conference club which was released yesterday. The three were left to right: Bert Aycock (end), Alan McArthur (half-back), and Louis Dail (tackle). Greenville finished the season with a 6-4 record and were 5-2 in the conference.

Navy Back Expects Best Game If Team Blocking Improves

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP)—Midshipman James Gateley Maxfield Jr., outspoken enough to be admiral, says the Navy football line has to improve its blocking Saturday against Army or else.

"We're going to be in trouble," Maxfield is one of Navy's two quarterbacks and until he suffered torn ligaments in his left knee against Maryland Nov. 7 was No. 1. Now Joe Tranchini will start against Army, but Maxfield expects to be "showboating" before the audience of 100,000 in Philadelphia's Municipal Stadium.

Play for 8-Man Football Crown

Bath and Carthage High School football teams will meet on College Field here Friday night at 8 o'clock to decide the North Carolina 8-man football champions.

Bath, winner of the Eastern division title, and Carthage, winner of the Western division, in 8-man football play both have fielded strong teams during the regular season.

out an Army game, has no reservations. "You get a feeling, I can't explain it, but we're sure of winning this one," he said. "I know our record (4-4-1) won't prove it, but I think we're stronger than last year."

Maxfield reports his knee has stood the test of running, but hasn't been under fire in contact practice.

Besides his injured knee, Maxfield this season has lost several teeth—same tooth from a hole in the front.

"I always seemed to get hit in the mouth and the false tooth pops out," he said with a grin. "So I said the heck with it, and haven't had another one put in yet."

Navy Coach Wayne Hardin isn't as blunt as his quarterback, but agrees insofar as "the game is going to be decided in the line."

"I feel we can match Army's strong points anywhere else—in running and passing. So if our linemen can do better than we have, we can fashion an upset."

at the helm, has lost several teeth—same tooth from a hole in the front.

Four ECC Gridders On All-Conference Squad

REAP ALL-CONFERENCE HONORS . . . East Carolina College placed four men on the 1959 All-Conference team—the most since their championship era of 1953. Left to right are the boys named to the select group: Lynn Barnett (center), Glenn Bass (halfback), Ed Emory (tackle), and James Speight (halfback).

East Carolina's touchdown twins, Glenn Bass and James Speight, paced the North State All-Conference club which was released yesterday morning.

Teammates Ed Emory and Lynn Barnett joined the duo on the 22 man squad.

Emory, a Greenville native, finished out his four year career here last week, holding almost every rushing record possible. The senior seatback ranked number two in rushing this season but his blocking and defense play made him the most improved man on the ECC club. Speight made the All-Conference selection in 1957.

Glenn Bass saw his first year as an ECC starter "produce 14 touchdowns and 833 yards rushing. The Wilson speedster became a star almost overnight and is now regarded as one of the top backs in the state. Bass was an All-Conference choice in baseball this past spring.

Emory, the 230 pound tackle from Lancaster, was named on the club for the second consecutive season. He made the club last year as a guard. The big bruiser is also considered a prime contender for All-State honors this fall.

Center Lynn Barnett missed most of the 1958 season with various ailments but gained his starting slot back this season and started every game. He made the "comeback of the year" for the Bucs and his play won him All-Conference awards. Barnett, co-captain in 1958, hails from Alexandria, Virginia.

City Championship Won By Midgets Of Elmhurst

Elmhurst Midget footballers copped the city Midget League championship Tuesday night on College Field by downing the Wahl-Coates team 6-0 in a hard-fought game.

Elmhurst scored in the second period when Steve Fuller took the ball from the Wahl-Coates 10-yard line into the end zone. The touchdown was set up by a well-executed pass from Dickie Wade to Jeff Jenkins.

The try for the extra point failed, and thereafter neither team was able to muster sufficient offensive strength for another score.

Elmhurst, which won the regular season play in the league, won the toss and elected to receive from the Wahl-Coates team which won the runner-up spot in regular season play. On the first series of plays from scrimmage, Elmhurst moved the ball from their own 35 to the Wahl-Coates 15, but there the Wahl-Coates defense stiffened and Elmhurst gave up the ball on downs.

Wahl-Coates failed to move the ball effectively and kicked out to Elmhurst. Then followed the series of plays which gave Elmhurst the only score of the game.

The remainder of the game turned out to be a defensive struggle with Wahl-Coates stopping the Elmhurst punch that had made Elmhurst a three-touchdown favorite before the game.

Danny Keel, quarterback for Wahl-Coates, Barr Coleman, Danny Joyner, Brantley Register and Charles Rogers provided most of the offensive strength for the W-C team, while Danny Murray led the line defensive play along with the entire line.

For Elmhurst backfield men Wade, Jenkins, Fuller and Mike Aldridge led the attack, while the forward wall contained the Wahl-Coates offense.

The game climaxed the Recreation Department's football program for the year and one of the officials commented, "We feel that we have had a very successful year. For the first time this year we had teams at Elmhurst, Third Street, West Greenville and Wahl-

Coates Schools, and in this manner we were able to have many more boys playing than in past years."

The official expressed appreciation to the students of East Carolina College who served as coaches for the Midget football teams. "They have done a wonderful job and we have been fortunate in being able to have young men of this type to work with these boys," the recreation official said.

Winds Whip Flames Over Texas Brush, Homes Burn

MARSHALL, Tex. (AP)—all kinds of fire fighting equipment but we just couldn't stop it," said Henry Fink of the Gilmer fire department. He and 30 firemen with high school students who were let out of school fought the fire all day.

"The only thing we could do was go from house to house and burn the grass out so the fire would bypass the homes," he said. "We did it to dozens of houses. The people could see the fire coming and some left their homes. But there was no panic."

At Marshall, about 10 miles southeast of Gilmer, a few fire-fighters spent the night in the fields east and west of town.

G. B. Warnsjaaff of the Marshall fire department said "We used water, we beat the flames with sacks but it didn't help much. The way the wind was blowing we didn't have much effect on the fire. The velocity of the wind was terrific."

Most of the fires concentrated on rural areas of the northeast portion of Texas. Others dotted the countryside two-thirds of the way across the state.

Fire burning along a 20-mile front in Louisiana, east of Marshall, surged to the south edge of Waskom, a town of 1,200. The fire was within four miles of gas wells in the huge Waskom and Bocker fields.

