Cold Weather Finally Arrived

COAL WEATHER . . . Coal distributors are kept busy during cold weather supplying the fuel for stoves and fireplaces. Here Johnny Jenkins delivers another bag of warmth-giving fuel.

Yes, Some Snow For City Sunday

It snowed real snow here yesterday. To the kids delight and the parents' chagrin, the white flakes started falling here between 1 and 1:30 during the afternoon. For Pitt Countians the snow flurry brought recollections of last year's big snow which blanketed this area in December. But to the parents' delight and the kids' chagrin, the ground was just a little too warm for the flakes to stick. So, when the flurries ended there was not a trace of snow on the ground in Greenville. There were reports that the snow fall whitened the ground at places in the northern portion of the county. However, the snow soon disappeared as the precipitation ceased. The skies cleared shortly thereafter and the clearing weather was accompanied by a sharp drop in temperatures. The thermometer reached a high of 42 degrees during the day, according to the Greenville Utilities Weather Station. But as night fell, the mercury dropped to a low of 25 degrees. At 8 a. m. today, the temperature still stood at the 25-degree mark. Bright sunshine and a clear sky prevailed today with the wind from the northwest. Afternoon temperatures yesterday were made even more brittle 12-to-15 miles-an-hour winds. Greenville Utilities reported that the Tar River had stopped rising today with the stream at the 9.7 foot level. Normal depth here is from 3 1/2 to five feet. The Associated Press reported that the temperatures were the coldest of the season across the Carolinas. At Mount Mitchell in North Carolina, there were light snow flurries on both Saturday and Sunday, with a Sunday night low of zero. Temperature readings, generally 5 to 10 degrees below freezing Sunday morning, were well below that level today. Asheville reported a 14 degree low. Other North Carolina lows: Charlotte and Greensboro, both 19; Raleigh and Durham, both 20; Wilmington, 25. In South Carolina it was 17 at Anderson, 18 at Greenville, 19 at Spartanburg, 20 at Columbia, 22 at Charleston and 26 at Myrtle Beach. Another cold night was predicted with a warming trend to follow. North Carolina lows will range from 13 to 18 in the mountains to the upper teens along the coast. In South Carolina lows of 24 to 30 degrees are predicted.

TRYING TO KEEP WARM . . . ECC students Anne Johnson from Benson and Iris Pappas of Portsmouth bundle up in their heavy coats in an effort to ward off the cold which has descended on the area.

Late Bulletins

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower will go on nationwide television and radio Thursday evening to discuss his goodwill mission abroad and such domestic problems as the steel strike. NEW YORK (AP)—Rock 'n roll disc jockey Alan Freed, key figure in a New York grand jury probe of Payola, appeared for questioning today, but indicated he will testify fully only if given immunity.

Lifeline Snaps, Falls To Death

PROVO, Utah (AP)—The narrow ledge was icy with spray from towering Bridal Veil Falls. The bottom of Provo Canyon was 250 feet below. So climbers Allan H. Warren and Larry Anderson hooked their belts together as a makeshift lifeline—just in case. Warren, 23 stepped off first. He slipped, dropped from the ledge. The belt, with Anderson straining to hang on, held a moment—then snapped. Warren plunged to his death. Warren, of Downey, Calif., and Anderson, 19, of Anchorage, Alaska, were students at Brigham Young University. The tragedy happened Sunday as they climbed in the nearby canyon.

At Least 25 Violent N. C. Deaths On Weekend

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS At least 25 persons died from violence in North Carolina during the five-day Thanksgiving holiday period which came to a close Sunday night. A highway accident in an isolated spot in Dare County and a fire near Southern Pines claimed seven lives during the period which began at 6 p.m. Wednesday and ended midnight Sunday. Fourteen persons were killed during last year's Thanksgiving weekend and 19 died in 1957. Four persons died in the Dare County accident when two cars collided head-on as they drove along a fog-swept highway. The dead were identified as George Oscar Taylor, 21, and Thomas B. Taylor, 15, brothers from Rocky Mount; Elbert Lewis, 40-year-old Rocky Mount Negro, riding with the Taylors; and Calvert Rockwood, 21, of South Norfolk, Va.

U.S. And Red China Charge Each Other With Bombay Abductions

Senators Reveal Employes' Pay

WASHINGTON (AP)—For the first time in more than a decade, the Senate today disclosed how much each senator pays each of his employes. The secrecy barrier fell with publication by the secretary of the Senate of a report listing the names and the pay of all Senate employes. Disclosure of the information was required by a resolution adopted by the Senate last summer in the aftermath of news stories about congressional nepotism. The resolution directed the Senate secretary to compile Senate payrolls and make them available to the public every three months. The first of these quarterly reports, published today, covers the period from July 1 to Sept. 30 of this year. In addition to the name, job title, and pay of each senator's employe, the report includes similar information on all other Senate subcommittees. Since the salaries are shown only for the quarterly period, they would have to be multiplied by four to show the annual rate of pay. Listed for Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr. (D-NC) were: Spain, Jack, administrative assistant, $4,074; Gatton, T. Harry, 3,932; Bason, Carolyn E., 2,170; Meacham, Ruth, 2,170; Whitaker Helen, 2,057; Spain, Jack Jr., 1,371; Davidson, May, 2,113; and Shore, Patricia J., 1,435. For Sen. B. Everett Jordan (D-NC): Cochran, William M., administrative assistant, $4,074; Whitley, William B., executive secretary, 3,932; Bragg, Louise S., legislative assistant, 2-198; Clinton, Margaret B., legislative assistant, 2-198; Crawford, Joseph P., 2,000; Hughes, Esther M., 1,407; Robertson, Pauline T., 1,492; Laprade, Camma M., 346; Johnson, Peggy M., 1,181; Queen, James R., 1,803; Stackhouse, Verna C., 221; Rodgers, Suzanne C., 1,266; and Wilkerson, Geraldine, 1,011.

NEW DELHI (AP)—Communist China and the United States each accused the other of a kidnaping in Bombay, and Prime Minister Nehru told the Indian Parliament today he could not say yet which one was telling the truth. Nehru said the Chinese ambassador formally complained to the Indian government today that Americans kidnaped members of the staff of the Chinese consulate general in Bombay Friday. The United States filed a protest Saturday accusing the Chinese of kidnaping and abusing Marine Sgt. Robert Armstrong of Los Angeles, who the United States said, was guarding a Chinese official who had asked for asylum. "All this sounds more like some piece of fiction than fact," Nehru told the lower house. The Prime Minister said Bombay police are investigating. The Bombay police also were investigating the report of an Indian employe at the American consulate there who claimed that during the weekend two unidentified Chinese tried to take from him a consulate message he was taking to the telegraph office. A spokesman at the consulate said U.S. officials could not verify the Indian's statement. Red China charged that the U.S.

consulate general in Bombay kidnaped and beat Chang Chien-Yu, a member of the Red Chinese consular staff, and forced him to make an anti-Communist statement against his will. The U.S. State Department said Chang was a member of Red China's Export-Import Corp. and asked for political asylum. The department said he was given Marine Sgt. Robert Armstrong of Los Angeles as an escort, and that Armstrong was kidnaped and beaten by members of the Chinese consulate after a taxi ride with Chang. Radio Peiping claimed Chang was detained about 20 hours. It said American kidnapers were taking Chang Chien-Yu to Bombay city by car and passing the vicinity of the Chinese consulate general when Chang Chien-Yu managed to escape and ran back to the Chinese consulate general. The State Department said Armstrong took Chang to a consulate beach cottage Thursday because Chang had expressed fear for his safety. Friday morning, Chang asked to return to the U.S. consulate general. The taxi stopped instead near the Chinese consulate general and Chang started to get out with a tape recording of his plea for asylum. Armstrong tried to seize the recording and was overpowered by six Chinese who ran out of the consulate. Armstrong was bound, beaten, questioned and finally released six hours later when Indian police arrived. The Peiping broadcast claimed that American consular personnel, "by applying serious threats and pressure," forced Chang to make a statement against his will. Red China said that after Chang managed to escape, "the personnel of the U.S. consulate general escorted him immediately chased him with knife in hand. This was discovered by other personnel. The Chinese consulate general, while stopping the American from carrying out his criminal intention and protecting Chang Chien-Yu, informed the Indian police authorities in Bombay by telephone. Soon after, the Bombay police authorities dispatched persons who took away the American." The United States, in a protest to the Indian government, said the Chinese abduction of Sgt. Armstrong was "a high-handed violation of the personal rights of a United States citizen," and asked for a full investigation.

Vivid Colors At 81,000 Feet Up

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP)—"Anyone could do it," say aerialists Malcolm Ross and Charles B. Moore of their 15-mile weekend jaunt into the stratosphere. Ross, a commander in the Navy and Dr. Moore, a scientist, rode in an instrument-filled gondola under a huge plastic balloon to 81,000 feet where they took photographs of the planet Venus through a 16-inch telescope. It is "wonderfully pleasant" up there, they said. The men ascended from Rapid City, S.D., at 11:16 a. m. Saturday and landed at 3:30 p. m. Sunday in a pasture about 30 miles northeast of Manhattan. Ross, who had made six previous trips into the stratosphere—once to 86,000 feet—said the landing was ideal until surface wind filled their emergency parachute. They jettisoned the balloon as the gondola touched ground, but the parachute dragged their seven foot aluminum sphere a quarter-mile across a rough pasture. Moore wasn't hurt but Ross was shaken up. Helicopters whisked them about 80 miles to the Schilling Air Force Base hospital at Salina, Kan., for an overnight rest. They went up to 81,000 feet to photograph Venus because at that altitude the atmosphere is free of dust particles that cause the stars to twinkle. "It was the most exciting view of the stars I ever had," Moore said. "The outstanding sight of all was at sunset Saturday," Ross said. "We could see it getting dark on earth and all the lights were coming on in the little towns and it was still daylight where we were. There were the most vivid colors imaginable both in the sunset and in the sunrise Sunday morning. The whole sky was streaked with vivid browns, purples, rose colors and shades of yellow. The sun shining on extremely high clouds produces these colors. Any one would enjoy it. "While the sky is streaked with color, the earth takes on pastel shades of green and brown. You can still see the rivers and mountains, and at night, the lights of towns. "We had pressure suits and cold weather gear to protect us from the minus 100-degree temperatures and we were too busy to get bored. Ground crewmen followed the balloon in tracking planes and took the instruments back to Winzen Research, Inc., Minneapolis. The firm built and launched the balloon for the Office of Naval Research. The telescope, mounted in the top of the gondola, is being returned to Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore. Prof. John Strong, head of the project, said instrument readings will be analyzed at Johns Hopkins before results are announced. He termed the flight "an excellent job."

Jail Agitators In Panama Riots

PANAMA (AP)—Thirty to forty Panamanian nationalist agitators were jailed here after a round-up of elements blamed for fomenting an anti-U.S. riot Saturday. The demonstrators were led by 150 members of a "motorcade of sovereignty" from Chiriqui province in western Panama. A mob of 300 split away from an orderly independence day rally, burned effigies of Uncle Sam, shouted "Gringo go home," and threw rocks at U.S. soldiers guarding the border of the Panama Canal Zone. Twelve U.S. soldiers and 19 Panamanians were injured in the fight. The riot was another manifestation of recent nationalist agitation to establish Panamanian sovereignty over the Canal Zone, taken over by the United States under permanent lease in 1903. Some observers believed leftists took advantage of the big rally in celebration of the 136th anniversary of Panama's independence from Spain to inspire the riots. The march of sovereignty demonstrators started early in the day scattering leaflets denouncing the treaty of 1903. U.S. authorities praised the Panamanian National Guard for its help in quelling the riot. The United States had complained the Guard was slow to act when a mob tried to invade the Canal Zone on Nov. 3 and subsequently attacked the U.S. Embassy.

