Lanier Asserts Cancer-Smoking Links Refuted

"The alleged connection between tobacco and lung cancer has been refuted by reputable scientists but the big lie still persists."

This said J. Con Lanier, general counsel and executive secretary for the Leaf Tobacco Exporters Association and Tobacco Association of United States, this morning.

He was commenting on a statement by Surgeon General Leroy E. Burney implicating smoking as the main cause of the rising rate of lung cancer.

"The unproven allegations of the surgeon general in reference to tobacco and cancer is patently the action of a headline hunter with no regard for the truth," Lanier declared today.

"In 1953 Dr. Winder, who has had a phobia against tobacco all his life, announced that he had induced cancer in mice by painting their backs with tobacco juice. His findings were unsworn, unverified and unchecked, but they did serious damage to the tobacco industry."

"Subsequently Yale University Medical School, Medical College of Virginia and a scientific committee set up by the English government conducted the same experiments and failed to produce a single tumor on the mice. A second test by Dr. Winder, himself, failed to produce a single tumor."

"The surgeon general, who draws his salary from the taxpayers such as the tobacco growers, has willfully overlooked these facts, which he must have known, in order to get his name on the front pages of the newspapers. He has joined the ranks of those who would destroy a great industry for personal advertisement."

"Tobacco has been attacked time and time again by these publicity mad people. But the American public has now read so much of this propaganda against tobacco that they have about decided to stop reading."

Rioting Convicts At Camp Subdued

SCOTLAND NECK, N.C. (AP)—About 25 convicts, complaining because four of their fellows were placed in segregation cells, rioted today in the Caledonia Prison Farm yard.

The disturbance was brought under control after the prisoners ransacked the camp's yard concession stand, throwing out merchandise and breaking out window lights. There were no injuries.

Prisons Director W. F. Bailey said all those involved in the outbreak face trial on charges of destroying state property.

Bailey said the incident was touched off Friday night when power failure threw the camp into darkness. He said several prisoners threw soap from their cell blocks a guards.

Pray For Rain In San Francisco

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS SAN FRANCISCOANS prayed for rain Saturday.

Their prayers were but one facet of a gravely awry weather picture in the nation. There was a rare appearance of snow in east Texas and Alabama, temperatures Friday night of 60 in Boston and 63 in Philadelphia, and lashing wind and rain in the Tampa, Fla., area.

Friday marked the 70th day without rain in San Francisco. Roman Catholic Archbishop John J. Mitty instructed pastors in 243 northern California parishes to lead prayers for rain.

Los Angeles, too, was experiencing unusually dry weather. Only twice in 82 years has there been so little rain in the Southern California city for the period since July 1. This year's rainfall for the period was .08 inch. In 1937 there was .01 inch and in 1938 .02 inch. The normal rainfall is 1.82 inches.

Snowflakes filtered down on east Texas. U.S. Forest Service officials said the light fall coupled with cold weather helped control brush fires which have blackened 40,000 acres of pasture. Long-time residents remember few instances of snow in that portion of the state.

Light snow also was reported at Huntsville, Ala. Winds up to 48 m.p.h. and heavy rains tore at the Tampa Bay area on Florida's west coast. Several small boats were damaged when winds sent them crashing into a seawall. Other larger craft were swamped. Some residents were without electricity for several hours.

Elsewhere, cold hung over wide portions of the country. The lowest temperatures were about 5 below zero registered in eastern North Dakota and northwest Minnesota.

Ship Overturns, Rescuers On Way

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—A Coast Guard cutter raced through the Gulf of Mexico today toward an overturned ship believed to carry a 10-man crew.

The vessel, thought to be the National Pride, carried 400 tons of live ammunition to be dumped into the gulf.

A Coast Guard plane spotted the black hull of the ship about 60 miles southeast of Galveston, Tex. at 4:07 p. m. Friday. The pilot saw no sign of survivors.

R. T. Lober, of Houston, said a crew list filed with the Coast Guard indicates there were 10 men aboard the ship. He represents the National Boat Corp., of Houston, owners of the vessel.

"We have a boat that is overdue, but the capsized vessel has not been positively identified as ours," he said. "Our boat may come in yet. It may have been delayed by weather," Lober said this morning.

The Coast Guard in Houston said National Boat Corp. had hired the Suderman & Young Towing Co. of Galveston to send a tug to tow in the vessel. The tug left Galveston at 12:30 a. m. It was not known how long it would take the tug to bring the vessel to port or to what city it would be brought.

Coast Guard records show that National Pride has been overdue since 10 p. m. Friday.

The Coast Guard also said it is quite possible for such a boat to capsize during the unloading of the ammunition if the load is not kept properly distributed and if the water is rough.

Winds in the Gulf Friday reached a speed of 35 to 37 miles per hour, and waves reached a height of six to eight feet, the Coast Guard at Corpus Christi, Tex., said.

Betty Lane Evans Is Entry In 1960 'Maid Of Cotton' Contest

Betty Lane Evans has entered the 1960 Maid of Cotton contest. The former Miss North Carolina is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Amos J. Evans of Hooker Rd. She is North Carolina's first entry in the contest to choose an international fashion and good will envoy for the American cotton industry.

As Miss North Carolina of 1958, Miss Evans won fourth place in the Miss America contest at Atlantic City and was awarded a $1500 scholarship. The 19-year-old beauty queen is currently a freshman at East Carolina College in Greenville. A piano and voice major, she is soloist with the College Orchestra and a member of the College Singers and College Choir. Kappa Sigma Nu chose her yearbook sponsor, and Theta Chi elected her a Homecoming Beauty.

During her reign as Miss North Carolina, Miss Evans made more than 300 public appearances and traveled more than 10,000 miles throughout her own and neighboring states. She is a graduate of Junius H. Rose High School in Greenville.

If Miss Evans is named one of 20 finalists in the Maid of Cotton contest, she will take part in two days of contest activities in Memphis on December 29 and 30. The winner will travel to 30 major cities in the United States and Canada and to six countries in Europe. She also will receive an all-cotton wardrobe and a new Ford car.

To be eligible to enter the contest, a girl must have been born in a cotton-producing state and must never have been married. She must be at least five feet, five inches tall and between 19 and 25 years old. Deadline for entries is mid-

Wants A Horse, Not A Reindeer

MAYSVILLE, Ky. (AP) — A 5-year-old boy told a department store Santa Claus he wanted a horse for Christmas.

"How about a reindeer?" said Santa.

"No," the boy replied. "I want a horse to do some plowing this spring and I never knew a reindeer did anything but pull your sled."

New Warmth Among Branches Of Lutheranism

By TOM HENSHAW
AP Religion Writer

Relations are growing warmer between the massive, doctrine-conscious Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod and the other long-estranged major branches of American Lutheranism.

Leaders of the Missouri Synod and the National Lutheran Council met last week in Chicago in the first of several exploratory discussions aimed at discovering areas of cooperation.

Lutheran unity is not an immediate goal, both sides hasten to explain.

"We are trying to see how far cooperation can go," says a spokesman for the Missouri Synod, the second largest Lutheran Church with 2,200,000 members.

"We're trying to find out what we can do and what we can't do together."

"It's the first real break in the Lutheran log jam," he adds.

The areas of cooperation being explored are in what a NLC spokesman calls "external things," those not directly related to worship or doctrine.

Missouri Synod and five smaller Lutheran bodies loosely allied in the Synodical Conference hold that full doctrinal unity is a prerequisite for fellowship or free exchange of pulpits and altars.

Others have more liberal views of fellowship.

There always has been some element of division among American Lutherans, chiefly along Old World nationalistic lines. But lately Lutherans have been most active in intradenominational mergers.

The Evangelical, American and United Evangelical Lutheran Churches, all members of the NLC, will join formally as a new church of 2,250,000 members on Jan. 1, 1961.

The United, Augustana, Finnish Evangelical (Suomi Synod) and American Evangelical Lutheran Churches, also NLC members, will unite in a new three-million-member church, perhaps by 1961.

The mergers will render the National Lutheran Council virtually unnecessary, since its membership would be reduced to three- or two, if the member Lutheran Free Church joins one of the merged groups.

If some large area of cooperation can be established between the Missouri Synod and the NLC it is possible the council will emerge as a radically different organization, its members cooperating on a more limited basis.

The little Evangelical Lutheran Synod (formerly the Norwegian Synod), has broken relations with the larger church and the Wisconsin Evangelical Lutheran Synod (formerly the Joint Synod of Wisconsin) considered similar action at its last convention.

They maintain that the Missouri Synod has acted contrary to synodical doctrine by taking part in joint religious activities with Lutheran bodies not in doctrinal unity.

The most recent count shows there are more than 7,500,000 Lutherans in the United States divided into 17 church bodies, ranging from the tiny Elson Synod's 1,500 baptized members to the United Lutheran Church's 2,400,000.

When mergers currently underway are accomplished the number of Lutheran bodies will be reduced to 12.

Explore Uses Of Peanuts, Peanut Butter

RALEIGH — When every food penny has to count, it pays to explore new ways of using such plentiful foods as peanuts and peanut butter in low-cost, nourishing dishes.

Miss Jo Earp, food and nutrition specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service, says peanuts and peanut butter are well worth a place in everyday menus because of their high food value.

The idea of using peanuts often in family meals is nutritionally sound because they are important for their B vitamins and are high in niacin.

Among the vegetable foods, peanuts rate high in the quality and quantity of protein they furnish. High fat content of peanuts makes them a good source of food energy.

Miss Earp says that peanuts take up moisture readily. When you want all of their crispness, as in salads and sauces, don't mix the nuts with other ingredients until just before serving.

Because peanut butter is so high in fat, it can take over part of the shortening duties in breads, cakes, pastries, and main dishes. Keep peanuts in tightly closed containers so they will stay fresh.

Peanut butter hardens in a cold place. If you want to keep it soft and ready to use, do not store in refrigerator. But don't keep it too long or it may become rancid. If oil rises to the top, mix it in with a knife or turn jar upside down for a while to give oil a chance to work up through the butter.

For a quick, nutritious snack in the afternoon—try a nutritious peanut butter sandwich.

Shine and preserve rubber footwear with self-polishing wax.