W. W. Nichols of Jacksonville, Tex., flew home from Houston in south Texas and said "you could see the smoke for 75 miles and all east, Texas appeared to be covered."

A railroad bridge at Ballinger in west central Texas was destroyed by flames blown from a cotton hull disposal fire. Damage to the bridge was estimated at $50,000 by Gulf & Santa Fe Railway officials.

Other fires burned across rural areas outside Texarkana, Jefferson, Kilgore, Longview, Tyler and Paris in northeast Texas, in parts of three southeast counties, in farm sections near Dallas and Cleburne, on ranch lands west of Bowie in north central Texas, and near San Antonio in south Texas.

Air Force Lending Husky To Serve Mascot's Role

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP)—A row floating in the Arctic Ocean 100 miles off Alaska's northern coast.

Washington's search for a new mascot started when the present mascot, Denali, didn't grow into the sharp-eared, furry-faced, curly-tailed husky the students thought he would.

Denali, a mixture of Malamute and Eskimo dog, grew into a droopy-eared, droopy-tailed, short-haired pooch, hardly a worthy mascot for the Rose Bowl game.

The Air Force, in offering its dog, Arctic Tramp, said it wanted the dog back once the Rose Bowl game has been played. But the Air Force said it would give one of Arctic Tramp's sons, born on the ice island scientific base two months ago, to the university as a permanent mascot.

Brig. Gen. Gordon Austin, commander of the 11th air division in Alaska, said the Air Force would send along as Arctic Tramp's handler M. Sgt. Charles Young of Tulare, Calif.

Young, first sergeant on the lonely ice island, hasn't been off the island since mid-September.

Three months ago, Austin said, one of the men on the island was attacked by a huge polar bear. Unhesitatingly, Arctic Tramp attacked the bear, but was knocked aside, unconscious, by one swipe of the bear's powerful paw.

But the husky's attack helped divert the bear's attention from the man he was attacking until another airman could shoot the beast.

Austin said Arctic Tramp, with some wolf blood flowing in his veins, is a powerfully built animal of the Mackenzie River husky strain famous for its strength and endurance.

Opened Freezer Door And Child Emerged, Alive

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—"I yanked on the handle and out tumbled a little blonde doll and my heart jumped," said patrolman Tommy Tilson.

The policeman told how he found a missing 2-year-old girl pale and groggy in an unused deep freezer Wednesday.

Kim Eileen Peterson caught her breath, blinked her eyes, then tearfully hugged the policeman's neck.

"I don't think I could have ever forgiven myself if I hadn't opened that freezer," Tilson said.

Kim trapped herself accidentally while playing in the freezer, police said. She disappeared while visiting with her mother, Mrs. Edward J. Peterson, at the home of friends. When the mother and her friend, Mrs. Paul Dennington, could not find the girl, they called police.

Tilson said he walked into the garage where the freezer was stored, turned and started to walk out, then decided to open the freezer.

Flying Plane To Distance Record

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Max Conrad, 56, the flying grandfather from Winona, Minn., guided his light plane toward El Paso, Tex., today to stretch his new 6,000-mile long-distance record.

He has been flying more than 48 hours, covering parts of two continents and the Atlantic Ocean.

Conrad took off from Casablanca, Morocco Tuesday. He smashed the late Bill Odom's 10-year distance mark of 4,957-miles when he flew by Florida late Wednesday.

Conrad radioed his Piper Comanche had plenty of gas. He said he would go on to New Orleans, perhaps further.

A hundred miles south of New Orleans—about 6,000 miles from his takeoff in Africa—he said his new target was El Paso at the western tip of Texas.

The added 1,000 miles would make his estimated arrival time 9 a.m. Central Standard Time, based on an average speed of 130 miles an hour, a spokesman for the Piper Co., the flight sponsor, said.

The record Conrad has set is for planes between 2,204 and 3,858 pounds.

He already holds the heavier Class 4 record for his 6,668 flight from Casablanca to Los Angeles last June.

Steel Industry, Union Spokesmen Summoned

WASHINGTON (AP)—Federal mediators, moving to prevent a renewal of the steel strike, are calling union and industry negotiators to Washington for meetings next week.

Plans to seek the renewed sessions were announced Wednesday after meetings of the mediators with Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell and members of an inquiry panel named by President Eisenhower.

"I am hopeful, as I always am," said Joseph F. Finnegan, director of the mediation service. But neither he said indicated that any real move toward settlement was imminent.

Finnegan tentatively set Tuesday for renewal of meetings. He said definite plans would be made later this week.

Members of the Steelworkers Union, which ended a 116-day strike Nov. 7 under court orders, will be free to strike again in January unless a settlement is reached before then.

Although the government has stayed pretty well out of settlement efforts since court orders sent the men back to work, union and management representatives have met occasionally.

Secret negotiations last week brought a new offer from industry, but the union quickly turned it down.

The union has insisted on a wage increase and other contract improvements which the industry has rejected as inflationary. Management in turn has insisted on a freer hand in fixing working rules—something the union says would wipe out gains it has made over the years.

The workers averaged $3.11 an hour, counting overtime and other premiums, when they started the strike.

A new rise in the cost of living index announced Wednesday may add three or four cents an hour to their current earnings. The wage contract which expired last July included an escalator clause under which the increase would be given to meet the higher cost of living.

The union contends it is entitled to this adjustment, but a court ruling may be needed to determine whether the escalator clause applies under the court order sending the men back to work.

Bloodstains In Disappearance

LAS VEGAS (AP)—Police found a bloodstained car Wednesday night which they identified as that of John L. Hays, 71, missing since last Saturday.

The car was parked at a market in Las Vegas. Officers were told it had been there three days.

Concern for the missing man rose with discovery of bloodstains inside the truck and on the back bumper and tail light. Police said it appeared an effort had been made to wipe up the blood.

Hays disappeared from his motel room. He formerly lived in Billings, Mont.

American Troops Feasting Today On Tons Of Turkey

TOKYO (AP)—American troops from front line bunkers in Korea to remote island radar posts in Japan feasted on tons of turkey and trimmings today. In scores of chapels they offered Thanksgiving Day prayers for the peace they guard.