She lay down on the bed with her sleeping children to rest. However, she fell asleep. She awoke to find the house in flames. She was unable to find the children in her panic. She screamed for help from a window. When there was no response she broke the window and climbed through. She ran to nearby homes. "My children are burning up," she cried out. But no one responded quickly enough. Mrs. Singletary watched with horror as the roof of the three-room frame house collapsed. When firemen arrived from Aberdeen, little was left of the house. When Singletary, a janitor at the telephone office here, was told of the tragedy, he collapsed. Both parents were put under sedation at a hospital. Mrs. Singletary also was treated for burns on her arms and legs. The Singletarys were released later Sunday.

Hungary Told Soviet Army To Be Staying In Country

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP)—Janos Kadar told the opening session of his Communist party congress today that Soviet troops will remain in Hungary "as long as this is required by the international situation."

Hungary because of the world's failure to settle international issues. He said the government advocates mutual withdrawal of foreign troops—an obvious reference to U.S. forces in Europe. Kadar accused the United States of spending huge sums for agitation against Hungary and conducting a campaign of slander by renewing debate in the United Nations on the Hungarian issue. He also asserted the United States had drafted into the army 5,000 Hungarians who took refuge in America after Soviet tanks crushed the uprising of 1956. Khrushchev arrived Sunday to find the Communist government—which Soviet tanks kept in power three years ago—seemingly firmly entrenched. Communist parties in more than 30 countries are represented at the conclave. The first order of the day was election of the congress presidium. Khrushchev and all other leaders of foreign delegations voted, the national news agency MTI reported. Western newsmen were not permitted to attend the congress in the spacious headquarters of the Building Workers Trade Union. There were no special security precautions evident at the airport as the beaming Soviet leader emerged from a TU104 jet airliner with his wife. Although Khrushchev's visit had not been announced by local newspapers or Budapest radio, a crowd of about 500 was on hand to cheer. Communist party chief Janos Kadar led the welcoming Hungarian delegation. Khrushchev embraced him and planted kisses on both cheeks. Premier Ferenc Kiss and Foreign Minister Endre Sik were at the airport too, but the arrival was played in low key with neither band nor guard of honor. The Khrushchev party went immediately to the government's guest house, a hillside villa in the Buda section of the Hungarian capital. The congress is scheduled to discuss the 1956 uprising, and Khrushchev is expected to deliver one of the major speeches before the sessions end on Thursday. The Soviet Premier's presence in Hungary coincides with another imminent airing in the U.N. General Assembly of Western criticisms of the continued Communist hold on Hungary. Khrushchev recently upbraided Western criticism of Soviet intervention in the Hungarian rebellion and asserted the Hungarian people were happy about their relationship with the Soviet Union.

Three Children Perished In Fire

SOUTHERN PINES, N.C. (AP)—"Oh, my children, my children," sobbed Mrs. Ernest Singletary. "Why? Why?" Still in a state of shock, she and her husband told Sunday of the fire that destroyed the Negro family's home near here and killed their two young sons, Herbert, 4, and Clifton, 3, and daughter Hazel, 16 months. The children spent Saturday night with Mrs. Singletary's grandmother, Mrs. Wilbur McDonald, who lives nearby. They had watched a TV Western. Mrs. Singletary, 20, took them home when she returned from work. She put coal in the stove and put the children to bed while her 22-year-old husband drove a friend to Southern Pines. She and her husband planned a late supper when he returned.

Florida Crops Are Damaged By Big Cold Wave

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Icy winds swept Florida today. They damaged crops south of Miami and brought sub-freezing temperatures to northern counties. Gusts up to 40 miles an hour blew down Christmas decorations in downtown Miami and toppled a concrete staircase at the Sea Breeze Hotel in Miami Beach. Debris crashed through a first floor roof but no one was injured. Tomato and bean vines were nipped in the south Dade County (Miami) farmlands. County agent John Campbell called the damage serious. The cold snap came on the heels of record rains which dealt south Florida crops heavy blows earlier this month. Sunday's low of 44 and today's low of 43 set new records for Nov. 29 and Nov. 30 at Miami. However, it was not expected to be so cold tonight and warmer temperatures were forecast for Tuesday and the rest of the week.

Just 'Fed Up' By Noisy Neighbor

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Thomas Mannion, a steel construction foreman who lives quiet Sundays, told police: "I finally had enough. I was fed up." That's why, he said, he took two pot shots at 18-year-old Robert Valdez who was hammering on the fender of his hot rod car in the vacant lot across the street and below Mannion's second-floor apartment.

Christmas Parade Slated Friday Night In Farmville

FARMVILLE — A dozen elaborate floats, beauty queens, clowns, and Santa Claus himself will be included in the annual Santa Claus Parade here this Friday night at 7:30. Christmas decorations have been strung over the streets and floats are nearing completion, according to Chamber of Commerce and Farmville Merchants Association officials. Miss Betty Lane Evans, former Miss North Carolina, will be aboard one of the floats. Farmville's Homecoming Queen, Miss Gina Allen, will be featured on another. At least two high school bands are scheduled for appearances in the mile-long parade that will kick off the Yuletide season here. Leading the parade will be a color guard unit from the Farmville National Guard. Other guardsmen will also participate in the festivities. At least 12 professional floats are being completed for exhibition in Friday's parade. Miss Evans will be riding the town officials' float. A long line of old automobiles will include a celebrated "trick car" from Winston-Salem. Reports are that this attraction has been "highly successful" in previous parade appearances. Santa Claus, as usual, will be the outstanding feature of the gala event. He will be on hand to "take orders" from children at the annual parade. Local merchants will remain open for Christmas shoppers until 9 the night of the parade. Stores will also be open until that hour on Dec. 11, 18, 19, 21, 22, 23. All stores will close at 7 p.m. on Dec. 24 and remain closed Christmas Day and Dec. 26. The parade is sponsored by the local Chamber of Commerce and the Farmville Merchants Association. Parade Committee chairman is T. Ell Joyner.

Ridicules Idea Of Vatican Role

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP)—The apostolic delegate to the United States says it is ridiculous to think the Vatican would ever try to influence or interfere with the functions of an American president, Catholic or non-Catholic. The Most Rev. Egidio Vagnozzi said in an interview Sunday that because the Catholic Church is entirely free in America it has no reason to try to exercise political influence on the White House. EXTENDED WEATHER Temperatures will average 4 or 5 degrees below normal for next five days. Warmer Tuesday and Wednesday, colder Friday and Saturday. Rain Thursday and Friday will total one-half to one inch.

Dr. Christens Guest Speaker

Dr. John Christens of the Dupont plant was guest speaker at the November meeting of the Grifton Book Club which took place with Mrs. Thurman Williams as hostess.

Dr. Christens gave highlights in the life of Joseph Priestley, an English chemist and clergyman, who discovered oxygen in 1774, and on the French chemist, Antoine Lavoisier, who developed Priestley's experiments. Priestley was one of the founders of the Unitarian Church in America after coming to this country to make his home. The two were founders of modern chemistry, he said.

Mrs. Glendel Tucker, presided at a business session and appointed as a program committee for the next year, Mesdames H. P. Quinerly, Bryan Davis and J. L. Tucker. After the program, guests were invited into the dining room where cake and coffee were served. Miss Bert Johnson poured coffee and Mrs. Williams served German chocolate cake.

Members present were Miss Johnson, Mrs. Tucker, Mesdames Alton Chapman, Tom Gower, Robert Mewborn, W. I. Bissette, Cecil Cobb.

Mr. White And Miss Adams Married In Christian Church

Miss Sara Elizabeth Adams became the bride of Mr. Charles Alexander White Jr. in a formal double ring ceremony Saturday evening at the Eighth Street Christian Church. The Rev. William J. Hadden officiated, assisted by Dr. H. Glenn Haney.

Mrs. Charles Alexander White Jr.

for four generations, was worn by her paternal great grandmother on her wedding day, Nov. 28, 1872. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. John Hutchinson Adams and the late Mr. Adams, and granddaughter of Mrs. Claude Melnott Jones and the late Dr. Jones and the late Mr. and Mrs. John Hutchinson Adams. She is a graduate of East Carolina College and was presented to North Carolina Society at the Debutante Ball in Raleigh in 1957.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Alexander White of Greenville, is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Tilden White and the late Dr. George William Lay, former Rector of Saint Mary's Junior College in Raleigh, and Mrs. Lay. He attended The Citadel and is a graduate of East Carolina College. He is now employed by the Great American Group of Insurance Companies in the claims department.

Arrangements were of subdued pink miniature chrysanthemums and clipped emerald fronds. The arrangements were formed in extreme lines through the candelabras. Each candelabra was garlanded with plumosa fern and formed a giant arch. Pastel pink candles were used to compliment the floral setting. Flanking the altar was hanging smilax resembling a garden wall with palms of clipped emerald and ferns. The pews were marked with ties of pink Parisian satin with white and pink carnations.

Preceding the entrance of the bride, a prelude of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Allison Hearne Moss, organist. The selections were "Traume" by Wagner, "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring" by Bach, "Nocturne" by Schumann, "On Wing of Song" by Mendelssohn, "Traumerel" by Schumann and "Melodie" by Tschakowsky. Mrs. Ward Peacock, sister of the groom, soloist, sang "Beloved It Is Morn" by Aylward, "Through the Years" by Youmans and "The Lord's Prayer" by Malotte. The traditional processional and recessional by Wagner and Mendelssohn were used.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, John Hutchinson Adams, wore an original Empire princess gown of candelight Wedgewood satin with a cathedral train. The low scoop neckline was embellished with matching reem-broidered French Alencon lace, heavily encrusted with seed pearls and crystals. The long tapered sleeves finished with lace and seed pearls were buttoned with bridal buttons.

Her heirloom cathedral veil was three tiered French illusion trimmed in Brussels lace and attached to a Joliet cap of matching lace and encrusted with seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of white stephanotis centered with a white orchid.

Miss Jane Westbrook of Dunn was her cousin's maid of honor. Mrs. Steve Wilkerson of Greensboro attended the bride as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Noel Vossler of Fayetteville, Mrs. John McInnis of Chicago, Ill., Miss Mary Will Long, Miss Louise Cheatham, Miss Memrie Mosier, Miss Elizabeth White, sister of the bridegroom, Miss Helen Hawes, cousin of the bridegroom, and Miss Elizabeth Whedbee, cousin of the bride, all of Greenville.

The attendants wore dresses of raspberry velveteen fashioned with scooped necklines and half sleeves accented with pink tulle with an overlay of raspberry accordion-pleated lace with matching shoes. They carried nosegays of pale pink ostrich plumes centered with carnations of pink and raspberry. Flowing from the nosegays were streamers of imported Parisian satin.

Flower girl was little Miss Anne Louise Mayo of Tarboro, cousin of the bride. Her dress and nosegay were similar to those of the honor attendants. Master Colin Brown, cousin of the bride, served as ring-bearer.