How To Give Your Baby Right Start In Life

By DOROTHY V. WHIPPLE, M.D. AP Newsfeatures

A baby begins learning attitudes—of trust or distrust—long before there is any conscious memory.

A baby first becomes aware of things outside himself by the way in which his needs are taken care of. If he is kept comfortable, if all his needs are met, he comes to think about the world as a safe dependable place—a place to be trusted. However, if he must spend much of his early months wailing and asking someone to come "fix him" and when he does get "fixed" it's never quite enough or quite right, he learns that the world is a frustrating, threatening place, a place you cannot be sure of.

Basic Trust

This early learning of trust or distrust is a learning of feelings, it's quite different from training the body to perform a skill, or the mind to remember a fact. And because this feeling-learning is purely emotional it becomes part of the very substance out of which the baby is made. The earlier in life a feeling is learned the harder it is to change it. This doesn't mean that the feeling of trust or distrust acquired in early infancy cannot be modified in later years—it certainly can. However, the baby whose first emotional learning is one of trust has an easier time than one whose early learning needs to be changed later.

How do we go about giving our babies the feeling which will be of greatest service to them all their lives?

In the beginning a baby is only fully awake when he is distressed and most often his distress is due to hunger. A young baby sometimes seems to be just one big mouth with a few arms and legs attached. Eating is the all-important activity. But the sucking in of milk is not all there is to eating; the baby needs the sensation of being held, of feeling close to a warm human person. He needs to be fondled and rocked at the same time he is eating.

As the baby gets older he often wants the loving and the fondling during waking times when he is not hungry. When he asks for it, give it to him.

Baby Knows

Going through the motions of loving is not enough for a baby. A baby has an uncanny ability to know whether you mean it or not. If you are impatient, if you are irritated, if you are worried and distraught about almost anything your baby knows it and he will whimper and fret even in your arms. You can often hide your feelings from a grown-up, but you cannot pretend with a baby. He knows by the feel of your arms and hands whether or not you are relaxed and comforting or whether you are in a hurry and find him a bother and a nuisance.

There isn't any one way that's right and all other ways are wrong in handling a baby. Babies are individuals and want different amounts of affection. Parents, too, have thousands of ways of showing their love. Some parents are soft and tender, some are gruff and boisterous, some are sober and reserved. Genuine love shines through any mannerisms.

It is also true that the best of parents do get tired and cross, and there is plenty in this hectic world of ours that is worrisome.

No baby is ever going to have all his needs taken care of all the time and maybe it's just as well he doesn't. But if he has more satisfying trusting experiences than the opposite, he will grow through infancy with enough basic trust in the world to build a likeable and satisfying personality for himself.

Martin County Becomes The Fifth

Martin County voters this week took another important step toward promoting the economic growth of their county by approving the formation of a tax supported development commission similar to that which Pitt voters approved in May of 1958.

Thus Martin County becomes the fifth of North Carolina's 100 counties to pave the way for setting up a development organization supported by county tax funds. In the case of Martin voters approved a special tax levy not to exceed five cents per $100 valuation to be used for promotional purposes of the county. The county will also hire a specialist to head the work of the new agency.

By the action of its voters this week, Martin joins Pitt County as the only counties in the eastern part of the state to undertake such programs. The other counties, including Union where the idea originated, are located in the Piedmont and Western sections of North Carolina.

The fact that the county-wide approach to economic development is gaining more support in this section of the state is of significance not only to Pitt and other counties. Counties are not isolated by their boundary lines, and economic progress in one county has its influences on other counties in the area. Economic progress in Lenoir, Greene, Wilson, Martin, Beaufort, Edgecombe and other counties in this area tends to enhance the economic progress in Pitt. As the area as a whole progresses, the counties individually may expect to reap the benefits.

To a lesser degree the same is true for the three geographic sections of the state. Progress in the Western and Piedmont sections of the state is bound to have its influence on the progress of the Coastal Plain.

The step taken by the citizens of Martin County therefore is not of importance only to that county. It is important to surrounding counties, and the state as a whole, for it means another accomplishment has been realized that will result in further economic progress.

The more momentum individual economic development programs gain in this section of the state, the more they will mean in terms of progress to the section as a whole.

Nothing To Hide, And The World Knows It

Pitt County's Mental Health Clinic—important to a broad section of the state—should move back when the new director of the clinic begins his duties here.

Crippled in its important work in recent months because of the loss of key personnel, the clinic promises now to move back to its prominent place in service to this area under the guidance of its new director Dr. Philip G. Nelson who will come to Greenville from Duke University.

Though it is unfortunate that the operations of the clinic were interrupted for any length of time because of the loss of personnel, the County Board of Health is to be commended for seeing that the clinic's period of below-peak operations were kept to a minimum. Announcement by the Board of Health that Dr. Nelson will begin his duties at the clinic January 1 is good news indeed for Pitt County.

Since its beginning several years ago, the Pitt Mental Health Clinic has become an important part of the valuable medical services offered in this county. So far as the work of the clinic is concerned, it reaches far beyond Pitt into more than a score of counties in the part of the state. It was in recognition of the regional service offered by the clinic that the state General Assembly in 1957 appropriated $30,000 in state funds to be used in constructing a clinic building. The fact that the clinic's work has been at least partially interrupted since the resignation of its former director Dr. Franzoni September 1 is a loss to other counties as well as Pitt.

It is comforting to know that shortly the clinic's full services will again be available to the people of this area.

One Senator In The Presidency

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP)—Why in this century has only one man, Warren G. Harding, been picked directly out of the Senate to run for the presidency?

This question has special pertinency in 1960 when five men connected with the Senate will be considered for presidential nomination. True, the Senate is a grand forum for a politician to stay in the public eye. Perhaps the answer is right there. Prolonged exposure to public scrutiny of how he stands and why and how may be politically fatal to senators seeking the presidential nomination.

A forceful, aggressive senator of strong opinions and a willingness to fight for them against all odds will develop a following. But, because he is in controversy, he will create in tense opposition, too.

Perhaps that is why in this century political parties have looked elsewhere—to governors or lawyers or a general—and not well known and who therefore had not created broad antagonisms.

This reasoning, of course, does not apply in the case of a President seeking a second term. The door to speculation on this was opened this week with the disclosure for the first time of the late Sen. Robert A. Taft's own analysis of why he lost the presidential nomination in 1952 to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Taft put the primary blame on the backing Eisenhower got from Wall Street and the newspapers. Nowhere in his analysis did he note what may have been the biggest factor in his defeat. This was the fact that he was Robert A. Taft, a hardworking but highly controversial figure. His fellow Republicans apparently decided Eisenhower better fitted their needs or had a better chance of winning.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS-TRISKAIDKAPHOBIA

Let you don't know what the word means. It's a new word, less than twenty years old. It means fear of the number thirteen.

It would be hard to say how the morbid fear of that number got started. Perhaps it was because there were and are thirteen steps to practically every gallows. If the proposed new calendar is ever adopted, every thirteenth of the month will come on Friday.

Then get ready to build bigger sanitariums. It will be really worth all an educational career costs a parent if he can just be sure his son will be a psychiatrist. Trade along that line will be brisk.

I have a friend who will go around the revolving doors twice, or sometimes oftener, in order that a certain kind of "dink" be avoided. He wouldn't take a salt cellar out of your hand for any amount of money. You must lay it down and he will pick it up. A learned professor in our town used to touch a certain number of pickets when he walked past a fence. He would step over all the cracks in the flagstone pavement. Yet he was the acknowledged world authority in a subject so erudite that only he and two other men knew what it was all about.

To me the only superstitious custom which really worries and disgusts me is that of saying "God bless you" when somebody sneezes. Linking the Almighty's name to a silly phobia is just about the limit.

Now don't write me and tell me of the wholesome and religious origin of the custom. I know—and I still think it's crazy to be superstitious and to parrot "God bless you" or "Gezundheit."

You're Lookin' Kinda Peaked—

By HENRY HOWARD

Amazing Or Ridiculous

Maybe those things are common, but a couple of nights ago, I had my first contact with a "ouija board."

I'd heard of them, but had no earthly idea what they were for. In fact, if somebody hadn't been there to announce the thing, I still wouldn't have known what it was.

The letters o-u-i-j-a are lettered across the top of the board, but what I'd always heard was something like "weedgie board."

Well, anyway, it was a weedgie or ouija or whatever-you-want-to-call-it board, and it was either absolutely amazing or ridiculous. (I haven't made up my mind which as yet.)

It's a mysterious piece of cardboard with every letter in the alphabet lettered across it. All the Arabic numbers are there, too. The most amazing (or ridiculous) part of the outfit is a little oblong, heart-shaped sheet of wood resting on three short, felt-tipped legs.

To be as brief as possible about something that I, frankly, know nothing about, we began to "work" the ouija (we'll call it that to avoid argument) and with amazing success.

There were several couples gathered around the thing. Two persons at a time could "operate" the board and the rest just stood and watched.

Each person must rest his or her fingertips lightly upon opposite sides of the little wooden heart-on-legs. One must concentrate intently upon an unspoken question while the other party in the team concentrates just as intently upon answering that question.

As the two sit there with 20 fingers lightly touching the little vehicle (it really is a vehicle, as you will soon see), the little wooden table begins to move.

I'll admit, you have to see it to believe it, but that darned thing DID move. As a matter of fact, it moved until it spelled out answers to question after question.

Each time the thing would stop, a letter or number appeared directly under a circular window cut through the small wooden pallet. The sequence of stops indicated a series of letters or numbers that spelled out answers.

It was amazing! Everybody asked everybody, "You sure you didn't push it?" Naturally, everybody swore up and down they hadn't caused the thing to move.

I took the first shot at it, and it worked. However, I figured something was rigged, because I was playing it with its owner. You know how owners can be sometimes.

But, next thing I knew, a couple was sitting there astounded at the movement. They'd never seen a ouija before and had only tried it to "see if it really moves." It did.

So the evening went. Questions were asked and answered, and apparently satisfactorily, too, as everybody stood around the ouija board. Everybody tried it and ole ouija performed without a hitch for all comers.

The older persons there said they used to play the ouija boards when they were kids. According to them, the little thing moved for them just as it moved for us the other night.

I saw it move with my own eyes, but, that there's foul play (or something) afoot. I'm still very, very suspicious.