Everywhere were the familiar tokens of America's day of thanks—mince pie, ice cream, dressing, relishes, ham, football games, bands and parades—but no cranberries on the Far East posts. The berries were banned by military authorities again Wednesday in a sudden reversal of an earlier decision releasing stocks cleared of possible contamination by a weed killer which caused cancer in rats in laboratory tests.

Rear Adm. Frederic S. Withington, commander of U.S. naval forces in Japan, kicked out the first football to touch off a giant American-Japanese celebration at Yokosuka, Japan.

Japanese college all-stars played a U.S. Navy-Marine squad with a 175-pound weight limit per player. A play-by-play account was given in both English and Japanese. A Navy man in Pilgrim dress led a turkey around the field.

Deep snow sealed off tiny American units manning radar sites at Wakkana and Nemuro, in Japan's northern island of Hokkaido, within sight of Soviet islands. But steaming plates of turkey were served.

Biting cold gripped the front lines in Korea. Special frontline community center programs were held. In an unusual reversal, the Buk Han San orphanage entertained GIs in the 1st Cavalry Division center.

In a special message, Maj. Gen. David H. Tulley, U.S. Army commander in Japan, reminded his men: "Let us not fail to hope for a lasting world peace which will one day enable people of all nations to share our manifold blessings."

Lt. Gen. Robert W. Burns, commander of U.S. forces Japan, told his troops: "You can be proud of the part you have played in maintaining peace in the Far East." In hundreds of private homes other American in the Far East celebrated Thanksgiving quietly.

OK Chain Gang 'Pass System'

SPARTANBURG (AP)—A judge congratulated a Spartanburg grand jury Wednesday after it found there was no law violation in a "pass system" which permitted chain-gang prisoners to spend time at home.

Said Judge Charles M. Pace: "There has never been one (grand jury) that has demonstrated more mature consideration and wisdom in office."

The grand jury's declaration dealt with County Supervisor J. B. Brockman's system of giving prisoners as much as two weeks at a time at home.

The "pass system" was spotlighted when Spartanburg newsmen discovered that convicted murderer Broadus Mason, 60, spent nights at his 86-acre farm near Cooley Springs.

After hearing unsworn statements from Brockman, Mason and reporter Jimmy Crowe of the Spartanburg Herald, the grand jury declared:

"The facts presented to the grand jury do not show any evidence that there has been any violation of the law involved in any action of the county supervisor."

The county supervisor is an elective officer whose duties include supervision of chain-gang prisoners and roads of the county.

Shakedown Trio Get Jail Terms

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—Three members of an unromantic gang who worked a shakedown racket at the expense of romantically inclined couples have begun six-month jail terms.

The three pleaded guilty Wednesday to charges of collecting $2 "parking fees" from couples who showed up for some spooning at a road along the Hillsborough River.

One witness testified the youths beat him and tore his shirt when he got out of his car to protest against the shakedown. Others said the youths blocked the exit of the road with a car and wouldn't let couples leave until they paid the fee.

City Court Judge Bob Johnson sentenced Daniel C. Fowler, 17, Luther Tucker, 18, and Thomas J. Beat, 22, to terms in the stockade.

Someone Gave In To Conscience

POCATELLO, Idaho (AP)—The evidence of someone's month-long struggle with a conscience showed up in Joe Trussell's morning mail. Joe, who runs a cafe and tavern, was waiting in a grocery store parking lot while his wife shopped. A sack on the seat beside him contained $1,300 or $1,400 dollars in business receipts—Joe wasn't sure of the total.

When his wife returned, Joe stepped out and opened a rear door to load the groceries. That, he figures, is when he brushed the money bag out of the car. That was Oct. 20. Wednesday he received a letter containing $1,226 in cash and checks. There was no note and no return address.

"We sure would like to know who found it," said Mrs. Trussell, "so we could offer a reward, or at least say thanks."

"It would be quite a battle with yourself to return something like that."

Recess Trial Of Accused Plotter

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—The bombing trial of segregationist leader E. A. Lauderdale was recessed until Friday after two witnesses identified the defendant as director of a bomb plot to harass Little Rock for accepting integrated schools.

The trial was recessed Wednesday night after Defense Atty. W. B. Howard became ill.

Jesse Raymond Perry and Samuel Graydon Beavers, both confessed dynamiters who have been sentenced to prison terms for their parts in the bombings, testified in Circuit Court that the 48-year-old Lauderdale provided dynamite and assigned targets for three blasts which rocked the city Sept. 7.

Lauderdale is being tried for the bombing of the offices of the Little Rock School Board. The car of Fire Chief Gann Nalley and the business office of Mayor Werner Knopp also were bombed.

Another witness, A. B. Rucker, testified he saw Lauderdale the night of the bombing near a field in which police later found a cache of dynamite.

Prosecutor J. Frank Holt introduced fingerprint exhibits linking Lauderdale to the bombings.

John Taylor Cogins, a third dynamiter who has been sentenced to prison for his part in the blasts, declined to testify under a statute of self-incrimination.

Child's Evidence Was Ruled Out

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The Pennsylvania Supreme Court says it doesn't believe a seven-year-old child is competent to give testimony in a court case.

In an unanimous decision Wednesday the Supreme Court reversed a Common Pleas Court judgment awarding damages to Dennis Rosche, who was struck by an auto in Sharon, Pa. Dennis was five at the time.

Justice Thomas D. McBride, who wrote the decision, said the judge "abused his discretion" in allowing the testimony of Carolyn Laou, a playmate of Dennis who witnessed the accident.

A new trial was ordered.

Ancient Romans prized oysters so much as a food that they imported them from Britain thinking to improve the virility of their troops.

Pitt ASC Manager Holds Important Position In County's Agriculture

LOOKING UP . . . section of aerial photographs used by the office.

CHECKING FIELD . . . measurements with an aerial photograph of the farm.

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
Walter A. Hasty, Jr., as manager of the Pitt County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Division of the U. S. Agriculture Department, holds an important position in relation to the farmers of Pitt County.

A native of Monroe in Union County, Hasty, as manager of the local ASC office, heads up the office which administers marketing quotas and price support programs for the farmers.

According to Hasty, North Carolina is the most agricultural state in the union and Pitt is the most agricultural County in the state, thereby making the ASC more important in Pitt than in any other county in the nation. "By controlling marketing quotas and price support programs, the ASC allots to farmers an amount of acreage sufficient to meet the future demands," Hasty said. He added, in return, we guarantee the farmer a fair price for his commodities."