Mr. Charles Alexander White, father of the bridegroom, assisted his son as best man. Ushers were Mr. Robert Jones of Raleigh, Dr. Charles Pace of Greensboro, Mr. William Bost Jr., Mr. George White, brother of the groom, and Mr. Joe Skinner, all of Greenville, Mr. Milton Moye Jr. of Tarboro and Mr. Robert Taylor of Senora. The bride's mother wore a gown of periwinkle blue Italian silk and lace. Her corsage was a purple orchid. The mother of the bridegroom was gowned in peacock blue silk brocade and her corsage was also a purple orchid. The bride's grandmother wore a grey Chantilly lace dress over taffeta with corsage of pink roses. The grandmother of the bridegroom was gowned in green Chantilly lace over taffeta with matching hat. Her corsage was also of pink roses.

Immediately following the ceremony, Mrs. Adams and Mrs. Jones entertained at a reception at their home, honoring the bridal couple. A pink and white color scheme was noted in the decorations throughout the home. The mantel featured pink carnations, pink snapdragons and camellia foliage and was flanked by tall silver candelabra holding long pink tapering candles. The bride and the bridegroom, their parents, Mrs. O. M. Jones, grandmother of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Tilden White, grand-receiving line composed of the bride and the bridegroom, their parents, Mrs. O. M. Jones, grandmother of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Tilden White, grandparents of the bridegroom. Mr. and Mrs. Milton Moye of Tarboro directed the guests to the dining room. The refreshment table was laid with a cloth of white satin overlaid with white tulle. The tulle was gathered at appointed intervals and attached with miniature (Continued on Page 5)

Always A Risk In Business Field

It is a popular opinion that major industrial firms of this country, with their vast resources for research, market analysis and in general their facilities for pinpointing economic trends in the nation, almost never make a mistake when it comes to projecting their programs.

In spite of the popularity of this opinion, it fails to stand the test of actual experience. Without it, of course, there would be many more failures than there are. But even with it, the major business organization of the nation drop literally millions of dollars annually in projects that fail to pan out in spite of favorable predictions by the best experts.

The latest and most vivid example of a major failure of this kind is the demise of the Edsel, Ford Motor Company's new automobile that made its appearance amid a tremendous advertising, promotion and publicity campaign.

This month the company made a simple announcement. It was discontinuing production of the Edsel because the sales were not up to expectations . . . it was costing the company money instead of making money.

The Edsel, in its short life span, cost the company millions upon millions of dollars. Indeed, the company invested millions in research, engineering, market analysis and various other phases of the Edsel program even before the final decision was made to place the new car into production and market it. As in the case of big business, the venture would not have been launched had conditions not looked favorable to the company's experts. It would have gone down as another idea that didn't hold practical—and profitable—prospects even though millions had been put into it.

In the case of Edsel the green light was given for production and sales, and more millions went into the

Education And Planning Process

By LYNN NISBET
EDUCATIONAL PLANNING—Because it emphasizes points previously made here, and makes some new ones, your reporter has obtained permission of Dr. I. E. Reedy, director of the curriculum study for the State Board of Education, to use a personal letter received several days ago as a guest column.

I have just finished reading your excellent column of November seventeenth. In it you question the possibility of projecting planning very far into the future. About educational planning, you say, "It is more than ninety percent redesigning the system to meet present demand or those which were evident several years ago."

Unfortunately, you are right. In the Curriculum Study, I have the feeling that we are reaching out desperately to grab the coat tails of progress. Change in educational needs is so accelerated that we have not caught up with yesterday—much less tomorrow!

Studies have shown that it takes about fifty years for a successful new practice in the school program to become generally accepted. Concerted effort has sometimes reduced this to ten years. Instead of promoting desirable change, the school has too often been a drag on progress.

The school is a social institution. While pure research in the university can push back the frontiers, the public school generally reflects change. Since change itself is slow, the lag between need and practice in the school is often great.

This does not mean that we should be satisfied with the status quo. In fact, the present concern about the public school curriculum is evidence that people, generally, are becoming more aware of the role that education can and should play in promoting a better life for all. Fear for national security adds urgency to our desire for reform.

For these reasons, curriculum study is not necessarily futile. Taking stock of what we have, assessing what we need, and making plans for action to bring about improvement are all worthwhile. This process, in fact, should be continuous. Study and research in education are as important as study and research in industry.

The last General Assembly showed that it did not have or would not accept the information given it about certain aspects of public education. By resolutions it ordered the establishment of four different commissions or committees to study different matters, all related directly to the public schools. The State Board of Education and the State Board of Higher Education both are studying the curriculum of the schools and the training of public school teachers, respectively. There seems to be no lack of need for educational study and research.

The trouble seems to be that we wait too long. We do not seem to be willing even to try to anticipate improvements needed. The study we carry out too often comes in spurts and starts resulting from lack of information when it is needed. Rather, we need careful, continuous planning, based on study and research that give convincing evidence of need, even to the legislature.

Industry would not dream of accepting such a spasmodic, hindsight approach to research as we have been using. Why are we satisfied with it in the education of our children?

In this day of the Research Triangle, why is so little planning being done to include adequate financial research in education? Public education has been described as the chief responsibility of the State, and quality in public education is the chief concern of the people in the State. Is education so simple that it does not require study? Is the "schooling" in which we want quality instruction so fixed that all it requires is application and never change? Do we think that study and research are not important in education?

Some say a return to the fundamentals is all that is needed. The trouble here is that the fundamentals themselves have changed. Mathematics is a good example. We shall have to retrain our teachers and rewrite our textbooks before we can teach mathematics in the way scientists and mathematicians say it must be taught now.

You are certainly right that we cannot plan too definitely for an uncertain future. I am sure you will agree, however, that we should at least catch up. Perhaps we may even be able to identify trends. Where these seem to be in the right direction, we may give impetus to change or to a return to a former, better way. Study and research in education are necessary if we are to be intelligent about it. There is no other way to avoid being permanently kept in the position of reaching out desperately to grab the coat tails of an illusive progress.

venture. In spite of the most careful and minute study that had gone into it, the venture failed.

An isolated case for big business? No. To a greater or lesser degree it goes on in business year in and year out. It goes on in big business where experts of all kinds are available to evaluate specific problems of many kinds. It goes on in small businesses where one man pits his wits against the economic trends. The big businesses drop millions on some, make more millions on others. The little guy may wind up a success or out of business altogether.

The Edsel case points up the fact that in business, large or small, there is always the risk of losing money instead of making money, regardless of how thoroughly the situation is analyzed, regardless of how carefully the economy is evaluated. With millions upon millions at stake, even the experts can be wrong.

Disappointing, Though That Isn't The End

Another spectacular failure by the United States to launch a moon rocket cannot help but accentuate in the eyes of many people the previous successes of the Soviet Union in the field of space vehicles.

While the United States has made significant achievements in the field of space vehicles, its successes for the most part have followed those of the Soviet Union and to some degree at least have been overshadowed. The fact that the failures as well as the successes of the United States in these efforts have been widely publicized here and abroad also may have a bearing on the situation.

In the long run, however, this latter factor will work to the advantage rather than the disadvantage of the United States so far as its international position is concerned. Its willingness to deal honestly with the rest of the world by letting them know its failures as well as its successes in space developments should stimulate even greater confidence in the United States.

By no means should this latest failure to send up a moon rocket be construed to mean that this nation is dropping behind rather than continuing to forge ahead in its space effort. Each failure provides new important information concerning the vehicles of the future just as each success affords similar information as well as information on conditions in outer space.

It would be completely unrealistic, of course, to say this latest failure was not a disappointment to the people of this nation as well as to our allies. By all means it was a disappointment. Yet, this nation, its scientists, its people have overcome much greater disappointments in the past, and certainly they will in the future.

Major Hearing On Tax Reform

By RALPH ROBEY

On November 16 the House Ways and Means Committee, under the chairmanship of Rep. Wilbur D. Mills (D-Ark.), began the most elaborate hearings on tax reform in many decades. The hearings continue through December 18; and previous to their start some 180 papers had been prepared on various aspects of the present tax system. These papers were printed by the Committee in three volumes with a total of just over 2400 pages.

The hearings themselves consist of a series of round-table discussions at which each participant summarizes his paper and then is questioned by the Members of the Committee and his fellow panelists. None of the participants, incidentally, is a spokesman for any organization and the largest group in terms of numbers is college professors.

My paper was on the relative role of Federal taxes and pointed out that 81 per cent of Treasury revenues come from income taxes. This was on the second day of the hearings, and on the basis of the views expressed the day before it appeared wise to me to use my oral statement to summarize some basic simple principles involved in the problem of tax rate reform. These principles were the following:

Taxes For Revenue Purposes Only
The tax system should be used only for revenue purposes, and should be designed with a view to obtaining as nearly stable revenues as possible.

Compensatory savings may have some appeal in theory, but it will not work in practice. Rather, all it does, or can do, is give us larger deficits during periods of recession. It never gives us the hoped-for large surpluses in prosperity to pay off the debt created during economic downturns.

Goal of Balanced Budget
An effort to obtain stable revenues does not mean that the Federal Budget will be balanced every year, but that should be the goal.

Growth of government is at the expense of growth of the private sector of the economy, and government expenditures should be held as low as possible.

Taxes never serve as a positive encouragement to business and the effort should be to make them as light a handicap as feasible.

Basic income-tax-rate reform should have priority over everything else in the tax field, and it is not necessary to have a study of indefinite duration before we start on the task of such rate reform.