Rarely Ever, Today

By BETTY A. DIETZ

DAYTON (AP)—Boy meets girl, they marry. That's just about summarizes the modern courtship. American-style.

If she's lucky, however, today's sweet young thing with the stars in her eyes may be swept off her feet—as the saying goes—by a round of football games, a platter of pizza and a bit of woo at a drive-in movie.

Whatever happened to the old-fashioned courtship—complete with hearts and flowers? The girls themselves are to blame, judging from the results of an informal survey here.

"American girls are trained to face the world alone. They're so independent," muses Mexican-born Mrs. Adam Trapp. Even in Mexico, all the wonderful courtship customs are fading from the picture, Mrs. Trapp adds sadly. Reason, she says, is the presence of numerous exchange students there. The chaperone has all but disappeared.

Modern girls are too practical for romance, one young wife says, adding that hers is the voice of experience.

"I wish now I had insisted on some elegant evenings—you know, theater and dancing. But I thought we should save our money. We're still trying to save," she adds wryly.

"But even the most practical girl expects candy and flowers once in a while—maybe only for special occasions," points out Mrs. Jack Ellis. "If he forgets before marriage, though, look out."

A bright-eyed girl in a gray flannel suit, however, turns down on the formal type of courtship. This working bride, married last June, admits she delighted in the kind of informal fun her husband served up during "courtship" days.

"No plans for me," she explains. "I like to be surprised."

"Little 'fun' gifts rate higher with most of the young women than the more costly presents. 'You can buy good costume jewelry anywhere,' says one bride-to-be. 'I'd rather have a single flower or some little gadget. Maybe a stuffed animal.'"

One of her co-workers still treasures a Chinese back-scratcher from her husband.

A former small-town girl still gets dreary-eyed about a date who brought her gardenias from a plant in his mother's garden.

"The old-fashioned courtship might not be such a bad idea after all," suggests Mrs. William Blalock. "At least it would be different. Might even prevent some divorces."

"A man used to send out roses—the symbol of love—or orchids. Today he wants a blooming plant." "It has to last for a few weeks."

Mitchell blames the women, says their own practicality has nipped romance in the bud. "That's the problem, one recent bridegroom points out: 'The girls want to be sensible to prove they're good wife material, but once they catch the guy, they expect to be courted the rest of their lives.'"

Opinions In Brief

"Let's see now. 'Senator Proxmire has attacked Senator Johnson. Senator Morse has attacked Senators Kennedy and Humphrey. Senator Kennedy has attacked Senator Morse. Senator Proxmire has attacked Senator Morse. Senator Morse will invade Wisconsin to attack Senator Proxmire.'"

A Real Rumpus Come January?

By ELMER ROESSNER

Unless the steel dispute is settled within the next six weeks, you can expect a routin', tootin' rumpus when Congress reconvenes in January.

The blood pressure of the union, employers and the public generally is rising. The political interest of members of Congress is keeping up with it, and there will be more proposals to set affairs aright (and put the proposers in the political cabinet seat) than ever before.

Measures to put both unions and employers in their places will pop up like mushrooms after a fall rain. "They can't do this to us!" will be the cry behind many proposals to compel one side or both to give in.

Most sensational, and with least chance of action, will be proposals for a government takeover of the steel industry. This may get support from many quarters. But election years are no time to go socialist. Besides a veto would konk that idea.

OVERLOOK—AHEADS
Here are some more forward glances in business, based on analysis of trends and events, plus a dash or two of advance information:

Slowdown in loan check plans. Merchants are cooling off on those plans whereby a consumer can arrange a line of credit at a bank and get checks with which to use it. Retailers, who loved the idea of additional people writing checks, are now realizing that these credit checks are no different from other checks, and that if a checkwriter overdrafts his loan, the retailer is stuck. Most banks will go along with a small overdraft if the borrower has impeccable references, but after that, the joke is on the retailer. So retailers will take more caution in accepting checks against consumer loans.

TV set shortage. Some people may have difficulty in getting exactly the make and model of TV receiver they want next year, especially if it is in a metal cabinet. The steel strike has slowed production. However, there ought to be a full choice through Christmas buying.

NEW SMALL CAR COMING
Another compact car. A new small auto will be introduced next year as "the aristocrat of the economy cars." It will be seen in Mercury showrooms, which hints which manufacturer is getting it ready.

Joint retailing promotions. Noncompetitive retailers are working on a plan for joint group promotions. One department store giant in each of several cities may participate in plans for joint promotion of both hard and soft goods, perhaps using a common trademark. The plan is being discussed now.

Good housing year. While 1960 won't see another record in housing starts, it may be a good year in dollar volume. While total units may be less than this year, total investment may be close to the 1959 figure. That's because of higher prices, notably steel.

Better tires. A new additive for auto tires is ready for the market. It will reduce cracking in sidewalls, minimizing an important cause of tire obsolescence.

WE'RE DARING RACE, SAYS OLD PROMOTER
A postcard from the Old Promoter: "The cranberry excitement was just a warmup for what's coming. When the new Federal food additives law goes into effect next March, the yelps of food processors will make the cranberry cries seem like chirps in a distant bog. Then almost all processors will be in a bind." "Don't know what the cranberry people are worried about. Americans didn't really smoke cigarettes until somebody said they caused cancer."

Even before Walt Alston had guided the Los Angeles Dodgers to a world championship, it was obvious that he had done a magnificent job the past season. None is more deserving of the honor of being named baseball's 1959 Manager of the Year. He promoted the Dodgers from seventh place in 1958 to first after a bitter three-way struggle that was climaxed with a brilliant sweep over the Milwaukee Braves in the play-off. The studied manner in which he fashioned his team's triumph over the Chicago White Sox after that shocking 11-0 defeat in the opening game of the World Series was just so much added evidence that Alston had "grown up" as a big league manager.

The most impressive change in Alston during the past season was the confidence with which he made his moves. For the first time, he took charge of his team with decisiveness. He was the boss,

New Coaches Test Untried Teams As Bucs Meet Guilford Cagers Tonight

Two new coaches with untried squads open the North State Conference 1959-60 basketball season tonight when the East Carolina College Pirates move into Guilford College gymnasium.

East Carolina has had Guilford as opening opponent for several years. The team has a new coach in Earl Smith and the new coach has a new squad, only four lettermen returning. Coach Smith is a veteran member of the East Carolina athletic department coaching staff.

The opener at Guilford counts in both North State and District 26 NAAI standings.

Guilford's new coach is Darr Shealy, for 20 years coach at Thomasville high school. He is coaching at Guilford on an interim basis.

First start for Smith and his new assistant, Wendell Carr, with lettermen Ike Riddick, Don Smith, Benny Bowers, and Jim Hall, will put a lot of play on newcomers, including top prepsters Lawrence (Colton) Clayton and Lacy West. Clayton, Henderson lad, and West, who calls Asheboro home, are considered the outstanding high school performers and were eagerly sought by other college coaches.

Coach Smith presents the squad to home folks in three pre-Christmas games, beginning with High Point in the "home opener" on Tuesday night, Dec. 1, followed by Lenoir Rhyne on Saturday, Dec. 12, and Catawba on Tuesday, Dec. 15.

In the line-up Smith will present two seniors, Ike Riddick, Greenville boy, and Harold Simpson, Beaufort; three juniors, Don Smith, Portsmouth, Va., Jim Hall, Burgaw, and Everette Baker, Broadway; four sophomores, Benny Bowers, Burlington; Dave Starrett, Crateron; Charles Lewis, Kinston; and Don Webb, Stan-tonburg.

On the roster, the following freshmen names appear: Lawrence Clayton, Henderson; Lacy West, Asheboro; Fred Fowler, Winston-Salem; Sherman Adcock, Henderson; Malvern Boyette, Lucama; Owen Bradshaw, Arlington, Va.; Dwight Frazier, Henderson; Jimmy Fornes, Greenville; Jimmy Harris, Portsmouth, Va.; Nolan Respass, Pantego; Buddy Wyatt, Portsmouth, Va.

Beaufort High's Seadogs advanced to the State Class A finals last night by pushing over the game's only touchdown with four seconds remaining and defeating previously-unbeaten Norlina, 7-0.

Quarterback Butch Hays well sneaked the ball across from less than a yard out to give Beaufort its third straight playoff victory over undefeated competition. Ray Hassell, Seadog halfback, carried across for the extra point on a pitchout and end sweep.

Norlina, which carried a 10-game victory string into last night's game, drove to the Beaufort 3 to pose its only serious threat of the game. The Warren County team then fumbled and the alert Seadogs recovered the ball in the shadow of their own goal posts.

Both teams moved the ball well between the 20-yard stripes; but 16th defense units rose up to stop drive after drive inside the final 20 yards.

Beaufort employed both the "T" and "Winged T" formations successfully. Norlina used the same pair but also gave a small crowd at College Stadium here a look at the "I" formation.

Coach Bob Price's Norlina eleven had advanced to last night's playoff by beating Benvenue, 13-7, and Murfreesboro, 19-18.

Beaufort, Coastal Conference champs, had previously beaten Erwin, 12-0, and squeezed by Mt. Olive by winning a yardage duel. Coach Curtis Lancaster's Seadogs coached the Mt. Olive team to a scoreless tie but amassed a greater total offense figure, bringing victory to the Coastal squad.

Beaufort will play the winner of the Andrews-Allen Jay playoff for the State Class A title next Friday in Beaufort.

Lancaster is a 1959 graduate of East Carolina College.

Army, Navy Seek End Frustration

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Army and Navy, each seeking to salvage something from disappointing and frustrating seasons, clash here today in their 60th annual football classic.

Although neither team this year is bidding for national or sectional honors as in recent seasons, the usual sellout crowd of 100,000 is expected to jam the Municipal Stadium.

Army, a six-point favorite in this nationally televised (NBC) game, brings an undistinguished 4-3-1 record into town, a far cry from last year's unbeaten unit. The nation's No. 3 team a year ago, Army's fine prospects for 1959 have been buried under an unprecedented rash of injuries—23 in all.

Navy's lot has been slightly worse. The Middies are 4-4-1, and head Coach Wayne Hardin makes no bones that only a victory over Army can wipe out the disappointment past.