The ASC is administered by a County Committee composed of three farmers elected by the Community Committeemen. These three men form a board of directors which works with Hasty for the betterment of the Pitt Farmers.

The Community Committeemen are elected by the farmers in each of the 22 ASC communities in the county. There are three Community Committeemen from each community. Once a year these 66 men hold a Tobacco Relationship Adjustments meeting, at which time they divide surplus tobacco acreage equally among the small farmers of the county.

Hasty noted that Pitt has the greatest tobacco acreage of any county in the world with over 25,000 acres planted in tobacco each year.

Prior to attending East Carolina College, Hasty served as Security and Investigation Officer with the Military Air Transport Service at the Washington National Airport in Washington, D. C. He pointed out that this is the unit that provides air transportation for the President and his cabinet as well as other government dignitaries and "military top brass." He accepted the job as office manager of the local ASC office after graduating from ECC in 1957.

Last year, with Hasty as manager, the Pitt County ASC office was presented an award for having made the most improvement of any county in the state.

Cushing, is the only professional in the cast. The remainder are people from the Plymouth area. ## Uses Her Fists In Defending Vanity

By SY RAMSEY
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The toughs around the Haymarket are leaving Margaret Borcharding alone these days.
"I guess I've had a couple of dozen fights in the last two years," the 18-year-old blonde says. "And I won them all."
Margaret, 5-7 and weighing 135, has been keeping in fighting trim since she began slinging potato sacks in the colorful market place at the age of 9.

Her ambition is to become either a school teacher or a professional roller skater.
Margaret formerly worked in produce stands after school. Later, for personal reasons, she has been unable to attend school and has returned to the market full-time until next semester.
"It's quiet," she says. "Nobody's been giving me any trouble."
Trouble, when it arrives, usually is in the form of a woman's cutting remark or a man's devious pass, Margaret says.
There was the burly woman, a regular customer at police headquarters, who made an uncomplimentary comment while passing Margaret's stand.
"If you want to do something about it, young lady, come on out on the sidewalk," she challenged. Margaret stepped outside and flattened her tormenter.

And once in court a capacity crowd listened to Margaret testify that a certain produce dealer "Touched my leg."
"I knocked him down several times and then sat on him so he couldn't get up," she told the judge.

Three produce peddlers testified the man was no match for the girl's flying fists.
The judge commented the produce dealer apparently got the worst of it. He released the man on condition he keep the peace for six months.
Margaret explained: "After all, a girl has to protect herself."

Worry Aplenty After Turkeys Are Digested

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP) — The last Thanksgiving in a decade dubbed the Fat Cat Fifties finds the nation with more to be thankful for than to worry about. But there will be plenty to worry about after the turkey is digested.

Prosperity is fairly widespread today in the United States. The international situation is about as quiet as anyone can ever expect it to be.

Steel output is making a faster comeback than the industry predicted during the work stoppage. But the strike effects still hold down much of the industrial economy.

Most publicized victim is the auto industry. General Motors has been able to call back some workers to auto parts plants. But Chrysler this week has had to shut three more plants for lack of steel.

U. S. Treasury experts say the strike-imposed drop in corporate profits and personal incomes may cut into tax collections enough to cause a budget deficit this fiscal year rather than the slight surplus they earlier predicted. The outlook for tax cuts is dim indeed.

And another—if scarcely as important—victim of the strike is the economic forecaster.

Guesses on the outlook for the first three months of 1960 are being revised right and left.

Some of this is due to the belief that it will be quite a while yet before factory inventories of steel can be rebuilt.
Much of the new caution is born of that great uncertainty about the chances of another steel walkout late in January when the 80-day court injunction runs out. If that should happen the date for a sturdy resumption of the manufacturing and construction booms would be put off at least until the middle of next year.

And adding to the uncertainty is what the railroads and the brotherhoods will do about their new contracts. A walkout in the transportation industry might spark a quick invoking of the Taft-Hartley law because the nation's health would be impaired if food shipments stopped.

Whatever the final settlement is in the steel and rail industries, costs of doing business will be higher for many companies. Wage boosts have been granted in several industries. And still others will come automatically next year under contracts already in existence.

Businessmen who want to borrow, home builders who seek financing, and consumers who look for on-the-cuff terms may well find the tight money problem still with them next year.

American exporters will find many bars to American made goods still in effect overseas. Domestic producers will still face foreign competition here at home.

But with all these trouble spots, good times are the rule in most sections of the land this Thanksgiving.

Idle 17 Years, Patsy Kelly Back In Movies

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "When you're hungry, it doesn't matter how big the part is. You just want to go back to work."

This was Patsy Kelly speaking. The same ruffled-looking, Irish wise-cracker who played maids, secretaries and heroines' best friends in those well-remembered films of the '30s. She's back in the movies after a 16-year absence and looks unchanged. But her outlook is different.

That's only natural, for she has had some lean times since leaving Hollywood.

"It happens in show business," she said philosophically. "So much of the time you spend waiting, waiting, waiting. The important thing is knowing how long to wait before you have to take action."
"I waited three years for a television deal to pan out for me. I waited too long. The wolf was not only at my door; I was living with him! And he almost threw me out."
"Finally, I decided I had to go back to work—or else. So here I am."

Since her return, she has played a small role in "Please Don't Eat the Daisies." She has a more substantial part in Warner's "The Crowded Sky." A TV series may finally eventuate for her next January.

Patsy is best remembered for a series of comedies she made with Thelma Todd. They had made 35 shorts when Miss Todd died in a mystery that has never been solved.

Lyda Roberti was brought in as Patsy's co-star, then she died of heart failure. The market for comedy shorts was dwindling because of double features, and Patsy devoted her career to features.

"I was under contract to Hal Roach Sr. for 11 years," she recalled. "He was a wonderful man and those were wonderful times. Laurel and Hardy were working on the lot then, and Charlie Chase, and the Our Gangs were being made. We all had a lot of fun."
"Sure, I was making a lot of money and I was spending it, too. Oh, I don't mean that I had a yacht. I don't like yachts. But I lived very well—too well, I guess. I didn't save a dime. Oh, well. I have no regrets."