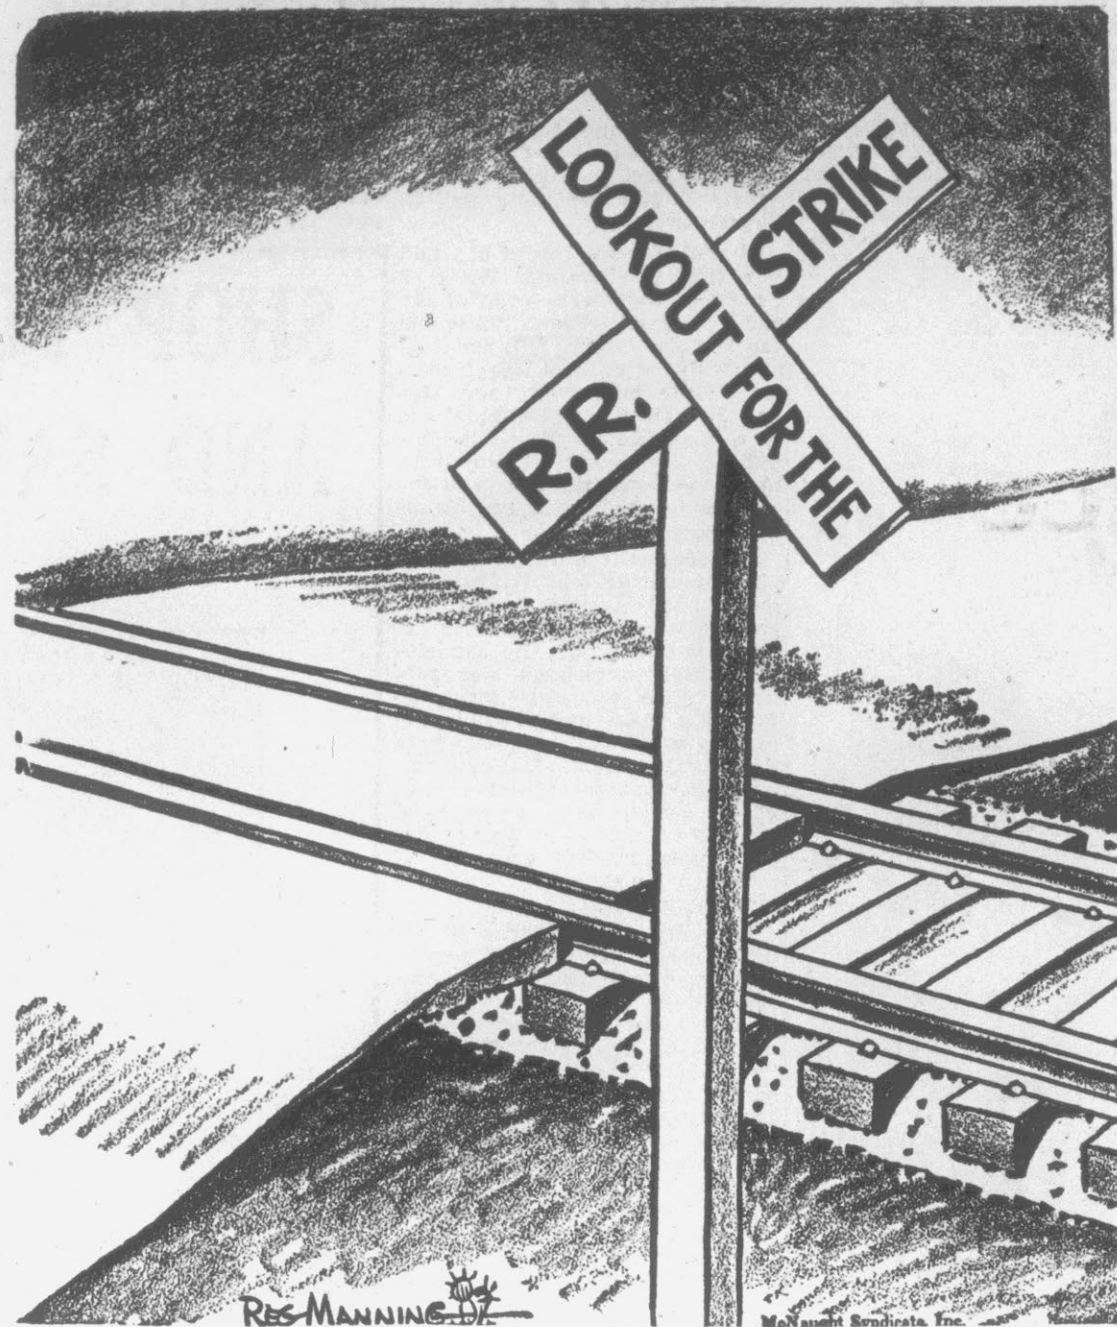

The proper basis for tax rate reform is to use the increased revenues that result from economic growth for reductions from the lowest to the highest rates.

Closing so-called "loopholes" is not as important as rate revision. These were put in the tax code after thorough consideration by the Congress, and must not be eliminated without great care.

The nation today has a serious shortage of venture capital and this can be corrected only by tax rate reform.

All of those dogmatic statements appear true to me. However, it must be recognized that many persons disagree. This is the case in every one of these principles, and that is one of the reasons why this set of hearings is so important.

Another Dangerous Crossing

Notes Found In The Mail

NEW YORK (AP)—Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Despite the march of science, there is still an appalling amount of ignorance in the world. A United Nations agency estimates that 44 per cent of the earth's population over the age of 14 can neither read nor write.

We are becoming a nation of home owners. The number of American families owning their own homes rose from 20 million to 29 million in the last decade. The rate of ownership in non-farm families is now 53 per cent, the highest in history.

You've got mighty good eyesight if you can tell the number of steps in the pyramid on the back of a dollar bill. The answer: 13.

Nature study note: A doe can run 48 miles an hour, a buck 49 miles an hour. This explains why the deer population is increasing rapidly.

Boredom is one of civilized man's greatest enemies. A study of 300 men and women who complained of chronic tiredness disclosed only 20 per cent had any organic ailment. In most of the others fatigue was the result of simple boredom.

You can win money by betting your friends they don't know the name of George Washington's favorite horse. It was Blue Skin.

Here's a health tip for barflies. A teacher of orthopedic surgery at Northwestern University reports that "hooking your foot on the rail when you stand at a bar straightens your spine and reduces strain, thus making you more comfortable."

Do you feel you are losing backbone as you grow older?

Well, in a way you are. You are born with 33 vertebrae, but fusion reduces them later in life to 26.

A pleasant custom: In Scandinavia, members of a family line up their shoes in a row before going to bed on Christmas Eve. This signifies their equal love for one another and their desire to live in peace together in the coming year.

Smoke gets in my eyes: In the United States now some 55,000 cigars are smoked every three minutes around the clock. Tommy Manville, last of the oldtime playboys, uses his automobile license plate as a matrimonial box score. He has had 10 wives, and his car plate is "TM-10."

Executive signs: This one is on the desk of Irving J. Botner, president of the Esquire Shoe Polish Co.: "Worry kills more people than work. So stop worrying and start working."

The U. S. Marines always have been a real front-line outfit. During the Korea fighting fully 75 per cent of the corps' officers and men saw combat. It was Cervantes who observed: "That's the nature of women—not to love when we love them, and to love when we love them not."

But Grifton looked before it leaped. It played it safe. It had careful studies of the operators who desired to lease the plant. These investigations were made by banks, by industrial departments of utility firms and others. And there was a practical guarantee that the output of the plant would have one national known firm (J.C. Penney) which contracted to buy almost half of the production.

The Grifton spirit did it. The new garment factory is another in a trend which is seeing the small and medium-sized towns of Eastern North Carolina become important centers of clothing manufacturing. There is a real story here which has not been told. Garment making plants employing several thousands and workers now are operating successfully and satisfactorily in near a score of eastern communities. We must go to Wade Lucas for details.

Other Editors Saying Griton's New Spirit

(Goldsboro News-Argus) Grifton is a lovely village in Pitt County. It is a fine place in which to savor a leisurely life, to raise one's children in the fear and admonition of the Lord and with all due regard for all men.

Grifton's population is estimated at about 1,800. When the last census was taken it was 510. Location of the duPont daron plant three miles from the town accounts for the unusual growth. Many duPont workers picked Grifton for their home. Others wanted to settle there but could not get houses at that time. There was not an adequate source of financing for new homes. That is corrected now since building and loans from nearby towns have entered the picture to help. We hear a Farmville B and L finances more than a score of comfortable homes.

But Grifton's growth has been in spirit as much as in size. The people of the town have subscribed over $100,000 toward a fund to build a building for a garment factory.

That is a lot of money for Grifton. Such a response would be like the raising of a million dollars or so in Greenville, Kinston or Goldsboro.

With the town showing it was solidly behind the factory to make boys and men's woolen clothing, it was easy to borrow the remainder of the money which had to be raised to build the new plant. It will hire 300 people.

These investigations were made by banks, by industrial departments of utility firms and others. Foreign Stocks Outlook

By ROGER BABSON
BABSON PARK, Mass.—Since returning home from my long trip to Europe, I find that many of my friends here are greatly interested in buying stocks now of German, French, Italian, and other European companies.

IS ALL EUROPE TURNING SOCIALISTIC? Let me first say that in Norway, Sweden, and Denmark, the railways, telephone and telegraph, and all the utilities are owned by their national governments. All these countries have many private stores and huge "co-operatives." In some of these countries every co-operative not owned by the state must have a majority of its directors citizens of that country. Holland and Belgium are more friendly to outside investors. In Poland and Russia everything is state-owned. Hence, the purchase of European stocks by Americans is limited practically to stocks of corporations in a limited number of nations as noted above.

CONDITIONS IN GERMANY West Germany is now very prosperous and this prosperity extends—in decreasing proportion—until we reach Spain. The German people are intelligent and industrious and are not handicapped by unreasonable labor leaders or tax collectors. The favorite German stocks are the "industrials," namely chemicals, metallurgy, electronics, building materials, automobiles, paper products, and chain stores. The banks—which largely carry on the investment business—are also making money. Many of these companies may offer temporary profits.

American investors who buy them are, however, playing with fire. I hope I am wrong; but I think that Mr. K will succeed in getting control of all Berlin and will ultimately consolidate East Germany—which Russia now controls and which I visited—with West Germany. This could enable Mr. K to control the entire area under the Polish System. The Poles insist they are not Communists; but all property is owned by the Polish Federal Government, which is friendly to Russia. Hence I do not recommend the purchase of any German stocks on bonds.

As I stated last week, Mr. K does not want World War III. His hope is that some way can be worked out for him to gradually consolidate and control Germany without fighting. But if he must fight to bring about his goal, and if we should feel obliged to get into a nuclear war, I hate to think of what would follow. Western Europe does not want Communism; but I believe that with the exception of the property owners—who are a small minority—the majority are favorable to state ownership under the Polish System.

If World War III should come, all Europe would immediately turn socialistic and have state ownership; but gradually—war or no war—this is the trend. This especially applies to France, Italy, and perhaps to England, notwithstanding the recent fine victory of the conservative party. They don't want Communism; and I hope the Russians will get tired of it. Much, however, depends upon China which is fast developing its own form of Communism. All the above means that my U. S. readers had better look upon European stocks as dangerous speculations rather than as investments.

OUR SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION Bankers and brokers have never liked our Securities and Exchange Commission. They claim its red tape puts a "ball and chain" on the sale of new issues of stocks and bonds. I, however, feel it is a protection to all honest investors, and even speculators, if they take the time to read the prospectuses which the Commission requires.

Stocks and bonds issued by bankers and corporations in Germany and other European countries do not have to be reported to such a commission; (Continued on Page 6)

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
IT CALLS FOR THE CURSE OF MAN

Have you ever asked yourself why sensible beings as most humans are get involved in war? Think about war for a minute. Who wins a war? In the old days the king won. Later, flamboyant leaders won. We have come to the day when nobody wins. And never in the history of all mankind have the common people gained by war. They have sloshed through the mud and taken spear and bayonet into their bodies—and somebody else got the glory and the gain. The Napoleon Wars! The Franco-Prussian War! The Spanish American War! The First and Second World Wars! What about the people who fought these wars? The women who sat at home and wept? The children who grew up orphans? The children that were never born because a man who might have begotten them died in his youth in battle?

Are we insane? No place on earth do the common people want war. War is a game played by leaders and the governments. There is no sense to war. It is a cruel use of others by a selfish few determined to advance what appears to be their own interests at any cost. Let us not be calm about the peace movement. We need to get on fire about this thing. War is an outrage. It is a cruel procedure by which the strong and prominent climb over the weak and inconsequential to selfish glory.

War has upon it the curse of God. It needs also to have upon it the curse of man.

Deferred Compensation Leaflet

By ELMER ROESSNER
A leaflet by the Small Business Administration is doubly significant in that:

1. It outlines the practice of deferred compensation, which is sure to be a tremendous factor in all employment in the future, and;

2. It places one government agency (the SBA) in the role of telling the public how to escape some of the clutches of another (the Internal Revenue Service).

Let's talk about No. 1 today, No. 2 tomorrow.

"Deferred compensation," the leaflet says, "is a method of increasing a key employee's pay in the future rather than in the present. The aim is to provide a way through which, after retirement, he will continue to receive pay from his employer for past services rendered."

is, from 65 to 75. If he should die before age 65, the $5,000 per year will be paid to his wife or children for the 10-year period.

It won't cost the employer any more to pay Aldershot $5,000 a year for 10 years after his retirement than it would to give him a raise now; in fact, the employer might garner a little interest on the money if he puts it in a fund.

Furthermore, Aldy (as the boys in the shipping room probably call him) is content because a firm, 10-year income looks a lot more solid than a pension.

HELPS RECRUITING
Deferred payment plans can help small businesses pirate good men from other companies, the SBA leaflet hints.