Hardin and Army Coach Dale Hall both are in their first seasons at the helm of the service academy teams. Hardin succeeded Eddie Erdelatz at Navy and Hall replaced Col. Earl (Red) Blaik. It will be the first time since 1926 that new coaches sit on both in this game.

The game has been billed by both coaches as a wide open, offensive duel with plenty of passing in prospect.

Navy has two accurate aerialists, Joe Tranchini and Jim Maxfield. Army has the good right arm of Joe Caldwell. Maxfield, who has been out in recent games with torn knee ligaments, is expected to play brightly.

It's Up To Brodie To Defeat Odds

By JIM KENSIL

Associated Press Sports Writer

Slim John Brodie was just 13 years old when a couple of quarterbacks named Otto Graham and Frankie Albert played in the final game of the old All-America Conference.

Otto's Cleveland Browns beat Frankie's San Francisco 49ers 21-7 on Dec. 11, 1949, and both came into the National Football League the following season.

Now, Otto and Frankie have retired but nothing else has changed much. The Browns are solid 10-point favorites to whip the 49ers Sunday in the feature of a five-game NFL card.

It's sub Brodie's job to upset the odds and keep the sagging 49ers atop the Western Conference. The 49ers, who hold only three victories in 13 games with Cleveland, are tied with defending NFL Champion Baltimore Colts for first in the West.

Both have 6-3 records with three games to play, but the Colts have a very healthy Johnny Unitas to run their attack while Y. A. Tittle, San Francisco's No. 1 signal-caller, is out with an injured right knee, possibly for the rest of the season.

The Browns, who finished ahead of runner-up San Francisco in all four years of the All-America's existence, need the victory to keep within range of the New York Giants in the Eastern Conference. The Browns have won seven of nine Eastern titles since joining the NFL. The Giants won in '56 and last year and their current 7-2 record is a game better than the Browns.

The Giants are favored to keep the lead by 10 points over the Washington Redskins (3-6) and New York Colts rate the same edge over the Los Angeles Rams (2-7) at Baltimore.

Longshot Eastern contender Philadelphia runs into the latest-starting Steelers at Pittsburgh, and the Eagles are four-point underdogs. Although the Eagles are tied with the Browns at 6-3

Coach Decides It Time To Take A Year Of Rest

By HARRY JUPITER

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—What happens when a basketball coach decides he's not doing as well as he should? When he finds himself becoming irritable and sleepless?

Phil Woolpert, at 43 one of the nation's most successful coaches, decided to take a one-year leave of absence from the University of San Francisco to "stand back and take a good healthy look at the whole situation."

The reason: "Tension, pure and simple. Here we are, three days before the season even begins and I can't sleep. I talked to the people at USF and to my doctor Wednesday. The doctor said I would get away from the whole thing for a year."

Woolpert's announcement came late Friday.

The young defensive strategist produced two national championship teams during his nine years as head coach at USF. At one stretch, from Dec. 15, 1954, to Dec. 17, 1956, Woolpert's green-jerseyed Dons won 60 straight games—the intercollegiate record.

Woolpert, a perfectionist, has steam. "Up to five years ago," he said, "I would rant and rave on the bench. Then our league, the West Coast Athletic Conference, put in a rule that the coaches should behave themselves on the bench.

"In most ways it's a good rule. In some ways it isn't. At least we used to let off what was boiling up inside."

What does Woolpert, a man with four children, do now?

"I really don't know. Something with people, I hope. Perhaps in social service. But outside of coaching, I have no specific training."

Ross Giudice, Woolpert's assistant, a former freshman coach and one-time USF star, took over as head coach. The Dons open their season against Stanford Tuesday night.

ACC All But Finishes Season

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Atlantic Coast Conference all but wraps up its season today with two games, Clemson at Furman and South Carolina vs. Wake Forest at Charlotte, N.C.

Clemson, 7-2 for the season and the ACC champions, needed to defeat Furman to stay in the running for a possible bowl bid. South Carolina sought to finish in a second place tie in its game with Wake Forest.

Furman, 3-6 for the season, has not beaten Clemson in more than 20 years. In the second year of a rebuilding program, the Hurricanes were not expected to be a match for the powerful Tigers, ranked 14th nationally.

Clemson went into the game with only losses to Georgia Tech and Maryland marring its record. The Tigers were under consideration by the Blue Bonnet and the Liberty bowls, two new ones, and the Gator Bowl.

South Carolina, 4-2 in the ACC and 6-3 overall, could tie the North Carolina for second place in the ACC with a win over Wake Forest. The game was expected to be close, pitting the strong Gamecock running attack against the passing of Wake Forest's Norman Sneed.

One game remains after today's games. That one sends North Carolina State to Maryland.

Miteff Loses In Split Decision

NEW YORK (AP)—Billy Hunter, a split decision winner over Argentina's Alex Miteff, moves on to a Dec. 18 match with Eddie Machen if things go according to schedule.

Teddy Brenner, Madison Square Garden matchmaker, said he had a wire from Machen's manager agreeing to let his heavyweight meet the winner of Friday night's Garden 10-round match.

George Gainford, who handles Hunter's affairs, will leap at a match with Machen. The Redding, Calif. scrapper is ranked No. 4 among the contenders for Ingemar Johansson's crown. Hunter is No. 7.

Miteff, wearing a long patch to cover the deep cut over his left eye, didn't agree with the split decision for Hunter.

"He run away. He no fight," Miteff said. "I thought I was winning easy to the seventh round. I knocked him down in the ninth. So, I didn't win the last round but I thought I won the fight."

Judge Charlie Rosen agreed. He had Miteff ahead 6-4. But Referee Euby Goldstein (5-4-1) and Judge Leo Burnham (6-4) made Hunter the winner. The AP card was 5-4-1 for Hunter, who got off fast in each round except the first when he was confused by Miteff's switch to a southpaw style.

Hunter weighed 191½, and Miteff 203½.

Surprise Entry In Race To Set Land Speed Mark

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—A local garage operator has declared himself a surprise entrant in the race to set a new American land speed record.

Athol Graham, a 35-year-old former Mormon missionary, said Friday he'll take his homemade, 2,000-horsepower streamlined racer onto western Utah's salt flats Sunday to launch his attack on the mark.

America's land speed record was set last fall by Mickey Thompson, El Monte, Calif., who averaged 345.33 miles an hour in two runs over the Utah flats. Two runs are required to establish a speed mark.

About that time, Graham got his racer up to about 280 m.p.h. but had to call off the test when his cockpit canopy blew off and a minor cooling problem developed.

Graham—like Thompson—hopes someday to break the absolute land speed record set in 1947 by the late John Cobb of England. Cobb averaged 394.2 m.p.h. in his two runs over the salt flats—topping the magic 400 m.p.h. barrier in one of the runs.

Brown Hopes His Trainer Silent

HOUSTON (AP)—Joe Brown hopes trainer Bill Gore won't be speaking to him during the lightweight championship's title fight with Dave Charney Wednesday night.

"As long as Mr. Bill doesn't say anything to me in between rounds, I know I'm doing all right," Brown says. "He lets me fight my own fight."

"BUT IF I'm not doing so good, he'll give me a little advice. Or he'll tell me I need to win this talk to me Wednesday night."

The Baton Rouge, La., Negro met the press Friday—including nine with a British accent. Joe was prepared. He sprinkled the word "bloke" throughout.

Observers generally agreed that if he's as sharp against Charney as he was against sports writers he'll retain his championship.

Brown said he has no qualms about the British Empire champion's left. "I've fought four left-handers and Kenny Lane was the only one who went the distance," he said.

And, no, he hasn't seen the films of the Willie Towel-Charnley fight in which the latter took the empire title last May.

"I couldn't learn anything from them," Brown said. "The best way is not to know anything about who you're going to fight, and for him not to know anything about you."

Lenoir Rhyne Is Voted Top Small College Eleven

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)—Undeclared Lenoir Rhyne is the nation's No. 1 small college football team.

The Bears, who have won 17 straight games including nine this season, received a record 326 points in a poll of the National Assn. of Intercollegiate Athletics.

Lenoir Rhyne, the North State Conference champion for the fifth straight year, will play in the NAAI playoffs. The Bears will host Southern Connecticut Dec. 5 for the Eastern NAAI title. Suggests Game If Clemson, Georgia Are Passed Up

GREENWOOD, S.C. (AP)—Rep. William Jennings Bryan Dorn (D-SC) believes that the University of Georgia and Clemson College should play a post season football game if they continue "to be by-passed in major bowl consideration."

Such a meeting, said Dorn, would determine "the true Southern champion."

The South Carolina congressman suggested that the game be played at either Atlanta, Athens, Ga., or Clemson.

Georgia, which already has clinched the Southeast Conference championship, and Clemson, the Atlantic Coast Conference champion, complete their regular seasons today. Both schools have been mentioned as possible participants in post season bowl games.

The Other Day

We heard about one for the book, when considering how some nations get a change in government. It seems that this happened in Bangkok, in the 1958 bloodless coup by Thailand's Army chief. The country's 32 cabinet ministers didn't even know any change was taking place, until they were all suddenly ordered by the Army to appear at headquarters to meet their new boss, Field Marshal Sarit.

There they were told: "The Supreme Commander will have your resignations at 12 noon. Please synchronize your watches. The time is now 9:22."

That's one of various ways in many countries of the world that overnight the lives and fortunes of millions of people can be drastically changed, sometimes for good, sometimes for bad.

With that kind of world backdrop, our democratic government stands out as a shining example of stability, for which we cannot be sufficiently thankful.

Stability is the quality of being steady, as a result of being well established and experienced, and is important in business as in government.

You will enjoy the resulting benefits of stability in the form of top satisfaction, when you allow us to serve all your automobile needs.

Tune in to action...

Chairman Bill B. Drum invited the Kiwanians to attend services at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church next Sunday night at 7:30 when Rev. A. Purnell Bailey, nationally known Methodist minister and author of Richmond, Va., comes here to preach in a week of evangelistic meetings.

President Collins announced that 1960 president-elect Charles P. Gaskins will hold a training session for new and old Kiwanis club members at the Elks Home next Thursday night at 6:30. The December Kiwanis directors meeting will follow, with Director Eli Bloom and Vice-president Gaskins as hosts at supper.