Mandarin Chinese is the most widely used language in the world. It is spoken by about 444 million people.

CHAPTER 26
The sun had set and twilight was coming in slowly from the east when Blackpony led Sergeant Desportes and the two Apache scouts through a little clearing and pointed out a small, flat-roofed adobe cabin just below them.

and the sound of it jolted the Sergeant; he felt both anger and regret and maybe pity also. After all, Bud was hardly more than a kid, and if the story he'd told was true, he'd been kicked around from pillar to post since he was six years old. Bud was every reason to doubt it but somehow did not.

"Bud laughed. 'I don't know about that, Sergeant. She might not want to leave. Might be a good idea, though. She is sure going to get in the way from now on. That right, Blanco?'
Bud laughed. 'I finally met a man who calls me 'mister.' I'm coming up in the world.' There was a brief pause, then Bud called: 'Sergeant, we got to understand each other. What happens if I say she don't go back?'
'I'll come and get her,' said the Sergeant.

ed Bud. 'I'll say when you go.'
The Sergeant's heart was beating heavily and he felt cold all over with rage. Out of the corner of his eye he saw Blackpony moving ee-like through the grass toward the back of the cabin.
'All right,' said Bud. 'Go!'
With an anguished cry of relief, Manuela, stumbling and half falling, ran up the little slope and flung herself into the Sergeant's arms.
'He's crazy,' she sobbed. 'I don't know what's the matter with him.'
'Don't you listen to her,' said Bud. 'If anybody's crazy it's her. Damn, it, all she does is carry on and complain. That right, Blanco?'
'Oh, si, si, Senor Wiggan.'
The Sergeant called to Blackpony and they all started back up the slope toward the horses, the Sergeant with his arm around Manuela's waist, helping her along.

by the noise, came barking and frisking from the alleys, getting under foot and adding a comic element to a scene of naked emotion.
The Sergeant was gently lifting Manuela down from his horse. She was very pale and had fainted three times on the long trek back. All of the Escobars from little Juan to Grandpa Pio were crying and laughing at the same time, and many of the neighbors were now crying and laughing in sympathy.
There was continual movement, with people rushing about, colliding, hugging, kissing and pumping arms. And in the midst of all this the three Apaches sat their horses in dead silence, staring stolidly.

Manuela was hugged and kissed violently, then half dragged and half carried into the house by Mama and the other Escobar girls.
Sighing with weariness, the Sergeant turned away from the uproar and mounted his lathered and equally weary horse, Mickey.
'Olay! Olay!' yelled some of the men, waving their big straw hats. 'Viva! Viva E. Sergeant! Viva!'
'He was lying face down in a gully, dead of a bullet in the back...' the story continues to its dramatic climax here tomorrow.

Manuela was wearing one of Bud's shirts and a pair of his pants, with girls shoes; her thick black hair was tied back over her ears, and her eyes were dilated and staring.
Suddenly a shot rang out from the roof and the bullet kicked up dirt a few feet in front of Manuela, stopping her. She began to scream.
'Now hold on, Manuela,' called

His Nickname Is Now Legalized
PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — "Nobody knows me," said A. J. Nahorney, "without my nickname."
He said it was a bitter blow when the Sailors Union of the Pacific ruled nicknames could not be used on union election ballots.
Nahorney, 38, ran last year for the office of secretary-treasurer, hoping to unseat Morris Weisberger of San Francisco. Almost nobody voted for him, he said, because they didn't know who he was.
'I'm a rank and filer who is tired of being pushed around,' he said, explaining why he went to court and put his nickname into his legal name.
So this year against Weisberger on the SUP ballot in the two-month voting period opening Dec. 1 is the name he is certain all will know: A. J. Pack-Rat Nahorney.

Police Report Unfinished Story

CHARLOTTE (AP)—County police are having trouble finding a title for this unfinished story.
Patrolman Tommy Smith noticed a woman's car swerving on highway 21, south, Tuesday. She had "another man" in the car with her and they were sitting pretty close, Smith reported.
Smith decided to check her driver's license. The woman driver noted this and whipped her car into a service station, hoping Smith would pass by.
"Give me a gallon," she told the station attendant.
Then she gasped. Her husband had come out to wait on her.
We don't know what happened after that.

Decorations Are Going Up

STREET DECORATIONS . . . Clarke Stokes, Chairman of the Merchants Association Christmas Plans Committee inspects decorations to be used this year while a Utilities employee works in the background.

Large lanterns, red and white bells, garland-covered lights and fresh green garland sprays will compose the street decorations for Christmas, planned and purchased again this year by the Greenville Merchants Association.

Clarke Stokes, chairman of the Merchants Association's Committee on Christmas Plans, said today the decorations were being put up through the cooperation of the Greenville Utilities Commission and its employees.

The decorations, incomplete at this time, will include fresh green sprays high on the lamp posts. The Greenville Allied Florists have been contracted to make the sprays.

The multi-colored lights will be turned on December 4, the day of Greenville's Santa Claus and Christmas Parade.

Santa May Have Some 1960 Cars

By BEN PHLEGAR
AP Automotive Writer
DETROIT (AP) — Santa Claus will have some 1960 model cars in his pack this Christmas if auto-makers are able to follow through on production plans announced this week.

General Motors, which hasn't built a car since Nov. 11 and which has assembled less than 12,000 since Nov. 1, will begin returning to production Dec. 7. Full five-day assembly by all divisions is scheduled for Dec. 14.

Chrysler, which will have only three assembly plants running after Thursday, also hopes to be back in full production by mid-December.

Ford has returned to almost normal schedules after slowing down for several weeks. American Motors and Studebaker-Packard continue normally.

Since GM normally builds almost half of the nation's cars, dealers stocks have shrunk sharply during its idleness. Most GM dealers say they will be out of new cars by early December.

Ford reports a continuing shortage of its new compact Falcons. It has announced plans to convert the Metuchen, N.J., Mercury plant to Falcon production as fast as possible starting in mid-December.

Chrysler has halted all production of Imperials, Valiants and Dodge trucks. Valiants are in particularly short supply.

Rambler dealers also report shortages of certain models. American Motors says this is due to increasing business and production problems rather than a steel shortage.

Some art authorities have expressed scepticism on the value given the paintings by Amadore Porcella of Italy, pending examination of the pictures by other experts.