"Suppose your firm wants to get a key executive to fill an important post," it says. "This man may be participating already in a generous pension plan. He may be covered by a substantial amount of group life insurance, group hospitalization, and major medical, accident and health services. He may be involved in stock ownership plans. A small company may have difficulty in hiring such a man. "Maybe you can bid for his services by offering the inducement of a larger salary. But salary increases don't always mean much in these days of steeply progressive income tax rates." That's your government speaking, bub. It continues:

"However, if you supplement the annual-salary offer with a generous deferred-pay agreement, the after-retirement security growing out of it may well be all the inducement you need. This can be particularly true if you provide substantial death benefits for the family by making the deferred payments to the wife and children in case the man dies prematurely."

HOW IT WORKS
Deferred payment plans can be tailored to the conditions involved. Under proper agreements, the company need not be bound to keep the man employed until retirement, and he can resign at any time. Companies can lay aside funds to provide the after-retirement pay, in which case they will draw interest on the money, or they may underwrite it by buying paid-up-at-65 insurance.

Assuming the key man retired at 65. "The firm would then have paid to the life insurance company, in premiums, in the neighborhood of $30,000 to $40,000 on a $50,000 policy." Premiums stop at 65 and the insurance company will pay $50,000 when the man dies.

"Now suppose the key man lives 10 years after retiring, and that his firm pays him $5,000 yearly. The firm deducts those payments from company income just as if they were salary. With a 50 per cent income tax bracket, the cost to the firm . . . is only $25,000." The leaflet continues.

Then if the insured man dies, the firm receives $50,000 insurance tax-free. Observation: Every executive ought to have a copy of this leaflet and when the time comes, he should ask for deferred compensation instead of a raise. Write to the Small Business Administration, Washington 25, D. C., and ask for a free copy of "Management Aids for Small Manufacturers, No. 107." Observation: Every employer ought to have a copy, too, to know what to expect, how to keep key executives content, and how to pirate executives.

Evans served miniature bridal cakes led in pink at the other end of the table. Assisting in serving nuts, cheese dates, ham swirls, chicken salad patties, and pastel sandwiches were Mrs. M. T. Simpson and Mrs. V. E. Wells.

Toasts were drunk from a crystal loving cup tied with ribbons of satin and valley lilies. A tiered wedding cake adorned with shaded pink carnations, smilax and tulle was cut by the bride and the bridegroom and served by Miss Anna White, Miss Nelson Blount, Miss Doring Jenkins, Miss Margaret Nobles and Miss Margaret Ann Harrell. Punch with raspberry ices was poured from a silver punch bowl. A tray, garnished with pink carnation and valley lilies, held chicken salad patties, assorted pastel sandwiches and ham swirls. Miniature bridal cakes led in pink, cheese dates and nuts were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Westbrook invited guests into the family room where Mr. and Mrs. A. Ward Peacock introduced them to the second receiving line of the bride's attendants.

Mrs. Helen Hawes, Mr. Ralph Reeves, Dr. and Mrs. Sam T. White II, and Mr. and Mrs. Reid Perkins assisted in receiving. Goodbyes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Jack Horton.

Travel

For traveling, the bride changed to a two-piece costume wool suit of crystal blue trimmed in Norwegian fox fur with matching hat of taffeta petals and black accessories. Her corsage was the orchid from her bridal bouquet.

Upon their return from a southern wedding trip, the couple will be at home in Greenville.

Bridesmaids Luncheon

On Friday Miss Sara Adams and her bridesmaids were honored at luncheon at the home of Mrs. Jack Nobles on Longmeadow Road, with Mesdames Jack Horton, L. T. Shotwell and W. L. Whedbee as assisting hostesses.

Upon arrival, Miss Adams was presented a corsage of Sweetheart roses which complemented the winter white ensemble she chose for the occasion.

Guests were invited into the dining room where Mrs. John Adams, mother of the bride-elect, and Mrs. S. T. White, grandmother of the bridegroom-elect, served the buffet luncheon.

The luncheon table was covered with a Madeira linen cutwork cloth edged with lace and centered with a miniature bride holding gifts to be presented to the bridal attendants.

Suspended from the crystal chandelier was a cascade of wedding bells showered with ribbons and interspersed with fern and white bridal flowers. An arrangement of white glads and mums was used on the buffet to complete the green and white motif.

Arrangements of greens and fall flowers were used throughout the first floor of the Nobles home.

After the luncheon, Miss Adams presented each attendant a string of pearls.

Rehearsal Dinner

On Friday evening, a rehearsal dinner party was held in St. Paul's Episcopal Parish House honoring the Adams-White wedding party and out-of-town guests.

The hosts were Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. White, parents of the bridegroom-elect, Dr. Sam T. White II, brother of the bridegroom-elect, and Mrs. White, Mr. A. Ward Peacock and Mrs. Peacock, sister of the bridegroom-elect.

Greeting the guests were Dr. and Mrs. White, and Miss Anna Louise White, sister of the bridegroom-elect, who introduced them to a receiving line composed of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. White; Miss Sara Adams, honoree; Mr.

Charles A. White Jr., nonoree; Mrs. John Hutchinson Adams, mother of the bride-elect, and Mr. John Adams, brother of the bride-elect.

Mr. and Mrs. Peacock then invited guests into the guild room, where tomato juice was served by Miss Elizabeth White, sister of the bridegroom; Miss Betsy Whedbee, cousin of the bride-elect; and Mr. George Lay White, brother of the bridegroom-elect.

The focal point of the dining room was the bridal table, covered with a cloth of net over white satin, with rows of lace down the center. Place cards, in the shape of a wedding bell, with photographs of the bride-elect and the bridegroom-elect marked the places.

The centerpiece of the appointed table was an all white floral de Medic arrangement. Placed in an heirloom silver tureen were clusters of Garza chrysanthemums and Fujii pom poms cascading downward toward the translucent snapdragons based in lover leaf fern.

Other guests were seated at small tables, scattered throughout the dining room, which were centered with white tapers and greens.

A two-course dinner of turkey and ham was served, followed by a dessert of coconut squares and ices molded in the shape of fruits.

Mr. Peacock, as master of ceremonies, entertained guests with a few anecdotes and proposed toasts to the bridal couple-elect and their parents.

Concluding the evening, a trio, composed of sisters of the bridegroom-elect, sang a song with words appropriate to the bridal pair. They were accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Allison Hearne Moss.

After Rehearsal Party Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Lee Jr. honored Miss Adams and Mr. White Friday night at an after rehearsal party given at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

Guests were the bridal party, members of the families and out-of-town guests for the wedding.

Focal arrangement on the refreshment table was a centerpiece of yellow snapdragons and mums, flanked by white tapers. Mrs. Steve Wilkerson poured the punch. Refreshments consisted of iced cakes, finger sandwiches, assorted hors d'oeuvres, nuts and mints.

Wedding Breakfast
On Saturday afternoon, Miss Sara Adams and Mr. Charles A. White, Jr. were entertained at a wedding breakfast at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds May on Rock Spring Drive.

Guests were greeted upon arrival by hosts, Mr. and Mrs. May, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Whedbee, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Harrell, and Mr. and Mrs. J.R. Moye Jr., and presented to the receiving line which was composed of the honorees, Mrs. John H. Adams, mother of the bride-elect and Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. White Sr., parents of the bridegroom-elect. The bride-elect was attired in a raspberry velvet sheath with matching hat of velvet leaves and wore a corsage of white gardenias, presented by her hosts.

A white and silver motif was carried out in the dining room where the wedding party was seated. The bride's table was covered with a white imported cutwork linen cloth and centered with a five branch silver epergne holding an arrangement of white mums and fern. Each place was marked with a miniature nosegay, fashioned of matching flowers and tied with white satin ribbons.

Fall flowers decorated the adjoining rooms where auxiliary tables were placed for the tables were placed for the other guests. Two courses were served the seventy-five present. Those attending included the bridal party, family and out of town guests.

Other hosts for the occasion were Mr. and Mrs. V.E. Wells, Mr. and Mrs. and Mrs. W.S. Bost, Mr. and Mrs. M.T. Simpson, Mrs. E.C. Wilkerson and Mr. and Mrs. A.C. Ruffin.

Out-of-Town Guests
Mr. and Mrs. Paul Green, Mr.

A. Ward Peacock and Miss Maude Lee of Chapel Hill; Mr. and Mrs. McDaniel Lewis, Mrs. Charles Pace, and Mr. Steve Wilkerson of Greensboro; Mr. and Mrs. Earl Westbrook, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Brown and little Sandra Brown, Dunn; Mr. and Mrs. Milton Moye, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Mayo, Mrs. Milton Moye Jr., and Mrs. George Howard Fountain, Tarboro; Miss Ada C. Ward of Washington, D. C.; Mr. and Mrs. Hayes White, Miss Frances King, Miss Louise Fleming, and Miss Jean Page, Raleigh; Miss Lou White Winstead, High Point; Mr. and Mrs. George Vossler and Mr. and Mrs. George Vick, Fayetteville; Mr. and Mrs. Troy Burnette, Nashville; Mrs. George Mathis, Durham; Mr. Ralph Rives, Enfield; Mr. and Mrs. Paul King, Clinton; Julia Mitchell, Yanceyville; Patsy Bradshaw, Kinston; James Thomas, Chapel Hill; Mr. Richard Quick, New Bern; Lee Johnson, Wilson; Mr. and Mrs. William Fleming, Albany, Ga.; Mrs. Mason Yates, Columbia, S. C.; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Moye, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Moye, Mrs. Maury, Mr. and Mrs. Fernando Satterthwaite and Mr. Jack Lewis, Farmville; Miss Barbara Britt and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Haar of Richmond, Va.; Miss Rachel Lang of Florida; Miss Elizabeth Cornwell, Richlands, and Miss Natalie Zuber, Columbus, Ohio.

Truly Fireproof Structure Is Replacing Burned-Out School

CHICAGO (AP)—"If there ever was a fireproof building, this is it."

A workman made that comment to a reporter as they stood near a construction site at the northeast corner of Avers Avenue and Iowa street.

They looked at a sturdy steel and concrete skeleton that is rising from the ashes and charred bricks of the Our Lady of the Angels School.

The only wood in the new million-dollar, three-story building will be in the doors.

A new fire alarm box already stands like a sentry on the sidewalk on the Iowa Street side. It symbolizes the determination that there shall be no repetition of the blaze that swept up an open stairwell of the old school Dec. 1, 1958.

That fire cost the lives of 92 children and 3 nuns.

Our Lady of the Angels pupils attend classes elsewhere while workmen labor on the new structure.

A newsman who revisited the scene recalled the eerie silence that shrouded the area that short, dark, cold day almost a year ago. Spectators had gathered behind fire lines to stare at the ruined building. Parishioners trickled in to the nearby church to offer silent prayers.

That was a silence of mass shock. It has been replaced by a mum reluctance to talk about the tragedy.

"I'd rather not talk about it," Mrs. Joseph Modica told a reporter who called at her home. Her son, Joseph Jr., 9, had started work last fall on a Christmas gift for her. He took letters of the alphabet that were made of cereal and glued them on sticks to spell out a vow: "I, Joseph, promise to do my best to do my duty to God and to my country, to be square and to -"

He never finished his project. He died in the fire.

At another neat brick home, Mrs. Joseph Makowski let the reporter in through an entry hall where a statue of the mother of Christ was enshrined on a wall. She lost a son, Raymond, in the fire.

She didn't want to talk, either. But she did mention one detail of her sorrow.