New officers for 1960, in addition to President Gaskins, are W. O. (Bill) Moore, vice-president, and J. T. Snowden, secretary-treasurer. Hold-over directors are Harry R. Billica, Eli Bloom, Leonard P. Bloxam and W. O. Moore. New directors are: Louis E. Clark, Don C. Conley, Roscoe King and James C. Lanier.

Last night, Kiwanian Jimmy Lee led the "Pledge of Allegiance" to the flag. John O. Reynolds said the invocation, Elbert Bennett led the singing of Kiwanis songs, and Mrs. Lena Tyson was accompanist.

Kiwanians Edwin Williford, Dixie McGlothin, and Ed E. Row Jr. had birthdays and they donated a dime for each year of their age for a club fund.

Guests last night were Lt.-Col. Leslie Smith, Gerald Braswell, Francis Davis and Wesley Davis.

The Kiwanis Club will have a float in the Santa Claus parade next Friday afternoon, President Collins announced.

Envoy's Son Has Left America

WASHINGTON (AP) — David Patrick Hearne, son of the Irish ambassador, has left America. He had gotten into a series of scrapes with the law here, climaxed when his car struck and killed a woman pedestrian.

The Irish Embassy said Friday Hearne, 21, left for Dublin by plane Wednesday night. He will continue his education in Ireland.

The son of Ambassador John J. Hearne had been a student at American University for the past year. He had lived here with his father for about nine years.

On Nov 11 his car killed Jossie Hamlin, 14, a Negro domestic servant, as she was crossing a street. He claimed diplomatic immunity and an inquest into the death was halted.

The case roused considerable clamor, especially since young Hearne had had four encounters with police in the past few months. These involved several incidents of loud and boisterous conduct.

The ambassador had previously announced that his son would leave the country as a result of the uproar.

Counterfeiters Used Real Gold

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

How spiritual enlightenment brings protection from evil will be brought out at Christian Science services Sunday at 11 a. m. at the First Church of Christ, Scientist.

"Ancient and Modern Necromancy, Alas Mesmerism and Hypnotism, Denounced" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon. Included in the Bible passages to be read is Paul's counsel to the Romans (13:12): "The night is far spent, the day is at hand; let us therefore cast off the works of darkness, and let us put on the armor of light."

Correlative citations from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy will include (571:15): "At all times and under all circumstances, overcome evil with good. Know thyself, and God will supply the wisdom for the occasion for a victory over evil. Clad in the panoply of Love, human hatred cannot reach you. The cement of a higher humanity will unite all interests in the one divinity."

Jehovah's Witnesses Open Convention Here Today

Five hundred and two delegates and interested persons attending the opening night of the convention of Jehovah's Witnesses at Austin Auditorium heard a New York Watchtower official, L. E. Reusch, say "That the Divine Will of Jehovah God in this day is that the good news of His kingdom is to be preached in every land and that every Christian should and must be a teacher of this good news."

Reusch in speaking to the audience welcomed the delegates and then for two and one-half hours directed an intense Bible school in the form of talks, demonstrations, and panel discussions.

This morning and afternoon saw the Witnesses on every downtown street corner and throughout the residential sections of Greenville calling on each home to invite the householders to attend their Bible seminar. These downtown workers were wearing placards advertising the main public talk which will be given tomorrow afternoon.

During Saturday and Sunday the Witnesses are endeavoring to contact most homes in Greenville with their short Bible sermons.

This afternoon was highlighted with a baptism of new ministers when more than 30 persons heard Reusch admonish them that "in fulfilling your dedication, from henceforth you are to do the will of Jehovah God as directed by His Word the Bible. That your work is a dedicated work in helping others to hear of this good news of God's established kingdom."

Reusch also informed them that doing the will of God carries a heavy load of responsibility on the part of the individual and that each should guard this trust as sacred. "The delegates answered 'yes' to the requirements and were immediately baptized at the indoor pool on the college campus.

The program this evening will feature the showing of a free public film on the World Convention held by Jehovah's Witnesses last year in New York City when 253,922 attended the final day and 7,136 were baptized. The convention was held simultaneously in Yankee Stadium and the Polo Grounds.

Sunday morning will see the Witnesses again visiting the residents of Greenville to give them short Bible sermons and inviting them to attend the main public talk at 3 o'clock when Reusch will speak on the subject "When Is God's Will To Be Done On Earth?" Upwards of 1,000 people are expected to be in attendance.

The seminar will be brought to a close with final talks by C. V. Stitz, convention official, on "Expanding Our Ministry" and Reusch concluding the gathering with a discussion on "Shepherding the Sheep with Skillfulness."

Willis Manning, Greenville resident and assistant convention manager, reminded that all meetings are open to the public and all are invited to attend.

Has 2 Cancelled Checks As 'Payola' Evidence

NEW YORK (AP) — Don Anthony, singer and record manufacturer, says he gave Dist. Atty. Frank S. Hogan two cancelled checks as evidence he distributed payola to disc jockeys.

Anthony, 31, questioned Friday at Hogan's office, said later he paid about $5,000 to out-of-town disc jockeys to plug his records four years ago. He said he had not made any pay-offs in New York.

The singer first had asked for police protection, saying he received some threatening phone calls. When he appeared for questioning, Anthony said he had changed his mind and didn't want a guard.

Also questioned was Scott Muni, a disc jockey for radio station WJLA and first vice president of the Disc Jockey Assn., Inc., which claims 200 members.

Upon leaving Hogan's office, Muni told newsmen he never had taken payments to plug records over WJLA. "In New York I've never been offered money," Muni said.

He added however, that he had been approached "in a general way" out of town. He did not elaborate.

Hogan's office announced that Jack Lynn, program director for WJLA-TV, had been subpoenaed to produce next Monday the books of disc spinner Alan Freed.

The district attorney's office said Lynn himself was not involved.

Freed, dropped by the American Broadcasting Co. as well as WJLA, has been subpoenaed to appear Monday before a Manhattan grand jury probing payola-payments for getting records played.

Freed bowed out of WJLA Friday, having been allowed to finish up the week with his "Big Beat" TV program. At the conclusion of the show he told his fans:

"I'll be back on the air soon. I've done nothing wrong."

Freed was fired last Saturday by WABC radio after he refused to sign a statement saying he had not taken payola. Freed denied that he ever took plug payments.

At a news conference Freed repeated he never took cash for record plugging, but did say he received checks for services as a "consultant."

"I would tell record companies whether or not I thought they should release a new record," he added.

In Detroit, a fourth disc jockey in that city was fired as a result of the payola investigation. Mickey Shorr, 33, of radio station WXYZ, saying he was given a choice of resigning or being fired, commented: "I refused to resign. I didn't feel I had done anything wrong."

WXYZ refused comment concerning Shorr, who had been with the station for two years.

Shorr said he told station officials last week his only outside interest in the music field was as part-owner of Aussie Records, Inc. "It's payola in reverse," Shorr said. "We pay record companies for the Australian rights of their records."

Shorr said he offered to get rid of his holdings in the record firm, but that WXYZ turned a deaf ear.

Gov't Not To Stockpile Steel

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Commerce Department has turned down a Steelworkers Union suggestion that the government had better stockpile steel for defense needs in case the steel strike resumes early next year.

The union's counsel, Arthur J. Goldberg, had written Secretary of Commerce Frederick H. Muelker a week ago. He said he made the stockpiling suggestion so that if the strike resumes "any peril to the national safety will not be chargeable to the United Steelworkers of America."

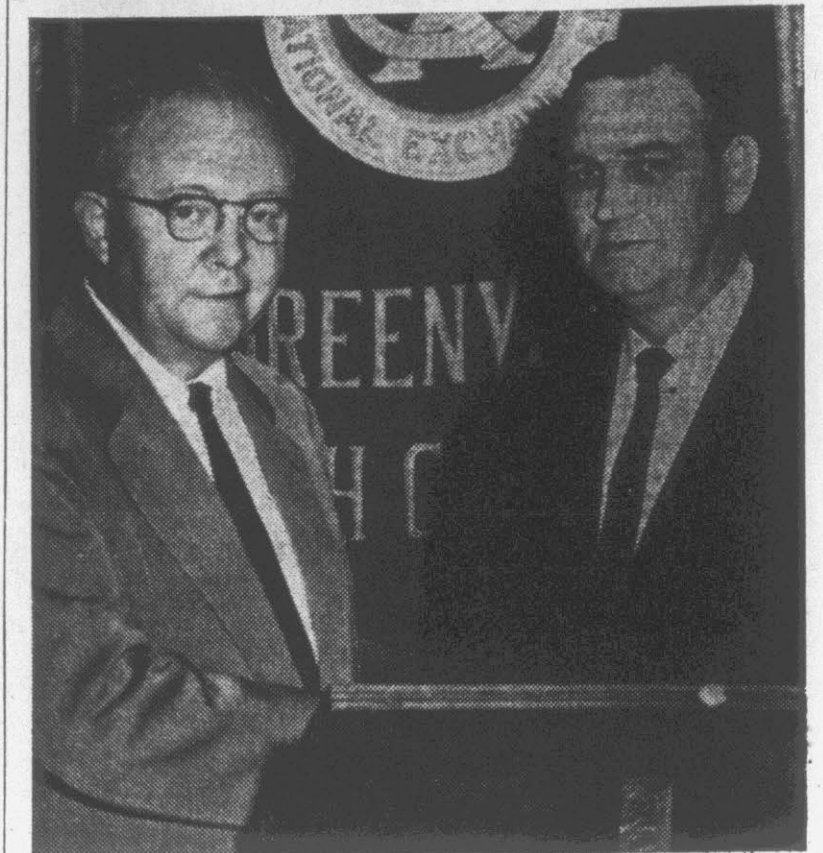

Acting Secretary Philip A. Ray rejected Goldberg's proposal Friday. And he said the union and management cannot escape responsibility if the contract dispute is not settled.

"Only continued production of steel in all its phases can supply the real needs of defense," Ray wrote Goldberg. "The public interest requires the parties to the negotiations to settle their differences at the collective bargaining table, and this responsibility can not be shifted."

At the same time, the Federal Mediation Service announced that the industry and union have agreed to resume peace talks here next Tuesday.