Experts To View Attic Paintings

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Paintings which an Italian art specialist says are Renaissance masterpieces worth 8 to 10 million dollars will go on public exhibit soon.

Attorneys for the owners and their agents said Tuesday night that differences among them are about smoothed over.

In a few days, they said, the 10 paintings found in possession of Alfonso Follo, Italian immigrant, will become available for inspection by qualified art experts and the public.

Fighting Mad Over 'Sick Comedy' Tag

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Comic Shelley Berman is conducting a fighting-mad campaign against tagging his work "sick comedy."

"Sick comedy," defines Berman carefully, "is comic material which violates what we regard as the limits of sensitivity — poking fun at a cripple, for instance, or kidding a typhoon that killed and maimed thousands."

Certainly Berman, a sensitive young man by all standards, does none of these things: "I'm a monologist, and I'm interested in people and their foibles — their embarrassing moments, their fears and frustrations."

"My listeners are in the same pocket I'm in: I'm making a confession of my embarrassments, fears and frustrations, and when the audience laughs, they are really saying, 'Yes, yes, that's me,'" explains Berman.

That, of course, is what makes a nightclub or TV audience roar when he describes his thoughts before and during an airplane ride: the presence of all the life insurance machines at the airport, the implications of strapping yourself in your seat, the cool, smiling reactions of stewardesses. Or the difficulties of talking to a child on the telephone, or trying to get through to the right person when calling a department store.

Mort Sahl, another of the new crop of comics, specializes in topical humor—"my job is to read the newspapers," says Berman—and although his monologues are larded with psychiatrist terms, they are in there as satire.

As for Elaine May and Mike Nichols, they are social satirists. Where one says "me, too," to Berman, one reacts, "Oh, dear, I hope that's not me," to Nichols and May.

But they are all very funny—at least a lot of people think so.

"We don't all laugh at the same things," says Berman. "But then we don't all cry at the same things or love the same things. The best a comedian can do is head toward a general area of acceptance."

Let Us Give Thanks . . .

With their ship, the Mayflower, moored safely in Plymouth bay, two of the Pilgrims who made the stormy 100-day voyage across the Atlantic kneel on the shore and offer thanks for their deliverance from the perils of the sea and arrival in the new land.

Giving thanks for earthly blessings goes way back to ancient times. We have the first recorded event in the Old Testament when Cain brought fruit of the ground and offered it unto the Lord.

The Bible says: "And when ye will offer a sacrifice and Thanksgiving unto the Lord, offer it at your own free will." Burnt offerings, peace offerings and other offerings are mentioned throughout the history of the early Hebrews.

The idea took hold among the peoples of Europe.

When the Puritans fled to Holland from England in the latter part of the 16th century, they found a people whose practice of thanksgiving was well established. The Puritans, a deeply religious folk, landing on the bleak New England shore in 1620, knelt and gave thanks to the Lord for bringing them safely to their new home.

One year later, Governor William Bradford recommended, as he states in his own words: "A Day for a Festival—that autumn in 1621, for Thanksgiving to God."

St. Lawrence Seaway Has Strike Threat On Hands

OTTAWA (AP)—The St. Lawrence Seaway Authority, already under pressure from grain men to extend the scheduled Nov. 30 closing date for the inland waterway, now faces the threat of a strike when it reopens the waterway next April.

A spokesman for the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees said Wednesday night that negotiations over a new wage contract have broken down.

"We have run into a refusal to bargain at all," said the spokesman, whose union represents 900 operational and maintenance employees. "If the Authority's attitude doesn't change, there will be a strike."

However, the spokesman said the union hopes a settlement will be reached before the scheduled opening next April 1.

The dispute, involving employees from Lachine, Que., to Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., is being investigated by a Labor Department conciliation officer. The union expects a conciliation board will be appointed soon.

The union spokesman said the Seaway Authority told union negotiators the federal government's freeze on wage increases extends to its employees.

The spokesman said the Authority also refused to recognize seniority rights.

The union has demanded a 10-cent-an-hour increase for all employees. It also seeks an adjustment in classification for about 100 of the 250 maintenance employees who are receiving various rates of pay for the same type of work. The union wants all maintenance employees paid at the rate of employees on the Welland Canal, where rates are highest.

The union estimates its demands will cost the authority $200,000 a year. Seaway employees received their last general pay boost in April 1957, when there was a general revision of pay for civil servants.

Maintenance employees, paid on an hourly basis, now receive between $1.41 and $2.35 an hour. On the operational side, annual salaries range between $2,800 and $4,500.

Cold Strikes In Border States

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A mass of cold air powered by strong winds moved in from Canada today over states lying along the northern border.

The cold followed a day-long snowstorm that ranged south and southeastward from the north Rockies into the mid-Mississippi Valley and the north Atlantic Coast states.

Temperatures plummeted in the wake of the Canadian cold air blast.

In northern Minnesota the low was 5 at several points, the Weather Bureau reported. In the northern Rockies, the temperature dropped 20 to 30 degrees; in the northern Plains, about 15 degrees; in the Atlantic Coast states about 2 degrees.

The snow and cold air were pushed by winds that reached 50 m.p.h.

The snow covered wide sections of Montana, North and South Dakota, Minnesota, Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin and Michigan, into the mid-Mississippi Valley and eastward along the Atlantic Coast.

In North Dakota, the fall ranged up to 5 inches. An isolated storm dumped 7 inches of snow in Erie County, in northwestern Pennsylvania Wednesday.

Denver had a 3-inch snowfall; Lander, Wyo., 2 inches.

The snow continued falling overnight in Illinois and parts of Indiana. The Weather Bureau forecast a blanket of 2 to 5 inches over the states Thanksgiving Day.

Filipino Charges 'Grave Harm' From Accusations

MANILA (AP)—A ranking Philippine senator today accused U. S. Rep. Phil Weaver (R-Neb.) of causing grave harm to Philippine-American relations.

Sen. Lorenzo Sumulong accused "some 'Ugly Americans' on U. S. bases here" of inspiring a blistering statement against the Philippines which Weaver issued on Wednesday.

Weaver charged that a "graft-ridden" Philippine government is conducting an open program of harassment of American officials and men and that American servicemen are subject to looting, extortion and assault.