"He was going to be 13 that Christmas Eve," she said.

In these homes and elsewhere there was no support for rumors of bitterness in the parish. The rectory denied rumors of physical or mental breakdowns among nuns.

The pastor, Msgr. Joseph F. Cussen, suffered a stroke last May. After a long stay in a hospital he has returned to his post as head of one of Chicago's largest parishes.

He arranged an anniversary Mass for the fire victims at 6 p.m. Tuesday.

The fire left a legacy of litigation as well as sorrow. Suits seeking $2,305,000 in damages have been filed against the Roman Catholic archbishop of Chicago, who controls the school property, and the city of Chicago. They were filed in behalf of the families of 16 of the pupils who died and six of the 80 children who were injured.

Perhaps The Best TV Awards Show Sunday

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Historically, the awards show—the giving of Oscars and Emmys—is a television format which has run from complete fiasco to plain dull.

It would seem, however, that a show where the makers of the year's best phonograph records are given statuettes and also repeat their winning performances would be a natural for a musical show. Unfortunately, the Grammy show on NBC Sunday night ran into the same snags that slowed down and often stopped the earlier ones. They are those awkward moments of presentation.

The Grammy show—"Grammy" is a small golden replica of the old-fashioned talking machine which is awarded by the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences—made 34 awards and presented us with a double handful of performing stars.

The producers did a handsome job of dressing up many of the numbers. When Jonah Jones and his quartet was playing "I Die With a Song," we were shown the feet and legs of Polynesians, Japanese, Greeks, Russians and others dancing to American jazz, an adroit and powerful editorial on music as an international language.

When Jimmy Driftwood sang his prize-winning "Battle of New Orleans," he was accompanied by a delightful battle of paper dolls showing the retreat of the red coats.

But there were also the long, awkward moments. For instance, Van Cliburn mixed up the cards so thoroughly in making some presentations that at this moment I don't know whether Jussi Bjorling and the Boston Symphony won a statuette or whether it was Roberta Peters and Mozart. Anyway, the Grammy people did stop all that rushing up from the audience and those breathless thanks to all the good people who made it all possible.

If award show there must be a Grammy show people did best to date.

Who won? Lots of people, including Ella Fitzgerald for best feminine vocal performance, Bob Darin for the best record of the year ("Mack the Knife") and the best new artist of the year, and Duke Ellington for the best musical composition of the year ("Anatomy of a Murder").

Conquest on CBS started what seemed like a promising two-partner—"The Deep Search," concerned with a 4,000-foot dive in a Navy bathyscaphy into the Pacific. The first part didn't even get us below the waves. It was broken to pieces, pulling the undersea chamber to the place where—next week, we hope—we will accompany the scientists on their dive and start exploring the bottom of the sea.

George Burns surfaced on CBS Sunday night (G. E. Theater) in what was announced as his first real acting role. It was a comedy about an ex-vaudevillian who steals for kicks. And George, acting or not, remained Mr. Burns, singing a little, making his jokes and smoking his cigar.

Another comedian who remained indubitably himself was Ed Wynn on Friday night. He was cast as Kris Kringle in the television adaptation of "Miracle of 34th Street." Somehow in the adapting process the fantasy and whimsy of the motion picture was replaced by broad comedy. And somehow, too, much of the charm of the show was lost.

Lives Saved By A Short-Circuit

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Firemen credited a short circuit with saving the lives of the William Schwarting family early Sunday.

Schwarting, awakened by a door bell, saw flames leaping from the ceiling of his bedroom. He and his family fled the house. Firemen said flames probably short-circuited the door bell.

GUILFORD COLLEGE — East Carolina and Guilford ushered in the 1959-1960 college season on Saturday night, playing in mid-season offensive form with the Pirates staving off a late rally to escape with a 109-102 opening game victory.

Guilford their biggest advantage, 43-50, but Ike Riddick, the only EC senior, took goals with three straight field goals and the Bucs were out front against and this time to stay.

Atlantic Coast Clubs Move Into Basketball Action This Week

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Picking a winner in the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball race this year is like judging a beauty contest. The more you study the fine points of the eight teams, the better each looks.

All eight teams move into action this week, five of them Tuesday. The four North Carolina teams — North Carolina, N.C. State, Duke and Wake Forest — should be tough, as usual. But so should Maryland. Topping his is the fact that South Carolina and Clemson should be improved and if Virginia develops, the league could be dangerous from top to bottom.

Eleven games are scheduled this week, including three conference scraps Saturday. One of these, the South Carolina at North Carolina affair, will be televised in the afternoon. Tuesday night's openers have Georgia Tech at Duke, Virginia at William and Mary, Wake Forest at Ohio State, Penn State at N.C. State and Erskine at Clemson.

A quick look at the teams (not in order) show this:
N.C. State — Last year's ACC champs lost several of their starters. There are only three seniors on the squad that included lettermen Don Gallagher, Bruce Hoadley, Stan Niewierowski, Ken Clark, Bob DiStefano, Dan Englehardt and Bob McCann. A crop of good sophs make the Wolfpack tough.

North Carolina — Dick Kepley, 6-8 center, is out with an injury and Doug Moe is ineligible until the start of the second semester. Despite the loss of these fine players, Coach Frank McGuire has York Larese, Lee Shaffer and Harvey Salz back. McGuire's strong bench plus these three make the Tar Heels potent.

Duke — The five flaming sophomores of last year are back as juniors, plus some good sophomores for a strong bench, make Duke doubly dangerous this year. Duke also has a new coach in Vic Bubas, former N.C. State player and assistant coach. A real threat.

Wake Forest — Lenny Chappell, 6-8 freshman sensation last year, and Billy Packer, a sparkplugging guard, could turn the Deacons into a fearsome contender. Seven lettermen, plus the newcomers.

Maryland — Five lettermen, Bob McDonald, Charlie McNeil, Al Dunge, Jerry Bechtie and Pete Krukar, must carry the load. If the bench comes through, the Terps will be as tough as anyone in the ACC.

South Carolina — Bob Stevens, the Gamecocks' new coach is installing a fast break with the promise of run, run, run. How well the returning lettermen take it will guide the results. Some good performers in Mike Callahan, Larry Dial, Bob Frantz, and Ronnie Johnson.

Clemson — George Krajack who led the team last year with a 13-point average is back with five lettermen. But the worth of the sophs will determine if the Tigers better their 8-16 record of last year.

Virginia — Paul Adkins, who averaged 16 points per game last year, is back. But big Herb Busch has graduated and here again, it will be up to the sophs.

The week's schedule:
Tuesday — Georgia Tech at Duke, Virginia at William and Mary, Wake Forest at Ohio State, Penn State at North Carolina State, Erskine at Clemson.
Thursday — Maryland at George Washington, Erskine at South Carolina.
Saturday — N.C. State at Wake Forest, Wake Forest at North Carolina, Clemson at Duke, Richmond at Virginia.

Empire Champion Hopes To Tire Out Joe Brown

HOUSTON (AP)—"I will try to tire him out. I will try to knock him out if I get the opportunity, but I must not get reckless."

British Empire Champion Dave Charnley chose his words carefully, looking ahead to his 15-round challenge for Joe Brown's world lightweight title here Wednesday night.

"I think I'm going to win this. I know he's a crafty one and I know he can hit," he said of the 34-year-old veteran of 103 fights.

"He'll come out with a flurry, then go into his shell awhile and wait for another opening. I know he's quite alert. He moves like a cat."

Both Brown and Charnley tapered off today, their sparring work over. They planned some work on the bags but little else before the 11 a.m. weigh-in Wednesday.

Brown has said that the fighter who eventually ships him "will be somebody with a good left who can keep jolting me back." Charnley thinks he fits that description.

Southern Loop Opens Schedule Tomorrow Night

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Southern Conference opens its 40th basketball season tomorrow with West Virginia seeking a sixth consecutive championship against an unusually formidable array of challengers.

Blessed with the incomparable Jerry West but plagued by the lack of a good big man, the Mountaineers enter the season with a 50-game conference winning streak they'll be hard put to preserve much longer.

Hostilities commence tomorrow night with seven of the nine conference clubs in action in a six-game schedule. One of the games is a conference match between George Washington and Richmond on the Richmond Arena court.

Other games find Tennessee at West Virginia, Virginia at William and Mary, Furman at Louisville, Presbyterian at Davidson.

Before the week is out, four other intra-conference skirmishes will have been played, and two of them provide major tests of strength for West Virginia. The Mountaineers play at The Citadel Friday night and at Furman Saturday night.

William and Mary makes its conference bow Thursday at VMI, and Virginia Tech, shooting for national ranking, has its coming-out party Saturday against George Washington.

Sophomores will provide crucial depth to veteran casts at The Citadel, where Art Musselman (6-3, 16.1) is the big wheel, and at William and Mary, which still has giant Jeff Cohen (6-7, 16.5).

Furman will miss playmaker Dick Wright and may hurt on defense but will be deeper. Dag Wilson (6-4, 17.1) is the top Paladin. Richmond is well stocked with veterans but will be bench-sy as usual. George Washington lost four starters and is rebuilding with sophomores around Howard Bash (6-3, 12.0). VMI has a raft of hot-shooting sophs and could surprise, but lacks a big man. Davidson is rebuilding with youngsters and is a year or so away.

Sharpest debates during the five-day sessions probably will center around plans to set up an unrestricted draft of all minor leaguers and a free agent draft, attempts to amend the present first-year draft and another effort to establish a bonus rule that will work.

The first order of business, however, was the annual major league draft followed by the minors' own player selections. The Washington Senators, who have first call this year because of their last place finish in the American League, were expected to draft Don Lee, a 25-year-old right-hand pitcher who won 14 and lost 9 games at Louisville in 1959. Philadelphia, the National League's cellar-dweller, had next call.

Last year's draft elevated 30 players, a dozen to the majors at a $300,000 outlay. Only three remained in the big leagues all year. Although many major leaguers are in attendance, they are being discreetly censored about the new inter-league trading which became effective Nov. 20, and runs through Dec. 15. The big leaguers are bidding their time until the major league meetings starting in Miami Beach next Monday.

There is an undercurrent of talk concerning major league expansion and the proposed third big league, American League President Joe Cronin said he expected a report from his three-man fact-finding committee on expansion.

"The American League is seriously considering expansion," he reiterated. "Any talk that we are merely creating a smoke screen to harass the Continental League is ridiculous. The league agreed to explore the possibility of expansion as far back as five years ago."

Minor Leagues Open Meeting

Minor Leagues Open Meeting

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—The minor leagues opened their 58th annual convention today faced with the perennial bonus, player and money problems.

The agenda included 28 proposed amendments and for the first time in almost two decades, radio and television are not listed on the legislative docket. The minors apparently have become resigned to the fact that no relief measures against radio-TV network broadcasting into their territories are feasible as long as Congress declines to pass control legislation.

Sharpest debates during the five-day sessions probably will center around plans to set up an unrestricted draft of all minor leaguers and a free agent draft, attempts to amend the present first-year draft and another effort to establish a bonus rule that will work.

The first order of business, however, was the annual major league draft followed by the minors' own player selections. The Washington Senators, who have first call this year because of their last place finish in the American League, were expected to draft Don Lee, a 25-year-old right-hand pitcher who won 14 and lost 9 games at Louisville in 1959. Philadelphia, the National League's cellar-dweller, had next call.

Last year's draft elevated 30 players, a dozen to the majors at a $300,000 outlay. Only three remained in the big leagues all year. Although many major leaguers are in attendance, they are being discreetly censored about the new inter-league trading which became effective Nov. 20, and runs through Dec. 15. The big leaguers are bidding their time until the major league meetings starting in Miami Beach next Monday.