The 116-day strike shut down most of the steel industry until it was halted by an 80-day Taft-Hartley injunction. After the 80-day cooling off period the union is free to strike again if no settlement has been reached.

Public Indifference Is Jones' Greatest Fear

SPEAKS AT MEET—John Hassell, Exchange Club president, greets Pitt Representative Walter Jones who spoke to the club last night.

"The greatest fear I have is indifference of the average citizen to the affairs of government," said Pitt County Representative Walter Jones of Farmville.

Jones, who spoke to the Greenville Exchange club last night, said a quote which has been with us for many years, "The only thing we have to fear is fear itself," should be replaced by "The only thing we have to fear, for the future of the state and nation is the indifference of the people."

Jones told the group that "Whatever government we have will be no better or no worse than the representative citizens want to make it."

"With the legislator being put under pressure, one of the hardest things to do when he reaches Raleigh is to retain a conception of that which he hoped to do as your representative." The people of the state and nation "should be interested in the affairs of government and have a voice in their government, at least by writing to their representatives and making their wishes known. This would help your law-makers."

"If for no other reason than to stay on the good side of the voters—so when they seek re-election they would have a better chance—a legislator will listen to your thoughts," Jones added.

Jones concluded by saying that through centralized government and the lack of interest shown by the citizens, this has "almost become a government for minority groups. There is much we can do, however," he added, "by maintaining a vital and earnest interest in government."

Arsenic In Cans Said No Accident

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — The placing of arsenic in two cans of coffee in a lunchroom used by County-City Building employees could have proved fatal to several persons, Chief of Detectives Victor L. Kramer said today.

A two-pound can of drip-grind coffee, mysteriously placed there to replace that usually used by City Planning Commission staff workers, was found Friday to contain substantial quantities of the poison. More was found in a jar of instant coffee.

Five women and three men commission workers became violently ill last Monday after a morning coffee break.

"This was no accident," Kramer said.

City Planning Director John D. Spaeth said he could not "imagine anyone doing a thing like this."

He and his staff volunteered to take lie detector tests.

Kramer said that some "disgruntled" employe, or former employe, might have been responsible.

Chemists said the tin contained enough arsenic to be lethal, but that the smaller portion used with water to make the coffee prevented fatal results.

An Ancient Sport Sees New Growth

PROPER STANCE . . . aim and preparation to shoot is important to hit the bull's eye.

REMOVAL OF . . . arrows from the target should be done correctly, as shown, so that the target will not be damaged

ARROW SELECTION . . . is determined by the length of the user's arms.

MISS MITCHELL . . . demonstrates the correct way to grasp the string of the bow with the three middle fingers of the right hand.

By ROSALIE MOORE
Reflector Staff Writer

Archery is one of the fastest growing sports in America, even though it dates back to the Stone Age and the Caveman. It is a sport that anyone can enjoy.

Two classes of archery were taught during fall quarter at East Carolina College. As well as being one of the regular service courses in the physical education department, it is also offered as a recreational sport, for both men and women. Each class had 35 enrolled for the fall quarter.

Miss Mavis Mitchell, instructor of the classes for fall quarter, used film strips and explained and taught the techniques of archery in the classes. When the students were target shooting, they had six arrows per round of shooting.

Each student was allowed to pick out the bow, by pull, that suited them best during the first few days of the quarter. This bow was then assigned to them for the remainder of the quarter.

The bows used in the classes are the standard archery bows for target shooting. Bows are measured in pounds—which is the amount of pull in pounds, required to draw the bow to the head of the arrow being used. It is important that a person begins with a light bow. The average pull for a bow for a woman is 20-30 pounds and for a man, 30-50 pounds.

After the student learns to shoot, he will most likely be able to move up to a bow of heavier pull.

Arrows should be selected at the right length. The arrow length is determined by the length of a person's arms.

All of the equipment for the archery course is provided by the college, including finger tabs, arm guards, arrow stands, targets, bows and arrows. The finger tab is worn on the three middle fingers on the right hand which pulls the string of the bow. Arm guards are worn on the inside of the left forearm and they protect the arm from the released string.

Individual scoring is done by the students and they keep their own score throughout the quarter.

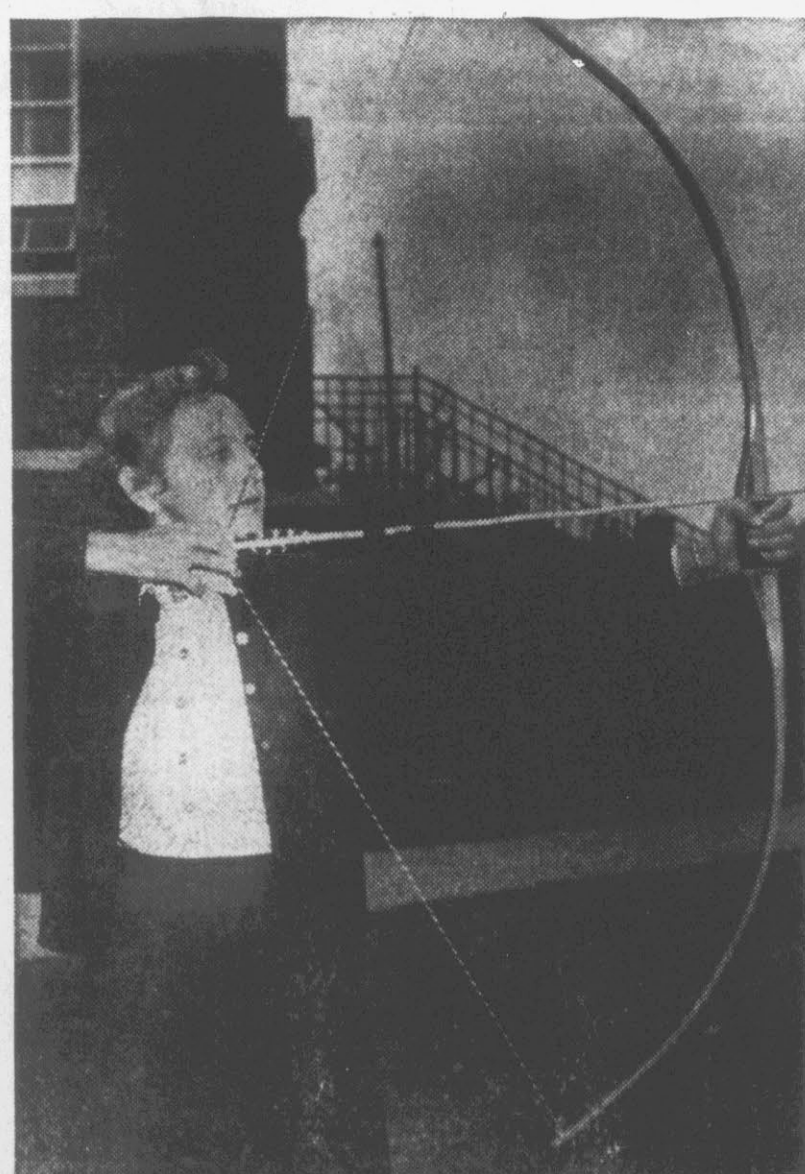

Target archery, field archery, bow hunting and fishing and roving are some of the other types of shooting that can be done with the bow. Most bow fishing is done in the spring and summer months. Most Game and Fish Commissions sanction bow fishing as only rough fish are taken in this manner.

In the past 10 years, Field Courses have become one of the most popular phases of archery. Archery Clubs throughout the nation have installed Field Courses.

A Field Course is laid out through a wooded area, with 28 targets. Distance of the targets will vary from 20 feet to 80 yards. Regulation field faces are used—these faces are either black and white circles or animal targets. Only target shooting is included in the courses at East Carolina.

CORRECT TECHNIQUE . . . for holding an arrow is shown by Miss Mitchell.

AIMING AND . . . holding is demonstrated by Miss Mitchell.

THE BOWS . . . are unstrung by the students after the rounds of shooting.

Massachusetts Cranberry Region In 'State Of Suspended Animation'

MIDDLEBORO, Mass. (AP) — The cranberry industry in southeastern Massachusetts, a region which normally produces about half of the nation's crop, is presently in what one grower described as a state of suspended animation.

He figures his future is about an even money bet at this point. The grower has yet to feel the financial effects of Welfare Secretary Arthur S. Flemming's announcement that the chemical weed killer aminotriazole which can cause cancer in rats has contaminated some cranberry crops. The grower's income normally lags at least a year behind his labors.

The last crop for which the grower has been paid in full is the 1957 harvest. He has received all but one final payment for his 1958 berries and a basic payment that falls substantially short of what it actually cost him to raise his 1959 crop.

Right now his inclination, as one grower put it, is "to tread water" until he sees what's going to happen. He has canceled orders for new machinery, put off doing the usually late fall maintenance work on his bog and in general has interrupted the operational pattern of his normal routine.

A feeling that "the harm has been done" is virtually unanimous among the 1,000 growers producing berries from Middleboro some 80 miles south to the cape-tip at Provincetown and "oversens" at Nantucket. Growers regard repeated use of the two words cancer and cranberries in the same sentence as harmful, if not lethal coupling of thought in the public mind.

Effects on the Massachusetts economy have not been estimated. There are about 13,000 acres in production in southeastern Massachusetts. The individual bog ranges from a single acre nursed along as a sideline to plantings of more than 300 acres. For more than 80 per cent of the individual growers, cranberries represent the entire source of their income. November and December are the boom months for two reasons. Payments that represent profits on the previous year's harvest aren't received by the growers until the last two months of the year. Now, even the last payment for last year's crop is in doubt. As for this year's crop, the outlook is bleak.

The vines are planted once, some as long as a hundred years ago. They bloom about June each year, ripen throughout the summer and are harvested over a four or five-week period beginning in September.

Approximately 75 per cent of the growers are affiliated with

Will Show Film Of Big Assembly

Willis Manning, presiding minister of the Greenville congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses, announced today that he had arranged for a free showing of the 1-1/4 hour color film "Divine Will International Assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses" at the East Carolina College this evening at 7:00 p.m.