The congressman, who spent three days in the Philippines this month as a member of the House Defense Appropriations subcommittee, urged that the United States switch its bases to Thailand.

Rather than be angry at Weaver, said Sumulong, "I feel sorry for him. I am even more sorry for the grave harm he has caused Philippine-American relations."

Sumulong, a member of the ruling Nacionalista party, said he knew of no immediate moves by his Senate group in response to the Weaver statement. He indicated reaction from the U. S. Congress was awaited.

Local press reports said some leading members of Congress here had hinted at cancellation of the U. S.-Philippine defense treaty in protest.

A spokesman at the Pentagon in Washington said Weaver's views "are not shared by the Defense Department." The chairman of the House subcommittee, Rep. George D. Mahon (D-Tex.), promised an investigation of Weaver's charges.

Last Rites Set For Mrs. Adam Gaskins

Mrs. Celia Smith Gaskins, 86, widow of Adam Gaskins, died at a local rest home at 2 o'clock Thursday morning after having been critically ill for several days.

Funeral services will be held at the Wilkerson Chapel at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon by the Rev. Sam Kennedy. Free Will Baptist minister of Greenville. Burial will be in the Mack Smith cemetery near Shelmerdine.

Mrs. Gaskins spent all her life in the Shelmerdine and Black Jack communities. She was first married to William Mills. After his death, she was married to Adam Gaskins. She was a member of Pleasant Hill Free Will Baptist Church.

Surviving are two nieces, Mrs. Rudolph Beachum of Aurora and Mrs. C. C. Smith of Raleigh.

Rap 'Population Explosion' Term

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Roman Catholic hierarchy of the United States says the term "population explosion" is a "terror technique phrase" used as a vehicle for what it called propaganda in favor of artificial birth control.

"The phrase, indeed, alerts all to the attention that must be given to population pressures," said a statement formulated by Catholic bishops, "but it also provides a smoke screen behind which a moral evil may be foisted on the public and for obscuring many factors that must be considered in this vital question."

The bishops said it is "simply not true" that artificial birth control is gradually becoming acceptable to the church. The statement, which largely reiterates long-held church doctrine, was formulated at a meeting of more than 200 bishops at the Catholic University of America here Nov. 18-19. It was published Wednesday.

American Catholics, the statement said, will not support any public assistance, either at home or abroad, "to promote artificial birth prevention, abortion or sterilization whether through direct aid or by means of international organizations."

Override Russia In Voting Debate

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The U.N. General Assembly will hold its annual debate on Hungary despite Soviet warnings that another airing of the issue will increase international tensions.

Overriding the Soviet bloc and Communist Yugoslavia, the Assembly voted 51-10 Wednesday night in favor of a steering committee recommendation for the debate. Finland, Israel and 13 members of the Asian-African bloc abstained.

Vasily V. Kuznetsov, Soviet deputy foreign minister, accused U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge of fabricating reports of brutalities in Communist Hungary to help push through the vote for debate. He said the Assembly was taking a "dangerous path—the path of straining relations between states."

Lodge told the Assembly he regretted to bring up the matter at a time when there is hope for a genuine thaw in the cold war. But he said "to attempt to sweep crimes like these under the rug will not cause these hopes to be fulfilled and will not promote peace."

Paul William Brooks Dies In Rich Square

Mr. Paul William Brooks, 77, died at his home in Rich Square Thursday morning after a long illness. The body will remain at the S. G. Wilkerson and Sons Funeral Home until arrangements are completed.

Mr. Brooks was a native of Pitt County and spent most of his life in Grifton where he owned and operated the Grifton Drug Store for many years. He lived in Greenville for several years before moving to Rich Square where he operated the Vann Motel. He was a member of the Grifton Christian Church.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Ruby Vann Brooks; a daughter, Mrs. M. T. Matlock of New Orleans, La., and a son, Paul William Brooks Jr. of Raleigh; and six grandchildren.

Chosen To Run Against Rhee

SEOUL (AP)—South Korean opposition leader Chough Pyong-oon was nominated today to run against President Syngman Rhee in the general election next spring.

Chough, 65, edged out Vice President John M. Chang by three votes—484-481—in the convention of the anti-Rhee Democratic party.

Photograph Recalls 1916 Convention In Greenville

43 YEARS AGO . . . this photograph was made in front of the Austin Building on the East Carolina campus. The group of leading Eastern North Carolina citizens were attending the 1916 convention of the North Carolina Building and Loan League held in Greenville. The League was an organization to aid in the development of the state. Of the group pictured above, the two Greenville men identified as still living are James L. Evans (back row, second from left) and Sam T. White (front row, seated, extreme right).

Test Swim

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Public beaches here may be opened to Negroes without a fight. Eight Negroes sought admission to Crandon Park beach Wednesday and—to their admitted surprise—got it.

They plan to try it again. County Atty. Darryl A. Davis says they will be accorded the same treatment. Davis had ruled earlier there is no law or rule requiring segregation.

Led by the Rev. Theodore Gibson, the Negroes went to the park expecting to be turned away. Gibson said the attempt was to have been the basis for a desegregation suit against the county which owns the beaches and parks.

"We can't sue if there's nothing to sue about," Gibson said while the eight Negroes, including two women, swam in the chilly water.

About 30 white bathers watched curiously. There was no incident.

Raid Scare From Exploding Bombs

MARYSVILLE, Calif. (AP)—The folks in the Marysville-Yuba City area ran into the streets Wednesday night when a series of explosions boomed.

"It sounded like an air raid," said one man.

Officials at Beale Air Force Base said "it was just a bomb disposal crew disposing of old ammunition."

Railroad Strike Threat Dropped

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A strike threat which could have crippled the Pennsylvania Railroad during the busy Christmas holiday season has been withdrawn by two unions representing 30,000 equipment maintenance employees.

The Transport Workers Union and the System Federation Union agreed to submit issues to Francis J. Robertson of Washington, a prominent railroad labor arbitrator.

Funeral Friday For William S. Harris

Mr. William Samuel Harris, 71, died suddenly at his home, 1206 Cotanche Street, at 2 o'clock Thursday morning following a heart attack.

Funeral services will be held at the Wilkerson Chapel at 3:30 Friday afternoon by the Rev. Rashie Kennedy, pastor of the Grace Free Will Baptist Church, assisted by the Rev. Henry Melvin, pastor of the Reedy Branch Free Will Baptist Church. Burial will be in the Reedy Branch Church Cemetery.