There is an undercurrent of talk concerning major league expansion and the proposed third big league, American League President Joe Cronin said he expected a report from his three-man fact-finding committee on expansion.

"The American League is seriously considering expansion," he reiterated. "Any talk that we are merely creating a smoke screen to harass the Continental League is ridiculous. The league agreed to explore the possibility of expansion as far back as five years ago."

Tigers Get Week Of Rest

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Atlantic Coast Conference champion Clemson Tigers — looking toward their Dec. 19 Bluebonnet Bowl date with Texas Christian — will rest this week.

Then, in the words of Coach Frank Howard, they'll "work like the devil for a week" to get ready. The team will work out lightly the week immediately preceding the game.

Except for Clemson's bowl game and a contest matching N.C. State vs. Maryland Saturday, the season has ended for ACC teams.

Clemson nailed down the bowl bid by trouncing Furman 56-3.

It's a little early to start looking at prospects for next year, but Wake Forest fans are doing just that.

The reason for the optimism is that Norman (Slinger) Sneed, the great Deacon quarterback, will be back. And Wake Forest's first two teams won't be hit too hard by graduation.

Sneed set four ACC season records last Saturday as the Deacons clubbed South Carolina 43-20. The new marks are 12 touchdown passes, 1,361 yards gained by passing, 82 completions, and 1,365 total yards gained. He also set a single game total offense record of 256 yards.

As great as Wake Forest's offense was, Coach Paul Amen singled out his club's second half defense as the key to victory.

South Carolina failed to score in the second half, and got only two first downs, one on a penalty. The Gamecocks got only 42 yards rushing in the last two periods.

"Our season-long problem has been to stop the other team," said Amen, "and we did a beauty of a job in the second half. It's as if we suddenly got the feel of things."

The inaugural Bluebonnet Bowl could turn out to be one of the best of the post-season football game. At least, the coaches think so.

"I think we'll have a very good game with Texas Christian," said Howard.

TCU Coach Abe Martin put it more bluntly. "I would say that it will be one hell of a ball game," he remarked.

The clubs are strikingly similar. Both have 8-2 records for the season. Both have strong backfields, rugged lines, and operate similar offenses.

TCU also closed out regular season play last Saturday, shutting out Southern Methodist 19-0 to finish in a three-way tie with Texas and Arkansas for the South-West Conference championship.

This will be the third bowl appearance in the past four years for Clemson. The Tigers went to the Orange Bowl in 1957, losing to Colorado 27-21. Last year, the Tigers lost 7-0 to LSU in the Sugar Bowl.

Maryland, with a 3-2 ACC record, can remain in third place with a victory over N.C. State, but a loss would drop the Terps to fifth, and move up Wake Forest and South Carolina. They are tied for fourth with 4-3 records. N.C. State is 0-5 in the ACC. North Carolina finished second with a 5-2 record. Clemson was 6-1 in the conference.

Basketball Loop Opening Season

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—The National Industrial Basketball League, boosted to nine teams with three new entries, will begin its 12th season tonight with defending champion Denver playing San Francisco at San Francisco.

The contest will be the first on a 144-game schedule which will run to March 15.

Other games during the first week of the schedule will include Peoria at Seattle Tuesday and Wednesday; Cleveland at Akron and Peoria at San Francisco Friday, and New York at Akron and Peoria at San Francisco next Sunday.

Other teams in the league are Bartlesville, Okla., and Wichita, Kan. The new entries are San Francisco, Cleveland and New York.

Peoria defeated a touring Russian team, 67-63, Sunday in an exhibition game at Peoria.

ON SALE

Season tickets for East Carolina's home basketball games are still on sale. They may be purchased at the College Athletic office.

The Pirates opened their season with a 109-102 thumping of Guilford Saturday night. They kick off their home season against High Point tomorrow night.

WRONG WAY ACE

MURPHYSBORO, Ill. (AP)—Herman Entsminger scored a hole-in-one on the No. 3 green at the Jackson County Country Club but wasn't happy about it. He had been aiming for the No. 9 green, 50 yards to the west.

CHAPTER 29

General Etheredge and Sergeant Desportes were swamped with work because of the arrival of new troops.

The Camp was jammed far beyond capacity now and new barracks had to be thrown up as fast as possible, with laborers and carpenters from town working round the clock.

The Sergeant went to bed, slept, and woke to the continuous sound of hammering and the screeching of saws. The Camp did not even smell the same any more but reeked of new pine.

The biggest change of all, at least in the opinion of those in the Camp and on the Reservation, was the staggering turnout of Blackpony. He was an Army scout now and his part in finding Manuela Escobar was well known, as the Sergeant had made certain that the story got around all over the Camp.

The Apache Police treated him now with a mixture of deference and fear; and the old blanket Apaches, who hadn't changed their ideas or their mode of living—except for the warpath—in fifty years, began to look on him not only as a leader but as a surrogate of the Sergeant's and brought him their problems. Blackpony was no longer the foolish brave who had dressed up as a scout of the old days, in breech-clout and yellow warpaint. He'd had his hair cut according to Anglo standards, and wore work pants, boots, a checked cotton shirt, and a big sand-colored plains hat.

He also wore a 45 on his hip and it was said that he could shoot the eye out of a rattlesnake.

Doc Grayson was always shaking his head over the young Apache. "I just don't understand it. What did you do to him, Sergeant?"

"Nothing," said the Sergeant. "He's an able man, a leader at heart. I guess he finally figured out how to be a leader in changing times. In the old days he would have stirred up an insurrection on the Reservation."

But one night the Sergeant got least part of the explanation while he and Blackpony were riding in from a chase after a band of horses that had broken out of an Army corral.

One day, Blackpony had said: "I be good scout now, like Bud. Yes?"

"What do you mean?" "Bud bad. Then good. Make good scout. Me bad; then good. Now make good scout. All right?"

"Bud was never any good, Blackpony," said the Sergeant. "He was pretending—letting on to be good. Understand?" "No," said Blackpony. "Bug try. But has evil heart. No good. Blackpony have not the evil heart. Blackpony try, make good scout."

"What do you mean, evil heart?"

"Bud, he Jamie Wiggan. You think I didn't know? I see him Sunday. He pay me; give me yellow silk shirt not to tell. He waste money, shirt. I no tell any way. Bud like you, but can not be good. In old days we say demon got Bud."

"So you think he really liked me," said the Sergeant, surprised.

"Sure," said Blackpony. "He Jamie Wiggan! Very bad man. Why he not shoot you in back, take girl? Why he not shoot us all? Very easy. Bud no care for one life, fifty life."

"I see," said the Sergeant. "Well, at least it was an explanation!"

... and so the time passed and many changes came and the General and the Sergeant buried themselves in work day and night and tried not to remember how it had been in the old days.

And then one night, just as the Sergeant was wearily pulling off his boots and getting ready, fully dressed otherwise, to grab a few hours of sleep, there was a peremptory knocking at his door and he was told by an orderly that the General wanted him at HQ.

He found the General sitting at his desk with Lieutenant Pendergast on one side of him and Captain Jocelyn, of Troop A, a very good officer in the Sergeant's opinion, and Captain Grayson on the other. Doc's eyes were blood-shot and he looked sleepy and irritable.

"Well, it's happened," said the General, as soon as the Sergeant entered. "La Paz. Read this wire."

The Sergeant read it. Pendergast and Jocelyn looked on in silence. They both resented the Sergeant, thought he had far too much power and say-so for a noncom; in fact they considered his exalted position in Mesa Encantada not only highly irregular but unique in Army annals.

Nor did they share the General's enthusiasm for him as a man, considering him vastly overrated, not too intelligent, and far too sympathetic toward the Apaches and the Mexicans.

He knew the Southwest well and had his uses, no doubt; but the officers would have enjoyed seeing him taken down a peg or two.

The sponsoring of Jamie Wiggan as a scout should have been enough to ruin him, but the General had merely brushed it aside as of no consequence.

Now he was sponsoring Blackpony, a vicious young Apache, who on his previous record alone, should have been sent to Federal Prison. Maybe this time the Sergeant had overreached himself. They hoped so.

The Sergeant looked up from his reading and nodded to show he had finished and that he'd taken it all in.

Girl-Slapping A U. S. Custom?

WASHINGTON (AP) — "I think I acted the same as any American boy would," the 17-year-old Iranian said after slapping his girl friend and firing two blanks from a pistol.

"I've been in this country for almost six years," said Farhad Adjooodani, "and I'm quite familiar with your customs."

Farhad faces no possibility of police action. The son of Mahmoud Adjooodani, director of foreign exchange students at the Iranian Embassy, he has diplomatic immunity.

Farhad said he lost his temper Saturday night because his girl friend, Sandra Bolek, 16, had been going out with other boys while he was at college in Youngstown, Ohio.

Detective Howard E. Campbell of the city police said the boy had slapped Sandra at the Adjooodani home while his parents were away. His 11-year-old sister was in the house.

Campbell said the boy then took a pistol from a trunk and threatened to shoot himself. He ran into another room, and a shot was heard. It was a blank.

Then he drove the girl home. En route, Campbell said, the boy held the pistol outside the car window and fired a second blank.

Police were summoned. They said a simple assault charge could have been filed if the boy did not have immunity.

The girl is the daughter of the Rev. J. Glenn Bolek, pastor of the Georgetown Lutheran Church.

Assembly Is Told Promise Of Peace In This Lifetime

"God did not put human life upon this earth to be trampled on and despoiled by strong-willed men ruling tyrannically over others," L. E. Reusch, representative of the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society, told 874 assembled Jehovah's Witnesses and interested persons Sunday afternoon.

The Witnesses brought to an end a three-day convention here yesterday.

"That's more, Bible chronology shows that the time is at hand when under the rule of Christ's Kingdom glorious peace and happiness will extend throughout the entire earth," the minister stated.

Reusch, speaking on the subject "When is God's Will to be Done on Earth," explained that God's Will will be soon manifest earth-wide with the destruction of Satan's organization, visible and invisible.

"The transition from Satanic to Divine rule will not be a painless one, but within the lifetime of this present generation all the worldly powers gathered under Satan's banner will be maneuvered into a war with the armies of heaven which will result in certain destruction of Satan," Reusch stated.

"This means," he warned, "that all those who align themselves with the present worldly system of things are destined for destruction unless they place themselves under the rule of Christ's reigning kingdom."

Reusch criticized the clergy of Christendom for collaborating with the political rulers that brought the world into its present condition declaring "not out of Christendom will true Theocracy, the rule of mankind by God's Kingdom, come."

Reusch outlined God's original purpose for the earth and stated, "Jesus Christ preached a message of good news concerning His Kingdom that would carry out God's original purpose for the earth. He taught them the prayer that is to a Christian now, as then, a model: 'Our Father which art in heaven, hallowed by thy name, thy kingdom come, thy will be done in earth as it is in heaven.'"

Following the public address, C. V. Stutz, traveling minister of the Witnesses, spoke to the assembly on "Expanding Our Ministry" and Reusch brought the convention to a close after delivering a heart-warming message of love and responsibility to all of Jehovah's Witnesses in a discussion of "Shepherding the Sheep with Skillfulness."

Saturday afternoon was a key event when 16 persons were ordained Jehovah's Witnesses after having been through an intensive Bible training course for several months. Among those baptized were George Harris of Greenville and Sharon Lawhead of Ayden.