The public press, newsreel and other news channels gave worldwide attention to this assembly last summer, acclaiming it as the world's largest Christian convention. For eight days it packed out both Yankee Stadium and the Polo Grounds in New York City. A quarter-million delegates from 123 lands were present at the climax of the event to hear Nathan H. Knorr, Watch Tower Bible and Tract Society's president, speak on the subject "God's Kingdom Rules—Is the World's End Near?"

Ocean Spray Cranberries, Inc., the country's largest cooperative in the business of marketing fresh berries and processing part of the crop for subsequent marketing as cranberry sauce and cranberry juice.

Growers associated with the cooperative are paid a basic price on delivery of their berries to the company's screenhouses. Current figure is $5.60 a barrel from which sixty cents is deducted for screening and, if the harvesting boxes are rented, as most are, another five-cents a box for rental fee with three boxes constituting a barrel.

Grower net at this point is $4.85 and it has cost him from $8 to $10 a barrel to get his berries this far in the direction of the consumer. A barrel is equivalent to 100 pounds of fresh berries or, after processing, to 272 pounds of cranberry sauce.

School Menu

School lunchroom menus for the coming week, as announced by the supervisor of city school cafeterias, are as follows:

- Monday—hot dog with chili and onions, cole slaw, buttered corn, fruit cup, milk;
- Tuesday—Italian spaghetti, tossed salad, buttered green peas, bran muffin and butter, cake square with cherry sauce, milk;
- Wednesday—breaded pork chop with apple sauce, green snap beans, creamed potatoes, homemade roll, cookies, milk;
- Thursday—vegetable beef soup with crackers, porkburger, congealed fruit salad on lettuce, fudge cake, milk;
- Friday—salmon cake with tomato catsup, scalloped potatoes, crowder peas, corn muffin and butter, lemon pie, milk.

The crop is then marketed by the cooperative, with the grower receiving additional payments from the berry pool until the final sale figure is reached. Final barrel price in 1957 was $11.38 with $10.60 paid to date on the 1958 crop.

Final payment for the 1958 berries was to consist of something like 93 cents and a "patronage dividend" in the amount of another 60 cents. Actual cash represented by the dividend is held by the company and used for expansion purposes in lieu of borrowed moneys. The grower receives a share of stock for each accumulated $25 withheld.

Prior to the present controversy, growers reported it was difficult to get more than $13 a share for the same stock if they wanted to sell it.

At this point, the average growers say they have done just a little better than break even on last year's labor and harvest, if they have been on the efficient end of the production cost estimate.

ALL IN THE FAMILY
LYNCHBURG, Va. (AP) — The Stone family reunion here brought some interesting comparisons. Patrick Edwin Stone, 8, of Sophie, W. Va., found himself with a 67-year-old half brother, Harvey Stone, of Lynchburg. There was also Jarleen Campbell, 19, Pat's great niece, and Eugene Stone, 33, of Brookneal, Va., Pat's nephew.

Recording Industry Awards Coming Up

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The infant recording academy takes a step into the bigtime Sunday night with an awards telecast featuring the best disc industry can offer.

This is Grammy, newly-born first cousin to Oscar and Emmy. Although the recording industry outdates movies and television, its members never got around to rewarding its best achievements until the spring of this year.

Somewhat belatedly, the Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences gave out its 1958 Grammys (named for gramophone) at a private affair. Now the 1959 awards are due and will get an NBC network spread in the Sunday at 8 spot.

There's not as much hush-hush about the Grammys as there is for the two elder award affairs. The reason is that the winners will be on hand to sing and play the numbers that got them the big prize. Among them: Van Cliburn, Kingston Trio, Bobby Darin, Shelley Berman, Duke Ellington, Mormon Tabernacle Choir, Ella Fitzgerald, Jonah Jones quartet, Jimmy Driftwood, Nat King Cole.

Tying all this talent together will be emcee Meredith Willson, who is not quite sure why he was chosen.

The choice of Willson is an apt one. He received the first Grammy ever presented, for the original cast album of "The Music Man."

He said that most of the winners will be on hand in Hollywood or New York to collect their statuettes, golden replicas of old-fashioned phonographs. Some of the musical bits have been pre-empted because of performers who couldn't be present Sunday night.

Actor Suffers Injuries In Crash

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Actor Anthony Franciosa suffered a nose fracture and a cut over his left eye when his car hit an embankment near Pacific Coast Highway Friday.

Franciosa, 31, husband of actress Shelley Winters, got out of the wreckage and walked to a nearby hospital. Later a friend drove him to a Hollywood hospital for further treatment.

Time Given To Viewing TV Said Awesome Thing

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — An awe-inspiring statement comes from Arthur C. Nielsen, head of a research company whose reports on audience size often mean the difference between cancellation and renewal in television.

"More time is spent in viewing television in the United States than in any other human activity except sleep — and that includes work," he said.

Even if Nielsen's rating is off a few points, this is a horrendous thought. It was bad enough to contemplate the widely circulated statistic that the average American spends more than five hours a day before a TV set.

A singer quit making single records in favor of albums a few years ago when he was naive enough to ask a disc jockey on a New York radio station why he always played another singer's version of the former's hit record.

"I don't pick the records I play," he said the jockey replied. "And your company didn't make a deal with the guy here who does."

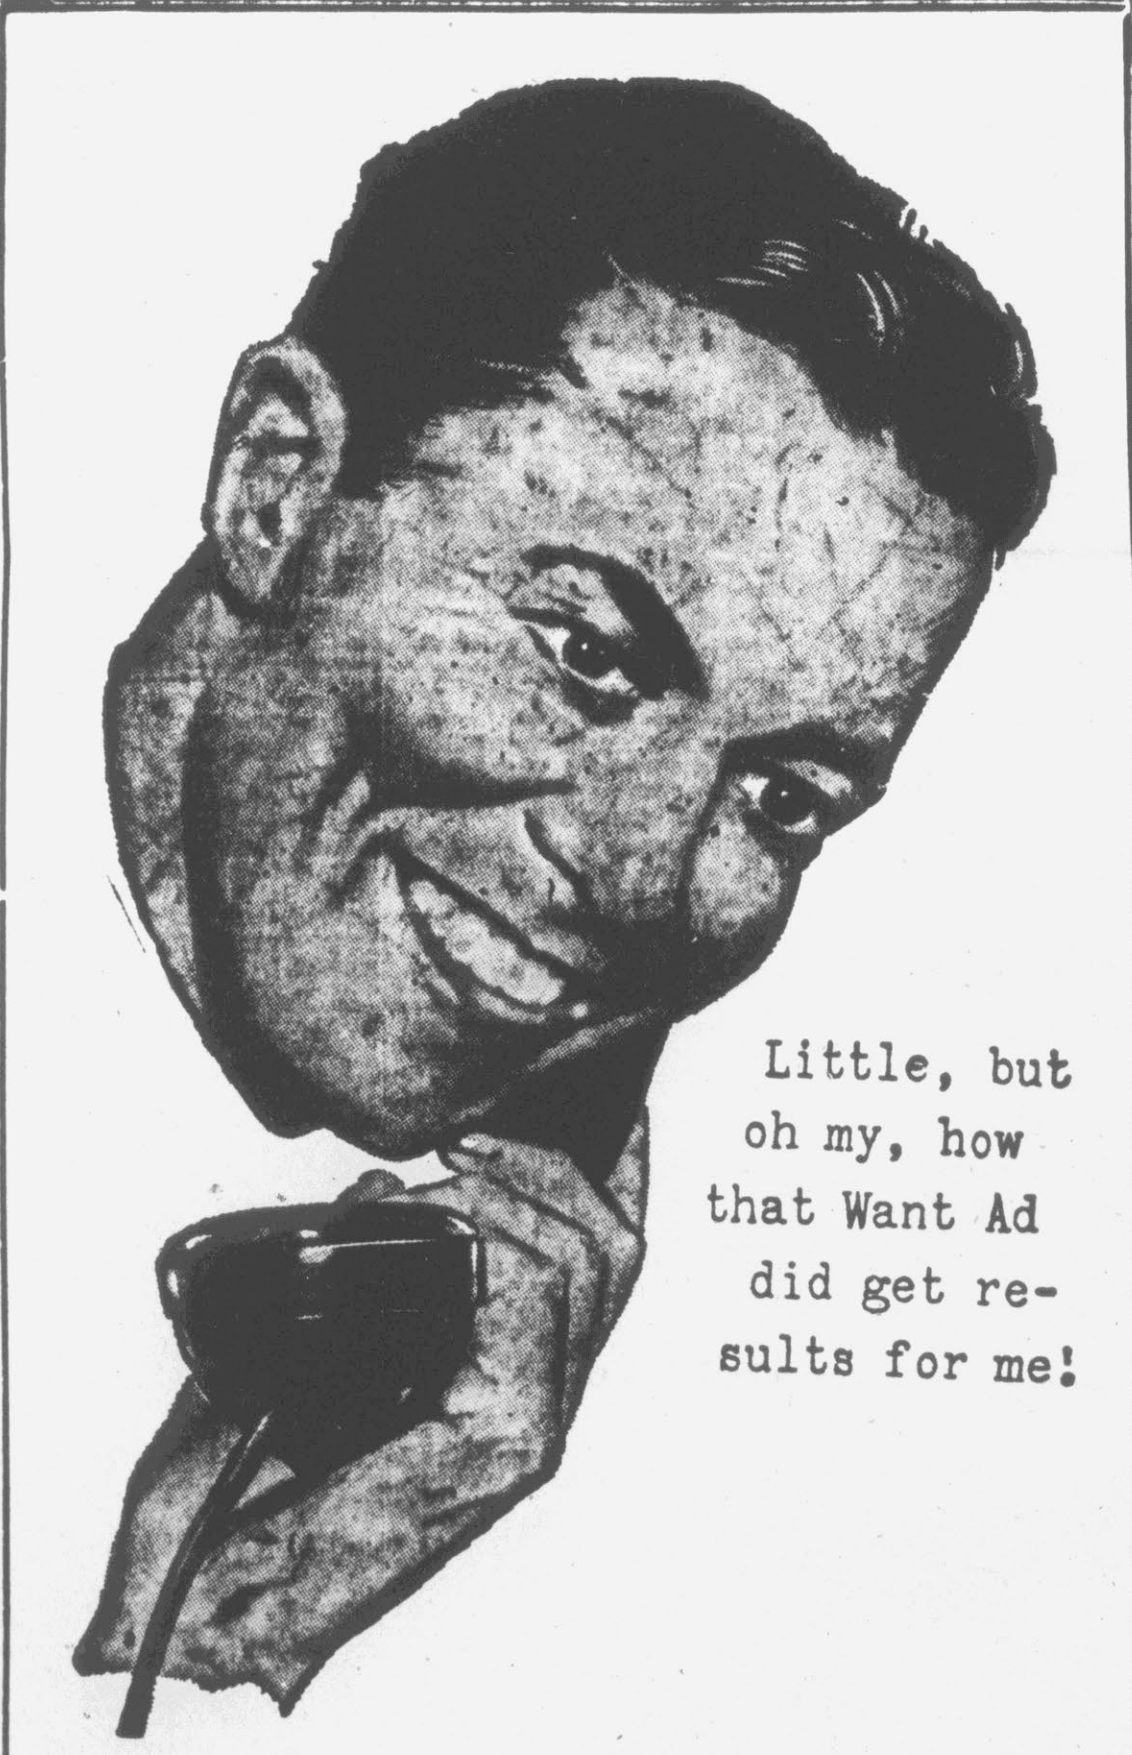

"I felt dirty and my feelings were hurt," confessed the singer. "And I swore I'd never make another record if they had to bribe somebody to play it."