Mr. Harris, a native of Pitt County, lived in the Winterville community and in Ayden before moving to Greenville 15 years ago. He served in the United States Army in World War I. A retired farmer, he was a member of Reedy Branch Free Will Baptist Church, the Pitt County Post of the American Legion, the Winterville Redmen Tribe, and the Moose Lodge.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Addie Smith Harris; two sisters, Mrs. Letha Cherry of Greenville and Mrs. W. J. McLawhorn of Winterville; and a number of nieces and nephews.

Eisenhower To Soon Decide On His Requests For Overseas Aid

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower will decide within the next few days how much to ask from Congress for military and economic aid overseas.

Authoritative officials say Eisenhower personally will make the final decision on the size of the program before he leaves next Thursday for his 20,000-mile goodwill journey into 11 nations.

Top State Department officials appear confident the President will approve a figure slightly below four billion dollars—about the amount the administration asked Congress to provide for last year's program. Congress, however, cut that request to $3,200,000,000.

Administration foreign aid advocates are banking on Eisenhower to reject moves to slash foreign aid spending despite official concern over the record four-billion-dollar deficit in overseas earnings this year.

For the past week, the Budget Bureau has been steadily whittling away at a proposed five-billion-dollar foreign aid program which the State Department recommended for military, economic and technical assistance.

This annual item-by-item review is expected to be completed this weekend. The Budget Bureau-approved version of the program will then go to the White House along with any conflicting advice that Secretary of State Christian A. Herter may decide to pass along.

Architects of this year's program are somewhat unhappy at cuts already made by Budget Bureau experts. They are reported confident, however, that the final budget bureau cut will be no more than a billion dollars.

This confidence is based on what foreign aid officials consider the clearly recognizable need to step up military aid to both the Far East and Western Europe. Weapons shipments to Asian allies dropped to about $1,800,000,000 in this fiscal year, compared to a $2-billion-dollar average in the previous five years. The new program would increase this flow to about $2,100,000,000.

Additional military assistance funds are also included for Atlantic Pact countries in keeping with a recommendation made by a White House study panel.

The proposed new program maintains the increasing emphasis on aid to Asian nations including India. In making long-range plans, foreign aid authorities look upon this vast region as the increasingly critical arena of the East-West struggle.

Set Curriculum For New College

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—The trustees have adopted a curriculum for the new Methodist College opening here next year.

The Rev. Virgil Queen, chairman of the Academic Affairs Committee, said the college will operate on a semester basis and will award bachelor of arts and bachelor of science degrees.

The trustees, meeting here Wednesday with Dr. Stacy Weaver, the college president, inspected and approved the newly constructed classroom building, the first building to be completed on the campus. Weaver said other construction is proceeding on schedule.

Colored News

Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Lawson and daughter and Mrs. Georgia Patrick and baby, all of Winterville, and Mrs. Ida Murphy Wrighton of Brooklyn, N. Y. were the guests of Mrs. Lottie Belle Cox, 802 Vanderbilt Lane, on Sunday.

The New Bern District Union will meet at Morning Star Holy Church November 27-29. The public is invited to attend.

Seniors Hear Speaker

T. G. Worthington, of the Pitt County Board of Education and owner-manager of a department and variety store in Ayden, recently spoke to the seniors of South Ayden School.

Worthington's address is one in a series of talks to the class in connection with their latest unit, "Vocational Exploration," in the English class.

Following the address an informal discussion was held.

Disc Jockey Subpoenaed To Appear In Payola Probe

NEW YORK (AP)—Disc jockey Alan Freed has been subpoenaed to appear Monday before a grand jury probing payola in the radio and television industry.

The rock 'n' roll platter king, hunted by detectives all day Wednesday after he failed to show up at the district attorney's office, was located shortly after he finished his "Big Beat" record TV show.

Asked why he failed to show up at the district attorney's office, Freed told newsmen: "I will not volunteer for anybody. My grandmother once told me, 'never volunteer for anything.'"

Freed said, however, he would obey the subpoena.

Later he went on the WMCA radio "Barry Gray Show" and said he had nothing to tell the grand jury about payola—undercover payments to get songs plugged on the air.

In his radio talk, Freed said he never had taken gifts to play a record either on his WABC radio show or his WNEW-TV "Big Beat" program. Freed lost his WABC spot after refusing to sign a statement saying he never accepted pay for plugs. Freed has been fired from the "Big Beat" show but is finishing up the week. Later, he signed an affidavit saying he never had done anything improper.

He has denied publicly he ever took payoffs.

On the WMCA program, Freed made a distinction between payola and what he described as Christmas gifts.

He said he never had taken a gift in advance to play a record. On the other hand, he said, he had received gifts for "inadvertent plugging" of a record.

Concerning any payola offer, Freed said: "I wouldn't even talk to those people."

Will Look Into Discrimination

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP)—An investigation of possible discrimination against Negroes in hiring firemen at Chapel Hill will be made by the Mayor's Committee on Human Relations.

D. D. Carroll, chairman of the committee, announced the probe. The announcement came after three Negroes said they never received notification their application for firemen jobs had been approved or disapproved, or that they had even been considered for three vacancies which were filled recently.

Carbon Monoxide Kills 2 Children

WOODBURY, Conn. (AP)—Two children died and their mother and nine brothers and sisters were hospitalized Wednesday as a result of what authorities say was carbon monoxide poisoning.

Dead are Bennedette Palumbo, 12, and her brother Christopher, 9.

All but one of the 10 others were listed as in fair condition today at a hospital. Mansel Palumbo, 14, was on the danger list.

Passing Hunter Saw Good Thing

WEBB CITY, Mo. (AP)—Three airmen stationed near here were driving on Missouri Route 43 when they hit what they thought was a big dog.

Sgt. Harold Devoe, Donald R. Newell and Airman Jack C. Cole, started to search for the animal's owner when a passing hunter offered to take care of everything.

The airmen found out later the hunter wasn't just being neighborly.

He had taken the animal to the county court house and claimed a $15 wolf bounty.

Patriot John Adams, later second president of the United States, was defense attorney for the British soldiers involved in the Boston Massacre.