Saturday evening the audience was shown a film of the mammoth world convention of Jehovah's Witnesses held last year in New York City when 253,922 persons assembled the final day. The Witnesses were admonished by officials to take the information learned through the assembly back to their home towns and put into practice things learned in their personal ministry. Speakers throughout the assembly emphasized the importance of following Christian principles in their own communities thereby setting the proper example for others to follow.

BOSTON (AP) — Paul Revere stood on the dark Charlestown shore, his eyes fixed on a church steeple across the harbor.

One if by land, two if by sea was the code which would tell him how the British foe approached.

Finally two lanterns glowed and he was off on the mission celebrated down the years in song and story—the midnight ride of Paul Revere in 1775.

Now, 184 years later, the question is rife as to identity of the spire.

The Rev. John Nicholls Booth says the Second Church, Unitarian, deserves the distinction, and the designation "Old North Church."

He told his congregation Sunday in a sermon the honor does not belong to Christ Church, Protestant Episcopal, long known as the Old North.

Dr. Booth gave numerous reasons and said many more can be found in his new book, "The Story of the Second Church."

In Revere's day, the Second Church was located in the North End, close to Christ Church, but now is situated in the Back Bay section.

The Rev. H. P. Kellett, vicar of Christ Church, is undisturbed by his colleague's claim.

"I'm not going to get involved in a controversy I know nothing about," is his position. "We're getting ready for Christmas, you know, and I'm not interested in lanterns."

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Thanks to $3,000 bond and a forgiving heart, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Chandler were on their honeymoon today.

The wedding was set last Friday, but just as Chandler, 29, was dressing for the big event, police arrested him on assault charges growing out of an altercation at a bachelor party.

Undaunted, Chandler and his fiancée, Carolyn Williamson, 18, rescheduled the wedding Sunday. The ceremony was performed before more than 200 spectators, including many whose invitations the couple had renewed by telephone.

"I have forgiven him," Carolyn said. "Everyone makes one mistake."

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actress Pamela Lincoln is giving up her career to concentrate on being Mrs. Darryl Hickman.

Miss Lincoln, 22, made the announcement after her marriage to the 28-year-old actor in a Hollywood church Saturday. The couple met last year in Los Angeles while both were appearing in a stage show.

Hickman's younger brother, Dwayne, who is television's "Dobie Gillis," was best man.

The bridegroom is currently appearing in the TV series, "Texas John Slaughter." It was his first marriage for both he and his bride.

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—The barn is no place for rock 'n' roll or jazz music. Cows don't like it, says a dairy industry representative.

"That music tightens the cow's glandular system and deters milking," says Will A. Foster of the American Dairy Assn., Chicago. "Waltz music produces much better milking conditions," he told Utah dairy farmers.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress was told today it could give business a better break on tax deductions for depreciation—and still get more revenue in the long run.

Every $100 spent on machinery and equipment generates $25.953 in taxes, Maurice E. Peloubet said in testimony prepared for the House Ways and Means Committee.

Peloubet, partner in a New York accounting firm, said one-third of the productive plant in the United States is obsolete. Under present tax policies, he said, industries which would like to replace it are being "progressively penalized and starved."

He said more generous depreciation allowances would not require raising rates because the additional income created by renewal and modernization will offset the additional depreciation allowances in the first years and increase revenues thereafter.

William A. Paton, professor at the University of Michigan said present law penalizes businesses by requiring them to use past prices in computing depreciation. He said the old prices are no longer realistic in terms of present day dollars.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — A minor fire Sunday knocked out 20 men with chlorine fumes.

Nine of those disabled temporarily by the gas were hospitalized overnight for observation. The others were treated at the scene, the fashionable Bath Club at suburban Redington Beach.

Fire officials said a small blaze which broke out under an outdoor swimming pool cracked a metal tank of the chlorine used to sanitize the pool water.

President Probably To Talk Trade On His Trip

NEW YORK (AP) — President Eisenhower's visit in Europe, Asia and Africa will be stealing the headlines. But don't forget he can — and probably will — talk trade on that trip as well as international politics and alignments.

And at home the next four or five weeks will have a lot to do with setting the course of trade, industry, finance, stock prices — and therefore jobs and incomes — in the first half of 1960.

What happens along these lines also will have a bearing on the success of the President's trip. The economic status of the United States — along with the strength of the American dollar — has much to do with the tone of thinking and planning in other lands. It is a powerful factor in determining decisions in politics as well as trade.

If you own stocks, or would like to, you'll be watching along with the experts to see if the traditional year-end rally develops in security markets. Although seasonal factors influence it, such a rally usually is interpreted as reflecting confidence in business in

Inquisitive, And Eye Damaged

MERCERSBURG, Pa. (AP) — Dicky Barnes, 1½, was sitting in the front seat of his father's car Sunday when his inquisitive fingers got hold of a stray .30 caliber bullet.

An opening on the dashboard seemed just the place for it, so the boy shoved it in.

It turned out to be the hole for a cigarette lighter, and the bullet exploded. The blast injured Dicky's left eye. Doctors at a hospital in Hagerstown, Md., said the boy's condition was fair.

ly in their own income prospects, and spend freely between now and Christmas, both merchants and manufacturers will look for a good first half of the year.

In the next few days the federal budget will take final shape. Soon we will know how much the government wants to spend in the next fiscal year, how much of a needle that will be for business. And we will know if the government thinks it can make such expenditures within its anticipated tax collections.

If not, there'll be the threat of higher taxes. Or there will be the threat of more inflationary pressure to keep prices on the climb.

Violent Crimes Still Increasing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Violent crimes continued to show a substantial increase across the nation in the first nine months of 1959, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover reported today.

Hoover said there was an "almost insignificant" drop of about 1 per cent in the over-all crime rate for the period.

His report was based on preliminary crime data received from police departments in 554 cities of more than 25,000 population.

For January - September 1959, the reports reflected a 4 per cent increase in murder, 5 per cent increase in forcible rapes, a 7 per cent hike in aggravated assaults and a 1 per cent jump in larcenies involving more than $50.

These increases were offset by a 7 per cent decline in reported robberies, a 2 per cent drop in burglaries and 1 per cent fewer auto thefts.

Undaunted By Police Arrest

Declines Argue Historic Point

BOSTON (AP) — Paul Revere stood on the dark Charlestown shore, his eyes fixed on a church steeple across the harbor.

One if by land, two if by sea was the code which would tell him how the British foe approached.

Finally two lanterns glowed and he was off on the mission celebrated down the years in song and story—the midnight ride of Paul Revere in 1775.

Now, 184 years later, the question is rife as to identity of the spire.

The Rev. John Nicholls Booth says the Second Church, Unitarian, deserves the distinction, and the designation "Old North Church."

He told his congregation Sunday in a sermon the honor does not belong to Christ Church, Protestant Episcopal, long known as the Old North.

Dr. Booth gave numerous reasons and said many more can be found in his new book, "The Story of the Second Church."

In Revere's day, the Second Church was located in the North End, close to Christ Church, but now is situated in the Back Bay section.

Kennedy Critical Of Farm Policy

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — Eisenhower administration farm policies were sharply rapped by Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) in a talk Sunday to a Democratic rally.

"An administration that consistently refuses to advance a positive program for the farmer will not solve any of his problems," Kennedy declared.

He said Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson said in 1956 that the farm surplus storage problem had passed its peak.

But the facts of the matter," said Kennedy "are that, as price supports were reduced by the administration, surpluses mounted until today they are at a record level of nine billion dollars and still increasing."

Kennedy, considered a likely candidate for the Democratic nomination for president next year, said Benson talks about getting the government out of farm surplus storage, "yet after six and one-half years the cost of storage has quadrupled from $300,000 per day to a staggering cost of $1,250,000 every single day."

At a news conference Kennedy said the Taft-Hartley Act should be revised to give the President three or four alternate courses in settling bogged down labor disputes.

Kennedy said if the president is given several choices of action "it will be a greater incentive for labor and industry to reach an agreement themselves."

He described the Taft-Hartley Act as "a one-sided tool which broke the steel strike at the wrong time."

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—Electronic and space age stocks spurred ahead of a rising market early this afternoon.

Gains of as much as 6 and 7 points were common in the science group, while the balance of the list saw gains of but fractions to a point or so. Trading continued at a heavy pace after the ticker tape ran late for an eight-minute period just after the opening.

Motorola and Texas Instruments, two of 1959's top gainers, again forged ahead. An accumulation of "buy" orders delayed the opening of Motorola for over an hour while specialists attempted to match orders. The first block of 1.700 shares was up 6. Later prices were around this area. Texas Instruments was up more than 7 at one point.

Other space age stars included Ampex, up more than 3; Thiokol, around 2 1/2; Zenith nearly 2; Raytheon better than 2 and Radio Corp. 2.

Steels and motors were mixed, while rails, chemicals, tobaccos, aircrafts, oils and nonferrous metals joined the advance.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up 70 cents to $225.20 at noon. Industrials were ahead $1, rails 90 cents and utilities 20 cents.

Corporate bonds advanced. U.S. government bonds drifted lower.

Three Arrested By ABC Officers

Pitt County ABC officers arrested three local Negroes Saturday, two on liquor charges and one on charges of carrying a concealed weapon.

Connie Ray Jenkins, 26 of 211 Boyd Ave. and Senetta May, 37 of 212 Boyd Ave. were arrested and charged with illegal possession of non-tax-paid whiskey after officers found a small amount of illegal spirits in their possession at different times during the day.

Jenkins was placed under a $200 bond for appearance in Greenville Recorder's Court while the May woman was recognized to appear in court here this morning.

A third Negro, Landis Webster, 64 of 216 Center St. was placed under a $100 bond after officers charged him with carrying a concealed weapon. Officers charged the man after finding a pistol on him while searching a house.

Taking part in the arrests were ABC enforcers J.M. Ward, H.B. Lilley and Walter Taylor.

Military Courts Return To Cuba

PINAR DEL RIO, Cuba (AP)—Military tribunals, swept away in July after sending more than 500 Cubans to firing squads during Fidel Castro's first six months in power, swing back into action today.

Two Americans and 37 Cubans go on trial here in Pinar del Rio in the theater of a military camp on charges of being members of an armed band that tried to overthrow Castro.

The prosecution is asking the death penalty for one of the Americans, Austin Frank Young of Miami, Fla., and a Cuban member of ex-president Fulgencio Batista's army, Fernando Pruna Bertot.

The government seeks 30-year prison sentences for the other defendants, including Peter John Lambton of Nassau, Bahamas, a British-born American citizen, and two women. Five other persons also are being tried in absentia.

The government charges the defendants had two skirmishes with army patrols and that in one of them a soldier was killed.

Collection Points For Soil Test Program Announced

Collection points at which soil test materials may be obtained and the soil samples returned for delivery to the state laboratory have been announced by County Agent S. C. Winchester.

The collection points have been set up throughout the county as a part of a drive to have a soil test made on every farm in the county. The drive, which began the day after Thanksgiving will continue until Dec. 15.

Winchester said the soil tests are needed for two major reasons. They help the farmer determine how much and what types of fertilizers and lime to use. They help the farmer to appraise the progress he is making from year-to-year in building an abundance of fertility in the soil.

"The easiest way to cut costs per unit of production, and increase net income per unit, is to contribute towards high yield," Winchester declared. "Then you will know what is required from the bag of fertilizer to balance with that furnished by the land for a high, profitable yield."

The designated soil test supplies and collection points are: Ayden; Willis GoGrman's Store, Linwood Cannon's Filling Station, Walker Brown's Service Station, Vo-Ag Department.