Rumors are rife—and in print—that CBS' "The Lineup" is in trouble and may be dropped at the end of the year. It was a healthy little perennial in its half-hour format for several years, but hasn't stretched to an hour and lost one of its two stars, Tom Tully.

Why do all TV private detectives drive convertibles — and with the top down when all the bad men are out to shoot them on sight? And why do producers permit TV police cars to violate all the rules of the road, and of common sense? First, scream around curves, cars skid into U-turns on busy highways and — even when there is no emergency — speed furiously with screaming sirens. All this may add to the excitement, but it sure doesn't help any safe-driving campaigns.

HERE TODAY, GONE TOMORROW
STERLING, Colo. (AP)—Nothing escapes a woman? Well, Mrs. Jerry Pulliam doesn't agree, and she's more than slightly embarrassed. She says she didn't discover for two days that her husband had finally shaved off his mustache.

Just Drove Off In Waiting Bus

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) - "I just sat down behind the wheel, started it and took off."

That, explained Robert F. Shields, 27, Bluefield, Va., Friday was how he took a Greyhound bus from the Tucson depot.

Shields said he was in Tucson en route to California and saw the bus gassed up and ready to go. So he took it.

"I must have driven four or five miles," he said. "It was fine. But the Tucson streets threw me. I got lost."

"Then I saw the police in the rear view mirror. I knew it was all over. I could have led them on a chase. But I didn't want to hurt any people or that nice bus. So I pulled over."

Shields was booked on suspicion of grand theft.

MI AMIGO

© W. L. Burnett, 1958. From the novel published by A. S. Knopf, Inc. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

Although Sergeant Desportes came to the depot to see them off, he kept as far away as possible from General Etheredge and his entourage.

The General was not holding up very well and the Sergeant did not want to observe, up close, his nervousness and his obvious low spirits.

In his secret heart the Sergeant was for the first time disappointed in the General, although the rack wouldn't have made him acknowledge it.

"Maybe I just don't understand," he thought. "I've been a drifter since I was a boy. The General's been married to the missus for nearly twenty years. I guess it's one hell of a wrench."

"If I thought she was well," the General had said to him one evening in the midst of a conference, apropos of nothing, "I wouldn't mind so much. But she's not. She's not."

The climate won't kill them. There's no talk of divorce as far as I know." Doc had thought for a moment. "Of course we don't know what went on between them in private. Looks kind of like the end, doesn't it, Sergeant?"

"I don't know," the Sergeant had replied, unhappily.

So now they were all at the depot waiting for the spur-train to pull out. Lolita, Maria, and Mrs. Etheredge were to be accompanied as far as San Geronimo by Lieutenant Pendergast and a trusted Apache servant.

Doc came looting along the depot platform. His uniform coat was unbuttoned, he needed a shave, and an old ragged-looking stogie was clamped in his teeth.

"There's a lucky guy, that one," said the Doc, jerking a thumb toward Lolita. "A real beauty, too, and when Mrs. Etheredge gets through with her education she'll be a stunner. The General's wife's rich in her own right. Did you know that? She stuck it out in this tinking hole pretty well at that, wouldn't you say, Sergeant?"

The Sergeant sighed but made no comment.

They were getting aboard now. The Sergeant and Doc watched as Crookedknife carried the mountain of luggage into the one-battered day-coach, and Lieutenant Pendergast, epic and span for once, helped Maria and Lolita up the high steep steps.

Mrs. Etheredge turned to say good-bye to her husband. She held out her hand. The General took it, looked at her for a long time, then shook the hand, dropped it, and gave a little stiff bow.

"Good-bye, Charles," said Mrs. Etheredge in her laments voice. "I'll write when I get to San Geronimo, also Chicago. Good-bye."

"Take care of yourself, Charlotte. Let me know how you are," called the General in a rather shaky voice.

Lieutenant Pendergast differentially helped Mrs. Etheredge up the steps. There was a bad moment when the Sergeant thought the General was going to climb aboard. He made an ambiguous move or two, but then stopped and stepped back.

It was time to go. People began to wave as the train panted and heaved. The whistle blew, but the train did not move. Maria kept waving from the window. Her smile stiffening bit by bit as nothing happened; finally, she gave up and sat back.

That old kettle's about seen her day," said somebody and there was a laugh, a terrific jerk. People were thrown back in their seats to loud laughter. "Damn, she's a-bucking," chattered somebody. "Got a burr under her saddle."

But at last the old train got away, and went chugging off across the flatland. At the bend it showed a string of dimly-lighted windows, then the track straightened out and all that could be seen were the lights, green and red, at the end of the train.

The whistle blew, mournful and lonesome, like the voice of the night desert itself. And finally there was nothing left but a faint, wide drift of white smoke low over the land.

The General sent the survey back without him and motioned for the Sergeant.

"We'll walk," he said.

"Yes, sir."

The General was silent all the way. The Sergeant tried hard to think of something to say but nothing appropriate occurred to him.

"Sit down, Sergeant," said the General. "I've been putting this off—neglecting everything, as a matter of fact. But it's been very trying lately. Very trying."

GAL TOW-SERIAL
"Yes, sir," said the Sergeant. "He glanced about him at the big comfortable Spanish living-room, but somehow, although all the lamps were lit, the curtains drawn, the fireburning, it wasn't the same tonight. There was a void. The desert stillness seemed to ring in the room. The Sergeant shifted about uneasily."

The General sat opposite the Sergeant, waving a sheaf of papers. "Intelligence reports from up north. I'll give you the gist, save you the trouble of reading it, as it is damned dull. The trouble is starting again at La Paz, and as a result, apparently, of the killing of those three men here by that boy—Wiggan."

"In La Paz those three men belonged to one faction, Wiggan to the other. In the report here it says that the ranchers who hired the gunmen in the first place are sick and tired of the whole thing, but may not be able to control their own men. If it gets bad, I may have to declare martial law. I don't want, for reasons you are already acquainted with, but if I must, I must. In that case, Sergeant, I may put you in full charge of La Paz."

"All right, Major . . . I mean, General,"—excuse me," said the Sergeant.

The General sighed. "And now, Sergeant, how about a drink?" "Thank you, sir."

"I remember we once drank to peace in the Southwest. This time let's drink to peace of mind." They looked at each other for a long moment understandingly, then the General rose to get the liquor.

The Sergeant must face the La Paz gunmen with Jamie Wiggan among them. Go to the story to a climax here tomorrow.

Fast-Draw Test Killed Marine

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Marine Pvt. John C. Barton, Tecumseh, Mich., was held in custody over the weekend while his officers investigate the fatal shooting Friday of a companion sentry in a 3:30 a.m. fast draw contest.

The inquiry was opened soon after Pvt. Niels Hagerman, 20, Danville, Ill., died before he could be taken by ambulance to the Hunters Point Naval Shipyard Hospital.

Barton, 19, telephoned immediately for an ambulance after his .45 automatic discharged only 2 1/2 feet from Hagerman in the sentry box where both were on duty.

"I can imagine how it happened," said Maj. Milton Cooper, commander of the Marine detachment. "The boys were bored with nothing to do that time of morning. It was stupid, but that's hindsight, and I don't want to emphasize that. I don't want to see Barton broken down any more. He's taking it very hard."

"There seems to be no question that this was accidental, as Barton said," Cooper continued.

If the inquiry board recommends that Barton be tried, he will go before a court-martial. He also could be tried only for violation of orders against unholstering a pistol without cause if the board accepts the accidental plea. No civil action is involved since the shooting took place on military property.

Noted Composer To Conduct Here

Vittorio Giannini, noted American composer, will be guest conductor of the East Carolina College Orchestra when the group appears in concert Sunday, Dec. 6, at 3 p.m. in the Wright auditorium.

The program is included on the 1959-1960 College Entertainment Series and will be open to holders of season tickets and to others who wish to attend.

For Sunday's concert talented high school students from Greensboro, High Point, Raleigh, and Florence, S. C., will join the orchestra as guest performers. The 85-member organization so formed will present Giannini's "Symphony No. 2" under the direction of the composer and, with Donald H. Hayes of the college faculty as conductor, a group of additional selections.

The East Carolina Choir of 58 members will appear with the orchestra in a performance of Wagner's "Ballad of Brotherhood."

The program will open with Bach's "Fugue in G Minor." Included among members will be "The Unfinished Symphony" by Schubert, Copland's "Rodeo Suite," "Merry Mount Suite" by Hanson, and "The Walk to the Paradise Garden" by Delius. Singing of Christmas carols by the audience, with an accompaniment by the orchestra, will close the concert.

Vittorio Giannini, one of this country's most outstanding composers, has written music for orchestra, opera, voice, and piano. In the summer months, he lives in Western North Carolina and directs a symposium for composers. A noted teacher, he is connected with the Juilliard School of Music and the David Mann School of Music in New York and serves as guest lecturer at Boston University.
